Cabot moves affect 12 in Pampa

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A reorganization plan announced Tuesday afternoon by Cabot Corp. will close the firm's oil and gas production office in Pampa, affecting about 12 employees.

Company spokesman Steve Gens of Amarillo said today that the Pampa office, currently located in the Hughes Building, will be moved to Amarillo. Gens said he does not know how many of the dozen employees will be transferred and how many will be laid off.

Gens said the reorganization plan will not affect Cabot's carbon black plant west of Pampa, and will have no effect "in the field." The Boston-based firm operates gas processing plants in Kingsmill and near Skellytown and Panhandle in Carson County.

Cabot employs about 250 people in the Pampa area, including the Carson County processing plants, according to a 1986 Pampa Chamber of Commerce community survey.

Gens described those affected in Pampa as "operating and engineering staff."

The reorganization amounts to combining Cabot's gas gathering and processing division with Westar Transmission Co., purchased in 1984. The newly consolidated division will be called the Pipeline and Processing Division.

Gens said the reorganization will mean layoffs or transfers for about 40 employees Panhandlewide — about 10 percent of Cabot's workforce. He said he doesn't know how many will be laid off and how many will be relocated to new administrative offices in Houston. Operational employees will remain in the Panhandle, Gens said.

Laid off employees will be given a severance package based on age and longevity, and will be offered outplace-ment counseling, Gens said.

"Believe me, this was not done without a lot of thought by management," he said of the reorganization. "You don't do these things lightly."

Gens blamed the reorganization primarily on economic pressures brought on by the sluggish oil economy. He called the reorganization an efficiency move for Cabot, and an effort to sharpen competition and cut company costs.

The Fortune 300 company has reported declining revenues in the first six months of fiscal 1987.

Gens also stressed that 90 percent of Cabot's employees and 100 percent of the company's assets — 6,000 miles of pipeline and 13 natural gas processing plants — will remain in the Panhandle.

"We have a major asset investment here," he said. "We've been here 62-3-4 years and we plan to be here another 62-3-4 years — maybe even 162-3-4 years. Ninety percent of our people are here and 100 percent of our assets are here."

Gens said Cabot employees were notified of the reorganization Tuesday.

Contacted Tuesday, Rodney Boyd, manager of the oil and gas division in Pampa, deferred all questions about how the reorganization would affect his office to company spokesmen.

Air field museum wins OK

By LARRY HOLLIS

A proposed aviation air museum for the former World War II Pampa Army Air Field came nearer to finding a home base after receiving initial City Commission approval Tuesday night.

But a B-25 bomber planned for the Memorial Park site must wait for takeoff orders after the commission decided it wanted further plans and drawings.

Also winning approval for placement in the park was a war memorial to Gray County veterans who have died in wars this century.

In a unanimous vote in the special called meeting, commissioners accepted the recommendation made last Thursday by the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, with some additions.

The Parks Board had recommended that the commission approve the war memorial for the north end of the park at Hobart, Ward and Montagu. The memorial was proposed initially last fall by Pampa Vietnam veteran John Triplehorn and has since received the support of the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post.

In a split decision, the board also had recommended approval for the museum, a project proposed by the Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Association. But the board recommended that no outside displays or airplane be included as part of the museum.

The association has indicated it would like to place a B-25 bomber in the park, enclosed in a glass and brick rotunda attached to the former Pump Station No. 1 Building.

Looking out at both the Parks Board and City Commission meetings was a proposal for an arts and cultural center presented by local artist Jerry Richards.

The City Commission amended the original Parks Board recommendation to allow the air field association to submit plans concerning the placement of the bomber on the small 0.9 acre park.

The commission also asked the association to submit financing plans and instructed city staff to work with the association to prepare specifications and details for the museum project for the next commission study within the next six months.

Commissioners also reserved the right to have final approval of architectural drawings for both the museum (with or without the bomber) and the war memorial.

Richards again presented his proposal for the arts and cultural center without any other supporters speaking up in its favor. Richards has claimed to have a number of supporters, but at the

Panel gives North limited immunity

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Congressional investigators, poring over seven notebooks of subpoenaed documents, prepared today for private questioning of the keystone witness of the Iran-Contra affair, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North.

At the same time, North is pressing his challenge to the authority of independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh to investigate his actions before he was fired last fall as an official on the staff of the National Security Council.

North was formally granted limited immunity from prosecution on Tuesday after initially invoking his Fifth Amendment protection against self incrimination eight times.

The immunity grant provides that nothing North says or provides to the congressional investigators can be used against him in criminal proceedings unless the same information is obtained independently.

The Marine officer, wearing his uniform and six rows of decorations, was brought into the meeting room in the basement of the Rayburn House Office Building under tight police security.

The session was private but a transcript of the proceedings was made available.

Arthur Liman, chief counsel of the Senate committee, repeating the questions North had initially refused to answer, asked: "Do

Wheeler seeks park face-lift

By CATHY SPAULDING

WHEELER — The shady city park has long been a popular gathering spot for Wheeler residents.

"It's quite a historic spot," observed Wheeler City Council member and parks supervisor Bernice Hall. "It's about the only natural grove of trees in the area."

But city officials believe it's time the old city park got a face-lift, and they are seeking help from the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

The Wheeler City Council voted Monday to seek a grant from the wildlife department to build an arc-shaped pavilion near the baseball field, set a new bridge across the park's creek and repair playground equipment and picnic tables.

Wheeler Mayor Wanda Herd figured it would cost about $30,000 to build the pavilion and to improve the park. Herd said the council will meet Thursday to decide how large a grant they will seek. Deadline for the grant application is July 31. Recent storms and heavy winds have not helped the city's park effort.

Hall said that in one recent storm, a massive limb fell from a tree and bent some of the rails on the park's merry-go-round. Herd said the park was full of fallen branches that broke in the storm.

The proposed pavilion, which would be shaped like a semi-circle, would be a shelter for family picnics, church outings and reunions, Herd said.

The City Council met Monday with representatives of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission to see how the city could get a grant to improve the park. The city conducted a town meeting Monday to answer residents' questions about the park, but Herd said that the Monday evening storm hurt attendance.

Hall said she was "pleasantly surprised" at the apparent positive response from the residents who attended the meeting.

She reported that one resident wondered whether the grant could cover improvements at the Kiwanis baseball field, but PRPC officials said field improvements would not be covered in the grant.

Accord to scrap missiles

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — The United States and the Soviet Union have reached an agreement in principle on a formula for the elimination of all Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe and Asia, a Reagan administration official says.

The agreement could be sealed when Secretary of State George P. Shultz meets here around mid-July with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze. It is designed to remove major obstacles to an accord and could set the stage for a third superpower summit meeting later this year.

The official, who spoke Tuesday night only on condition of anonymity, said Col. Gen. Nikolai Chervov, a senior adviser to the Soviet general staff, had proposed the compromise two weeks ago in Geneva to U.S. negotiator Maynard Glitman.

It was designed to overcome obstacles to a treaty on medium-range missiles and subsequently was approved by the Reagan administration, the official said.

A key provision calls for the Soviets to dismantle their 462 missiles in Europe with a range of 315 miles to 3,125 miles and 221 additional missiles in their Asian territory.

In return, the United States would remove 316 missiles from Europe, agree not to deploy shorter-range rockets and accept two basic restraints. The 208 ground-launched cruise missiles to be withdrawn could not be converted into sea-launched missiles, and the 108 Pershing II rockets could not be modified into shorter-range Pershing 1B weapons.

Until now, the Soviets had insisted on retaining 33 SS-20 launchers, with a range of up to 3,125 miles that are targeted on China

Plane with 4 aboard missing

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, Mont. (AP)—Air Force Helicopters joined the search today for a plane missing since Sunday with four prominent Texas men aboard.

Barbra Proulx of the Montana Aeronautics Division said the helicopters left Malmstrom Air Force Base early this morning, as the search for the missing twin-engine Cessna 421 entered its third day.

The plane was piloted by Hugo W. Schoellkopf III, 43, the owner of a guest ranch north of White Sulphur Springs where the four men attended a religious retreat last week. It was bound from White Sulphur Springs for the Dallas suburb of Addison, Texas, but never arrived.

The other men on board were George L. Clark, 49, chairman and chief executive officer of MBank Dallas; Dr. Trevor E. Mabery, 51, a Dallas surgeon; and the Rev. V. Creath Davis, 47, executive director of the Christian Concern Foundation. The helicopters and numerous small airplanes are conducting a "grid search" of the missing plane's route from White Sulphur Springs to the Wyoming border. A pilot involved in the search said one area that would be concentrated on today was the Bridger Mountains north of Bozeman.

Authorities also received a tip from a man in the Boyd area of south central Montana who said he thought he saw a plane Sunday morning lose power and start to go down. Proulx said searchers would be following up on the tip. Boyd is a community southwest of Billings.

Mike Ferguson, chief of the Montana Aeronautics Division, said investigators have speculated that Schoellkopf put the wrong grade of airplane fuel into the craft before taking off, which could have caused the engine's pistons to melt.

Schoellkopf had filed a flight plan but did not make radio contact with air traffic controllers in Salt Lake City, Utah, after takeoff, state aviation officials have said.

That has led investigators to believe the plane went down shortly after takeoff.

At noon on Tuesday, searchers thought they had spotted the missing craft, but it turned out to be the wreckage of one of the search planes, a single-engine Cessna 182 piloted by Wil Morse of Harlowton. Morse and his passenger, Craig Cooper of Texas, were not seriously injured. The men were hiking away from the canyon crash site in the north end of the Crazy Mountains about 30 miles north of White Sulphur Springs when they were spotted by searchers and picked up by a helicopter, said Cathy Hoyrup of the Aeronautics Division.

The search has drawn attention from Gov. Bill Clements of Texas, who called Gov. Ted Schwinden's office in Helena asking for updates, and from Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, whose office called Montana aviation officials and offered to help.

Reggie Bashur, press secretary for Clements, said the Texas governor called Wyoming Gov. Mike Sullivan Monday and that Sullivan said he would call out the National Guard to look for the plane.

In Dallas, the wives of the four men released a statement containing a plea for help in finding the missing aircraft. It said:

"Each passing hour is critically important. We would deeply appreciate hearing from anyone you have any knowledge regarding the efforts of the United States government to secure the release of American hostages in Lebanon?"

"Yes, I do," North replied.

