Justice nominee admits to smoking pot

WASHINGTON (AP)—Douglas H. Ginsburg's admission that he smoked marijuana in the 1960s and 1970s has jolted, and could cut short, his bid to win confirmation to the Supreme Court, senators say.

Ginsburg, 41, revealed Thursday that he used the drug once in the 1960s and on a few occasions in the 1970s, adding, "It was a mistake and I regret it."

The statement followed National Public Radio's request for his comment on NPR interviews in which a half-dozen people indicated Ginsburg used marijuana while teaching at Harvard Law School.

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., said earlier in the day that he hoped to begin confirmation hearings the week of Dec. 7 and finish well before the Senate adjourned for the year.

A source close to Ginsburg, speaking on condition he not be named, said the nominee told senators he "didn't buy it (marijuana), didn't sell it and used it just a few times."

But comments from conservative Republican senators made clear that only two weeks after the embarrassing defeat of Supreme Court nominee Robert H. Bork, the successor candidate was in trouble.

"If it was known before he was nominated, he would not have been nominated," Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said of the drug revelation.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said the admission might not make a difference in and of itself, "except that you like to think people who are appointed to the Supreme Court respect the law."

Grassley, asked if the disclosure would hurt Ginsburg among conservatives, said, "Yes, without a doubt."

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., said "it's been an embarrassment to a number of the conservative senators who were announcing their support of him minutes after he was nominated."

Biden said he didn't think the marijuana revelation would hurt Ginsburg's chances for confirmation, "if that's all there is."

The rumors of Ginsburg's drug use spread through the Capitol on Thursday, and soon reached Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

To separate fact from rumor, Dole called the White House and Ginsburg was sent to the Capitol, said a Republican Senate source, speaking on condition he not be named.

After Dole heard the story first hand, the source said, he summoned Republican members of the Senate Judiciary Committee for a series of meetings with the nominee. Shortly after Ginsburg left the Capitol, Ginsburg's statement was issued by the Justice Department.

Dole went from the meetings to the Senate floor and gave a brief description of what happened, expressing neither support nor opposition to the nominee.

Safeway workers vote on pay slash

From Wire and Staff Reports

AMARILLO — Faced with the possibility of losing their jobs, employees of the Oklahoma division of the Safeway grocery chain — which includes one Pampa store and seven other stores in the Texas Panhandle — are voting whether to accept pay cuts of up to 45 percent.

Safeway recently sold its 106-store Oklahoma division, which includes the eight Texas Panhandle stores, to an investor group headed by Clayton & Dubilier.

A pay and benefit reduction plan, agreed upon by the union and by Clayton & Dubilier, proposes that employees making $12 an hour be reduced to $8 and that employees making $8 be reduced to $4.50 once the acquisition is complete.

"We hammered out an agreement that we wish we could be proud of, but frankly we have to come to something to keep our people working," said Dennis Patterson of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union, Local 368 in Amarillo.

Voting by Safeway grocery workers was held Thursday night in Borger, following a Wednesday night vote by Amarillo Safeway workers who overwhelmingly approved of the reductions, Patterson said.

Many employees of the Pampa Safeway store at the Pampa Mall attended the Borger meeting and others attended the Amarillo meetings.

Patterson said he had no tallies of Thursday's vote in Borger, although one meeting observer said the split was 19 for the proposal and 10 against.

Safeway employees in Dumas will vote tonight.

Patterson said the votes will be tallied together.

"It's a combined vote," he said.

Safeway's Oklahoma division, which is based in Oklahoma City, employs 5,000 people in three supply plants, a distribution center and supermarkets in Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle and southern Kansas.

It includes five supermarkets in Amarillo and one each in Pampa, Borger and Dumas. Two of the five Amarillo stores were completed in 1985 and another in 1979, officials said. The union represents about 350 employees in the Panhandle, Patterson said.

Voting throughout the division continues through Saturday, and figures will be available sometime thereafter, Patterson said.

Patterson said the cuts may be the best option if the alternative is for the people to be jobless.

When the Dallas division of Safeway was sold earlier this year, many stores were closed, leaving workers out of a job. Patterson said the union is working with the federal government to help retrain many former Safeway employees to get them a job.

"We agreed to take a reduction in pay and benefits both, but a major effort is to save the Oklahoma division from what happened in Dallas," Patterson said.

"There, Safeway store after Safeway store is empty."

VFW post sets open house

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #1657 will host an open house at their new building from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday, with the public invited.

The new post building, on Hwy. 152 west of Pampa, is located between the former Pupco Building and Quillen Electronics.

Post Commander Don Emmons said the open house is an opportunity for Pampa area residents to visit the new post building and learn more about post activities.

Post members also will be putting out U.S. flags at Memory Gardens Cemetery on Wednesday morning.

in observance of Veterans Day and the annual Parade of Flags.

Emmons said the flags will be placed on approximately 200 graves beginning around 7:30 p.m. The flags will remain up until 5 p.m.

Emmons said each flag will represent a veteran that has died. He said the service is available for those who wish to honor their loved ones who have served in the armed forces.

He said volunteers are welcome to help put out the flags Wednesday morning.

Local choirs to host clinic

The Pampa junior high and senior high choral departments will host students from 36 schools around the Panhandle in all-day clinics and a concert Saturday.

There will be three choirs participating in the all-day clinics, ending with a combined concert at 7:30 p.m. in M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Students auditioned for choirs several weeks ago. The choirs are sponsored by the Texas Music Educators Association. Sixty Pampa students will be involved in the one-day event, with approximately 270 students total participating from throughout the Panhandle.

Clinicians for the day will be Ken Fulton, Louisiana State University; Brad White, Garland, and Billy Talley, Amarillo. Pampa school Superintendent Dr. Harry Griffith will give the official welcome at the concert.

The public is invited to attend the concert, according to Pampa Middle School choir director Suzanne Wood. Admission is $1.

Banks cut prime lending rates

By VIVIAN MARINO
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A coordinated drive to help push down global interest rates gave Wall Street a much-needed shot in the arm, but the ailing dollar only grew weaker in foreign exchange.

On Thursday, major U.S. banks cut their prime lending rates another quarter percentage point to 8.75 percent, as European central banks lowered their interest rates to stem the economic crisis precipitated by last month's stock market crash.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 40 1/2 points to 1,985.41 Thursday on the strength of lower interest rates, rose slightly in the first few minutes today then fell back for a nearly 4-point loss in the first half hour of trading. But gaining issues outnumbered losers by about 3-to-2 on the New York Stock Exchange.

The dollar sank to its lowest level in four decades against the Japanese yen in Tokyo today, finishing at 135.50 yen, down 0.45 from the record low set Thursday. Foreign exchange dealers also sold the dollar lower in Europe and the United States.

On Thursday, the dollar also fell to record lows against most major currencies in the United States and Europe.

In addition to spurring economic growth, lower overseas interest rates normally would allow the United States to hold interest rates down without jeopardizing the health of the dollar, which has been falling steadily for months.

The first announcements on the prime-rate cut came from Citibank and Chase Manhattan Bank, two of the nation's largest banks, shortly after the stock market opened Thursday. Other banks quickly followed suit.

Around the same time, West German and Swiss central banks said they were cutting key interest rates, a day after Britain made a similar move.

The cut in the U.S. prime rate — the benchmark used by banks to set interest rates on a variety of corporate and consumer loans — was the second in two weeks. Major banks lowered the rate for the first time this year on Oct. 22, to 9 percent from 9.25 percent.

The prime had been raised five times since August 1986, when it stood at 7.5 percent, because of Man indicted for 21 car burglaries

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A 223rd District grand jury handed down a 21-count indictment Thursday against a man accused of breaking into nearly two dozen cars in an August burglary spree.

District Judge Don Cain set bond at $10,000 for Christopher Allen Smith, 19, 2721 Navajo Road, named in the indictment.

Burglary of a motor vehicle is a third degree felony, carrying a maximum two- to 10-year prison sentence and a $5,000 fine.

Smith was one of nine people indicted by the grand jury in its second meeting in a week.

Almost all of Smith's charges involve car burglaries on Pampa's wealthy northeast side. Detective Gary Boydston, who handled the cases for the Pampa Police Department, accused Smith of taking "little bits of everything" from the motor vehicles.

A Pampa teen-aged boy, still a juvenile, also was apparently involved in the burglaries, police said, and may be charged in juvenile court.

In two separate indictments, Shon Kysar, 19, 1500 N. Sumner St., also was charged with burglary of a motor vehicle, but police said the incidents are unrelated. Judge Cain set Kysar's total bond at $4,000.

Also indicted Thursday were two men charged in the Oct. 8 strong-armed robbery of a 23-year-old Gray County man on Finley Street.

Robert Ludie Mitchell, 21, 1153 Prairie Drive, and Versie Letton Brown, 18, 1101 Huff Road, each face a $15,000 bond following the robbery indictments.

They are accused of robbing Scott Hoke, Route 2, Pampa, of $58, his driver's license and other papers. Hoke told police he jumped from a moving car in the 900 block of Finley after the robbers threatened his life.

Mitchell and Brown face maximum two- to 20-year prison sentences and a $10,000 fine if found guilty of the robbery charges.

Others indicted Thursday are:

- Jerry Lynn Rholen, forgery, $1,000 bond.
- David Andrew White, forgery, $2,500 bond.
- John Luis Bencomo Oroz, burglary, $5,000 bond.
- Jay Daudie Mize, theft between $750 and $20,000, $3,000 bond.
- Michael Lynn Lee, criminal trespass and two charges of assault (all misdemeanor charges), $7,500 bond.

District Clerk Vickie Walls also reported that three people were no-billed, meaning grand jurors decided evidence didn't warrant indictments against them.

ACT I's 'The Good Doctor' sparkles with performances

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Guest Reviewer

Bright, funny, poignant — all these words describe The Good Doctor, ACT I's opening production set for tonight and Saturday at the Pampa Community Center.
Neil Simon's collection of vignettes depicting human vagaries sparkle with the antics of local thespians.
Based on short stories by Anton Chekhov, the mini-plays are set in Russia. Despite the foreign location, the audience soon identifies with the "humanness" of the characters brought to life by several well-known personalities.
Jeff Langley, managing editor of The Pampa News, aptly takes the part of Chekhov, the writer. Langley's performances cover a wide range of emotions and acting skills from terse drama to out-and-out slapstick. He carries off these demands on his talent well, no doubt aided by his early acting instruction from Neil Hess, director of TEXAS!
Mike Kneisl's radio disc jockey personality does not do justice to his physical comedic talent. He doesn't act the part, he is the part. And it isn't long before the audience is believing in him as well.

Surprisingly, this is Kneisl's ACT I debut. But do not be surprised to see more of him in the future. Real standouts were his performances in "The Sneeze" and "The Defenseless Creature."
Kayla Pursley, veteran actor and director in ACT I productions, presents a strong performance, particularly in her bittersweet duet with Bud Behannon, "Too Late for Happiness." Her marvelous range is clearly shown when she then plays the not-so-defenseless creature.
Cathy Spaulding, whose skills in character roles can hardly be matched, once again transforms herself in "The Audition." In this scene, Spaulding plays an actress trying out for one of Chekhov's plays. She becomes an actress playing the part of two characters. Not an easy task, but one she handles admirably.
Karen Patterson, a recent newcomer to ACT I productions, does well as a to-be-seduced young wife. Debbie Lawrence's shy governess is quite believable, as is Elizabeth Carter's difficult employer.

