Gramm tours Celanese

Senior Staff Writer

Having spent the past year luring new industry to Texas, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said during a tour of Celanese Chemical plant Saturday that "it was important not to forget the old industry.

Gramm donned a hard-hat and toured the chemical manufacturer's Pampa plant Saturday afterneon, shaking hands and chatting with about a half dozen employees

The freshman Republican praised Celanese's "investments to stay efficient" and said he hopes to see new Texas jobs as a result of the firm's merger with Hoechst AG a West German corporation. He also told Celanese officials that their company's support of his first senatorial campaign is "part of your commitment to excellence.

This plant is one of the most efficient in the world, and its products compete all over the ica to protect you from competition. Other people have to worry about competing with you.'

Celanese Plant Manager Ron Guard gave Gramm a brief overview of the plant's activities before the 30-minute tour

Gramm's Panhandle swing Saturday also included stops in Wichita Falls and at the proposed superconducting supercollider site near Happy

In an interview following the tour, he said the Happy site, one of two proposed for the multibillion dollar project, has "obvious geological and geographic advantages" that will help in national competition for location of the site. At least 45 states are vying to become home for the supercollider

Waxahachie is the other proposed Texas location.

"Obviously, it meets the criteria of being flat," Gramm said of the Happy site

Gramm said fears of the United world," Gramm said. "We don't States importing more than 50 years prompted oil incentive legislation co-sponsored by him and Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo. But he predicted a tough fight for the incentives on Capitol Hill.

'We not only have to convince the rest of the country that there is a problem; we have to convince them that this is the most costeffective way to solve that problem." Gramm said of the legislation, designed to boost domestic oil production by 1 million barrels a day within three years.

The proposed incentives include a 10 percent tax credit for exploration, development and marginal well production; expensing of geological and geophysical costs; a removal of intangible drilling costs as a tax preference item subject to the alternative minimum tax; and repeal of the Windfall Profits

Gramm said the legislation would benefit all segments of the oil and gas industry. He said the See GRAMM, Page 2

County OKs move of probation office

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

The first step toward uncrowding the crammed Gray County Courthouse was taken Friday when county commissioners authorized the adult probation office to temporarily rent office space elsewhere

But the idea still has to be sold to two district judges and the state probation office, Chief Probation Officer Jeane Roper

Commissioners told Roper she could move her offices to a building owned by Merriman and Barber Engineers at 119 N. Frost St. diagonally across from the courttion office would have to pay its own rent until Jan. 1, when money can be budgeted for office rental

Under Texas law, counties are supposed to provide office space for probation officers.

Roper has said she needs additional space to accommodate two more officers the state has ordered her to hire to handle a burgeoning workload. Texas probation officers are permitted 100 probationers each, and figures show the Gray County office is already exceeding that caseload.

The new officers were to have been hired by June 1, but Roper had to ask for an extension because she said she has no place to put them. She had proposed moving her third-floor offices to the fourth floor of the courthouse, but County Judge Carl Kennedy said he was afraid of the county's liability for 450 probationers climbing the narrow staircase to the fourth floor each month.

The only other access to the fourth floor is an elevator in the sheriff's office that opens into the county jail, also located on the See COUNTY, Page 3

Area towns watching safety at pools

By CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

With summer coming and kids flooding area pools, area towns have to be careful to keep their swimming pools from being troubled waters.

But, pool managers and life guards say it's not easy.

On a crowded day at Pampa's M.K. Brown Pool, the four lifeguards on duty may watch up to 400 swimmers and poolside sunbathers. ■ The opening of White Deer's pool has been delayed because the pool needed repainting The pool is scheduled to open today. Two years ago, the pool had to take down its high diving board when its insurance policy was threatened.

There is no telephone at the Roberts County Pool in Miami because county officials believe that a telephone would be an unneccessary and bothersome waste of money

There are no state laws or regulations governing how a swimming pool can be staffed or built. According to Pampa Recreation Supervisor Jackie Harper, the only state agency that regularly inspects the Pampa pool is the Texas Department of Health, which inspects chlorine levels and sanitation.

However, most area pools follow safety standards set by the American Red Cross and hire lifeguards certified by the Red Cross

According to Harper, Pampa has nine lifeguards and three managers working at the M.K. Brown pool at 800 W. Sloan and the smaller Marcus Sanders swimming pool at 438 W. Crawford. The lifeguards work on a rotating basis at the two pools. They are all 18 or

The M.K. Brown Pool has two elevated manned towers one just off the deep diving area and the other near the sloped shallow end - where the lifeguards watch the action. A third lifeguard walks around the sides of the pool. On heavy days, a second rover is added at poolside

Harper said all lifeguards have their Red Cross advanced lifesaving certificates.

Such certificates should do more than just allow a young lifeguard to sit in the elevated chair and get a suntan. The two-week lifesaving course, offered at Pampa Youth and See POOLS, Page 3

Local persons wishing to enter an event in the upcoming Top o' Texas Rodeo may do so beginning Monday, June 22, at the Rodeo Office located in the Pampa Community Building, 200 N. Ballard

Entries will be taken from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. during weekdays until Tuesday, June 30. Kid Pony Show entries also will begin June 22 and continue through noon on the day the young people perform The 41st annual Top o' Texas Rodeo will be held July 9-11, with the Kid Pony Show scheduled for July 6-8. Both will be held in the rodeo arena at Recreation Park east of Amateur cowboys and cowgirls may enter the professional rodeo provided they live within a 60-mile radius of Pampa and pay their entry fees prior to the June 30 deadline, Rodeo Secretary Kathy Topper said. Late entries will not be accepted, she added.

Topper said the 60-mile radius is a new change. In past years, amateur entries were generally limited only to Gray County resi-

There also will be a change in one of the amateur events. Instead of the double mugging event, there now will be a ranch branding competition, Topper said. This amateur event is a fast-moving and exciting contest between four-member teams," she saíd

Entry fee for this event will be $40, plus a $10 stock charge, with entry fees being split 40 percent, 30 percent, 20 percent and 10 percent for the top winners.

Entries for the ranch branding will close at 5 p.m. on Tuesday, June 30. No late entries will be accepted.

Entry books for the rodeo and kid show are available at the Rodeo Office. Topper said local contestants will not be mailed entry books, adding that they must be picked up at

Questions concerning entry dates or other information may be had by calling Topper at

Topper provided a list of rules regarding the ranch branding contest so area teams can begin preparing for the event

Each team will consist of a roper, two muggers and a brander. A 2-minute time limit will be imposed. The cattle will be roped catch-ascatch-can, Topper said.

At the judges' discretion, a 10-second penalty may be given for cattle abuse

The team must start from behind the designated line; the time will start at the judges' signal, a dropped flag.

At the drop of the flag, the roper will precede from behind the starting line; the other three team members must remain behind the line until the animal is caught and brought back across the pen line

When the animal has cleared the pen area. both muggers may proceed to the animal. The animal must be flat on its side and the rope removed before the brander can leave his circle. The rope, however, must be on the animal when the muggers get their hands on

At that point, the brander may leave the circle, proceed to the animal, brand him, proceed back to the circle, place the branding iron back in the bucket and throw his hands in the air, signaling for time.

Failure to abide by any of these rules will result in disqualification. If the roper ropes the wrong animal, the roper may remove the rope without assistance from any other team members. If the team makes a qualified run on the wrong animal, it will be disqualified. If the muggers touch the animal before realizing that the wrong animal has been roped, the team will be disqualified.

Other information on the ranch branding event may be obtained from the Rodeo

Community Center and Canadian's YMCA and by area certified Water Safety Instructors, teaches such things as cardiopulmonary resuscitation and elementary first aid, a variety of swimming strokes, basic safety tips and how to save someone without endangering their own

According to Carey Green, a manager at the M.K. Brown Pool, a trainee must be in top condition to pass the course.

'As part of the final test, you have to pull someone twice your size out of the water," Green said. "And the 'victims' are going to put up a fight.

Green said Friday that he counted 300 people at the M.K. Brown pool then. That was one of the days when three people worked the poolside.

But, he added, most of the people at the pool Friday were sunbathers who wanted to catch some rays on a hot afternoon.

On "Splash Days," when crowds take advantage of free admission, four lifeguards are summoned on deck, he said.

But Pampa lifeguards believe they can handle the crowds. Greg Logan, 18, said he has to 'set a designated area to watch."

"And you have to watch continuously back and forth," Logan said, adding that lifeguards on break also watch the pool on

Said Kelly Schoenhals, 23, a lifeguard at the Canadian swimming pool, "usually the kids and the swimmers are watching out for themselves.

Still, Schoenhals believes there is a limit to the number of swimmers a lifeguard can watch. She said 25 swimmers per lifeguard is a preferred limit.

The Red Cross lifesaving manual sets no limit. It only asks that there be a sufficient number of lifeguards "to adequately protect the swimmers, allow for rest breaks, to provide coverage in the case of an emergency and to substitute in the case of absence or sudden illness.

The Canadian swimming pool, which averages 120-200 swimmers per day, also has three poolside lifeguards. Two are seated in elevated chairs while the third walks by the side.

One "tower" lifeguard has the double duty of watching swimmers in the shallow end and kids playing on a concrete slide that goes down a small hill to a wading Schoenhals said there are no size or age limits to use the slide, although she warns that the 'slide' pool is only about three feet deep. Sliders must go down the chute one at a time, feet first.

At White Deer, Clarisse Meadows has been swimming pool manager for 10 years. But she has not had to handle any major emergencies

Meadows said the White Deer swimming pool averages 90-100 swimmers per day and Meadows

Thweatt said that in the event of an emergency, a lifeguard is sent to a nearby home or the county courthouse less than a block away to summon help. He added that, since Miami does not have a complete ambulance unit, it's just as quick to drive as it is to call for help.

"And it would probably be tied up," Thweatt said. "You'd have parents calling to check up on their kids.'

'Everyone in the county would be calling long distance on it," said Roberts County Judge J.T. Webb. "And who's going to have

Wheeler swimming pool manager Linda Smith, a certified water safety instructor, said she finds the pool telephone valuable and has had no problems with it.

Pampa's swimming pool has a telephone for business and emergency purposes and a pay telephone for the public.

Such a policy has angered at least one Pampa resident who said she was not aware there was a pay telephone at the M.K. Brown pool when her son walked home from the pool Saturday. The woman told The Pampa News that her children were allowed to use the regular telephone last year. She added that when her son walked home from the pool Saturday, he got sunburned and had blisters on his

Roper said the Frost Street office will cost about $1,065 per month. She said she could budget for that expense beginning Sept. 1, if District Judges Don Cain and Grainger McIlhany agree to the McIlhany could not be reached for comment, but Judge Cain said Friday that he wants more information about the proposal before committing himself to it.

"I wouldn't want to comment on it until I learned more about it." Cain said.

Commissioner Jim Greene voted against the proposal, saying he understands the need for space but hates to see the county paying rent when it's obvious the courthouse will ultimately have to be expanded. Commissioners previously moved to begin searching for ways to expand, remodel or rebuild the courthouse facilities to solve space problems in several offices. Monday, they mentioned the possibility of expanding the 58-year-old facility into the bank parking lot across Francis Avenue.

Judge Kennedy also raised the possibility Monday of moving the district attorney's office into the probation office, if Roper and her employees move to Frost Street.

Currently, the district attorney's office is housed on the ground floor of the Hughes Building at a cost of about $775 per month.

"If we move adult probation over there, then we could move the district attorney's office back over here," Kennedy said. However, he added, he doubts District Attorney Guy Hardin will be happy with the idea.

Hardin was unavailable for comment, a secretary at the district attorney's office said In other action Monday, commissioners reluctantly paid Pampa attorney John Warner roughly $2,200 in fees approved previously for Warner's appointment to defend burglar Kevin Kirkham. Commissioners had toyed with the idea of challenging Warner's bill, claiming it was unreasonable, but, in a 3-2 vote June 1, voted to pay him.

Kennedy said he expects courtappointed attorneys in Gray County to begin asking for more money, "now that we've opened the possibility of more money." Kennedy had voted against paying Warner.

"It's the most gross abuse of taxpayers' money that I've ever seen since I've been sitting as county judge," Kennedy said Monday.

Commissioners also:

approved a $4,700 deed for former railroad land in and around McLean, on which a county storage building will be constructed; .voted to ask Santa Fe Railway Co. to donate a caboose and land directly east or west of the Cuyler Street to White Deer Lands Museum:

Reagan renews his attacks on protectionist trade bills

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, just back from the economic summit, renewed his battle Saturday against protectionist bills he said would "damage our own prosperity and that of virtually the entire world." The president defended his administration's trade and economic policies during his weekly radio address, delivered from the Oval Office a little more than 14 hours after his return from the Venice, Italy, meeting of world leaders. Reagan encountered criticism from his summit partners of the massive U.S. trade deficit.

In reply, he said, "Our economic growth has prompted and sustained economic growth throughout the world.'

"Without America's economic recovery, now into its 54th consecutive month, most of the rest of the world, and especially the export economies of Europe and Asia, would have grown considerably less. ..

"This means that we are already doing something right, that because of our policies of low taxes and deregulation, the world economy is better off and Amer- coming from the Venice summit, ica is already becoming more and more competitive," the president said.

"For Congress to place severe restrictions on international trade with tariffs and barriers and to limit my ability to utilize our trade laws when necessary would damage our own prosperity and that of virtually the entire world," he added.

"I urge Congress to bear this in mind as major trade legislation comes to the floor," he said. "The United States is already becoming more competitive. Now, it's up to Congress to show that it understands economic reality.'

Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., delivering the Democratic response, defended the trade legislation being considered by Con-

"That trade legislation will put a stop to the unfair trade practices used by some nations against the United States - and help U.S. workers," Riegle said.

He pointed out that the U.S. trade deficit last year hit $170 billion and said the deficit "is costing us millions of U.S. jobs and a massive outflow of scarce U.S. capital.

'All of us watched the news

hoping to see new cooperation from our allies," Riegle added.