Responding to the other queries, North said he is aware of the sale of U.S. military equipment to Iran in exchange for U.S. hostages in Lebanon, knows about the use of the proceeds from those sales and knows about support by U.S. government officials for Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Additionally, he said he prepared documents relating to those issues and has custody of them.

North said: "I have copies of the following: calendars that were my personal calendars; correspondence; handwritten notes, code book; photos and miscellaneous items; telephone logs, and (edited) copies of 21 spiral notebooks containing day-to-day notations of some of my conversations and activities which may relate to the subject matter of your inquiry."

He then turned over two sets of seven, black-bound notebooks, one set for each committee.

According to correspondence made available by the panels, the subpoenas for the documents were modified in negotiations with North's lawyers.

Sections of his notes, for example, have been blacked out to protect allegedly irrelevant or purely personal material. The committees did retain the right to examine the entire uncensored notepads if that proves essential to the investigation.

The Senate panel dropped a paragraph from its subpoena which required the production of North's financial records, including cancelled checks, and bank statements.

Another deleted section required the production of documents in North's possession which were "prepared, written or typed at the National Security Council, the White House or the Central Intelligence Agency."

Committee spokesmen said investigators will rely instead on the subpoena's more narrowly focused first paragraph which requires North to produce "all materials relating directly or indirectly to the sale of United States manufactured military equipment to Iran or support for the anti-government forces in Nicaragua."

North was to be questioned in private late today after committee members and lawyers study the documents he provided.

The questioning will center on what North knows about any knowledge President Reagan has about the diversion of Iran arms-sale proceeds to aid Nicaragua's Contra rebels.

Reagan has declared he knew nothing of such a diversion before it was disclosed by Attorney General Edwin Meese III in his news conference last Nov. 25.

Tire slashing causes $5,000 damage

Pampa police are searching for two suspects in connection with a rash of tire-slashing Tuesday morning that caused more than $5,000 damage to 35 vehicles on Pampa's north side.

Cpl. Bruce Denham said the vandals struck between midnight and 4 a.m. in an area stretching from Lea Street to Navajo Road. All the tire-slashing took place north of Gwendolyn Street, Denham said.

Tires were slashed with what appears to be a small knife, he said.

Denham urged citizens to lock vehicles in a garage or park in a well-lighted area until the suspects are caught.

He said that Crime Stoppers of Pampa has authorized a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the vandals' arrest.

Those with information can also call the Police Department at 669-1177, Denham said.

Parks Board meeting last week indicated they preferred to remain silent "for political reasons."

Saying he feels the arts center would be more beneficial to the whole community than the aviation museum, Richards requested that the commission postpone any decision for 60 to 90 days to allow him more time to gather support and to tie down financial backing.

"We have many artists in this community who feel they do not have a place to properly display their work," he said, adding that the center also could draw many other artists to the city for displays and workshops.

Richards also claimed the arts center was an open item on the commission agenda. He said the project had originally been proposed by the Pampa Fine Arts Association in February 1984, but the matter was tabled then. He said the commission should take action on the item before considering any other proposal for the park building.

But City Attorney Don Lane noted the original proposal concerned possible purchase of the building and was not directly related to Richards' proposal. Commissioner Richard Peet noted the association has had more than three years to follow up on the commission's inaction but apparently had decided not pursue it further.

Richards said he had no objection to the war memorial. He said he also has no objection to the air field museum but he doesn't think the park is the right location, especially if it is to include the bomber.

The museum and war memorial, however, both had a number of supporters speaking in favor of the projects Tuesday night.

PAAFRA President W.C. Ferguson of Magnolia, Ark., noted he had flown 600 miles to be at the Tuesday meeting in Pampa, "my second home."

Ferguson spoke in favor of the museum as a deserving memorial to those who had trained at the air base, including a number who later died in the service of their country.

He also spoke strongly for allowing the B-25 bomber to be located with the museum, noting the plane was the reason for the base's existence. Ferguson defended the Memorial Park site for its high visibility area as a means of attracting visitors year-round.

Ferguson said the museum is not a monument to war but to those willing to give of themselves in the service and defense of their country.

"If you forget war, you will have war," he said, adding that he feels World War II to an extent was the result of those who had fought the horrors of World War I.

"I will do all I can, if you so see fit," to locate a B-25 bomber and enclose it in an attractive structure that the city can be proud of, Ferguson said. "If it's not beautiful, we won't build it," he stated.

Also supporting the museum and plane was local attorney and pilot Ken Fields, who said the museum proposal is "a great gift to the city of Pampa." Fields said those who trained at the base "deserve a fitting memorial in this city."

Fields said he has talked with association members and feels the museum "will be state of the art," with a facility that will draw aviation enthusiasts to the city.

Noting the efforts of the air forces in World War II and other wars, Fields said, "They bought us freedom... they should be honored throughout all times." The proposed museum "will do that very thing," he said.

Tripplehorn, saying the VFW voted unanimously at a recent meeting to withdraw the memorial project from the park if an arts center there was approved, said the museum is "a very outstanding proposal" and urged the commission "to tell them to go ahead and get on with it."

Also speaking in favor of the museum were PAAFA representatives Nina Spoonemore and Thelma Bray, who referred to previous comments they had made at City Commission and Parks Board meetings. Also joining in support of the museum were Walter Eller and Phyllis Laramore.

After asking questions of the PAAFA members in attendance, the commission voted to approve the museum concept.

In other action at the special meeting, the commission appointed Tommy Kelley as a consulting engineer to check existing water wells being considered for possible purchase by the city for additional groundwater supplies. Kelley will check the wells to see how well they meet state Department of Health standards.

and Japan, and were ambiguous about giving up some 40 shorter-range missiles also in Asia with a range of 565 miles.

President Reagan had set as a goal the elimination of the two types of Soviet rockets. It is known in arms control parlance as the "zero-zero option."

In another development, a senior administration official said the Soviets were expected to present shortly to U.S. negotiators in Geneva their version of a proposed treaty to reduce the superpowers' strategic nuclear weapons arsenals by about 50 percent.

The official, who also demanded anonymity, said the Soviets had engaged in some lively discussion on a proposed U.S. text but had not been as forthcoming yet as they were on medium-range weapons.

The two sides seem close to agreement on a date for Shultz and Shevardnadze to meet in Washington. Moscow has not given its final approval to July 14-15 or other suggested dates, U.S. officials said.

When they agree, U.S. negotiators Glitman and Ronald Lehman, who deals with strategic weapons, will be brought home from Geneva to join chief U.S. negotiator Max M. Kampelman in helping Shultz prepare for the session.

Shultz and Shevardnadze also were expected to work on an agenda for a summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The Soviet leader has held off accepting Reagan's invitation to come to Washington this year until they had a substantive agreement. "Generally, without reason, I do not go anywhere, particularly America," he said during Shultz' visit to Moscow in mid-April.

Kidnapped businessman rescued

RAYMONDVILLE (AP) — A South Texas businessman is safe after his rescue from abductors who kept him blindfolded in a tent and demanded $1.5 million ransom, authorities said.

Boris P. Finkelstein, 51, of McAllen was freed about 3 p.m. Tuesday from a tent in a wooded area west of Raymondville, said Charlie Parsons, FBI special agent-in-charge of the agency's San Antonio division.

David Dale Duke, 25, and Tanya Wiggins Duke, 21, of Cleveland, Texas, were arrested while they were trying to escape from the hideout as authorities in helicopters and airplanes approached, Parsons said.

Parsons said the married couple and another accomplice, who remained at large, demanded $1.5 million for Finkelstein's safe return.

Parsons said the Dukes would be charged with extortion during a court appearance before U.S. Magistrate Susan Rees Williams today.

Finkelstein declined to talk with reporters, saying he feared the act could reoccur.

Finkelstein owns a dress shop and money exchange house in McAllen and another dress shop on South Padre Island, Parsons said.

Finkelstein was abducted from his home about 6:40 a.m. Saturday by three armed people dressed in Ninja costumes and wearing fencing masks, Parsons said.

"At one point, he was in the trunk of the car and at another point he was in a vehicle blindfolded," said Parsons, who was in McAllen coordinating the investigation.

He said Finkelstein did not talk to his captors.

"They kept him in a tent and they talked to him very, very little. They were concerned about voice identification," Parsons said.

"This whole thing was like a movie. It's been four days of bouncing around. People work 18 hours a day and then you get the guy safe," Parsons said.

"The family is just joyous," he said.

$5.7 billion tax bill set for House debate

AUSTIN (AP)—A tax plan that would take $5.7 billion out of Texans' pockets and put lawmakers on a collision course with Gov. Bill Clements has been approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The package, which could be voted on today by the full House, would raise the state sales tax from the current 5 1/2 percent to 6 percent, expand it to cover insurance premiums and make the 15-cent-per-gallon fuels tax permanent.

"You have found the secret plan," House Speaker Gib Lewis said Tuesday after the committee sent the tax bills to the House.

Clements has vowed to veto any tax bills other than extending the temporary sales and motor fuels taxes now in effect. The governor is pushing for a $37.9 million budget. The Senate has approved a $39.6 billion proposed budget.

House approval of the tax plan would send it to the Senate, where approval would send it to Clements.

Lewis said the tax plan might escape veto.

"I think he'll look at it very objectively," the speaker said of the governor.

If lawmakers take no action on taxes, the fuels tax would revert to 10-cents-per-gallon in September and the sales tax would return to 4 1/2 percent.

Increasing the sales tax to 6 percent would raise $3 billion. The 6 percent tax on insurance premiums would raise $1.8 billion more. The rest of the $5.7 billion total would come from the continuation of the 15-cent fuels tax.

To reduce the effect on big-city Texans who also pay a penny city sales tax and a penny transit tax, the sales tax bill includes a provision that would cut in half the transit taxes now collected in Houston, Austin, Corpus Christi and San Antonio. Dallas' transit tax would be continued.

While the tax committee looked for new revenue, the House looked for cuts in the $38.3 billion 1988-89 budget proposed by the Appropriations Committee. The budget debate continued past midnight and will resume today. So far, the House has approved about $14.5 million in cuts from the committee's version of the budget.

But the House also voted to restore $204 million in public education money that had been eliminated by the committee.

"I think it's easier to rope a goat than cut the budget," Lewis said early today after the House gave up for the night.

