Tot drowning in Caprock pool revived

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

A Pampa tot was up and about and ready to go wading again today, after she was rescued Thursday night from the bottom of the Caprock Apartments swimming pool.

Jessica Franco, 3, who lives at the apartment complex located at 1601 W. Somerville St., was scheduled to be discharged from Coronado Hospital today after being held overnight for observation.

The smiling youngster appeared unfazed this morning by the trauma that surrounded her shortly after 7 p.m. Thursday, when she slipped off a step into the shallow end of the pool.

Witnesses surmised that Jessica panicked and gasped for breath when she plunged under, filling her lungs with water.

Eight-year-old Brad Bailey, who also lives at the complex, said he and a group of youngsters were playing Marco Polo, a children's game that involves diving underwater. When he surfaced, Brad said, he looked over and spotted Jessica.

"I saw Jessica at the end of the pool by the steps," Brad said. "She was lying down at the bottom."

Brad said he then told Jessica's brother, Michael Brent, 13, that the girl was at the bottom of the pool.

"He dived down and got her and started running toward the 10 Building," near the south end of the complex, Brad said. Jessica and her family live at the south end.

Brad's mother, Stephanie Bailey, an employee of Caprock Apartments, said Larry Ketcher-See SAVE, Page 2

Tankers load while Iran fires missile

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Three Kuwaiti tankers awaiting reflagging by the United States were refueled overnight and appeared "ready to go" up the Persian Gulf, shipping sources said today.

Also today, Iran announced that it test-fired an anti-ship missile into gulf waters as it wrapped up naval maneuvers code-named "Martyrdom."

And a West German Defense Ministry spokesman said his government may send a naval detachment to the North Atlantic or Mediterranean to free up U.S. ships for Persian Gulf duty.

The Kuwaiti tankers have been moored outside the gulf awaiting the raising of the Stars and Stripes and the go-ahead for the second U.S. Navy-escorted convoy through the waterway.

Shipping sources in the United Arab Emirates said the three vessels were refueled overnight, then moved to a "more isolated" anchorage some 17 miles off the Arabian Sea coastal ports of Khor Fakkan and Fujaira.

Moored nearby, they said, were several of the U.S. warships that will serve as escorts on the tankers' voyage from the anchorage, through the narrow Strait of Hormuz and up the gulf to Kuwait's oil loading terminal.

Already bearing new names, port of registry — Philadelphia — and the funnel insignia of the Chesapeake Shipping Co., their technical new owner, the ships apparently needed only to raise the U.S. flag before they could sail, the sources said.

"The American captains are aboard and it looks like they're ready to go," said one source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The three tankers, the 46,723-ton Gas King and the petroleum transport tankers Sea Isle City and Ocean City, of 81,283 and 79,999 tons respectively, are among 11 Kuwaiti tankers to be re-registered under the American flag and sailed with naval escort. Two others were reflagged earlier.

U.S. officials have refused to say when the second operation will begin, but shipping sources have predicted the reflagging could take place today, with the convoy leaving for Kuwait in a few days.

Rear Adm. Harold J. Bernsen, commander of the Navy's Gulf-based Middle East Force, has said only that the next convoy will

Congress asks courts to limit actions in gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal courts are being asked to play referee between the White House and Congress in a foreign policy dispute stemming from President Reagan's plan to protect Kuwaiti tankers in the Persian Gulf.

A lawsuit by members of Congress seeks to invoke the 1973 War Powers Act, which limits a president's authority to send U.S. military personnel into situations of "imminent hostilities." The suit lists 114 House and Senate members as plaintiffs.

The War Powers Act was enacted in 1973 over a veto by then-President Richard Nixon. It says U.S. military personnel can't be sent to areas of imminent danger for more than 60 days unless Congress specifically approves the deployment.

Rep. Mike Lowry, D-Wash., chairman of the House Democratic Study Group, said every administration since 1973 has argued that the law is an unconstitutional restriction on a president's authority, but the Supreme Court has not ruled on that issue.

Lowry said lawyers were putting finishing touches on the lawsuit Thursday and it would be filed today.

The suit concerns Reagan's plan to protect 11 Kuwaiti tankers with American flags and U.S. Navy warships as they travel through the war-torn Persian Gulf.

leave within a month. An executive based in Kuwait said Thursday the program was proceeding "full speed."

Commercial shippers have rushed to move their vessels through the gulf before the next convoy sets out, shipping sources say.

One shipping executive, speaking Thursday on condition of anonymity, said the number of vessels passing through the Strait of Hormuz in the past 24 hours exceeded the normal average of 20 per day.

Some ship owners have said they are avoiding the U.S. escort convoys for fear of Iranian fire.

Clements trims budget before signing

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says state government is on its way to leaner, more efficient operations under the new $38.13 billion state budget, the largest in Texas history.

That total is $167.4 million less than passed by the Legislature after a series of vetoes Clements announced on Thursday.

"As never before, each agency, board and commission must review every expense, must prioritize every program and must ensure to the people of Texas that every dollar spent is done so with maximum efficiency," Clements said.

Among the vetoes were those which the governor said will:

- Eliminate individual aircraft operations by certain state agencies.

- Call on individual universities to allocate money from their own budgets to fund various university systems offices.
- Reduce "administrative and bureaucratic costs" in the Department of Human Services. ■ Eliminate a so-called "doomsday plan" that would have slashed funding to a variety of state colleges in the legislative districts of House members who challenged the budget had sufficient taxes not been raised. Most of those representatives were Republicans and conservative Democrats who had insisted more money would be trimmed.

MIAMI — It may cost just 1 percent more to run Miami School this year, but it won't seem like such a slight increase to Miami taxpayers.

School trustees looked at a proposed $1.3 million budget Thursday at a special budget hearing. They also looked at a list of possible tax rates and estimates of how much each tax would net.

The current tax rate is 36.6 cents per $100 valuation. But Miami School Superintendent-Principal Allan Dinsmore figures it will take an increase of at least 10 cents to maintain the proposed school budget.

Congress picks apart Nicaragua peace plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservatives and liberals who traditionally have held the most entrenched positions in the debate over aid to the Nicaraguan Contras finally have agreed on something: the administration's new Central American peace initiative is a bad idea.

Both the left and the right in Congress have been using words like "sellout," "sham" and "ploy" to describe President Reagan's effort to pursue a diplomatic solution while delaying a planned request to seek additional aid for the rebels battling the leftist Sandinista government.

Conservative Republican Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado called it "the least promising initiative I have ever heard of," saying the move invited stalling by the Sandinistas.

Liberal Rep. George Brown, D-Calif., said he was "skeptical as hell" about the proposal and that "anybody who would buy into this ought to have his head examined." Brown and other like-minded House members said they saw the plan as a trap by the administration to snooker Congress into supporting Contra aid.

The opposition from the two headline camps comes as no surprise to the administration. But officials hope that uncommitted lawmakers will be impressed with Reagan's pursuit of the diplomatic track and vote for Contra aid if the initiative fails.

oil and gas values dropping, the current tax rate would bring in only $893,714 (or $849,028 at 95 percent collection). A tax rate of 46.6 cents would bring in $1.08 million at 95 percent collection, Dinsmore figured.

He said even with that higher tax rate, the school would dip heavily into a $300,000 carry-over.

The school's effective tax rate — the tax needed to bring in the same amount of revenue as last year — is 52.25 cents and would bring in about $1.15 million. Dinsmore told trustees that the school would not need to go above the effective tax rate.

"There's no way we can go below 46.6 cents or justify going above 52 cents," he said.

Trustees are expected to adopt the budget and set the tax rate at their regular meeting at 7 p.m. Monday.

The only person to attend the tax hearing, Jan Dressler of Maxxus (Diamond Shamrock), didn't protest the school's proposed tax. Dressler said the budget was one of the trimmest and best she's seen, although she implored the board to keep the tax as low as possible.

But with oil and gas values in the school district dropping by 27 percent, the oil and gas companies may be paying less tax than last year.

However, Miami homeowners, farmers and businessmen, who did not have a decrease in property values, will feel the increase.

Said Trustee Tom Henderson: "It is the property owners who should be stomping and raising Cain about the tax increase."

Dinsmore attributed the 1 percent increase to raises for the school's 13 high school and seven grade school teachers. Other culprits include the state-mandated career ladder merit pay program and increases in insurance premiums.

The budget, but not the superin-

As administration officials see it, there are about 200 safe pro-Contra House members, with about two dozen others thought to be swing votes. For the administration, the magic number is 218 — a bare majority. Obtaining a majority in the Senate is believed to be somewhat easier, but the sentiment now is running slightly against the administration.

