Back Taxes Soon Mount Above Property's Value; Special Law Is Cited

In an extreme case it would be possible to save three times the value of a $50 piece of property by paying delinquent taxes before January 1, 1933.

If, since 1880, no taxes had been paid on property assessed at $50, delinquent taxes, interest and penalty would now amount to $148.50.

According to a bill passed by the legislature and an ordinance by city commissioners, interest and penalty on all delinquent taxes will be remitted if the original tax is paid before the last of this year.

Bandit Holds Up Passengers Of Motor Bus

Golden Eagle Party Robbed Near Yardsburg, N. M. Tuesday

EL PASO—Ten passengers on a transcontinental Golden Eagle line eastbound bus were given an old time western thrill Tuesday afternoon when a lean young bandit commanded the 35-passenger vehicle near Lordsburg, N. M., and held passengers and driver at bay for 60 miles.

He halted Driver W. F. Wilson, 35, Dallas, near the outskirts of Lordsburg, and when Wilson opened the bus door the bandit swung sawed, pistol in hand and commanded him to drive on.

The bandits lined up the passengers and Relief Driver Paul Wolfinger on one side of the bus, and commanded them to hand him their money. He obtained about $20.

Seemingly at ease, he joked about the number of jails he had been in and martial troubles at home. Passengers glanced apprehensively at the pistol, and then at the desert country rolling behind them at 50 miles an hour and tried to believe that they were living in 1932.

Three miles out of Deming, N. M. the bandit commanded Wilson to stop, and jumping from the coach, ordered him to drive on. Wilson reported the holdup. Deming authorities, and a hunt was organized.

Passengers who were robbed included Ben Marks, Dorchester, Mass., 52; Austin Malley, Catalina Island, Calif., 32; Paul Elliott, West Castle, Penn., 75 cents; Mrs. Winford Pitchford, San Diego, Calif., amount undetermined; D. A. Gohman, Denton, Texas, 40 cents; Andrew Flight, Brantford, Canada, 75 cents.

Shutting In Of Gas Wells Is Enjoined

Commission Restrained By Three-Judge Federal Court

AUSTIN, (AP)—A three-judge United States district court had granted an injunction restraining the railroad commission from enforcing the order closing a portion of the west Panhandle gas field until certain operators there could obtain market outlet for their products.

The plaintiffs are two pipe line companies, one of whom petitioned the court last June restraining the railroad commission from requiring them share their market with persons owning wells in the field and having no market outlet.

Oil Men Believe Price Should Increase With Stabilization In East Texas And Conroe Fields

Cardinal Officials Say Trend In Tank Car Prices Of Crude In Favor Of Lower Gravity Grades Produced In West Texas

A general increase of crude oil prices, which should follow the stabilization of conditions in the East Texas and Conroe fields, should also include a revision of prices for 30 gravity oil from West Texas compared with the 38 to 40 gravity from the other fields, in the belief of Claude E. Aikman and other Cardinal Oil Company officials.

The trend in tank car prices over the last few weeks has been in favor of these lower gravity grades as against the ones of higher gravity, Mr. Aikman continued. The tendency of the last few years has been toward recovery of the utmost quantity of gasoline at the expense of the fuel oil, both in skimming and cracking operations.

Below are two tables from the Oil and Gas Journal of December 1 giving yield and prices in skimming operations on a high gravity crude from East Texas as compared with a low gravity crude from West Texas:

40 Per Cent Gravity Crude Oil (Prices in cents per gallon)

Product	Yield Gals. P. Gal. Ttl.	Price
Gasoline	38	15.96 3.75 58.85
Kerosene and Distillate	10	4.2 3.5 14.7
Topped crude	50	21 1 21.00
Loss	2

Total 100 42 93.53

30 Per Cent Gravity Crude Oil (Prices in cents per gallon)

Product	Yield Gals. P. Gal. Ttl.	Price
Gasoline	30	12.6 3.75 47.25
Kerosene and Distillate	10	4.2 3.5 14.7
Topped crude	58	24.36 2 48.72
Loss	2

Total 100 42 110.67

"The actual cash returns from a barrel of low gravity crude is greater than from a barrel of high gravity crude due to the fact that the fuel oil of about 24 degrees gravity from the low gravity crude has a low cold test of 0-10 degrees and brings 2 cents per gallon on the refinery markets, while the fuel oil from the high gravity crude has a high cold test and brings about a cent per gallon," Mr. Aikman said.

