Hospital renamed during reorganization

From Staff and Wire Reports

The future owner of Pampa's HCA Coronado Hospital has been given a name: HealthTrust Inc. — The Hospital Company

Hospital Corporation of America, which currently owns Coronado Hospital, on Friday announced the HealthTrust name for the spinoff company that will buy 104 HCA hospitals under the firm's $1.9 billion reorganization

'We selected the name HeathTrust

Inc. based upon the fact that we are in the business of delivering quality health care," said R. Clayton McWhorter, HCA president. McWhorter will become chairman and chief coerating officer of HealthTrust

"One of the most important factors in making health care decisions is the element of trust. We believe ... people will have good reason to rely on HealthTrust Inc.," he said.

The 104 hospitals, with a total of 13,844 beds, are being sold in 22 states to HealthTrust Inc., which, like HCA, will be based in Nashville. The hospitals to be sold include Coronado.

The HCA reorganization is expected to be completed during the third quar-

Coronado spokeswoman Linda Haynes said Saturday that the transfer of hospitals must wait for approval by the federal Securities and Exchange Commission. She predicted no problems with the agency

Norman Knox, administrator of Coronado Hospital, predicted no changes in Pampa as a result of the reorganization.

'We are pleased with the new name of our company," Knox said Friday in a release. "Even though the name is different - and the structure of the company is different - we do not expect any changes in the operation or the philosophy of the hospital here in Pampa. Our name will probably stay Coronado Hospital, omitting the HCA.

Haynes said Coronado officials have not been given an indication of the new company's formal policy regarding lavoffs or additions to the staff, but she said local officials have been told there will be no personnel changes.

Administrator Knox also emphasized that the Pampa hospital is here to stay. 'We are not closing the hospital," he said. "We have a strong institution which renders a valuable service to Pampa and the eastern Panhandle. "The restructuring of HCA should make us financially more viable since

Woman named to panel

Colleen Hamilton appointed to lead Pampa schools

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

A Pampa dental hygienist has become the first woman to serve on the Pampa School board in more than two years.

Colleen Hamilton, 47, 2520 Fir, was appointed by the board and sworn in by school Business Manager Jerry Haralson during a brief special meeting Friday afternoon

She replaces Trustee David Robertson, 40, in Place 4 on the board. Robertson resigned effective Friday to accept a job in Albertville, Ala.

Hamilton is the second trustee the board has appointed since May. Former Trustee Darville appointed May 5 replace Charles Loeffler, who res igned after being transferred to Corpus Christi.

Both new board members appointed terms extend only through the next school board elections, currently scheduled for May. "I'm looking forward to working with this group," Hamilton said during an interview after her appointment. "(The school board) is a good place of service."

Horses and wagons parade in streets

From riding cowboys to throttling 3wheelers, the annual Top o' Texas Rodeo Parade wound its way through the Pampa downtown area Saturday morning

The usual horses and wagons were there. and even a group of boys herding a calf down the street, along with the more modern touches of classic and antique cars and a number of modern 3-wheelers

People lined the route, sitting on the curbs, resting on the side in lawn chairs or just viewing from their cars.

The parade participants gathered in the field and parking lots near Coronado Center and then passed by the spectators along Somerville, Hobart, Ward, Francis and Cuyler.

Gaining first place in the Most Typical Ranch Entry was Donald Maul. The 2B Ranch won second place.

The W.T. Buffalo and the Herdsmen entry from West Texas State University took first in the Best Civic Club or Organization En try. The local Khiva Shrine float entry was awarded second place.

Judged tops in the Most Attractive Com mercial Entry was the Plains Aluminum In dustries' Dust Stoppers. Second went to Corriente Roper and Art Rhine

North Country Coors Riding Club took first place as the Best Riding Club, with the Leather 'n Lace Riding Club coming in second. Third was the Hutchinson County Sheriff's Posse

Selected as the Best Female in the Best Western Costume Entry was Nikki Leggett. There may be some trouble giving the engraved trophy to the Best Male entry: the judges listed him only as "the cowboy that was reping." Rodeo Secretary Kathy Topper reported the man apparently hadn't filed an entry form.

Winners in the Classic Cars division were J.D. Laramore, first; Mark Craig, second, and V.E. Wagner, third.

Building continues to decline

By LARRY HOLLIS News Editor

Valuation of building construction in Pampa is running about $2.5 million below last year, based on figures provided in the monthly Department of Building Inspection reports.

According to department head David McKinney, the city has issued 143 building permits for the current 1986-1987 fiscal year period to date, with valuation totaling $4.835.812

In the first nine months of the 1985-1986 fiscal year, the department issued 158 permits with a valuation of $7,435,691, approximately $2.6 million higher than the current totals.

The fiscal year begins Oct. 1 and ends Sept. 30.

In the current calendar year, beginning Jan. 1, the city has issued 88 building permits with a total valuation of construction listed at $2,860,697. That's down approximately $2.46 million from the $5,321,522 recorded in the same 1986 period, McKinney re-

The department issued 25 building permits in June with total valuation listed at $323.698. Fewer permits were issued in June 1986 — 17 — but valuation was higher at $367,100.

June permits were issued for one single family dwelling. $65,000; two commercial buildings. $75.500; six mobile homes. $71,500; eight garages, $26,298; five alterations or additions to dwellings, $62,600; one alteration or addition to a commercial building, $22,800; and two miscellaneous, no valuation listed.

Comic strip about life in small town scheduled Monday

'Geech," a comic strip about life in a small Texas town, starts Monday on The Pampa News daily comics page

Based on a place called "Grimace, Texas," the strip offers humorous views of many characters readers may feel they know

"Geech" is Jerry Bittle's justfolks style cartoon strip starring, of course, Geech, a hilariously unsophisticated and inept hired hand at a gas station owned by an easygoing mechanic named

The cast is rounded out by Ruby, a sassy waitress; her friend Nadine, still looking for Mr. Anybody; Artie, a pseudointellectual transplant from the East; Rabbit, a true misanthropic bartender; Weldon, an oil field worker, and various other inhabitants of Smalltown, USA.

"Geech" replaces "Steve Canyon," which has been canceled as a daily strip in The Pampa

The humor and illustrations by Bittle, winner of the CLIO advertising award, are first class, pushing Geech into the big city, in terms of popularity

The daily strip is syndicated in more than 100 markets nationwide, appearing in such other newspapers as the Chicago Tribune, Baltimore Sun and Dallas Times Herald.

'The humor is small-town expression, but it's universal in its application," Bittle explains.

Bittle was born in Heber Springs, Ark., and later lived in Searcy until moving to Wichita, Kan., before he started the 10th grade. He now lives in Dallas. where he has been a freelance illustrator since 1978.

Some of the characters are based on people, or at least my impressions of them. I knew when I was growing up in Arkansas and Kansas." Bittle says. "I don't want to say who," he added quickly.

'Everybody has met a Geech, Merle, Ruby, Rabbit or Weldon in their life." he contends. 'Merle is based on a friend I still keep in touch with," he says. 'And Geech — I guess that's Bittle's career in cartooning began when he was a student at Wichita State University in 1967 He enrolled to be an architect but discovered his math was so weak that he decided, "What the heck be an artist

After receiving a degree, he became staff artist at the Wichita Eagle-Beacon, got interested in editorial cartooning and left after four years to become full-time editorial cartoonist for the Albuquerque Tribune.

In June 1978, he decided to go into advertising and moved to Dallas, where he continues to combine careers as a freelance illustrator and cartoonist.

His idea for "Geech" was born in May 1981 when he was encouraged by a friend at Universal Press Syndicate to develop a

The family has lived in Pampa 11 years.

Hamilton is no stranger to the school district, having been involved in the Impact drug prevention program at the middle school during the past year.

She said the most pressing issue facing Pampa schools is the budget workshops and hearings, scheduled later this month and in August. Friday, trustees set July 30 as a budget workshop date in an effort to set a budget in the face of a declining tax base and increasing state demands.

The board could have chosen to call an election to replace Robertson, but board President Joe Van-Zandt said trustees chose the appointment option because they wanted a full board on hand to discuss the budget. He said an election would have taken 45 days or more and also cited the cost of calling an election.

"I think all of us realize we're in a real important time frame of having discussions to set next year's budget, as well as setting goals for next year," VanZandt said.

Superintendent Harry Griffith said he, too, preferred an appointment for the same VanZandt said the board discussed "several well-qualified people in the community" before appointing Hamilton.

The board didn't discuss the prospective replacements in pub-

In other action Friday, trustees set July 21 as the date to discuss $170,000 in bids to refurbish the track and tennis courts at Pampa

High School Trustee Keith Teague said he is concerned about the district not repairing the south four tennis courts. Griffith had suggested Tuesday that the board fix the north four courts while they are still repairable and search for some outside financial help in repairing the south courts.

"I feel like we need to do whatever needs to be done," Teague said. "The (high school tennis) program needs the use of those courts.

Trustee Orr said he agrees that the south courts need to be repaired soon but recommended waiting until as close as possible to the end of the bid process to give the board time to seek some outside help as Griffith had suggested.

Vibra-Whirl of Panhandle, the low bidder on the tennis court project, has estimated fixing all eight courts would cost roughly $100,000, while repairing only the north courts would cost only $10,000.

employees' retirement plan," Knox added.

HCA officials said financing plans for the reorganization now include a $400 million commitment from the Bank of Nova Scotia and a $200 million commitment from the Swiss Bank Corp., in addition to the previously announced $400 million loan from the Wells Fargo Bank N.A.

The new commitments complete a $1 billion bank financing arrangement necessary to complete the transfer of hospitals to the new company.

Drexel Burnham Lambert has also agreed to lend $796 million in debt financing to HealthTrust. HCA now plans to increase its investment in HealthTrust preferred stock from $300 to $460 million, in order to strengthen the fledgling firm, said Dr. Thomas F. Frist Jr., HCA chairman and chief executive officer.

Frist said HCA also may invest an additional $40 million in HealthTrust preferred stock during the new company's first three years.

Two New Mexico escapees captured

By ED MORENO Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. — Two escaped convicts were recaptured early Saturday, and a third was being sought after people at a house were taken hostage and at least one shot was fired, police

Michael Romero, an armed robber and arsonist, was caught sometime after 1 a.m. and John Michael Schmidt was picked up just before 9 a.m. They are the third and fourth escapees captured since an Independence Day breakout from the maximum security unit at the state prison.

Police got a report that people were being held hostage Friday night at an eastside home, said state police Capt. John Denko. 'Our officers started up there but they had left. We got their general direction of travel and pur-be house sitters, Denko said, without identifying them further. A woman from the house was taken to the hospital for examination, he said.

The men took a pickup from the house but abandoned it when police got close and fled into the woods

Romero was captured after a foot pursuit.

"He was armed, but he did not attempt to use it," Denko said. Schmidt was arrested near a subdivision in which the governor's mansion is located and where a guard reported a shot was fired early this morning.

Authorities said about 60 officers and helicopters from the state police and the National Guard were searching for another escapee near the National Cemetery, which is near down-

Authorities release drawing of alien smuggler DALLAS (AP) — Federal agents circulated Authorities say El Chapulin — Enrique a composite drawing Saturday in an intensive search on both sides of the U.S.-Mexico border for an accused smuggler wanted in connection with the suffocation deaths of 18 illegal aliens.

An artist flown into El Paso from Louisiana completed the drawing overnight after meeting with about a dozen witnesses who have had dealings with the man, known as "El Chapulin" or "the Grasshopper," said Gus de la Vina, assistant chief of the El Paso sector of the Border Patrol.

Saucito, Zacatecas, Mexico - is the ringleader of a smuggling operation linked to the 18 deaths aboard an airtight boxcar bound for Dallas-Fort Worth.

The composite drawing was being distributed to law enforcement agencies in North Texas, along the border and into Central Mexico, de la Vina said.

Two men who died in the train after it left an El Paso freight yard were believed to be members of the ring, and two others have also been charged with smuggling in connection with the ring. One of the men, Arturo Hernandez Garcia, El Chapulin's 31-year-old brother, is jailed in El Paso while the second, Manuel Hernandez Hernandez, remains at large. The two are also natives of El Saucito. The younger Hernandez Garcia has not been linked to the deaths.

El Chapulin is believed to be in Mexico. while reports indicate Hernandez Hernandez, 33, could be in either the United States or Mexico, de la Vina said

Prosecutor seeks to void conviction of Judge Cave

DALLAS (AP) — An assistant U.S. attorney has asked a judge to void the recent mail fraud convictions of former state District Judge Tom Cave because of a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling narrowing the scope of the federal mail fraud law.

The prosecutor, Terence Hart, said Cave's June 5 conviction should be "arrested" but not overturned so Cave could be subject to further prosecution on charges stemming from an alleged sex-forleniency scheme Hart filed a notice asking that the convictions be arrested in response to Cave's motion seeking that his convictions on three counts of mail fraud be set The decision rests with U.S. District Judge Mary

Lou Robinson, who presided over Cave's five-week

Cave was acquitted June 5 of charges he violated the civil rights of female defendants with cases pending before his court by exchanging sexual favors for leniency. Jurors found him guilty of three counts of mail fraud for using the mail system to send advice and money for probation fees to a female defendant in his court. He was engaged to the woman at the time.

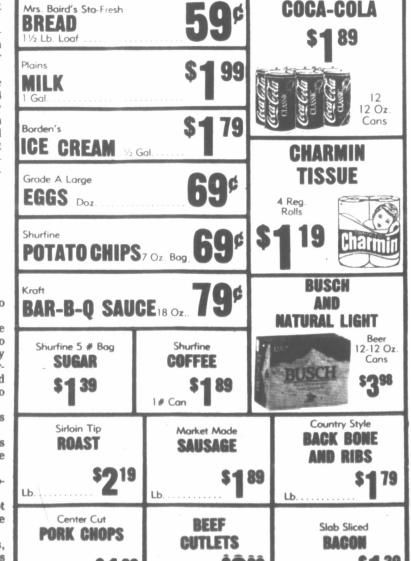

Less than three weeks after his conviction, the Supreme Court voted 7-2 in a Kentucky case to limit the scope of the mail fraud law to include only those who used the mail to cheat another of property or money. In the past, the mail fraud law had also been interpreted to mean any use of the mail to circumvent the law

Hart said there is no question the ruling applies

If the federal judge acquits Cave, prosecutors would be unable to prosecute him again because such action would constitute double jeopardy. But if the convictions are arrested, further prosecution would be possible, Hart said. 'I'm not saying we will (reindict Cave). I'm not saying that we won't," Hart said. "It (voiding the conviction) just gives us that option.

Tim Evans, one of Cave's defense attorneys, said news of the government's response was "sweet ... very sweet. I'm very pleased, but not surprised because ... I don't see how the government can take any other position.

IRS finds other methods of abuse

The Internal Revenue Service is lobbying hard in Congress against the so-called "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights," but it isn't doing its cause much good in public. The horror stories about the tax agency's abuse of power continue unabated.

A few months ago, the agency seized $694 in savings belonging to a California girl whose unemployed father had been unable to pay his back taxes. After stories appeared in newspapers across the country, the IRS returned the money, which the girl had earned doing chores around the house.

Then tax masters placed a lien on three savings accounts containing $173 that belonged to the children of an Arkansas farmer who had been forced to sell his farm and equipment to satisfy debts.

And the agency is auditing a 17-year-old Rockland, Mass., girl who earned $2,800 last year working part time at two clothing stores. Tara Hitchcock had planned to use her $230 tax refund as a dormitory deposit before beginning college, but the IRS says it will hold onto the money until it's finished putting her through the wringer.

Apparently tired of picking on poor children, the revenuers recently introduced a new tax form for rich ones. It will force many to pay taxes at the higher rate applicable to their parents. IRS officials admit they made almost no effort to create a simple form. "It's a very complicated form because it's a very complicated area of tax law," explained an IRS spokesman.

The new rules will apply to what the IRS calls a "limited audience" — estimated at between 600,000 and 800,000 youngsters who earn more than $1,000 annually from investments - but that, in no way, mitigates what is essentially bureaucratic child abuse.

Sponsored by Sens. David Prior, Charles Grassley and Harry Reid, and Rep. Robin Tallon, the so-called "Taxpayer Bill of Rights" probably won't eliminate the need to hire accountants to hack their way through the tax forms. But it would generally shift the burden of proof in civil cases involving the taxpayer to the evenue Service. It also would require that the IRS inform taxpayers of their rights in much the same way that a person arrested on a criminal charge is read his Miranda rights.

The bill would prohibit the IRS from evaluating its employees on the basis of how much money they collect; it would bar the agency from collecting interest and penalties that are assessed because of an error in written advice from the IRS; and it would increase from 10 days to 30 days the notice required before the agency can seize property

It may be too late to help Miss Hitchcock avoid an audit, and it's probably too late to put a damper on the new kiddie tax, but it's never too late to try.

Warning labels make us sick

Leon and Frances Louw, directors of the Free Market Foundation of South Africa, were my house guests during their tour to promote their new book, "After Apartheid: The Solution for South Africa." Leon asked me to take him to a nearby Thrifty Drug Store for dandruff shampoo. Having made the purchase, we returned home to settle down with several glasses of wine. During a lull in our conversation, Leon decided to read the shampoo instructions and out came a hearty Afrikaner laugh. When we asked him about his source of amusement, he read us the shampoo warning: "Not to be taken internally," followed by the query, "Are there Americans that stupid?'

We all had a laugh with my never coming to grips with his question. Later that afternoon, we all piled into our car which was comfortably cool from the placement of an Auto-Shade given to me on Father's Day. An Auto-Shade is a handy device that that goes across the car's windshield to shield the interior from the sun's scorching rays. When I removed the shade, Leon asked if he could see it for a moment. Then he read us the instructions with its warning: "Do not drive with Auto-Shade in place. Remove from windshield before starting ignition.' I was humiliated

Since Leon and Frances departed, I've read other product labels. Our can of lye warned: "Do not swallow." Our bleach reads: "Not to be taken internally." We found similar admonitions on other household products such as pesticides, soaps, and assorted sprays

I had tried to convince Leon and Frances that Americans weren't stupid enough to down shampoo, straight — no chaser — from the bottle, but court liability rulings have gotten so far out of line manufacturers feel it's necessary to supply such warnings. Leon left me with the thought that if somebody was stupid enough to drink shampoo, or drive an auto with the windshield obstructed by a shade, he probably would be too stupid to read the warnings.

