Pampa juvenile wins new trial

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

AMARILLO — A Pampa teen-ager, dubbed "Jack the Ripper" by a former Gray County prosecutor, will have a second chance to prove he didn't stab a man to death at a Halloween party 18 months ago.

The Seventh Court of Appeals last week reversed a Gray County jury's June murder conviction of 17-year-old Jesus DeLeon, who is currently serving 30 years in prison after being tried for the homicide as an adult.

The district attorney's office and DeLeon's attorney, David Holt of Pampa, were notified of the court's ruling on Friday.

The appeals court ruled that former Assistant District Attorney David Hamilton failed to include a key phrase on the summons notifying DeLeon of a discretionary transfer hearing.

During the hearing, 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany, acting on behalf of the juvenile court, ordered the teen to stand trial for murder as an adult.

DeLeon was in the Gray County Jail at the time the summons was issued.

In a week-long trial last June, a jury found DeLeon, then 16, guilty of stabbing 20-year-old Pete Ontiveros to death at the Coronado Inn during a Halloween party for employees and friends of Long John Silver's Seafood Shoppe, a Pampa fast-food franchise. Two other men also were injured after a fight broke out in the hotel's Starlight Room.

Hamilton said in closing arguments that DeLeon should have come to the party dressed as Jack the Ripper.

Testimony in the trial indicated that Long John Silver's Manager Curt Luedtke served two kegs and seven cases of beer — and several wine coolers — to guests at the party, many of whom were minors. That prompted Holt to ask if maybe Luedtke, not DeLeon, should be on trial.

DeLeon was sentenced to 30 years in prison by 223rd District Judge Don Cain.

Holt appealed the conviction and sentence last July on three grounds, one of which was that Hamilton failed to state on the summons that the purpose of the hearing was to consider transferring the case to district court.

The appeals court agreed, citing the Texas Family Code. It called the summons "fundamentally defective."

"It is at once apparent that neither the summons nor the petition to which it refers states that (DeLeon's) commanded appearance is for a hearing set for the pur-

Students react to FPC test

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

BORGER — Area students attending Frank Phillips College here have mixed reaction to a FPC Board of Regents proposal to adopt a drug testing program for scholarship students.

The regents voted on Monday to require that scholarship students agree to submit to drug testing. The policy, which goes into effect May 1, 1988, states that students are free to refuse to consent to drug testing. But those who decline will no longer be permitted to receive scholarships. Scholarship students who do not submit to a drug test will have to forfeit their scholarships.

FPC Dean of Students Steve Wilkinson said that just because students must agree to a drug test, that does not mean all students will be tested for drugs.

"If there is reasonable suspicion that someone is using drugs, then they will have to take the test," Wilkinson said, adding that regular students suspected of drug use will be subject to the school's regular discipline procedures.

Wilkinson explained that the policy was adopted in response to a federal government mandate that each college have a drug abuse education program.

"It started as an athletic drug testing policy, but we broadened it to include all students on scholarship," Wilkinson said.

The dean does not believe that testing students on scholarships targets the wrong group.

"A student wants something from us, a scholarship. We'll give it to him if he signs the authorization for the drug testing program," he said.

Pampa area students contacted by The Pampa News seemed to agree with the policy. But not Skellytown freshman Sissy Giddeon.

Garden club pushes park for insects

Pampa skies could be dotted with more colorful butterflies under a proposed Pampa Garden Club project to attract more of the fluttering creatures to the city.

Representatives of the club attended Thursday's meeting of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board to request that a small park site be dedicated as a butterfly park for the project.

Club President Thelma Bray said the club would like to see the city OK use of the landscaped section at the southeast corner of the Harvester and Duncan street intersection for planting of flowers, shrubbery and other plants to entice more varieties of butterfly species to Pampa.

Bray said the club members "have a lot of enthusiasm in the club to protect the butterflies and their needs."

The club wants to undertake efforts to preserve and develop butterfly habitats and to encourage the public to be aware of the habitats.

The Harvester and Duncan site would be one of the more visible butterfly habitats because of its location, Bray said. The site also is located near the cemetery and an area of the city that has a lot of trees, providing other nearby

Time stands still at domino table

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Staff Writer

Joe Shelton stares intently at the card board table for several seconds before he makes the big decision.

Joe spends the majority of his time nowadays just sitting, staring and thinking. It is an important decision that he contemplates.

Joe isn't worried about the house payment or the dog that needs to go to the vet, though. What is important is the decision on whether to play the double-six.

Joe is 99 — he'll be 100 on May 6 — and every day he can be found studying his hand as if the weight of the world will fall on him if he makes the wrong move.

Finally, he makes his move. He lays down the double-six and hopes it will be the game clincher for him.

Victory, it seems, is only moments away.

Welcome to the wonderful world of dominoes.

Dominoes as they should be played, the way the old-timers do it at the Pampa Senior Citizens Center.

While not exactly cut-throat in nature, you can find some fierce competition at the center almost any hour of the day.

"It gets pretty tacky in here if you don't know how to play," Joyce Puckett says.

The center's director since 1976, Puckett has seen thousands upon thousands of games since she began work at the center.

"Some of them come in when we open at 8 in the morning, and don't leave until we close at 4:30. In fact, we're lucky sometimes if we get out by 4:30."

With 14 sets of dominoes and many players who bring their own, if Pampa ever had a blizzard, the center would not be lacking for entertainment.

Joe Shelton is a domino sage. Born in 1887 in the country between Pampa and McLean, he's been playing dominoes since "the late '90s."

But, is he any good, you ask? "No. I'm not much good at it," Shelton says. "Some people just never learn, I guess."

Shelton's partner is Tom Jones. He's 80. He says there's room for improvement in his game, too.

"I win every once in a while," Jones says. Mr. Jones, your modesty is showing. You mean after a lifetime of playing dominoes, you're no good?

"Nah, no good," he assures.

PTL linked to homosexuality, wife swapping

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell learned during the past week about allegations that former PTL Club leader Jim Bakker used prostitutes and engaged in homosexual acts, and that some PTL members swapped spouses, a Falwell spokesman said Saturday.

But the spokesman, Mark DeMoss, said Falwell would have no comment on the latest allegations until Tuesday. That is when the PTL board is to meet in Fort Mill, S.C., and then disclose the results of internal investigations of alleged wrongdoing at PTL.

Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority, took over leadership of the PTL multimillion-dollar television ministry when Bakker resigned after admitting he had an extramarital sexual encounter seven years ago.

Bakker, 47, has remained in seclusion at his home in Palm Springs, Calif., since he resigned as PTL president last month after acknowledging a sexual liaison with Jessica Hahn, a 27-year-old church secretary.

The new charges were made public Friday night by the Rev. John Ankerberg, a Southern Baptist minister from Chattanooga, Tenn., whose "John Ankerberg Show" is broadcast weekly by three satellite television networks.

Ankerberg, appearing in interviews on CNN's "Larry King Live" and ABC's "Nightline," also said Bakker's wife, Tammy, knew of her husband's infidelity and at one point attempted to leave him.

Falwell's spokesman said of Ankerberg's claims only, "We had become aware of these things in the last week."

In a statement read to the AP by Falwell's wife, Maciel, the evangelist said it would be "presumptuous and unethical" of him to comment prior to the board meeting. But he said he would disclose the board's findings at a press conference in Charlotte after the meeting.

Jerry Nims, chief executive officer of The Old-Time Gospel Hour and a member of the new PTL board, also declined to comment directly on Ankerberg's claims. But he said in a telephone interview with The News & Daily Advance of Lynchburg that "some of the leadership down there went astray, and really just got out of control over the last few years. Our job now is just to get a grip on it."

PTL, which stands for Praise The Lord or People That Love, released a statement Friday night saying, in part, "We have no knowledge of any such problems and are not able to comment on Mr. Ankerberg's accusations at this time."

PTL spokesman Neil Eskelin could not be reached for comment Saturday despite repeated telephone calls to PTL offices in Fort Mill and Charlotte, N.C. There was no response to a message left on Eskelin's answering machine at home.

Ankerberg said on "Larry King Live" that his own investigation had led him to believe rumors of homosexual activity by Bakker.

"I talked to people that were there and people that ought to know who have said they have been witnesses to the fact," Ankerberg said. Asked whether he believed them, he said, "Yes, I do."

He also said Bakker "did participate, according to people I talked with, with prostitutes."

He said he had tape recordings of interviews with the witnesses, and that he had promised he would protect their identities as best he could.

Ankerberg alleged that an inner circle of top PTL officials had sex with each others' spouses and used prostitutes. He would not name the individuals.

He also said some PTL staffers he would not name were involved in misappropriation of funds.

Police report

The Pampa Police Department reported the following incidents for a 32-hour period ending at 3 p.m. Saturday.

FRIDAY, April 24
Billy Carr, 1317 Terrace, reported the theft of a gray and black female keeshound dog from the residence.

Kevin Lynn Heiskell, 400 Lowry, reported the theft of a 12-speed, 27-inch bicycle from the residence.

Jimmie Ray Medley Jr., 220 E. Tuke, reported a burglary at the residence.

Police reported a minor in possession incident in the 1400 block of South Hobart.

SATURDAY, April 25
Ruby Irene Moxon of Lefors reported a burglary of a 1985 Jeep parked in the 600 block of South Cuyler.

Kurtis Kirkham, 1936 N. Christy, reported a forced entry burglary at the residence.

Arrests
SATURDAY, April 25
Mark William Rodgers, 17, of 936 Campbell was arrested at 400 N. Carr on charges of driving while intoxicated and having defective equipment. He was released on bond.

Janet Addington Jenkins, 25, of 617 Yeager was arrested on a charge of driving while license was suspended.

The men, on the other hand, act as if they don't recall such a thing. In fact, none of the men claim to have been on the losing team. None of the men even wish to comment on the women's stunning victory.

The men will try to redeem themselves in this year's tourney, which is still in the planning stages.

No date has been set, but the television networks might do well to set aside a few extra minutes on the evening news when it does happen.

In the middle of the room sits four of those dastardly women players.

The ones who took part in last year's beating. Ola Hamilton flashes the double-six in front of my face and asks, "You think I ought to play this?"

Before I could answer, she throws it down on the table, making a key move toward victory.

"I know where the deuce-trey is," she whispers. As good as she is, she does admit the men are even better.

"They can go around twice and know what I have in my hand. How do you suppose they do that?" Ethel Willson is 81. She's been a Pampan for 55 years.

You learn with some of these veterans, like Ethel, what and what not to ask.

After all, it should go without saying that some of these ladies are good at this game.

"You're darn right I'm good," she says. "Because I've been playing so long."

Ethel says she's been playing since she was 5 years old.

Dan Reed, 71, is, by his own admission "a young boy" compared to some of the other center regulars.

"It's a good clean sport," he says. "Helps pass the time for us old-timers. 'We're just like a bunch of kids around here.'" areas for the butterflies, she explained.

Park

The development of the small, landscaped site for a butterfly park is "all dependent" on whether the board thinks the site is proper for such a habitat, she told the board members.

Bray said the Pampa Garden Club also is considering other sites throughout the city for development, though not all would be on city park grounds. She said the club hopes to obtain more public support for the development of various, butterfly habitats in the city.

She showed the board members some drawings and photographs of various species of butterflies and examples of the vegetation that could be planted.

Chairman Duane Harp said he would like to see the site developed again, noting that the Harvester-Duncan plot had previously been landscaped and then allowed to deteriorate.

Bray said the area would need some maintenance work, including the repair or reactivating of a water sprinkler system at the site.

Parks Superintendent Bill Hilbrandt said the system was not working last year. He said it would be a relatively simple matter to install a faucet head, but more extensive work would be required if the whole system needs repairs or extensive renovation.

Bray said the garden club members would take care of providing and planting the vegetation but the city would need to dig some holes for some of the shrubbery. She also said the watering system should be repaired to provide regular watering of the plants and grass.

Bray said she realizes the parks department does not have as much help as in past years because of cutbacks in the parks staff. But she said she hopes the city can approve the development of the small butterfly park. She said she thinks later maintenance would be fairly simple.

"We want it to be special," she stated.

The board took no action on the request since it was not an agenda item, but said it would give the proposal consideration at later meetings.

Trial

pose of considering discretionary transfer to criminal court," reads the opinion by Chief Justice Charles L. Reynolds.

Hamilton conceded in arguments before the appeals court that the summons "failed to contain the magic language of discretionary transfer."

But, he contended, prior proceedings had given DeLeon plenty of notice concerning what the hearing was about.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy originally waived jurisdiction for the juvenile court but DeLeon's attorneys asked for a new hearing before Judge McIlhany because Kennedy is not a law-trained judge.

"How many times must the state dot its i's and cross its t's, and if one i is not dotted may the appellant lie behind the log and jump up and scream 'fundamental error on appeal' when every other i is dotted in the record," Hamilton asked.

Justice Reynolds responded that "the question is not one of dotting i's and crossing t's, but whether the summons contained language required by statute.

"Obviously, the summons does not pass statutory muster," Reynolds wrote.

Holt said Friday that he is pleased with the appeals court's decision, but not surprised.

"It's just disturbing to see a 16-year-old kid serving a 30-year prison sentence," Holt said. He added that he probably will continue to represent his court-appointed client.

Assistant District Attorney Harold Comer said it's too soon to decide whether he will re-open the case. He said he first has to check on the availability of witnesses and evidence.

"I didn't try it," Comer said Friday. "I'm going to have to take a long hard look at the case."

Comer has 45 days to reach a decision, during which time DeLeon will remain in prison. If the prosecutor chooses to re-open the case, DeLeon will be transferred to the county jail, pending his ability to make bond.

Because DeLeon is now legally an adult, both Comer and Holt said they are unsure whether the juvenile court will again have to waive jurisdiction in the case. The stabbing occurred shortly after DeLeon's 16th birthday.

me, as long as they're paying for it."

A urinalysis would cost $45. The donor would have to be accompanied by another person while giving the sample.

Greene admitted she was relieved that the policy does not take effect until May, 1988.

"So, hopefully, I'll be out by then," she said.

Lefors freshman Jeff Wilcox said the policy doesn't bother him at all, either.

"I think it will help us more than it's going to hurt us," said Wilcox, at FPC on a vocal music scholarship. "Drugs are illegal to start with."

Wilcox said he doesn't know of anyone who abuses drugs.

Amy Goldsmith, also of Lefors, admitted she doesn't know anything about the policy.

But she said that such a policy would be O.K. if it wasn't limited to scholarship students.

"Either they should test everybody or they should test nobody," said Goldsmith, who is attending FPC on a valedictorian scholarship.

Wilkinson admitted students have not welcomed the new policy warmly. Some students have suggested that the FPC faculty, staff, even the regents, submit to the same policy.

"And there is a good chance that the rules can expand to include faculty," Wilkinson said.

Although FPC is following a trend toward drug testing, not all area colleges are following suit.

Leonard "Tex" Selvidge, dean of students at Clarendon College, said there are no plans to institute drug testing at the Clarendon or Pampa campuses.

Test

"It's an invasion of students' privacy," declared Giddeon, who is attending FPC on a rodeo scholarship.

"How are you going to tell if a person is on drugs?" Giddeon asked. "If anyone uses drugs, you can't tell just by looking. Not that I do drugs or anything."

"I guess it looked good for the college to say 'we're the first junior college to do drug testing,'" she said, adding that singling out scholarship students is not discriminatory.

"The students on scholarships represent the school," said Giddeon, who is maintaining a B average but has not yet declared a major.

Pampa freshman Amie Greene, also on a rodeo scholarship, said, "It doesn't bother me, as long as they're paying for it."

A urinalysis would cost $45. The donor would have to be accompanied by another person while giving the sample.

Greene admitted she was relieved that the policy does not take effect until May, 1988.

the center. They wage a friendly battle day after day.

"I'm good, but he isn't," Kretz says of Eller. "He brags on himself a lot," Eller rebuts.

Kretz says he's been playing dominoes "ever since I could shake the dog loose."

"Don't ask him how long he's been playing," Eller says. "Ask him how long he's been playing honest."

Eller, who admits he's been playing for only six months, says the reason Kretz plays is "he's got suckers like us he can beat, that's how come he plays."

Eighty-three-year-old O.S. Epperson also sits at the table while Eller and Kretz continue their harmless bickering.

Epperson is the quiet one. He lets his dominoes do the talking.

He says he plays because "it gives us old people something to do."

Eller is more thought-provoking in his analysis. "It's like fishing. It keeps your mind off your troubles."

There is one taboo subject at the center. One subject that, while the women will talk about it, the men choose not to remember.

It was just last year that all the players sat down for a round-robin domino tournament.

The history books and personal diaries will forever indicate it was 1986 that the women beat the men in the tournament.

The women have plenty to say about it: "Those men play for blood," says Ola Hamilton. Says Loraine Adcox: "After we beat them last year, they haven't played us since." Adds 84-year-old Bonnie Hogan: "They felt very low, I imagine."

Off Beat

Two class acts shine

PHILADELPHIA — It was a week filled with emotion in the City of Brotherly Love. Two of the classiest acts in the drug- and scandal-laden world of professional sports reached major milestones in their career.

On Saturday, Phillies' third-baseman Mike Schmidt joined the likes of Ruth, Aaron, Mantle and Mays in the exclusive 500 homer club.

Schmitt's blast typified what he has meant to a struggling ball club over the years; it came in the ninth inning to lift the Phillies to victory over their cross-Pennsylvania rivals in Pittsburgh.

Then on Sunday, Julius Erving, the 76ers' Dr. J, played his final regular season game ever. In honor of the occasion, Philadelphians young and old, rich and poor, came to the game dressed to the hilt in tuxedos.

Although he didn't begin his career there, Philadelphia has adopted Dr. J as one of its own since he came over from the defunct American Basketball Association in the late '70s. He was the ABA, and, for a number of years, he was the NBA, too.

He definitely was the Sixers — the man everybody came to see, whether at home in the Philadelphia Spectrum, or on the road.

Dr. J. The mention of his name conjures up images of a spinning, leaping forward who dazzled crowds and confounded opponents for over a decade with moves that defied the laws of gravity and physics.

He ended his career in Philadelphia on a high note, scoring 24 points against the Washington Bullets, who, like every other NBA team, honored The Doctor with gifts and accolades when he made his final visit to their city. Two nights before, he scored 38.

Both Schmitt and The Doc belie the sometimes-deserved image of professional athletes as overpaid, underworked, cocaine-snorting crybabies.

Both are family men, who give of their time to charitable causes in and out of the Greater Philadelphia metropolis, and who speak eloquently, without being pious, about Christian values.

Both are Class with a capital C, and that makes their successes all the more delightful to those fans who could do with fewer Boz-ish brats and more old-fashioned heroes in the sports world.

Monday, Philadelphians held a parade downtown in honor of Dr. J, and all that he's accomplished in his brilliant career.

The three states that comprise the Delaware Valley area — Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware — were all well-represented, showering The Doctor and the charities he loves with gifts.

It was a fitting send-off.

But no more fitting, really, than the send-offs Dr. J received in every NBA city across this great land during his final tour this year.

Everywhere, there were gifts and speeches — and good basketball, because The Doctor was in town. And true basketball fans — realizing they were seeing one of the best ever to play the game — cheered every spectacular point The Doctor made against their home teams.

The Washington fans gave him two standing ovations in his final regular-season game. They knew.

Before the game, senators and congressmen put aside their differences long enough to honor The Doctor as "ambassador of basketball" in a joint House-Senate resolution, summing up the feelings of the nation they represent.

Is there anyone else in professional sport whose impending retirement would merit such sentiment across America?

Probably not. Heroes like Dr. J — and Schmitt — are coming fewer and further between these days.

Auditorium board to discuss holiday

Plans for Pampa's second annual July Fourth celebration will continue when the M.K. Brown Auditorium Advisory Board meets at 5:15 p.m. Monday.

