Oilfield rebounds on gulf tensions

DALLAS (AP) — Oilfield service companies are quietly calling back employees furloughed when oil prices slid below $10 per barrel.

Executives said although a full fledged recovery isn't under way, they're encouraged by crude selling for more than $21 a barrel.

In recent weeks, many energy company stocks have traded at 52-week highs; domestic drilling activity is up by more than 250 rigs from last year's low of 663.

If the trend holds, the industry will improve, industry leaders say.

"Last year all the news was bad," said Guy Marcus, a spokesman for Halliburton Co. "Now you pick up the phone, and it is good news."

Companies have responded cautiously.

Last month, Halliburton, an international oil services company based in Dallas, recalled 50 workers at its oil field services division in Oklahoma. Halliburton cut 18,000 jobs last year because of the collapse in drilling activity.

Lone Star Technologies, the Dallas-based parent of Lone Star Steel Co., a manufacturer of drill pipe, has quietly called back 300 workers in recent months. Lone Star lost $9.3 million in the first quarter of 1987 and laid off about two thirds of its 4,000 employees in 1986.

There is also hope for a Wall Street turnaround as stocks of oil exploration and production companies have risen in response to improved earnings and higher crude oil prices.

Prices firmed after OPEC agreed on production quotas and rose on continuing fears of disruption of world oil markets from the Iran-Iraq war.

When crude prices fell about 60 percent last year, the oil services industry bore the brunt of the collapse. Total spending on oil rigs, tools, drill pipe and related products and services fell to $9 billion in 1986 from $40 billion in 1982.

Only recently has Halliburton, which has seen its worldwide employment decline by 68,000 since 1980, discontinued on a trial basis a furlough procedure in which its oil service employees take one week off without pay every two months.

Another aspect of improving oil prices is the effect they may have on major oil producers' exploration budgets during the second half of the year. Industry analysts say many major oil companies underspent during the first six months, so expenditures for the second half of the year could be almost doubled.

Cap says Iran deal 'damaged' interests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar "Cap" Weinberger told congressional investigators today that "the interests of the United States were damaged overall" by President Reagan's decision to sell arms secretly to Iran.

"The way to avoid that is not to embark on a policy of this kind," he said as the 11-week-old Iran-Contra hearings neared an end.

Testifying for the second day, Weinberger said he hopes Congress will allow presidents continued leeway on when to notify Congress that a covert operation has been authorized.

"A rigid time or an inflexible time is not a very good thing," he said. Weinberger said he generally favors an existing legal requirement for notification of Congress in a "timely fashion."

Weinberger was the 29th and last witness to be interrogated in public session at the nationally televised hearings on the secret U.S. sale of arms to Iran and diversion of profits to benefit the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Leaders of the House and Senate investigating panels hoped to wrap up Weinberger's testimony by early afternoon.

The hearings ended as they had begun — under the glare of television lights in the ornate Caucus Room of the Russell Senate Office Building.

High school soccer team could take field in '87

Pampans who get their kicks from playing soccer are just one shot away from their goal of establishing a foothold in Pampa schools.

Now they can only hope that school trustees don't say hands-off to the sport, as they have in the past.

School Superintendent Harry Griffith plans to recommend during a 6 p.m. school board meeting Tuesday that boys' soccer be created at Pampa High School for the 1987-88 school year, with a girls' program to be started no later than 1988-89. Hundreds of Pampa youngsters participate in Pampa Soccer Association programs each year, but the association has been rebuffed in previous efforts to set up a soccer program in the schools. Last year, trustees said they supported the sport, but couldn't afford it.

Toxic chemicals rot in closet of high school science class

By CATHY SPAULDING
Staff Writer

WHITE DEER — In her seven years as White Deer High School science teacher, Jessie Brantwein never got around to cleaning the science lab's stuffy, small chemical closet.

But this year, she decided it was time that more than 100 cancer-causing, flammable, corrosive, outdated or simply unused chemicals come out of the closet. She estimates she's having to get rid of two-thirds of the school's stock.

Brantwein's summer spring-cleaning involves more than just discarding unwanted chemicals. She is also making an inventory of all chemicals used in the school lab — the first time that's been done at White Deer — and making sure each container is properly labeled and dated.

"We've needed to do it for a long time," Brantwein says, admitting she should not have waited seven years to clean the chemical closet.

Brantwein decided to clear the air after she attended a March seminar concerning hazardous chemicals. There, she obtained a list of approximately 106 chemicals that should not be found in high school laboratories.

The list included such common chemicals and elements as highly flammable hydrogen, talc, chloroform, mercury, sulfur nitrate, nicotine and benzene. Another list includes chemicals that should be discarded if less dangerous chemicals can be used.

With list in hand and clad in a plastic apron and protective gloves and eyewear, Brantwein started her toxic cleanup earlier this summer by removing all the containers from the shelves and

Iran warns U.S. ships to stay away

KUWAIT (AP) — Iran announced today the beginning of naval maneuvers in the Strait of Hormuz, warning ships and aircraft to stay away from territorial waters.

Meanwhile, a U.S. flagged Kuwaiti tanker escorted by American warships steamed toward the strait, the gulf's only gateway.

Tehran radio said preliminary operations for the maneuvers, codenamed "Martyrdom," have begun in the Strait of Hormuz by the Revolutionary Guards. In a Tehran radio report monitored in Nicosia, Iran warned all ships and aircraft to avoid its territorial waters for three days starting at midnight. Iran had announced earlier that the maneuvers would begin Tuesday.

The Iranian announcement came as a U.S. flag Kuwaiti tanker, the Gas Prince, escorted by two American warships, steamed toward the Strait of Hormuz on a return voyage through the Persian Gulf after loading liquefied petroleum gas from Kuwait, a shipping source in Kuwait said.

The exact location of the convoy was not known.

Tehran radio said the Iranian military "has issued a serious request to all shipping centers and military and civilian aircraft to halt all their air and sea traffic in the regional waters of the Islamic Republic of Iran in the Persian Gulf and Oman Sea for three days starting from 2400 hours tonight (8:30 p.m. EDT)."

A U.S. Navy official said Sunday that three more Kuwaiti tankers will hoist U.S. flags within the next 10 days, entitling them to Navy warship escort through the Persian Gulf.

Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen said Sunday the Gas Prince and its escorts passed without incident the halfway point of their voyage out of the Strait of Hormuz.

"Escorting ships is a peaceful job, not a warlike job," Bernsen said. "It is just unfortunate that the Iranians have chosen to term it provocative. I'd say it's not provocative at all."

On July 24, an underwater mine damaged another Kuwaiti tanker, the Bridgeton, which was sailing with the Gas Prince. The Pentagon said it suspected Iran had planted the mine.

The Bridgeton remained behind in Kuwait on Saturday when the Gas Prince departed with a cargo of liquefied petroleum gas bound for Imari, Japan. The Bridgeton has been partially reloaded with crude oil despite the damage to its hull, but there was no word on when it would set sail.

The Strait of Hormuz, which connects the gulf with the Gulf of Oman and Arabian Sea to the south, is considered one of the most perilous stretches of the voyage because Iran has installed anti-ship missiles on its side of the passage. The Chinese-built Silkworm missiles are capable of hitting a ship at a range of up to 50 miles.

The convoy passed Saturday without incident west of Iran's Farsi Island where the Bridgeton hit the mine July 24.

Capt. William Mathis, the skipper of the USS Fox, told reporters on the ship that there had been no encounters with any vessels other than normal gulf shipping and fishing boats.

"It's a very benign start. Let's hope it stays that way," he said Sunday.

Iran orders attacks on U.S. 'interests'

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A fierce war of words has broken out between Iran and Saudi Arabia following deadly clashes in Mecca, with Tehran calling for the overthrow of the Saudi government and Saudis accusing Iran of smuggling explosives.

Iran, which accuses Washington of orchestrating the killing of hundreds of pilgrims Friday, ordered Muslims to launch "direct attacks on U.S. interests and their presence all over the world."

Iranian media reported that more than 1 million people demonstrated in Tehran Sunday, chanting "Revenge!" Iran's sympathizers in Lebanon also protested Sunday and attacked the empty Saudi Embassy. The pro-Iranian Islamic Jihad, releasing a picture of U.S. hostage Terry Anderson, threatened to punish the Saudi government and the United States. Several Arab and Moslem countries meanwhile expressed support for Saudi Arabia's King Fahd following the riots in Islam's holiest city.

Saudi Arabia says 402 people, including 275 Iranians, were killed and 649 people injured when an Iranian anti-American demonstration grew violent on Friday, the eve of the annual Moslem pilgrimage to Mecca.

Saudi authorities said the deaths were caused by trampling and rioting, and police did not fire a shot.

Iran claimed Saudi police opened fire and said 650 Iranians were either killed or missing and 700 others hospitalized.

The clashes pushed tensions in the Middle East to a fever pitch at a time when the U.S. Navy is engaged in a risky operation to escort Kuwaiti tankers.

Soccer

Griffith said today that his decision to back soccer was based on its broad community support, relatively low cost and the ability to find a teacher willing to coach soccer at the high school level.

"I think we're just looking at about $4,000 in expenditures," Griffith said. "With as much support as we're going to get from our community group, that makes it extremely cost-effective."

He said he doesn't foresee anything being cut to make room for soccer, even though a soccer proposal presented at the board's request by Athletic Director John

Kendall sets the cost of the program a few thousand dollars higher.

