

North wins concessions to testify in public

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, the central figure in the Iran-Contra scandal, will break his silence and tell his story to the nation beginning July 7 under an agreement with Congress

The testimony of North, the fired White House aide who appears to be behind virtually every move in the elaborate deal that sent arms to Iran and aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, was ensured Wednesday after his lawyer accepted a letter of intent from the congressional investigating committees' top counsel.

Conclusion of the agreement, which lays out terms for North's appearance before the committees, ended a week-long standoff that had raised fears the panels might never hear from the man who apparently has the broadest and deepest knowledge of the affair.

'I'm delighted an agreement has been struck,' said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House investigating committee. "I look forward to Colonel North's testimony.

The committees were scheduled to hear today from Charles Cooper, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel, who was a primary figure in the department's initial investigation of the Iran-Contra matter last November. Some have criticized that probe as too slow to prevent North from shredding documents and as designed to protect the president rather than get to the facts.

In other developments, former CIA general counsel Stanley Sporkin, in testimony before the committees, defended the decision not to notify Congress of a Jan. 17, 1986, presidential intelligence "finding" authorizing the arms-forhostages swap with Iran.

But Sporkin's testimony about his understanding of the law governing notification of Congress about such findings clearly troubled some panel members

"This testimony of yours makes clear that we have to completely revisit this act," said Rep. George Mitchell, D-Maine. Sporkin is a federal judge

The House Intelligence Committee is considering legislation that would clamp stronger requirements on the administration for reporting covert actions to congressional oversight committees.

Canadian 'looking forward' in its centennial celebration

CANADIAN — Residents here will celebrate their first 100 years by looking toward their second 100 years with a July 4 festival that will include a hot air balloon race, a rodeo and a turtle race.

The July 4th Rodeo, only one year younger than Canadian and said to be the "world's first rodeo," opens the weekend festivities with a July 2 performance 7 p.m. at the Canadian Rodeo Arena.

The Friday performance, which also begins at 7 p.m., will be followed by a dance featuring top Amarillo progressive country band the Clyde Logg Band at 9 p.m. at the city auditorium.

Balloon race co-ordinator Dr. Malouf Abraham said the race, which features 10 balloons, should spread across the northeastern Panhandle and finish in time for the 10 a.m. parade.

Theme of the parade is "Looking Back - Looking Forward," and organizers expect floats to have either an historic or a futuristic theme. Trophies will be awarded in eight categories, including classic cars, riding clubs, horse drawn wagons, individual equestrians, all-terrain vehicles and floats. Entries for the parade are still being taken at the chamber office, 323-6234.

More hot days and wet nights to dominate weather patterns

Pampa residents are in for more hot days and wet nights, savs KGRO staff meteorologist Darrell Sehorn

Pampa received an official 0.44 inch in a 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. today, bringing the June total to 3.14 inches and the year total to a "well above normal" 15.85 inches, Sehorn said.

The normal rainfall for June is 3.30 inches, and Sehorn expects Pampa to top that topight.

'We'll have more of the same. he said. "We'll have hot humid days and cap it off with storms. It will probably rumble most of the night

Sehorn said the area rainfall averaged about half an inch.

The storm knocked power to various residents in north Pampa and in the rural area north of Pampa for nearly three hours Wednesday

Charles Williams, supervising engineer for the Pampa Southwestern Public Service office, said a broken jumper line at 23rd and Evergreen streets caused "spot power outages" from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

'I can't say which homes were out and which homes weren't." Williams said, adding that the outage knocked down power in the "north rural area" which extended to the Pickens and Wiley Reynolds ranches north of Pampa

'We usually look to see if a transformer blew," he said. "Then we started working back to see what it was. We did have one burned transformer, but we got it back on."

Showers and thunderstorms pounded the northwest corner of the state early today, and scattered showers fell in the Panhandle and South Plains.

The rain developed ahead of a weak cold front that stretched across the Panhandle, the National Weather Service said. The showers and thunderstorms also began spreading into parts of north central Texas

Heavy rain and thunderstorms also fell in southeast Texas and the upper Texas coast. The rain formed in the moist gulf air along a trough of low pressure which stretched across the area

Whatever happened to Reagan's balanced budget?

By TERENCE HUNT AP White House Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - "And what of the longpromised balanced budget? Well, we are still waiting," Ronald Reagan fumed.

The words sound like part of the verbal rockets Reagan has been firing at Congress recently over its tax and spending policies. However, that was a complaint voiced nearly seven years ago by Reagan as a candidate attacking then-President Jimmy Carter.

Now, after almost seven years in office, President Reagan is guilty of the same failure he pinned on Carter.

The budget is not close to being balanced and the deficit is far bigger under Reagan than it ever was under Carter - or any other president, for that matter.

AP Analysis

And for all his rhetoric about the evils of deficit spending, Reagan has never submitted a balanced budget to Congress. The $1 trillion plan he offered last January still would leave a $135 billion deficit next year.

"With the budget deficits that we've had, there is no way that you could balance the budget in a single year without causing great damage and harm to people that you don't want to hurt" such as farmers, Reagan explained in a speech this week.

But back in 1980 when he was running for president, Reagan made it sound like it would be easy to wipe out the red ink quickly

He said he could balance the budget by 1982, even while pumping up Pentagon spending by billions of dollars and taking revenue from the Treasury in tax cuts. Economic growth would eliminate the deficit, Reagan promised.

"Voodoo economics," chided George Bush, who was then a rival for the GOP nomination. He later joined Reagan's team and converted to Reaganomics

Back in 1980, Reagan blamed Congress and the White House equally for the deficit.

Now, he says it's all the fault of Congress, even though Republicans ruled the Senate for the first four years of his presidency and helped enact.

SMU president claims all sports are under scrutiny

DALLAS (AP) = SouthernMethodist University's new president says he is pushing an investigation of possible rules violations in all sports on campus, but he doesn't have enough evidence to present to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

A. Kenneth Pye also said he believes a United Methodist bishops' report on the SMU football scandal paints too negative a picture of involvement by top university officials

"I still don't have enough, in my judgment ... to make a formal statement to the NCAA," Pye said Wednesday, referring to the investigation of other sports. But, he said, "if we do get to the level, and I believe it (will), then it goes to the NCAA.

Pye was interviewed by two Dallas newspapers and a television station. The former Duke University law professor and chancellor is scheduled to become SMU president Aug. 17.

NCAA officials have said if any other major violations in athletic programs turn up at SMU - and if the violations occurred after August 1985, when SMU was placed on probation — those programs will be vulnerable to the so-called death penalty. The NCAA invoked the punishment against SMU's football program Feb. 25, canceling the 1987 football season and imposing other restrictions.

SMU subsequently dropped football for the 1988 season.

"I want to find out whether there's anything that is in violation of any NCAA rule that is going on or has gone on that involves any student athlete or any employee of the athletic department," Pye said. "I will report it immediately to the NCAA.

Pye said possible violations have been found in a program other than football, but he would not say which sport. The Dallas Times Herald, in a copyright story Wednesday, quoted sources as saying that SMU investigators are looking at basketball, track, tennis, golf and other athletic programs.

The newspaper reported investigators have questioned most of the SMU basketball team and their high school coaches. The players' parents are also being interviewed, the newspaper said.

The bishops committee report released Friday said three school officials helped cover up the role of Gov. Bill Clements in condoning continued payments to SMU football players

But Pye said the actions of interim President William Stallcup, former board of governors Chairman William Hutchison and university counsel Leon Bennett should be viewed in the context of their service to SMU

In his first public comments about the report, Pye said: "I don't have any question that the substance of the report is accurate."

But he said some parts of the 48-page report are unfortunate.

"I have a remarkably high opinion of what Bill Stallcup has contributed to the university, and the courage he displayed at age 66 to volunteer the time and talent to keep the institution together," Pye said.

He praised Hutchison for advocating changes in the leadership structure and in submitting a long-range report on athletics.

