Fire sweeps high-rise in New Delhi, killing 3

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Fire raged through a high-rise office building in New Delhi today, trapping more than 300 people on upper floors for several hours. Hospital officials said three people were killed and 80 injured.

Firefighters rigged a rope and bamboo bridge between the burning building and a partially built high-rise nearby and led some people to safety. Others were guided down the burning building's staircases. Many emerged crying and choking from smoke.

Hospital officials said three people were killed in the blaze, including one person who burned to death and another that witnesses said fell from a fire

Fifteen people were hospitalized, most because of smoke inhalation, the hospital officials said. Another 65 people were treated for minor injuries and released, the officials reported.

The fire in the 11-story Ansal Bhavan building began at about 10:30 a.m. It was declared under control about five nant government, told reporters at the scene that between 300 and 400 people were rescued from the roof and upper stories of the building. Kapur said it was believed that no one else was inside the building, but that firefighters and police began a room-by-room search after the fire was brought under control

Six women were lifted off the roof by air force helicopters before operations were suspended for fear the rotors would fan the flames

Asked what caused the fire, Kapur said: "At this point I don't rule out anycaused by an electrical short-circuit." The fire apparently started on the sixth floor and worked its way upwards.

"There was a power failure and I saw smoke coming out just after that," Said G.S. Gill, an office worker rescued from the sixth floor.

Pradeep Gupta, 25, who worked on the sixth floor, said: "I saw the smoke, and there was panic. All of us ran to the top floor, to the roof.

As the fire spread through the building, many people were seen on the roof,

The Ansal Bhavan building houses ticket offices of Saudia Airlines and Iraqi Airways on the ground floor. Upper stories house private commercial

The building is next door to the U.S. Information Service library. The concrete library building was not threatened by the fire.

Workers in some nearby buildings were temporarily evacuated. The street, which leads to the central Connaught Place shopping area, was cordoned off.

City comissioners set called meeting

Pampa City Commission will meet in a special called meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday to discuss matters regarding a park, penalties on taxes and a water well testing project.

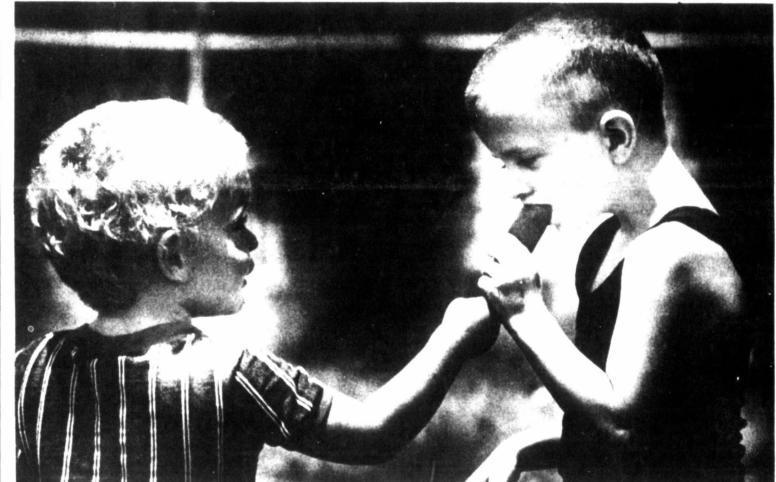

Commissioners will be considering a recommendation from the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board that the Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Association be allowed to develop an aviation museum at Memorial Park.

The Parks Board, in a split decision, approved the association's request for using the old Pump Station No. 1 building for a museum dedicated to the former World War II air training base. The museum would display memorabilia from the air field that had been located east of Pampa during the war.

But the board has suggested that the museum not include any outside displays, specifically referring to the association's desire to place a B-25 bomber on the Memorial Park site. The association, though, has indicated it plans to enclose the bomber in a rotunda building, with entry

Three U.S. soldiers killed, up to 30 injured in accident

U.S. military experts has been sent to West Germany to investigate an explosion that killed three American soldiers and injured up to 30 others during a training exercise, officials said

U.S. military authorities said 12 soldiers were hospitalized and West German police said up to 30 servicemen were injured, some seriously, in the accident Sunday at the U.S. Army's largest maneuver area in West Germany, about 35 miles southeast of Nuremberg.

The accident occurred when a cratering charge, used to blow holes in the ground, detonated during routine demolition training Sunday morning

Corps headquarters in Frankfurt.

The cratering device probably contained several pounds of explosives, West German police experts

The names of the victims were withheld pending notification of relatives, the statement said. The soldiers were members of the 58th Combat Engineer Company, part of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment headquartered in Fulda, West Ger-

The accident was the most serious involving the U.S. military in West Germany since an unarmed Pershing-2 missile caught fire Jan. 11, 1985, killing three soldiers and injuring 16 others

U.S. military authorities said a team from the Army Safety Center at Fort Rucker, Ala., was flown to West Germany to head the investigation The cause of the blast was not known, they said.

The Army statement said two soldiers were pronounced dead upon arrival Sunday and another died shortly after being admitted to a hospital. The Army said the hospitalized soldiers suffered

"This is not a portrait of American diplomacy," Shultz said Sunday on NBC-TV's 'Meet the Press' program. "It's a portrait of what happened in a particular instance, and some of the things that have been revealed I

tages in Lebanon. 'That people who were representing themselves as in some way speaking for America would talk about ... prisoners in Kuwait as something we would be willing to discuss that is totally wrong, totally against the president's policies and I found that just a terrible thing," Shultz said

Hakim, a middleman in the secret sale of U.S. arms to Iran, testified earlier this month that he negotiated a plan with an Iranian official close to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in October 1986 to sell weapons in exchange for the release of the American hostages.

The plan also included possible freedom for Moslem prisoners in Kuwait and south Lebanon, according to a copy of the plan released by congressional committees investigating the Iran arms sales and the private resupply effort for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

One Moslem Shiite sect holding American hostages in Lebanon has demanded the release of 17 compatriots who were jailed in Kuwait after explosions rocked the American and French embassies in 1984. Another group that seized Americans wants freedom for about 400 prisoners held in south Lebanon by an Israeli-controlled mili-

Attorney General Edwin Meese III, interviewed on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley" program, refused to comment on reports of his dealings with fired National Security Council aide Lt. Col. Oliver L.

"I'm not going to be lured into commenting on this matter," Meese said. "I will comment plenty when I have the opportunity to testify, or at an appropriate time when the facts are all out there. But I think there is no question in my mind that I have at no time done anything improper or illegal, and that my opportunity for comment will come.

■ The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution reported in combined Sunday editions that Meese, while serving as a White House counselor, steered potential contribu-

Legislators urge flexibility in applying immigration law

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) - Mexican and U.S. congressmen, ending their 27th Interparliamentary Meeting, called for flexibility in applying the new U.S. immigration law and agreed to step up cooperation in battle against narcotics trafficking.

In a joint communique Sunday at the close of the two days of talks in this Caribbean resort, the congressmen also said Central American peace efforts should be revived and strengthened.

