How Is The Constitution Amended?

IN THE 142 years that the Constitution of the United States has been in existence, there have been 23 constitutional amendments submitted, of which five failed, 19 have been adopted, and one is pending. Never before has any constitutional amendment, after its original passage, received such concentrated examination as the Eighteenth Amendment is receiving today.

Any change in the constitution is legally an amendment, whether it be to strike out the Eighteenth Amendment or to change its terms, or to substitute some other provision for it. Pointing the way to correct constitutional action, Attorney General William D. Mitchell recently broadcast a speech on "Methods of Amending the Constitution." The speech is a review of past amendment relative to the proposed "resubmission" and "recall" planks which are in the political platform this year.

How many of us really know how the Constitution may be amended? Is it not pertinent in this year of political campaigning, when every other word concerns a revision of the Constitution, that every voter have a definite knowledge of legislative procedure?

Anywhere from eight months to four years may be required for an amendment to be ratified. The Eighteenth Amendment itself required one year and one month for ratification. The procedure for amending the Constitution, as outlined by Attorney General Mitchell, is as follows:

1. The proposals for amendment originate in Congress and submission must be authorized in each house by a two-thirds vote of those present and voting.
2. The president's approval of the proposal is not required by the

4. Congress decides whether the ratification shall be by the state legislatures, or by state conventions chosen for that purpose.

6. Congress may submit not one but several proposals on the same subject, leaving the choice to the states.

8. The requirement of a two-thirds vote relates to the vote in Congress proposing an amendment. The requirement of a three-fourths vote applies to the ratification by a states and denotes the number of states whose approval is required.

ONLY JUSTIFICATION FOR PROHIBITION
By Dr. W. D. Bradford, S. M. U. Dallas

The only justification for prohibiting the traffic in intoxicating liquor must be found in the nature of the liquor. It is classified there as either a narcotic or a poison. Alcohol is that content of intoxicating liquors, to get which they drink the liquor. Alcohol is not a medicine. The best physicians of today do not prescribe it. Were I to list their names here there would be few exceptions. It is a narcotic. It is classed with opium; chloroform is made from it. Our government prohibits the traffic in opium.

Alcohol is also a deadly poison. It paralyzes the nerve centers controlling the respiratory organs of the heart. Death ensues instantly. It is reliably reported that 98 percent of our deaths from so-called "poison-liquor" is from liquor containing no other poison than alcohol.

It is also a slow poison. As a slow poison it damages the cell-substances that form the basis of physical existence and vitality. Here the poison is in direct proportion to the amount taken. It may be in moderate doses not causing drunkenness, yet, if regularly taken, stores up death against the day of a crisis in health, as an accident or disease, being the determining cause whether the patient shall live or die.

It will be noticed that this chronic form of alcoholism may result from moderate use, if regular, as under the saloon regime. During pre-Prohibition days, a distinguished actuary, Mr. E. B. Phelps, after a thorough investigation, reported that 66,000 of our people died annually from liquor, or 7.7 percent of all the deaths. The question is: Should our government license a traffic in such a poison? If it licenses it, it must necessarily protect it and tacitly recommend it. Can our government afford to be bribed for the tax it may collect thus to sponsor the traffic and use its endorsement to encourage our people to drink it?

The visiting societies were met at the door by the three church chairmen, W. Davis and J. L. Thomas. There was a good attendance.

Texas Topics

The senate eight years ago passed the Ferguson amnesty bill by a vote of 21 to 9. That was in fulfillment of a principal plank of the Ferguson campaign of 1924. That the amnesty bill was declared unconstitutional at the first time a court reviewed it is not so much a point as that in the beginning of Mrs. Ferguson's first term the upper branch of the legisla ure started out almost unanimously in support of her platform demands.