Of Bennett's knowledge of Cle ments' involvement, Pye said: 'How he responded was governed by the attorney-client privilege. To suggest he is somehow suppressing information seems to be unfortunate.

Clements, responding to the bishops' report on the SMU football scandal, denied knowledge of an alleged cover-up of illicit payments to football players.

many of his economic policies.

Campaigning for president, Reagan blamed Carter for running up four straight deficits and said that when Carter left office, he would have 'made the greatest single contribution of any president to the national debt.

That legacy now belongs to Reagan.

When he moved into the White House in January 1981, the national debt was $935 billion. Six years later, it has more than doubled, standing now at $2.28 trillion

The debt is projected to reach $2.7 trillion by the time Reagan leaves office.

The record on the deficit is just as bad. In Carter's last full year in office, the fiscal 1981 budget deficit totaled $78.9 billion.

In the next year, under Reagan, it climbed to $127.9 billion and then soared to $207.8 billion the following year. The deficit dropped back to $185.3 billion in fiscal 1984, jumped to $211.9 billion in fiscal 1985 and hit a record $220.7 billion in fiscal 1986. The government estimates it will be $173.2 billion in fiscal 1987.

The Gramm-Rudman law, passed by Congress and signed by the president in 1985, called for cutting red ink to $108 billion in fiscal 1988 as an interim step toward a balanced budget by fiscal 1991.

The Democrats say the $1 trillion fiscal-1988 spending plan approved by Congress Wednesday would leave a deficit of about $134 billion. That's slightly below the deficit in the budget Reagan proposed.

Initial step taken in impeachment process

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements probably would never have been elected if his role in the Southern Methodist University football scandal had surfaced during the 1986 campaign, says a legislator who wants Clements impeached.

Rep. Paul Moreno, joined by Rep. Al Edwards, Wednesday filed a resolution calling for an impeachment investigation. It is the first step in the lengthy impeachment process.

"I feel that the governor deceived the voters of the state when he was seeking election. Had this thing come into being (during the 1986 campaign), Gov. Clements would not be Gov. Clements right now. He would probably be in jail," said Moreno, D-El Paso

The resolution introduced by Moreno and Edwards, D-Houston, calls for a seven-member House committee to look into Clements' role in the SMU payfor-players scandal and determine whether impeachment proceedings should be filed.

Clements has said he knew of improper payments to football players while he served as chairman of the SMU board before taking office in January. He has dismissed impeachment talk as political rhetoric.

It would take a majority vote of the Democratic-controlled House to create the special committee, which, in turn, could make recommendations to the House, which brings charges in impeachment proceedings.

The Senate then acts as a jury. Reggie Bashur, Clements' press secretary, Wednesday said there is absolutely no foundation for impeachment.

"It's ridiculous. It's absurd. It's preposterous. It's a two-bit publicity stunt," he said of the Moreno-Edwards resolution.

But Moreno said the evidence indicates, "The governor of the state of Texas conspired to break rules and make a mockery of ethical behavior."

Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox is conducting his own investigation of Clements' role in the SMU affair.

A Methodist bishops' report released last Friday indicated Clements participated in a cover-up of the payments that led the National Collegiate Athletic Association to ban football at SMU this year.

"The governor's credibility has been damaged extensively. And I believe that he cannot continue serving in the office as governor of the state of Texas," Moreno told a news conference.

The Texas Constitution sets up the impeachment format but is vague on specifying impeachable offenses. Moreno and Edwards said Clements can be impeached for his role in the SMU scandal even though it happened before Clements took office. Moreno said Clements can be removed from office by the Legislature for personal. conduct that amounts to unfitness tohold office.

The resolution's fate is unclear. It will be referred to a committee by Speaker Gib Lewis, who has said lawmakers should not get involved with impeachment proceedings during the current special session - called by Clements to deal with the state budget crisis.

If removed from office, Clements would be replaced by Democratic Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, whose father became governor in 1917 when lawmakers impeached Gov. James "Pa" Ferguson under indictment for embezzlement.

Tax bill ewis: pass

AUSTIN (AP) - Despite the vow of a gubernatorial veto, the House will vote to raise the state sales tax, says House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Lewis said Wednesday the increase would be "something in the 6 percent range," and the tax plan of up to $6 billion, which will be voted on next week, will include a broadening of the sales tax to cover some services that are now exempt.

The speaker said the tax vote would come although he has had no indication that Gov. Bill Clements would stray from his promise to veto such a plan.

Clements' bottom line on taxes is the $2.9 billion that would be raised by extending the temporary sales and motor fuels levies now in effect.

The state sales tax is now 5.25 percent, but will roll back to 4.125 percent in September if lawmakers take no action. Many Texans pay an additional 2 cents in local and transit taxes.

Lewis was not specific on which exempt services the tax might be expanded to cover.

'We've got about three alternatives we're looking at right now," he said.

The House has tentatively scheduled Tuesday debate on a 1988-89 spending bill and a tax plan to pay for it. The Legislature is meeting in special session to deal with a projected 1988-89 deficit of up to $6 billion.

Clements said Wednesday that state leaders are narrowing the focus and had reached no agreement on the budget.

Asked about his tax veto threat, he said, "I don't think it's appropriate for us to get into dotting i's and crossing t's about what I'll agree to and what I won't.'

"I'm sure some people are talking about (a larger tax bill). I'm not,'' Clements said. Also Wednesday, the House Appropriations Committee voted 16-9 for a proposed $38.3 billion 1988-89 spending plan. The Senate has approved a $39.6 billion budget.

Lewis said the House committee version should show Clements that House members have kept spending to a minimum.

Cities say tax hike will help them

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas cities have joined the new-tax forces at the Legislature in hopes of getting some of the proceeds.

'We call upon the Legislature to expand the sales tax base and to authorize cities to impose the local-option 1-cent sales tax on that expanded base," Fort Worth Mayor Bob Bolen, president of the Texas Municipal League, told a news conference Wednesday.

Expansion of the current sales tax to include some areas not currently taxed is one of a number of revenue raising proposals being considered by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Bolen told reporters the TML supports the expansion of the sales tax to include services, with exemptions for food, drug, medicines and medical services. He estimated the expansion would produce $228 million additional revenue for cities during the next two years.

The current state sales tax is 5.25 percent, with cities allowed to charge another one percent after a local election. Cities with transit authorities can levy an additional one percent.

"There are striking similarities between the state's problems and those of cities," Bolen said.

ly serious this week as eleven people died in two accidents during National Guard training maneuvers.

One guardsman was killed and seven others injured when a tank accidentally fired on another tank Tuesday. That accident came one day after a military helicopter flying at tree-top level crashed and burned, killing all 10 reservists and National Guardsmen aboard.

The identity of the victim in Tuesday's accident was being withheld pending notification of next of kin, a Fort Hood spokesman who declined to give his name said late Wednesday. National Guard officials said that the accidents, which both occured during the two-week

Starburst '87 training maneuvers, don't indicate there's a problem with safety "The field training is as real as possible to improve the profesionalism of our part-time soldiers," said Maj. Gen. James B. McGoodwin, commander of the 49th Armored Division of the Texas National Guard.

"That's why our training has to be very rigorous, very strenuous and very realistic," he said. The maneuvers are made as safe as possible, he said.

"In spite of this, we're going to have some accidents," he said. "We know this. We minimize this as best we can.

National guardsmen are aware of the hazards of duty, said Dan Donohue, spokesman for the National Guard Bureau in the Pentagon.

'Roughly half of the Army's combat forces are in the Guard. The need to train intensively, effectively and with great diversification is extremely important. Inherent in that training is an increased danger.

He said training standards are the same as in the active military

"Yes, we do kill people, but we have an enviable track record and we have led the Army in terms of percentages," Donohue said.