Price Difference Shown

"The differential in prices between these two crudes has been from 25 to 37 cents per barrel since the inauguration of higher crude oil prices beginning a year ago last November. Distance from markets affects the prices, of course, but I am informed that the actual cost of transportation between West Texas and Mid-continent refineries, also between West Texas and the Gulf Coast is but 10 cents per barrel over East Texas.

"Another thing to be considered is that the gasoline from West Texas crudes has a higher octane number than that from the higher gravity crudes, which should make a difference of at least 1-2 cent per gallon from the gasoline recovered. When cracking operations are considered this difference is often more exaggerated, as a higher gravity East Texas crude produces a large yield of low octane gasoline which must be either reprocessed with a loss or else blended with high octane gasoline to build it up to the required standard, while the distillate from the West Texas oil is easily cracked, making a gasoline of high octane rating.

Large Firms Want Crude

"West Texas crudes, due to their hydrogen sulphide content, are not sought by small independent refineries due to their corrosive action on equipment. The large refineries, however, have succeeded in neutralizing this action until their losses are comparatively small. In this manner competition in price has been eliminated and the big buyers have been able to buy at a price much lower than they have been forced to pay in the sweet oil areas.

"Proration was inaugurated in West Texas. The operators in Yates, Howard, Glasscock, and other West Texas fields have played ball, always with the feeling that if and when the Oklahoma City and East Texas situation were controlled that they would get a fair price for their oil. During the past year the price of crude oil has always been menaced by a threatened outbreak from East Texas, so little has been said about prices on oil from the Permian Basin, but when the new proration law, or some other in its place, is finally tested out and made workable, the West Texas operators will then expect a price for their product more in line with its worth which will be a belated recognition of their sacrifices in the past and in their efforts for orderly development of their great field," Mr. Aikman concluded.

Application has been filed in probate court Wednesday to have Mary E. Cashman approved as executrix of the Thomas Gilkes estate.

Webb Will Display New Pontiac Eight

Another new model automobile is in town. It is the 1933 Pontiac first of its straight eights, and will be on display beginning Thursday at the J. L. Webb Motor company, Fourth and Rannels Streets.

The 1933 Pontiac has 115-horsepower against 114 inches in the 1932 series and 110 in earlier series. Its features include full force lubrication and slow piston travel developing only 50 per cent of the car's maximum power at 60 miles per hour. The Fisher bodies have no draft ventilation system and no down-draft carburetor. Rubber insulation is used at 37 points in the chassis.

The price range, factory basis, is $585 to $995, or $10 to $70 reduction from 1932.

WASHINGTON By Paul Mallon

Conditions

President Hoover gets certain private figures from his experts showing how business is going. He put these figures into a compact table in his last message to congress. It was the first time they were ever published that way. A table is shown at the bottom of this column.

Expert statisticians say it is the most honest business chart yet devised. It eliminates seasonal variations and other statistical faults. It is simple enough for any layman to follow. They call it "The Hoover Chart."

The last month covered by the president was October. The following chart carries the figures on through November on his basis. His October figures have been slightly revised by more complete data.

Each month about this time the current figures of the Hoover chart will be carried in this column. They are prepared for you by the same experts who prepare identical figures for the President.

The strength of this chart is shown by the figures on Factory Employment. Great to-do has been made about the increase in unemployment during November. Those figures are available everywhere. This figure balances the published unemployment figures with the normal seasonal variations in November.

It shows that despite all you have heard the Factory Employment situation was one-tenth of one per cent closer to normal in November than it was in October.

The advance inside figures on December indicate we may expect another slight decline generally for that month when final figures are in. Industrial production probably will be off 1 or 2 per cent more. The drop may be smaller because automobile production is running high.

The prospects for January are fairly good.

Process

Congressmen slipped out of here like school kids to go home for the holidays.

Speaker Garner tried to protect his men from public criticism. He promised them that nothing would be done of importance after the beer bill. The colored Congressmen DePrest ruined the setup by asking a quorum call. It showed 205 present, not enough. Names of those present were left out of the Congressional Record.

Congressmen are unreasonably touchy on the subject of Christmas holidays. They are afraid someone is going to accuse them of shirking their work. Actually as little can be done in Congress as in most businesses during the holiday season.

Angels

A lot of inside gossip is going around the Senate about two millionaires contesting for control of the Republican Party.

The gossipers have Senator Couzens of Michigan willing to play angel for the progressive wing of the party. They would have you believe Senator Ham Keane of New Jersey is willing to finance the conservative element.

It is good gossip but only that. Couzens will be a powerful man in the future of the party if he wants to be. He has the confidence of both progressives and conservatives. He is not bound to either side.

In Civilization's Backwaters

One of the strangest little side-lights on modern times that has ever been disclosed is one that came to the surface in Chicago not long ago.