'The news was disappointing they said 'no' on trade fairness, 'no' on defense burden sharing in the Persian Gulf, 'no' to our ideas on economic cooperation. Why did our allies give American the brush off? ... One reason is that they've become our creditors."

Reagan returned to the White House Friday night after a 10day, 10,135-mile trip that included stops in Rome, West Berlin and Bonn, West Germany, as well as the three-day economic summit meeting of the leaders of seven nations.

He said in his radio address he will report to the nation on television Monday night on the economic gathering and the meeting of Secretary of State George P. Shultz and foreign ministers of NATO countries

Secretary Shultz and the NATO foreign ministers reached a crucial consensus on our arms reduction proposals that could move us closer to an historic agreement bringing about for the first time real and equitable reductions in U.S. and Soviet nuclear arms," he said.

Summer Recreation classes to start

Students will begin their four weeks of Summer Recreation Program classes Monday following registration and orientation held last week.

Recreation Supervisor Jackie Harper said Friday afternoon that approximately 100 to 120 students had enrolled for the classes

She said no final figure was available at the time, adding that more students were enrolling for multiple classes this year, making it harder to get a specific count. Also, there were sometimes two or three students enrolling on one application.

Harper said that the classloads are about the same this year as last year. She said there's probably fewer students, but again noted that more students were taking two or more classes this

Coordinator Kay Crouch was busy last week getting the class schedules ready after students registered Monday through Wednesday. Crouch has lined up the instructors for the classes from school teachers and high school students.

Serving as instructors are Pam Barrett, Joanna Barbaree, Fred Hughes, Cliff Holland, Lee Carter, Shelly Teague, Terry Bixler, Sheila Babbit, Gary Cornelison and Nelda Johnson.

Classes were offered in arts and crafts, computers, basketball, cheerleading, soccer, volleyball, children's aerobics, track, softball, weight lifting, tennis and adult tennis.

Viewpoints

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

'National security' plea largely hollow

The United States has announced that it plans to increase the U.S. military presence in the Persian Gulf and that it wants the Coast Guard to waive U.S. safety standards to speed registration of Kuwaiti ships so they can carry the U.S. flag.

The U.S. Navy also unexpectedly escorted a Kuwaiti merchant ship flying a Kuwaiti flag and carrying U.S. arms to Bahrain. In the wake of Iranian bravado, President Reagan has announced that we would "defend ourselves" in the event of an attack on a U.S. flag ship but has been purposely vague about what would prompt a retaliatory attack.

President Reagan says that "I do not see the danger of war" in all this, but it is difficult not to see precisely that danger. In an area of the world renowned for volatility, ancient grudges, and unpredictibility, in a body of water that has become a battlefield in one of the most brutal wars of our times, the United States government seems almost eager to insert itself. Does this make any sense at all?

Reagan says that maintaining a presence in this war zone "remains crucial to our national security of our friends throughout the world." The statement exemplifies just how elastic that term "national security" really is. Some say it translates to oil (70 percent of the world's supply flows through the Strait of Hormuz). Others say it means only what the president of the moment means by it and note that it can change by the

The supposed necessity of using American sailors to safeguard the flow of oil in the Persian Gulf is pure fallacy. The U.S. draws about 3 to 7 percent of its oil from the Gulf, while Japan gets about 80 percent, and Western Europe about 20. If any nation is to protect that flow, it should be those who depend on it most

Some analysts maintain that it doesn't matter what the percentages are, that any sustained interruption of oil flow would damage the international economy so much that the U.S. would feel the pain soon enough.

The scenarios used to justify such endangerment of a world economy paralyzed by a hypothetical shutdown of oil from the Persian Gulf — ignore certain realities. Since the oil scares of the 1970s, the U.S. and the rest of the world have done much in energy conservation and alternative fuels. A cutoff would be wrenching, no doubt, but not even as cataclysmic as the OPEC embargoes of the 1970s, which we survived (and would have survived better without so much government "help.") Furthermore, Iran, Iraq, and other Persain Gulf countries need to sell oil at least as much as (perhaps more) than their customers need to buy it. Iran might blockade the Straits of Hormuz for a while, but to do so for long would be suicidal

Our real national interests should not be tied up in an unrealistic and ill-thought-out policy of military intervention around the world. Truly vital U.S. interests, in our view, simply are not at stake in the Persian Gulf. There is no excuse for stepping up our intervention or risking a single additional serviceman's life.

government. The celebrants at this gala affair comprised a virtual Who's Who of liberty-minded people. There was Dr. Edward Crane, director of the Cato Institute, the organizational talent behind a superb staff of intellectual talent that provides publications on topics ranging from sound money and fiscal policy to environment and reg-

Also in attendance was Dr. William Niskanen, chairman of Cato, a stellar economist who is former acting director of the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Reliable rumor has it that Niskanen was fired as chief economist for Ford Motor Company because he wouldn't support the push for auto import tariffs. Giving up a $250,000 a year salary here in the '70s is really putting your money where your mouth is.

Among the other guests was Dr. James Miller III, director of the Office of Management and Budget. Jim is another friend of freedom, and, as such, I don't see how he keeps his government job. Either I'm wrong about him, or Jim is much smarter than I thought.

Yet another participant was my colleague at

Blacks support status quo

Being my friend is but a minor liability to Jim. His major liability is that he has asserted the theory that politicians are self-interested, just like the rest of us. Buchanan had the gall to prove his point so well that he carried home the Nobel Prize in economics in 1986.

The list of distinguished guests, such as the wealthy Koch Brothers, who finance several human right causes, goes on and on. But I want to discuss those who were missing.

There were only four black people at the Cato celebration: Jay Parker, director of the Lincoln Institute, and his wife; Dr. Joan Ratteray, director of the Institute for Independent Education; and yours truly.

Parker has long been an advocate of black self-determination, here in the United States, in South Africa, and elsewhere around the globe. Dr. Ratteray persists in her efforts to show that the day-to-day destruction of black education is not preordained; we can do something about it.

This dearth of blacks is not only conspicuous at Cato functions, but in other freedom-oriented groups' celebration as well - the Reason Foundation, the Heritage Foundation, Libertarian Party, and Mont Pelerin Society. I know these organizations would welcome black membership and participation. Their major membership requirements are a strong commitment to the principles of liberty and a healthy suspicion of coercion - both private and governstill

That's why the absence of significant black participation in the affairs of these organizations is such a mystery. If you want a case history of people who have suffered from coercion and contempt for the principles of individual liberty, black people stand out as a prime example. Blacks were enslaved under governmentsupported coercion. Emancipation amounted to watered-down freedom, thanks to government failure. Even today, many blacks live in fear of their own neighborhoods, and their children still receive inferior education. The culprit: Govern-

Blacks should be the strongest defenders of liberty and the staunchist opponents of government. Instead, most often it's the other way around. They are pro-big government.

But blacks may not be alien to he principles of liberty and remain advocates of government policies much longer; evidence mounts as to the effect on blacks of government action taken in the name of good. In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if, by the middle of the next century, blacks evolve into the most anti-big government people in our nation's history.

Russian beauties are scarce

As I read the reports of the sex-for-secrets scandal involving Marine guards at our embassy in Moscow and Russian beauties, I kept wondering why I hadn't seen any women in Russia to write home about when I was there. I met a female conductor on a train. She could have pulled it. I met a tour guide who had fat ankles and hairy calves. She could curdle borscht. The only woman I saw who had even the remotest chance of getting secrets out of me was a performer at a Moscow nightspot.

She came on stage in a Russian bikini (tank top and knee-length exercise shorts) and entertained the crowd by twirling 11 hula hoops around her waist for what seemed like an hour-

If hula hoops are still going over that big in the Soviet Union, I thought to myself, wait until the Russians are introduced to Slinkies and Mr. Microphones

Let me put it this way: If the women I saw were any indication of the beauty of the entire population of the Soviet Union, Tammy Faye Bakker could walk down a street in Moscow and dogs wouldn't growl at her.

I recently received a letter begging my pardon about all this, however.

I'm not at liberty to disclose the name of the letter's author for reasons that soon will be obvious, but I can tell you he is from Deep South Georgia and was in Moscow to help plan an agricultural exposition not so long ago.

The man writes of walking into his Moscow hotel for the first time and spotting a gaggle of lovely, well-dressed young ladies who, he later learned, by direct contact, were prostitutes.

I will allow him to describe what later occurred. "I was drinking vodka in my room with this gorgeous Tanya who spoke fluent English and assured me she was a direct descendant of Princess Alexandra

"We began discussing price, and she said I could not pay her in rubles because it was her duty to only take foreign currency in order to help the Russian economy. With foreign currency, she explained, the Soviets could import more foreign goods.

"I had purposely left only one traveler's check in my wallet," the letter continues.

"I pulled it out and told her, 'I'm just a poor old country boy from South Georgia, and all I've got is this one traveler's check.

"She started unbuttoning things and then she noticed a book of withdrawal slips from the First National Bank of Rabbit, Ga., that was sitting on my night table.

'She said, 'You have more than one traveler's check. Look at all these.'

"I took a long gulp out of my vodka, smiled sweetly at her and said, 'Princess, I think me and you are about to do wonders for the Russian

Aquino deserves another chance

the State Department warned Americans away from large sections of the Philippines recently, it signaled as never before the fragile state of Cory Aquino's future.

Although the Philippine president's opularity remains intact and her hold on parliament is stronger than ever following May's elections, the countryside appears up for grabs. The communist-led New People's Army now numbers 30,000, a fearsome opponent for a national army of uncertain fighting spirit.

It's no wonder Aquino chafes for more military assistance from the United States, and that President Reagan has reportedly authorized more CIA covert activity in the Philippines. The NPA's ideology and murderous tactics qualify it as revolution-ary heir to the Khmer Rouge, the group that bankrupted Cambodia while exterminating perhaps a third of its people. Unfortunately, rather than recognize the necessity of stopping the NPA above all else, some analysts merely scorn Aquino as insufficiently bold in other policy areas.

Ray Bonner, a former reporter for The New York Times and author of a book on the Philippines, wrote in the Times recently that Aquino had squandered her moral authority. Among her sins: failure to undertake widespread land reform and to prosecute military officers for human rights abuses under dictator Ferdinand Marcos.

Apparently Bonner hasn't noticed that Aquino at times has hardly controlled the military, let alone been in position to launch an internal purge. She has held office for only 15 months, after all, in a country whose economic and social problems might sap the optimism even of the Rev. Robert she began her term of office without a true organizational base. The fact that Aquino has taken a few months to sort out her options hardly amounts to indictable delay.

As a political newcomer, moreover,

Does the Philippines need land reform? It would certainly help. In the past, the breakup of large estates in Taiwan, Bolivia and elsewhere served to dampen rural discontent. But even if Aquino refuses to pursue that option with the vigor demanded by her critics, the Philippines is better off under her than it would be under the NPA a fact that Bonner and others rarely manage to acknowledge

In the first place, the NPA would abolish political freedoms. It is also more likely to seize and collectivize property than redistribute it. Finally, economic record of Leninist regimes - and Marxist rulers in general — is overwhelmingly depressing.

North Korea, for example, is poorer than South Korea; East Germany less prosperous than West Germany; China worse off than Taiwan; Ethiopia under Mengistu a shambles; Vietnam even more desperate today than when Americans evacuated Saigon 12 years ago (and poorer by far than neighbors such as Thailand and Malaysia).

Only Zimbabwe, alone among modern revolutionary states, seems to have avoided trashing its economic foundation - at least for the time

Impatience with these failures is futile, of course. Everyone knows that single-party movements seize power for the long haul. The average citizen must learn to live with their ineptitude, however painful that may be.

Sadly, patience is a gift that vulnerable democrats such as Cory Aquino could sorely use. Instead, let her fritter away so much as a year in indecision and the political vultures descend in glee for the next revolutionary

I NEED TO HAVE A PRIVATE MEETING WITH THE PRESIDENT. THATS IMPOSSIBLE! I WANT TO MAKE A SIZABLE CONTRIBUTION TO THE CONTRAS. THAT'S DIFFERENT!

There are those in the Texas Legislature who still haven't understood the message from the people. We do not want more taxes!

When all other sources of revenue and all departments within the state government have reduced their proposed costs, befitting the depressed economy, then and only then should burdensome taxes be heaped on the taxpayers.

I received from Sen. Sarpalius his response to a request to avoid higher taxes, except as a last resort. He stated, "Gov. Clements' budget calls for 'eliminating' state funding for programs required by law."

This statement is taken out of context.

There may be "funding" for programs passed by the Legislature, but in today's world, this funding should be reviewed. The Legislature should determine whether the funded programs are really needed and whether the programs are operating in an efficient manner.

I understand, in communications with Rep. Foster Whaley, that there are numerous departments that have accumulated an obscene surplus of funds and others that are obviously overstaffed. In addition, other costs can be controlled in lieu of raising before saying the only solution is to increase taxes. Gov. Clements is correct; he and others were elected to reduce the costs of state government, not to increase taxes and spending.

It appears that Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker of the House Gib Lewis have only one solution to balancing the budget — "raise taxes" and continue to "spend.

Memories of summer disasters

Texas guest columnist

By CAROL RUST Beaumont Enterprise

Boy, oh boy, here we are at the advent of vacation time, and am I ever excited. You see, the advent of summer vacation time brings back lots of childhood memories, which is the primary reason I've started taking vacations in the spring and fall.

There was the one July our family borrowed a large tent from a family and attempted to stuff an even larger crop of squabbling siblings into it, us still reading comic books or Dr. Seuss readers, when we arrived in the country for our first — and last — Family Tent Camping Trip.

In the car on the way down, my brother kept scribbling on my Dr. Seuss book, One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish, until the title should have been One Fish, Two Fish, Brown Fish, Brown Fish, and I had hell to pay at the school library the following Monday.