Donohue said the pressure on the Guard to keep up with the equipment changes in an evermodernizing Army is greater than on the standing army

'When you tell a Guard unit you've got a year to get ready you're talking about 39 days of that year, and when you tell a full soldier you've got a year to get ready you're talking about 365 days a year.

The tank accident occurred Tuesday night

339 square miles is the largest military installa tion in terms of land in the free world.

The tank was firing at a camouflaged target about 900 meters away. The 152 mm gun launcher went too far to the left, firing a practice round at two other M-60 tanks that were illuminating the area with infrared searchlights, McGoodwin said. He said a practice round is not as fully-charged as a regular round

The guardsman killed in the accident was standing outside the tank when the round was fired, as was a second soldier who was seriously injured, McGoodwin said.

All eight men were taken to Darnall Community Hospital, where one died at 2:52 a.m., one was hospitalized in serious condition and the other six were treated and released, said Fort Hood spokesman Sgt. Roger Allen.

Officials would not specify how the victims were injured.

Starburst exercises, training maneuvers that include about 13,000 Texas National Guard soldiers and 5,000 soldiers from Army reserve support units, will continue as planned, said Maj. Bill Coleman.

Investigators are still looking into the helicopter crash that littered 21/2 acres with wreckage Monday morning. Officials said the investigation will take at least six weeks.

Injured in the tank accident was Pvt. Morty R. Redman, 19, of San Angelo, who was admitted to Darnall in serious but stable condition. He is assigned to Company B, 3rd Battalion, 112th Armor Unit of the Texas National Guard, a base spokeswoman said.

Those treated and released and also assigned to Company B were Staff Sgt. Don Hill, 38, and Spec. 4 Lester J. Tinney, 22, both of San Angelo: and Sgt. Christopher Galindo, 22, and Sgt. Larry Smith, 30, both of Ballinger.

Others were Sgt. Charles J. Klaus, 31, of Hays, Kan., assigned to Troop C, 1st Squadron, 124th Cavalry; and Spec. 4 Randy J. Coone, 30, of Colleyville, of Company A, 4th Battalion, 112th Armor

All the guardsmen were in the Texas National Guard's 49th Armored Division, said Allen.

Before this week's accidents, there were 10 aircraft crashes at Fort Hood since 1980 with 11 people killed and at least 11 injured, statistics show. In all Army air accidents since 1982. seven people have been killed.

Woman confirms husband's testimony

BELTON (AP) - A woman has confirmed her husband's testimony that a teen-ager was in a car similar to one driven by Jerry "Animal" McFadden the day the youth and two others were seen alive for the last time.

Lavita Pace Boykin of Lake Hawkins told jurors Wednesday in McFadden's murder trial that she saw Bryan Boone of Hawkins, who went with Suzanne Harrison and Gena Turner on a weekend outing in May 1986.

Her husband, Gregory, gave similar testimony Tuesday

McFadden is accused in the beatingstrangulation death of Miss Harrison, 18, whose partially clothed body was found the day after she disappeared from Lake Hawkins.

Authorities found the bodies of Miss Turner, 20, and 19-year-old Boone 10 days later. McFadden has not been charged in those deaths.

The brother of Bryan Boone testified that Bryan was last seen going to visit Miss Turner. Kendall Boone said Bryan had talked to Miss Turner on the telephone near dinnertime and left for her house in his truck

Opinion Goetz's gun aimed at our frustration

He is a meek, slightly built man, never comfortable in the spotlight but never apologizing for the act that put him there. He has been called a racist and a reckless vigilante. But to millions of crime-weary Americans, he is a hero

The man, of course, is Bernhard H. Goetz, a 39-year old electrical engineer who, in December 1984, gunned down four young toughs who approached him in a New York City subway car. Last week, after a 21/2 year legal ordeal, a jury in New York acquitted Goetz of attempted murder, assault and reckless endangerment.

The jury accepted the argument of Goetz' attorney that he acted in self-defense. Indeed, the four boys, all around 20 years old at the time, were carrying shar-pened screwdrivers and had a long list of criminal offenses among them when they approached Goetz for $5. Goetz, a previous victim of a mugging and apparently in fear of his life, pulled out an illegally owned handgun, shot each young man once and fled. Nine days later he surrendered to police.

From the day of the shootings, the nation's attention has been riveted on the story of Bernhard Goetz. He has become a lightning rod, drawing support from Americans who have grown tired of rapists and thieves who seem to prey on their victims with impunity. But he also drew fire from officials who feared a rise in "vigilante justice" and from some blacks who read racism into the shooting of four blacks by a white gunman

The charge of racism has a hollow ring to it. There is no evidence that either Goetz or the jury, which included two blacks, acted with any racial motive. The prosecution failed to prove that Goetz shot the four blacks for any other reason than self-defense. The jury spent 30 hours deliberating carefully weighing the evidence, the judge's instructions and the law

Without endorsing the specific actions of Bernhard Goetz on Dec. 22, 1984, it is possible to understand the frustration that drove him to act, and the broad sup-

James J. Kilpatrick Judicial legacy will linger

WASHINGTON - Ronald Reagan has had his full share of disappointments over the past 61/2 years. Federal deficits remain stubbornly large; farm problems grow worse; the trade imbalance is a headache; the Iran-Contra affair is a mess

But one disappointment may outrank all the others: Reagan has been able to name only two new members to the U.S. Supreme Court.

By this time, if we were to take history as a guide, he should have had better luck. In a little more than three terms in office, Franklin Roosevelt named eight men to the court. In two terms, Eisenhower nominated five (and regretted three of them). Nixon made four appointments. Even Harding had four chances.

Yet here is Reagan, with only 18 months to go, and he has only Sandra Day O'Connor and Antonin Scalia to carry his flag into the 21st century.

It scarcely seems fair. After all, William Brennan was 81 in April; Lewis Powell will be 80 in September; Thurgood Marshall will be 79 next month; Harry Blackmun turns 79 in November. It had not seemed unreasonable to suppose that by this time some of these distinguished gentlemen might have retired or been summoned to a yet higher court. There they sit, imperturbable, contented as frogs on a lily pad, while time passes and opportunity shrinks.

Still, the disappointment is not total. In the end, the Constitution is what the Supreme Court says it is, but the high court hands down opinions in only 150 cases a year. The great bulk of federal jurisprudence goes on in the district courts and in the 13 appellate circuits. Here Reagan steadily is leaving his philosophical stamp. The federal bench includes 741 judges in all. By the end of 1986, Reagan had named 290 of them.

Sheldon Goldman, professor of political science at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, is the nation's leading authority on federal judgeships. Writing in the current issue of Judicature, Goldman sums up the situation: 'By the end of his second term, President Reagan will have left an impressive and enduring judicial legacy.

Goldman's article analyzes Reagan's nominations in 1985 and 1986. During those two years the president won confirmation of 95 district judges and 32 circuit judges. Their average age is 48, but some are much younger. Sidney Fitzwater was named to a federal district court in Texas at 32: Alex Kozinski at 34 joined the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit. They will be shaping the law for a long time to come.

Looking at Reagan's second-term nominees, Goldman finds them generally in line with traditional patterns. Starting with George Washington, every president has nominated federal judges in his own political and philosophical image. Lyndon Johnson named 122 district judges; 94.3 percent of them were Democrats. Jimmy Carter put 202 persons on the district courts; 92.6 percent were Democrats. Ronald Reagan is no exception, though he has grown less partisan in his second term. Of his 95 district court nominations in 1985 and 1986, 85 (or 89.5 percent) were Republicans.

overwhelmingly were white and male. The 95 to see new district judges include only eight women, four Hispanics and three blacks. Surprisingly, this compares remarkably well with Lyndon Johnson's record over five years: two women. three Hispanics, five blacks. Carter in four years named eight women, 14 Hispanics and 26 blacks.