The board has tentatively planned to hold a two-day Independence Day celebration July 3 and 4 on the auditorium grounds. Planned are carnival games, food booths and an old-time medicine show.

The board also plans to discuss items to request for the auditorium's 1987-88 budget, including patio resurfacing, new carpeting, a storage shed, a new parquet floor for the Heritage Room and allocating money for brochures.

In other action, the board is scheduled to:

- discuss a proposal to set up a farmer's market in the auditorium parking lot;
- continue discussions on establishing a Top O' Texas Revue show at the auditorium;
- discuss placement of a statue of Perry Lefors;
- appoint three board members;
- discuss obtaining sound equipment, portable staging and a hoist for portable staging; and
- view new cyke and scrim curtains.

Guest speaker at the meeting will be Dr. Harold Price of Dalton, Ga. Price is a retired school principal and considered an expert on developmental kindergarten.

Businessman's killer vows to fight sentence

LIBERTY (AP) — After Nelson Wayne Mooney was sentenced to die for the 1984 shooting death of a businessman, he turned to the prosecutor and said, "It's not over."

The jury deliberated 75 minutes Thursday before finding Mooney, 31, of Houston guilty of capital murder. It deliberated 45 minutes Friday before returning to the courtroom with a recommendation that Mooney be sentenced to death.

The jury ruled that Mooney deliberately killed Raymond William Garner, 63, of Channelview, who owned a trucking business. The jury also concluded that Mooney would probably commit violent acts again unless he were executed.

Another litter bit

Roger Lamb of the local American Business Club (AMBUCS) picks up trash along north Texas Highway 70 Saturday morning as part of local participation in the statewide Great Texas Trash-Off highway cleanup project. Clean Pampa Inc. coordinator Kathy Massick reported all eight local groups in the Adopt-A-Highway program participated in the one-day cleanup sponsored by the Texas highway department and supported by Keep Texas Beautiful Inc. Massick estimated 300 to 400 garbage bags were filled with trash here during the Saturday effort.

Three killed when crane topples

DALLAS (AP) — A construction crane toppled Saturday as it was being dismantled in downtown Dallas, injuring the operator and killing three workers who were positioned along its boom, 12 stories above the ground, when it collapsed.

Witnesses said the mast began to sway about 10 a.m. CDT, and fell away from the garage across a block-long parking lot filled with parked cars and six 18-wheeler trucks waiting to take pieces of the crane to Houston. The tip of the crane landed in the middle of Pacific Avenue, on the east edge of the downtown business district.

The boom and supporting structure of the T-shaped crane flattened one car and smashed across at least a half-dozen other vehicles, officials said.

None of the drivers or any workers on the ground were hurt.

The dead were identified as Steve Ketcher, 24, of Royston City; David Riley, 29, of Euless; and Michael Weaver, 26, of Grand Prairie.

Some witnesses and police officers said the three men on the boom jumped just as the crane hit the ground, but others said they could not tell if the men jumped or fell.

The crane's operator, Jeffrey Burns, 35, of Lewisville walked away from the accident and was reported in fair condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital.

Ketcher was trapped beneath the debris for about 20 minutes until rescue workers could pry him loose. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Riley died at 11:31 a.m., shortly after being transported by ambulance to Baylor University Medical Center, hospital spokesman Mark Leitner said.

Weaver was pronounced dead at Parkland Memorial Hospital at 11:35 a.m., officials said.

Dallas Police Corp. R.C. Nettles said Ketcher "didn't stand a chance. He rode the crane all the way down. He had no way of buffering his fall."

Police closed two normally busy downtown streets after the accident. Crews brought in heavy equipment to help move the debris.

The collapse uprooted the crane from its concrete foundation next to an unfinished addition to a 7-story parking garage in the 2200 block of Elm Street. Elm, Pacific and Olive streets were closed for hours.

"It wasn't a quick fall, like you'd dropped it from the sky," said Karl Sharff, who watched from a nearby building. "It was kind of slow, and it was like you had an erector set and it just fell apart. It hit the ground and bounced once. There were wires popping, and blue and white flame coming from the base."

Huge concrete slab counterweights, used to help balance the nearly 12-story crane, pounded sections of twisted steel and wire mesh several feet into the asphalt.

Dallas Police Sgt. G.S. Beck said the three men atop the crane "apparently rode the crane down as it fell and jumped off when it got close to the ground."

Trucker Richard Williamson, who had been waiting to haul away parts of the crane, said, "It sounded like a cannon when it went down."

"They'd just set one section of the boom off and they were spinning it around to take the counterweights off, that's when it toppled," Williamson said.

The crane fell away from where it had been poised over a 7-story parking garage and dozens of workers who were inside.

Area students advance to UIL state contest

Six area students advanced to state University Interscholastic League literary competition following regional contests at Levelland Friday.

Janetta Lamb, Groom High School teacher, said four Groom students earned the opportunity to attend the state Class 1A meet at Austin May 8-9. Also advancing are one each from Wheeler and Miami.

Groom winners are Vincent Meaker, second in headline writing; Christy Jackson, second in accounting; Jamie Duke, third in poetry; and Erin Eschle, third in persuasive speaking.

Augie Hennard of Wheeler placed first in ready writing, and Shelly Hale of Miami gained third in typing.

The top three placers in each event advance to state competition, Lamb said.

Three Groom students were named first alternate in their events, with the right to compete in case other students fail to show up for the state meet. They are Daniel Lambert, Lincoln-Douglas debate; Loretta Kuehler, news writing; and Lezlie Sweatt, poetry.

Jason Eschle of Groom placed sixth in science.

Business chapter to discuss COBRA

AMARILLO — The Panhandle Texas Association of Business Chapter at Amarillo and the Panhandle Personnel Association will be sponsoring a seminar on the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act.

The seminar will be held Tuesday from 7:45 to 11:30 a.m. at the Amarillo First National Bank's Centennial Room, 8th and Taylor.

The seminar will begin with a continental breakfast, followed by a presentation by Harry D. Spring, partner in actuarial, benefits and compensation consulting group of Coopers & Lybrand's Dallas office.

The presentation will cover an overview of COBRA, cost-cutting recommendations, responsibilities and liabilities under the law and COBRA II (the Technical Corrections Act to COBRA I). There will be a question and answer session.

Bob Sumpter, vice president for employee relations for TAB in Austin, will also speak on timely employee relations topics and services that TAB offers its membership.

COBRA requires employers to extend their group health and dental coverage to terminated employees for 18 months. It also requires extension of coverage to divorced or widowed spouses or dependents who become ineligible for coverage, in many cases for 36 months. This change is effective for events occurring on or after Dec. 1, 1986.

Cost at the door is $25 for TAB members and $30 for non-members.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covering commandment.

Press must be free to uproot corruption

In today's litigious society, newspapers that aggressively expose wrongdoing by public figures risk costly court battles and multi-million dollar punitive judgments by juries unsympathetic to hard-hitting reporting. In recent years, reporters have relied increasingly on higher courts to overturn libel verdicts inconsistent with the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech and the press.

That's why an appeals court ruling in 1985 reinstating a $2 million jury award against the Washington Post had a chilling influence on U.S. investigative reporting. Most recently, however, the full U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia rejected the libel judgment, on grounds the newspaper's expose had been substantially true and it had acted without malice in publishing it.

The higher court's ruling is a victory not only for investigative reporting but also for the public interest, which is served by enterprising efforts to ferret out mischief in high places. Repressive libel suits that deter reporters and others from responsibly bringing to light misdeeds by public figures only make it easier for corruption to hide from the powerful corrective of public scrutiny.

The case against the Washington Post was brought by former Mobil Oil Corp. President William Tavoulares. The paper had reported that Mr. Tavoulares misused Mobil's assets to "set up" his son, Peter, 24, as a partner in a shipping firm whose business relied heavily on transporting Mobil petroleum. Although the trial court judge dismissed the jury's award against the Post, a three-judge federal panel later reimposed it, arguing the newspaper's policy of encouraging "hard-hitting investigative journalism" constituted "malice" and "reckless disregard" for the truth.

Ultimately, the full court of appeals correctly ruled that adopting an adversarial position is within a newspaper's professional responsibility and is protected by the First Amendment which, the court said, "forbids penalizing the press for encouraging its reporters to expose wrongdoing by public corporations and public figures."

Indeed, the news media's skeptical stance toward government and other public institutions is a fundamental obligation of a free press in an open society. The press can only uphold the role intended for it by the Constitution when it is unfettered to report the truth, regardless of whom it offends.

Promoting general welfare

During a recent dinner conversation with Rep. Dick Armey, R.-Texas, the conversation turned to the budget. I asked the congressman whether anyone in Congress ever questions the constitutionality and morality of government actions. His reply was that the few who do are branded as being either grouches or trouble-makers.

Congressmen tell us it's our duty to pay our fair share of the cost of government. I agree. We should all pay our fair share for the legitimate functions of government. But how can you tell what's legitimate? That was a good question as we were sweating over our 1040 forms prior to the April 15 income tax filing deadline. But let's start the dialogue with a small scenario.

Say there's a society consisting of 12 people. If you don't like 12, just add some zeros. Jane is a farmer who harvests 200 bushels of wheat a year. Bill grows 189 bushels of corn. Likewise, the other 10 people are productively engaged. Their government enforces contracts, adjudicates disputes, and provides defense. Most of us can easily agree that since those government benefits cost something, all 12 should shoulder their share of its costs.

But suppose Harry gets sick, and Tom confiscates some of Jane's wheat to help Harry out?

Most people call that theft. But suppose they voted and a majority called for the confiscation of some of Jane's wheat. Would that change anything? Those taught that "majority rule" is sacred might think that something when done privately is theft but becomes magically "caring" and "full of concern" when done collectively. By that criteria, apartheid, slavery, gang rapes, and genocide could be deemed moral when condoned by a majority.

Some people might say, "Williams, you're being too simplistic; we live in a complex society." I ask, "In a complex society, what is the moral case for the confiscation of one person's property to give it to another?"

With this scenario in mind, the Bicentennial year of our Constitution is a good time to badger our congressmen regarding the constitutionality of many of their actions. Here are just a few questions that will stump any baby-kissing, hand-shaking, tap-dancing congressman. Begin each question with: "Where in the Constitution...?" Just make sure you have a copy of the Constitution handy; congressmen, being first and foremost politicians, can be creative.

Ask what is the constitutional basis for Social Security taxes. After they answer, "To promote the general welfare," follow up by asking whether Congress can deny Social Security to those who paid in to it. If they say no, refer them to the 1960 Supreme Court decision, "Flemming vs. Nestor" wherein the court said, "To engraft upon the Social Security system a concept of 'accrued property rights' would deprive it of the flexibility and boldness..."

Ask what is the constitutional basis for boondoggles like Urban Development Action Grants. That's giving your money to rich hotel chains and other private entities to pay for underground parking lots on their property. Again, the congressman might whine, "To provide for the general welfare."

The fact of the matter is: There is no constitutional basis for nearly two-thirds of federal expenditures. What the Framers had in mind when they wrote "provide for the general welfare" is that Congress should make those expenditures that benefit all Americans, such as typhoid eradication, building roads or dams, and providing for defense, not particular Americans, like food stamps and business bailouts. Given congressional flexibility in the interpretation of providing for the general welfare, we could find ourselves ordered to be in bed by 10 p.m. and exercising by six a.m.

'Gone with the Wind' sequel

The estate of Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone with the Wind," finally has decided to allow the long-awaited sequel to the classic, beloved novel.

The William Morris Agency was given the task of finding the right person to produce the sequel, and rumor has it this person will be a Southern woman, as was Mrs. Mitchell.

I had hoped to get the nod myself, and I had spent months arranging my thoughts in preparation for what would have been my most momentous work.

Pity, but I ask that you, my readers, be the judge of whether or not the William Morris Agency has set fire to its own plantation by not picking me.

I offer you this brief sketch of just what I had in mind for the sequel of "GWTW":

Seeing, Scarlett slams the door as Rhett walks away, his final, biting words, "Frankly, my dear, etc. etc." ringing in her ears.

For months she broods alone, stuffing herself with self-pity and Dove Bars.

One day, there is a knock on her door. Scarlett answers, and there stands Prissy, a former slave at Tara.

"Oh, Prissy," exclaims Scarlett. "You've come back to take care of me!"

"Once a honky, always a honky," replies Prissy.

"I just bought this old mansion, and I'm turning it into a recording studio. I got 'The Shirelles' comin' in for a session, and they don't know nuthin' 'bout birthin' babies, either, so out of my face, Fatso."

Scarlett, now homeless and alone, wanders aimlessly for days until she is arrested for suspicion of solicitation at a bus stop in Cheraw, S.C. A kindly sheriff, W.L. "Bubba" Sherman, the general's nephew who got the job when his uncle pulled a few strings with the Reconstruction boys, notices her soft hands and a lady-like demeanor and realizes she's not a hooker.

He takes her back to his condo, falls in love with her and sends her to aerobics classes so she can regain her girlish figure.

But Scarlett realizes the only man for her is her darling Rhett, who is back in Charleston, where he has become a faith healer.

Scarlett leaves Sheriff Bubba with $400 worth of health club bills and hitchhikes her way to Charleston and finds Rhett conducting a tent revival.

Just as Rhett is about to cure a rather stubborn case of sinus, he looks up and sees his darling Scarlett walk into the tent.

"Praise the Lord!" shouts Rhett, pulling his fingers from the nostrils of his subject.

"Oh, Rhett," she pants. "Whatever can I do to help?"

"When I point at you," Rhett answers, "sob."

That's all I have room for, but I guess it's just as well I'm not writing the sequel to "Gone with the Wind."

Nobody would have bought the part about Rhett and Scarlett's great, great, great granddaughter, Tammy Faye, anyway.

Donaldson displays worst traits

Being a journalist means never having to say you're sorry.

It means never acknowledging, for example, that your profession brought pressure to bear on the Reagan administration that resulted in the arms-for-hostages fiasco.

It means never admitting that the coverage of the space shuttle's flight delays — or, more precisely, the tone of the coverage — may have helped goad NASA officials into the fateful decision to launch Challenger in freezing weather.

For someone like ABC's Sam Donaldson, as revealed in his new book "Hold On, Mr. President!," being a journalist apparently means not even thinking about such things.

Donaldson's book should be read only by those in a penitential mood. Its prose is that uninspired. Still, the effort does reveal what sort of person a powerful network prefers for its premier White House beat. The answer: a man of surprising self-absorption and professional complacency.

Donaldson is not merely unreflective. He is the intellectual equivalent of a belch. In a typical insight, he assures us that presidents put their pants on one leg at a time.

Still, Donaldson's use of cliché is not as depressing as his blinkered conception of his profession. He describes journalism as little more than an attempt to prod officials into explaining their policies, all the while on guard for a lie.

This is fine so far as it goes. Journalists should indeed prod officials, and Donaldson is better at the task than most of us. Yet Donaldson seems to believe that if the public only appreciated the role of the press as he defines it, distrust of the media would disappear.

If only that were so. In fact, many people share a more valid critique of the press. They resent its preening arrogance, its ritual denials of obvious bias, its refusal to glance back and acknowledge the occasional (and sometimes inevitable) wreckage it leaves behind.

How often does a major media outlet admit more than routine factual errors? How often does a network or newspaper declare that the emphasis or interpretation of an entire story was incorrect?

Predictably, one result of this attitude is a blindness to the media's own role in policies that go sour.

Before last fall's arms-for-hostages revelations, for example, the press permitted itself to be used in a campaign led by the wife of hostage Jeremy Levin to pressure the Reagan administration into escalating its efforts to free the captives. Story after story left the impression of official insensitivity.

Similarly with the space shuttle. Far from sympathizing with NASA's difficulties in keeping pace with an ambitious launch schedule, the media applied subtle pressure on the agency to perform. On the evening of Challenger's last flight day, for example, both ABC and CBS led off broadcasts in a derisive tone.

Observed Peter Jennings: "Once again a flawless liftoff proved too much of a challenge for Challenger."

Said Dan Rather: "Yet another costly, red-faces-all-around space shuttle launch delay."

Ultimately, of course, NASA bears responsibility for the launch fiasco, as Reagan does for the arms sales to Iran. Yet is it too much to ask that journalists occasionally reflect on such matters?

Donaldson has been covering big stories for many years. Sadly, given a chance to put that career in perspective, he uncorks a tiresome recitation of personal exploits, a valentine of self-congratulation.

Letters to the editor

Savagery begets continued savagery

To the editor:
 Allow me to express my deep concern about the use of the death penalty in the United States. I live in Denmark, which abolished the death penalty many years ago. So have all other countries in Europe. In fact, there is a worldwide trend towards abolition.
 Unfortunately, it seems that United States is going against this trend, executing more and more prisoners every year.
 Everybody has a right to life. The death penalty is a cruel and inhumane punishment, and I reject the notion that execution is a fitting response to violent crimes.
 No crime, however repugnant, can justify a punishment that repays murder with execution.
 Hoping that I will soon be hearing the good news that the death penalty will be abolished in Texas, I want to end this letter by quoting the famous Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov: "I reject the notion that the death penalty has any essential effect on potential offenders. I am convinced that the contrary is true — that savagery begets only savagery."

Blacks and poor are targets for execution

To the editor:
 I am writing to you as a member of Amnesty International about a matter that is of great concern to me, namely the increasing number of death sentences and executions in the United States. This increase goes against a worldwide trend to abolish the death penalty.
 I deeply regret that Texas has had the highest number of executions since 1976 compared with other states in the United States, and that Texas and South Carolina are the only U.S. states that have executed juvenile offenders since 1964.

Another matter of serious concern is that there is evidence of racial discrimination in the application of the death penalty. According to the Bowers and Pierce study, blacks who kill whites are far more likely to be sentenced to death than whites who kill whites. I have reason to fear that serious miscarriages of justice have occurred and will continue to occur because of the inadequate defense counsel offered to indigent capital defendants.

There is also evidence that suggests that defendants with court-appointed lawyers in Texas are more than twice as likely to receive a death sentence than those with a privately retained counsel.

I would also like to make a point about the use of psychiatric testimony in Texas to predict "future dangerousness" of capital defendants. In more than 100 cases involving one particular psychiatrist, juries have subsequently returned death sentences in all but one case.

I urge that these facts be more widely known in Texas.

Big shots won't give Joe and Jane the pie

To the editor:
 All of us who are willing to participate in the present and future of Pampa are in a position of responsibility.

Elected officials too often lose sight of the average Joe and Jane and what they have, can and will contribute to our city.

I, too, moved away for a while, but only for the two years I was asked to help during the Korean War and 18 months later when I attended a TV technician's school in St. Louis.

I always felt Pampa would be mine and our children's home, because contrary to those people who feel we have nothing to offer new businesses or potential industry unless we build a public golf course — I know we do.

We have moved forward. Look around. We have a fine facility in our M.K. Brown Auditorium and the Chamber Community Building (which was funded without taxpayers' money). Our Clarendon College Pampa Center hopefully will grow. Our school system has to make no apologies. TSTI is less than an hour's drive if the need for training or retraining of our labor force should arise.

West Texas State, a four-year college is within easy reach for our children to attend and yet be able to spend weekends with the family. Lake Meredith is there for boating and water sports pleasure, also within easy reach. Lake McClellan is as fine family outing place as one can find. Hopefully it can be improved.

I find no fault with our area farmers or ranchers being concerned about the possible polluting of their and our drinking water. We must protect the Ogallala aquifer at all costs. Without water, there is no future. I applaud those people and their efforts in trying to assume that a giant international concern will not rob us of our water through pollution.

Would Pampa die without Celanese? No. We'd survive. When faced with a calamity or catastrophe, time and again, people come together and work together harder than before.
 We pull through.

If we let people or corporations intimidate us to a point that we no longer have the capacity to say no, then we have died to a certain extent.

