

Government Efforts Could Perpetuate Drug Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal drug commission today said government efforts may be perpetuating drug use instead of discouraging it.

The panel urged creation of a new federal antidrug agency with a limited lifespan and asked private citizens to assume the major burden of discouraging drug use.

Reporting to Congress and President Nixon on results of its two-year study, the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse also said:

—Public notions about drug use are largely wrong.

—Private citizens rely too much on government to discourage drug use.

—America's worst drug problem is alcoholism. Heroin dependence runs second.

—Legal use of barbiturate "downers," especially by housewives, is "America's hidden drug problem."

—Marijuana is a minor problem compared with alcohol and other drugs. The commission reaffirmed its year-old recommendation to end criminal penalties for smoking marijuana.

The commission, relatively conservative in makeup, included nine members appointed by Nixon and two each by both houses of Congress. Its chairman is the former Republican governor of Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer.

The commission's sharpest words were aimed at what it called a "drug-abuse industrial complex," the welter of federal bureaucracies that now spend nearly $1 billion a year on anti-drug programs.

"To justify ongoing programs, the drug bureaucracy must simultaneously demonstrate that the problem is being effectively attacked, and that it is not diminishing... Throughout this process fundamental assumptions are not questioned, programs are not evaluated, and the problem is perpetuated from year to year."

The report recommended setting up a new federal agency that would take over virtually all antidrug law enforcement, treatment and prevention. States were urged to set up similar agencies.

The agency would be dissolved automatically after five years, unless Congress extended it. Its functions would be reassigned to other agencies.

The commission said that society should pay most attention to controlling the types of drug use that lead to crime or other behavior that damages society.

By this measure, it said, alcohol "is without question the most serious drug problem in this country today." It is strongly associated with violent crime, auto accidents, suicide and broken marriages.

The commission urged the alcoholic beverage industry to advertise the harmful effects of drinking and to refrain from tempting youth to drink. It rejected any return to prohibition, however.

Heroin is the only other drug which the commission found to be a major threat to society. The report said that, although only a tiny portion of Americans ever try it, and although most of them don't become dependent on it, the drug is nonetheless strongly habit-forming and especially attractive to slum youth and others unhappy with their surroundings.

The habit is expensive and often leads users to steal, push drugs and engage in prostitution to raise money. However, the commission said, the extent of heroin-related crime is often exaggerated and heroin isn't often associated with violent crime, as is alcohol.

Amphetamines, barbiturates, hallucinogens, methaqualone and cocaine rate only "moderate social concern."

However, it urged stricter controls on methaqualone, said cocaine use seems to be increasing and claimed doctors appear to be prescribing too many barbiturates.

The commission did not join Nixon's call for mandatory life sentences for heroin dealers. Rather, it called for better-trained police, less confusion and infighting among federal drug-law enforcers and efforts to prevent corruption of police by drug pushers.

It also said persons accused of simple heroin possession should be offered the option of treatment or counseling, either before trial or before sentencing.

Britain Releases New Irish Plans

LONDON (AP) — The British government announced today official proposals for the future of Northern Ireland in which the province will remain part of the United Kingdom and the Roman Catholic minority will be guaranteed full civil rights. Northern Ireland is also to get a new, 80-member legislative assembly. Elections will be held as soon as possible.

The new assembly to be elected will replace the old Protestant-dominated Parliament at Stormont which was suspended a year ago when Britain imposed direct rule. Elections will be by proportional representation.

The proposals, contained in a White Paper, also maintain Britain's right to legislate in Northern Ireland affairs.

The province's link with Britain will be retained as long as the majority of its 1½ million population wishes, the paper said.

British troops moved into Protestant and Catholic sectors of Belfast an hour before publication of the White Paper. Tension was running high.

The long-awaited White Paper, or policy document, was released under intense security precautions in London.

There was no advance notice of the publication date. This was to foil any attempt at terrorist bomb attacks like those 12 days ago when explosions in central London cost one life and left 243 persons injured. The blasts were blamed on Irish extremists.

Every legislator was searched personally and had his car screened at the House of Commons. There were special guards on all public buildings and at air and sea ports. The British proposals are designed to provide a basis for ending 3½ years of sectarian and nationalist violence which has cost 754 lives and pitted Catholic against Protestant.

Britain has more than 17,000 troops in Northern Ireland battling guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army which is dedicated to uniting the province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish republic.

The White Paper said the proposals provided an opportunity for all law-abiding people to "stand together against those small, but dangerous minorities which would seek to impose their views by violence or coercion and which cannot, therefore, be allowed to participate in wrecking institutions they wish to destroy."

The paper said that after the election of the new provincial assembly a conference would be held bringing together leaders of Britain, Northern Ireland, and the Irish republic.

It would have the following objectives: —Acceptance of Northern Ireland's present status and the possibility of subsequent change, with consent.

—Consultation and cooperation for the benefit of North and South.

—Concerted action against terrorism.

Spring Has Sprung

By RAY BAXTER
Spring has Sprung! Spring has Sprung!

Pampans are pointing out that, despite a fierce winter that had clung to as many March days as sunshine had, it all came out alright on this very first day of the vernal season... sunshine, only light winds and a predicted high of 70 degrees.

Locally, no one was even worried that showers are the prospect by Wednesday night, noting that any precipitation after today is a "Spring Rain."

A few Old Timers reminded that "there have been some mighty white Spring Rains in days gone-by."

But, the immediate prospects are for increases in cloudiness and warmth with temperatures in the seventies Wednesday, too. In between there will be a low tonight of 40 but weather observers feel cold weather is out for the season.

Elsewhere over the state, Occasional showers dotted areas from West and Central Texas southward to the coast today as a puny cool front eased through the east edge of the state into Louisiana.

Winds which stirred dust aloft the day before died down, meanwhile, in West Texas and skies were clear from the Panhandle-Plains sector into parts of North Texas. It was at least partly cloudy everywhere else.

Light showers fell early in the day in West Texas around El Paso and near Pecos, Fort Stockton and Sheffield, and patches of light rain were scattered south of San Angelo to Uvalde, Del Rio, Austin and Victoria.

Another area of very light rain spattered areas from near Austin to Corpus Christi and along the coast to around Galveston and Houston.

Senate Considers New Rent Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — After voting President Nixon's authority to ration fuels, the Senate is considering amendments for federal rent controls and prior government approval of major wage settlements.

The provisions are part of a series of bills to extend presidential wage-price control authority for another year. Several amendments would toughen Nixon's approach to fighting inflation.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., held off floor action Monday on restoring federal rent controls in certain metropolitan areas and federal approval of large wage settlements and big corporation price hikes.

The reason was that several senators were absent and Proxmire and other advocates of tighter controls considered the absentees' votes crucial to the outcome.

Rent controls expired with Nixon's Phase 2 program in January. Only the food, health and construction industries still must win federal approval of major union-management contracts.

Meanwhile, senators were still tossing more amendments into the hopper, aiming at everything from starting work on the Alaska pipeline to freezing food prices.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., sought to eliminate from the bill Monday two amendments approved by the Banking Committee and another to override the White House's Cost of Living Council decision on bread prices.

Tower won 43 to 35 on stripping from the bill a committee amendment by Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, which would have required public disclosure of big-business price information submitted to justify a price-hike request.

Boy Discovers Woman's Body
HOUSTON (AP) — The skeleton of a 76-year-old woman whom nobody had missed for a year was found in a garage apartment.

Police said Emma J. Banks apparently died in her sleep a year ago in the apartment where she lived for years while working as a maid.

Mrs. W. T. Jeanes, her past employer and owner of the apartment, said Mrs. Banks had retired but frequently visited the Jeanes home when she was not living with her own family in Sealy, Tex.

The apartment in which she died behind Mrs. Jeanes' former home now is used as rental property. It is in the densely populated Montrose area of Houston.

Mrs. Jeanes said she had assumed Mrs. Banks had returned to her family in Sealy and family members said they thought Mrs. Banks was staying in Houston.

The bones were discovered Saturday by a 9-year-old boy.

Only One Absentee Ballot Cast

Only one ballot has been cast in the first eight days of absentee voting in Pampa's April 3 municipal election.

Three of the five City Hall seats to be filled in the April 3 election will be contested.

There are two candidates for mayor. They are R-D. Wilkerson, a former city commissioner, and James B. Maule, operator of an E. Frederick St. grocery store.

City Secretary S. M. Chittenden said today the absentee balloting will continue through Friday, March 30.

Other candidates who will have their names on the April 3 ballot will be:

H. R. (Ray) Thompson, unopposed for the Ward 1 city commission seat.

William Tuke and Joe B. Curtis for the Ward 2 unexpired term of Wilkerson, who resigned to run for mayor after serving one year of his two-year term.

Leo Braswell, seeking re-election for a third term, and William T. Broxson for the Ward 3 commission post.

Arthur Rohde, Ward 4 commissioner, still has one more year to serve before that seat is vacant.

The balloting for all candidates will be city-wide. There will be four voting places, one in each ward.

They will be located as follows: Ward 1—City Hall; Ward 2—North Fire Station, 321 E. 17th St.; Ward 3—Optimists Boys Club, 601 E. Craven St.; Ward 4—South Fire Station, 1010 S. Barnes St.

Polls will be open on election day from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

US May Ask Extension For Peace Commission

SAIGON (AP) — The United States may ask that the four-party Joint Military Commission be extended in an effort to improve chances for a true cease-fire, U.S. sources disclosed today.