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., chairman of the four-member U.S. Senate delegation, said the Simpson-Rodino immigration law "provoked some hot discussion" and "some annoyance on the part of the Americans here because they thought they had done a good job with that law.

"I think there was some disappointment that there was as much criticism of the law," Dodd told reporters after the closed sessions.

Mexican complaints about the law included the handling of paperwork for undocumented workers applying for legal residency under a one-year amnesty and for a temporary worker program, and the division of families when not all members qualify to stay in the United States

The U.S. delegation stressed that "unfortunate discrepancies had arisen between the spirit" of the law and its application through regulations, the

The communique also called for the use of 'peaceful means and negotiation" to find a solution to the Central American conflicts.

Mexico opposes the Reagan administration's support for Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government, as does Dodd Discussions of drug issues, Dodd said, were "a love-in" in comparison with recent years when the subject was a a main source of tension between the countries New York Reps. Charles B. Rangel and Benjamin Gilman said the delegations agreed to try to obtain specific targets and timetables for drug eradication and seizure in the joint Mexico-U.S. drug control program. The communique was less specific, but called for several actions, including updating laws on drug trafficking and abuse, exchange of information, education to combat drug abuse and formation of a commission agreed upon at last year's meeting.

'We trust each other's commitment'' to combat illegal drugs, "but we're losing the war," Rangel said in a interview.

Rangel chairs the Select Committee on Narcotics and Gilman is its ranking Republican. The proposed commission of congressmen and officials from both countries would monitor the #### communique said. anti-drug efforts and recommend improvements. New home sales drop during May

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new homes plunged 14.9 percent in May, the biggest decline in more than five years, the government reported

The Commerce Department said that new single-family homes were sold at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 616,000 units in May as higher mortgage rates cut sharply into home sales.

The annual rate was the lowest since December 1984. The 14.9 percent decline from the April sales pace was the biggest one-month drop since a 19.5 percent decrease in January 1982, during the 1981-82 recession

Analysts have been forecasting weakness in home sales because of the rise in mortgage rates this spring. After declining to a nine-year low of close to 9 percent for fixed-rate loans at the end of March, average rates climbed sharply in April and May, hitting 10.81 percent on May 22. Since that time, they have retreated somewhat and now stand at 10.35 percent, still well above their low-point, according to a weekly survey by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

So far this year, sales of new homes are down 13.5 percent from the same period a year ago. In 1986, new home sales totaled 750,000 units, the best performance of this decade.

The declining sales did not act as a brake on prices. The median price of a new home shot up to a record $106,800, 9.1 percent above the $97,900 midpoint price in April. The average price of a new home climbed even faster to $129,600, 10.3 percent higher than in April.

The 14.9 percent drop in sales followed a 1.0 percent April increase, which was revised downward from an initially reported 7.6 percent gain.

Officials say Meese met North frequently, approved his actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney Gen. Edwin Meese III met with Lt. Col. Oliver L. North before the Iran-Contra affair unraveled last fall, on a more regular basis than the attorney general has acknowledged, according to a knowledgable government source.

Meese, who led an administration inquiry into North's activities last November, has said he held perhaps a dozen meetings with the former National Security Council aide, none discussing aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. Appearing Sunday on ABC-TV, Meese declined to answer questions about his meetings or involvement with North.

According to current and former administration sources who spoke on condition of anonymity, the attorney general met often with North and, according to one source, as frequently as almost every week during a period from late 1985 through much

However, Meese spokesman Terry Eastland said Sunday night that Meese could recall no meetings with North beyond the dozen he has acknowledged during 1985 and 1986.

North at the time was arranging the sale of U.S.made weapons to Iran and developing a private network to supply the Contras during a congressional ban on U.S. military aid. In a related matter, one source said the federal grand jury investigating the Iran-Contra affair has been told that complaints by other NSC aides to then-National Security Adviser Rear Admiral

John M. Poindexter about North's activities were dismissed with a claim they had been reviewed for legality by the attorney general. Meese, appearing Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," said he would answer questions when he is called to testify before the congressional Iran-Contra investigating commit-

"I'm not going to be lured into commenting on this matter," Meese said. "I will comment plenty when I have the opportunity to testify, or at an appropriate time when the facts are all out there. But I think there is no question in my mind that I have at no time done anything improper or illegal. and that my opportunity for comment will come. Eastland said later that Meese did not give any legal opinions or clearances for North's activities. Asked about Meese's meetings with North, Eastland last week cited Meese's earlier statements that he had met perhaps a dozen times. Late Sunday he added that Meese could recall no meetings alone with North and the NSC staff counsel, Cmdr. Paul B. Thompson, who a source said sat in on some of their sessions.

Eastland declined to answer questions regarding North and Meese's agenda during their meetings, except to say counterterrorism "is one of the matters they typically discussed." North's job description made him responsible for counterterrorism matters at the NSC, although his activities ranged from aid to the Contras to efforts to secure release of the U.S. hostages in Lebanon.

City loans live traps to residents

By BOB HART Pampa City Manager

The Pampa Animal Shelter would like to remind Pampa residents that we offer live traps for the purpose of capturing stray and unwanted dogs, cats and wildlife.

There are many unwanted animals living off of trash, creating a potential health hazard. These unowned and unvaccinated animals suffer from disease, parasites and the dangers of meeting with a tragic death -"which is more kind?

Live trapping is a safe and easy way to control the population of these poor, unwanted animals!

Contact the shelter seven days a week by calling 669-6149 and leaving your name, address and phone number and we will get back with you.

Also, we would like to request that citizens not put grass clippings in the mud holes and deep ruts of the alleys. It causes problems when the Street Department needs to repair an alley. The grass gets wet, and if gravel is put over such a spot, it causes soft spots and the gravel will not pack sufficiently to repair the mud hole.

It also makes it very difficult for the maintainer to blade the alleys properly.

The district, one of 12 in the ailing Farm Credit System, is shedding its low profile image out of concern that the government will take control from its borrowers to try to save the system.

Fueled by its stockholders and funds raised on the public bond market, the Texas district finances up to one-third of the state's farm debt. The debt amounts to about 47,000 loans outstanding — worth $4 billion — to about 100,000

"I fear that this system is bordering on federal takeover, and if that happens, I think it could be the beginning of the end of the cooperative Farm Credit System as we know it," Mike Dail, president of the Federal Land Bank Association, told the Dallas Morning News. The association, one of 44 such associations in the Texas district, is based in the Hill Country town of Mason.

The Texas district — which includes the Federal Land Bank of Texas and its associations, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and the 28 Production Credit Associations it oversees, and the Texas Bank for Cooperatives — has emerged as a maverick in the Farm Credit System, both because of success and new-found influence.

It is a pivotal time for the district, which sees pending legislation moving either toward more centralization of the system, with stockholder ties severed and control passed to some new powerful government board, or greater decentralization providing for protection of borrower-owners and viable system banks.

"The Texas district has in the past taken the position that we were a lowimage district. But there are other factors now," Don Rogge, president of the Federal Land Bank of Texas, said during a recent media briefing at the Capitol.