The vote then is cited in respect to a probable fight in the opening days of the session next January. If the Ferguson's choose to try to block other appointees in the senate and sent in their own substitutes. It takes 11 senate votes to block a confirmation; but it takes 21 votes to secure approval of an appointee. Three of the biggest fighting issues of other days have been settled to the full satisfaction of the

Perhaps there may again be the fight that has grown to bitterness in the past, over dealing a blow to the Texas insurance companies and rewarding foreign life insurance companies for refusing to comply with the Robertson law. This law requires companies to invest 75 per cent of their Texas reserves in Texas securities. It is a paradox, but the argument for repeal of the Robertson law is to induce out-of-state insurance companies to make more investments in Texas.

CALL of the WEST

By R.G. MONTGOMERY

CHAPTER XXXVI

Peace seemed to have descended upon Three Rivers camp and the slopes of Folly Mountain. Men trailed in and out of camp with rifles ready for the zest of the hunt was gone. All of them agreed that Slim Ball must have slipped through their lines and made his escape. Swain sent out a sheaf of telegrams to sheriff in the surrounding counties giving a description of Ball and posting rewards for his capture dead or alive. Dona seemed quieter and stayed close to camp. She was beginning to feel the old dread of marrying Dudley. He either seized this or had some plan of his own on foot for he did not urge her and two days passed uneventfully. Asper delayed their return to the city. He rode every day but did not go far because of a weakness that set in when he exerted himself. The doctor told him that he was repairing the wound was still an indelible shape. Asper granted and showed the inside his office door so that when he was free from the burden of daily examinations. Dudley rode daily into the hills. He must insist that Ball would not leave Folly Mountain; that he was still in hiding there. He argued this with Swain and the number he always wound up by saying "It's gone but any day may see Asper."

Three days for he had given her his promise. Asper came in one day, stamping up on the porch where Dona was sitting herself. He stood looking above her with a frown on his face. "Why don't you get up?" he asked. "You will be plumb and standing around eating the extra oats. Malloy feeds him. There was real concern in Asper's face. There was another matter he wanted to ask Dona about but he could not bring it into words. He was worried because he feared Dona and Dudley had had a quarrel. He could not understand Dudley's riding out home every day and leaving his wife."

Dona smiled up at her father. "I'm just resting, Dad. She knew her father wanted to ask why she didn't ride with Dudley." "Dudley rides a lot," he suggested. "Dudley and I had an argument about riding when we first came here. Dona smiled. I rode off and left him a couple of times you remember. There was a mischievous light in her eyes. Asper smiled grimly. "Just the same, he's a cool one for a new husband."

Dona assured him. In her heart she knew that Dudley was going to be the typical society husband and now that he was sure he could force her to marry him at any hour she wanted, he was in no hurry. Asper shook his head. Suddenly he bent and raised the girl's chin so that she could look straight into her eyes. "Remember, D. This family has never gone for the new jungle, wrinkles. Your mother and I never allowed we'd have a divorce in the family." He was so serious that Dona laughed outright. "With me it's for keeps," she smiled. "Jumping up she slipped her slender arms around her father's neck and hugged him. She wanted to let herself go and sob in his arms but pride kept her from it. Asper patted her arms with rough tenderness. "You come to your old dad when you've got five plenty of it to ride with you. He held her away at arm's length. "Everything is fixed ready for our first show down out of this country. Well, start tomorrow night as to us the heat in the desert. 'I'll be all packed and ready to go," Dona pouted. "A few minutes later Dudley appeared. He had been looking around the corral. Dona met him with a smile and he passed her hand. He then went to his room. "Dudley was looking particularly enthusiastic. "Sure I can get ready," he panted. "This afternoon I'm going to ride with you as a good goodbye to Folly Mountain. Dona was suddenly aware of a new excitement where she had not such exciting adventures but a few days past. Dudley lit a cigarette and puffed at it before he spoke. "How about going at one?" "Fine. I'll be ready and well take a real ride." Dona patted his arm playfully. "That afternoon they rode into the high country. Dudley cautioned her to be careful and to let him lead the way. He insisted that Ball was still lying low and waiting to finish the job he had started. Dona only laughed at that. "This is my last ride, Dad and I want to go the way I like best. I want to ride up the Pass Creek trail clear to the rim. She smiled eagerly across at him. Dudley was suddenly riding to let her have her way and they cantered along at a brisk rate. ## FIVE MAJOR

Premium on Overtricks
Overtricks - If one is not doubled and makes more tricks than contracted for the premium is the number of overtricks multiplied by the suit value. That is if one contracted for three spades and made five, 80 would be scored above the line instead of the 100 under the old system. The old premiums for doubles and redoubled overtricks are retained.