But it was nothing like the hell our whole family was fixing to go through, unsuspecting as we were back then. What we didn't know is that we'd just pitched the tent (and not without some aggravation, pine splinters, sweat up our nose and hurt feelings) right over the exact perimeter of a teeming seed tick metropolis. By the time we discovered this, my little brother had already gotten stung on the face by a yellow jacket, shortly after my mother sprayed insect repellent into his eyes

Actually, she sprayed the spray in another direction altogether at one yellow jacket and my little brother jumped into the line of fire in a desperate attempt to get away from another. It didn't work. He got the double-whammy: insect spray and sting

She was feeling so bad about that, she barely had time to sympathize with me on account of me slamming my pinkie when one of my other little brothers "helped me" close the back of the station wagon. By that time, though, I was fairly well engrossed in the amazing purple colors that spring up underneath fingernails when they're slammed in the backs of station wagons and didn't sulk too much. But I never let my little brother forget about it, at least not until the start of school that fall.

We'd pitched the tent under the shade of a grove of pine trees, not quite out of the olfactory reach of several cow paddies in the pasture. But all in all, it seemed like a perfect site, we kept remarking to each other, after we finally got baking soda on my little brother's yellow jacket sting and got him to stop hollering.

But all the while, the pepper-sized population was crawling up our legs in black masses. This may come as news to some of you, but the venom of 83,496 seed ticks all at once can make you very sick.

I'm not sure when Dad and Mom got tired of fighting the losing battle, but the camp fire had died into embers and we were almost out of insect

We packed up and headed back to our house and out of the olfactory reach of cow paddies.

It wasn't long before dawn, so us kids stayed up for cartoons. Mom and Dad were sick in bed.

Sitting in front of the TV, my brothers and I didn't feel earthy, didn't feel like pioneers in new territory or the Waltons before they built their

City Sanitation Department crews will be moving into Ward 4 this week as the annual Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up Campaign enters its final weeks.

Crews have been working Saturdays to keep up with the schedule following work delay caused by May's rains.

Department Director Larry Simpson asked Ward 4 residents to get their materials into the alleys as soon as possible so the items will be ready when the crews go on their collection routes

Simpson reminded city res dents that there are still two weeks left in which they can take discarded items, furniture, tree trimmings, and other materials from their home clean-up projects to the city landfill free of charge.

Simpson said the cooperation of residents will greatly aid the final weeks of the clean-up drive, especially since Ward 4 is the biggest ward to cover in the drive.

"It is not fair to your neighbor who has the container behind his house for you to place your refuse there" since the other resident also may have items he needs to discard, Simpson explained. He also reminded residents that logs and tree limbs should be cut in 4-foot lengths for easier pick-up by the crews.

Simpson also noted that hazardous chemicals and similar items may not be discarded, either in the dumpsters or in the largeritem collection piles. There are state and federal regulations prohibiting the disposal of such materials in landfill areas, he said.

Residents having hazardous chemicals or materials, including oil drainings, pesticides and petroleum fuel products, need to contact private sector services to arrange for such disposal.

Reagan faces woes on return home

By TERENCE HUNT

AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, winning no major victories nor suffering any big defeats at the Venice summit, now confronts the challenge of a spreading menu of problems likely to shape the way history records the dwindling months of his adminis-

Even for the ever-optimistic Reagan, the issues are formidable: the explosive Persian Gulf, arms control, the staggering budget deficit, huge trade imbalances and the unknowns of the Iran-Contra hearings in Congress.

In the background are suggestions that Reagan is losing his grip on the presidency and that the new managers at the White House are not as sure-footed as once be-

Clearly, the president did not pack as much clout in Venice as he did a year earlier in Tokyo, where he won a tough anti-terrorism statement aimed at Libya and an allied commitment — for the first time — to begin work to dismantle agricultural subsidies.

This year, his hand weakened by the secret sale of arms to Iran in violation of an allied embargo, Reagan did not push for much, settling for broadly worded statements on economic issues and diplomatic support — but no military help — in the gulf.

"It's good rhetoric" but "it looks like we're going to get no real commitment from our allies to meet their responsibility ... to defend their own interests," said Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

"Why aren't they there, standing beside us? Why aren't they sharing the burden, sharing the risks?" Dole demanded.

What will the United States do if a U.S.flagged ship is attacked in the gulf? Will America retaliate if a ship is sunk?

With pressure building in Congress for a sweeping trade restrictions, Reagan in Venice gave new ammunition to protectionist forces by partially lifting semiconductor sanctions against Japan.

An AP News Analysis

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., called the summit "an example of the failure of administration policy on trade.

There also were new signs of division during the summit as Reagan, facing stiff resistance in Congress, backed down from selling antitank missiles to Saudi Arabia.

While the Pentagon and State Department wanted to fight for the sale, the White House retreated.

Other problems didn't get any better, either, while Reagan was gone. And Oliver North and John Poindexter, the two mystery men in the Iran-Contra episode, are about to answer questions in private from congressional investigators. When their story comes out, what will they say about Reagan's role? How much did he know? Will they contradict his repeated assertions that he did not know about the secret airstrips and arms shipments for the rebels in Nicaragua?

"The hearings are still going to be going on, sure. You're still going to have the confrontations with Congress, sure," said a senior White House official

"But I also think there are issues out there this president clearly can direct and steer as the next few weeks unfold," said the official. insisting on anonymity.

With just 18 months remaining before he retires to California, Reagan still faces the problem he promised to solve years ago: the spiraling budget deficit that climbed to a staggering $220.7 billion in fiscal 1986. The president who vowed to balance the budget by 1982 instead has presided over a more than doubling of the national debt. And the trade deficit last year topped $166.3 billion, a record.

The most likely area for progress among all of Reagan's problems is arms control. Meeting in Reykjavik after the summit, NATO ministers formally approved eliminating medium-range and shorter-range missiles in Europe

Their decision increases prospects for the first U.S.-Soviet arms treaty of Reagan's administration and bolsters prospects for a superpower summit in Washington later this

FBI hits cocaine cartels

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the second such operation to become public in five weeks, the government has demonstrated its ability to successfully attack Colombian cocaine cartels by smashing their money-laundering operations. The FBI disclosed last week that for the past three years it has been tapping into the cartels' money-laundering apparatus through Operation

Cashweb-Expressway. Traffickers and money launderers carried money to FBI front companies in boxes, suitcases and shopping and duffel bags in amounts ranging up to $2.5 million a trip in transactions that in many cases were recorded on videotape.

forcement Administration ended a similar investigation dubbed Operation Pisces involving undercover agents who infiltrated cocaine money-laundering rings.

The DEA operation proved so disruptive that some of the drug figures, looking around for new launderers, unwittingly started doing business with the FBI-infiltrated rings.

"These cases are somber news for the drug kingpins,' Attorney General Edwin Meese III said at a Friday news conference. "There is no longer anyone they can trust to launder their money.

Report faults both sides in AWACS (surveillance) plane had

WASHINGTON (AP) — The attack on the USS Stark was an accident waiting to happen because of sloppy Iraqi procedures in the Persian Gulf and a lax attitude by American forces toward Iraqi planes, a congressional report said Saturday.

The House Armed Services Committee report, released by chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., concluded that the attack, which killed 37 of the Stark's crew, "was almost certainly inadvertent."

But it faulted both the Iraqis and the Americans with what Aspin called "failures of omis-

The accident "was caused by things both the plane and the ship did not do," he said.

sonnel seemed to regard Iraqi aircraft, if not as "friendly," then as less threatening than Iranian planes, even though written rules treat aircraft from the two nations equally, the report said. Before the attack, Iraqi jets overflew U.S. ships without incident.

The report faulted the Stark for not warning the Iraqi Mirage F-1 jet until it had flown within 13 miles, well within missile range, even though a U.S Air Force

Meanwhile, the congressional committees investigating the sale of arms to Iran and diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan rebels were apparently planning to hear testimony from U.S. District Judge Stanley Sporkin, the former CIA official who drafted the presidential finding that authorized the arms sale.

Senate committee chief counsel Arthur L. Liman met with Sporkin last week to discuss an appearance, a congessional

Communists ask Pope to tone down Solidarity support

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON Associated Press Writer

LODZ, Poland (AP) - Two of Poland's topranking Communist officials asked to see Pope John Paul II and talked with him for 10 minutes in the country's holiest shrine on Saturday, church sources said.

The sources, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity, said they heard rumors the two officials — Kazimierz Barcikowski and Stanislaw Ciosek — 'warned'' the pope to tone down his pro-Solidarity speeches.

However, they said they could not confirm the rumors and did not know any details of the talks. They said the two may have come to request the pope to meet again with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski before ending his third pilgrimage to his homeland.

Jaruzelski and John Paul were not scheduled to meet again before the pope's scheduled departure today. The pope is to make an unofficial visit before then to the grave of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, a pro-Solidarity priest who was abducted and murdered by secret police agents in 1984.

The grave has become a rallying point for members of the political opposition.

Later on Saturday, the pope visited Poland's largest textile mill, once a hotbed of the outlawed Solidarity independent labor federation, and told about 500 of its mainly female workers that exploitation of women laborers such as them is hurting the family.

John Paul has used the week-long visit to speak out forcefully in favor of Solidarity and to promote workers' rights in general.

Barcikowski and Ciosek met with the pope in Czestochowa, church sources said. Barcikowski is a member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo and a top aide to Jaruzelski. Ciosek is a party Central Committee secretary and the former labor minister who negotiated with Solidarity during its

On Saturday, the trip's sixth day, the pope denounced the exploitation of women workers at the Uniontex plant in Lodz, the nation's depressed textile capital.

American hostages facing trial in Iran

By MOHAMMED SALAM Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) -Some of the eight American hostages in Lebanon have been taken to Iran, where a powerful anti-American faction wants to put them on trial, a Beirut weekly magazine reported Saturday.

Ash-Shiraa, which last year broke the story of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran, added that a more moderate Iranian faction favors freedom for the hostages, but only in return for U.S. weapons bought by Iran and never shipped. In Washington, State Department spokesman Pete Martinez said, "if such reports were indeed true, we would consider it a matter of the utmost gravity and would hold the Iranian government directly responsible for the being of tages." "The very notion of a 'trial' for the hostages is outrageous," he added. He renewed U.S. demands that American hostages be freed, saying they are innocent victims.

Al-Ittihaa, a semi-official newspaper in Abu Dhabi, meanwhile, said that missing Anglican Church envoy Terry Waite was twice taken to Iran for talks with officials. The paper did not say if Waite was still in Iran.

The Lebanese magazine said Hussein Ali Montazeri, the man chosen by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to succeed him, "demands that the American hostages ... be brought to trial, especially since some of them have Ash-Shiraa, which reportedly has good sources in the Iranian formation to unidentified sources "close to Montazeri's office" in the holy city of Qom.

The American hostages in Iran are "being subjected to thorough interrogations by the Iranian intelligence under the direct supervision of Minister of Security and Intelligence Sheik Mohammad Mohammadi Rey Shahri," the magazine said.

Rey Shahri's official title is minister of information.

The magazine indicated Montazeri and his radical followers have rejected the views of a toplevel committee formed by Khomeini to supervise the negotiations for the foreign hostages'

Ash-Shiraa reported earlier this month that the panel included President Ali Khamenei; Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani; Khomeini's son, Guards commander Mohsen

It said the commitee, influenced by Rafsanjani, believed "a settlement to the hostages issue could be achieved ... if the United States delivered to Iran weapons that had been purchased and paid for by Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi."

The late, pro-Western shah was toppled by Khomeini's 1979 Islamic revolution.

A spokesman for the church in London, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the church had no knowledge of Waite being the report was true.

Saturday

LONDON (AP) - Conservative Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher named a new Cabinet on Saturday as she embarked on her third term, bringing back an ally dropped in a sex scandal nearly four years ago. She also fired a top liberal.

In addition, Norman Tebbit, the Conservative Party chairman who masterminded Mrs. Thatcher's victory in Thursday's general election, has resigned from the Cabinet, an announcement from the prime minister's 10 Downing Street office said.

Two other Cabinet ministers went, Lord Hailsham, the 79year-old lord chancellor, the nation's chief law officer, and Agriculture Secretary Michael Jopling. They were replaced by promotions from within the previous 22-member Cabinet.

No reason was immediately given for the resignation of Tebbit, 56, whose wife was paralyzed from the neck down during a 1984 bombing by the outlawed Irish Republican Army in an attempt to assassinate Mrs. Thatcher. He had been the chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, or minister without portfolio, in the Cabinet. Cecil Parkinson, 55, who quit in 1983 when news broke of his extramarital affair with his thenpregnant secretary, was named energy secretary. Parkinson, who stayed with his wife, replaced Peter Walker, who was named secretary of state for Wales.

Walker was the only leading member of the Conservative Party's liberal wing, dubbed "wets" in political slang, remaining in a new Cabinet dominated by politicians closely allied with Mrs. Thatcher.

The other liberal who was fired was John Biffen, leader of the House of Commons. Biffen, who reportedly said during the election campaign that he would not "crawl" back to Mrs. Thatcher if she fired him, was replaced by the former chief whip for the party in the Commons, John Wakeham.

Parkinson as then-chairman of the Conservative Party masterelection victory in June 1983. She called him the "best chairman the party has ever had," and aides have said privately she long wanted him back in the Cabinet.

On the June 9, 1983, night of the second election victory, Parkinson confided to Mrs. Thatcher that his secretary, Sara Keays, Miss Keays said later Parkinson had promised to marry her.

Mrs. Thatcher, who reportedly urged Parkinson to stay in the Cabinet and not to leave his wife named him trade secretary. But four months later, news of the affair broke in newspapers and Parkinson quit.

Thatcher and her husband, right, watch Trooping of the Colour in London Saturday.

Nuns guard cathedral from attack by police

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) -Dozens of nuns holding pink flowers and singing hymns guarded the Roman Catholic cathedral Saturday to prevent a government attack on students holding the complex. In nearby streets, riot police tear gassed thousands of sympathizers.

"Down with the military dictatorship!," protesters yelled as fighting swirled around the downtown district for a fourth day.

Opposition groups are demanding the fall of President Chun Dog.:hwan's government and democratic elections.

Four weddings were held at the cathedral despite the police siege. Police allowed brides in their long white dresses to walk through their lines.