Most importantly we have abdicated one of our most important rights. That of freedom of speech.

I think I know how Mr. and Mrs. Greene and others feel because of criticism of Celanese's proposed injection well. Making a stand for what you believe most often is not the popular stand. It may not even be the right position or argument, but that difference of opinion or position is guaranteed by our Constitution.

Pampa can and will survive. We all can ensure that by participating. We will not always agree on everything, but we can get involved and let those who for too long have controlled our destiny here, know that this is totally unacceptable!

For too long, certain cliques in every small town and some large cities have had all the say. Unless they get their big piece of the pie — there was no pie for anyone! The "old establishment" must make room for all.

By no means do I intend to imply that this system has contributed nothing to our city, but listen closely and read this newspaper, and it is not very difficult to find those who still want all the rooms at the "top" for them and "theirs."

Everybody's 2 cents' worth is valuable and must be heard and does contribute and count!

Center gives care

To the editor:
 Many people today are attempting to select a nursing home for a family member. As a result of trial and effort, my family would like to suggest the Coronado Nursing Center, 1504 W. Kentucky, here in Pampa.

When we were in the process of searching for a good home, no one recommended a nursing home in Pampa; other towns were mentioned but never Pampa.

From our experiences in other places, including the "finest," we want to tell everyone that the Coronado Nursing Center is a fine facility and is providing excellent care for our mother, Mrs. Gladys Osborn, thanks to the administration and staff there.

Official designations keep Legislature busy

Texas guest columnist

By KEN BRODNAX
 The Odessa American

Among the items of business for this session, the Texas Legislature has voted to make the Lightning Whelk the official state seashell.

Naturally, this should excite seashell fans everywhere.

But wait just a minute. Isn't this whole "official whatever" thing getting a bit out of hand? Sure, there are certain items that a state can't get along without.

For instance, the ball started rolling back about the turn of the century when the 21st Legislature designated the bluebonnet as the state flower.

Naturally, no state would want to be caught without a state song. That problem was solved in 1929 when "Texas, Our Texas" was adopted by lawmakers.

Of course, that melody has endured plenty of trials and tribulations ever since. Seems most Texans insist on considering "The Eyes of Texas," which really belongs to the University of Texas, as the real state song.

In logical — or maybe not so logical — progression, legislators have created a state tree (pecan), a state gemstone (topaz), a state grass (sideoats gramma), a state stone (palmwood) and even a state dish (chili, what else).

Rep. John Willy, R-Angleton, offered the resolution to add the Lightning Whelk to that honored list.

"It is fitting we name the Lightning Whelk the official seashell to represent the coastal areas of the state," Willy claimed, adding that the shell is appropriate as a state symbol because it is found only on the Texas Gulf coast and in no other state.

That brings to mind several other unique things in the Lone Star State that are being ignored.

Doesn't it seem perfectly normal that J.R. Ewing should be proclaimed the official state villain? After all, he's focused plenty of attention (even though a lot of it is unwanted) on Dallas and the great state of Texas.

Gov. Clements sells stock in Schlumberger Ltd.

DALLAS (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and his wife have sold all their stock in Schlumberger Ltd., a giant oil-well service company whose operations in Libya drew criticism from Democrats during the gubernatorial race last year, a Clements aide said.

But the stock sale had nothing to do with the criticism, said Reggie Bashur, the governor's press secretary.

"It was a personal business decision and had absolutely nothing to do with the campaign," Bashur told the Dallas Morning News Friday.

Clements joined the Schlumberger board of directors in 1984 after the company he founded, Sedco Inc., merged with the Netherlands Antilles corporation.

Schlumberger, with offices in New York and Paris, is the world's largest oil-well service company.

The governor resigned as a director of the six-member Schlumberger executive committee in June, he said, to devote more time to his campaign against then-Gov. Mark White.

Clements owned 1.7 million shares of the company's stock in March 1986.

Murder trial set for 'Animal'

BELTON (AP) — After repeated delays and complaints about its expense, the capital murder trial of a tattoo-covered convict who calls himself "Animal" is scheduled to begin Monday.

Jerry McFadden, 39 — a four-time convict from Ore City who led East Texas lawmen on a three-day chase last summer — is going on trial for the May 1986 slaying of Hawkins High School honor student Suzanne Harrison, 18.

The heavily publicized trial has stalled four times, three times on defense motions for continuance and the last time by Upshur County officials who said they couldn't afford the costly capital murder trial.

The rural East Texas county allocated $50,000 for the trial and received $43,000 in state assistance to hire a special prosecutor, but officials expect the trial to cost as much as $250,000.

Sen. Richard Anderson, D-Marshal, and Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, are expected to meet with Gov. Bill Clements Monday to see whether the state will grant additional funds for the trial.

The case was moved to Bell County earlier this year after a judge determined there had been too much pre-trial publicity in Upshur County. And last Thursday, State District Judge F.L. Garrison issued a gag order after information concerning last-minute semen tests was leaked to the news media.

Prior to the gag order, court appointed defense attorney Vernard Solomon, a Marshall criminal attorney, said McFadden was a victim of circumstance.

"He was just in the wrong place at the wrong time," Solomon said.

Solomon claims McFadden's past criminal history made him a perfect target for Wood and Upshur counties law enforcement officials "who needed to pin the murder on someone quick."

In 1972, McFadden pleaded guilty to the rape of 14-year-old girl in Denton. One year later, he pleaded guilty to the rape of a junior high school teacher in Haskell.

Then in 1978, he went on a day-long rampage through West Texas, taking an 18-year-old Hamlin secretary hostage and raping her. He received 15 years for the crimes after pleading guilty.

In 1986, a Bexar County jury gave him a life sentence for aggravated robbery in the theft of two cans of beer from a young couple at Lake Hawkins. The robbery occurred the same day Miss Harrison and her two companions disappeared.

Solomon told the Longview Morning Journal, however, that special prosecutor Stephen Tokoly of Dallas will be "unable to place my client at the scene of the crime."

Upshur County investigators admit the majority of their case against McFadden consists of circumstantial evidence with no eyewitnesses nor anyone seeing McFadden with Miss Harrison before or after her death.

But prosecutors say they hope physical evidence, hair fibers and semen samples will persuade the jury to find the man guilty and sentence him to death.

Gena Turner, 20, and Bryan Boone, 19, accompanied Miss Harrison to Lake Hawkins May 4, 1986, for a summer swim.

College partyers get ugly

CHICO, Calif. (AP) — A college celebration erupted into a riot early Saturday as 1,500 to 2,000 young people smashed store windows, burned awnings and hurled bottles at police, authorities said.

Twenty to 30 people were arrested before the melee near California State University at Chico was brought under control by about 2 a.m., said police dispatcher Nancy Wilson.

At least two people were treated for injuries from broken glass, she said.

The revelers, most of gathered for the Pioneer Days celebration sponsored by the university, started a bonfire, blocked off streets near the campus and damaged vehicles, Wilson said.

Local police called for law-enforcement help from two counties to control the melee. Police had no immediate estimate of the damage, Wilson said.

The university was dubbed America's No. 1 party school last fall by Playboy magazine.

Employees guilty in fatal hotel fire

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Two hotel employees pleaded guilty to murder and arson in the New Year's Eve fire that killed 97 people at the Dupont Plaza Hotel. A third employee pleaded guilty to arson.

Sentencing was set for June 22 for the three, who changed their arson pleas from innocent Friday as part of a plea bargain with federal prosecutors. The trial had been scheduled to begin Monday in U.S. District Court.

All three are members of the Teamsters Union local, which has denied any involvement in the blaze. The fire began in the ground-floor ballroom of the beachfront hotel soon after a meeting by members of the union, which was engaged in bitter contract negotiations with the hotel management.

Pleading guilty to federal charges of arson were Hector Escudero Aponte, a 35-year-old maintenance worker; Armando Jimenez Rivera, 29, a bartender's assistant; and Jose Francisco Rivera Lopez, 40, a bartender.

Escudero Aponte pleaded guilty to a federal charge of first-degree murder in the death of Secret Service agent Manuel de Jesus Marrero Otero, who was investigating a counterfeit money case and died in the fire.

Immediately after the federal court hearing, Jimenez Rivera was taken to Puerto Rico Superior Court, where the three face charges of first-degree murder, arson and conspiracy.

Jimenez Rivera pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of second-degree murder, arson and conspiracy. Second-degree murder carries a prison sentence of 12 to 30 years.

The trial of Rivera Lopez and Escudero Aponte in Superior Court is scheduled to begin Aug. 24.

U.S. Attorney Daniel Lopez Romo, who filed the murder charge against Escudero Aponte at Friday's hearing, said prosecutors agreed not to seek the death penalty. Conviction on federal arson charges can bring a sentence of death.

Romo said prosecutors recommended Escudero Aponte be given concurrent terms up to life and that Jimenez Rivera and Rivera Lopez be sentenced to 24 and 25 years respectively. Judge Jose A. Fuste, who is not bound by the recommendations, agreed to a prosecution request that the terms of the plea agreement be sealed.

Escudero Aponte was accused of setting the fire. Jimenez Rivera was accused of providing canned fuel and shielding him from view. Rivera Lopez was alleged to have instigated the arson.

The Dupont Plaza fire began at about 3:30 p.m. and spread quickly through the bottom floors of the 20-story hotel, which was crowded with nearly 1,000 guests. Eighty-six of the victims died in the second-floor casino.

The fire also injured 146 people.

U.S. nuclear plants shaken by mishaps

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Fourteen of the nation's nuclear power plants each reported more than 50 mishaps to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 1986, according to a study by a watchdog group released Saturday.

During 1986, more than 3,000 mishaps were reported to the NRC, including a fatal accident at a nuclear plant in Virginia, said the study by Public Citizen.

The watchdog group predicted that the number of mishaps for 1987 will increase when the NRC issues its final total of "licensee event reports" or LER later this year.

Public Citizen, a non-profit research group founded in 1971 by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, based its study on public documents from the NRC and information obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

John Kopck, a spokesman for the NRC, said the agency had not seen the report but said the incidents were "operational events with safety implications."

He said that during the first half of 1986 there were 2,818 licensee event reports.

Scott Peters, a spokesman for the Atomic Industrial Forum, said employees at nuclear plants are "committed to write down everything that goes out of whack — a light bulb out on a panel, a supervisor signing in late — all the way up to a major accident."

"The fact that there are so many LER indicates in a perverse way that the industry is well-watched," Peters said.

On Dec. 9, eight workers were injured when a steel pipe burst and released 30,000 gallons of boiling water and steam at Surry Unit 2 in Gravel Neck, Va. Four employees died from their injuries.

Public Citizen identified the 14 plants as Catawba 1 and 2 in Clover, S.C.; Fermi 2, Newport, Mich.; Fort St. Vrain, Platteville, Colo.; Hope Creek, Salem, N.J.; LaSalle 1, Seneca, Ill.; Limerick 1, Limerick, Pa.; Millstone 3, Waterford, Conn.; Palo Verde 1, Wintersburg, Ariz.; Perry 1, North Perry, Ohio; River Bend, St. Francisville, La.; Sequoyah 1, Daisy, Tenn.; Surry 2, Gravel Neck, Va.; and Wolf Creek, Burlington, Kan.

"On this, the first anniversary of the Chernobyl accident, it is important for U.S. citizens to recognize that a major nuclear accident of similar proportions can occur here," said Joshua Gordon, a nuclear policy analyst and author of the report.

"Yet, incredibly, in the face of an ever-worsening nuclear safety record, U.S. government and nuclear industry officials continue to argue that we are somehow immune to such an accident," Gordon said.

The study, titled "Nuclear Power Safety Report: 1979-1986" found more than 23,000 mishaps reported to the NRC since the 1979 accident at Three Mile Island.

On March 28, 1979, in the worst accident in U.S. commercial nuclear history, nuclear fuel melted at TMI's Unit 2 reactor, releasing radioactive gas into the environment.

The NRC revised its licensee event reporting system in 1984. The new system reduces the number of events reported by 50 percent by concentrating on significant events, according to the agency.

In 1984, there were 2,435 licensee event reports at 92 plants. The total increased slightly in 1985 to 2,997 reports at 97 plants.

Kopck said that in 1980 there were only six "abnormal occurrences" or "unscheduled incidents or events which the NRC determines as significant from the standpoint of public safety." The events must be reported to Congress on a quarterly basis, Kopck said.

In 1981, there were five abnormal occurrences, six in 1982, eight in 1983, 10 in 1984 and nine in 1985. For the first three quarters of 1986, there were eight abnormal occurrences.

Demonstration gets soggy start

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, sounding a theme for three days of demonstrations against American foreign policies, called Saturday for tough sanctions and a trade embargo against South Africa, saying "our complicity with that regime is a source of moral shame."

The demonstrations got off to a cold, soggy start with crowds that appeared to be only a fraction of the 100,000 people the sponsors had hoped for.

President Reagan, to whom the protests were addressed, was 60 miles north of the city, in the woody mountain retreat at Camp David, Md. He had planned to spend the weekend at the White House, but changed his mind.

Hope dims for missing workers

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP)— Just after lunch Thursday, Terrance Williams, a plumber on the job for only four days, was about to install support pipes on the first floor of the L'Ambiance Plaza apartment project.

Suddenly, the 34-year-old native of Jamaica heard a sound like an explosion and felt the building shaking. He tried to run but lost his footing. The floor gave way and he felt himself falling; he landed on his backside 25 feet below.

His wife, Princess, was on her way to work when she turned on her car radio. "There was a news flash that a building collapsed on Washington Avenue and I got nervous right away," she remembered. "Oh, my God! He's in that building."

By Saturday morning, 13 workers were reported dead and 15 were missing.

Williams, who suffered a fractured hip, was among the 41 workers who escaped death. He crawled through the debris out the side of the building and drove himself to Bridgeport Hospital.

Waiting for him were his wife and the hospital staff, which had already learned that the partially completed 13-story apartment building had collapsed.

In New Milford, an hour's drive away, Raul Bourgeois, an operating engineer, was having dinner with his wife, Debbie, and their 3-year-old daughter, Nicole, when they heard the news. He rushed to Bridgeport to join more than 100 volunteers from around the state in rescue operations.

On the first night, floodlights illuminated the stark reality: It would take days to untangle the steel beams and the twisted slabs of concrete up to 10 feet long. Workmen gingerly edged out the slabs piece by piece so as not to trigger another avalanche, while some relatives of the missing watched in frustration.

Searchers take body from ruins Saturday.

Families of the missing clustered in the gymnasium of Kolbe Cathedral High School. "Oh, dear God. Oh, dear God," Rose Pilla chanted over and over as she waited for her missing brother, Anthony, 65.

A cold rain fell Friday as workers cut slowly through the 60-foot-high pile of twisted wreckage, so mangled it resembled a steel and concrete bridge bombed during a war.

Federal mining engineers who looked for survivors during the Mexico City earthquake in 1985 set up sensitive microphones that can pick up sounds through 1,200 feet of granite.

After a night of cold rain, the sun shone by mid-morning Saturday as 200 rescuers continued to search through the debris, using acetylene torches to cut through steel reinforcing bars.

Hopes dimmed as each hour passed. "What am I going to do?" William Kinaldi, 67, said of his 65-year-old brother, Anthony, with whom he had lived. "He's the only one I have."

IRA bomb kills judge

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army killed Northern Ireland's second-highest judge and his wife Saturday in a bomb blast that turned their car into a fireball.

Six people, including three Irish rugby players, were wounded.

The outlawed IRA said it "executed" Lord Justice Maurice Gibson because he cleared three Northern Ireland policemen of killing an unarmed IRA suspect in 1984.

The bombing, about two-thirds of a mile from the Irish border, was the latest in a wave of IRA killings that has now claimed 17 lives this year.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary, the British province's police force, said the bomb apparently was planted in a car left by the side of the main road from Belfast to Dublin, and detonated by remote control as three cars were passing.

Gibson's car took the full blast, blazing like a "ball of fire," said Dr. David Irwin, an injured rugby player whose car was split in half by the judge's careening vehicle.

Police said the bodies of the two victims were burned beyond recognition, and authorities were waiting for dental records to formally identify them.

But the British government's Northern Ireland Office confirmed late Saturday that Gibson, 73, and his wife, Cecily, 70, were killed.

Irwin, 28, said he pulled fellow rugby players Nigel Carr, 27, and Philip Rainey, 27, from the car he was driving and treated them at the side of the road.

Police said six people — three from Irwin's car and three from another southbound car — were treated for cuts, shock and bruises. Carr, the only one admitted to hospital, suffered head, chest and stomach injuries.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher sent a message to the head of the Northern Ireland judiciary expressing "horror" at the killings.

Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey pledged that no effort would be spared to bring the killers to justice.

Gibson, an appellate judge, had been a prime IRA target since he acquitted the three Royal Ulster Constabulary officers and commended them for bringing the slain IRA man, Eugene Toman, to what he called "the final court of justice."

Bomb demolishes judge's car and second vehicle.

Greek radical group blasts bus loaded with Americans

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A left-wing Greek terrorist group claimed Saturday that it bombed a bus full of American military personnel to protest the presence of U.S. bases in Greece, and it threatened to strike again.

The November 17 organization, blamed for 11 unsolved political killings since 1975, took responsibility for Friday's blast in a rambling, four-page proclamation published in the left-wing Athens daily Eleftherotipia.

"We hit the Americans because their bases constitute an occupation force in our country. . . We shall hit them without warning if they're high or middle-ranking base personnel," the proclamation said.

Diplomats said the bomb attack also appeared aimed at undermining the Socialist government's policy of gradually improving Greek-U.S. relations.

Twelve American military personnel, four civilians and two Greeks were wounded by the remote-control blast on a main boulevard near the capital's fruit and vegetable market. Two Americans remained hospitalized Saturday.

The blast occurred Friday evening as the Greek military bus was shuttling 25 Americans from a NATO artillery unit at Elefsis, outside the capital, to the U.S. Air Force base at Hellenikon, next to Athens International Airport.

A police spokesman, who demanded anonymity, said witnesses saw two men in blue workers' overalls running toward a van after the blast. The van had been reported stolen. It was later found abandoned near a soccer field.

The November 17 organization claimed responsibility for a similar remote-control bombing of a police bus in central Athens in November 1985. The last previous attack claimed by the group was a failed shooting attempt against a Greek neurosurgeon in February.

The group is named for the date in 1973 that a student rebellion was crushed by the military government that ruled Greece from 1967 to 1974.

Past attacks claimed by the organization include the killing of the Athens CIA station chief in 1975 and the slaying of a U.S. Navy officer in 1983. No November 17 member has ever been arrested for a terrorist action.

The blast came at a delicate moment in U.S.-Greek relations, with talks likely to start this summer on a new five-year agreement for keeping the four American bases in Greece.

The bus blast was the first attack against U.S. servicemen in Greece since a July 1985 explosion

Pakistan crash kills dozens

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — At least 50 people returning home from a wedding died when the truck carrying them skidded off the road into a canal, police said today.

They said those killed in Friday's accident outside the village of Yazman, 310 miles south of here, included women and children, but that the exact number of casualties is still not known.

The truck, carrying more than 60 people from the wedding, tried to overtake another truck and skidded off the rain-soaked road into the 20-foot-deep water, police said.

Police officials, who according to practice cannot be identified by name, said the death toll could rise.

The bride and the bridegroom were not aboard the ill-fated truck.

Rampage suspect called 'fruitcake'

PALM BAY, Fla. (AP) — A man accused of murdering six people in a shooting rampage at two shopping centers is a sullen loner with a hair-trigger temper who fired shots in the air when youngsters walked in his yard, neighbors say.

"The kids were all afraid of him," said Eucal Grant, 68, who lived three doors from William Bryan Cruse. "I considered him off his head — crazy. He just acted crazy. No one talked to him, not even his next-door neighbors."