Dail, along with other Federal Land Bank Association presidents in Texas, is actively supporting a bill that is different from one endorsed by the Texas district's board, but also is aimed at ensuring grass-roots control.

"The main thing that has to happen is that we need to give immediate relief to the borrowers, because without the borrowers, the system won't survive," said Dail. The bill Dail supports calls for a one time cash infusion of $2.5 billion to buy down interest payments for borrowers to as low as 7 percent.

However, Ed Breihan, a Lubbock resident and chairman of the Texas Farm Credit district board, said an interest buydown would draw criticism from those who believe the Farm Credit System should not get special treatment.

Breihan said a Reagan administration official has said the administration wants the system restructured without a direct cash infusion to force the sys-

That restructuring could involve transferring funds from other agencies or using reserve funds, possibly to include a continued shifting of reserves within the Farm Credit System.

But shifting reserves could severely hamper the Texas district's ability to offer competitive rates to borrowers, Briehan said.

The bill favored by the Texas district calls for a one-time contribution by stronger districts to weaker ones. The plan would leave the contributing districts with a surplus of at least 5 percent of net loans. The system bill would ensure viability of all system banks by

Bell Helicopter employees vote to accept contract, return to work

FORT WORTH (AP) — Striking employees of Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. have voted to approve a new three-year contract, ending a three-week strike against the helicopter manufacturer.

Members of both striking unions were instructed to return to work at their next scheduled shift today, Bell spokesman Terry Arnold said Sunday.

A union spokesman said members of Local 218 of the United Autoworkers, representing about 3,100 production and maintenance workers, voted 1,988 to 244 to return to their jobs beginning at midnight.

Clerical workers represented by UAW Local 317 voted later Sunday 415-0 to accept a new contract offer, ending their strike that began a week ago. There are about 900 workers covered by the contract for clerical workers.

J.J. Birchard, president of Local 218, said his union had made some gains in compromises on the company's original contract offer, including spreading out salary increases that Bell officials had proposed to make in lump sums. A union official credited the quick settlement of the strike to both unions voting to strike during the same period of time.

Negotiations resumed with the production work ers last Monday after the clerical workers joined them on the picket line.

"I think the company realized we were striking together," Fred Milholland, a Local 218 senior trustee, said. "If it took two or three months, we were ready to stay. I think the company saw that."

A total of 8,000 workers are employed at eight Bell facilities in Fort Worth and suburban Hurst, Arlington and Grand Prairie, Bell spokesman Dick

The strikes were the first at Bell since 1969. The agreements call for a 3 percent general salary increase the first year plus a 3 percent single sum payment, Tipton said. The second year, the workers will receive a 2 percent general increase and a 2 percent single sum payment, while a 4 percent single sum payment will be paid during the third year, he said.

State's budget battle moves toward house floor Tuesday

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite a veto threat by Gov. Bill Clements, House Speaker Gib Lewis pushing for approval of a tax package of up to $6 billion to help the state out of its fiscal crisis.

Lewis planned to put the finishing touches on the package over the weekend, but he said it was almost sure to include increasing the state sales tax from the current 5.25 percent to 6 percent. Lewis also wants the sales tax extended to cover services that are now exempt. The House Ways and Means Committee scheduled a meeting today to hear a variety of tax plans. Whatever plan is approved by the committee will be considered I uesday on the House floor, right before members vote on a proposed $38.3

Lewis is still pushing a state lottery as part of the solution, although Comptroller Bob Bullock has said that might not prove to be much of a shortterm solution.

The speaker met with Clements, sometimes several times a day, late last week. But Lewis reported no change in Clements' promise to veto any tax plan above the $2.9 billion that could be raised by extending the temporary sales and motor fuels taxes now in effect.

Lewis said he wants the House to do what it believes is best for the state, regardless of the prom-

Approval of the tax bill would send it to the Senate, which has been in favor of increasing taxes to avoid major cuts in state spending. Senate approval would send it to Clements.

A gubernatorial veto could send the budget plans back to lawmakers for consideration of overriding Clements. Several House leaders have said they doubt there would be enough votes to override.

Two guardsmen recount seeing wild flight of guard helicopter

NEW BRAUNFELS (AP) — Two National Guardsmen said investigators gave scant attention to their report that a helicopter appeared to be on a wild joyride before it crashed at Fort Hood, killing all 10 people aboard.

"We've seen a lot of choppers fly over around there but we'd never seen any guys hotdogging the way they did," said Sgt. Roy Villareal, 28, an eightyear guard veteran with the 133rd Field Artillery of the 49th Armored Division, speaking of the helicopter's last airborne minutes.

'They were like, you know, showing off to the people that were in the chopper," he told the Austin American-Statesman. "They were playing with

The guardsmen told the newspaper they were interviewed for less than 10 minutes by senior officers investigating the June 22 crash of a UH-1 Huey helicopter during annual summer training

Six-year guard veteran Pfc. James Mayo. 23. who is in the same unit as Villareal, said he and Villareal watched the helicopter for 20 to 25 mi-

"I was in the trees and all the trees just opened up 'cause he (the pilot) was so low the wind just spread all the trees apart," Mayo said. "You could see the crew chief. His leg would fly out like this, hang out when they'd make the turn, and you could see where he was trying to hold his leg in but they'd be hanging out like this. If those guys weren't strapped in, they'd have all fell out.

Both men said they watched the helicopter because its flight path was so unusual, sometimes banking at 80- to 90-degree angles. They said investigators appeared skeptical. 'When we told them what we saw they looked at each other like 'These guys don't know what they are talking about," said Villareal said. A message was left Fort Hood for comment on the men's statements, but the spokesman on duty did not return the call to The Associated Press-

Spokesman for the National Guard have not described the helicopter's mission other than to say it was on an "orientation flight." The newspaper said the Army and National Guard refused to provide the names, ranks, duties or postings of members of the investigation team.

Tax collector resorts to off-hour seizures

AUSTIN (AP) — Travis County tax officials say they weren't grandstanding when they marched into a tax-delinquent nightclub accompanied by the glare of television lights. They said they simply wanted to send a message to other taxevaders.

County tax collector Cecelia Burke and 18 tax-enforcement officers, an assistant county attorney, sheriff's deputies and state beverage agents entered the nightclub Dallas shortly after 1:30 a.m. Saturday

As they entered, couples on the dance floor and people at tables stared as the darkened club was suddenly brightened by television-camera lights.

Ms. Burke and sheriff's Deputy Dave Yeager served night manager Jim Eikner with a seizure warrant signed by a justice of the

SHOOTING PAINS

It you're a victim of sciatica, you know what "shooting pains" are all about. The sometimes excrutiating pain of sciatica frequently affects the hip, thigh and back of the leg. The ankle and foot are sometimes affected, too. But that's not where the problem

The sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body, extends from the lower spine to the back of the thigh and knee. Then it divides. One nerve goes down the front of the lower leg, and other goes down the back of the leg.

It's the inflammation of the sciatic nerve that causes the pain. This can be triggered by an irritated nerve root. What causes the irritation? The cause may be traced to a misalignment of the spinal column that's putting abnormal pressure on the roots of the sciatic nerves as they pass between the vertebrae.