Premiums for exactly fulfilling doubles or redoubled contracts, these are abolished. The old rules provide 50 points premium for fulfilling a doubled not vulnerable contract, 100 for a doubled vulnerable contract, and 100 and 200 for redoubled contracts.

The new scoring for doubled and redoubled undertricks is going to cause some difficulty for players to learn. Said Ely Culbertson: "Many players will object that it is too difficult to remember and compute. I feel sorry for the hundreds of thousands of women who with the old scoring got along pretty well with the count on ten fingers and now have to take their abog to count on their toes as well."

Formula to Compute Penalties.
The penalty for any particular undertrick under the new vulnerable contract is 50 multiplied by a figure computed by adding 1 to the number of the trick. That is, the penalty for the third undertrick is 50 (3 plus 1) or 20.

Some Penalties Bloodthirsty
Penalties for infractions of the laws, in the view of the Whist Club, have been considerably ameliorated, though Ely Culbertson thinks some of such penalties are a little bloodthirsty. Hereofore the penalty for a vulnerable undertrick was 50 multiplied by the number of the trick. Now the opponents of such an offender may call for a new deal.

NEW CONTRACT SCORE CARD
(Arranged by Tom O'Neil of the Associated Press)

Interpretations of Today
Democrats will rely, among these "interpretations," the clear analysis of Mr. Hoover as a man who has "the utmost confidence and boldness in attempting to guide and oversee the industrial life of the country, initiating major policies as to wages, purchases of raw materials, capital investment and what not. . . . fields where under our political system the President has no powers and no responsibility" and a man bewildered and flummoxed in the territory of tariff, tariff adjustments and political stabilization where elected officials have the power of leadership and the consequent responsibility. Republicans will smile at his searing characterization of Franklin Roosevelt as a man weak and timid, "a pleasant man who, without any important qualifications for the office, would very much like to be President."

Overtricks
Undoubtedly, not vulnerable or vulnerable - same as suit value, that is one who contracted for three hearts and made four would score 90 below the line and 30 above.

Ballinger-Bronte Highway Route Encouraging To Colorado Citizens

COLORADO—Recent announcement from Austin that the State Commission had authorized designation of a state highway extending from Bronte southeast to connection with Highway No. 9 at Ballinger is accepted with a deal of interest by the local chamber of commerce.

While it is understood that permanent improvement of the newly projected route is not to be undertaken at the present time another step toward the goal of building a paved thoroughfare north and south through Colorado.

The state has already announced that Highway 101 will be paved between Colorado and Snyder. Surveys are expected to be started on the project before end of the present year. The chamber of commerce has reasons to believe this designation will be extended south connecting already constructed highways at either Sterling City or Robert Lee. Robert Lee and Bronte are joined with a permanent improved road.

The chamber of commerce is not authorized to advance any statement as to plans of the highway department.

Supreme Court Upholds Amendment
The wets say that the Eighteenth Amendment is unconstitutional. Since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, more than fifty cases have been decided by the United States supreme court involving some phase of prohibition. These cases cover every conceivable question relating to the constitutionality and interpretation of the Eighteenth Amendment and the laws to enforce it. The most fertile legal minds of the nation have presented the liquor side of these controversies, and in general it may be said that in every single instance their contentions have been denied and the constitutionality of the amendment and the laws has been sustained. These decisions cover a multitude of subjects and constitute an enlightening treatise upon the constructive purposes of the national prohibition policy.