Neighbors said that about a half-hour before the rampage Thursday, Cruse fired shots when two teen-agers cut across his property, and a bullet hit a 14-year-old playing basketball across the street. He was in fair condition today.

Police said Cruse, 59, on Thursday walked through two shopping centers, shooting anyone in sight and littering the pavement with bodies. The first two police officers on the scene were among those killed.

Cruse was overpowered in a supermarket by police early Friday after three hostages were either released or escaped. Thirteen people were injured, two critically, in the rampage.

Cruse was ordered held without bond in the Brevard County Detention Center in Sharpes on six counts of murder, 10 counts of attempted murder and several other counts, including kidnapping.

Neighbors of the college-educated former librarian said he once dug up a neighbor's lawn in anger and threw a swing set into a ditch.

In addition, Grant said that on Tuesday, Cruse carried a gun as he chased a child down a street in the modest, racially mixed neighborhood of single-family homes.

"He was a fruitcake," said 14-year-old Derrick Suarez, who said Cruse once fired shots into the air when he saw the boy and a friend crossing his yard.

Records in Kentucky show that in 1949, Cruse's father, W.B. Cruse sprayed bullets inside the empty home of a prosecutor, The Orlando Sentinel reported Saturday. No one was injured.

The elder Cruse was sentenced to five years in prison. Both he and Cruse's mother, Dora, are dead.

Several of Cruse's neighbors said that Cruse repeatedly yelled at their children, and they gathered signatures last year on petitions complaining about him, but police said they never received any.

In addition, neighbors said more should have been done about a complaint last week by Ron Stearn, who told police Cruse chased his 6-year-old son in a car and made lewd gestures. Police Chief Charles Simmons said the April 17 incident was minor.

Palm Bay police said Cruse had no criminal record in Florida.

A victim of the Florida rampage is carried to a waiting ambulance.

Mattox questions McDonald's nutrition

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, acting on behalf of school children who checked a McD.L.T. sandwich, Friday asked McDonald's to cancel an advertising campaign touting the nutritional value of its meals.

"The reason for this is simple. McDonald's food is, as a whole, not nutritious," Mattox said in a letter to McDonald's President Ed Rensi.

A McDonald's spokeswoman Friday defended the ads as "factual, straightforward and intended to inform customers."

"The fact is that McDonald's is part of a healthful diet. There is no one food group that makes a healthful diet in and of itself, nor does one meal make a healthful diet," Stephanie Skurdy, director of media relations, said in a telephone interview from McDonald's corporate office in Oak Brook, Ill.

But Mattox said he and attorneys general in New York and California would take McDonald's to court if the ads are not pulled.

"Fast food customers often go to McDonald's because it is inexpensive and convenient. They should not be fooled into eating there because you have told them it is nutritious," Mattox said in a letter to Ed Rensi, McDonald's president.

Mattox said he recently received letters from school children in League City and Friendswood, near Houston, who said their health class discovered that a McDonald's McD.L.T. contains more than 1,000 milligrams of sodium and 10 teaspoons of grease.

"Please stop McDonald's from saying their food is healthy when it is not," one student told Mattox in a letter.

Mattox said a joint review by officials in Texas, California and New York showed the students were right. "The food is not nutritious as McDonald's claims," he said.

The ads, which began appearing in newspapers and magazines in January, discuss balanced meals.

"Balance is best," one ad says. "Balance comes from a variety of foods. Because nutritionists agree, no one food provides all the necessary nutrients."

"At McDonald's, variety in our menu means you can balance what you order. And make sure your McDonald's meal balances with other meals you eat," the ad says.

Appeals court won't reconsider Texaco verdict

HOUSTON (AP) — A state appeals court has refused to reconsider its earlier ruling in which it upheld a verdict that ordered Texaco Inc. to pay Pennzoil Co. $10.5 billion.

Texaco sought the rehearing as part of its continuing appeal of a Houston jury's finding in 1985 that Texaco wrongly interfered with Pennzoil's planned acquisition of Getty Oil Co.

James W. Kinnear, chief executive officer of Texaco, expressed disappointment in Friday's ruling by the three-judge 1st Court of

Texaco verdict Appeals

"This action without any explanation represents more of the same failure by the Texas lower courts to come to grips with the legal issues in this case," Kinnear said in a statement released from the company's White Plains, N.Y. headquarters.

Nation's buyers follow lead of market forces

By JAMES M. KENNEDY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — The financial markets were still firmly in the grip of dollar-shock this past week, gyrating wildly with anxiety about prices and interest rates. But what of the consumer, once the engine of the economy's expansion?

Analysts say the nation's buyers are still slugging along, resigned to taking a back seat to other economic drivers this year.

"The consumer is going to be a neutral force in the economy," said Robert Dederick, chief economist for Northern Trust Co. of Chicago. "He's not going to be feeling very ebullient, but he's not under a lot of pressure either."

Buyers apparently are not as spooked by the dollar's decline as the markets have been. The worry of some investors that the weak dollar will fuel inflation and force the Federal Reserve to tighten credit is not as prevalent in the nation's malls and car lots as it is on investment trading floors.

Indeed, consumer confidence is up by at least one measure.

A confidence index put out by the Conference Board rose markedly in March to 98.1, up from 93.2 the previous month. The index is based on a value of 100 established in 1985.

"The consumer is still fairly confident about the economy in general," said Jason Bram of the business-supported research group.

Yet even the most optimistic outlooks for spending are being hedged these days. Bram said the increase in the Conference Board's index was due largely to improved expectations for employment, not spending.

These other business and economic developments of the past week:

■ Stock speculator Ivan F. Boesky pleaded guilty to one count of violating federal securities laws and faces penalties of up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine when sentenced Aug. 21. Boesky, who is cooperating with the government in the prosecution of a wide range of insider trading cases, was released without bail.

■ The Supreme Court gave states considerable power to regulate hostile corporate takeovers, deciding that an Indiana law placing restraints on tender offers does not interfere unlawfully with interstate commerce. Ex-

Dallas eyes draft help

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, picking higher in the NFL draft than they have in 23 years, need help in every position but running back to bolster a team that lost seven of its final eight games last season.

Unless they swing a trade, the Cowboys will be drafting from the 12th position Tuesday.

"I think we will get some very good players out of this draft, particularly in the first round," Dallas scouting director Gil Brandt says. "There are a lot of good linebackers and offensive linemen, and some defensive linemen who can play."

The Cowboys need help in all three areas, and throw in a placekicker, a defensive back, and perhaps another wide receiver for good measure.

Even the quarterback position is far from secure, with Danny White's injured wrist and the so-so performance of Steve Pelluer as a replacement.

The forced departure of placekicker Rafael Septien, who pleaded guilty to indecency with a 10-year-old girl, means Dallas might draft University of Texas placekicker Jeff Ward in later rounds.

"He is an excellent kicker," Brandt says of Ward. "Of course, he will have to make the transition of kicking from a tee to kicking from the ground, but we believe he can do it."

The Cowboys are drifting away from their "best athlete available" theory of recent years.

They moved up in the draft last year so they could draft for need by taking wide receiver Mike Sherrard, who was barely edged out in rookie-of-the-year balloting.

"We want to find more competitive people like Sherrard in the draft," Brandt says.

Defensive coordinator Ernie Stautner hopes some of those competitive players end up in his defensive line, which showed signs of age in a 7-9 season that began with a 6-2 showing.

"We have to get better in the defensive line," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "We showed some wear and tear in there last season. We need for Kevin Brooks to make a big impact next year and to get some help from the draft."

Bucks edge 76ers

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Bucks obtained Jack Sikma in hopes he would be the missing ingredient in their first NBA championship since 1971.

Sikma began repaying that trust Friday night, contributing 11 of his 17 points and six rebounds in the fourth quarter as the Bucks opened their first-round playoff series with a 107-104 win over Philadelphia.

"He just seemed possessed," Bucks Coach Don Nelson said of the veteran center obtained in an offseason trade with Seattle.

"If he wasn't scoring it, he was rebounding it, he was setting screens, he was down the defensive end, he got a couple of big blocked shots which aren't his forte. He was sensational. It's nice to have him."

In addition to Milwaukee's victory Friday night, it was Atlanta 110, Indiana 94; Detroit 106, Washington 92 and Houston 125, Portland, 115 in the only win by a visiting team.

There were three games Saturday: Denver at the Los Angeles Lakers; Seattle at Dallas and Golden State at Utah. All the home teams lead 1-0.

On Sunday, Chicago at Boston, which is leading leading 1-0 and Friday's games are repeated: Philadelphia at Milwaukee, Houston at Portland and Washington at Detroit and Indiana at Atlanta.

The 76ers had a nine-point third-quarter lead in their game with Milwaukee.

Lady Harvesters take top honors

PANHANDLE — As expected, Pampa's Lady Harvesters ran away with individual honors in a regional qualifiers meet here Saturday.

Leading the way, as usual, was junior standout Tanya Lidy, who won both the 200 (25.3) and long jump (18-0). Lidy anchored both the winning 440 and 880 relay teams in respective times of 47.9 and 1:42.1. Other team members were Schivon Parker, Laquita Brown and Yolanda Brown.

Andrea Hopkins took charge of the field events, winning both the discus (131-0) and shot (38-4).

Lidy was also second in the triple jump with a 37-3/4 leap while Laquita Brown was second in the 200. Lidy's 18-foot leap in the long jump was a personal best for her.

"Lidy did a good job of running the legs on both our relay teams," said Pampa Coach Gary Cornelsen.

In the boys' division, Willie Jacobs and Mark Williams were the only winners for the Harvesters. Jacobs, a junior, won the mile with a time of 4:40.3 and placed second in the two-mile at 10:23. He's a two-time district champion in the 3200. Williams, who is headed for Southwestern University in Oklahoma to play football, won the intermediate hurdles with a time of 39.5.

Billy Butler and Derrick Ryan finished fifth and sixth respectively in the high jump.

There were a number of entries in both boys' and girls' divisions from all across the panhandle competing in the tuneup for the regionals next month. No team totals are compiled in a qualifiers meet.

"I thought both our boys and girls did pretty well. It's just hard to get motivated for meet like this with regionals coming up," said Gary Cornelsen. "The girls ran well, but they were a little sloppy with their concentration."

White Deer had several entries with Joe Don Brown winning the high jump for the Bucks. Mike Snyder was fifth in the long jump.

In the girls' division, Ruth Hinds was sixth in the long jump and Monica Vigi was fifth in the 400.

Donna Wessner was fourth in the discus and fourth in the shot put. "I'm glad this meet is over with," Cornelsen said. "We've got everyone healthy and ready to go for the regionals."

Pampa girls won their third straight district championship at Canyon last weekend. The Pampa boys' team finished third.

Cincinnati snaps Astros home winning streak

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose says it's hard to win baseball games with home runs in the Astrodome so he was pleasantly surprised when Ron Oster slammed a two-run homer to defeat the Houston Astros.

"I didn't think it would go, but you never know," Rose said after Oster's 11th inning homer gave the Reds a 4-2 victory, snapping Houston's home winning streak at nine games Friday night.

"Charlie (Kerfeld) got a breaking ball up on Oster and he hit it out," Rose said. "This is a big ball park and the Astros make it tough to win with the home run."

Kal Daniels hit his National League leading seventh homer of the season to open the game as the Reds started the game with a bang and ended it with another.

"Kal hit a real good pitch that was down and across the plate," Rose said. "That's a real hard pitch to hit out of this park."

Houston manager Hal Lanier was unhappy about Kerfeld's pitching after he gave up the game-winning homer.

"He (Kerfeld) has not got control of his fast ball or slider," Lanier said. "He's making too many bad pitches. Right now he's just struggling."

"I never have hit a home run here before, so my timing was pretty good," Oester said. "I've hit home runs in every other park in the league, but not here."

"It was a breaking ball up and I hit it as good as I could," Oester said. "It looked like he (right fielder Kevin Bass) was going to jump up and catch it, so I was blowing to try and get it out."

Leo Garcia, sent in as a pinch-runner after Buddy Bell opened the 11th with a walk, scored ahead of Oster.

The win snaps the Astros' nine-game home winning streak and Houston's Billy Hatcher had his 16-game hitting streak halted as he went 0-for-5.

But Hatcher didn't mention the loss of his hitting streak, only the loss that ended the long home winning streak.

Hard times hit Optimist Park baseball complex

REFRAIN:
".....And there used to be a ball park where the field was warm and green, and people played their crazy game with a joy I'd never seen....."

I took a solo baseball stroll through the Optimist Park baseball complex one sunny afternoon last week. And to all the thousands of boys and girls, supporting parents, and just sports fans who spent so many hours at that location, if you want to cry, go down and take a visit. The economic hard times are strongly reflected everywhere you look.

Grass, weeds, dandelions growing over all the fields. Roofs blowing off dugouts. Lightpoles leaning dangerously. Backstop screens and outfield fences with porous holes. Torn up scoreboards. Unneeded (and probably unusable) automatic sprinkler system. Shabby stands. Prison-like protective bars guarding all concession stand apertures. Although far removed from the blighted area it was when the youth-serving organization bought the land 30 years ago, it is scary to see how close it is to returning to that point in time. Overseeing it all, beautifully done and fence-protected from vandals, is a monument to the now deceased Optimists who played such strong roles in helping build that once-magnificent recreational facility to its apex of beauty...but more than that, service to the community and surrounding areas. They must be twisting and turning a bit in their graves.

It's not that the current club membership doesn't want to maintain the superb summer program, and wouldn't like to have the facility the showplace it once was. But times are a'changing. And where hundreds upon hundreds of Optimists and their wives built, maintained and ran the program for three decades without begging, without benefit of tax dollars or United Fund support, the current lean times have run the count to no balls and two strikes.

Problems started a few years ago when the school system decided to spend taxpayers money on a new park on the high school grounds, where one had previously stood. It caused a withdrawal of maintenance manpower and some rental fees from the Optimist program. An exorbitant usage fee for the high school field has kept it dormant during the summer. And as with any organization, there was a changing of guard in the Optimist organization. Many of the longtime, staunch baseball workers retired, moved, passed on, and their substitutes didn't share the same enthusiasm for that sport. Efforts turned to other activities, including baseball, soccer and a costly football program.

Sports Forum

A recent survey indicated it would take about $30,000 (including labor) to restore the organization's baseball facilities to prior condition and once again make the program safe and fun for another several thousand boys and girls each summer. And that season is already here. Is there a community-minded benefactor out there? Are there enough former program participants and their families who would and could help?

Or would the City and County get involved? The City has seen fit to pour money into a softball complex, a worthwhile endeavor. And is apparently willing to funnel some more into a golf course. The County has already volunteered $300,000 plus manpower and equipment for the golfing effort, even if it does serve as the cornerstone for a private commercial effort outside the city limits. So perhaps the County fathers can see fit to provide up to $300,000 plus the already available equipment and manpower, to aiding the Optimist Park effort! After all, any industry looking at Pampa as a future base would most certainly want some safe, well-supervised, well-run activity for their youth. Plus the area tournaments bring outsiders to Pampa to spend money in the stores. And the recreational benefits for citizens to go out nightly and enjoy some good sports activity would be beneficial. Seems we've heard all those arguments, just as valid here, on behalf of another sports project.

But throw in another factor. The need today is greater than ever for wholesome, supervised play for the young folks. I don't need to preach the drug problem, the long summer days, increased broken homes, more two-job parents. It doesn't take much study to realize that if our future is in our young people, we had better do something immediately...and first. And County fathers, if you have a political problem providing manpower and equipment to do this for the kids of Pampa, do the same for the kids in Lefors and McLean. They are just as valuable, and need the programs just as badly.

Or perhaps all of the service clubs in Pampa, men's and women's, could throw a year's support behind the Optimist program, which has carried this costly and social burden all alone for all these years. Target your efforts right here at home for our own young people. Can anything be more worthwhile? Time's a wastin', grass and dandelions are a'growin', our kids are eager and anticipating. But...refrain:

"Now the children try to find it, and they can't believe their eyes, 'Cause the old team isn't playing and the new team hardly tries.

And the sky has got so cloudy, when it used to be so clear, And the summer went too quickly this year.....

Yes, there used to be a ball park right here."

If you can assist or desire more information, or can help solve the problem for the kids of Pampa, call longtime Optimist Club member and volunteer youth servant John McGuire, 665-8762 or 665-3031. Please?

NBA playoffs: Mavericks good; L.A., Atlanta better

Can the Dallas Mavericks hang an NBA Championship pennant from the rafters of Reunion Arena?

It is a question that would have been preposterous two years ago at this time.

Now, though, it is a question with some credence. Even the Los Angeles Lakers are concerned with the Mavericks' possibilities of playoff success.

It has been said the one team the Lakers respect — and fear — more than any other in their conference is Dallas.

Seattle Supersonic Coach Bernie Bickerstaff, a former assistant to coach Dick Motta, put it more bluntly.

"Dallas is just a better team than we are," he said.

If anyone should know, it's Bernie.

The Mavericks thrashed the Sonics Thursday, 151-129, in the opening game of the playoffs. Dallas led, 120-88, after three periods.

Like the Texas Rangers, though, the Mavericks have that proverbial "one more year" stigma on them.

The Mavericks, in order to win the NBA title, would have to first get by the Lakers.

Needless to say, that might prove to be a thankless task.

True, Dallas played the Lakers tough last year in the playoffs. This year, the Mavericks were one of only three teams to win the five-game series with L.A.

But the Lakers — well, they're just the Lakers. L.A. finished with a record of 65-17, the best in basketball.

In My Corner By Jimmy Patterson

Magic Johnson — this year's projected MVP — has reached his prime and averaged 23.9 points per game.

L.A. also has an "expect no mercy" defense and is virtually unbeatable at home.

The Lakers at the Forum are 37-4. Only Boston has a better home record.

L.A. is also one of only two teams — the other being Atlanta — with a winning record on the road. On visiting boards, the Lakers are an almost unheard of 28-13.

The Lakers also have living legend Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, James Worthy and Mike Scott. All household names by now.

Taking all this into consideration, if, by chance, the Mavericks were to get by the Lakers, they'd still have to face the Atlanta Hawks in the NBA finals.

No, that's not a misprint. The Hawks are the most exciting team in the league and could very well find themselves as upset winners over the Celtics in the Eastern Conference finals.

The Hawks finished only two games behind Boston in the regular season.

They are a well rounded team, led by Dominique Wilkins, the league's second leading scorer (29 ppg) and spunky media hero Spud Webb.

The Mavericks reached the NBA's elite status this season, breaking the 50-win barrier by five games. Unfortunately, they do have their problems.

At times, they have trouble playing together as a team, thanks in part to the discontented Mark Aguirre.

Aguirre can often give less than his full potential and is the team's biggest cry-baby.

His feuds with Motta are well publicized.

If Aguirre can keep his mind on the game, and not drag his behind like he is prone to do, Dallas does have a chance to reach the conference finals.

But as long as the Lakers have the aforementioned lineup, it doesn't appear anyone can beat them.

Prediction: In four games, Lakers over Atlanta for the championship.

Harvesters rally to edge Estacado

The Pampa Harvesters came alive in the late innings to rally past the Lubbock Estacado Matadors 7-5 Saturday in a District 1-4A baseball game at Harvester Field.

Pampa ended Matt Martin's four-inning no-hitter with a run in the fifth inning and six more in the sixth to break the game open. Pampa hurler Bret Mitchell aided his own cause with a three-run homer in the sixth.

Pampa, 4-6 in district, ended a five-game losing streak with the comeback victory. Overall, the Harvesters are 8-9.

Estacado pulled within two in the top of the seventh on homers by O.T. Thomas and Martin before Mitchell put out the fire to pick his fifth win against six losses.

Mitchell and Martin both registered 11 strikeouts.

Mitchell was also Pampa's leading hitter with a single and his three-run homer. Thomas led Estacado with two hits in three times at bat.