The commission, set up by the Jan. 27 cease-fire agreement, is due to be dissolved March 28. The sources said the United States is considering proposing an extension of the body which includes North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, as well as the United States.

The South Vietnamese delegation to the military peace-keeping commission has been filled in on the American considerations.

Queries to U.S. delegation spokesmen in Saigon have brought official denials, but other informants in a position to know confirmed that the United States is considering proposing such an extension.

The proposal is expected to be put before the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations soon, the informants said.

The proposal would come at a time when President Nixon has expressed concern over reports of North Vietnamese infiltration of troops and war materials.

"The extension of the four-party commission is under consideration," said one U.S. source, "but it's really in the elementary stage. There is nothing firm. There has been some talk within our circle, but it may never come to pass."

The source said the United States feels it is possible for the four-party commission to accomplish more than it has in its peacekeeping role if given more time.

"It might be able to create a more fruitful environment for the two-party commission," said one source.

The cease-fire agreement stipulated that the four-party commission would be dissolved within 60 days after the signing of the agreement on Jan. 27.

Earlier a Viet Cong spokesman said efforts will be made to release the last 147 American prisoners of war by next Sunday, three days ahead of the March 28 deadline.

ON FEDERAL AID School Proposal Meets Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposal to turn control of federal school aid over to local districts hit some opposition at its first hearing in Congress.

The critics included House Education Committee Chairman Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., who said it was marred by loopholes and inequities.

He predicted Monday that Congress would not approve the new federal aid concept in the 10 weeks remaining before the old one runs out.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said the plan would let local school districts spend the money where they need it, rather than wasting administrative manpower by filing for any one of 71 special federal education programs that approximate the local need.

"It is time," he said, "that the federal government ceased acting like a national school board, telling states and communities in great detail what they should spend and how."

He said the proposal would give local school districts more control over federal money than they now have.

Acting U.S. Education Commissioner John R. Otkina said the plan would cut off federal aid for 1.1 million disadvantaged students but raise the average aid per student to $300 from the present $220.

Weinberger said nearly 60 per cent of federal school aid would be concentrated on disadvantaged students, with three-fourths of that targeted for teaching basic reading and math skills.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said the plan would let local school districts spend the money where they need it, rather than wasting administrative manpower by filing for any one of 71 special federal education programs that approximate the local need.

Nations Battle Against Smoking

LONDON (AP) — Medical criticism of cigarette smoking has led several nations in the last two years to join the United States in requiring health-hazard warnings for tobacco products.

An AP survey shows that Great Britain, Canada, Japan, Mexico and Australia have adopted warnings similar to the one carried on U.S. cigarette packages:

"Warning: The surgeon general has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health." The surgeon general's report was issued in 1964. A warning on cigarette packages became mandatory Jan. 1, 1966.

Norway has banned all advertising of tobacco products. Less restrictive measures on tobacco advertising have been taken elsewhere.

But as in the United States where smokers purchased a record $47.2 billion cigarettes in 1971, the regulations do not seem to be changing many minds.

Cigarette smoking is increasing in Britain, where the warnings became effective two years ago, and in Canada and Japan where the warnings were adopted last year.

Mexico, Norway and Australia only recently have taken anti-smoking measures.

Pending legislation in Israel, which collects $50 million annually in cigarette taxes, would require warnings on cigarette packs. But the government has not indicated if it will support the bill.

The government decrees in Japan and Mexico could be costly if the warnings prove convincing. Both countries have direct roles in the marketing of cigarettes.

In Japan, the warning is: "For health's sake, be careful about over-smoking."

The message appears on packs of all cigarettes from the Japan Monopoly Bureau, a government corporation which controls cigarette production and marketing except for retail sales.

In Mexico, a new health code requires that packs carry this message: "Can be damaging to the health."

The Mexican government participates in the tobacco industry through Tabames, a state-controlled company formed last year to plan and finance production and other areas of the tobacco business.

Britain, which gets a big chunk in taxes from cigarette sales, spends about $600,000 a year for anti-smoking advertising.

A recent television ad shows a dinner party and depicts the girls there as disgusted by a man "whose breath smells like an ashtray."

The British warning on cigarette packs is: "Warning by H.M. government: Smoking can damage your health."

"H.M." means "Her Majesty's."

The message on packs of Canadian cigarettes says: "The Department of National Health and Welfare advises that danger to health increases with amount smoked."

Children To Tour 'Imaginary Land'

Mother Goose, fairy tales and folklore play an important role in the world of imagination for children, including those who are "old."

Elementary school children will take an imaginary trip to the Land of Mother Goose tomorrow morning during a program at Horace Mann School.

About 500 students will be bused to the school to watch the program.

Produced by first and second grade teachers Mrs. Mable Johnson, Miss Sherry Washington, Mrs. Karen Slate and Mrs. Sue Lindsey, assisted by Mrs. Hester Branham, music instructor, 110 students will present the colorful musical for the enjoyment of the other youths.

Sam Begert is principal of the school.

House Debating License Boosts

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — After one of its most unproductive sessions this year, the Texas House starts early today on a bill boosting hunting and fishing license fees.

Debate on the measure was interrupted by adjournment Monday without even a preliminary vote. No other bills were taken up in the brief Monday session.

The bill would raise resident fishing license fees from $2.15 to $4.25. The resident hunting license fee now is $3.25 but would increase to $5.25 for a general license and $4.25 for a small game license. Non-resident license fees also would rise. Sponsors said the measure would raise $5.5 million a year for game and fish management programs of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, which depend on license fees for revenue.

House debate has proceeded at a slow walk for more than a week, with Speaker Price Daniel Jr. attributing the pokiness to his new era of "democracy," which encourages full debate of each bill.

Another Bus, Truck Collide

CARLOS, Tex. (AP) — Seven children and a school bus driver were injured Monday when their bus collided with a gravel truck on Texas 30 in this Central Texas farm town.

It was the third major bus accident this year in Texas. State police said the bus driver, Bill Smith, 23, and one of the children were treated for serious injuries at Grimes Memorial Hospital at nearby Navasota.

Both vehicles turned over in the middle of the road. The other injured children, aged six to 15, were treated at St. Joseph Hospital at Bryan about 15 miles away.

Shelly Robinson, 6, of nearby Anderson was transferred to a Houston hospital where a St. Joseph spokesman said she could receive neurological treatment for a fractured skull, fractured rib and broken shoulder. She was in fair condition.

The truck driver was not injured, police said.

Earlier this month nine people died near Fort Stockton when a commercial bus collided with a truck, turning the bus into a rolling crematorium.

Two of the dead were burned beyond recognition. Seven children died at Littlefield last month when a train and a school bus ran together.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A security expert says the government's classification system is so flawed that even a foreign agent would know that markings of "top secret" tell little about the contents of secret documents like the Pentagon papers.

Security System's Markings Flawed

William G. Florence, who developed security regulations for the Air Force and Pentagon before retiring, undergoes cross-examination today as the government seeks to prove he is wrong and that "top secret" markings are important.

Florence, now a consultant to Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, testified in their espionage, conspiracy and theft trial Monday that the classification system has been ruined by indiscriminate use of secrecy on documents that often don't warrant it.

Banks To Defend Prime Rate Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Banks that raised their prime lending rate to 6 1/2 per cent will be asked to defend their actions before the Nixon administration's watchdog committee on interest rates.

Arthur F. Burns, head of the committee on interest and dividends and chairman of the Federal Reserve System, said Monday the committee is not convinced the hike of one-half percentage point is justified.

Shipwright Apprentice Learning a Dying Craft

By BOB YEAGER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The creaks and groans of ancient wooden sailing ships are everyday shop talk to David Houck.

Houck, 29, is said by his union to be the only shipwright apprentice in the nation's most populous state — an aspirant in a dying craft whose practitioners once designed, built and mended proud wooden ships around the globe.

"There's so much to learn," Houck said of his unique job in California's Maritime Historic Park near Fisherman's Wharf. "What I have to do is watch and try to get it all in my head."

He works beside older craftsmen repairing and restoring the collection of old wooden vessels in the park, a popular tourist attraction.

Apprentice programs are equally rare in other parts of the country, said Jim Tinkom, training director of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, the shipwrights' national union.

"The moral of the story is don't buy a big wooden sailing ship unless your handskills are pretty good," he said.

Nominally, shipwrights still exist in the San Francisco area. Harry Dring, maintenance supervisor at the park, said about 70 belong to the shipwrights' union, Local 1149, the oldest union in the state.

The majority find their work in modern shipyards on steel-hulled commercial vessels. "But if you told them you wanted to build and repair a large wooden sailing ship, they wouldn't know where to begin," Dring said.

Most wood-trained shipwrights today are in their 60s and 70s and "were raised — no matter how the liberals and intellectuals poo-poo it — according to the work ethic in a hard, exacting craft," he said.

That craft must include an intimate knowledge of the network of planks and fittings that make up the hull of a wooden vessel.

"A shipwright has to be far more competent than an up-town carpenter nailing 2 by 4s together," Dring said. "An old ship is a mass of curving wood. Not only is it complex; it can't leak."

Threatened with total extinction of the shipwright's skills — and desirous of maintaining the six nautical heirlooms at the maritime park — the state began a search for a young apprentice. Houck started the three-year training program "not knowing a poop deck from a forecandle." He is under the tutelage of foreman Joe Beviacqua and three other shipwrights at the park.

Beviacqua is 68. The youngest of his journeymen is 51. The dark-haired mustachioed Houck confesses that the age gap can be frustrating.