The soccer association — and the recently-formed Pampa High School Soccer Booster Club — have promised to provide assistance to the proposed program in the form of goals, flags, coaching films, practice fields and assistant coaches. In a letter to Griffith, soccer association President Miles Cook also said he would try to locate officials for home games at no cost.

If approved, the high school soccer teams would play teams from the four Amarillo high schools. Home games would probably be played on the north football practice area, known as Shocker Field, and the season would last from early March through May 10.

The program would be administered through the physical education department because soccer isn't sanctioned by the University Interscholastic League in the Panhandle yet.

Griffith said that may change. He said a number of 4-A schools across the state are adding soccer to their list of extracurricular sports activities.

Griffith wouldn't name the prospective coach, but said the individual has experience and played soccer in college.

Chemicals

spreading them over the laboratory counters.

The first to go on the "discard" list were chemicals listed on the "too hazardous" list, even the talc and other commonly used chemicals.

"The list includes methyl orange and methyl red, which have been used in labs for 100 years," Brantwein says.

She points out that the list just includes the names of the chemicals, with no explanation of why they do not belong in high school labs.

"They're dangerous, how? Are they explosive? Do they give you cancer?" she asks. "The rules are constantly changing."

Nonetheless, she has the list posted on the closet door.

Also on their way out are undated containers. Brantwein explained that many of the older containers simply have a label identifying the chemical and listing the volume. No date of manufacture or purchase. No warning of dangers.

"You don't know how old they are," she says. "If something like potassium chloride was bought back in 1950, why have we kept it?"

The older containers pose another problem — bulk.

According to Brantwein, the school used to order its chemicals in large quantities and stored them in large glass jars.

The bulk purchases may have saved the district some money back then, but Brantwein questions the economies as well as the safety of the bulk purchases.

"We would never use five

pounds of calcium chloride," she says, explaining that the chemicals decompose as time passes. "Here's a container of bromide that probably got stashed in back and sat there corroding."

Brantwein says she has dated all chemicals she's bought since she's been a teacher here.

Some of the chemicals are in rusted, broken or corroded containers. Others are "things I'll never use."

She holds a bottle of resin, dated 1961 — "the only use I can think of for this is to preserve insects."

Brantwein adds that some of the chemicals won't be needed because of new textbooks and lab manuals.

Although school begins in one month, the science room's counters remain cluttered with the chemicals — both good and bad.

Brantwein is looking for someone who would be willing to help dispose of the "bad" chemicals. School officials were supposed to help her find someone to help dump them, she says.

School Superintendent Tom Harkey said today that he will call Cabot Chemical Corp. — which helped sponsor Brantwein's trip to the seminar — for advice on disposing of the chemicals.

Brantwein explains that because some of the chemicals are flammable or corrosive, she can't just pitch them all in the nearest trash can.

"Still, some things we could just flush down the sink, in small quantities," she adds.

Brantwein is waiting for the closet shelves to be painted with acid-resistant paint before she restocks the "good" chemicals.

Tennis club donates funds for repairs

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Members of the Pampa Tennis Club "pretty well wiped out" the club's reserves last week by making a $4,000 donation toward repair of the tennis courts at Pampa High School.

Cal Barbaree, club president, presented a check Friday to school Superintendent Dr. Harry Griffith during a gathering early Friday afternoon on the courts.

Barbaree said the funds have been raised over the years from sponsorship of tournaments. He noted that the club hasn't had any tournaments in the past two years because of the bad condition of the courts.

The donation "pretty well wipes out our reserves," Barbaree said, but added that the club members "wanted people in Pampa to know we support this." He said giving the donation is a project the club members support to help get the tennis courts back in shape.

The Pampa school board voted July 22 to approve a bid of $106,000 to refurbish all eight high school tennis courts. Work on the tennis courts, by Vibra-Whirl of Panhandle, is scheduled to be completed by early October. The work will include new fences around the south courts.

Barbaree said the donation "is just a gesture" to show the club's support for tennis and other athletics in the school district. He said the club supports all athletics, not just tennis, adding that he feels other individual sports could use more public support, too.

He noted that the Pampa Tennis Club in past years has promoted tennis in the community through such donations as nets to the Pampa Youth and Community Center and the high school. He said club members spent $1,200 and volunteered many man-hours of labor to repairing the south courts in 1984.

Accepting the donation from the club, Dr. Griffith said, "I think it's more than just a gesture." He said the donation is an example of "citizens stepping forward" to support students in athletics.

"And that's something I like to see," he said, adding that the students can really benefit from such citizen support.

The school district "really appreciates the effort and support" shown by the tennis club, Griffith said.

PHS tennis coach Jay Barrett also expressed his appreciation for the club's efforts.

Barrett said there will be a bleacher painting project the last week in August for the tennis court spectator sitting sections. Club members will help in getting paint for the project, he said.

Anyone interested in helping with the volunteer project can call Barrett at 665-9442 or Barbara Guard at 669-3654.

Labor Day runs to benefit Pampa United Way drive

Two runs are being scheduled for the annual Chautauqua celebration on Labor Day, with funds from the runs benefitting the Pampa United Way.

Called the Chautauqua Run, the Sept. 7 events are being sponsored by Coronado Hospital.

The two runs are a 5-kilometer course and a 1-mile "Fun Run," with the start and finish locations both being at Central Park, site of the Chautauqua celebration.

Check-in will be held from 6:45 a.m. to 7:30 a.m., with the runs on the generally flat courses starting at 8 a.m. Wheelchair entries will start early.

Divisions in the 5-K run, male and female, are ages 18 and under, 19-29, 30-34, 35-39, 40-44, 45-49, and 50 and over.

Fun Run age divisions, male and female, are 12 and under, 13-18, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50 and over.

Trophies will be awarded in the 5-K event to first place in each age group, men and women. Medals will be given to second and third place in each age group.

In the Fun Run, trophies will be given to first, second and third overall, with medals awarded to first place in each age group.

A first aid station will be located near the start-finish area, with water available at the trainer's table.

In the 5-K run, split times will be available at 1 and 2 mile points.

Registration is $2 for all Fun Run participants through Aug. 29. After that date, registration fee will be $3. In the 5-K run, registration fee is $7 for all participants through Aug. 29 and $9 after that date.

Registration forms may be picked up at the Pampa United Way office and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce office, both located in the Pampa Community Building; Pampa Youth and Community Center, Coronado Hospital and The Pampa News office.

The General will return to Pampa. Famed B-25 bomber to return for PAAF reunion air show

The General, the oldest B-25 bomber still flying, will return to Perry Lefors Field north of the city for the Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Air Show on Saturday, Aug. 15.

The renowned plane is named The General in honor of former United States Air Force Commander Gen. "Hap" Arnold. The plane was assigned to the general during World War II.

The famed B-25 was the fourth of the WWII bombers to come off the assembly line and the first to be accepted for military service.

In later years, The General was once owned by the late billionaire Howard Hughes. The plane is now in the Fighting Air Command.

The B-25s were the only bombers used in every combat zone during WWII. The former Pampa Army Air Field, once located east of the city at the site of the current Moody Farms, was a trainer base for B-25 pilots.

A group of the bombers were used for the bombing raid on Tokyo on April 18, 1942, led by Medal of Honor recipient Gen. James H. "Jimmy" Doolittle and his Tokyo Raiders.

Surviving veterans of the Tokyo Raiders will be special guests during the 15th annual Pampa Army Air Field Reunion Association events Aug. 13-15. One of the Raiders, Gen. Richard Knobloch of San Antonio, will be a principal speaker at the annual banquet Saturday night after the air show.

The air show, which starts at 1:30 p.m., will feature the nationally known Cole Brothers aerobatics team in a 1½-hour show. Also to be in the show will be the Texas Sky Rangers 15-member parachute team and various World War II trainers and bombers.

Gates for the show will open at 9 a.m., with concession booths featuring food and souvenirs open during the day. Admission will be $5 single or $10 for a car with two or more people.

The air show has been approved by the Federal Aviation Administration, with the Gray County Commissioners Court authorizing the show at Lefors Field.

Also scheduled for that Saturday is a downtown military parade at 10:30 a.m. The parade will head from the downtown Pampa area to Memorial Park at Ward and Hobart. There a dedication ceremony will be held for the planned PAAF Museum to be located in the old Pump Station No. 1 building on the south end of the park.

Free American flags are being handed out to children at the National Bank of Commerce. Children may pick up the flags to wave at the parade entries along the route.

Entries are still being taken for the parade. Those individuals and groups wishing to participate in the parade may call PAAFRA Executive Secretary Nina Spoonemore at 665-2526.

Good Samaritan's aid results in death

RICHARDSON (AP) — A former college gymnast who was shot and killed after he chased down two purse-snatchers was the type of person who often stood up for others, his friends and family say.

Glenn Michael Sims, 25, a former University of Oklahoma gymnast, was shot in the heart Saturday after he drove three miles along a highway, chasing two women who had snatched a purse in a suburban shopping center parking lot.

Sims was responding to a woman's yells for help when he made the chase, Richardson police said. Friends said Sims' actions were characteristic.

"Mike is the kind of kid where, if something wasn't right, he'd speak up and say so," said Mark Williams, assistant gymnastics coach at OU. "If he thought someone was getting a raw deal, he'd do something about it."