Bettany Cisneros makes a convincing lady-of-the-evening with her Cockney accent. Bud Behannon and Bill Hildebrandt round out the cast, showing considerable versatility in the variety of characters they portray.
Setting the scene of any production is important, and this one is no different. The set, painted in shades of blue and gray, combined with imaginative costuming, helps the audience picture the action taking place before them.
Director Paula Simpson shows a sensitivity to Simon's intentions, both in her direction of the play and in designing the set. Painted by Virginia Dewey, it makes a striking background to the play. Gus Shaver's costumes interject a note of realism.
At the beginning of its fifth season, Pampa's ACT I is showing a degree of professionalism and maturity that can be nothing but an asset to this community's fine arts program.
Performances are at 8 p.m. today and Saturday. Dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. each night. For information, call 665-7212.

Vernon rancher announces candidacy

VERNON — A Vernon rancher has announced his candidacy for U.S. Representative from the 13th District.
Ed Lehman, 61, a Democrat, hopes to challenge incumbent Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, in the 1988 elections.
Lehman, a Texas Tech University graduate, currently farms and ranches on 1,500 acres of land near Vernon. He is a retired John Deere dealer.
He and his wife Janette have four children.
Lehman is past director and chairman of the Wilbarger-Wichita Soil and Water Conservation District. He is active in the Vernon Chamber of Commerce, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and numerous state and local agricultural organizations.

In his campaign announcement, Lehman said he is seeking the Congressional office "to return control of the 13th District to the people of North Texas" after "four years of Republican non-representation."
"Don't let anyone suggest that there are no significant issues affecting North Texas in this election," Lehman said. "During the past four years, our Congressman has been extremely effective in creating a media image. But what has he done for the people of North Texas? Are you really better off today than you were four years ago?"
Lehman indicated that the major issues in next year's campaign will include overall economic revitalization in the area, the slumping oil economy, the national debt, farm policy and commitment to small businesses.

Nation's jobless rate edges upward despite more work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The jobless rate edged up to 6.0 percent in October — the first increase in 18 months — despite the creation of more than 500,000 jobs and significant growth in manufacturing employment, the government said today.
The Labor Department's survey of households showed 415,000 more Americans at work last month than in September. But the civilian labor force grew by 500,000, raising the jobless rate by 0.1 percentage point.
September's 5.9 percent rate had been the lowest in nearly eight years.
Both overall employment and the size of the civilian labor force had dropped in September as hundreds of thousands of students returned to school after summer vacations.

It was that drop that largely accounted for September's 0.1 percentage point drop from the 6.0 percent rate of July and August.
The October survey was taken in the second week of the month, just before the 508-point drop recorded in the Dow Jones industrial stocks index on Oct. 19. Most private economists say the effects of recent market activity won't be reflected in unemployment calculations for a few months.
A separate department survey of business payrolls showed 550,000 jobs were created in October, including 65,000 on factory assembly lines. That followed a gain of 55,000 manufacturing jobs in the preceding month.

Since June, factory employment has grown by 220,000 jobs, providing evidence that manufacturers left behind through most of the recovery, at 59 months the nation's longest, are finally catching up.
The commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee that payroll employment rose in more than 60 percent of the nation's industries.

Banks

the falling dollar and fears of higher inflation. At least two big banks had boosted the rate to 9.75 percent in early October but promptly reduced it to 9.25 percent in the wake of the Oct. 19 stock market collapse.
Pressure had been mounting for lower rates during the past few weeks to help shore up the economy and stock prices. And analysts said Thursday's reduction was expected given that the Federal Reserve has eased its credit policies significantly and rates in the credit markets have fallen sharply in response.
"I think there's a real effort on the part of the Fed and the banking system to provide a lot of liquidity in an effort to keep short rates down and safeguard against a slowing in the economy," said Nancy Vanden Houten, a money market economist for Merrill Lynch Capital Markets Inc.

A drop in interest rates often stimulates economic growth by making corporate and individual borrowing less expensive.
The latest prime cut could lead to lower interest payments on mortgages, home equity loans, credit cards and other consumer debts.
Economists had worried that last month's stock market collapse, which resulted in a one-day paper loss of half a trillion dollars, would frighten consumers into spending less and eventually lead to a recession.

But the Fed has been easing credit by buying securities in the open market and injecting funds into the banking system.
Many economists were disappointed that West Germany's Bundesbank failed to cut its discount rate. Instead it trimmed two less significant rates — its Lombard rate, by a half percent to 4.5 percent, and its securities repurchase rate, to 3.5 percent from 3.8.
The central bank of Switzerland lowered its main lending rates by a half percentage point.
On Wednesday, Britain's four major banks slashed their key interest rates a half percentage point to 9 percent.

Racing enthusiasts prepare for opening of tracks

WEATHERFORD (AP) — As soon as it became clear that pari-mutuel betting had been approved — not only statewide but for Parker County — the co-owners of Trinity Meadows Race Course began making plans.

Jimmy Bradley and Jack Johnson said they plan to apply for a permit as soon as possible and prepare the track for a large number of visitors expected to attend the racing events.

Because pari-mutuel passed at the state level Tuesday and local voters approved the option, large race tracks may be established near Houston, San Antonio and Dallas-Fort Worth, where the measure won overwhelming approval.

Race tracks in smaller counties — such as Parker County, just west of Fort Worth — that approved the local option also may have pari-mutuel betting, but will likely have shorter racing seasons.

A state racing commission, to be appointed by Gov. Bill Clements, will have to approve track permits in the counties that opted for betting.

"We'll immediately go apply for a pari-mutuel license for a Class 2 track,"

Bradley said. "We'll make general improvements like improve the grandstand, put in (betting) windows, improve the parking."

Bradley is looking forward to the opening, saying he anticipates demand for training facilities in Parker County to increase threefold.

"We're going to get the horses from Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas," he said. "It's not just Texas that's going to stay home; we're going to get them from other states."

The track near Weatherford is one of many that have had racing for many years, but without legalized gambling.

Statewide, the question of legalized race track gambling won approval from 57 percent of the voters on Tuesday.

The local option proposition carried by 1,188 votes in Parker County, but an erroneous report by county officials made it appear it was headed for defeat.

Parker County officials were announcing both to the media and the Secretary of State's office the votes on a jail bond election as the votes for local betting option. They didn't discover their mistake until Wednesday.

Proponents of legalized gambling say keeping horse- and dog-racing in the state will bring in millions of dollars and provide Texans hundreds of jobs that had previously gone to neighboring states that allowed race track betting.

Horse trainer Sally Pike says she has traveled every year to New Mexico to pursue her career in the horse-racing business.

"We have to move to New Mexico every summer where we can make more money," she said. "The purses are bigger there."

Texas A&M, Texas post large gains

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M University and the University of Texas at Austin led the nation's largest colleges in enrollment gains this fall, an A&M telephone survey indicates.

Texas A&M had the largest increase among institutions that traditionally lead the nation in student-body size with a gain of 2,531 students for a record enrollment of 39,079, according to the survey released Thursday.

UT, with 1,603 more students for a total of 47,743, compiled the nation's second-largest increase and was in second place. Texas is the only state with two universities in the top 10, the survey showed.

Texas State Senator Kent Caperton of Bryan explains the Freedom of Information laws in Texas to members of the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas.

Forum: Should the NCAA release investigative records?

AUSTIN (AP) — The public has a right to know details of investigations into intercollegiate athletics, a money-making activity that has been plagued by scandal, freedom of information advocates say.

But Butch Worley, former assistant director of enforcement for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, contended at a Thursday seminar that releasing such details would hamper NCAA efforts to get information and stop rules violations such as the pay-for-play football scandal at Southern Methodist University.

The question, which is being pursued in state and federal courts, was debated at a seminar sponsored by the Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas and the University of Texas journalism department.

"You have to look at the power (the NCAA) wields ... Major college athletics have become a multimillion-dollar business, and we've basically left them unscrutinized in large measure," said Doug Bedell, sports reporter for the Dallas Morning News.

"You essentially have an organization here that does what it wants to, and without much scrutiny. There are few, if any, other quasi-governmental bodies or organizations with such power without any access to the public or any right of access to its whole procedures," Bedell said.

When the NCAA investigates universities, it only makes public a copy of the final report, without names, said Worley, now special assistant to the athletics director at the University of Texas.

Worley said some information about rules violations only can be obtained by the NCAA with a promise of confidentiality. Rules violations recently reported at universities include payments to student athletes.

"I know you've got the right to know and the right to privacy, but I think there's a third thing that needs to be considered, and that's institutional effectiveness, and can the institutions do the job," Worley said.

"Sometimes they (open records requirements) can in fact decrease the information that is known, because if people don't talk to you, the NCAA doesn't know about it," he said. "And the public doesn't know about it, but that doesn't mean that it's not happening."

Bedell said the public has a right to examine records to find the answers to "nagging questions" about athletics investigations. For example, he said, it is now impossible to examine claims that SMU was the victim of selective enforcement of rules.

"If (student athletes) are truly amateurs out there, not professionals, I just think it's essential that something be opened up here and allowed more scrutiny," Bedell said.

State and federal lawsuits have been filed in an effort to win disclosure of NCAA records.

A state judge has held that private schools do not have to release records of NCAA investigations, a decision being appealed by media organizations.

On appeal by the NCAA is a federal judge's decision that NCAA records on completed investigations are subject to disclosure under the Texas Open Records Act.

Prognostications for the winter

Just in case you've missed it, The National Examiner has released its "Predictions for Winter, 1987-88."

Gosh, I don't know about you, but I wait with bated breath every year for this issue!

This year's expectations include an expected fight between Sean Penn and Bruce Willis. Self-acclaimed prophet Sven Petersen says the fight will start after "Willis playfully drops an ice cube down the dress of Penn's wife, rock superstar Madonna."

According to these carnival-type prognosticators, other things to look forward to this winter include:

- Tom Selleck announcing for the presidency.
- Jim and Tammy Bakker announcing their divorce on television. The divorce will come about after the two decide to pursue separate careers. Petersen says Tammy Faye will become a fashion consultant and Jimmy boy will become Dan Rafter's replacement on the CBS Evening News.
- Wouldn't it be a thrill to watch Bakker every night on the news? At the close of each newscast he could ask for a donation.
- Also from Petersen, proof of life after death will come when "famous dead people appear on our TV screens."
- As far as I'm concerned, there's already enough lifeless people on television now.
- Elizabeth Taylor will attempt to jump over 13 — count 'em, 13 — Greyhound buses with a rocket-powered motorcycle. She will do this so she can help raise money to fight AIDS.
- Yeah, buddy!
- Now, if you line up 13 Porsches back-to-back and put a prospective husband at the end of the jump while providing her with a fur-lined, diamond studded bike, she may go for it.
- Pennsylvania Avenue will be invaded by aliens from outer space. They will land their UFO on the White House lawn in an attempt to kidnap Chief of Staff Howard Baker.
- There's already enough wierdos in Washington ... we don't need anymore, thank you.
- What the UFOs need to do is land in Iran and take the ayatollah.
- As startling as some of these "soon-to-be realities" are, The Examiner has left out a few. So, submitted for your approval — and great anticipation — are my guesses as to what the winter ahead holds in store.

