North: Arms pay hostage ransom

By JIM DRINKARD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. Oliver North said today Reagan administration officials shunted aside misgivings about ongoing arms-for-hostages trading with Iran because they feared that a breakoff of dealings might lead to the death of the Americans captives.

"Our concern was that having started the route, wisely or unwisely ... that we had indeed increased the jeopardy to the hostages rather than reduced it," North said as he began answering questions for the fourth straight day in nationally televised hearings.

North testified as lawmakers expressed impatience with the proceedings and as the witness himself seemed to be generating substantial public sympathy, despite his confessions of attempting to cover up his activities as the Iran-Contra affair unraveled last fall.

Officials at the Capitol and the White House reported a large volume of calls in North's favor, while Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said in a broadcast interview late Thursday that lawyers had spent too long interrogating the witness, and it was time for lawmakers to take over.

Even so, North was questioned by Senate counsel Arthur Liman, who delved in the opening moments of today's session into the arms-for-hostages dealings in late 1985.

North said that he returned from a meeting in London in late 1985 with Manucher Ghorbanifar, an Iranian who played a key role as middleman in the arms for hostages dealings.

He said he found the prospect of selling arms in exchange for the lives of Americans was distasteful, but was concerned that ending the negotiations would lead the captors to kill the remaining hostages.

North also said that when he first became involved in the secret arms trading, there was no mention of the dealing being part of a broader initiative to establish ties with moderates in the Iranian regime.

North said that he worked to insert that broader initiative into official documents drafted for President Reagan's signature that formally authorized the arms sales.

Reagan has defended the trading as an out-

Whaley claims Lewis engaged in 'extortion'

AUSTIN — House Speaker Gib Lewis says Panhandle legislators who voted against a $5.2 billion tax increase may see money to state universities and agencies in their home districts cut, a newspaper reported.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram, quoting House sources, reported Thursday that the possible punishment focuses on three Republicans and one Democrat.

The newspaper said the main targets were Reps. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa; Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian; and Chip Staniswalis and John Smithee, both Amarillo Republicans.

"I guess they feel they represent their districts, and a lot of (House) members are saying if that's the sentiment of the people they represent, maybe they don't need any increase in funding for those institutions in the Panhandle," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

Asked if he thought punishment, which could include stripping lawmakers of committee assignments, would be dished out, Lewis replied: "There's a strong possibility that there could be."

Lewis said the punishment was suggested to him by lawmakers from other parts of the state.

"I really don't believe that Gib would be a part of that," Whaley said in a telephone interview from his home Thursday, adding that he "won't be coerced, threatened or skewed into voting for a tax bill."

Whaley compared the threats to Middle East hostage-takers, and said that, like kidnapers, "if they extort us on this one, they'll extort us again."

"This whole thing has the smell of Khomeini. In this case, they're going to make the students of West Texas State hostages," Whaley said. "They're going to punish them because they don't like our conservative voting."

Whaley, who often votes in a block with the three Republicans on tax issues, said West Texas oil country has put its share of tax dollars in state coffers.

"If they'll just let us keep the tax money that we raise out here, we could run our own schools — or send our kids to Harvard — and have enough left over to pay our property taxes," he said.

The representative predicted that the tax bill won't pass in the Senate. He said many House members who voted for the bill are having second thoughts.

"A lot of them down there that voted for that tax bill are shaking in their boots," he said.

Waterfield was en route home today and could not be reached for comment, but Rep. Staniswalis had some harsh words for Speaker Lewis.

"I'm trying to understand how the speaker can make those kinds of threats. That's not democracy. That's not even hard-ball politics. That's tyranny," Staniswalis told the Fort Worth paper.

Staniswalis said rumors of the threats began circulating 10 days ago, and he said other lawmakers have told him he should take the warning seriously.

Three police shot in motel standoff

INKSTER, Mich. (AP)— Three police officers held hostage at gunpoint by a woman and three of her sons were found shot to death in a barricaded motel early today, the FBI said.

The officers, who went to the 32-unit Bungalow Motel to serve arrest warrants, were found in a room after the four barricaded suspects surrendered about 3:15 a.m., FBI Agent Kenneth Walton said.

The woman and her sons were taken to Inkster police headquarters, where they were being held while charges were determined, Walton said.

The slain officers were identified as Sgt. Ira Parker and officers Clay Hoover and Dan Dubiel. Hoover was a rookie and the others had been with the department for several years, police said.

Police dispatcher Winona Ponder said she didn't know the identities of the suspects, but said the woman was 56 or 57 years old. She didn't know the ages of the sons. Police Chief James Buckley said the incident began when Dubiel and Hoover tried to serve the felony warrants about 6 p.m. Thursday. From there, they called for a supervisor, he said.

"The two officers had responded on what would appear to be a routine run. As soon as he (Parker) entered the room, a barrage of shots erupted," the chief said.

Police requested help from the FBI and a state police special weapons team as the woman and her sons, armed with an automatic rifle, negotiated with officers who surrounded the motel.

"She said the officers were safe and locked in the bathroom," Proctor said, adding she was upset about a real estate deal that had soured, leading to a bad check charge.

Buckley said police officers fired tear gas into the room shortly after backup units arrived at the scene. He said "considerably more than 20 shots" were fired from the hotel room while officers fired 20 to 25 rounds into the room during the standoff.

Entertainer thrives on monkey business

Jimmy Anderson and Pedro will provide the special entertainment and laughs tonight and Saturday at the Top o' Texas Rodeo.

Pedro is a tiny monkey that rides atop a sheepdog.

The monkey, dressed like a miniature cowboy, hangs on for dear life to a saddle on the dog's back while the canine chases sheep around a rodeo arena.

Anderson, a rodeo performer since 1977, is a professional rodeo clown and participated in the Canadian National Finals Rodeo in 1977, 1979 and 1983.

A seven-year veteran of the Wrangler Pro Rodeo Bullfighter's Tour, Anderson is also one of the top 12 bullfighters in the U.S. chosen by Wrangler since 1980.

Anderson has been featured on several nationwide television shows, including PM Magazine, That's Incredible, Sports Cavalcade and Good Morning Boston.

Born in 1954 and now claiming Dublin, Texas, as his home, Anderson will provide entertainment at each rodeo performance and will assist the rodeo clowns at the Top o' Texas events.

Anderson has also competed as a National Finals Rodeo bullfighter (1982-85), a Copenhagen-Skoal Superstars Rodeo bullfighter (1983-84) and a Lone Star Circuit Finals bullfighter (1983-85).

Anderson also earned $27,725 in 1985 as a finalist in the Wrangler NFR Bullfight Finals and from 1983-85 was the assistant director of contact acts on the board of directors of the PRCA.

A self-proclaimed innovative thinker, Anderson was chosen by his peers to select livestock for the 1982-84 Wrangler Bullfight Finals and conceived the plan for two barrelmen to be used at the event.

Anderson is the only PRCA bullfighter that has a feature contact act — Dudley the monkey and the sheepdog.

Anderson has been an active member of the PRCA for 12 years and trains monkeys, dogs, horses and bulls.

Bullfighters must study mean streaks

When the 41st Annual Top o' Texas Rodeo gets under way at 8 p.m. today, rodeo clowns Rex Dunn and J.G. Crouch will be looking forward to reacting with some of the other athletes.

But they're not talking about the rodeo contestants who will be competing in the arena at Recreation Park east of Pampa.

Instead, they're referring to the bulls that they will be fighting while protecting the cowboys.

"I love the challenge of it ... being one-on-one with what I think is the greatest athlete in the world," Dunn, 31, says of the bulls he will be facing tonight and Saturday.

The stock bulls used in the bull riding events are not just dumb animals, Dunn says. Instead, they possess great strength, with a lot of dexterity and quick moves.

"You've got to have a savvy of what the animals are like," he says of the ability to be a good rodeo clown and bullfighter. It involves having mental alertness, making fast judgments and quickly assessing the bull's moves, he explains.

"Very few people probably realize the complexity of what it takes" to be a rodeo clown, Dunn says.

His partner Crouch, 33, agrees.

"These bulls get a reputation just like people do," Crouch says.

Rodeo bulls are used on the circuit for seven to nine years, with contestants and clowns having a chance to get to know many of the animals and their

Extortion

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, said the threats forced him to try to elicit the help of Gov. Bill Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to stop any punishment.

Sarpalius said Hobby told him he should persuade the Panhandle House delegation to support a tax hike. He said Clements promised that he would veto the budget bill if it could be determined that one area of the state was singled out for financial punishment.

Sarpalius aide Kevin Knapp said today that the senator plans to vote against the insurance tax, which is part of the hike that prompted the threats, but hasn't yet decided on increases in other taxes. Much will depend on what would be cut without a hike, Knapp said.

 Knapp said Sarpalius doesn't like the way Lewis is handling the situation, but added the speaker is just playing politics.

"Sometimes you've got to use your power, and that's what Gib's trying to do," Knapp said.

Deputies Doug Davis and Mike Lane, right, 'arrest' Naus family.

Officers 'arrest' innocent family

As a gesture of hospitality, the Top o' Texas Rodeo Association again is sponsoring its "Courtesy Arrests" during the annual rodeo days.

The first arrest was made Thursday afternoon when a family from Mesa, Ariz., traveling on I-40 north of Clarendon was stopped and then escorted by the Gray County Sheriff's Department to Pampa.

Treated to a hotel room, meals and the rodeo were Guy and Diane Naus and children Jennifer, Christi, Sean and Eric.

Other out-of-state families are to be "arrested" today and Saturday, wondering at first what traffic law they have violated when pulled over by the sheriff's office or Department of Public Safety.

The Top o' Texas Rodeo Association provides a box seat to the evening's Top o' Texas Rodeo as part of their sentence.

The Coronado Inn and Northgate Inn will provide rooms, and Dyer's Bar-B-Que and Danny's Market will provide free meals for the families and their Pampa hosts.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Bud Welch hosted the Naus family, taking them to the free barbecue meal at the opening rodeo performance. The Naus family stayed at Northgate Inn.

On Friday evening, Danny's Market will provide the meal, with Mr. and Mrs. Bob Chambers serving as hosts. Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sackett will be hosts, with Dyer's furnishing the meal.

Bullfighters

Crouch notes that at the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas last year he made more than $14,000 in one week. And Dunn, he says, more than $20,000 in the same week with bonuses he received.

Dunn, who also has been in rodeoing since he was 14, says one good thing about being a rodeo clown is that "you're guaranteed a check every week," unlike many of the rodeo competitors who have to win their money.

But it's not an easy job to be a clown.
 Crouch, who now lives in Montague, Texas, with his wife Scotti, says he bought a new house two years ago and claims he has yet "to see the upstairs" because he's out on the rodeo circuit so much in his trailer.

Dunn, being the bullfighter part of the team, has the scars to show the work he has had to put out.

His appearance this week at the Pampa rodeo is special for him. It marks his first rodeo in a month, a long period away from the arena for him, he says.

Dunn, who was born in Wichita Falls but lived most of his life at Hastings, Okla., was seriously injured by a bull a month ago while at Pawhuska, Okla. Saying no one "really knows what happened," Dunn explains that his right arm somehow was struck, with an artery being torn and his arm and hand swelling with blood.

The injury required surgery, leaving a long scar along the inside of the arm. Now still undergoing therapy, Dunn says doctors indicate he has regained 65 percent of his hand's use and hope he can "get it back into the 80s" with more therapy.

"I made more (in rodeo) in one month than I did teaching," he says, smiling.

Crouch says the pay for the top rodeo clowns has really become better. "Nowadays, with the national sponsors such as Coors and Wrangler, you can make a hell of a lot of money," he says.

Lord I've still got it," he states. "I'm a fast healer ... and I've got a good friend upstairs."

Dunn mentions that other injuries have included a serious concussion (at last year's National Finals) and the loss of two front teeth from a bull's horn hitting his mouth. Neither kept him away from an arena for a month.

But "that's just an occupational hazard," he says with a shrug.

Dunn says a rodeo clown's "first job is to protect the bull rider," to get him free from the bull and keep the rider safe.

But the barrel man — Crouch — "is my insurance policy," he says, adding that the barrel may can relieve him and assist him as needed if things get rough or tiring.

Still, the barrel man "is primarily to entertain the crowds."

Crouch the entertainer is known for his spontaneous and unpredictable antics in the rodeo arena. Dunn notes he himself will use a modified Volkswagen car in one of his skits.

Crouch, Dunn says, smiling, "will have something," adding that there will be "all kind of comedy acts" during their appearance in Pampa.

Both are now considered among the best in the field.

Dunn has been a bullfighter at the 1983, 1985 and 1986 National Finals, being selected runnerup to the world title the past two years. He has also been on the Wrangler Bullfight Tour since 1982.

Crouch has gone to the Texas Finals in 1980 and 1984 and to the National Finals in 1982 and 1986. Crouch notes those who get to attend the NFR are chosen from 150 clowns.