Through x-rays and other procedures the doctor of chiropractic can locate the misaligned vertebrae. Using a gentle adjustment, he can align it properly again to help eliminate the cause and the

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

U.S. Constitution deserves review

It's appropriate that, even before the five-year celebration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution began last weekend, debate was raging over imperfections in the original version of the 200-year-old document. Such discussions are healthy. After all, the Constitution was tempered by heated debate — and compromise — during its birth in Philadelphia in 1787.

Ah, says the Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, but some of those compromises — specifically the one that allowed slavery — resulted in a government that "was defective from the start, requiring several amendments, a civil war and momentous social transformation to attain the system of constitutional government, and its respect for the individual freedoms and human rights, we hold as fundamental

During speech in San Francisco, Marshall said it was "unfortunate" that the bicentennial celebration was focusing almost exclusively on "proud proclamations of the wisdom, foresight and sense of justice shared by the framers and reflected in a written document now yellowed with age." Such a celebration "invited a complacent belief" in the perfection of the Constitution as originally written.

Instead, Marshall says citizens should "celebrate the bicentennial of the Constitution as a living document, including the Bill of Rights and other amendments protecting individual freedoms and human

Marshall's speech prompted a quick response from Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds. Yes, the Founding Fathers should have repudiated slavery. Nevertheless, Reynolds insists the Supreme Court was as much to blame for perpetuating slavery and racial inequality.

After all, in 1857 the Supreme Court upheld slavery in the Dred Scott decision, with an interpretation that Reynolds calls "loose, disingenous and result-oriented." Even after the Civil War and the ratification of the 14th Amendment, which guaranteed blacks equal rights, the Supreme Court continued its "tragic failure to follow the terms of the Constitution." creating the "separate-but-equal" doctrine in the Plessy vs. Ferguson in 1896

Had the court done its job, Reynolds argues, "we could well have escaped much of the racial strife and social divisiveness that Justice Marshall lays at the doorstep of the Constitution itself.'

Of course, for all its virtues, the Constitution is not perfect. But flaws and all, the U.S. Constitution is the most lasting government blueprint in the world today. That this system of government has lasted for two centuries is a tribute to the wisdom of the Founding Fathers and the adaptability of the system they cre-

It is also a tribute to the ideals that underlie the Constitution. It rests on the principle of inalienable rights — that men as a birthright own certain rights to life, liberty and property. The U.S. Constitution limits the power of the government over the citizens. It makes perfectly clear that the government has been created to serve its citizens, and not vice versa.

The bicentennial celebration should be a time to study the Constitution, its virtues and its shortcomings.

FDA shows stupidity again

When they read the newspapers these days, Americans may worry about being killed by AIDS, a plane crash or a shooting on the New York City subway. But most of them will probably succumb to a less newsworthy killer: heart disease, which with nearly a million victims a year is the leading cause of death in the United States.

Recently scientists at the University of Southern California reported for the first time that a program of drugs and diet aimed at reducing blood cholesterol can sometimes actually reverse the process of coronary disease. Their discovery gives added weight to the advice of physicians that Americans should alter their eating and exercise habits to keep their hearts strong and arteries clear.

But not everyone pays attention to news reports, and fewer still heed the suggestions of their doctors. One of the most valuable methods for spreading the message is advertising. But federal regulators, distasteful of competitive markets and overly preoccupied with less urgent dangers, have largely prevented its use. Rules supposedly written to protect the public health are harming it.

Scientist have known of the connection between cholesterol and heart disease for at least a quarter of a century. But, as Regulation magazine reports, for a decade the Food and Drug Adminstration banned any reference to cholesterol on food labels, and even today it doesn't allow labels on low-cholesterol foods to mention heart disease.

That's not all. Sellers who tout their foods as useful in promoting cardiovascular health run a serious risk: Their products may be classified by the FDA as a drug, thus requiring them to go through the expensive and time-consuming procedures required for the certification of new drugs

The FDA has a defensible reason for this policy. It wants to prevent sellers of bogus remedies (say, laetriles) from getting around drug regulations by marketing their products as foods. But a less restrictive approach could deter fraudulent claims while permitting honest ones.

It is increasingly obvious that some foods reduce certain health risks, while others aggravate them. The FDA policy, however, makes no accomodation for such discoveries. So advertisers of potentially valuable foods are deprived of a powerful marketing tool and consumers are deprived of truthful information. In the legitimate effort to prevent medical fraud, the agency is supressing medical facts.

It also is stimulating pressure for change. In fact, change already is getting a tryout in the bran cereal market, where Kellogg has promoted its All-Bran with television ads trumpeting the evidence that raising fiber consumption may be useful in preventing some types of

How has Kellogg gotten away with it? Regulation magazine reports that it worked out an arrangement with the National Cancer Institute, under which the company would publicize the NCI's diet recommendations and give a toll-free number for viewers interested in getting further information from the institute.

Kellogg's reliance on NCI data minimized the prospect of disapproval from the Federal Trade Commission, which also regulates advertising It also discouraged the FDA from taking action against Kellogg, because the FDA is part of the same government department (Health and Human Services) as the NCI. So the ads stayed on

But FDA officials weren't pleased. There was some sentiment in the agency for classifying All-Bran as a drug, but someone apparently considered how ridiculous that would look. So a review of the policy was launched.

Enlightened ideas didn't prevail. The FDA's new rules (as yet unpublished) reportedly would allow this sort of advertising only in circumstances defined so narrowly that even the All-Bran ads might not pass inspection. So consumers would continue to be burdened by regulators who threaten penalties for any producer who, as Regulation puts it, "echoes the common advice of health professionals and consumer activ-

That policy is absurd, in addition to being dangerous in the strictest sense of the word. Allowed to publicize accurate information about their products, food sellers can be expected to act in ways that would advance public health as well as their own economic welfare. In the battle for a healthier America, the makers of All-Bran are not the enemy.

'Junkyard dog' gets tamed

Palm Springs (Calif.) High School has the Lee Staggs on the school bus pulled a knife and usual assortment of good students and not-sogood students but it also had Elika Staggs.

Elika — called himself "Lee" Staggs — was Mister Trouble. Fights, assault with weapons, stealing cars, using drugs, you name it. If he'd been old enough at least once he'd have been tried for attempted murder. From wherever he got the massive scar he was left with only limited use of that right arm, but he'd just as soon shoot you, cut you or fight you as look at you. Lee Staggs was the "junkyard dog" of Palm Springs High.

Lawmen and teachers recognized all the symptoms of an angry, confused, violent black youth.

Each encounter with the police compounded Then one day — this was three years ago —

threatened anybody

When the bus driver tried to intervene, Staggs threatened him. So the police were called again. An officer named Manny Rodriguez, a sevenyear veteran of the force, responded

This time Lee Staggs was not going to be arrested again. Standoff.

Young Staggs with his knife drawn and Officer Rodriguez with his gun drawn - and the hammer back and his finger on the trigger

But then Officer Rodriguez started talking. Half an hour later young Staggs has put his knife down, Manny Rodriguez has put his gun down ... and they were both talking.