- The remaining Democratic presidential hopefuls will announce that they will ban together to defeat the GOP candidates. Their merging will make possible the first "Group-presidency" in the history of the United States.
- Jessica Hahn, Donna Rice and Fawn Hall will combine to form a new musical group called "Swinging Out Sisters." The group will stun millions when their first three hit singles will intimately detail their exploits with Jim Bakker, Gary Hart and Oliver North.
- And speaking of the Colonel, North will write a travel book called, "Nicauragua on $10 a Day."
- The stock market will physically move its offices from Wall Street to Clayton, N.M. Officials will say the move is necessary because, "the next time the market crashes, no one will ever know."
- Seattle Seahawk Brian Bosworth will shock sports fans when he expresses his disappointment over his 10 year, $1.1 million contract. Bosworth will tell the press he wished he was still playing college football because at OU, he "was able to drive fancier cars."
- Country singer Willie Nelson will win the hearts of Dallasites when he records a new song called, "Mama, Don't Let Your Cowboys Grow Up To Be Babies." Nelson will be given the key to the city, but unfortunately will be locked out of Texas Stadium.
- So, there you have it. All the information you'll ever need to make it through the upcoming cold spell.
- Oh, if you believe all those, here's another one for you: The Cowboys and Oilers will meet in the Super Bowl.

Doctors still unsure about Jessica's toe

MIDLAND (AP) — Doctors continue to watch Jessica McClure, but have yet to decide whether the big toe on her right foot will have to be amputated, a spokesman for Midland Memorial Hospital said.

Her little toe was removed on Wednesday from the foot which was wedged beneath her in a well she fell into in mid-October. She was trapped, more than 20 feet underground, for 2½ days before her dramatic, nationally televised rescue on Oct. 16.

"They are just going to keep an eye on her and her improvement," a spokeswoman for Midland Memorial Hospital said Thursday.

Sue Ristom said the 19-month-old toddler was continuing with therapy.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Washington has nothing to export

Most Washington politicians holler up and down the aisles of Congress that America is importing too much and exporting too little. That's not really a problem; it only means America's economy is healthy enough to buy many imports.

But what if we take this "problem" at face value? Who is to blame for supposedly lagging exports? A recent study indicates where the locus of the problem is: in Washington itself.

The Census Bureau found that more than 4 million American jobs depend on exports. The states most affected are Connecticut, with 6 percent of jobs devoted to exports, followed by Ohio, Massachusetts, Indiana and Michigan. California was close to the top with 4.2 percent.

But last on the list is Washington, D.C., with only 1 percent of its jobs depending on exports. It's not hard to figure out why.

The top export states produce things people want. Connecticut and Massachusetts make electronics, airplanes and other manufactured goods; Ohio, Indiana and Michigan pump out cars and machines.

What does Washington produce? Nothing but rhetoric, red tape and repression. Not surprisingly, few foreigners want to import such nonsense.

The Census Bureau explains that Washington's major manufacturing business is publishing. Mind you, that figure doesn't account for many newspapers, novels, diet books or other things you might want. Instead, it accounts for the millions of pages of laws, bills, regulations, resolutions and other ukases imposed on us by government at all its nefarious levels.

And it further accounts for all the press releases, legal briefs, campaign leaflets and other unreadable babble churned out by Washington's vast lobbying-lawyering-activist-political complex. The more paperwork these free loaders either write or force others to write, the higher they are paid.

Washington is the most paper-driven city in history. Even such big-government centers as London and Paris at least exist amid businesses and services that contribute to society. Such proximity to the real world imposes a certain realism on even the most hidebound government apparatchik.

But in Washington, everyone exists in isolation from the real world. Life there is of the government, by the government, and for the government — and against the American people.

No, Virginia, not a lottery!

RICHMOND, Va. — The Commonwealth of Virginia appears to be on the verge of doing a most un-Virginia thing. Barring a last-minute upsurge of "no" votes, the people of this staid and often stuffy state will legalize the numbers racket. They will vote on Nov. 3 in favor of a state lottery.

The prospect, as The Washington Post is so fond of saying, fairly boggles the mind. Should Virginia have a state lottery? Should grandma wear miniskirts?

From the days of the venerable George Mason, Virginia has adhered to the concepts of frugality, temperance, moderation and virtue. These are the "fundamental principles" to which Virginia recurs. It seems unthinkable that the commonwealth would legalize gambling to this fashion, but the polls say it looks that way.

I hope the polls are wrong. New Hampshire started this pernicious business in 1964. Since then lotteries have proved so popular among state governments that 23 states and the District of Columbia now have them in operation. Six other states are poised for action. There is even talk of a national lottery. What has gotten into us?

It is government's insatiable love of money. In 1985-86, according to figures compiled by the Council of State Governments, ticket sales in state lotteries amounted to an astounding $12.2 billion, a 20 percent gain over the previous year. After prizes, sales commissions and overhead expenses have been paid, about 35 percent to 40 percent of gross revenue typically reverts to the state treasuries.

Proponents of the Virginia lottery talk grandly of gross sales a few years hence of $888 million with a $400 million net. To obtain that lucrative level, half of all families in Virginia would have to bet more than $1,000 a year on lottery tickets. That seems unlikely, but it would be a lovely chunk of dough.

This is like finding a $5 bill on the sidewalk. Lottery profits are gravy. The state performs no useful public services to obtain the money. Unlike taxes, which are paid under compulsion, revenues from a state lottery are voluntary. Evidently the people who buy the tickets find pleasure in taking a chance on instant wealth. What's wrong with having a little fun?

At the risk of sounding too virtuous for words (a risk that arises from living for 46 years in Virginia), let me suggest a few reasons. No. 1 is that government should confine itself to the business of governing, and running a lottery has nothing to do with running a state. Governments have no business in the gambling business. The states that embrace public lotteries undermine public virtue. They invite social evils.

Virginia's pending lottery act prohibits the state from advertising "for the primary purpose of inducing persons to participate in the lottery," but if revenues fail to come up to expectations that prohibition will not remain long in the law. Meanwhile, the very act of state sponsorship is in itself an inducement. An inducement to what? To gamble. That is the long and short of it, and it is a terrible example of right conduct for a state to set before its people.

In the case of Virginia — and this is true of other states — there is no demonstrable need for the unreliable revenues that a lottery may produce. This commonwealth has a comfortable surplus. When genuine needs become evident, a responsible state legislature has shown its willingness to raise taxes the old-fashioned way. An ambitious program of highway construction is being financed by a straightforward increase in the tax on gasoline.

Virginia's frugal tradition opposes the creation of new bureaucracies and new social programs. The act that would be triggered by Tuesday's referendum would create an entirely new department of state government, with apparently unlimited powers to hire personnel and to turn over to the commonwealth as much or as little as a five-member board might decree.

The state's cut, whatever it amounted to, would be available to the General Assembly as fun money, to be used for any legislative purpose that could not otherwise command support. The legislators may not need the money, but they would want the money. They would have all the pleasure of spending it without the pain of raising it. This way lies the kind of bloated government that Virginia traditionally has abhorred.

It would be an exercise in utility to urge those governments now operating lotteries to abandon them. You can't do much with unrepentant drunks. But it would be a pity to see sober Virginia, like Hamlet's puff'd and reckless libertine, tread down this primrose path.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 6, the 310th day of 1987. There are 55 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Nov. 6, 1860, former Illinois Congressman Abraham Lincoln defeated three other candidates for the presidency of the United States.

On this date:
In 1854, the "king" of American march music, John Philip Sousa, was born.

In 1861, Jefferson Davis was elected to a six-year term as president of the Confederacy.

In 1869, the first official intercollegiate football game was played in New Brunswick, N.J. Rutgers beat Princeton, 6-4.

In 1900, President William McKinley was re-elected, beating Democratic challenger William Jennings.

Five years ago: The White House announced President Reagan had selected Sen. Paul Laxalt to head the Republican National Committee, replacing Richard Richards.

One year ago: Former Navy radioman John A. Walker Jr., the admitted head of a family spy ring, was sentenced in Baltimore to life imprisonment.

THE BEAR & THE BULL

Heroin can kill cancer pain

With innovative medicine, nutrition and sanitation, Americans are living longer than ever before.

We are adding one month to the average human life span every year.

In the old days, Americans died of consumption or heart attack, earlier and with minimal anguish.

Today we are keeping ourselves alive long enough to develop cancer that causes 8,000 Americans each year to die in agony.

There is relief for intractable pain. It is a 100-year-old drug that has been used for a very long time in Great Britain, Belgium and Holland, and more recently approved for medical use in Canada.

The drug is heroin.
Yet, while anybody in a major city can get heroin in the street from a drug dealer, licensed doctors may not administer the identical drug to men and women — and children — literally dying in unnecessary and excruciating pain.

Doctors, nurses, cancer patients and families have created the National Committee on the Treatment of Intractable Pain. The purpose of their effort is to promote legislation to make heroin available where medically indicated.

The Compassionate Pain Relief Act has been introduced in the U.S. Senate permitting medical prescription of heroin for terminally ill cancer patients who need it.

However, a similar bill, considered in an earlier Congress, did not pass. And without your involvement, this one could get set aside in favor of electioneering.

Recently an article in the New England Journal of Medicine reviewed the unique and superior qualities of heroin as a pain-killer, noting that British physicians consider it indispensable in the treatment of cancer pain.

The American Nurses Association seconds the notion, as does the American Psychiatric Association.

Both agree that any concern over addiction is far outweighed by the therapeutic benefits of the drug in cases of intractable pain.

Opponents argue that heroin, permitted by prescription, might be diverted to drug addicts. In Britain this has not been a problem.

Besides, addicts have more convenient sources.

The legislation presently pending in Congress would restrict availability of the drug to certain hospice and hospital pharmacies and only in injection form. Thus any risk of theft or abuse is minuscule.

Pain management is a complex therapy not yet fully understood by the medical community. Some physicians remain convinced that other drugs — or combinations of drugs — are "just as good."

But any cancer ward nurse knows better.

EPA passes buck over school asbestos

By VINCENT CARROLL

You're going to hear a great deal more about asbestos in schools during the next two years — much of the talk alarming, confusing and even misleading.

Under just-issued federal rules, 107,000 schools must be inspected for asbestos. Where it is flaking or otherwise in dangerous shape, protective action will be required by mid-1989.

The policy sounds reasonable enough, as indeed it would be if only the Environmental Protection Agency had bothered to set a ceiling for airborne asbestos exposure. Then schools would more clearly know when to take costly action and when not to.

Instead the agency passed the buck. Schools will be at the mercy of contractors and inspectors with an incentive to exaggerate the asbestos danger and create more work for themselves.

What school district is likely to resist expensive "remedies" given the reputation of asbestos? The product has an ugly past, having maimed or killed thousands of workers, especially as a result of shipyard exposure during World War II. Asbestos is one of the relatively few substances whose cancer-causing effect in humans is absolutely known, as opposed to having been deduced from research on animals.

The trouble is, there is very little first-rate data on the effects of low-level dosages of asbestos. As one specialist in the field has observed, some scientists believe exposure below a certain threshold is "completely without risk. Other scientists believe there may be no threshold," meaning no safe exposure at all.

Even if the second opinion is right, it begs the regulatory question. Asbestos fibers are hardly a curiosity. Countless fibers float in the outside air, and each of us has some lodged in our lungs.

In short, the observation that there is no safe exposure to asbestos is akin to Jimmy Carter's remark that life is unfair. Of course it is. But the insight is hardly a useful guide to public policy.

If there were truly no safe exposure, then even undisturbed asbestos should be speedily removed from the millions of buildings that now contain it. Yet few experts urge this. For example, the Lancet, a prestigious British science publication, flatly declares that "on present evidence, there is no reason to believe that (in-tact) asbestos in buildings constitutes a major threat to the public health."

An asbestos policy committee appointed by Gov. Thomas Kean of New Jersey agrees. "The mere presence of asbestos (in a building)," the committee says, "does not in and of itself pose a health risk to anyone."