Sheila Ann Hill, 17, and Sylvanna Quiroga, 23, both of Dallas, were charged Sunday with capital murder and burglary of a vehicle in the incident, said Jerry Tobia, a spokesman for the Richardson Police Department. Ms. Hill also was charged with attempted capital murder for allegedly pointing a gun at a police officer, he said.

Richardson Municipal Judge Fred Fiegal set bond of $100,000 on the capital murder charge against Quiroga, along with a $1,000 bond on the burglary charge, Tobia said.

Fiegal set bond of $100,000 on the attempted capital murder charge and $1,000 on the burglary charge against Hill, Tobia said.

No bond was set on the capital murder charge against her.

Police said Sims, who lived in Garland, a Dallas suburb that borders Richardson, was "attempting to be a Good Samaritan."

Friends said Sims was spending time with his parents in Garland after having received his master's degree in sports administration from OU.

Greg Buwick, head gymnastics coach at OU, said he had planned to talk to Sims this week about a job.

Buwick said Sims' death shocked him, but he wasn't surprised at the circumstances.

"I'm sure he thought it was a couple of young girls and he could get the purse back and joke about it later," Buwick said.

Reviving a dead Scottish queen

It's not easy being a Scottish queen who's been dead for four centuries — especially when one is a Catholic sovereign defending her faith in a room full of Presbyterians.

I assure you, I am not falling under the influence of Shirley MacLaine. I simply played a part in a role-playing panel discussion about "Our Reformation Heritage" at church Sunday. In this discussion, important persons in church history sit around a table and talk about their contributions to the faith. It's patterned after Steve Allen's old public television show, Meeting of the Minds.

Our Sunday school chief, Kirk Duncan, decided last spring to see how it plays in Pampa. So he compiled a list of church leaders up through the later Reformation and invited them to inhabit the bodies of church members during Sunday school. The only trouble was that his list of distinguished historic guests excluded women.

I protested: "What about Joan of Arc? What about Bloody Mary? What about Mary, Queen of Scots? What about Queen Elizabeth?"

Kirk consented: "Okay. How would you like to be Mary, Queen of Scots, at our discussion with John Wycliffe, John Knox and John Calvin?"

I consented. After all, somewhere in my family I am either descended from her or from someone in the Stuart court.

Then I realized I'd be playing a fickle young lady whose main contribution to history was to be the closest Scotland ever got to a sex scandal. She was raised in France, exiled from her own country, imprisoned for 19 years and beheaded after shifty English Lords implicated her in a plot to kill the Protestant Queen Elizabeth I.

My fellow panelists were the three greatest men in Presbyterian church history. I was to defend the Catholic faith — as it was practiced in the 1500s — on key Reformation issues. The panel's moderator — Queen Elizabeth I.

Knowing I'd be spending an hour in hostile territory, I did the only logical thing — I went to a priest.

I was lucky that the Rev. Gary Sides, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, was well versed in the events of the 1500s — when all this fun was going on.

He offered sound answers to such Reformation issues as sacraments and the authority of the church, and he lent me some fascinating books which discussed the Reformation from the Catholic point of view.

I devoured the information and memorized key points: became queen at six days of age, granddaughter of Henry VIII's sister Margaret, legiti-mate heir to English throne after death of Mary Tudor (Queen Beth I was illegitimate because Henry VIII's divorce from his first wife was not granted by the Pope) and had two movies based on her life, one starring Katharine Hepburn, a direct descendant of Mary's paramour, the Earl of Bothwell.

It was college-term paper time all over again: note cards, outlines, hours of pacing the floor reaching for conclusions. I even thought up some snide comments about The "Virgin" Queen. I loved it.

But my expertise was not water tight. Not when my adversary, Queen Elizabeth I, was played with relish by a history teacher. Everything — good and bad — I had ever come to believe about Elizabeth, the woman played to the hilt.

She came in full costume and spoke in modified Elizabethan English, referring to herself as "we." And she was ready to bare her animosity toward her Scottish cousin — that's me — who kept trying to usurp her claim to the throne.

But — helped by Wycliffe's forcefulness and Calvin's reason — the queen managed to keep the discussion from turning into ladies' night at the fights. John Knox, the reformer who harrassed Mary in Scotland, didn't make it.

And I managed to keep my head, even if I did feel the blade getting awfully close sometimes.

The whole taught me several things: that a lot of that era's history has a slight anti-Catholic bias, that there was more to the Reformation than just disagreement on doctrine (they got down and dirty back then) and that Catholics and Protestants — at least now — have more in common than they do different.

The church will do another panel discussion in three weeks.

In the meantime, thou mayest remember my brush with royalty and art expected to act accordingly.

Judge rejects Spindletop suit

BEAUMONT (AP) — A Tennessee hog farmer and thousands of his relatives have dropped their federal court fight for a share of the Spindletop oil fortune.

U.S. District Judge Howell Cobb has dismissed the lawsuit filed against five major oil companies by John Howard Meadows and about 18,000 of his relatives.

Cobb took the action Friday after lawyers for the group agreed to drop the suit when they could not produce a title to the contested land.

The plaintiffs had claimed kinship to deceased wildcatter James Meadows.

Attorney Bruce D. Herrigel, of Clinton, N.J., representing the Meadows clan, said in court papers the Meadows group had agreed not to refile their suit unless they could produce documents showing a clear chain of ownership from William McFaddin or his heirs to mining engineer Anthony F. Lucas.

McFaddin was a cattle rancher and land owner.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Free markets pay for individual labor

Experience is a harsh teacher, Ben Franklin observed, but a fool will learn by no other. After decades of experimentation with socialism and even Stalinist centralization, a growing number of nations are learning the harsh lesson that planned economies cannot keep up with relatively free economies — a lesson Scottish economist Adam Smith was teaching 200 years ago.

From communist China to Africa to Great Britain, governments are rediscovering the productive power of free markets.

■ In Africa, for example, Tanzania has cut its public payroll. Angola, a communist-controlled country, is trying to sell off state companies. Nigeria, meanwhile, has scrapped currency-exchange controls, a standard feature of centralized economics, in favor of letting supply and demand set the price of its currency.

■ In Asia, communist-ruled Mainland China has opened the country to foreign investment, introduced bonus-pay plans and allowed the production of more consumer goods. Its most dramatic move has been to allow farmers to leave the state-run communes to sell their goods on the open market. (The result has been a sharp increase in food production.)

■ In Europe, Britain has deregulated its financial markets and "privatized" British Telecom, Rolls Royce and other industries totaling $10 billion in value. France and Austria have followed suit by selling all or part of selected state industries to the private sector. ■ Even in the Eastern Bloc, free markets have gained new respect. Hungary allows privately owned service businesses and some market-oriented farm operations. Bulgaria has encouraged private ownership of taxis and restaurants. The Soviet Union, under the flag of "glasnost," has begun to cut back the power of central planners and give more discretion to plant managers. It plans to increase pay differentials between high-skilled and semi-skilled workers.

Free markets are gaining because they work. As Smith argued in "The Wealth of Nations" in 1776, when the "invisible hand" of the free market is allowed to work, resources are allocated to their most efficient use. Government bureaucrats are simply incapable of making the overwhelming number of daily decisions needed to keep a national economy running smoothly. They also lack the incentive that private businessmen have to make good decisions because a bureaucrat's own money is not at stake.

Free markets work because they are in harmony with human nature. Another insight of Adam Smith was that men will work more diligently for the benefit of themselves and their families than they will for some vague notion of "the public good." This is not "greed," but a simple fact of human nature. Capitalism excels economically because it channels that motivation into productive work that ultimately does benefit the public good. Capitalism allows the productive worker to enjoy the fruits of his labor.

Berry's World

"I think it's nice to get back to nature like this once in a while."

Soviets alter baseball's rules

WASHINGTON — I see by the papers, as Will Rogers used to say, that the Soviet Union has taken up the great game of baseball. Bill Keller of The New York Times, reporting from Moscow, says the Russians not only are playing baseball; they also are claiming they invented baseball. Fifteen teams have been organized. A baseball commissar, Alexandr Kalivod, has been named. Before long, it is alleged, the Tashkent Subway Builders may be ready for international play.

Somehow it all seems a little unlikely. Unreliable sources tell me that Earl Weaver, onetime boss of the Baltimore Orioles, this summer took on a consulting job for the Tallinn Tractors. Reportedly he found the going tough.

At the first team meeting, Weaver attempted to discuss balls and strikes with his prospective players. If a hitter got four balls, he explained, the hitter was entitled to take a walk.

"Nyet!" cried Mikhail Mikhailovitch, a candidate for shortstop. "In the Soviet Union, is no balls. Is trappings of czarist decadence. Here we have folk dance only, or sometime is ballet. We make it four ballets, hokay?"

Weaver undertook to define the strike zone. Weaver has been undertaking to define the strike zone for American umpires for 50 years without notable success. He fared no better in Estonia.

"Strikes?" cried Andrei Andreiovitch, a potential outfielder. "In Soviet Union we have no strikes. In this land of freedom, no one free to strike. Even one strike and you're out — way out! Three strikes? You talk impossible stuff."

Weaver was not discouraged. Suppose, he supposed, we get a man on first base. His pupils seemed to grasp the idea. And suppose, Weaver further supposed, the opposing catcher has a weak arm and the right-handed pitcher has a slow windup. Da, da! He had their attention. Now, said Weaver, we send the runner. He is going to steal the base!