Lewis and Ways and Means Chairman Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, said earlier plans to expand the sales tax base to services were abandoned due to heavy opposition. The 1989 Legislature might look at a complete overhaul of the state tax system, they said.

The marathon budget debate was highlighted by an early amendment, approved 101-44, intended to show Texans why a tax increase is needed. The amendment sets out an alternate, bare-bones budget that could be balanced without a tax hike.

Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, helped draft the alternate budget. He said it would make Texas "a crippled state that has no future."

The plan, offered by Rep. Bruce Gibson, is an eight-page list of state agencies and universities that would be closed if revenue is not increased.

"The bottom line is to educate the public that the failure to vote for any tax bill whatsoever will devastate the fundamental job that state government is charged with — education, highways, the safety of our citizens," Gibson, D-Godley, told the House.

In addition to the cuts, House Public Education Committee Chairman Bill Haley, D-Center, said the no-new-revenue budget would force a 15 percent increase in local school taxes.

Bob Davis, Clements' top budget aide, said the alternate budget is "not necessarily what has to happen" if a major tax bill is not approved.

Wounded Afghan soldiers in Midland for treatment

MIDLAND (AP)—Two Afghan soldiers with leg injuries walked off the airliner and wouldn't ride in an ambulance when they arrived here for specialized treatment at a Midland hospital, officials said.

Mohammad Jafar, 26, and Mohammad Alam, 28, both suffered knee and foot injuries in the war against Soviet troops who invaded their country nearly eight years ago, said spokeswoman Lisa Ball of Midland Memorial Hospital.

"But they wouldn't ride in the ambulance from the airport," she said of their arrival Tuesday evening. "They rode in a Suburban."

Jafar and Alam were "very much thankful and appreciative" to be at the hospital, said Professor Seys Ehdia, an engineering instructor at the University of Texas-Permian Basin.

Ehdia, an Iranian expatriate, is serving as interpreter for the Afghans. Many Iranians and Afghans speak Farsi, "although their type is a bit different," he said.

The latest of about 260 injured refugees and soldiers from Afghanistan who have received medical care in the United States, the two men came to Midland because orthopedics is one of Midland Memorial's specialties, Mrs. Ball said.

Doctor Thurston Dean, a Midland orthopedist, examined the soldiers Tuesday night and both were due for X-rays afterward, Ehdia said. Jafar was to undergo surgery today, while Alam probably would be operated on Thursday, he said.

Flora Hale, a nursing supervisor, said Jafar and Alam would receive special consideration during their stay in the Midland hospital.

She said there are special dietary needs, such as no pork or bacon because of their Muslim religion. Also, the pair would be attended by male nurses and orderlies because of their cultural aversion to mixing of the sexes, she said.

The Afghans, who will stay in a room by themselves, appeared fit as they ate dinner after their examinations, Mrs. Hale said. "They seemed to be fine," she said. "They look well."

After surgery and post-operative care, the two soldiers will return to Afghanistan.

Paramedic admits killing his stepdaughter, dumping body

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—For six months, Ray Moberg had kept quiet about the whereabouts of his stepdaughter, Deborah Suzette Moberg.

On Tuesday, the suspended paramedic was sentenced to life in prison after admitting he shot the 18-year-old twice and dumped her body in a trash bin in January.

Authorities now believe Miss Moberg's remains may be under tons of garbage at a private landfill, but say they will search for her.

Moberg, 40, also was sentenced to life in prison for breaking into his ex-wife's home. He also was assessed five 20-year terms on charges of sexual assault on children, including two attacks on his own 8-year-old daughter.

"Sending Ray Moberg to prison with two life sentences and five others totaling 100 years provides justice for the victims and spares the victims further pain and suffering," Bexar County District Attorney Fred Rodriguez said shortly after the sentencing.

Miss Moberg disappeared Jan. 9, and hundreds of family members, friends and neighbors searched for her during the early spring.

Authorities said Moberg gave a statement in which he said he broke into his ex-wife's home Jan. 9, and when the girls entered a short time later he shot the 18-year-old twice with a .22-caliber pistol.

He said he handcuffed the younger girl, took her to a car, put her sister's body in the trunk and drove around while trying to decide what to do with the body.

Moberg said after putting the body in a trash bin, he then went to a motel. The 8-year-old was released the next day and told authorities she had been sexually molested.

Deborah Moberg's body is now believed to be in a private landfill, and authorities are trying to convince landfill owners to allow them to search it, Rodriguez said.

Moberg's attorney Steve Hilbig said the plea bargain was fair and that Moberg wanted his stepdaughter to have a proper burial.

He said, however, that finding the body may be difficult.

"I think there's going to be a very slim chance of anybody being recovered just because of how things are done at the landfill. So there might not be any recovery," Hilbig said.

In the plea bargain, prosecutors agreed to dismiss several other sexual assault cases and not seek capital murder or aggravated kidnapping indictments against Moberg.

"He really did not give us an explanation as to why it happened. Just that it did happen," said Assistant District Attorney Tina Tussay. "What he did state in the confession was that unfortunately he had taken Debbie's life through this ordeal, and if he could do something to change that, he would."

The slain teen's mother, Janie Moberg, said a memorial service will be held for her daughter.

"I always wanted to be able to find Debbie alive, but hearing it today from Ray that he confesses to murdering her, I guess I will never be able to give her that one last kiss," Ms. Moberg said.

Punishment phase testimony continues

AUSTIN (AP)—An Austin psychiatrist says James Cross has not received proper treatment for his violent sexual fantasies and he would be concerned if Cross were returned to society.

The state rested its case Tuesday afternoon in the Cross retrial but other defense witnesses were scheduled today.

"He's the same person he was before, but he is untreated," Dr. Richard Coons, Austin, testified Tuesday as a state witness.

Cross was convicted last week for a second time in the strangulation death of University of Texas student Susan Rigsby, who was slain with a sorority sister in 1965. Members of the jury took only 14 minutes Thursday but testimony in the punishment phase has lasted three days.

Cross, 44, confessed and was tried in 1966 for Miss Rigsby's slaying. He was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison. He served 21 years before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in January ordered a retrial.

Another charge accusing Cross of the slaying of Shirley Stark, Miss Rigsby's Chi Omega sorority sister, was later dropped.

Coons was asked about testimony by Dr. Richard Alexander, an Austin psychiatrist, in 1966 that Cross should not be released to society but testified earlier Tuesday that he would have no "concern" if Cross was released.

Coons was asked if he thought Cross still had "severe personality problems."

"Yes, I do," Coons said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Market works best when it's left alone

The U.S. economy, for at least half a century, has not exactly performed as a paradigm of prosperity. It has known its boom years, to be sure, but it has also known times when other Western nations, e.g., Japan, have sped by it like a hydrofoil racing ahead of an aging battleship. Happily, there are some new signs of its improved ballast and maneuverability on the oceans of international finance.

For example, the dollar is stabilizing in international exchange. Interest rates, while moving up and down like a yo-yo on a short string, are generally declining. OPEC doesn't drain as much of our money as in the past. The stock markets have reflected confidence in the dollar — thereby in the recuperating U.S. economy — and are moving toward new levels. Most heartening of all are those figures released by the government showing that the United States led the industrialized world in 1986 in improving manufacturing efficiency and cutting labor costs.

If the government knows what it's talking about, the 3.5 percent rise in hourly productivity last year was more than double the average increase of the United States's nine competitors, outpacing gains of 2.9 percent in Great Britain, 2.8 percent in Japan, and 1.9 percent in West Germany and France. The Labor Department reported that it was the first year since 1950 that the United States outpaced all its large competitors.

Meanwhile, hourly wage and benefit gains averaged only 2.9 percent for American workers in 1986 — lower than any of the nine competitor nations included in the comparison index. In contrast, hourly wage and benefits in Canada and Japan rose an average 3.5 percent.

Couple those figures with the effect of the dollar as it drops toward a stable platform in relation to other international currencies, and it adds up that U.S. manufacturers are in much better competitive position than in 1985.

Meanwhile, the Japanese government has just released an annual "white paper" on trade imbalances. Tokyo encourages the United States to check its tendency toward "overconsumption" while Japan, at the same time, should consume more. Sounds pretty presumptuous, but economic divines just might be able to interpret that as the Japanese government finally paying attention to the Reagan line, to wit: The United States absorbs excessive foreign imports (particularly from Japan) and Japan puts too many restrictions on trade goods from the United States.

In any case, despite the present improvement in our national financial condition, there is no good reason to expect that the U.S. government — with the usual interventionist hysteria from Congress — will permit the marketplace to sort itself out and perform as it can when left alone.

U.S. can't force democracy

Nearly 34,000 Americans died in the Korean War, and 48,000 American troops remain in South Korea, but the country rarely commands attention in the United States. Aside from occasional news flurries stimulated by political unrest or trade disputes, South Korea occupies only a tiny space in the American mind. It may warrant American blood, but it doesn't warrant American interest.

Our neglect generates criticism. Some members of the Korean opposition, frustrated by American support for their autocratic government, blame the United States for not demanding reform. Leftists here regard the alliance as typical of what's wrong with our foreign policy, which wages war on left-wing governments in Nicaragua and Angola while propping up right-wing dictators. "America may have made South Korea safe from communism," sneered a National Public Radio commentator, "but it hasn't made it safe for democracy."

Well, sacrificing thousands of American lives to repel a communist invasion of another country isn't something to be taken lightly. And if the United States hasn't made democracy a fact in South Korea, it has made it a possibility — which it wouldn't be if North Korea had won the war, as it would have in the absence of that costly American intervention.

But democracy can't simply be imposed by a foreign power, particularly in a nation that has no democratic tradition. It requires a citizenry ready to create and sustain it. Once a mass base for democracy emerges, the United States can assist the process, as it did in the Philippines.

That may be what is happening now in South Korea. If so, we can hope that the Reagan administration will have the will and the foresight to play a useful role.

But the fact that the United States now may be able to act on behalf of a freer and more democratic system doesn't mean it should have done so before. Nor does our alignment with the authoritarian regimes that have ruled South Korea for most of the post-war era mean that we prefer dictators to democracies.

True, we often work with despotic governments. Given the U.S. role in protecting existing democracies, including its own, we often have little choice. We maintain troops in South Korea partly because we think that country is better off under its existing government than it would be under Kim Il Sung and partly because those troops are vital to Japan's security. Keeping both of these countries in the Western camp also strengthens the United States in its original global competition with the Soviet Union.