Doctor Ronald G. Crystal of the National Institutes of Health has similarly written that "there is no evidence that the levels of the airborne asbestos found in public buildings, such as schools, present a hazard."

Revealingly, the EPA will only require measurements of airborne asbestos in schools after remedial action is completed. This is the agency's way of admitting that botched asbestos removal can dump far more fibers into the air than if nothing had been done. In fact, the people facing the greatest danger from the millions of buildings with asbestos are the workers who must eventually remove the stuff.

The U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration permits a lifetime working exposure of 2 asbestos fibers per cubic centimeter of air. A few states meanwhile have set a safety standard of .01 fibers per cubic centimeter.

It was irresponsible for the EPA to weasel out of adopting a standard for schools.

Panel calling for CIA, White House changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Iran-Contra committees will recommend tighter controls on the CIA and changes at the White House in a report due out in two weeks, according to panel members.

The recommendations for legislative action include more rigorous requirements for CIA notification to Congress on covert action plans and a restructured National Security Council staff to keep it under civilian control, lawmakers familiar with the 600-page report said Thursday.

Members of the House and Senate committees voted Thursday to approve the final report, with all but three Republicans voting against it and saying they would come out with their own dissenting version. Both versions are to be unveiled Nov. 17.

Leaders of the two panels called the majority-written document fair and balanced, tough in laying blame for the Iran-Contra affair at the feet of President Reagan and as thorough as could be achieved within time limits imposed on the committees.

But GOP members were quick to brand the report biased, saying it was too harsh on Reagan and used critical rhetoric unsupported by evidence brought out during the summer's public hearings on the secret sale of U.S. weapons to Iran and the diversion of proceeds to the Nicaraguan Contras.

Rep. Jim Courter, R-N.J., quoted the report as saying Reagan's "unabashed zeal for the Contras" set a climate at the White House that led staff members to circumvent normal controls in aiding the rebels.

"It implies that the president was less than candid and less than honest to Congress and the American people," Courter said.

But a Republican who sided with the majority, Sen. Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, said the report was "tough but fair" and called Courter's criticism

"prattle."
"Our mission was to get the facts," Rudman said. "I believe we succeeded."

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House panel, said publication of the report will mark only the midpoint of the investigation process. He said leads will be followed by the government's independent counsel, Lawrence E. Walsh, who is pursuing criminal cases in the affair, and legislation will be recommended to congressional committees.

"There are strands of the story we cannot follow to the end because of time limits and other restraints," Hamilton said. He cited the shredding of documents, the death of former CIA Director William J. Casey and the adversarial nature and forgetfulness of many witnesses.

Sources speaking on condition of anonymity have said Walsh's targets include fired White House aide Lt. Col.

Oliver L. North; former national security adviser Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter; retired Air Force Gen. Richard V. Secord; and arms dealer Albert Hakim, Secord's business partner.

The Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions that Alan D. Fiers, chief of the CIA's Central America task force, has been notified by prosecutors that he also is the subject of a criminal investigation. However, the newspaper cited unidentified government sources as saying Thursday that Fiers is not now a target for criminal indictment.

Recommendations by the congressional panels, according to members familiar with the report, include:

- Tighter requirements for executive branch notification to Congress on covert intelligence activities.
- A requirement that the CIA, when it notifies Congress of covert actions, also specify who will be carrying out the activities.

—A change in the composition of the National Security Council, the president's chief advisory body on security issues. The changes are said to include a requirement that the national security adviser be a civilian, instead of an active-duty military officer such as Poindexter.

Senate committee chairman Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said the recommendation "in no way denigrates" Army Lt. Gen. Colin L. Powell, named by Reagan on Thursday to the national security adviser's post. But he said it is difficult for a military officer to serve two masters — the president and his military superiors.

—Increased separation at the CIA of its covert actions from the agency's primary function, gathering and analyzing intelligence data.

—The appointment at the CIA of an independent inspector general as a watchdog over the agency.

Weinberger makes a final plea for a strong defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger is retiring with a final plea to Congress not to reduce President Reagan's defense buildup, but lawmakers say money problems will be one of the main headaches of his successor, Frank C. Carlucci.

"For the life of me, I don't see what the reluctance is to voting the amounts that are necessary for the nation's security," Weinberger told a Pentagon news conference Thursday, echoing appeals he made for seven years as he pushed for ever-rising defense budgets.

Weinberger's long-expected resignation was announced earlier in the day by Reagan in a White House ceremony during which the president praised his old friend as "the finest secretary of defense in the history of our nation."

Carlucci, Weinberger's deputy during Reagan's first term and currently Reagan's national security adviser, was named to succeed Weinberger. Reagan also promoted Army Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, the second-ranking man on the National Security Council staff, to succeed Carlucci.

Weinberger, 70, will remain in office until Carlucci is confirmed by the Senate, a process which is expected to be quick and smooth.

"I can assure the president we will act expeditiously on this excellent nomination to insure a timely transition," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which will hold hearings on Carlucci's nomination.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., ranking Republican on the panel, said, "I anticipate that those hearings will go smoothly and that the Senate will confirm Mr. Carlucci very shortly." Nunn agreed with that assessment.

Weinberger was the architect of Reagan's plan to "rearm America" and battled, often successfully, to win sharp increases from Congress in the defense budget. Weinberger often flatly refused to negotiate with legislators about defense budgets, insisting instead that the entire amount was needed. Pentagon spending doubled during his tenure.

But legislators said Thursday that Congress is under pressure to limit or reduce Pentagon spending as part of the drive to cut rising federal deficits.

Nunn praised Weinberger but also said, "I have disagreed with some of his priorities," a reference to Nunn's belief that the administration should have asked for different budgets.

Warner, a strong administration supporter, said Carlucci "understands the Department of Defense very well, and the basic buildup (of) momentum that President Reagan has started in national defense over these seven years will remain on track."

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., a long-time critic of the Pentagon, said in a House floor speech there will be a stain on Weinberger's record because of "his failure to deal with waste, fraud and abuse" at the Defense Department.

Rep. Dennis Hertel, D-Mich., was also critical. "He has hardly any credibility left on the (Capitol) Hill ... whatsoever."

Soldier being questioned by army officials

FORT DIX, N.J. (AP) — An American soldier who defected to the Soviet Union last April is back in the United States today facing an interrogation and disciplinary proceedings, authorities said.

Pvt. Wade Roberts, 22, who defected eight months ago, arrived at Dover Air Force Base, Del., early today after being flown from Rhein-Main U.S. Air Base outside Frankfurt, West Germany, on Thursday.

Military police accompanied Roberts to a van and whisked him to a security building where a chaplain, lawyer and commander from Fort Dix were waiting.

The group arrived here a few hours later at the base here, where officials planned to debrief him today, said Richard V. Dowling, spokesman for Fort Dix.

Roberts is being held on the original desertion charge filed in April in Germany, but that could be changed to an absent without leave charge, Dowling said. In either case, Roberts could be allowed to leave the Army under the discharge he has requested, the spokesman said.

"Fort Dix is now responsible for the disposition of the case, and will decide whether to prosecute Roberts and if so, on what charges," Dowling said.

"Roberts has expressed a desire to get out of the Army and get on with his life, and the Army at this point sees no reason why that shouldn't happen," he said earlier.

The C-5A jet arrived in the United States late Thursday in New Hampshire for refueling.

Roberts deserted from an Army base in Giessen, West Germany, in April and fled to East Germany hidden in the trunk of a rented car driven by his West German girlfriend, Petra Neumann.

Infections can 'turn on' dormant AIDS virus

WASHINGTON (AP) — A substance normally produced by the body during infection or drug use can play a role in changing latent exposure to AIDS into an active disease that kills, a federal researcher says.

Dr. Anthony S. Fauci said in an interview Thursday that in research at the National Institutes of Health he and four colleagues for the first time were able to show how a natural body chemical can "turn on" the virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Fauci said the findings suggest that perhaps those people who have tested positive for the presence of the AIDS virus could delay the active stage of the disease by making fundamental changes in their lifestyle. He emphasized, however, that this was still only speculation.

Fauci was a member of a team of researchers that included Thomas M. Folks, Jesse Justement and Audrey Kinter at NIH, and Charles A. Dinarello at Tufts University. Their findings were reported today in Science magazine.

AIDS is caused by the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV. This virus typically lies dormant for five to seven years before it progresses to an active infection that disables the body's immune system.

Mbeki receives kiss from old friend upon his release.

Freed ANC leader vows renewed political activity

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Anti-apartheid activists said the release of an African National Congress leader was as a major victory, but right-wing groups today said the nation had embarked "on a dangerous course."

Govan Mbeki, 77, was freed Thursday after 23 years in prison, fueling speculation that other prominent prisoners such as Nelson Mandela may soon be released. Mandela is considered by many black South Africans to be the country's preeminent black leader.

Mbeki told a news conference Thursday evening he would remain active in opposing the white-led government's apartheid policies, but that he would not hold office with any organization.

Asked if he had a message for the young blacks, he said: "They must continue with the struggle."

"The ideas for which I went to jail and for which the ANC stands, I still embrace," said the gray-haired Mbeki. He said he still considered himself a member of the ANC and the South African Communist Party.

The ANC said from its headquarters in Lusaka, Zambia, that Mbeki emerged from jail "unbowed and unbroken, a living legend in the minds of our people."

"If the government wants to do something dramatic to influence an intractable situation, it should release all our leaders," Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, a Nobel Peace Prize winner, said Thursday.

The far-right Conservative Party said today the Mbeki's release was "a calculated risk."

"The government is on a dangerous course if it releases people without them renouncing violence," said party leader Andries Treurnicht.

Mbeki was to meet today with his 71-year-old wife, who was being flown to southern city of Port Elizabeth from the black homeland of Transkei. They have not seen each for six years, friends said.

Mbeki also said he wanted to see his three sons, who all live in exile. One of the sons, Thabo Mbeki, is a top ANC official based in Zambia.

The couple is expected to settle in the Port Elizabeth area, where Mbeki worked as a journalist and ANC official before the organization was outlawed in 1960. Tentative arrangements for Mbeki to visit New Brighton, the Port Elizabeth township where he plans to live, were canceled on short notice today, without explanation.

Mbeki was one of several jailed black leaders whose release was requested in anti-apartheid legislation the U.S. Congress enacted in October 1986.

Mbeki, former national chairman of the guerrilla movement, was one of eight ANC members, including Mandela, jailed for life following their 1964 convictions for sabotage. Mbeki met with Mandela on Thursday morning and described him as "healthy and fit."

Of the seven blacks convicted at the 1964 Rivonia sabotage trial, Mbeki is the first to be released. The only white convicted at the trial, Dennis Goldberg, was freed in 1985 and later moved to London.

Speedboat attack sets tanker ablaze

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Rocket-propelled grenades fired from an unidentified speedboat slammed into a tanker in the Persian Gulf early today, setting the ship's engine room ablaze, said gulf shipping sources and Lloyd's of London.

The attack, which caused no casualties, may have been launched by Iran in retaliation for an Iraqi attack Wednesday on an Iranian supertanker, said the shipping sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

They said five grenades struck the 51,121-ton Grand Wisdom, a Panamanian-flagged motor tanker managed by Teekay Shipping Co. of Long Beach, Calif., as it was sailing in the southern gulf near Dubai.

Two grenades hit the tanker's engine room, two the steering gear and one the bridge. Nevertheless, the tanker was able to sail under its own power to Dubai after the crew extinguished the blaze, Lloyd's and the sources said.