Each team committed one error. Pampa had eight hit compared to five for the losers.

Estacado drops to 7-13-2 overall and 2-6-2 in district.

Pampa hosts Borger at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Athletic Director John Kendall announced Friday that the Pampa junior varsity team had to cancel its six remaining games because of two ineligible players and two injured players.

"We have 22 out for baseball and we have to carry 13 on the varsity. That left us with only five players for the JVs," Kendall said.

Pampa trio could net trip to state tennis tournament

Eddins, Bradshaw, Walsh all headed for regionals

Sports Editor

Pampa High's doubles team of Reagan Eddins and David Bradshaw had some close calls getting to the Class 4A tennis regionals. But now the ball is in their court.

Eddins and Bradshaw rallied in the district semi-finals to finish second and qualify for the Brownfield regionals next week.

"They were two points away from being eliminated in the semis, but they came back to win four straight matches," said Pampa Coach Jay Barrett. "They called up some inner drive or whatever you want to call it, to come back and win."

Now, Barrett believes the senior duo has an excellent chance of advancing to the state meet.

"They're scheduled to play a team from Monahans in the first round and they're ranked only second on their team," Barrett said. "If Eddins and Bradshaw beat them, they shouldn't have any trouble the rest of the way. They know this is their last chance at state and that's going to make them tough to beat."

Pampa's other regional qualifier is junior Matt Walsh, who faces an uphill battle.

"Matt has a couple of tough early round matches to get through, but he's a rugged strong player and he wants to get to state badly," Barrett said.

If Walsh gets past the first two rounds, he will probably face 16-year whiz Sean Cobb of Fort Worth in the semi-finals.

"Cobb is a state-ranked player, but on a given day those rankings don't mean a thing," Barrett said. "Some players are ranked because they play in tournaments and Cobb plays in a lot of tournaments around the Fort Worth-Dallas area. Matt could be as good as Cobb and I've been telling him that all week."

Walsh posted a 23-10 singles record this spring while Eddins-Bradshaw were 24-9. This will be the first trip to regionals for the threesome.

"We're starting to build a winning program, which we hope will become a tradition at Pampa," Barrett said. "The district has become tougher the last two years and I think our players have responded well. Tougher competition gives the players something to work for and they can be proud of their accomplishments. Tough matches are naturally going to make you tougher."

Another doubles team, James Thompson and Bernard Avendanio, appeared to be on their way to a qualifying berth before they were eliminated in the district quarterfinals.

"They won the first set 6-0 and then started thinking about what they had accomplished and ended up losing a tie-breaker. That took too much out of them and they ended up losing the next set 6-0," Barrett said.

Avendanio and Thompson will be making the trip to Brownwood as alternates.

"I feel like they're as good as our No. 1 doubles team. We came close to qualifying five players, which would have been a phenomenal achievement," Barrett said.

Thompson, along with Bradshaw, will be playing college tennis next season, said Barrett, pointing out the progress of the PHS program. Thompson is headed for Oklahoma Christian College while Bradshaw is going to Abilene Christian University.

"We're getting more players who are starting to think about playing tennis in college," Barrett said. "When players have had good high school careers, it's a shame for them to quit playing."

Tournament record set in Legends

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Bruce Crampton and Orville Moody combined for a tournament-record 11-under-par 59 Saturday to grab the lead after the third round of the $500,000 Legends of Golf tournament.

Crampton's 2-putt birdie-4 on the final hole of this best-ball tournament for senior players broke the previous best of 60, set by Don January and Sam Snead in 1982.

Crampton, 51, and Moody, 53, overcame a 12th-hole bogey with a closing string of six consecutive birdies in the record effort that brought them from five shots off the pace into the top spot at 187, 23 strokes under par on the Onion Creek Club course.

"One of the most fun-filled days I've ever had," enthused Crampton, who set a Seniors tour record with $468,549 in earnings last year.

"This was vintage Moody at his best," Crampton said of his partner, who holed six birdie putts of 10-15 feet with his elongated, 50-inch putter.

With one round to go in the chase for a $120,000 first prize, Crampton and Moody held a one-stroke lead over Miller Barber and Bob Charles, who were at 188. Charles and Barber, five strokes ahead of the field after two days.

Brewers start new win streak

MILWAUKEE (AP) — B.J. Surhoff hit a three-run homer to cap a five-run first inning Saturday as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-2 for their 15th victory in 16 games this season.

Bill Wegman, 2-0, scattered five hits over seven innings while Robin Yount and Glenn Braggs drove in two runs each for Milwaukee.

The victory was the Brewers' fifth straight over the Orioles this season. Baltimore has lost six of its last seven games and nine of its last 12.

play, had a 65, five under par but no match for the Crampton-Moody barrage of 12 birdies.

"A little disappointing. They made the putts and we didn't," said Charles, a left-hander from New Zealand.

Peter Thomson, a five-time British Open champion from Australia, and Ben Smith shot 61 in the warm, sunny weather and moved into third place at 192, five off the pace.

"It was so easy out there today, you felt like ever par was a mistake," Thomson said.

January and Gene Littler, who have won this title the last two years, had a 65 and were at 193. They were tied with Bobby Nichols and Butch Baird, also with a 65.

In the Legenday Champions section, a separate competition for players 60 and older, Jerry Barber and Doug Ford widened their lead to seven strokes.

Barber, playing on his 71st birthday, holed three putts in the 18-20 foot range and combined with his 64-year-old partner for a 66 and a 193 total. Howie Johnson and Jack Fleck were a distant second at 200 after a 68.

Crampton and Moody each made two birdies on the front side and reached the turn in 31.

Moody, winner of the 1969 U.S. Open, dropped a pair of 10-12-foot putts on the 10th and 11th, before both he and Crampton 3-putted for bogey on the 12th.

But they came back immediately. Moody dropped 12-foot putts for birdies on the 13th and 14th. Crampton added 8-foot birdie putts on the next two holes.

Moody's 15-footer for birdie on the 17th gave them a shot at the record, and Crampton nailed it down with a 3-wood second shot that set up the two-putt birdie-4.

Pair tied for Houston lead

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

THE WOODLANDS, Texas (AP)—A pair of bogeys by Buddy Gardner and Dan Forsman, their only misfires of the day, left the two golfers tied for a share of the lead in the $600,000 Houston Open.

"It made me so mad I could spit," Gardner said of his bogey on the par 4, 388-yard No. 12 hole that forced him to scramble to regain a share of the lead.

"I was getting a little lackadaisical when all I had to do was keep in in the fairway."

Forsman was leading the tournament at 11 under par until he bogeyed No. 17 and fell back to meet Gardner.

"I feel now I can play hard after getting over shoulder surgery," Forsman said. "You can talk about the difficult greens but you reap what you sow. It's out there if you want to sacrifice."

Gardner, trying to win his first tour event, shot a 5-under par 67 for a 206 total for 54 holes. Forsman finished with a 68 to share the lead.

Wayne Levi, who had a one shot lead after 36 holes, shot a 71 and finished tied for third with Nick Price, who had a 68 for a 208 total.

Five other golfers, Mike McCullough, Aki Ohmachi, Dave Barr, Jack Renner and Jay Haas were another stroke back with 209s.

Gardner said a pre-round tip by Dave Marr helped him through the round.

"I was slicing them across the practice tee," Gardner said. "Dave told me to tuck my elbow and I thought about that all through today's round. It really helped."

"I wish I had remembered it on No. 12."

Players have complained all week about the dry greens over the par 72, 7,042-yard Tournament Players Course. Price said they are getting better.

"The greens were the best they've been all week," he said. "A nice firm putt will hold its line."

Levi, the 1979 Houston Open winner, started the day with a one shot lead over six challengers, including Forsman, and he held the lead until he bogeyed the 14th hole by missing a 10-foot par savor at about the same time that Gardner was sinking an 8-foot birdie at No. 15.

Barr, who shared the first day lead with Ed Fiori, chipped in from 35 feet for an eagle on the par 5, 530-yard No. 15 hole to move within one shot of the leaders at nine under par.

But Barr hit in the water on No. 17 for a double bogey and fell into a group of five golfers tied at 209.

Gardner bogeyed No. 12 but rallied on the next hole, sinking a 25-foot birdie putt. He went 10 under with an 8-foot birdie on No. 15.

Levi, who won the Houston Open in 1979, stayed in front of his pursuers through the turn with birdie puts on Nos. 2 and 6 and he became the first player to go 10 under par with another birdie on No. 10.

Gardner, whose best career finish was second place in the 1984 Houston Open, started the day at 5-under par for the tournament and two shots off Levi's lead.

Gardner birdied three of the first six holes and added a birdie on No. 10 to reach 9-under par. Gardner had a bogey on No. 12 and another birdie on the next hole to remain nine under for the tournament.

Levi's 5-under par 67 on Friday gave him a 1-shot lead over six challengers going into Saturday's round with a seven under par 137 for 36 holes.

Alane Dinsmore....Miami's star distance runner.

Miami athlete faces daily uphill battle

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

MIAMI — It's 5 a.m. and the sun has yet to rise above Miami's Mount Mariah.

Many people are still in bed, and haven't even thought about what may lie ahead in the coming day.

Not Alane Dinsmore. She knows what's ahead of her: eight miles of roadway that in 30 minutes will all be behind her.

Alane's daily ritual begins with the eight mile run. She is encouraged each morning by her running partner and classmate Eric Gillis.

The first-third of the run is up a steep hill. That's the toughest part. That's the way her coach, Miami principal Jerry Boyd, wants it.

It's not that Boyd is a taskmaster. He just wants to make sure his athletes are conditioned properly. Especially Alane.

"I'm glad I can build up my endurance by running every morning," Alane said. "But, if there was some way I could be as strong without having to do it, I would."

Obviously, the Miami High School sophomore is a distance runner, and a good one at that.

On May 1 and 2, she will be in Levelland for the regional track meet. It is highly probable that she will place among the top two finishers in both of her events — the 1600- and 3200-meter runs — and earn a berth in the state finals in Austin two weeks later.

At the district meet two weeks ago in Groom, Alane ran the 3200 in 13-minutes, 12-seconds. But she stopped after seven laps thinking the race was over. She had to regain her strength and speed to finish the final lap.

She still won the race, and Boyd feels her time would have been 13:00 had she not stopped.

The old school record at Miami in the 3200 is 12:58.

Last week in practice, with no one pushing her, she bettered that mark.

"She ran a 12:50 in practice," Boyd said. "We think we can get her down to 12:45 by regional."

Alane's main competition comes from Plains High School's Nancy Jimenez, who has a mark of 12:56.

Considering her competition, Alane is pleased with what she has done this year.

"Right now, my times are ranked second or third in the region in both the 3200 and 1600," she said. "I think I do have a chance to go to state."

"I know winning is right there and I have it in my grasp. I've always driven myself."

And, as much faith as Boyd has in Alane, he won't venture a guess on the outcome of the races at regionals.

"I don't predict horse races," he said. "And everytime I try to predict a track meet, I'm wrong."

So just remember, the next time you are awakened from a sound sleep at 5 a.m. because of the pitter-patter of feet, it'll probably be Alane. Trying to make it up that hill one more time.

Pirates romp 15-0

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

It was like a scene from a movie.

No, come to think of it, it was a scene from a movie.

The Briscoe Broncos played the part of the New York Knights. You know, the team in the movie The Natural before Robert Redford suits up?

In other words, in this District 1-A opener, nothing went right for Briscoe; everything went right for the Lefors Pirates.

Lefors won 15-0. The game was called after three innings due to lack of stamina.

Lefors actually won 20-0, but district rules state that if a team leads by 15 runs after three innings, the game shall be halted.

After two sloppy losses to open the season, everyone on the Pirate team was a hero Friday afternoon.

Third baseman Richard Hernandez led the offensive effort. Hernandez had seven RBI, thanks in part to a second inning grand slam homer that put Lefors ahead 11-0.

Lefors had eight hits scattered throughout what was technically less than a three inning game.

If the 15-run rule hadn't taken effect, they might still be playing.

Briscoe pitchers gave up nine walks which led directly to nine of the runs in 2 1-3 innings.

"Our pitching was bad," Briscoe coach Ron Van Vranken said.

"Normally, it's not this bad. I'm just glad we got this first game out of the way. It does take time to build, and we'll get better."

Every Pirate in the starting lineup scored, including three-runners each for catcher Kent Kerbo, first-baseman John Ledbetter and shortstop Dusty Roberson.

Kerbo also had a three-run homer, but it was after the 15-run rule had taken effect.

On the defensive side, pitcher Kirk Kerbo could do no wrong.

After suffering a tender right arm in last week's game against the Borger J.V., Kerbo was credited with nine strikeouts.

In other words, the nine outs that Briscoe had all came thanks to Kerbo's "K's."

Briscoe had only three base runners in the game.

Catcher Sam Watson reached base safely on a first-inning error by shortstop Roberson.

In the third, the Broncos looked as if they would score, thanks to back-to-back singles, but that didn't phase Kerbo who proceeded to strike out the side.

"I was throwing a lot of fastballs and some curves," Kerbo said. "This is a heckuva lot better than last week. My arm feels a whole lot better, too."

The Pirates, who move their record to 1-2, are next scheduled to take on Amarillo's Alamo Catholic Tuesday afternoon.

SUMITOMO TIRE
Your best buy in the long run.

Ruth Tarpley — Woman of the Year

Debbie Hogan, left, of Beta Sigma Phi presents a rose to Mrs. Tarpley. Sorority members give a rose to the Woman of the Year at the time she is notified of her selection.

Ruth Tarpley of Pampa has been named 1987 Beta Sigma Phi Woman of the Year. Mrs. Tarpley will be honored by Beta Sigma Phi members at the annual Woman of the Year Tea, 2 p.m. today at First Christian Church.

It's amazing that Beta Sigma Phi representatives were able to catch her at home long enough to notify her of the honor.

She is a veteran traveler, and also is busy with various community projects.

She has been to Europe twice, in 1976 and 1980. During the two trips she visited London, Paris, Heidelberg, Vienna, Milan, Rome, Venice, Bavaria, Strasbourg, Mannheim, Frankfurt, the Alps and Lake Geneva.

"I have a niece in Heidelberg, and I went over there with her mother," Mrs. Tarpley said. Her favorite stop was Rome, where she explored the city's ancient catacombs.

She also enjoyed the train ride through the Alps. One side of the train was glass, which gave a good view of the passing scenery, she said.

Closer to home, she has traveled to Rockport twice with eight other women on fishing trips. She has also fished with friends at Lake Texhoma and Durango, Colo., and she goes to the White Mountains in Arizona for a week or two every year to fish.

"I love to fish, anywhere I can find a fishing hole," Mrs. Tarpley said.

She also travels with the Sunshiners, a senior citizens' group at First Baptist Church, where she has been a member for 53 years. The group is planning a sight-seeing trip to the Big Bend country in May.

When she isn't out of town, Mrs. Tarpley is busy with several volunteer activities.

She was given a 40-year award for serving as general chairman of First Baptist Church's annual banquet for Pampa High School seniors. She received the award in 1985, when the banquet was discontinued. Pampa High School had also honored her in 1981 for her work on the banquets.

"We worked for three months on each banquet. We made all the candles and did everything. We used things like egg cartons, discards, packing styrofoam, and everything that we didn't have to pay for, for decorations. We even dyed chicken feathers," Mrs. Tarpley said.

She was named adult leader of the year for 1979 by Key Club, and was presented a plaque for her work as director and teacher of her church's Adult I Sunday School class for 29 years.

Mrs. Tarpley has also served as president and program chairman of WMU (Women's Missionary Union, now called Baptist Women) and has worked in Training Union with the Junior Department at the church.

She has been Bible Study chairman for approximately 20 years and is currently a supply teacher and outreach leader for the Adult 8 class at the church.

She meets once a month with the Sunshiners for dinner and choir practice and sings with the group once a month at the church. The Sunshiners have also staged a musical and are working on their second for Senior Adult Day at the church.

Mrs. Tarpley was active in PTA while her three children were in school. She was president of Woodrow Wilson Elementary

THE CONFIRMED WORD

"Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things that were heard, lest haply we drift away from them. For if the word spoken through angels proved steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great a salvation? which having at the first been spoken through the Lord, was confirmed unto us by them that heard; God also bearing witness with them, both by signs and wonders, and by manifold powers, and gifts of the Holy Spirit, according to his own will" (Hebrews 2:1-4). It is absolutely imperative that a person have explicit faith in the written Word of God in order to be saved by it. James 1:21 states: "Wherefore putting away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls." Jesus said the "seed" was the Word (Luke 8:11). Peter said those people in his day had "purified" their souls in their obedience to the truth. Jesus said God's Word is truth (John 17:17). Thus we see that the Word is to be sown into honest hearts which submissively accept and obey its decree in order to be born again. One becomes a child of God by obeying the truth of God's Word. But faith must come from the Word and therefore a knowledge and understanding of the Word is prerequisite to one's obeying the Word.

The Word spoken by the apostles was confirmed in the minds of the hearers in one of two ways. Either it was confirmed by an investigation of the Old Testament scriptures as was the case in Berea (Acts 17:11-12), or by the speaker performing miracles and signs to prove that he was a man of God as was the case in Samaria (Acts 8:5-6). There was the need for the miracles in order to convince and confirm that which was preached.

In the early days of the gospel age, the Word was spoken and then as time went by it was written down. The apostle John says the things which they saw and heard were the things they wrote in order that people could have fellowship with God (1 John 1:1-4). The power of God to save is still the gospel of Christ (Romans 1:16).

Guymon to host Artfest

GUYMON, Okla. — Artfest 12, the annual spring art show and sale in Guymon, will be May 2 at the west side of Sunset Lake in Thompson Park.

Byron and Ben Test, well-known for their prairie and wildlife paintings, have painted a water color of the Charlie Littlejohn homestead north of Guymon. The painting will be given away during Artfest.

Artists from a five-state area as well as Guymon area artists and craftsmen will be exhibiting their works.

Job fair to be held Tuesday

A Job Training Information Fair will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday in Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard. Anyone interested in developing new job skills, changing professions or seeking help in financing job training is invited to attend.

The fair is a come-and-go event, and no admission will be charged. The fair has two purposes: (1) to match individuals in need of new marketable job skills with training opportunities; and (2) to give information on resources to analyze job skills, and obtain and finance necessary training, for persons needing to change professions or find employment.

Individuals will have the opportunity to meet one-on-one with resource people, become aware of the variety of resources available, and sit in on sessions which will provide information on interview skills, resume writing and the future job market.

Special short programs will include Interview Skills at 7 p.m.; Preparing a Resume, 7:30 p.m.; and Marketable Skills for the Future, 8 p.m.

King Hill of Operation Job Search in Amarillo will present the Interview Skills and Preparing a Resume programs. Charles Vance of Texas Employment Commission in Pampa will present Marketable Skills for the Future.

Represented in the fair are: — Clarendon College-Pampa Center — Cosmetology, secretarial training, auto mechanics, nursing, electronics and academic.

— Don Smith — Financial aid. — Amarillo College Allied Health Resources — Respiratory therapy, physical therapy, medical lab technician and dental hygiene.

Also participating in the fair will be Texas National Guard, Wayland Baptist University, Adult Basic Education, Operation Job Search, Panhandle Community Services, Texas Employment Commission, Texas Rehabilitation, Department of Human Services and Texas State Technical Institute.

The fair is being sponsored by Gray County Extension Service Home Economics Advisory Committee. Task force members involved in planning the Job Training Information Fair include Pat Stubbs, Extension Economics Advisory Committee chairman; Kim Hurst, Task Force chairman, also with Panhandle Community Services; Larry Gilbert, Clarendon Junior College; Margo Stanley, Panhandle Community Services; Judy Williams, Extension Home Economics Advisory Committee member; Irene Dodd, Department of Human Services; and Donna Brauchi, Gray County Extension agent.