To critics, this may look like an amoral calculus. Actually, it is merely a realistic approach to matters largely beyond our control. Our power in South Korea, and in numerous other allies with undemocratic systems, is limited. We can shield them from external enemies. We cannot transform them into models of popular rule. So we tend to concentrate on the former. By doing that job, we leave open the possibility that they will evolve toward democracy on their own.

Of course, our mere presence often alters the distribution of power between a government and its domestic opponents, and we sometimes also err on the side of protecting entrenched rulers too much. An inability to eliminate the abusive practices of friendly regimes often leads American administrations to pretend the abuses don't exist. Good intentions are no guarantee against error or hypocrisy.

But errors and hypocrisy don't prove that our real sympathies lie with dictators — as charged by those who see our foreign policy as morally indistinguishable from the Soviet Union's. We did, after all, use our leverage against Ferdinand Marcos and Baby Doc Duvalier when a democratic alternative appeared.

Or consider Latin America — where the United States traditionally has been most inclined to intervention. Democracy recently has made historic strides in several countries, including some in Central America that are heavily dependent on American aid. None of these encountered U.S. resistance (unless you count Nicaragua, where the perceived danger is not democracy but Soviet-backed communism). How many countries in Eastern Europe have become democracies lately?

The proper role for the United States, though, is not to implant democracy where it doesn't exist, something that would be expensive, presumptuous, dangerous and futile. It is, instead, to cautiously nudge along the process of democratization once it has been established by indigenous forces. Our freedom and self-government should be this: We hope you succeed, and we won't stand in your way, but the real work of building a democracy belongs to you.

Paul Harvey

Future looks mighty positive

The year 2,000 is but 13 years away. In 1982 John Naisbitt wrote a book called Megatrends and much of what he anticipated five years ago has been realized:

- 1. The shift from an industrial to an informational society.
- 2. From forced technology to high-tech.
- 3. From a national economy to a global economy.
- 4. From institutional help to self-help.
- 5. From representative democracy to participating democracy.
- 6. From north to south.
- 7. Now let's ask this man with a better-than-average batting average for the prognostication ... what's next? What in John Naisbitt's opinion are the next "megatrends"?

- 8. He offers 10:
- 1. The middle-class will become larger, more affluent. Twenty-four percent of all new jobs being created are managerial and professional.
- 2. A renaissance in arts and literature. Unprecedented interest in the theater and dance and poetry. Already, he notes, more Americans are going out to art events than to sports contests.

- 3. The decline of cities. Even now, more people are moving out of the cities than into them. And they will be moving farther out, from exurbia to rural areas.
- 4. What else does Naisbitt see in our future?
- 5. The end of the welfare state. Already more than 50 countries in all parts of the world are turning government-provided goods and services over to private hands. One-third of Britain's nationalized work force is no longer nationalized.
- 6. English will emerge as the world's universal language. One-fourth of China's billion people are studying English right now.
- 7. The electronic media will be globalized and individualized. Cellular and satellite technology will allow anybody to communicate directly and immediately with anybody anywhere on earth.
- 8. The frontier of opportunity will be the Pacific Rim — bounded by Los Angeles, Sydney and Tokyo. The Atlantic nations have been dominant up to now but the great business opportunities of this century will be in Asia.

- 9. Entrepreneurial politics. Party politics came about when we did not have telephones. From now on every candidate, in effect, is an individual party.
- 10. Unlimited growth. Biotechnology expands horizons limitlessly.
- 11. If Naisbitt is as right about tomorrow as he was about today, we are headed into a sustained economic boom. We will create 5 to 6 million new jobs every year.

He says some economists are pessimistic because they underestimate our nation's incredible capacity for creativity and innovation. He notes that the United States has 150 Nobel Prize winners. Japan has two.

Now, he says, we are about to begin to experience the enormous potential of our human resources. End quote and happy new years!

Oil expert disputes notion of price shock

By Robert Walters

INDIANAPOLIS (NEA) — In the early 1980s, when virtually all experts in the energy field were predicting that crude oil prices would continue their upward spiral, physicist William M. Brown defied that conventional wisdom.

The director of energy and technological studies at the Hudson Institute here, Brown rejected the popular notion that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was so powerful that it could impose its demands for ever-increasing prices upon hapless importing nations.

Instead of joining those offering the sky's-the-limit scenarios of crude oil prices escalating to $50, $100 and even $150 per barrel, Brown forecast a price collapse in the mid-1980s. Subsequent events proved him correct.

Now he's at it again, dismissing the currently fashionable view that this country and other oil-importing nations again will be at OPEC's mercy — perhaps as soon as the 1990s.

"We are headed toward a period of time again where we'll be sitting in gas lines... anytime in the next two to five years," warns Interior Secretary Donald Hodel. "We are today sowing the seeds of the next energy crisis," adds former Energy Secretary James Schlesinger.

That's probably not true, insists the iconoclastic Brown, who predicts for the rest of the 1980s and the 1990s oil prices probably will be no lower than $6 to $8 per barrel and no higher than $18 to $20 per barrel — a range almost identical to the fluctuations of recent years.

Among the factors Brown expects to continue moderating oil prices:

- The constant fear of another "oil shock" such as those of 1973-74 and 1979-80 makes a repetition of those events less likely.
- The greater the threat of rising fuel prices in the future, the greater will be the interest in new energy sources and new energy technology, explains Brown. "There still remains enormous technological potential for increasing efficiencies and for finding substitutes for petroleum fuels."
- Unlike the United States, "much of the world is still unexplored" and probably contains major oil fields. Brown cites recent discoveries in Australia and South America as possible examples.
- Both the Soviet Union and China have vast untapped crude oil potential — and both are likely to accelerate exploration and sales to the West in coming years to earn needed hard currency.

- Plentiful coal and natural gas increasingly are the fuels of choice for numerous forms of stationary energy consumption, including the generation of electrical power.
- Crude oil remains the almost universal source of energy for autos, trucks and other vehicles — but dramatic changes are almost certain to occur within the next few decades.
- The commercial development of efficient, economical batteries to power motor vehicles is "a very strong possibility" if not "a near certainty," Brown says.
- The one event that could lead to rapid escalation of crude oil prices in the short or middle term, warns Brown, would be an Iranian victory over Iraq, leading to "Iranian hegemony over the entire Persian Gulf."

Democrats concede can't stop Reagan's gulf policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders will continue to seek legislation opposing President Reagan's Persian Gulf policy, even though they concede they can't stop White House plans to have the U.S. Navy protect oil tankers in the war-torn area.

"Our choices are really very limited at this point," Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said Tuesday. "We're rushing ahead and Congress can't really stop it now."

Nunn, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, spoke after he and other congressional leaders met with Reagan at the White House. His comments were echoed by other Democrats who attended the meeting.

The Democratic-run House will vote

July 8 on a proposal that would request a 90-day delay in the White House plan. A vote had been scheduled today, but was postponed after GOP threats to use delaying tactics and after the White House said the plan wouldn't take effect until mid-July.

Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash., chief author of the House measure, said, "This is not just a statement. We still don't believe it's too late. But in any case, the fact is that foreign policy won't work unless it's supported by the American people and by Congress. It's important for us to act."

In the Senate, also controlled by Democrats, floor action is possible today on a pair of measures approved

Tuesday by the Foreign Relations Committee, which split largely along party lines. One bill would block the U.S. policy and the second would invoke the 1973 War Powers Act.

In other developments: ■ Seventy-nine percent of Americans questioned in an ABC-Washington Post poll favored keeping U.S. military forces in the Persian Gulf region to keep Mideast oil flowing and 67 percent said the United States should be there to curb Soviet influence in the region.

But the 1,506 adults surveyed by telephone from June 25-29 split 49 percent to 49 percent on President Reagan's proposal to reflag and escort 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers, and a third think U.S. presence in the region is important enough to risk going to war.

■ A team of U.S. experts in the gulf continued to evaluate the threat from mines reportedly laid in the approaches to Kuwaiti ports, Pentagon officials said, and it was feared that Iran might launch terrorist strikes against American ships, facilities or citizens elsewhere in the region.

At Tuesday's White House meeting, Reagan said he would not delay his plans to reflag and escort the tankers.

The U.S. plan is not expected to begin before mid-July, National Security Adviser Frank C. Carlucci said in a letter Tuesday to Republican House members.

Congressional critics fear that because Kuwait has aided Iran, the United States will become embroiled in the 6½-year-old Iran-Iraq war. The worries increased after the May 17 Iraqi attack on the Navy frigate Stark in which 37 U.S. seamen were killed.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., both said they don't believe the U.S. commitment to Kuwait should be withdrawn after Reagan made it public.

"To pull the rug out from under that commitment could be dangerous," Wright said.

Democrats give Reagan assessment of Supreme Court justice hopefuls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats gave White House emissaries a candid assessment that shows which of President Reagan's Supreme Court hopefuls may win confirmation and who could face "a very hot summer."

The Democratic scorecard was likely to play an important role today when top administration officials were scheduled to meet on the nomination.

Administration and congressional sources, speaking only on condition they not be identified, said Tuesday night the meeting may be the final session to decide who will be nominated to replace retired Justice Lewis F. Powell.

Congressional sources, also insisting on anonymity, have said the candidate reportedly favored by Attorney Gen. Edwin Meese III, U.S. appellate judge Robert Bork, likely would generate considerable opposition among Senate Democrats.

Meese, known for his blunt style, was one of the presidential aides who carried a list of hopefuls to Democratic and Republican Senate leaders Tuesday in separate meetings. The other was Howard H. Baker Jr., the presidential chief of staff who is savvy in the ways of the Senate, where he once was majority leader.

In giving the Democrats a peek at about a dozen prime candidates, the presidential aides "truly wanted a sense from the chairman of the (Judiciary) committee, and the leader of the Senate, if any problems would arise from that representative list," said Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., chairman of the Senate Judiciary panel.

And they got it, Biden said.

Biden flew to the meeting from Chicago, where he briefly interrupted his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. The other Democratic participant was Senate Majority Leader

Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

"Clearly, there are some on there who I believe would go through like a hot knife through butter," Biden told reporters after the 45-minute meeting. Others, he said, have "hard edges, with ideologically honed points of view." For them, Biden said, it "would be a very hot summer and a very hot fall."