On Thursday, two reflagged Kuwaiti tankers escorted by a U.S. warship ended an uneventful voyage north through the gulf to Kuwait.

Also Thursday, Vernon Walters, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said the U.N.'s chances of halting the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war were still alive, despite a statement by Iran's prime minister that the U.N. effort had failed.

Today's attack may have been in retaliation for an attack Wednesday.

Ortega says indirect talks with Contras are possible

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega offered to hold indirect cease-fire talks with Contra rebels, but said any further moves toward peace depend on "an end to aggression against Nicaragua" by the United States.

The announcement Thursday night was greeted with cautious optimism by one rebel leader who said such talks would depend on finding a mediator acceptable to the rebels and the leftist Sandinista government.

Ortega's offer represented a reversal for the Sandinista leader who previously refused direct or indirect talks with the Contras, demanding to talk instead with officials from the United States, which finances the rebels.

Ortega, who made the offer in a speech before thousands of cheering Nicaraguans, did not explain how such indirect talks would work.

He said the offer was made "to strip all pretext from our enemies and unmask those who say they are for peace and don't really want it."

He said "this should not be confused with a political dialogue with the leadership of the Contras to negotiate power."

Ortega's speech coincided with the deadline for Central American leaders to show progress in fulfilling a regional peace plan aimed at ending the civil wars in Nicaragua, El Salvador and Guatemala. The day was marred by a clash in northern Guatemala that left 13 soldiers and three leftist rebels dead.

In El Salvador, President Jose Napoleon Duarte declared a unilateral cease-fire in that nation's civil war with leftist guerrillas that has killed an estimated 65,000 people.

In Costa Rica, Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, a director of the rebels' Nicaraguan Resistance umbrella group, called Ortega's announcement "a triumph for the resistance" and said the Contras want to know who will mediate.

Chamorro noted the Contras had accepted a proposal by Costa Rican President Oscar Arias that Nicaragua's ranking Roman Catholic clergyman, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, serve as a negotiator in cease-fire talks.

Arias, author of the regional peace plan, won the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize.

It would be "very difficult for us to accept any one but Cardinal Obando y Bravo," Chamorro said. However, he added: "We'll have to see the names proposed."

Sources close to the regional peace negotiations said Obando y Bravo, long a critic of the Sandinistas, was unacceptable to the Nicaraguan leadership.

Postponement of Haiti election weighed after suspicious fires

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The Electoral Council, reacting to fires that gutted its headquarters and a factory printing ballots, said it will decide soon whether to cancel Haiti's first free elections in at least 30 years.

Opposition groups and prominent citizens in Haiti have charged the fires were aimed at derailing the electoral process and may have been set by supporters of the former Duvalier regime, a charge the supporters deny.

"So far, elections are still scheduled for Nov. 29," council member Alain Rocourt said Thursday after an all-day meeting of the independent body at which postponement was a main topic. The board's decision could be announced as early as Saturday, council members and aides said.

Rocourt said he and his eight colleagues were concerned about suspicious fires.

Fraud trial of Galveston heir resumes

HOUSTON (AP) — Robert L. Moody was expected to take the stand in the federal fraud trial of his brother, Shearn Moody Jr., who is accused of cheating the family foundation of nearly $1.5 million.

The trial resumed Thursday a day after Shearn Moody was released from a hospital where he had spent nearly two weeks.

He was hospitalized Oct. 23 complaining of chest pains, dizziness and shortness of breath, and doctors told the judge he suffered from high blood pressure, heart disease and other problems.

Testimony is scheduled to resume today in U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling's court with Robert Moody expected to take the stand in his brother's defense.

Shearn Moody is standing trial on 17 counts of mail and wire fraud charging that he cheated the Moody Foundation out of nearly $1.5 million in what prosecutors claims was a scheme to pay lawyers in the Galveston insurance heir's bankruptcy case. Co-defendant Howell Willis of Lewisville, near Dallas, is accused of helping Moody in the alleged scheme.

Shearn Moody, ousted from the foundation's board earlier this year, is accused of abusing his position as a trustee to funnel grants to organizations that would otherwise have not received them. Robert Moody is still a foundation trustee.

On Thursday, Port Aransas Police Chief Donald Perkins told jurors he hired M. David Hollaway — a key witness for the government in Moody's case — as a police dispatcher but refused to hire him as a patrolman.

Perkins said after he resigned as police chief in 1983, Hollaway was promoted to police officer and then quit before accepting a demotion to dog catcher. Perkins resumed the job as police chief earlier this year.

"I wouldn't say he's very truthful," Perkins said of Hollaway. "I wouldn't believe him."

Hollaway was the first government witness to directly link Moody to the alleged misappropriation of foundation money. He told jurors in the opening weeks of the trial that Moody tried to hire him to "cripple" a Houston attorney whose complaint led to the initial investigation.

Hollaway said when he rejected the idea, Moody suggested using a scope rifle to "take care of" attorney Douglas Caddy.

"Moody said, 'You could just cripple him,'" Hollaway testified. "I told Moody it wouldn't take the FBI long to figure out who the culprits are. He (then) made some reference to using a scope rifle."

Senate OKs plastics ocean dumping treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate ratified an international treaty that would prohibit the dumping of plastic garbage anywhere in the ocean and ban the disposal of all garbage other than foods within 12 miles of land.

Attached to the treaty by a 93-0 vote Thursday was a Senate recommendation that the Gulf of Mexico be designated a "special zone" where more stringent anti-dumping regulations would apply.

The plastics agreement, known as Annex V of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships, takes effect one year after nations representing half of the world's shipping tonnage have approved it.

Proponents are pushing the United States to quickly process the documents.

Sale of Placid a possibility

DALLAS (AP) — Placid Oil Co., the Dallas Hunt brothers' firm that is one of the world's largest independent oil firms, might have to be sold to a major oil company to satisfy its enormous $803 million bank debt.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Harold Abramson made that solution a possibility Thursday by allowing the banks to file their own plan of debt reorganization for the company.

Abramson stopped short of permitting the banks to actively seek bids for Placid, however. The banks asked that they be allowed to use Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., a New York investment banking firm, to find a buyer for Placid.

Abramson declined that suggestion, saying solicitation without the support of Placid would only drive down the bid price.

"It's destructive to let the banks and Shearson start shopping, unless both sides can work together on that," Abramson said.

Later in the hearing, Abramson again cautioned the banks against the disruptive influence of soliciting hostile bids for Placid.

"Unless you two get together, ... you'll have people all over (Wall) Street saying, 'Can I buy all of it for junk bonds?' or 'Can I assume part of the debt?'" Abramson said. "I do want to see the banks' plan ... but I don't want to destroy the process with a lot of scavengers."

The Dallas Hunt brothers — Nelson Bunker, William Herbert and Lamar — filed Placid and Herbert's trust in bankruptcy last August.

Eternal Vigil...

Salt air, the beating of heavy waves, and rains... these are just a few of the elements that a ship must face constantly. With all of these things, it is little wonder that the crew must be alert, looking for rust and other damage. New paint to protect the ship must be applied regularly.

An individual faces many things in this world, that would rust and corrupt his life, therefore it is good to begin each week with a renewing of spirit, that can be obtained only through worship in the Lord's house.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: For the eyes of the Lord range throughout the earth to strengthen those whose hearts are fully committed to him. (2 Chronicles 16:9a NIV)

My friend who is a gymnastics coach spends much of his time spotting budding gymnasts.

"Spotting" is a sports term that means he helps the children execute the various gymnastics moves. The degrees of spotting range from literally lifting a child through the motions of an element to a quick tap to a hurling body to provide enough momentum and height for the element to be completed without the child falling on her head.

As a child gains strength and accuracy in execution, she requires less and less spotting. However, a child often asks to be spotted when only her confidence needs assistance.

At such times, the coach has only to hold his hands out for her as she performs without his slightest touch; since his strong hands are open and ready for her, she has the assurance he'll catch her if necessary.

Even after a child has become an accomplished gymnast, she needs her coach; she needs his pep talks, his coaching instructions, his hugs for a routine well done. Most of all, she needs his presence.

God has us Christians in His view, and He is absolutely trustworthy to lift us, boost us, reassure us, protect us, and love us. Our need for His presence He fills abundantly. Our Lord faithfully watches with open, ready hands.

Religion Roundup

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal appeals court has upheld Southern Baptist officials in a case in which they were accused of improperly blocking a challenge to a fundamentalist-backed slate of officers at a 1986 convention.

The court, in upholding a lower court decision, declined to discuss the merits of the suit, but ruled that civil courts could not interfere in internal religious affairs.

Gift for Ministry seminar scheduled

Perry and Polly Cowin, widely known speakers on family life, will present a seminar, "Discovering Your Gift for Ministry," at the New Life Worship Center, 318 N. Cuyler, this Sunday through Wednesday.

The seminar will be held at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7 p.m. daily Monday through Wednesday.

The Cowins have gained national recognition for their seminars, classes and retreats on family life.

Cowin said each person is given a gift to use in his or her own personal ministry when they are born again: prophecy, serving, teaching, exhorting, giving, ruling and mercy.

"The body requires all of these gifts," he said; "we cannot do without any one of them. All seven must operate to show the completeness of Jesus' ministry to his body the church."

Mrs. Cowin said, "You will see parts of all seven working in your life, but one will stand out predominantly."

The gifts are given to mature and to meet needs in the body, and to make the body grow, these gifts must be used, the couple claim.

The Cowins

The Cowins are the founders of Life Enrichment Ministries Inc., a ministry committed to the whole family. They have written and presented many seminars to give the Christian family answers about how to make life work in the home and outside the home.

The couple have traveled across the nation and in foreign countries, teaching and speaking in churches of all denominations and in schools and colleges.

They have appeared on many television shows and have filmed a series of teachings on the family to be shown both in the United States and in foreign countries.

The public is invited to attend the four-day seminar.

Baptists to meet at Fort Worth

FORT WORTH - More than 6,000 people from throughout Texas are expected to attend the 102nd annual meeting of the Baptist General Convention of Texas in Fort Worth on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Messengers from many of the state's 5,000 Southern Baptist churches and missions will elect a new president and 300 trustees for convention agencies and institutions. They also will consider a record-breaking budget for missions causes.

The annual convention, which has the theme of "Laborers Together," will also be the launching pad for greater cooperative missions efforts, according to BGCT Executive Director Williams M. Pinson Jr.

A major emphasis of the convention will be on "Celebration of Cooperation," a year of special focus on the Cooperative Program through which Texas Baptists support 23 educational and benevolent institutions in the state and join with other Southern Baptists in supporting 7,400 missionaries in more than 100 nations.

Pinson said the convention will provide greater impetus for the Mission Texas goal of reaching 8 million Texans that statistics show are not affiliated with any church.

To help reach those, Texas Baptists have a goal to begin 2,000 new churches from 1985 through 1990.

Also, the convention will emphasize "Share Jesus Now," an effort to have at least 89,000 trained witnesses from 3,000 churches to share Christ with at least 1 million "lost" Texans in February and March, 1989.

In other major convention business, messengers will elect a new president to succeed Paul Powell, pastor of Green Acres Baptist Church at Tyler, who has served the traditional two 1-year terms.

Also, they will consider a recommended $68 million Cooperative Program budget for 1988. The $68 million goal is a $2.5 million increase over the 1987 budget of $65.5 million.

Methodist women elect officers

STINNETT - The annual meeting of the United Methodist Women of the Pampa District was held recently at the First United Methodist Church in Stinnett.

Among the business items was the installation of officers for 1988. Bonnie Fabian installed the new officers.