Within the next couple of days, I received Imprimus, a monthly letter published by Hillsdale College. The issue was entitled, "The Liability Crisis: It's Not Over Yet." written by James L. Gattuso of the Heritage Foundation.

Gattuso told of a case where a 41-year-old bodybuilder entered a footrace with a refrigerator strapped to his back. During the race a strap came loose, so he sued the refrigerator company and the strapmaker. The jury awarded him $1 million

In another case, a man was injured while a passenger in a friend's car. The court found the driver to be 90 percent at fault because he had been drinking and smoking marijuana, and was speeding at the time of the accident. The County of San Diego was found to be 10 percent at fault for failing to install curve markers on the road. But since the driver of the car had no insurance. the court ruled that the county had to pay the entire $2.5 million in damages.

What helps explain the shampoo and Auto-Shade warnings is the case Gattuso reports where a man was using a match to check the fluid level of his auto battery. Although the battery was embossed with large letters reading EXPLOSIVE GASES" and urging users to keep sparks and flames away, a federal court awarded the plaintiff damages because the manufacturer failed to warn adequately.

Many people think large product liability awards don't cost the public much so long as big companies are paying. But look at today's prices for medical care, concerts, skiing, ice skating, you name it, and you'll see who really pays.

Warning: Everything can

I started smoking when I was 18. I enjoy the habit immensely. It's fun to light a cigarette, to hold it, and then to take a long drag, inhale, then blow out the smoke.

A friend once showed me how to blow smoke rings. I got so good at it I could ring the neck of a Coke bottle from six feet

But smoking will kill you if some nonsmoker doesn't kill you first.

So, I have to give up smoking.

I like to drink. Mainly, I prefer to drink beer and vodka. I like the way they taste and burn my tummy, and I like the way I feel when I drink with my friends There are no answers in the bottom of a cocktail glass," a wise man once said.

True. And drinking will kill you too, or even cause you to kill somebody else if you're fool enough to drive while you're drinking.

have to give up the booze. I like eggs for breakfast. Fried. We used to think eggs were good for us. But now we know if you eat too many eggs they can raise the level of cholesterol in your body and you can die from a

I like bacon with my eggs. I like my bacon cooked crisp in lots of grease. If you eat too much bacon, they tell us, you can get cancer and die from that. Hold the bacon

I like coffee in the morning. Coffee makes cigarettes taste better too. But coffee has caffeine in it, which is not good for you, and what good is coffee if you can't have a cigarette with

No more coffee, either. I used to drink Coca-Cola. A lot of sugar in Coke, which is fattening. I gave up Coke and started drinking Tab which, instead of sugar, had saccharin. Later, we learned if laboratory mice consume saccharin, they tend to get cancer. Then, came NutraSweet. But who knows what that will eventually cause.

To be on the safe side, I've decided to give up soft drinks.

I like Playboy magazine. But if I read it. I might go to hell. I just read Sports Illustrated now, except for the bathing suit issue, of course. Another one of my favorite foods is barbecue pork. But a lady wrote a book saying pork is one of the most dangerous things you can do in regard to your health.

I'm going to miss barbecue pork.

I like sitting on a beach drinking a beer. We've already been over beer, and too much sun can cause skin cancer. I'll just stay in my motel room and drink carrot juice until they find out there is something wrong with that

I enjoy sex. It runs in my family. But if I have sex, I might get AIDS and die.

And we wonder why teen-agers are committing suicide at such an alarming rate.

Caribou coexist with exploration

we heard similar warnings of the caribou's demise if reckless oilmen got their way and built a pipeline south from the North Slope? And didn't the development go forward anyway? And aren't there now more caribou in the area of Prudhoe Bay than before the oilmen arrived?

This quiz is a setup, obviously. The answer to all the above questions is

Not that the central Arctic caribou herd flourished as a result of oil development. Such herds wax and wane in cycles. The recent growth is a coincidence and nothing more. Yet had oil production shocked the caribou to the extent critics predicted, surely the herd would have slipped at least into minimal decline.

Now the Interior Department wants to permit oil exploration on the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, less than 100 miles east of North America's largest petroleum field at Prudhoe Bay. To no one's surprise, environmental groups

gress to bar development altogether. They are wrong for several reasons. The first has been suggested: The arctic oil industry is no longer an infant. Prudhoe Bay production began in 1977, and two adjacent fields have once again object. They'd like Con-since been opened, too. What's more, the Canadians have explored for oil across the border, east of the wildlife refuge, a fact that apparently escaped Ottawa's notice when it joined environmentalists in protesting Interior Department plans.

True, the caribou herd that summers in the refuge is not the one near Prudhoe Bay. It is far larger, too. Yet why that should make a difference defies understanding.

Only 8 percent of the refuge would even be explored - in the winter, incidentally, when the animals have migrated southeast into Canada. If no oil is discovered, the development "risk" expires on its own.

And if oil is found? Then it would be folly not to proceed.

The three North Slope fields alone contribute 20 percent of U.S. domestic oil supply, yet their output already has peaked. Fortunately, according to a 1980 U.S. Geological Survey report, This coastal plain area (of the refuge) lies on the intersection of several major geological trends and has characteristics of both the Prudhoe Bay and Mackenzie Delta petroleum provinces (in nearby Canada)."

No one knows for sure how much oil might be found because exploratory drilling has yet to occur. Yet clearly the coastal plain could conceal a black bonanza: perhaps several billion barrels of oil.

That's not fanciful, either. The three North Slope fields together shelter an estimated 11.2 billion barrels. To put that in perspective, only 13 billion-barrel fields have been found in the entire history of U.S. drilling. Opponents like to note that even the largest discovery would stretch U.S. energy supplies by only a few months. That is true, but it could also be said about every field ever found. It takes thousands of working wells to satisfy the nation's needs, and yet in recent years drilling teams have been barred from ever-growing chunks of public land, onshore and on the continental shelf

Before Congress blocks exploration in the coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, it should ask itself: If not there, then where? People serious about limiting energy imports do not renounce the most attractive drilling frontier their nation has

To the editor:

Three times in the past month, my home has been burglarized.

The first time, they took $77. The second time, they were only able to terrorize me by shining a flashlight in my face. When I awoke, I found them leaning over my bed.

I was a Navy wife for many years and was never afraid to stay alone, but now, in my own home town, I am. It's terrible having to live with your windows nailed shut and your doors locked day and

On July 7, I discovered someone had again tried to enter my home.

Since nothing seems to be getting done about stopping these crimes, I decided I'd at least make it harder for the burglars by lighting the area where they had been entering.

At 8:30 a.m., I called Southwestern Public Service and explained that I needed the light and why.

By ODIE ARAMBULA Laredo Morning Times

LAREDO (AP) — This is a true story. Not even the names have been changed to protect the innocent. I'm calling it "The Fall of The Alamo Part

The story has nothing to do with Santa Anna, William Travis or Juan Nepomucemo Seguin. It doesn't even have anything to do with the Citadel of Texas Independence. It's the story another Alamo, a tree no longer with us.

I like trees. I don't take good care of them, but I like them. They do so much to enhance the looks of home life. So you can understand my feelings about this particular "Alamo."

It once was a potted plant, a gift from another tree lover in the office. Norma Garcia actually favored me with two of them. The first died on me, and a neighbor told me I had drowned it. A second

"Alamito" came bedded in a Folger's coffee can, rising 10 or 12 inches. The transplanting was not my doing. It was either my wife, Mavis, or my green-thumbed father, Matias Sr., who planted the tree right on the spot where another had died on the previous homeowner.

I took a special liking to that little Alamo. I'm not Mr. Green Thumb. I was willing to do anything, follow any gardening instruction, to maintain the tree so that one day I would have this beautiful backyard shade.

As luck and Mother Nature would have it, that beautiful Alamo grew and grew, dropping its leaves in the winter and blooming with life at the first sign of spring. Then, about two or three years ago, I noticed this strange web-like growth eating away at the leaves. Obviously, it was not that serious because the webbings of those nasty webworms would disappear. Henry Fernandez would send his crews to spray and it would go away.

The recent heavy rains, however, brought the webworms. Webworms invaded the entire neighborhood. It was so bad all over town that Terry at Gentry's ran out of a special pesticide. The webworms, nevertheless, did a Santa Anna of a job my priceless Alamo.

The household gardener (Mavis) issued General Order No. 1 to the household lieutenant (the maid): "Cut it down."

Before I could get the troops in order and pull out the literature from Gentry's, YardArt, Buena Yerba and my Dad's gardening book, the mandate was set in motion.

Then one Monday morning, feeling secure that the order would be ignore, I issued General Order No. 2 to the household lieutenant: "Don't you dare touch that tree or I'll hang you from the next tree.

I called on Gentry's and learned everything I wanted to know about webworms, insecticides and spraying devices from Terry. I was ready to destroy every webworm in the neighborhood.

I got home late and went to check on the tree. Forgetting to turn on the light, I stumbled over what I thought was a tree. I said myself, "It's a tree flat on the lawan. What is a tree doing spread out on the lawn?" Then it hit me. I could hear my brain telling me, "She did it! She did it! They cut the tree! They knocked down your Alamo!"

I rushed inside, turned on the outdoor light and I turned to the culprit, the lieutenant. The guilt was written all over her. I felt steam flowing out both ears. I must've scared the living daylights out of

I can remember asking over and over again, "Why? Why?" I kept getting the same answer, 'The seyora told me to do it.'

Well, now I know who calls the shots when it comes to home gardening. Obviously, the home gardener. And I'm not the home gardener; it's Mavis. So, in this instance, her General Order No. 1 carried more weight with the maid than my General Order No. 2.

There was an addendum to General Order No. 1. however. I learned that the gardener in chief wanted the tree cut into the proper sizes for disposal according to city regulations. I felt an attack of greens, blues, reds and yellows. The brain is telling me, "They've knocked down your Alamo and they don't want the thing laying there. They want you to cut into tiny little pieces, tie them into bundles and get rid of them. There's no justice.

Rescuers wear gloves in fear of AIDS

By The Associated Press

Growing numbers of Texas rescue workers are wearing rubber gloves to insulate themselves from AIDS, while hospitals in Houston and Dallas are having problems of their own in battling the deadly disorder.

The survival struggle of Houston's AIDS clinic and a Dallas hospital's limit on how many AIDS patients it will treat with a licensed drug are the latest reverberations the Texas health care community has felt because of the disease

"Handling AIDS patients is without a doubt the number one concern of health people right now," Waco Emergency Medical Services supervisor Jim Moshinskie said. "There's a possibility that the smallest abrasion or cut on the hand can be an avenue for AIDS. It's really scared a lot of people."

Paramedics and emergency medical technicians in Waco and Corpus Christi started wearing protective gloves this month, and sterile gowns, shoe covers and masks were added to Corpus Christi ambulances this

Ernest Rodriguez, assistant director of Corpus Christi's EMS, says paramedics and technicians are required to wear gloves whenever they contact bodily fluids of a pa-

Ambulance workers, he said, will don rubber gloves before starting intravenous medication or using breathing assistance apparatus on a patient.

The Waco police department has begun issuing surgical gloves and germicidal towelettes for officers to use when assisting medical service workers.

"It's so blasted confusing right now with every expert saying something different," says Waco Fire Department training officer Bill Smith. "So what do you do? You just protect yourselves at all times.'

Concern about the disorder has even prompted the American Red Cross to change the way it teaches cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Special masks and dummies are used and a CPR manual from the Red Cross office in Dallas says that AIDS patients should not use CPR training mannequins.

The disease has also caused Parkland Memorial Hospital, the mammoth countysupported facility in Dallas, to ration care for the first time in its history

Because of staffing constraints, Parkland has limited the number of AIDS patients to be treated with AZT, the only drug licensed in the United States for the treatment of the

The hospital now has 55 patients in its AIDS clinic who receive AZT, not a cure but a lifeprolonging drug for some. Once a 60-patient limit is reached, others will be placed on a waiting list, said hospital spokesman Gregory Graze.

Patients with AIDS will have priority over those with AIDS Related Complex, which often is a precursor to AIDS. The policy was developed by a task force of doctors, nurses and other health care workers, he said.

"The number will be limited to 60, because that's as many as the staff can handle, Graze said. "We were certainly concerned about the expense of the drug, but the physical capacity to handle the patients was more of a factor than cost."

Parkland estimates it will spend more than $1 million during this fiscal year to provide

At Houston's Institute for Immunological Disorders, the nation's first AIDS hospital, no limit will be placed on the number of patients it treats with AZT, but the hospital is having problems of a different nature.

Hearing becomes North's platform

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - In what figured to be his hour of trial, Lt. Col. Oliver L. North has turned the Iran-Contra hearings into his own personal platform, touting the cause of the Nicaraguan rebels in a way that has rallied the White House and excited conservatives trying to energize their fund-raising.

And North's ultimate triumph may be yet to come.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, looked grim indeed on Friday when he yielded to Republican pressure and promised North a chance to deliver the pro-Contra speech that he often gave while serving on the National Security Council staff

It is by all accounts a dramatic, emotional pitch, replete with color slides. And the last thing the majority Democrats on the Senate and House committees wanted to do was give North another chance to turn what should have been their show on national television into his own.

But that was only the latest in a string of triumphs in which North, the soulful Marine with the ribbons on his chest, has shown a flair for public relations.

"He has done a better job than the president has in over 51/2 years in explaining our commitment to the Contras," said an admiring Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich. "He's coming across as an extremely honest person just trying to do what is in the interests of the American people ... Congress is on trial," he said.

Rep. Richard Cheney, R-Wyo., addressed North directly when his turn came to ask questions. He congratulated him for his performance, and added, "Congress has been absolutely buried in the favorable public reaction to your

During his week in the witness chair, North waved a thick sheaf of telegrams in front of the television cameras as often as possible. and profusely thanked all who had written him with their sup-

The result was more telegrams - whether orchestrated by conservative groups or not - and a heavier than usual flow of telephone calls that congressional aides said was running strongly in his favor.

North walked out onto the balcony outside the hearing room one day and waved to the hundreds of tourists waiting in line in stifling humidity for a seat in the room. They burst into applause, and the television cameras caught that, too, for the evening

At USA Today, which gauged public sentiment by opening its telephone hotline, managing editor Nancy Monaghan said, "The reaction was overwhelming, not only in the numbers calling ... but also in the almost unanimous support for Col. North. It was the most popular hotline call-in ever published on a news event, by far, in the three years we've had the hotline.

North's charge has rallied the White House as well.

Presidential aides went to great lengths at the beginning of last week to emphasize that President Reagan was too busy to watch the hearings. Reagan himself traveled to Connecticut, where he assured reporters he wasn't merely trying to distract attention from the proceedings.

But as North began winning his battle for American sympathies, the White House announced the president had, after all, squeezed a little time into his schedule to watch the testimony

Others have been in hot seat

WASHINGTON (AP) - Where Oliver North sits, Joseph McCarthy once sat, on trial on grainy television before the bar of public opinion. Nicholas Katzenbach, representing then-President Lyndon Johnson, sat there in a different decade, defending the making of an undeclared war. All the president's men sat there, in the summer of 1973, before the dancing eyebrows of Sen. Sam Ervin.

Every so often, democracy goes through the process. Issues of state invade the American summer. Almost against its will, the country is captivated, and forced to put aside the soap operas to consider the Constitution.

When television joins forces with congressional investigations - in which, columnist Walter Lippmann said, congressmen "go on a wild and feverish manhunt, and do not stop at cannibalism" democracy takes its pulse. The people judge for

On primitive television, in the ancient days of 1950-51, Sen. Estes Kefauver hunted down organized crime and went on to run for his party's presidential nomination in a coonskin cap.

In new hearings in the spring of 1954, Boston lawyer Joseph Welch forever framed Sen, Joseph McCarthy, with a public utterance of indignation: "Until this moment, senator, I think I never really gauged your cruelty or your recklessness. Have you no sense of decency?

A decade later, again on television. Sen. J. William Fulbright, Democratic aristocrat of Arkansas, started the exercise that ultimately changed America's mind about Vietnam, and he did it by raising questions about process.

On television in the sticky summer of 1973, with North Carolina Sen. Sam Ervin presiding, the nation was embroiled by the Watergate hearings.

So far, the 1987 hearings haven't produced their Kefauver or Ervin. There are too many members in this House-Senate sitting, 26 against the one, Oliver North, "this lieutenant colonel" who "salutes smartly" and "charges uphill." The country's tendency to side with the underdog - any underdog — plays to North's favor, and he knows

No matter. The jury has assembled. In this constitutional summer, the process is put to the test, again.

Panel probes Contra links to smuggling

WASHINGTON (AP) - A second congressional committee is quietly tracing the Reagan administration's network of secret support for the Nicaraguan Contras, focusing on allegations that U.S. officials may have condoned drug smuggling, gunrunning and other crimes to raise money for the rebels.

The low-profile, yearlong investigation by the House crime subcommittee was made public last week, as the panel voted following a debate to subpoena three federal prosecutors in Miami.

The committee wants to question the three federal prosecutors about allegations that the nation's top law enforcement official, Attorney General Edwin Meese III, ordered a halt to the investigation of a gunrunning .

But that is only "a small portion" of the potentially explosive territory the committee is exploring, according to Rep. William Hughes, D-N.J., the crime panel's chairman.