NEW YORK—Two Vanderbilt university student escaped from an airplane accident with only a ducking, through a quick rescue by police. Lack of fuel necessitated a forced landing in the bay after the two youths had recanted a plane for a sightseeing trip over New York. One of the students, William B. Barnsdale, Jr., 20, of Clarksville, Tenn., was pilot of the ship. His passenger was Henry C. Rowland, 19, Washington, D. C.

RYE, N. Y.—A storm over the southwest again forced Ruth Nichols, aviatrix, to postpone her "campaign flight" to Los Angeles in the interest of the Republican ticket. Mrs. Nichols said she would leave as soon as the weather was favorable. She contemplates a non-stop flight.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

It is wonderful to be loved by everyone. Every week-end this department receives friendly, flattering letters from wise fans who wish to congratulate us upon our story of the preceding game, and few, if any, are ever so rude as to cast a reflection upon our infallible judgment. The latest of such epistles comes from Mr. J. A. Smith of the Smith Bros. Drug store, prominent sportsman as far as baseball and football are concerned, and says:

"Dear Sir—(Don't ever start a letter to us that way again Mr. Smith. We came very near tossing it in the waste basket because it sounded like a pun.)

"I wonder if you ever played any football." (That Mr. Smith is a very good occupation for you now that the Tigers are ending their baseball schedule. Get Sniggy, Hernandez and Juan Garcia to help you.)

"There happened" this Mr. Smith continues, and come to think of it his name might as well be John as anything else, "to be a boy by the name of Armstrong that made half the tackles yesterday. He was in as many plays as Dyer. Why don't you give the boy a hand? (Make it a foot and we'll see you.)

As it happens this department is not guilty of slighting Woodrow Armstrong in the least as far as the McCamey game is concerned. Army did put up a splendid exhibition, and as Mr. Smith continues, it was Armstrong and Dyer that were the bulwarks of the Steer defense. In our story of Monday afternoon we cited Dyer, Armstrong, and Martin as the three outstanding players in the Big Spring forward wall.

As a whole the Bovines looked better Friday afternoon than at any time this season. True, they were not the fighting mad youngsters that battled Sweetwater and Amarillo, but that was not necessary. Their offense clicked better than at any time this year. Koberg's punting was considerably Improved over any previous game, and a charging pair of ends held the Badger safety man to practically no returns. The ends, that is, and this Woodrow Armstrong. He did get quite a few tackles on those punts, didn't he, Snitty?

W. H. Coots, out of last week's game with an injured leg, is expected to be able to play against the Bobcats Saturday, but Jack Dean is not at all sure that Coots can earn a starting berth. Jack is just acquiring a regular wingman's position, and predicts that any and all challengers will have a hard time beating him out of it.

District News
One George Delker is at present on top of the District 3 scoring parade, principally through an ability to place-kick extra points. Delker has scored six touchdowns and kicked ten extra points to lead Bud Hall, Colorado speedster.

Richbourg, Big Spring's candidate, is in third place.

San Angelo's 61 to 0 victory over Midland set a high mark for District 3 circles this year, but it is by no means a record. The "point-per-minute" Steers of 1931 hold that with a 79 to 0 victory over Colorado.

Ed Keyes, Angelo line coach, commented after Saturday's game that the Big Spring team was displaying more power with each performance. The improvement is due to the better play of the ends and one of the backs.

Clyde Parks, McCamey, mentor, said after the Big Spring-Sweetwater game that his Badgers would not have to be afraid of an overhead attack from the Bovines, that the locals just couldn't catch pass. Saturday the Steers completed no less than thirteen for almost two hundred yards, and if any other high school player made more circus catches in one game than Howard Schwarzenbach we'll stand on our head and say boo.

Livian Harris is expected to be in the starting backfield against San Angelo, and according to our version fans will see one of the best backs in District 3 in action. Had Harris been able to play the Bovines might have been going in this week's game with an unbeaten record, although scribes are not very sportsmanlike and we've already dismissed the Sweetwater-Big Spring game with the simple and fair explanation that the Mustangs have the best team.