At Myongdong Cathedral's main gate, about 60 nuns in gray habits and white headdresses sang and prayed as students left their barricade to eat and rest. Some nuns held handkerchiefs over their faces because of the tear gas.

"We are doing this to protect the students. We will put ourselves in between," said one nun as they stood amid rocks heaped up by students to repel police attacks.

About 200 students holding the cathedral complex declared it a 'liberated zone' after taking control when anti-government protests flared Wednesday.

Riot police surrounding the cathedral in the heart of the city repeatedly charged into thousands of people who were trying to aid the students. The police, in green combat uniforms and black steel helmets, flung tear gas grenades into the crowds with and cleared streets with shield charges.

Davis once considered his 'dream'' home

Cullen and Priscilla Davis were locked in a bitter divorce at the time and Cullen was living at the suburban Fort Worth home of a divorcee named Karen Master. who is now his wife.

A gunman clad all in black and wearing a crude black wig surfaced at the remote hilltop mansion sometime after 11 p.m. and before 12:20. a.m. He shot the child once in the chest and left her to bleed to death on a basement

He lay in wait for Priscilla Davis to return with her boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30, a 6-foot-9

As the couple approached, "Cullen stepped out and said 'Hi' and he shot me," Priscilla Davis has testified.

Farr struggled with the gunman after Mrs. Davis was shot, but was cut down by a bullet fired through his neck. The killer stood over him and fired twice more into his body.

'He just kind of looked at me and laid his head down and died," Mrs. Davis recalled.

The killer turned his attention back to Mrs. Davis but was interrupted by the arrival of a young couple, Bubba Gavrel and Bevergentle giant of a man who once ly Bass, returning to the mansion

Bass was a friend of Priscilla Davis' older daughter Dee and was spending the night at the mansion. Bass, now 29, told the jury they encountered the man in black outside the house and were following him down a darkened walkway when he stepped into the light. "Bubba, that's Cullen," she said.

The gunman whirled and fired a bullet that lodged near Bubba's spine, partially paralyzing him and condemning him to a life on crutches.

"Cullen, please don't shoot me, it's Bev," she recalled saying be-found Karen Master's account more credible than Priscilla Davis' and that the prosecution had failed to prove Davis guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

The phrase "church of the Lord" has reference to the church of Christ, or the church which belongs to Christ. Jesus promised to build His church as is recorded in Matthew 16:18, where He said, "And I also say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it." We know from the scriptures that the church was not built upon Peter the church was not built upon Peter because Paul says: "For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ" (I Corinthians 3:11.) The defense stripped of the often lurid testimony about Priscilla Davis' loves and lifestyle.

State District Court Judge Claude Williams ruled early on that he would not permit the socalled collateral impeachment of Priscilla Davis or other plaintiff witnesses. At week's end, the defense was dealt a devastating blow on two counts, neither of which could be attributed to the judge. Davis himself admitted from the witness stand that another alibi witness lied or was mistaken when he testified he saw Davis at a movie, The Bad News Bears, the night of the shootings.

That issue will likely be resurrected Monday.

And the jurors learned through a legal loophole of sorts that Davis settled a $13 million lawsuit with Bubba Gavrel out of court last year.

Judge Williams did not permit the jury to hear terms of that settlement, but it reportedly was $1 million in cash, land and deferred payments.

Davis, a born-again Christian, told reporters before the judge issued a gag order that the motivation for the current suits was greed.

Countered Priscilla Davis: "We want justice, not money."

Veterans uphold viewpoints that Robertson fled

WASHINGTON (AP) - Korean War veterans are supporting statements by a former congressman that the Rev. Pat Robertson used his father's political influence in 1951 to avoid combat, according to a motion to dismiss the television evangelist's libel

The defense motion to dismiss a pair of $35 million libel suits against Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., and former Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., cites testimony from former Marines who served in Korea with McCloskey and Robertson. The pre-trial deposition testimony of these former Marines was cited by lawyers for Jacobs and McCloskey as evidence that Robertson has failed to prove the falsity of statements made by McCloskey in an Aug. 4, 1986 letter to Jacobs. The letter, which was subsequently published by two syndicated newspaper columnists, said Robertson had asked his father, the late Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., to help him avoid combat duty in the Korean War.

Robertson filed suit last year in U.S. District Court charging the statements by McCloskey were defamatory and threatened to damage his television ministry. Robertson, a conservative who is considering running for the 1988 Republican presidential nomination, accuses McCloskey and Jacobs, both liberals, of conspiring to damage his reputation. McCloskey, who served in combat in Korea, was aboard a troop ship that carried Robertson and other Marines to the war zone in 1951. The California congressman said in his letter that Robertson used the influence of his father to be taken off the ship in , Japan.

McCloskey said Robertson was later assigned to a noncombatant post in Korea and was known as the company "division liquor officer" because he made regular trips between Korea and Japan. Robertson disputes the term "division liquor officer," saying he was a courier who carried top secret codes between Japan and Korea.

The defense brief cites the

"confirmed parts of McCloskey's recollection such that the sum of their testimony supports the whole of what McCloskey has alleged.'

Herbert Marache, who served with Robertson at a training class in Quantico, Va., testified that Robertson "wasn't very happy with the prospect of going to Korea and said that he was going to have to talk to his daddy to see if he could do something so that he would not have to go to Korea.'

Sidney M. Rogers, Robertson's bunk mate at Quantico and his fellow officer on the troop ship USS Breckinridge, supported the story. Rogers recalled Robertson telling him he wanted to "call his father and see what he could do about rearranging his assignment, not going to Korea."

When the ship arrived in Yokosuka, Japan, Rogers recalled accompanying Robertson to a telephone. After the phone call was placed, Robertson said he would talk to his father.

Capt. Harry A. Steinmeyer recalled that Robertson asked to testimony of former Marines who send a cable to Sen. Robertson.

Houston residents fled swollen rivers and bayous as weekend thundershowers dumped up to 9 inches of rain while Beaumont officials handed out sandbags to help keep floodwaters from seeping into homes.

One man drowned in a Houston bayou Friday, the ninth straight day rain fell on the city, authorities said.

The heavy precipitation over Houston was lessening by Saturday morning, officials said.

All the bayous are receding, they have been going done since sometime last night with the exception of the San Jacinto River down below Lake Houston," Bill Edwards, spokesman for the Harris County Flood Control, said Saturday. "We're not expecting a crest there until later today."

"Unless we get some more rains, it looks like we're over the peak," he said. "But if they (rain showers) hit us like they have in the past two or three days, we'll really have some problems."

The National Weather Service reported a funnel cloud was sighted at about 9 a.m. north of Rock-north of Corpus Christi. The funnel receded back into the clouds, after causing minor damage to an abandoned pump house, the NWS said.

Motorists were stranded when their vehicles stalled as they tried to negotiate widespread street flooding in Harris, Fort Bend, Montgomery and Chambers counties.

Water was up to the headlights on 18-wheelers traveling the South Freeway at the South Loop during the rush hour, said Deputy Chief L.O. Martin of the Houston Emergency Management

Some people were evacuated in northeast Harris County around Luce Bayou, where the weather service reported that 9.49 inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period Friday. Rain gauges at Sheldon collected 8.78 inches in the same

Huffman resident Cyndi Ford, with her children piled in a pickup, decided to evacuate her house before the flooding got worse. "I'm leaving now. I won't be able to get out later, and I don't want to get stuck," she said.

Officials in counties north of Harris County said water had enport, which is about 50 miles tered only a few homes but property damage could grow dramatically if the rain continues.

In Beaumont, 6 inches of rain was reported Friday.

City crews worked through the night Thursday and early Friday, unclogging drainage ditches, evacuating families, helping stranded motorists and filling

Behind the public works building, only a third of a giant sand hill remained Friday. The rest of the sand went into some 2,500 bags the city distributed Thursday and Friday to help prevent flooding in homes.

"We're only allowed to give out 10 bags to each vehicle," said crew leader Kirk Reidelberger. 'Some people ask us if they can buy extra sandbags, and we have to tell them no.

Don Eisenberg, executive director of the Beaumont chapter of the American Red Cross, said 24 homes had been inundated with from 6 to 20 inches of rain. and 64 homes had water standing six inches or less inside.

Rains continued pounding the San Antonio area, where authorities have blamed at least three deaths on the weather.

Texaco shareholders gather to talk about dividend items

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Texaco Inc. shareholders must work within the courts to help settle a mammoth dispute between their company and Houston-based Pennzoil Co. if they want to start receiving dividend payments again, an investor says.

"My advice is, 'Don't panic,' " said Carl Whitson of Costa Mesa, Calif., who called the first meeting of the newly formed "Save Texaco Group" at a Tulsa hotel

Whitson, 87, an attorney who has filed motions to intervene in the ongoing case, said he was "a little discouraged" because only 16 Texaco shareholders showed up for the first of several planned meetings around the country.

"I think that some good will come of it," Whitson said. "I was satisfied with it."

Whitson said he intends to ask the Texas Supreme Court on Monday to appoint a special master to move the lawsuit along.

Pennzoil won a huge damage judgment against Texaco in November 1985. A Houston federal court jury found that Texaco. the nation's third largest oil company, had improperly interfered with Pennzoil's planned merger with Getty Oil Co.

Texaco eventually acquired Getty itself.

The damage judgment is worth at least $10.3 billion. On April 12, Texaco filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy law. Company officials said they were forced into the action because of the possibility the company would be ordered to post a $12 billion security bond while pursuing

After the bankruptcy court filing, Texaco announced it would cease paying dividends to holders of its approximately 240,000

"Texaco is seriously jeopardized as a corporation. Its shareholders are most jeopardized," said Ray Whitson, an Edmond financial consultant who is assisting in formation of the shareholders' group. He is Carl Whitson's nephew.

Thousands of small shareholders who depend on dividend payments are being hurt by the moratorium on dividend payments, and institutional investors are shying away from Texaco stock, Ray Whitson said.

Carl Whitson said he is optimistic that Texaco and Pennzoil attorneys will be able to work out a settlement in the case, but he said a quick settlement is in the best interests of shareholders.

"I have high hopes of a settlement," Carl Whitson said, adding that one might be forthcoming within a few months with good luck. He said with "bad luck" it might take four years and the case could go to the U.S. Supreme A diver from Houston Police Department hooks tow cable to car in parking lot.

Boulter gains award

CORPUS CHRISTI - The Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) this month awarded Republican Congressman Beau Boulter its prestigious "1987 Hats Off Award" for his work in aiding the oil and gas industry.

Boulter, chairman of the House Republican Energy Task Force, and Congressman Ralph Hall received the awards during a noon membership luncheon of the 41st annual TIPRO convention on June 8.

In announcing the honor, The TIPRO Reporter praised Boulter as an authoritative energy security spokesman" for his advocacy of a national energy policy and "as a leader in the effort to preserve a viable domestic oil and gas industry.' In his remarks, Boulter told the convention of independent producers and royalty owners that he and Sen. Phil Gramm will introduce their energy package this week in Congress. He said the policy will, among other things, establish tax incentives for ex-

Pampans attend SPS symposium on energy

AUSTIN - A Pampa student TAERF is a mark of its on-going and teacher were among outstanding area high school science students and teachers learning of latest development in the energy field last week at the Texas Energy Science Symposium in Austin.

The group, representing schools throughout the Panhandle and South Plains, was sponsored by Southwestern Public Service (SPS).

Among the approximately 400 participants from across the state attending the symposium Monday through Thursday were Albert Hernandez, 16, son of Al and Rosalie Hernandez, 2239 Lea, Pampa, and Deandra Fankhouser, a physics teacher at Pampa High School.

The symposium is an annual event sponsored by the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation (TAERF), composed of 10 electric utilities in Texas, including SPS.

Although the company does not own or operate any nuclear pow-commitment to energy research, according to local SPS manager Jim Morris. An important part of this research is the fusion research program in place at the University of Texas.

While today's nuclear power plants generate electricity using fission, a process that splits atoms, fusion would produce energy by joining atoms together.

TAERF efforts to develop the fusion process include looking at ways to contain the fusion reaction, which lasts for only a fraction of a second.

At the University of Texas, researchers are using a machine called a tokamak, which uses magnetic fields to attempt to contain this reaction.

In addition to fusion research, science symposium students participated in programs and demonstrations on such topics as energy needs and the environment and industrial uses of elec-

Los Angeles one game away from NBA crown

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) - Much to the chagrin of those Los Angeles Lakers' fans waving brooms a while back, Michael Cooper knew just what he was talking about before the NBA finals moved from the Forum to the Boston Garden.

The Lakers had just trounced Boston in consecutive games at the Forum, and even the most devout followers of the Celtics had to concede that a Los Angeles sweep of the best-of-seven championship series was a distinct possibility.

Others may have been thinking sweep; Cooper sure wasn't.

"Now our job is to win once back there," he said moments after making a record six 3-point field goals and scoring 21 points to help the Lakers whip the Celtics 141-122 in Game 2 on June 4. The Lakers fulfilled Cooper's requirement, but nothing more. So now, the Lakers are back home, one win away from their fourth NBA championship

While the Lakers may have staggered out of Boston, the odds certainly seem in their favor.

For one thing, they'll be playing at home, where they are 9-0 in the playoffs. And all they need to do is win one of two games. The Celtics, meanwhile, have lost their last six playoff games on the road, all but one by at least 10 points.

And the Celtics are the 19th team to fall behind 3-1 in a championship series, and none of the previous 18 has overcome the deficit.

Game 6 will be played Sunday at the Forum starting at 12:30 p.m. PDT. If the Celtics win, a seventh game would be played at the Forum Tuesday night beginning at 6 p.m. PDT.