Hughes said the subcommittee is looking into the following allegations it has come across in extensive interviews and re-

A convicted drug smuggler's story that he was offered a deal by prosecutors in return for funneling some of his ill-gotten gains to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Evidence that a marijuanaladen C-130 cargo plane was permitted to land at Homestead Air Force Base in southern Florida, with profits from that trip reportedly earmarked for the Con-

Charges that U.S. officials, diplomats and friendly foreign governments allowed crimes to be committed in the Contras' behalf

Administration prepares to escort gulf tankers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration is about to begin escorting Kuwaiti oil tankers through the Persian Gulf despite continued congressional criticism.

The latest attack on the plan came Saturday as Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., said the administration does not have a policy in the gulf, but rather an "approach" that is a 'sabre rattling masquerading as strategic thought.'

"Many American-owned ships will be left unprotected while we marshal our forces in defense of a country that has cynically played our interests off against the Soviets ... now World War II deserter put to rest

DETROIT (AP) — A clutch of as Slovik's remains were laid to

I ask, where is the logic, where is the moral backbone behind that approach?" said Sasser, who delivered the Democratic response to President Reagan's radio address.

The administration, meanwhile, is staying quiet on the exact date and logistical details of the U.S. escort of 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers through the Persian Gulf.

All that is known is that the escorts are supposed to start sometime in mid-July. Iran is considered the nation most likely to interfere with the escort plan, since Kuwait has been a target of Iranian attacks since

Although Kuwait has remained nominally neutral since the Iran-Iraq war began in September 1980, it is assisting Iraq.

To protect its ships from Iranian atack, Kuwait asked the United States to put American flags on 11 of the 22 Kuwaiti tankers and provide them Navy protection. The Reagan administration agreed.

Sasser, a member of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on defense, likened the administration's plan to the 1983 policy of maintaining peace-keeping forces in Beirut, where more than 230 Marines were killed in a terrorist attack.

SYDNEY, Australia - Labor Prime Minister Bob Hawke won an unprecedented third straight term Saturday as Australians rejected opposition offers of tax cuts in favor of Labor's vow to restructure the ailing economy.

Hawke, 57, called the victory in Saturday's national elections a "historic moment." He said his main goal in the next three years would be to pursue his economic program to make Australia more competitive internationally

Hawke, first elected in 1983 and again in 1984, proclaimed victory 30 minutes after Liberal Party leader John Howard conceded defeat.

"I give this pledge at the beginning of the third Labor Hawke government that this will be a government for all Australians — not only for those who voted for us, but also for those who did

He was the first Labor leader to win three consecutive elections in Au-

When counting finished for the night, Labor appeared to be retaining and possibly adding to the 82 seats it held in the previous 148-seat House of Representatives. The Liberals were leading in 42 races and the National Party in 19. Five seats were too close to call.

Labor held a 16-seat majority in the previous Parliament. The Liberais had 45 seats and the Nationals had 21.

Counting was suspended with 63 percent of the votes tallied. No votes will be counted Sunday; final results may be known Monday.

Results in races for the 76-seat Senate will not be known for days. The tiny Australian Democratic Party had held the balance of power in the Senate with six seats and were expected to maintain that. Labor had 34 seats, the Liberals 28, the Nationals five, and three were held by independents.

The effectiveness of Hawke's government depends on the Senate result. The upper house has the power to reject legislation from the lower house

Howard, 47, tried to woo voters by offering to slash the maximum tax rate from 49 percent to 38 percent, saving the typical family $18.50 a week. The six-week campaign was fought purely on tax issues and the economy.

Australia has a $70 billion foreign debt, the world's fourth-highest per capita.

The absence of foreign policy issues prompted one newspaper to call it Australia's most boring election. Hawke ran a campaign along the lines of a U.S. presidential race, barnstorming Australia to defend his government's record of economic management. He said he needed a mandate to finish the job of economic recovery.

Hawke said there would be some changes but no major shakeups in his Cabinet.

Going into the election, he was buoyed by figures showing unemployment at 8 percent, the lowest in 12 months.

Of Australia's 16 million people, 10.4 million were eligible to vote. Voting was compulsory, with non-voters facing a

It was Howard's first contest in a national election as Liberal Party leader. He had hoped to forge a coalition government with the National Party.

He said in conceding defeat that squabbling within the alliance over campaign issues cost him votes.

Howard congratulated Hawke and said he intends to remain opposition leader. Political commentators predicted a contest for the leadership and said likely contenders included former party leader Andrew Peacock and industrialist John Elliot.

Hawke, a former trade union leader, had pledged to serve a full three-year term but called the early election to take advantage of the opposition's dis-

Korean opposition links camp against government rulers

By DAVID THURBER Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea - South Korea's top two opposition leaders vowed Saturday to cooperate to avoid splitting the democratic reform movement and said they probably would join forces in the same political party

Kim Dae-jung and Kim Youngsam also urged the government to release all political prisoners and grant amnesty to all people facing political charges, except Communists.

Officials of the opposition and governing parties said they hoped to finish drafting constitutional revisions by the middle of this week and begin interparty negotiations on the changes soon afterward.

Eighteen Anglican ministers, meanwhile, began a hunger strike to protest the entry of riot police onto the grounds of Seoul's Anglican Cathedral during an anti-government protest Thursday.

The two Kims met amid speculation that each might run for president and divide the opposition. Later, they told reporters Kim Dae-jung probably would join the major opposition Reunification Democratic Party, which Kim Young-sam heads. Kim Dae-jung was banned from politics due to a 1980 sedition conviction, but his civil rights were restored Thursday under a sweeping amnesty granted to 2,335 people.

Kim Dae-jung said he would make a final decision on joining the party after visiting the southern city of Kwngju within the next two weeks. Kim Young-sam said he would be made a permanent adviser to the party.

Kim Young-sam and Kim Daejung split the opposition when both ran for president in 1980.

A third candidate in that campaign, which was broken off by a military crackdown, was Kim Jong-pil. Kim Jong-pil had served as prime minister for a time under President Park Chung-hee, who was assassinated in 1979.

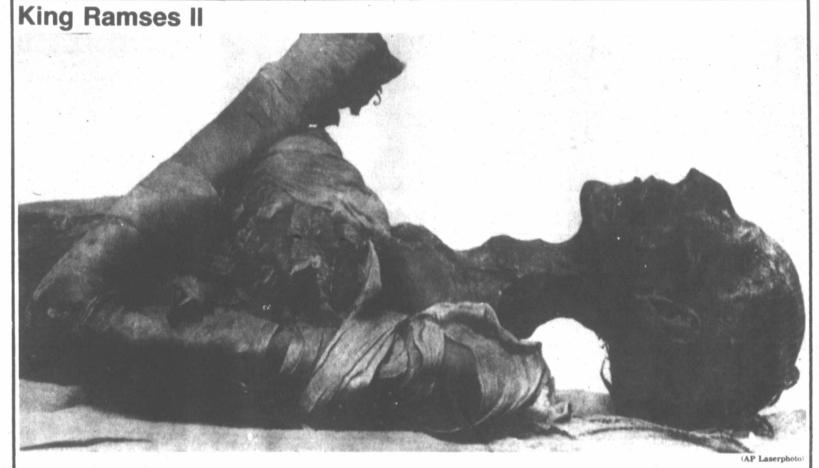

The Korea Herald on Saturday quoted Kim Jong-pil as saying he might run in the coming election if direct presidential elections become a reality

On July 1, following weeks of huge anti-government demonstrations, President Chun Doohwan accepted a wide range of opposition demands, including direct presidential elections. The opposition says the present electoral college system favors the party in power.

Constitutional amendments are needed to implement the changes. Reunification Democratic Party spokesman Kim Tae-ryong said the party would complete its draft amendments by Tuesday.

Last week, the government released 534 people arrested for taking part in anti-government demonstrations or convicted of other politically related charges.

Industry slowly responds to $20 crude

By STEWART TAGGART Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — Even though the price of oil has topped the $20-per-barrel mark, experts disagree over how well America's energy industry is prepared to handle an upturn in drilling and exploration as the economic slump lingers in the nation's oil and gas fields.

'There is no map for where we are and where we are going," says Stephen Larkin, spokesman for the Petroleum Equipment Suppliers Association, an industry trade group. "It's anybody's

Thousands of workers have left the oil industry and even the number of college students studying petroleum engineering has dropped dramatically. Millions of dollars of equipment is idled by lower prices that have made domestic drilling less attractive.

From a 1981 peak of 4,530 active drilling rigs in the United States, the count dropped to a low of 663 in July of 1986, according to the Baker Hughes Rotary Rig Count, a widely followed index of domestic drilling activity.

The count has recovered somewhat, but remains below 900.

If and when drilling activity rises significantly, the industry must replace thousands of laid-off workers and determine whether idled oilfield equipment can be put back to work efficiently, experts say

"I think we have created tremendous problems for ourselves," said John Lollar, president of Transco Exploration Co., a subsidiary of Transco Energy Co.

"I think you are going to hear with increasing frequency stories about shortages," Lollar said, adding particularly severe shortfalls could occur with scientific crews and certain types

Between 1981 and 1986, employment in the oil and gas exploration industries in Texas fell 30.6 percent, from 285,500 to 198,100, according to the Texas Employment Commission.

The dropoff in employment in the oilfield machinery and manufacturing industry was even more severe, registering a 64 percent loss, from 80,700 to 28,900, the commission figures show.

"The professionals who have been laid off have, in many cases, left the industry," said William E. Bradford, senior vice president of Dresser Industries, a leading oil services firm.

'Experience has shown that they are unlikely to come back, even when the market does eventually turn around," Bradford told a U.S. Senate Finance Subcommittee earlier this year.

The industry's predicament apparently hasn't been lost on college

The number of freshmen entering Texas A&M University to major in petroleum engineering dropped from a peak of 600 in 1981 to 50 in the fall of 1986. said Douglas Von Gonten, head of the Department of Petroleum Engineering.

At the University of Texas; total enrollment in the Department of Petroleum Engineering plummeted from 1,112 in 1982-83 to 341 in 1985-86, according to Mark Miller, assistant professor of petroleum engineering.

'Most people think that in a couple of years they'll see a shortage of engineers," Miller said. "The outlook is excellent for someone coming in as a freshman, because there will be so few of them competing for the jobs that are out there.

In addition, many companies in the oil and gas industry have trimmed management ranks through layoffs and retirements, said Lee Hunt, spokesman for the International Association of Drilling Contractors.

'They are in line with today's overhead and operations," said Hunt. "Most management functions are of a size now that is not going to let them sufficiently manage a doubling of activity.

Since the drilling slide began in 1981, millions of dollars of drilling equipment has been idled, according to analysts.

We are starting to see some inventory being taken permanently out of the industry," said Barney White, spokesman for Zapata Corp., an offshore drilling contractor. "A lot of people just aren't putting money into keeping it

Other oilfield equipment has been rendered unusable through increasing age, obsolescence, exposure to the elements and cannibalization to keep other equipment functioning, White said.

Oil rise gives market jitters

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — Wall Street analysts confess to some very mixed feelings these days about the continuing rally in oil prices.

The price of crude oil for August delivery climbed above $21 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange in the past week, more than double last year's low of about $10.

That's plainly a plus for the e... ergy sector of the economy, and for energy stocks, which have staged a strong advance of late. But it's also a source of concern for market-watchers who remember the woes inflicted by surging oil prices in the 1970s "There are some logical and psychological hangups in buying energy stocks here," said John Connolly at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. in a recent commentary on the subject. "If these stocks become really big winners, the implications for the rest of the portfolio are rather poor. 'Most money managers don't believe that inflation is on the way back, so energy stocks are used as a hedge against the unexpected, not as a core position 'A heavy bet on energy is seen as a bet against the overall stock market and a bet against the U.S.

Nevertheless, oil's comeback has brought some bounteous blessings to investors who were willing to take a chance a few months ago in the depressed shares of oil service and drilling stocks. Standard & Poor's index of drilling companies has virtually doubled since the start of 1987.

'We are beginning to see the first signs of recovery in demand for offshore drilling services," observed Robin Shoemaker, an analyst at E.F.

For many years, critical observers argued that Wall Streeters and their customers overestimated the strength and staying power of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

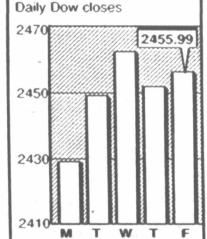

But by the time oil prices were bottoming last year, it appeared to some that those same people were too quick to write OPEC off.

Said Edward Yardeni, economist at Prudential-Bache Securities, "we've been impressed by OPEC's ability to stabilize crude oil prices. For now, we are no longer willing to bet against OPEC, especially when there is so much commotion in the Persian Gulf.

In the past week, whatever inflation worries were weighing down the market were eased by the news that the producer price index of finished goods registered only a modest 0.2 percent in-

Exxon makes drug sweep

HOUSTON (AP) — Eighteen Exxon Co. USA employees face disciplinary action after a mr ssive contraband sweep through four company buildings and a company parking lot, a company official said.

The sweep, using drug-sniffing dogs, resulted in confiscated drugs, weapons, alcohol, outdated prescription medicine, medicine with no prescription and drug paraphernalia, said Exxon spokesman Les Rogers.

More than 1,000 employees were subjected to the search, conducted Thursday at the company's credit card, travel club and risk management offices in Houston. The search took much of the day, and utilized six dogs and private security personnel.

Rogers said the operation was undertaken because the company "had indications there could be a situation" at the buildings, where employees work shifts. He declined to be more specific.

The 18 employees faced disciplinary action after their cases were reviewed, said Rogers, who added he knew of no other building-wide searches conducted in Houston by Exxon.

Exxon employees contacted by The Houston Post commented only anonymously on the search. One woman employee said the sweep embarrassed employees asked to open their cars to be searched, although another said employees were entitled to refuse car searches.

The operation was criticized by civil liberties activists.

'We think this violates a person's privacy," said Bruce Griffiths, lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union in Houston.

Griffiths said Texas court cases have shown that employers may go as far as to fire employees who refuse to open their cars parked on company property for searches. Griffiths said that while he had heard of parking lot drug searches at refineries. he hadn't heard of any precedent to the Exxon action.

"I've never heard of a case where they brought out dogs to search a place of business," he Saddlebronc riding and being shot out of a cannon have at least two things in common — 1. Both occupations can be hazardous to your health; 2. The participants spend a lot of time airborne, which is why both are considered hazardous.

But the human cannonball might consider his specialty a safe business to be in had he been at the the Top O' Texas Rodeo Friday night.

Both Joe Bob Nunez of Gamerco, N.M. and Randy Bourne of Chandler, Ariz. probably felt like they had been shot out...or shot at by a cannon after they were shaken up in the saddlebronc Nunez was tossed over the fence by Blue Star, but not before he stayed on the mount long enough to record a 69 score, giving him second place for the night and third overall. Bourne should receive the "Hard-Luck Wrangler Award" after a frustrating performance. Bourne lost a boot in his first trip out of the chute and gained a re-ride.

But the second time around was even worse. Like Nunez, Bourne was bucked over the fence after the allotted eight seconds and scored a 55.

No new leaders emerged in the saddlebronc riding, but Todd Watkins of Odessa moved into second after scoring a 70 Friday night. Mike Merchant of Crossett, Ark. leads with a 72.

In the bareback brone riding, Greg Armstrong of Payson, Ariz. moved into a third-place tie with Stephenville's Chris Guay after a 75 Friday night. Snyder's Mike Carrillo leads the event with a 78 while Phil Smith of Magnolia, Ark. is second at 77.

Pampa's Terry Mullins escaped serious injury in the bareback bronc event when his foot caught in the stirrup and he was thrown into the fence after a wild ride on Spuds McKenzie.

Betty Roper of Oktaha, Okla. maintained her lead in girls' barrel racing with a 17.62 Thursday, but Lana Merrick of Cheyenne, Okla. climbed into second with a 17.71 Friday night. Three cowgirls, besides Merrick, broke the 18-second barrier in close competition Friday night. Tamara Hammons of Canyon had a 17.78 to take third in the overall standings while Mary Beth Durfey of Logan, Oklahoma and Martha Josey of Karnack, Tex. both had Gary Green was timed at 5.5 to win the steer wrestling Friday night. The Lewisville cowboy is ranked sixth in that event by the Professional Rodeo Cowbovs Association.

C.J. Urbanek of Stephenville was second (6.2) and Marty Musil of Guthrie, Okla. was third (6.4).

Tirk Sweatt of Texola, Okla. edged out Jeff Sechrist of Apache, Okla. to win the calf roping event Friday night. Sweatt was timed at 11.3, followed by Sechrist's 11.6. Green was third Keith Adams of Odessa emerged as the new leader in the bull riding after a 77 Friday night. Adams unseated Bobby Delvecchio, who had a 72 in Thursday's opening-night performance. In Friday night's action, Kirk Allmon of Fort Worth had a 75 for second place and Jon Hancen of Dodge City, Kans. was third with a 63 as seven of the eleven entries were bucked off.

In Ranch Branding, the only amateur event of the night, the team of Randy Martin, Monty O'Neal, Rodney Wren and Darren Russell took the overall lead with a time of 31 seconds. The team of Mac Dorsey, Joe Couts, Jimmy Baggett and J.R. Baggett were right behind at 32. The Rocking Chair Ranch Team of Bill Arrington was third at 43.

Cook maintains lead in Anheuser-Busch

By JOE MACENKA

Associated Press Writer WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — John Cook rolled in a 12-foot parsaving putt on the 18th hole to preserve a one-shot lead over Bobby Clampett after Saturday's third round of the $612,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

"It was nice to end it that way," said Cook, a two-time winner on the PGA tour whose lastvictory came at the 1983 Canadian Open.

Cook, who began the day at 9under, one stroke behind Tim Simpson, shot a 5-under-par 66. Coupled with his earlier scores of 66 and 67, Cook was at 14-underpar 199 going into Sunday's final round on the 6,776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course.

Clampett, who opened with a 69 and a 66, shot a 65 Saturday and was at 13-under 200.