Not far from Chicago there is a little farm, occupied by a man who came over from Russia 20 years ago, bringing with him his family and a whole set of superstitions that stem in an unbroken line directly from the dark ages.

Members of the family had never seen a movie, heard a radio, ridden in an auto or a street car or seen a skyscraper. They were isolated from the modern world as effectively as if they lived in an unapproachable village in the middle of Siberia. Modern life had deposited them almost within shouting distance of Chicago, but in essentials it had completely passed them by.

Existence of this odd family became known when a daughter, 23, went to a neighbor protesting that she had brought a curse on her family. A pigeon had circled over her head, it seemed; a portentously evil omen. Then a cow had died, a horse had taken sick, and finally her father had lost his lease on the farm. And when the father

Court Issues Ruling State Loses Old Bed Of Stream, Gains New

AUSTIN—An opinion placed on file with the Supreme Court ruling in the litigation between M. Manry and the state establishes the rule that when a river changes its bed, the state acquires title to the new river bed and loses the old one.

The owners of the adjacent property have their lines extended into the middle of the old stream bed thus taking up the vacancy.

The opinion, settling a question heretofore open in Texas law, was written by Chief Justice C. M. Cureton.

The question arose because of a change in course made by the Brazos river in Fort Bend county in 1914. The old bed was in oil territory and Manry applied for permits to explore for oil on it. The state land department refused to make any grants and Manry applied for a mandamus.

Sam Rosen, E. H. Hammond, Sugarland Industries and the Humble Oil and Refining company own land adjacent to the old river bed and have their holdings extended. The area involved is approximately 124 acres.

The fact that a lake exists in part of the old river bed was held not to hold the title in the state. The land involved is a part of the original grants made in 1824 by Stephen F. Austin to settlers.

Rubber Bathing Suit

Helen Arnold's story is that of a refugee who came to America with her parents before the Russian revolution. Privation and want visited the family. Fourteen months later a producer gave her an audition, she was accepted and is now the hit of a popular Broadway musical revue. (Associated Press Photo)

Gems of Peril

by HAZEL ROSS HAILEY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

Mary had persuaded herself that The Fly would not come to night. It was the only way she could bring herself to approach the meeting-place with any degree of confidence. He would not be there, and she would have worn the rubies for nothing—except to make a little small-talk for the other diners, perhaps. She told herself that, and tried to be sorry. But she wasn't. As the time approached, dread of the encounter turned her knees to jelly.

If she could only have given it up and gone to find Dirk. The joyful expectation of seeing him soon lifted her spirits.

A cool breeze from the bay struck their faces as they came out of the elevator into the informal sort of lobby, set off from the dining-spar by tall potted palms. Hovering in a corner, watching the dancing, she caught sight of someone familiar.

George Bowen. Excusing herself, she hurried to meet him.

"Come in with us!" she begged him, pointing out that at least a third of the men present were in linen suits rather than the required formal dress.

"Not me—I'm just a voice in the wings," Bowen pleaded. "I barged in with my friend here, the society reporter." He brought forward a brown-eyed young woman in a velvet evening frock who looked as if she took her eyes from the ruby necklace long enough to be presented.

"I've got to be running along," Bowen went on. "But first I'd like to say hello to you." He bowed to her and then slipped out.

"But I had nothing to do with it," Mary protested. "Did she leave the hotel?"

"Yes. Bruce was with her. I told him the picture was for the society page and he didn't seem to mind. But here's the news—Miss Brown here thinks she knows her!" He turned to his companion. "Tell her about it, will you, Bella?"

Miss Brown smiled. "I know as soon as I saw the proofs that I'd seen her before," she said. "It was when I was doing some publicity for a steamship line. I was coming up from Havana on one of our boats. There was a French actress on board—at least she said she was an actress. And she could certainly act! I'll say she could."

"She and young what's-his-name—oh, you know, the Newport society woman's son—can't think of his name—were together all the time on the boat, coming up. He was only a kid, and he was crazy about her. She didn't claim to be a countess then—maybe that came later."

Well, one night there was a big frolic in her stateroom—scotches and a lot of bumps and bumps like someone was being beaten up. A steward said it took in on the rim. Here was this rich, boy sitting there stumped and beat with her clothes off and stammering things around and making a big noise. He thought she was drunk, but she wasn't. She knew what she was doing all right.

"It was hushed up. The boys' mother paid her off to keep the story from getting out. I was glad to let it ride, too. Steamship company don't like that kind of rowdy publicity any more than anyone else. But we took care to see she didn't slip on our lines again and turned our information about her over to the Department of Justice. I don't know what they did with it."