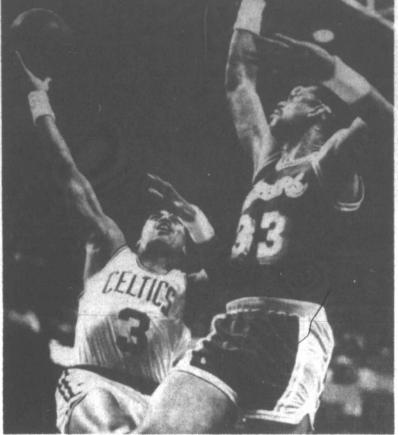

The Celtics forced the series to a sixth game with a 123-108 triumph Thursday night, giving them 86 wins in their last 89 games at the Boston Garden. Now, the Celtics must prove they can win else-

The condition of Cooper could be a key. The 6foot-7 swing man suffered a sprained right knee late in the second quarter Thursday night. Although he saw some action in the second half, the Lakers listed his status Friday as "day-to-day." The Lakers happiest to be going home had to be

James Worthy and Byron Scott.

Worthy scored 56 points and Scott 44 in the first two games of the series. But on Friday, a week after leaving California in triumph, the pair returned to California thankful that the Lakers lead the best-of-seven championship series 3-2 instead of trailing 3-2.

"Going back to the Forum, on a scale of one to 10, rates a 10," said Worthy, whose 46 points in three games at Boston Garden were 10 fewer than his total in the two Forum games.

Bosworth turns down Seahawks

By JIM COUR AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle Seahawks own the NFL rights to All-American linebacker Brian Bosworth. But now comes the hard part — they have to sign

The Seahawks selected Bosworth on Friday with the No. 1 pick in the NFL's supplemental draft. Although the former Oklahoma star hadn't listed the Seahawks among the teams he'd play for, Seattle doesn't intend to give up without a fight.

'We have him and we're going to make every effort to sign him," Seahawks Coach Chuck Knox said. "There's going to be a lot of posturing and rhetoric in the days coming up.

"He has the leverage of playing or not playing," Seattle President and General Manager Mike McCormack said. "He's the same as any other player. I think his ability is what gives him the leverage.

Both Knox and McCormack said they would try to sign Bosworth rather than trade his rights to one of the teams on his "wish"

"We're not even going to speculate on the possibility of a trade,' McCormack said. "We've got players on our football team, some of whom are starting, whose agents sent out similar letters." He referred to a letter that Bosworth's agent, Gary Wichard, had mailed before the supplemental draft naming the teams his client would prefer.

Bosworth, in a news conference at New York, said he'd rather sit out the season than play for the Seahawks

"Seattle doesn't fit the mold I want to put myself in," Bosworth

"Basically, it's up to Seattle to work something out," Wichard said. "We have no intentions of negotiating with Seattle for the 1987 season. We're hopeful of a trade.

'We're not bluffing; we'll sit out the year if he doesn't get one of the teams he wants," Wichard said, adding that he made that point to McCormack after the supplemental draft.

Bosworth on Friday revised his list of preferred teams to four — Tampa Bay, Philadelphia, the New York Jets and the Los Angeles Raiders. Bosworth said Tampa Bay was tops on his list because he wanted to play with quarterback Vinny Testaverde, the No. 1 pick in the regular NFL draft in April, and he likes Bucs Coach Ray Perkins and owner Hugh Culverhouse Bosworth had previously included the Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants.

Celtics hope for By BILL BARNARD

AP Basketball Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) -The Boston Celtics believe they can stop their six-game road losing streak Sunday for one simple reason — they have to.

The Los Angeles Lakers lead the best-of-seven NBA championship series 3-2 and can win their fourth title since 1980 with a victory at The Forum either Sunday or Tuesday night. Easy wins at home in the first two games of the series have made the Lakers an overwhelming favorite to dethrone the defending NBA cham-

"This team has never quit since I've been on it and I don't think we'll start now," Celtics forward Kevin McHale said Saturday. "There's no secret we have to play our style and get everyone involved in the offense.'

"We know it's our final chance, so I really believe we'll play well," Larry Bird said. "I don't see us getting blown out by 20."

Los Angeles won the first two games of the series by scoring 267 points in an impressive display of fast-break basketball.

The Lakers averaged only 106 points in the three games at Boston Garden, but managed to bring a 3-2 lead back to California because they won 107-106 in Game 4 on a hook shot by Magic Johnson with two seconds left.

'This series is the same situation as last year when we were up 3-2 against Houston and went home for two games," Bird said. 'We knew it was over and that's probably the way the Lakers Asked if the Celtics lacked confidence on the road after the six straight playoff losses on the road and a nine-game road losing streak during the season, Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said, "We should be feeling good about ourselves. We were not supposed to make the finals and we did, and we were not supposed to make it back to Los Angeles for the sixth game, but we did.'

"Now the line's been drawn. We have to win on the road, or it's over," Jones said.

For now, the Lakers are relieved that the Boston Garden portion of the series is over.

"Those seven days in Boston were a killer for me," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — If the battle between batter and pitcher is a constant guessing game. Oakland right-hander Dave Stewart won his latest outing hands down.

Stewart handcuffed the Rangers on four hits Friday night in pitching the Athletics to a 6-1 victory in a game that included Reggie Jackson's 554th career home run.

'All three of my pitches were working well tonight," said Stewart, who walked three and struck out nine in a route-going effort that improved his record to 7-6.

"As the game went on, they were trying to make adjustments to me," Stewart continued, "but I just kept making adjustments to them. And by nature, I get stronger as the game goes on.'

The man smiled thinly at the question. Now that Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets has completed his drug rehabilitation, what lies ahead for him as he resumes his baseball career? How does he make sure he doesn't slip back into addiction?

"Was he really an addict?" the man said. "I was an addict. I did drugs for 25 years. Everything you can name. Heroine, cocaine, methadone. That's an addict. Gooden? I don't know if he was an addict. Every athlete who uses drugs isn't an addict."

The man is recovered now. "Recovering," he said, correcting the interviewer. "You are always recovering.

He counsels other recovering patients in the aftercare phase of Beth Israel Medical Center's Stuyvesant Square chemical dependency unit, where he was a patient 21/2 years ago. Stuyvesant Square's 28-day recovery program is much like the one at the Smithers Alcoholism Center at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital Center, where Gooden was treated.

What would the man, anonymous here for obvious reasons, tell Gooden about the rest of his rehabilitation, now that the pitcher is out of the treatment center's protective cocoon?

'It's not easy," he said. "But life's not easy. He's got to want to be clean. He's got to want it more than anything in his life. It's got to be important for him. He's got to want to keep what he's got more than he wants to get high."

If he wants all that, then why would he risk it in the first place by messing with drugs? Again the man smiled

"When you want to get high," he said, "nothing else is important."

The man was asked what he thought went through the mind of an athlete who used drugs after the cocaine-ralated deaths of All-America basketball player Len Bias and NFL star Don Rogers a year ago this month. Since then, Gooden, Eddie Milner and La Marr Hoyt in baseball, Chris Washburn, Walter Davis, Mike Mitchell, Lewis Lloyd and Mitchell Wiggins in basketball, and Clarence Kay, Dexter Manley and Tony Collins in football have entered rehabilitation programs for drugs, alcohol or both. "A user always thinks he can handle it," the man said. "If something bad is going to happen, it will always happen to somebody else, never to me."

Kathy Shaefer, aftercare services supervisor at Stuyvesant Square, said the tough part of Gooden's recovery started the day he left the treatment program at Smithers.

"It's easy to go for treatment," she said. "Upstairs, you're told when to get up, when to eat, when to go to group therapy. It's an intensive, structured program. No thinking is needed. "The work really begins when you go out that front door. Reality is out there. That's when you have to ask yourself, 'Now what?' "

Stuyvesant Square's program includes two years of aftercare with regular therapy sessions three and four times a week. "That's a lot of meetings," Shaefer said. "But some counselors think they ought to go to meetings every day."

Treatment emphasizes the sharing of feelings. Patients are often placed in two- or three-bed rooms. "That is done by design, to avoid isolation, which is a trait of users," Barbara Cooper-Gordon, program administrator at Stuyvesant Square. said. "That's also why there are no Walkmans, which are isolating.'

Gordon believes aftercare, the phase of recovery Gooden is in now, is vital to any patient. "That's where they get the reinforcement of alumni," she said. "The message is: 'Don't forget where you came from and what it was like.'

Gooden will not have a chance to forget for a long time. Enemy fans in cities around the league will make certain of that.

Rizzo leads Mayflower Classic

Rehabilitation's hard road

By HANK LOWENKRON AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Patty Rizzo made a 75foot eagle putt on the final hole Saturday to take a one-stroke lead over Betsy King after three rounds of the $350,000 LPGA Mayflower Classic.

Rizzo's eagle gave her a 2-under-par 70. She was at 9-under-par 207 after 54 holes.

King, the leading money-winner on this year's LPGA Tour, had charged into the lead by making a 6-foot birdie putt on the 429-yard, par-5 No. 18 hole, finishing with a 66 — the day's best round.

Colleen Walker, who began the day tied for the lead with Rizzo, was tied for third with Patty Sheehan and Bonnie Lauer at 209

Juli Inkster, Deb Richard and Debbie Massey were another stroke back at 210, followed by Kathy Postlewait, Muffin Spencer-Devlin, Lenore Muraoka and Laurie Rinker at 211.

Rizzo, who last won in 1985, was at 8-under and had only one birdie and one bogey before her final

"It was a pretty consistent day," said the 26year-old Rizzo, whose best finish this year is a tie for fifth. "I was getting a little frustrated (over having only one birdie) and I felt there was nothing I could do, that those holes were over ... That was my attitude going into 18.'

The tournament concludes Sunday with the winner earning $52,500.

King, who has earned $297,818 in 14 events, began the day five strokes behind Rizzo and Walker. King started quietly with four pars and her only bogey of the day. A hot putter fueled her climb up the leader board as she needed just 26 putts for the 18 holes, and only 11 on the back side. "I putted well," said King, who had a pair of 15-foot and two 10-foot birdie putts in her round.

Baseball hopes to hire more minorities

By STEVE WILSTEIN AP Sports Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Major league baseball is about to embark on an ambitious project to open up opportunities for blacks and Hispanics in the front offices and coaching ranks, according to Commissioner Peter Ueberroth. Sports sociologist and black activist Harry

Edwards will coordinate an effort to identify former players from minority groups qualified to fill a variety of roles in baseball, Ueberroth said Friday Basically it entails trying to look at guys who could be like a Sparky Anderson, a Tommy Lasorda," Ueberroth said at the Associated Press Sports Editors Convention in Lake Buena Vista, Fla. "Guys who have great careers in baseball but weren't that good on the field. Edwards described the program as "expanding the pool" of blacks and Hispanics who could move into baseball positions when the jobs become available. Final details of the program have not been worked out, but Edwards said he might be able to announce how the project will work a few days after meeting with Ueberroth next week. Edwards said he has been formulating ideas for the program in private meetings with several scholars, black attorneys and former athletes, including Arthur Ashe, Oscar Robertson and Joe Morgan.

"After we get this under way, we're going to go to both basketball and football, as well as the NCAA, and utilize this as an exemplary program." Edwards said during a news conference at the University of California. "The NCAA is an integral part of this process, and it's going to have to get some of the garbage off the road. We're going to be approaching them to alter that entire situation.

Edwards, perhaps best known for organizing a protest by black athletes at the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City, will remain in his tenured position as associate professor at Berkeley and will retain advisory roles with the National Football League's San Franciso 49ers and the National Basketball Association's Golden State Warriors.

Edwards, a freshman discus thrower at San Jose State in 1961 when Ueberroth was an assistant track coach at the school, said the move to bring more blacks into baseball has been going on since Ueberroth took office. "This was very high on Peter Ueberroth's agenda," he said. "He's been discussing this with the owners since his initiation in that position. What Mr. (Al) Campanis did was to speed up the process, to get it a kind of high profile that probably would have been impossible without that development.'

Campanis, the former Los Angles Dodgers vice president, sparked a furor over racism in baseball this spring when he said on national television that blacks might not have "some of the necessities" to be managers and general managers.

Ueberroth said several hundred exballplayers fall into the category which the project will be aimed at reaching. Edwards' task, Ueberroth said, will be to determine: "Where are they? Who are they? Have they been given a chance? Can they be trained?

Ueberroth and owners of American and National League teams met with the Rev. Jesse Jackson in Philadelphia this week to discuss increasing minority employment in front-office jobs.

'Every single team will have a fair employment plan in place," Ueberroth said. The plans are to be developed in the next month and evaluated by Jackson, civil rights activists and a group of former players at a June 29 meeting in Chicago. Why do I think it's important? Because baseball is so visible," said Ueberroth, adding that the major leagues could serve as a role model for companies currently not providing opportunities for minorities. "The challenge we have is to manage change without losing tradition," the commissioner said.

"I don't think there is any question at all that baseball will lead the way," Edwards said. "That is the way it happened 40 years ago (when the Brooklyn Dodgers' Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier), that is the way I think it's going to happen this time. Only we've learned something over the last 40 years and hopefully we can speed up the process and behave more deliberately and

Pampa bowlers hope to land spot on Olympic team

Four Pampa bowlers who either won a local qualifying or alternate spot have the opportunity to represent the United States in the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul, Korea.

Donny Nail, Russell Eakin, Jim Eakin and Benny Horton traveled to San Antonio this weekend to compete in the state roll-off against other bowlers from across the state. They will bowl two 6-game blocks for a total of twelve games.

One out of every ten entrants based on total pinfall will advance to the regional qualifier tournament July 11-12 in Fort Worth. One out of every 20 bowlers will advance to the national finals in Detroit Aug. 16-22. Each bowler will compete in 24 qualifying games, followed by a 24-game match play finale.

Match play winners will represent the U.S.

in the '88 Olympics. Thousands of bowlers nation-wide will be competing for the ten positions on the American team. The four Pampa qualifiers have already cleared the first hurdle by winning a spot in the state roll-off and they hope to qualify for the regionals, which will host bowlers from seven states.

In April, he decided to forego the NFL draft so he could have his pick of teams in the supplemental draft.

On Thursday of this week, the Seattle Seahawks selected him, but, dare he play in such a beautiful city as Seattle?

NOooooo! Not on your life, Bosworth shouted.

In saying he'd rather sit out the year than play for Seattle, we get this small sampling of the wisdom according to Bosworth: "Seattle doesn't fit the mold I want to put myself in."