The administration hopes that if the Sandinistas reject the plan, members of Congress will find themselves morally obligated to back the Contras. But no such suggestion was made by House Speaker Rep. Jim Wright, D-Texas, during the two-week period in which he and administration officials forged the initiative.

What is shaping up is a battle of perceptions over the next seven weeks — the time allotted by the administration for the Sandinistas to agree to a cease-fire and democratic reform, among other steps. The Sandinista strategy thus far seems clear: Express interest in the plan while haggling over procedures. This way, the Nicaraguans hope to escape blame if the initiative falls flat.

The administration wants the Sandinistas to talk about a cease-fire and democratization, but the Nicaraguans want to talk to Washington instead.

"If the United States rejects direct talks with us, the whole thing is a sham, a publicity stunt designed to impress whoever they think is gullible enough," Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega said.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said there is "no way" the United States will sit down with Nicaragua to decide Central America's future. That, he said, should be left to the Central Americans themselves.

Meanwhile, the presidents of five Central American nations adjourned 10 hours of talks in Guatemala City early today without approving any part of a 10-point plan aimed at bringing peace to the region.

"We hope more will come out of this (summit) than was expected," Foreign Minister Mario Quinones of Guatemala said during a break in the talks Thursday night. But he acknowledged, "There are some points of difference."

Quinones said the presidents hadn't formally approved any part of the multifaceted regional peace plan offered by Costa Rica. Another diplomat said the presidents were especially divided over timing of proposed cease-fires in the region's domestic insurgencies.

Presidents Vinicio Cerezo of Guatemala, Ortega of Nicaragua, Oscar Arias of Costa Rica, Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador and Jose Azcona Hoyo of Honduras went into a closed-door meeting at about 3 p.m. Thursday and did not adjourn until 1 a.m.

Mrs. Brent said she can't thank Ketchum enough for saving her daughter's life.

attempt at legislative and political blackmail, unbecoming of our Texas legislative process," Clements said. He also called it "rank intimidation."

Also vetoed was a $33.9 million appropriation for a new highway department administrative office building, and 1989 appropriations for the Texas Tech University Museum, Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon and Sam Houston Memorial Museum.

Another veto took $52 million from a program designed to allow the state to subsidize school districts experiencing a loss in property values greater than 8 percent from the previous year. Those generally are districts with greater than average wealth, Clements said, adding that he didn't think it would raise local property taxes.

"We hope that they will address the administrative side of their particular districts," he said.

Davis said he did not know what districts would be affected.

Clements also praised the Legislature, which required all 30 days of a special session in addition to its 140-day regular session to finally pass a budget.

"There is no question that much blood, sweat and tears were shed in this effort," he said.

However, the governor said, more savings could be obtained. "For 2 1/2 weeks, I have reviewed this budget... There are places that can stand additional scrutiny and additional economies."

The budget was approved by lawmakers on July 21. It was the first time since 1961, when the state sales tax was enacted, that legislators had failed to pass a budget during their 140-day regular session.

This year, lawmakers also approved a $5.7 billion tax hike — the largest in state history — to pay for the budget. Clements signed that into law last month.

Clements said the university systems office vetoes represent "relatively small numbers" in total funds.

The purpose, he said, was to reduce administrative costs "and to get a tighter discipline into that administration, which implies fewer people and more efficiency."

The vetoes included $710,000 annually for University of Texas system administration and $345,000 annually for Texas A&M University system administration.

Bob Davis, Clements' budget director, said those are general revenue funds. The UT and A&M systems receive "considerably more" from the state's Available University Fund, he noted.

More than $2 million was sliced from the University of Houston system administration in 1989, which Davis described as "almost all of their system expenses." The Lamar University system office loses more than $290,000 a year, which Davis called "principally the bulk of their system expenses."

Clements voiced strong feelings about state agencies using airplanes other than those operated by the state's aircraft pool.

"The time has passed when state employees can enjoy the privilege of flying in almost empty agency-owned aircraft... Some agencies still abuse this privilege by flying in state planes to cities served by commercial airliners and by flying at passenger levels far below plane capacity," he said.

Clements struck $1 million from Attorney General Jim Mattox's child support enforcement program, saying the other $44 million appropriated represented "adequate funds... for whatever he (Mattox) needs to be doing."

Despite having been critical of the Office of Public Utility Counsel, which represents ratepayers in proceedings before the state Public Utility Commission, Clements didn't veto the office's appropriation.

"I will probably put someone in there in whom I have confidence and that will give me a pipeline... into what the PUC is doing, which I have some real misgivings about," he said.

Unemployment falls to decade low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy kept cranking out new jobs last month, sending the unemployment rate to a decade-low 6.0 percent as 470,000 people went back to work, the government said today.

The July employment gain, spurred by an unusual, seasonally adjusted growth in manufacturing payrolls, more than offset a decline of 190,000 in the previous month.

Two million more people now have jobs than was the case at the beginning of the year, the Labor Department's monthly household survey showed. The jobless rate has fallen a full percentage point over the last 12 months.

A separate business survey showed a seasonally adjusted non-farm payroll growth of 300,000 new jobs in July, including a jump of 70,000 factory positions despite a loss of 40,000 auto industry jobs.

The commissioner of labor statistics, Janet L. Norwood, noted that industrial activity usually drops off in July and that payroll employment falls.

"This year, the job reductions were much less than usual," she said, acknowledging that seasonal adjustments have played havoc with unemployment figures the last two months.

"The important thing to note is that employment is up by 900,000 since April," Ms. Norwood told the congressional joint economic committee.

The department said the decline in auto industry employment came primarily from temporary layoffs related to annual model-year changeovers and inventory reductions.

The gain in factory jobs outside that industry raised to 150,000 the growth in manufacturing jobs over the last year.

"Nearly half of that increase occurred in July," Ms. Norwood said. Still, she added, "Manufacturing has still only recouped about one-half of the jobs lost during the 1981-82 recession."

Retail trade employment rose by 60,000 last month, following sluggish performances in May and June. Business and medical services created 80,000 jobs, about their average monthly since gain early in the year.

One dark spot in the July figures was an increase of 325,000, to 5.5 million, in the number of part-time workers who wanted full-time jobs but could not find them.

"We really need additional months of data to determine the significance" of that increase, Ms. Norwood said, noting that the number of Americans working part-time in lieu of full-time employment had been moving downward.

The department, however, said the number of people jobless for 15 weeks or more fell by 150,000 in July, to 1.9 million.

I don't want your sex on radio, TV

Sex ... just a mention of the word has made you read at least this far.

American shoppers have had sex prominently displayed for them all week long, where, on all the checkout stands of all the markets in all the country, TV Guide screams out at us loudly with the question, "Is TV Sex Getting Bolder?"

The headline on the cover is in white, with a red background. Red, of course, just so happens to be the color most associated with passion. Those TV Guide people can sure be subliminal, huh?

The answer to the question "Is TV sex getting bolder?" is not a simple yes or no. How much one can stand to watch will weigh heavily in each person's answer.

The article's summary, "The networks are getting more permissive — though the rise in AIDS cases and teen pregnancies is starting to have a restraining effect," wraps up the piece in 25 words or less.

TV Guide finds Dallas, Dynasty and Miami Vice as the worst violators, but does say the trend is that sex is on the downswing in most shows.

"Producers say that characters who hop into bed the moment they meet someone of the opposite sex have become boring," writes the article's author, Doug Hill.

As far as sexual suggestiveness, Night Court gets my vote for being the single worst show for the kiddos to watch.

In the show's early days — before John Larouquette became the "star" that he is — it was funny. But last year's episodes were loaded with one sexual innuendo after another.

This show is no longer about a judge and the wacky New Yorkers put on trial. Now, it is simply a bad vehicle for Larouquette's bad jokes.

Even Andy Griffith, of all people, is involved in a sexually suggestive show.

When's the last time you saw Matlock defend someone other than a beautiful young lady?

Hopefully, network censors will begin to swing a harder hammer or producers will take it upon themselves to limit sex again.

Where things are really getting carried away is on radio.

Apparently stations in larger markets are under the impression that their listeners want to be subjected to rapid fire, sex-laden one-liners.

Jocks in Dallas are some of the worst. There seems to be a contest staged each morning to see which jock can be the rudest.

Sex jokes would not be on the top of my list when naming what I would want to hear immediately after opening my eyes in the morning.