"Her name?" Mary asked. Do you remember it?"

Miss Brown shook her head. "Not clearly. Delorme, or something like that, Louise Delorme."

"I'm sending the pictures to the Department of Justice," Brown cut in eagerly. "I'll have the dope on her in a short while. Nest, eh, what?" He gave his companion a congratulatory whack on the back. "Browne, I salute you!"

"I salute you both!" Mary cried. "It's the most phenomenal luck I ever heard of—your remembering that Miss Brown. I can't tell you what it means to us all, or how much we thank you for it."

All except Bruce, perhaps. Bowen commented.

Not wishing to keep her two companions waiting any longer, Mary left them to go back to her party.

"Every minute you waste talking to these gals of yours is costing the boss money," Bates spluttered. "Pretty soon there won't be food enough in the place to fill me up."

"But wait till you hear," Mary crowded excitedly. "I've learned all about the Countess. And what nice little playmates you have!"

They turned toward the crisscrossed gate which formed the entrance to the dining section of the roof. The place was crowded—too crowded for comfort. "Extra tables had been squeezed in to accommodate the unexpected business which the fête brought. Tables were almost nonexistent, and the dance floor had shrunk to half its size."

The chatter of the crowd, like the roar of a vast human surf, was confusing, and Mary stood still for an instant trying to discover a lane wide enough to squeeze through to reach their table.

Suddenly she was enveloped in a burst of blue-white radiance that almost blinded her, and effectually shut out of sight everything but the small circle of blazing light in which she stood. A ripple of laughter heard applause from the crowd around her and told her that they had merely been the victims of a stunt. Each incoming party was being subjected to brilliant illumination by reflector lamps standing on either side of the entrance by way of introduction.

Mary followed the beckoning of the head waiter to their table, recognizable by the large white reserved card which was whisked away as they approached.

Jupiter was muttering angrily. "What's the matter with the damn lights? Put a man's eyes out!" But Bates appeared to enjoy the unexpected publicity.

"That's what I call service," he remarked. "And lady, you certainly do rate it, with those doll-eyes on."

In the low-cut ivory satin, her hair gleaming festively under the glare of the lights, Mary made a breathtaking picture framed in the doorway—the black velvet

Woman Criticises Shipping Horned Toads Via Mails

Dallas (UP)—Criticisms of Texans who are shipping horned frogs by mail and of postal authorities, who may safe shipment is possible in any place in the United States, was made here by a Dallas housewife who averred the matter "burns me up."

Mrs. H. N. Blakeslee, wife of a safety engineer for an oil company, entered the objection.

"I think it is a mean trick to send these little animals to people who do not know how to care for them," said Mrs. Blakeslee, "and to parts of the country where are sure to die."

Dallas postal authorities said more horned frogs are mailed during the Christmas season than at other times of year. Safe delivery from any place in Texas to any point in the United States is assured if the package is perforated to permit the frog to get air.

W. P. Luna, assistant postmaster here, said it is not necessary to provide food for the frogs.

"This talk about frogs dying or suffering while being shipped thru the mails is a lot of bosh," he said. "I have been in the post office here for 17 years and as long as I can remember frogs have been shipped through the mails."

Luna said it is sometimes advisable to give the frog food if they are being sent a long distance. Several ants dropped inside the carton is all that is needed, he explained.

Both Mrs. Blakeslee and Luna agree the story of the frog enclosed for many years in a cornerstone at Eastland, Texas, has created wrong impressions about the hardness of the species. The frog was found in the building when it was razed.

"Their utter defenselessness makes them easy prey to thoughtless persons," said Mrs. Blakeslee. "The frog is like the camel," countered Luna. "He gets along without food and water."

Luna, however, has not had the experience in rearing frogs that Mrs. Blakeslee has had.

Dirk's face changed as if a mask had slipped over it. With a look of stony recognition, he turned away.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Today Big Spring Basketball Incorporated is selling at the highest level in its history. Demands for the stock are coming in from all over the state, and appearances indicate a "bull" market for the locals can continue to upset teams like the Athens Hornets.

True the club that met the Bovines last night was not of the same youths who won the national and state titles, but it was a very good basketball team. Athens' star has no means sunk as yet. The record of the Hornets on their present road trip is as follows:

Hornets 28, Elkhart 18
 Hornets 34, Lubbock 15
 Hornets 35, Mineral Wells 10
 Hornets 41, Breckenridge 20
 Hornets 34, Lubbock 15
 Hornets 50, Plainview 27
 Hornets 42, Ralls 14
 Hornets 28, Big Spring 31

There is nothing in that record to indicate that the East Texans are drawing crowds on the basis of their play in former years alone. Their schedule has sent them up against the strongest quintets in this portion of the state in the last three weeks, and with the exception of the Steers all have been easy victims. Plainview led the red-jerseyed Hornets during the first half, but was swamped in the final two periods.