Simpson, Mark McCumber and Scott Hoch, were another shot back, followed by Tom Sieckmann and Vance Heafner at 202.

Cook, 29, of Rancho Mirage, Calif., put his approach on the par-4 18th into a sand trap on the left of the green before chipping out and saving par.

It was the only real trouble Cook was in all day on the winding layout along the James River, where players sweltered in hot, humid conditions, with temperatures in the mid-90s, for the third

Sports editor's brainstorm still flourishes

THE SUMMER OF 1933 was a big one because it included a trip to The Century of Progress, the first year of the two-year run of the Chicago World's Fair. The Amos and Andy Skyride, the Sinclair dinosaurs, Sally Rand (and her fans, feathered and twolegged) and the FIRST All-Star Baseball Game.

That game was the dream of legendary Chicago Tribune sports editor Arch Ward, who felt the World's Fair demanded something above and beyond from the world of sport, also. So, using the power of his daily sports column "In the Wake of the News," he started talking about it to the public, while behind the scenes he worked with baseball's dictatorial and greatest-ever commissioner, Kenesaw Mountain Landis. While the owners weren't particularily enamoured with the idea of stopping play for three days in the middle of their season to play a single exhibition game, Landis and the two league presidents prevailed, and the game was on.

Since it was the Tribune's brainstorm, that widely circulated publication (which quite justifiably calls itself the World's Greatest Newspaper, thus giving birth to the call letters for it's offspring radio and television stations, WGN) was the clearing house for voting on the teams. Cub fan that I was, I anxiously awaited the mid-morning delivery by the mailman to see how many of my heroes were going to make the starting lineup. Obviously each and every one of them should have (a fact nearly accomplished by the good burghers of Cincinnati a couple of decades later), but the fans didn't quite see it that way. I don't remember how many votes I cast for Lon, Billy, Gabby, Charlie, et al, but LBJ would have been

League to a 4-2 victory, getting the event off to an auspicious imately 500,000 votes were cast, and 346,291 were earned by slugging hometown ChiSox outfield hero, Al Simmons. The NLs home run basher, Chuck Klein was second with 342,283. Ruth got 320,518. The voting was naturally dominated by Chicago fandom, but was not a popularity contest. It was a sincere effort to choose the strongest teams that could be recruited from the two major leagues to try to settle the longstanding argument of which league was strongest. And you must remember that in that day

there were two teams in New York (plus Brooklyn), Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and St. Louis, making for some fantastic rivalries and barroom brawls.

Some of my Cubs made it. Lon Warneke topped Carl Hubbell in the battle for the pitching assignment, and it was also the closest vote tally. Gabby Hartnett ran away with the catching assignment, completing the starting compliment of Wrigley fielders. Other NL starters were Bill Terry at first, Frankie Frisch at second, Pie Traynor at third, Dick Bartell at shortstop, and an outfield of Klein, Paul Waner and Lefty O'Doul. The American went with Bill Dickey catching, Lou Gehrig at first, Charley Gehringer at second, Jimmy Dykes at third, Joe Cronin at short, and Ruth, Simmons and Earl Averill in the outfield. Lefty

Gomez was the starting pitcher. You had to be a baseball fan at that time to truly understand how great this first game was!! It was 2:05 of absolute tension and thrills as for the first time ever. the greatest athletes of a sport were playing together on the same field, in the same game. And as the intervening years have passed, it was actually Hall of Famers against Hall of Famers. There will never be another to match that moment in baseball

But Arch Ward wasn't done. When the 1933 Century of Progress, coming at the end of the Great Depression, proved to be the unbelievable success that it was, Chicago's city fathers decided to hold it over for a second year. After all, Al Capone's boys were doing well, as was Big John Dillinger. So Ward had to come up with another idea.

Presto!! The All-Star Football Game. It became reality on August 31, 1934...A story for another

Go National League!!

Pampa 13-15 All-Stars

The Pampa All-Stars will participate in the District 13-15 year-old Babe Ruth Tournament Tuesday through Saturday at Optimist Park. Team members are (front, 1-r) Donnie Medley, Brandon Wells, Jade Brown, Erwin Frye, Jessie Hernandez, Monte Waters and Coach Nelson Medley; (back row, l-r) Manager Derrick Eldridge, Zack Thomas, Phillip Sexton, Chuck Fails, Joe Yurich, Brent Skaggs, Buddy Plunk and Coach Joe Mechelay. Not pictured is Ryan Erwin. Pampa's first game is at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday night against the Top of Texas. The finals will be played at 6 p.m. Saturday, July 18.

Managers' vote decides players

With the completion of the 1987 Bambino League season, commissioners of both the American and National Leagues have released their All-Star teams. Players were voted on by each of the managers in the two leagues.

Listed below are the players selected, and the team he played for this year:

American League Jason Brantley, Rotary . John Donnally, Deans Lamont Nickleberry, Dyers Eddie Hernandez, Keys Brandon Brashears, Deans Heath Stevens, Citizens Clarence Reed, Dyers Mark Woelfle, Keys Sabas Armendarez, Dunlap Ross Johnson, Dyers Matthew Clark, Dyers Dave Davis, Rotary Garrett Scribner, Rotary Micah Brooks, Dyers

AL Alternates Jackie Gross, Keys Jason Downs, Deans Shawn Hays, Dyers

Bambino All-Star teams selected National League Chris Poole, Dunlap Kurt West, Cabot Tarin Peet, Cabot Brad Smillie, Glo-Valve Jeff Tidwell, Glo-Valve Will Winborne, O.C.A.W Dennis Graham, Dixie Justin Cornleson, Moose Andy Elsheimer, Dunlap Gregg Moore, O.C.A.W. John Graves, Dunlap

> Bryan Sims, Celanese (The NL did not select alternates).

Chris Gilbert, O.C.A.W

Todd Lockwood, Duncan

Leading the AL was Dyers with six players chosen. They were followed by Rotary (4), Keys (3), Deans (3), Citizens and Dunlap (1).

In the NL, Dunlap led with four players chosen. They were followed by O.C.A.W. (3), Glo-Valve and Cabot (2). Dixie, Celanese, Duncan and Moose each had one player selected.

The AL and NL All-Stars, along with the Tulia All-Stars, will meet in a round-robin tournament Monday, July 20 at the Pampa Optimist Field. The winner of the tourney will be designated Texas West District Bambino Champion.

The winner of the Pampa-hosted tourney will advance to the Regional Tournament in Plainview, which will begin Aug. 1. The winner of the Plainview tourney will compete in the Bambino World Series at Oakland, Calif., Aug. 15-22.

Revolving door life of a coach

Coaching merry-go-round

By JIMMY PATTERSON Sports Writer

The life of a high school coach is oftentimes transitory in nature. Unpack your bags, coach a year, pack your bags, move, unpack, coach a year. "Musical coaching chairs" or "The coaching merry-go-round," it could be called.

Changes in this profession go on and on and coaching is obviously not the most sturdy of environments in which to work or raise a family.

At schools in The Pampa News circulation area, no less than 10 coaching changes have been made this spring and summer alone

The first move came earlier this year when McLean basketball coach Jack Brewster opted not to return to the school system. Instead, Brewster chose to pursue a job in his home state of Oklahoma

Later in the spring, McLean hired George Watson to head up the school's football and track programs

One of the more recent changes was in Miami, where track coach and school principal Jerry Boyd accepted a job at Grapeland, closer to his adopted home town of Palestine

Health problems also played a part in Boyd's decision to make the move.

Reasons given by coaches coming and going are as numerous as coaching strategies themselves.

New Lefors football coach Johnny Crim said it was "just time for a change.'

In Frank Belcher's case, it was merely a matter of career advancement, as he jumped from 1-A Groom to 4-A Hereford.

Belcher's successor at Groom Eric Erwin, who's most recent stint was in Kress, cited "serious disagreements" for his not returning to that system.

Brent Fountain apparently had no choice in the matter, as indications were that his contract would not have been renewed for the coming school year.

Ex-Canadian basketball coach Greg Nichols wanted to return to his home state of Oklahoma, where he will coach basketball at

For White Deer's Susan Coffey, the opening for a junior high girls' basketball head job will be her first coaching stint since graduating from Southwestern Oklahoma State University just last

First-year Pampa Harvester coach Dennis Cavalier, who led a highly successful Chickasha, Okla. football team for six years, said a new challenge led him to make the move to the Panhandle.

There will, of course, be more coaching changes in years to come, and quite possibly, quite a few more following the completion of the upcoming school year.

As one coach put it when asked to comment on all the recent changes: "This is a slow year."

The following coaching changes have been made at Iradale ISD. schools in The Pampa News circulation area since January

Canadian - Boys basketball coach Greg Nichols left the school in June to return to Coalgate, Okla. School officials are still searching for his replacement. Groom - Girls basketball and track coach Frank Belcher accepted a similar position at Hereford High School in May. Belcher jumped from 1-A to 4-A coaching and will also be closer to his home town of Hereford.

His replacement, named shortly before Belcher's leaving, is Eric Erwin. Erwin made a lateral coaching move, coming to Groom from 1-A Kress.

Lefors - On March 17, Brent Fountain voluntarily turned in his resignation after it was noted he would not be welcomed back. Fountain looked for a job until just two weeks ago, when he finally latched on to a junior high coaching job in Ballinger.

Fountain's football replacement is Johnny Crim who made a lateral move from the Lefors also hired Richard Moore, who will coach boys basketball. Moore's most recent job was in Beaver, Okla.

McLean - Jack Brewster, the school's basketball coach, decided not to return for another year and instead is hunting for a job in Oklahoma. George Watson was brought in to head up the football program after former coach Bill Phillips chose not to return. Miami — Principal and head track and field coach Jerry Boyd last month accepted a job in the Grapeland ISD. He will serve strictly as principal for the district's prekindergarten-thru-fifth grade students. Miami officials will not hire anyone to replace Boyd. Track and field responsibilities will be spread out amongst the school's present White Deer - Susan Coffey, wife of Miami coach Brad Coffey, will commute 75 miles each day to take over the girl's junior high basketball program. Coffey's position is one recently provided for by the

Padres' Kruk likes majors

Kruk tries to maintain the aura of major league baseball in the clubhouse, but one-on-one the San Diego Padres first baseman admits he's just a down-home West Virginian enjoying life in the big leagues.

"How do you get from Keyser to San Diego? I have no idea," Kruk saft at the start of the Padres' three-game weekend set against Pittsburgh. "I know you have to go a long way.

The Charleston, W.Va., native graduated from Keyser High School and attended Allegany Community College in Cumberland, Md., 20 miles down the Potomac River from home. After Kruk batted .360 in his final college season, the Padres drafted him and sent him to minor league clubs in Walla Walla, Wash.; Reno, Nev.; Beaumont, Texas; and Las Vegas.

"It was all kind of fun," Kruk said. "When you're from where I'm from, everything is kind of exciting.

Entering Saturday's game at Pittsburgh, Kruk needed just one more at-bat to qualify among the PITTSBURGH (AP) - John National League's leading hitters. In 209 plate appearances this year, Kruk has 70 hits, including 10 home runs, for a .335 average. That would be good for fourth in batting entering the All-Star break.

"He's had a big part in all of our wins," said Padres manager Larry Bowa, whose team was 29-57 after the first game of the Pittsburgh series.

"There's no question the man can hit," said teammate Tony Gwynn, who is leading the National League in batting at .373. "I think that because of the success I've had, some of the others on the team haven't received any publicity.

If Kruk does have a problem, it's left-handed pitchers, a twisted knee and a tendency to hack away at anything that's close to the plate. Bowa has been pulling Kruk in favor of Carmelo Martinez when certain lefthanders are pitching, and Kruk twisted a knee in Montreal that eventually sidelined him for six games last month.

Harris hurls Rangers past Cleveland 10-4

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Texas Rangers right-hander Greg Harris discovered in time that it takes more than an extra day of rest to turn a breaking ball pitcher into a flamethrower.

"I hadn't pitched in six days and I really felt strong when I went out for the first inning," Harris said after pitching the Rangers to a 10-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians Friday night. "I thought I could blow my fastball past the hitters, but I didn't have any control and I got into

Harris issued back-to-back one-out walks before pitching coach Tom House paid a visit to the mound

'Tom reminded me that I'm a breaking ball pitcher." said Harris, 3-8, who broke a personal four-game losing streak. "He told me to relax and let it happen naturally.

I reverted to my curveball and got out of the jam and everything fell into place after that. I didn't walk another batter the rest of the way."

His teammates, meanwhile, backed him with a 13-hit attack against veteran knuckleballer Phil Niekro and two relievers.

Niekro, 6-9, lasted only five innings and was touched for seven runs on nine hits.

"Phil was up high with his pitches all night," said Cleveland manager Pat Corrales.

Ruben Sierra led the Ranger offense with two doubles, a triple, three RBI and three runs scored. In his last four games, the Rangers right fielder has four doubles, a triple and two home runs.

'Ruben is just playing the way he's capable of playing," said Rangers manager Bobby Valentine. "He's taking the pitch and driving it. It's the sign of a good Sierra's RBI triple and Pete O'Brien's sacrifice fly gave the Rangers a 2-0 lead in the first.

In the third, Sierra ignited a four-run rally with a one-out double while O'Brien and Mike Stanley had RBI singles and Oddibe McDowell added a two-run triple. We gave Harris the lead early and he used it to his advantage,' said O'Brien. After the Indi run off Harris, on two doubles in the fourth, the Rangers chased Niekro and roughed up reliever Mark Huismann for four more runs in the sixth.

Harris allowed four hits, walked two and struck out three in matching his longest stint of the season.

"He's really built up his endurance." Valentine said of Harris

Dudek hopeful for shot as Broncos' starter

By MIKE RECHT Associated Press Writer

PLYMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — Joe Dudek has an AFC championship ring, which is a remarkable souvenir for someone who never played a down last season for the Denver Broncos.

Dudek spent most of his rookie year playing the role of an opposing running back in practice, and getting a chance to prove he belonged. He broke loose for some good runs, but most important, he was able to improve his blocking and pass catching, his two major weaknesses coming out of Plymouto State, where he seldom did either. Now. Dudek feels like a veteran, and at a stronger, quicker 194 pounds, he thinks he has a legitimate chance to make the Broncos as one of five or six running backs when camp opens this month.

"I feel I'm ready for a job," Dudek said. Dudek probably was the most famous rookie free agent in the NFL after breaking the NCAA and collegiate touchdown records of Walter Payton and Wilbert Montgomery

He also wound up on the cover of Sports Illustrated, the magazine's darkhorse choice for the Heisman Trophy.

The story made him a kind of folk hero when he went to camp, though he took some kidding for it. But he said it did something for him.

"The story planted in my head the idea that I could play (in the NFL). It really helped me. Instead of going in as a small running back from a small school, everybody knew me. It made me feel I belonged. that I wasn't just another number. The fans really rooted for me and helped me get through the long days. The Denver fans even knew me on injured reserve. It was a good feeling.

He carried the ball three times in three pre-season games before he injured his shoulder in the third game and went on injured reserve.

"If it wasn't for the injury, they probably would have let me go," he said. Dudek did play a role in Denver's victory over the Cleveland Browns in the AFC championship game. He was the guy on the sidelines with the clipboard recording the plays the Broncos decided to run — and having the time of his

"It was strange being part of it," Dudek

At the Super Bowl, he was in the stands

as a spectator

'Not bad for a first year," Dudek said. "I've seen it all, all that the NFL has to

This year, he hopes to do a little more.

Baseball races get exciting after All-Star break

The baseball season reaches its half-way point Tuesday when stars from throughout the two leagues meet each other in the 58th All-Star game in Oakland. Now is when baseball really starts getting interesting. Every team has established itself as either a winner or loser. This year there have been some surprises and other assorted interesting occurrences: ☐ The New York Mets. In a controversial swamp and a confounding slump, the Mets are ten games behind first place St. Louis. Ron Darling can't win to save his soul; Darryl Strawberry and manager Dave Johnson can't get along, period; Dwight Gooden, of course, had his bout with drugs, but appears to have licked it. The Mets are simply not living up to their defending champion status.

☐ The St. Louis Cardinals. A team with little pitching has succeeded in being baseball's best team at the break. Why? Manager Whitey Herzog, that's why. Of course it helps when you have standouts like Jack Clark and

In My Corner

By Jimmy Patterson

Ozzie Smith. The Cards are a good pick to be in the World Series.

☐ The Chicago Cubs and Montreal Expos. Both are in an unexpected but quite intriguing race for second best in the NL East. Andre Dawson can do it all for Chicago and Montreal all of a sudden has a decent pitching

☐ The Baltimore Orioles ands Cleveland Indians. The two biggest disappointments in baseball. The Orioles, though, were halfway expected to be pitiful again as they have lined their roster with money-hungry, washed-up free agents who couldn't win under Earl Weaver and still can't under Cal. Sr. The Indians, meanwhile, were picked by many to grab the East Division crown, but currently have the worst record in the AL. The Texas Rangers. Again, a lot of "experts" picked the Rangers to win the west. They are not going to. But, should this really surprise anyone?

With half the season gone, how about a few awards. Let's call them the First

Annual Mid-season JayPees, for lack of anything better. The "Oliver North Great American Hero'' Award — To Oakland Athletic rookie first baseman Mark McGwire, who, with 31 homers by the break, has a legitimate chance to break Roger Maris' single season home run mark The "Oh! Yes, I'm The Great Pretender" Award - To the Milwaukee Brewers. After opening the season with 13 straight victories, the Brewers captured everyone's heart - even Howard Cosell's. Then they lost 11 straight, and were just another .500 team, which is what they still

The "Don't Mess With Texas" Award — To the Minnesota Twins. Leading the division two weeks ago, they visited Arlington Stadium for a four-game weekend series. The Twins lost all four.

The "Gary Hart 'Out Through The Back Door'" Award - To the Cleveland Indians, who have shown just because a team has a lineup loaded with talent, that doesn't necessarily make them any good.