A congressional source, speaking only on condition he not be identified, said the list included at least six federal appellate judges and two senators.

The names included Bork, a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and a leading advocate of judicial restraint.

Bork is best known nationally for his role in 1973 as solicitor general when he fired Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox on orders of then-President Nixon after higher-ranking officials refused.

Other appellate judges include Richard A. Posner of Chicago, J. Clifford Wallace of San Diego, William Wilkins of Columbia, S.C.; Patrick Higginbotham of Dallas, and Cornelia G. Kennedy of Detroit. Biden said there was "more than one woman on the list."

The source said other names on the list are Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, prominently mentioned as a court possibility, and Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., a conservative and former state Supreme Court chief justice.

It is possible the list also included Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., the leader of anti-abortion forces in the House. More than 100 House members wrote the president asking that Hyde's name be included.

Meese accused of unlawful arrangement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin Meese III's lawyer says none of the attorney general's money in a blind trust was invested in scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp., but the head of a congressional subcommittee says the entire arrangement was "outside the law."

"Just because Ed Meese said that his arrangements with Wedtech officials were 'blind' did not make them so," said Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., who plans to conduct a hearing on the matter later this month.

Sikorski on Tuesday released a letter from the Office of Government Ethics, in which ethics chief David Martin said blind trusts must be approved by the office but Meese's was not.

James Rocap, who represents Meese in the criminal investigation of his involvement with Wedtech, said Tuesday that the attorney general made a profit on his $60,000 limited blind partnership investment with San Francisco businessman W. Franklyn Chinn. Chinn also is under criminal investigation for ties to Wedtech; a New York City defense contractor accused of bribing public official.

But Rocap, in an interview, said "we have determined that none of the money that Mr. Meese invested through Mr. Chinn was invested in Wedtech stock." He said Meese received no money in any fashion from Wedtech.

Independent counsel James McKay is conducting a criminal investigation of Meese's ties to Wedtech.

Meese officially pulled his money out of the partnership with Chinn on Tuesday.

Brain implants help patients

NEW YORK (AP) — Eleven Parkinson's disease sufferers in Mexico and two in Tennessee showed improvement after gland tissue was grafted onto their brains, but the U.S. researchers say their patients need more study.

"It is too early to conclude whether the cause of the change is a placebo (psychological) effect, the natural fluctuations of the disease or a result of the transplant," said Dr. George Allen of Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville, Tenn.

The Mexican patients showed easing of tremor, rigidity and other symptoms following the experimental treatment, said Dr. Rene Drucker-

Colin of the National Autonomous University of Mexico in Mexico City.

Two patients at Vanderbilt "have shown changes in the direction of improvement," especially in gait and facial animation, Allen said, while no judgment can be made about four other Vanderbilt patients because their medication dosages were changed in the course of the study.

The two researchers were interviewed by telephone before speaking Tuesday at a meeting sponsored by the University of Rochester on transplants to the central nervous system.

Demonstrators try to overturn a bus during a riot in Rio de Janeiro Tuesday. Thousands of people protesting a bus fare hike battled police, looted stores and set 20 buses on fire.

Prosecutor wants life for Barbie

LYON, France (AP) — Klaus Barbie should spend the rest of his life in prison for committing crimes against humanity during World War II, prosecutor Pierre Truche told Barbie's trial.

Winding up his two-day summation Tuesday, Truche said there was no reason to impose less than the maximum sentence on the former Gestapo chief of Lyon between 1942-44.

"His actions in Lyon were particularly inhumane," Truche said. "I ask you to say: for life, Barbie will remain in prison."

Barbie's three defense attorneys will begin their final arguments this afternoon and are expected to conclude them Friday. The three judges and nine jurors in the case will then begin deliberations. A verdict is expected Friday evening.

For most of the trial, Barbie was represented only by Jacques Verges, a Paris lawyer known for his uncompromising defense strategies in terrorism cases.

Chun agrees to direct presidential elections

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Bowing to the will of the people, President Chun Doo-hwan today announced his agreement to opposition demands for direct presidential elections and sweeping democratic reform.

The changes are intended to end decades of authoritarian government.

Chun, looking tired and grim, went on national television to make the announcement, which came three days after the end of 2½ weeks of daily, often violent anti-government demonstrations.

"Because social stability and national harmony were being undermined by the recent continuing demonstrations and strife ... I believe that you, my fellow countrymen, not only experienced serious inconvenience and anxiety but were also worried that catastrophe might befall the nation," Chun said.

The president and former army general, who said he had "spent many sleepless nights," announced he would accept demands for direct presidential elections, electoral reform, press freedom, release of political prisoners, curbing of central government power and other measures.

"Now is a crucial moment in the destiny of the nation," he said.

Chun repeated his pledge to step down when his seven-year term expires Feb. 25 and transfer power to a president elected by direct popular vote. The electoral college system to be scrapped had virtually guaranteed victory for the ruling party.

He promised an extensive amnesty for political prisoners, but did not mention specifically Kim Dae-jung, a veteran dissident under a suspended 20-year prison sentence from a 1980 sedition conviction that stripped him of his civil rights and barred him from politics.

Roh Tae-woo, the head of the ruling party, on Monday cited Kim Dae-jung's case as one for amnesty.

Koreans greeted Chun's announcement with happiness, excitedly discussing the impending changes. Groups of people gathered in shops, tea houses and other places to hear the speech on televisions and radios. Extra editions of newspapers were published.

"It's sure to be such a change that the nation is at the threshold of realizing a genuine democracy," said Lee Jung-soon, a Seoul resident after hearing the speech.

Chun's concessions amounted to an agreement to dismantle the tough political controls his government has exerted since he took power with military backing in 1980. He said work already had begun on releasing political prisoners and other measures.

"No matter how good a system may be, it is of no use if the people do not want it," Chun said. "I believe that the intrinsic function of politics is to carry out the public will."

Opposition leaders hailed the speech and said the government had accepted that the Korean people wanted democratic government and an end to the authoritarian regimes that have dominated the nation since its founding in 1948.

Kim Young-sam, leader of the main opposition Reunification Democratic Party, said, "The government and the ruling party have set forth the measures for democratization, but they resulted from the persistent struggles by the people, students, religious people, intellectuals and workers."

Nearly 400 tarpaulins cover the historic Mission Inn in Riverside, Calif., Tuesday as the landmark hostel undergoes what may be the state's, or for that matter the country's largest single termite tenting project. Nearly 8-million-cubic-feet are covered by the tarpaulins.

Longview adds support for Little Cypress

AUSTIN (AP) — Longview officials say they want the Little Cypress Reservoir because it is vitally needed as a regional water supply source to protect the future of East Texas.

"We have had a rapid population growth in the past 30 years, as well as increased sales to other water users," said Ray Jackson, Longview city manager in testifying before an examiner of the Texas Water Commission.

The hearing before Duncan Norton is expected to last into August. Then Norton will make his recommendations to the commission, which has the final decision on the reservoir permit to serve Longview, Kilgore and Marshall.

Jackson, who also was a former manager of Marshall, said Tuesday that Longview has been looking for a new long-term water supply since 1982. Presently, it gets water from Lake Cherokee and the Sabine River. It has no ground water source.

"We made the Little Cypress reservoir our No. 1 priority for three reasons," Jackson testified.

"First the quantity of water is much greater in Little Cypress, than in the Prairie Creek reservoir (the city's No. 2 priority). Second, the quality of water will be much better from Little Cypress than from our present sources on the Sabine. Third, we are for Little Cypress because it will meet a regional water supply need."

Jackson exhibited a resolution from the Longview City Council that supports Little Cypress because the water needs are expected to exceed present supplies by 1996. He said Longview was committed to purchase 38,360 acre-feet per year from Little Cypress for the Longview service area. An acre-foot is 325,851 gallons.

"We could purchase more if it is needed," Jackson said.

The city manager testified that Longview also furnished treated water to Kilgore and Hallsville to supplement their ground water supplies.

On cross-examination, Fred Ziegler of the Greater Caddo Lake Association, which opposes Little Cypress, closely questioned Longview's estimates of future water needs.

Ruling pleases Brandley lawyer

AUSTIN (AP) — Clarence Lee Brandley's lawyer said he is pleased with an appeals court's decision granting a hearing on new evidence in the murder case that sent the former high school janitor to death row.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Tuesday told a Montgomery County district court to conduct a full hearing regarding allegations and evidence brought out this year.

The action followed an appeal filed by Brandley, who contends he is innocent and that new evidence will prove it.

"I think it's great. We couldn't have asked for a better ruling," said Houston attorney Mike DeGeurin, who represents Brandley.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, whose office has been investigating the case, also applauded the court's action.

"The court's decision is a proper and appropriate one. Now, this entire case can be aired in court, which is certainly the proper forum for its airing," Mattox said.

"I would hope both the prosecution in Montgomery County and Mr. Brandley's defense attorneys call each and every witness about which questions have been raised and have these persons testify under oath before the court," Mattox said.

Brandley, who is black, was janitor at Conroe High School, north of Houston. He was sentenced to death June 14, 1981, by an all-white jury for the Aug. 23, 1980, rape-slaying of Cheryl Dee Ferguson.

Miss Ferguson, 16, of Bellville, who was white, was manager of a volleyball team that was visiting the school. She was found strangled about two hours after she was reported missing.

Brandley, who was convicted on circumstantial evidence, was scheduled to die March 26. But his execution was halted after his lawyers filed a request for a hearing on additional evidence.

Included in the new evidence, DeGeurin said, are additional statements from two other school janitors about "what really happened on the day of the tragedy ... Those statements are in stark contrast to what was testified to at the time of the trial."

According to DeGeurin, "depending on which janitor you talk to, Clarence Brandley is absolutely innocent of the charges."

He said corroborating witnesses can show that "there is an entire story that was never presented to the jury" that convicted Brandley.

"There were some white janitors messing around with that girl, teasing her, and actually pulled her into a bathroom screaming for help when Brandley was not even around," he said.

DeGeurin said he didn't expect the hearing to be held before late August or September.

The U.S. Justice Department also has conducted an investigation of the case although its results have not been released.

Brandley has had two trials.

Main Street diplomacy raises Washington hackles

EDITOR'S NOTE — Shaping foreign policy is supposedly the preserve of the federal government, but increasingly local governments politically at odds with Washington are putting in their oars. The State Department takes a dim view of such dabbling.