If George Brown takes a statement seriously that he made in a jocular mood last Friday he will be without a job this morning. The former A.C.C. star had already made plans for a Christmas vacation when the contest between the Bovines and the Hornets was scheduled, and he left his club in charge of George Gentry with the promise that if the Steers won he would not return.

"If the boys can beat Athens," he said, "they don't need a coach." It is hoped that Brown reconsiders this statement.

Comments on the game: If J. C. Morgan turns in one or two more performances like last night's we'll never mention David Hopper's name again—it was Lavin Harris' spirit that gave the Bovines the added punch in that final quarter—it was the first time we have ever seen a man knock a ball out of the basket as did Regan when Reid sunk a difficult shot from near the sidelines—Leo Hare is a much better guard than a forward—the return of Vandell Woods to the lineup will strengthen the locals considerably—he is spending the holidays in Dallas and is due to be ready for action against the House of David quintet—Mr. Physical Fan of the blistering letter published two or three days ago was much in evidence, and we think he got his money's worth—Coach Bobo Nelson of the visitors declared that Plainview was the strongest high school quintet in West Texas before the game. Captain Regan of the Hornets took defeat philosophically. "We're due to lose every now and then"—Big Spring fans had no reason to rage J. W. Toombs during the first two quarters—but at least that's an indication of spirit—the high school made little or no money out of the contest, but that is to be expected.

This evening the Big Spring All-Stars meet the Cosden Refinery Oilers in the local gym. No admission will be charged, and loyal fans may enjoy this opportunity of seeing Dave Hopper, Buster Bell, Tommy Hutto, Burrell Edwards, Ted Phillips, and one or two others working as a unit against the Refinery crew. Lloyd Forrester and Elmer Pardue are on Henninger's lineup.

As a delayed Christmas present we are going to personally see that Spike Henninger comes into possession of his watch this evening. That is if he will accept the time-piece without asking questions.

We are requested by one Fred Martin, a curly-haired guard on the Big Spring gridsters, to remind the general public that the Gate of a dance remains set at Thursday evening with the Crawford Hotel as the scene of activity, and that any and all members of the Caucasian race can obtain entrance to the glad event by extending the price of admission to the gate-keeper.

This is, Mr. Martin urges us to say, a bonafide benefit ball and a very excellent bargain for pleasure-seekers.

Special Fares Offered To Football Game In El Paso Jan. 2 Between Southern Methodist-Texas Mines

EL PASO—West Texas football fans will not need to travel to the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., to see an exhibition of their favorite sport, Jan. 2. A game has been arranged almost in their own backyard.

Southern Methodist University Mustangs, the flying circus of the Southwest Conference, and the Texas College of Mines will meet in a post-season game on that day at the El Paso High school stadium.

The railroads are offering remarkably low rates to West Texans who wish to come to El Paso for this attractive grid battle.

The Mines have completed the best season in the history of the college, a season that carried with it victories over four strong Texas college teams—Howard-Payne, Simmons, St. Edward's and Wayland.

The local team has a passer deluxe in J. B. Andrews, four-year star here. He runs the team from quarterback and besides passing does most of the ball juggling. He is the most brilliant star ever to wear the Orange and White of the Mines.

Sharing backfield duties with him will be Carroll Weaver, co-captain-elect for next season, Geo. Krutliak and Walter Milner.

The Mines forward wall will probably be composed Charles Coldwell and Ben Boykin, end; Al Williams and James Darcos, tackles; Lindy Mayhew and John Hawley, guards; and Carl Duffel, center.

Due to recovery from injuries, the Mustangs will have a stronger team here than they had during their regular season.

Coch Ray Morrison probably will start the following players in the line: Raymond Fuqua, and Fritz Han; end; Maurice Bray and Bob Smith, tackles; John Burleson and "Red" Jackson, guards, and James Bradford, center.

Kenneth Travis, the only man to score through Nebraska's powerful line this year, will start at quarter. Charlie Hearon, a 147-pound mite, and L. J. Oliver, a hard-smashing driver and great blocker will be at the halfback jobs. Capt. Howard Sprague, one of the best defensive stars in the Southwest Conference, will fill the fullback role.