And, then, there's the music itself.

Billboard's #3 song this week is entitled "I Want Your Sex."

The song's singer, George Michael, insists that the song stresses monogamy and how important one-on-one relationships are.

Michael claims the song de-emphasizes casual sex.

That's fine and dandy, but does he really think that's what the song's admirers think of when they hear it?

The average radio listener today could care less about meaningful lyrics. If it's got a good beat — that's what really matters.

And when Michael croons in his own inimitable style, "I want your sex," today's teen is not going to start suddenly thinking about how much he loves his one and only.

Televangelist Jimmy Swaggart, appearing on Larry King Live Tuesday night, said, "Rock music today is the single largest detriment to our future."

While I'm not in favor of sexual lyrics in today's contemporary music, I do think Swaggart is exaggerating a bit.

The Louisiana-based preacher, though, was talking about not only sex on the radio, but also drug references in lyrics.

Lyrics with drug related topics or mentions should be banished from the airwaves — no questions asked.

Pertaining to sex, the subject should be toned down on both television and radio — especially the latter.

It is the radio that needs to be turned off before it continues to turn on its listeners to casual sex.

Escaped bull sparks wild chase in Waco

WACO (AP) — Pamplona, Spain, has nothing on Waco.

The central Texas town had its own running of the bulls fraught with just as much excitement as the traditional Spanish event.

Wendell Crunk of Asa was taking his cattle to auction Wednesday when a tire on the trailer blew out, catching hay inside the trailer on fire.

A bull whose tail caught fire escaped from the vehicle when the door was opened and headed straight for the campus of Baylor University.

"Some joggers came along and decided they'd chase the bull," Crunk told the Waco Tribune-Herald. "Then four or five people in vehicles got involved and it really turned into a mess. If they had left the bull alone, there would have been no problem."

For more than an hour, the campus was full of bull as the 550-pound calf was chased back and forth. Several cars and pickups joined the pursuit.

One man, who did some rodeoing in high school, even stood up in the bed of a pickup and tried to rope the bull on the run.

Eventually, the tired animal ran into the backyard of a house and vented its frustrations by ramming a carport and knocking a pole out of whack.

One man in a pickup — red, of course — tried to corner the bull in the backyard. But he beat a retreat after the bull dented his trunk.

Crunk finally tied things up by pulling his trailer to the gate and maneuvering the bull inside.

SMU to open records in football scandals

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says he hopes Southern Methodist University's decision to open its pay-for-players football scandal records to state investigators will help to speedily resolve his inquiry.

Mattox, an SMU law school graduate, said he and the university "would like to conclude this messy episode as expeditiously as possible so that the university may go forward with its fine educational programs."

"The more information made readily available to us, the quicker we can conclude our investigation," he said in announcing that SMU would make available all information and investigative records in its possession.

Mattox on Thursday also said he has extended until Aug. 20 his deadline on a request for investigative information gathered by a committee of United Methodist Church bishops who released a report on the scandal June 19.

The attorney general launched his probe after the bishops' report about the affair that led to SMU's banishment from intercollegiate football.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association's "death penalty" for SMU, a one-year ban, was the harshest ever handed down to a collegiate football program. SMU later decided to scrap football for a second year as well.

Under state law, the attorney general is charged with protecting the public interest of charitable trusts such as SMU.

Although SMU is a private institution, Mattox is particularly interested in $863,013 that was paid to former Athletic Director Bob Hitch, former football coach Bobby Collins and Henry Lee Parker, a former assistant to Hitch.

"I believe SMU is attempting to cooperate with our investigation. Attorneys and investigators from my charitable trust section will begin the process of reviewing SMU's investigative information next week," Mattox announced.

"We also are hopeful that the university will comply with our request for access to the reams of materials gathered by the bishops' committee since the committee was established at SMU's direction," Mattox said.

Mattox was notified of SMU's decision Thursday in a letter from incoming president A. Kenneth Pye, who takes over Aug. 17. "I wish to make it clear SMU does not desire to conceal any information relevant to your inquiry," Pye wrote.

However, questions remained about information compiled by the Methodist bishops for their June 19 report, Mattox aides said.

That report unleashed renewed criticism of Texas Gov. Bill Clements, who said that while serving as chairman of the SMU Board of Governors he authorized continued payments to players after an earlier NCAA penalty.

Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Mattox, said the material compiled for the bishops' report isn't formally in the school's possession but in the hands of lawyers.

The bishops' attorney, J. Chrys Dougherty, said earlier this week that while the university could be compelled to turn over its materials, the bishops could not. He said the bishops aren't an arm of the school, but representatives of the United Methodist Church.

Christopher said records SMU does possess include those connected with the NCAA investigations and the termination contracts for the three athletic officials.

More children's names found in Etheridge's computer listing

MARLIN (AP) — Self-employed insurance salesman Jimmy Etheridge was not known in the mostly white business community of this town, despite having moved here 18 months ago.

It was in the predominantly minority section where he passed out lavish gifts to poor boys and their families.

And it was there, officials say, that Etheridge left a deadly legacy.

Authorities found the names of 14 more children Thursday in a computer kept by Etheridge, who police fear may have infected as many as 54 youngsters with the AIDS virus.

Etheridge was found shot to death June 30. An autopsy showed he had the AIDS virus, and a check of the home computer yielded the names and addresses of children, along with details about sexual relations he had with them.

A 16-year-old boy who had been living with him signed a statement saying he shot Etheridge accidentally, said District Attorney Thomas Sehon, who said the criminal investigation in the case is over.

"We cannot prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he (16-year-old) or anyone else committed murder," Sehon said.

Debra Coca, chief Falls County juvenile probation officer, said Thursday officials had found two or three more lists in Etheridge's computer with 14 new names, mostly from Louisiana.

But of the total 54 children, addresses from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, California, Colorado, Arkansas and Mexico were found, she said. At least 10 of the children are from this little community southeast of Waco.

"We are still in the process of pulling names out of the computer," she said, adding she has no idea how many more names might be found.

Six children have been tested for AIDS so far, and only one test result is back, said Coca, declining to say whether it was positive or negative.

Parents who have been notified, she said, expressed "shock, bewilderment and a lack of understanding about how this could happen."

Many said, "He seemed to be such a nice person."

She said many of the children are too young to understand the implications of the situation.

Etheridge moved here a year and a half ago from Louisiana. Not many in the business community knew him.

"If you go to the south end of town, he was very well known," Coca said.

She said he was a familiar figure to many Hispanic and black families, whom he gave gifts including televisions and motorcycles.

Coca said the district attorney's office was sending letters out to families of the 54 children whose names turned up, plus all of Etheridge's insurance customers, mainly minorities.

"I don't know how many people that will be," Sehon said. "It's probably impossible to notify every single person who said hello to him or shook his hand."

Most of the children involved are Hispanic or black and were between 13 and 16 years old at the time of the contact with Etheridge, although some were as young as 7, Coca said.

Nuclear protests under way

AMARILLO (AP) — A weekend of demonstrations by anti-nuclear protesters is under way near the Pantex Nuclear Weapons Assembly Plant.

Demonstrators pushed off a small armada of lanterns in Medi Park Lake Thursday in commemoration of the 42nd anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, ending the first day of an annual protest.

More than 30 people gathered for the fourth annual Pantex Pilgrimage and Peace Camp, sponsored by the Red River Peace Network against nuclear weapons.

About 15 demonstrators lined up outside the Pantex plant at the end of the shift waving banners and shouting "Peace" to workers who were leaving for home.

Demonstrators in past years have camped at the front gate of the Pantex plant, about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo, but this year they are pitching tents at a farm near the plant instead.

Campers of all ages worked in the 90-degree heat setting up small tents. Many had bicycled to the event and began their ride July 28 at Comanche Peak Nuclear Power Plant near Glen Rose.

Along the route, which stopped in Hereford at the proposed site of a Department of Energy Nuclear Waste Dump, bicyclists distributed leaflets and information to anyone who would listen, said Charles Perez of Houston, one of the group's organizers.

"We didn't receive any negative response from people. We usually get surprised and bewildered reactions from people who are amazed at what we are doing," said Perez, who is one of the "Pantex 7," the group of protesters arrested for illegally entering the Pantex property in 1981.

One demonstrator, Greg Porter, a management consultant from Dallas, said, "I'm here to remind people what nuclear weapons are all about — destruction. The United States is planning to win a nuclear war with the constant buildup of arms. And the Soviets are planning the same thing."