When it comes to shaping the Constitution, the circuit courts have far greater influence than the district courts. Reagan won confirmation of 32 appellate judges in 1985 and 1986. Thirty-one are Republicans, 29 are male, all are white. Johnson had 40 such nominations in all: 38 Democrats, one woman, two blacks. Reagan's second-term nominees to the circuit courts were significantly younger than his first-term nominees. Goldman suggests that "a new pattern may be emerging." Forty percent of the Reagan judges were under the age of 45.

It is evident from Goldman's analysis that the president, working closely with Attorney General Ed Meese, is determined to get wellqualified conservatives on the federal bench. The president understands the theory of the lengthened shadow; he himself leaves office in January of 1989, but his judicial legacy will remain for 30 years after he's gone.

This is the way the system is supposed to work, as one president's judges are checked and balanced by other judges named before and after. Time may be running out for a "Reagan Court" across the street from the Capitol, but The Reagan nominees in these two years elsewhere in the land the Reagan mark is plain ort he received from the public. Americans, especially those who live in large cities, are fed up with crime.

Over the last 25 years, crime rates for murder, rape, assault and burglary have soared. Meanwhile, the courts have seemed more concerned with the rights of criminals than the rights of victims. More and more laws have been passed that entangle decent lawabiding citizens in a bureaucratic web, while criminals are let loose on technicalities, if they are even -caught.

For several decades now, the American conception of government has drifted away from the limited model of our Founding Fathers. They saw government as an institution to protect the life, liberty and property of its citizens. Today the scope of government has been enlarged almost to infinity. The institution of govern-ment is used to redistribute income, educate children, build apartments and subsidize buses and trains. Everything, it seems, but its original, fundamental duty.

Bernhard Goetz symbolized the frustration of citizens with a government that has neglected its true responsibilities.

ILLEGAL DIVERSION OF FUNDS TO BUY ARMS

Lewis Grizzard

There's still a ways to go

Mississippi State was playing Louisiana State in the Southeastern Conference baseball tournament in Athens, Ga. It doesn't matter who won the game

What does matter is that a young white Mississippi State fan, according to news reports, began heckling the LSU right fielder, who is black.

When the fan began spitting out racial slurs, the LSU right fielder jumped over the fence and went after the fan, who grabbed himself a large board with which he planned to defend himself. Before the incident went any further, the fan was ushered to another part of the ballpark and the LSU player returned to right field.

But you would think you wouldn't have to read about such a thing occurring in 1987. We passed the Civil Rights Act 23 years ago, before both the LSU player and the fan heckling him were born, and Lord we've come a ways since then.

But racial incidents still occur in Howard Beach, N.Y., Forsyth County, Ga., and Chicago, Ill., and in a college ballpark where whites and blacks have been competing together for so many years, all you'd notice was the color of the uniform, not the color of the skin.

Reggie Jackson, the flamboyant black major league player, wrote in Sports Illustrated recently that white people are still frightened by black people. He said that's why there aren't more blacks involved in management of professional baseball.

Ask other blacks why racism obviously still exists and they will say it will never go away because of the population still cannot accept the idea of black equality.

I wondered what white people thought so I asked a few of them this question:

"Is there anything about the actions of some black people that make you afraid, angry or unwilling to accept them as your equal?

Here were some answers: 'What bugs me is every time some black politician or bigshot gets caught with his hands in the cookie jar, he starts hollering about racism and blaming his troubles on whites. It's such a convenient copout."

"I get turned off watching black professional athletes. There are so many hot dogs with all that juking and high-fiving. And somebody ought to tell them not to say, 'You know,' every other breath when they are being interviewed."

— ''It's like because they're black, they, you know, deserve everything handed to them on a silver platter

- "I don't say higger' in public anymore, but I say it sometimes among white friends.

"We have a black Miss America pageant. Why can't we have a white Miss America pageant?

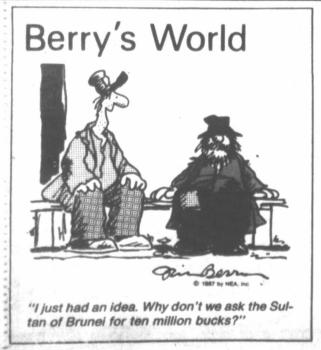

- "I work in downtown Atlanta. It's a rare day when I walk to lunch with a friend and we don't get some sexual remarks from the black men on street. I resent it and it frightens me."

- "A few blacks come in to my favorite bar. They don't get hassled, but if I went into an all-black joint, I don't think I would be treated the same.

- "Can you imagine what would happen to this country if Jesse Jackson were elected president?'

For the record, the whites I interviewed were middle-aged and college educated and perhaps the only conclusion that can be drawn from any of this is, yeah, we've come a long way towards racial harmony

But sadly, we've got a ways to go.

Portrait of a typical welfare recipient

By ROBERT WALTERS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (NEA) Here's a portrait of a typical welfare recipient: a black, poorly educated woman with a large brood of children who has little interest in work and has been on the public dole for much of her adult life.

Although that stereotype is widely embraced, it is not the reality in Massachusetts - or in most states where welfare programs and their beneficiaries long have been widely misunderstood.

Comprehending the realities of the welfare system is now especially important because the nation is poised to undertake a major overhaul of its low-income assistance programs.

Useful in making that transition is a Massachusetts Department of Public Welfare statistical analysis of the recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, by far the largest of the country's federal-state welfare programs.

Nationally, AFDC provides almost $18 billion per year in cash benefits to 11 million people in 3.8 million families, most of them headed by women. This is a statistical portrait of those AFDC families in Massachusetts:

· Almost two-thirds (64 percent) are white, while 18 percent are black and 17 percent are Hispanic. (The state's population is 4 percent black and 2.5 percent Hispanic, so both groups are substantially over-represented among welfare clients - but they hardly dominate.)

• Exactly half (50 percent) graduated from high school, while 16 percent attended college and 3 percent re-ceived a college degree. (This is a lower educational level than that of the general public, but welfare recipients are better educated than many believe.)

of the families have one or two children - a figure almost identical to the statewide statistic.

• More than half (55 percent) the families on the welfare rolls remain there for less than a year, while only 14 percent are public charges for six years or more.

One important reason for those relatively short stays: Welfare assistance isn't very appealing. After paying for food, clothing, utilities and rent, a family of three has less than $2 per day for all other needs.

Finally, there's the matter of work. When the AFDC program was created by federal law in 1935, it was envisioned as a means of providing financial assistance to widows, so they could raise their children rather than put them up for adoption. Most women did not work at the time and few people thought they should.

Nation Democrats search for way to oppose reflagging tankers

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a trio of U.S. warships heads for the Persian Gulf to back up President Reagan's pledge to protect Kuwaiti tankers, congressional critics are trying to agree on some type of action to oppose or delay the plan.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee was meeting today to discuss, and possibly vote on, a bill that would delay Reagan's plan until after Congress approves it.

Democrats, who control both the House and Senate, were working on a variety of proposals, but none has widespread acceptance. Party leaders had tentatively scheduled, and then postponed, a series of meetings earlier in the week to work out a consensus.

"The clock is running, clearly, and we haven't got much time, but there's still time if we can get together on something," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., a member of the Foreign Relations Committee

"There is no consensus on how we should respond," said Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash., chairman of the House Democratic Caucus. "Moreover, time is running out."

The comments were underlined by the movement of three Navy warships through the Suez Canal, en route to the Persian Gulf to join other Navy vessels.

The warships will convoy 11 Kuwaiti tankers, which will also be protected by Kuwait is an ally of Iraq, leading to congressional fears that the United States will be drawn into the 61/2-year-old war between Iran and Iraq.

The three ships are the destroyer Kidd and the frigates Flatley and Klakring, which are both sister ships to the Stark. Thirty-seven U.S. sailors were killed May 17 when the Stark was hit by a pair of missiles fired by an Iraqi jet.