This proposition aroused yelps of incredulity. Gregor Gregorovitch, who both pitches and catches, sometimes in the same inning, complained that such a permissive rule would be quite incompatible with the law-abiding lifestyle of the Soviet Union.

"Here we have no stealing," said Gregorovitch. "In communist state, everybody own everything in common. You steal a base, you steal your own base!"

Weaver said it is impossible for a runner to steal his own base. The runner already has that base.

"Why, then, he want to steal another base?" Murmurs of agreement and applause greeted the question. "One base hokay for everybody; that the Soviet way."

Weaver had a feeling his chalk talk was not going at all well. He therefore took his recruits to the team's diamond, where he was astonished to see that there was no pitcher's mound. It had been bushhugged into non-existence, he was told, because in Soviet Union all peoples play on level playing field. Pitcher no better than anyone else.

The same spirit of egalitarianism affected the lineups. Weaver named a first baseman, second baseman and third baseman, just to get a game under way, but his charges would have none of it. In classless Soviet Union, everybody is first-class citizen only. As a result, each of the practice teams had two first basemen, one at the familiar spot and another down the leftfield line. The other two infielders were designated the left shortstop and the right shortstop, though not without some grumbling to the effect that "in Soviet Union, nobody is 'right,' everybody 'left.'"

The game at last began, but it swiftly got beyond Weaver's control. This is because a hitter had his choice of running alternatively to first or to third, and base runners could go either way. It was the first time Weaver ever had seen a runner sliding home from first. It was a sight he hopes never to see again.

Between innings, Weaver inquired about the Soviets' claim to have invented the game. He was told that the first Russian settlers in America had brought the sport of "lapta" with them to the New World. In lapta, a fielder tries to hit a runner with the ball. That was more than Weaver really wanted to know about lapta.

Following the practice game, an interviewer from Izvestia asked Weaver if he saw any real talent. Weaver pointed to Ilyitch Ilyitchovitch, centerfielder.

"If he could field and throw," he said, "the kid might make it, if he could hit."

The Soviets expect to field a team in the Barcelona Olympics of 1992. Earl Weaver won't be there.

Liberals aim at Reagan's head

Baseball pitchers sometimes seek to "brush" a batter back away from home plate by throwing a close one.

It's a gamble. Sometimes the brush-back hits the batter and he gets a free walk to first base. Sometimes — we hope very seldom — a pitcher will maliciously throw at the batter's head.

Today the intentional "bean ball" can get the pitcher thrown out of the game and-or fined and suspended.

President Reagan is a long-ball hitter but his detractors are throwing bean balls.

And the incentive is a prize worth more than the presidency.

The next appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court could shape American history for a hundred years.

Bob Bork is the most qualified nominee for the high court in many years. Nobody challenges his intellect or his credentials.

But Bob Bork is conservative.

And he is consistently conservative.

The philosophical line between liberal and conservative is more sharply defined than any

Paul Harvey

Democrat-Republican difference.

That is why liberals on the Hill are threatening to filibuster if they have to prevent Bork's confirmation.

Liberals are convinced they have the numbers in the Senate to block Bork, but there is one imponderable.

President Reagan, a gifted persuader, could rally enough grass-roots support for Bork to recapture some Senate votes.

Those who believe the president must not be allowed this "home run" are seeking in every way to keep him off balance.

They thought the contra-versy hearings would do it; the president has bounced back from that.

The latest public opinion polls show that even if the president did know about the arms-to-Iran deal — few care.

Now the president's purposeful detractors must resort to other means — whatever means — to diminish his effectiveness until they can kill the Bork nomination.

Delaware's Sen. Joe Biden is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. When the Scalia appointment was being considered last year, Biden said, "I would have to vote for Bork if he were the nominee. If those opposed to Bork tear me apart, that's the medicine I'll have to take."

But then this year Biden decided to seek the presidency for himself. Now he wants the support of the liberal left.

Now Biden is leading the fight to defeat the Bork nomination.

As Ev Dirksen once said, "In politics, sometimes a man must rise above principle."

Perhaps North isn't great American hero

By Sarah Overstreet

I don't understand the national hero worship of Ollie North. However, I have given it the college try because lots of people buying into the mania are good, solid folks, some of them my friends. So, confronted with this quandary, I tried to put myself in their shoes and see how I would react.

I tried to solve my confusion by changing issues. Since I don't support aid to the contras, but many people think the fight in Nicaragua is politically important and ethical, I chose an issue I do believe in. What, I wondered, would have been my reaction if the issue had been the civil rights battle of the 1960s? I imagined a government employee, much like Ollie North, being grilled by the likes of Hubert Humphrey and Scoop Jackson.

"Yeah, I was out in the hall shredding the plans to send the National Guard to Oxford, Miss., while Sen.

Humphrey waited for me in my office," he might testify. As I considered the prospect of ending the inexcusable conditions we'd forced blacks to live under in this country, I admit the lying, stealing and hiding didn't seem so terrible. I'm not proud of it, but there it is. As much as I might proclaim that taxpayers have a right to expect honesty and forthrightness from their public servants, I am not immune from believing the ends just might justify the means, if I believe in the ends. As I said, I'm not proud of it. But I know in my heart I would be more sympathetic if the pro-contra crusade were mine.

But from the comments I've heard from all over the nation, I think the North supporters are divided into two distinct camps: those who favor the contras and support North because they support the cause; and those who believe he is a courageous patriot who should be respected because he either did what he believed in or because he is a scapegoat, a good little soldier left on the battlefield when it was discovered the troops were charging the wrong way.

That's the picture of Ollie North I just can't understand. After days at the witness table, the picture that emerged was not of a good soldier obeying orders. He was a gleeful conspirator, his descriptions rich with the intoxication of plotting from the ground up and loving every minute of it.

It is the portrait of a man who can justify his own actions, no matter what they are. His excuse for lying to Congress was that "lives could have been jeopardized" had he been open about his activities. That argument pales when you realize that some of those lives wouldn't have been jeopardized if he hadn't helped create the danger in the first place.

North's facility at rationalization was perhaps the most amazing part of the whole amazing spectacle. Without taking a new breath, he'd go from some astonishing description of his own plotting to "I saluted smartly and charged up the hill," and so transfer the blame to his superiors.

In the U.S. military of Ollie North, the soldier not only obeys orders, he creates them. Then, when the orders are questioned, the soldier pitches the blame back at his commanding officers: "It's your fault for letting me!"

No, Ollie North isn't a scapegoat. He's a soldier with a lot of talent and potential run amok. The razzle-dazzle of his testimony is so fresh that we haven't had much time to reflect on his motives of actions. I think those Ollie North T-shirts will be going to the backs of our dresser drawers pretty soon, as soon as we begin to figure him out.

Red defense could boost Stars Wars to $1 trillion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet countermeasures to a U.S. "Star Wars" missile defense system could boost the cost of deploying the weapons to as much as $1 trillion, a congressional study says.

The Congressional Research Service says its findings have "disturbing implications" because "many of the variables that will drive up (Star Wars) launch costs are influenced partially or completely by Soviet actions."

Costs could be cut if the Pentagon registers "spectacular advances" in anti-missile technologies or develops launch systems less expensive than those now available, or if the superpowers reach a treaty governing strategic arms and space-based missile defenses, the study says.

"If the Soviets do not cooperate, however, the launch costs for such a defense could skyrocket. ... The lack of U.S.-Soviet offensive arms limitations has the potential to drive up launch costs still more," the report says.

Among the steps the Soviets could take to frustrate Star Wars, and drive up costs, would be developing rocket boosters for its missiles which leave the atmosphere more quickly, equipping them with up to 500 decoys and building more missiles capable of reaching the United States.

The computer estimates were made by congressional researchers Cosmo DiMaggio and Robert L. Civiak and released Sunday by three vocal Star Wars critics, Democratic Sens. William Proxmire of Wisconsin, J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

Lt. Col. Edwin Palmer, a spokeswoman for the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization, said her office had not seen the congressional report and could not comment on it.

Costs could reach $1 trillion or more, it said, but "it is assumed ... that with such poor performance levels the United States simply would not spend $1 trillion to launch space defenses."

No one really knows what it will cost to either develop or deploy the Strategic Defense Initiative, as Star Wars is formally known, and the congressional study estimated only the cost of launching a system and not its development and manufacture.

The study quoted a task force of the Pentagon's Science Board as concluding recently that "as a consequence of the current gaps in system design and key technologies, there is presently no way of confidently assessing system performance ... system cost, or schedule."

An SDI backer, physicist Robert Jastrow, estimated last year it would cost $54 billion to deploy the first stage of a space- and ground-based anti-missile defense, and $121 billion to deploy a full system. Critics say Jastrow's projections are low.

President Reagan sought $5.8 billion for Star Wars research for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1, but a Senate panel voted to cut it to $4.5 billion and the House to $3.8 billion. The bill awaits action by both bodies.

The report was based in part on information from Star Wars scientists at the Sandia, Los Alamos and Lawrence Livermore national laboratories.

NASA testing space shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA said it would begin readying a space shuttle today for the first launching since the Challenger tragedy.

Switching on the electrical power of the shuttle Discovery was planned as the first step in a long process leading up to a mission scheduled for June 7, 1988, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials said.