Newly elected officers are Mrs. Margaret Campbell, Borger, president; Mildred Hickox, Borger, vice president; Linda Rogers, Borger, secretary; and Florence Blair, Borger, treasurer.

Inez Trostle of McLean will head Program Resources, and Billye Owens of Wellington will lead Standing Rules.

Named as new mission coordinators at the Oct. 20 meeting were Kitty Harrington, Borger, Christian Personhood; Harriett Woodward, Borger, Supportive Community; Mary Graham, Pampa, Christian Global Concerns; Doris Akers, Follett, Christian Social Involvement; and Georgia Holding, Pampa, Membership.

Others include Janette Rainey, Allison, secretary of financial interpretation; Vida Brown, Wheeler, secretary of publicity and public relations; and Bernice Beck, Darrouzett, historian.

Serving as chairpersons for nominations are Delores Bell, Follett; Patty Sheppard, Spearman; Eddie Poole, Borger; Ruth Magee, McLean; and Ethel Johnson, Pampa.

President Hallie Burrell of Shamrock presided at the meeting. Rev. John Beard of Stinnett gave the welcome, followed by a prayer by Sandra McClellan.

Vice President Mildred Hickox of Borger introduced the program. Featured speaker was Rev. William Fitzgerald, who has served for eight years in Nigeria in the mission field of agricultural development.

Bonnie Fabian of McLean presented a memorial service. Special reports were given by Doris Akers of Follett and Jeanne Gramstorff of Farnsworth.

Special music was presented by Donna Mills and Evelyn Fritz of Stinnett.

In the business meeting, 102 members answered the roll call. The benediction and table grace was given by Rev. Albert F. Lindley, Pampa District superintendent.

Concluding the meeting was a luncheon served by the Stinnett units.

Religion Roundup

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Rebel Swiss Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre has met with Vatican officials and says he has agreed to a Vatican investigation of his dissident group as a step for reconciliation of it with the church.

Lefebvre, 81, was suspended from the ministry in 1976 after a long period of rejecting the validity of the reforming Second Vatican Council, religious liberty and ecumenical ties to other Christians.

He says the Vatican now is ready to recognize the group he founded in Ecône, Switzerland, the Priestly Society of St. Pius X, and the more than 200 priests he has ordained for its centers in various countries.

Norwegian gospel artist to sing in local concert

International gospel recording artist Solvei will appear in concert at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 11, in the sanctuary of the First Assembly of God Church, 500 S. Cuyler.

There will be no charge for admission to the special concert appearance.

Solvei Larsen's singing career began at the age of 3 in her native Norway. A child prodigy at the age of 12, she seemed destined to be an opera singer. For three years she performed in operas and operettas with the Trondheim Symphony Orchestra and was acclaimed as a rising star.

At the age of 14 she traveled throughout Europe as a soloist for a top seven-member pop group.

But Solvei became disenchanted with life in the fast lane of the secular world, which was leaving her empty and unfulfilled. She turned to God, changing her life and the focus of her talent.

Soon she was captivating new audiences with the versatility and beauty of her dynamic, crystal-clear voice and five-octave range.

With her evangelist husband Finn-Henrik, she began touring the world in her new role as a contemporary gospel artist. She has toured in 14 countries, performing in small intimate churches, retreats, conferences and crusades filling stadiums with more than 50,000 people.

She and her husband have recently moved to the United States, where they live with their family.

She sings in English, Norwegian and Swedish.

Of her new career, she says, "I just want to do my part to lift Jesus up for the whole world to see!"

Hoe in hand, woman patrols neighborhood

By GARY SCHARRER
El Paso Times

EL PASO (AP) — When Rose Milone comes knocking with her sweet, "Hi, honey," voice, neighbors know that something's wrong.

Maybe their lawn needs mowing, or maybe there's an ugly weed begging to be yanked.

Ms. Milone, 61, is a one-lady cleaning crew for the aging Highland Park neighborhood squeezed between the mountains and mansions of Central El Paso. She's been ripping out weeds, collecting trash, sweeping sidewalks, planting ivy and playing neighborhood vigilante for 20 years.

"My magnificent obsession," she calls it. Her motto: "A clean yard is more beautiful than a clean house."

She hires high school students to help. She loans lawn mowers, hoes, rakes and other tools.

The aging population of her neighborhood makes the area vulnerable.

"Older people die and their homes turn into rental property. That's what causes problems in the neighborhoods," she says.

Ms. Milone says her eyes "feast on something peaceful. There's a deep desire to see things beautiful and neat." She yearns to turn all of El Paso into a version of the tidy, peaceful-looking Kern Place neighborhood on the city's West Side.

During weekdays Ms. Milone teaches fourth graders at Capistrano School. After school hours and on weekends, she tries to teach neighborhood pride. The barely 5-foot-tall woman uses a smile, pleasant words and a standard line to reach her neighbors.

"I notice your lawn needs mowing. Is your lawn mower broken? I'll lend you mine ... We are trying so hard to make the neighborhood nice and maybe even beautiful — at least clean and respectable. Will you help?"

Lupe Hernandez has lived next door to Ms. Milone for 30 years.

"Nobody seems to mind," Ms. Hernandez says of Ms. Milone's passion. "We just take it in stride. 'You're at it again, Rose!' There's no hard feelings. ... She likes to do things for everybody around here. She's very kind-hearted."

Ms. Hernandez is sure of the fate that would befall the neighborhood without Ms. Milone.

"To tell you the truth, it would go to pot."

"We should have a person like that in every neighborhood," Ms. Hernandez says. In other words: "A Rose on every street."

Ms. Milone is burdened by "horrible allergies" that produce a stuffy head and labored voice as she inspects the neighborhood.

"There's a weed! Put a rock on top of it. It makes me nervous," she says while a photographer tries to shoot a picture.

Man preparing to apply for amnesty deported

DALLAS (AP) — A Mexican alien who was preparing papers to apply for amnesty was among 32 aliens arrested by U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officers, immigration assistance workers say.

The man was arrested and returned to Mexico, according to Vanna Slaughter, head of immigration counseling services at Catholic Charities.

An INS official confirmed that the man was arrested and given voluntary departure to Mexico Tuesday night. But he said the alien did not tell agents he was qualified for legalization.

Seven others who were qualified for amnesty were released and 25 were bused to the border.

The man had lived in Dallas for seven years and the Catholic Charities agency was helping him apply for either standard amnesty or amnesty under the seasonal agricultural worker program, Slaughter said.

Modern myths run forever without a leg to stand on

DEAR ABBY: You recently printed a letter from a lady regarding the horrible consequences suffered by a young woman when she overused the facilities at a tanning salon. The story she told was obviously farfetched. Why did you print the lady's name? You must have known it would embarrass her.

I have read your column for many years, and while I don't always agree with you, I have always looked forward to seeing what you had to say. No longer. I think printing the lady's name, when you knew it would make her look foolish, was just plain mean! Now every time I read your column, I feel resentment. Please notice, I am not signing my name. You are not to be trusted with it.

UNSIGNED IN OREGON

DEAR UNSIGNED: I'm glad you wrote because other readers may have felt as you did, and I welcome the opportunity to publicly state that before I published the woman's letter, I obtained permission to use her name. Furthermore, if I had thought she might be embarrassed by the publicity, I would not have identified her.

Incidentally, after that item appeared, I heard from folklorist Jan Harold Brunvand, author, columnist and professor in the Department of English at the University of Utah in Salt

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Lake City. He wrote (in part): "I was pleased to see that you debunked the tanning story. I have heard many different versions of that legend—it's been around for a long time."

"I have published three books on 'urban legends' in which I used a few letters from your column. Generally, you are very good at spotting phony letters, but at times you have taken them at face value. My favorite of the legends you have published is the one about the Civil War 'virgin birth.' It ran in November 1982."

The item to which Dr. Brunvand refers, I titled: "Unknown Soldier Fires Shot Heard Nine Months Later." And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: You said it is possible for a woman to become pregnant and still remain a virgin. It sounds impossible, but I know it's true, which reminds me of a similar story I read in a reputable magazine some years ago.

It seems that during the Civil War (May 12, 1863, to be exact), a young Virginia farm girl was standing on her front porch when a stray bullet first passed through the scrotum of a young Union cavalryman, then lodged in the reproductive tract of the young woman, who thus became pregnant by a man she had not been within 100 feet of! And nine months later she gave birth to a healthy baby.

You don't believe it? If it hadn't been published in the very reliable American Heritage magazine (December 1971, page 99, in a story titled, "The Case of the Miraculous Bullet"), I wouldn't have believed it either.

LELAND E. SMITH,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR MR. SMITH: Several years ago I ran that item in this space, which brought me a letter from a 90-year-old South Dakota Indian. He said he had heard a different version of the same story. Only the girl wasn't a Virginia farm girl, she was an Indian maiden who claimed she had been impregnated by a bow and arrow.

Romantic lanterns are homemade

By BOB SAWYER

I had forgotten how romantic candlelight can be.

The night the electricity went out, my wife and I retired with a candle to our boudoir. The next day, I was busy making candle lanterns to hang all over the house.

In addition to being romantic, the lanterns are easy and inexpensive to assemble, and they're practical, too. They measure 7x7x16 inches, but the size is easy to alter.

Construction is pine and glass, or you can substitute a mirror for one of the glass panes. Follow the directions provided below, or, for more details, order our step-by-step plans. They include full-size patterns and complete instructions.

Another popular country-style project is our potato and onion bin, eminently practical if not romantic. It has an enormous capacity, with good ventilation for longtime storage.

To order the plans, specify Project No. 552 for the lanterns or No. 545 for the potato and onion bin. Send $4.95 for either plan, or save a dollar and order both for only $8.90.

Mail to: The Woodwright, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008-1000. Include $2.95 for a catalog.

To build the lanterns, I used solid pine, but you can substitute quality plywood. For each lantern, you'll need four glass panes, 6x11½ inches, or three panes and one mirror.

Cut: inner top and floor, ½x7x7 inches; outer top and floor, ¾x7x7; four posts, ¾x¾x12; circular insert, ½x3 inches in diameter; and handle, ½x1½x3½. Slightly round off the ends of the handle.

Cut from ¾-inch stock one or two mounting brackets, depending on whether you want to hang the lantern from a chain (cut two) or on a wall (cut one).

The bracket is a semicircle, 7 inches along the base but only 3 inches from the base to the top of the arc. Drill a hole near the top to accommodate the hanger chain or wall mounting.

Candle lanterns are romantic, practical, inexpensive and easy to assemble.

The corner posts fit into ¼ x ¼-inch notches cut into the corners of the inner top and floor.

To accommodate the glass, cut grooves on one side of the inner top and floor, ¼ inch from each edge, ¼ inch deep, between each two adjacent corner notches.

On each post, cut a groove from end to end along each of two adjacent sides, ¼ inch from the adjacent ungrooved sides.

Cut a 3-inch-diameter hole through the center of all four tops and floors. The top hole will serve as a vent; the bottom hole will accommodate the insert, which holds the candle.

The insert is held in place by a channel between the inner and outer floors. In the inner floor, cut or rout a rabbet ¼ inch deep by ½ inch wide around the edge of the circular cutout, on the side that does not contain the grooves.

Center the handle across the hole in the outer floor, and trace around the portions of the ends that extend past the hole. Cut just outside the traced lines, so the handle can slide through the opening easily.

Drill a ¼-inch hole through the center of the insert to accommodate a taper candle. Attach the insert to the handle, matching centers.

Attach a bracket to the outer top, flush along one edge. If you are using two brackets, attach the other one flush along the opposite edge.

