World leaders view AIDS battle

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

VENICE, Italy — Allied leaders, concluding an economic summit that confronted a wide array of issues, today branded AIDS a worldwide menace, but said that governments should respect human rights in the quest to combat the disease.

After patching together compromises on political issues such as the Persian Gulf and U.S.-Soviet arms control talks, and agreeing that the U.S. dollar has fallen far enough, the summit leaders addressed the AIDS issue.

Their statement at the 13th economic summit declares that any measures designed to stop the spread of AIDS must be "in accordance with the principles of human rights." But it did not directly take a position on the volatile issue of AIDS testing.

The summit participants, in the final communique, proposed no major new economic initiatives, but renewed a call for an end to protectionism, called for closer coordination of their economies and vowed to reform agricultural subsidies.

The Western leaders also pledged support for Philippine President Corazon Aquino's government and advocated the dismantling of "the apartheid regime" of South Africa.

Italian Prime Minister Amintore Fanfani, the summit host, read the final communique to a news conference as the summit participants followed the text.

The AIDS statement said that French President Francois Mitterrand had proposed establishment of a special committee to deal with the ethical questions created by the disease.

"The heads of state or government welcome the proposal by the president of the French Republic aiming at the creation of an international committee on the ethical issues raised by AIDS," it said.

"National efforts need to be intensified and made more effective by international cooperation and concerted campaigns to prevent AIDS."

"In the absence of a vaccine or cure, the best hope for the combat and prevention of AIDS rests on a strategy based on educating the public about the seriousness of the AIDS epidemic, the ways the AIDS virus is transmitted and the practical steps each person can take to avoid acquiring or spreading it," the statement said.

The formal reading of the joint statement marks the end of the 13th annual meeting of the world's seven largest industrialized democracies: the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Canada, Japan and Italy.

City adds sales tax to phones

In a split vote Tuesday evening, the Pampa City Commission approved on first reading an ordinance to bring telecommunications use and services under city sales tax.

With only three commissioners present in the regular session, Mayor Pro Tempore Joe Reed seconded a motion for approval, then voted in favor of the ordinance on first reading.

Mayor David McDaniel and Ward 1 Commissioner Ray Hupp were absent.

A few people in the small audience objected to the ordinance and recommended the commission reject it, claiming the proposal only adds more burdens to those hit by the hard times of the economy and to those living on a fixed income.

One older citizen claimed the action, and other past actions by the commission, are adding "bits here and there that eat into people's incomes."

Ward 2 Commissioner Richard Peet, who voted against the ordinance, agreed with the complainants that the addition of telephone services to the 1 percent city sales tax creates "an additional burden."

Peet, who said he was expressing his personal opinion, said he felt the additional $21,400 that

Wreck claims Pampan

Halliburton Services field supervisor Douglas Ray "Doug" McBride, 53, died Tuesday of injuries sustained in a two-car collision about 15 miles northeast of Sunray.

Funeral services will be at 4 p.m. Thursday at First Baptist Church with Dr. Darrel Rains, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mr. McBride was pronounced dead at Dumas Memorial Hospital at 11:55 a.m. Tuesday, a nursing supervisor said.

The hospital spokeswoman said the Pampa man suffered massive injuries, including McBride head and internal injuries and multiple fractures. She said an ambulance brought Mr. McBride to the Dumas hospital about 11 a.m.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Franky Scott said the accident occurred about 9:55 a.m. Tuesday at the intersection of two paved Sherman County roads about 15 miles northeast of Sunray.

Area bank taxes higher for most

By LARRY HOLLIS

Bank franchise tax payments are up for 70 percent of the 28 taxing entities in the Pampa area, according to reports from the state comptroller's office.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock recently sent checks totaling $55.5 million in this year's first allocation of the state's franchise tax on banks to 2,069 local taxing jurisdictions.

Banks are taxed at the same rate as other Texas corporations. Previously, bank stocks were subject to local property taxes. But the Legislature exempted the stocks from property taxes, instead substituting the bank franchise tax.

Collections are pro-rated among local taxing units based on their tax rates.

The Legislature in 1984 brought banks under the state franchise tax for the first time, allocating the collected monies to cities, counties, school districts and other local taxing units where the banks are located.

The next bank franchise allocation will be in August this year, Bullock said.

In the Pampa area, 20 of the 28 taxing jurisdictions gained higher payments in May from the same 1986 allocation.

Of the five counties in the surrounding area, only Roberts' allocation was down from the comparable 1986 report. Carson, Gray, Hemphill and Wheeler reported increased payments.

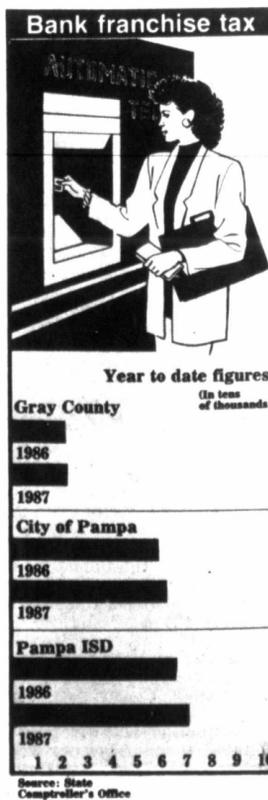

Of the nine cities receiving the allocation, Pampa, McLean, Shamrock, Wheeler and White Deer had increases this year, while Canadian, Groom, Miami and Mobeetie gained less in the allocation.

Of 11 school districts, only Groom and Miami had decreases in the franchise tax payments. Canadian, Grandview, Hemphill, McLean, Mobeetie, Pampa, Shamrock, Wheeler and White Deer districts gained larger payments.

Of other taxing jurisdictions, Hemphill County Hospital District and South Wheeler County Hospital District had larger allocations while North Wheeler County Hospital District had a smaller payment.

Bullock sent Gray County a check for $21,826 for the first 1987 bank franchise tax allocation, a slight increase of 2.56 percent

Freshmen drop on skill test

Pampa third-graders breezed through this year's TEAMS tests, but Pampa High School students had a bit more trouble than last year because of a tougher test, results presented to school trustees show.

Assistant Superintendent Jane Steele said Tuesday that 100 percent of third-grade pupils in Pampa mastered reading objectives on the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills given every other year to students across Texas.

The number of third-graders passing the math and writing composition areas of the test also increased from 1986.

Pampa seventh-graders also improved on 1986 scores in all three subject areas. Fifth-graders slipped slightly in reading, but improved math and composition scores.

Steele said the state has not yet released first-grade scores.

In high school, where TEAMS are used as an exit test for graduation, the number of Pampa freshmen passing dipped in all three areas, with only 55 percent mastering the writing composition area.

Juniors, who take language arts and math TEAMS only, also had more trouble than their pre-

TEST RESULTS
The following lists the percentage of Pampa students mastering basic skills on 1987 TEAMS tests. (Figures for 1986 are in parentheses.) State educators ranked 1987's test as more difficult in most areas than the test in 1986.
Third grade — reading, 100 (93); math, 95 (94); composition, 90 (80).	Fifth grade — reading, 91 (92); math, 96 (92); composition, 82 (77).
	Seventh grade — reading, 93 (89); math, 95 (94); composition, 80 (75).
	Ninth grade — reading, 77 (80); math, 82 (85); composition, 55 (61).
	Eleventh grade — language arts, 88 (92); math, 92 (93).

decessors, with 12 percent failing to master language arts and 8 percent failing math objectives. Juniors who didn't master an area will have three more opportunities to make up the test before 1988 graduation.

High School Principal Oran Chappell said only one student this year did not graduate because of the TEAMS test.

Steele said state education officials also sent the district "scaled scores," which take into account increased levels of difficulty on the 1987 TEAMS by using a complicated statistical formula. Scaled scores show Pampa students performing better than the percentages indicate.

However, she added that Pampa school officials won't be happy until all students pass the tests.

"We have had an excellent year testing," Steele said. "But See TEST, Page 2

'Calling Dr. Keith'

Dr. Keith Teague probably thanks his lucky stars that he didn't have an opponent in April's school board election.

Name recognition could have been a problem.

In minutes of a May 20 board workshop, the Pampa dentist was listed as "Dr. Robert Teague."

"I don't know if this is a message or wishing Dr. Lyle was back on the board," Teague said at Tuesday night's board meeting, referring to former board President Robert Lyle, also a dentist.

Later in the meeting, board President Joe VanZandt called for a vote by saying "motion seconded by Dr. Keith."

VanZandt turned red in the face and chuckled nervously before blurting out "... Teague."

would be added annually to city coffers "would not make much of a dent" in the city's budget, facing problems this year because of unanticipated declines of approximately $300,000 in city sales tax revenue.

But Reed noted the inclusion of telephone services would add only about 10 cents a month to most residential phone customers' monthly bills.

Reed, who also said he was expressing his personal opinion, noted "nearly every commodity and service" is already subject to the sales tax and said he does not feel phone services should be excluded. He added that he feels it had been a mistake by the Legislature in the past to exempt telephone services from the sales tax, noting that the state now is taxing such services.

"I've never felt some businesses are more equal than others," Reed said, adding that telephone service should be subject to the sales tax "as any other business."

Ward 4 Commissioner Clyde Carruth, who made the motion to approve the ordinance, said people complain about taxes "but then gripe" when city services are not provided or are neglected. He said people expect streets to be repaired, holes in alleys to be filled, the parks to be mowed and so on. Carruth said the commissioners have to consider all the requests for services and then make the decisions on how to pay for them, adding that the inclusion of phone services under city sales tax rules provides "a little more money" to keep up those services.

In response to comments from the audience, Reed said the city has cut its property tax in the past couple of years and is considering cutting it again in preparations for next year's budget. Reed said the commission also will be considering other means of making larger cuts in the next budget to keep expenses down.

If the ordinance is passed on second and final reading at the next commission meeting on June 23, the inclusion of phone services under city sales tax would not become effective until after Oct. 1, City Manager Bob Hart noted.

Hart said under legislation enacted in 1985, telecommunications services were subject to the state sales tax but exempted from the local city sales tax.

But effective Oct. 1 this year, a city may repeal the exemption of such services from the local sales tax, Hart said. The city must pass an ordinance repealing the exemption and submit it to the State Comptroller one full quarter prior to the quarter in which the tax becomes effective, he explained.

Thus, in order for the tax to become effective Oct. 1, the ordinance must be approved by the commission and submitted to the state comptroller by June 30.

Exempted from the tax are certain services such as interstate long-distance calls and basic local exchange service.

Services subject to the tax include multi-line rotary service, custom-calling features, Touch-tone service, WATS lines, mobile phone service, directory assistance, private coin usage, sales of directories, joint-user service and other services and uses.

Hart estimated the inclusion of telecommunications services under the city sales tax would generate about $21,400 a year for city revenues.

Included in the ordinance is a provision that prohibits telecommunications services from deducting the sales tax from franchise payments to the city. Hart said the addition of the sales tax would not decrease any franchise payments from such companies to the city.

Wreck

door Ford Crown Victoria was southbound when it collided with a 1976 four-door Lincoln driven by Larry Alfred Thomas, 31, of Sunray. The trooper said Thomas apparently failed to yield the right of way at the intersection, with McBride's Ford striking the Lincoln on the passenger side.

After the impact, the Lincoln went into a broadside skid, leaving the roadway and striking a large elm tree off the road. The Ford spun off the road and came to rest in a nearby bar ditch, according to DPS reports.

Trooper Scott said McBride was wearing a seat belt and was restrained inside the car after the accident. He said there was "such a great impact" that the Pampa resident probably would have received extreme injuries with or without the seat belt.

Two passing motorists stopped and removed McBride from his car, which then burst into flames, destroying the vehicle, the trooper said.

Thomas was seriously injured in the accident and was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo, where he was listed in stable condition this morning. A hospital spokeswoman said, "He's doing OK."

Mr. McBride was born April 17,

1934. He moved to Pampa in 1940 from Wilson, Okla. He was a 1952 graduate of Pampa High School.

He married Ruth Alverson on March 14, 1953. He had been employed with Halliburton Services since 1953 and was field supervisor for the Pampa office at the time of his death.

He was a member of the First Baptist Church, the American Petroleum Institute and the Society of Petroleum Engineers.

Survivors include his wife, Ruth, of the home; a son, Terry McBride, of Amarillo; his mother, Cordie McBride, of El Dorado, Kan.; and a brother, Tommy Gene McBride, of Wichita, Kan.

Justices say they did nothing wrong

AUSTIN (AP) — One of two Texas Supreme Court justices named in an unprecedented official scolding calls charges against him "a crock of manure" and announced his bid for re-election.

The State Commission on Judicial Conduct issued a public reprimand Tuesday of Justice C.L. Ray, citing seven instances of improper conduct. It issued a public admonishment of Justice William Kilgarlin, who was cited on two points.

Commission officials said the actions were a first.

"It is fervently hoped that such an occasion will not arise again," said separate reports on each. "Of those in high office, much is expected. Judges, at all levels, are expected to strictly observe the Code of Judicial Conduct."

The commission can issue private or public sanctions ranging from a warning to admonishment to reprimand. It also can initiate proceedings to remove a judge.

Kilgarlin called the findings about him "a crock of manure" and "outrageous." He announced his bid for re-election next year.

"I feel totally vindicated of any allegations made against me. Today, I am announcing for re-election," Kilgarlin said.