Walter Simms shreds a photocopy of Sen. Daniel Inouye, chairman of the Joint Committee Investigating the Iran-Contra Affair. Citizens for America in Amarillo sponsored the celebration, which included shredding and throwing darts at the leaders of the hearings. For the group, the party marked the end of what they call "destructive kangaroo-court Iran-Contra hearings."

Owner acquitted of arson

FORT WORTH (AP) — A federal jury deliberated for more than four days before acquitting former Fort Worth restaurant owner Benjamin McClelland of setting a gas explosion that destroyed his restaurant and part of a city block.

But the jury Thursday convicted McClelland, 25, of four lesser charges of mailing fraudulent

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

'Star Wars' defense demands commitment

One of the more common arguments hurled against the Strategic Defense Initiative is its cost. Opponents of SDI — President Reagan's plan to build a nationwide defense against nuclear missiles — say it could cost $1 trillion, a heavy amount for any nation to bear. But, really, how much of a financial burden would SDI be?

The $1 trillion figure has never been grounded in fact. It was plucked from the vacuum of space to alarm people. One formal study in 1986 did put the cost of a nationwide anti-missile system at $776 billion, while at least one organization, High Frontier, has said such a system could be built for well under $100 billion. A detailed study by the George C. Marshall Institute, reported recently in the Wall Street Journal, pegged the final cost of a complete system at $124 billion.

If we accept the mid-range estimate of $124 billion, we are still talking a whole lot of money. One-hundred and twenty-four billion dollars is more than the entire annual economic output of South Korea. It represents $500 for each man, woman and child in the United States. But would $124 billion be an unreasonable price to pay to effectively discourage a devastating nuclear-missile attack against the United States?

To develop the atomic bomb during World War II, the United States spent $2 billion. That amount represented about 1.2 percent of the nation's annual economic output at the time. An equal effort today, with Americans producing $4.3 trillion a year in goods and services, would cost $52 billion.

To land a man on the moon in the 1960s, the United States spent $38.5 billion. That effort represented an even bigger commitment of resources than the atomic bomb — 4.3 percent of an average year's national output during the course of the program. An Apollo-like effort today would mean the expenditure of $186 billion.

Compared to the atomic bomb and the Apollo program, a $124 billion price tag for SDI suddenly looks downright reasonable. In the 1940s, when America faced an aggressive and totalitarian foe, as we do today, our government was willing to spend the equivalent of $52 billion to develop a dozen or so working bombs of a single design. The SDI program would create a complete, multi-faceted system capable of defending the United States from a missile attack. A similar commitment for a similar goal: The atomic bomb ended a devastating war; SDI would help prevent one.

If America could afford to fulfill President Kennedy's dream of a man on the moon, can we not afford to fulfill President Reagan's more urgent vision of salvation from nuclear blackmail?

When President Roosevelt authorized the Manhattan Project to build the atomic bomb, success was far from certain. The objective took years of concentrated research by some of our best scientific minds. But we pursued that goal with determination. Despite setbacks along the way, we achieved our goal.

Why should SDI be different?

Most should stay with English

A couple of months ago a reporter for the Savannah Evening Press covered a murder trial. Larry Howard, director of the State Crime Lab, testified that the deceased had been shot once in the chest and then shot twice more as he lay on the floor. The final two shots, said the witness, "appear to be coup de gras wounds." A copy editor dutifully compounded the blunder in a Page 1 streamer: "Howard Shots Coup de Gras."

A couple of weeks later, in Trenton, N.J., a staff writer for the Times interviewed Ernest Barberio, who had resigned as superintendent of schools in Jamesburg. Barberio said he was most proud that in three years his district had gone from 38 percent to nearly 100 percent of minimum student proficiency in reading and math.

"I consider that my coup de grace," he said. "Tiens! Quelle betise! Horsefeathers! Does anyone here speak English? In referring to a coup de grace (with a circonflexe over the a), the Georgia crime lab director had used the phrase precisely. It is the finishing stroke of mercy by which one completes a fatal act. The reporter didn't know how to spell the French phrase and neglected to look it up. A 'coup de gras,' if it means anything, might mean that Oprah Winfrey had lost 30 pounds. 'Gras' is French for 'fat,' as in Mardi Gras or foie gras (fatty liver). Further Horrid Examples: A columnist for the Chicago Sun-Times wrote that a state official was on the way out; if he doesn't leave voluntarily, 'he'll be asked to, n'est pas?'" In Haverhill, Mass., a sportswriter quoted a basketball coach; an opposing player "never gave up the ball per say." If you are determined to say "isn't that so?" in French, in the name of Moliere kindly spell it n'est-ce pas. The Latin for

The Writer's Art
James J. Kilpatrick

"in or by itself" is per se.

Watch out for these Latin phrases. The publishers of a documentary work on the Constitution recently advised prospective customers that all documents would be published in literal form, except for the correction of "obvious typesetting errors in newspaper material (i.e., 'u' for 'n')." Look, chums: "i.e." is the abbreviation for "id est," meaning "that is." What the blurb writer wanted was "e.g.," the abbreviation for "exempli gratia," meaning for example.

In Washington, D.C., a real estate firm advertised a $10 million estate that had "a country house with large rooms, high ceilings, heart pine floors, two-car garage, pool, et al." What was the point of "et al."? It is the abbreviation for the Latin "et alii" or "et aliae," meaning "and others." What the ad writer wanted was a simple "etc.," the abbreviation for "et cetera," meaning "others of the same kind."

While we're on the subject: The abbreviation "ib" or "ibid" stands for the Latin "ibidem," in the same place — usually in the same book or document. "Op cit" is short for "opus citatum," the work cited. "Supra," sometimes chopped down to "sup.," means "above" or "before." The period between midnight and noon is the "ante meridiem," not "meridian."

The other day The Wall Street Journal quoted Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho. He complained that if senatorial elections were publicly financed, Democrats would retain control "on and on, ad infinitum, into the near future." Or maybe longer.

Thinking of things that are "ad" something or other: It's not "ad nauseum," for goodness' sake, it's "ad nauseam." An "ad hoc" committee is a committee formed for one particular purpose. Incidentally, you may pronounce "hoc" to rhyme with either stock or stoke, take your choice. Something that is said "ad lib" is said "ad libitum," at one's pleasure. To engage in the rhetorical device known as "reductio ad absurdum" is to prove the falsity of a proposition by reducing it to absurdity. When a court appoints someone to serve as guardian "pendente lite," this does not mean, as one wit has suggested, "until the money runs out." It means "pending the suit." A chaise longue is not, repeat not, a chaise longue. "Media" is a plural noun. How did I get into this stuff?

I have pleaded with you writers many times before, but let me plead with you once again: Stick to English! Stick to English! Yes, for specialized or sophisticated audiences, an occasional touch of French or Latin may add a little Tabasco to your sauce, but unless you are absolutely, positively, unerringly certain of the spelling and the aptness of a foreign phrase, stick to English! Otherwise you may look as foolish as the baseball writer who once described a three-way trade of infielders as a "menage a trois."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Aug. 7, the 219th day of 1987. There are 146 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 7, 1782, George Washington created the Order of the Purple Heart, a decoration to recognize merit in enlisted men and noncommissioned officers. The first recipients of the Order were honored the following May.

On this date:
In 1789, the U.S. War Department was established.

In 1882, the famous feud between the Hatfield family of southern West Virginia and the McCoy's of eastern Kentucky broke out. By the time the feud ended, about 100 men, women and children had been either killed or wounded.

In 1912, the Progressive Party nominated Theodore Roosevelt for president.

In 1927, the Peace Bridge between the United States and Canada was dedicated during ceremonies attended by the Prince of Wales and Vice President Charles Dawes.

In 1942, U.S. forces landed at Guadalcanal in the Pacific during World War II.

A few things to worry about

I was introduced to the word "nosophobic" by Elizabeth Whelan of the American Council on Science and Health. Elizabeth Whelan's credentials include a doctorate in epidemiology from Harvard.

"Nosophobia" is literally defined as "a morbid dread of illness." But Dr. Whelan says you and I had both the good fortune and the misfortune to be born at the same time as food additives, pesticides, lawn-care chemicals, air and water contaminants, radiation and other byproducts of the age of the alchemists.

Today any "nosophobic" demanding zero risk for himself, taking no chances, is suffering perpetual anguish from his phobia at a time when he should be rejoicing in our nation's unprecedented state of good health.

Useful agricultural chemicals — DDT, EBD, aldrin, dieldrin — and food additives such as cyclamates and Red Dye No. 2 — have been banned even though there has never been one documented case of ill health attributed to these substances.