Senate trying to prepare main tax course

AUSTIN (AP) — Working with ingredients suggested by State Comptroller Bob Bullock and others, Senate leaders hope to prepare a main tax course early next week that the Legislature will accept.

On Monday, when senators and House members return from a long weekend, only nine days will remain in the 30-day special legislative session to write a balanced budget.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said Thursday he could not see any way out of raising the sales tax to 6 percent, but said other proposals have been "put in the pot to be considered."

With the House-approved tax on insurance premiums apparently dead in the Senate, Hobby said Bullock had proposed for discussion increasing — or accelerating — vehicle license fees and a $100 fee on sales tax permits, which now are free to businesses.

Hobby mentioned among other possibilities a surtax on corporate profits, a scaled-down version of the insurance tax, broadening the sales tax base to include services and an additional increase in the motor fuels tax above the 15 cent-per-gallon level which was passed by the House.

A penny increase in the gas tax would raise nearly $200 million over a two-year budget period.

Other tax ideas circulated in Bullock's office, and distributed by Hobby's aides, include a 10 percent across-the-board increase in all fees, which would result in a revenue gain of $351 million. Also, a natural gas tax increase of 1 percent would raise $137.5 million.

Asked why he thought other proposals would be better than a 6 percent insurance tax, which raised a storm of protest from industry representatives, Hobby told a news conference, "Nobody is going to like any of these proposals. It's just what's doable, what's passable."

But he added, "Any of these things are going to have great difficulty in passing, there's no question about that."

The House and Senate are in recess until Monday, but Hobby said Senate tax-writers would meet over the weekend — without taking any votes — in an effort to balance a proposed state budget being written by conference committee.

Work on a 1988-89 spending plan, as well as taxes to balance the budget, was carried over into a 30-day special legislative session because for the first time since 1961 lawmakers failed to adopt a budget in regular session.

A House-Senate conference committee working to resolve differences in the two chambers' spending blueprints is meeting, but lawmakers said they needed agreement from Hobby, Gov. Bill Clements and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

"Whenever they do that (agree on spending), then it becomes the most difficult of all tasks is how you raise the money," said Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, chief House negotiator.

The House-approved package of sales, insurance and motor fuels would raise an estimated $5.2 billion. Senators have talked about raising as much as $6.8 billion in new revenue, but the final figure depends on the total of the two-year appropriations bill.

The House spending proposal calls for $27.4 billion in general revenue-related funds, the Senate $28.2 billion.

Clements said Wednesday he would sign a $26.95 billion budget, but Hobby noted adopting a budget lower than that approved by either house would require a resolution.

"That's just like passing another appropriations bill. I don't think that's a viable alternative," Hobby said.

Hobby was asked why he seemed optimistic that the Legislature would adopt spending and taxing bills in special session, when it failed to do so in the 140-day regular session.

"Here it is in July, the fiscal year ends Aug. 31 — there is an impending sense of urgency. It's an old lawyer's saying that a lot of times you settle the suit on the courthouse steps when you can't settle it before. We're on the courthouse steps now."

Getting the wagon ready

Otto Mangold checks out his old Studebaker "butcher knife" wagon to make sure it's ready for another appearance in the annual Top O' Texas Rodeo Parade on Saturday morning. Mangold, who purchased the wagon in 1968, will be one of the entries in the parade that begins at 10:30 a.m. Saturday. The parade will form in the field west of Coronado Center and then proceed along Somerville, turn right on Hobart, then left on Ward to Francis, then right on Cuyler, disbanding beyond the railroad overpass.

Insurance industry works against premium tax hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The insurance industry, which mobilized to fight the House-approved premium tax, has turned its customers into effective lobbyists against the tax.

Sen. Kenneth Armbrister, D-Victoria, said his office recorded more than 400 calls against the 6 percent tax, while Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, said he got as many as 150 phone calls.

Gov. Bill Clements' office logged 1,000 calls on Monday, a direct result of the holiday weekend efforts by the insurance industry, which went to work after Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, surprised it by proposing the tax June 29.

"We conceded the House immediately. We knew we didn't have the votes," said Steven Hacker, executive vice president of the Professional Insurance Agents of Texas.

So the Senate became the battlefield. On July 2, the same day the House approved the premium tax, United Services Automobile Association, one of the state's largest insurance companies, put out an anti-tax letter to its 183,000 Texas policyholders.

Will Davis of Austin, an insurance industry lobbyist, said such mailings are easy to do. USAA policyholders also were sent a list of their lawmakers and their phone numbers.

"We felt an obligation to let them know, since they were going to pay the tax," said William McCrae, a senior vice president and general counsel for USAA.

Employers Insurance of Texas pitched in by asking its 23 district managers to contact the 20 largest policyholders in each district. The Professional Insurance Agents of Texas sent letters to its 3,300 members.

Dick Geiger, attorney for the Association of Fire and Casualty Companies in Texas, said insurance companies start out at a disadvantage in legislative battles.

"Nobody's got a great deal of sympathy for insurance companies in these halls. In fact, we're very largely disliked," Geiger said.

"But the people understand a very simple message, and that is the sales tax is going to increase your insurance costs by 6 percent, and people already perceive their premiums to be high," he said.

The industry mobilization apparently has worked.

"I can't pass that in the Senate in the form that it's in," said Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, chairman of the Senate tax policy panel.

Defense lawyer questions inmate's motives, credibility

BELTON, Texas (AP) — Jerry "Animal" McFadden's defense lawyer questioned the motives and credibility of a convicted murderer who testified about conversations he had with McFadden in a prison yard.

Vernard Solomon recalled prison inmate Kenneth Chastain, who earlier had told jurors that McFadden had talked about the slaying of a Hawkins teen-ager, and grilled him for two hours about his criminal record and his knowledge of McFadden's case before their prison yard talks.

Chastain denied his testimony was designed as a ticket out of the Texas Department of Corrections'

Eastham Unit, and said he had not made up any of the conversation he had with McFadden.

But he clarified Thursday that McFadden had not admitted killing 18-year-old Suzanne Harrison, even though he implied it.

McFadden is accused of the May 1986 strangulation death of Miss Harrison, whose partially nude body was found the day after she and two friends went on a lake outing. The three were reported missing that night.

Her friends, 20-year-old Gena Turner and 19-year-old Bryan Boone, were found shot to death 10 days later.

Time to stand up for rights

It is time that the citizens of Pampa and the surrounding Panhandle area stood up for their rights.

It has been about a month now since The Andy Griffith Show was taken off the air by the two so-called superstitions that are available in this area.

What has television come to? What has America come to?

We are force-fed Oliver North day in and day out and practically nowhere can we find a true American hero like Andy Griffith.

I do grant you one thing: The Andy Griffith Show is available once a week — Sundays at 8:35 a.m. on WTBS. But once a week is not enough.

Andy Griffith ranks as one of the best situation comedies ever put on television. A show with this much prestige should be made available at least twice a day.

Why? There are several reasons:

- ✓ Its wholesome nature.
- ✓ Its hilarity.
- ✓ Its depiction of Small Town, USA.

That's only three reasons, but, believe me, I could go on and on.

Like most people my age, I appreciate The Andy Griffith Show in re-runs. I was too young when it first hit the air.

The world changes every day, but this show remains the same.

How many of these scenes do you remember?

- ◇ Andy, Barney, Aunt Bee and Opie just sittin' around on the front porch.
- ◇ Andy and Barney getting locked in one of the courthouse's two jail cells.
- ◇ Barney trying to romance Juanita on the phone, only to be rudely interrupted by Opie or Andy.
- ◇ Barney's gun going off accidentally.
- ◇ Barney having to keep his only bullet tucked away safely in his shirt pocket.
- ◇ Phrases like, "Nip it in the bud," "Pipe down, will ya," "Sarah, get me my house," "Shazzam," "You beat everything, you know that?" "Goober says 'hey'" and "What did Calvin Coolidge say, anyway?"

Sitcoms have come and gone since the days of Mayberry, but, with all due respects to the late comic genius, Jackie Gleason, The Andy Griffith Show was the best.

After watching an episode of the show, it always seemed to me like I'd been to church.

In these days of trashy mini-series and suggestive sitcoms, The Andy Griffith Show, when it was

Off Beat

By Jimmy Patterson

on, was still the best show in the '80s.

Another thing about the show — no one has ever tried to imitate it.

Today, spin-offs are the norm on network TV, but not once has anyone tried to come forth with the second coming of Mayberry. That in itself is a supreme compliment.

If I was ever forced to name my single favorite episode of the show, it would be "The Haunted House," which first aired on Oct. 7, 1963.

"The Haunted House" is the one about Opie hitting his baseball in the old, abandoned Rimshaw place. Barney and Gomer are too scared to go in alone and retrieve the ball, so Andy saves the day — again. You probably remember it well, too.

Barney stole the humor in the show, always getting into fixes he could never get himself out of. Andy always got him out, of course.

As far as natural comedic abilities, though, here's a vote for Floyd, the barber. Floyd had that rare quality whereby you could just look at him and laugh. He didn't have to say a word.

Floyd, now deceased, suffered a stroke during his final years on the show. After that stroke, he is seen only sitting down or leaning up against something as half of his body was paralyzed.

If you would like to make your voice known, you need to write and protest the show's cancellation. And don't just write one of the stations, write both, at the addresses listed below:

WTBS Television, 1050 Techwood Drive, Atlanta, GA. 30318; Att'n: Programming

WGN Television, 2501 W. Bradley, Chicago, Ill. 60618; Att'n: Bob Schacher

Incidentally, a spokesman with WGN tells me complaints are taken into consideration and there have been several concerning the cancellation of Andy Griffith.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Expense of invasion changes Soviet tune

Mikhail Gorbachev is an artful propagandist, but it takes little skill to manipulate Western politicians and journalists eager to give him the benefit of every doubt. As 200 misguided Americans wander around the Soviet Union in the vain hope of promoting peace, the Great Communicator Jr. must be pleased by the latest reports suggesting he wants peace in Afghanistan.

Such hints are hardly new: They began seven years ago, a few months after Soviet troops invaded Afghanistan under Leonid Brezhnev. Since then, 1 million Afghans have been killed, another 5 million driven into exile, and thousands of children abducted from their parents or maimed by bombs disguised as toys.

Gorbachev's glasnot has brought about no change in his predecessors' genocidal tactics; why then should anyone believe that he has abandoned their strategic goals? The only real change is this: The Afghanistan adventure has turned out to be far more expensive for Moscow than anyone expected in 1979. Credit for that fact belongs to the Afghan freedom fighters and to the Western and Islamic powers that have armed them.

A Soviet Mi-24 aircraft costs $8 million. A shoulder-fired Stinger anti-aircraft missile costs $75,000. Since the Afghan resistance fighters began receiving Stingers from the United States last year, they have scored a success rate against Soviet aircraft of about 70 percent. Some observers calculate that the Soviets are spending 10 times as much on their occupation as the anti-communist powers are on the guerrillas.

What is the chance of driving the Soviets and their puppet regime out of Kabul in the near future? Virtually nil. If by some miracle that happened anyway, what is the likelihood that the freedom fighters would set up a Western-style democracy? Low.

Are the rebels worth supporting anyway? Yes. Their struggle for national independence has made it far less likely that Moscow will attempt similar invasions elsewhere, especially against Islamic countries. They have helped make the whole world somewhat more secure.

Afghanistan is the only place in the world where the strategy of arming anti-communist rebels has been constantly applied — though prospects of victory and sympathy for Western values exist in Angola, Mozambique, and, yes, even Nicaragua.

Underneath the cosmetic changes in the Soviet Union of late, little has changed, just as the underlying Soviet mission stayed the course through earlier versions of glasnot tried by Khrushchev, Lenin, and even Stalin. The handful of misguided participants in the Soviet-American peace march aren't likely to change the tide of history. A handful of resistance fighters has a much better chance.

Congress can't resist spending

"Balancing the budget is like going to heaven," says Sen. Phil Gramm, the Texas Republican. "Everybody wants to balance the budget, but nobody wants to do what you have to do to balance the budget." Gramm says he thinks that Congress must reduce or at least contain spending, as he has tried to do through his deficit-reduction law.

The prevailing thinking in Washington and beyond is that he's wrong. The real solution, we are told, is for Ronald Reagan to outgrow his childish allergy to new taxes. It was, after all, his 1981 tax cut that produced the deficits now plaguing us (estimated at $173 billion for the current fiscal year). Having enjoyed the binge, we now have the unpleasant obligation of paying for it.

Democrats on Capitol Hill depict their own $1 trillion budget blueprint as a model of the sensible compromise required to stanch the red ink. Besides boosting taxes by $19 billion and holding the Pentagon budget well below the president's request, it frugally restricts the growth of domestic spending to less than the inflation rate.