"I presume that this is not the final chapter in this case, because even though I have no right to appeal the decision of the commission to any other judicial body, I can appeal it to the voters. And that is what I will do," he said.

In a written statement, Ray said he did nothing wrong.

"I strongly disagree with those findings. I believe my actions on the court have been totally within the bounds of accepted behavior, and followed the laws and canons of this state and the judiciary," Ray said.

Austin attorney Randall "Buck" Wood, who represents the two justices, said he was angry that the commission released Ray's reprimand while the judge was at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., where his daughter is hospitalized with cancer.

"He has never even seen this ... That is unprecedented in the history of the commission for them to release something that he has not even seen," Wood said.

Wood charged that word of the commission's action was leaked before its official release, and he said the commission had wanted Kilgarlin to refrain from responding publicly until Friday.

"That Judge Kilgarlin could not agree to, because we found out yesterday that lawyers in a major Houston law firm already knew all about it," Wood said, declining to name the firm.

Robert Flowers, the commission's executive director, was not immediately available to comment, his office said.

The reprimand of Ray said, "The commission did determine that a number of actions by Justice Ray were improper."

Among findings listed in the 15-page report on Ray were the appearance of impropriety in considering the transfer of cases pending in an appeals court after receiving letters from a lawyer who gave him campaign contributions; improper receipt of air transportation from attorneys; improper communication outside the court and improper solicitation of funds.

"It was the commission's decision that Justice Ray did engage in willful and persistent conduct which was clearly inconsistent with the proper performance of his duties and which cast discredit upon the judiciary and the administration of justice," the report said.

One of the findings on improper "ex parte" communications said that Ray in November 1986 telephoned the judge in a capital, multiple murder trial.

"Ray advised the trial judge of his (Justice Ray's) friendship with the defendant's father, and Justice Ray urged the trial judge to be sure that the trial was fair, saying that it was difficult for him (Justice Ray) to believe that someone coming from the defendant's family could have committed the crimes of which the defendant was accused," the report said.

The commission called that conversation "an onerous violation" of the ethical canon which prohibits a judge from allowing family, social or other relationships to influence his judicial conduct.

In his written statement, Ray said: "I want my friends and supporters to know that I did nothing wrong. In accepting the findings, I am standing by the process prescribed by the constitution, not the results."

"As a judge, I must live with what the commission says and take heed of their recommendations. I take solace that I stood by the laws and the constitution," he said.

The two items listed in the report on Kilgarlin involved failure to require staff members to observe proper ethical standards and the solicitation of funds.

Kilgarlin dismissed both as insignificant. He said they followed a politically motivated campaign to discredit him.

Witness says he saw Davis at 'The Bad News Bears'

FORT WORTH (AP) — A decade after the shootings, a surprise witness in the Cullen Davis legal drama has come forward to say he saw the millionaire defendant at a movie the night four people were gunned down at the Davis mansion.

Lewis Classen, testifying in a multimillion-dollar civil suit, said Tuesday he saw Davis at the Western Hills Theater about three hours before a gunman killed two and wounded two at the defendant's remote hilltop home.

But testimony read to jurors from another witness raised serious questions about Classen's story.

A former usher, Classen said he was working when Davis entered the theater alone about 9:30 p.m. the night of Aug. 2, 1976, with a ticket for "The Bad News Bears."

"I just tore his ticket and saw him walk toward the door," he said.

Classen, who said he was 15 or 16 at the time, told the jury in the high-stakes wrongful death suit he did not see Davis leave the theater before he himself left shortly after 11 p.m.

He said he had met Davis previously and had seen him at the theater "four or five" times before August 1976.

"Where in the world have you been since Aug. 2, 1976?" asked an attorney for the defendant's wife Priscilla.

"Around town," replied the witness, who is now unemployed.

Classen did not testify in 1977 when an Amarillo jury acquitted Davis of murdering his 12-year-old stepdaughter, Andrea Wilborn.

Andrea's parents — Jack Wilborn, 66, and Mrs. Davis, 45 — maintain in consolidated suits that Davis was the bewigged man in black who killed the child and gunned down three others in the early morning hours of Aug. 3, 1976.

Mrs. Davis was wounded and her boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30, was killed. Bubba Gavrel, then 22, was crippled by a bullet that lodged near his spine.

Davis, an heir to an oil-related family fortune, insists he was in bed with his former girlfriend, Karen Master, when the shootings occurred.

Classen's testimony, even if corroborated, would not exonerate Davis, but it would enhance the credibility of his alibi defense.

He said he told the theater manager on Aug. 3 that Davis had been at the theater the previous night and he said he provided the same information a week later to an investigator hired by Davis.

Defense attorney Steve Sumner could not fully explain why Classen was not called to testify in Amarillo or why his story had not surfaced previously. But he pointed out that Davis did not testify in the murder trial and his whereabouts prior to the shootings was not an issue before that jury.

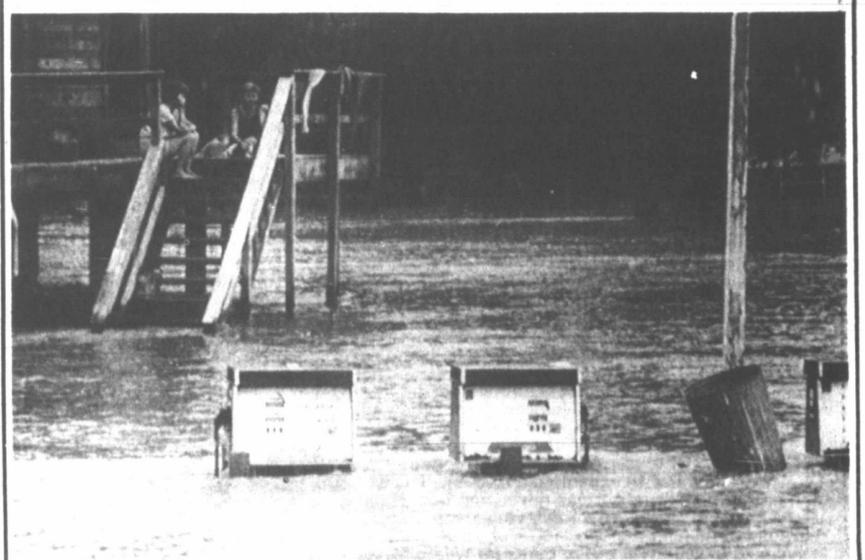

Classen said he did discuss the matter with his district manager, Raymond Kallus. But in a long, rambling, often-conflicting deposition read to jurors later Tuesday, Kallus made no mention of such a conversation.

In fact, he could not recall Classen working the night of the shootings and indicated that the theater manager, Jim McLeod, now deceased, was both selling and tearing tickets that night to save on labor costs.

Confusing the issue further, Kallus said McLeod pointed out Davis to him that evening and that 15 minutes later he saw Davis standing outside the auditorium waiting for the movie to start.

Adding to the testimonial puzzle is the fact that Davis, in an appearance on the witness stand Monday, said he arrived at the theater after the movie had begun.

Man posing as Indian may be suspect in three states

DALLAS (AP) — A man posing as an American Indian is being investigated in connection with dozens of slayings, including the deaths of three Indian women in Minnesota and the Green River murders in Washington state, authorities say.

A Dallas County Sheriff's office probe put William Glaze, who also goes by the names Jesse Coulter and Jesse Sitting Crow, in the vicinity of some 50 murders, investigator Gary F. Lachman said Tuesday.

"We can put him in a location where a bunch of murders had taken place in a time frame within weeks or months of that crime," Lachman said.

The dates that Glaze was found to be near the sites where the murders occurred and the manner of some of the deaths were enough to prompt authorities to notify officers in those states, he said.

Authorities will now see whether Glaze can be linked to any of the murders through physical evidence, Lachman said.

Glaze had been using the alias Jesse Coulter when he was arrested 10 days ago in Albuquerque, N.M., and was held in a Dallas jail Tuesday night charged with a rape probation violation from here, sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell said.

Glaze, 43, should be shipped to the Texas Department of Corrections within a week for violating a 10-year probation he received for a 1974 rape, Ewell said.

"The reason he's here in Dallas is that the only hard or heavy charge against him is a 1974 rape conviction," said Ewell. He said Glaze was sentenced for the rape under the name Jesse Sitting Crow.

"The rape involved a woman he was living with with another man," Ewell said.

Ewell said that before he was picked up in Albuquerque, Minneapolis detectives had looked at Sitting Crow as a suspect in at least three female homicides, all Indian women. They had information that he had made threats toward Indian prostitutes.

"In the computer they found that we had handled Sitting Crow," Ewell said. "We thought he was an Indian," but later found out he was not.

Glaze, who is from Atlanta, lived in Minneapolis from July 1986 until April, police said. Minneapolis police concluded that they had a serial killer on their hands April 30 after they found the mutilated body of Angela Green, 21.

The manner of her death and mutilation resembled that of two other victims — Angeline Whitebird-Sweet, 26, whose body was found two weeks earlier, and Kathleen Kay Bullman, 19, who was killed in July 1986.

The news that Glaze was being investigated in connection with other murders was originally reported by KARE-TV in the Twin Cities.

Minneapolis Deputy Police Chief Robert Lutz, asked about that report, said he could not directly confirm it but added that "I don't dispute anything (the station) is saying."

Commission OKs issuance of $3 million in city bonds

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

With the city's bond rating being upgraded, city commissioners Tuesday authorized resolutions approving the issuance and sales of more than $3 million in revenue and general obligation bonds.

The amount includes $1,275,000 in waterworks and sewer system revenue bonds to cover purchase of additional groundwater rights and other water system improvements, and $1,795,000 in general obligation bonds to replace certificates of obligation issued for street improvements, City Hall renovation and other projects.

Ken Smith, vice president of Southwest Securities Inc., said he feels there will be little problem in selling the bonds, especially now that the city's bond ratings have improved from last year.

Smith said Standard and Poor's has increased its rating to A+ for the general obligation bonds, with an A rating for the revenue bonds. Moody's has reconfirmed its Baa-1 rating for the revenue bonds and issued an A rating for the G.O.'s.

He said such ratings are very good for cities of Pampa's size, especially considering the current economic situations in the state. "For a city in this oil-related economy to have this rating says a lot for the city," Smith said. "You're in good shape."

Smith said Standard and Poor's representatives indicated it had upgraded its rating because "the city is characterized by good management and good fiscal responsibility."

The commission also approved contracts naming MBank of Dallas as the paying agent and registrar for the revenue bonds and MBank of Austin as the agent-registrar for the general obligation bonds.

Smith said the bonds should have an interest rate of 8.7338 percent for the revenue bonds and 8.4117 percent for the G.O.'s. He said interest rates have gone up some in the past year, but these are still "a very good interest rate in light of today's market."

He said the higher interest rate for the revenue bonds occurs because there's more interest in G.O.'s than in revenue bonds.

Smith said the city should have the money from the sale of the bonds by the end of July.

In other business, the commission authorized a contract with CH2M Hill Inc. to furnish engineering and related services for the rehabilitation of the Pampa Wastewater Treatment Plant to meet required state and federal standards. But commissioners rejected initial contractors' bids for the plant work.

CH2M Hill will assist the city and Operations Management International Inc., operators of the wastewater plant, in planning the work proposals, awarding contracts, providing technical interpretations of drawings and specifications, recommending modifications as needed and making monthly on-site visits during the construction.

Commissioners rejected bids for the construction, however, when the low contractor's bid was about $258,000 over the available funds allotted for the required work to meet state and federal standards.

City Manager Bob Hart, who recommended rejecting the bids, said he feels much of the work can be handled with in-house personnel under OMI supervision, with some of the projects being subcontracted out. Hart said all the work can probably be done for under $600,000 in that manner.

Ward 3 Commissioner Joe Reed, serving as mayor pro tempore Tuesday, said that route would make it easier for local contractors to submit bids on the work and benefit from the projects.

"I can see a tremendous savings in doing it ourselves" with some work subcontracted, Reed said.

In other business, commissioners awarded a bid to Texas Tractor and Equipment Co. of Amarillo for a John Deere tractor and mower at a total of $11,464.

The commission also met in an executive session to discuss purchase of groundwater rights but took no action after reconvening in public session.

Prison system reopens as population dips

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas prison system will be open again today despite the arrival of more than 200 new inmates the day it reopened, a spokesman says.

The system, which closed the doors last Friday because of crowding, reopened Tuesday morning after the inmate population had dipped below a state-mandated 95 percent of capacity limit.

Texas Department of Corrections spokesman David Nunnelee said the system took in about 224 inmates Tuesday and released 176 convicts on parole.

"I think we'll probably be open for the rest of the week," he added.

Nude man holds police at bay

DALLAS (AP) — A heavily armed nude man held police at bay for about 90 minutes before he was subdued by police, officers say.

The 24-year-old man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he walked to a neighbor's home after leaving a shotgun and a rifle leaning against a tree in his yard.

Only one shot was fired and no one was injured, police said.

He was armed with a knife at the time he was subdued, officers said.

"He said nobody wants him, nobody loves him," a relative told the Dallas Times Herald. The man had recently spent about three months in a drug rehabilitation program at Terrell State Hospital, the relative said.