He's right. Seattle is a city with never fit in there. To top off his smugness, Bosworth not only has rejected the idea of playing for the Seahawks a team on the rise — he has also whittled down who he will play for. Or, as he and his agent, Gary Wichard, like to say, "We have narrowed our list of preferred teams.

Still on this "preferred" list: Tampa Bay, Philadelphia, the New York Jets and the LA Raiders.

Boy, I bet these teams feel lucky!

He says he wants to play for Tampa Bay because he'd like to play with Vinny Testaverde and he likes new head coach Ray Perkins. There was no reason given for why he chose the other teams.

In narrowing his preferred list, he excluded two teams from the nation's top two media markets: the Super Bowl champion New York Giants and the LA Rams.

He nixed the idea of playing for the Giants because they indicated they'd only use him on special teams and in backup roles. He decided against the Rams beround pick.

cause they didn't own a first-

With those two teams eliminated, we begin to get to the root of the problem here. Bosworth's arrogance is showing. His ego wouldn't be able to handle a backup role, nor could it accept being a second-round pick. A kid like Bosworth fresh out of college - and I don't care how good he is - should have little or no say in the matter of where he plays. It should be like boot camp: You go where they send you. Then, after you put in a couple of years, you can start your bick-

Seattle now owns the rights to Bosworth, but they have to sign him before he can play.

Seahawks General Manager Mike McCormack is sitting in Seattle saying, "We're not even going to speculate on the possibility of a trade.' Meanwhile, Wichard has said, "We have no intention of negotiating with Seattle for the '87 season. We're hopeful of a trade. We're not bluffing — we'll sit out the year if he doesn't get one of the teams he wants. For the good of professional football and all the other overconfident college kids who come down the pike, this will hopefully happen.

The way I'd like to see it happen is that Seattle won't trade him, and he will sit out the entire year. Then, when '88 rolls around, his stock will have gone down substantially and, if he ever wants to play again, he'll go where he's

ftsman's works have been presidential gifts

By MAGGIE KENNEDY Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS (AP) - Occasionally, it's not what you know but who you know. In Robert Whiteside's case, it was both.

Whiteside, a Dallas craftsman and jeweler, makes the sterling silver vermeil picture frames that Ronald and Nancy Reagan have given to five visiting heads of state and their spouses. Since last fall, Whiteside-crafted frames have been presented to the French and Canadian prime ministers, the president of Brazil, the Japanese prime minister and the chancellor of West Germany. The Reagans also bought several for themselves. The First Lady discovered Whiteside's handiwork when his friend and customer Martha Tiller sent some of the 4-inch square

Reagan's staff. Mrs. Reagan liked what she saw and asked to see more immediately. Whiteside sent a sampling of guilloche frames, boxes, letter openers and clocks, some of which Mrs. Reagan kept. Now considered official state gifts, the orders are handled through the State Department.

When asked what the government pays for them, Whiteside would only reply, "The White House has price guidelines which we adhere to.

"We usually send three slightly different frames to the White House for them to pick one from but they've kept all six in the last two shipments," said the North Texas State graduate who looks younger than his 37 years.

Dressed in his usual jeans, oxford-cloth shirt and white Reeboks, Whiteside reigns over a sign guilloche enamel and goldover-silver frames, clocks, small boxes, as well as Carl Fabergestyle eggs. Whiteside also can create gold and silver jewelry encrusted with diamonds and emeralds or cut-crystal pieces set with lapis and red coral.

His interest in such objets d'art was piqued when he became an art restorer in 1972 for area collectors, designers and antique dealers.

"Some fabulous things - including some Faberge eggs came across my desk in those days," he recalled. "I particularly loved the Faberge things and vowed then and there to learn as much about them as I could, including how to make them. I took off for Florence, Paris and London to see the best so I could set my own standards of craftsmanship.

introduced around 1750. Developed by a Parisian craftsman, the process results in a wavy, mechanically engraved pattern resembling moire silk overlaid with clear or translucent enamel.

"Guilloche soon became the most popular method for decorating gold boxes of the 18th century and remained popular into the 20th century," said Whiteside. "It reached its zenith in the late 19th century in the Russian workshop of Faberge where it met near extinction when he closed his shop in 1918.'

Unable to find the guilloche engraving machines in this country, Whiteside had an Oak Cliff machinist make one for him. Then four years ago he acquired three of the machines from a German artisan in New York whose father had worked for Faberge in Russia. Made in 1840, the heavy, sions and are thought to account for half of those still in existence. The enameling process is achieved by applying a thin layer of vitreous enamel over a guilloche surface of sterling silver or gold, then firing it in a kiln at 1,450 degrees Fahrenheit. 'The failure rate with guilloche is fairly high," Whiteside said. "The enamel can be very unpredictable and timing is critical. A second or two too short or too long can be disastrous."

One of the few artists today who makes guilloche enamel objects. Whiteside almost didn't become an artist. An accomplished clarinet player, he won several local music competitions while in high school and was a solo artist with the Dallas Symphony at age 18. He also majored in music on full scholarship at North Texas State.

Art auction to benefit outdoor art foundation

By MARILYN POWERS Lifestyles Editor

The Pampa Area Foundation for Outdoor Art will hold an art auction at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 20 in M.K. Brown Auditorium. Proceeds from the auction will be used to buy artworks for display at public outdoor sites in the area.

A preview showing with refreshments will be held from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Each of those attending is asked to give a $10 donation.

Art objects from area, Texas and international artists will be included in the auction. It is open to the public and will be conducted by Williams-Webb Auctioneers Contemporary chamber music will be presented during the evening, with special numbers by local pianists and by flutist Katrina Hildebrandt.

Included in the auction is an oil painting of an Indian chief by Pampa artist Evelyn Epps, a Tiffany stained glass lamp by Jack Towles, a Julian Onderdonk poster print of bluebonnets, a framed painting and several prints from Austin artist George Batwell.

Several signed prints from Kerrville, Lubbock and Houston artists have been donated by Pampa sculptor Gerald Sanders. These include works by Phleat Boyd, Don Yandell, Travis Keese, Robert Chennault and Larry Dyke.

Curt Beck has donated two pastels from Tunisia and Egypt and a primitive painting, a woven Egyptian handbag and two Egyptian lanterns. Sandy Williams has donated a collection of prints.

Others donating items for the auction include Per Stubbe, two nature arrangements; Betha Lee Roberts, original oil on slate; Jack Sorenson, set of prints; and Nelda Sheets, Billie Osborne and Loto Minnick. original oils.

A sculpture by Sanders is being donated for the auction by Ruth Morrison. The sculpture, "Fool's Gold," is of an old prospector looking through a magnifying glass.

Sanders, formerly a telephone lineman, became acquainted with the Morrison family in the 1950s while erecting the telephone lines connecting two of the Morrison ranches, several years before he began exhibiting his work internationally.

Morrison is also donating a purse made of an Iranian fabric table mat, with patterned needlepoint stitchery handles in colors complementing those in the purse fabric.

The Pampa Area Foundation for Outdoor Art was begun in 1985 by the Pampa Garden Club and Las Pampas Garden Club. The tax-exempt organization's purpose is to receive funds for outdoor art and sculpture for the Pampa area.

The foundation's funding began with a $5,000 donation from the Pampa Environmental Beautification Foundation and $3,000 from the 1985 Christmas Tour of Homes sponsored by the two garden clubs. These funds were used to erect two 9 by 6 foot wall modules in the park area southeast of M.K. Brown Auditorium

The walls will be used to depict the history of Texas. This idea was conceived during the state Sesquicentennial in 1986, when about 25 artists, sculptors, teachers and historians met with representatives of Pampa Garden Club. Additional walls and panels will be designed and erected as funds become available.

The first artwork to be placed on the walls will be that done by school students of Kay Harvey and Kay Crouch. The students' work will be cast in permastone and mounted on one of the walls.

The work done by Harvey's students depicts the words of a poem, "To Be From Texas," by Dinah Dorough Zike. The poem is being cast in bronze and will be placed on the students' wall. Crouch's students chose to depict Texas symbols and history.

More work on the outdoor walls will be done as funds become available. Additional depictions of Texas and area history will be included on the walls.

Persons involved in planning, designing and sculpting the history walls include Thelma Bray, general chairman; Reese Field, wall chairman; Tim Gikas, design chairman; and Peggy Palmitier, Sanders, Fauncine Mack, Walt Bailey, Janice Sackett, Harvey, Crouch, Jerry Richards, Karen Bonnell, Heidi Rapstine, Lois Minnick, Evelyn Epps and local art students.

The foundation's first major outdoor sculpture project will be a large sculpture by Sanders, to be placed at the southwest corner of the grounds surrounding M.K. Brown Auditorium. Some of the funds raised by the auction will be used to finance this project.

The sculpture, "Grandfather's Vision," is still in the planning stages. It will feature a teen-age Indian boy asking an old cowhand the meaning of the derrick design etched on a rock below. At the base of the

TIPPING TIPS In preparing a wedding budget, one item often forgotten is tips. Here's a guide to whom and when you need to tip.

BRIDAL

Sherry

Thomas

Ministers and organists generally get a gra-tuity. Often this is in lieu of an outright fee, and they'll readily tell you the normal gratui-ty when you are doing your pre-wedding

Caterers will often include a percentage of gratuities in their contract. If not, you'll need cash to tip waiters, busboys, etc. Even if tips are included, you may want to give something extra to a maitre d'or captain who provides special service.

Parking attendants, restroom attendants Parking attendants, restroom attendants, and coat-checkers are most commonly tipped by guests individually. If you choose to prepay a flat fee, make sure the attendants will inform guests of this.

Photographers, musicians, florists and bakers are usually not tipped unless they perform some special service outside the bounds of your original agreement.

Greek tombs unearthed in Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) - Amer- of present day Taranto near the ican archaeologists have recovered 230 skeletons and hundreds of art treasures from the tombs of Greeks who colonized southern Italy 2,800 years ago.

Rich soil drew the farming colonists to the southern Italian peninsula, where they founded new towns and took over old ones, says National Geographic. Discovered about 25 miles west site of the ancient Greek city of Metaponto, the artifacts include painted vases, engraved bronze mirrors and a lyre fashioned from a tortoise shell.

Many of the art objects date from the 5th century B.C., a period associated with the Greek statesman Pericles and the golden age of Athens.

Conflict may promote anorexia

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - As many as one in 100 young women suffers from a serious eating disorder called anorexia nervosa. according to the University of Rochester

Though early detection and treatment would lessen its harm, researchers say that has been difficult because early-stage symptoms mimic those of other physical or emotional problems.

Two researchers at the university have studied anorexics and their families, however, and have found anorexics tend to come from families that are more conflict-ridden, yet less emotionally expressive, than

_earn to manage time

"I wish I had some more time.

"There's never enough time." Have you ever heard or said either of these statements? If you answered yes, perhaps you need to learn how to manage your time more effectively.

Managing time effectively can be a major challenge. Today's lifestyles place many demands on the family, and often leave family members with little time for other pursuits.

Time can be compared to a checking account that has the same beginning balance of 24 hours every morning, and the same ending balance of zero hours every night. If you spend your time wisely, you will have something to show for your efforts. If you waste your time, you cannot "deposit" any more or "transfer" from another day. How you spend your time is up to you. You may feel that you have little control of your own time. However, other people and events are often allowed to control this time.

Usually, one is free to choose. There is no magical formula for time management. Time control begins with you

First you must realize that you cannot do everything. Life is a never-ending list of things to do. You have to place priorities on the list of things to do and make your choices. Today, opportunities and pressures for making those choices have multiplied.

An effective time manager is one who has set purposeful goals for living. There is always time for the important things if you can manage your time. Determining and evaluating choices is a difficult task, but it can make a

To determine your goals, remember three easy steps:

Write down your goals. Set priorities based on your values.

List the activities.

Doing more things may not solve your problems with the time crunch, but managing time effectively can help you get more out of life. Different time management techniques will work for different individuals.

Here are some tips to help you be effective with your time:

Have a set time each day when you will work on your personal priorities. In other words, schedule time for yourself — even if it is to do nothing.

• Schedule disagreeable jobs between agreeable ones as much as possible. Set a time limit for how long you spend. Then reward yourself by doing something more pleasant.

• Practice doing a task right the first time to avoid having to redo it later. Haste may have a negative value. • Learn to say "no" sometimes. • Delegate tasks to others. Have confidence in what others can do. Recognize that time is money.

On occasion, you may want to spend money to use your time in other ways • Expect the unexpected. Don't panic if something unplanned happens. Leave a little free time in your schedule. Be flexible. • Make daily lists of things to do.

Checking off completed tasks can give you a psychological lift. Use snatches of time productively. Some tasks that you have been avoiding may require only a short amount of time to complete. • Plan regular escapes from routine. This could mean a new hobby or interest. New ways to use time can alleviate stress.

For further information about time management, contact the Gray County Extension Service at 669-7429

Celebrations, trips, sights ab-out town, new babies and more fill the last few days of spring. Let's check them out.

Retirement wishes to Georgia Johnson, an employee of Wm. T. Fraser Insurance Company for the past 42 years. About 100 family members and friends attended Georgia's retirement party prepared by Gaynell and Dottie Fraser, Sharon Price, Darla Denham, Anna Young, Carolyn McKenzie. Family members attending were her husband, Maynard; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmit McCathern; her grandsons, Justin and Jason Johnson and their mother, Sherla, who is Paul's wife; and Mickey Sue Johnson, Maynard's sister. Georgia wil be greatly missed in the business world. Happy, well-deserved retirement, Georgia!

Sixtieth wedding anniversary wishes to Irene and Lee Harrah, who have spent their entire married life in Pampa. Their daughter and her husband, Joyce and Dale Cochran of Dallas, hosted a reception in the Harrah home last Sunday for about 90 friends and family members. A plus benefit was the attendance of relatives from near and far, a family reunion - grandchildren Lore and Jim Hemsell of Denton; Sherry Floyd, Steve and Scott Hemsell of Dallas; great-grandchildren Kristi and Tanya Floyd: Irene's sister, Laura Callender of Wichita, Kan. and a friend, Rosemary Fuqua, Dallas; Irene's brother and wife, Malcolm and Ivo Denson of Pampa. Lee is the only living charter member of the First United Methodist Church and a longtime member of the Lions Club. Irene, an ardent church worker, is a member of the Varietas Club and one of the just like field crops - when it is dry weather, irrigation water just doesn't do as good as rain from Mother Nature.