The "Whatever Happened To Old Fashioned Love" Award -To Boston's Rodger Clemens. Last year, he had adoring fans in droves and a lot of respect, not to mention the Cy Young and MVP Awards. This year, he's just another hum-drum, high-paid, spoiled pitcher, who boasts an astounding 7-6 record.

The "Back on My Feet Again" Award - To Kansas City's Bret Saberhagen. After having a lackluster year in '86, Saberhagen is undoubtedly baseball's premier pitcher at 14-3.

Finally, "The Player With the Most Potential to be the Most Overrated in the History of Baseball" Award — To Cincinnati Reds Eric Davis. This is not to say he isn't good. He is, so far. Its just that he has yet to play a full season and already articles have been written on him saying he just may be the best player in the history of the game. Boy, I'll tell you. What are we going to do with all these overzealous sports writers?

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - The bad dreams are over.

Lately, Allen McCord has been able to sleep peacefully for the first time since he became head football coach and athletic coordinator at tradition-laden Ray High School 20 years ago.

No longer does the ghost of Bill Stages, the legendary coach of the Corpus Christi Ray Texans, haunt this peaceful man who made his trek down from Iowa to South Texas to find his niche in life coaching

"It was the strangest thing," McCord said, explaining the recurring dream that plagued his life. "Bill Stages would show up at our football practice and just start coaching the team with me standing there. He'd just take over.'

Now, perhaps, it will be McCord's spirit and his contributions to the school that others will emu-

McCord, who just retired after almost 40 years as a Corpus Christi coach, leaves Ray satisfied he has contributed his part to Texans' lore. He coached in Corpus Christi longer than anybody else — 40 years with the system, including 30 at Ray High School, the last 20 as head man.

I came to this school trying to live up to the traditions and the spirit which Bill Stages established here and which the athletes and students at this high school have so richly developed,' McCord said.

"They are rich and fine traditions. Only one who has been a part of them, can appreciate them. When students come back, as so many have, to visit with us, they see we still have those traditions. They appreciate it.'

It was Stages who gave Ray its distinctive peppermint-striped uniforms. Then McCord, in 1976, designed the Texans logo that is now recognized as a symbol for the school.

That's my contribution to the school," said McCord, also an artist.

The lean, mean Texan, ready for action with his Rick O'Shay sway, spaghetti-western black hat, red vest and bandana and two loaded six-guns strapped to his waist, is emblazoned on the center of the Ray Gym floor.

McCord's Texan has become a part of everday life at Ray and can be seen on T-shirts, pennants, megaphones, letter jackets and other products associated with the high school.

"When I designed it, I had it registered, but I didn't copyright it," McCord said. "I wanted it to be used by anyone willing to promote Ray High School. My goal was to promote this school.'

McCord also kept the Ray spirit alive by keeping its winning tradition going, helping make the Corpus Christi school one of the winningest football programs in the state since it opened in 1950.

"There wasn't any difficulty at all taking over at Ray. You had the tradition here," said McCord, who took over for Dan Purcell in 1968. Purcell, who replaced Stages in 1965, resigned to run a summer youth camp in Pennsylvania. McCord became Ray's third coach and remained so for the next two

'That' really something to be proud of," McCord said. "Not many high schools can brag of having just three head coaches during a period of nearly

In 19 years as head football coach at Ray, he won 104 games, lost 85 and tied seven while playing even with arch-rival Miller - winning nine, losing nine and tying one. During his tenure, Ray won or shared five district titles.

"Leaving Ray is a heartbreak that only one who has given up something he has loved can understand," McCord said.

For McCord, it was love at first sight. When he witnessed Ray High School football in action under the guidance of Stages, he knew he wanted to become a part of that spirit, he said.

'When Bill Stages first came to Ray High School, I was assigned by Miller coaches to scout Ray," said McCord, who coached at North Side Junior High and Miller High School before joining the Ray staff in 1958.

"I catalogued what they did, so I was in admiration of all the things they did.'

Stages directed Ray to a 118-47-3 record during his 15 seasons with the Texans. He won the state championship in 1959 and sent seven other teams to the state playoffs, including an appearance in the 1956 state championship game. McCord also was at Ray during the state championship year.

'As it has been expressed so many times, Ray High School was the 'glamour team,'" McCord said of the Stages' era, seasons he likes to refer to as "The Glory Years" for the high school.

"They wore the red shoes. They had this platoon of special teams. They had the glamorous uniforms, those peppermint-striped shoulder pads. His teams were the first to wear a face mask. They wore low quarters in shoes. Anybody who had any yearnings at all would want to be a part of it. I couldn't wait."

For McCord, living up to Stages' accomplishments was a life-and-death matter. To let what Stages had built at Ray High School go by the wayside would have been a cardinal sin.

Besides living up to Ray traditions, McCord also left his mark on the football field. He has fond

"It's easy to remember the teams who won a championship," McCord said. "But sometimes those aren't the teams which you enjoy the most.'

Among his most memorable years was 1970 when he won his first district championship at

On July 4th, the Oklahoma City soccer program was treated to a fireworks display, courtesy of the Pampa Cougars.

The Cougars, competing in the first Summerfield Indoor Soccer Tournament, defeated the Chickasha Strickers 4-1 to win the championship. The Cougars lost to Chickasha 3-2 in the tournament opener, but came back through the loser's bracket to claim the championship trophy.

Sparked by superb defensive play by backs Eric Ritchey, Matt Utzman, rovers Scotty Johnson and Jason Warren, and goalie Clint Cox, the Cougars surrendered only four goals in the next four games of the loser's bracket. The Cougars scored 10 goals in the four-game stretch.

In the championship game, the Cougars gained a 2-0 halftime lead and continued the onslaught in the second half. Jeff Brown, Kyle Johnson, Eric Parker, Todd Finney, Cameron Black and Billy Thomas led the Cougars' charge.

Going into the tournament, the Cougars were thought to be from Tampa, said Coach Terry Bixler.

'We had only been picked to finish third by the tournament promoters," Bixler said. "They were all impressed with this little team from Texas. And they will all remember that it is Pampa, not Tampa.

Teams from Oklahoma City, Yukon and Chickasha were entered in the tournament.

The Cougars had earlier won an invitational tournament and the indoor regular-season title at Amarillo.

Jackson wants to play both baseball, football

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Bo Jackson, the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner who quit football to play baseball for the Kansas City Royals, says he now wants to play both sports and hopes to join the NFL's Los Angeles Raiders this season.

Jackson has told the Royals he wants to play for the Raiders in the fall and then return to Kansas City next spring, according to published reports. But Jackson, interviewed Friday night following Kansas City's 7-0 loss at Toronto, said he does not want to pursue football if it means sacrificing baseball. GOODFYEAR

Jackson emptied his locker after being taken out in the seventh inning Friday night and met later with Royals co-owner Avron Fogelman to discuss the speculation that he would play football.

"Bo is indeed thinking seriously regarding playing half the football season, between the end of the baseball season and the start of spring training," Fogelman said.

Jackson's contract with the Royals specifies that he play only baseball.

But Fogelman said the legal ramifications of the contract have yet to be addressed.

Texas surgeons successful with brain transplant

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — In the first operation of its kind in the Southwest, a surgical team transplanted a 57-year-old man's adrenal gland tissue into his brain in hopes of easing a debilitating nerve disorder.

"It's a kind of exciting procedure." said University of Texas Health Science Center team leader Dr. Jim Story. "It's a procedure designed to help a very devastating disease - Parkinson's

The two-hour operation was performed on an unidentified patient Thursday at Medical Center Hospital, where he remained in satisfactory condition, Story said Friday.

The operation was successful, but whether it will relieve symptoms will not be known for six days to two weeks, Story said.

The brain and adrenal glands in most people produce a chemical called dopamine that acts like a telephone line allowing the brain to tell the muscles what to

Those 1.5 million Americans that communication, resulting in arm and leg tremors, rigid muscles, slowed speech and difficulty or inability to move.

Physicians are hoping the adrenal gland implant will provide normal dopamine flow that alleviates Parkinson's disease symptoms.

'The patient has had Parkinson's disease for at least five years and is totally incapacitated," Story said. "Drugs usually given to Parkinson's patients no longer had any long-term

"Although the patient suffers from extreme effects of the disease, his intellect and mental status are good."

The patient was medically retired from Kelly Air Force base because of the disease and is the father of three grown children.

"In essence, he was frozen to his chair," Story said. "He was a captive in his own body."

Two surgical teams operated simultaneously. One removed

They sliced five minute pieces from the adrenal gland's center and inserted them into the area of the brain that controls the body's motor system.

Patients operated on previously have had a noticeable reduction in symptoms, Story said, but it still is not understood why

"It might be that with the adrenal implant, the tissue releases sufficient dopamine to relieve Parkinson's symptoms," he said, "or the presence of the tissue might possibly act as a stimulant to existing brain cells to prowith Parkinson's disease lose the left adrenal gland from just duce dopamine as they once did.'

State suspends litter program after gays ask to participate

BRYAN (AP) - The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation suspended the popular Adopt-a-Highway anti-litter program statewide after an Austin gay group asked to par-

The Texas Highway Commission has ordered a review of the program, and the suspension may be lifted when the commission meets July 29.

A spokesman for the department said the suspension was invoked after the group, which he identified as the Gay-Lesbian Political Caucus, applied to adopt a section of highway in the Austin

'That brought about some analysis as to what would be the effect on the program on the department," said John Cagle, departmental public affairs officer. "We looked at that and decided we could not deny them access to the program."

But Mark Ball, public affairs officer for District 14, which includes Austin, told the Bryan-College Station Eagle the caucus' request to adopt a highway was suspended, along with all new and renewal applications.

Ball said the group's request was referred to state headquarters because the group "had the word 'political' in its name," rather than because of the words "gay" and "lesbian."

The Adopt-a-Highway program began in the Tyler area about a year ago. It has been one of the most successful citizen participation programs ever employed by the highway department, and has been credited with a major reduction in the state's costs for cleaning up its highways.

Civic groups adopt a stretch of highway and maintain it. A sign along the highway displays the name of the group responsible for its care.

Ball said the department cannot be involved in political issues. He said the department had, for example, previously reacted unfavorably to a request of a state representative to adopt several sections of highway.

Nelda Riley of District 17 said the program was suspended June 12.

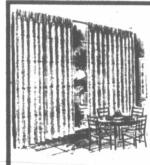

Cagle said the commission is scheduled to meet July 29-30, and he expects the review to be completed at that time.

Groom adopts telephone tax

GROOM - Beginning Jan. 1, General Telephone Co. bills in Groom will include a 1-cent sales tax, following action by the City Council.

City Secretary Pat Ashford said council members voted unanimously last week to include General Telephone under the city's 1-cent sales

Unlike in Pampa, where the phone tax proposal met with deep-seated opposition, Ashford said the Groom amendment passed without a hitch.

Telecommunication services had been exempt from municipal sales taxes under 1985 state legislation. They continued to be subject to the state

However, the legislation allows municipalities to repeal the exemption after Oct. 1 by submitting an ordinance to the state comptroller's office.

In other business, council took no action on prop osals by Groom Ambulance Service President Mark Bivens to hire an emergency medical coordinator for the community and have the city pay the ambulance service's insurance.

Bivens told council members that the coordinator would cost $7,200 a year. In separate proposals. he asked the city to pay either all of the amount or $5,500 toward the total

He also asked the city to pay $6,000 for the insur-

Ashford said council probably will vote on the proposals at its Aug. 4 meeting.

The council also reviewed the city budget but, tabled action on it until the August meeting.

Mobeetie ISD loses $9 million in valuation

MOBEETIE - School Superintendent David Malone said he has no estimate of what next year's tax rate might be, but an estimated loss of $9 million in taxable property valuation might give some indication School board members reviewed a preliminary budget last week and set dates for two board budget workshops and a public

The workshops are planned for July 21 and 28, and the budget hearing is scheduled for Aug. 31.

"We don't have any figures yet but an early estimate is that we're going to lose about $9 million in value," Malone said.

The school district's current tax rate is $1.15 per $100 valuation, meaning that a person with property valued at $50,000 would pay $575 in school taxes. In other action, the board accepted a proposal from GTE to revamp the school telephone sys tem at a cost of $1,800.

The board also hired Phyllis Amerson to teach second grade.

Some of the center's fun is "in the cards." Popular card games are bridge and pitch, a game similar to hearts.

By MARILYN POWERS Lifestyles Editor

"Nutrition and recreation" are the lifeblood of the Pampa Senior Citizens Center, 500 W. Francis, according to Joyce Puckett, director.

The center offers a noon meal each weekday at $2.50 a plate to all members. Membership is $5 per year for those age 55 and over. For the price of membership, senior citizens can choose from dancing, bridge, bingo, billiards, oil painting, dominoes or other card games such as pitch, a form of the game of hearts.

An average of 250 senior citizens eat at the center each weekday. The $2.50 pays for the food costs, plus other operating costs, with the remainder covered by donations and United Way funds.

There are eight staff members, including Puckett. Penny Stokes is assistant director, and kitchen staff workers are Georgia Marshall, Barbara Marshall, Ruby King, Jean Adams, Kim Green and Judy Ponce.

In addition, about six volunteers are at the center each day to help pour coffee, carry trays, clear tables and run the cash register.

Puckett has been director since October 1976. The center opened at its present location in January 1976, in a renovated grocery store. Before the opening, the senior citizens group met monthly at Lovett Library.

The center is open weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. A weekly newsletter is printed for members, which includes the week's menus.

"We like the people. We like the food. We like the games. We have a good time," said Ethel Willson, who herself cooked at the center for about four years and who has been a member since its opening.

"I like all the people," said Virginia James, who, along with her husband, used to own James Feed and Garden Center.

"They serve good food. I like the association with the people and the activities they have for us. My favorite is playing bridge," said Hester Groom.

"I like going to a place to relax and be around friendly people," B.F. Chance said. He enjoys getting out and visiting with other "old codgers."

"They call us older guys codgers, so I guess the ladies are codgerettes," he said.

"I think a lot of it. I think it's a nice place to come," said Gladys
Thomas, who enjoys the domino

Amelia Schwope, a 91-year-old domino player, "likes all of it." Verna Schroeder cast her vote for the "wonderful meals."

Whether food or fun is more important, Pampa Senior Citizens Center provides both.

THE CHILDREN OF GOD

The relationship that sustains be-tween the obedient disciple and God is referred to as God and His people. In Jeremiah 31:33, we note: 'But this is the convenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith Jehovah: will put my law in their inward parts, and in their heart will I write it; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people:" That the prophet was speaking of the relationship realized through Jesus Christ is seen in the quotations of this prophecy in Hebrews 8:8-12 and Hebrews 10:16-17. John writes: "Behold what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called children of God; and such we are. For this cause the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not." (I John 3:1.) It is therefore, in harmony with the will of God that those who are obedient to the gospel of Christ become God's children.

The children of God compose the house of God. "And Moses indeed was faithful in all his house as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were afterward to be spoken; but Christ as a son, over his house; whose house are we, if we hold fast our boldness and the glorying of our hope firm unto the end" (Hebrews 3:5-6) is further evidence to the fact that there is a very definite relationship existing between those who are members of the Lord's church and the Heaven-ly Father. The word "house" is used in the sense of a family or household. Jesus Christ is over this 'house'' and we learn from other Scriptures that Jesus is head over the church (Ephesians 1:22-23.) Only those in Christ have hope of the resurrection according to Paul in I Thessalonians 4:13-18. Those in Christ are those who have been baptized into Christ (Galatians 3:27.) They are also, by the same act of baptism, put into the body, which is the church (I Corinthians 12:13.) It is conclusive, therefore, that the words, "body", "church", and "house" all have reference to the relationship between God and His people, His children.

There is a special love which God has for those who do the will of His Son, Jesus (John 14:23-24) and are, Son, Jesus (Jonn L.) therefore, His children. -Billy T. Jones

Donna Brauchi

Use safety, sense when freezer fails

By DONNA BRAUCHI County Extension Agent

Home food freezers are subject to failure at times because of power outage or mechanical problems. In the Extension office, we seem to field several questions related to safety of food in freezers that are not running.

If your freezer isn't working because of consequences of power outage, the first consideration is to determine approximately how long the freezer will be without power. If it is anything less than a day or two, don't worry.

Freezers are well insulated, and each item of frozen food acts as a block of ice that keeps surrounding food cool. A wellstocked freezer should stay frozen two days. A half-stocked freezer should last a day.

As long as the freezer is not running, keep it closed as much as possible. Each time you open the door, warm air rushes in, reducing the freezer's effectiveness.

If the power will be off for a few days, try to divide up the food among your friends' freezers or possibly rent space in a commercial freezer or cold storage plant.

In case of emergency, put dry ice in your freezer, with caution. Dry ice should never be touched with your hands because it freezes everything it touches and you could sustain burns. If you use dry ice, put a layer of cardboard over the freezer items and put the ice on top of that. This should keep your food cold for a

Occasionally food freezers stop operating normally and foods may be thawed or partially thawed before the situation is discovered. What can be done when this happens?

You may safely refreeze foods that have been thawed if they still contain ice crystals or if they are still cold — about 40°F — and have been held no longer than one or two days at refrigerator temper-ture after thawing. If the odor or color of any food is poor or questionable, dispose of it. Do not refreeze shellfish, vegetables and cooked foods when they have completely than a month after the wedding

printed only on Sundays

be submitted by noon the previous Wednesday.

If ice crystals are still in the food, refreeze immediately. Even partial thawing and refreezing reduces the eating quality of these foods. If the condition is questionable, dispose of the thawed foods.

Thawed ice cream should not be refrozen. Fruits usually ferment when they start to spoil. A little fermentation will not make fruits dangerous to eat, but it may spoil their flavor.

You can refreeze thawed fruits if they still taste and smell good. Or you can use them in cooking and baking or for making jams, jellies and prepared foods.

Once your freezer is operational again, clean it thoroughly before refilling. Freeze thawed foods quickly. Use refrozen foods as soon as possible.