The ships are expected to arrive in about a week, where they will join six other Navy vessels, including five warships and the command ship LaSalle. No date has been announced publicly for the start of the U.S. convoys, but they are expected to begin early next month

On Capitol Hill, several plans have been circulated, including:

A 90-day delay in the reflagging operation

An outright ban unless Congress first approves.

A non-binding resolution proposing a halt to reflagging unless various conditions are met, such as certain levels of help from U.S. allies.

A resolution triggering the War Powers Act, which would allow the administration plan to proceed for 60 days and which could then only con-tinue if Congress voted for it. The 1973 law limits a president's ability to commit U.S. military forces to areas of imminent combat.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said in a speech prepared for delivery today that the United States shouldn't seek an end to the Iran-Iraq war that would cause future trouble. Reagan has said the U.S. goal is to end the war.

"To end the war simply with no loser or no winner means that you end the war with two wounded snakes more dangerous to innocent bystanders than to themselves," Aspin said. "And innocent bystanders are the very gulf Arab states we say we are most concerned about.'

Bentsen addresses criticisms of energy security measure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate debate is scheduled this week on a trade bill that contains an energy security measure opposed by 29 senators. The sponsor, Texas Democrat Lloyd Bentsen, says he's only trying to avert another oil crisis. Bentsen seeks to establish a 50 percent ceiling on oil imports and require the president to reduce imports if they are expected to reach that in a a three-year projection.

Last week, Sens. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Bob Packwood, R-Ore., sent out a letter in which they labeled Bentsen's measure unconstitutional because it upsets the traditional division of powers between Congress and the president.

Twenty-seven senators joined them in opposing the provision.

"The president could impose an oil import fee, a gasoline tax or tax incentives for domestic oil production," the two senators wrote. "He could use quotas or oil rationing. He could also suspend environmental regulations and antitrust laws, regardless of the impact on U.S. consumers or manufacturers.

The Bradley-Packwood letter suggested that oil prices are driven by a global market and that the price of U.S.-produced oil will always be the same as the price of imported oil.

"If supplies are disrupted and the world price of oil goes to $60 per barrel, so will the price of domestic oil," wrote the senators, both of whom are members of the Finance Committee

Bentsen, who chairs the committee, called their arguments inaccurate, and in a responding letter. co-authored by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., addressed the constitutional question and others raised by the measure's opponents.

'According to opponents of the Energy Security Act, the act 'is unconstitutional (because the) authority delegated to the president appears bound-less," Bentsen wrote.

"This is not the case. The act ... directs the president, in limited conditions defined in part by him, to control imports of oil through the use of an authority that he has already, and has had for more than three decades, under ... the Trade Expansion Act.

He ridiculed the idea that an oil-independent America would make no difference in the price stability of oil for U.S. consumers.

"If the United States produced enough oil to satisfy all its needs and did not import any oil at all, there would be so much excess capacity in the world that virtually any disruption could be covered." he wrote.

As for the position advanced by opponents that a 50 percent import cap was merely an arbitrary ceiling and not necessarily a national threat, Bentsen was incredulous.

'The only foreign sources of oil on which our dependence can increase are unreliable. More than 70 percent of the new oil imported into the United States now and in the foreseeable future will come from the Persian Gulf.

"Fifty-percent dependence on foreign oil is a bona fide emergency in just about any circumstances that one can imagine.'

Fears of gas rationing and suspension of environmental regulations under the bill are unfounded because the Energy Security Act does not give the president the power to take such sweeping actions, Bentsen said.

A close fight on the measure is expected when the Senate takes up the trade bill, which is expected this week

'The Great One,' dead at age 71 ackie Gleason,

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) - Jackie Gleason, who brightened television's Golden Age with blowhard bus driver Ralph Kramden's half-baked schemes and threats to send wife Alice "to the moon" on "The Honeymooners," has died at age 71.

The rotund comedian, who earned an Oscar nomination for his serious role as pool player Minnesota Fats in the 1961 film "The Hustler," died of cancer Wednesday at his home in this Fort Lauderdale suburb.

Gleason, the self-proclaimed "Great One" whose zestful, Falstaffian appetite for food, drink and cigarettes was legendary, was released June 18 from a Fort Lauderdale hospital after a month there.

'He was feeling in good spirits Monday and Tuesday. He quietly, comfortably passed away," said his wife, Marilyn.

Gleason became one of television's biggest draws during its Golden Age in the 1950s, creating such characters as the Poor Soul. Reggie van Gleason III and Joe the Bartender

As Ralph Kramden, he won laughs when he blew his stack at nitwit neighbor Ed Norton or turned to his wife, threatening, "Bang, zoom!" "To the moon, Alice" or "One of these days, Alice.

In later years, he had a recurring role as redneck Sheriff Buford T. Justice in the "Smokey and the Bandit" movies and costarred last year with Tom Hanks in the movie "Nothing in Common."

"I'm devastated," said Audrey Meadows. who played caustic Alice Kramden on "The Honeymooners." "I feel terribly sad because he was a very close friend and brilliant performer.

Jane Kean, who first worked with Gleason in vaudeville and briefly played Norton's wife, Trixie, said Gleason "was a joy to work with

"If anything at all happened wrong, if a line was skipped, he always covered for you. He

Gleason is remembered

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jackie Gleason called himself "The Great One," and no one who saw him as Ralph Kramden or Reggie van Gleason III or Joe the bartender or simply as himself ever disputed that claim.

Gleason had a talent as big as his enormous girth. He was the only television comic who survived the so-called "Golden Age" and found a new generation of fans in such movies as "Smokey and the Bandit," "The Toy," and 'Nothing In Common.'

How sweet it was! Jackie Gleason spent nearly 20 years on CBS between 1952 and 1970. But he is best remembered and most loved for "The Honeymooners," which at various times was a segment of "The Jackie Gleason Show" and a separate comedy series.

At one point, Gleason loaded his comedy troupe onto a train and headed for Miami, where he didn't want to go back and tape again. His theory was that an audience would never laugh twice at the same joke.

"Jackie, who named himself 'The Great One,' truly was 'The Great One,''' said comedian Milton Berle.

"He was great on improvisation, impromptu and ad-libbing. He could run the gamut. He did everything. All I can tell you is that the world is going to be less happier, more sorrowful with Jackie gone.

Gleason's capacity for enjoying life was reflected in his trademark lines "How sweet it is!" and "And away we go!" He drove himself hard on and off the set, once breaking a leg on the air Producer David Susskind once said Gleason could "put away more scotch per square hour than any man alive," and Gleason's weight at one point ballooned to more than 280 pounds.

He admitted smoking up to six packs of cigarettes a day, and scarcely cut back after triple coronary bypass surgery in 1978. He also underwent artery bypass surgery on his legs in 1983, and suffered from emphysema and diabetes.

'You only live once," Gleason once said. 'Let's live it up.'

Gleason was born Herbert John Gleason on Feb. 26, 1916, in a cold-water Brooklyn flat, the son of an insurance auditor who vanished one night on the way home from work when Gleason was a child.

Gleason became enamored of show business during a class play, quit high school and got a job as master of ceremonies at a theater, taking home $4 a night.

He also hustled money at a pool hall, developing skills that helped bring him his Academy Award nomination, and worked as a carnival barker, daredevil driver, stunt diver, disc jockey and nightclub comedian.

Gleason appeared in the movies "The Navy Blues" and "Springtime in the Rockies" before taking roles in such Broadway plays as "Hellzapoppin" and "Artists and Models."

His big break came in the new medium of television. After two years as the lead in "The Life of Riley," he was signed in 1950 to 'Cavalcade of Stars," and two years later had his own show.

He became the top male television comedian of the day. In 1954, he signed contracts worth $16 million with CBS and an automobile company, guaranteeing $100,000 a year through 1972.

"The Honeymooners" began as a skit within a show and became a series from 1955 to 1956, with Art Carney as sewer worker Norton and Joyce Randolph as Trixie, the Kramdens' neighbors in a run-down tenement in Brooklyn.