A great passing duel is expected in this game. The Pones have the reputation of being able to do almost anything with passes—forward, lateral, basket and backward. Coaches Max Saxon and H. Phillips are drilling their teams on an aerial game.

The Pones will be favored to win but Coach Saxon is optimistic over the chances of his club. "We should give them a close game," he said, "and if we get any breaks we'll win." That's all we lacked of winning from the Oklahoma Aggies. The Mines played the Oklahoma Aggies, Missouri Valley champions, off their feet in a tilt here on Nov. 28. The score at the half was 7-7. An intercepted pass and fumbled punt in the last half helped the Oklahoma players to eke out a 27-7 victory.

The Mines-S. M. U. game will start promptly at 2 p. m. Monday, January 2.

S. M. U. has chartered a special train from Dallas which will carry from 500 to 1000 rooters. The 40 piece Southern Methodist band will accompany the team.

The largest crowd ever to attend a football game is expected. Ticket sales in El Paso alone have broken all past records. The large seating capacity of the local stadium assured every visitor to El Paso a perfect view of the football classic.

PERSIA CHALLENGES BRITAIN BY CANCELING OIL CONCESSION FOR JOHN BULL'S NAVAL FORCE

Writer Finds Anti-British Feeling Evident On Every Side—Dispute Not Referred To Arbitration

By EUGENE LYONS
 United Press Staff Correspondent (Copyright, 1932, By United Press)

TEHERAN, Persia, (UP)—Little Persia has challenged the British lion on the question of oil for the British navy.

Representative Persians, from Teheran merchants and politicians to chiefs of the wild interior tribes, have pledged their support to Shah Riza Khan Pahlavi on cancellation of the Anglo-Persian oil company's concession, a most vital link in the British world wide naval fuel supplies.

The whole country is aroused. The Shah, himself a former Cossack and once a guard at the portals of the royal palace, is said to be extremely grateful for this display of confidence in him.

The entire country appears to be most indignant because the British threatened to submit the bill dispute to the permanent court of International Justice at The Hague. The Persian view was the court could not consider a dispute between a government and a commercial concern, as the Anglo-Persian company is regarded.

But the British government owns most of the Anglo-Persian stock. It was purchased to insure fuel for British naval units in this part of the world. Loss of the concession would, of course, be a severe blow to the British worldwide system of supplies.

Persia acted quickly in her defiance of Great Britain. After the British government had delivered an ultimatum the dispute would be submitted to the Hague court, Persia took advantage of her membership in the League of Nations to submit the dispute to Geneva. Persia claimed she had the right to call the attention of the league to "British pressure" in the controversy and claimed the original concession was obtained "as the result of pressure."

In the Persian capital, one is impressed on every side by the anti-British sentiment. The oil dispute is the principal topic of conversation. Indignation over alleged British "intimidation and pressure" is voiced publicly. The recent Persian note to London regretted the impossibility of direct negotiations "owing to the threatening attitude of the British government."

Iran, semi-official newspaper known to reflect the views of the government of Shah Riza Pahlavi, is shouting against Great Britain's action. "The British note to the League of Nations" makes utterly false and unfounded arguments," the newspaper said. Iran declared the British claim the concession was annulled without warning overlooked Persia's repeated expressions of dissatisfaction with the concession terms.

No Arbitration
 "The dispute was not referred to arbitration because this might have been construed as definite recognition of the concession, which Persia never has recognized," the newspaper said. "Why does Great Britain emphasize the 11,000,000 pound royalties and ignore the hundreds of millions in profits and the immense political and naval advantages derived?"

Iran charged the concession was granted because of ignorance, selfishness and self-interest, and disregard for national and social interests. "These are three foundations on which the concession was founded and upon which the company erected a gigantic structure through which millions of wealth were accumulated, while individuals of the very country from which this torrent of gold flowed, were in crying need of its wealth and resources."

Local Officers Hold Negro For Pecos Job
 Leo Richard, negro, was arrested here Tuesday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Bob Wolf and held for Pecos officers.

Wolf took the negro when he found him in possession of five new automobile tires. Investigation connected the tires with burglary of a Pecos filling station.

Louis Robinson, sheriff of Reeves county, returned the suspect Tuesday night.

Worthless Check Brings Charge To Man Here
 J. M. Russell, held on a bogus check complaint, had bond fixed at $750 following examining trial Tuesday. He had not made bond Wednesday morning.

Russell is alleged to have given a check in excess of one hundred dollars to Emmett Hull in return for a car. The check, according to the complaint, was worthless.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) splendid inside job lining up the farm organizations for the Roosevelt program. It took two weeks' work but they came completely around in the end. They are talking about him now for Secretary of Agriculture. That may not be had speculation if you can imagine a New Yorker as Secretary of Agriculture.