To refreeze food at home, turn the adjustable temperature control to its coldest position. The freezer will run continuously and food will refreeze quicker. Place the warmer packages against the refrigerated surface if possible, but place them so air will circulate around them.

After the food is well frozen, turn the temperture control to its usual setting.

If food spoils in the freezer, stubborn odors may result. Wash the interior surface of the freezer with soda water, using 1 teaspoon baking soda to a quart of warm water. If the odor persists, try vinegar, using 1 cup vinegar to a gallon of water.

If neither of these suggestions work, don't give up. Try using an electric fan for several hours to circulate air inside the freezer. Place a pan of activated charcoal into the freezer overnight to absorb odors. Then try another washing of the interior with soda

If traces of the odor still remain, this is not likely to affect the frozen foods which are securely wrapped in the freezer. If the odor is strong, sometimes leaving charcoal in the freezer for a long time will help.

won't go solo on graduation trip

DEAR ABBY: My parents have been divorced since I was 9. Outside of child support (which I appreciated), Dad has always given "his little girl" birthday and Christmas gifts, but I always had to tell him what I wanted

For my college graduation gift he wants to send me to Hawaii. I thanked him and told him I don't know anyone who can afford to go with me, and I don't care to go to Hawaii alone. I asked him if he could make it a trip to Colorado instead. I'd really like to go there, and for what a trip to Hawaii would cost, I could take a girlfriend to Colorado Dad says "Absolutely not. I want to give you something you'll always remember.' Do I have the right to tell him that I am upset? After all, it's his gift to give, but to tell you the truth, I don't want to go to Hawaii alone. Do I have to go? If I don't, I'll feel guilty. NO ALOHAS

Alcohol use drops in U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) - Americans are drinking fewer alcoholic beverages and drinking more bottled water, according to beverage industry sources.

In 1986, sales of bottled water gained nearly 15 percent over the previous year with consumption of 1.5 million gallons.

The consumption of distilled spirits declined about 4 percent in 1986 — to about 147.5 million cases, a drop of 6.5 million. Sources said it was the largest annual decline since 1979, when consumption peaked at 166 million cases.

Sales of cognac, wine and beer countered the trend.

Cognac sales have tripled in the last five years to a total of 2.3 million cases in 1986, according to the Bureau National Interprofessionel du Cognac. Wine showed a 5 percent increase over 1985 with consumption of 602,000 gallons. Beer registered a slight gain - less than 1 percent - to nearly 24 million gallons.

omato problems appear

By JOE VanZANT County Extension Agent

We have seen quite a few insects infest our landscape plants. Pine tip moth damage is very evident in many pines. Examination of damaged tips indicates most are mature larvae or pupae.

An insecticide application at this time would not be very effective. Wait until you find empty pupae cases before making your next insecticide application. Orthene® has been providing excellent control of this pest.

Bagworms are bountiful! Considerable defoliation has already been caused by this pest. Apply control measures now before they get much larger and become more difficult to kill.

Thorough coverage of the infested plant is required to effectively control bagworms. To help assure this coverage, add a little surfactant to the spray mixture.

I've received numerous calls concerning the black, blistered leaves of cottonwood. This is caused by a leaf miner. It's too late to control this pest at this time. The damage has been done and the insect has left the leaves.

However, you may become infested with the second generation in a couple of weeks - late July. You can start a spray program then with Cygon®, Meta systox-R*, diazinon or malathion when you first see leaf miner activity. Generally try at least two to four sprayings seven to 10 days apart.

Gardeners are encountering several tomato problems which are discussed as follows

• Blossom-End-Rot — This rot first shows on the bottom of the tomato, appearing as a large, dry, brown or black sunken area. It affects both green and ripening tomatoes and is caused primarily by a fluctuating moisture supply It is likely to appear on the earliest tomato fruits of the season.

Blossom-End-Rot often starts when the plants are putting on quick growth, but suddenly get hit by a hot, dry spell. The plants suffer an inability to absorb adequate moisture, which brings on the occurrence of Blossom-End-Rot.

• Blossom Drop — Blossom drop plagues Texas gardeners during both cool and hot conditions. In some years, many of the earlyseason blossoms simply fail to set and fall off. This is caused by cool nighttime temperatures below 55°F. If this isn't bad enough. once the temperatures get above 75°F. at night in combination with temperatures above 92°F. during the day, most tomato varieties drop their bloom.

This is the reason it is difficult to get large-fruited tomato varieties to set under midsum-

Pampa gospel singer Eddie Burton will kick off a record album-promoting tour with a concert at 7:30 p.m. July 16 in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

"A Heart Full of Praise" is being released this month on albums and cassette tapes by EAGLE ONE on the Genesis label out of Cincinnati.

The album, Burton's first, features all-new songs by awardwinning writers.

Two songs, "Lift Him Up" and "Bound For Glory," are to be released as singles to gospel radio stations nationwide.

Other songs on the album are "He Alone is God," "Come Let Us Sing," "Praise You With Everything," "Worthy," "The Singer," "Unsung Heroes," "I Have Overcome " and "Walk On."

The tempo ranges from the slow "Worthy" to the upbeat "Lift Him Up" and "I Have Overcome" to the rousing "Walk On."

Burton, a native Texan, has been singing in churches since age 5. He maintained his Christian faith despite a childhood of heartbreak, including his parents' divorce and his separation from seven brothers and sisters. When his mother remarried, his stepfather rejected him.

As a teen-ager, he found a new home with a Christian couple who had been taking him to church with them each Sunday. The couple later adopted him and encouraged the 16-year-old to become music minister at their church.

in high school and sang at churches and civic group meetings. He later served as music director for revivals in various church denominations, and for five years was minister of music at First Christian Church of Pampa.

Burton earned a degree in business management from West Texas State University in 1984 in order to provide security for his wife, Tonya, and young sons Lance and Luke. But his efforts to earn a living in the business world were met with closed doors, so he pursued a career in Christian music.

Doors began to open for the lyric baritone, starting with his performance in the July 1986 talent show during Independence Day celebrations in Pampa. Through a variety of contacts and referrals, Burton eventually sent a tape to EAGLE ONE recording company, and he signed a contract on the company's Genesis label, which is used for new, previously unrecorded artists.

New artists must pay for their album recordings, and Burton already had financial backing. A concert tour schedule followed. with the first stop at Pampa.

"God has laid on my heart the need to go and spread the gospel to his people. So many people will listen to a song where they may never darken the door of a church. I know God is leading me to use his song to tell those people he loves them and died for them that they might live," Burton

The Pampan's concert program includes songs ranging from popular hymns to those on his album. The concerts are divided into audience participation, a time of praise and thanksgiving and an invitation time.

Elbert Hensley, former Pampa resident and Pampa High School graduate, will open the concert with the Hensley Gospel Ensemble, a group of 14 singers. Hensley is minister of music at Morning Chapel Church in Sulphur Springs.

Tickets to the concert are $5 in advance or $6 at the door, with children under age 12 admitted free. Tickets are available at The Gift Box and M.K. Brown ticket office in Pampa, and The Clothesline in McLean.

Tickets may be mailed or reserved for pickup at the door by calling Burton at 665-7077 or Jerry Smith at 669-6623

"God is the most important part of my life, and as long as I have breath, I will give him praise," Burton said.

Special thanks go to Floy Christensen, general outdoors chairman, and Danny Parkerson, auditorium manager, employees and volunteers who worked together to spell SUC-CESS. Talented and hopeful performers came from as far away as Dallas, Oklahoma and Kansas. Hearty congratulations to the Harvesters' 4, Rick Smith, Paul Searle, Wyatt Earp and Billie Lemons, for being the big winners. Plans are underway to make the celebration bigger and better next year.

The Fourth of July dedication and celebration activities at Calvary Baptist Church brought a packed house of members, friends and former staff members. Members of the National Guard unit presented the flag. Bob Jones of Midland and former choir director led the congregation in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner." Bob, Wanda Looper, her niece Pam and husband Lonny Fowler sang a number to piano accompaniment by Yvonne Phillips. Sandy Crosswhite sang a solo and the Rev. Joe Horn brought the message. After dinner on the grounds, a dedication of the new educational quarters was held. Pam Fowler soloed. Living Water, a singing group from First Baptist Church, composed of Wanetta and Richard Hill, Marylon and Mike Russell, presented special music. The Rev. Jim Powell, a former interim pastor and DPS officer, brought a short message.

A crowd estimated at more than 1,000 attended the Lefors High School reunion last weekend. A prize was given to Sam Daniel of Alaska, who traveled the most miles. His brothers, the Rev. Hugh Daniel of Lamesa and the Rev. Wesley and his wife Beth of Plainview, also attended. Reps from the 1933 class, the oldest class represented, received individual prizes - Edith Mullins, Fred Carter of Clarendon, Alma and Max Brown of Stinnett. Floyd Mathis of that class arrived later. Gene Gee led the old and new school songs. Wyatt Fenno gave the invocation, Superintendent Earl Ross the welcome. Johnnie Quarles, president, emceed. Other officers were Gene Gee. vice president; Wayne Sims, secretary; and Carole Watson, treasurer. Officers elected for the 1992 reunion were Warren Chisum, president, and wife Omega, vice president; Pat Kindle, secretary; and Carole Watson, treasurer. # Dano' stars in 'The Foreigner'

By MARILYN POWERS Lifestyles Editor

James MacArthur, perhaps best-known for his portrayal of Detective Dan (Dano) Williams on the television series Hawaii Five-0, is starring in the Country Squire Dinner Theatre's production of "The Foreigner," now through August.

'The Foreigner,'' a Broadway hit comedy by Larry Shue, tells the experiences of a taciturn Englishman in Georgia who doesn't want to be disturbed or to communicate with others.

The Englishman, Charlie Baker, played by MacArthur, is upset by his marriage to a wife who is ill and with whom he has been having marital difficulties. Baker comes to Georgia to get away from it all with a friend, and ends up a reluctant participant in the neighborhood events

"It's a really good audience play. You have to pay attention. It's not your average dinner theatre fare," MacArthur said in an interview at The Pampa News.

MacArthur, son of actress Helen Hayes and the late newspaperman-playwright Charles MacArthur, has been acting since age 10, when he appeared in The Corn is Green with Eve Le Gallienne.

During his early teens, he appeared in Life With Father with Howard Lindsey and Dorothy Stickney

At age 18, he won the title role in the CBS Studio One production of The Young Stranger. Soon after that, he starred in the Walt Disney movies Light in the Forest, Third Man on the Mountain, and Swiss Family Robinson.

In 1960, he made his broadway debut in Arthur Laurents' Invitation to a March, playing opposite Jane Fonda. He earned a Theater World Award for his performance in the drama.

MacArthur's later movie credits include The Interns, The Truth About Spring, Cry of Battle, The Bedford Incident, Battle of the Bulge, and Spencer's Mountain, in which he portrayed the character that later became known as John-Boy in the television series The Waltons, adapted from the movie. He has been a guest star on The Untouchables, Gunsmoke, Wagon Train, The Eleventh Hour, The Great Adventure, Love Boat, Fantasy Island, Vegas and Walking Tall.

Leonard Freeman, creator and writer of Hawaii Five-0, offered MacArthur the part of Detective Dan Williams in 1968. He became "Dano" for the next 11 years. leaving the show before its final MacArthur is not new to dinner theatre work. His first such appearance was in Chicago in 1964-65, and he has played theatre roles occasionally since then, for four or five weeks at a time.

"Even when I was doing Five-0, I did theatre during the offseason," he said.

He has also filled roles offstage. Once during a theater appearance, he took ticket reservations on the phone one morning because the theater manager was not there to do it.

One of his favorite stories is the time he was in Hawaii on the set of Hawaii Five-0, dressed in his blue suit complete with gun and make-up.

"A tourist came up and said, 'You're James MacArthur, aren't you?' I said yes, and he said, 'Well, you look just like him!' " MacArthur said.

"I manage to have fun pretty much wherever I go," he said. This is his first stay in the Texas Panhandle

MacArthur makes his home on the slopes of Diamond Head in Hawaii. He also has a house at Crested Butte, Colo

He has a 27-year-old son who is a ski instructor in Colorado, and a 21-year-old daughter. He has started a new family with the addition of a 2-year-old son. 'To me, it's like having a good friend in the neighborhood," said Reinhardt Wagner, 57, one of 700 members of the White Crane Senior Health Center, which has been serving Chicago's Lakeview and Lincoln Park communities since September.

White Crane is the result of a partnership involving seniors, a major medical center and the community. That kind of partnership, and the active involvement of the seniors, makes it a facility that others around the country are studying.

"Few programs nationwide are as thoughtfully and respectfully put together," said Stephanie FallCreek, director of the New Mexico State Agency on Aging and a consultant for California's Kaiser Family Foundation. which is doing a national study of model senior centers

FallCreek's study also includes Project Staywell, a multiplecenter project in New York City;

the Health Enrichment Center in Kansas City; the Growing Younger, Growing Wiser program in Boise, Idaho; and the Quality Aging program in Salt Lake City.

All the programs are considered models because of the active participation of their senior citizens, FallCreek said. Her study, to be finished in the fall, is focusing on what makes each program a success.

White Crane is unique in its ability to offer a very comprehensive variety of both medical and health services to older adults in a non-restrictive setting," Fall-Creek said.

Walk into the one-story center, and you are offered a cup of coffee and a chance to chat with friendly, busy people.

DISCIPLESHIP

CLINIC

July 24th & 25th, 1987 Friday 6:30-10:00 p.m. Saturday, 9:00 a.m.-9:30 p.m.

You are invited to be a part of our first AGAPE Discipleship Clinic. Our objective will be to equip and encourage Christians to fulfill the call of evangelism Christ gave us in Mark 16:15 when He said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." We want to encourage each individual in sharing with others what Jesus has done in their heart. Every heart with Christ is a missionary ... and every heart without Christ is a mission field.

Everyone is encouraged and invited to be a part of the ADC. Some of the topics of study will be Spiritual Warfare, Testimonies, Intercession, Evangelism, Hearing God's Voice & Responding in the Opposite Spirit. There will also be a time of outreach following the lectures Saturday. You may register Friday evening, but we would appreciate it if you will preregister with the information asked for below and mail it to AGAPE Discipleship Clinic, Box 1020, Pampa or bring it by First Assembly of God, 500 S. Cuyler.

For further information you may contact David Tidenberg, Pastor of Evangelism & Outreach at 665-5941.

Age-... Children requiring nursery ... Yes .... No .....

Cost of the clinic will be $7.50 for those preregistering and $10.00 for those who will register at the clinic. Please make check out to First Assembly of God. The fee will go to cover expenses of the clinic and evangelism. Thank you!

Sailplane camp to be held

Soaring pilots flying highperformance sailplanes will arrive at Dalhart's Miller Field July 18 to participate in the third annual Dalhart Badge and Distance Camp.

"Pilots from Florida, Pennsylvania, Kansas and Colorado will be here," said Ben Wilson, director of this year's camp. "The strong thermals and flat terrain surrounding Miller Field have made this a well-known soaring site," he said.

A popular task is the Five State Flight where the pilots in their motorless craft attempt to fly from Dalhart to Clayton, N.M., then on to Boise City, Okla.; Campo, Colo.; Elkhart, Kan. and back to Miller Field. Other pilots will go for internationally-recognized badges awarded for soaring distance, altitude and time aloft.

"Introductory flights in twoplace sailplanes will be available for visitors interested in the sport of soaring," Wilson said.

The camp will continue through July 26. The public is welcome to attend the activities. Those wishing to see the pilots readying their gliders and being towed into the air by a propellerdriven towplane should plan to arrive at the field between 10 a.m. and noon any day between July 18 and July 25.

Miller Field is located six miles northeast of Dalhart near U.S. Highway 54.

remove the makeup and the silverblue wig, Estelle Getty doesn't look much like the octogenarian Sophia she plays on NBC's hit comedy "The Golden Girls." But she still sounds a lot like the tough-talking character whose portrayal won Getty a Golden Globe Award last year.

Her cracks about Donny Osmond and Matthew Broderick, among others, could have come straight out of the mouth of the acid-tongued Sophia. "I saw Donny Osmond on '60 Minutes' and thought, 'How sad! His professional life is over at 29," she says. Matthew Broderick, her co-star in the Broadway hit "Torch Song Tril-ogy." also gets the "Sophia treatment.

Getty remembers that the producers of the play "weren't terribly smitten with Broderick. ('Torch Song') was one of the first plays he had done. The actress, a Jewish mother in real life, tried to take the cocky young actor under her wing and offered to rehearse his lines with him. "OK, as long as you don't try to tell me how to act," Broderick reportedly told his

The New York native insists she's not the only member of "The Golden Girls" cast whose off-screen personality is similiar to her on-screen character

We're all a little bit like the characters we play," she says. But she backs down when asked how co-star Betty White could be an Emmy-winning actress if she were anywhere near as dense as her Minnesota hick character.

'Betty is extraordinarily bright, but she can be as ingenuous as she appears on the show

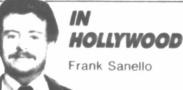

Sounding less like Sophia, Getty becomes even diplomatic when describing Rue McClanahan, the show's maneating Blanche.

'Rue is more adored by more men than any woman I know. She is so attractive and winsome," Getty says.

And as for the baritone-voiced Bea Arthur, Getty says, "She's so smart and wisecracking.

A selfless camaraderie reigns on the set. Last fall, Betty White beat out her co-stars for the Emmy. Earlier, Getty won a Golden Globe. Arthur and McClanahan didn't feel left out, Getty insists. "We don't talk about awards because we each feel that whatever honors we get, nobody does it alone. We all know that this is a concert piece. So nobody's disappointed when another cast member wins," she says.