Gray County Extension Service will provide a Gray County Resource Directory free of charge to all participants.

MR. & MRS. J.E. (BUSTER) WILLIS

Willises observe 56th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J.E. (Buster) Willis of Pampa will be honored with a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. May 3 in Hobart Baptist Church to celebrate their 56th wedding anniversary.

The reception will be hosted by the couple's children and grandchildren. Friends are welcome to attend.

Willis married the former Myrtle Cast on May 2, 1931 in Marlow, Okla. They came to Pampa in 1934. They have owned and operated Willis Furniture since 1959.

Siblings take sides after parents' divorce

DEAR ABBY: After 42 years of marriage, my parents divorced when my mother learned that my father had purchased a penthouse condominium for "Cynthia," his mistress of many years.

Apart from the pain and humiliation this caused Mom, it created a split among the siblings. My younger sister and I sided with our mother. Our brother and older sister sided with Dad.

When our parents separated, Dad moved into the condo with Cynthia. A few months later, Dad's mother died, and he brazenly brought Cynthia to the funeral. Our whole family was there, and it was very painful for Mother to see Dad and his mistress together in public. (My parents were still legally married.)

Three months later, my older sister's son had his bar mitzvah. Dad's invitation was addressed to him alone, but he accepted on the condition that he could bring Cynthia. My sister agreed. When Mom heard this, she refused to attend, which angered my sister so much she hasn't spoken to our mother since — it's been 18 months. By the way, Mom sent a lovely bar mitzvah gift, which was never acknowledged.

Abby, I feel as though I've lost half my family. I am heartsick. How do other families deal with a situation of this kind?

HOPEFUL OF HEALING

DEAR HOPEFUL: Blessed are the children of divorced parents who can remain neutral — which is always difficult and sometimes impossible — without appearing two-faced and hypocritical.

If, after having taken sides, you sincerely want to patch things up, extend your hand in friendship to each member of the family whom you offended — or who offended you for having taken sides. Make a bid for a new beginning, and bury the past. (You can't force anyone to forgive or accept you, but if you are rejected, at least you'll know you tried.)

Now, for those of you who haven't taken sides, but are faced with the prospect, a word of advice: Out of loyalty to no one should you permit yourself to be locked out of anyone's life.

If a parent behaves in a manner that you consider hateful — hate the sin, but love the sinner. Forgive your parents for their wrongdoing, just as they have forgiven you. I know I sound like Mary Poppins, but dear to me (I am her only granddaughter), and I know she would love to see me married.

I have asked my boyfriend several times if we can get married in the near future while my grandmother is still around. His reply is always, "Wait until we have more money."

Do you think he really wants to marry me?

CONFUSED IN CANADA

DEAR CONFUSED: Not enough.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 60-(and sexy)-year-old grandmother taking a bath in the tub with her 5-year-old grandson?

It kind of bugged me so I'm seeking your opinion.

JOHN FROM OAK PARK

DEAR JOHN: A 5-year-old boy should be able to bathe by himself — and so should his grandmother.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing concerning the wife who was distraught over her husband's continuing contact with his former girlfriend of many years ago. She had written a friendly letter on her Christmas card — and he responded in kind.

My husband and his first girlfriend corresponded with each other until they were somewhat disabled by old age! In the later years, he couldn't hear, so I telephoned her for him. She couldn't write, so her daughter wrote to him for her. As my husband was dying, he asked me to call her to say farewell, and to get her final comment.

I did as he asked, and her final comment was: "Tell him I love him in the same old way."

They were both 91.

School's PTA in 1941 until she had to resign because she became pregnant with her daughter.

She has been a Red Cross volunteer for 21 years, spending most of that time working at the hospital. She helps with bingo games at Pampa Nursing Home in connection with the Red Cross, and she also delivers meals for Meals on Wheels.

When she isn't traveling or helping others, Mrs. Tarpley fills her spare time with hobbies.

She has knitted about 20 sweaters, using the English style of knitting. She has knitted for her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

"I have a couple of friends who knit, and we try to get together and knit once a week," Mrs. Tarpley said.

A cathedral quilt that she made contains 1500 pieces of cloth from previous sewing projects. The quilt is full-size, large enough for a bedspread, with two matching pillow shams.

"I worked on it mostly in the winter. I made one and gave it to my granddaughter when she got married. Then I decided I wanted one for myself. I like to sew, and each square on the quilt has a scrap from something I've sewed," Mrs. Tarpley said.

She sews clothes for herself, her daughter and her grandchildren. She also used to sew for the public.

Gardening is another of Mrs. Tarpley's hobbies.

"I love to work in the yard. I always have a garden — I put 115 ears of corn in the freezer last year. I did all my mowing until last year; now I have it done," she said.

Mrs. Tarpley has lived in Pampa since 1930. She has three children. Bill manages Tolzien Music Store in Amarillo, while Buzz (Glen) oversees Tarpley Music Co. here. Daughter Donna Ludwick lives in Houston. Mrs. Tarpley's husband Louis died 25 years ago.

Other family members include eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Tarpley doesn't plan on slowing down any time soon.

"I broke an arm about a year ago, and that slowed me down. But you'd be surprised what you can do when you have to," she said.

Local foster parents, adoptive families needed

ment where child abuse might be found, according to Texas Department of Human Services.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series on child abuse. Today's installment deals with foster parenting and adoption of abused and neglected children. April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month and has been proclaimed Child Abuse Prevention Month for Pampa by city officials.

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

□ The A children were victims of long-term sexual abuse by their father. Mr. A was incarcerated for a number of years for sexual abuse, yet after being released from prison, he was again allowed access to the children by the mother, who herself had been an incest victim.

□ The B children were placed in substitute care on six occasions because of their mother's instability. On the last placement of the children, it was learned that the mother and her fifth husband had been sexually abusing the children.

□ Six-year-old C's mother insisted that the Texas Department of Human Services (TDHS) take the child after the department's involvement concerning neglect and bruising. The mother never showed further interest in the child and refused to work toward getting C back home.

□ D's mother had served a prison sentence for abusing D's older sister. D's infant brother had died of sudden infant death syndrome. D suffered gross neglect, and was deaf as a result of meningitis.

Parental rights were terminated by court judges in each of these cases, which all occurred in the Texas Panhandle, the agency reported. In other instances, the children were temporarily removed from the home and later reunited with their families after successful counseling of the abusive or neglectful family member(s).

Where do these children stay when they are removed from their homes for their own protection?

Foster homes provide shelter for them until they are reunited with their families. Adoptive parents offer permanent homes to those who will never return to the homes where parental rights were terminated.

The only problem with this system is that there aren't enough foster homes and people willing to adopt these children, according to Linda Booth, regional adoption supervisor and child placement supervisor for TDHS in Amarillo.

In fiscal year 1986, Texas Panhandle children in foster care averaged 71 per month in federally-funded Program 08 in 19 counties, and 56 per month in state-paid Program 10. Gray County had one child in foster home placement; Hemphill, one; and Wheeler, two. Licensed foster homes for a 19-county area in fiscal 1986 averaged 40 per month. As of this month, there are 54 foster families in the 19-county region, not including Potter, Randall and Armstrong counties, which have about 60 more foster homes.

"We need as many foster families as we can get, because sometimes it gets slow, but at other times we're really busy," Booth said.

Anyone interested in providing foster care may call the Amarillo TDHS office at 358-6211. Foster care is not directly handled by the TDHS Pampa office. The Amarillo foster care program includes 19 counties.

One of three foster home developers will visit with interested callers and mail them an application form. After the form has been completed and returned to the TDHS office, a worker will make arrangements for a home study visit, which may include four to six visits to the applicant's home.

These visits include a health inspection, a tuberculosis test for all those residing in the home, a fire inspection by the worker or the local fire department, and interviews concerning family background and other information such as the applicant's reasons for wishing to be a foster parent.

The developer also provides training on all aspects of foster parenting at the same time as the home study. This training includes information on the types and behavior of children who require foster care, and what TDHS expects of the foster home. Foster children include all ages, races and income levels; and children with physical and mental handicaps and emotional problems. Many have been abused or neglected; some have been abandoned.

A criminal-record check on the applicant is done through the Department of Public Safety. Pets must be vaccinated against rabies. A certain amount of square footage must be available in the home for each foster child the applicant wishes to have.

Foster parents must also be at least 18, must meet their own financial needs and must complete 21 hours of training. Foster parents may be married or single, and both spouses may work.

Foster families may choose the age and sex of the child, and specify what handicaps, if any, the child may have. They are also free to refuse emergency placements, in which a foster home is required immediately for an overnight stay or for only a few days. Foster families can request a rest period between caring for one child and the next.

After the study is completed, the worker writes a report and the applicant is either approved or disapproved. Some who are approved may receive a foster child on the same day, while others may not immediately be needed.

"Some families we use over and over because of their location and the type of children they can work with, while others we use only occasionally. But we need all of them."

"We want to keep siblings together, and we appreciate families who can take all of them and not split them up," Booth said.

The usual amount of time a child is in foster care is six months to a year. Foster families are reimbursed at the end of each month for expenses incurred by providing the child's basic needs such as room and board.

TDHS says its primary goal is to eventually reunite foster children with their former families. A second alternative is to place the child with a relative. The last resort is to put the child up for adoption if the court terminates parental rights or if the parent(s) relinquish all rights to the child, the agency says.

People interested in giving these children a permanent home may call the Amarillo TDHS office. A worker will send an application, and after it is completed and returned, TDHS contacts the applicant to give more information on the adoption program.

Adoptive parents are required to attend Adoption Group meetings one night a week for six weeks, or three consecutive Saturdays. TDHS will work on an individual basis with those who cannot attend the meetings. Adoption Group meetings provide information on ways to deal with behavioral problems, community resources, awareness of children's biological families, possible behavior of the children and the types of children available.

If the applicant and TDHS workers feel that the adoption program is right for them, an individual study is taken. The worker will visit with each family member and obtain a family background, including the family's beliefs on discipline and their reasons for wishing to adopt.

Adoptive families must be prepared to adopt Anglo children age 6 or older, minority children of any age, siblings, children with behavioral or emotional problems, or those with physical or mental handicaps.

The caseworkers will visit the family's home to see that it is safe, clean and healthy for a child. No fire inspection is done, and no specific square footage of the home is required, unlike rules for foster homes.

A supervisor and program director approve or deny the family, based on the caseworker's study. If the family or individual is approved, the caseworker determines if there is a child suitable for them. If not, the family's records are kept on file until a child is found.

When a child and family are matched, the parents first meet the child "on paper." All available information on the child is furnished, and the adoptive parent(s) may then state whether or not they are interested in the child. If they are interested, they then meet the child face-to-face.

After everyone involved agrees that the child and family match well, pre-placement visits begin. These range from as little as two visits to a year's worth. Most pre-placement visits are completed in two to three weeks or a month. The purpose of these visits, which may be overnight or weekend visits, is to allow the child and family to get to know one another and become comfortable.

Counseling is provided during this period, and caseworkers make regular visits to the home.

The next step is for the child to move into the home, with continued TDHS supervision. After a minimum of six months, if everything is going well and everyone is happy, the family is allowed to go to court and consummate the adoption.

The pre-placement period may be extended if everything is not going well enough, Booth said. An adoption disruption occurs if the family or caseworker decides the adoption won't work out. The child is then removed from the home and placed either in another adoptive home or in foster care.

When the family is ready to go to court to adopt the child, they must hire an attorney to file a petition for adoption. A judge makes the final decision on the adoption. Those approved have their attorneys request a new birth certificate for the child, showing the adoptive parents' names. The attorney's fee is the only one adoptive parents must pay. No fee is charged by TDHS.

TDHS makes an effort to place children in Texas if possible. A nationwide adoption resource exchange is available for those children or families who aren't matched within the state.

There are currently approximately 30 children waiting for adoption through the TDHS Amarillo office. This number is expected to increase to 55 or 60 in a few months because of the number of foster children who have little chance of returning to their former homes. The adoptive unit of TDHS in Amarillo covers 25 counties.

display at First National Bank were made by Harold Beckham.

ANNOUNCING YOUR WEDDING
Wedding announcements are usually prepared well in advance of the wedding. And, unless your wedding is a society event, it is you, not a newspaper reporter, who'll provide the pertinent information.

First, make a list of the newspapers where you'd like your announcement to appear. This should include your home town and your bridegroom's, your current home if you've moved away, and the areas of other close relatives. Get the proper names of the newspapers, their mailing addresses and if possible the names of the society editors to whom such announcements should be addressed. This information is available in your local library.

It helps to contact the newspapers in advance, to find out what kind of information they want; whether there's a charge for running your announcements. Some papers only want the basic facts: names and occupations of bride and groom, date and place of the wedding, information on parents. Others will also run a description of your gown, your flowers, even your music, and information on your entire wedding party.

ABWA chapter hosts membership tea today

Magic Plains chapter of American Business Women's Association will host a Membership Enrollment Tea at 2 p.m. today in Energas Flame Room.

Any working woman interested in the association is welcome to attend the tea.

Magic Plains chapter was chartered in February 1987 with 28 charter members. It has grown to 32 members currently.

Scholarships totaling $1,000 will be awarded in May for the 1987-88 academic year. Chapter members have chosen a high school senior girl and alternate, and two women enrolled at Clarendon College.

The chapter has been asked to sponsor two additional chapters, one in Zapata, Texas and one in Guymon, Okla. Plans for the Zapata chapter are in process, and the chapter will be chartered soon. Sponsoring chapters receive special awards and recognition for outreach programs such as this.

Since 1949, ABWA has been a leading advocate and supporter of women's education. Benefits available to members include "Women in Business" magazine, insurance plans, financial services, member discounts, conventions, conferences and seminars. ABWA members have the opportunity to support and further other young women's business goals, as well as their own.

ABWA is a nationwide network of more than 2,100 chapters and 112,000 members. The organization encourages personal skills, leadership qualities and educational opportunities that help women find their places in the business world.

Myrtle Carey is charter president and Ellen Malone is chairman in charge of the membership tea.

Protect skin from sun damage

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

With sunny, warm weather becoming more prevalent, many individuals are taking to the lake, outdoor sports or just sunbathing. If sunshine is in your schedule of activities, be sensible about it.

Excessive exposure to ultraviolet radiation from the sun can damage your skin, causing sunburn, premature aging or even skin cancer. People with little protective pigment in their skin, usually those with fair skin and light eyes, are most susceptible to sun-caused damage. Because skin cancer usually occurs on areas of the skin most exposed to the sun, most skin cancer developed by Americans each year is considered to be sun-related.

The damage caused by the sun's rays is cumulative. Infants are more susceptible than adults, and even tanned or black-skinned people can suffer sun-caused damage. Certain drugs and some skin medications and cosmetics can also cause increased sensitivity to the sun.

To prevent skin problems later in life, sun-sensitive people should consider daily year-round use of sunscreens. Sunscreen products help filter out ultraviolet rays that cause burning and peeling. Depending on their strength, they allow varying degrees of tanning. Sun blocks, which are different from sunscreens, block out the sun's rays completely and allow no tanning.

Homemakers' News

Most manufacturers are now labeling their sunscreen products with numbers based on the Sun Protection Factor (SPF). These numbers will make it easier for you to select the best sunscreen for your skin type.

■ An SPF of 2 offers minimal (or the least) protection from sunburn and permits suntanning.

■ An SPF of 4 offers moderate protection from burning and permits a limited amount of suntanning.

■ An SPF of 8 to 14 provides maximal protection from sunburn and limits suntanning.

■ An SPF of 15 or higher provides ultra (or the greatest) protection from sunburn and permits no suntanning. Sun blocks, such as products containing titanium dioxide, would be included in this category.

If your skin turns a barely perceptible pink after 30 minutes in the sun without the protection of a sunscreen, a sunscreen product with an SPF of 2 will allow you to remain in the sun approximately twice as long (or one hour) before your skin turns a barely perceptible pink. A sunscreen with an SPF of 6 should allow you to remain in the sun about six times longer (or three hours) before your skin turns a faint pink.

You may need a stronger sunscreen than usual in instances where damage from the sun can be most severe—at the beach, on snow, at high altitudes, at midday (from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.) or near the equator. In any event, if you feel yourself beginning to burn, go inside immediately.

Despite scientific-sounding SPF numbers and manufacturer's presentations of various "suncare systems", acquiring a tan without burning still entails some guesswork. You usually don't know you are sunburned until it's too late. Unlike other types of burns, sunburn doesn't appear until at least two hours after exposure, and symptoms usually take 16 to 24 hours to reach their peak.

No product can make your skin tan faster or more deeply than your genes permit. While a greased body may look darker, baby oil, cocoa butter and similar no-protection concoctions merely keep the skin moist. If you try to rush a tan by staying in the sun longer than you should, you're likely to burn and peel. When you peel, any gain you may have built up will slough off with dead skin. Therefore, you will have to start over again.

Some safety tips for the sun include:

■ Avoid the sun between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., when its burning rays are most direct.

■ Sun reflectors are dangerous—don't use them.

■ Don't use baby oil, mineral oil or cocoa butter as suntan lotions. They offer no protection.

■ You can get a bad burn on hazy days, under water and beneath a beach umbrella, so use a sunscreen.

Remember—a sunscreen with an SPF number appropriate both to your skin and to the intensity of the sun can let you stay in the sun longer, without burning, while a tan develops. It is also good to keep in mind that a tan is the body's visible defense against further damage from ultraviolet radiation. Those who tan their hides summer after summer expose themselves to long-term damage.

Wheatheart Pageant entry forms available

Several thousand dollars in scholarships will be awarded in the Miss Wheatheart of the Nation scholarship pageant, Aug. 8 in Perryton.

Sponsored by Perryton-Ochiltree Chamber of Commerce, the pageant is affiliated with the Miss America pageant system. The new Miss Wheatheart will compete in the Miss Texas pageant the following July.

Contestants must be between ages 17 and 26, and Texas residents for at least six months prior to the Perryton pageant. Included in the competition will be bathing suit, evening gown and interview, as well as a two-minute, 50-second talent presentation.

The winner will receive a $1,000 scholarship from the Chamber and her choice of a $1,500 scholarship to Panhandle State University, a $1,000 scholarship to South Plains Junior College in Levelland, a $1,000 scholarship to Clarendon Junior College or a $400 scholarship to Frank Phillips College.

The new Miss Wheatheart will also receive a watch, diamond heart pendant, gold rope bracelet and a $200 gift certificate from Perryton merchants.

First runner-up will be awarded a $500 scholarship from the Chamber and her choice of a $500 scholarship to South Plains, a $500 scholarship to PSU, a $200 scholarship to Clarendon or a $200 scholarship to Frank Phillips.

Second runner-up will receive a $250 scholarship from the Chamber along with her choice of a $500 South Plains scholarship, a $300 PSU scholarship, a $200 Clarendon scholarship or a $200 Frank Phillips scholarship.

Third and fourth runners-up will have a choice of a $500 South Plains scholarship or a $200 Frank Phillips scholarship.

In addition, Frank Phillips will offer a $200 scholarship to each contestant entered in the pageant.

The contestant who sells the most ads for the program book, secures the most sponsors or sells the most tickets to the pageant will receive a $200 cash award.

Entry forms are available from Perryton-Ochiltree Chamber of Commerce, 435-6575, or from Becky Cunningham, Miss Wheatheart pageant coordinator, 435-6182.

Breast Cancer Facts

Good Health Habit

Most breast cancers are first discovered by women themselves. The American Cancer Society recommends the monthly practice of breast self-examination (BSE) by women 20 years and older as a routine habit.

Breast Exams

The American Cancer Society advises women 20 to 40 to have a physical examination of the breast every three years. Women over 40 should have their breasts examined by a physician every year.