Banks

The banking group in the House is not sold on the Glass Bill. They are trying to find ways of reviving their old Goldborough measure measure guaranteeing bank deposits. Senator Glass buried it in the Senate last session. The Glass Bill will pass the Senate easily in mid-January, but there is plenty of trouble awaiting it in the House. It looks very much as if the guarantee idea may be substituted for most of it there.

Notes

When a Senator won't speak you know something is wrong. That is the unparalleled situation on war debts. A certain internationally famous Senator said after the Hoover-Roosevelt correspondence: "I had planned to speak today but I think I will delay until after March. There is no use talking now." That is the first issue in the history of the world on which the Senate ever was inarticulate. More private confirmation has come that Governor

Roosevelt has not committed himself on Russian recognition. That does not alter the general inside expectation that he will recognize Russia as part of his new deal. It would be a striking way to advertise to the public the change in Administrations. Nobody goes to see a President who has been defeated. The White House daily calling list was virtually empty every day for a week before the President went away.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

Strategy

High inside sources foresee that the British may spring a surprise when they approach us again on debt revision. The plan would be to refer to the international debts as merely one aspect of an intolerable problem with particular emphasis on the plight of domestic debtors—especially the farmers. If this show comes off and is staged with proper tact it may have a woe of an effect. Congressmen fighting for relief for embattled farmers can hardly be so rude as to refuse to talk things over with an unsuspected ally. Local authorities are becoming more firmly convinced that we can never emerge from the swamp until the lot of debtors in general is somehow made more bearable. There are people in high places who are talking of a general moratorium on all long term debts.

Debts

The interchange of telegrams between Roosevelt and Hoover left Wall Street bored. The honors of the exchange, such as they were, are generally accorded to Roosevelt. There is a practically unanimous feeling that nothing effective can be done anyway until Roosevelt takes over. And as to fact finding, New York feels that all the salient facts are already known. Certain important New Yorkers are discovering they made a faux pas when they betrayed a strong personal interest in the debts to some of Roosevelt's advisers. The reputation of their efforts to make Roosevelt's mind up for him has been distinctly on the chilly side.

Sterling

Continued strength of the pound in foreign exchange is largely due to a heavy volume of short covering after England paid. Informed opinion is certain that the long time trend of sterling is still downward and the descent will begin again within a few weeks.

Smuggling

The rigid application of immigration restrictions is swelling the profits of alien smugglers. The ring is well organized and specializes in bringing in Europeans via the Canadian border. Two lawyers in New York have the business neatly divided. One deals with the lowlier type of immigrants who for a fee of between $100 to $200 are brought across the border by the ring's agents. The other one handles cases of more "substantial" foreigners. They come here on visitors' visas and are sent to Canada where in some mysterious manner the lawyer provides them with a regular immigration visa. The cost is never less than $1,000 and sometimes as high as $2,500. A New York Congressman furnishes cordial cooperation when required.

Business

A new organization, the Association of American Business, is nearly ready to announce its existence. Its leaders include Edward E. Hutton, Walter Chrysler, Thomas L. Chadbourne, and F. C. Frand of International Shoe. The object is to unite a broad range of business interests to present a common front to Congress on matters of taxation, government economy, and general business legislation. Sponsors of the movement feel that the time has come for business to exert unified pressure in its common interest. In the past various industries have tried to negate specific taxes by shoving them off on somebody else, but business as a whole has never had a program of its own. The new organization aims to create a lobby as directly potent as that of the Federation of Labor. One angle of approach will be the submission of specific tax and economy proposals. Another will be an earnest effort to hasten the repeal of anti-trust legislation. Impartial observers are skeptical. They say that even a first class man as executive director can accomplish nothing without unanimous support from a wide range of strong businesses. It is notorious that even two business men in competing industries, or when competing in the same industry, can seldom agree about anything.

Talkies

The great success of foreign films in this country and the attendant future profit possibilities have caused foreign producers to consider the appointment of an American " czar " to handle the entire business. Milton Diamond, the man who settled all the involved international litigation on talkie patents was chosen for the post. Through a tie-up with the Will Hays organization arrangements will be made which will permit every theater in the United States to show one foreign picture once a week at a nominal cost.

advantage with a long, wild shot from the center of the court that struck the backboard and bounded directly through the basket, but the whistle ended the rally a few seconds later.