"The power-up of Discovery to ready it for launch will be a major milestone," said launch operations director Bob Sieck.

Discovery is one of NASA's three shuttles, which have been grounded since Challenger exploded 73 seconds after launch on Jan. 28, 1986, killing the seven crew members.

Soviets consider compromise on nuclear missile warheads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union will consider compromising on a major obstacle to a superpower arms control accord, whether to allow U.S. nuclear warheads to remain on West German Pershing 1A missiles until obsolescence, a Soviet official says.

Alexei Obukhov, the Soviets' deputy arms negotiator, said Sunday the Soviets will not rule out a plan in which the 72 aging Pershing missiles are phased out by obsolescence in the early 1990s.

"No, I'm not," he said in an interview on NBC-TV's Meet the Press. "I cannot speak for the American side, whatever its proposal could be. I am speaking about the Soviet side, and I am explaining the logic of our proposal — why we are insisting on the American warheads, and not missiles which belong to the West Germans, to be scrapped."

But U.S. arms negotiator Max Kampelman said the United States would not accept a provision that affects the missile strength of any of its allies.

The Soviets have agreed in principle with the United States to eliminate medium- and shorter-range missiles. However, Moscow has demanded that the Pershing missiles be included in any agreement.

The United States, backing Bonn officials, has said repeatedly the Pershing 1As belong to the West Germans and are not subject to Soviet-U.S. arms talks in Geneva.

Obukhov said the Soviets would consider a U.S. proposal on the Pershings, but said the suggested compromise has not been introduced at the talks in Geneva.

"Our position, as of now, and our principal approach is that all the warheads, all American and Soviet warheads on medium- and shorter-range missiles must be scrapped in order to have a real global solution," he said.

Kampelman, who appeared on the same program, said the United States has discussed the compromise plan with the Soviets, but he refused to talk about a possible agreement.

"But I want to make it extremely clear to you, we will not, in a bilateral relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union, have a provision in that agreement which affects our allies."

Meanwhile, Viktor Karpov, the chief of the arms control department of the Soviet Foreign Ministry, insisted on CBS-TV's Face the Nation that the United States eliminate the nuclear warheads from the Pershing 1A missiles.

Pressed about the compromise plan of allowing the warheads to reach obsolescence, Karpov said: "Warheads, we don't know whether they are — which vintage they are. Maybe they are brand new, produced this year. So we should have an equitable agreement."

There's a lot to like in the economic news

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it all right, just for once, to feel good about the state of the U.S. economy?

Conditions aren't uniformly terrific, to be sure. But overall they can be rated good to excellent, with growth continuing, employment rising, no recession in sight, and inflation still subdued.

And in the three most troubled sectors of the economy — energy, agriculture and manufacturing — there are signs of varying degrees of revival.

By tradition in economics, long known as "the dismal science," it is dangerous to think this way. Optimism, or, even worse, complacency, often serves as a harbinger of trouble ahead.

Whenever things start looking rosy, veterans of the profession hark back to all the happy pronouncements of the savants in the late 1920s, uttered just before the Great Crash on Wall Street and the Depression of the 1930s.

Every period of prosperity, it is said, carries with it the seeds of its own destruction.

Still, bearing those cautionary points in mind, it would seem unnecessarily solemn not to savor for a moment all the positives in the current situation.

As Barry Rogstad, chief economist at the accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand, put it recently, "There are many pluses in the economy."

"The current economic recovery, closing in on its fifth anniversary, has been remarkable in its ability to create jobs: Over 2 million annually from 1983 to the present. Compared with the postwar standards, this has been record-breaking.

"Even the recent spike in interest rates appears to be more a temporary phenomenon rather than reflective of a long-term increase in inflationary expectations.

"The depreciation of the U.S. dollar against European currencies and the Japanese yen is slowly reversing the major trade deficit the economy is now facing."

It's hard to fault the recent performance of the government's index of leading economic indicators, which is supposed to provide advance warnings of any approaching storms. It has now risen for five consecutive months.

An AP News Analysis

"That amounts to 'a strong indication that the economy is on a sustainable expansionary path,'" said Allen Sinal, economist at the investment firm of Shearson Lehman Bros. Inc.

From the stock market, which many regard as a sort of point man for the economy as a whole, the message is the same.

"The stock market has been posting new highs with little enthusiasm and fanfare," observed Martin Sass, who heads the New York money management firm M.D. Sass Investors Services. "The subdued mood of most investors suggests that the long-term bull market is not over."

"The economy and financial markets have entered a watershed period. Disinflation is giving way to modest reflation, and economic growth is increasingly stimulated by strengthening exports, which is reversing the trade deficit and reviving the manufacturing sector."

The rebound in oil prices, while troublesome in several ways, can only be welcomed in parts of the country that are heavily dependent on the energy industries.

Even in agriculture, which has suffered its own private recession in recent years, there are signs of "modest improvement," say analysts at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Poles enjoying swinging country music

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

Mragowo, Poland (AP) — Although some Communist officials criticize it as "Ronald Reagan music," more than 15,000 Polish good ole' boys and girls braved rainy skies this weekend to swing to Nashville-style music at a rollicking country "piknik."

The three-day music festival that ended Sunday at this lakeside resort featured American and Polish country-and-western performers. With all the cowboy hats and checked shirts it wasn't so easy to tell them apart.

"All roads lead to Nashville," declared the show's impresario, Korneliusz Pacuda, opening Saturday night's program.

Though he would love to make the trip someday, Pacuda has never been to the home of the Grand Old Opry. But that hasn't stopped the Polish radio deejay from putting together the foot-stompingest tribute to American country sounds this side of the Vistula.

Tickets were sold out three months in advance, even before the program was announced.

The music is popular in this country that gave birth to the first trade union movement in the Soviet bloc. "First of all because it is American, and people like America," said Pacuda.

"It really is the music of the road and freedom, made by common people for common people," he said.

The audience, which appeared mostly working-class and between the ages of 13 and 35, cheered lustily throughout the performances. Many left their seats to dance in the aisles or on boatdecks and a dock directly behind the stage.

Margorzata Retkowska said it was "music for simple folk and it cuts across generations." Even her parents listen to it, she said, although most of the couple's friends still prefer rock'n'roll.

Pacuda said only about 10 groups in Poland are performing country music on a professional or semi-professional basis, in part because amateurs have to pass a written test and audition before a government panel before being licensed to perform for money.

The examiners are usually jazz musicians who "just don't understand country music," he said.

Poland's premier country performer, Michael "Lonstar" Luszczyński, said country singers have had to struggle for official recognition.

"Too many people are convinced that this is Ronald Reagan music. We are trying to persuade them otherwise," he said. "It is music for the people, for the worker, the miner, the farmer."

The music's growing respectability in Poland is reflected by the fact that there are now three regularly scheduled country radio programs and country artists were invited to sing at festivities marking Poland's national day July 22.

The Country Music Association of Poland's "Piknik Country" festival at Mragowo, in the Mazurian Lakes of northeastern Poland, is now in its fifth year. The chief U.S. performers on hand were clearly moved by the knowledge and enthusiasm of the Polish fans.

Nashville singer George Hamilton IV, the festival's feature act, said he was "so impressed that the Polish musicians take the trouble to learn American songs and American lyrics. It's kind of embarrassing for us Americans who can't speak any Polish."

Making the point that modern country music is the commercial extension of music rooted in European immigrants' folk songs, he said it's not surprising that the Poles feel at one with it.

What they are actually hearing is the "echoes of their own heritage," he said.

An aspiring Polish country singer named Andrzej Kielar, dressed in cowboy hat, plaid shirt and jeans supplied by relatives in the United States, offered a different explanation.

"Most of all it is a free-spirited music. And this appeals to Poles."

Philippine cabinet head assassinated

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Police set up roadblocks and searched hospitals today after the first assassination of a Cabinet member in the Philippines.

Witnesses told police three to five gunmen riddled Local Government Secretary Jaime Ferrer's car with automatic weapons fire Sunday evening about a block from his home in suburban Paranaque. One gunman may have been wounded.

Ferrer, 70, a staunch anti-Communist, and his driver died of multiple gunshot wounds. No group immediately claimed responsibility for the killings.

Ferrer's brother, Wally, said the secretary had been receiving death threats but refused a military offer of bodyguards. Ferrer, a guerrilla fighter against the Japanese in World War II, had boasted to reporters that he never traveled with bodyguards and that his enemies "know where to find me."

President Corazon Aquino met with a Cabinet crisis committee today to discuss the assassination. Her spokesman, Teodoro Benigno, reported several measures were reviewed but he refused to elaborate, saying: "There are many angles, and very confidential in nature."

He said it was the first assassination of a Cabinet minister in Philippine history.

As local government secretary, Ferrer administered thousands of local officials appointed by Aquino after she fired those who had served under deposed President Ferdinand Marcos. The position made him one of the most prominent and visible members of the Cabinet.

Decorated boxes had many personal uses

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Decorated boxes were used in the 17th and 18th centuries to hold all types of personal items. The "dressing box" was filled with toilet articles or small accessories and kept in the bedroom.

It could have held a comb, brush, scissors, bottles of liquids, razors, a looking glass, jewelry or other items. Sometimes the inside was made with sections.

By the late 18th century the toilet box was called a trinket box. It usually held chains, beads, ribbons, buckles and other small pieces of jewelry or clothing.