Dallas Police Capt. Dwight Walker said the first officers arriving at the scene found a nude man standing in his front yard with a rifle and shotgun leaning against a tree.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

New rule expedites needed drug choice

The Reagan administration has taken a major step toward giving terminally ill patients freedom of choice about using experimental therapies or drugs that have not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration. The new standard is still excessively paternalistic, still obsessed with making sure that the government rather than the scientific method has the last word. But it is a vast improvement over the present situation.

Under present FDA rules it takes about eight to 12 years and more than $50 million to take a basically new drug through research and development, toxicity tests, clinical tests, and FDA regulatory procedures before the drug can be marketed. In the late 1950s the cost was about $500,000 (or around $2 million in today's dollars), and the time about 25 months. The tragedy involved in keeping potentially useful therapies from desperately ill people or people in constant pain has finally, with the AIDS crisis, been brought home to many people.

Although no cure for AIDS has been developed, some drugs and therapies have shown promise of relieving suffering or prolonging life. Only relaxation of FDA procedures has made some of these therapies available to patients who, given present knowledge, will certainly die. Even with expedited approvals, however, a healthy black market has developed in certain drugs believed to be effective in relieving or alleviating AIDS symptoms.

The new rule would permit patients for whom there is "a reasonable likelihood that death will occur within a matter of months" to choose for themselves whether to die untreated or try experimental drugs. It doesn't grant unlimited freedom of choice. A doctor applying for permission to use the drug must show that he is qualified to administer it. The rule applies only to drugs undergoing controlled clinical trials. And the FDA commissioner would retain an ultimate veto power.

If this rule goes into effect in its present form, many AIDS patients and victims of other terminal diseases will have a chance to try experimental drugs. That will be a more humane situation than the present, where people are condemned to die without hope, sacrificed on the altar of bureaucratic power. This tiny step toward freedom of choice suggests further steps.

The next logical step would be to give adults genuine freedom of choice about drugs and biomedical devices. Legislation could permit adults to use unapproved prescription drugs and treatments by signing an "opt-out" form in which they specifically waive their FDA protection and accept the full risks and responsibility for their choices.

With such a policy, nobody would be forced to waive FDA protection. All those who want the present controls, regulations, and procedures would have them. But it would permit adults to choose their own levels of risks and benefits, without forcing their own choices on anybody else.

Candidates ought to debate

Bruce Babbitt, the former governor of Arizona who is running for the Democratic nomination for president, expresses a conviction about presidential aspirants that deserves the endorsement of every voter: "Anyone who doesn't step forward to debate is per se too chicken to be president."

By that standard, at least two of the 1988 contenders so far qualify for the nation's highest office — Babbitt and Republican Pete du Pont, formerly the governor of Delaware. The two stepped forward to debate last week in Des Moines, Iowa, in the sort of encounter that voters ought to insist on making a central part of our increasingly sterile campaigns.

Television has been a great boon to American democracy. Before the advent of broadcasting, Americans had to rely heavily on the first-hand judgments of others (including newspaper reporters) about politicians. By allowing voters to inspect each candidate up close, TV has taken elections out of the hands of machines and party bosses and put them in the hands of ordinary people.

But it also has encouraged some candidates to ignore issues and duck controversy by relying on professionally packaged commercials. These political ads often exploit mindless themes that have little to do with the business of government. Remember those Ronald Reagan commercials that proclaimed, "It's morning in America"? Of course you do. But do you remember anything they said?

We can't do much about campaign tactics like that, and we shouldn't try. But we can demand that candidates have the backbone to test their views in public against their rivals. That process can illuminate not only policies but important personal traits.

The Des Moines debate, which aired nationally on the C-SPAN cable network, was a model. In the first place, it matched two mavericks who have been willing to challenge the conventional wisdom of their own parties. Du Pont and Babbitt are at home in the realm of ideas, a place most politicians regard as enemy territory.

In the second place, it dispensed with that annoying intrusion of many presidential debates — journalists asking questions. Journalists get plenty of opportunities to quiz office-seekers. The point of a debate is to pit candidate against candidate, mano a mano. If there are merciless questions to be asked, the contenders can ask them.

These two candidates went at each other's proposals with gusto. Babbitt said Du Pont, an ardent Reaganite, was in the odd position of saying "things are better than they've ever been, and you're the only guy who can clean up this mess." His proposal to abolish farm subsidies "would leave all of the Midwest and Iowa to corporate farms." The result of du Pont's idea of largely replacing welfare with government-sponsored work, he said, would be to "rip up the safety net and let them fall and splatter on the bottom."

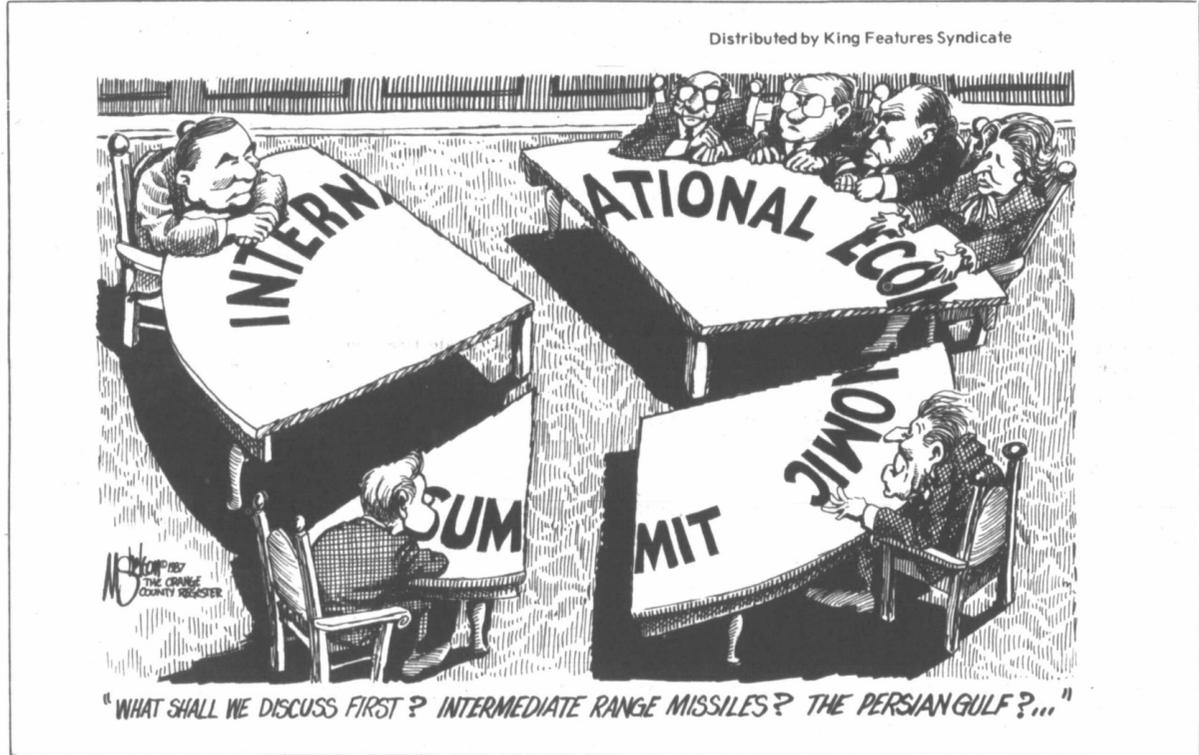

Du Pont gave as good as he got. In six years, farm subsidies have risen from $4 billion to $26 billion and farmers are worse off: "We're spending faster than ever." The American welfare system, he declared, "is not a sign of caring. It's a prison without walls." Protectionism, of the sort advocated by Babbitt, already costs the typical family of four $1,500 a year in higher prices.

One of the virtues of debates is that they have to deal with issues, forcing candidates to understand and explain the policies they advocate. Babbitt brought his idea of tying all workers' wage cuts to cuts in managers' salaries. Du Pont offered his solution to the Social Security crunch that will come when the Baby Boom generation retires. These aren't the sort of proposals that can be discussed intelligently in 30-second TV spots.

But arguing about issues doesn't just inform voters about the issues; it also shows them something about the people arguing. Under the pressure of a direct confrontation, politicians are less able to manipulate their images to suit their purposes. Here, Babbitt's portentous melodrama gave him an air of zealotry that evoked Jimmy Carter. Du Pont's cheerful disregard of such details as the budgetary impact of his Social Security plan brought to mind a certain incumbent Republican president.

Babbitt and du Pont debated because they had little to lose. Because both are long shots, they can afford to gamble. Given the risks posed by spontaneous give-and-take, most politicians no doubt would prefer to avoid it. But if voters refuse to vote for anyone who shuns these forums, politicians will soon capitulate. When the day arrives that a candidate would sooner invite Donna Rice to his home than refuse to debate his opponents, democracy will be healthier than it is now.

Questions about Boland Act

Congressional investigation of the contraventions on. Most TV and radio stations have discontinued coverage of the tedious daylong testimony.

Now it develops that the entire proceedings may be moot.

President Reagan is accused of violating the Boland Amendments, thus aiding the Contras when the Congress told him not to.

The Boland Act, passed in the wake of Watergate, was a congressional effort to clip the wings of the president, to limit his prerogatives.

But the Boland Act may itself be unconstitutional.

The Wall Street Journal says the Boland Amendments are "patently unconstitutional."

Even Sen. Daniel Inouye (D-Hawaii), no friend of the administration, concedes that "The Boland Act may be questionable: could be a subject of the Supreme Court."

Why? Because the Constitution gives foreign policy powers to the president — powers that are exceedingly broad.

The president does not have to accept sweeping congressional authority over his foreign policy decisions.

He can talk to whomever he wants, in the Oval Office or elsewhere.

He can meet with private contributors to the Contras if he wants.

Many members of Congress are purely politically motivated in this present "investigation." Understandably, Democrats must do anything they can to discredit an enormously popular president if they have a prayer of winning the White House next year.

But there are others in Congress — and many of the rest of us — who do not share the president's anxiety about the situation in Nicaragua.

We know that a tenth of the population of that country has fled that communist tyranny.

President Reagan is convinced that if we don't stop the communists in Nicaragua they will ultimately menace Mexico and then us.

And even we who fully comprehend that concern are still reluctant to risk another Vietnam.

All of these considerations are beside the point and separate from the harangue that is going on right now in Washington.

Congress is asserting authority over foreign policy that it voted for itself.

Some very knowledgeable constitutional scholars are convinced that it is Congress that has crossed the line of illegality.

That it is the Boland Act that should be on trial.

As even Sen. Inouye concedes, "The law itself may have been faulty."

Soviets clear radio waves, block speech

By Ben Wattenberg

What's with Gorbachev? How can we measure him?

The Soviets have stopped jamming Voice of America (VOA). This act, it is said, shows that Gorbachev's new policy of glasnost ("openness") is for real.

It is a step in the right direction. But when examining a step, we must look from where and to where the step has been made. This one is from worse to bad, not, alas, from bad to better.

It should be recalled that the non-jamming of VOA is not new. From 1973 to 1980, VOA was also un-jammed. But in 1980, soon after the Soviets began their rape of Afghanistan, and when Poland's Solidarity labor union came on with a rush, they began jamming VOA. Why? The harsh whine of the jammer was needed to block out the truth about imperial savagery in Afghanistan and the stirring of freedom in Poland. General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev obviously felt that under such circumstances there could be only one internal information policy: Hear no evil. Enter jamming, an illegal and imperfect curtailment of the free flow of information.

Now Gorbachev has stopped jamming VOA. Does that mean Solidarity will be allowed to resurface? Does that mean Russia will stop the war in Afghanistan? We shall see. Gorbachev says he wants to end the war. Meanwhile, Soviet fighter jets bomb Afghan refugees in Pakistan.

Is Gorbachev better than Brezhnev? Or does he just think that VOA can broadcast the ugly truth about Afghanistan and that glasnosted Soviet listeners will be so pleased to hear the truth they won't care how sordid it is?

There is more. The Soviets are redirecting some of the newly freed-up VOA jammers against the already heavily jammed signals of Radio Liberty (RL) and Radio Free Europe (RFE).

What is it that bothers Gorbachev about the Radios that doesn't bug him about VOA, which is not only a fine international radio network, but getting better.

At its root, VOA is just what its name suggests: a voice of America. It presents news and features from an American perspective, even when the topic may be what's going on in the Soviet Union.

But RFE and RL are different. Here I'd better reveal my own interest. I am a member of the bipartisan board of directors of Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty.

Let me explain the mission of the Radios. We are not a voice from America. The Radios are designed to be surrogate home stations behind the Iron Curtain. We ask: What would a free radio station broadcast in communist nations if those nations were free and could hear a full spectrum of news and opinions generated from inside those countries?

That Gorbachev has turned his screeching jammers from VOA to RFE and RL says that he's not about to allow that. The Radios are the essence of free speech in un-free nations. If the Soviets ever stop jamming the Radios, we might not need them anymore. For now, they haven't, and we do.

Total story yet to come in Iran-Contra hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six weeks of hearings, in addition to investigations by a presidential commission and several committees of Congress, still have not uncovered the full Iran-Contra story, the chairman of the House investigating panel says.

"Hold on, a lot of remarkable things that have happened will come out," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., referring to the second phase of congressional hearings which will begin June 23.