Gardens, flowers, shrubs and grass have really grown during the last two weeks of cool, rainy weather.

A lot of homeowners will have an extra amount of grass clippings after these good rains. Don't waste those clippings either mulch your garden or flower beds, or make a compost pile.

Benefits from organic mulch such as grass clippings occur primarily in the summer by reducing soil temperature and saving soil moisture.

Organic mulches shouldn't be applied too early in the spring as this will create an insulating effect and keep the soil temperature cool. This will result in de-popular home garden vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and squash. Mulches composed of organic matter should be applied at a depth of 2 to 3 inches around growing plants. When organic mulches are used such as grass clippings, compost, leaves or cottonseed hulls, it is usually necessary to increase the amount of garden fertilizer by about one third to compensate for the nutrients used by the microorganisms during the breakdown proorganic mulches is that they can be turned under at the end of the garden season.

Compost is a good source of organic matter for gardens and flower beds. Furthermore, composting is an excellent way to dispose of garden debris, leaves and similar plant material.

Make the compost pile 4 to 6 feet wide and any length, depending on material and space avail-

The simplest composting method is to alternate 4- to 6-inch of good garden soil.

Add manure to the soil layer if it's available, and sprinkle commercial fertilizer on each layer of plant matter to hasten decomposition. Use a cupful of fertilizer with a 1-1-1 ratio per 10 square

The top layer of the compost pile should be soil and the surface should form a basin to hold water. Water each layer of organic matter before adding the soil layer.

Water the pile thoroughly when completed. Add water as needed to keep the material moist but not soggy. Leaves decompose too slowly if too dry.

Turn the compost every three to four months to aerate the material and speed decomposition. Within six months to a year, your compost will be ready to use GARDEN FERTILIZATION

Most gardens are really growing with all of the rains we have had recently. Now is the time to consider additional nitrogen fertilization on several garden vegetables.

AIDS-free singles clubs may give false sense of security

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine in Michigan recently joined a singles club (it's more like a dating service that introduces people to each other), and guess what? The idea of the club is to assure members that nobody gets in unless the applicant submits to a test to make sure he or she is AIDS-free!

I don't believe in treating people who test positive for AIDS like lepers, but I think every city - even small towns - should have a club like this. I am a 29-year-old divorced woman who has been sexually active for the last four years. I am not promiscuous, but I am not totally monogamous, either.

I think clubs like this are badly needed in every community. Please help to publicize such clubs

BETSY IN SOUTHFIELD DEAR BETSY: Such clubs can give its members a false sens of security because the AIDS test does not guarantee the person who tests negative that he or she is free of the AIDS virus, as it can take several months for the AIDS antibodies to show up in a test.

The day after a person tests negative, that person can have a sexual contact and become contaminated - which will not show up in testing for many months. So, card-carrying AIDS-free members may or may not be as safe as they think they are - nor are their sexual partners.

Talented teen-agers to form revue show

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

He'd like to teach the world to sing, but Danny Parkerson will settle for a few dozen high school students.

Parkerson, manager of M.K. Brown Auditorium, is working on a plan that would do just that.

It's called the Top O' Texas Revue, and, if successful, it will provide a musical outlet for Pampa youth and a unique public relations tool for the community

"It's like a little New Christy Minstrels show, only more localized." Parkerson said, describing his dream of providing "good, clean, familytype entertainment" regularly in and around Pampa.

Parkerson and his cocoordinator, Pampa High School junior John Cooley, have scheduled auditions for the revue for 7 p.m. June 23. Auditions are open to anyone who will be in high school next year, and Parkerson said he's looking for more than just musical talent.

Sixteen teen-agers will be chosen from the auditions to form the revue

"We're not looking for the best singers and the best dan-cers," he said. "We're just looking for some good kids that want to have a good time. Personality is important."

Once formed, the young group would be available to perform at community and civic functions whenever requested. Parkerson said the students also will do some touring and learn theater arts, such as sound and stage lighting, during their weekly practice sessions at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

He said the group, sponsored by the auditorium and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, will provide Pampa with a good public relations

"Let's say that the Lion's Clubs have a North Texas board meeting here and need some entertainment," Parkerson explained.

But the group would not only aid the Pampa community. It also would benefit the student participants and "may even promote a few careers," Parkerson said.

"The ones that are interested in this type of program will have something to do," he said, adding that students' individual talents will be developed, as well as group performance.

He also wants to start a scholarship program for students who participate. Parkerson is no stranger to revue-type entertainment. While auditorium manager in Wichita Falls - before coming to Pampa — he headed Danny and the Red River Revue, a similar group. Several 'graduates'' from the Red River Revue have gone on to entertain on cruise ships or at theme parks across the country, he said.

Cooley said he was sold on the idea from the start.

Also helping start the revue will be Pampa dance instructor Madelaine Graves, Parkerson said.

Parkerson said he realizes the biggest challenge faced by the group, once started, is raising money for costumes, equipment and travel. He said he is seeking donations and plans to apply for a grant from the local M.K. Brown Founda-

Anniversaries have been prevalent in the news recently. Pampa is enjoying its 75th year in existence. Miami and Amarillo celebrated 100 years. The Memorial Day festivities held annually in Thompson Park in Amarillo, Funfest, turned a decade old on May 25.

Texans thought the revelry ended when their Sesquicentennial anniversary ended. But next Saturday, the 20th, the 10th Annual Texas World Music Festival, alias the Texxas Jam, will have an five-band anniversary celebration at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas

Headlining the Jam this year, returning from an eight-year hiatus from the stage, is Boston. After realigning their band, Boston will open their American tour at the Jam in front of a prospective crowd of 70,000. This will be Boston's second trip to the Jam, but their first time as headliners.

Only Tom Scholz, band founder and lead guitarist, and Brad Delp, vocalist, remain from the original Boston. Rounding out the remainder of the band are ex-Sammy Hagar guitarist Gary Pihl, bassist David Sikes, drummer Doug Huffman, and keyboardist Jim Masdea.

Boston is coming off a number one album, Third Stage, and two top ten singles off that album, "Amanda" and "We're Ready." All 11 songs off Third Stage are to be played by Boston, as well as cuts from their two previous albums, Boston and Don't Look Back.

Another act returning to the Jam playing right before Boston is also a Beantown-based band, Aerosmith. Aerosmith returned last year to the stage with their tour in support of their first album in five years, Done With Mirrors.

Aerosmith gained fame in the mid-70s with singles such as "Walk This Way," "Dream On" and "Back in the Saddle." They are also kicking off their American tour at the Jam in support of their new album scheduled for release approximately two weeks

Steven Tyler, vocalist; Joe Perry, lead guitarist; Tom Hamilton, bassist; Brad Whitford, rhythm guitarist, and Joey Kramer, drummmer, will promise a good show; they've been doing it for 15 years.

The 10th Annual Jam could very well be the Jam of the comeback. The third comeback from a three-year leave of absence is Whitesnake. In support of their Zeppelinesque self-titled album. Whitesnake will be the third, and middle band, of the day.

After their semi-successful album, Slide It In, and an opening-act spot for Quiet Riot in 1984-85, Whitesnake slid off the charts and back into the studio. After problems, they released Whitesnake and is rocketing up the charts, peaking most recently at number two on Billboard magazine's Top Pop Albums

The fourth band is a rookie of sorts to stadium shows. Heavymetal glam rockers Poison, who have been opening for Ratt, will 100+ temperatures. With that kind of heat, they will have to hold off on putting on too much makeup, considering they will sweat it all off.

Poison's debut album, Look What the Cat Dragged In, has already achieved platinum (one million copies sold) status and is currently in the top five albums. Their hit single off that album, "Talk Dirty to Me," peaked at number nine on the charts.

The opening act of the Jam is another rookie, Tesla. Their first album, Mechanical Response, is currently enjoying airplay on AOR (album oriented rock) stations as well as their current single, "Little Suzi." Tesla recently enjoyed an opening act status for the "Frank Sinatra of Hard Rock." David Lee Roth.

If exciting concerts tempt your palate, then this 10th anniversary will surely satisfy your appetite. Five bands that will promise to entertain and pressurize your eardrums will be featured, and this is one anniversary that should not be missed.

Solo singer still happy man at work 'Looking for Jack'

By LARRY McSHANE Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The hit singles are missing, and so are the 20,000 fans who filled arenas from coast to coast. But Colin James Hay is just as happy as a man at work as he was with Men At Work.

"In a lot of ways, it felt quite natural to bow out of the band and be a solo person," the former lead singer for the late Australian pop band said shortly after releasing his solo debut album, Looking for Jack.

Hay, whose pop-eyed visage dominated Music Television when Men At Work arrived on these shores in 1981, harbors no illusions his one-man act will take off like his five-piece band did: five Top 40 hits, a Grammy for best new artist, more than 7 million albums sold in two years.

On Hay's new record, the voice is still there, but there's little of the recognizable Men At Work music, such as "Who Can It Be Now?" or "Overkill."

"I wanted to put out something that was a little bit surprising, a little bit more, 'Who's that? I recognize that voice, but . . .,' " Hay said in explaining the record's evolution.

But before the album came together, Men At Work came apart.

"I kept going . . . and out of that seemingly negative situation, the rhythm section developed," Hay recalled.

Afterward, Hay went back into the studio with drummer Chad Wackerman and bassist Jeremy

When Hay and producer Robin Millar (Sade, Big Country) were nearly done with the solo album, the singer said he wasn't quite satisfied.

Hay wanted one more song, but was frustrated in coming up with a tune. But that satisfied feeling and the album's title track finally came after a concert in Los Angeles when Hay met actor Jack Nicholson backstage.

"I went up and said, 'Hi, I'm Colin Hay, ... and I'm a great big fan of yours.' And he said, 'I can't hear you,' '' Hay recalled in a barely passable Nicholson impression.

Hay then went off, embarrassed. Later, Nicholson "came up and said to me, 'I'm a great big fan of yours too.

The Believers

Strange things are happening in midtown Manhattan. An evil corruption of the centuries-old African cult, Santeria, has taken hold of respectable citizens. The followers, including a wealthy real estate magnate, glory in the sacrifice of prepuberty first sons This is the fragile premise of John Schlesinger's occult shocker, The Believers, an Orion release. It is a slick, well-acted mystery with enough stomachturning horror to make The Exorcist seem G-rated.

Martin Sheen is a New York police psychiatrist whose cop patient is deeply disturbed by a series of ritual murders of young boys. When the cop goes berserk and kills himself with a deli butcher knife, Sheen launches his own investigation

He finds an ally in a case-weary detective, Robert Loggia, and together they pursue the puzzling

Meanwhile, Sheen, a widower, becomes romantically involved with his landlady, Helen Shaver. And Sheen's own son, Harley Cross, appears in mortal danger despite the efforts of the superstitious housekeeper, Carla Pinza, to ward off spirits.

The climax comes with Sheen almost single-handedly battling the forces of evil.

John Schlesinger (Midnight Cowboy, Marathon Man) appears to have set his aim on a classy horror story. The class is there in production values, but the horror is overloaded, for example, in spiders pouring out of a woman's cheek. Some scenes border on the absurd, such as socialites gazing down on a sacrifice ritual as if watching a polo match.

If any actor can lend credulity to The Believers, it's Martin Sheen. His cool intelligence is the film's prime asset. Loggia gives another of his fine performances, as long as it lasts; his exit is abrupt and unclimactic. Helen Shaver deserves a medal for bravery in withstanding the film's most horrific scene.

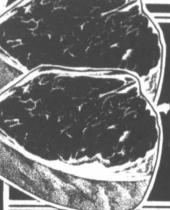

Richard Masur is convincing as the millionaire-turned-cultist, as are Lee Richardson and Elizabeth Wilson as Sheen's seemingly faithful friends. Jimmy Smits, who plays Victor Sifuentes on the TV hit, L.A. Law, is superb as the cop gone mad.

The rating is R for language brief nudity and horror. The child mutilation scenes would be unsuitable for younger children. Running Time: 110 minutes.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wheat farmers are turning out another whopper harvest this year, so big that Agriculture Department experts say rising exports will not make much of a dent in the overall

The department said Tuesday the harvest is expected to produce 1.58 billion bushels, 4 percent more than last year despite a sharp cutback in

Moreover, the new forecast is up 2 percent from indications a month ago. The 1986 winter wheat output was 1.52 billion bushels. Officials said the average yield was estimated at 40.6 bushels per acre, up from 35.2 bushels last year and a May forecast of 39.9 bushels per acre.

"As of May 31, heading had advanced to 86 percent in the major producing states," the department's Agricultural Statistics Board said in its report. "Wheat was turning color (ripening) as far north as Illinois, Kansas and Nebraska. Harvest progressed as far north as Arkansas and stretched

Another report said that by Sunday the U.S. winter wheat harvest was about 4 percent completed and that test cutting was under way in southern Kansas, the leading producer.

Farmers are expected to have about 38.9 million acres for harvest this year, down 10 percent from 43.2 million in 1986. Much of the cutback was due to larger participation in this year's federal acreage

To qualify for federal price supports, farmers who produce wheat, corn, cotton and some other crops are required to idle part of their base acreage. In all, 54.4 million acres of cropland are being idled under the various 1987 crop programs. Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following summer. It makes up about threefourths of total U.S. wheat production.

No 1987 production estimates for spring wheat, corn and other spring-planted crops were included. Those will be issued by USDA later in the

In a related supply-and-demand report, the USDA projected total wheat production this year, based on historical trends, at 2.14 billion bushels, up from the 2.11 billion indicated in May and the 1986 harvest of about 2.09 billion. That would include winter wheat and the other kinds planted in the spring for harvest later the same year.