Morgan Shines Honors in the surprising triumph went to J. C. Morgan, who turned in one of the greatest individual games ever seen on a local court, tying with Regan of the visitors for high point honors with fourteen points, and playing a marvelous defensive game as well, and in Regan's brilliant scoring spree in the final moments of play brought victory to the Steers. Regan led the scoring attack of the Hornets but floor honors went to Morris, guard. The score was practically even throughout the contest. The Steers trailed 14 to 15 at the end of the first half after initial quarter had ended in a 7 to 7 deadlock, and were behind four points after the third period, but tied the score midway in the fourth quarter and then never lost the lead.

Accuracy

Accuracy from the free throw mark kept the visitors ahead during the first half. Cordell scored the first point of the game on a free chance but Regan countered a few seconds later on a personal foul and then put Athens ahead with a short overhead shot. Morgan tied the score with a high arching shot from near the sidelines, but Regan scored his fifth point of the quarter. Field goals by Morgan and Reid shot the Steers on top, but three successive personal fouls were converted into as many points by Regan and Morris of the visitors.

Morgan was fouled near the basket and made good on both opportunities to make the score 9 to 7. Morris sank a basket from just back of the free throw mark to even the count, and Athens went ahead when Morris, Regan, and Trammel sunk five out of six free chances. Morgan scored two baskets and Cordell marked from the free throw line to make the score 15 to 14 in favor of the visitors at the half.

Cordell's field goal from near the left side placed the Steers in the lead at the start of the third quarter. Regan countered with an overhead shot to make the visitors' advantage three points. Cobb, fleet Athens forward, broke into the clear and took beautiful passes to score twice in the remaining minutes of play to run Athens' total up to 23 points, while the Steers' scoring was confined to another pair of free throws by Morgan, and a foul shot by Hare.

In the fourth quarter the Steers staged their rally to overcome the East Texans' advantage.

George Henshaw Winning Battle Over Paralysis

SAN ANGELO—George A. Henshaw, Jr., estimated to have made 25 million for himself and his associates in oil during the 18 years he has been an operator spent Christmas Eve at his residence, 1224 South Madison, waging a winning battle against paralysis of the lower limbs caused by a car wreck some 100 days ago. Lying on a hospital bed in the nursery room, he found delight in playing with 11-month-old Jean, a daughter of the woman whom he married and went on an airplane honeymoon, four years ago. Saturday it was still the Henshaw of vigorous mind, and many plans that failed the air with long arms and talked of the future when the injury further wields to treatment.

There is a new vanguard on the tongue of the dashing oil man—this time it concerns the build of the human body, and he chats of time spent in hospitals, while 21 doctors consulted his case. Quite different is that from the days when he sat on the derrick floor of wildcat oil wells, many of which came in trooping millions into the hands of Henshaw and his associates. He is getting better but his mind has not been inattentive to the details of the work that is effecting his cure. Long Greek words that represent diseases or polysyllabic medicines roll off his tongue.

Last Saturday there was a Christmas tree at the house, and George watched his two tots, and his wife, as Santa Claus, played by a neighbor, handed gifts here and there. An old fashioned negro woman who can cook turp greens and ham better than any one else in the world, as George described it, took her sides with laughter while he merriment went on.

"I am all rigged up here like a frilling well," commented Mr. Henshaw as he explained the manner in which the temporarily useless parts of his body are relieved by mechanical substitutes. By his bedside is a typewriter, on which Sam Goldman, an old time associate, writes the Henshaw letters. Nearby is a radio which plays incessantly. A radio, he said, is a Santa Claus to the sick. Once before he was ill and a special train rushed him from Hot Springs, Ark., to New Orleans where he underwent an operation. Then the trouble was hepatic abscess. This time he fell victim to a car accident, the late Carl Cromwell was killed in an auto accident in Pennsylvania in September 1931.

Boastful Youth Meekly 'Accepts' Rock Pile Job

The "potent" boast of a youth dissolved into meek submission Wednesday as he was forced to break rocks for the city. When arrested during Christmas holidays for being intoxicated in a public place, he confidently told officers, "I'm tough as a bag of wild cats."

Logan Hatchery To Open Six Season January 1

The Logan Hatchery, located with the Big Spring Feed and Seed Co., 105 West First street, will enter into its fifth year of operation, next Monday, January 2. Past records show that it is better to start raising your chicks early because the market is strong during the early part of the season, declare the proprietors. New equipment being added to keep this plant modern in every respect. Every effort is being made to make Howard county the best poultry center in the state. The hatchery will gladly furnish plans for housing, brooding, breeding, feeding, culling and they have a special plan for flock management. Each year several hundred dollars as premiums above the market are given to the people of this county by the Hatchery, and to those who will care for their flocks and eggs as they should premiums again will be extended.