By JOHN POMFRET
Associated Press Writer

Local governments across America are practicing Main Street diplomacy, taking controversial stands on sensitive foreign policy issues, and the trend has raised hackles in Washington.

In city councils, county seats and statehouses, resolutions on defense policy, immigration, international trade and human rights now vie with school budgets and sewage problems.

The federal government is supposed to be in sole charge of foreign relations and the localities' putting in their words edgewise irritates the State Department, which seeks ways to dampen the trend.

Said a department lawyer, on condition that his name not be used: "This kind of dabbling is getting out of hand. The United States must speak with one voice."

Politically tinged acts such as ordinances on nuclear-free zones or non-cooperation in rounding up illegal immigrants meet with special disfavor but, as the dabblers say, it's a little late to stop them.

"That's how this country works," says Edward I. Koch, mayor of New York City. "Things start at the grass roots and move up."

His city is using its economic clout against South Africa's apartheid government.

In smaller towns, like Takoma Park, Md., local officials are knocking heads with the Immigration and Naturalization Service by refusing to let local police help INS agents in deporting illegal aliens from Latin America.

"I would be lying if I said there wasn't serious concern in the department about this trend in local activism," says Lee Hunt of the State Department's Office of Intergovernmental Affairs. "Some of these cities' actions are illegal and some of them are outrageous."

While State Department officials would just as soon the local governments kept to potholes and school budgets, "we are seeing more and more of these local officials catching the internationalist bug," says Michael Shuman, president of the Center for Innovative Diplomacy, an activist group in San Francisco.

In the past six years:
■ More than 110 cities and 21 counties have passed non-binding resolutions favoring a comprehensive nuclear test ban.

■ More than 135 cities and counties have declared themselves nuclear weapons free zones. More than half of these ordinances are legally binding, which implies a willingness to go to court should the ordinance be challenged.

■ Some 22 cities and two states have told their police not to cooperate with U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service's efforts to deport immigrants from Latin America.

■ More than 70 cities have begun divesting their assets in companies doing business in South Africa, while some cities, like New York and Oakland, Calif., have passed selective purchasing measures which prohibit city contracts for firms doing business in that nation.

"There's a great deal of concern in Takoma Park about the direction that Washington is taking," says Steve Del Giudice, the mayor of the suburban Maryland city, which has declared itself a nuclear free zone and a sanctuary for illegal aliens from war-torn Latin America. "We will not accept the responsibility for enforcing policies that we can't stomach."

Frustrated by Washington's policy of "constructive engagement" with South Africa, legislators in New York City passed an ordinance last year denying city contracts to firms with holdings in that country.

"We are not in the business of supporting evil incarnate," Koch says. "We felt that if the Reagan administration wasn't going to do something about apartheid, we were."

About two-thirds of the states and many cities also have set up trade offices abroad. But when it comes to self-assertion in foreign and defense policy, Washington sees it as an area that under the Constitution has been reserved for the federal government.

Says a Defense Department spokesman: "State and local governments do not have jurisdiction over the basing and transportation of nuclear weapons ... If you're asking if we'd honor the nuclear-free ordinance, the answer is no."

Washington critics don't dispute the rights of citizens in a locality to make their views known, but passing ordinances, they say, is not the proper way.

Celebrate the Fourth with a bang-up menu

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Every summer, the Fourth of July is a favorite party day, an all-out national festival. This year, Independence Day marks the 211th birthday of the United States, and festivities will be more patriotic because 1987 is also the bicentennial celebration of our Constitution.

The Constitution was actually signed on Sept. 17, 1787, but the birthday of the nation is a great day to toast that historic document.

What better way to say happy anniversary than to gather with family and friends for an outdoor barbecue with such traditional fare as colorful drinks, burgers, bean salad, potato salad, pecan pie and homemade ice cream? All foods may be readied in advance so everyone will have time to enjoy the day's events.

SPARKLING BLUEBERRY-LEMON PUNCH

- 3 cups (24 ounces) blueberry-cranberry drink, chilled
- ¼ cup (2 ounces) frozen lemonade concentrate, undiluted
- ¼ cup (6 ounces) club soda, chilled
- Lemon slices, for garnish (optional)

Pour blueberry-cranberry drink and lemonade concentrate into a 1½-quart pitcher. Stir until lemonade melts. Add club soda. If desired, garnish with lemon slices. Add ice as needed. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 servings, about 5 ounces each.

FRUIT BLENDER DRINK

- 1 bottle (32 ounces) cranberry juice cocktail, chilled
- 2 small ripe bananas, peeled and cut into chunks, chilled

Mother's work changes child development

By CAROL DEEGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Sirgay Sanger is a friend of the working mother.

Sanger, a New York City infant and child psychiatrist, said, "I have no right to tell women not to work or to work. I don't think that's my job."

More important, he said, with 20 million working mothers in this country, the question is no longer whether or not mothers should work outside the home, but rather how to help them be the best parents they can be.

Sanger specializes in the unique needs of working mothers and their children up to the age of 5.

He is critical of what he calls "glib, and in many ways, guilt-inducing advice" about parenting that is directed at working mothers.

Sanger said children of working mothers can be made stronger, more flexible and socially skilled than the children of at-home mothers.

"A mother's work changes her child's development dramatically, by introducing him or her to the real world earlier," he said. "This early introduction to 'real life' can have many advantages for the child, for the child, but it creates certain risks and vulnerabilities, too."

"I teach mothers how to minimize the difficulties and maximize the strengths to make their work a positive force in their children's lives," he said. "I want to help them do the best they can for their kids."

Sanger is the author of three books including his latest, "The Woman Who Works, The Parent Who Cares." (Little, Brown and Company)

He founded the Parent-Child Interaction Program at St. Luke's Roosevelt Hospital in New York City in 1971, where he continues to do community work.

He founded the Early Care Center, where he maintains his private practice, in 1982.

The Early Care Center explores all the ways parents can promote optimal development, and makes recommendations for nurture and play based on each infant's and child's unique emotional characteristics.

Sanger uses a video studio —

Dr. Sirgay Sanger, a New York City psychiatrist and child development expert, specializes in the needs of working mothers and their families. His primary interest is in the psychological growth of children from birth to age 5.

actually a big playroom with lights and video cameras — to record mothers at play with their infants and children. He reviews the tapes and offers suggestions.

His program for working mothers and their children, called Reality Attuned Parenting (REAP), is meant to reflect what Sanger says he believes to be the defining characteristic of the working mother's child: The real world enters his life earlier.

"We try to introduce reality earlier in the child's life because the working situation pushes the child into the real world earlier. They have to be more resourceful, more independent children; all the things the mothers are in their own lives, that's what their children have to be as well."

"So we do have many ways of showing parents how to help their children be more in this world without sacrificing their childhood."

REAP is designed to provide a young child with the security, the self-confidence, flexibility, sense of personal competence and capacity to cope with stress and frustration that he needs to operate efficiently and beneficially outside his immediate family circle.

Sanger said working mothers are changing the developmental timetable for the first 5 years of a child's life.

He said despite the long history women have of working outside the home, today's working mother is being attacked from many sides.

"She is attacked from above by her mother, who was one of those postwar mothers who were forced to leave their work and stay home."

"She is attacked by people who tell her that putting her child in day care is tantamount to throwing him on the rubbish heap."

"And she is being attacked by her own sense that she can't do everything."

Sanger said mothers should stop worrying about what possible negative effects their working outside the home might have on their children.

"Every child wants his parent to be happy and smiling and a viable individual."

"They want to love their mommies and they want to be proud of their mommies, and that natural proclivity, both in the mind of the child who holds on to the image of the mother, and in their wish to imitate and be like mommy, work toward the working mother getting her work done and coming home and having a pleasurable experience."

Words can hit as hard as a fist for children

DEAR READERS: Have you ever abused your child? Perhaps without realizing it, you have. Words can hit as hard as a fist. For example:

"You disgust me. Just shut up!"

"Get out of here. I'm sick of looking at your face!"

"You're pathetic. Can't you do anything right?"

"You're more trouble than you're worth."

"Why don't you go and find some other place to live?"

"I wish you were never born."

Children believe whatever their parents tell them. Next time you lose your temper, stop for a moment, and listen to what you're saying. You might not believe your words.

Take time out. Don't take it out on your kid.

Here are 12 alternatives to lashing out at your kid:

1. Put your hands over your mouth. Count to 10. Or better yet, 20.
2. Stop in your tracks. Press your lips together and breathe deeply.
3. Phone a friend.
4. Phone the prerecorded weather information number.
5. Say the alphabet out loud.
6. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a leisurely walk.
7. Splash cold water on your face, or take a warm bath.
8. Pick up a pencil and write down your thoughts.
9. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child hears.
10. Turn on the radio or TV.
11. Hug a pillow.
12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866, Chicago, Ill. 60690. You'll be glad you did.

This is a non-profit organization. The information is free for the asking, but if you are able to send even a small donation, it will be greatly appreciated.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were divorced many years ago and I was left to raise our two children with no help from him. They are now 11 and 13 years old. My mom took care of my kids all the years I worked.

I am going with a gentleman who loves me. He is 49, divorced and has two teen-age children who live with his wife, but he supports them in style. He is well-off financially and just came into some inherited money.

He has offered to marry me and buy me a home — on one condition: My children cannot live with us. My mother practically raised my kids, so he thinks they should live with her. Abby, my mother is 72 and she has worked her butt off looking after my kids, and I just can't lay that on her after all she's done for me.

I love this man and he treats me very well, but we fight about this all the time. My kids are good kids, and they come first with me. Please tell me what to do. He has given me an Aug. 15 deadline.

ALL TORN UP

DEAR TORN: Tell the gentleman if he wants to marry you, it's a package deal — triple or nothing. If he says, "Nothing," don't eat your heart out. Would you really want a man who asked you to abandon your children?

Bus seats still available for trip to see 'TEXAS'

Several seats are still available for the Pampa Business and Professional Women's planned bus trip to see the outdoor drama "TEXAS" on July 17.

Those attending will leave the Continental Trailways bus station at 5 p.m. for the trip to Palo Duro Canyon. Cost is $20 per person, which includes the bus ticket and the play ticket.

The club has secured prime center-section seating at the amphitheater for the occasion. The bus will return to Pampa at approximately 12:30 a.m.

Those attending should bring a sack supper for the trip.