"They get a little impatient when I don't learn in a year what they have learned in 40 years," he said.

Houck's unique training experience draws on centuries of historical precedent. Early efforts to improve shipbuilding were led by King James I, who in 1605 chartered a Shipwrights Guild with jurisdiction over all shipyards in England.

The Guild soon offered improvements of its own. Master Social Security Q And A

Q. I have been signed up for hospital insurance under Medicare for several years. Last year when I was hospitalized, I only had to pay a $60 deductible. I understand that if I go to the hospital now, I will have to pay a $72 deductible. Is this correct?

A. Yes. Starting Jan. 1, 1973, the deductible under the Medicare hospital insurance program was increased to $72. There have been several increases in the deductible since 1966, when Medicare first went into effect. The deductible is adjusted to keep in line with the average cost of one day's stay in the hospital.

When the deductible was increased, there were also increases in three other areas of the Medicare hospital insurance. For hospital stays of more than 60 days in a benefit period a patient is required to pay $18 a day for the 61st through the 90th day. A person who has a post-hospital stay covered by Medicare and lasting more than 20 days in an extended facility pays $9 a day for the 21st through the 100th day.

Houck works beside older craftsmen, repairing and restoring the collection of old wooden vessels moored in California's Maritime Historic Park near Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco.

Q. I have been signed up for hospital insurance under Medicare for several years. Last year when I was hospitalized, I only had to pay a $60 deductible. I understand that if I go to the hospital now, I will have to pay a $72 deductible. Is this correct?

A. Yes. Starting Jan. 1, 1973, the deductible under the Medicare hospital insurance program was increased to $72. There have been several increases in the deductible since 1966, when Medicare first went into effect. The deductible is adjusted to keep in line with the average cost of one day's stay in the hospital.

When the deductible was increased, there were also increases in three other areas of the Medicare hospital insurance. For hospital stays of more than 60 days in a benefit period a patient is required to pay $18 a day for the 61st through the 90th day. A person who has a post-hospital stay covered by Medicare and lasting more than 20 days in an extended facility pays $9 a day for the 21st through the 100th day.

Shipwright Phineas Pett introduced the use of scale models and mathematically developed plans, making possible the construction of identical vessels. Wooden ships gave way to metal hulled counterparts at the turn of the century and the traditional skills that went into their design and construction began to fade.

Ford Foundation To Continue Aid
NEW YORK (AP) — The Ford Foundation, which dispenses about $50 million annually to poor countries, says it has decided to continue its aid program for another decade.

"We found no major or geographic region that we should turn away from," McGeorge Bundy, president of the foundation, said in an annual report.

But, he said, there will be a change in emphasis. There will be an "increased and more explicit concern for the least advantaged" and greater reliance on local institutions rather than imported experts.

BATTIN' AROUND Nation Facing Division From Social Changes

By C.R. BATTEN
"The 1970's are shaping up as a battleground with the prospect of the country being riven by division and polarization," Daniel Yankelovich told the American Mining Congress at San Francisco last September.

Yankelovich, who has "been studying public opinion now for over 20 years," believes that three major forces are creating social changes that are confusing and upsetting to many people, and are leading to the increasing conflicts of the seventies.

"The first is a growing conflict in values between the people who are mainly concerned about their economic security and the people who no longer fear economic security and who have instead developed a psychology of affluence."

Until recently we have shared a national consensus on the importance of an economic security, he explained. But "Today that consensus is broken." The smoke stack is now a symbol of pollution instead of jobs and prosperity.

Yankelovich estimated that six out of ten persons still hold to the old ethic of economic security, but it is important that four out of ten persons have developed a new "psychology of affluence."

During the next decade, the battle will be fought "between those who place economic security at the head of their list of priorities, and those who are willing to risk economic security for the sake of better environmental protection, the preservation of natural resources, population control, limiting an economic growth and other values."

The second great force that is creating rapid social change is "the moving line of demarcation between government and the private sector whereby government acquires an ever increasing power at the expense of the private part of the economy."

"One of the most powerful forces in the country is the process whereby yesterday's economic goods become redefined as today's citizens rights, the issue of the rising expectations of the public..." said Yankelovich.

The major cause of this massive erosion relates to consumerism... The present climate of consumerism and mistrust of business by public opinion is regarded as a hunting license by many ambitious politicians.

The third force of social change is what Yankelovich calls the "New Naturalism"—essentially a new personal philosophy of life.

The New Naturalism seeks... to establish a new harmony with nature. Nature in a sense becomes a sacred object," he said. It rejects "the traditional philosophy that opposes man to nature and sets mastery over nature by scientific and technological means among men's highest goals and achievements."

The combination of the three forces—the psychology of affluence, the moving line of demarcation between government and the private sector, and the New Naturalism—is likely to continue to grow during the next decade, in spite of a strong reaction against them.

Yankelovich sees the reaction as a backlash to the negative criticism that has been aimed at the country and its motives, and to public distress over what many see as a threat to the country's social stability.

"Do not fall into the trap of regarding your relationship with the public as a form of adversary proceedings," Yankelovich told his audience. "If you treat the public as a lawyer treats an adversary, you will create the very situation you wish to avoid—a hostile public environment."

"But if you assume that the public wants what you yourself want, namely, to strike the best possible balance between profit-making and serving the real needs and interests of the public, you cannot go wrong however full of pitfalls and booby traps the future may be."

Too many of today's controversies on environmental issues are conducted as though they were adversary proceedings.

Radio & TV News

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Robert E. Mulholland, recently named an NBC vice-president for television news, helped bring about a change in local TV news that astounded broadcasters in the late 1960s.

As news director of KNBC-TV in Los Angeles, one of five NBC-owned stations, he was instrumental in expanding its locally produced news effort in the early evening from one to two hours.

It gave the nation two separate news programs at five and six p.m., each show with its own anchorman, sportscaster, weatherman and writing staff. After that came the network's half-hour "Nightly News" show. It added up to a total of 2½ hours of continuous news.

That operation, still going strong, has sparked a slow trend in major markets to one-hour local news programs in the early evening. And at least one station, WTOP-TV in Washington, D.C., has had a 90-minute local news show since August.

When KNBC adopted its lengthier news format, "other broadcasters thought we were crazy," laughed Mulholland, executive producer of NBC's "Nightly News" until his new appointment early this month.

"It was really watched in broadcasting and everybody thought, 'they're nuts,'" he said. "Everybody else thought that the repeating of news was just crazy."

"And we thought quite the contrary. We felt that if there was a good story, people would hang around."

"We found out that many people were interested in seeing it for a second and often a third time."

"Ironically, the trend to longer locally produced news shows may be delaying any planned expansion of network news shows to an hour."

"For us to clear more time for the network news show means that we'd be taking time from local stations that already are programming news in that (early evening) period," Mulholland said.

"I think it was probably easier to lengthen network news shows from 15 minutes to a half hour than it is now to lengthen them to an hour," he said, referring to the networks' great leap forward in 1963.

"This is because there's been a local news revolution in the United States."

So when will network news show go to an hour? Mulholland could offer only a vague guess and it didn't include a specific year.

"I think that you'll see local stations doing more local news — expanding to the 90-minute or two-hour format — before you'll see the network news shows expanding to an hour," he said.

Tongue Twisters Train Students As Auctioneers

By TOM SIEBERT
Associated Press Writer
LAMAR, Colo. (AP) — Can you say: Theopolis Thistle the famous thistle sifter, after sifting a sieve full of unsifted thistles, thrust 3,000 thistles through the thick of his thumb?

Or how about Betty Botter bought some butter but she said, "This butter's bitter. If I put it in my batter it will make my batter bitter." So she bought a bit of better butter, put it in her batter, better butter better — so it's better Betty Botter bought a bit of better butter.

For a breather try counting up to 100 and back by 2 1/2s. Now memorize and recite them quickly and without a hitch and you're ready for Scott Pittullo's auctioneering class at Lamar Community College.

These and other zany chants are practiced each week by a dozen students in the non-credit course. The school says it may base a one-year occupational program on the course next year.

The reason for tongue twisters and counting up and down by quarters and halves, says Pittullo, is that rhythm is the secret of an auctioneer's success.

"We use and use and use the drills till they're so tired they don't know whether they can go anymore or not. But if you don't get your dollars and quarters in the right place you lose your rhythm."

"It isn't so much the speed that makes you think an auctioneer's fast, as his rhythm. The excitement in the chant causes people to bid."

Unbelieving
Hudson's Bay Company trappers were the first Europeans to see Plains Indians hunting buffalo from horseback. Their accounts were ridiculed by officials and settlers who were convinced that Indians couldn't ride.

The impala antelope reacts to danger with soaring jumps that carry it 10 feet high and three times that distance.

A Rubber Check? It's Quite Legal

By CARLTON SMITH

There used to be this splendid British custom—back in the days, not too long ago, when only members of the better classes had checking accounts at the banks—of treating an overdraft like a glove someone had carelessly dropped.

The overdraft—better known in the United States as a bum check—would be called to the attention of the bank's customer in a gentle note. None of this bouncing the check. The bank went ahead and paid it.

After a bit, when it was convenient, good old Freddy would pop in with enough funds to remedy the matter. "It's a pleasure, sir," his banker would say.

In effect, the bank had made good old Freddy a no-interest loan, to take up the slack when he got careless about watching his balance. Simply something you do for a gentleman, what?

No need for you to envy this graceful way of life. You, too, can run an overdraft at your bank—pop in after a bit and cover the loan—and nod gravely as your banker thanks you. As well he should, considering the interest you're paying him.