Comparing their childhoods. Officer Rodriguez told of his flight from communist Cuba, how he joined a youth gang in Los Angeles, his experience as a young gangster heading for a dead end.

For four hours the two talked. Obligatory promises were made. A friendship developed. It is three years later. Elika Staggs is graduating from Palm Springs High — with honors. It was not easy. He had to attend both regular and night school to make up for earlier absences. He had to make up 128 units in one year. Yet, for each of the last three years he has maintained a four-point, straight-A average. He got his diploma June 2, and there was a special ceremony at which Elika Staggs received a plaque of recognition and respect from the Palm Springs Association of Police Two proud parents and many friends — and Manny Rodriguez — were in that audience.

What next? Lee has become youth minister in his church. He'll go to college where he can prepare for the ministry. His injured arm won't let him become a policeman but he wants to be somebody who can help somebody who needs help. He knows how it is.

Japanese shouldn't make Yankee jokes

By BEN WATTENBERG

Perhaps the Japanese are being picked on too much in the current dialogue about trade. So-called "Japanbashing" isn't fair. Most of the causes of our trade deficit are our own fault. Most of the Japanese economic miracle has been of their own making, through hard work and brilliant

But if Japan-bashing is wrong, if the Japanese get upset about it, they would be wise to address their own deep-rooted xenophobia, a Japanese distaste for anyone not Japanese. In particular, they'd better think twice about "Yankee-trashing." To get a flavor of it, consider this stunning paragraph by James Fallows that has just appeared in U.S. News & World

"In Japan, (the AIDS epidemic) has led to discussion of their preoccupation - foreigners. 'Japanese Only' signs, conveniently in English, have sprung up in the commercial-sex zones. One of the candidates (for) prime minister, the Liberal Democratic Party chairman, Noboru Takeshita, added a charming touch by linking America's economic decline to its new medical vulnerability. At a political rally... he joked that the ever-rising ven had made American sailors stationed in Japan too poor to afford Japanese bar girls. According to a newspaper account, which his spokesman did not deny, Takeshita said that the lonely sailors' only alternative was to stay on base and give each other AIDS.

Now, that is pretty rough stuff un-der any circumstance. It should be understood that the Japanese govern ment tries to stop such ugliness. Still, the remark was made by the person who is the front-runner in the race to become Japan's next leader. And, coming from a nation whose existence is due to our sufferance, it can make a grown man damned mad.

Recall that the Japanese constitution, under whose democratic umbrella their economic miracle has bloomed, was imposed upon them by the United States after the American occupation in 1945.

Note that 60 percent of the oil used by Japan is shipped through the Persian Gulf, while the figure for America is only 7 percent. Yet it is America that is talking about risking American lives and spending American treasure so that the gasoline tanks in those cars in Japan can stay nicely topped off. If the Japanese have offered applause, I don't recall hearing it.

And we should mention the central fact of Japanese existence: They are our wards. They live in a very dangerous neighborhood, close to some big bad countries who don't like the Japanese - Russia and China. The Japanese do little to protect themselves spending just over 1 percent of their gross national product on defense, the lowest rate of any modern nation.

So. Mr. Takeshita ought not to make jokes about American sailors. If he does it again, perhaps we ought to tell him that we might bring the sailors home from Japan and from the Persian Gulf. That would leave Mr. Takeshita all alone to talk to his nice neighbors, while Japan's military power is near zero, and its gas tanks are in danger of registering "empty."

Feminine fashions were as much influenced by the sports in which women engaged as they were by leading designers.

The bicycle, which became available to the masses in America during the late 1880s, was a full-blown craze by the 1890s. Early bikes from the 1830s had no pedals or brakes and they were considered too dangerous for

However, women began to ride bicycles in the 1890s when a safety bike was made with two wheels of the same size, brakes and rubber tires. The bicycle was expensive but, like today's car, it gave freedom to the young.

A ride in the country meant exercise and time away from the family. The exercise was also thought to be healthy. It was considered a cure for female exhaustion and nervousness, even an aid in developing muscles needed for childbearing.

Although this tap-dancing group isn't exactly singing in the rain, it is tap dancing.

The Decatur Park District Recreation Department's rockerette tap-dancing classes for dancers 55 years old and older is testing knees, tap shoes and memories of members of its two classes.

"I'm finding out I'm not as flexible as I used to be," says Joanne Richards, 56, of Decatur. She says she hadn't tapped since 1954, after taking lessons for ab-

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) Alexander Volkov has become the "Yankee killer" of Wimbledon.

Ranked 503rd in the world, the 20-year-old left-hander from Moscow made the men's field through the qualifying rounds, beating Americans Brian Teacher and Bud Cox in the final two rounds

Since the 101st grass-court championships began one week ago, Volkov has kept up the attack on U.S. players and become the first from the Soviet Union to reach the fourth round at Wimbledon since Alex Metrevelli was a finalist in 1973.

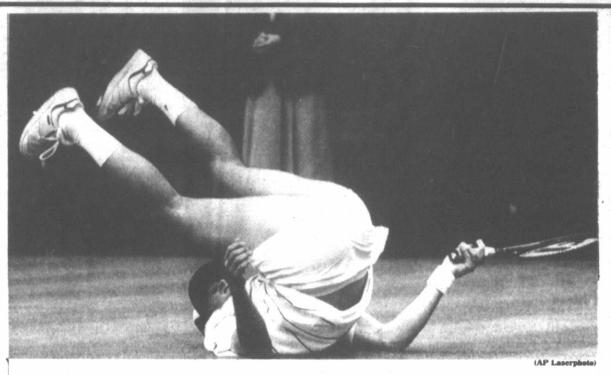

The latest Yank to fall was Brad Gilbert, the 12th seed, beaten on Saturday by Volkov 7-6, 0-6, 6-3, 6-4.

After a traditional rest day on the middle Sunday, the rainplagued tournament was to get back into action today, with Volkov, the lowest-ranked player still in the field, finding out his next opponent.

It will be either fifth-seeded Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakiaor unseeded Anders Jarryd of Sweden, who were to play on Centre Court. An all-Swedish match was there first, with third-seeded Mats Wilander playing Jonas Svensson.

No. 7 Jimmy Connors of the United States was to go against Kelly Evernden of New Zealand. With defending champion Boris Becker of West Germany eliminated in the second round on Friday, Connors, the winner in 1974 and 1982, was the only former men's titleholder left as the second week of Wimbledon

Other men's matches scheduled for today had No. 10 Tim Mayotte of the United States against Mikael Pernfors of Sweden; No. 11 Pat Cash of Australia against Michiel Schapers of the Netherlands; and No. 14 Emilio Sanchez of Spain against

Texas takes four from Minnesota

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers may not be out of the woods as far as the American League West race is concerned. but they're talking now as though they can see a light through the

"It's one of the things that can be a turning point," center fielder Oddibe McDowell said Sunday night after the Rangers had beaten Minnesota 6-3 to complete a 4-game sweep of the first-place Twins. "It could be what we need to get us going right now.'