The idea of splitting the difference on the deficit makes perfect sense. The real cost of government to society is the total amount it spends, not the amount it collects in taxes. Running a deficit only disguises the burden; it doesn't ease it. So a compromise ought to be acceptable to those who want to reduce Washington's role. If Congress will agree to reduce spending in exchange for raising taxes, it will shrink not just the deficit but the government itself.

There's only one problem: It won't work. Congress is reluctant to give up any source of revenue once it has gone through the political pain of capturing it, but downright eager to restore funds for any program with a visible constituency. The result of any compromise is that the tax increases will stick, but the spending cuts won't. In fact, the new money can be used to justify higher spending still, leaving the deficit bigger than before.

This is not just a theoretical danger. It is the pattern of past "compromises." In 1982, Congress forced Reagan into a budget compromise that gave him $3 of spending cuts for every $1 of tax increases. A winning bargain for him — except the spending cuts never materialized and the deficit didn't decline.

The 1986 deficit, thanks to that deal, was supposed to be no more than $66 billion. It turned out to be $221 billion. The main reason is that Congress has repeatedly insisted on spending more than Reagan has requested. Taxes have risen as a share of gross national product since the 1982 compromise. But spending and the deficit have risen too. Domestic spending has risen by 33 percent under Reagan, defense spending by 80 percent. The latter is his real contribution to the deficit.

The demand that he agree to new tax increases overlooks all the ones he has already had to swallow. In fact, Treasury Department figures show that the tax increases that have taken effect over the past five years have fully offset the value of the 1981 tax cut. Social Security taxes will continue to rise, thanks to laws already enacted.

In revenue terms, Reagan has been forced to give up everything he originally gained and then some. His tax cut can no longer be blamed for the deficit. But the deficit remains.

That shouldn't be surprising. A recent study by the Joint Economic Committee looked at various tax increases since 1947 and found that far from reducing the deficit, they have consistently raised it. "A $1 increase in taxes," it found, "is estimated to lead to a 58-cent increase in the deficit, meaning a $1.58 increase in spending."

To eliminate the deficit, Congress doesn't have to take heroic steps to slash established programs. All it has to do is control the impulse to spend more.

Congress has deduced that the deficit is not really a subject of intense concern to the American people, at least as long as it's not rising. So instead of reserving new funds for balancing the budget, Congress finds new ways to spend.

The president has gone along with several tax increases, none of which got him anything. By now he should realize that another "compromise" on the budget will merely allow the opposition to escape the full blame for a tax increase while taking the credit for spreading more money around to their constituents. It's a losing game, and Reagan shouldn't play.

Float passes at just right time

The town of Fruitport is in Michigan on your way between Muskegon and Grand Rapids.

In Fruitport each year they have what they call an Old Fashioned Days Parade.

A backward glance at the community's happy times and a celebration of the town's accomplishments and assets.

One of those assets — North Ottawa Community Hospital — had a float in this year's parade displaying old-fashioned hospital equipment and some of the newest equipment. Linda Ross from the hospital was riding on that float.

As the parade turned down Fourth Avenue, it was going right by Linda's home.

And she was searching the crowd with her eyes hoping to wave to her tiny daughter.

Erin Marie Ross with other family members was expected to watch the parade.

So, as I say, Linda was watching carefully as the parade float approached her address.

But then suddenly she spotted her tiny daughter — in the crowd. The child appeared strange, pale and gasping for breath. Mr. Ross was at the curbside preparing to take snapshots of mommy on the float.

Paul Harvey

He had not noticed that the child was having difficulty breathing — apparently choking.

Linda Ross (she's 31) screamed toward her husband. Above the noise of the crowd he did not hear.

Then Linda called out to Roberta Hass, who was riding on the float with her.

"It's my baby; my baby's in trouble!"

And together they jumped from the moving float.

And ran toward the gasping child. Linda's had paramedic training.

Roberta is a registered nurse. Linda grabbed the child and turned her upside down.

Roberta then thumped on the child's back. Until — with a sudden convulsive movement — she coughed up the piece of hard candy that had been lodged in her throat.

Tiny Erin Marie has now fully recovered. It's strange.

That North Ottawa Community Hospital float was the most beautiful in the whole parade.

Really was.

Parade judges had made that choice earlier. The float had won first prize.

In the parade lineup — it was supposed to have been in the No. 1 position — up front — leading the parade.

But somehow for a reason nobody can explain, the parade order was scrambled, and that float was second from the last.

Except for the strange change — Linda Ross would have never been passing number 397 Fourth Avenue at precisely the right time.

Berry's World

Distance separates; hearts stay together

By Sarah Overstreet

The day I packed her belongings into the U-Haul, it was drizzling and she was crying. She was crying because she couldn't fit her grandma's kitchen chairs into the trailer, and because she was moving a 13-hour drive from the town she'd lived in for eight years, and from me, her best friend.

She didn't know what the future held, and she knew whatever it was, she'd be doing it without me just across town. I can be a very good ear, a calm, rational and comforting friend. So can she. We'd seen each other through the suicide of a parent, the breakup of a marriage, three excruciating love affairs, the quitting of a job without another one to go to, and a firing. (If we'd known what was facing us just in the next few months, we'd have both cried, and cried a lot harder.)

I tried to reassure her, because I wanted her to feel better and because I wouldn't admit to myself what her moving could mean. "We'll see each other, don't worry," I told her. "Thirteen hours isn't such a long drive, and we'll get those month-in-advance plane tickets for weekends." I put her kitchen chairs in my pickup truck to take home. "I'll have these refinished for your birthday and bring them out."

The chairs moved with me a year later, and sat in my barn for another two. The weekly phone calls dwindled to monthly. We saw each other once a year and tried to ignore the fact that what we had feared actually happened: We had passed from each other's physical presence, except for yearly visits, and those were hurried and unsatisfying.

Now it has been nine years since she left. I have spent my vacations sitting in her law office waiting, and she has grabbed a few weekends with me. We shopped for her maternity clothes on her lunch hour, and I was away from home when the call came that she'd had her baby after a long difficult labor and a C-section.

We are no different from hundreds of thousands of our generation, kids who had promised each other relationships would always mean more than things. We wouldn't be like our blue-collar parents, who grew up in the Depression and valued security above all, to whom friendship are a necessary casualty in the war for survival. That day in her yard, I honestly believed nothing could keep us apart.

Our careers took us by surprise and enflamed us before we even smelled smoke. She got a job in a small college library and started law school at night. I went to work as a newspaper reporter and found the license to discover secrets more intoxicating than anything I could have imagined. She felt the same way about law. A few extra hours here, a weekend there, meant the difference between winning a case or losing it, of getting a story or not. We never begrudged the time we spent at our work, but gradually our jobs became like marathons, the runners never seeing the scenery along one inch of the 26 miles they pass.

Personal events have made us need each other like we never have in our 17 years together: a new and trying marriage, the breakup of another, a birth. For the most part, we have gone it alone. At 35, we realize we are losing what was once most precious to us, the constant, abiding togetherness that made us stronger than we are singly.

But as the old saying goes, what doesn't kill me makes me strong. The pain of the last year has made me know what a thousand successes could have never taught me, and that is the value of a friend like her. And with the wounds fresh, I am hopeful. I have taken out my calendar and marked good weekends to visit her.

My game plan is to call her six weeks ahead of each weekend, set the date and buy a plane ticket. If she has to go to trial out of town that weekend, I will go with her.

She is formulating her own game plan, and I eagerly await it.

U.S. plans no retaliation for tanker attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials say the United States will not retaliate against Iran for attacking an American tanker in the Persian Gulf and say the incident shows the Navy should protect U.S.-flag vessels there.

No casualties were reported aboard the U.S.-owned Peconic, a 273,205-ton tanker attacked Thursday by an Iranian gunboat. The ship was hit with 18 rocket-propelled grenades 60 miles off Kuwait. There were no Americans aboard, and the vessel flew a Liberian flag.

While the administration "deplores and regrets" the attack on the Peconic, "we have no intention of retaliation," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

Nor will the attack cause the administration to delay its plans to reflag and start escorting 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers in mid-July, he said, but it "should strengthen our sense of urgency in seeking a U.N. Security Council resolution to end the war."

The reflagging, Fitzwater said, "is meant to demonstrate our commitment to the non-belligerent gulf states and hasten the end to the war."

Defense Department spokesman Robert Sims said that the attack on the Peconic "shows the risk involved to unescorted ships in the area.... It is certainly less likely that ships would be attacked if they are under military escort than if they are not."

U.S. warships escorting American-flag vessels have intercepted approaching Iranian patrol boats in the past and informed them that the merchant ships were not carrying war material to Iraq, and the Iranians have not interfered, said Sims.

Congressional critics depicted the latest Iranian attack as another reason to postpone by 90 days administration plans to reflag and protect the Kuwaiti tankers.

"I think the most recent attack is a serious warning, a serious attack that shows the kind of threat we are sailing into," said Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., chief sponsor of a non-binding resolution which urges that Reagan's plan be held "in abeyance."

The Democratic-controlled House split along party lines Tuesday in a 222-184 vote seeking the 90-day delay.

On Thursday, the Senate voted against ending a

GOP filibuster aimed at protecting the president's plans. The 57-42 vote was three votes short of the 60 required to invoke cloture, the parliamentary device used to end the Senate practice of unlimited debate.

Hours later, the Senate voted down, 56-42, an attempt to kill another measure that would have said no money could be spent to put U.S. flags and captains aboard Kuwaiti ships for at least 90 days after the bill became law.

Both votes were generally along party lines.

Meanwhile, state-run Tehran radio threatened more attacks, saying that the United States was "entering quicksands which will have more dangerous consequences than the U.S. military ever experienced in Lebanon or Vietnam."

Remains of Slovik missing

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — The remains of Pvt. Eddie Slovik were returned today to the United States from France, where he was executed by a firing squad for desertion during World War II, but were lost in shipment, the organizer of the repatriation said.

The remains failed to arrive as scheduled Thursday night at Detroit Metropolitan Airport on a Trans World Airlines flight from New York's Kennedy International Airport.

"These things happen every day," said Bernard Calka, a Polish-American Army veteran who organized the effort involving the only U.S. soldier executed for desertion since the Civil War. "That's the way I'm accepting it. It's one of those things. I certainly hope it turns up very soon."

"TWA thinks it might be in Denver or Dallas because of the code," said Calka. The three-letter codes used by airline freight handlers are DTW for Detroit, DFW for Dallas and DEN for Denver.

TWA air freight agent Richard Huff said the airline also was checking to see if the remains were unloaded in New York. "But unfortunately, New York is a large place," he said. "There's lot of places to check there."

Slovik was shot by a U.S. firing squad on Jan. 31, 1945, about a year after he was drafted. The 24-year-old Army private was buried in a numbered grave in France among the graves of 94 other American soldiers who were hanged for rape and murder during the war.

His remains were exhumed Wednesday, and burial was planned for 10:30 a.m. Saturday in Detroit next to the grave of his wife, Antoinette.

Slovik's trouble with authorities began when he was 12, growing up in the Polish enclave of Hamtramck. He was arrested for breaking and entering in a foundry.

Later, he was convicted of embezzlement from a drug store and sent to prison. He was paroled after serving six months, but was linked to a stolen car and went back to prison. He was paroled again, married in 1942 and drafted on Jan. 3, 1944.

Tighter control urged over Marcos after plot disclosure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Armed with dramatic evidence that Ferdinand E. Marcos plotted to return to the Philippines with an invading army, members of Congress are urging the Reagan administration to tighten its grip on the former Philippine president.

According to one angry congressman, Rep. Chester Atkins, D-Mass., Marcos should be locked up.

Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., wants to take away Marcos' telephone.

"The burden is now on the Justice Department to explain why it is not prosecuting, rather than why our hospitality has been extended to Marcos," said Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa.

The anger was voiced Thursday after the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asian and Pacific affairs released tapes of a series of conversations Marcos had earlier this year with two Virginia Beach, Va., businessmen who visited the former Philippine leader at his exile home in Honolulu.

Besides hearing the tapes, the committee was told that Marcos planned to purchase a 10,000-man army at $500 a head.

The businessmen, Robert Chastain and Richard Hirschfeld, told the committee they posed as middlemen in the deal to get Marcos the weaponry, and taped the conversations on their own initiative after they failed to get Justice Department backing for the caper.

Their motives, they said: patriotism and a desire to expose Marcos and prevent bloodshed in the Philippines.

In Hawaii, Marcos spokesman Arturo Aruiza said Marcos will not comment until he can talk to his attorneys.

In a frail, but clear voice, the 69-year-old Marcos, who fled to the United States after he was deposed in February 1986, was recorded as saying he wanted to buy anti-tank weapons, anti-aircraft missiles, mortars, recoilless rifles, infantry arms and enough ammunition for a three-month campaign.