The approved overdraft is actually one of the two principal methods used by banks for making automatic credit available to customers. If your application has been approved, you are simply allowed to write regular bank checks for more than you have in your balance.

A few years ago, when banks were just starting these credit plans, this method was actually known in banking circles as the approved overdraft. It's since been decided that a proper banker shouldn't encourage overdrafts, approved or not—so it now goes under other names like ready credit, line of credit, revolving credit, and such.

The other method involves issuing special checks, handled through a special account rather than your ordinary checking account.

In either case, it's an arrangement whereby you can write checks, and have them paid, when you don't have that much money in the bank. In either case, your "N.S.F." check is automatically converted to a loan, on which you thereafter make monthly payments—with interest, of course.

Is one method better than another, from the point of view of the customer or borrower?

No. The main thing to be looked for is the difference in repayment requirements, and this seems to have no relation to which method a bank uses.

Read the applications carefully, and you'll find the minimum monthly payment stipulated as a fraction—generally 1/20—of either the "balanced owed" or of "maximum credit available."

This can make quite a difference. Your bank has approved your "line of credit" for a maximum of $600, for example. And, being temporarily short, you use one of your "rubber" checks to make a $200 purchase.

If the minimum monthly payment called for is 1/20 of "balanced owed," you'll be required to pay at least $10 a month. If it's 1/20 of "maximum credit available" ($600), your minimum payment is $30 a month.

Under the latter arrangement, of course, you'll pay off the loan more quickly, and your total interest charges will be smaller. But you might find yourself obligated for uncomfortably large monthly payments.

Under the other plan, you're at liberty to pay off your loan just as fast, and hold interest costs down—but you don't have to, if it pinches.

Geothermal Power

World production of geothermal power, in which the Earth's heat is used to produce steam that drives generators, now totals more than a million kilowatts. Geologists believe this could be increased ten-fold, a pollution-free source of power that would be equivalent to burning a billion tons of coal.

Dixie Parts Carries Full Line Auto Parts, Accessories

Dixie Parts and Supply, with two convenient locations, provides Pampa and the surrounding area with an automobile supply center that is unequalled in the trade zone.

Complete lines of brand names and factory guaranteed parts are kept in complete stock at both store locations, 417 S. Cuyler and 1421 N. Hobart.

Many years of experience in the supply field by the Dixie personnel insure sound purchases for the customer.

Parts for all trucks and cars are in supply or can be obtained by fast individual order.

Auto air conditioning is another feature of the stores. Operating with the slogan, "complete stock auto parts," Dixie has in the stores such items as mufflers and tailpipes, starters, generators, shock absorbers, fuel pumps and brake shoes.

All automobile accessories are available. Professional and backyard mechanics are reminded that for the best replacement parts on any model of any make of automobile, they can give Dixie a call.

If they don't have the part or accessory in stock, they will be happy to make quick and special orders.

Years of successful business and many satisfied customers in the Pampa area testify to the quality of merchandise and service offered by the stores.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — Collecting has become the American avocation, as you probably have observed in the homes of your stamp-coin-antique-plate-gold-silver-art-collecting friends and neighbors.

Psychologists and economists agree that one of the basic impulses of the collector is the need for something of substance and value in an age made insecure by monetary and political upheavals.

But does this explain the latest behavioral oddity on Wall Street, the collecting by companies of their own shares? Some of the biggest, most prosperous blue chips are seeking millions of dollars of their own shares.

Gulf Oil has announced a re-acquisition goal of 10 million shares. United Aircraft wants 1 million. So does Bethlehem Steel. Sperry & Hutchinson, the Green Stamp company and an authority on collecting, wants 500,000.

So far this year the dollar value of repurchase plans appears to be well over $1 billion, a sum far greater than for the entire year 1972, and there is little evidence that the fervor is fading.

Customarily, companies seek their own stock in order to service their stock options and employ purchase plans and to have a supply available for possible acquisitions.

But there appears to be something additional at work this year, and that is low price. Many companies believe their stock is selling at bargain rates, in some instances near or below book value.

In other words, they believe at the moment that they themselves are the best buy in the market—and they should know, because it is they who keep the books. If other investors don't agree—well, too bad for them.

It is easy to spot a company whose stock is trading below book value, it being a simple matter of deducting liabilities from assets, dividing by the number of shares outstanding and then comparing that figure with the selling price.

It is another matter to project current statistics into the future. Clearly many investors are not as enthusiastic about the immediate outlook as are some corporate treasurers who see big profit gains in the next year.

Argus Research Corp., which supplies much of the basic research used by many brokers, comments that there is "literally tremendous room for profit growth over the next several years."

Ford's Body Shop Offers Best Body Work For Cars

For the best body work in Pampa—and in the immediate area—the place to take your damaged car or pickup is Ford's Body Shop at 111 N. Frost.

Coyle Ford, owner and operator of the shop, has been in the body repair business since 1934. Ford's Body Shop has been here in Pampa since 1944.

Wilbur Agrees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee says he agrees with a former economy adviser to President Nixon that the economy is out of control.

He said tighter anti-inflation controls must be imposed, trade imbalances with Japan and Canada must be corrected soon, and federal spending must be curbed.

In an interview on NBC's Meet the Press, the Arkansas Democrat said Sunday he isn't satisfied with Nixon's Phase 3 program for holding down inflation and price increases.

"I think we are going to have to have another phase program called, I guess, Phase 4, that will be more effective than Phase 3 has so far proven to be," he said.

He was asked to assess Dr. Pierre Rinfret's statement that the economy is out of control due to inflation and the overseas assault on the dollar.

Several expert repairmen, including Ford himself, are on hand at the shop, ready to get your automobile back on the road as quickly as possible.

Ford's Body Shop has built its reputation for good body work over the years because of the know-how of the employees of the shop and the fact that only the very best and latest in the equipment and materials is used in repair work.

Satisfaction is guaranteed to suit the customer's taste on all work done in the shop.

Coyle Ford invites you to come by the shop at any time to look over the facilities and equipment and observe the work done by the trained, experienced body repairmen employed by Ford's Body Shop.

Dear Abby

Coordinate your watches for better sex life

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: After 18 years of wedded bliss, my wife and I agree that youth is wasted on the young. When it comes to romance, the young lovers could learn a lot from us old lovers in our 40s and 50s.

However, we do have one problem. Timing. My wife doesn't care for romance in the morning because she has to get up and get three school-age kids breakfast and consequently she keeps one eye on the clock.

On the other hand, I am a commercial pilot, and after a day's work I'm pretty well exhausted and I don't care for romance at night.

My flying schedule permits me to be home during lunch time occasionally, but that's no help because two of the kids come home for lunch.

Any suggestions? EL CAPITAN

DEAR CAP: Compromise and set your alarm for 3 a. m. Or else when you're home for lunch, treat the kids to lunch out, and treat yourself to lunch at home.

DEAR ABBY: I am 18 years old and have a 4-month-old baby. My baby's father and I love each other and now we want to get married.

My mother says we should go to the courthouse and get married and then have a small reception for just our closest friends afterward. She says with all the talk already, she would just as soon not have to see any of her relatives.

My boy friend's mother says she wants a nice church wedding with friends and relatives. She says people are going to talk anyway.

I really don't know what to do Abby. I hate to hurt my mother's feelings. And I don't want to disappoint my boy friend's mother either. So will you please tell me what to do? UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED: You've told me what your mother wants. And also what your fiance's mother wants. But it's your wedding, and your fiance's. What do YOU TWO want? When you agree on that, you'll have your answer.

DEAR ABBY: Someone signed "ONE IN SEVEN" attempted to justify large families for those who can "afford" them. I offer some economic facts.

It costs approximately $800 per year to educate one child, which adds up to $67,200 for seven children. If the parents actually paid this sum over a 24-year period, and if they lived in this area, they should be living in a $203,600 house and pay $5,600 in property taxes, half of which would be school taxes. They should have a minimum annual income of $50,000!

How many seven-children families do you know in this bracket? So who is paying for them? The childless, single, and retired people are—thru their taxes! And I for one am fed up with unfair taxes. MRS. A. P. IN BREA, CAL.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DISTRACTED IN THE COMPOSING ROOM": My friend, Dr. William L. Rivers of the Stanford University Journalism Department, said, "Typographical errors are worse than errors of ignorance. The ignorant can be taught. Moral: Be careful." [I'm with Old Man Rivers.]

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90089. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Have to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90089, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 21
Your birthday today: Today's natives tend to work in heavy rushes, with gaps of idleness interspersed, but are very practical in their organizational efforts.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The easier going your approach, the better. Social flings bring about unexpectedly high expenses, further complications.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: It takes time to taper down from yesterday's tensions. Serious conversations bring lasting impressions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Temperize with the impatience of younger people, find some lesson in watching them. This is a good day for slowing down.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: An optimistic mood is par for the course but may lead to overconfidence. Invite old friends for a quiet party.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: The emphasis shifts to your basic principles, the areas which you are directly concerned with improving and holding.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: The urge to force perfection onto temporary procedures wastes time, diverts your attention from something more important.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Get a bit deeper into current projects, pick up trifles from yesterday and put them to good use.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You should compete for what you want. What you do not ask for slips away because it isn't clear that you want it.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Your friends are full of ambitious schemes and social impulses, not all of them for your best advantage.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Where you need to make delicate adjustments, do them now. Put finishing touches on anything that needs them.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Reflect on recent events, see if there is some lesson to be learned, make a new set of plans and rules for yourself.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Whatever shortcoming you have will certainly show up somehow. Accept help from individuals or organized groups.