The 4-game sweep moved the Rangers to within 6 1-2 games of the Twins, the closest they've been in two weeks.

"Now we have them in sight," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "We've got to keep up the intensity."

Jose Guzman, who was sick several times during the game because of the flu, squared his record at 6-6 with 7 1-3 innings of 7-hit pitching. He allowed three runs, walked one and struck out

"I had to go back to the clubhouse to be sick," said Guzman, runs a game in his last four starts. "But I was getting ahead of the hitters and getting my curveball over. Maybe I should be sick more when I pitch.'

Former Ranger Mike Smithson, 4-4, suffered the loss. He went seven innings and allowed six runs on six hits, including McDowell's 2-run homer in the fourth that broke a 2-2 tie.

"It was a big series," said McDowell. "These guys came in here in first place and we had a chance to pick up some ground."

Two of the hits off Guzman were home runs by Kent Hrbek, his 20th, and Randy Bush, his

"The key is that while he gave up a few home runs, no one was on base, and that's how you win," said Valentine.

The Twins led 2-0 after 3 1-2, thanks to Greg Gagne's double and Guzman's balk in the third and Hrbek's solo homer in the top

But the Rangers got four in their half and were never headed. "They beat us fair and square," said Twins manager

Tom Kelly. "Any team can beat any other team four in a row. Seeing is believing. It was the first time the Rangers had swept a 4-game series from the Twins since mid-May of 'They didn't play great,'' said Twins third baseman ley. "We just played worse. When

Astros lose

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -Familiarity didn't breed contempt for San Francisco Giants pinch-hitting specialist Harry Spilman, but he certainly enjoyed his first major league atbat against winter hunting companion Nolan Ryan of the Houston Astros

Spilman's three-run, tapemeasure homer off Ryan capped a four-run, fifth-inning rally that broke a tie and lifted the Giants to an 8-4 victory Sunday

'When Harry came back to the dugout after the homer, he told me they probably wouldn't go hunting again after that," said Giants' manager Roger Craig, whose club climbed back to .500 and avoided an Astros' sweep.

'We'll probably kid around about it this winter," added Spilman, who thinks so much of Ryan, a former teammate at Houston, that he named his only son Ryan William.

"Harry's the type of hitter who, when you give him that pitch (a fat fastball), is supposed to do that," said Ryan, 4-8, who struck out 11 batters in five innings to pull within one of J.R. Richard's club-record 1,493.

Will Clark belted his 14th home run for the Giants, giving the team 14 homers in the last four games for a total of 52 at Candlestick Park in 35 games. Last year, they hit 50 at home in 81 games.

Bill Doran connected for a pair of home runs and Glenn Davis added his 13th, all off winner Atlee Hammaker, 4-5, giving Giants' opponents nine homers in the last four games.

Mike Aldrete, substituting for injured Candy Maldonado, had a pair of run-scoring singles, including one in the fifth that gave the Giants a 5-4 lead.

"As hard as Nolan throws, he supplies the power," Spilman explained. "He pitched me tough and I battled him tough. He's still one of the toughest guys to face.

Azinger wins Hartford Open

By CHRIS DAHL AP Sports Writer

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) - Even though he had a three-stroke lead, Paul Azinger felt jittery when he awakened to play the final round of the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Considering the harrowing round of golf he was to play, he had good reason to be uneasy. 'I told my wife I was probably the only one in the field who was nervous," Azinger said. "Wayne Levi was three shots behind. I knew he needed to charge, and I know when I'm three shots back I'm not nervous." Azinger had broken out of a slump to shoot rounds of 69 and 65, respectively, on the first two days of the tournament.

On Saturday, the 27-year-old shot what he called the round of his life, a bogey-free 63, to pull away from Levi and the rest of the field.

On Sunday, he needed every bit of that threestroke margin to hold on and win the $700,000 tournament by one stroke over Dan Forsman and Levi and retake the PGA's earnings lead.

"With a three-shot lead at the start of the day I really felt a little defensive, like the other guys really had to come and get it," he said. "I didn't hit well at all. I was incredibly lucky to win.'

Nonetheless, he finished at 15-under 269, tying Peter Jacobsen and Mac O'Grady for the 72-hole record over the par-71, 6,786-yard Tournament Players Club of Connecticut course.

Azinger's round of 72 included one birdie, two bogeys and a lot of scary moments.

Forsman, who shot a 67, and Levi, with a 70, couldn't make up the necessary ground and fell one stroke short.

Poll: Collegiate sports overemphasized

By LAWRENCE KILMAN Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Half of all Americans believe sports get too much emphasis on college campuses, and it is the graduates themselves who are most likely to deplore the attention, according to a Media General-Associated Press poll.

The nationwide telephone poll of 1,304 adult Americans also found 54 percent of respondents thought college booster clubs commonly violated rules by giving money to players. Only 18 percent said such violations were infrequent, and 28 percent were un-

In an era of mega-buck revenues - and sometimes scandal — for college football and basketball, 52 percent of respondents thought campus sports were given too much emphasis. Thirty-eight percent thought sports had the proper emphasis.

College graduates were far more likely than those with less education to say sports were overemphasized in college. Seven in 10 college graduates felt that way, compared with about half of high school graduates and one-third of those who didn't finish high cent thought they had no influence at all.

Sports scandals led Texas last week to become the first state with a law meant to curb college sports cheating. The law makes it a civil offense to violate rules of the NCAA and holds violators liable for monetary losses suffered by their schools as a result of NCAA sanctions.

Southern Methodist University was the Texas school most tarnished by scandal. In the harshest penalty ever against a college football program, the NCAA suspended SMU football for 1987, citing $61,000 in illicit payments to 13 players or former players. The school subsequently decided not to play football in 1988.

In the Media General-AP poll, 64 percent of respondents had heard of the SMU scandal, and 60 percent thought the NCAA penalty was appropriate.

Despite the booster club involvement in the scandal, only one-quarter of respondents thought booster clubs in general were a bad influence on campus. Nearly half -47 percent - thought they were a good influence, and 19 percent were unsure. Nine per-

Half the respondents in the poll said they considered themselves sports fans, and they were predominantly male. Sixty-four percent of men and 37 percent of women said

Respondents in the Media General-AP poll included a random, scientific sampling of 1.304 adults across the country April 1-10. As with all sample surveys, the results of Media General-AP telephone polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variation in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,300 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations in the sample. That is, if one could have questioned all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for several reasons. Differences in exact wording of questions, in the timing of interviews and in the interview methods could also cause variations.

Chun ally demands direct elections to end protests

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The head of the ruling party, in a stunning turnabout, demanded today that President Chun Doo-hwan accept the people's will" and agree to direct presidential elections to end huge anti-government protests.

Roh Tae-woo, head of the Democratic Justice Party and Chun's main political ally, said he would resign his chairmanship and candidacy for president if his demands for reforms were not met.