The invasion was to take place in late June, according to Marcos' comments on the tapes, and current President Corazon Aquino was to be taken hostage but not be hurt.

Since Marcos came to the United States, there have been periodic reports of plots for him to return.

The latest revelations prompted the State Department last weekend to restrict Marcos to the Hawaiian island of Oahu. Abraham Sofaer, the department's legal adviser, told the committee that action was as far as the administration could legally go at the present time.

Wholesale prices up 0.2 percent in June

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose a modest 0.2 percent in June, with a moderation in food price increases partially offsetting fresh gains in energy costs, the government reported today.

For the first six months of 1987, inflation at the wholesale level was running at an annual rate of 4.5 percent, the steepest rise for a half-year period since late 1982. For all of last year, prices fell 2.5 percent.

Today's report, however, appeared to underscore contentions by analysts that inflation shows little likelihood of spiraling this year.

Indeed, subtracting the effects of volatile energy and food prices, the inflation index rose a minuscule 0.1 percent after faltering 0.2 percent in May.

As for June, gasoline prices one step short of the retail level were up 3.0 percent, reversing the May decline of 1.1 percent. Some analysts expect those prices to continue to rise in the coming months.

Food prices were up 0.5 percent, but that followed a 1.4 percent rise in May.

Retailers report strong June sales; oil prices up

By The Associated Press

Oil prices topped $21 a barrel as tension escalated in the Persian Gulf over an attack by an Iranian gunboat on a U.S.-operated supertanker.

In other economic news Thursday, the nation's largest general retailers reported mostly favorable June sales results, the dollar weakened and a survey showed a slight dip in consumers' confidence.

On the oil futures markets, contracts for August delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the U.S. benchmark crude oil, climbed to $21.23 a barrel in active trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, up 35 cents from Wednesday's close. Several companies announced increases in their posted price for West Texas Intermediate to $19.50 a barrel.

The dollar closed lower against most major foreign currencies Thursday but managed to close at more than 150 Japanese yen in New York for the third straight day. Gold prices were mixed.

A strong dollar could make American products more expensive and add to the trade deficit. But U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter told reporters a dollar valued at 150 yen, up from the level of the last three months, would not be "an impediment to further progress" in reducing the trade gap.

American consumers continue to express pleasure with the current state of the economy but have lost some confidence about future business conditions, the Conference Board said.

The board's Consumer Confidence Index stood at 102 in June, barely changed from 103 in May and higher than the level of 100 in the base year of 1985.

Direct evidence of consumer spending was found in retailers' June sales figures. Clothing sales were relatively strong in June but sales of more expensive lines, including appliances and televisions, were soft, said Monroe Greenstein, a retail industry analyst with Bear Stearns & Co.

President Chun Doo-hwan waves to well-wishers as he leaves the Democratic Justice Party's Central Political Training Institute in Seoul Friday after resigning as head of the ruling party. Looking on at right is Roh Tae-woo, Chun's handpicked successor.

Chun resigns as party leader after anti-government protest

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chun Doo-hwan today resigned as head of the governing party and said sweeping democratic reforms are "liquidating a shameful legacy."

Chun, a former army general who agreed to the reforms July 1 after weeks of unabating protest, retains the presidency of the South Korea until February. He announced his resignation as president of the Democratic Justice Party during a party meeting here.

The announcement came a day after more than a million people turned out in Seoul and the southwestern city of Kwangju to mourn a university student who died of wounds inflicted by police during an anti-government demonstration.

Since its founding in 1948, South Korea has been led by authoritarian rulers and has not had a peaceful transfer of power.

Kim Young-sam, head of the opposition Reunification Democratic Party, welcomed Chun's resignation, but called on the president to form a neutral caretaker Cabinet to ensure fair elections in the coming months.

Meanwhile, the Education Ministry announced today that about 600 students expelled in connection with anti-government protests would be allowed to return to school in September if university officials approve.

The ministry also said about 100 teachers dismissed from their jobs for political reasons could be reinstated if local school boards accept them.

In a 15-minute speech to the party leadership, Chun said he was giving up his party post to devote himself completely to his duties as president. "A new epoch of democracy is being ushered in," Chun said. "We are now liquidating a shameful legacy of the past and are opening a new chapter of democratic development and national harmony."

A new party president was not named immediately, but it was considered certain the post would go to Roh Tae-woo, the current party chairman. Roh is also the party's presidential nominee.

Chun had handpicked Roh, another retired general, to succeed him. Roh's election had been virtually assured under the electoral college Chun agreed to scrap as part of his concessions to the opposition.

Direct presidential elections are to be held later this year.

Thursday's crowd in Seoul was estimated at 1 million people, one of the biggest protest gatherings in South Korea's history. Violence erupted and police dispersed demonstrators with tear gas in the center of the capital as cries of "down with the military dictatorship" again were raised.

About 200,000 people jammed the streets of Kwangju when the motorcade bearing the body of the student, Lee Han-yul, arrived there from Seoul for burial in his hometown. Only minor clashes with police were reported.

Police said rallies and demonstrations protesting Lee's death had taken place in 23 other cities as well Thursday. They said 11 police stations were attacked, 26 policemen injured and two police vehicles burned in the protests.

De la Madrid winds up tour

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid wound up a four-day tour Thursday that has taken him along Mexico's border with the United States.

He was greeted in Matamoros, across the border from Brownsville, Texas, Wednesday night after stops since Monday in Tijuana in Northern Baja California state, Nogales in Sonora state, Ciudad Juarez in Chihuahua state and Piedras Negras in Coahuila state.

Tamaulipas state Gov. Americo Villarreal was among those present to welcome de la Madrid to Matamoros.

The president throughout the trip has emphasized the relative prosperity of the border region as Mexico struggles with the economic crisis that started before he took office in December 1982 and has dominated his term.

In Piedras Negras, he said Mexico and the United States should act energetically to avoid such tragedies as the death of 18 Mexican illegal aliens in a locked boxcar last week in Sierra Blanca, Texas.

The government news agency Notimex quoted de la Madrid as saying that he had ordered an investigation in depth into the tragedy and that anyone found guilty would be punished. "Mexico laments and disproves categorically of this type of traffic in human beings," de la Madrid said. "We are carrying out an investigation of the case in Mexico and we know that they also are doing so in the United States."

The president also reiterated Mexico's position that the human and labor rights of Mexican undocumented workers in the United States must be respected.

In Piedras Negras he also again addressed the situation of the fast-growing "maquiladora" or twin-plant industry that now vies with tourism as Mexico's No. 2 source of foreign exchange.

He said the industries must try to substitute Mexican-made materials for imports in their assembly lines because "an overprotected and inefficient industrialization sooner or later will sustain a crisis."

The "maquiladoras" are plants that make use of cheap Mexican labor to assemble products for export.

This week's tour took him to five of the six states that border the United States, missing only Nuevo Leon. The border states generally have the highest economic indicators in Mexico.

Rallies called referendum on military junta's rule

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Opponents of the military-backed government said today's rallies, a resumption of protest that left 21 people dead, amount to a referendum on the ruling junta.

A visiting U.S. official said Thursday that the National Governing Council, whose resignation is demanded by the organizers of last week's often violent general strike, still has Washington's support.

Richard Holwill, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, told reporters the government headed by Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy is "back on track" to guiding Haiti from dictatorship to democracy.

Holwill, who said he came to Haiti for a firsthand look at the situation, sidestepped questions about the government's short-lived attempt to take control of upcoming elections from an independent commission.

"The key fact to remember is they are back on track," he said. "We feel the best way out for Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy is to hold elections and turn the government over to whoever is elected."

Namphy has headed a three-man National Governing Council since President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier fled into French exile on Feb. 7, 1986. Duvalier's departure ended nearly 29 years of dictatorial family rule started by his father, Francois Duvalier, in 1957.

Elections for president and a bicameral National Assembly have been tentatively set for Nov. 27. Local elections had been set for July, then August, and have been pushed back to an indefinite date because of the unrest.

Holwill's visit coincided with hundreds of Haitians hearing a religious leader chastise the military during a memorial service Thursday for those killed during the strike.

"The Army is responsible for protecting life. They must learn that their role isn't to take life away," said Rev. Joseph Lafontant, the Roman Catholic auxiliary bishop of Port-au-Prince, in his homily.

About 1,500 people crowded into the Notre Dame Cathedral for the Mass and another 500 stood outside. The names of 21 victims of the violence — all but one reportedly shot to death by soldiers — were read during the Mass.

Afterward, about 4,000 people accompanied 21 small empty caskets labeled with the names of the victims in a mock funeral procession to a nearby cemetery.

The organizers of the strike and sponsors of today's demonstrations have proposed installation of a five-member provisional government including a Supreme Court judge, a human rights activist, an army officer and representatives of the Roman Catholic Church and the peasant sector.

Strike leader Daniel Narcisse said today's rallies will show that "the majority of the people don't want this government."

Another strike leader, Jean-Claude Bajoux, said, "If by Monday they don't accept (to step down), we will find other ways to oppose the government."

Aides to Namphy have said he has no intention of resigning.

Sheriff denies striking federal jailer

PECOS (AP)—Reeves County Sheriff Raul Florez denies he punched a federal jailer who later filed assault charges against him. "I deny it and I don't have any further comment," Florez, who was elected sheriff in 1976, told The Associated Press Thursday. The sheriff was arrested Wednesday after Law Enforcement Center Controller Eddy Markham filed a bodily injury complaint. Markham alleges the sheriff struck him Tuesday night at the federal minimum security prison, about 90 miles southwest of Odessa, that is operated by the county.

Florez, 49, is accused of going into Markham's office and hitting the jailer in the face with his fist, said District Attorney Jack McGowen. "I'm not going to try him in the newspapers," McGowen said, declining further comment. "I'll try him in court." Statements were taken from several witnesses by local police, but McGowen would not elaborate on the assault charge or what prompted the incident. Markham, who had worked under Florez as a deputy sheriff, also declined to elaborate on the incident, saying, "It would be improper for me to say anything, but I can tell you it was not an accident." Markham now reports directly to the county controller and the Commissioners Court. Florez was arraigned on the assault charge before Reeves County Court at Law Judge Lee Green and released on $500 personal recognizance bond, clerk Catherine Ashley said. In March 1986, the sheriff was sentenced to five years probation and fined $2,000 for falsifying his 1979 and 1981 income tax returns.

Man has diabolical problem with phone calls

GRANBURY (AP)—A man bedeviled with thousands of nasty calls because his telephone number ends in "666" says it has gotten so bad that he won't even let his wife play his answering machine tape. Pat Kirkwood said he has received up to 3,000 calls since spring 1986 wrongly linking him to satanic cults simply because the last three digits of his phone number are a biblical symbol of the Antichrist. "I can't let my wife run the (answering machine) tape. It's 30 minutes of obscenities," said Kirkwood, 59. Last month, he filed a $2 million lawsuit against seven Granbury residents following an investigation by the phone company, which traced several dozen calls to the community southwest of Fort Worth. "I've gotten calls saying I'm a satanic psychotic," said Kirkwood, a self-employed land appraiser who moved from Fort Worth to rural Granbury to escape the troubles of urban life. "Hey, I'm an instrument-rated pilot and a deep-sea fisherman. I haven't got time for satanic worship," he said. Other callers have threatened his family with sexual assault and death, he said. But he doesn't want to change the number because his home-based business might suffer and it would cost him $2,500 to tell customers of a new number. "They're effectively running (the Kirkwoods) out of town," Quentin McGown, the family's Fort Worth attorney, said of the callers. "The phone rings one call after another. I've never heard such language. They make all these statements about devil worship. I can't imagine someone in the 20th century making those statements." A New Testament reference links the number 666 to "the beast," or Antichrist. The 13th chapter in the Book of Revelation notes that "the beast" will be marked with the number. Some Granbury residents believe the callers are children, but Kirkwood said at least 20 percent of the calls are from fanatically religious adults. The rest, he said, are youngsters. "In the name of religion, people will do anything," said Kirkwood.