Bedding plants can create a colorful landscape

Texas gardeners are using more and more bedding plants for landscape color. Plants like petunias and marigolds provide a colorful accent to garden beds, borders and containers, and many can also be used as cut flowers in the home.

To help gardeners select from the wide variety of plants available, the Texas Agriculture Extension Service has released a list of recommended bedding plant varieties for 1987. These plants have been evaluated in trial gardens and home landscape demonstrations throughout the state and are proven performers for Texas.

PETUNIAS

We have selected the Madness series of petunias for their heat tolerance and long-lasting flowers. These plants hold up well in our tough Texas climate and will bloom long into the summer months. There are now nine varieties in this floribunda class. They include White Madness, Summer Madness, Sheer Madness, Pink Madness, Coral Madness, Red Madness, Rose Madness, Plum Madness and Burgundy Madness.

MARIGOLDS

The Inca series of marigolds have done extremely well in Texas trial gardens for several years. These plants have large blooms and a free-flowering habit. Incas grow to about 14-16 inches in height and are available in gold, orange and yellow.

Many gardeners prefer shorter marigolds, and to meet this need we have selected the Queen series. These plants have large, 2-inch flowers with a very compact growth habit (10-12 inches in height). Several varieties are available: Golden Queen Victoria — deep gold flowers, Honey Sophia — russet red with yellow edges, Orange Sophia — pure orange flowers, Queen Beatrix — golden yellow with red, Queen Sophia — scarlet.

GERANIUMS

The "Glacier" series of geraniums has exhibited early-flowering characteristics and good heat tolerance. Although these plants thrive in full sun, most will tolerate partial shade.

For Horticulture

Joe VanZandt

Plants reach an average height of 14-18 inches and branch freely to form a dense growth habit. At present, there are three varieties in this series: Glacier Crimson, Glacier Salmon and Glacier Scarlet. Glaciers are also culture virus indexed.

IMPATIENS

Although impatiens are somewhat difficult to manage during our summer months, they are among the most popular plants available.

The Super Elfin series has been a favorite among Texas gardeners for years, and several varieties are available in a rainbow of colors. These impatiens reach a height of 8-10 inches with large, long-lasting flowers. Impatiens can also be used in containers and hanging baskets. At present, there are 15 varieties in this series: Blush, Bright Eyes, Coral, Fuchsia, Lipstick, Orange, Orchid, Pink, Red, Rose, Salmon, Salmon Blush, Scarlet, Twilight and White.

VINCA (PERIWINKLE)

There is probably not a bedding plant more adapted to Texas growing conditions than vinca or periwinkle. These low-growing, bushy plants can tolerate extreme heat and are drought tolerant. The Little series of vinca is a favorite of gardeners throughout the state. These plants reach a height of 10-12 inches. Little Bright Eye (white with a red eye) and Little Pinkie have proven to be the best two varieties for Texas.

BEGONIAS

Although begonias are available in several colors, red has proven most popular. Among the numerous varieties of red begonias, Scarletta has proved to be an outstanding performer. These plants are free-flowering and reach a height of 12-14 inches. Their compact growth habit creates an extremely attractive plant.

SALVIA

Red salvia can be one of the most striking plants in the garden. However, many varieties just won't stand up against our tough climate. Red Hot Sally flowers early and will continue to flower well into the dog days of summer. This plant has strong spikes of beautiful red blooms and reaches a height of 10-12 inches.

ZINNIAS

Most of the previously mentioned bedding plants are grown from transplants. Zinnias, on the other hand, are generally direct seeded in flower beds or containers. Since zinnias tolerate heat and drought, they are well suited for Texas gardens.

Size is critical in selecting zinnia varieties. They range in height from 2 to 2½ feet down to 6-10 inches. In general, however, smaller varieties are most popular. Thumbelina reaches a height of about 10 inches and forms a dense mound of flowers. Lilliput is slightly taller.

Noel descendants plan reunion; braille lineage sheet available

By GENA WALLS

Are you a NOEL descendant? If that is your lineage, you are invited to attend the family reunion to be held June 26-28 at Roaring River State Park, P.O. Box 545, Cassville, Mo. 65625. The phone number is 417-847-2330, and when making reservations, indicate that you are attending the NOEL reunion. Accommodations vary so reserve your choice now. Available are motel, two bedroom duplex, fourplex, or camping for RVs (best to use campground #3).

Many members of this family left Kentucky in the early 1800s and settled in Missouri. SHELTON NOEL and his brother, WILLIS BRIDGES NOEL, settled near each other and the town was

For additional information about the NOEL reunion, contact

Dorothy Noel Worth, 3512 House Ave., Cheyenne, Wyo. 82001. Plan to take your camera, tape recorder, family group sheets and lineage charts (copies make sharing easier) and a large supply of paper and pencils.

Do you know someone that is visually impaired and would like a family lineage sheet in braille? I will transcribe a basic five-generation lineage chart to those needing the service. Send the information to me — Gena Walls, 11507 Brookledge Drive, Houston 77099.

Due to The Pampa News policy, I can no longer feature poetry in the column. If you would like to share a poem, try one of the many genealogical society publications that publish them.

Pampans celebrate Easter, enjoy visiting

Not a word about the weather except appreciation for a beautiful Easter!

Bouquets of blue flowers and balloons told the world that Jane and Norman Knox are the proud, proud grandparents of their FIRST grandson, little Brandon Ray Hunt, son of Jean and Leslie Ray Hunt. Leslie Ann Knox, sweetly called "Ettie" by her little nieces, can hardly wait for the wee one to call her by name. Other proud grandparents are Mary and Brad Hunt. Congratulations to all!

Their children and friends are delighted that Sue and Bob Conway were recently remarried in a romantic little chapel in Las Vegas. Special congratulations and good wishes to the couple!

Phil Conner, recently named activities director of Coronado Community Hospital, arranged for the Easter egg hunt for employees' children as his first event to supervise.

Elizabeth Houdashell and her brother, Robert Stubbs, are proud new owners of a registered Texas longhorn bull. Surely they have pictures to show!

Leta Herring of the dietary department of CCH made a rabbit out of yeast dough, set in a cabbage patch with eggs at its feet. An artistic creation!

Welcomed as new volunteers at CCH were Olivia Greenhouse and Joe Wheeley, a Celanese retiree of Austin and Mike and Jowannah Kessel of Amarillo visited their parents, Carolyn and Dale Kessel.

Larry Black has been in a quandary about telling his parents of Chicago just what to wear for their upcoming first visit to Pampa. Should they bring winter coats and mufflers or short sleeves and swimsuits?

Recovery wishes to little John Michael Ellis Jr., son of Cindy and John and grandson of Ernestine (Memaw!) Pulse. Little 4-year-old John-John took the East-ter bunny Ernestine gave him to surgery, bedecked with an identification bracelet to match his own. When John-John returned from surgery several hours later, he and the bunny rabbit wore matching large, white bandages around their throats. The only thing John-John wished for was his big sister Shelly.

Bertha Knight was honored during National Library Week with a surprise reception for her 25 years as Groom librarian. Hosts were Girl Scout Troops 57 and 21, and Friends of the Library, who presented Bertha with a purple silk rose corsage. Children from grades K through 6 sang "Happy Anniversary." Two hundred ten guests attended.

Any day is a good day to express appreciation to Betty Brown for her tireless work as chief of the Panhandle-wide High Plains Epilepsy Association. Betty gives her all to helping the patients and to educating the public.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Olson of Canyon spent Easter with their daughter and family, Kay and Dr. George Walters.

Mrs. Walter Hallerberg of Kirkwood, Mo., is spending a couple of weeks with Betty and Bill Hallerberg.

Homer D. Johnson of Houston visited his parents, Mary and Homer Johnson.

There was a family get-together when Cheryl Kessel of Austin and Mike and Jowannah Kessel of Amarillo visited their parents, Carolyn and Dale Kessel.

Paul McIntire, a college student in Arizona, visited his parents, Joyzelle and John Potts and his sisters and families.

Lorraine and Basil Renek of Pueblo, Colo. visited Lorraine's mother and brother, Mabel Johnson and George Johnson.

Spied Jane Hoover grabbing a quick bite, probably to allow for more work time in her yard. Jane's yard is always well cared for, with lots of pretty blossoms for passersby to enjoy.

Little Miss Julie Noles and her dad Jerry were seen selecting plants at a nursery. Julie helps her mom Brenda stock the Hallmark Card Shop shelves.

Gwen and Glenn Shock and boys enjoyed an afternoon of yard work.

Brenda Thrasher, recovering from recent surgery, was seen with her daughter Lacy, getting her ready for kindergarten.

Shauna and Brandon McGuire, children of Rhonda and Rick, were two more spelling bee hopefuls who worked diligently.

The time finally arrived for Susie and Dean Spoonemore to enjoy the week-long Hawaiian trip Susie won at the Texas State Fair with her chocolate cake. It proved to be all they hoped for and more. Already Dean is offering support to the point of insistence for Susie to enter any and all baking contests with the prize of another wonderful trip.

Belated congratulations to Frank Culberson on his 92nd birthday and 60th anniversary celebration of Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet Company. That's a long time to be active in one business, huh?

Congratulations to members of the First Baptist Church on their 80th anniversary celebration on Easter Sunday, and to members of the Committee on Activities, headed by Marie Egerton, plus Phoebe Reynolds, Blake Laramore, June Butler, Brenda Guess, Ann Krause, Joy Price. Don Egerton did a superb job in compiling the historical booklet.

Out-of-town guests for the celebration included Nell and George Warren of Albuquerque, N.M. About 1,000 of the SRO Sunday morning churchgoers stayed for dinner on the grounds. The choir, under the direction of John Glover, presented an appropriate musical with bits of history to complete a day never to be forgotten.

Glimpses at the Chamber of Commerce reception to introduce the new manager, Bruce Barton...Several smartly dressed in black — Freda LeMond in black polka dot blouse over a black skirt; Janie Shed, black and white; Georgia Mack, red and black floral; Dona Cornutt, pretty and bubbly in beige; Mary Ann Nace in soft pink and blue sheer; Jimmie Kay Williams in summer yellow accented with red. Lilith Brainard kept the party lively with her tidbits of fun and humor.

A big bouquet of kind words goes to the children of Nelda and Nathan Lancaster for filling a pew with a complete family group at Easter morning church services. Included were Alicia and Steve Snelgrooves, sons Kaleb and Jered and baby girl Carissa, bedecked with an Easter bonnet and frilly dress over at least 14 petticoats, frilly socks and dainty shoes; Kim and Mike Lancaster, Todd and Travis. See you next week, Katie.

Behrman's, always a step ahead, brings you a "step ahead" collection from Lorch.

Our Lorch representative is bringing a multi-season, any-reason, three-in-one collection of forward thinking fashions just for you! First we'll have an inventory of Summer things to enjoy now and on through the heat of July. Second, we'll have your introduction to Fall '87 with a collection of samples to select now for arrival in late August and September — just when you need a fresh outlook. The third group is our earliest ever "Holiday" collection. — All the glitter and glamour you want for big (and not-so-big) evenings but seldom see before October.

We're pleased to offer the Lorch collections to our customers for several specific reasons. Primary, of course, is design and quality. The inventive interpretations of fashion trends in the fabrics you love to wear — cotton twill, wool and matte jerseys, denim (black, indigo, and an iridescent!) are sure to be favorites. And the quality? Lorch is Texas crafted and our Texas pride shows in every cut, every stitch. Another reason is price. The examples shown here are typical. From the top: Pin-tucked sailor dress, $155; Pin-tucked sailor dress with dyed-to-match Venice lace, $175; Safari jacket and long slim skirt-jacket, $146; skirt, $85; Coat/dress, $175. Still another is versatility. The Lorch combination of fabrics, colors, and design detail mean season spanning pieces that move and work easily in your wardrobe.

Frankie, Annette back on beach

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — The surf's up, Annette and Frankie are back on the beach and all's well with the world.

Some things never change, and some people, too. Even though they both have grown children, Annette Funicello and Frankie Avalon aren't much different from the years when he pursued her in Beach Blanket Bingo, How to Stuff a Wild Bikini and other mindless teen-age movies of the mid-1960s.

Paramount Pictures is sponsoring a reunion of the pair in Back to the Beach, in which they play onetime beach lovers who move to Ohio. He is a successful car dealer who wins a trip to Hawaii. On the way the couple stops in California to visit their college-age daughter.

The movie was recently filming on Malibu Pier under the direction of Lyndall Hobbs, a newcomer from Australia. The scene had Avalon and Funicello storming up to the apartment over the bait shop. They suspect — horrors! — that their daughter is shackled up with a surfer.

Could that ever have happened in one of their movies of yore?

"Never," Funicello said. "Frankie was always trying to get me, but my line was 'Not without a ring.'"

"Maybe we'd have a little kissing in the back seat of the car," Avalon said. "That was it."

Funicello, 43, and Avalon, 47, are pop icons from a more innocent age. Their beach movies followed their immense popularity in other fields. They also made two films involving auto racing.

She was the San Fernando Valley girl who became the most popular member of Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse Club (1955-1959). She moved into features with The Shaggy Dog and Babes in Toyland, and recorded the hit singles, "Tall Paul," "First Name Initial" and "O Dio Mio."

He was the South Philadelphia boy who organized his own band at 14, was discovered and made million sellers with "Venus," "Dede Dinah," "Bobby Sox to Stockings," "Why" and "Just Ask Your Heart." He starred with Alan Ladd in Guns of Timberland and John Wayne in The Alamo.

The independent American International Pictures united the young stars in 1963 with Beach Party and the pairing continued until Fireball 500 in 1965.

"We made those picture in three weeks — 15 working days — but we got a lot into them," Funicello recalled. "The budget of Back to the Beach is up to $10 million, and we're shooting it in 8½ weeks."

Their appearances together since that time have been sporadic: a Dick Clark special now and then, her appearing as a guest on his CBS variety show.

Meanwhile they followed separate careers. She had occasional TV shots (Love Boat, Fantasy Island) and was the nine-year spokeswoman for Skipper peanut butter; he was a headliner in Las Vegas, Atlantic City.

At the Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

Swimming to Cambodia
The oral tradition dates back to caveman days, flourished in Africa, reached its height with Homer and has been popular ever since.

Charles Dickens and Mark Twain read their works to enthralled audiences. Today's practitioners range from Hal Holbrook and James Whitmore to Richard Pryor and Eddie Murphy.

But can a single actor, talking on a small stage about relatively serious matters, hold an audience in a movie theater? The answer is a resounding yes, when the actor is Spalding Gray and the movie is Swimming to Cambodia.

He slouches onstage in a plaid workshirt and rumpled pants and sits before a microphone placed on a plain desk. He is tall and attractive, with thinning hair and arched eyebrows that accent the querulous eyes. His only props are a glass of water and a pointer with which he refers to maps of Southeast Asia.

The tone is conversational as he relates how he auditioned for the minor role of an embassy official in the 1983 movie, The Killing Fields. Then he speaks of his experiences on location in Thailand.

Some of the stories are highly amusing; some appalling. He tells in graphic detail the unique talents of the prostitutes in the Bangkok sex houses. He also delivers two dead-serious lectures: How the Nixon Administration carried out the secret bombing of Cambodia; How the Khmer Rouge committed a genocide that rivaled Hitler's.

That's about it. Gray is on camera the entire time except when — blessedly — scenes from The Killing Fields illustrate what he is talking about.

What makes Swimming to Cambodia utterly fascinating is the coupling of a lively intellect with an actor's immense skill.

Where has Spalding Gray been? You think he might have been a star; at least he could have been a contender. But instead of hunting for roles, he has created his own, in the autobiographical monologues he has played across the land.

Jonathan Demme is the second genius behind Swimming to Cambodia. A top-flight director of offbeat subjects (Melvin and Howard, Stop Making Sense), Demme invisibly employs all the tricks in his directorial bag to convert Gray's monologue into a cinematic piece. Laurie Anderson's otherworldly music adds greatly to the overall effect.

Produced by R.A. Shafrensky, the Cinecom picture is unrated, but contains strong language and sexual content.

Auditions set

Auditions for ACT I's finale production, Thurber Carnival, will be at 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at the M.K. Brown Auditorium Heritage Room.

Director Kayla Pursley says she's looking for any number of people for a cast that can grow from six to 57 players.

The play is a compilation of the humorous, reflective and dramatic works of humorist and cartoonist James Thurber.

Production dates are June 12 and 13.

Department proposes rules for foreign workers

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign workers would be allowed to harvest wheat and corn but prohibited from working in cotton and soybean fields or helping with the milking under rules proposed by the Agriculture Department.

The proposal, announced Tuesday, involves definitions of fruits, vegetables and other perishable commodities that will be used to carry out the Immigration Reform Act passed by Congress last year.

Officials said the rules would help determine eligibility for temporary legal status of alien workers involved in seasonal agricultural jobs in the United States.

The proposal, which is open three weeks for public comment, is expected to attract a wave of protests from some agricultural interests that would be barred from hiring foreign workers, mainly migrants or temporary help from Mexico.

Al French, a USDA farm labor specialist, said the proposed regulations would prevent most farmers from employing alien workers. When grain producers are counted, about 78 percent of the farms that hire workers would be barred from employing foreigners.

The 1982 Census showed that about 850,000 farms had hired workers, either full or part time, he said. But those included all hired workers, not just aliens.

"We had received considerable comment from the livestock and dairy industry" wanting the rules to include them for alien workers, he said. But those have been excluded, and "I expect we'll hear about that."

On the other hand, all plant crops grown for human consumption would be approved for the alien work force, French said in an interview. Corn is a commodity that is expected to stir controversy because it is mostly a livestock feed in the United States, he said. However, much of the grain is exported to countries where corn is important as a food grain.

New federal regulations, including the definitions, are being drafted and will begin to take effect next month. A general amnesty is provided for aliens who can prove continuous U.S. residency since Jan. 1, 1982.

The law also provides several avenues allowing legal work in the United States by alien farm workers who have a history of helping with fruits, vegetables and other perishable products.

Qualified aliens who performed seasonal agricultural services in the United States for specified periods of time before May 1, 1986, would be allowed temporary legal status.

The language of the law defines seasonal agricultural services as "field work related to planting, cultural practices, cultivating, growing and harvesting of fruits and vegetable of every kind and other perishable commodities, as defined in regulations by the secretary of agriculture."

Under the proposal, "other perishable" commodities that meet the definition of fruits and vegetables, the seasonal field work requirements or "critical and unpredictable labor" demands, include: Christmas trees, cut flowers, herbs, hops, horticultural specialties, Spanish reeds, spices, sugarbeets and tobacco.

Field crops such as wheat, corn and rice would be among the commodities qualifying for seasonal alien labor.

Farmers looking for rain as planting operations continue

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Planting operations are continuing over Texas, and farmers are starting to look for rain to boost young crops and pastures, says Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

High winds have depleted topsoil moisture over the state, and rainfall has been limited so far during the month of April, Carpenter said in his weekly report on the state's agriculture. Early planted crops need rain, and farmers in southern counties are waiting for rain to plant soybeans and peanuts.

Corn planting is under way in the Panhandle and South Plains along with sugar beet planting. Cotton planting continues in some central and coastal counties, and farmers are still planting rice in the Upper Coast and Coastal Bend regions.

Soil temperatures at the 4-inch depth are now in the mid- to upper 60s in all areas but the Panhandle and should be conducive to good seed germination, Carpenter said. Soil temperature readings are monitored by the Southwest Agricultural Weather Service Center at Texas A&M University.

Extension officials are still working with farmers to assess losses to wheat from the late March freeze. Many losses range from 60 to 80 percent and are higher than earlier estimated. Wheat is heading in eastern and north central counties. Spring wheat in the Rolling Plains is struggling due to recent dry conditions because plants have a shallow root system as a result of earlier wet weather, Carpenter said.

Vegetable harvesting continues in the Rio Grande Valley and Winter Garden, while the sugar cane harvest is about complete in the Valley.