This camaraderie also extends to the age of the cast. Before taping began, they all agreed to say they were the same age. Getty, who is probably in her early 60s, slips back into her Sophia mode to confess, "Actually, I'm younger than one of the other

Media attention came late in life for Getty, who claims she was always a working actress, "I just didn't make a lot of money at it." After working on and off Broad vay in relative anonymity for more than half a century, Getty got her big break as Harvey Fierstein's compassionate mother in

"Torch Song Trilogy. From there, she made guest appearances in TV series like "Fantasy Island" and "Cagney and Lacey" and appeared in TV movies. 'The Golden Girls" has made her rich and famous, but she still can keep her anonymity after removing Sophia's makeup and wig "I love the fact that I can do my shopping without having people stare at me. I've been out with Bea and Betty and realize how intrusive that sort of thing can be," she says. Once more, Getty sounds like Sohia: "I do get recognized, though, but I only like it when it happens at restaurants. The owner usually picks up

Whitney: still tops with fans

By MARY CAMPBELL Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Critics might not like Whitney Houston's second album as much as her first, but the Grammy awardwinning artist's fans are buying it like crazy.

Her 1985 Whitney Houston is the top selling solo debut album ever. Her newest, Whitney, jumped onto the Cashbox bestselling pop album chart at No. 35 and leaped to No. 4 during its second week in June. It has landed at No. 1 on the Billboard album

The first single, "I Wanna Dance with Somebody (Who Loves Me)," has hit No. 1 on the pop and urban contemporary charts and is near the top of the dance chart in Billboard's talley. Houston isn't concerned about criticism that the albums are too similar and the second doesn't display growth. "I believe if a formula works, that's the way you should go. Why switch from an eight-million-selling team and say 'I'm going to hire Joe Smith'? I had the same producers so you're going to get the same

"My voice has grown so much; my mental attitude has grown,' she said.

"I don't know what they want from me. Maybe they want me to scream or growl. I tried to sing a variety of things. People will have their personal opinions about things, but that's OK.'

Ballads are her favorite. "I love being able to bite into a ballad and really give it emotion, bring the lyric to life as if somebody were really living it.

July 4 and runs into November. As usual, it's strictly a family affair. Her younger brother, Michael, is her assistant stage manager.

"Felicia Moss, my Mom's younger sister's daughter, sings backup. Dionne and Dee Dee Warwick are daughters of my Mom's older sister. My Mom has got eight brothers and sisters; I've got lots of cousins," she said.

Family involvement doesn't stop there. Houston's father, John Houston, formerly executive director of the Newark, N.J., Central Planning Bureau, is her business manager

Hermother, Cissy Houston, is a well-known backup singer. Until 1970, she had her own group, the Sweet Inspirations, who regularly sang backup for Aretha Franklin and Elvis Presley, among

Whitney Houston started as a backup singer when she was 13, before her career took an abrupt turn and she became a model three years later. By the time she decided on music, she was 18 and tired of modeling.

'We went on a hunt for a record company. We set up showcases at a New York rehearsal hall. It was like, 'Come down and put a bid on Whitney.' I did six songs, like 'Tomorrow' from Annie. Clive Davis heard me then he got up, said, 'Thank you,' and left. I said, 'Did he like me or what?' "Davis, president of Arista Records, liked her and signed her.

The Odessa American

ODESSA (AP) - Odessa's Tim Waller has been drawing for as long as he can remember.

His ideas just come to him, he says, and usually they are based on experiences he's had or things that have happened to his friends.

While his first love is riding bulls, he also excels at his second love, drawing. His subjects are people he knows a lot about — cowboys.

"I draw cowboys mostly," he says. "They're humorous in their own way - down to earth. Honest humor is what I call it.

"Most of my work is based around rodeos because that's where I am all the time. "People come up to me and say, 'Let me tell you what happened to me and you can draw it.'

Other times, he says, "I can be driving to rodeos and an idea will hit me like a ton of bricks, and I'll have to pull over right there and get a piece of candy wrapper or something.'

"Just write it down," he advises. "It doesn't matter if it's in the dirt on your dash. Waller says that he "was just especially gifted" with his talent for drawing, as no one else in his family draws. "I think it's a God-given talent and I just use it

When he was younger, Waller did not enjoy art in school. There, his teachers didn't consider his style of drawing and his cartoons real art.

However at Odessa College, Waller received the instruction and encouragement he needed. "The teachers here at OC are real good," he says. "I learned a bunch from them. They're the kind of guys who aren't in it just for a paycheck. They want to help you out. If you've got a talent, they're going to bring it out and make you use it.' After two years at Odessa, Waller attends Sul Ross State University in Alpine and majors in art education. At Sul Ross, Waller has been further motivated to try his hand at sculpture. But humor shows up there, too. His bronze sculptures show his cowboys in "sort of awkward positions," he says.

After graduation next year, Waller hopes to simply "put groceries on the table" with his art. "Although there's good money in it, I'm not doing it for the money. There's a whole lot of easier things you can do for money.

With his art degree, he will probably teach "Maybe I can teach some other fool to do this," he look, different from his usual cowboy and rodeo

Actually, he says, drawing "comes as easy as walking down the street. It's natural. It's easy. I'm always drawing something."

'Collegian' is key to careers for thousands of young blacks

By PHILIP DRYSDALE Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - "The Black Collegian" may be the best kept secret in American publishing.

It can't be found on newsstands, but it has the fifth-largest circulation of any black-owned and operated publication in the United States

Just a handful of its 120,717 readers subscribe, but thousands of young black men and women real the magazine and many credit it with providing them a key to careers in mainstream American businesses

"We publish this magazine with a missionary zeal," publisher and president Preston Edwards said. "It's not like we're selling widgets or something like that. We're providing young people with information to help them plan their careers, which will determine their lifestyle for the rest of their life.

"We're very proud of what we do.'

For all of its success today, "The Black Collegian" was nearly stillborn, almost a victim of a con game that preyed on the aspirations of black Americans during the 1970s.

When the first issue appeared in December 1970, it had a thin 40 pages, eight of which were advertisements. It aimed to be a college version of "Ebony" or

Today, the magazine is a slick publication that runs 140 pages or more, full of advertising to recruit minority students. It is published four times during the academic year and has articles listing the hows and wheres of finding jobs and succeeding in

It began as a magazine sold on the campuses of traditionally black colleges. But it is now distributed free by college guidance offices on 1,200 campuses nationwide.

Each issue is built around a theme. In September, the careers issue appears, with articles about fields that hold promise and those that have flattened out or appear to be dead ends.

In November, the 100 largest recruiters of college graduates is the theme. In January it is engineering and black history. In March, the jobs issue is published. When the magazine began, it wasn't intended to be oriented toward jobs and careers.

At that time, Edwards was teaching finance and accounting at Southern University in Baton

It was the deaths of two students at Jackson State in May 1970 that galvanized Edwards and his students.

"We saw that there was a need for a publication directed towards college students that dealt with issues on college campuses," he said.

"Intitially we wanted a news magazine. But after reality set in, we realized that we had to generate the funds from advertising and that it had to be a career magazine, so that we could generate recruitment adver-

But there were others who were tapping corporate America's burgeoning interest in recruiting minority college students.

"There were problems in the industry caused by non-black magazines based in California, publishers who pretended to publish a magazine but didn't publish a magazine," Edwards said. "They sent bills to corporations. it was just a scam.

"Somebody would call the company and tell them they represented a black organization that was promoting equal opportunity employment and they would like

But storms in the plains and rains in some eastern areas put agricultural activities "on hold"

Another severe hail storm swept through Lamb, Bailey and portions of Lubbock County on July 7, adding to the damages created last week when hail sharply damaged the South Plains cotton crop in more than six counties, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In areas that escaped the continuing hail and wind damage in top portions of the state, cotton and other crops are continuing to make rapid progress. The wheat harvest is winding down in those areas as weather permits, with many yields lower than average due to late spring freezes and other weather-related problems.

Baling of coastal and sorghum hay is active across the state as weather conditions permit, although some cut hay needs sunshine for drying before it can be baled, Carpenter noted.

In the Rio Grande Valley and a few other southern areas, the harvest of early sorghum is moving rapidly under hot, cloudless skies. Corn also is maturing on schedule and cotton is setting bolls - with some bolls opening to signal the start soon of the cotton harvest in a number of

The extremely hot, daytime temperatures are a major concern for poultry producers of the state, Carpenter said. In anticipation of even hotter temperatures ahead, cooling systems are being readied for use.

As the weather heats up, home gardens are starting to produce less in dryland areas although irrigated gardens continue to produce good yields. Farmers markets are active across the state, with a good variety of vegetable and melon crops being offered, said Carpenter.

Boosted by early June rains. ranges and pastures in many areas are providing abundant grazing for livestock, which continue in good condition. Most marketing continues normal for this time of the year. Hornflies continue to be a problem for cattle, Carpenter noted.

West Texas producers are gearing up to begin shearing goats in early August.

District Extension directors reported the following conditions: PANHANDLE — Wheat harvest winding down after many delays caused by wet fields. Corn, sorghum, cotton and peanut crops making excellent progress and sugar beets are making good growth. The onion and potato harests are getting under way. SOUTH PLAINS - Another severe nail storm swept through

Lamb, Bailey and Lubbock Counties July 7, adding to woes from last week's storm that sharply damaged the area's cotton crop. In areas escaping the hail damage, cotton and other crops are progressing ROLLING PLAINS - The wheat harvest is virtually over with lower yields than expected earlier due to late spring freezes. Boll weevil and grasshopper populations are increasing. Recent rains have boosted ranges and pastures, and cattle are in good condition.

NORTH CENTRAL

Spraying for cotton insects continues, and baling of both coastal and sorghum hay is active as weather permits. Peaches are being harvested in Clay County. Corn is in excellent condition. Kaufman County reports about 30 bushels of wheat per acre being harvested as season winds down.

NORTHEAST - Some wheat is lodging (falling over) due to weather conditions, as the harvest draws to a close. Corn, sorghum and cotton are in good condition, although boll weevils are becoming a problem in some areas. Most farmers markets have an abundant supply of produce. Stock ponds and lakes of the area are quite full.

FAR WEST - Some hail, strong winds and up to 2 inches of rain reported in part of the district. Livestock and ranges continue in better than average condition. Home gardens, other vegetable crops and pecans are progressing

WEST CENTRAL - A few isolated areas reported up to 4 inches of rain this past week, with 1 to 2 inches more common over the district. Producers are gearing up to start shearing goats early in August. The cotton crop, which got off to a late start, is improving and home gardens and pecans are doing well.

CENTRAL — Corn is maturing rapidly and sorghum is ripening, but midge populations are increasing in grain. Cotton insects, particularly boll weevils and bollworms, are showing up in more fields. Earlier peanuts are making good growth and most late peanuts have been planted.

EAST — Drying conditions are needed for cut hay before it can be cured properly and baled. The corn crop looks good and the watermelon harvest has begun. Yields from peas and bean crops are heavy. Poultry producers are extremely concerned about how the hot temperatures are impacting their flocks.

SOUTH CENTRAL - Sorghum is ripening and corn is in the dough stage. Cotton is setting bolls. Wheat harvesting is nearing completion with the remaining crop in poor condition as a result of weather problems. Most of the peanut crop has been planted. Ranges and cattle are in good condition.

SOUTHWEST — Strong, hot winds are depleting top soil moisture and causing some young crops to wilt under hot, daytime temperatures. Harvesting of cantaloupes, watermelons and hay continues, and most producers are completing planting of fall peanuts. Ranges and most livestock are in good condition.

UPPER COAST - Hay baling is under way as weather permits. Planting of both peanuts and soybeans continues. The rice crop is about 50 percent headed. Forage crops and ranges are making good growth. Livestock classes in good condition, with marketing

COASTAL BEND - Hay harvesting is in full swing and most field work is getting back on schedule after numerous weather delays. The pecan crop in Lavaca County appears to be light. Goliad County reports an excellent peach crop.

SOUTH — Harvest of early sorghum continues active under hot temperatures. Cotton is setting bolls, with some bolls opening to signal the harvest is near. Corn also is maturing rapidly. Sugarcane is progressing with irrigation under way as needed. The harvest of vegetables is moving ahead rapidly.

U.S. initiative gets mixed

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Reagan administration proposal to end the world's agricultural subsidies and trade barriers in 10 years is getting mixed reviews from U.S. farm

President Reagan called the U.S. initiative "the most ambitious proposal for world agricultural trade reform ever offered.'

The proposal followed one he made last month at the seven-nation economic summit in Venice. Such a pact is needed to end costly trade distortions, but would not be easy to negotiate and "will not be painless," he conceded.

'If the president were successful, it would basically put American agriculture probably back in the same condition we were prior to the Great Depression, in which we had the constant boom and bust - more years of bust in agriculture," said Bob Denman, a National Farmers Union spokesman.

U.S. representatives to tradeliberalization talks under the 93-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) formally made the proposal Monday in Geneva, Switzerland, as administration officials outlined it in Washington.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the administration "has raised the stakes in the complex game of world agricultural trade. What we need to do is see whether other countries put their subsidies on the table.

Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng said nearly all U.S. farm-support programs could be affected, but the administration would not ask Congress to terminate these programs in the absence of an international agreement. "We are not going to do this unilaterally," Lyng said. "We obviously would have a lot of trouble doing it unilaterally in this country.' Direct government income supplements to farmers that are not related to production levels would not be affected, nor would disaster relief or foreign aid subsidies such as the Food For Peace program providing food for some of the world's poorest nations.

U.S. commodity programs, including price supports for crops and dairy products, totaled a record $26 billion last year, a figure equivalent to more than 10 percent of the nation's annual budget deficit.

The Reagan administration has long contended that money spent on farm-support programs is a major cause of the swelling deficit and has sought — so far unsuccesfully to pare back these payments.

FIRST TAMU BEEF

INDUSTRY CONFERENCE Where is the beef cattle industry headed in the next few years? How do consumers perceive beef products? And what part will cattle producers and feedlot operators play in enhancing beef's image and turning beef per capita consumption around?

These are only a few of the questions that will be answered at the 1987 TAMU Beef Industry Conference entitled "Beef: Gearing up for the 1990's," to be held at College Station — Rudder Center Theater — August 10-11.

Cattlemen are concerned and possibly confused as to the direction beef cattle production is headed. "We've all heard about the latest issues, such as lean beef and packer specifications. Should I produce leaner beef? How does this effect my cow herd? Should I begin a branded beef program?" These are qusetions we hear and a few of the questions to be addressed in this year's TAMU Beef Industry Conference

First day's conference events will deal with analyzing the current problems facing the beef cattle industry. Amy Barr, associate director of the Good Housekeeping Institute; Dr. Robert Olsen, M.D., of Stony Brook Health Sciences Center in New York; and Dr. Janice Neville, the presidentelect of the American Dietetic Association, will discuss where beef fits into the American diet and what we as an industry might do to make beef even more nutritionally appropriate. Later that day, Dr. Russell Cross from Texas A&M will talk about branded beef and Dr. Darrell Wilkes of the National Cattlemen's Association will discuss the Beef-Food Safety Issue.

Jo Ann Smith, chairperson, Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board and past president of NCA will be the August 10th banquet keynote speaker, speaking on "Beef Promotion: Is It Working?

The second day of the conference will deal with "Producing and Marketing Cattle To Fit Industry Needs." Speakers include Dr. Rod Bowling from Monfort discussing hot fat rimming and its effect on cattle pricing. Dennis Farley of Friona Industries will discuss an integrated approach to producing cattle; Dr. Dell Allen (Kansas State University) and Dr. Bill Mies (TAMU) will present their views on packer live cattle specifications; and Dr. Darrell Wilkes (NCA) and Dr. Steve Hammack (Beef Cattle Specialist, TAEX) will present information on breed utilization and herd improvement.

For those interested in attending the TAMU Beef Industry Conference, there is a conference registration form available in the County Extension office. Early registration must be received postmarked no later than August 1, 1987. The conference hotel will be the College Station Hilton. When making reservations, indicate you are with the TAMU Beef Industry Council.

COMPUTER INSECT CON-

Are insects giving you trouble? It's on the weekend or late at night and your insect control guide is lost.

Dr. Jerry Michels, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station research entomologist, cured the problem when he developed a computer system containing needed information. It is called the TAES Entomology Information System. The scientist says his computer never shuts off so insect control recommendations will be available free 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Results from insect surveys, messages, and other computer related subjects will be available. Specific questions directed to Michels will be answered as soon as he returns to his office. Users can also direct questions or send information to other users on the system. The Bulletin Board System (BBS) is open to any interested persons. To use the system, a computer and a modem is needed. The BBS will accept transmission speeds of 300 or 1200 baud. The message system and insect control recommendation aspect of the BBS will work with any computer, including IBM, IBM clones, Apple, Commodore, and CP-M machines such as Kaypro and Osborne. Other computer related aspects of the BBS. such as downloading and uploading files from the BBS to your computer may not support all machines, but any computer which can handle a standard text file (ASCII text files) will work. Insect control recommendations on the BBS will be information supplied for control of insects on field crops by Dr. Carl Patrick, Texas Agricultural Extension Service entomologist. Control suggestions can be called up on the screen with a few very simple commands, or with the proper computer, printed information can be obtained. One feature already incorporated into the insect control information part of the BBS is the results of corn earworm surveys being made on a weekly basis from 28 locations in the Panhandle according to Michels.

The BBS can be used without first having instruction since it is equipped with help programs that a caller can access. The first step is setting up your computer and a modem system to call the BBS. The specific steps will depend on the system a caller uses Next, have the system dial 806-353-5014, and BBS will answer on the second or third ring. Then the Bulletin section will give current information and changes in the system along with general information that introduces the BBS. All new users will want to read them carefully. ## Oldest National Park ranger guards ruins

By WALT SMITH Associated Press Writer

ABO, N.M. (AP) - In a small oneroom plastered adobe hut, Frederico Sisneros sits facing a dirt parking lot. Behind him tower the ruins of a 360year-old church built of red sandstone piled up to 50 feet high.