Landlord to serve time in own slum

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Beverly Hills neurosurgeon has been sentenced to wear an electronic device to make sure he obeys his court-ordered 30-day confinement in a vermin-infested apartment building he failed to repair. Dr. Milton Avol can have visitors and food brought to him in his building, which he rents to low-income tenants, but he will have to wear the so-called electronic leash on his ankle so authorities will know if he leaves. The doctor's 10-year record of building, health and safety code violations on his properties earned him the nickname "Rat Lord." "I will only permit you to go outside the building so you can assist in repairs to the building," Municipal Court Judge Veronica Simmons-McBeth said Thursday as she ordered the confinement to start Monday. She imposed the sentence, the first of its kind in Los Angeles, two years ago, after Avol repeatedly failed to improve conditions at four buildings he owned. It had been suspended during appeals. Avol's attorney, Donald Steier, maintains Avol has improved conditions at the building in which he will be confined. Avol claims vandalism ruined his efforts to upgrade his properties, and that tenants share the blame for conditions. Since being sentenced, Avol has sold all but the one building. Its problems include rodent infestation, missing or broken windows, lack of fire exits and deteriorating plaster. Tenants complain about mice and rats but say the building, in a crime-ridden section of Hollywood, has become safer since Avol installed locks and hired a security guard. "I killed six mice in one day," Jose Cavazos, who pays $450 a month for a one-bedroom apartment, said Thursday. The building's courtyard was strewn with soiled toilet paper, boxes and other garbage. Some windows were boarded up, and graffiti was scribbled on the walls. "I'm glad he's finally serving his time in this building," said Deputy City Attorney Stephanie Sautner. "It's still a slum building. It's infested with vermin and cockroaches, electrical problems, mildewed walls, faulty wiring." Confinement in the building is the second phase of Avol's two-part sentence. The first, 30 days in jail, was to end at midnight Thursday. Avol served most of that time in a sheriff's department lockup in Marina del Rey. He has been cited for more than a dozen criminal code infractions and hundreds of health, fire and building code violations since 1977. After pleading no contest to four health, building and fire code violations in 1983, Avol was placed on probation, fined $250 per count and ordered to repay $1,000 to the Department of Health Services for its inspection costs.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Faith and Freedom

There they are — two precious, and related, symbols!
The American flag is the traditional symbol of our cherished freedoms in these United States. The church-spire pointed heavenward and surmounted by a cross is the familiar symbol of our religious faith.

In our country, these two symbols and the realities they represent — Faith and Freedom — have always gone together. The founding fathers of our land were men of faith in God — remember George Washington on his knees in prayer at Valley Forge. That faith gave birth to and helped support the freedom which they sought and won and passed on to their descendants. That faith was written into our national Constitution and into the constitutions of the various states of the Union.

Still today, faith nurtures freedom. And the churches of our community are "factories of faith" — they constantly seek to instill, strengthen, and deepen faith in God in those who attend their services. Thus they help to maintain our heritage of freedom.

The church near you opens wide its doors each Sunday and through the week, inviting you to come and learn the truth of God from which springs human freedom. Go to the church of your choice this week and find faith — or find your faith in God deepened by your attendance and worship!

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32)

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond in that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Churches plan vacation school

First Christian Church and First Presbyterian Church are again joining together this year to sponsor Vacation Church School.

Assistant Director Carol Fields said the church school begins Monday and runs through next Friday from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. at First Presbyterian Church, Gray Street and Montagu Avenue. Church school is open to youngsters from age 3 through fifth grade.

Middle school and high school students from First Presbyterian and First Christian churches will be helping with the church school again this year and will also help deliver Meals on Wheels each morning.

Fields also invited the middle school and high school students to stay at the church for a class and sack lunch with the Rev. Darrel Cory, First Presbyterian's new minister of education and evangelism, following each morning's activities.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: The Lord is my shepherd, I shall lack nothing. He makes me lie down in green pastures, he leads me beside quiet waters, he restores my soul. (Psalm 23:1-2 NIV)

During the Great Depression, my grandmother and grandfather were very impoverished.

Toward the end of The Depression, they and their five children lived in an old, T-shaped house. It suffered from all the symptoms of poverty-induced neglect, and the exterior paint had long since been weathered off. Plumbing consisted of a water well and an outhouse.

Grandmother was a member of a home extension club and decided to enter a club yard-improvement contest. She couldn't afford luxuries like flower seeds or seedlings, so she collected a variety of plant cuttings from friends and family members. In order to obtain one group of cuttings, Grandmother carried her youngest toddler two miles because the sand was too hot for a child's bare feet.

She planted the cuttings around the house and watered them with water she carried in buckets from the well. Without spending one penny, Grandmother won the yard-improvement contest with the exquisite flowers that adorned the weather-battered, drafty, old house as though it were a palace.

Through the years, Grandmother endured many hardships, including continued financial difficulties. When she was old and sick herself, she nursed my grandfather, who died a little piece at a time over a period of several years.

Grandmother had few luxuries and pleasures, but she always had her beloved flowers.

As she got older, she was afflicted with a degenerative eye disease that drastically impaired her sight and a heart condition that sharply limited her activity. Still, she worked in her yard and produced the flowers she enjoyed so. She could often be found early on summer mornings crouched on the ground manuring the grass around the flowerbeds with household scissers.

For the last several years of her life, Grandmother suffered from melancholia because she was so limited in what she could do. Her flowers seemed her only joy. The summer she died, she had tended roses and nurtured hydrangea blooms as big as dinner plates.

Through a lifetime of need, hard work, worry and despondency, God stilled and restored one woman's soul through the charm and loveliness of His floral creations. And I thank Him.

Rev. David Cory

First Presbyterian employing education, evangelism minister

First Presbyterian Church of Pampa has named Rev. Darrel Cory, a native Pampan, to be its minister of education and evangelism for the next six months.

Cory, 34, the son of Bob and Grace Cory, 1814 Charles, will be responsible for developing strategies for church growth and will serve as a resource person for the church's Christian Education Committee. He also will fill the pulpit in the absence of Rev. Robert Graham, First Presbyterian's interim pastor.

A 1971 Pampa High School graduate, Rev. Cory was most recently pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Tulla.

His job in Pampa will last six months. Cory said he is currently looking for a permanent call.

"It's really great," Cory said about returning to Pampa. "There have been sufficient changes in the congregation that this isn't really the same church I grew up in."

He said Pampa also has changed significantly since he left in 1971.

"But it does bring home the aging process very acutely," he added.

Cory was ordained after attending Austin Theological Seminary. His main pastoral interests are pastoral counseling, Christian education and evangelism.

As minister of evangelism, Cory said he is working with a new church committee dedicated to church growth. He said he hopes to strengthen the group so that it may work with whomever is chosen as the church's new pastor.

In working with the Christian Education Committee, Cory said he is here for the committee to use his skills and talents wherever the committee sees fit. Part of his Christian education work involves helping with Vacation Church School, beginning next week at the church, located at Gray Street and Montagu Avenue.

Bars can't confine prison ministry

By KELLEY SHANNON
Palestine Herald-Press

TENNESSEE COLONY, Texas (AP)—A delicate stained-glass window in the background, Marvin Pearson stands proud in his blue robe as he raises his arms to direct the church choir.

The group bellows out a gospel tune, and the 200-member congregation looks on with obvious approval.

Such a scene is common each week in churches throughout the nation. But this is no ordinary church.

The choir director is a 39-year-old prisoner serving a 50-year murder sentence. And his chorus is comprised of 27 other inmates of the Coffield Unit, one of the largest prisons in the Texas Department of Corrections.

This particular service was part of a lay witness revival held this winter at prisons throughout the United States.

Sixty-eight volunteers from various Texas cities came to Coffield to visit with inmates and to talk with them about God. The experience was a new one for some of the lay people, who had never before been inside prison walls.

"I was looking forward to it, but I was still nervous," said volunteer Pete Blockham of Grapevine. "Before I became a Christian, I wouldn't have done it."

The men visited with inmates in their cells, played chess with them in day rooms and ate with them in the prison dining hall. To some of the prisoners, the visit was merely a chance to talk with someone from the outside world.

But to other inmates—many of whom have devoted their lives to God since coming to prison—the revival weekend was an opportunity to strengthen their beliefs.

It also was the culmination of weeks of preparation by a group of inmates who planned the chapel service and musical arrangements and advertised the event with the help of three prison chaplains.

Some of those Coffield inmates say their devotion to God is the way they plan to avoid returning to a way of life they knew before prison.

A Coffield inmate for 11 years, Pearson, of Houston, became involved with prison chapel work nine years ago. After he is paroled, Pearson hopes to work with a ministry in the outside world.

"You have so many disadvantages when you're released from prison," he said, adding that his religious beliefs will help him better deal with life.

The laymen coming into the prison proved that people do care about the inmates, many of whom have come from uncaring families, Pearson said.

"Inmates take notice of things like that," he said. "It shows that God does love everybody—regardless of what you have done or where you are from."

Pearson said he was brought up going to church, but eventually strayed from it. But shortly before he was sent to prison, Pearson said, he decided to devote his life to God.

Since then he has felt differently about his life, even though he is confined to prison.

"I'm actually free," he said. "I'm happy. I'm not happy to be behind bars, but I'm happy."

Other inmates involved in prison church work echo his sentiments.

Ruben Morales of El Paso was convicted of sexual assault. He has been a Coffield less than a year.

Before his conviction, Morales said, he went to church, but mainly did so to please his wife. Often, he fell asleep during the services or did not listen to the sermons.

"I know there was something missing inside me," he said. "I was bad in spirit... I committed that because I was wrong with drugs and alcohol. I was not myself."

Larry Dickerson of Dallas, a Coffield inmate for three years serving a burglary-of-a-habitation sentence, said he had been to churches of various denominations throughout the years.

The Burress family

Community Christian Center's pastor to begin duties Sunday

Community Christian Center, 801 E. Campbell, has announced the arrival of its new pastor, Richard Burress, who will be taking over the pulpit Sunday.

Burress will be moving to Pampa with his wife Betty, their daughter Sundi, 4½, and son David, 2.

The Burresses are moving here from Victoria, where they were active in the Joy Fellowship Church.

Burress is a licensed minister with the Full Gospel Evangelistic Association. He studied for pastoral duties and children's ministry at Midwest Bible Institute at Houston.

He has experience in youth ministry and choir directing and also was an associate pastor at Laverne, Okla.

Burress plays standard and bass guitar, trumpet and piano. He and his wife also sing together.

Congregation members state, "We feel that the Burresses are going to be a great addition to our community and a blessing to our church."

Religion Roundup

NEW YORK (AP)—A Moscow rabbi says a new Soviet law encouraging self-employment will permit private teachers—including teachers of Hebrew—to hold classes in the Soviet Union.

Rabbi Adolph Shayevich of the Chorale Synagogue in Moscow cited the new possibility at a breakfast for Jewish leaders given by Manhattan Rabbi Arthur Schneier, president of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation.

Shayevich, the only rabbi among a group of Russian Orthodox churchmen on a visit to this country, also said there was official "warm response" to plans for a kosher restaurant in Moscow and he hoped it would be open by year's end.

He said another positive development was permission granted by Soviet authorities for importation of 5,000 copies of a Hebrew-Russian Pentateuch air-shipped by the foundation.

Schneier said the interfaith foundation, which works for religious rights around the world, also has received permission to send 5,000 copies of a Russian-Hebrew prayerbook to the Soviet Union.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

Saturday, July 11, 1987
You will have greater success in the year ahead with projects or ventures in which you are presently involved than you will with new ones. Stick to your guns, because your efforts will not be in vain.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Investment proposals must be carefully screened today. What sounds good in theory may not play out when reality comes into the picture. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard against making important decisions under pressure today. What you agree to now might not be to your best advantage in the long run.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something you should take care of today might be brushed aside. If this occurs, someone who is counting on you will be disappointed and even a bit angry.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Avoid socializing today with an individual who comes on too strong in order to impress others. People displeased by this may tar you with the same brush.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) No home is big enough to house two strong-willed monarchs. Someone will have to yield a little ground today if harmony is to prevail.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be able to drive your points across today, but that doesn't mean they'll be well received. How you present your case will determine the outcome.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial indicators are very tricky today. If you're careless, a loss could be suffered through a friend or even a group with which you're involved.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) People with whom you have dealings today will have long memories for either good or ill. Be sure you treat everyone equitably.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Brace yourself today. You might have to contend with some responsibilities that are not of your making, yet conditions may select you as the fall guy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Steer clear of questionable associations today. You could be drawn into a compromising situation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be honest with yourself regarding your motives when doing things that could affect others. Only virtuous intentions will stand up under today's aspects.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is apt to be more talk evident than muscle today pertaining to something in which you're involved with others. What needs doing may not get done.

Tote bag amuses kids on trips

By BETH COTTEN

I'll never forget our first long car trip when the children were small.

It took us approximately three days to pack the car; every time we managed to fit in all the stuff, there was no room left for us.

Then we spent several hours back-and-forthing in the driveway, each near escape foiled by a forgotten necessity, another trip to the bathroom, or a nagging doubt about the thermostat or iron.

We finally did get underway. I was thrilled at the moment, but shortly thereafter became very thankful it would be no longer than a day and a half in the car with the kids. No one had prepared me for the chaos.

If you think that dealing with restless, antsy kids in the house on a rainy day is difficult, multiply the insanity by a factor of 10! To survive, it is crucial to have something for the little ones to do at any given moment.

Before our next outing, I made sure I was ready. One of the items that has continued to make car travel more pleasant is a unique, easy-to-assemble fabric tote bag. The tote not only holds necessities at hand, but it entertains the kids as well. Removable picture squares on one side are the basis of an easy travel game for a wide range of ages. When a nap is in order, there's a pillow sewn onto the other side.