It won raves from critics, and even though only 39 episodes were broadcast, it developed a following that persists three decades later.

Two years ago, Gleason announced the discovery of 67 black-and-white episodes filmed live as part of "The Jackie Gleason Show" during the 1950s.

Gleason remained on television with his variety show from 1957-59, and broadcast live from Miami from 1964-67, backed by Sammy Spear's orchestra, the June Taylor Dancers and regular appearances by Frank Fontaine as the barfly Crazy Guggenheim.

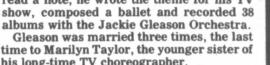

His passions - besides food and drink included golf and music. Though he couldn't read a note, he wrote the theme for his TV show, composed a ballet and recorded 38 albums with the Jackie Gleason Orchestra.

Gleason as Kramden and Art Carney as Ed Norton were probably the best comedy team since Laurel and Hardy.

Indicative of their talent is the fact that Gleason starred in such dramatic films as "The Hustler," "Requiem for a Heavyweight," and "Soldier in the Rain" and Carney won an Academy Award as best actor for "Harry and Tonto.

Bus driver Kramden had a million get-rich schemes, all of which backfired. He was impractical, impatient and hottempered. Norton, his upstairs neighbor, bowling buddy and fellow member of the Racoons was naive and unflappable.

Gleason is probably best known to today's young generation as Sheriff Buford T. Justice, the man who chased Burt Reynolds and Sally Fields in "Smokey and the Bandit." Gleason said in an interview, "Everybody had done a Southern, redneck sheriff and it bothered me when I read 'Smokey' that I couldn't think of how to do it different. Then I got the idea of the pencil moustache. Then I got the accent."

The Great One is gone. But Ralph Kramden will live forever.

PAMPA NEWS-Thursday, June 25, 1987 7 Texas ag commissioner requests federal help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are hav-ing trouble putting food on their own tables because of the slumping agriculture industry and need help from the federal government, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says.

"The old poor, the new poor and the near poor are in need of immediate help at a time that Washington is washing its hands of them," Hightower told the House Select Committee on Hunger.

Hightower said the federal government could begin helping farmers through a series of initiatives including crop insurance and alternative crop loans, which would farmers to take some chances and make some advances

Since 1981, more than 43,000 Texas farmers and ranchers have gone out of business and that last year alone, 14,000 commercial farmers lost their farms, the Democrat said.

"Farm failures are already up 300 percent in the first four months of 1987 when compared to the same period last year," Hightower told the committee, chaired by Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston.

Minority farmers are losing their land at twice the rate of their white counterparts, Hightower said, and a Texas farmer, Ollie Williams, told the committee what he felt were the reasons.

"No financing, lack of education and, most important, lack of a market," said Williams, a founding member of the Hempstead Small Farmers Cooperative, an organization of black farmers

Williams said that because of their fundamental problems, Texas farmers are faced with the threat of hunger.

Man's table manners gone married for 40 years. I'm 56. The problem is his table manners. He doesn't have any.

He doesn't remove his hat in a restaurant, tucks his napkin into his collar under his chin and eats with both elbows on the table. When he eats steak, he holds his fork tightly in his fist with the handle vertical and cuts up all his meat at once. He eats so fast, he's finished before I'm halfway through. He carries toothpicks in his wallet and thinks nothing of picking his teeth at the table.

On the plus side, he's generous good-natured and fun to be with. He wants to marry me.

I am wondering if he is hopeless. Should I try to change him now? If so, how do I go about doing it? Apparently his gross table manners never bothered his wife, but they sure do bother me.

DEAR FLORENCE: I don't know, but maybe we can find out. Readers?

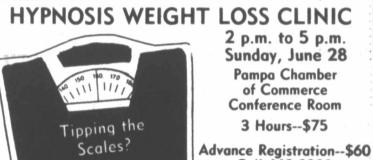

DEAR ABBY: I was informed that in Scotland, the second-born of twins is considered the senior, and if they are both males and a title is to be handed down, the title will be given to the last-born twin because he is believed to have been the first conceived. This makes no sense to me. Can it be true?

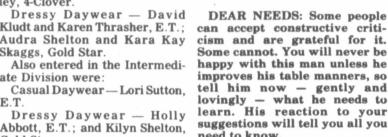

J.S., AUGUSTA, MAINE

DEAR J.S.: I first consulted with an obstetrician who advised me that in the case of twins, it is not necessarily "first in, last out." Twins can be conceived at the same time or consecutively, and the order of birth does not necessarily conform to conception; twins do not necessarily appear on the scene in the inverse order of conception.

With respect to Scottish law, the first twin born is the "older," and that twin would inherit the title.

To be a bit more technical, if there is a title to pass on to the oldest male heir, and if the firstborn of twins is a female, she does not receive the title. However, if the twins are both boys, the first on the scene (the older) receives the title.

West Germany's Steffi Graf returns a shot. Astros rout Padres tle help from Tony Gwynn and as everybody," Bowa said. Tim Flannery, the Houston into a rout of the San Diego Padres.

Gwynn barely missed a two-out bases-loaded drive to right field by Jose Cruz that scored three seventh-inning runs to break a 6-6 tie and lead to Houston's 12-7 victory Wednesday night.

Two innings earlier, Flannery had missed a golden opportunity for a double-play. A grounder from pinch-hitter Davey Lopes rolled between the infielder's legs, and Craig Reynolds brought the Astros their first run.

We really battled back," said McCullers, 3-5. Houston Manager Hal Lanier. "It's a hell of a comeback after being five runs down. Cruz had a big hit but Tony almost made a great catch.

'Seems like always in this ballpark we're down several runs and we come back," Lanier added

Flannery took credit for the Padres' loss, even though he had four hits for the second time in his career. He also drove in a run in the second on a single and later

"Our middle-inning relief has not done much all year," Bowa said. "Middle-inning relief is important. You need someone in there in the middle innings who can shut the door.

Of Gwynn's near spectacular running catch, Cruz said, "I saw him running and said, 'He's going to get that ball.

Cruz, hitting just .245, had gone 0-3 before delivering his gamewinning hit off reliever Lance

Lanier said he's not worried about Cruz' slow start this year because of his ability to pull off such feats as the tie-breaking performance in the bases-loaded situation

"He's been hot, cold, hot. He's hit some balls hard right at people. He's been going up and down. But he always comes back and gets a big hit for us," Lanier said.

Glenn Davis, who got off to a slow start this season, continued his recent batting tear by having his first four-hit game of his career. He is hitting .423 over the past 30 games and has driven in 25 runs during that span.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) Grass courts were supposed to be the ultimate test of Steffi Graf's ability to continue winning.

Judging by her first match at Wimbledon this year, the lush green surface could be a potent weapon as Graf goes for a second successive Grand Slam title. "I felt more comfortable today than I did in Paris," Graf said after beating Argentina's Adriana Villagran 6-0, 6-2 in the first round Wednesday.

The 18-year-old West German earlier this month became the youngest women's champion of the French Open, which is played on clay.

Graf said grass, with its speed and low bounce, would prove a big obstacle.

But by quickening the rallies and pressuring her opponent, Graf said she "enjoyed every second" of the 32-minute match against Villagran, chalking up her 40th victory in an unbeaten

It was the latest step in a teenage West German attack on the two singles titles.

Boris Becker, the 19-year-old defending men's champion, advanced to the second round Tuesday

The defending women's champion, Martina Navratilova, was just as comfortable a first-round winner as Graf. On a sunny, breezy afternoon that followed two days of rain and gray skies, the top-ranked Navratilova led a procession of seeded players into the second round as results ran true to form on 18 courts.

Navratilova dropped nine points in the first set and seven in the second as she trounced Claudia Porwik of West Germany 6-1. 6-0.

Her perennial rival. Chris Evert, was almost as dominant in beating Britain's Sara Gomer by the same score.