The next stage of hearings, expected to run through most of July, will feature the biggest names yet to come before the House and Senate investigating panels: Attorney General Edwin Meese III, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, in addition to the affair's two central figures, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and his aide, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

It is not until that phase of the inquiry that the central question can be answered: How much President Reagan knew about the government's secret plan to aid Nicaragua's Contra rebels, including the diversion of proceeds from arms sales to Iran.

"On that question, the jury's still out," Hamilton said.

After the session, Sen. Warren B. Rudman, R-N.H., said, "I have never believed that Colonel North acted alone, acted without direction. I don't think the president's role can ever be measured until North and Poindexter are heard from."

said the two panels face their most difficult work yet in the rest of this month, as they hold hours of closed-door interviews with witnesses and assimilate mounds of evidence to prepare for July's public sessions.

The six weeks of hearings that ended Tuesday, encompassing 110 hours of testimony from 18 witnesses, did shed much new light on the Contra aid effort, however. Hamilton called it "some of the most extraordinary testimony ever presented to the Congress."

The final witness to come before the committees on Tuesday was Fawn Hall, North's secretary while he was on the National Security Council staff. In her second day at the witness table, she told of altering, destroying and smuggling out of North's office documents crucial to the investigation because she believed in her boss and did not see it as her role to question the activity.

Miss Hall also professed a strong belief in the administration's policy of support for the Contras. She said she had regrets only about removing secret documents from the White House, and about Congress' failure to authorize money for the Contras.

In other statements, Miss Hall:

■ Said she spirited away the documents when the Iran-Contra connection was revealed because she feared they would fall into the wrong hands.

"It wasn't the KGB that was coming, Miss Hall, it was the FBI," Rudman countered.

"That's true, sir, but we do in this country have a tendency to have classified documents get on the front page of The New York Times," the witness replied, quickly apologizing for naming a single newspaper.

■ Said her activity was justified because "sometimes you have to go above the written law." But a few minutes later she retracted the statement.

■ Described North as "probably ... every secretary's dream of a boss."

■ Said the shredding and removal of documents was "to protect the initiative. ... We were trying to get back the hostages and we were dealing with moderates (in Iran) and ... I just felt there would be a lot of damage done if a lot of top secret, sensitive classified material was exposed in public so the Soviets and everyone else could read it."

Losses from bank fraud are estimated at $1.1 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fraud and embezzlement in the banking industry has reached epidemic proportions in some areas, key congressmen say, with losses last year estimated at $1.1 billion by the FBI.

Banking officials told a House subcommittee on Tuesday that the FBI last year investigated more than 2,000 cases of bank fraud or embezzlement involving $100,000 or more.

Federal Reserve Vice Chairman Manuel H. Johnson told the panel the FBI investigated 7,286 cases of bank fraud and embezzlement during 1986, up from 6,373 a year earlier. In both years, he said, about one-third of the cases involved the theft of more than $100,000.

He said the FBI estimated the dollar loss due to fraud and embezzlement at $850 million in 1985 and $1.1 billion in 1986.

Theft by insiders is a factor in about one-third of all bank failures, said officials of the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., and it is a "major" factor in perhaps 15 percent of all failures. But lawmakers are questioning whether the crooks are being caught.

Rep. Doug Barnard, D-Ga., said that in some areas — he cited California and Texas — "criminal misconduct has reached epidemic proportions," but with little enforcement activity and "financial Typhoid Marys" allowed to move from institution to institution.

Barnard said he will convene a special hearing by his House Government Operations monetary affairs subcommittee in Los Angeles this weekend, in part to learn why no one has been prosecuted in a wave of California savings and loan association failures.

The hearing Saturday will focus on "serious insider abuse and often criminal misconduct which has been implicated in most of California's 34 thrift failures over the past 36 months," he said.

Those failures have cost the industry's woe some $3.75 billion, Barnard said. That figure reflects deposits in failed institutions.

Weinberger: July earliest date for U.S. escort of oil tankers

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. warships won't begin escorting Kuwaiti tankers through the Persian Gulf until at least July, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger says.

Weinberger told the House Armed Services Committee on Tuesday that the Navy is still developing plans for the escorts promised by President Reagan.

The president's promise has worried legislators who fear the United States might be drawn into the Iran-Iraq war. Kuwait is an Iraqi ally.

Weinberger also defended the degree of support offered by U.S. allies, a prime topic of congressional critics who say other nations should provide help because they receive more oil from the gulf than the United States does.

Weinberger's defense of U.S. allies was similar to Reagan's statements in Venice, Italy, where he and six other leaders of the industrialized democracies are meeting in their annual summit.

The group issued a communique Tuesday reaffirming that freedom of navigation in the gulf is of "paramount importance" and saying the free flow of oil "must continue unimpeded" through the Strait of Hormuz at the mouth of the gulf.

Reagan pronounced himself "delighted" with the limited diplomatic steps taken by the U.S.

allies. They offered no military help, nor did Reagan seek any.

Reagan has offered to reflag 11 Kuwaiti tankers, permitting them to travel under the protection of the United States. That move has worried legislators, particularly in the wake of last month's attack by Iraq on the Navy frigate USS Stark, which killed 37 seamen.

To protect the tankers, the Navy's Mideast Task Force in the Persian Gulf will temporarily swell in size to as many as a dozen warships by early July but will then drop to a standing force of eight or nine, administration sources said Tuesday, speaking only on condition they not be named.

White House officials first said the U.S. escort role would begin in late May, then pushed the date back to mid-June or later. Weinberger's comment Tuesday was the first time a high-ranking administration official had publicly confirmed the date is now back to next month.

Before the Navy begins escorting the ships, they must be reflagged, which means the Coast Guard has to inspect them to make sure the vessels meet U.S. safety standards.

The Coast Guard is likely later this month to finish the paperwork needed to place the tankers under the American flag, Weinberger said.

Court's ruling hailed by developers, is denounced by local governments

By The Associated Press

Developers praised as simple fairness a Supreme Court ruling requiring landowners to be compensated for certain changes that restrict their property use, while government officials braced for an environmental "disaster."

Both sides predicted a flood of lawsuits from property owners whose options for development have been limited by government action.

Tuesday's high court ruling will end years of abuse by government, said J. Thomas Black, a vice president of the Urban Land Institute, which represents developers.

"What was commonly happening ... was that they were changing the rules of the game in the middle of the game," he said.

The changes included stipulations like preventing developers from obtaining a building permit unless they donated some of their property for public use, and imposing changes in zoning laws that would render a project under construction unacceptable, he said.

The Supreme Court voted 6-3 that regulations, such as zoning changes, that impose new limits on an owner's use of land may amount to a "taking" of private property for public use, for which the Constitution requires "just compensation."

The decision "has the potential of being a real disaster for all land-use control of all levels of local state, even federal, governments," said Lee Ruck, general counsel for the National Association of Counties.

Alan Beals, executive director of the National League of Cities, agreed, saying local governments may become gun-shy when it comes to enacting planning regulations for fear of ending up in court or having to pay damages.

Beals said local regulations are necessary to ensure community harmony and for dealing with natural conditions, such as flood areas or earthquake zones, that threaten life and property.

In New York, Anthony D'Elia, leader of a group of counties and towns that own land inside Adirondack Park, called the ruling a "billion-dollar bombshell."

"It means the state owes us hundreds of millions of dollars, perhaps more than a billion," D'Elia said of a series of restrictive zoning laws implemented in 1973 that sharply curtailed economic development in privately owned land in the park. "We're in seventh heaven," D'Elia said.

Robert Glennon, counsel for the Adirondack Park Agency, said D'Elia's celebration is premature.

"All it means is that their claims will go to trial," Glennon said.

The issues to be decided in such lawsuits will include the definition of taking and how much compensation would be required.

A taking most often has meant condemnation — private land being bought by the government for public uses. But in recent years, courts have seemed more willing to recognize that some land-use regulations can have the same effect as public ownership.

Summations underway in Goetz trial

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz's attorneys were dealt a setback on the eve of closing arguments today when the judge refused a request to tell the jurors they can acquit the subway gunman on the basis of their conscience.

Justice Stephen Crane said Tuesday he would instruct jurors that they "must" — rather than "may" — convict Goetz if the evidence is sufficient.

However, in a victory for the defense, acting state Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane agreed to tell the jury that one of the gunman's victims might have helped Goetz's case had the victim testified.

The defense also persuaded the judge to define first- and second-degree robbery for the jury, even though Goetz is not charged with those crimes, because he claims he was being robbed when he opened fire on a subway train 2½ years ago.

Goetz, 39, is charged with assault, attempted murder, reckless endangerment and weapons violations in the shooting in 1984 of Troy Canty, James Ramseur, Darrell Cabey and Barry Allen, all 19 at the time.

The defense maintains the four surrounded Goetz, who had been badly beaten in a previous mugging, and demanded $5. Canty, the only Goetz victim whose testimony will be considered by the jury, said he was just panhandling.

Locked out

Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and stuntman Evil Knievel (right) are shown at a suburban Detroit hotel Tuesday after they were locked out of K mart corporate headquarters in Troy, Mich. The dispute between K mart and Ali's Champion Brand Industries has been raging for at least two years and exploded this week when Ali's forces claimed K mart would not sell the products. Teamsters target of federal suit to wrest control of union

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nation's largest union would be run by court-appointed trustees under a reported Justice Department plan to take control of the Teamsters because of alleged influence from organized crime.

An unprecedented lawsuit being drafted by department lawyers is aimed at forcing Teamsters' President Jackie Presser and the 20 other executive board members from office, unidentified sources told the Los Angeles Times.

The move to assert federal control over the 1.7 million-member union would be the most sweeping step taken by authorities to rid the Teamsters of alleged criminal influence.

The action would pit the Reagan administration against the only major union to endorse President Reagan's election bids in 1980 and 1984.

John R. Climaco, general counsel of the Teamsters and Presser's personal attorney, declined to comment on the pending action.

Joseph DiGenova, U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia, who according to sources quoted today by the newspaper would be filing the lawsuit in federal court in Washington, also refused to discuss the matter.

The civil racketeering action would be separate from a criminal trial for Presser scheduled to begin Aug. 10 in Cleveland.

If successful, it would be the first time an entire union was placed in court-supervised trusteeship.

So far, the government has used the federal racketeering law to place only one Teamster local, No. 560 in Union City, N.J., under trusteeship. That local had been controlled by convicted racketeer Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano.

Statistics compiled by the Labor Department and the President's Commission on Organized Crime show more than 100 local Teamsters officials and consultants in the last five years have been convicted or indicted for embezzlement, mail fraud, bribery, racketeering or defrauding health and welfare plans.

Presser was indicted in May 1986 by a federal grand jury on charges of embezzling money from the Cleveland local where he rose to power. He was the fourth of the past five Teamsters presidents to be indicted.

The proposed Justice Department action goes well beyond steps urged by the presidential organized crime commission. Its final report, in 1985, said: "The International Brotherhood of Teamsters obviously continues to suffer from the relationship with organized crime."

Ventures or enterprises over which you have personal control should work out well in the year ahead. But if you need a partner, choose one whose mettle has already been tested.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't hesitate to change your mind today if you doubt your original decision. Your second thoughts could be your wisest. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may have to contend with a tougher workload today than you'd anticipated. But if you do what is expected of you, you'll take pride in your accomplishments.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be luckier in important matters today if you're left to your own devices, instead of letting another do your thinking for you. Be your own person.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your financial prospects look encouraging today. A profitable development could suddenly be thrust upon you. Don't let this happening catch you off guard.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep an open mind today and try not to be locked into preconceived ideas. Information of considerable value will be revealed only from a free-flowing exchange.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your possibilities for personal gain are excellent today in situations where you are prepared to earn what you want. But free rides could fizzle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Alternatives available to you today pertaining to a matter of importance are likely to be better than your original concept. Make the necessary adjustments.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your intuition and ingenuity can be relied upon if you are hampered by roadblocks or opposition today. Play your hunches if you feel squeezed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be hopeful today regarding the outcome of events, even when it appears as if everything is going against you. Luck will intervene at the appropriate time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Although everything may not go as you like today, you should still be quite fortunate in matters that relate to your material well-being.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Associates who are not in harmony with your ideas today could get a trifle hostile if you attempt to impose your will upon them. Watch your step.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be extremely careful in joint ventures today. You may end up on the short end where the payoff is concerned and on the long end making contributions.

Members of the major opposition Reunification Democratic Party hurl a garbage can filled with water and trash at riot police Wednesday in downtown Seoul.

Protesters battle police as Chun ally is nominated for presidency

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Thousands of protesters hurling rocks and firebombs fought riot police in Seoul today to protest the government party's confirmation of President Chun Doo-hwan's hand-picked presidential candidate. Observers said the clashes were the worst in the capital in years. Protesters surged up and down main streets, throwing firebombs and stones and attacking police with sticks and clubs. Riot police repeatedly fired tear gas and lines of officers behind shields attempted to drive the protesters back.

"Kill me, why don't you kill me," an elderly man screamed at a line of riot police dressed in green combat uniforms and steel helmets.

Clashes were also reported in provincial cities, and thousands of college students held campus demonstrations.

Opposition groups called for nationwide demonstrations to protest the governing Democratic Justice Party's confirmation today of Roh Tae-woo, a former general like Chun, to take over when the president's 7-year term runs out in February.