You can produce a bag like this for your next car trip, in just an afternoon or two. For more details than provided below, you may order our step-by-step plans. They include full-size patterns for the game squares plus a materials list and complete illustrated instructions.

Another easy travel project you might enjoy making is our jiffy backpack with full-size patterns for the flap decorations.

To order plans for the travel tote, specify Project No. 2640; or for the backpacks, specify No. 2605. Send $4.95 for either plan, or save a dollar and receive both for only $8.90.

Mail to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008-1000. Add $2.95 for a catalog, featuring $16 worth of coupons.

To make the travel tote, I used a yard of canvas and 3/4 yard of calico for the lining. Cut a 13 x 28-inch piece from each of the fabrics.

Fold the tote piece in half widthwise, right sides together, and stitch a 1/2-inch-wide seam along each side edge. Leave the top open, and press the seam allowance to the wrong side around the top. Repeat for the lining.

Turn the tote right side out but leave the lining inside out. Slip the lining inside the tote, matching side seams, and pin the layers together around the top.

Cut two 3 x 24-inch canvas straps. To prepare one strap, press the seam allowances to the wrong side along each long edge, then fold the strap in half lengthwise, wrong sides together. Topstitch close to each long edge.

Sandwich the ends of the straps between the tote and lining layers, on opposite sides of the bag. Topstitch around the top of the bag, securing the lining and straps.

Stitch and stuff a rectangular pillow and topstitch it to the back of the tote bag.

The 12 game squares depict things commonly seen along the roadway: a fence, a bridge, a house, a traffic light, a stop sign, a train, truck, flowers, chicken, sheep, horse and cow.

Each game square consists of front and lining pieces, cut 3/4 inches square. Draw and-or paint a picture and caption on each front piece, leaving a 1/2-inch allowance along each edge.

Sew the front and lining right sides together, leaving one edge open. Clip the allowances and turn right side out. Press the allowances to the inside along the open edge, and whipstitch or topstitch closed.

Attach the squares to the front of the bag using nylon fasteners or large snaps. To play the game, start with all the squares attached to the bag. When a player sees one of the items, he or she calls it out and is given that game square.

When all the squares are gone, or when a time limit is reached, the person with the most squares wins. But you win every time, because there's peace in the car!

Make-it-yourself tote bag is a travel game and car pillow, too.

Good behavior pays off for paroled rapist

DEAR ABBY: I am so angry I can hardly see to write this. I believe in justice, mercy and forgiveness, but now I'm reading that it's "unfair" to further punish a person for a crime after he has paid his debt to society — referring to the monster who raped a teen-age girl, chopped off her arms with an ax and left her for dead in a ditch.

The person who committed this crime was sentenced to 14 years in prison, served only eight years, and then, because of a "flawed law," was released for "good behavior."

What kind of legal system would allow a person who had committed such a terrible crime to be returned to society? The man is now living in a trailer at San Quentin Prison, protected by two parole agents at the cost of $1,350 a day to ensure his safety! Officials had tried to place this convicted rapist-mutilator in several northern California communities, but none would have him. (Can you blame them?)

I resent my tax money going to protect this man; he is either insane and belongs in a mental institution, or he should be returned to prison to rot.

How do you feel about this? And what can be done about it?
OUTRAGED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR OUTRAGED: I, too, am outraged. Although it is too late to do anything about this particular case, the quickest way to get this law changed is to write a letter to your state senators and assemblypersons, as well as to the governor, stating your feelings about this "flawed law" and demanding that it be changed to one that more appropriately fits the crime.

DEAR ABBY: Shame on you, Abby, who prides herself on using words correctly. Re the lady who complained that her husband wanted sex only twice a year, your comment: "Your husband thinks sex is a biannual celebration."

A paper published twice a week is a semiweekly. One published every other week is a biweekly. Abby, please give that poor guy credit for a performance four times in two years — not just once. My golly, you don't give him as much credit on this sex business as does his wife.

VERN SCOFIELD, LINCOLN, NEB.

DEAR MR. SCOFIELD: No shame on me. According to The Associated Press Stylebook, "biannual" means twice a year and is a synonym for "semiannual." However, "bimonthly" means every other month, and "biweekly" means every other week. "Biennial" means every two years. ("Semimonthly" means twice a month; "semiweekly" means twice a week.) And right now I have an Excedrin headache.

DEAR ABBY: "Mother of One" writes that she is very happy with just one child, but she wishes people would quit nagging her to have another child. They say she is being very "unfair" to raise her son without a brother or sister. Oh, really? Mary of Nazareth had only one child, and from what I hear, he turned out pretty good.

H.R. SENGEBUSCH, LOMBARD, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I had to chuckle when I read the letter from "Hurt," whose partner made an untimely comment concerning a utility bill while they were making love.

Allow me to relate a similar incident that happened to me. It was class reunion time, and my husband and I were working on our class floats. The night before the parade always finds classes working right through the night. Jim and I had scooted home to steal a few hours of sleep before getting back for the parade. Glad to have a few moments to ourselves after so many hectic days, we were soon enjoying ourselves completely. In the middle of all this intimacy, my husband pipes up and asks, "What size chicken wire does your class use for tissue stuffing on your floats?"

Needless to say, the mood changed instantly — but not to one of silence as "Hurt" related in her letter. We both broke into a whole-hearted laugh! Am I to assume that Jim loves me any less because his mind was elsewhere? Not on your life! This incident is among our funniest memories.

By the way, we've been married for 19 years. Ours was a marriage that everyone said would never last because we were so young (I was 17 1/2 and he was 19), but it's been truly wonderful, and I look forward to growing old together.

LUCKY MARY IN SPRINGFIELD, VT.

Magazines help with research, offer prizes in writing contests

Single issues of the Genealogical Helper Magazine may be purchased for $4.50 from Everton Publishers, Inc. P.O. Box 368, Logan, Utah 84321.

If you do not subscribe to this magazine, you might like to purchase the May-June issue as it contains a list of family associations with names and addresses of the leaders. A second listing for family periodicals includes the title, address and subscription rate.

This is an excellent source to find others interested in the same surname. The average cost seems to be $10 per year for a quarterly publication.

The forthcoming September-October issue will contain a "Directory of Professional Genealogists" and might help you decide if you want to hire someone to do research for you. The directory is divided into geographical as well as special interest groupings.

If you are interested in Indian Research, Quaker Records, or Heraldry, for example, check that topic for a professional researcher. Naturally, it is better to hire someone that is interested in that topic of research.

Rates vary, therefore it is important to request the charges prior to hiring the researcher. Ask the fee for the research, and whether the fee includes travel, copies and postage.

Would you like to win a round trip to Salt Lake City? Enter Genealogy Digest magazine's Historical Writing Contest and that might be your prize.

Entries must be submitted by Jan. 31, 1988 so you have plenty of time and a choice of five categories: (1) Finding the Missing Link, (2) War Stories, (3) Poetry, (4) A Story Biography of and (5) My Famous Ancestor

You may enter in each category, and your work must be historically correct with sources. Sounds exciting. For more information, write: Historical Writing Contest, Genealogy Digest, 25 North 200 West, Bountiful, Utah 84010.

Rotary captures City Bambino Tournament title

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

It has been said that it's not over 'til the fat lady sings.

This one, though, is over, but I didn't see anyone singing.

Unless, of course, you count all the members of the American League's Rotary, their coaches and parents.

Thursday night, Rotary brought to an end the 1987 Pampa Bambino City Tournament, defeating once upstart O.C.A.W., 9-6.

The fifth inning was the damaging one for O.C.A.W., winners of three consecutive in as many days, as Rotary scored its final three runs for its 9-6 margin of victory.

Rotary batted around in the fifth as Jason Brantley started things with a lead-off walk. After advancing to second, Brantley scored on Garrett Scribner's single. That RBI was the official game winner for Scribner as Rotary went ahead 7-6.

A single by Dave Davis then scored Scribner and Jason Stone scored from third providing the ninth and final run as O.C.A.W. pitchers had walked the bases loaded.

O.C.A.W. jumped out to an early 6-0 lead in the first two innings and it looked like it might be another rout for the team that had suddenly come alive in the tournament.

With Chris Gilbert on base following a lead-off single and Will Winborne receiving a free pass, Greg Moore stepped to the plate and pounded O.C.A.W.'s eleventh tournament home run. O.C.A.W. took a 3-0 lead.

In the second, O.C.A.W. struck for three more runs as Gilbert and Winborne each drove in runs on back-to-back doubles. Moore's second hit in two innings—a single—brought in Winborne for the team's final run.

After O.C.A.W.'s seemingly insurmountable lead going into the third, Rotary put to a grinding halt the once powerful Purple Hitting Machine. The final four innings saw O.C.A.W. go hitless. Only five more batters reached base—two of which were hit by Jason Brantley pitches.

Rotary—the only team to go undefeated in the tourney—started off its scoring in the second when Brantley got the first of his two doubles on the night. He came home following a throwing error on O.C.A.W.'s second baseman. Dave Davis drove in his first run of the night scoring Norbert Ybarra who had reached base on a walk.

In the Rotary half of the third, Dustin Dunlap had a lead-off double and Joey Mendoza reached base on a walk. Brantley's second double scored both runners and Brantley himself scored on a passed ball.

If there was a "Gutsy Player of the Game Award", it would have been given to Rotary's Joey Mendoza. In the third, Mendoza was struck in the head by a pitch.

Stunned only briefly, Mendoza got up and ran to first before coaches and umpires had a chance to see if he was OK.

Then, in the fourth, Mendoza was tagged out in the face trying to score from third on a throw from left field. If that weren't enough, in the fifth, Mendoza tried to avoid being hit by a pitch. As he tumbled to the ground, he fell on his bat, which struck him in the chest. Mendoza was hitless on the night, but scored a run and reached base on two walks and after being hit by the thrown ball.

All tolled, for Rotary, Brantley went 2-for-2, knocked in two runs and scored three; Dustin Dunlap had a double and scored a run; Dave Davis had two singles and two RBI; Garrett Scribner had a single and an RBI and Cameron Black had a single.

For O.C.A.W., Greg Moore had a homer, single, three RBI and scored a run; Chris Gilbert had a double, single, scored twice and knocked in a run, and Will Winborne added a double.

Brantley was the winning pitcher. He allowed no hits, walked three, and hit two. Eight of the nine possible outs in the three innings Brantley pitched came as a result of his strikeouts.

It was O.C.A.W.'s second loss of the tourney. The first one was also at the hands of Rotary, a 5-4 loss last Thursday.

Rotary, a team that finished fourth in the AL regular season race, finishes the year being crowned tournament champs.

Delvecchio takes bull riding lead

A cowboy from the Big Apple and a cowgirl from the Sooner State turned in two of the most impressive performances Thursday at the opening night of the Top O' Texas Rodeo. Bobby Delvecchio of The Bronx, New York, scored a 7.2 to take the lead in the bull riding event while Betty Roper of Okla., Okla. was the only one to crack the 18-second barrier in the barrel racing.

Delvecchio, who has been featured in Sports Illustrated because of his journey from the New York sidewalks to the rodeo arena, is currently ranked ninth in bull riding by the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Close behind Delvecchio with 7.1s were Texans Reno Livingston of Megargel and Tom Messick of Blackwell.

Roper, who earlier won the Arkansas Futurity, known as the world's richest rodeo, had a 17.62 to take command of the barrel racing. Jami Massey of Lookaba, Okla. was second in 18.09 and Kay Boyles of Cohoma, Tex. was third in 18.12.

In saddle bronc riding, Mike Merchant, currently ranked No. 15 by the PRCA, was in the lead with 72 points.

Ben Rogers of Pampa was second with a 67 while Dan Ray of El Dorado was third at 66.

In the calf roping competition, the little doggies were elusive critters as five contestants failed to score and another was penalized for crossing the barrier.

Tommy Smith claimed the lead with a 8.2 clocking. Chad Boggs of Cyril, Okla. was second (9.1) and Gary Dean of Hammon, Okla. was third (10.2).

Mike Carrillo of Snyder was first in bareback bronc riding with 78 points, followed by Phil Smith of Magnolia, Ark. with 77 and Chris Guay of Blue Ridge with 75 points.

Midland cowboy Butch Bode came out on top in the steer wrestling during the regular performance with a time of six seconds. Keith McKinney of DeQueen Ark. and Ed Wright of Stephenville followed with respective times of 6.6 and 6.9.

Ranch Branding, a new amateur event at the Pampa rodeo, may have been the toughest of all the competition as the first two teams failed to rope their animals during the two-minute time limit. Kenneth McCasland's team had the best time of 53 seconds while Olen Douglass' team were runnersup at 60 seconds.

Performances continue tonight and Saturday night, starting at 8 p.m. at the TOT Rodeo Arena, located in Recreation Park east of Pampa.