Also winning were fourthseeded Helena Sukova, No. 5 Pam Shriver of the United States, ninth-seeded Bettina Bunge, No. 11 Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden,

No. 12 Wendy Turnbull of Australia, No. 15 Raffaella Reggi of Italy, and No. 16 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany

American Jimmy Connors started his 17th Wimbledon appearance with a 6-1, 7-6, 7-6 over Marty Davis. Three other seeded American men, No. 10 Tim Mayotte, No. 15 David Pate and No. 16 Kevin Curren, also reached the second round.

Two Frenchmen, Yannick Noah, the No.6 seed, and No. 9 Henri Leconte, also advanced.

No. 3 Mats Wilander of Sweden, playing as well on grass as he did on clay in Paris where he reached the final, overpowered Gary Muller of South Africa 6-2, 6-1, 6-4.

Miloslav Mecir, the gifted but unpredictable fifth seed from Czechoslovakia, also advanced, as did Ecuador's Andres Gomez, the No. 8 seed.

The only seed, man or woman, to drop a set Wednesday was No. 14 Emilio Sanchez of Spain. Primarily a clay-courter, he beat Mike Bauer of the United States, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

George Bell, who is a bona fide power hitter, hit another home run. Rance Mulliniks, who isn't, hit two.

That was enough for the Toronto Blue Jays to defeat the Detroit Tigers 5-3 Wednesday night, snapping Jack Morris' ninegame winning streak.

"The home runs surprised me as much as anybody," said Mulliniks, who hit a solo homer to start the scoring in the first inning and a two-run shot in the seventh that gave the Blue Jays a 5-2 lead.

Bell's fourth-inning homer tied the score 2-2. It was his 25th, tops in the majors.

The victory gave Toronto a onegame lead in the American League East over New York, which lost to Baltimore 4-0. Minnesota outslugged Cleveland 14-8 and leads the West by four games over Oakland, which defeated Kansas City 4-2. Elsewhere, it was Seattle 10, Chicago 7; Boston 8, Milwaukee 7; California 4, Texas 1.

Morris, 10-3, had won seven straight starts and hadn't been beaten since April 20

Winner John Cerutti gave up the three Detroit runs and seven hits in 6 2-3 innings, including Terry Harper's solo homer, for his fourth victory in his last five starts.

Orioles 4, Yankees 0

Baltimore scored all its runs with two out in the first inning when Cal Ripken, Eddie Murray and Ray Knight homered off Ron Guidry, 0-3.

Dave Schmidt, 8-1, making his lief appearances, pitched a threehitter for the Orioles' fourth victory in 26 games and their first complete game at home. Twins 14, Indians 8

Kent Hrbek's towering threerun homer capped a four-run fourth inning for Minnesota's 14th victory in 17 games. The Twins are 41-29, the first time they have been 12 games over .500 since May 1979.

Cleveland led 1-0 when loser Greg Swindell walked Al Newman to start the Minnesota fourth. Kirby Puckett's single and a walk loaded the bases. After Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly tied the game, Hrbek hit his 17th home run into the right-field upper deck.

Athletics 4, Royals 2

Curt Young and Dennis Eckersley combined on a five-hitter and Mike Davis drove in three runs with two singles. Young, 9-4, pitched seven innings and allowed four hits, losing his shutout on Juan Beniquez' two-run homer in the seventh.

Kansas City's Danny Jackson, 3-10, became the first 10-game loser in the majors. He allowed four runs and eight hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Mariners 10, White Sox 7

Alvin Davis led the Seattle attack with a three-run homer and RBI double to back Mark Langston's ninth victory. By winning for the eighth time in their last 10 starts, the Mariners moved into a virtual tie with Kansas City in the AL West, 41/2 games behind Minnesota. The White Sox lost for the 19th time in 24 games.

Red Sox 8, Brewers 7

Switch-hitting Todd Benzinger drove in the first four runs of his major-league career with two bases-loaded singles, one from each side of the plate, and Wade Boggs extended his hitting streak to 25 games with a single and a homer.

Teddy Higuera suffered his seventh loss in his last eight decisions

The homer was Boggs' 100th hit of the season, the earliest the three-time batting champ has reached that mark.

Angels 4, Rangers 1

Don Sutton held Texas to three hits in seven innings and tied Gaylord Perry for 12th place on baseball's all-time victory list with 314. Pitching in 91-degree heat, the 42-year-old Sutton struck out four and walked one before DeWayne Buice went the last two innings for his fifth save. The Angels won their fourth

Pampa teachers win at Texas Masters Classic

Pampa schoolteacher Wendell Palmer broke his own American record with a throw of 135-2 to win the 2-kilo discus event at the Texas Classic TAC-USA track and field meet last weekend in Amarillo

Palmer's record throw came in the 55-59 age division in the 11th annual Masters event held at Dick Bivins Stadium. The 55year-old Palmer also won the 1.5 kilo discus (145-0), the javelin (123-8) and the triple jump (30-10). He placed second in the high jump (5-0).

John Charles, a fellow teacher at Pampa Middle School, had an outstanding day in the 40-44 age division. Charles won both the pole vault (11-0) and high jump (5-5). Charles' high jump mark will be the standard to shoot for since it is the first time the event has been held in the Masters division.

Pampa's previous best discus throw came earlier this week at Hereford with a 127-7 toss. That throw bettered the American mark of 121-6 held by George Kerr of California.

Tyson to meet Tucker in title unification fight Record jump

By ED SCHUYLER JR. AP Boxing Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - "Do you want to fight Michael Spinks," Mike Tyson was asked at a news conference to formally announce his Aug. 1 heavyweight title unification fight against Tony Tucker at Las Vegas, Nev.

It was the last of several questions concerning Spinks, and promoter Don King exploded, What are you talking about Spinks for? We're here to talk about Tyson and Tucker. Why do you want to resurrect a dead man? Spinks is anything but dead in boxing, but Tyson, the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association champion, could fight as many as five times before meeting Spinks, possibly in the fall of 1988. Tucker is the International and the fight with Tyson will be the finale of the HBO cable television heavyweight title unification

On June 15, Spinks, who was stripped of the IBF title for refusing to agree to a mandatory defense against Tucker, stopped Gerry Cooney in the fifth round of a match billed by promoter Butch Lewis as being for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Tyson was asked Wednesday if he felt Spinks has any claim to being heavyweight champion.

"I can't say no, because he believes he is, and there are people out there who believe he is,' Tyson said. "Hopefully, sometime in the near future we will be together and settle it."

Then Tyson, who reportedly will earn $3 million for fighting Tucker, added, "I have bigmoney fights down the road and I really don't need Spinks."

Pope John Paul II shakes hands with Waldheim.

Waldheim meets with Pope as protesters shout 'Shame'

ROME (AP) — As about 100 protesters should "Shame!" and "Assassin!" outside, Austrian President Kurt Waldheim met for 30 minutes in the Vatican today with Pope John Paul II.

The papal audience, Waldheim's first official trip abroad since becoming president last July. has prompted harsh criticism because of his alleged involvement in Nazi war crimes during World War II.

Some of the protesters outside the Vatican erected a replica of a gallows.

John Paul and Waldheim, speaking in German, exchanged speeches in the papal library, discussing disarmament and their hopes for world peace.

The official Vatican texts showed no direct mention of the controversy that has surrounded Waldheim's visit.

John Paul, speaking first, lauded Waldheim's work as former U.N. secretary-general and recalled his first visit to the United Nations in 1979 at Waldheim's invitation.

'The activity that you have carried out in the international field as a diplomat and as foreign minister of your country, as well as during your term — filled with responsibility — as secretary of the United Nations, has always been devoted to ensuring peace among peoples.

"You can now put into action in the service of your country your lifetime and professional experiences ... after your election as the highest representative of the Austrian people, whom I treasure very much.