South lost no time going down two tricks at his four-heart contract. He let East's king win the club lead. East returned the three of spades and South hopped up with his king. After that start the defense had no trouble collecting three more tricks.

South was even quicker to blame his partner for the debacle. "Couldn't you have let me play at two hearts?" he asked. "Since when do you rebid a minimum hand?"

North said nothing but did tell us later on that he felt that he almost deserved a medal for not punching South in the nose.

We don't approve of mayhem at the bridge table but certainly North was entitled to some redress from South.

North had a good 15 high card points with four hearts and a doubleton spade. South's two-heart rebid improved North's hand a lot and while he might have merely bid three hearts we can't really fault his jump to game. As a matter of interest, if you trade East's king of clubs for West's 10 or seven, South could actually have made four hearts.

South should have responded one heart, not one spade. That would have allowed North to raise to two hearts and South would have passed.

The one spade response was an error but the two-heart call was criminal. South should have let North play and make one no-trump. Why make a second bid with his balanced piece of junk? (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

It's important to use the correct amount of salt in a yeast bread because too much salt will retard the yeast action.

For a delicious salad marinate cooked snap beans in French dressing and add thin strips or rings of red onions.

LEAGUE MAILED CARDS—Appointment cards have been mailed for the eighth annual Speech, Hearing, and Vision Clinic sponsored by Junior Service League of Pampa. All children entering kindergarten or first grade in the fall of 1973 are eligible to attend this free clinic at the First Christian Church, April 5. Preparing the cards for mailing are from left Mrs. Joe H. Wheeley, Mrs. Robert J. Fuxa, and Mrs. James E. Raley. (Photo By Doug Abbott)

Junior Service League Schedules Annual Clinic

Appointments to have a child tested can be made two ways, said Mrs. Robert J. Fuxa, clinic chairman for the eighth annual Speech, Hearing, and Vision Clinic sponsored by Junior Service League of Pampa.

The free clinic is planned for April 5 in the First Christian Church, 18th and N. Nelson.

Several private kindergartens have made arrangement to be tested as a group. These include St. Matthew's Day School, St. Vincent's Kindergarten, and First Baptist Kindergarten. Children not enrolled in private kindergartens are being contacted through the mail, she stated.

Parents are urged to return these cards promptly to facilitate scheduling at the clinic. Parents not contacted may call Mrs. Fuxa for further information.

The clinic will be staffed by professional members of the Amarillo Speech and Hearing Center and by Service League volunteers trained for vision testing by the Texas Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

"Some childhood eye defects, if not corrected by the age of six, can lead to permanent loss of vision in the affected eye," said Mrs. Fuxa in urging parents to take advantage of this free clinic.

Vision volunteers will check the child's visual acuity by means of a Snellen "E" chart. If the child's performance gives evidence of a vision difficulty, he will be referred for a professional eye examination.

The vision testing program is endorsed by the Gray County Lemon juice and butter make a good baste for broiled chicken. But if you want to vary the basic mixture, add a little soy sauce and a pinch of sugar.

When hard-cooked eggs are cooked too long or at too high a temperature, they may have a dark ring of color between the yolk and the white corrected with the best results. After an evaluation, a child with difficulty in these areas will also be referred for treatment.

Junior Service League members of the Speech, Hearing, and Vision Committee are Mrs. James Raley, Mrs. Joe Wheeley, Mrs. Paul Hartin, Mrs. Charles B. Cook, and Mrs. Robert J. Fuxa.

Bill Walton Heads AP All-American Team

Bruins' Superman Also Named Player Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Walton, the superman of UCLA's super team, was named today the Associated Press' college basketball Player of the Year for the second straight season.

The 6-foot-11 center known as the "Big Red Machine" and ringleader of the "Walton Gang" won in a breeze over a rich field of the nation's best.

Despite damaged knees, the bony redhead played the game with wild abandon this season and coaxed raves from just about everybody.

"He is the best... better than Bill Russell," said one opposing coach.

"He is the best pivotman ever to play college ball," said another.

"He is the most dominating center ever... the next pro super star," added a professional scout.

He was at least the most dominating force on the nation's most dominating team. Walton figured in every one of UCLA's 26 victories during the regular season, continuing a personal streak of playing with undefeated teams.

By the end of the regular season, Walton's streak from high school reached an astronomical 120 games.

The graceful 220-pound junior averaged just above 20 points and 17 rebounds a game, but that was only part of his contribution to the country's top-ranked team his year. His true worth was measured in shot-blocking, intimidation and as triggerman in UCLA's superlative fast break.

His most eye-catching maneuver is the outlet pass. Walton literally smothered the ball leaping for a rebound and almost in one motion while airborne, feeds it to a teammate and away the Bruins go on a fast break.

He says he learned the maneuver to help offset a physical handicap—a twisted knee that underwent surgery during his sophomore year at Helix High School near San Diego.

"I couldn't run very well—even after the operation," recalls the shy, complex 20-year-old. "So there was no way I could stay with everybody in our fast break. So, all I did was get the rebound, make the quick pass and watch everyone go."

Just like Walton made it no contest with UCLA's opponents, he won 1973 Player of the Year honors handily.

Among those receiving support from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters were David Thompson of North Carolina State; Ed Ratleff of Long Beach; Kermit Washington of American University; Providence's Ernie DiGregorio; Doug Collins of Illinois State; Dwight Lamar of Southwestern Louisiana and Minnesota's Jim Brewer.

Walton, of course, was also selected to the AP's 1973 All-American team.

Joining the talented giant on the first team were Thompson, Ratleff, Washington and DiGregorio.

This year's second team All-American selections consist of Collins-Lamar, Brewer, Keith Wilkes of UCLA and Kevin Joyce of South Carolina.

The third team includes Bill Schaeffer of St. John's, N.Y.; Mike Bantom of St. Joseph's, Pa.; John Brown of Missouri; Tom McMillen of Maryland and Richie Fuqua of Oral Roberts.

STATE CHAIRMAN—Dallas Cowboy All-Pro Bob Lilly, pictured with Gary Foster of Dallas, will serve again this year as State Chairman of the 1973 Texas High School Football Boys' Lily Day for Crippled Children, sponsored by the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas. Lily Day is set for Saturday.

Brewer And Black Lead Pampa Win

By CLAY LIVELY
Harvester centerfielder A.J. Brewer stole two bases and scored three runs and shortstop Toddy Black knocked three runs in to lead the Pampa High diamond crew to a 4-2 win over the Canyon Eagles yesterday at windy Optimist Park.

Pampa hurler Dennis Edmondson struck out four batters and walked but one to get the win. Scott Keeling absorbed the loss for the Eagles. The victory gave Edmondson a 3-1 record for the year. Pampa stands 5-4.

With Pampa trailing 2-1 in the bottom of the fifth inning, Brewer led off for the Harvesters and got on base via the walk.

Ricky Bigham, Pampa second sacker, got on by an error by Canyon's shortstop and then Black singled both men home to give Pampa the lead 3-2.

Brewer scored once again in the bottom of the sixth to make the final score 4-2. The first two Pampa batters in that inning struck out before Brewer got on by an error, again on the Eagles shortstop. He then stole second base and Bigham, the next batter, singled him in.

Canyon jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning on a run by Ed Lair. The Eagles got two of their four hits off Edmondson in that frame—a double by Lair and a single by Bill Moore.

The Harvesters evened it up 1-1 in the bottom of the inning after Brewer, leading off for Pampa, doubled and then stole third. Bigham came to bat and flied out to the Canyon first baseman.

Black, next hitter for Pampa, sacrificed Brewer home when he drilled a grounder to, once again, the Eagle shortstop.

The next three innings were pretty much a pitchers' duel. Edmondson got the side out 1-2-3 in all three frames.

Pampa hit the ball better than the Eagles, loading the bases in the fourth, but was unable to get a run until after falling behind in the decisive fifth.

With the wind blowing steadily around 35 mile an hour, from the north very few balls were hit out of the infield. Those that were tended to go just past the basepath.

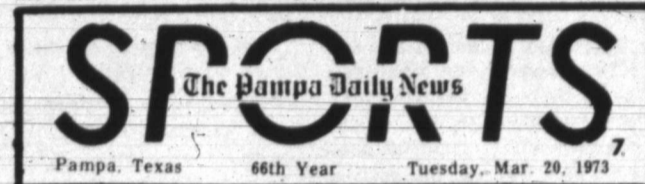

Balls hit to right field resembled tennis lobbs and those smacked to center or left fell in like duck hooks of the golf tee.

Pampa made two errors in the field for the game while the visiting Eagles had four bobbles.

Brewer's first inning double the only extra base hit for the Harvesters in the game. Bigham, Black and Terry Moore (the second, third and fourth men at bat for Pampa) each got a single.

Canyon's four hits came on two-baggers by Lair and Doug Day and singles by Moore and Pitt.

The Harvesters play next this weekend as they host Altus, Okla. for one game Friday and a doubleheader Saturday at Optimist Park.

Basketball Roundup

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Nate Archibald hit for 37 points Monday night to lead the Kansas City-Omaha Kings to a 106-106 victory over Portland and in the process set a record which "he didn't even know about."

Archibald became the first guard in National Basketball Association history to score more than 100 points in one season—he now has 1,011.