Although wheat exports are improving, total wheat production this year continues to be almost as large as total use, which includes exports plus domestic consumption, the analysis showed.

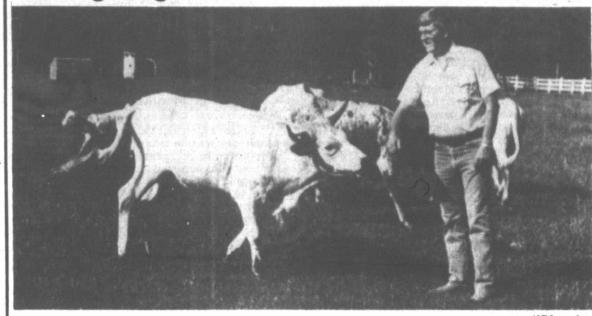

In all, the U.S. wheat stockpile on June 1 was estimated at about 1.85 billion bushels. That was grain left over from previous harvests. The new crop, projected at 2.14 billion bushels, would be slightly less than total wheat use of less than 2.2 billion in the 1987-88 marketing year.

Thus, according to the projected figures, the U.S. wheat stockpile could decline to about 1.81 billion by the end of the season, May 31, 1988 — a shrinkage of only about 42 million bushels from this June 1.

Wheat market prices were projected for 1987-88 at an average range of $2.30 to $2.60 per bushel, unchanged from the May report. Last season's price average was $2.40 per bushel.

No change was made in projections for 1987 corn production, indicated tentatively at 7.2 billion bushels, down from last year's 8.25 billion.

No help for farmers until stockpile reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farmers may have to wait until some of the world's huge grain stockpile is reduced substantially before seeing much increase in commodity market prices, according to an Agriculture Department analysis.

But there is growing evidence that lower commodity prices are beginning to stimulate greater use of grain and slowly curb the surplus production that has been typical in recent years, the USDA report said Wednesday.

WHEAT SITUATION

Early planted wheat is about ready for harvest. This wheat has really matured quickly the last 2-3 weeeks and some of it is ready for the combines as weather will permit.

There has been some scattered invasions of armyworms in wheat during the last two weeks. Most of these armyworm infestations have been across the northern portion of the county. The most frequent noted damage has been that the beards on the wheat have been eaten. However, some of the leaves and some of the heads were eaten when the armyworms invaded some of the greener fields. Generally most of the armyworms should reach the pupal stge of their life cycle by now. When worms become about 11/2 inches in length, they are mature and are ready to pupate.

There is concern about them invading young sorghum. It looks like the armyworms should be in the pupal stage before much, if any, of the sorghum gets up to where it is something for them to Farmers with questions about

armyworms should give me a call at 669-7429. MARKET NEWS

With all of the moisture, bindweeds are blooming. This should be an invitation to get them sprayed. Especially where you have them in small spots, get them killed out before they spread to other areas. There are a variety of materials that will help control bindweeds. Call or come by the county Extension office for recommendations to fit your situation

Also, remember to come by the Extension office to sign up for the State Highway Department to spary Roundup® on bindweeds in your right-of-ways. If you certify you are controlling bindweeds on oyour farmland, they will spray them along the state roadways. BEEF HANDBOOK

A new "Cow-Calf Management Handbook" has been developed by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with two livestock industry groups to assist Texas ranchers in inceasing their competitiveness and profitability under current economic conditions.

Most successful cow-calf operations depend on a high percent calf crop weaned, high total pounds of beef produced by the herd, and a competitive market price for quality calves. All of these factors must be balanced against a reasonable and competitive cost of production. To succeed, ranchers today must study all technological, financial and marketing tools carefully in an attempt to optimize return to an operation.

Cow-calf producers have many opportunities to cut production costs and increase returns by accessing research-based technology and applying financial management and marketing information included in the hand-

The handbook, which contains over 100 topics divided into seven major sections for convenient reference, is designed to serve ranchers who operate under Texas conditions. The materials are assembled in a three-ring binder for ease of updating by producers

Grants for development and publication of the book were contributed by the Houston Livestock Show and Ropde and Hoeschst-Roussel Agri-Vet. Co., which is headquartered in Some-

An office copy of the handbook has been placed for reference in each county Extension office. Producrs who wish to inspect the book, secure order forms and place orders for the book — which is priced at $40 per copy — may do so by coming by the Gray County Extension office.

SOUTHWESTERN PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY

Air quality investigators are not typical detectives

By BILL McCANN Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN (AP) — As their Ford station wagon bounced along the deeply rutted dirt road in southeastern Travis County, Steve Belyea and Bill Main talked about their quarry.

They had gotten a complaint that someone was illegally burning piles of copper wire in the area. It is a problem that Belyea and Main have been called out to investigate periodically.

The wire burners sometimes create huge, noxious clouds of smoke as they burn the insulation off the wire so they can sell the copper to scrap dealers. Sometimes they set off whole dump-truck loads. The smoke is not only a nuisance, but also potentially dangerous because the insulation and electrical equipment dumped into the fire can contain toxic chemicals, Belyea said.

Belyea and Main are not your typical detectives. They are air pollution investigators for the Texas Air Control Board. They do not wear uniforms and, instead of guns, they are armed with cameras and a copy of the state air pollution law.

The men are responsible for a seven-county area that receives more air pollution complaints than any other part of the state. Together they log more than 25,000 miles a year responding to complaints in Travis, Hays, Williamson, Fayette, Bastrop, Caldwell and Blanco counties.

Belyea and Main usually do their detective work separately, but sometimes, for safety's sake, they double-team a complaint.

'You don't know what you will run into out in some of these places," said Belyea, who adds he occasionally has been threatened by hostile people caught in the act of polluting.

This day there was no danger. When Belyea and Main reached a clearing along the Colorado River, they found a large scorched area strewn with ashes, a pile of flexible metal casing and fragments of an old mattress used to start the fire. The polluters were long gone.

Belyea left his calling eard on a metal chair where, judging by the discarded beer bottles, someone had sat drinking while watching the

The card was to let the culprits know that their burning grounds had been discovered and to discourage them from using the site again, Belyea said. He acknowledged that this would not be the last complaint he would hear about the wire bur-

"For some of these guys, it's the way to put food on the table," Belyea said. "Some of them are pretty rough people.

One old-time wire burner has been especially elusive. "I chased him for three years before I finally caught him last month," Belyea said. Using the standard procedure, the man was mailed a citation informing him he violated state antipollution rules and giving him 10 days to respond or face a possible fine. Belyea had some doubt that the letter would be answered.

While the pollution investigators can't issue tickets or haul someone off to jail, they can issue warnings, notify polluters by mail of violations and recommend legal action by the state against chronic polluters.

About one in every 10 complaints results in a citation, according to Belyea. In many instances the polluters get by with a warning, if they agree to

"We don't start out the day saying, 'How many people can we cite today?' We try to resolve any differences to get compliance," Main said. "We take our jobs seriously, but we try not to be overbearing in the process.

But sometimes asking for voluntary compliance does not work. After three violations, offenders can be assessed penalties of up to $10,000 or face prosecution by the the state attorney general's office, Main said.

Sometimes, especially in open-burning cases, people are not aware they are violating the law and stop immediately after getting a warning, Belyea

He's also seen people who are feuding with neighbors use a complaint as a harassment tool. 'We run into a lot of cases where people are fighting over the fence, and sometimes we literally have to get between them," Belyea said.

"We have to wear a lot of hats out here," Main added. "We have to be part engineer, salesman, social worker, diplomat — and sometimes a referee.

Once in a while the complainer is just plain crazy, seeing little green men in the attic or sensing mysterious odors emanating from a closet, Belyea said. But in most cases, the complaint is legitimate. And every one gets checked out, he said. State inspectors handled 1,300 complaints in the 12 air pollution control regions statewide from September through February, according to state records. In Region 3, which is based in Waco and covers 29 counties, there were 264 complaints, more than any other region of the state.

Belyea and Main work in the Austin office of Region 3 and cover an area from Johnson City south to San Marcos, east to La Grange and north almost to Taylor

From September through February, the men handled 156 complaints, ranging from odors at an egg-laying facility in Fayette County to a pile of burning tires near Bastrop. Since March they have investigated more than 100 additional complaints, mostly in Travis County.

'With the university and active environmental and neighborhood groups, the people around here are just more environmentally sensitive," Belyea

"A lot of people here have come from the North, and when they spot a problem, they let us know

Rate of heroin deaths reported slowed in New Mexico

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The number of black tar heroin deaths seen by the Office of the Medical Investigator here has been dropping, leading Dr. Kris Sperry to conclude that addicts are learning how to dilute the potent drug.

It was a year ago that the medical investigator's office called a news conference to warn that black tar heroin coming into the country from Mexico was killing not only addicts, but also casual or even first-time users.

'All drugs are potentially dangerous. but his is tantamount to suicide," Sperry, a medical investigator with the OMI, said at the time.

The OMI recorded 19 heroin deaths in the first three months of 1986, compared with 24 for all of 1985. Ten of the 1985 deaths occurred in the final three months of that year, foreshadowing the jump in early 1986. The office said heroin killed 13 people in the second quarter of 1986 and 16 in the third quarter. Six heroin-related deaths were recorded in the last quarter.

Figures for 1987 weren't available, but Sperry said last week the rate of heroin deaths has dropped.

"We're not seeing nearly as many," he said. "It perhaps may be the people using the drug have learned how to cut it up and to be careful rather than just to take a piece and inject it," he said. Black tar heroin, a crudely refined form of the drug, is dark. It may be gummy, like tar, or very hard, making it much more difficult to dilute.

"It's not like a powder that you can add some sugar and dilute it," Sperry said. "This stuff, it's like trying to dilute a piece of gum."

Most of the heroin deaths recorded by the OMI have come from Bernalillo County, although a few are from other locations in the state, Sperry said. The preponderance of deaths in Bernalillo County is a combination of the county's overall larger population and the fact that Albuquerque, as a large metropolitan area, is a clearinghouse for the drug, he said.

Sperry said it is not possible in an autopsy to tell whether black tar heroin or a more refined version of the drug killed someone. But he said virtually all the heroin available in Albuquerque is black tar.

"It's a relatively safe assumption that they're all related to black tar heroin because you can't buy anything else," he said.

Heroin sold on the streets in most parts of the United States is 5 percent to 10 percent pure, but black tar heroin found in New Mexico may be 40 percent to 70 percent pure, authorities said.

Heroin affects the respiratory centers of the brain. The victim's breathing and heart action slow to the point they finally stop.

Doctors say black tar heroin presents a substantial risk of overdose, particularly among inexperienced users with low drug tolerance. They said it also kills chronic users because it is so much Sperry said the most recent deaths appear to be among addicts rather than the casual or first-time user. Most of the drug-related deaths the OMI sees every year are due to heroin. Sperry said cocaine claims three to five victims a year, a number that has remained steady in the last couple of "In the Southwest, the drug abuse is primarily alcohol by far," Sperry said. "Heroin is the only illicit drug that causes a lot of problems."

Corn offers wide range of chemicals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The corn-based capsules dissolve slowly, one releasing pesticides to protect a crop throughout the growing season and the other delivering a steady dose of a

"Wouldn't it be nice if we used more of our own homegrown resources like corn to make these products?" said Richard Sinclair, who is testing the time-release capsules at Battelle Laboratory in Columbus, Ohio.

The key to the biodegradable, plastic casings around the pesticide and the drug is lactic acid made from U.S. corn. It is one of a large number of chemicals that scientists say could be made without using imported petroleum.

Researchers gathered last week for the National Corn Utilization Conference to discuss the latest food and industrial uses for the United States' plentiful supply of corn. New markets, growers hope, will improve the profit in agricul-

Charles Scott of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee said more than 200 billion pounds of organic chemicals are sold in this country annually - most manufactured with petroleum.

"We really are aiming at that marketplace," Scott said. "We're talking about huge market values, perhaps $100 million.

Corn, traditionally a livestock feed, can be ground into its component parts and fermented into fuel alcohol, converted into corn sweetener, or used as the basis for a wide range of chemicals, Scott said. They include plastics, acids and sol-

Airline agrees to pay $250,000 for consumer protection faults

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department, stepping up its enforcement of consumer regulations against airlines, has announced a civil penalty of $250,000 against Continental Airlines for various consumer protection violations.

The department also indicated that it was examining the consumer protection practices of "a number of (other) airlines," but no particular carrier was named Continental acknowledged that it had had a poor record of dealing with consumer issues for a number of months but attributed the problems to its merger with People Express Airlines. We believe the vast majority of these problems are behind us,' Thomas Plaskett, the airline's president, said at a news conference Friday. He said Continental agreed to pay the negotiated civil penalty of $250,000 "rather than engage in protracted litigation.'

The department levied the fine as part of a negotiated settlement after determining that Continental, a subsidiary of Texas Air Corp., had:

As part of the settlement, Continental agreed to stop the improper practices and beef up its consumer relations programs, including a commitment to expand its consumer affairs staff and training of personnel on federal consumer protection requirements

Plaskett said that the airline already has implemented $60 million in capital improvements to better respond to consumer issues, including an improved telephone system to take consumer complaints. He said the airline also has hired additional consumer affairs specialists to deal with complaints.

The Transportation Department last month disclosed that Continental was the subject of a formal investigation because of consumer complaints. The action Friday is the first civil penalty imposed by the department since the rate of complaints about all airlines from travelers began increasing sharply last year.

Last month Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole sent letters to the executives of the major airlines urging them to improve services and warned if traveler complaints continue to rise the department would take enforcement actions.

Plaskett said that while tinental was the first to pay a civil penalty he does not believe it will be the last airline to do so.

He said the Transportation Department has "given us every indication" that similar enforcement actions will be taken against other carriers.

"We know that there are other carriers that are not meeting the (consumer protection) requirements of the department today," he said, although not elaborating.

For example, he said, Continental executives were told that People Express had about 8,000 refunds outstanding at the time of the merger, "but in fact there were 25,000 refunds in the system." This, he said, caused a lengthy backlog and delay in refunding customers for tickets not used and was a violation of federal consumer protection rules.