In the 19th century, most trinket boxes were decorated by the ladies who used them. Schools for "proper ladies" taught how to decorate painted wooden furniture and matching boxes.

Some very unusual boxes were made that are now popular with folk art collectors. Painted scenes that included houses and people, and odd shaped boxes are especially prized. A few boxes are known that are replicas of full-sized chests of drawers or three-dimensional houses.

Q. How can I tell if I have a real Wallace Nutting picture?

A. Wallace Nutting sold hand-colored photographs of landscapes, colonial interiors, foreign scenes, architectural exteriors and other attractive subjects from 1898 to 1941. The photographs were to be hung as decorative pictures in the house and were signed with the name Wallace Nutting.

However, it was often not his signature but a copy signed by a company employee. After you have seen a few, you should not have trouble recognizing a Nutting photograph.

There is a reprint available of his 1915 catalog that pictures 850 of the most popular views. Look through "The Wallace Nutting Expansible Catalog" (Diamond Press, P.O. Box 167, Maple Glen, Pa. 19002, $9.95) and you will see he sold pictures ranging from tiny ones pasted on calendars, about 2x3 inches, to 30x52 inches.

Q. I would like to find out about my plate that is the last piece in a set owned by my great-grandmother. This plate was part of a set brought to this country when my great-grandmother emigrated sometime just before the turn of the century. It is blue on a pattern marked Villeroy and Boch.

The plate has a chip, but I would never sell it. It has become part of our family folklore, being the only surviving plate in the topping of a china cabinet filled with family treasures.

A. Tragedies like the toppling cabinet are the reason for the scarcity of good antiques. It is always dangerous to fill a cabinet with small spindly legs, or overload a built-in shelf.

Villeroy and Boch made onion pattern about 1874. The pattern is still made by several modern firms. Perhaps you might enjoy buying modern blue onion dishes in honor of your great-grandmother, or for your grandchildren to treasure.

Q. My tin toy car is very old looking. The style is about 1900. It has no doors on the front. The car is marked with a shield with the letters G M C.

A. The Gebruder Marklin and Company was a famous German toy firm. It was founded in 1859. They made many types of toys and were making tin cars by the 1890s. They used their initials in a shield as a mark.

Mom refuses to attend son's nudist wedding

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 and getting married in September to a wonderful young lady named Julie. She and I are nudists, as is her whole family. We have always wanted an outdoor wedding, and want to have the ceremonies at the nudist camp where we met three years ago.

So far, all our invitations have been accepted — except one. You guessed it — the reluctant one is my mother. The non-nudists understand that they will not be required to be nude. My 23-year-old sister and I have tried unsuccessfully to persuade Mother to attend. She refuses to budge, saying if we want her to attend, we will have to change our plans.

Shall we give her an ultimatum and stick with what we want? At this point, I feel like telling my mother we will miss her. What do you say?

BOBBY IN NASHVILLE

DEAR BOBBY: It appears that your mother has already given you an ultimatum — either have a conventional wedding or count her out. Knowing how your mother feels about nudity, if you stick with your plans, it will clearly show her that you don't give a fig (leaf) about whether she attends or not.

P.S. Where will your best man carry the ring? I hope this covers everything.

DEAR ABBY: I'm considering changing my name. It's not that I'm ashamed of my name, but it's very long, hard to spell and hard to remember, which could be a disadvantage for a young man hoping to make it in the business world. What do you think?

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

C.J. IN BUFFALO

DEAR C.J.: I'm reminded of a very bright, ambitious young man who faced the same dilemma. He concluded: "The harder a name is to remember, the harder it will be to forget." Thank you, Arnold Schwarzenegger.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old girl. I graduated from high school with a B average, have been accepted to the university of my choice, and have a good, steady job. I do not smoke, drink, take drugs or associate with people who do.

My problem? Three or four months ago I became interested in getting a small (about 3 inches high) purple rosebud tattooed on the outside of my ankle. I looked around, and found what I believe to be the safest, most sanitary place to have it done, and I discussed it with the owner. However, being only 17, I need a parental consent form signed first.

My father refuses to sign it. He says, "Tattoos are bad news." He still believes the old stereotype that only drunken sailors, dirty bikers and other "undesirables" have tattoos.

I tried to explain that every day I have seen many people driving Mercedes and BMWs and dressed in business suits with tattoos. I also tried to explain that a tattoo will not change who I am, and that it will be virtually harmless and will not hurt anyone, excluding myself momentarily.

What do you think?
TO TATTOO OR NOT TO TATTOO

DEAR TO TATTOO: I think you should quit trying to sell your father on the "harmlessness" of a tattoo, and wait until you are old enough to get one without parental consent. Over the years I have had numerous letters from tattooed readers requesting information on how to remove tattoos. Please reconsider.

DEAR ABBY: I saw this message framed on the wall of a high school counselor's office and think it deserves a larger audience. If you agree, please pass it along to your readers: "If you think high school is boring, wait until you sit around an unemployment office." Sign me... WISE GUY

Purr-fect kittens

(AP Laserphoto)

Three snow leopard kittens seem to pose for a photo in front of their home at the Los Angeles Zoo. The feline triplets, born May 3, 1987, will be housed where the public may see them. Snow leopards are rare and endangered animals from Central Asia, and they differ from leopards in that they are smaller, have longer fur and do not roar. The new female and two males bring the zoo's total to five.

Expert advocates premarital counseling

HOUSTON — With almost 50 percent of marriages ending in divorce, a Baylor College of Medicine clinical social worker says there should be a law requiring engaged couples to receive premarital counseling.

Robert Beck, a marriage counselor at Baylor, says that premarital counseling can help couples understand their expectations of the relationship.

"The unrealistic expectations that most people have about marriage can immobilize the relationship," Beck said. "Premarital counseling can help people address their feelings and needs, discuss them and negotiate how best to meet those needs. Divorces often occur when couples have not done this."

However, Beck doesn't expect a law on premarital counseling to be passed anytime soon. But he offers some simple advice to engaged and married couples:

- Develop good communication skills.
- Learn the warning signs of marital problems.
- Talk about problems.
- Seek professional help when talking doesn't work.

Beck said good communication has three basic principles. The first is that each individual must understand his or her own feelings and then be able to talk about them.

But the man should explain and not just complain. Giving orders or criticism is less effective than giving a specific explanation of the problem.

The next is that couples should discuss in advance how they will handle certain situations. If they want to have children, they need to agree on how children should be disciplined.

The last principle of good communication is to be a good listener. Beck suggests using eye contact, waiting for the other person to finish before speaking, and asking questions to help the spouse clarify feelings.

Symptoms of marital problems vary, Beck said. "Some couples act like two people who just happen to live in the same house," he said. "Others experience an increase in arguments, or worse, physical violence. Still others have children who begin having difficulties in school or having behavior problems."

Most suffer motion sickness

Whether your business or pleasure trip takes you to the halls of Montezuma or the shores of Tripoli, you could end up fighting motion sickness in the air, on land or at sea.

Surveys have found that about nine of every 10 people have experienced this disorder. Experts agree that almost no one is immune to motion sickness and that given a strong enough stimulus, anyone with a normal sense of balance will succumb.

The Texas Medical Association notes that many people are affected only by certain types of motion. A person who feels no queasiness riding in an airplane or the back seat of a car may fall victim to seasickness because of the ship's combined motions of pitching from back to front and rolling from side to side.

The cause of motion sickness is not fully known, but the problem centers in the inner ear, an organ not only of sound but of balance. A "mismatch" between the balance the ear feels through its semicircular canals and the balance that the eye sees can cause the ear to send signals to a part of the brain known as the vomiting center.

The symptoms of motion sickness are well known. Early symptoms include pale skin color, yawning, restlessness, a cold sweat and a slightly upset stomach. These symptoms may progress rapidly in susceptible individuals to excessive salivation, nausea and vomiting.

Preventing motion sickness is easier than treating it. Place yourself where there is the least motion. In a car, sit in the front seat and look ahead. In an airplane, sit over the wing. On a ship, remain on deck about midway.

School board to kick around soccer proposal

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

An organized soccer program at Pampa High School may move one step closer to reality Tuesday night. Pampa trustees will discuss adding the sport to the school's physical education program at the school board meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Soccer would not be a varsity sport at the school since it is not sanctioned by the University Interscholastic League in the Panhandle area. Instead, it would simply be part of the school's PE program — an "intramural" type sport.

Students in PE soccer would compete with students in Amarillo's four public high schools — Amarillo High, Tascosa, Caprock and Palo Duro.

Those four schools are the only schools in the area with organized PE soccer programs at present.

The closest school system with soccer as a UIL sanctioned sport is in El Paso. Pampa High School Athletic Director John Kendall, who drew up the original soccer proposal in June, said money is the main obstacle in getting the program off the ground.

"The honest thing ... I think the big thing is the budget," Kendall said. "We're dealing with the budget right now. But, I think the soccer association has come up with some (financial) help."

Included in Kendall's proposal is an approximate financial rundown of how much the program would cost the school system and, of course, taxpayers.

The estimated annual expense of the program, which totals $8,603, would include:

- A coach's salary of $3,000, which is the same amount any two-sport coach earns at the high school.
- Transportation costs of $1,680. This figure includes eight trips to and from game sites in Amarillo.
- The eight-game officiating costs would total $840. This amount would pay the earnings of one referee and two linesmen — $105 in each game.