You can overhear anywhere that people gather the familiar bleat of the alarmist nosophobic: "They say that such-and-such is bad for you!"

Dr. Whelan says "Love Canal" has become a buzzword for toxic terrorism even though a blue-ribbon scientific panel appointed by former Gov. Hugh Carey of New York ascertained that "no adverse health effects had ever been linked to exposure to the chemical wastes at that site."

A recent Roper Poll found that half of the people questioned believe radiation released from nuclear power plants is one of our nation's most serious health hazards.

This, despite the fact that there has been not one death or injury to the public from radiation in a quarter-century of commercial operation of nuclear power plants. Not one.

And this includes "Three Mile Island," which the media treated as a "disaster."

The radiation released at Three Mile Island was roughly what you would be exposed to if you crossed a sunshiny street five times in your lifetime.

Or if you took four puffs from a single cigarette — in your lifetime.

Dr. Whelan agrees that we all want safe and clean food, water and air. But the end goal of "purity," in drinking water, for example, would be less than healthful. It's some of the "impurities" in drinking water that proper nutrition requires.

If we want to worry about things worth worrying about:

Cigarettes are still killing 485,000 Americans every year.

AIDS deaths will rise to more than 250,000 by 1991.

Drinking kills 15,000 people in cars every year and another 60,000 from cirrhosis, homicide and suicide.

Dr. Whelan thinks we've been squishing ants when we should be gunning for elephants.

Some ignore media blitz on Olliemania

By Robert Walters

NEW ORLEANS (NEA) — Marine Lt. Col. Oliver L. North apparently didn't make much of an impression here when he warned recently that Soviet warships were steaming "16 miles off the coast of Louisiana."

One local resident, secretary Cathy Guidry, said she "would have doubts that (North's claim) is credible." Another Louisianan, businessman Laurance Eustis III, was even more reserved: "I don't have strong feelings on that."

North conjured up visions of a hostile naval armada when he recreated his slide show on "Soviet penetration of this hemisphere" for the congressional committee probing the Iran-contra scandal. But there's no evidence that he changed many people's minds here.

Among residents of this city, it's hard to discern any lasting impact of North's highly publicized week as a congressional witness. While the daily newspaper, the Times-Picayune, printed numerous letters about North, they came from both supporters and detractors.

Thus, for every letter writer who criticized "the gaggle of congressional wimps" harassing North, there were others who charged that "North did nothing to help defend this country" and "should be stripped of his military rank."

Moreover, the results of national public opinion polls suggest that New Orleans is typical of the rest of the country, where most people surveyed appear to have recognized that the complex matter is not susceptible to simplistic judgments.

Thus, a New York Times/CBS News poll found that 62 percent of all respondents believed North was telling the truth during his appearance on Capitol Hill, but 74 percent rejected President Reagan's characterization of the Marine as a "national hero."

Similarly, a Time magazine poll found that respondents described North as "true patriot" by a 67-24 margin, but when asked if he was "someone I would want my daughter to marry," they answered in the negative by a 57-26 margin.

Finally, a Newsweek poll found that 65 percent of those surveyed believed that North "is well meaning but did things that were illegal" while 66 percent said they would not vote for him if he ran for public office.

Why don't those findings comport with the frenzied adulation of North in the days during and immediately following his televised congressional testimony?

What about the countless thousands of telegrams, bouquets and defense fund contributions showered upon him by adoring citizens? How can we account for the hats, T-shirts, buttons and other fast-selling commercial items bearing his name, likeness or both?

The best guess here is that the explanation for the dichotomy comes in two parts. First, there is the overwhelming influence of the three major television networks, all of whom jettisoned their commercial-laden regular programs (many of them daytime soap operas) in favor of advertising-free coverage of North's testimony.

That noble sacrifice was similar to others the networks have made in the past — but they obviously were delighted with the soaring ratings and couldn't resist reinforcing their own success by declaring that North had captured the entire nation's imagination.

Indeed, no institution is more adept at creating instant heroes (and disposing of them after they have been "overexposed") than commercial television — and North was an ideal candidate for the "a-star-is-born" role.

The second part of the equation involves the millions of dedicated conservatives who long have been committed to Reagan's policies in Central America but who have been devastated by the scandal in recent months.

For them, North's appearance was an unexpected bonanza. They capitalized on the opportunity and mounted an impromptu celebration so noisy and exuberant that some confused it with a universal outpouring of acclaim.

Iran-Contra hearings conclude

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Iran-Contra committees have wrapped up their hearings, but the chairman of the House panel says investigators will continue to interview witnesses and are unlikely to complete a final report before October.

The panels on Thursday finished interviewing their 32nd witness, CIA covert operations director Clair George, in closed session. That concluded three days of private testimony from CIA witnesses, and there were no plans to hear from further witnesses.

However, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House panel, did not rule out the possibility that further witnesses could be called, and said the panels still have much work to do.

"There are lots of leads that have not been pursued as fully as we could," Hamilton told reporters. Unanswered questions remain for "almost every single witness," he added. And he said he was "not at all satisfied with" the depth of the financial investigation.

"There's a lot of depositions to be taken," he said.

Asked whether Vice President George Bush was correct when he asserted the hearings have placed him beyond criticism in the secret sale of weapons to Iran and the resupply of the Nicaraguan Contra rebels, Hamilton reiterated that the committees' work is not yet complete.

"So long as that's the status of it, I'm not going to make any comment with regard to Vice President Bush, or any other person, that has any finality to it," Hamilton said. "We have very little evidence of the vice president's involvement."

A committee spokesman, Robert Havel, said investigators would continue to take depositions. He said that James Radzinski, the former official in charge of classified records at the National Security Council, would be recalled for further deposition questioning, as might be Michael Ledeen, the private counterterrorism consultant who was in on the early stages of the Iran arms sales.

Investigators planned to interview some new witnesses as well, Havel said, although he declined to name them.

Hamilton said it was unlikely the panels' final report will be finished before October. He said he saw no need for sweeping legislative change.

In another development, The Washington Post reported that independent counsel Lawrence Walsh will have to obtain a judge's approval of questions he wants two Israeli figures to answer.

Israel objects to subpoenas by Walsh's grand jury, which is seeking to question Adolph Schwimmer, an Israeli arms dealer, and David Kimche, a former foreign ministry official, about the arms sales. The Post said U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson will review the questions Walsh wants to put to the Israelis.

Meanwhile, an ABC News-Washington Post poll conducted Sunday through Wednesday of this week found that a majority of Americans still don't believe President Reagan has generally told the truth about the Iran-Contra affair, though more now believe him than in recent weeks.

According to the poll, 52 percent think Reagan has not told the truth compared with 44 percent who think he has told the truth. The doubters were down from 60 percent on July 21 and 69 percent as recently as June 1.

Most widely believed among the recent major witnesses was fired White House aide Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, with 71 percent believing he told the truth compared with 24 percent who think he lied.

Least believed was North's boss, former National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter, who generally supported North's version of events. Just 41 percent believed Poindexter, while 47 percent didn't. Figures for other witnesses, with the believers outnumbering doubters in every case, were Secretary of State George P. Shultz, 61 percent to 26 percent; Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, 53 percent to 27 percent; former White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, 46 percent to 35 percent, and Attorney General Edwin Meese III, 44 percent to 37 percent. Remaining respondents didn't know or had no opinion in each case.

The poll also seemed to indicate that a surge in support for Contra aid linked to North's appearance at the hearings has been reversed.

The poll's sponsors said they interviewed 1,205 adults by telephone to obtain results with a potential sampling error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

College tuitions rising fast again

NEW YORK (AP) — College tuitions this fall will rise faster than the inflation rate for the seventh-straight year, according to a survey that also found the annual cost at one elite school reaching more than $19,000.

The tuitions will rise an average 8 percent at four-year private schools for the third-consecutive year and 6 percent at public, four-year institutions, according to The College Board survey released Thursday.

The 6 percent figure matched last year's rise at the public schools, but was less than the 9 percent increase in 1985-86.

The overall inflation rate, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, has risen at a seasonally adjusted 5.4 percent rate in 1987 and stood at 4 percent or less every year since 1982.

"There they go again, and again, and again. When will they ever stop?" said Education Secretary William Bennett, a critic of rising college costs, when told of the findings.

College Board president Donald M. Stewart said, "The College Board does not collect data on why tuition and fees are rising, but other investigators point to the considerable increase in the price of goods and services purchased during the 1980s such as books, faculty salaries and scientific equipment."