Pampa Business and Professional Women have hosted the trip annually for several years as a community service for those wanting to attend the production without having to drive. The public is welcome to attend.

Reservations must be made in advance to Alma Ash, 669-2104, or Ruby Chaney, 669-3730. All cancellations must be made at least three days prior to the trip to ensure a refund.

Immunization clinics planned

Immunization clinics offering vaccines that give protection against several childhood diseases are scheduled for July 9 and 23 in Pampa.

Protection is against polio, diphtheria, lock jaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella and mumps.

The Texas Department of Health is charging a fee to help with the cost of keeping the immunization clinic open. Amount charged will be based on family income and size, and ability to pay.

The clinic will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Hughes Building on each of the two Pampa dates.

Cub Scouts attend district day camp

Cub Scouts from the Panhandle area met recently at Camp M.K. Brown to participate in the annual Kiowa District Cub Day Camp.

Scouts from Pampa, Wheeler, Allison, Clarendon, Kelton, Mansfield, Matador, Miami, Mobeetie, Samnorwood and Wellington were present, with 126 boys attending, according to Maggie Marshall, first-year camp director. The camp was held June 2-5.

Theme for this year's program was "Knights of Yore." New program directors for this year were Linda Radcliff of Pampa and Gloria Brown of Wheeler.

Younger Cub Scouts were divided into six dens and given "Sir" names such as Ector, Galahad, Gareth, Gawain, Kay and Lancelot.

The 8- and 9-year-old Cubs participated in crafts, songs, feats of skill, water games, archery and B-B gun shooting.

The 10-year-old Cubs, the Webelos, had their own program activities under the guidance of Scoutmasters Jim Radcliff and Dale Reeves.

Webelos studied trees, birds, plants and rocks during nature hikes. Their studies allowed them to complete the requirements for the Forester, Naturalist, Outdoorsman and Geologist activity badges.

Each day the Cubs were awarded various colored beads based on their performances in the day's activities. Each participant received a T-shirt and patch with the Golden Spread Council Day Camp logo.

Concluding activities June 5 included three hours of games, a picnic family dinner and a campfire closing.

Each den performed a den yell and camp song at the campfire. Camp directors presented appreciation plaques to all adult leaders and Boy Scout helpers who assisted them at camp.

The campfire closing was the conclusion of day camp for all 8- and 9-year-old Cubs. Webelos were allowed to stay overnight with their fathers for a special father-son program.

On Friday evening, campers fished at the three camp lakes, had a late-night cookout and took a midnight hike.

Breakfast was served Saturday morning in the dining hall. The group was allowed to go back to the lakes to continue fishing or participate in a father-son archery contest.

Ernie and Matt Huddleston of Pampa outscored the field of 16 at the archery shoot-out. Jim and Jason Adams of Wheeler finished second. Third place was claimed by Josh and Russell Parsons of Pampa. The top three father-son teams received plaques.

The group cooked foil dinners to complete the day's activities. Preparation of these meals fulfilled the campers' final requirements for the Outdoorsman activity badge.

Green beans can be grilled

- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- 2 cups fresh bias-sliced green beans or wax beans or 1 cup each green beans and wax beans
- ½ cup sliced water chestnuts

In a small bowl combine soy sauce, water and ginger. Cut an 18-by-12-inch piece of heavy foil. Place beans, water chestnuts and pimento in center of foil. Fold up foil around bean mixture; add soy sauce mixture. Bring up long sides of foil and seal tightly, leaving a little space for expansion of steam. Tightly seal each end. Place foil packet on a grill directly over medium coals. Grill for 25 to 30 minutes or until beans are crisp-tender, turning packet over once. Makes 4 servings.

Wimbledon wizardry

Shriver, Connors make miracle comebacks

By ANDREW WARSHAW
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — They were two of Wimbledon's great comebacks.

First, there was Pam Shriver, down 1-4 in the final set to Sylvia Hanika of West Germany and facing two match points.

Then, even more remarkably, there was 34-year-old Jimmy Connors, down two sets and 1-4 in the third to Mikael Pernfors of Sweden, his hopes of a quarterfinal berth all but dashed.

But with America's chances in the 101st Wimbledon championships fading badly Tuesday, Shriver and Connors dug deep into their reserves of strength and stamina and somehow pulled out both matches to reach the round of eight.

Both were eliminated last year in the first round. Both brought their victories Tuesday down to one thing: Guts.

"For a change, when the chips were on the table, I came up with some good stuff," Shriver said after her 6-7, 7-5, 10-8 defeat of Hanika. "It was as tough as heck."

Connors, who has failed to reach the quarterfinals here only three times in 17 attempts, said after his 1-6, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory over Pernfors: "The best thing I did out there was grind and fight."

Connors and Shriver were to try to continue their advance today on Court No. 1. Shriver, the No. 5 seed, was to play No. 4 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia in a women's quarterfinal, while Connors, No. 7 in the men's draw, was to meet unseeded Slobodan Zivojinovic of Yugoslavia.

To make up for last week's backlog of matches caused by the rain, organizers scheduled the entire quarterfinal round for this afternoon.

Defending women's champion Martina Navratilova was to open on Court No. 1 against Diane Balestrat of Australia.

Ivan Lendl, the world's No. 1 men's player, continued his bid for a first Wimbledon crown against Henri Leconte of France in the opening match on Centre Court. They were to be followed by Steffi Graf against Gabriela Sabatini, the game's two leading teen-agers, in a repeat of the French Open semifinal last month, which Graf won in three sets.

Then Mats Wilander of Sweden, the No. 3 seed, was to go against No. 11 Pat Cash of Australia.

The match-ups were being completed on Court No. 2 where Stefan Edberg was to play Anders Jarryd in an all-Swedish match and Chris Evert took on Claudia Kohde-Kilsch.

Lendl, who struggled in earlier rounds on a surface he says never makes him feel entirely comfortable, won in straight sets for the first time, beating Johan Kriek of the United States, 6-3, 7-6, 6-2.

Leconte also won in straight sets over Andres Gomez of Ecuador, as did Cash over another Frenchman, Guy Forget, and Zivojinovic over Australia's Peter Doohan, the second-round conqueror of two-time defending champion Boris Becker.

Doohan's Wimbledon dream ended abruptly as he was wiped out 6-2, 6-4, 7-6.

He managed to save three match points in a 13-11 third-set tiebreaker but succumbed to Zivojinovic's superior serving.

The three Swedes left in the men's draw each dropped a set in their fourth-round matches, Wilander against Emilio Sanchez of Spain, Edberg against Jacob Hlasek of Switzerland and Jarryd against Soviet qualifier Alexandr Volkov.

Navratilova, looking invincible on her favorite grass surface, had another quick victory, 6-3, 6-1 over Gigi Fernandez of Puerto Rico.

Evert, still struggling to find her best form, wasted three match points on her serve before reaching the quarterfinals for the 15th time in 16 appearances, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5 over Ros Fairbank of South Africa.

Other winners were the second-seeded Graf over Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia, No. 4 Sukova over Raffaella Reggi of Italy without losing a game, No. 6 Sabatini of Argentina over Natalia Zvereva of the Soviet Union, No. 8 Kohde-Kilsch over Sweden's Catarina Lindqvist and Australia's Balestrat over America's Mary Joe Fernandez.

But after all the thrilling tennis in the afternoon, the most excitement came under an early-evening sun with Connors' spectacular recovery.

Said Connors: "I don't think I've been that far down and won before."

Randy's win softball squeaker

In one of the better games of the season, McCarty-Hull slipped past Randy's Food 5-4 in Senior girls' softball action Sunday night.

Winning pitcher was Melissa Brookshire, who struck out six, walked seven and allowed just three hits.

Amanda Miller had a homer and single to lead McCarty-Hull while Bridget Mathis had a triple and Kandy Winton, a single.

Joy Cambern, Tary Hamby and Nikki Ryan each had a single for Randy's.

B & B Auto won over C & C Hydrocarbons 15-8 in Senior League play.

Leading hitter for B & B was Minsky Minyard with two singles and a double. Tammy Childers and Alicia Loftis had two singles each.

Christy Lang had a single and triple for C & C while Shannon Harper had two base hits and Patsy Preston, a single.

The two teams also met Saturday with B & B taking a 32-3 decision.

Winning pitcher was Misty Minyard, who struck out one, walked two and gave up five hits.

Dean's catcher Brandon Brashears catches a foul ball. Dean's lost to O.C.A.W. 8-2 in the winner's bracket of the Pampa City Bambino Tournament Tuesday night.

O.C.A.W. advances

O.C.A.W. jumped out to an early lead and never threatened in posting an 8-2 win over Dean's Pharmacy in the Pampa City Bambino Tournament Tuesday night.

Dean's just couldn't get anything going against the pitching combination of Will Winborne and Gregg Moore.

Winborne pitched the first three innings and Moore the last three with Winborne picking up the win.

Dean's managed only two hits, a double by John Donnelly and a single by Jason Downs. Winborne had six strikeouts and Moore had four.

Mike Foote and Matt Winborne carried the big bats for O.C.A.W. Foote had an RBI double and single while Winborne knocked in two runs with a pair of singles.

Dean's runs came on a wild pitch and a bases-loaded walk.

Donnelly pitched for Dean's and allowed only six hits, but he had control problems throughout the game, walking six batters.

Chris Gilbert had a double and scored twice for O.C.A.W. while Bret Queen had a run-scoring single and Will Winborne, a base hit.

O.C.A.W. is scheduled to meet Rotary at 6 p.m. Thursday night in the winner's bracket.

Games tonight in the loser's bracket start at 6 p.m.

Rotary won over Dunlap Industrial 14-6 last night as Garrett Scribner and Jason Brantley combined to pitch a two-hitter.

Scribner and Brantley also knocked in two runs each while Dustin Dunlap had a pair of hits for Rotary.

Norbert Ybarra had a single and RBI and Dave Davis added a single for Rotary.

Chris Poole had a double and Coby Waters a single for Dunlap. Cabot routed Citizens Bank & Trust 15-1 in a winner's bracket game that was called after four innings due to the 10-run rule.

Tarin Peet gave up only one hit to pick up the mound win while striking out eight and walking two.

Kurt West, Matt Edgar, Gary Frazier and Chris Whitney had two hits each for Cabot.

Dean King's single was the only hit for Citizens.