Attach the ungrooved side of the inner top to the underside of the outer top, matching edges all around. Attach the ungrooved side of the inner floor to either side of the outer floor.

Attach the corner posts to the floor assembly, fitting them into the center notches so that the grooves are aligned. Slide the glass panes down into the grooves.

Attach the top assembly, carefully fitting the tops of the panes into the grooves and the posts into the notches. Use nails or screws only (no glue), so you can replace the panes.

Drive a small nail up through the center of the handle, so it extends up through the center of the hole in the insert. Secure a taper candle onto the nail.

Insert the candle-insert up through the floor of the lantern, fitting the handle through its opening. Turn the assembly a quarter turn so that it is held in place.

Remember military veterans during Veterans Day holiday

Veterans Day was established to commemorate the end of the hostilities in 1918 and 1945. Nov. 11 is the traditional day, but the fourth Monday in October is recognized as the legal holiday since the Monday Holiday Bill was passed by Congress.

Give recognition to our living veterans. A veteran is a person who has served in the military for any length of time. It does not matter what branch of service or whether the veteran is a man or woman; what matters is simply that the person has given time to our country. It does not necessarily have to be war service, although many connect "Veterans Day" to "War Vet."

If you have a family member who has served in the military and you need information for your family tree, contact the local Veterans Administration. Current records are available upon request only to the individual or surviving family member. Pension records contain more information of a genealogical nature than the actual military record, but both should be checked if available.

Prior to the Revolutionary War, the United States was involved in several "Colonial

Gena on Genealogy

Gena Walls

Wars" between 1675 and 1763. Records are sparse but often contain the clue that connects the family to that area.

Revolutionary War service records are available on microfilm; many libraries have copies. The film may be ordered through the Genealogical Society of Utah for viewing at a Latter Day Saints Church. Several of the genealogical rental companies are now providing film, and the local library has an old microfilm reader.

Remember that many Americans remained loyal to Great Britain and many books have been published on the various movements of the Loyalists. Some went to Canada, Florida or even back to England to avoid the conflict with their mother country.

Civil War records for both the North and the South are available, and both should be researched. It was not uncommon for a young boy to enlist on one side and after capture agree to fight for the side that captured him rather than be confined in a prison. You might find records for the same person in both files.

For Union soldiers, check pension records with the National Archives. For Confederate soldiers, check with the state in which the veteran was living at the time he applied for the pension. Often, this is a different state than the one he fought for during the war.

The records for pensions that were denied are often more complete than those that were granted. The reason for this is that often additional correspondence occurred when the person was trying to prove entitlement to the pension.

Check cemetery records and tombstones for veterans. Wives and children of minor age may be buried in our national cemeteries with special permission.

A picture of the veteran in uniform adds to the family history book. Include branch, rank and where stationed, plus anything considered human interest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Because you are likely to be ambitious today in an area where others fail to get moving, the lion's share of the spoils could be yours.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In social activities with friends today, make it a point to put yourself out a little more than usual. Make sure that everyone is having a good time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There are strong indications that you could reap material benefits today. They will come in two areas that you do not normally depend on as sources of personal gain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's time to stop talking about what you intend to do and start taking action. Do something about it today, before both time and your inclinations run out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's OK to delegate certain assignments to others today, but to be on the safe side, you'd be wise to do the one that has lots of critical details yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Others will be responsive to your requests today, because they'll know you won't ask anything of them that you could not or would not do yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Lessons you've learned from experience will greatly benefit you at this time. It looks like you are going to profit today from yesterday's mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for success will be greatly enhanced today if you proceed one step at a time. Impulsive or erratic actions could retard your progress.

Celtics ready to challenge Lakers again

NBA season tips off tonight

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

The Boston Celtics figure it is their turn to win the NBA championship, even with Kevin McHale out of the lineup for a month or two.

The Celtics, who have traded championships with the Los Angeles Lakers the last four seasons, can begin to prove they can win the team's 17th NBA title when they play host to Milwaukee tonight in one of 11 season-opening games.

"The edge we have this year is that we did lose," guard Dennis Johnson said, referring to last June's defeat against the Lakers. "That just makes you want it back even more."

"We had a good preseason; now it's time to get going," Coach K.C. Jones said. "We've been working on defense and the running game and we got kind of rusty in the half-court game, but we'll see."

With McHale out after foot surgery, the Celtics went 7-1 in exhibition play. Top draft pick Reggie Lewis and rookie forwards Brad Lohaus and Mark Acres played better than expected.

"They've shown what they can do in preseason, so now we'll see what they can do when the bell rings," Jones said.

In other games tonight, it will be Cleveland at New Jersey, Indiana at Philadelphia, Washington at Atlanta, New York at Detroit, Golden State at Sacramento, Utah at Dallas, San Antonio at Houston, the Los Angeles Clippers at Denver, Seattle at the Lakers and Phoenix at Portland. The Chicago Bulls are idle.

McHale averaged 26.1 points last year and led the league in field-goal percentage. His absence could place more of a scoring burden on Larry Bird, who slimmed down after averaging 28.1 points last season.

"I'm pleased with the way I played and I'm very pleased with the way the team played," Bird said of Boston's exhibition performance.

The Celtics aren't the only team with designs on challenging the Lakers.

"Our major goal in the '87-88 season is to get closer to the NBA title," Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said.

The Hawks, who won 57 games and the Central Division last season, are led by Dominique Wilkins, who averaged 29 points.

"Each of the teams seems to have improved itself over the summer and competition ought to be tougher than it usually is," Fratello said.

"I just want us to play better when the playoffs roll around," Coach John MacLeod said. "That's our goal."

MacLeod replaces Dick Motta, whose seven years as Dallas coach was surpassed only by Red Auerbach's 16 seasons with Boston for the longest continuous service with one club in NBA history.

The Mavericks have one of the best starting lineups in the league.

San Diego at Indianapolis. Two division leaders? Why isn't the game in prime time?

Sorry, NFL prime time is reserved for the 1-6 New York Giants.

In any case, the Chargers and Dan Fouts meet the Colts and Eric Dickerson, who should have learned a few more plays by game time. Or let's make it Eric Dickerson meets Chip Banks, who brings his West Coast lifestyle back to the Midwest, where he was mightily unhappy as a Brown.

The game is, as it should be, rated even. It's more a mystery than a tossup.

But Dickerson and a 4-3 record—the first time the Colts are over .500 since fleeing Baltimore, gives Indianapolis fans something to cheer about for the first time since Bob Irsay moved the team. The HomeDome advantage should be the difference.

Pampa girls impressive in scrimmage

By L.D. STRATE

Don't dare settle back. If the 3-point shot provides the same kind of excitement at the high school level as it does for college and pro basketball, Pampa High fans will be right on the edge of their seats this season.

Albert Nichols, Harvester girls' coach, looks for good outside shooting teams to blast away with the 3-pointer to open up a nip and tuck game.

"A team can come down in a tie game, hit back to back shots and be six points up just like that," Nichols said. "There's not going to be many zones, a team is just not going to be able to back off very much."

The University Interscholastic League, which governs Texas high school athletic programs, voted in favor of using the 3-point shot last March. The 19-foot, 9-inch distance is the same as the collegiate ranks.

The Lady Harvesters held their first scrimmage Monday and Nichols was pleased with their overall performance.

"We made some mistakes in not getting back quick enough on defense, but our press also caused some turnovers," Nichols said.

"This is a young team with only three seniors, but I've been pleased with their leadership."

Playing "one-quarter" games, Pampa beat Happy twice, Panhandle twice and tied Wheeler twice in the scrimmage at McNeely Fieldhouse.

"We're running our offense a little different this season," Nichols said. "We're trying to get people like (Yolanda) Brown open underneath. People won't be able to double up on us with this new offense."

Brown, a 5-11 junior, is the lone returning starter from last year's squad. Keitha Clark, a 5-9 senior, and Tacy Stoddard, a 5-8 senior, are both seasoned players and accurate shooters from the 3-point area. During the scrimmage, Stoddard hit a 3-pointer on an out of bounds play.

This trio are the only players with varsity experience.

Nichols takes a conservative approach to the 3-point shot as far as his team is concerned.

"We're not going to force the shot. We'll go ahead and work on our inside game and try to get the easy layup, but we won't back away from the 3-pointer," Nichols said.

The Lady Harvesters open the season Nov. 17 against Caprock on the homecourt. Following the girls' game, the Harvesters boys tip off their season against Palo Duro.

Basketball tickets on sale

Previous Harvester basketball ticket holders must buy their 1987-88 tickets today before they go on sale to the public.

Tickets are $35 and may be purchased at the high school athletic office, located directly north of the tennis courts.

General admission to the games is two dollars.

Rumors have Eagles dropping to 3A

THE FOOTBALL SERIES with the Canyon Eagles has been an unusual one in some respects. Tonight's game marks the end of the second six-game run, game number 12 between the two schools, with a six-year hiatus separating the two sets.

And it is conceivable the series could be halted again, with the imposition of redistricting before the next schedule is drawn up. Early rumors, the best that athletic directors have to work with in trying to fill a schedule for next fall, indicate that Canyon High and the to-be-opened in September Randall High School could both be Class 3A. "That would be great," a top-level Canyon school official told me early this week. Earlier it had been predicted CHS would drop back a classification, but RHS would open as a 4A school. Everyone will know in January, when the UIL announces the new alignments, which is also rumored to have an unbalanced 24-district 4A arrangement, which would seem to necessitate some post-season playoff 'byes'.

Pampa and Canyon first strapped the helmets on against each other in 1970, Swede Lee's next to last team bombing Dunny Goode's final Eagle squad 26-3. When the series broke off after five more games, Pampa had won six straight contests and outscored the Purple and White 167-36. After a six-year break, both schools wound up in District 1-4A, and it has been virtually all Canyon in the five games since. Pampa gained a 14-7 victory at Canyon in 1985, so the series enters tonight's contest with a Harvester 7-4 advantage.

How far the euphoria of last week's victory can carry the Harvesters is the question. Every game is sudden-death for the Eagles, who lost to Estacado and cannot afford a second defeat. The same is true for the Matoros, who host Borger tonight before closing the season here next weekend. Some of the muddle in the three-way tie for the championship between the Eagles, Bulldogs and Mats will be cleared tonight. Canyon has the district's most potent offense; Pampa the most porous defense. The five starting Eagle linemen average 223 pounds, and like the majority of the ballclub, have a year's experience as first stringers.

Second-year head coach Mike Wartes has built a most-worthy program overnight. His coaching career appears ready to challenge and surpass that of his father, Larry, and of his father's mentor and associate, Gordon Wood...unless Mike leaves the sidelines for fulltime athletic administration. It could, and should, be a long night for the

Sports Forum

By Warren Hasse

Harvesters. But then, the football isn't round.

CHAFF: Pampa's two remaining opponents have a combined 13-3 record, scoring 417 points to opponents' 169.

Two Panhandle-area schools (Childress, Lazbuddie) remain undefeated; three continue winless (Amarillo Highland Park, McLean, Lefors).

Windy Williams White Deer Bucks need three points tonight against Stratford to reach 300 for the season, highest total of any 11-man Panhandle area squad. As the good Buck fans have been saying to nine opponents, "witamy."

Six-four, 250-pound all-district senior Canyon lineman Greg Cook is a grandson of Jack

"Sleepy" Harris, career-long first-assistant to Coach Joe Kerbel. Sleepy, now retired in McAllen and spearheading a book on the career of Kerbel, has commuted to several CHS games.