Among the hardest hit will be out-of-state students attending public universities where surcharges will rise an average 7 percent, to $2,367 at four-year schools, and 10 percent at two-year public colleges, to an average $1,811.

The University of Michigan, for instance, will cost Michigan residents an estimated $7,526, but $13,098 for out-of-state students, including a $5,572 surcharge.

The total tab for out-of-staters at the University of California-Berkeley will reach an estimated $12,184, including a $4,284 surcharge. Total costs at the Colorado School of Mines will reach $8,274 — $13,796 for out-of-state students.

For many other students, the latest cost survey is a respite from the double-digit increases of the early 1980s. In the peak year of 1982-83, average rates rose 20 percent at public colleges and 13 percent at private schools.

Calculating average college costs under a new method that takes each school's enrollment into account, the board estimated average "fixed charges" at private, four-year schools — tuition, fees, room and board — at $10,493.

Counting expenses such as books, supplies and transportation, estimated annual costs rise to $11,982 for students living on campus, and to $10,173 for commuting students.

Students should "not be scared off by the cost," said Richard Rosser, president of the National Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, which represents more than 800 private institutions.

Surveys of average tuitions "have to be taken with some caution because the real question is the student's interest in the college and university, and whether he can find a way to attend that school," Rosser said in a telephone interview. The bottom line, he said, depends on the aid package available at each school.

At four-year public institutions, tuition, fees, room and board will average $4,104 for in-state students. Adding incidental expenses increases the estimate to $5,789 for resident students, and $4,554 for commuters.

Fixed charges at private two-year institutions will rise by 6 percent to $6,945 but will reach $8,305 for residents, and $6,737 for commuters counting incidental estimated expenses.

At public two-year colleges, average tuition and fees will increase by 5 percent to $687, but the total annual tab hits an estimated $3,889 for commuters counting board expenses, books, transportation and other expenses. The study gave no comparable estimates for resident students because the sample was too small.

Reagan to speak on Iran-Contra

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will comment on testimony at the congressional Iran-Contra hearings in a speech next Wednesday at 8 p.m. from the Oval Office, an administration source said.

The source, who spoke Thursday evening on condition of a anonymity, said a formal announcement on the timing would come today. It is expected that the speech will be televised nationally.

A White House spokesman, Roman Popadiuk, said late Thursday he could not confirm the report.

The Aug. 12 speech comes on the eve of Reagan's departure for a 25-day vacation. Next Thursday, Aug. 13, Reagan will fly to North Platte, Neb., where he will speak about his economic proposals.

After his Nebraska stop, the president will fly to California aboard Air Force One. He plans to vacation until Sept. 6 at his ranch near Santa Barbara and in Los Angeles. The White House has ruled out a presidential news conference before Reagan's return.

Earlier this week, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan will give his general views of the Iran-Contra hearings in the speech but "will not go into every detail."

Reagan administration holds to a rosy economic forecast

By The Associated Press

The stock market has moved ever higher, and the Reagan administration is holding to its prediction of moderate economic growth through 1988 and beyond.

Beryl Sprinkel, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday he foresees no recession, at least through the end of President Reagan's term.

"I don't want to predict that there'll never be another recession, because I know there will be. But we don't want it on our watch. Let the next guy make a mistake," Sprinkel told reporters.

The administration said it expects consumer prices to rise 4.8 percent for all of 1987, the highest level in five years and a full percentage point higher than the January forecast of 3.8 percent.

But Sprinkel said inflation should ease in the second half of the year and from 1988 to 1992.

For the first six months of 1987, the consumer price index advanced at an annual rate of 5.4 percent.

The administration also stuck to its forecast of 3.2 percent real gross national product growth for 1987, the same level it had predicted in January. It said it expected this to increase to 3.5 percent in 1988 then ease to 3.1 percent by 1992.

In other economic news Thursday:

■ Stock prices rose sharply on the strength of surging demand for technology issues and the absence of new Persian Gulf hostilities. The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip stocks jumped 27.58 points to 2,594.23, surpassing the record of 2,572.07 set last Friday. It was the indica-tor's 48th record close of the year.

■ Oil prices lost ground for the third straight day, also in reaction to eased tensions in the Middle East. Contracts for September delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude oil, settled at $21.14 per 42-gallon barrel, down 15 cents from Wednesday's close.

■ The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said fixed-rate mortgages averaged 10.72 percent in July, down from a high this year of 10.86 percent in June. The 0.14 percentage point decline was the first since March, when rates hit a nine-year low of 9.47 percent.

■ A business-supported research group reported that Americans were more confident about the economy last month than at any other time since June 1984. The Conference Board's Consumer Confidence Index stood at 105.8 in July.

Reporter of history retires

AUSTIN (AP) — For the past four decades as Texas history unfolded, Garth Jones has relayed those events to thousands of newspaper readers.

Jones, 70, has been a reporter for The Associated Press since 1946 and has been permanently based in the AP's Austin bureau since 1956. Jones retired from the news service July 31 after having covered nine gubernatorial administrations and 19 regular sessions of the Texas Legislature.

His stories told Texans about man's first walk on the moon, University of Texas sniper Charles Whitman, the 1947 Texas City explosions and numerous legislative budget battles and political campaigns.

"He has given an awful lot to the people of Texas over the years, even though they may not know who he is," said Michael Holmes, who heads the AP's Austin bureau. "Without a doubt, he epitomizes the best of our business."

Jones, a native of Tuscola, began his career in 1938 at the Ilene Reporter-News. He has been writing about Texas politics since Beauford Jester successfully ran for governor in 1946. "We would travel in a car, and he'd travel in a car. We'd go to the courthouse square. Jester would speak, and we'd call in a story from a cafe."

Garth Jones

Jones said. Then the reporters and Jester would hop back into their cars and head to the next county seat.

Campaigning has changed a bit since those post-war years. "They almost do it all by TV now. It certainly doesn't have the personal appeal," Jones said.

Although Jones says he is fascinated by politics, it wasn't politics that brought him to the Capitol. It was a girl named Nancy. Nancy Philips was the amusement editor of the Austin American-Statesman. Covering the Legislature meant Jones could be in the same town with her.

This year, Garth and Nancy Jones celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

When they married in 1947, Jones was working out of the AP's Austin bureau but was based in Dallas. The wire service sent him to Austin to cover the 1949 legislative session. He has been permanently based here for the past 31 years, serving as AP's lead Capitol correspondent for 21 of those years.

With an office on the second floor of the Capitol, the job gave him a unique vantage point from which to watch Texas governors.

"The most interesting in a lot of ways is Bill Clements," Jones said. "He's one of the most intense people" to have served in the office, he said.

"The most capable I have met was Allan Shivers," who was governor from 1949 to 1957, the reporter said. "That man was just tremendous until the day he died."

Jones had a chance to meet Shivers often, in the Capitol and at the Headliners Club. Formed in 1954, the Austin club was designed to be a place where those who write could meet those who make the headlines. Jones has been a member of the club since 1956 and serves as secretary of the Headliners Foundation.

High numbers of bad checks strike Midland, Odessa area

MIDLAND (AP) — When the Permian Basin's economy was flattened by last year's oil-price drop, checks started bouncing in increasing numbers.

If the number of bad checks is an indicator of how the economy is doing, then the signs are mixed for Midland and Odessa.

This year, fewer bad checks are being referred to the Midland County Attorney's office. But the number of bad checks referred to the Ector County Attorney's office in Odessa is about even with last year's record-shattering number.

Midland County dealt with 8,973 bad checks last year, said Barbara Carr, the Hot Check Division's administrative assistant. Through July this year, the county has seen 3,524 hot checks.

The Ector County Attorney's office had to deal with 34,000 bad checks last year, said Hot Check Division Supervisor Jana Pugh. The year before, 15,000 hot checks were referred to the division, she said.

"That was just a real jump," she said. "People in other counties just can't believe the number of bad checks we've had."

About 5,000 insufficient checks were referred to the Ector County office in the first seven months this year, and 5,072 were referred to the office from January through July last year, she said. She did not have any precise figures for 1987.

Although there has not been a significant drop in the number of hot checks being written, Pugh said she feels confident that this year will be better than last because companies are starting to drill for oil again.

The oil price drop of 1986 was practically an economic disaster for Midland-Odessa. The price of oil declined from almost $30 a barrel to about half that figure. In August 1985, officials reported that 1,890 rigs were operating in the United States. The number dropped to 721 rigs a year later.