Sisneros, 93, has lived all his life on the brush-covered land where the church and surrounding pueblo ruins were built, and today he protects the land as if it were still his own.

In 1938 Sisneros donated to New Mexico his portion of the property west of Mountainair, N.M., where the church and pueblo ruins sit.

He became caretaker of the land in 1944 and in 1981 was named a National Park Service ranger, one year after the Abo ruins became part of the National Park Service. Today, he is the oldest park ranger in the country.

"This is my work," Sisneros says as he pulls a small weed out of what once was the altar of the church built by the Spanish in the 1620s.

His years of protecting the site have not been ignored. He has been given a superior service award from the National Park Service and a certificate of commendation from the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The San Gregorio de Abo Church is one of three sites at the Salinas National Monument about 80 miles south of Albuquerque. About 40 percent of the original pueblo and church still stand as ruins, guarded by Sisneros and a 6-foot high chain link fence.

The other two sites nearby are the San Buenaventura Church and Pueblo de las Humanas at Gran Quivira and the Nuestra Senora de la Purisima Concepcion de Cuarac Church at Quarai.

Abo and Quarai both are made of red sandstone rock held together by mud mortar. The National Park Service does not rebuild the ruins but each summer new mortar is forced between the rocks to keep the walls standing.

Sisneros remembers when archaeologists came to the Abo site earlier this year to excavate what he believed as a child to be a pile of rocks. The archaeologists told Sisneros there was a second, older church beneath the one standing and that they were going to find it.

'I said they were fools but when they found the other church I said I am the fool," Sisneros says.

Sisneros walks along the ruins and points at the ground, describing the walls found by archaeologists that since have been covered up. He says he knows nothing about the ruins but he is able to describe the rooms in the pueblo and their purpose

However, during excavations he made many wrong guesses about the ruins, he says. When a courtyard first was discovered in the pueblo ruins, he thought it was a corral because there was a post in each corner. He also thought an indentation in the ground was used to store water. It later was discovered to be a kiva.

"I don't know much," he says. Despite the church having been abandoned for hundreds of years, Sisneros says it still is a holy place and he has left it for an extended time only once. In 1974 he took a two-week trip to the "Holy Land to see where our Lord lived."

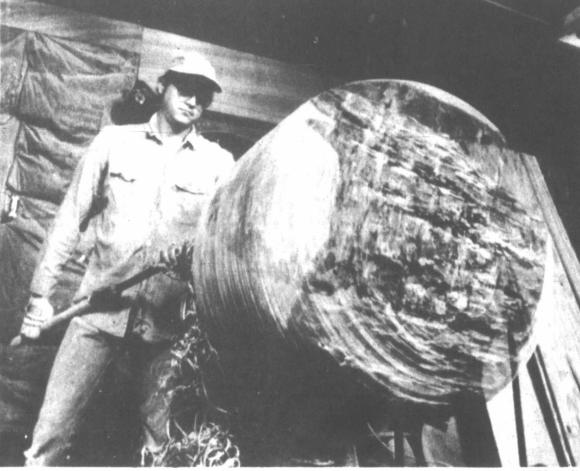

He recites stories from the Bible in detail and describes the places where Biblical history took place. He saw the hill where Jesus gave the sermon on the mount and many temples in Jerusalem. "The work he's (God) done will never disappear," Sisneros says, standing in the center of the old church. "Like he said, 'Everything will pass except my word."

Sisneros also tells stories of the Great Depression and how he couldn't get a job for $1 a day with the Work Project Administration because the government said he did not need the money.

"I had a handful of cows and they said I was OK," he says.

Sitting in the small room which acts as a gateway to the ruins, Sisneros, a small, soft-spoken man, greets visitors with a wave of his hand and invites them in. He asks them to sign a guest list placed on an adobe window ledge between two of the room's three chairs and offers them a brochure to guide them through the maze of partially standing buildings.

Foster shapes log on lathe.

Texas artist turns logs into sculptures on lathe

KRUM (AP) — It takes the soul of an artist, the scouting skills of a backwoods bargain hunter and sometimes the back muscles of a pioneer for Clay Foster to create his works.

The Denton County man is a woodturner, not to be confused with a wood carver.

'Carving is taking a block of wood, a chisel and mallet and removing wood with the chisel and mallet," Foster says. "Turning is putting the wood on a lathe and the lathe turns the wood and you hold the cutting tool up to it.'

Foster, a founding charter member of the American Association of Woodturners, is one of a handful of artists across the country who use the traditional craft to create non-traditional pieces.

Foster's works are so unusual he says he has no trouble selling them at the few shows he attends each year and through two Dallas galleries — The Front Room and the New Art Gallery in the LTV Center — that handle his work.

Later this week, July 16-18, he will show his work in "The Art of Craft" show at the Denver Art Museum.

The recognition is nice, he says, but it is the work itself that is important to him.

The process begins with scouting out the logs that are his raw material. Any site with wood is a likely place for Foster to appear, pickup ready for hauling away unwanted logs.

"I keep my eyes open all the time for wood," he says. "I think I'm preserving trees that would otherwise have been hauled away to the dump, or burned up in somebody's fireplace.'

Back at his rural workshop, he sometimes lets the logs sit outdoors to soak up moisture that will further bacteria growth and mineral deposits, giving the wood rich colors and designs.

Then, he cuts the log through the center, the pith. "You have to cut through the pith or the log will get real bad cracks," he says. "Then, I cut the log into rounds, but I leave the bark on for the contrast in textures. I want people who walk up to any of my works to be able to tell it came from a tree. They might not be able to tell you what it is, but they can tell it came from a tree.

The next step takes a strong back, lifting the cut log onto the lathe. Foster then cuts the outside shape he wants and then turns the inside to match;

Since no manufactured lathe is large enough to turn the pieces Foster makes — up to 40 inches he has had to make his own.

"It's kinda a Rube Golberg lathe," he said. "It's gone through a lot of permutations. This one is made out of plywood, pipe and old tractor parts. I also make my own tools now. I started with woodcarving tools, but realized that doing unusual work needed special tools so I make then or adapt them to my own use.

After the wood is shaped, he seals it to slow the drying process and prevent cracks.

Mexico's stock market sizzles, soaring 243 percent this year

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's stock exchange soared a sizzling 243 percent in the first six months of the year, making it one of the world's hottest

The stock market has been reaching new heights since last summer, gains fueled, analysts say, by investors' expectations of better economic times ahead and low prices for the stocks of major com-

"We're talking about extraordinary increases," said Timothy Heyman, director of analysis for the brokerage house Estrategia Bursatil and author of a new book on investing in Mexico.

Over the past 12 months, the market's Index of Prices and Quotations, made up of the prices of the stocks of 42 companies, skyrocketed 911 percent to a level of 161,667 on June 30. In all of last year, the price index advanced a record 321 percent, by far the best performing market in the world when calculated in terms of the local currency

When measured in dollars, the Mexican exchange slipped to No. 2 behind Spain's stock exchange and just ahead of Italy's.

In comparison, the United States' most closely watched stock index, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, gained 22.6 percent in 1986 and an additional 27.6 percent in the first half of 1987.

The Mexican stock exchange, formed in 1894, is tiny by comparison with the United States' mar-

Last year, 197 companies were listed on the Mexican stock exchange, compared to the New York Stock Exchange's whopping 1,500 common stocks. Only 26 brokerage houses are licensed to operate on the floor of the stock exchange, which is located in the heart of Mexico City. Analysts estimate the brokerages may have total accounts of about a half million by year's end.

Investors who prefer to invest in stock market funds have less than two-dozen to choose from. Yet, the market is increasingly attracting new investors, bringing in more, analysts said, from the ranks of the middle class, whose purchasing power has been badly hurt by the nation's lengthy economic crisis.

Few foreigners have invested in the market, analysts said, partly because they are limited in buying shares of Mexican companies.

They can participate by investing in the stock market funds offered by local brokerages. There also is a Mexico Fund, which is listed on the New of Mexican stocks.

Two Mexican companies — Telefonos de Mexico, the government-owned telephone company, and Tubos de Acero de Mexico, a steel-pipe maker are listed on the American Stock Exchange

Manuel Somoza Alonso, president of the Mexican stock exchange, said the main reason for the market's sharp gains has been the low prices of the stocks of large Mexican companies.

'The most important percentage of growth in the index of prices is due to the adjustment of an exchange that was tremendously undervalued," he recently told a group of foreign reporters.

He said firms listed on the exchange registered an average increase in sales of 135 percent and 322 percent in profits during the first three months of "The stock exchange," he said, "is reflecting an expectation that the firms that are registered are going to have a better economic year in 1987 and certainly in the years ahead."

Companies listed on the exchange are generally a cut above the average, Somoza Alonso said. They are big, sell their products overseas, use advanced technology and operate with foreign capital.

Other analysts note a greater feeling of confidence in the economic outlook. Many investors doubt President Miguel de la Madrid will alter the economy's course before his term ends in December 1988

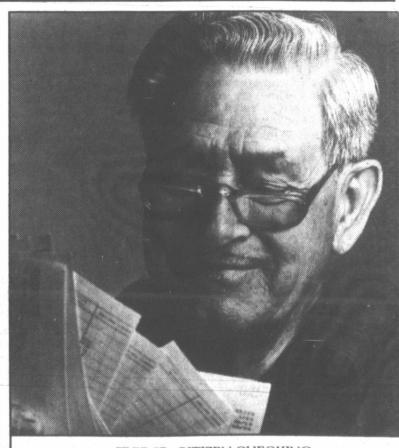

"Private business in Mexico is beginning to upgrade its opinion of ... de la Madrid ...," private economist Rogelio Ramirez de la O wrote recently.

BEST (AP) — Best was a town built on fast profits and schemes, a town that never lived up to the plan for it to be a model oil camp.

It was known a the "Best Town with the Worst Reputation," and a Saturday night there was considered to be a hard-drinking, hard-fighting night on the town.

In 1926, it was estimated that Best had a population of 3,000. Many people who came to find their fortune in the oil fields of West Texas found it easy to set up temporary quarters in Best, living in tents and shacks.

Today the word "wild" has a different connotation when applied to Best. It is overgrown with wild plant life, a setting where deer and rattlesnakes once again are plentiful. Today, the only legacies of the community named for Tom Best are a post office on U.S. Highway 67, crumbling foundations and probably the most fitting remnant of the bygone, rip-snorting oil town — the jail.

"Best was doomed to be a ghost town," said John Kovach of Odessa, who lived in Best in its

'Texas University owned the land, and they couldn't sell any of it even if they wanted to. You could only lease it for a certain number of years with an option to renew," Kovach said.

"So people put up 'shotgun' houses (houses built along a straight hall, similar to mobile homes) and tents hoping to make a bunch of money and leave after the drilling ceased," he

Bars still guard the windows of the tiny adobe jail that appears too small to have housed a rowdy bunch of men. But according to Kovach, the jail served mainly as a "holding tank."

Men were kept in the jail only until we could get a sheriff from Big Lake to come transport them back to Big Lake," Kovach said.

Nonethless, Best's reputation as a dangerous town was only exceeded by the notoriety of nearby Texon's nationally famous baseball team.

Best got its reputation from the shanty town which existed there in a gravel pit," said Dorothy Way of Big Lake, a former resident of Texon. "It was considered dangerous for women and children to go to Best, even in the daylight," she said.

'The problem was Best had the only post office around, and we couldn't go pick up our mail. We had to wait for the men to come home from the oil fields every day, so they could go get the mail." Ms. Way said.

"The city of Best was a beehive of drillers. contractors, roughnecks, supply men, bootleggers and prostitutes," said James J. Isbell in The Reagan County Story," sponsored by the Reagan County Historical Society. "It became hazardous to roam the streets and byways by yourself, even in daylight," Isbell said. "The gravel pit — some called it the 'Hell Hole' — was located north of the railroad tracks and a real tough shanty town. Open saloons were booming day and night. Many murders were committed and people robbed. Kovach said the gravel pit had shacks with false store fronts and honky tonks in the rear. "I remember one with a drug store front that had a single bottle of Mentholatum on a shelf inside. No one was attending the store, and people were gambling and drinking in the back," he said "Choc beer and moonshine whiskey flowed freely, for a price, as well as gambling and girls. Part of the problem was that Best was not incorporated and it was governed by the county," Kovach said. "So, the 'law,' (a few deputies) had to rule with a gun.

"I avoided the danger by minding my own business," Kovach said. Despite its reputation, and some shootings and killings, Best was not as bad as some of the other oil boom towns, such as Ranger, he said. But in 1925, the Texas Rangers came to Best to "clean it up," according to Kovach. "They dismantled a lot of the 'stores' in the gravel pit and raided a home where choc beer was being brewed, since it was during Prohibition."

Best was planned as a city with easy access to the nearby oil fields after the Santa Rita No. 1 oil well gushed in on May 28, 1923. With few roads, living close to the oil fields was a necessity.

Kovach played a part in furnishing a rig and oilwell equipment for the Santa Rita No. 1. At the time, he was a 19-year old night clerk in Breckenridge for Continental Supply Company (now LTV Energy Products Company). Carl Cromwell, a famous wildcatter, breezed in late one evening and ordered the oil rig and equipment, saying it must be delivered in one night.

Impressed by the big sale and Cromwell's enthusiasm, Kovach worked well into the night to get the equipment on its way to Best. The inexperienced Kovach didn't stop to think about the customer's credit rating or the fact that he paid with a postdated check.

Fortunately, Cromwell set up the oil equipment at the Santa Rita No. 1 and hit one of the biggest oil strikes in history, making Kovach's unsuspecting gamble pay off.

Forty-one years later, in 1964, Kovach was cited by the University of Texas for his contribution to the Santa Rita No. 1. Despite the primitive living conditions in Best in the early '20s, the oil fields were booming and wealth flowed.

"Continental Supply had a million-dollar month, which was unheard of in those times," Kovach said.

For recreation, Kovach remembers playing bridge, or going to Texon to play golf or attend baseball games. "The best times we had, were attending dances in Best, San Angelo and other nearby towns," he recalls.

Despite the concern with crime, Kovach's most harrowing experience was an accident. It was New Year's Day, and most of the occupants of the Continental Supply Store had been at a New Year's Eve dance until the wee hours. About 11:45 a.m. a young couple attempted to light a gasoline heater. "It blew up when they went to light it." Kovach said.

Everyone escaped with no injuries worse than some slight burns, but the store was destroyed. It was estimated that Continental Supply lost $200,000, only partially covered by insurance. Not long after, the flow of oil began to abate.

"People began leaving overnight," Kovach said. "There was a time when a barrel of water in Best cost $1 and sour crude was selling for 10

Kovach closed the Continental Supply Store in 1934 and moved to Odessa with the company. Best, which once boasted of a beauty shop, grocery and merchandise stores, four hotels, a school and several other businesses, was virtually deserted after the Great Depression. By 1945, only about 12 families lived in the town, where street after street was vacant. Today it has a population of about 25, and the old jail and post office. Even though the 'best' of Best is gone, the town with the colorful past has found its place in West Texas history.

The critics of Moscow suggest they detect a soft underbelly in Mikhail S. Gorbachev's need to reach an accommodation with the West.

'The Soviet Union is at least becoming more sensitive to Western concerns," observed a report by the National Conference on Soviet Jewry presented Thursday to Secretary of State George P. Shultz. " Western human rights advocates have touched a raw, albeit tough, Soviet nerve."

Through June, the report said, 3,092 Jews had been permitted to leave the Soviet Union this year. That far surpasses the 914 who left in all of 1986, but the "relatively meager results" were contrasted to 1979, when 51,320 Jews arrived in Vienna, Austria, from the Soviet Union.

Morris B. Abram, the Atlanta lawyer who heads the conference, compared Gorbachev unfavorably to Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet leader during the highpoint of Jewish emigra-

"Mr. Gorbachev is very hard at work trying to deceive the American people and the Jewish people," Abram said after seeing Shultz. He described the release of B-47 several well-known Soviet Jews as a "public relations exercise" and denounced the denial of visas to Vladimir Slepak, Ida Nudel and some other refuseniks on security grounds.

In Shultz, advocates of Jewish emigration have a strong ally.

Perhaps more than any of his predecessors, Shultz has identified himself with the issue. Human rights get high priority in all his talks with Soviet officials.

The prevailing theory for the upsurge in Jewish emigration in the 1970s was that Brezhnev found it politically expe

The same reasoning may apply now to Gorbachev, who wants to direct his energies to the Soviet economy. To do that, he needs a respite from expensive military buildups and transfusions of Western technology.

So far, the report said, the signals from Moscow are mixed. While no Jewish refuseniks were sent to prison this year, and most public demonstrations were not disturbed by the police. some activists have been attacked and extremist, anti-Semitic elements have emerged, the report said.

"Everything that happens in this world happens at the time food Chooses. He sets the time for birth and the time for death. He sets the time for sorrow and the time for joy."

Ecclesiastes 3-1,2,4

In our time of sorrow, we have found comfort in knowing that there is a "time" for everything.

We den't understand why our comfort in knowing God is always by our side, will sustain us as we go through the days frigerators, freezers, microahead. We are so grateful for the wave ovens, washer, dryers, time Doug was with us. He touched our lives in ways we could never express. Doug was a loving, warm and sensitive husband. To our son Terry, he was a WHIRLPOOL Tech care. Serpoint for the S/W corner; THENCE, East parallel with the North line of said Section No. 125, a distance of 1270 feet to a devoted father. To our many friends, neighbors,

To our many friends, neighbors, co-workers and associates of Doug and I, on behalf of our family, we want to say "Thank You" for your tremendous outpouring of love. All of your thoughtful expressions in the form of flowers, telephone calls, cards, memorials, personal visits and the bringing of food visits and the bringing of food was such an encouragement to our family. There aren't adequ-ate words to express my grati-tude for all these shows of affection and love. Finally we "thank you' for your prayers. Prayers are always in order and I am strengthened daily knowing you are praying for me. My love to all of you and may God Please all of you and may God Bless You today and always.