Meals for players during road trips would amount to $600. Aside from the coach's salary, the single biggest expense is equipment, which would cost $2,483.

The soccer equipment charges would include 12 soccer balls ($237), four corner flags ($33), four goalie gloves ($33), two goal nets ($200), 30 shin guards ($180), 30 uniforms ($900) and 30 pairs of warmups ($900).

Kendall has proposed starting the program this school year.

The actual season would start the first week of March 1988 and continue through May 10, 1988.

Steve Phillips, president of the Pampa High School Soccer Booster Club, said the program would be a big success at the school and speculated that as many as 40 students would sign up if it were offered.

"We have a minimum of 40 kids that have shown the enthusiasm to play soccer in high school," Phillips said. "We also have the talent in this town's local program."

Phillips pointed out that after students outgrow the city's youth soccer program, they have nowhere to take their soccer skills to develop them further.

"I think soccer is growing in interest," Kendall said. "We've seen its growth in Pampa and in the state. If we can afford to have it, I think we ought to try it."

Witt in history books as Rangers halt skid

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Texas Ranger right-hander Bobby Witt became the 18th pitcher in major league history to strike out four batters in one inning, and he's giving part of the credit for the feat to an umpire.

Witt got into the record books Sunday night after fanning four Baltimore Orioles in the second inning in Texas 5-2 victory, snapping a four-game losing streak.

How did the umpire help? Not by giving Witt a wider strike zone. It was the way the ump rubbed up the baseballs — as is his custom — before the game.

"I don't know who rubbed them up," said Witt, who finished with 11 strikeouts in the game, "but they were really dark. It was almost like throwing a black ball."

"And early in the game in that light, it must have been hard for the hitters to see."

Witt's record book took his victims — Ray Knight, Terry Kennelly, Mike Young and Ken Gerhart — in the second.

He fanned seven in the first three innings, then went three innings without striking anyone out.

On the third strike to Kennedy, catcher Mike Stanley dropped the ball and couldn't recover it in time to throw the runner out at first.

The pitching gave Witt his second trip into the record book. Last year, in his rookie season, Witt set an American League mark with 22 wild pitches.

Sunday's record-tying feat, however, did little to diminish Witt's disappointment in not getting the shutout or his first-ever complete game.

He lost a chance for both when he walked Gerhart and Jim Dwyer homered into the right field bleachers.

Astros' Mike Scott still perfect against Padres

HOUSTON (AP) — Astros pitcher Mike Scott has lifted his record to 9-0 against San Diego in the Astrodome, but he says he doesn't like to think about his dominance.

Scott pitched eight innings of shutout ball Sunday as the Houston Astros defeated the Padres 6-0 to lift Scott's lifetime Astrodome record against them to 9-0.

"I don't dwell on things like that. The first time you think you own a team, they'll beat you. I'll guarantee I'll lose in San Diego if I walk as many as I did today," Scott said.

Catcher Alan Ashby highlighted a 10-hit Astro attack in the first four innings with three hits, including a homer, a double and 3 RBI.

Scott, whose record vs. the Padres in his last 10 starts is 8-1, dominated throughout, giving up only three hits and retiring the last 10 batters he faced before giving way to a pinchhitter in the eighth.

"Scotty had too many pitches going into the ninth or I would have let him go for his complete game and shutout," said Astros manager Hal Lanier, who doubled as third-base coach.

Scott walked five and struck out six, raising his record to 12-7 for the year.

The Astros got all the runs they needed in the first inning. Ashby, in a rare start in the cleanup position, slammed a two-run homer over the right centerfield fence that gave the Astros a 3-0 lead.

Losing pitcher Mark Grant, 2-6, had a nightmare first inning. He gave up three hits, including the home run.

Spinks: 'I want Tyson'

By KEN PETERS
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After watching the fight for the undisputed heavyweight championship, a man in the cheap seats at the distant rim of the arena immediately disputed the title.

"He may have the belts, but he's not really the champion until he deals with me," Michael Spinks said after watching Mike Tyson pound out an unspectacular 12-round unanimous decision over Tony Tucker Saturday night.

The victory over Tucker, the International Boxing Federation champion, completed a sweep of titles for Tyson, who already held the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association crowns.

Spinks, who witnessed the bout from a $50 seat at the Las Vegas Hilton, said the heavyweight picture will remain fuzzy until he fights Tyson. Earlier in the day, Spinks held a news conference to plead his case for that matchup. A Spinks-Tyson bout would seem lucrative and logical, but Tyson's people have said he's booked up until the fall of next year.

"I think they'd be stupid to let a fight like that pass," Spinks said. "This is the one I think all the networks, all the people want to see. They're eager to see me tested."

Spinks was stripped of his IBF title and eliminated from the heavyweight unification series when he would not make a mandated title defense against Tucker, instead opting for a June bout against Gerry Cooney.

Tucker then won the vacant IBF crown and the right to meet Tyson in the series finale.

Spinks said a match with Tyson would be "The Fight." "I don't really think about what I'd do against him, but everybody says I'd have the best chance against him," said Spinks, who had beaten Larry Holmes to take the IBF title.

The unbeaten Spinks, virtually certain to get a shot at Tyson sooner or later, might have been encouraged by what he saw Saturday night.

The 21-year-old Tyson, the youngest fighter ever to hold the undisputed heavyweight crown, had to go the distance for the second time in three bouts.

He won a 12-round unanimous decision over James "Bonecrusher" Smith on March 7 and knocked out Pinklon Thomas in six rounds on May 30, before earning the unanimous decision over Tucker, a 10½-1 underdog.

Cowboys trade Fellows

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Wide receiver Rod Barksdale, the newest Dallas Cowboy, never played high school or college football but has world class speed that gives defensive backs migraine headaches.

To get Barksdale from the Los Angeles Raiders on Sunday night, Dallas signed holdout cornerback Ron Fells to trade him to Coach Tom Flores' team 19 miles down the road at Oxnard.

It was the first player-for-player trade the Cowboys have made since 1984 when they traded Butch Johnson to the Houston Oilers for Mike Renfro.

Fellows, who had no contract and refused to report to the Cowboys' training camp, shopped his talents around the NFL and decided he preferred playing for the Raiders. Fellows, a former seventh round draft choice from Missouri, was under the gun after Dallas drafted Baylor's Ron Francis in the second round. The rookie has been impressive in training camp.

"I'm delighted I'm going to the Raiders. I didn't want to go to Green Bay or somewhere like that," Fellows said from Dallas.

Coach Tom Landry said "Francis has so much talent he could start for us at right cornerback."

Landry had said before training camp that Fellows was "our best pure cover man because of his speed and quickness."

However, Landry was critical of Fellows' inability "to finish off more plays."

Fellows had 67 tackles and five interceptions in 1986.

Barksdale, starting his third season in the NFL, joined the

Barksdale

Raiders as a free agent in 1985 and spent a year on the injured reserve.

His biggest NFL day was 179 yards on six receptions against the Indianapolis Colts. Barksdale caught 18 passes for 434 yards.

He has run a 10.2 in the 100 meters at Arizona. He was sixth in the 1984 NCAA championships in the 200 meters.

"He can burn it," said club President Tex Schramm.

Pampa physicals; Equipment checkouts, workouts begin

With the football season upon us, all seventh and ninth graders who wish to take part in the Pampa football program this fall must obtain a physical.

Likewise, anyone new to the program needs to obtain a physical.

All others will need to fill out a medical history form and depending on the information in the history, may also need a physical.

All middle school prospects will be contacted by Coach Dick Dummam in the near future with more information.

A correction from Sunday's Pampa News regarding equipment checkout, which will begin this week. The schedule is as follows:

Seniors: Wednesday, Aug. 5, from 9-10 a.m. and 7-8 p.m.

Juniors: Thursday, Aug. 6, from 9-10 a.m. and 7-8 p.m.

Sophomores: Friday, Aug. 7, from 9-10 a.m. and 7-8 p.m.

If one of these times is not suitable to the students schedule, call Coach Manning at the fieldhouse for special arrangements.

Practices begin next week, with the following schedule:

Monday, Aug. 10 thru Friday, Aug. 14 — 8-10:30 a.m.; 1-2:30 p.m.; 6-8:30 p.m.

Saturday, Aug. 15 at 10 a.m. is the correct time for this year's Pride Drill. A photo session is also scheduled for the public, set to begin the 15th at 1:30 p.m.

The public may begin purchasing season tickets Monday, Aug. 24.

The Harvesters open their season Friday, Sept. 11 against Amarillo High.

Yankee dammed up

New York's Dave Winfield is tagged out by Detroit catcher Matt Nokes in a sixth inning rundown at the plate in Yankee Stadium, Sunday. The Yanks did go on to defeat the Tigers 8-5.

Phenom phenomenal for KC

By The Associated Press

Rookie Kevin Seitzer had a royal feeling after going 6-for-6, hitting two homers, driving in seven runs and scoring four times.

"I'll probably never have a feeling like I had today," said Seitzer, who tied or broke several team records Sunday in leading host Kansas City over Boston 13-5. "Everything was just perfect today. I caught every break I could possibly catch."

Seitzer's play this season has allowed the Royals to shift perennial All-Star George Brett to first base.

Seitzer hit his eighth homer leading off the third inning against starter Bob Stanley, 3-11. He had an RBI single in the fourth, a three-run homer in the fifth, giving the Royals an 8-3 lead, and added a two-run double in the eighth.