Cabot squares off against Dyer's Barbeque, a 17-5 winner over Dunlap Leasing, Thursday night.

Dyer's had to come from behind after giving up five runs in the first inning.

Carlos Regalado knocked in two runs with a double in the first inning while three runs came across when Jason Warren doubled and scored on errors.

Dyer's defense tightened up and allowed only four more hits in the game.

Dyer's bounced back with four runs in the bottom of the first on RBI singles by Ross Johnson and Clarence Reed and a two-run single by Micha Brooks.

Dyer's added five runs in the third inning and five more in the fourth and finished the scoring with a three-run fifth frame.

Brooks had three singles and a double and Matthew Clark had two doubles and a single to lead Dyer's hitting attack. Brooks was the winning pitcher.

FROM THE NOTEPAD: On this date in 1948, July 1, Roy Campanella made his major league debut with three hits in five at bats, but the New York Giants beat the Brooklyn Dodgers anyway, 6-4. A street in Pampa is named after the great Hall of Fame catcher.

Among the major leaguers playing in Japan, Randy Bass of Lawton is hitting .335 and George Vukovich only .240. Biggest name, Bob Horner, carries a .318 average with 13 home runs through last week.

Mike Hargrove's Class A Kinston team finished tied for last place (33-37) as the Carolina League finished its season's first half. In the 3A Pacific Coast League, where John Dittrich is GM, Calgary ended the first-half a half-game back of Tacoma.

Many sports fans like Arena Football because it is so similar to basketball, but not as rough, with lots of scoring and no apparent defense.

The Pampa ISD athletic staff is nearly complete, needing only a trainer and a coach for some girls programs at the Middle School. AD John Kendall will be attending summer school at East Texas State the balance of the summer.

A couple of familiar faces will be absent for the Tri-State Seniors Golf Tournament, starting July 20. Former champion Roy Peden called last week to withdraw due to personal reasons and Bus Dugger, longtime area sports official, will also miss his first in many years. Plugging those two gaps will be two new faces with championship potential: Myron Dees, former AD at West Texas State, and Ken Bailey, who was golf coach at the Canyon school when it dropped its golf program. Welcome to middle age, guys.

Six days in Russia (3 in Moscow, 3 in Leningrad) didn't keep Pampa marathoner Tom Byrd from getting in his daily running. He has not missed a day outdoors this year. "The surprising part," says the stock broker, "is I apparently had total freedom to run anywhere I wanted without being watched."

Newt Harrell, who launched a 73-yard punt in a Canyon victory over the Harvesters in 1982, is planning to play at West Texas State this fall. Two surgeries while at UT-Austin apparently ended playing days for the 6-5, 305-pound former Eagle. Harrell's punt was probably the longest ever at Harvester Stadium.

Carey McDonald, executive director of the National HS Coaches Association, says rising cost of equipment and liability insurance could wipe out some school athletic programs.

The excellent feature in the current issue of Sports Illustrated about legendary NY Yankee first baseman Wally Pipp brought back memories. A headache one day caused Pipp, an AL home run champion, to give way to Lou Gehrig, who went on to set a consecutive-game playing record. Pipp instructed me on playing second base and how to turn the double play in the summer of 1940 while serving as one of the athletic greats working at Badger Boys State, an affair similar to the American Legion-sponsored Lone Star Boys State.

Speaking of Wisconsin, the "class" of Don Nelson is tremendous. Despite being ousted as coach of the Milwaukee Bucks and becoming a part-owner of Golden State, Nelson for the second year in a row, will drive a tractor on a seven-day fundraising tour of the state starting next Sunday. Last year, he raised more than $250,000 for Nellie's Farm Fund while shedding 50 pounds as donors pledged dollars for each pound he dropped. Nelson says he will retain his legal residence in Milwaukee.

And if you want a hair-raising story about Wisconsin, ask Gene Gates about the Model T Rally he attended in the Madison area a couple of weeks ago.

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the Top O Texas Rodeo turning professional and being associated with the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Some area high schoolers did well in the Texas HS Rodeo Association last week at Seguin. Denny McLanahan of Canadian was All-Around Boy and finished a distant first in bare back competition. Teammate Shawn Wright finished third. McClanahan was fourth in bull riding, and Miami's Kimbra Pierce captured top honors in barrel racing. Drew Thomas of Wheeler was second in steer wrestling.

It was a tough visit to Robert McPherson's basketball camp for NBA star Michael Jordan. He caught an elbow worth eight stitches in a pickup game.

And former Borger Bulldog Coach Tex Hanna shot his age three days in a row recently on the golf course. He can tell you how many it was, but congratulations, Tex! Tex never could count very well. He always thought his Bulldogs outscored McNeely's Harvesters, and they did 13 out of 29 times. His son, Randy, is newly named chief officer of Borger's bank.

Reds win first-place battle

NL roundup

By The Associated Press

For 24 seasons, Pete Rose used hustle to amass 4,256 hits. Kurt Stillwell and Tracy Jones used it to give their manager an important victory.

Stillwell scored from second base on Jones' infield single in the 10th inning Tuesday night as Cincinnati beat Houston 5-4 in a showdown for first place in the National League West.

Jones beat out a grounder to shortstop Dickie Thon and Stillwell kept running, easily beating the relay home with a head-first slide, lifting Cincinnati 1½ games ahead of second-place Houston.

"We stole the game," Rose said. "You don't see many games end that way. It's a great way to win a game — two walks and an infield hit. It was just good, aggressive play."

Stillwell and Kal Daniels drew one-out walks from Larry Andersen, 5-4. Terry Francona fouled out before Jones hit his high-hop grounder to Thon.

"That's the name of the game," Stillwell said. "When you're slumping like he (Jones) is and like I am, you've just got to keep running and see what happens."

Umpire Dutch Rennert called Jones safe at first on a close play, and first baseman Glenn Davis didn't have a chance to make a good throw home to get Stillwell.

"If you can't get any hits, at least you can hustle," Jones said. "We've both been in little slumps. If you hustle, something might happen — and it did."

Astros Manager Hal Lanier angrily disputed the call at first with Rennert.

"He said he got the play (called) right," Lanier said. "That's all he said. Of course, I disagreed with it."

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal beat Chicago 5-4; New York edged St. Louis 3-2; Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh 6-4; Los Angeles blanked San Diego 4-0; and San Francisco beat Atlanta 5-2.

Reds 5, Astros 4

The Reds took a 4-1 lead as right-hander Mike Scott struggled in the first four innings. But the Astros used Billy Hatcher's single and consecutive sixth-inning homers by Jose Cruz and Alan Ashby off Bill Gullickson to tie the score 4-4.

"How can I say we played well?" Rose said of his team's performance. "We had six hits and two errors. We had one-third as many errors as hits. (But) we'll see that last play on the highlight films."

Mets 3, Cardinals 2

Howard Johnson singled home pinch-runner Len Dykstra from second base with one out in the ninth inning to make a winner of Dwight Gooden.

Gary Carter led off the ninth by drawing starter Greg Mathews' second walk of the game. Kevin McReynolds sacrificed against reliever Bill Dawley, moving Dykstra to second. After Ricky Horton intentionally walked Lee Mazzilli, Johnson lined a single into the left-field corner.

The host Mets won for just the second time in eight games with St. Louis this season to move within 6½ games of the first-place Cardinals in the NL East.

Gooden, 5-1, allowed eight hits, struck out nine and walked two. He has won five straight decisions against the Cardinals since April 24, 1985.

NY Life wins Babe Ruth title

New York Life was declared the winner in the Babe Ruth 13-15 Tournament.

New York Life defeated First National Bank 8-4 in the championship round Monday at Optimist Park. A second game was to be played to determine the championship, but the game was canceled because of rain and the New Yorkers were declared the tournament winners.

The Life team won the regular-season championship this season.

The 15-year-old District Babe Ruth Tournament will be held July 13 in Dumas and an all-star team from Pampa has been selected to play in the tournament.

Pampa all-stars include Brandon Knutson, Tim Davis, Mark Aderholt and Quincy Williams of New York Life; Mike Cagle, James Bybee, Breck Beckner of First National Bank; Chris Morris, Heath Summers, Chris Roden and Jason Becker of Grant Supply; Justin Cross of Cree; Mark Wood of Pampa Hardware; Tery Peet and Eric Cochran of Bowers Ranch. Jayson Williams and Tyson Beck were chosen as alternates.

Wayne Barkley will manage the team while Steve Seely and Danny Cagle will serve as coaches.

The State 15-year-old Tournament will be held in Lamesa July 28.

Barkley said Pampa should be favored to win the tournament since this same group won the District 13 Tournament and advanced all the way to regionals before being eliminated.

The 13-year-old District Babe Ruth Tournament will be held in Pampa, starting July 14.

Maurice Cross served as Babe Ruth League president this year.

McFadden jury hears inmate

BELTON (AP) — A convicted murderer who served time in prison with Jerry "Animal" McFadden testified before the jury in McFadden's capital murder trial, but he couldn't say where or when he knew the defendant.

Kenneth Chastain told jurors that when he asked McFadden if police had found the weapon that killed Suzanne Harrison, a Hawkins' teen-ager found strangled to death in May 1986, McFadden held up his hands and replied, "They can't get these."

Earlier Tuesday, defense attorney Vernard Solomon objected to Chastain testifying about the period of 1982-85 when he and McFadden were in prison because it would reveal McFadden had a prior conviction, which cannot be mentioned during the guilt or innocence phase of the trial.

After hearing several hours of attorneys' arguments, Judge F.L. "Tiny" Garrison ruled that Chastain could testify before the jury with the limitation that he could not reveal where and when he had known McFadden.

Solomon moved for a mistrial after a prosecution question he claimed related to McFadden's being in prison. But Garrison, the 115th State District Court judge who is hearing the case in Belton after a change of venue from Upshur County, overruled the motion.

Miss Harrison's body was found at Barnwell Mountain in Upshur County the day after the 18-year-old and two companions went on a lake outing.

The bodies of Gena Turner and Bryan Boone were found shot to death in a roadside ditch a few days later. McFadden has not been indicted in their deaths.

Chastain, who is serving a life sentence on a capital murder conviction, testified with the jury out of the room that he had worked with McFadden while at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit in Huntsville from 1982 to 1985.

He said he met McFadden again on Feb. 4, 1987 in TDC's Eastham Unit, where McFadden was awaiting the capital murder trial.