Archibald joins a select group of players who have tallied over 1,000—Wilt Chamberlain, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Rick Barry and Elgin Baylor.

Archibald, sitting alone in the dressing room after the game, said, "I'm tired of hearing about all these broken records. I wish they would just let me play. I didn't even know about this one."

Kansas City-Omaha had a 10-point advantage midway through the final period, but Portland's Sidney Wicks hit 10 of his 26 points in the late going to wipe out the Kings' bulge.

Wicks, however, missed a chance to tie when he sank only one of two free throws with 18 seconds left. Wicks fouled Archibald with five seconds remaining and Nate, who shoots 85 per cent at the line, fanned the Trail Blazers' hopes by missing both shots.

Kings Coach Bob Cousy was somewhat dissatisfied with his team's defensive play.

"We played excellent defense in spurts and would get up to a 10-point lead," he said, "then we would relax and think they were going to come apart. If this team (Portland) doesn't do

MISSIS THE BIG ONES
PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Owner Art Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers not only missed the unusual play that led to his team's last-gasp victory over Oakland, but he missed the Super Bowl game in Los Angeles and Rooney was on or near the scene each time.

In the play-off game against Oakland, Rooney was in the park elevator when the winning touchdown was scored. He thought his team had lost at the time.

"It is good to know Roberto was happy in his last years," said Sanguillen. "He carry this team, he and Bill Mazeroski, for 17, 18 years. He tell me, 'Sangy, I am happy man. We are winning. For years I could not sleep nights because we were losing.' And then he got his 3,000th big-league hit at the end of last season. Exactly 3,000. And in 1971 he had the greatest World Series anyone ever had. He showed the world how great he was. But we all knew, all the Pirates.

"Like one time last year Don Money of the Phillies was rounding third on a base hit to Clemente. Clemente faked like he was fumbling the ball. Money tried to make it home. But a perfect throw got him. It was a tough play, though, because I had to block the plate hard. When Clemente comes in from right, I ask him, 'Did you fumble on purpose to make Money run?' He said yes. I said, 'Okay, you know you can make a perfect throw in time to get him. But how you know I can hold on to the ball?'"

"He said, 'Because I have confidence in you.' I said, 'Bob—you terrific.'"

Tide, Gophers Advance

NEW YORK (AP) — "There wasn't any time to call a time out," said Glenn Garrett.

So Garrett instead took a desperation shot—and it turned out to be the best thing that Alabama's Crimson Tide could do.

Garrett's 20-foot shot with one second left in the game provided Alabama with a dramatic 87-86 basketball victory over Manhattan Monday night in the National Invitation Tournament.

The ball dropped through the basket without touching the rim as the buzzer went off and deflated a highly partisan crowd of 17,319 at Madison Square Garden.

That field goal sent Alabama into Thursday's quarter-finals against Minnesota, which earlier defeated Rutgers 68-59. The other quarter-final pairing Thursday matches Virginia Tech against Fairfield, winners of first-round games Sunday.

The quarter-finals begin tonight with North Carolina meeting Massachusetts and Notre Dame against Louisville, all first-round winners over the weekend.

The remaining games, however, may not come close in excitement to Monday night's affair between Manhattan and Alabama. It was tense and torrid all the way—and had the rowdy crowd roaring at each new turn.

Henry Seawright, Manhattan's No. 6 man playing his best half this year, kept the underdog Jaspers in it with 16 second-half points, many of them from long range. Seawright delivered one of his clutch field goals with two minutes remaining to give Manhattan an 84-83 lead.

But Leon Douglas, one of two Alabama players saddled with four fouls, stole the ball on a Manhattan inbounds pass and dribbled the length of the court for a lay-up that moved the Crimson Tide into an 85-84 lead with 1:15 left.

George Bucci then bulled in for a tough lay-up under a crowded basket to make it 86-85 Manhattan with 57 seconds remaining and the cheering flag-waving Jasper faithful exploded with noise.

The 6-8 Garrett didn't hesitate once getting the ball. He launched the game-winning shot in a hurry, setting off a wild Alabama celebration on the court.

Garrett scored 12 points overall for the Crimson Tide, now 21-6. Wendell Hudson, who played much of the game with four fouls, finished with 20 points to lead the winners.

Charlie Mahoney had 23 points and Seawright 20 as Manhattan closed out its season with a 16-10 record.

The opener was dull compared to the feverish nightcap Minnesota, although only winning by nine points, dispatched Rutgers with clinical ease.

Judge Will Hear Arguments Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge in suburban Alexandria, Va., will hear arguments today on whether the National Collegiate Athletic Association should be temporarily or permanently barred from taking retaliatory action against member athletes who compete in non-sanctioned international sports events.

Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. issued a temporary injunction against the NCAA last Friday, enabling pentathlon competitor Fred Samara of Pennsylvania and middle-distance runner Dennis Walker of Adelphi to compete in a track and field meet between the United States and the Soviet Union in Richmond, Va.

Bryan will hear arguments today on whether to continue the temporary injunction or to permanently enjoin the NCAA from taking punitive action.

The NCAA position forced several athletes and the U.S. head coach out of the meet, an action that led to the Russian victory. U.S. Coach Jim Banner of the University of Pittsburgh told a special House education subcommittee Monday

"We would have embarrassed the Russians if all our athletes were allowed to compete," Banner said.

Sportscaster Howard Cosell also testified and sharply rapped both the NCAA and the Amateur Athletic Union. He said the time has come to stop the "petty aspirations and petty assumptions" of the two sports organizations.

Holmes Pleads Innocent

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers defensive tackle Ernest Holmes entered a hospital here today after pleading innocent Monday night in Youngstown, Ohio, to charges of shooting at policemen with intent to kill.

Defense lawyer Michael S. Harshman entered the pleas during the burly football player's four-minute appearance in county court.

Wearing jeans and tennis shoes, Holmes said nothing as he was arraigned on one count of shooting an officer with intent to kill and two counts of shooting at police with intent to kill.

He was whisked from the courtroom without comment and taken to an automobile after the appearance. His lawyers said he might stay in the hospital two to three weeks.

No preliminary hearing date was set, Holmes had been released before the arraignment on $45,000 bond.

The 6-foot-3, 250-pound Holmes was arrested after a four-hour manhunt in the Salem, Ohio, area Friday as officers combed a square mile of wooded farmland for a man believed to have fired several shots at trucks on nearby highways earlier in the day.

A state patrolman piloting a helicopter was wounded by gunfire from the ground shortly before Holmes was surrounded by officers and surrendered.

Pirates' Sanguillen Still Feels Clemente's Presence

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

BRADENTON, Fla. — (NEA) — Roberto Clemente would sometimes remind his wife, Vera, "If anything ever happens to me, do not kill yourself. You must care for our little babies."

Mrs. Clemente told this to Manny Sanguillen while he was staying at the Clemente house for two weeks in January and helping in the search for Clemente's still unrecovered body. Clemente, as the world knows, was killed in a plane crash last New Year's Eve one mile off the shore of San Juan, Puerto Rico, attempting to fly relief supplies to earthquake victims in Nicaragua.

Sanguillen, possibly Clemente's best friend on the Pirates, recalled that Vera was trying to be able to "take everything," the way Roberto had. "He used to tell her that she knew how much trouble he had to go through to get where he did. That when he first came to spring training in Florida, how much he had to fight because he was a black guy, and because he was Puerto Rican," said Sanguillen.

"And you know Vera is Roberto Clemente's wife, the wife of a superstar, because she had the same kind of pride and dignity he had."

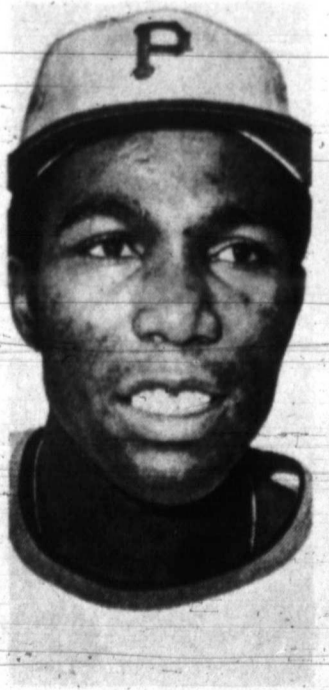

"But," said Sanguillen recently at the Pittsburgh training site here, "no matter how hard she try, every time she sees me, she cries."

"She remembers to me how we used to kid. Like the time she was waiting at the Pittsburgh airport when we returned from a road trip. I decided to limp, to kid her. She saw me and said, 'Oh, Sangy, what happen?' And Roberto say, 'Vera, don't listen to that crazy Panamanian.'"

When Sanguillen came to the Clemente home after the tragedy, he was anxious to see how the three Clemente children, Roberto Jr., 8, Luis, 7, and Enrique, 4, were getting along.

"Ricky, the youngest one, ran to me when he saw me," said Sanguillen. "Then he put the head down and he say, 'Daddy gone.' But the boys would play cowboys, and they are okay, I can see."

It is tougher for the mother, said Sanguillen. No body has yet been found. The Coast Guard found a briefcase which was identified as

Manny Sanguillen

Vera Clemente

Clemente's. And Vera herself discovered one brown sock washed out on the beach; she says Roberto was wearing that sock the night of the flight.

"She knows he is dead," said Sanguillen, "but every night she waits for him to come home."

Clemente is alive in a way for Sanguillen, too. "His spirit is with me," he said. "I dream of him." In an odd set of circumstances, Sanguillen, Pittsburgh's regular catcher since 1969, is one of several players who are being tested for right field. Clemente's position, Sanguillen in right would give Mill May, a fine prospect but bench-warmer for the last two seasons, a chance to catch.