Pope calls on Polish regime to honor accord

TARNOW, Poland (AP) — Pope John Paul II today called on the government to honor its agreements with the now-outlawed rural Solidarity movement, declaring that Polish farmers must be elevated from "second-class status." At a Mass before more than 1 million people about 80 miles from the Soviet border, the pontiff spoke of the accords for the first time since he began his visit Monday.

He did not cite Solidarity by name, but referred instead to the city near Tarnow in which the agreements were signed by the government in February 1981, the heyday of the first free labor movement in the Soviet bloc. John Paul said the agreements were an attempt to find a "solution to various painful problems. It would seem that in the present time these agreements should not only not be passed over in silence, but should find their full realization."

The pontiff, departing from his prepared text, added: "The pope cannot remain silent on this subject, even if he were not a Polish pope, and the more so because he is a Pole." The crowd broke into loud applause.

The agreements obliged the government to stop favoring state-owned farms over private farmers, and arranged for more government investment in rural health, educational and social services. The accords also aimed at creating an independent union for private farmers.

"May Polish agriculture emerge from the many threats and cease to be condemned merely to the struggle for existence. May it experience the manifold help of the state. Many deformations of country life find their source in the second-class status of the farmer, as worker and as citizen," John Paul said.

Iran threatens to retaliate against U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran issued a thinly veiled threat to attack U.S. nuclear reactors if American forces strike Iranian missile batteries in the Persian Gulf.

Tehran Radio said Tuesday night that Iranian authorities believe that the Americans, "contrary to what they claim, are unable to accept the risk of attacking Iranian missile bases in the Persian Gulf or other forms of confrontation.

The broadcast, monitored in Nicosia, noted: "U.S. interests throughout the world are so scattered and uncontrollable that, should America become embroiled with the Islamic Republic, the vulnerability of the U.S. administration would be high."

Venice could make some difference.

VENICE, Italy (AP) — The leaders of the seven most powerful democracies are winding up three days of talks in this beautiful city in accord on some of the most vital issues confronting mankind.

Will it make a difference? It should. They have the political and economic clout to change things. In unity, they also command Soviet attention.

On the nuclear arms race, they gave cautious approval to the quickening pace of U.S.-Soviet negotiations.

From Venice, Secretary of State George P. Shultz goes to Iceland for certain endorsement by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization of a proposal to dismantle hundreds of nuclear-tipped missiles in Europe and Asia.

While the rockets represent a tiny fraction of U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals, the deal now in prospect is the first dent to be made in the dangerous arms race since President Reagan took office condemning his predecessors' efforts.

The allies noted with approval that Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the man in charge in Moscow, is shaking up things in the Soviet Union.

They warned in a statement Tuesday that the West "must remain vigilantly alert," but clearly welcomed the unfolding political, economic and security developments.

On terrorism, the new scourge confronting civilized man, the leaders for the first time denounced concessions and called again for international cooperation.

Rich, flavorful homemade ice cream begins with a base of real dairy products.

Homemade ice cream is popular again

While new ice cream shops seem to open daily and older, established shops introduce dazzling new flavors in rapid-fire fashion, homemade ice cream is enjoying a resurgence of popularity.

That's not as odd as it might seem initially. Homemade ice cream offers a number of benefits: It insures that top quality ingredients — real dairy ingredients and natural flavors — are used; it allows for creative additions that the stores may not have yet considered; and thanks to simplified, new appliances that make small quantities, it's easy to prepare.

Quality control is probably the most important factor in making ice cream at home. Ice cream should be rich, smooth and flavorful, packed with valuable nutrients that come only from the finest, freshest ingredients.

Air is incorporated while the ice cream is stirred or agitated during the freezing process. Additional ingredients may then be added; nuts, chocolate bits or other candies, or pieces of fruit are popular.

Chocolate Almond Cherry Ice Cream boasts a rich and creamy custard base. The recipe calls for both semi-sweet and unsweetened chocolate, chopped maraschino cherries, toasted almonds, almond and vanilla extracts and whipping cream. The result is a flavor to be found only in one's own home ice cream shop.

If you've never made homemade ice cream before, the American Dairy Association offers the following tips for best results:

- Carefully follow the usage instructions provided by the manufacturer of your ice cream maker.
- Cooked mixtures require chilling; allow several hours or overnight.
- Use the proportions of sweeteners and flavorings specified in each recipe. Cold numbs the taste buds, so you can't judge the mix until it's frozen.
- If pieces of fruit, nuts or other special ingredients are being added, cut them very small to avoid clogging the dasher blades.
- Pureed fruit prevents a coarse textured ice cream. Sweeten it before adding it to the mixture to keep it from freezing hard.
- Ripen ice cream before serving to let flavors mellow and blend. Just spoon the ice cream into a plastic freezer container, cover and place in the freezer for two to three hours. Count the minutes if you must, but the waiting time is worth it.
- When whipped cream is called for, whip it only until soft peaks form. If it is too stiff, it will taste buttery. Don't fold whipped cream into a warm mixture.

CHOCOLATE ALMOND CHERRY

- ICE CREAM
 1½ cups sugar
 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 ¼ teaspoon salt
 2½ cups milk
 2 squares (1 ounce each) semi-sweet chocolate
 1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate
 2 eggs, beaten
 1½ cups whipping cream
 ¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries
 ½ cup toasted sliced almonds
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 ½ teaspoon almond extract

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt in heavy 2-quart saucepan. Stir in milk until smooth. Add chocolate squares. Bring to boiling over medium heat, stirring frequently. Boil and stir 2 minutes. (Chocolate does not completely dissolve; the mixture looks speckled. This does not affect the finished product.) Stir a small amount of hot mixture into eggs. Return to saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens, about 1 minute. Do not boil. Remove from heat. Place mixture in a large mixer bowl. Beat on medium speed until mixture becomes smooth and chocolate is dissolved. Stir in whipping cream. Chill several hours or overnight. Stir in cherries, nuts and extracts. Churn-freeze in ice cream maker according to manufacturer's directions. After freezing, transfer ice cream to a plastic freezer container. Ripen in freezer at least three hours before serving.

Yield: 2 quarts. Serving size: ½ cup. Calories per serving: 228. Protein 4g, fat 13g, carbohydrate 25g, calcium 79 mg, riboflavin .15 mg.

FRESH RASPBERRY ICE CREAM

- 1½ pints fresh raspberries
 2 eggs
 1 cup sugar
 2 cups whipping cream
 1 cup light cream OR half and half
 1 teaspoon almond extract
 Few drops red food color, if desired

Puree raspberries in blender or food processor; set aside. Beat eggs in large mixing bowl until foamy. Gradually add sugar; beat until thickened. Stir in whipping cream, half and half, extract, raspberry puree and food color. Churn-freeze in ice cream maker according to manufacturer's directions. After freezing, transfer ice cream to plastic freezer container. Ripen in freezer at least three hours before serving.

NOTE: 1 package (20 ounces) frozen whole unsweetened raspberries, thawed, may be substituted for fresh.

Yield: 2 quarts. Serving size: ½ cup. Calories per serving: 183. Protein 2g, fat 12g, carbohydrate 18g, calcium 48 mg, riboflavin .11 mg.

Cottage cheese makes cool dish

Whether you're slow to diet or don't need to worry, cottage cheese and vegetables with a delicious dressing may just be your idea of good eating.

And why not? A snowy mound of cottage cheese spiked with herbs and marinated vegetables are tasty foods. Assembled on a platter, they make a pretty dish to set before anyone whose appetite has been jaded by hot, humid weather and heavy foods.

This lovely vegetable platter goes together in a few short steps. Just open a carton of cottage cheese and add some herbs.

Cook the vegetables just until tender-crisp, so their garden fresh color won't be left behind. Their own natural flavors will come through best, too, and be enriched by the marinade, a tangy blend of tomato juice, vinegar, lemon juice, green onion and seasonings.

Serve with crisp triangles of pita bread, buttered and toasted. Add a tall glass of milk and you can credit yourself for turning out a cooling, well-balanced meal for a hot, summer day.

HERBED COTTAGE CHEESE AND MARINATED VEGETABLES

- Marinade:
 ¼ cup tomato juice
 1½ teaspoons white vinegar
 1½ teaspoons fresh lemon juice
 2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion with tops
 2 tablespoons minced, fresh parsley

- 1 small clove garlic, minced
 ½ teaspoon salt
 Dash black pepper
 Few drops hot pepper sauce
Vegetables:
 8 ounces baby carrots, cooked, drained
 4 ounces whole green beans, cooked, drained
 8 ounces asparagus spears, cooked, drained
 1 cup cherry tomatoes, halved OR 1 to 2 medium tomatoes, sliced
Cottage cheese:
 1½ cups cottage cheese
 1 to 2 tablespoons snipped fresh chives
 1 teaspoon basil, crushed
 Combine ingredients for marinade. Place vegetables in individual piles in a shallow glass or plastic container. Pour marinade over vegetables. Refrigerate for 3 to 4 hours. Combine cottage cheese, chives and basil. Refrigerate to blend flavors. Place herbed cottage cheese in center of serving platter; surround with drained, marinated vegetables. Save marinade for reuse or use as a salad dressing.

Yield: 3 to 4 servings.
 Calories per serving: 143
 Protein 14 g, fat 4 g, carbohydrate 15 g, calcium 95 mg, riboflavin .29 mg.

BUTTERY PITA TRIANGLES
 Split pita bread; cut into triangles. Place on baking sheet. Brush generously with melted butter. Sprinkle with poppy, sesame or caraway seed. Bake in 400°F oven 6 to 8 minutes or until of desired crispness. Serve with Herbed Cottage Cheese and Marinated Vegetables.

Hot, muggy weather calls for a light lunch of marinated vegetables and a creamy mound of cottage cheese.

Celebrate Dairy Month

June Dairy Month has been celebrated since 1937 when it was launched with the theme, "Keep Young — Drink Milk."

Every year this month-long salute to the dairy industry is observed in homes and restaurants, in supermarkets and stores and wherever dairy foods are sold. It has become the accepted time of the year to extend a special "thanks" to the dairy families of America who produce the milk we drink and consume in dairy products.

At a time when Americans are more concerned than ever about health and fitness, dairy foods are especially important to consumers. They fit well with today's busy lifestyles because they're convenient, nutritious and a good buy, when the cost of other food items is considered.

As the most productive part of agriculture, dairying deserves this annual salute. The most recent figures indicate, for example, that in 1985, 11.03 million cows produced 143.7 billion pounds of milk. That's 16.7 billion gallons of milk.

Even more remarkable, the 11.03 million cows in 1985 outproduced the 17.5 million cows in 1960.

So as we settle into the slow, hazy days of summer, it seems only right that we join in the June Dairy Month salute and toast the dairy industry...with a refreshing glass of milk, a generous scoop of ice cream or a serving of our own special dairy treat.

Gray's work extends to Austin

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

Gray County Tax Assessor-Collector Margie Gray is serving her second four-year term in a county office. But her work extends beyond Gray County, all the way to the state capitol in Austin.

She is an active member of the Jurisprudence Committee, begun by Harris County Tax Assessor-Collector Carl Smith 35 years ago. She was first appointed to the post in 1984 and has been reappointed each year since.

The purpose of the committee is to actively work for or against pending state legislation according to how it is viewed by county tax assessors-collectors. Eight committee members are appointed from the 254 counties in the state.

Some examples of recent legislative lobbying by the committee include Senate Bill 105, relating to training and education of persons involved in property tax administration. The bill, which the Jurisprudence Committee was against and which did not pass into law, would have mandated county matters to a board of tax professional examiners, taking authority away from the counties.

Senate Bill 307, relating to eligibility to serve on the State Property Tax Board, also did not pass and was opposed by the committee. The bill would prevent county officials from participating on the State Property Tax Board.

Senate Bill 380, which was opposed by the committee and did not pass, was concerned with resident homestead exemption from ad valorem taxation. The bill would have eliminated all homestead exemptions, including those for senior citizens.

These are just a sample of the mountain of bills scrutinized by the committee each year. For 1987 alone, at least 105 bills have been worked on by the group since January, Gray said.

"Our purpose is to keep county taxes where they belong, in the county office," she said.

Each member of the committee receives a copy of each new bill that is proposed. Most of the correspondence on each bill is done by mail, although members meet once a year in Austin and twice a year when the Legislature is in session, in order to visit with state Senators.

Current legislation is state-oriented, with local governments losing out on money and the ability to govern and make their own decisions, she said.

"We're trying to get back to county basics," Gray said.

One of her fights is to keep fees for such things as vehicle license tags from rising.

"We're trying to get (vehicle license) fees lowered. We're not paying the bridge and road fund ($5) in Gray County, and as long as we can do without it, we won't. Most other counties are paying it," Gray said.

She also attends regional quarterly meetings for county tax assessor-collectors in Amarillo. She earned her Registered Professional Appraiser designation in September 1983, and is also a registered tax collector, as required by law for her office.

Gray is a veteran of county taxes and fees. She has worked in the Tax Assessor-Collector's office for the past 26 years, and has been county tax assessor-collector since her election in 1980.

Her main duties include voter registration, motor vehicle taxes and fees, liquor licenses, and ad valorem and county taxes. Sales tax money collected from the county is sent by her office to Austin.

She has had some unusual experiences as tax assessor-collector. Once, she said, she thought she would do a good deed and try to keep a couple from getting a traffic ticket for their incorrectly applied month and year stickers on their license plate.

"They had the month over the year. I told them all they had to do was come into the office and we'd correct it. They got very irate,"

she said.