In response, Waldheim, who is Catholic, thanked the pope for receiving him and praised him as "a renowned moral authority.

leads to the reduction of preconceived enmity between peoples, races and religions." Waldheim said. "Christianity has outlined for us a clear path: the spirit of the Sermon on the Mount.

On the fringes of St. Peter's Square facing the Vatican, up to 100 demonstrators from Jewish activist and political groups from Italy, Austria and the United States shouted slogans denouncing the Waldheim audience.

Waldheim has been accused of aiding the deportation of thousands of Jews and partisans who were killed in concentration camps during World War II. He denies the allegations.

The United States has barred Waldheim from visiting because of the Nazi allegations, and the Austrian president has been largely shunned diplomatically since taking office.

Some protesters, former Nazi prisoners, showed the numbers that had been tatooed on their arms when they arrived at concentration camps during World War II and carried signs bearing the names of several camps. Others wore death camp uniforms and carried protest placards, while another group erected a replica of a gallows with a hangman's noose.

Beate Klarsfeld, the Paris-based Nazi hunter who tracked down Klaus Barbie, the so-called Gestapo "Butcher of Lyon," stood beside a large placard reading, "Will Klaus Barbie be the Vatican's next guest?

Pope John Paul II "has broken the rule accepted by all other countries - not to allow Waldheim in,' she told reporters.

Klarsfeld and four American protesters were de-

No wrongdoings in Brandley case

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - A state probe into allegations of racial discrimination in the case of death row inmate Clarence Brandley has found no wrongdoing, a prosecutor said.

"The AG's report, as I understand it, will say there is no credible evidence whatsoever of any improper conduct by any person associated with the prosecution and that the allegations of supposed new evidence that would demonstrate Clarence Brandley's innocence are without basis in fact," Montgomery County District Attorney Peter Speers said Wednesday.

Speers said he was briefed on some of the Texas attorney general's investigation last week. Brandley, 35, is a former Conroe High School janitor who was sentenced to death for the Aug. 23, 1980, rape-slaying of Cheryl Dee Fergeson, 16. Brandley is black. Miss Fergeson was white.

Brandley supporters insist his arrest and conviction were racially motivated.

Defense attorney Mike DeGeurin of Houston disagreed with Speers.

'I spoke with Mattox and the report is not complete," DeGeurin said. "He just said that he has not found a smoking gun yet, one way or another. I think Mr. Speers' comments are grossly exaggerated.

Spokesmen for Attorney General Jim Mattox declined to comment on the preliminary report.

"I think it's typical of what I've expected from the beginning," Brandley told The Associated Press. "I don't think they ever intended to reopen the investigation in the first place."

"The only thing I can do is hope for the best," he said. "I had doubts from the beginning, from the way the whole investigation was carried out. No one wants to admit what has happened was wrong and nobody's going to come in and admit and tell the people what they did was wrong.'

The publicity surrounding the case prompted the investigation by the attorney general's office. The U.S. Justice Department also has been conducting a probe.

"I have no idea what will come out of that," Brandley said of the federal investigation. "It's kind of strange. They didn't come and talk with me.

Speers said he received a limited written synopsis of some of the findings of the state investigation last week and was briefed about some aspects of the case by an attorney general investigator.

"You, Holy Father, have never stopped to raise your voice tirelessly all over the world for the great aim of peace between peoples." Waldheim said.

Waldheim expressed his wishes for progress in nuclear disarmament, but added, "We have long known that the world does not become safer and more peaceful solely by disarmament measures ---however vital they are.

"What matters is spiritual disarmament that tained by police for questioning for several hours Wednesday about a fire at Klarsfeld's hotel that apparently was set off by a smoke-producing device.

The demonstrators said they had intended to use the "smoke candles" during their protest today to simulate the smoke from concentration camp gas chambers.

Falwell: Won't negotiate PTL

FORT MILL, S.C. (AP) - The Rev. Jerry Falwell dismissed as theatrics Jim Bakker's call for a referendum by "the people" to end the PTL "holy war" and decide who should control the scandalwracked evangelical empire.

The future of the 500,000-member ministry is in the hands of a bankruptcy judge, and any such discussion would be "a waste of everybody's time," said Falwell, who took over PTL in March after Bakker's downfall in a sex scandal.

As far as I'm concerned, no reconciliation is needed because I never had a falling out with him," he said Wednesday.

Bakker turned PTL over to Falwell after admitting a sexual liaison in 1980 with church secretary Jessica Hahn. Bakker later said the change in leadership was meant to be temporary

Falwell has rebuffed repeated requests by Bakker and his wife, Tammy, to let them return, alleging reckless spending and record-keeping. homosexuality on Bakker's part and lack of remorse

The Bakkers, who earlier this week hired celebrity lawyer Melvin Belli to retake the ministry, have vehemently denied the allegations.

PTL, which stands for People That Love or Praise the Lord, filed for reognization under Chapter 11 of the U.S. bankruptcy code June 12, listing $72 million in debts held by 1,400 creditors.

In a statement distributed Wednesday at the $1.3 million PTL parsonage in Tega Cay, Bakker said, "For the cause of Christ I feel this so-called holy war has to come to an end."

"If the people want Jim and Tammy to return to television then they should support Jim and Tammy," he said. "If they want Jerry Falwell to head PTL and Heritage USA then they should support it in its present form.

'Theatrics,'' Falwell said of the suggestion at PTL's Christian theme park, Heritage U.S.A.

The Bakkers on Wednesday were not at the Tega Cay parsonage, where a woman who would not identify herself distributed Bakker's statement. PTL has sought to evict the Bakkers from the parsonage, but the couple claim it is theirs.

Attorney James Toms, of Hendersonville, N.C. said the couple planned to spend several days at a mountainside home in Gatlinburg, Tenn., before returning to Tega Cay to pack their belongings.

'They need some rest," said Vicki Goodman Meadows of the Bring Bakker Back Club, a group working to restore the Bakkers to the ministry's leadership

The Gatlinburg home on Wednesday was festooned with balloons and a plastic dove in anticipation of their arrival. Well-wishers hung a cardboard sign saying, "Welcome home Jimmy and Tammy from your Gatlinburg friends.

Miss Hahn, meanwhile, said on the nationally syndicated "Donahue" show Wednesday that she is awaiting "the right time and place" to tell her side of the story and is waiting for an apology from Bakker.

Bakker, in an interview Tuesday with USA Today, said he apologized to Miss Hahn two days after the encounter. "If she doesn't remember that, I tell her I'm sorry. It was a terrible mistake and I believe Christ has forgiven me.

Convicted killer gets execution stay

HUNTSVILLE (AP) - A Texas death row inmate scheduled to die before dawn Friday for killing his brother-in-law in order to collect insurance money has been granted an execution stay by a federal judge

Johnny Ray Anderson, 27, of Vidor, was granted the reprieve Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Paul N. Brown of Sherman

In legal papers filed Tuesday, Anderson's execution date was listed as June 29. His attorney, Louis Dugas of Orange, said his copy of the death warrant listed the execution date as June 29, but papers filed with the Texas Department of Corrections and a sentencing document list the execution date as June 26.

Dugas contends Anderson received ineffective counsel in his 1983 trial, and that jurors did not know Anderson suffered from a personality disorder that affected him and that he had inhaled gasoline and glue since he was 5 years old. The court and jurors also did not know Anderson was mentally retarded, Dugas said in the legal papers. Anderson was convicted for the October 1981 execution-style slaying of 22-year-old Ronald Gene

Goode of Kountze in a scheme to collect $67,000 in insurance money. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted Anderson an execution stay on Dec. 31, 1986. The appeals court sent the case back to the trial court after Dugas filed an appeal contending Anderson should be re-tried because he received ineffective counsel in his 1983 trial and because he is insane. But after a hearing before State District Judge

Larry Gist, both Gist and the appellate court denied his request for a reprieve.

Anderson's sister, Laura Lee Anderson Goode, 31, was convicted of taking part in the murder scheme and was sentenced to life imprisonment.