Conditions are improving now. As of Monday, officials reported 973 rigs were operating in the United States. Texas has added 19 rigs in the last week. West Texas Intermediate crude opened at $22.50 this week.

Pugh said she can tell economic conditions are improving because more people are paying back their bad checks. Last year, the county collected $213,000 in restitution; so far this year, it has retrieved about $129,000 in restitution, she said.

Another reason for the increased restitution, she said, is that thousands of transient laborers who worked in the oilfields have moved away.

Report says Iranian terrorists may plan to attack U.S. targets

NEW YORK (AP) — Iran may be readying terrorist attacks abroad and possibly within the United States, said U.S. government officials quoted today by The New York Times.

The FBI has assigned agents to investigate a report that Iranians in the United States are looking for possible targets, the Times reported, noting that there is no firm evidence of a planned attack.

The validity of the FBI report was not known, and one official told the newspaper that the FBI action was precautionary.

Another official said, however, that "there is real cause for concern about Iranian terrorism in the United States."

The officials, who were not identified by the Times, said possible threats to U.S. installations in Europe and the Middle East are the most worrisome. They said suspected Iranian agents had U.S. embassies under surveillance.

Based upon information provided by a government official who was later said to be unreliable, U.S. agencies were put on alert in 1981 to defend against a team of Libyans who purportedly entered the United States to attack President Reagan.

The Times also reported today that the Reagan administration, in an effort to further isolate Iran, is moving toward more severe restrictions on trade with that country.

Officials said the impending crackdown was caused by the heightened tensions between the United States and Iran. The administration decided to seek tougher trade restrictions after a reevaluation within the State Department of its position on commerce.

Only two months ago, the State Department favored a normal trade flow.

Attorneys seek renewal of UT Bible courses

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorneys for the Biblical Studies Association, a group through which Bible courses have been offered at the University of Texas, have charged that a recent cancellation of courses is unconstitutional and have asked for a meeting with UT regents.

The attorneys also requested continuation of the courses at least through the 1987-88 school year. The requests were made in a letter to James Duncan, UT executive vice chancellor for academic affairs.

Duncan notified UT-Austin and other UT campuses in July that the arrangements under which the Bible courses have been offered would have to be discontinued because of an opinion by Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox. UT-Austin officials then canceled this fall's Bible courses.

Mattox later said that cancellation of the courses was an administrative decision by UT.

Gerhard Fonken, executive vice president and provost at UT-Austin, said a meeting has been set for next week with himself, President William Cunningham and Charles Cox, chairman of the Biblical Studies Association, to discuss issues related to the Bible courses.

Aquino eulogizes slain leader

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino today called terrorism the gravest threat to her country's fragile democracy as she eulogized the first Philippines Cabinet member ever assassinated.

The military said a congressional leader and three election commissioners had received death threats since the murder Sunday of local governments secretary Jaime Ferrer.

Brig. Gen. Alexander Aguirre, Manila area commander, alerted police in the capital that a nine-member Moslem assassination team had targeted Rep. Ramon Mitra, speaker of the House of Representatives.

In addition, death threats against Ramon Felipe, chairman of the Commission on Elections, and two other commissioners were made in letters received Thursday and signed by the "urban guerrilla unit," military officials said today.

Communist rebels refer to their assassination teams as "urban guerrillas," but it was not known if they sent the letter.

Guards carrying M-16 rifles searched handbags and used metal detectors to screen mourners at funeral services for Ferrer, held at the church where he worshiped Sunday before being gunned down on his way home.

Burial was set for Saturday, at which time another briefer funeral service will be held.

Aquino vowed to fight "anarchy with law and murder with justice," but she ruled out any new laws or crackdowns in the wake of Ferrer's murder.

"There are more than enough laws for that purpose," she told mourners at St. Andrew's Church. "What is needed is the will and intelligence to enforce them."

No group has taken responsibility for Ferrer's assassination. Speculation has focused on Communist rebels, who have waged an 18-year insurgency in the Philippines.

Ferrer, 70, was a leading proponent of civilian vigilante groups formed to fight the rebels.

Chernobyl studies: hope for survival?

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chernobyl nuclear plant disaster, despite proving that humans can survive radiation doses previously thought fatal, showed the impossibility of coping medically with nuclear war, a study concludes.

"The medical response to Chernobyl, involving physicians and scientists from 20 nations and several million dollars in supplies and equipment, would appear trivial in the context of a nuclear war," said Dr. Robert

Gale, author of one of the studies in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Gale treated Chernobyl victims in the Soviet Union for six months after the April 26, 1986, disaster, the worst nuclear accident in history.

"An adequate medical response to the intentional use of less than 10 percent of the Soviet or American nuclear arsenals is not possible," Gale's report concluded.

Two people died instantly and 29 more died of radiation injuries and burns in the months after the accident, Gale reported.

But more than 90 percent of the 500 people hospitalized with radiation sickness from the accident are doing well now and most have been discharged, said Gale.

Scientists had estimated that a radiation dose of 450 rads would be fatal to about 50 percent of the population, but some Chernobyl survivors were exposed to more than 600 rads, the study found.

Crippled Ecuadoran girl with deformities undergoes surgery

By DANA KENNEDY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A crippled Ecuadoran girl, whose parents nearly cast her into a jungle bonfire because of her deformed legs, has undergone surgery that will allow her to walk for the first time in her life.

Maria Andy, rescued shortly after her birth seven years ago by two Roman Catholic nuns, was listed in fair condition today, a day after surgeons at Children's Hospital amputated her twisted and useless legs at the knee.

She will be fitted with artificial limbs.

"She says she wants nice legs so she can wear red shoes and dance," Rosa Mino, Maria's guardian, said before the surgery. "She's not nervous. I've been telling her all this time she'll have beautiful legs. She's excited about her new legs."

The guardian said Maria seemed pale after the surgery. "I have to concentrate on getting her back to Ecuador and getting her walking," she said, breaking into tears.

Dr. James Kasser, who performed the operation, said Maria was comfortable after the surgery. She should be able to leave the hospital within a week, he said.

Kasser estimated that Maria will learn to walk on her new legs within three months. Doctors plan a second operation to correct a spinal deformity in six months, he said.

After rescuing the infant Maria, the nuns took her to an orphanage in Quito, Ecuador, where she became the best student in her class and was chosen the 1987 poster child for Por Cristo (For Christ), a charitable medical group.

Por Cristo paid for Maria to travel to Children's Hospital. Chris D'Entremont, a spokeswoman for Por Cristo, said the amputation was deemed necessary after Por Cristo workers found Maria's legs too twisted. Her leg muscles are almost nonexistent.

"The nuns in the orphanage didn't have enough medical knowledge to let her do exercise," Ms. D'Entremont said.

Since her arrival in Boston on May 29, Maria received physical therapy to exercise the muscles in her back and legs, which are twisted from severe scoliosis, curvature of the spine.

The physical therapy Maria received at the Braintree Hospital and the Braintree Rehabilitation Center strengthened her thigh muscles enough so that doctors think she will be able to walk with artificial legs.

Dr. Martin Dunn, a founder of Por Cristo, said Maria is "a real extrovert, always with a beautiful smile and very intelligent, tops in her class in the first grade back in Ecuador."

Dunn said orphanage officials recently located Maria's parents, but they reiterated they wanted nothing to do with her. Maria's parents set the fire she was about to be thrown into shortly after she was born.

"They call her the daughter of the devil," Dunn said.

Because of the way the orphanage is set up in Quito, Maria will have to leave when she is 14, Por Cristo officials said.

Por Cristo is a group of north American medical professionals who work with their counterparts in South America to improve medical conditions there. The group sponsors doctors, nurses, hygienists, therapists, medical photographers and others who travel to South American countries to treat sick people.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Likeness

The artist is capturing the physical likeness of this lovely girl on her paper. The likeness is amazing. But her inward beauty, her wonderful Christian heart and soul, can only be captured fully on God's canvas. The Bible says that "Man looketh on the outward appearance but God looketh on the heart."

How would God's painting picture you and me?

One good way to improve your heart condition is to attend church and hear God's word proclaimed from the pulpit. Learn God's plan for your life by listening to His word. We invite you to attend the church of your choice this week.

THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Catholics get new church at Wheeler

WHEELER - Approximately 140 parishioners and guests attended dedication ceremonies on Sunday, Aug. 2, for the new St. Mary's Catholic Church at Wheeler.