Strangely, Sanguillen had been tried in the outfield briefly last season and this winter played a little right field for the team. Clemente managed in San Juan in the Winter League.

"Deep inside I don't have the heart to take Roberto's place," said Sanguillen. "He is gone, he has all the best records in baseball. Nobody can match him. But I just feel he is with me in right field. His spirit is there, giving me tips like he always did, ever since I came up to stay in the big leagues in 1969. He say he help me because I have the potential to be a superstar. But he help everybody."

Now Sanguillen, who like all the Pirates wears a black ribbon on the left sleeve of his uniform in memory of Clemente, smiled; his is a frequent, generous, round-faced, gap-toothed smile which makes him resemble a chocolate pumpkin.

Even Good Guys Win

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) "long ago became a menace to the business community... However, in filing charges and jeopardizing the future of a reputable concern (the Vi-Bin Corp. of Monticello, Ill.) on faulty evidence and use of a blatantly biased witness "the agency, even by its own arbitrary standards, has hit a new bureaucratic low."

Thus charged Barron's the National Business and Financial Weekly, in its editorial of Sept. 28, 1964, which, because of later developments, it reproduced in its issue of Feb. 26, this year.

Charged by the FTC with the "dissemination of false and misleading advertisements," the Vi-Bin Corp., at the time a small privately owned manufacturer of food, food and drug products, decided to fight back, the Barron's editorial explained. And, "after lengthy hearings, which disclosed fatal defects in the government's case, the complaint" against the company "was dismissed."

Brought out during the hearings, Barron's noted, were the following facts:

The FTC leaned heavily on tests (supposedly of Vi-Bin products) done by a so-called expert in the field: an "expert" who, it turned out, had a violent pre-conceived bias against Vi-Bin and its products and who, incidentally, was a graduate of the State Military Academy in Leningrad, Soviet Russia.

The standards tested by the FTC "expert," one Professor Peter V. Karpovich, were not manufactured by the Vi-Bin company. "As the trial examiner was forced to admit, on the third day of testimony, it became apparent that the products used in the experiment had not been those of the respondents, that the methods used in the experiment were improper, and that the experiment had been conducted in an atmosphere of bias and prejudice."

"In his testimony," the Barron's editorials continued, "Professor Karpovich owned up under searching cross-examination to gross neglect of professional standards ranging from the deliberate employment of inadequate dosages to the mishandling of statistics... Mr. Karpovich made one damaging admission after another. The government's case collapsed entirely when its chief witness (Karpovich), under the pounding of defense counsel, was forced to admit that he had tested not Vi-Bin wheat germ oil but a wholly different product. His object, it appears, was not to confirm or deny the company's claims, as he had contracted to do, but rather to "disparage a colleague."

After sizable outlays of time and money, Barron's observed, Vi-Bin thus regained its good name. Other parties to the "disgraceful affair (notably the FTC), however, can hardly say they were helped.

A sorry commentary on the agency's procedures and standards, the findings also constitute a damning indictment of what might be called the official scientific establishment. For the FTC's discredited witness happens to enjoy pleasant and profitable relations with the National Institutes of Health, which currently are in the process of renewing his sizable grant of taxpayers' money... government and science, like government and business, don't mix... A science—and a society—that hopes to remain free had better "examine themselves and come up with the right answers."

"Viewed in this light," Barron's concluded, "government subsidy poses a mounting threat to the integrity of science. Since far too many in the profession these days draw some kind of federal largesse, few have spoken up in protest."

The reasons for reprinting the 1964 editorial, Barron's added in an editor's note, were:

—Despite being thoroughly discredited, Professor Karpovich continued to receive taxpayer provided grants from the National Institutes of Health until he retired in 1969.

—The FTC, under Democratic and Republican majority alike, "has gone its arbitrary way, inflicting unwarranted damage, financial aid otherwise, upon such corporate victims as DuPont (Zerex) and ITT-Continental Baking (Wonder Bread) before either dropping charges or... dismissing the complaint."

In the meantime, recovering from the FTC name-blackening, Vi-Bin has prospered. "It was a close call," Barron's noted happily, "but the good guys don't always finish last."

According to the U.S. Department of Transportation, nearly 80 percent of the 42,500-mile interstate system—the safest and best engineered highway network the world has ever known—is now open to traffic. As currently designed, the system consists of 34,445 miles of rural and 8,055 miles of urban highways.

There are those who think the money will bribe North Vietnam into forgetting its all-consuming goal. That's not bribery, it's blackmail, and it won't work. The money will come back in bullets to destroy the military wherewithal we've given to South Vietnam to protect itself. But then perhaps we've nothing better to do with billions of dollars than parcel them out between two adversaries bent on winning a war.

"The North Vietnamese," says Barry Goldwater, "were the culprits in this. They could have ended the war before it caused any damage to their country. Their failure to do so caused many American deaths, and I don't think we should pay them for it."

Why Should We Bail Out The Enemy?

For years the doves have been chirping at the prospect of spending all that money the U.S. was using to fight the war in Vietnam. Visions of sugarplums—wellfare, environment, public housing—danced in their heads. One wonders which way their divided loyalties will sway now that President Nixon has earmarked $2.5 billion for aid to North Vietnam. Will they rejoice at aiding the enemy they've loved so long—or will they insist the money be spent instead on "domestic priorities?"

Of the $2.5-billion figure, James Burnham writes in National Review that "Assuming approximately five hundred POW's—or hostages, as they would more precisely be termed—this comes to $5 million a head; an historical tops for ransom."

What does all this have to do with "Peace With Honor?" The honor—so I had supposed—had to do with leaving the South Vietnamese in a position to resist aggression, invasion and defeat by North Vietnam. Now giving billions of dollars to the latter can be called "honorable" is beyond me. "We know," writes Burnham, "the spirit in which Hanoi... will implement it (the peace agreement): in the spirit of achieving Communist rule over all Vietnam, and finally all Indochina. This is what Ho Chi Minh said in 1960 and what his followers say today."

The Vietnam revolution, "the international Communist organ, Nouvelle Revue Internationale, repeated last October as 'The Ho-Kissinger negotiations got underway, is a phase of the international revolution.' When the journalists asked Le Duc Tho if he expected "a lasting peace," he declared... I almost wrote, honorable... I am a Communist, and according to Marxist-Leninist theories, so long as imperialism persists in the world there will be wars."

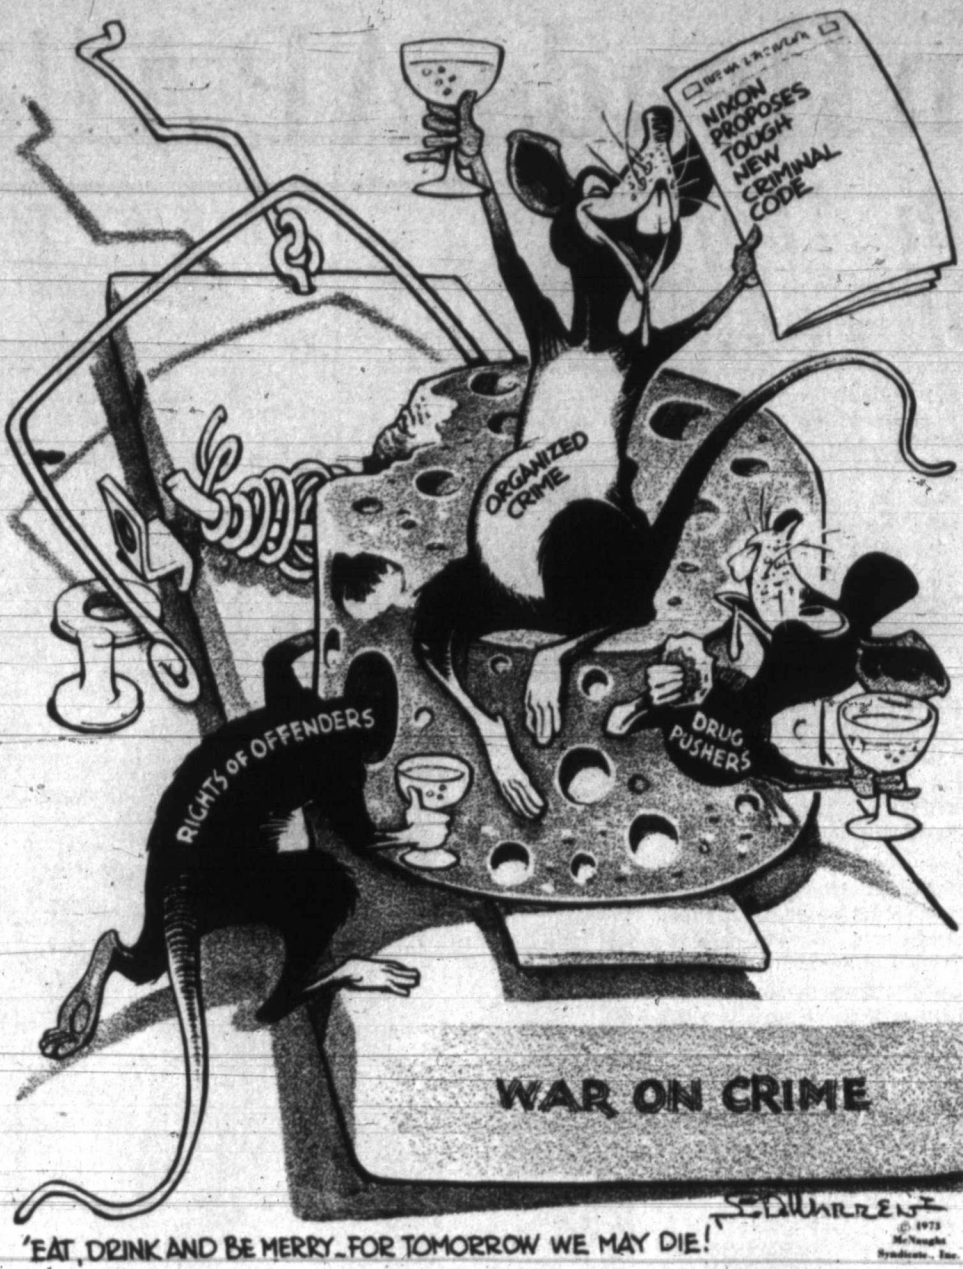

There are those who think the money will bribe North Vietnam into forgetting its all-consuming goal. That's not bribery, it's blackmail, and it won't work. Should Feds Protect Us From Ourselves?