The oppositon immediately hailed the statement, and leading dissident Kim Dae-jung called for formation of an interim government to oversee national affairs until Chun steps down in

A presidential spokesman said Chun would make a decision "soon" on Roh's demands, after they are adopted by the Democratic Justice Party as its official platform. The party immediately issued a statement saying its lawmakers fully supported Roh

Twenty-eight members of the party's Central Executive Council later tendered their resignations to show their support for Roh and give him a free hand in reorganizing the party. Officials said a reshuffle of party posts was expected.

"The people are the masters of their country and the people's will must come before everything else," Roh said in an announcement to the nation

He said he backed other key opposition demands, such as press freedom, greater autonomy for local governments, restoration of rights for Kim Dae-jung, who is barred from taking part in politics, and the release of people arrested in the protests that have swept the country since June 10.

Reacting to the news, Kim Dae-jung called for a new Cabinet representing the government, the opposition and independents.

'President Chun cannot but accept the proposal," he said of Roh's statement. "Otherwise, he would face a serious catastrophe." The National Coalition for a Democratic Constitution said Roh's announcement "has opened a new bright chapter in our national history. The coalition launched an anti-government campaign on June 10, the day the Democratic Justice Party nominated Roh, Chun's hand-picked successor, to be its presidential candidate. Riots broke out on that day in Seoul and other cities as people poured into the streets to demand the fall of the Chun government and direct presidential elections. Sunday was the first day of peace in 21/2 weeks of demonstrations. The government had repeatedly ruled out accepting demands for direct presidential elections and other major political reforms.

Jurors to resume deliberations today

AUSTIN (AP) - After almost five weeks of testimony and arguments, the racketeering-bribery trial of McLennan County District Attorney Vic Feazell has drawn to a close.

Supreme Soviet takes up economic reform

MOSCOW (AP) — The Supreme Soviet, the na tion's nominal parliament, convened its summer session today to adopt a law inaugurating a farreaching reform of the Soviet economy.

Officially the nation's highest legislative body, the Supreme Soviet formally adopts measures already approved by the party leadership. Votes are unanimous Observers, however, are closely watching speeches about the law made by deputies, many of whom hold jobs in the state and party apparatus that could be greatly affected by the reforms.

The reform blueprint aims at forcing factories to become financially self-sufficient, preventing ministries from meddling in factories' day-to-day operations and revamping methods of planning, pricing and supply

The program represents a radical departure from the "command economy" that was long the Soviet ideal, in which local managers and workers were judged on how well they executed decrees promulgated by bureaucrats in Moscow.

The session of the 1,500-member parliament began with a brief speech by Yegor K. Ligachev, the party ideology secretary and Politburo member. It was followed by a two-hour speech by Soviet Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov on the draft law on state enterprises.

Rvzhkov said reform of the economy "cannot be achieved by partial measures," and the system in place for decades failed to give factory managers assurance that their profits would be used for local improvements

He said the draft law to be adopted at the session was "substantially" amended after the party Central Committee took into consideration more than 140,000 proposals from party and government officials and from Soviet citizens.

Ryzhkov disclosed that 13 percent of Soviet factories ran in the red last year, and said under the draft law such losses would not be allowed.

The Supreme Soviet session will provide the first public presentation of the revised text of the draft economic law, which was endorsed by the Communist Party last week.

Soviet officials have said several amendments were added to the law since Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev presented it at a plenum of the party's Central Committee last week.

Geidar A. Aliev, one of the 14 members of the Communist Party Politburo, was absent from the ruling body as it filed in to the Grand Kremlin Palace headed by Gorbachev. Aliev, 64, has missed several command appearances over the past two months and is rumored to be in ill health or political disfavor.

A protege of former Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, he was made a non-voting Politburo member in 1976 and elevated to full membership in November 1982

Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Frels said in closing arguments Friday that the 36-year-old Waco prosecutor used his public office for his private Feazell has denied the charges, and his lawyer, Gary Richardson, told jurors, "I assure you that Vic is fighting for survival, but I also assure you he is telling the truth.

Feazell, district attorney in Waco since 1984, is accused of racketeering and conspiracy in 14 instances of accepting bribes from Waco attorneys to get misdemeanor driving while intoxicated and drug charges dismissed or reduced.

Economist urges relocating farmers, end to subsidies

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Instead of spending billions on commodity programs, the government should buy surplus land and help farmers move into other jobs, economist Lester C. Thurow

'Those in farming and related industries should be retrained and relocated, voluntarily, of course, to areas where jobs are available," said Thurow, the newly appointed dean of the Sloan School of Management at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"The sum that we now spend on farm subsidies would go a long way toward paying for such programs.

In areas of marginal production, Thurow said, entire farms should be purchased and permanently retired. The government has been operating a "whole-herd buyout" program for dairy cows in an effort to curb surplus milk production, and "there's no reason why we can't do the same for land," he Thurow made his comments in an article, "Time to Retrain the American Farmers," in the current issue of Technology Review, an MIT publication.

What Thurow recommends would sanction as official policy much of the attrition that has occurred in agriculture over many years. The number of farms has been declining, people have been moving off the land, and smalltown America built on local agriculture has been fading since at least World

"To do what we do now - pay farmers not to produce — is to pretend that at some point in the not-too-distant future these farmers and their land will go back into production," Thurow said. "This sort of system discourages the very transitions that must be encour-

Thurow said a system of transitional aid for farmers and surrounding communities is the "only one realistic option" available to policymakers.

'This option, of course, is not attractive politically since those who would be aided by such a program don't want to leave farming," he said. "Furth-ermore, those who represent farmers don't wish to see them leave. As farm states become depopulated, some of the politicians will lose their constituents and their jobs.'

Thurow said most of the underdeveloped world has benefited from improved technology used to produce more food. Many of those countries, such as Pakistan, can now feed them-

"In nations that are not selfsufficient, such as the Soviet Union and countries just south of the Sahara, the problem is clearly one of efficiently organizing and distributing agricultural products," he said. "It is not a question of knowing how to grow enough food."

Thurow said the wealthy countries also have made large gains, noting that Europe in a decade went from importing 25 million metric tons of grain per year to exporting 16 million tons. Foreign grain production in the 1980s increased by 29 million tons per year, yet global consumption rose by only 19 million tons annually.

"The net result is a worldwide oversupply of food — clearly a good thing for human welfare," he said. "There are still those who cannot afford to buy food, but there is no shortage of food to be bought."

While this has happened, the American farmer has seen his exports shrink from the record levels of the 1970s and early 1980s. Many dream of returning 'to the prosperous world of the late 1970s, but that world is gone," Thurow

He added: "It is not a question of hanging on until export markets recover. They are not going to recover in the foreseeable future."

According to Thurow, the goal of free trade favored by some countries, including the United States, is not a viable option for American farmers.

"While free trade between the United States and Europe would probably help Kansas farmers export more wheat, it would destroy the Wisconsin farmers' domestic market for dairy products, since European dairy farmers can now undercut American prices," he said. Opening Japan to rice imports might end up helping Thailand rice farmers and not American rice farmers.