Jones, Thomson tie for Senior Open lead

By CHRIS DAHL
AP Sports Writer

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Aches, pains and health concerns of varying degrees are playing an important role in the U.S. Senior Open.

Coming off arthroscopic knee surgery just two weeks ago, little-known Gordon Jones was tied for the lead with Australian Peter Thomson, a five-time British Open winner, after the opening round.

They both shot 5-under 66s Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over former NFL quarterback John Brodie.

Both leaders were one stroke shy of the tournament-record 65 shot by Miller Barber in the final round to win in 1982. Their scored matched defending champion Dale Douglass for the Senior Open's lowest opening-round score.

"I'll crawl up and down the course if I have to," declared the 57-year-old Jones, who hurt his left knee bending over a putt at the Vantage Chrysler Invitational in mid-March. "If I make the cut, I'll finish the tournament."

Chi Chi Rodriguez, Doug Sanders, Larry Mowry and Gene Borek were two strokes off the pace at 68 going into today's second round of the $300,000 tournament.

A group of seven players, including Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, were at 69. One player who found the going too tough was Charles Owens, 57.

Owens was severely disabled in a parachuting accident in 1952 while serving in the Army at Fort Bragg, N.C., but the United States Golf Association steadfastly declined to bend or change its rules to allow him to play with a golf cart.

Playing in protest of the rule that prohibits the use of carts in championship events, he limped through nine holes and was forced to withdraw when he could no longer climb the steep inclines on the par-71, 6,599-yard Brooklawn Country Club course.

He used crutches to get up the hills on holes 3, 6 and 8. After putting out on the ninth hole he limped over to the bench at the 10th tee, took a sip of water and decided to withdraw.

The sweltering heat and humidity was also expected to take its toll on golf's older set again today.

Ailments aside, the seniors combined for 22 sub-par rounds to break an Open record set last year.

Thomson, 57, who won nine tournaments on the Senior Tour two years ago but none last year, scrambled to a bogey-free round.

Jones birdied the eighth and ninth holes, parred the 10th and then strung together five straight birdies to take an early lead.

His 30 on the back nine tied a Senior Open record set in 1985 by Richard King.

Brodie, who hasn't won a tournament in his first two years on the Senior Tour, made a 25-foot putt for eagle on the par-5 eighth hole and finished his round with three straight birdies.

Indians down Rangers

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — After a high fly fell in front of him for a double that scored the last of three third-inning runs, Texas right fielder Ruben Sierra tried to catch the next ball hit his way.

Instead, Julio Franco's single got past him and rolled to the wall for a two-base error and another run, and Cleveland went on to beat the Rangers 10-4 Thursday night.

"I tried to go harder at the ball, but I was too late because it started sinking. The wind was tricky," Sierra said.

Joe Carter, who got the third-inning double against Sierra, came back in the ninth inning with a bloop single that fell in shallow left field, scoring the final two runs of the night.

"I hit the ball high and got lucky. You have to be lucky to be good," Carter said.

Texas manager Bobby Valentine said, "We didn't play the wind very well. They hit it in the right spots. We should have caught some of those balls."

Another fly sailed over center fielder Bob Brower's head after he misjudged it. It was Chris Bando's double that started Cleveland's comeback from a 2-0, Texas lead.

Texas left fielder Pete Incaviglia was charged with a two-base error in the fifth after he ran a long way to catch — and then drop — a drive by Cory Snyder. On another occasion, a Cleveland pop fly fell uncaught along the first base line.

Doug Jones, 3-1, was the winning pitcher for Cleveland. He came in for starter Scott Bailes in the fifth inning. Texas starter Jose Guzman, 6-8, gave up nine of Cleveland's 11 hits before leaving in the eighth.

Guzman was charged with a wild pitch and a balk, and catcher Mike Stanley was charged with a passed ball.

Andrew McCall of Pampa displays national medals.

Pampa youngster wins USA acro-gymnastics crown again

Andrew McCall of Pampa faced his toughest challenge ever at the ACRO-Gymnastics national meet this year, but he wasn't about to relinquish his crown in the double-mini event.

Because of his national ranking, 12-year-old Andrew was moved up into the 13-14 age division, but the stiff competition hardly fazed the nimble youngster.

"I knew moving into the higher age group would be a little tougher, but the double-mini is my best event, so I figured I would win it," Andrew said.

The Pampa Middle School seventh-grader was the defending champion in the event. He was ranked No. 1 nationally throughout the year.

Andrew was also third in power tumbling, fourth on the trampoline and fifth in synchro-trampoline at the nationals held in Rockford, Illinois. Only two-tenths of a point separated the top six finishers in the power tumbling event.

Andrew is used to competing against older gymnasts. At the state meet in Andrews this year, he swept the double-mini, trampoline, power tumbling and synchro-trampoline events.

Andrew didn't get involved in acro-gymnastics by accident.

His father, John, had taught the sport in Midland and it was only natural that Andrew would become interested.

"I was about two or three years old when I started," Andrew recalled. "When we moved here they only had a girls' team, so I went to Nard's (Amarillo gymnastics school) and was on the team there for a couple of years."

Andrew used to play soccer and baseball, but the time element became a factor and he was forced to drop both sports to concentrate on acro-gymnastics. Andrew does hope to play football next season because morning grid practices will not interfere with his afternoon workout program. He goes through his various routines on a backyard trampoline.

Andrew hopes to stay active in the sport for several years to come.

"A lot depends on how healthy I stay," he added. Although Andrew works hard at acro-gymnastics, he's not obsessed with it.

"I don't take it as serious as some people might think," Andrew said. "It's just a hobby to me."

Andrew, however, is serious enough to begin preparations for the World Championships, which will be held next year in Lubbock. This year's world meet was held in Paris, France, but Andrew's finances wouldn't stretch that far. He depends largely on donations to help pay the way to gymnastics meets. To help pay those expenses, Andrew has gone into business for himself selling the Sidlinger Trampoline. Interested persons can call Andrew at 685-7852 for more details.

Doran's blast lifts Astros over Mets

Smith records mound victory

HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Doran did three things with one swing of the bat.

He gave the Houston Astros a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets, he fulfilled a longtime fantasy and exacted a bit of revenge for being passed over as one of the reserves for next week's All-Star game.

Doran's two-out homer in the bottom of the ninth broke a 3-3 tie and allowed the Astros to defeat the Mets.

The Houston second baseman said he had fantasized for a long time about hitting a game-winning homer in the bottom of the ninth and never had been able to do it.

"I've seen other guys hit home runs to win games in the last at-bat of the ninth inning but I've never done it in the major leagues," Doran said.

"I don't hit enough home runs to be thinking home run in that situation. I was just thinking about getting on base."

The homer came only hours ater Doran learned that New York Mets manager Dave Johnson didn't select him as one of the reserves for the National League All-Star team so the homer gave him a bit of revenge.

It was Doran's 11th homer of the season and provided reliever Dave Smith with his first decision after he had converted all 15 of his save opportunities this season.

Mets reliever Randy Myers, 1-4, says the loss was his fault because he pitched a fast ball out over the plate to Doran. "I've gotten guys out before on that pitch," Myers said. "He had to hit it good. It's my fault. If I did the job we'd still be out there playing."

The Astros picked up two unearned runs off of Mets starter

John Mitchell with errors by second baseman Tim Teufel and catcher and Gary Carter allowed Jose Cruz and Doran to score in the second and fourth innings.

"Cruz ran us into a run and Billy ran us into a run and of course got the homerun," Houston manager Hal Lanier said. "(Jim) Deshaies pitched a heck of a game."

Houston starter Deshaies was sharp through eight innings with seven strike outs. Then Smith was roughed up in the Mets ninth by a fielder's choice RBI from Kevin McReynolds and a single from Howard Johnson which tied the game.

"Smith has picked us up a lot," Doran said. "It's time someone came along and picked him up."

Johnson says the Mets are having trouble with one-run games as they are only 16-16 in winning one-run games.

"Everytime we hook up with these guys its a great game," Doran said. "Both teams have a lot of respect for each other, and have a never say die attitude."

The Astros' Glenn Davis beats the tag by Mets' catcher Gary Carter.

Former Pampa coach should be in line for WT hall of fame honors

FROM THE NOTEPAD: We only got to visit about an hour but, sports fans, I believe you are going to like new school Superintendent Dr. Harry Griffith. He is a sports fan, knows sports, understands its role in public education, and brings promise of better times ahead for local fans. He was even out with some local hotshots "hooping it up" in pickup basketball action in a steamy-hot McNeely Fieldhouse.

We told you he did an excellent job, and now the Football Writers Association of America has recognized the fact by presenting a citation to WTSU sports information director Doug Simpson for that effort. Congrats, Doug!

It was wonderful to see Sherry, oldest daughter of the late great coach Joe Kerbel, along with her husband George and three sons, on their way to see the musical Texas, in which she starred 22 years ago. "Dad would have been really proud and happy," said the gal with her Dad's bubbling personality. "He has six grandsons and two granddaughters, so far!" And I'll guarantee her three look just like Grandpop.

When the Canyon school gets around to starting its Sports Hall of Fame shouldn't the first two inductees be Joe Fortenberry, basketball great and captain of the United States' first Olympic Basketball team, also champions, and Odus Mitchell, former Pampa HS head coach, who earned 16 letters while a student at WT Normal? And Kerbel, already in the Panhandle Sports HoF, should be close behind.

"Without a doubt, the biggest adjustment a player has to make coming out of high school or college in the Major Leagues is the switch from the metal to the wood bat," says Bobby Winkles, former Arizona State star-developer, former major league manager and now Montreal coach.

Just got to thinking that the Panhandle economy may be down because we're 15-cents poorer with all three of the basketball-coaching Nichols brothers gone: Lonnie, from WTSU assistant to Everman HS; Garland from Pampa to South Garland; Greg, from Canadian HS to Coalgate, Okla.

Enhancing it's stature as a great athletic conference, the Southeastern Conference had 29 senior basketball players this past season and 15 were drafted by the NBA.

Former WTSU and Dallas Cowboy star running back Duane Thomas is reportedly about to receive his master degree, studying in California. Theatre, maybe?

Here's a scary one. A just-released 1986 poll taken by the National Education Association reveals that one in six teachers is assigned to a subject he or she hasn't been trained for, up from a similar 1981 survey. Warns the NEA: "When you misassign a teacher, you're saying to the young people that they're not going to have access to expertise" in a subject. The same is true in coaching and other extracurricular programs. Perhaps when the Pampa School Board fills it's about-to-occur vacancy, it will also look hard at the misassignment problem, not just in the classroom but in several sports events, too, correcting problems there which have done nothing but indicate to the youthful but eager participants that the school has no interest in their chosen activity.

Clifton McNeely called and inquired if the FOUR state championship trophies his teams earned back in the 1950's had been found yet. Sorry, Coach, but there doesn't seem to be much concern in the school system about them, disgraceful as it is.

Is it true that no Amarillo radio is planning to carry WTSU football this fall, as of now?

And is it true your and my favorite sportswriter uses the telecasts of Arena Football to put him to sleep?

Texas A&M's shotputter Randy Barnes has announced he will forego his junior year of eligibility to prepare for the U.S. Olympic Trials. Pampa's Randy Matson, who won the gold medal in that event at Mexico City, is really excited about Barnes talent, but must be disappointed he interrupted his education. Matson didn't, and also threw in a season of collegiate basketball.

Aren't you disgusted, too, that the Texas Rangers would even consider signing drug-problemed Steve Howe. Wonderful example for the young Ranger fans!

Yes, I agree that professional athletes shouldn't necessarily be held to higher standards. But what's wrong with expecting them to at least reach the level of moral character and law respect of the vast majority of Christian Americans?

Brooks Jennings, athletic director at Clovis HS and father of Bubba (who will be part of the Robert Hale basketball camps later this month) is a new inductee in the Eastern New Mexico Greyhound Hall of Fame.

No, the Sheila Echols named to the all-state women's track and field team in Louisiana is not the Pampa newswoman. This one is a junior at Louisiana State.

McNeely says he'll even pay for construction of a trophy case to house those four state championship awards, since the school system and athletic department aren't willing to do so.

Former pro gridder faces four-year prison sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — A former University of Houston and Kansas City Chiefs football player faces a four-year prison term for violating his probation on a drug offense.

State District Judge George L. Walker on Thursday revoked the eight-year probation of Warren McVea, who tested positive for cocaine a few days after completing a drug rehabilitation program in May.

Despite the four-year sentence, McVea probably will serve only 30 to 45 days in the Texas Department of Corrections because he gets five days prison credit for each of the 154 days he served in the Harris County Jail, said his attorney, Jerry Bonney.

"His intention is to get more treatment," Bonney said.