Gardeners and truck farmers over the state are replanting many vegetable crops that were damaged by the late March freeze.

Livestock remain in good shape, but recent dry conditions are affecting the level of grazing, Carpenter said. Rain is needed over the state for continued production of high quality forage.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: More freeze damage to wheat is showing up. Farmers are planting corn and sugar beets and are replanting onions lost to the late March freeze. Stocker cattle continue to make good gains on graze-out wheat. Calving is winding down.

SOUTH PLAINS: Freeze damage to wheat is estimated as high as 90 percent in some locations but is averaging 40 to 60 percent. Some wheat is starting to head. Farmers are planting corn and sugar beets along with onions. Some onions were lost to the late March freeze.

ROLLING PLAINS: High winds are depleting topsoil moisture, and this is having a detrimental effect on spring wheat which has a shallow root system due to earlier wet conditions. Farmers are getting cotton land ready for planting. Livestock have excellent grazing; shipments of stockers to feedlots continue.

NORTH CENTRAL: Farmers are tending to young corn and sorghum and are continuing to plant cotton. A lot of wheat is headed and is in fair to good condition. Livestock generally have good grazing but rain is needed for continued forage growth.

NORTHEAST: Wheat is heading and is in fair shape; freeze damage varies widely. Young crops are doing well; farmers are continuing to plant corn, sorghum, soybeans, watermelons and vegetables. Many vegetables are being replanted due to freeze damage. Livestock conditions are good, with beef and swine markets strong.

FAR WEST: Cotton planting is under way in some counties. High winds have depleted soil moisture over the region. Up to 90 percent of the wheat crop was lost to the late March freeze. Some ranchers are pulling cattle off pastures to avoid poisoning problems from sand shinnery, which is starting to bud. Excellent lamb crops abound in some counties.

WEST CENTRAL: Parts of the region received scattered rains early in the week. Livestock continue to have excellent grazing; shipments of yearlings have been heavy due to good markets. Ranchers have started shearing sheep; early wool sales are above last year's level. Freeze-damaged vegetables are being replanted.

CENTRAL: Corn and sorghum are making good growth with the warm weather. Yellow sugarcane aphids are heavy in some young sorghum. Cotton planting is winding down. Young crops as well as pastures and ranges need rain due to recent drying winds. Ranchers are shearing sheep and some producers are baling freeze-damaged wheat and oats.

EAST: Soil moisture is declining and rain is needed for young crops and pastures. Farmers and gardeners are continuing to replant vegetables lost to the late March freeze. About half the fruit crop was lost to the freeze. Cattle are in good shape; an excellent calf crop is on the ground.

UPPER COAST: Young crops are doing well but need rain as do pastures. Some cotton and rice are still being planted. Farmers are flushing early planted rice. Most backyard peaches were lost to the late March freeze. Wheat is in fair to good shape.

SOUTH CENTRAL: High winds have depleted soil moisture so that young crops, pastures and ranges need rain. A little corn, sorghum and cotton planting continues, and producers are fertilizing pastures. Both the peach and wheat crops were heavily damaged by the late March freeze.

SOUTHWEST: The region got some scattered rains early in the week, but a general rain is needed as high winds have depleted soil moisture. Corn and sorghum are making excellent progress, but farmers are replanting some early cotton, watermelons and cantaloupes due to stand losses from damping off. About half the wheat crop and virtually all of the peach crop were lost to the late season freeze.

CUTTING TRACTOR FUEL USE

With the spring season at hand, farmers should have their tractors in good running order to keep operating costs down.

Attention to a few details can help farmers reduce fuel consumption in farm machinery, whether gasoline or diesel powered.

Perhaps the most neglected item on any engine is the air cleaner. A dirty air cleaner can cut down the amount of free air flow and change the fuel-air mixture. A tractor operating at full load needs about 1,200 cubic feet of air to burn one gallon of fuel. Anything less cuts down on power and increases fuel consumption.

Tractor engines also should operate at the proper temperature, usually 180 to 190 degrees F. Engines operating at lower temperatures, because of faulty thermostats use more fuel, exert less power and wear out faster.

Farmers can save as much as 400 gallons of fuel a year, based on 800 hours of tractor operation, by cutting down the time an engine idles. Studies show that tractors idle as much as 12 percent of the time and use half a gallon of fuel an hour at idle speed. A fast idle will use 40 percent as much fuel as the tractor engine needs at full load.

So, pay careful attention to idle time when operating a tractor, make sure the engine thermostat is operating properly, and service the air cleaner regularly. These practices can reduce operating costs, and that's critical for 1987.

TEXAS MOVES TO CLASS B BRUCELLOSIS CLASSIFICATION

On April 1, Texas was approved for a class B brucellosis classification by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Since 1980, Texas had been classified as both a Class C and Class B state. With the Class B status, the B-C line will be eliminated. The new B designation also means less restriction on interstate movement of cattle for Texas producers.

The change to Class B status has resulted from a dramatically reduced herd infection rate, along with an increasing number of certified free herds across the state and an aggressive continuation of the calfood vaccination program.

Increased efforts will be needed in the future to reach the state's goal of meeting the Class A status as mandated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The target date for this accomplishment is Oct. 1, 1990. In the meantime, other states are putting more pressure on Texas producers to increase efforts to control and eradicate brucellosis.

CONTROL PARASITES IN HORSES

The single most important item in a preventative medicine program for horses is internal parasite control.

By establishing a good parasite control program in conjunction with your veterinarian, including deworming and pasture management, damage from parasite infections in horses can be minimized.

A parasite control program should focus on eliminating parasites already existing in the horse and controlling the environment through effective management so that the horse will be reinfected with fewer parasites.

A veterinarian can set up a deworming program tailored to the needs of any horse. Such factors as the environment, health of the horse, and parasites naturally found in your area must be considered in devising a treatment that will insure that the medication is continually effective. Also, a veterinarian can advise on how medication should be administered and on the correct dosage.

An effective deworming program will call for treatments at two-to-four month intervals because of continuous reinfection pressure. Programs should be designed to have major effectiveness against large and small strongyles, pinworms, roundworms and bots.

White supremacists indicted for conspiring to topple government

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen white supremacists were indicted Friday in Arkansas and Colorado allegedly for conspiring to overthrow the U.S. government and for murdering a Denver radio talk show host in 1984, the Justice Department announced.

A federal grand jury in Fort Smith, Ark., accused 10 of those indicted of conspiring to topple the government over a 21-month period beginning in July 1983. The members were affiliated with white supremacist groups the Order, Aryan Nations or the Ku Klux Klan.

One of the 10 charged with sedition, Robert Edward Miles, 62, leader of the Mountain Church of Jesus Christ the Savior, Cohoctah, Michigan, said in a 1985 interview that his dream was for separatists to migrate to five Northwestern states and live by themselves and create the "New Israel."

Miles, the former head of the Ku Klux Klan in Michigan, said earlier this month, "It looks as if they're trying to produce a sedition trial ... and put me in the middle of it."

Asked why he felt this way, "I don't know if it's my writings ... we just don't know what's going on."

He was arrested this morning at his home by FBI agents.

The Fort Smith indictment also charged five people with conspiring to murder the chief U.S. district judge of the western district of Arkansas, as well as a special FBI agent assigned to the bureau's Little Rock office.

One of the five was among the 10 accused elsewhere in the indictment with sedition.

The indictment said that the 10 financed their efforts by armed robberies and counterfeiting and that they planned to assassinate federal officials including a judge. The indictment also said they targeted members of ethnic groups for bombings.

They also plotted to destroy utilities, pollute water supplies and establish guerrilla warfare training camps, according to one of the indictments. In addition, the 10 procured false identification to allow members of the group to remain unidentified.

In Denver, a one-count indictment was returned against four people, including three who were charged in the Arkansas indictment, for murdering radio talk show host Alan Berg.

The four were charged in a federal civil rights indictment with interfering with Berg's right to engage in his employment because of his religion, race or national origin. Berg, who was Jewish, frequently used his show to attack and embarrass white supremacist movements and their leaders. He was slain with a submachine gun the night of June 18, 1984 as he got out of his car in front of his apartment.

Three of the men were named in the count alleging an attempt to murder U.S. District Court Judge H. Franklin Waters of Fort Smith and FBI agent Jack D. Knox of Fayetteville on Dec. 26, 1983. One of the three, Richard Wayne Snell, is in prison in Arkansas under death sentence for the 1983 murder of a Texarkana pawn shop operator and life in prison without parole for the 1984 murder of an Arkansas state police trooper.

The other counts in the indictment allege interstate transportation of $5,000 worth of stolen money from Boise, Idaho, to Gentry, Ark on July 27, 1984; receipt of the stolen money in Fort Smith; and conspiracy to murder Waters and Knox.

Waters presided over a trial in which several members of the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord were convicted in 1985. That followed a four-day standoff between CSA members and law enforcement authorities at a CSA compound in north central Arkansas, near the Missouri border.

The 10 defendants charged with sedition in the Fort Smith indictment include, besides Miles and Snell, Richard Girt Butler, 69, leader of the Aryan Nations Church of Jesus Christ Christian, Hayden Lake, Idaho; Louis Ray Beam Jr., 40, Dallas, affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan and with the Aryan Nations Church of Jesus Christ Christian; and Robert Neil Smalley, 31, Fort Smith, Ark.

Others among the 10 are David Eden Lane, 48, imprisoned in Marion, Ill., affiliated with the Aryan Nations Church of Jesus Christ Christian and The Order; Ardie McBrearty, 59, imprisoned at El Reno, Okla., affiliated with The Order; Bruce Carroll Pierce, 32, incarcerated at Leavenworth, Kan., affiliated with The Order and the Aryan Nations Church of Jesus Christ Christian; Richard Joseph Scutari, 39, imprisoned at Leavenworth, Kan., affiliated with The Order; and Andrew Virgil Barnhill, 30, imprisoned at Lewisburg, Pa., affiliated with The Order.

Snell and four others were also charged in Fort Smith with conspiring to murder the federal judge and the FBI agent. Charged with Snell were William H. Wade, 68, and Ivan Ray Wade, 34, both of Smithville, Ark.; and Lambert Miller, 36, Springfield, Mo.; and David Michael McGuire, 24, St. Louis.

Esther and W.O. Gillean at the soda fountain.

Many prescriptions down the road, druggist looking toward retirement

By LARRY ZELISKO
Abilene Reporter-News

STAMFORD (AP) — Many a prescription has been filled by W.O. Gillean since he came to City Drug in 1934.

And many a thirst has been quenched at the now old-fashioned soda fountain.

Time has been kind to City Drug. It looks much the same as it did 53 years ago.

Time also has been kind to Gillean and his wife, Esther. He is '83 and proud of it," he says. She is still attractive. The beauty she had when actor Douglas Fairbanks named her "most beautiful" at Simmons College in Abilene is still there.

They have done well over the years, they say, but now it's time to retire. Gillean is planning to sell the drug store he has operated for 53 years.

"I hope whoever buys it does even better than I did when I first got it," he says. "I hope to heck they don't destroy it."

A tour of the store starts at the soda fountain where Gillean mixes a drink. In a Coca-Cola glass filled with crushed ice, he adds carbonated water, Coke syrup, a shot of cherry flavoring and a touch of vanilla.

The drink tastes good. Gillean sells bottled drinks out of an old pop cooler, but most people prefer the soda fountain drinks.

"You can tell the difference in your mouth," he says, explaining the fountain drinks have more fizz to them.

Gillean is quick to point out his wife's paintings of their children, Lex, W.O. Jr. and Gaylan. Photos of grandchildren fill a desk in the back, and other paintings by his wife decorate the pharmacy.

Moving on to some of the items in the mahogany display cabinets, Gillean says, "I like quality. There are a lot of witch hazels, but only one Dickinson's. I buy nothing but Dickinson's."

Witch hazel is a lotion made from the leaves of the witch hazel shrub. It is used on bruises and other small injuries.

For arthritis pain relief, Gillean stocks Absorbine Veterinary Liniment. That's "Absorbine senior, not junior," he explains.

Although made for animals, "we sell more of it for people."

Just follow the same directions, he says. Down the shelf sits Dr. J.H. McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment, which is good for aches, he says.

For soap or shampoo, he recommends Grandpa's Wonder Pine Tar Toilet Soap.

A refrigerated cabinet once kept the Pangburn's Western Style Chocolates cool.

"We'd put at least a nickel's worth of ice in it every day to keep the chocolate cool," says Mrs. Gillean.

"We don't sell boxes of chocolate anymore, just candy bars," Gillean adds. Those are kept in a more modern refrigerated cabinet.

The marble soda fountain was installed in the 1940s when business was booming. Used to be, a nickelodeon provided music for Army Air Corps cadets who came in from a training field just east of town.

"Only one time the police had to call the boys down for making too much noise," Gillean recalls.

Gillean mixes his own chocolate topping using "good ol' Hershey chocolate and Imperial sugar." He also makes his own pineapple and strawberry toppings for sundaes.

Wheat bill clears Senate after soy subsidy fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winter wheat and sugar beet growers unable to plant because of flooded fields would receive federal payments under legislation headed for a House-Senate conference committee.

The bill cleared the Senate on a voice vote after lawmakers beat back a drive to attach a $1.6 billion soybean subsidy and speed up $2.8 billion in federal payments to corn producers.

Success in fighting off major budget items buoyed sponsors hoping to obtain President Reagan's signature if conferees manage to iron out details. But they said there is no assurance it will escape a veto.

"It's possible," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee. He said the administration was "not very enthusiastic" about the measure even without the corn and soybean payments.

The measure would allow winter wheat growers to receive 92 percent of normal payments for their 1987 crop while idling all their acreage which was eligible for the farm program but too waterlogged for planting.

It would in effect make the growers eligible for a share in $400 million in disaster aid approved by Congress last year in the wake of rain and floods that wrought havoc in farm fields across the South and Midwest.

But the legislation also would expand the program to provide assistance for all applicants, although the additional money would not be available until appropriated by Congress.

Perot visited Vietnamese

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot, traveling on his own initiative, met with top officials in Vietnam last month about the issue of American servicemen still listed as missing in action, a White House official said.

Perot, who held three days of secret meetings with officials in Hanoi, said he was treated "with every courtesy," but declined to discuss the substance of his talks. The Washington Post reported.

"I still believe we left men behind," he told the newspaper.

"Mr. Perot did this on his own initiative, but we were aware of it and he briefed us on his travels after his return," the official told The Associated Press.

Perot told the Post that Vietnamese officials felt a Reagan administration plan to send retired Army Gen. John W. Vessey on a diplomatic mission to Vietnam to pursue the MIA issue was "constructive."

Perot accused the administration of "arrogance" in its dealings with the Vietnamese.

For Ouchless Checking. Think Security.

Security Checking. Consider your normal bank checking fee. Not a pleasant thought, eh? At Security Federal, checking costs only $4.00 a month. And it's free with a minimum balance of only $200 or more. We'll even pay you 5 1/4% interest. And senior citizens, age 65 or more have no service charges, regardless of balance. Why do all this? Because checking shouldn't be a pain.

Senate passes highway bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a highway safety bill Friday that would require automakers to put lap- and-shoulder safety belts in the rear seats of new cars and to improve safety features of light trucks and minivans.

The measure, which now goes to the House for consideration, also would direct the government to try and create a numerical rating system that would tell consumers of the relative crashworthiness of cars.

"The war against highway death and injury is not going well," Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., one of the authors of the legislation, said before it was approved.

"There are highway safety problems that cry out for attention."

Last year, 45,600 people died in highway crashes, a 4 percent increase over 1985, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Auto manufacturers would have to install lap-shoulder belts in the rear seats of half the cars made after Sept. 1, 1989, and all automobiles produced after Sept. 1, 1990.

WILLIAMS & WEBB AUCTION (A COLOR VIDEO PRESENTATION)

SELLING THE SURFACE AND MINERAL RIGHTS IN 742.59 ACRES OF FARM AND GRASS LAND LOCATED NEAR GROOM, TEXAS

FOR THE U.S. SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION IN FORECLOSURE PROCEEDINGS

10:05 A.M. - TUESDAY - MAY 5

LOCATION: On the South Steps of the Gray County Courthouse, Pampa, Texas.

INSPECTION: Anytime prior to sale on a drive by basis or by appointment with auctioneers.

LEGAL DESCRIPTION: Selling the Surface Rights and all Minerals Owned in Said sale is not to include any acreage included in the homestead of Leldon A. Hudson and Margaret Elizabeth Farley Hudson comprising 200 acres.

COMMON DESCRIPTION: A contiguous dryland farm and ranch operation located 2 miles East of Groom, Texas. The net acreage to be sold in Section 39 is 605.04 acres more or less. Section 34 contains 137.55 acres that sells. This makes the total acreage to be sold 742.59 acres more or less.

EASEMENTS: The above described property appears to have six utility and pipeline easements of record.

PARCEL NO. 1 (The South 1/2 of Section 39, less all acreage previously sold 290.39 acres more or less). A basically level parcel of land containing approximately 290.39 acres more or less of which all is cultivated except for approximately 50 acres which is in permanent pasture. The soils are excellent for crop production.

PARCEL NO. 2 (The Northwest 1/4 of Section 39, less all acreage previously sold, 153.34 acres more or less). This portion of the property also contains a mixture of grass and cultivation. Approximately 93.58 acres is in grass, 56.63 acres is cultivated, with the remaining acreage being part of the county roads. The farmland joins the farmland in Parcel No. 1. Graded roads through this parcel access the grassland which is gentle rolling terrain.

PARCEL NO. 3 (The Northeast 1/4 of Section 39 containing 161.31 acres more or less). This land is entirely permanent pasture. It contains a small portion of the watershed for the soil conservation dam described in Parcel No. 4.

PARCEL NO. 4 (The North 137.55 acres more or less of the West 1/2 of Section 34). This portion of the land is all grass. It contains approximately 27.7 acres of the 34 acres comprising the permanent lake created by a watershed erosion dam located principally on the property to the South (a very small portion of the Northeast end of the dam is situated on this parcel). The dam is approximately 1,320 feet long and 69 feet high, with a capacity of 200 acre feet of water. This dam was completed in 1982 under the Ratification Act concerning the Red River and its tributaries. The basic purpose of the dam is for erosion control and the water can be used only for domestic and livestock consumption until the year 2,000. At that time, a permit will have to be obtained for other uses. Flood Stage will allow coverage of 140 acres. A total watershed of 35,280 acres drains into the lake. Additionally, a caliche pit presently covering approximately 7.52 acres is located just North of the lake area near the center of the property. It has been represented to the auctioneers that this pit provides the primary source of caliche for Gray County and some caliche is purchased by Carson County.

MINERALS: All minerals owned will be conveyed. It is believed that all minerals are intact but this is not guaranteed (Production exists in the area).

SURVEY: A new survey was made April 7, 1987 of the property with all corners being marked on the ground. A copy of the plat is available for inspection by contacting the auctioneers.

TERMS: This farm is being sold on the South steps of the Gray County Courthouse via a color video presentation in foreclosure proceedings for the United States Small Business Administration. Said Agency reserves the right to enter the bidding process. The property will be offered separately and in combinations of the above described four parcels and in its entirety, selling in the manner most advantageous to the seller. The seller requires all cash for the property (Checks are acceptable). The entire purchase price must be paid to the auctioneers at the time of sale. Seller will furnish at their expense a substitute trustee's deed, only conveying the property to the purchaser or purchasers. Property is being sold subject to any or all taxes due. (Auctioneers will have amounts of time of sale). No policy of title insurance or abstract of title to be furnished by seller. However, the government will guarantee ownership. Possession to be at the time of sale subject to the rights of any parties in any growing crops or existing leases. Any income generated after date of sale to be property of purchaser. Please contact the auctioneers for additional information.