Although confusion about month and year stickers on license plates seems to be a major problem, other stickers can also wind up in the wrong place.

"The handicapped sticker must go on the license plate in back. One lady had put it above the inspection sticker on her windshield," Gray said.

There are 11 employees in the county tax office, including a station in McLean.

Gray plans to try for a third term of office. Deadline for filing for candidacy in the office is 6 p.m. Jan. 2, 1988 for the 1988 elections. There is no limit on the number of terms a county tax assessor-collector can serve.

Gray's main goals are to keep county business in the county, not controlled by the state, and to keep fees as low as possible. She also works against state proposals that she sees as impractical or frivolous.

"One suggested change to increase the flow of money is to have gold-plated license plates that would cost $1,000. Can't you picture the taxpayers rushing in to buy a set for their vehicles? Anyway, I said I did not like the idea of being responsible for license plates that would just sit here. What will they think of next?" she said.

Whatever they think of, Margie Gray intends to know about it.

Mother's Day leaves mom feeling mostly mad

DEAR ABBY: Another Mother's Day has passed, and I thank the good Lord it's over. How I detest that day! All the singles, celibates and childless women have to go along with all the fanfare of Mother's Day.

Of course, for some mothers it's wonderful. But on the other hand, you skip and work and do the best you can for these wee dolls, and as soon as they are able to pay board and room, they move out and into their own apartment, house or shack.

The years pass, and if you're lucky you get a plant or a fancy greeting card to remind you that you are a mother. And in between Mother's Days, you are lucky to get a phone call — forget an invitation for a meal.

"Throw a few crumbs my way," I think to myself. Well, this year I canceled Mother's Day. My husband and I went to the park and watched the monkeys, the seals and porpoises.

Thanks for listening.
PHOOEY ON MOTHER'S DAY

DEAR PHOOEY: Don't let those sentimental holidays get you down. I think Mother's Day was dreamed up by the merchants, florists and Bell Telephone. In our house, every day is Mother's Day, Father's Day, Christmas and Thanksgiving because we have our health and each other.

Adopt this attitude, and every day can be a holiday for you, too.

DEAR ABBY: I read the article about the person signed "Hates Ding-a-Lings" who hates wind chimes. What about barking dogs who bark all night? I don't blame the dogs; I blame their owners. I happen to love wind chimes. I have four. And mine don't sound like a telephone ringing.

My neighbor has a yard light that shines directly into my bedroom window, and it's like trying to sleep in the daytime. I don't complain; it's in his yard, so he can do whatever he wants in his own yard. That's the way I feel about wind chimes.
LOVES WIND CHIMES
IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR LOVES: Your attitude is most generous, but a person's right to do whatever he wants on his own property ends when it inconveniences his neighbors. (If you had a foghorn blowing on your property every night, your neighbors would have you arrested for disturbing the peace.)

As for your neighbor's yard light, if it interferes with your sleep, why don't you ask them to share the cost of a black-out window shade? If they refuse, buy one yourself. Or make one. Sweet dreams.

DEAR ABBY: I have one for you: I would like to know when and how a "house" became a "home" — i.e. "She bought a home," or "Home building is increasing," etc.

A house used to be a house. I have at least a dozen friends who live in elegant apartment buildings, and they all say, "Oh, no, I don't live in a house — I live in a building!"
Abby, isn't that the person's home? The word "house" has almost disappeared from use. Why?
ANONYMOUS QUERY
IN CLEVELAND

DEAR ANONYMOUS: By definition, a "house" is a structure designed for residential purposes. A builder erects a house, but the occupants make a house a "home" by living in it — adding furniture, children, pets, congeniality.

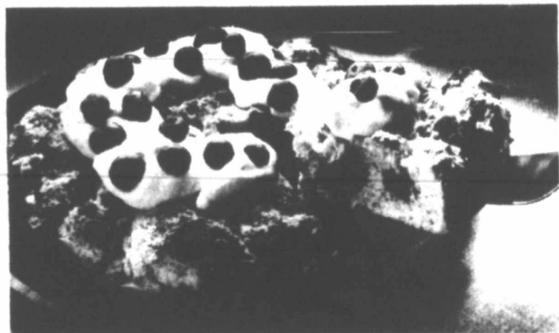

Also, a "home" could be a nursing home, a home for unwed mothers, a funeral home, an orphanage, or the place people go when they have nowhere else to go. A house can be a "house of ill repute," a boardinghouse, a henhouse, a gambling house, a publishing house, or it could refer to the audience in a theater or concert hall (there was a good "house" on opening night).

A dutiful wife and mother runs a home. A madam, on the other hand, runs a house.

DEAR READERS: I need your cooperation for an important survey.

Question: Have you ever cheated on your mate? How long have you been together?

You need not sign your name, but please state your age, and indicate whether you are male or female. Send letter or postcard to: Abby's Survey, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Bake fresh blueberries in shortcake. Serve warm, with more blueberries and dollops of whipped cream.

Blueberry shortcake has fruit baked inside

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

Some folks prefer a rich biscuit as a shortcake base; others say sponge cake is better. I stand with the biscuit backers. This all-in-one blueberry shortcake has lots of the fresh fruit baked right into the biscuit. Cut it into wedges and serve it warm with whipped cream.

- BLUEBERRY SHORTCAKE
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ cup margarine or butter
1 slightly beaten egg
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
1 cup fresh blueberries
2 tablespoons sugar
Sweetened whipped cream
Fresh blueberries (optional)

In a large mixing bowl stir together the flour, 2 tablespoons sugar and baking powder. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. In a small mixing bowl stir together egg, milk and lemon peel. Stir egg mixture into flour mixture just until moistened. Spread half the dough evenly in a greased 8 by 1½-inch round baking pan. Top the dough with the blueberries. Sprinkle blueberries with 1 tablespoon of the sugar. Dot remaining dough over blueberries; sprinkle with remaining sugar. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until shortcake is light golden brown. While shortcake is still slightly warm, cut into 6 wedges. Serve warm topped with whipped cream. Sprinkle with additional fresh blueberries, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Christian aerobics program, 'Believersercise,' gains followers

PLANO, Texas (AP) — While women who work out to rock music are reaching for the ceiling, students of Cathy Stout's Believersercise programs are stretching a lot higher.

"I feel like I have a tool to reach people, to teach people how to bless the Lord," said Mrs. Stout. "When they come to class, they have a sense of seeing Jesus somehow. Not in the mystical way, but they feel the presence of God."

Mrs. Stout founded the exercise-to-Christian-music program, that has expanded to at least 25 states since beginning in Plano five years ago.

The 31-year-old mother of two stumbled onto her Christian aerobics program when she was trying to get back into shape after the birth of her first child. Tired of working out to rock songs with lyrics that contradicted her religious upbringing, she began exercising at home while listening to her collection of Christian records.

Believersercise now has 80 instructors in the United States and 12 in New Zealand. Mrs. Stout has written more than 400 routines, produced two record albums and a videotape. The records have sold more than 100,000 copies worldwide.

The music played while the women shed pounds and praise the Lord is hardly hymnal. They work out to fast-paced music by such Christian artists as Amy Grant and Rick Riss and know the lyrics by heart.

Lakers rally to win sizzler

'Magic' hits winning shot

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird may have missed the game's final shot, but he was right on target afterward.

"We have our backs completely against the wall," the Boston Celtics star said.

Most of the time, the Celtics do all the right things to pull out close games. But this time, they made the mistakes and the Los Angeles Lakers made the shots.

And now time is running out on Boston's struggle to become the first NBA team since the 1969 Celtics to repeat as champions.

"We have to beat the Lakers three times in a row, two on their home court," Boston guard Danny Ainge said. "We have a tough road ahead of us, but I know nobody will give up."

Los Angeles, which is 79-19 in the regular season and playoffs, didn't give up Tuesday night when the Lakers trailed by 16 points with 4:54 left in the third quarter and eight with 3:20 left in the game. The determination paid off as Magic Johnson hit a 12-foot hook shot in the lane with two seconds left.

When Larry Bird's shot at the buzzer from the left corner hit the back of the rim and bounced away, the Lakers had a 107-106 victory and a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven championship series.

"We haven't been a good road team all year," Bird said. "I thought we had to win all three at home. Now we really have our work cut out for us."

The Lakers can wrap up their 10th NBA title and foil the Celtics' bid for their 17th by winning Thursday night at Boston Garden. If the Celtics survive that, they must go back to Inglewood, Calif., for Game 6 Sunday and, if necessary, Game 7 Tuesday night. Boston has lost its last six road games by an average of 15.7 points.

"If any team is capable of beating us three straight, it's the Celtics," Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said. "We have to continue to work hard."

Boston has been an exceptional home team. It is 85-3 in its last 88 games at the Garden. But two of those losses have been to the Lakers, who stopped the Celtics' 48-game Gar Jen winning streak last Dec. 12.

"This was big because we never really won the close games here," Johnson said.

"Legend has it we can't do that here," Abdul-Jabbar said. "I think the leprechauns will have a headache tomorrow."

The Celtics' heads could be throbbing if they think too much about how they let the game slip away. They had three turnovers and just one field goal after Bird's long jumper ended an eight-point Celtics' surge and gave them a 103-95 lead with 3:29 remaining.

"We had this game. We played great for 46 minutes. We threw it away," Ainge said. "The Lakers beat us in the first two games but we beat ourselves in this one."

Johnson led the Lakers with 29 points and James Worthy added 21. The Celtics, who led 55-47 at halftime, were paced by Kevin McHale with 25, Ainge with 23 and Bird with 21.

Los Angeles, outrebounded 48-32 in losing Game 3 Sunday 109-103, won the battle of the boards 46-37 Tuesday night.

Palmer fails again to qualify for U.S. Open

By FRED GOODALL
AP Sports Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — It would have been "neat" to return to the site of one of his biggest disappointments, Arnold Palmer said. But another disappointment got in the way.

Twenty-one years ago, when the charismatic Palmer was still a dominant figure on the pro golf tour, he carried a seven-shot lead into the final nine holes of the U.S. Open at San Francisco's Olympic Club. Incredibly, he squandered that advantage, allowing Billy Casper to pull into a tie and force a playoff. Casper then won the playoff by four strokes.

Palmer, who burst to stardom by winning the 1960 Open at Denver, never did win a second national championship and in recent years has even had trouble qualifying.

In 1986, after failing for a third straight year to make the field, a frustrated Palmer vowed he would never participate in another qualifier.

"You can chase it only so long," he said at the time.

However, memories of the 1966 Open at Olympic influenced a change of heart.

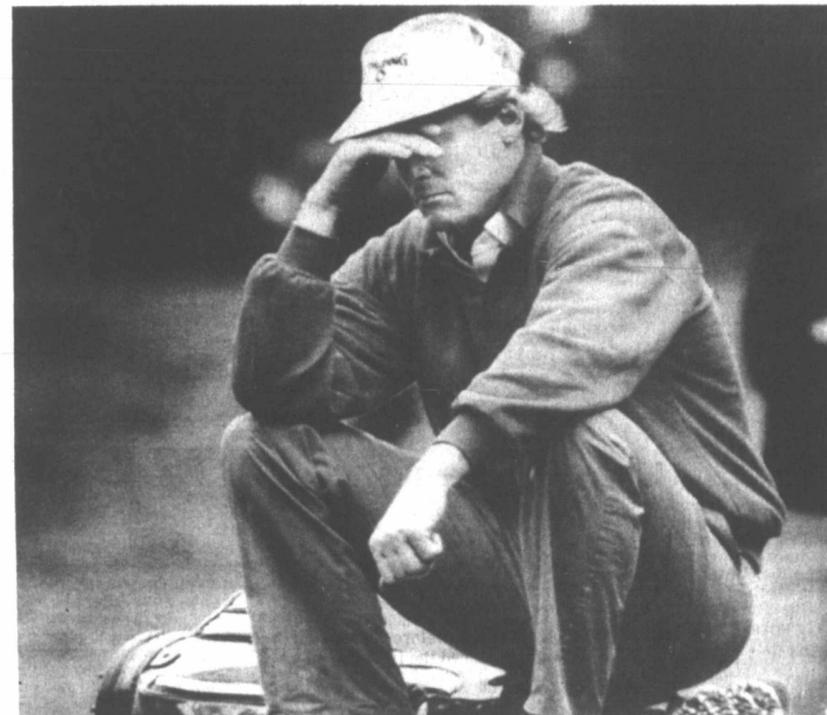

"I got to thinking about the fact that 20 years ago, I didn't have such good luck there," Palmer said.

"I thought if I could get back there it would be neat to play. ... It's not a big deal, except for me it would have been fun."

He didn't have much luck Tuesday in a 36-hole Open qualifier at Walt Disney World. Although he had rounds of 71 and 72 for a 1-under-par 143 total, Palmer failed for the fourth consecutive year to earn a spot in the Open. He needed a 138 score to make the 156-player field for the Open, scheduled June 18-21.

Six players, led by Scott Hoch with a 134, earned Open starts from the Walt Disney World qualifier. But Hoch, who shot rounds of 65 and 69 over the 7,155-yard Magnolia Course, said he might have to bypass the Open because of a nagging thumb injury.

Bill Buttner, John Morse, Jay Overton, Bart Bryant and Adam Adams took the other spots. Buttner and Morse had 137s, the other 138s.