Another option, discounted by Thurow, would be for U.S. taxpayers to continue pouring huge sums into "subsidizing an economically non-viable way of life" on the land

"However, no one believes such subsidies are politically feasible in the long

Remains found

Officials remove remains Sunday from a site described as a "common gravesite" for victims of the Green River serial killer. The unidentified remains were found Saturday by two juveniles near Green River Community College, south of Seattle, Wash. Authorities say the Green River killer is responsible for the deaths of 36 young women and the disappearances of 10 other missing women.

Meese predicts Supreme Court nominee within next two weeks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan likely will nominate a successor to retiring Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell within the next two weeks, said Attorney General Edwin Meese III, who called for speedy Senate action on the nominee

"I think the president will try to make that nomination quickly and I would think within the next week, or two weeks at the most," Meese said Sunday on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley.

"And that means that definitely it is imperative that the Senate commence hearings on that nomination before the August recess, so that they can have a justice in place through the whole process in time for the October sessions in court,' Meese said.

Reagan, returning Sunday from a weekend at Camp David, Md., refused to answer reporters' questions about his intentions regarding the Supreme Court appointment

However, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr. had indicated to him that the selection process had not begun, but that a meeting was scheduled for today.

"It's my impression that the president and the attorney general and the chief of staff will meet tomorrow to begin the process in earnest of considering who," Biden said Sunday on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation."

Reagan said he will move swiftly to fulfill what he called "one of the most significant duties of my

Police right burning car, rescue three

CHICAGO (AP) - Police officers on their way to Sunday breakfast pulled two people from a burning car, then righted the vehicle with their bare hands to rescue a third person moments before the car exploded, authorities said.

"The gas tank went up and the whole car blew,' said Lt. Stuart Weyforth.

The car's occupants were in fair condition at Roseland Community Hospital, said Catherine Mendoza, a nursing supervisor.

Weyforth said Officer William Peak and training recruits Alan Bednarek and Brian Short were driving behind the car at about 5:30 a.m. Sunday when it struck a concrete viaduct support and flipped onto its left side. The front end burst into flames, he said.

The three and detective William Storck, driving nearby in an unmarked car, went to the rescue, Weyforth said.

health problems and age as the reasons for his decision

Throughout his tenure. Powell avoided the rigid ideology that at times isolated the court's liberal and conservative wings. He was considered the court's pivotal vote, siding with "pro-choice" forces on abortion while voting conservatively on law-and-order issues.

Biden, whose committee is the first stop for judicial nominees, emphasized the importance of a balanced court in light of Powell's record.

"I think that if they try to find someone in Justice Powell's mold, there will be little or no problem in confirmation," Biden said. "Conversely, if ... there is a desire to move to ... someone who has predisposition on every one of the major issues and the social issues and wishes to move the court in the direction that's where it was 20-25 years ago, I think there will be some controversy.

The legality of abortion and future vitality of programs advancing minorities and women, among numerous other critical issues, may be at stake when Reagan picks a successor to Powell. And the president's decision could shape American life and the nation's law well into the 21st century

Possible candidates mentioned for Powell's job include U.S. Circuit Judge Robert H. Bork, Republican Sen. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah and two other appeals court judges, Robert A. Posner of Chicago and J. Clifford Wallace of San Diego.

Meese said there will be "a considerable list" of people and did not rule out candidates without a judicial background

Biden, interviewed in Los Angeles, noted that despite the speculation on the list of candidates, none has been mentioned by administration offi-

-OPTOMETRIST

My dad has been diagnosed as having macular degeneration. What causes it? How will it affect his vision?

Macular degeneration may be caused by injury, inflammation or vascular disease.

Aging may also be a factor.

It may destroy color and central vision in the affected eye, making tasks like reading and sewing difficult if not impossible. It is the second leading cause of blindness in the United States, although it does not cause total blindness. Side vision remains.

Vision destroyed by macular degeneration cannot be restored but optometrists can prescribe special low vision aids to help people like your dad maximize their remaining vision. For successful use, it requires acceptance of the strange looking aids and a willingness to learn a new way of reading and seeing up close. Many people have done it.

Your dad should have a thorough low vision examination by an optometrist skilled in this field to learn what can be done to help

Gore begins dark-horse quest idential candidates by more than five years.

CARTHAGE, Tenn. (AP) - Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee is beginning a dark-horse quest to become the youngest president in the nation's history, hoping a Southern heritage and an appeal to a new generation of Americans are the keys to the 1988 Democratic nomination.

A Vietnam veteran and onetime divinty student. Gore makes his formal announcement of his candidacy today on the steps of the Smith County Courthouse in his family's hometown, just outside

His father, long a senator and congressman from Tennesseee, will be at his side, as will his wife, Tipper, a crusader against obscene rock lyrics.

Gore will be the first Southerner to enter the race that some say will be decided in the South on March 8, 1988. That is Super Tuesday, when all the region's states except one will vote in primaries or But he may not be the last Southerner to toss his hat into the ring. Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia is under intense pressure to declare his intentions, while Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton has promised an announcement of his plans soon. Gore, the second-generation politician from the rolling country of Middle Tennesse, is in his 11th year in Congress, with four terms in the House and two years in the Senate behind him. He is 39 years old, the youngest of the 1988 presShould he win the nomination and the election, Gore would be the youngest person ever to serve as president, taking office in January 1989 just short of his 41st birthday

Gore, the sixth candidate to enter the 1988 Democratic race, has tried to turn his youth to his advantage, saying it is time for the country "to turn to youth, to vigor and to intellectual capacity.'

He hopes to appeal to the Baby Boom generation of Americans, as the first of its representatives to enter the 1988 race. The Baby Boom, consisting of Americans born between roughly 1946 and 1964, resulted from the surge of births that followed two Gore is not alone in his Baby Boom pitch, with Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware making a similar plea in his announcement earlier in the month.

The race for the Democratic nomination is wide open after the departure of front-runner Gary Hart amid controversy over his relationship with a Miami woman.

But Gore is still an unknown to most Americans. An ABC News-Washington Post poll at the start of the month said nearly 7 out of 10 Americans didn't know enough about him to make a judgment, one of the highest levels of unfamiliarity found among all the contenders for the White House.

BOSTON (AP) — Three young pilot whales nursed back to health after they beached in December were headed to sea aboard a ship today for what scientists hoped would be the first multiple adoption by a herd of the marine mammals.

Notch, Baby and Big Brute were rescued in December from a Cape Cod beach and taken to a 60,000-gallon tank at the New England Aquarium. They were put Sunday in a tank on the 187-foot Albatross IV, which set course for a pod, or herd, of whales near the Georges Bank in the Atlantic Ocean.

"This is the best thing for them," said aquarium spokeswoman Sandra Goldfarb. Pilot whales are social animals and travel in herds, so scientists hope the pod will accept the trio, she said.

'They will try to release them after sunup,'' she said. "They want the light so that they will be able to follow them in the boat and airplane.

The pod, about 70 miles off the coast from Chatham, was the closest whose location could be verified by an aerial survey. If another pod is found closer, the Albatross might change course and head for that group, scientists said, so the whales would spend as little time as possible out of the