His 13 total bases tied a team record set by Brett, and the seven RBI also matched the club record. Seitzer is now batting .324 with 55 runs batted in, both tops on the team.

Seitzer is only the second Kansas City player to have six hits in a game. Bob Oliver, also a rookie, had six hits on May 4, 1969, against California.

Mark Gubicza, 9-10, allowed eight hits, including Dwight Evans' 21st and 22nd homers, in 8 1-3 innings. Jerry Don Gleaton got the final two outs.

Yankees 8, Tigers 5

Before 46,212 at Yankee Stadium, Dan Pasqua singled three times and drove in two runs and Mike Pagliarulo hit a two-run homer, leading New York over Detroit.

The Yankees increased their AL East lead to three games over the Tigers.

Don Mattingly, and Dave Winfield also had three hits in a 17-hit attack.

Rick Rhoden, 14-6, allowed five runs on 12 hits in eight-plus innings and Dave Righetti got his 20th save.

Mariners 5, Angels 4

John Moses scored Dave Valle in the ninth inning with a suicide squeeze bunt to lift visiting Seattle over California.

Mike Kingery gave Seattle the early lead with a grand slam in the first inning.

Blue Jays 11, Indians 5

Ernie Whitt drove in four runs with a homer and a bases-loaded triple and Lloyd Moseby drove in three runs to lead host Toronto over Cleveland in a game delayed nearly four hours by rain.

Toronto got off to a fast start with homers by Moseby and Whitt in the first inning off Darrell Akerfelds, 0-2.

Athletics 6, Twins 5

Jose Canseco singled to score the winning run with two out in the 11th inning as Oakland edged Minnesota.

Canseco's hit off reliever Jeff Reardon, 5-6, scored Luis Polonia, who had singled and taken second on a throw home that nailed Alfredo Griffin at the plate.

White Sox 7, Brewers 3

Bill Long and Bobby Thigpen combined on a five-hitter and Steve Lyons hit a two-run homer as Chicago took 3-of-4 at Milwaukee.

Long, 6-6, limited Milwaukee to five hits over 6 2-3 innings and Thigpen finished up for third save.

Davis joins elite 30-30 club

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The door to baseball's elite 30-30 club must be located in the upper left field stands at Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium because that's where Eric Davis knocked to enter.

The 25-year-old outfielder became only the seventh player in history to hit 30 home runs and steal 30 bases in the same season when he knocked a towering drive off the facade of the upper deck leading off the bottom of the 11th inning Sunday.

Davis' 30th homer — he also stole his 38th and 39th bases — gave the Cincinnati Reds a 5-4 victory over San Francisco that stretched their National League West lead over the second-place Giants to three games.

Davis joined Willie Mays, Hank Aaron, Bobby Bonds, Dale Murphy, Tommy Harper and Ken Williams as the only players in the 30-30 club.

"I was just looking to hit the ball somewhere and get on and score a run," Davis said. "I knew he (reliever Jeff Robinson) was going to give me a pitch to hit."

With two months left in the season, Davis has a solid chance to become the first player with 40 homers and 40 stolen bases in a single season.

Cardinals 9, Pirates 1

Joe Magrane pitched an 11-hit complete game in 103-degree St. Louis heat and Terry Pendleton drove in four runs with a homer and double. The Cardinals, who had lost seven straight before the Pirates came to town, swept three games from Pittsburgh, which has dropped seven in a row.

Mets 7, Expos 4

Ron Darling and Roger McDowell combined on a four-hitter and Keith Hernandez drove in New York's first three runs with a pair of doubles and a grounder as the Mets climbed within one-half game of the second-place Expos in the NL East.

Cubs 3, Phillies 2

Chicago second baseman Ryne Sandberg drove in two runs, including the game-winner with a single over a pulled-in Philadelphia outfield in the 10th inning.

The Cubs tied the score with single runs in the eighth and ninth innings off Philadelphia relief ace Steve Bedrosian, who relieved Shane Rawley to start the eighth.

Braves 10, Dodgers 5

Paul Runge's second major-league homer ignited a six-run fourth inning that also included a three-run double by Ted Simmons. Winner Zane Smith pitched shutout ball for six innings before the Dodgers scored all their runs in the seventh.

Rangers want Howe called up

DALLAS (AP) — With Texas Rangers manager Bobby Valentine wanting pitcher Steve Howe moved up to the American League team immediately, club president Mike Stone says he thinks something will happen this week.

Howe was suspended by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which governs the minor leagues, in 1986, but the drug-related suspension was lifted last month and the former Los Angeles Dodger reliever signed a contract and joined the Oklahoma City 89ers.

He also agreed to participate in a drug-rehabilitation after-care program with the 89ers, a Rangers farm club.

Howe's progress with the 89ers prompted the Rangers to inform baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's office last week that the club was ready to bring him up, but the Rangers were told that Ueberroth was on the West Coast on personal business and would not be available until later this week.

Valentine said Sunday he thought Howe was ready to join the Rangers.

"He could help us right now," Valentine said.

Don't tell me!

Isiah Thomas can't watch but his two free throws made their mark to lift the Blue team past the White squad in the second annual Midsummer Night's Magic Benefit All-Star Game at Ingleside, Calif. Sunday. The free throws, made with one second remaining, gave the Blue team a 180-178 victory.

Turtle tracking

Ever since Nancy Shaskey got her first quarter-sized turtle some four years ago, her enthusiasm for the creatures has never flagged. But at times her patience has, like when they disappeared in the camouflaging grass during backyard exercise jaunts. Flags attached with modeling clay has helped her keep track of them. The turtles can scoot out of sight rather quickly without their flags. (AP Laserphoto)

Silent screen queen dies in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Silent screen queen Pola Negri, known for her "vamp" portrayals in the 1920s and her romances with such stars as Rudolph Valentino and Charlie Chaplin, has died.

Miss Negri, who died in her sleep Saturday, had been undergoing treatment for pneumonia at Northeast Baptist Hospital for about a week, said her physician, Houston Wade.

"She had been suffering from a serious illness for the last two years. The pneumonia complicated the illness," Wade said.

Miss Negri had retired in San Antonio about 25 years ago.

A rosary service was scheduled here today, and a funeral was scheduled for Wednesday in Los Angeles.

She was born Apollonia Chalupiec in what is now Poland. Her birth was reported variously as being in 1894, 1897 or 1899.

Pola was a childhood name for her, and she took the name Negri from an Italian poet who was a girlhood idol.

She studied ballet and made her stage debut in Warsaw in 1913. A year later she began appearing in Polish movies, and then went to Germany to act in films there.

After one of her German films, Passion, became a hit in New York, she was lured to the United States in 1923 and quickly became an American star.

Her career climaxed with such films as Forbidden Paradise in 1924 and Hotel Imperial in 1927, which made her the prototype of the dark-haired seductress.

In a 1965 interview with The

Pola Negri

Associated Press at her Beverly Hills home, Miss Negri recalled her romance with Valentino.

"Rudy and I used to ride horseback there — and deer would come out of the orange trees," she said, looking out her front window. "We would feed them together."

Valentino died in 1926 and thousands of women swooned at his funeral.

"He and I were to be married the following week," she said. "I have never gotten over his death."

"The screen will never see his equal again. He didn't just thrill women. He hypnotized them. He had virility, sex appeal, intelligence, charm, good looks and something that no actor ever had before — or since."

That something was "mysticism," she said.

Crowd protests Bork's nomination

DALLAS (AP) — A spirited rally opposing the nomination of federal appellate Judge Robert Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court drew jeers from a group of anti-abortion advocates who tried to disrupt the gathering.

About 300 people attended the protest at a Dallas park Sunday to hear speakers who vowed to block Bork's nomination, including the woman whose lawsuit spawned the landmark decision that legalized abortion.

"The nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court represents a threat to our personal privacy. It is an insult to every woman who has had to face the decision about an abortion — and especially to every woman who had to seek a back-alley abortion," said Norma McCorvey, reading from a prepared statement.

McCorvey was "Jane Roe," in the lawsuit that resulted in the 1973 Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court ruling that legalized abortion.

Members of the Abortion Abolition Society clashed briefly with the protesters. Winston Wilder, leader of the group, was arrested for using a bullhorn without a permit.

"We want to restore some sanity to the Supreme Court," Wilder said before his arrest. "They have been legislating for a long time, and that is not their job. Bork will restore restraint to the court."

Bork is President Reagan's choice to replace retiring Justice Lewis F. Powell.

Molly Yard, president-elect of the National Organization for Women, said the rally, which drew letters of support from U.S. Rep. John Bryant and Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, was the first of its kind.

"The purpose of this rally and the many which are now being organized all over this country is to block his (Bork's) confirmation," Yard said.

Bork, a former Yale University law professor, has said he would interpret the Constitution on the basis of the framers' original intent.

He has opposed the 1973 abortion ruling.

Yard said Bork would work to make abortion illegal and would unravel affirmative action.

"Who will join us? Who will join us in this battle to block Bork?" she asked, drawing loud cheers from the crowd. "All those who believe in the right of a woman to control her reproductive life," she said.

The rally was held to show people they can do something about the nomination, said organizer and abortion-rights advocate Charlotte Taft of the Routh Street Women's Clinic in Dallas.

"We suggest that the senators take a cue from Nancy Reagan and just say no," she said.