Former Maryland coach sparks criticism for drug comments

NEW YORK (AP) — A comment by former Maryland basketball Coach Lefty Driesell that cocaine can be "performance enhancing" has stunned some members of the sports community, who lashed out against that viewpoint.

Ohio State basketball Coach Gary Williams had the strongest comments after Driesell, the coach at Maryland when All-American Len Bias died of cocaine intoxication last June 19, made the observation at a conference on drugs in sports at the University of Rhode Island.

Driesell, who elaborated on his views Monday, noted that four of the top players in Atlantic Coast Conference history — John Lucas of Maryland, David Thompson of North Carolina State, and Walter Davis and Phil Ford of North Carolina — were admitted drug abusers.

"Those were four great players," Williams said, "but they didn't have to have any drug to play like they did in their primes. Every one was torn down by using cocaine."

"Players with great talent have to trust their mental and physical ability. Anything that takes away from the gifts that they are lucky enough to have is wrong," Driesell said, "I'm a firm believer that, if you know how to use cocaine and use it properly, it can make you play better. ... I really believe cocaine can be performance enhancing." He added that he made that discovery during research for his master's degree in 1957.

Williams used recent history to dispute that claim.

"(Cocaine) can give you an immediate rush, a false sense that you can perform better," he said. "In a psychological sense, you become dependent in order to get yourself to play better. But it breaks you down physically. Three great players — Bias, Don Rogers (of the NFL's Cleveland Browns) and now that kid at Texas-El Paso (basketball player Jeep Jackson) — have died in the last year. ... I can't believe Lefty could say it is performance enhancing."

Nor could Dr. Anthony Daly, major league baseball's medical and drug-testing consultant and the medical director of the 1984 Olympic Games.

"That's unbelievable," Daly said Tuesday of Driesell's comments. "He must have had a lot of experience with cocaine, because that's not what's medically known."

Dallas Sidekicks fall to Tacoma, 10-4, in indoor soccer championship series

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Preki says the opening game of the Major Indoor Soccer League championship series was better than his dreams.

The 23-year-old Yugoslavian scored four goals and assisted on four others to lead the Tacoma Stars to a 10-4 win over the Dallas Sidekicks Tuesday night.

"Tonight was my night," Preki said. "I felt very strong and everything came my way."

"I had a couple of good moves but I didn't dream about a night like this."

The Stars scored seven unanswered goals in the second, third and fourth quarters, breaking a 2-2 tie, before a crowd of 11,496 in the Tacoma Dome. Game 2 of the best-of-seven title series will be played in Tacoma Thursday night.

"Even though they scored 10 goals tonight, it means just one game, it doesn't mean two," said Tatu, the Sidekicks' MISL scoring champ who didn't find the net until 5:18 remained and his team trailed 9-2. "We surprised everybody the way we played, especially ourselves."

"We deserved the loss, but it's only one game, and this is going seven."

"Ten goals doesn't happen to us often," said Dallas goalie Krys Sobieski.

"I just hope we've got all our problems out in one night," said Dallas Coach Gordon Jago. "I've seen enough to know there'll be some improvement."

Preki's hat trick was his second in a row and third of the playoffs. He missed the MISL single-game playoff scoring record of nine points held by teammate Steve Zungul by one point.

Preki scored Tacoma's first goal off Zungul's steal at 8:29 of the first quarter. Gary Heale rebounded in a missed Preki shot to give the Stars a 2-0 lead at 10:23 in the first quarter.

Doc Lawson scored both of the Side-kicks' goals in the second quarter — at 11:17 and then on a power play to tie the score at 2-2 at 12:15.

Preki put the Stars ahead for good two minutes before halftime when he scored on a Ricky Davis assist for a 3-2 Tacoma lead. That started Tacoma's string of seven straight goals that put the game away.

Heale got his second goal on Preki's assist 1:26 into the third quarter. Preki scored on a breakaway at 4:18 and Zungul tallied on Preki's assist on a power play at 11:29 for a 6-2 Stars' lead.

Hereford could be class of District 1-4A football next season

ALSO NOTED: Congratulations to Dr. Harry Vanderpool upon his retirement a couple of weeks ago after a lifetime of dedicated and exciting service in the ministry. The deeply involved community servant, who was once Border Conference tennis champion while playing for his Texas School of Mines (UTEP) alma mater, plans to continue residing in Albuquerque.

"It was a very exciting and interesting trip," says WTSU sports information director Doug Simpson after a Dallas-Los Angeles flight in which Jim Boehme, coach of NCAA runners-up Syracuse, was his seatmate. Simpson, incidentally, does an outstanding job under strained working conditions at the Division II Lone Star Conference school.

Wilford S. Bailey, NCAA president from Auburn University:

"If we don't (clean up college athletic programs), we run the risk of far greater commercialization, to the point that colleges will operate as professional sports programs. I personally find that completely unacceptable."

Did you realize it was 35 years ago tomorrow that Curt Simmons tossed a three-hitter against the Chicago Cubs, but all three hits were home runs by Hank Sauer and the Cubs won 3-2?

And it was on this date in 1959 that Rocky Colavito slugged four home runs in consecutive at bats as his Cleveland Indians defeated Baltimore.

It was great to be in Milwaukee, where prices for unleaded gasoline ranged from 86.9 to $1.24.9 if you wanted to shop.

Covered from head to toe: Maurice Cheeks, Sixers' star defensive guard and playmaker, has had his right hand in a cast for several weeks in hopes of healing his injured little finger, but surgery seems likely, to go with matching foot surgery. the NBA one season ahead of Larry Bird, against whom he played in college while performing at WTSU. Now-retired teammate Julius Irving is taking intensive golf lessons in Florida, so as not to embarrass himself while playing in benefit tournaments. And it appears another teammate, Cliff Robinson, will be long-gone. He was sent home to nurse an ankle injury in mid-season, then showed up at the All-Star festivities in Seattle and danced the weekend away, then went back to his California home complaining about the ankle. It didn't set well with fellow Sixers, and probably accounts for the fact Robinson has played for five different teams the past eight seasons. And the Moses Malone-for-Jeff Ruland trade looks worse since medical problems appear to have concluded Ruland's career.

Medical problems have also forced one of the Pampa Harvesters' strongest, longtime boosters, Joe Fischer, to re-locate in Dallas. Joe was a big Kansas Jayhawk fan and pretty much of a regular at the National JC Tournament at Hutchinson.

Speaking of the Jucos, how come Texas has one of the finest JC basketball programs in the country, but SWC basketball is so bad? Dave Bones, who publishes an outstanding newsletter on high school cagers, says: "Good players continue to come out of Texas in greater numbers despite the state's archaic rules concerning summer participation. The same goes for Ohio to a lesser extent."

Although he never started a single game, Baylor's Terry Teagle played in all 82 regular season games this past NBA season for Golden State, the only non-starter to do so.

He was one of the finest competitors to ever don a Harvester football uniform. No. 63, Jack Traywick, a 165-pound guard, died June 3. He was buried in Austin. A 1953 graduate of PHS, the teams on which he played never were beaten by the Amarillo Sandies. Teammates Lee Fraser, Buddy Cokrell, John Darby, Harold Lewis, Ken Hinkle, Ed Dudley and 45 others can testify to his great competitive spirit. Our condolences to his family.

Many believe that former Cowboy star Dennis Thurman could become the first black to become a head coach in the modern-day NFL.

Discounting his own team, Canyon Eagle coach Mike Wartes feels Hereford will be the class of District 1-4A football next fall, followed by Estacado and Berger. "Pampa should be a better football team (after 0-10, what's left). I don't anticipate Levelland being an improved team," he adds. As currently drawn, school boundary lines would place enrollment at 732 at Canyon HS and 819 at the new Valley View HS to be opened in 1988, just in time for the next UIL realignment. Classification would depend on where the UIL draws the line on school census.

Asked to compare the Super Bowl fans with the Final Four fans, a New Orleans cabbie observed: "They're both good for the economy, but I prefer the Super Bowl fans — they're the high rollers. I don't get rich on college kids and coaches."

Reception planned for girl tracksters

Pampa Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a farewell reception for PHS track stars Andrea Hopkins and Laquita Brown, who will be competing in the International Sports Exchange track meet in China June 15-25.

The reception will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday at the high school football fieldhouse and the public is invited to attend.

Over $3,000 was raised to send the girls on the overseas trip. "We fell about $750 short of our goal and that will have to be made up, but we wanted to make sure the girls got to go," said Chamber official Jack Gindorf.

Hopkins and Brown, both seniors, leave Thursday night for Dallas, then fly to California Friday morning to prepare for the trip to Canton, China.

Hopkins is the state Class 4A champion in the shot put while Brown was a member of the state championship 440-meter relay team.

Teamwork, confidence lead Lefors to Austin

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

LEFORS—The Lefors Pirates will play Burton Thursday afternoon at 1 p.m. in the UIL High School baseball semi-finals in Austin.

A lot of Pirates feel that if they are unable to grab a title this year, it may be a long time before they have a chance at another one. The Pirates are losing six key seniors, including starters Kent and Kirk Kerbos, Richard Hernandez and Jamie Wariner.

The Kerbos — pitcher Kirk and catcher Kent — both have faith in the team's abilities and think that '87 is the year of the Pirate.

"A lot of teams go down there (to Austin) thinking they're number one," Kent said. "I consider us the number one team in the state."

"I think if we can play together, we can win," Kirk said.

Senior Jamie Wariner echoed the thoughts of the Kerbos, and gave credit to the community.

"The spirit and fan support helps a lot," Wariner said. "And, everybody (on the team) works together real well. It's the best teamwork in Lefors in years."

Both the Kerbos and Wariner have plans for the fall now that they've graduated. Kent and Kirk are looking at colleges that might be interested in offering them athletic scholarships. Kent, who wants to study to be a coach, said he and his brother have talked to the coach at Vernon Regional Junior College.

Wariner, meanwhile, will forego college for now and has enlisted in the Navy.

Wariner, who will leave Aug. 3 for a 10-week stint at Great Lakes, Mich., will train to be an aviation fire control technician.

The tall, lanky senior has been the surprise player of the post season. Hitting only .181 after seven regular season games, Wariner's bat has come alive. He has three hits in his last seven at bats and has driven in three runs.

"I just kept trying and trying," Wariner said. "I'd hit it straight to 'em every time earlier in the season. But, I finally got my confidence."

Confidence such as Wariner's has played a big role in the Pirates being in Austin — just one game away from the 1-A championship.

"We're underdogs really," Wariner said. "I think we have a good chance. We're not gonna give up. Never say die."

Major League's 'untouchables' continue to mow down hitters

By The Associated Press

Astros 1, Padres 0

The major league versions of "The Untouchables" are appearing just about nightly in Philadelphia and Houston.

Relievers Steve Bedrosian of the Phillies and Dave Smith of the Astros have been sensational recently, mowing down batters with astounding regularity. Bedrosian even tied a National League record Tuesday night with his eighth save in as many consecutive appearances, holding off the Cardinals for a 3-2 win.

Smith was just as good, picking up his 11th save with 1 1-3 innings of perfect relief, extended his string to 23 2-3 innings without yielding an earned

Houston got only two singles, but those hits helped build the only run Danny Darwin and Smith would need. Darwin gave up four hits before yielding to Smith in the eighth, when Bill Doran made a spectacular play to save the game. Doran also knocked in the Houston run with a groundout in the third.

With two outs in the eighth and runners on second and third, Doran made a belly-flop catch of a grounder by Tim Flannery and threw him out at first base.

Pirates 8, Expos 1

Mike Dunne, whose major-league debut came against the Mets last week when Dwight Gooden returned to the lineup, pitched in less hectic circumstances Tuesday night. He got his first win, going all the way despite allowing 10 hits.

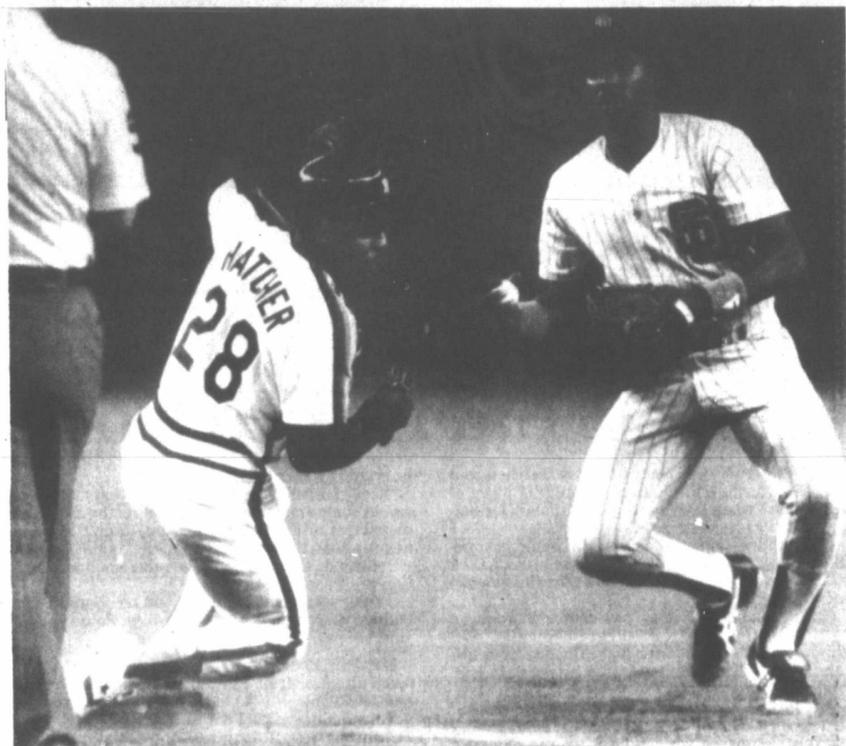

"Starting my first game against Dwight Gooden last Friday was the biggest thrill of my life," the rookie pitcher said. "But this is pretty good, too."