Another massive Eagle lineman, 5-10, 250-pound Kason Huddleston (who bench presses 345 pounds), is an accomplished pianist, winning sectional and district championships last spring.

Wartes head coaching record entering tonight's game is 74-33-3. The Hereford HS graduate has crossed paths with present Hereford Coach Don Cumpston during that career. At age 25 he succeeded Cumpston as head coach at Muleshoe; younger brother Alan, now a Texas Tech assistant, quarterbacked Cumpston's Hereford team to the state semifinals in 1981; and Dad Larry re-hired Cumpston away from Abilene as Ad-head coach of the Herd three seasons ago.

Which will end first, the PHS football season or the Harvester Field lighting system, operating about 80 percent due to burned-out bulbs that will hopefully be replaced prior to any playoff games, between area participants, games the Chamber of Commerce Sports Committee is presumably attempting to secure.

Spurs ink Robinson

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs have coaxed top draft pick David Robinson out of a six-month silence on his NBA plans with a contract reportedly worth $26 million.

Robinson, a 7-foot-1 center who set several basketball records at the Naval Academy, was expected to end months of speculation today by signing a contract with the Spurs, team officials said Thursday.

No details of the pact have been announced, but the New York Times reported that is a guaranteed contract worth $26 million over eight years, including a $1 million signing bonus payable immediately.

"It's all just falling into place," Spurs chairman Angelo Drossos said Thursday.

Robinson, the Spurs' top draft choice and No. 1 overall pick in the draft, had kept silent about his plans after completing the next two years of required service with the Navy. Robinson, his parents and his agent, Lee Fentress, visited San Antonio in September and received the red-carpet treatment.

Robinson was selected the college basketball player of the year last season as he set 33 Navy records, including 2,669 career points, 1,314 rebounds and 516 blocked shots.

Spurs Coach Bob Weiss said he felt confident Robinson could be signed after talking to the Navy star in September.

"I felt he was open-minded, and if he was open-minded I knew Angelo could get it done," Weiss said. "Some people could have come here and it didn't matter what you did, you couldn't sign them."

The Spurs are coming off their worst season, 24-58.

Pampa visits Canyon

Pampa visits Canyon for the final road game of the season tonight.

Kickoff is 7:30 p.m. at Kimbrough Stadium.

Canyon, a 34-point favorite over Pampa, according to the Harris Rating System, can clinch a playoff spot with a win tonight if Lubbock Estacado beats Borger and Dumas downs Frenship in other District 1-4A games.

Canyon, Estacado and Borger are all tied for first place with 5-1 marks.

The Harvesters whipped Dumas 28-13, for their first on-the-field victory of the season last week.

Report released on golf course

Construction costs for the proposed Pampa Public Golf Course is estimated at $858,580, according to a feasibility analysis report released this week by the City Manager's Office.

City staffers, using the services of Lubbock golf course architect Bill Cantrell and survey results from area golf courses, recently completed the 15-page report after weeks of extensive research. The report will be discussed during a public hearing on the golf course issue Tuesday, starting at 6 p.m. in the City Commission room.

The estimated construction figure does not include the donation of materials or volunteer labor, but the total cost exceeds funds available for the project by $400,000, the report reveals. The report says the deficit would have to be incurred with general obligation bonds and a lease-purchase agreement for maintenance equipment and supplies.

The report recommended that a bond election (approximately $900,000) be held to raise funds for construction, so that available funds could be used as working capital. The report noted that if an election is not conducted, a 5 to 6 percent tax increase would be required because equipment would have to be leased or purchased to finish the course.

During an earlier visit to Pampa, Cantrell studied four possible sites for the 18-hole course and narrowed the choices to two — the north site located in the Rolling Hills Addition and the south site along Texas Highway 70. The other sites at the sanitary landfill and recreation park were eliminated because of insufficient space and high development costs, according to Cantrell's findings.

The report assumed that architectural changes would have to be made at the Rolling Hills site, so a course could be designed within the 170 acres available. Homes would then be located around the perimeter of the course.

During an election last April, Gray County voters approved lending $300,000, in addition to manpower and equipment, toward building the course. Under a Pampa Public Golf Association proposal, the city would provide land and water, plus operating the course upon completion.

The study also showed that there would be additional costs to prepare the two sites for construction work. A permit, estimated at $20,000, would be required for the north site so water from the waste treatment plant could be used on the golf course. A dam, located at the north site, may also have to be repaired. However, a water pipeline would be installed at no cost to the city. At the south site, the lease would have to be purchased by the city at a cost not yet arrived at, the study says.

Both sites, according to research done by the Texas Agricultural Extension Soil Testing Laboratory, would be able to sustain special turf by using the proper fertilizer.

The report also included an estimated $307,250 annual operating budget for the course, which includes salaries for a golf pro, a greens superintendent, two laborers, one part-time laborer, and four summertime workers.

In estimating green fee charges, the city staff conducted a survey of golf courses at Amarillo, Canadian, Borger, Clarendon and Panhandle. The highest weekend rate was at Clarendon and Canadian ($7) and the lowest was at Amarillo ($4.50). Amarillo also listed the lowest weekend rate ($.65) and the highest was at Borger and Panhandle ($10). The staff concluded that green fee charges would be $9 for weekdays and $12 for weekends the first year in order to recover operating and maintenance costs. The fee would be reduced annually, and at the end of the fifth year of operation the charge would be $7 weekdays and $8 weekends.

According to the report, operating deficits should be made up in the first three years, and, if necessary, green fees could be raised the first year.

Based on a 5-year estimate, over $200,000 would be made off green fees, pro shop sales and cart rentals the first year of operation. At the end of the fifth year over $300,000 would be cleared, the report estimated.

Other recommendations the report made included the transfer of all funds to a separate bank account, known as the "golf course account," and hiring Assistant City Manager Frank Smith as project manager. The county should also have four employees plus equipment available to work on the course for six months, the report said.

The golf course should be established as a department within the City's Community Services Division, the report said, and the club pro would work within that department.

The report suggested that PGA members be honored for their donation and volunteer effort by erecting a plaque with their names on it and having them be the first ones to tee off on the new course.

McWilliams concerned about Cougars

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

David McWilliams is worried that the University of Houston will pick this week to become a spoiler. "It's probably the most worrisome game a coach can have," the University of Texas coach said. "You're playing in the home of a team that hasn't won a Southwest Conference game, yet they've played a lot of people tough."

The Longhorns, who are 3-0 in SWC play 4-3 overall, are 10-point favorites over the Cougars (1-6, 0-4), who have yet to win a league game for new Coach Jack Pardee. But Houston has played Baylor, Texas A&M and Arkansas close.

"You just know Houston is going to be a spoiler somewhere down the line," McWilliams said. "I just hope it isn't this week. We're going to have to play with a good deal of emotion to make sure that doesn't happen."

Texas and Houston tangle at the Astrodome in the only night game — 7 p.m. CST — on the SWC schedule this week.

In other games that feature Arkansas and Texas Christian trying to stay alive in the SWC chase, the Razorbacks (6-2, 4-1) host Baylor (5-3, 2-2) at 1 p.m. in Fayetteville, while the Horned Frogs (5-3, 3-1) are on the road for a noon (Raycom regional TV) meeting with Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Arkansas rated a 14-point favorite over well-esteemed Baylor, which was idle last week.

TCU was a one-point pick over the Red Raiders, who play tough in Jones Stadium where they upset defending champion Texas A&M in September.

No. 1 Sooners host Pokes

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma State ranks 10th in the nation in kickoff returns. That's good, because the Cowboys might handle a lot of them Saturday.

That's when the 12th-rated Cowboys visit No. 1 Oklahoma, which leads the country in almost everything. The Sooners are outscoring opponents by an average of 52-6½, and that translates to roughly nine kickoffs per game.

"You just hope you can slow 'em down," Oklahoma State defensive coordinator Louis Campbell said. "It's no secret we're not big and strong."

Oklahoma averages 532 yards in total offense, 450 on the ground, and 7½ yards each play. Jamelle Holieway and the other Sooner quarterbacks complete only 36 percent of their passes, but they throw mostly for fun.

Oklahoma is No. 1 in total defense. Oklahoma State, meanwhile, ranks 87th, slightly ahead of Kansas, a 71-10 Oklahoma victim last week.

At 8-0, Oklahoma may already be looking ahead to its Nov. 21 meeting with No. 2 Nebraska. The Sooners have beaten Oklahoma State 10 straight times and lead the series 63-12-6, making it an intrastate rivalry without equal rivals.

Oklahoma State, despite a 7-1 record, is a four-touchdown underdog. The only loss came in the Cowboys' previous toughest game, 35-0 to Nebraska. The Cornhuskers ran right at, and right over, the smaller Cowboys.

Nebraska, 8-0, is a 47-point favorite this week against Iowa State in another Big Eight game.

In other Top Ten games, No. 3 Miami of Florida plays Miami of Ohio,

No. 4 Florida State is at No. 6 Auburn, No. 5 LSU plays host to No. 13 Alabama, No. 7 UCLA is at Oregon State, No. 8 Syracuse is at Navy, No. 9 Notre Dame is at home against Boston College, No. 10 Clemson is at North Carolina, and Georgia, tied for 10th, meets No. 17 Florida at Jacksonville, Fla.

In the Second Ten, it is Purdue at No. 15 Michigan State, No. 16 Penn State against Maryland at Baltimore, No. 18 Indiana at home against Illinois and No. 19 Tennessee plays host to Louisville.

The Oklahoma State offense is built around quarterback Mike Gundy and tailback Thurman Thomas.

Gundy throws for 220 yards per game and Thomas runs for 118. Holieway is not ranked among the top 100 passers in the nation but leads the Sooners in rushing with 92 a game.

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer said his team needs to contain Gundy.

"Gundy's the difference in their team," Switzer said. "He allows you to use a lot of various formations, a lot of sets. ... He's the key to the ballgame for us offensively."

Nebraska, Miami and Syracuse join Oklahoma as the only undefeated/unbeaten teams in major college football.

The meeting of Miami is the first since 1946. The Hurricanes of Florida's Miami, 6-0, are beginning a string of five consecutive home games to wrap up the regular season. They hope they can add a sixth home game — in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 1 against the Oklahoma-Nebraska winner.

Syracuse, 8-0 and hoping for a major bowl bid, figures to have little trouble at Navy, 1-7. Still, Orangemen Coach Dick MacPherson played the typical coaches' game of finding something good to say about every opponent.

Rockets acquire Purvis Short

HOUSTON (AP) — Veteran NBA forward Purvis Short, newly acquired by the Houston Rockets from the Golden State Warriors, says he can't think of a better team to go to under a trade.

The Rockets, sorely in need of a potent outside shooter to take some inside pressure off center Akem Oluajun and fellow Twin Tower Ralph Sampson, acquired Short Thursday in exchange for second-year backup center Dave Feltl, a future No. 1 draft choice and cash.

"Purvis is a quality player with a deluxe outside shot," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said. "We are fortunate to obtain a player of his stature, which is evident from the trading price."

PMS teams split with Borger

Pampa eighth-graders lost a defensive contest to Borger 8-0 in football action Thursday night.

Pampa eighth-graders are now 1-2 for the district season and close out at Canyon next week.

In a seventh-grade game, Jason Brantley scored on a 10-yard run and Justin Cornelisen converted the extra-points as Pampa slipped by Borger 8-6. "Everybody on the team played a real good game," said Pampa Coach Dick Dunham.

Pampa seventh-graders, 2-1, host Canyon at 5:30 p.m. next Tuesday at Harvester Stadium in the season finale.