By PAUL HARVEY
Fasten your lap straps or else! That is the next edict to expect.

New state laws are being proposed in four legislatures and contemplated in 17 others which would require you to wear your automobile seat belt or be fined, even jailed.

How far would you say

Bureaucracy Costs Keep On Going Up

Congressman H.R. Gross of Iowa and Morris K. Udall of Arizona are to be congratulated for their investigation (through the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee) of high salaries paid to officials employed by the U.S. Postal Service.

According to initial findings by the House Committee, salaries paid to Postal Service bosses today are double or more the salaries previously paid to those running the Post Office Department. One witness, Edward Day, former Postmaster General during the Kennedy Administration, has testified that when he was running things there were only 10 persons making over $20,000 a year. Today, he said, there are more than 1,000 Postal Service executives whose salaries exceed that figure.

Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen gets $60,000 a year, the same as members of the Nixon Cabinet. But, in addition, Klassen has several assistants; one is paid $52,500; three are paid $50,000; one receives $46,000 and five regional postmasters also have well-paid assistants who draw between $35,000 and $45,000 a year.

If the Postal Service produced a profit, such salaries might be understandable. Needless to point out, however, is the fact that the Postal Service is currently operating at a huge deficit, and that these millions of dollars are extracted from your pocketbook through federal taxes.

From a business-like point of view, would it not be advisable to cut the inflated salaries back to their former level of $20,000, with proviso that when the Postal Service ceases to lose money, then the pay would be raised? After all, the lessons of history show that a man works best when he has some incentive.

If you agree with this idea, clip out this editorial and mail it to your Congressman.

government should go in seeking to protect us from ourselves?

It is the rightful province of government to protect us and our property from others.

There's much dispute over some of the possible poisons in our food, but the Food and Drug Administration, rightly, gives you the benefit of any doubt.

That red stuff in some lipstick, some soda pop and some pill coatings—Red Dye No. 2—may or may not be toxic to you, but some animals if fed a quantity, of it deliver dead babies.

So the FDA limits the amount of Red Dye No. 2 to which anybody can expose you.

And government limits or prohibits suspect insecticides, radiation, medication.

And of course government seeks to protect us from the robber, the arsonist, the rapist, the con man and the speeder; from anybody who would injure or rob us.

But to what extent should government go in protecting us from ourselves?

Example: There are an assortment of state laws regulating the composition and use of safety helmets for motorcyclists and, in some states, snowmobilers.

That industry is willing to do whatever it must, and has sought since 1967 to get some clarification, some standardization, so they'll know what design and material is acceptable to everybody.

The U.S. Department of Transportation has delegated research, but the researchers are not finished researching, so there's still no guideline. Meanwhile that industry does the best it can to try to meet the assortment of existing regulations and to anticipate new ones.

To what extent should government try to protect us from ourselves? Government needs a guideline. At present, it outlaws drugs which hurt only us and allows liquor which menaces every motorist.

Government takes our money to buy health insurance for us and contemplates more of the same. Congressman Martha Griffiths of Michigan says, "If you have health care for some, you'll have to come to the moment when you must have total care for everyone."

And this seat-belt thing. Of all American motorists whose cars have seat belts, only 20 per cent use them. Now comes this nationwide campaign to force you to buckle down or else. Expect a final federal ruling by spring.

Youth Asks About Petting

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am a 16-year-old who is confused about what petting really is. If it's just hugging and kissing how can a girl get pregnant?

Dear Reader—I've learned not to try to tell people what slang terms mean because they mean different things to people in different parts of the United States and even still other things to people in other countries who read my column. Finally, a slang term which means one thing to people in one age group means something entirely different to another age group. The only good way for you to find out what a boy means by petting is to ask him, if by petting he means hugging and kissing, I don't think you need to worry about getting pregnant. But when it includes more than hugging and kissing, the problem arises.

There is only one way that a girl gets pregnant and that's when the sperm cell from the male meets the egg, or ovum, from the female and to do this the sperm cell has to pass through the birth canal, through the womb, and meet with the waiting ovum in the tube. I am constantly amazed at how many letters I get from girls asking me how a woman gets pregnant.

It is certainly true that there have been primitive people in the past who did not realize that sexual relations are related to having children. Apparently that's still true in some groups in the world today. That we have a problem of this nature in a modern society with all of the communications which exist today has indeed been startling to me. It doesn't speak very well about how all of our younger people are being educated. It also may be one of the reasons why some of our young girls get in trouble with boys.

Government takes our money to buy health insurance for us and contemplates more of the same. Congressman Martha Griffiths of Michigan says, "If you have health care for some, you'll have to come to the moment when you must have total care for everyone."

And this seat-belt thing. Of all American motorists whose cars have seat belts, only 20 per cent use them. Now comes this nationwide campaign to force you to buckle down or else. Expect a final federal ruling by spring.

House Rebuffs D.C. Committee on Junkets

By ROBERTS ALLEN

WASHINGTON — For the enlarged and liberal-packed District of Columbia Committee it was a jarringly unexpected and smarting slapdown.

The cozy boodle grab seemed all set to slip quietly and smoothly through the House. It had the blessing and active support of the Democratic leadership—Speaker Carl Albert (Okla.), Floor Leader "Tip" O'Neill (Mass.) and Rep. Richard Bolling (Mo.), ranking member and the real power of the mighty Rules Committee. It looked like a sure-shot cinch.

Then suddenly the House, which had been routinely and casually droning along, came to life. A series of caustic questions were asked—and that was it.

On a roll call vote, the boodle grab was overwhelmingly scrapped 234 to 153.

For Rep. Charles Diggs, D-Mich., it was a jolting beginning as the new chairman of the District of Columbia Committee—a prize he had long and patiently coveted.

For the House Democratic leadership it was a stinging slap in the face—a harshly blunt notice that he might propose, but the rank-and-file disposes.

For Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, it was a resounding triumph. Singlehandedly, the veteran legislator and indefatigable economy batter licked the Democratic leadership, the Rules Committee and the liberal-dominated D.C. Committee.

And he pulled off this extraordinary feat in less than 15 minutes without raising his voice or engaging in recriminations.

For once virtue triumphed and the taxpayers were saved a sizable bundle.

Gravy Train

It all began caustically and routinely with Rep. Bolling, as spokesman for the Rules Committee, offering authorizing resolutions for a number of committees—among them the D.C. Committee.

Previously, committee chairman Diggs had raised critical eyebrows by proposing a $537,000 budget for his juiced-up panel—around three times the amount granted his predecessor. Diggs' budget called for 26 staff jobs—a lush crop of patronage for him to harvest. One of the plums was $12,000 for a "journalist"—euphemism for press agent.

Also that morning, a Washington paper reported the shocking information that there had been 57 homicides in the first two months of this year—as against 44 for the same period last year.

For all of 1972, there were 249 murders in the Capital—a rate of 35 per 100,000 population, nearly twice the New York City rate. Of that record-high total (91 percent) were black.

The D.C. Committee resolution seemed all set to whisk through unchallenged, as the others had, when Rep. Gross took the floor and quietly but unerringly zeroed in on a provision empowering the panel to spend an unspecified amount of counterpart funds for foreign travel—junkets.

Noting the startling homicide statistics, Gross wanted to know why the committee proposed going abroad when there was so much to do at home. He also pointedly cited the fact that the D.C. Committee had never before engaged in junketing under other chairmen, and he saw no reason why it should start under Diggs.

The chunky Detroit black, aware that the House now was listening intently, attempted to placate Gross, arguing the Committee hoped to find some answers to Washington's problems in the "older capitals of the free world and other areas."

"Where are some of these capitals?" asked Gross.

"In London we have an example which I believe we can draw from," replied Diggs.

"London," snorted Gross. "How does the government of London compare with the government of the District of Columbia? London is a huge metropolis of more than 7 million people; a great seaport and business and financial center. Washington is about one-tenth the size, with a declining population but soaring crime and welfare rate. What could you learn in London?"

Diggs hastily shifted gears and tossed out Birmingham, England. Again Gross hooted in derision.

"Birmingham," he sarcastically pointed out, "is a big industrial city. The biggest industry in Washington is shuffling papers. Why in the world would you want to go to Birmingham, England, to talk to an expert to tell you what you should do in the District of Columbia?"

Seeking It To Him

Diggs next tried Brussels and Geneva—which again proved a mistake.