Barry Bonds led the visiting Pirates' 15-hit offense by going 4-for-4 and knocking in three runs. Larry Sorensen surrendered six runs in one-third of an inning.

Dodgers 5, Braves 3

In Atlanta, Mike Marshall and John Shelby each had two-run homers. Marshall has hit three home runs in as many games.

Dale Murphy homered for Atlanta.

Padres' shortstop Garry Templeton forces out the Astros' Billy Hatcher at second.

run, as Houston edged San Diego 1-0. In other NL games Tuesday, it was Pittsburgh 8, Montreal 1; San Francisco 10, Cincinnati 2; Chicago 6, New York 5; and Los Angeles 5, Atlanta 3. Phillies 3, Cardinals 2

After a poor start in which he was relegated to long relief, Bedrosian has been superb. He leads the league with 15 saves and his eighth straight tied the NL mark shared by Clay Carroll, Bruce Sutter, Rich Gossage and, yes, Smith.

In his last 16 appearances, Bedrosian has 15 saves and a win, with an ERA of 1.01.

He pitched the final two innings Tuesday night to preserve a victory for Bruce Ruffin.

The Phillies' offense came on Glenn Wilson's solo homer and a two-run shot by Juan Samuel. Vince Coleman of the Cardinals reached base for the 39th straight game with a single.

A's Young just misses no-hitter

By BRIAN TRUSDELL
Associated Press Writer

With his second near miss in as many years, Oakland's Curt Young keeps getting closer to a no-hitter.

Last year, Young pitched a no-hitter for 6 2-3 innings before allowing an infield single in a one-hit, 6-0 victory over Kansas City. Tuesday night, he went one inning further before Ken Williams broke up his bid with a two-run homer in the eighth.

"I'm kind of amazed," Young said after the second one-hitter of his career, an 8-3 victory over the Cecilio Guante. Guidry, 0-2, was making his first start of the season.

Cerutti, 3-2, went five innings. Twins 5, Royals 2

Joe Niekro beat Kansas City for the first time since 1971, giving up two runs on nine hits in 6 1-3 innings, helping Minnesota win its fourth straight and move within .001 of the West Division-leading Royals.

Tim Laudner hit a two-run homer for the Twins in the fifth inning.

Niekro, 4-4, allowed nine hits, struck out six and walked three in his first start since being acquired from the New York Yankees.

Tigers 8, Brewers 5

Jack Morris won his seventh straight game, pitching an eight-hitter over 8 1-3 innings, and Bill Madlock had four hits and drove in two runs as Detroit won its fourth straight and 18th in its last 24 games.

Morris, 8-2, struck out six and walked one before Mark Thurmond pitched the final two outs.

Ted Higuera, 5-6, suffered his sixth loss in his last seven decisions.

Rangers 3, Mariners 0

Ruben Sierra, Pete O'Brien and Steve Buechele all hit solo home runs and Jose Guzman allowed only a third-inning double to John Moses and fifth-inning single to Mike Kingery over five innings.

Guzman, 4-5, struck out four and didn't walk a batter before leaving the game due to a stiff back.

Chicago White Sox. "I like to believe I have the same stuff every game. Sometime they hit it and sometime they don't."

In other American League games Tuesday, it was Toronto 7, New York 2; Boston 2, Baltimore 1; Detroit 8, Milwaukee 5; Minnesota 5, Kansas City 2; California 6, Cleveland 5; and Texas 3, Seattle 0.

Williams was 0-for-16 before he hit a 2-2 pitch for the homer that landed just inside the left field foul pole.

"I got lucky," Williams said. "We haven't been playing well and I haven't been swinging the bat well. I don't even know what I hit. I wasn't looking for any special pitch, just looking for the baseball."

Young, 8-3, was hoping to throw the fifth no-hitter by Oakland pitchers, and the first since rookie Mike Warren defeated the White Sox 3-0 on Sept. 29, 1983.

Blue Jays 7, Yankees 2

Jesse Barfield drove in three runs on two hits and John Cerutti pitched a three-hitter over 5 2-3 shutout innings as Toronto won its seventh straight.

Attorney says Feazell wanted part of action

AUSTIN (AP) — A Waco attorney testified that District Attorney Vic Feazell wanted "a piece of the action" when lawyers received money for getting court cases dismissed.

"The understanding was that Vic would get one-third and all three of us would share alike," Dick Kettler said Tuesday as a witness for the government.

The McLennan County prosecutor is charged with accepting bribes or illegal campaign contributions in exchange for his influence over criminal cases. The trial is in its third week in U.S. District Court.

Kettler said he had talked with Feazell several times in 1984 about getting drunken-driving charges dismissed without offering any money.

"I began having trouble talking to Vic, and my partner (Don Hall) went over to see Feazell," Kettler said. "Hall came back and said Vic wants a piece of the action. That's the way he put it. Hall said that's what it's going to take to do business over there."

Kettler said the arrangement ended in April 1985, when he heard there was an investigation into Feazell's operations.

"I told Hall it was over," Kettler said.

Earlier Tuesday, a member of Feazell's staff testified that attorneys often tried to influence Feazell because they considered him "soft-hearted."

"One of my biggest problems was that attorneys would come and talk with me or one of the assistant district attorneys, and when they didn't like the negotiations they would go to Vic," said Deanna Fitzgerald, who is chief of his misdemeanors section in Feazell's office.

"They would cry and moan and try to make Vic believe their clients were not guilty. Some people said he was too soft-hearted," she said.

Ms. Fitzgerald said attorneys who sought personal attention from Feazell included Kettler, Hall and Ken Crow, all of whom have testified for the government against Feazell.

Attorney Ron Moody testified Monday he and partner Crow gave Feazell a check for $500 and $4,500 in cash after a 1983 meeting in which Feazell mentioned he had a "substantial" campaign debt and asked if they could help.

The lawyer said he and Crow also gave Feazell a $400 check and $4,600 in cash when Feazell was having a fund-raiser in September 1984.

The Central Texas prosecutor has been accused of taking $19,000 in bribes from a circle of Waco attorneys in exchange for dismissing charges against their clients or reducing their punishments. A 10-count federal racketeering indictment also charges him with mail fraud.

Staffers get new budget start

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislators in the June 22 special session will have a starting point $314 million higher in their budget negotiations than they did in the 140-day regular session.

Staff members for the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker completed two days of behind-the-scenes budget talks Tuesday.

Bob Davis, governor's budget officer, said the group had agreed that $26.13 billion is the "mechanical" current spending level on a two-year basis for the state's major funds.

That is about $314 million above the spending levels used in the budgets Gov. Bill Clements and the Legislative Budget Board submitted to the regular legislative session, Davis said.

"We've been moving from a budgeted number to an actual operating level," said Jim Oliver, LBB executive director.

"The policy decision will be made by the people who have the vote," Davis said, referring to the upcoming special session.

Davis said he planned to talk to Clements "and see what our next step will be for the special session."

Clements stood fast in the 140-day regular session for a budget no more than current spending levels and no more than a $2.9 billion increase in revenue from extension of the temporary sales and motor fuel taxes.

"I think that all parties are agreed, and the governor certainly agrees, that the current spending level is the place to start 1988-89 budgeting," Davis said.

Davis said to the best of his knowledge, Clements had not changed his mind about a $2.9 billion limit on new taxes, "but I think he is willing to consider some non-tax revenue."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said in a speech Tuesday he expects a less-than-perfect solution when lawmakers convene again June 22.

Hobby, who presides over a Senate that favored higher spending than Gov. Bill Clements would allow, said action must be taken to head off a cash-flow dilemma later this year.

"It is apparent that we must find a less-than-ideal solution to our problems in order to avert a cash flow catastrophe. We must pass a budget and a revenue increase or our schools won't open and our prisons will," Hobby said.

His remarks came in a speech to the Texas Good Roads and Transportation Association.

Although Clements blamed Hobby and the Democrat-controlled Senate for the Legislature's failure to enact a budget in the regular session, the lieutenant governor said he is willing to compromise.

"I compromised during the regular session and I will compromise again. It will mean financing critical state services at a level below what we want in the Senate. It will mean buying time for the Committee on Tax Equity to construct a lasting answer to our revenue problems," Hobby said.

Panel: Price rise is needed to make new gas recovery feasible

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Vast reserves of natural gas might still be out there beneath Texas soil, but prices will have to jump before drilling for it is feasible, industry experts say.

The possibilities for the Texas natural gas industry were discussed Tuesday by a panel at the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners convention.

"There's a tremendous amount of gas out there to be tapped," said Robert J. Finley, program director for gas resources and acting deputy director for the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas.

Undiscovered gas is probably about equal in quantity to all the previous finds combined, Finley said, adding that recent discoveries are 50 percent greater than had been predicted in the mid-1970s.

While gas production has declined in most areas of the state, production has increased in the Gulf coast and South Texas mainland areas, Finley said.

He said much of the hope for the future lies in base deposits from 15,000 to 30,000 feet deep. Such expensive drilling can't be done at the present price of gas, drillers say.

Finley said the present surplus gas picture will change in the 1990s. Among the big users will be electric utilities and manufacturing plants using the co-generation process to produce some of their own power.

The TIPRO convention devoted much discussion to the issue of pipeline regulation.

Bob Rima, an Austin lawyer, former senior vice president and general attorney for Southern Union Gas Co. and vice president for Western Gas Interstate Co., said the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's Order 436 was bringing competition to the pipeline business.

"But what many people fail to realize is that we had been doing the same thing in Texas for two years before the regulation began. We just did it without a number," he said.

Rima said that while there still are some problems, "pipeliners no longer depend on sales to make money, but on the amount of gas that goes through the meter. Some are doing this gracefully and some are doing it bullheadedly, but they are doing it."

He said gas pipelines once made their money by buying gas from the producer, transporting it to the area where it was to be used and then selling it to the customer. The new regulatory effort encourages pipelines to transport gas for a fee without ever owning it.

In addition to meeting with the airline official Monday, Barton had also planned to work on preparing testimony on airline consumer legislation, Koops said.

Although Barton's flight between Dallas and Washington was 45 minutes late, the congressman hurried so he could be on time to a meeting with the executive, Koops said.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A freelance photographer has renewed his challenge to go three rounds in a boxing ring with actor Sean Penn, upping the ante to $6 million.

"I'm serious about this, I'm just trying to stand up for the press," said Mick Paladin, a photographer who says he's tired of hearing about punches allegedly thrown at paparazzi who follow Penn.

Paladin, 40, said Tuesday that a group of Phoenix, Ariz., businessmen offered to put up a $6 million purse. That raises the stakes considerably from last year, when Paladin put ads in entertainment trade magazines offering $50,000 in prize money if Penn would take him on.

Paladin, in a telephone interview from Phoenix, said the purse would be split 50-50.

Penn, 26, ignored his last challenge, and on Tuesday his publicity agency, PMK, failed to return a call.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Moonlighting" star Bruce Willis will find out soon whether he'll be prosecuted in connection with a Memorial Day party at his Hollywood Hills home, officials say.

Willis, accused of struggling with police and using "abusive language," appeared Tuesday before a hearing officer.

Willis, 32, who plays a wisecracking detective on the ABC-TV show, was cooperative during the closed hearing, said Assistant City Attorney Timothy Hogan.

The hearing officer, Deputy City Attorney Robert Pingle, will recommend whether a misdemeanor charge will be filed, said Mike Qualls, spokesman for the city attorney's office. Hogan said it will be decided by the end of the week.

Asked for comment afterward, Willis said, "Lakers in five," referring to the National Basketball Association championship best-of-seven series between the Los Angeles Lakers and the Boston Celtics.

BULLS GAP, Tenn. (AP) — "Hee Haw's" Archie Campbell is being honored by a tourist complex in his home town.

Mayor Ima Justis said Tuesday that the town received a $182,000 state grant to buy property and move a replica of Campbell's boyhood home. The complex will include a museum, entertainment center and visitors' center.

Campbell's original boyhood home would have been used, but "it was hanging off the side of the mountain up there right between two beer joints," Mrs. Justis said. "We used most of the frame and the clapboard and anything else we could."

Campbell, who performs on the Grand Ole Opry and lives outside Knoxville, was in town Friday. He joked that he knew he still had plenty of fans after a man picked up one of his half-smoked cigars and said he was "going to take it home and shellac it."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Johnny Cash and other celebrities who allowed themselves to be jailed as part of an American Cancer Society drive raised $40,000 from behind bars, a publicist said.

Celebrities in the "Jail-A-Thon" were put in a mock cell and given a phone to solicit contributions that would be used as bail to be released, Mary Ann Murray, a publicist for country music star Ricky Skaggs, said Tuesday.

Skaggs, who contributed to the fund-raiser in nearby Hendersonville last week, joked with Cash during Monday night's "Music City News Award Show."