Bonney said McVea would not agree to take part in an 18-month to two-year drug rehabilitation program the attorney had set up for him and decided Thursday to acknowledge before Walker that he had violated his probation.

"He didn't want that because it was too long," Bonney said. "He decided he wanted to get it over with and just plead guilty. I was totally against him pleading guilty today, but that's what he wanted."

McVea, 40, a former running back for the Kansas City Chiefs, was placed on probation and fined $4,000 in February after pleading guilty to possession of cocaine.

Within a few days of his release, he was back in jail for allegedly violating his probation. On April 6, he agreed to go through a treatment program in Austin, which he completed and returned to Houston.

But after failing to appear in court to talk to the judge about his employment and living situations, a warrant was issued for his arrest.

Broyles, Williams returning to Tri-State Senior tourney

Last year's champion Jake Broyles of Lamesa and runnerup Jack Williams of Plainview are returning to the 53rd annual Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament.

Broyles has won the tournament twice while Williams won the title in 1982, but both should be challenged by some younger contenders this year.

"We're going to have some new low handicappers entered this year," said Tri-State Secretary Floyd Sackett. "It should be an interesting tournament."

Broyles is 62 years old while Williams is 57.

The 36-hole tournament tees off July 22 and ends July 25 with stroke play in all flights.

Golfers will register July 19-20 and practice rounds are scheduled July 20.

Serving as Tri-State president this year is Dr. Joe Donaldson of Pampa.

Past champions of the tournament are as follows:

- 1935 — B.F. Holmes, Shamrock.
- 1936 — Bob Skaggs, Clovis, N.M.
- 1937 — Bill Gallacher, Carri-zozo.
- 1938 — Bob Skaggs, Clovis, N.M.
- 1939 — Bob Skaggs, Clovis, N.M.
- 1940 — Byron Clancy, Carter, Okla.
- 1941 — John Payne, Edmond, Okla.

Prosecutor says Deaver's desire to make money was a motive for him to lie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael K. Deaver's desire to make money was a "powerful motive to lie" to Congress and a grand jury about his lucrative lobbying business, the prosecutor in Deaver's perjury case says.

Deaver knew that truthful answers to questions about whether his lobbying posed ethics law violations could hurt his career, independent counsel Whitney North Seymour alleged in court papers filed Thursday.

The former top aide to President Reagan lied to frustrate investigations that threatened the "bonanza" he sought from the proposed sale of his lobbying firm for $18 million, Seymour said.

Deaver is scheduled to go on trial Monday on charges he lied to a House subcommittee and the grand jury that conducted the investigations.

Deaver's attorney, Randall Turk, declined to comment Thursday on Seymour's allegations.

The former deputy White House chief of staff is not charged with violating the Ethics in Government Act. But Seymour said "the proof at trial will show that all the surrounding facts suggested Deaver engaged in numerous potential violations of the statute" by contacting former Reagan administration colleagues on behalf of clients.

"Deaver thus had the most basic of motives to commit perjury: by denying the contacts with government officials, or by pretending not to recall them, he could deflect or frustrate the investigators' inquiry," Seymour said.

The prosecutor said Deaver lied to prevent "exposure of his ability to earn large sums of money by getting access to well-placed friends and former colleagues from making a few telephone calls."

Seymour said that "admitting that he was merely peddling 'access' would have resulted ... in embarrassment to himself and to his friends."

In its brief, the prosecution asked U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson to admit evidence of Deaver's motives to lie.

"The desire of the defendant, who had left government (and a $75,000-a-year salary, which he had complained repeatedly was inadequate) to capitalize on his ties to the administration, supplied yet another powerful motive to lie," Seymour said.

The investigations threatened lobbying contracts "that yielded millions of dollars of income for relatively little work," Seymour said.

One-year contracts with the government of Canada, TWA and Philip Morris were about to expire when Deaver testified before the House Energy and Commerce oversight subcommittee chaired by Rep. John D. Dingell, D-Mich., Seymour said.

TWA and Philip Morris both signed $250,000 lobbying contracts with Deaver after he left the White House in 1985.

"We intend to argue to the jury that the only way Deaver could achieve exoneration in the eyes of his clients was to commit perjury," Seymour said.

Senators reach accord on Japan retaliation trade bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japan would come under stepped-up U.S. pressure to lower trade barriers under a newly minted accord among senators over retaliatory provisions of their sweeping trade bill.

"It may go fairly easily and be something that could go through fairly quickly," Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., said Thursday as leaders reached a tentative agreement that would resolve the last of the toughest disputes that have faced lawmakers in the three-week trade debate.

The agreement surfaced after the Senate first defeated 60-40 a move to drop major, union-backed plant-closing provisions from the bill. The Senate then reversed earlier action and voted to broaden presidential leeway to turn down import curbs recommended as a way to help American companies.

The Senate also rejected 53-39 a $400 million annual ceiling on retraining funds for workers left jobless by import competition. The plan was urged by Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo.

Agreement on how to retaliate against foreign trade barriers capped a month of bargaining between Sens. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., and John C. Danforth, R-Mo., aimed at winning stepped-up-retaliatory provisions while heading off a filibuster that could torpedo the bill.

Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., told lawmakers he hoped disagreement over a few words would not wreck the bargain at the last minute.

Riegle had been planning to push for a provision similar to the dollar-for-dollar retaliation against foreign trade barriers built into the House version of the bill at the urging of Rep. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo.

However, senators doubted there was enough support in the Senate to win approval for "Son of Gephardt," which has drawn more fire from the Reagan administration than any other trade provision.

Senate sources who asked not to be identified said the new measure would require the president to identify countries with "a consistent pattern" of trade barriers and distortions. They said it would require the president to negotiate an end to the practices or retaliate against them.

Under the measure, the president would lack the leeway to reject retaliation "in the national economic interest" unless the barriers were legal under the 93-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The provisions could apply to a number of nations adjudged to maintain unfair trade practices, but the sources said the proposals clearly were aimed at Japan, whose trade practices have been a focus of Senate debate for three years.

A major turnabout in the debate came Thursday night when the Senate reversed itself and, in two swift actions, eased presidential latitude to reject import curbs prescribed by the U.S. International Trade Commission to protect U.S. companies from being hurt by foreign competition.

The Senate adopted an amendment offered by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., to allow the president the flexibility to turn down curbs if the burden would fall disproportionately on the poor. It then approved a similar measure sponsored by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, that would apply to restraints harmful to the interests of farmers.

Many lawmakers are.

He noted that some senators had talked about a plan — which the chamber's tax chairman said already is dead — to place a tax on business income. He said he asked how many would support such a plan.

"Not one hand went up. Not one," Clements reported.

"So let's get the right message across. The people of Texas do not want higher taxes. The business people of Texas, the business community of Texas, do not want a corporate income tax. Let's settle down and really talk about what's going on around here."

Clements also continued to focus his criticism on the Senate, which has approved a $39.5 billion two-year budget that would require about $6.7 billion in new taxes.

As Senate-House spending negotiations continue, Clements said, senators need to take action to resolve the deadlock.

"The Senate's got real problems," he said. "They've been over there, kind of out of sight and out of mind, issuing a lot of edicts about this, and what they'll do and what they won't do. And the ball's kind of in their court."

Governor: More taxes absolutely wrong

AUSTIN (AP) — A big tax increase is "absolutely wrong" for Texas in these economically troubled times, Gov. Bill Clements says.

Following a meeting Thursday with business leaders in Houston, Clements returned to the Capitol with what he said was a message legislators need to hear.

"It's wrong for the people of this state for this Legislature to sit here in isolation and put taxes on the people of this state that are having such a difficult time in this economic-distressed period," Clements said.

"That's just wrong. The working people of this state do not want more taxes. They just don't. The Legislature has got to get this message sooner or later."

Clements, who on Tuesday raised the specter of another special session if lawmakers can't write a balanced budget before the current one expires July 21, said he doesn't understand why lawmakers aren't getting the message.

"I would hope that you all (in the news media) would start carrying that message to them," said Clements, who repeatedly has vowed to veto any tax increase larger than $2.9 billion.

The governor said his meeting with 70 to 75 business leaders in Houston showed how out of touch

Exotic experiences all in a day's work

By KATHY JACKSON
Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) — Animal control officer Pam Burney of North Richland Hills laughed as she answered a call she knew had to be a prank. A horse was reported stuck in a tree.

But when she arrived at the address given to police dispatchers, there it was. A horse. Stuck in a tree.

After being jabbed in the hind-quarters by a vaccination needle, the horse had jumped squarely into the middle of a V-shaped tree.

"The horse was just terrified," Ms. Burney said. "We were afraid he was going to suffocate, so we had to saw off half the tree. Then he just stayed there like, 'Well, what do I do now?'"

In an occupation where the unexpected is almost routine, a horse stuck in a tree shouldn't have surprised Ms. Burney. On another call, she once confronted two large — but seemingly friendly — Himalayan black bears.

Although the job often can be dangerous, animal control officers say there is a lighter side to coming face-to-face with jaguars, monkeys, tigers, sharks — and what was described as a vicious cocker spaniel — in the wilds of the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

"Every day is a new experience," said Tom McDougald, environmental health officer for the city of Farmers Branch. "It's frightening sometimes, and you run the gamut of emotions."

Said Abe Tuggle, animal control supervisor for the city of Garland: "You just don't realize what you get into as an animal control officer."

One of the most memorable calls Tuggle said his department received was from a hysterical woman who claimed she was pinned inside her home by a vicious cocker spaniel. When animal control officers arrived at her home, they did find a cocker spaniel on the woman's front porch. But it was ceramic.

"That was hysterical," Tuggle said. "I guess it looked real enough and she thought it was. And it wouldn't let her out of her house."

Mike Linderman of Richardson's animal control department also has a cocker spaniel story.

"We were called and told that a cocker spaniel had jumped onto the roof of somebody's brand-new car and wouldn't let anybody get near it," Ms. Linderman said. "He had scratched the paint on this very expensive car."

No one could figure out why the dog had taken up residence atop the vehicle, she said.

Animal control officers in Plano last year were called to a residence where a woman had discovered a four-foot shark in her swimming pool. The dead fish was placed in the pool as a joke, said Gary Masters, animal control supervisor.

Tuggle of Garland recalled an incident several months ago in which a man who worked with a traveling show was cited for boarding a bear, a lion, a tiger, a monkey, a jaguar and two leopards in his Garland home.

But Garland is not the only city that has had a problem with bears. Ms. Burney of North Richland Hills said police dispatchers once received a call that a man was keeping two 8-foot Himalayan bears in his garage. Of course, everyone thought it was a hoax.

"I knocked on the door and this man answered and I said, 'I hate to bother you, but we got this call that you've got two bears in your garage,'" Ms. Burney said.

When she saw the man's face, she said, she knew it was true. Sure enough, inside the man's garage were two Himalayan black bears.

"They were HUGE bears," Ms. Burney said. The man, she discovered, was an animal trainer.

Ms. Burney said she and her employees have adopted a tomcat that for three years foraged in a dumpster behind a local McDonald's restaurant. The cat, dubbed Oscar Ray Leonard, goes "berserk" now whenever employees bring in a sack of food from McDonald's, she said.

"He would stand up and beg like a dog," she said.

The cat also is talented, Ms. Burney said. Whenever he is given a bath, he blows bubbles out his nose.

Tim McLemore, an animal control officer in Farmers Branch, recalls the night several years ago that he was roused from sleep by a police dispatcher who had received a call from a woman claiming there was a seven-foot snake in her house.

Figuring it was just another exaggerated snake story, McLemore, 25, got out of bed and drove to the woman's house.

"I went out and knocked on the door and she hollered at me to come in," he said. "When I came in she was on the dining room table, and a boa constrictor was lying there on the floor."

"Most of the time when we get calls on snakes, people exaggerate. But she wasn't exaggerating at all."

The woman, McLemore said, had awakened around midnight and gone into her kitchen to get a glass of water. When she turned on the light, she saw the snake by her refrigerator. "She was hysterical," McLemore said.

McLemore said he was more than a little taken aback himself. After being bitten by a water moccasin when he was 18, he is leery of snakes, he said.

"It takes a lot for me to go out and deal with snakes. It scared me to death, too."

The snake, McLemore said, may have gotten into the woman's house through a pet door. The reptile's owners were found the next day, he said.

McDougald, the Farmers Branch director of environmental health, said he once was called upon to remove a duck from the attic of a home in the Brookhaven area.

"This lady called and said she did not know how this duck had gotten in her attic but it had been there for several days," McDougald said. "She asked if we could help her."

Using a pole with a hook, McDougald captured the frightened animal and then set it free.

Police and animal control officers in DeSoto and Glenn Heights last week chased two buffaloes that had broken out of a pen in front of Buffalo Bill's Western World after someone startled the animals by setting off fireworks.

One of the buffaloes rammed a Glenn Heights police car before apparently finding love after wandering into a pasture with several cows.