Bishop Leroy Mathiesen of Amarillo, who was the Main Celebrant, accepted blueprints for the church and blessed the building. He told those assembled, "Christ wants us to function in a community, and you have done that by building this church."

"You accepted the invitation of the Lord to build this church, and in reality we now have a beautiful building put together by the labor of those in Wheeler," Bishop Mathiesen said.

The building is a 40 by 80 foot brick veneer structure located at 701 S. Canadian St. The combination building includes not only the church but also a fellowship hall, full kitchen facilities and restrooms. It will accommodate approximately 150 persons.

Construction began in August 1986.

The project to build the church was begun more than 10 years ago when Catholic families in Wheeler desired a place in which to celebrate and to practice their faith.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree
Scripture: Unlike the other high priests, he (Jesus) does not need to offer sacrifices day after day, first for his own sins, and then for the sins of the people. He sacrificed for their sins once for all when he offered himself. (Hebrews 7:27 NIV)

A couple of years ago, my husband decided our old family station wagon's tongue was hanging out.

He is a scientist and he shops scientifically. He researched, conducted exhaustive interviews with every new car owner who would stand still long enough, made notes and computed at great length. After several new white hairs in my head and a few dents in his disposition, we signed our lives and our firstborn grandchild away; we and a finance company bought a new car.

The car is navy blue, has dark windows and looks like it's straight out of The Godfather! We hadn't had it much more than an hour when a diabolical pickup truck threw a piece of gravel and put an imitation bullet hole in the windshield of our imitation Mafia car.

Of course, everyone knows mobsters' cars are supposed to have a few scrapes and dents caused by falling bodies and high-speed chases; our car doesn't have quite so colorful a history, but it does have character marks across the hood where goats walked on it (yes, I said goats, but that's a whole other story). And our newly-licensed daughter ruffled the ridges on one side of the car when she and a drive-in bank had an encounter of the closest kind. Recently, another hurling pebble helped enhance the sinister impression of our car by putting a second bullet hole in the windshield.

Now, our car may look like it's been in a Mafia war, but it really has a kind heart. It runs well, isn't crazy and serves our family well. We continue to wash it, feed it gasoline, buy it new shoes, repair it, use it and make the payments.

Christians are also like the car. A brand new soul comes with Christian conversion. And, though life and temptation may put dents, punctures, scrapes and scratches on us, our Owner continues to love us, provide for us, cleanse us, repair us and call us to service.

Did I say Christians are like the car? Not so! We were not bought on the installment plan; Jesus paid full price for us in the shedding of his blood. We are marked "paid in full"; we are His!

NEW YORK (AP) - The Lithuanian Information Center says Philippine Roman Catholic Cardinal Jaime Sin seems to have been "badly used" for Soviet propaganda on his recent visit to the Soviet.

The center cited news reports, quoting the Soviet news agency Tass, that Sin said he had "not seen anywhere any facts which would indicate a violation of the rights of believers."

In Rome, Sin said on the Vatican's radio station that Soviet officials assured him the government wanted to "forget the past" and have better relations with the church.

Brother Hank

Nazarenes to hear Bro. Hanks

Rev. Henry (Hank) Murray, better known as Brother Hank, gospel disc jockey and singer, will be at the First Church of the Nazarene at West and Buckler streets at 6 p.m. Sunday.

For many years, Brother Hank sat on the other side of gospel music as a D.J., promoter and manager. Now God has put into his heart a song with a message that has to be told, he says.

Brother Hank is an ordained minister and has sung and preached for 20 years. He worked as a gospel disc jockey in St.

Louis, Mo., and Carlsbad, N.M. In 1963, he was selected as the #1 Gospel D.J. in New Mexico.

He has been in concert with famous gospel music groups and has promoted many of them. He recorded a solo album and is now working on a new release.

Rev. A.W. Myers, pastor, invited the public to "come hear Brother Hank, a man who is called to sing the Word of God. Come to the First Church of the Nazarene in Pampa this Sunday night for a time of refreshing and uplifting."

Bible Baptist schedules VBS

Bible Baptist Church, 500 E. Kingsmill, will have its Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday, with classes each evening from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Some of the events and activities scheduled for the school include Bible stories, new songs, skits, crafts, refreshments, penny march, contests and crowning of the King and Queen each night.

The theme of the Vacation Bible School will be "The Christian Soldier."

The Disney characters Minnie Mouse and Mickey Mouse, along with Snoopy and Bugs Bunny, will be present, as well as clowns Sassy Sally and Tiny and a special guest, SUPER CHRISTIAN.

Classes will be for pre-schoolers through seventh grade.

Bus transportation will be provided each evening. Please call the church at 669-7830 to arrange for the transportation. Buses will begin pickups at 5 p.m. each evening.

Missionary evangelist to be at 1st Assembly

Richard Michalski, a missionary evangelist to European communist peoples, will be appearing at the First Assembly of God Church, 500 S. Cuyler, in an Impact Ministries appearance at 7 p.m. daily Wednesday through Friday, Aug. 12-14, and at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 16.

Born of a German mother and a Polish father in a labor camp in North Germany, Michalski came to the United States in January 1951. His family moved to the Seattle, Wash., area as they had no relatives in the States and their sponsor lived in this area.

Upon completion of high school in Seattle, Michalski completed four years of schooling and graduated from Northwest Bible College in Kirkland. He majored in missions and minored in Bible.

In August 1971, he married his wife, Sara, who comes from a Russian, Ukrainian and Jewish background. She was born in Kuldja, China, where her parents escaped to from Russia. They lived in China for 25 years before leaving for Australia and then to San Francisco, Calif.

Upon marrying, Richard and Sara returned to the Soviet Block to minister there. For the past 12 years, the couple has traveled extensively in Eastern and Western Europe, where they have seen hundreds converted to Christianity. They have augmented the work of Impact Ministries in a 3-point outreach of evangelism, edification and education to communist lands in the capacity of missionary evangelists.

Impact Ministries, headquartered at Redmon, Wash., has its early roots going back to 1947 to the war camps of Europe, where thousands were saved and called into Christian service for the millions of their ethnic groupings.

With quiet, behind the scenes work, with 95 percent of its contacts living in Eastern Europe, the ministry sponsors products of the mission field in church appearances.

Richard and Sara have firsthand, exciting accounts of God's dealings in the Soviet lands and will be sharing their experiences in their appearance at First Assembly of God.

The couple also will be appearing at the 10:30 a.m. service at the church on Sunday, Aug. 16.

Highland Baptist plans Kids' Crusade classes

Highland Baptist Church at the corner of Banks and Kentucky will be sponsoring a Kid's Crusade from 9 to 11 a.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

All children from ages 4 to 12 are urged to attend. There will be all kinds of fun activities as well as Bible lessons prepared especially for children in these age groups.

Daily activities will include a flag ceremony; Bible study featuring children's sermons; recreation, such as critter races and frisbee golf; and Bozo's Grand Prize Game. Winners will receive prizes in all of the day's activities.

A king and queen will be selected daily from the list of children who bring visitors with them. A mission offering will be taken, and the Crusade will be closed daily with a special activity time. Special activity on Monday will be a video tape feature of Bible stories with Lamb Chop and Shari. On Tuesday, Zelma North-cut of Pampa will present a chalk drawing, and on Wednesday puppets will be featured.

Bible lessons and children's sermons will be brought by Jeff Messer, pastor of First Baptist Church of McLean; Larry Heard, director of missions on the Palo Duro Baptist Association; and Joe Wortham, pastor of Highland Baptist Church.

Also on Wednesday, the children will be asked to bring a sack lunch for a picnic in the fellowship hall of the church.

Pastor Wortham invited all children in the age groups to attend this time of games, puppets, Bible study, refreshments, prizes and surprises at Highland Baptist Church.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contributions to a leading Roman Catholic television preacher, the Rev. John Bertolucci, have fallen about 50 percent, since the scandal broke over former TV evangelist Jim Bakker, Bertolucci's producer says.

The drop has been "very drastic," amounting to about $70,000 a month, says Bobby Canvar, president of the St. Francis Association for Catholic Evangelism, which produces Bertolucci's weekly "The Glory of God" program.

The telecasts by Bertolucci, who lives in a Franciscan monastery in Steubenville, Ohio, are carried on several Catholic and Protestant TV networks.

NEW YORK (AP) — The two American communities with the fastest growing Jewish populations are Palm Springs, Calif., and Howard County, Maryland.

The 1987 American Jewish Yearbook says the two nearly doubled their Jewish population in the last decade, topping a list of 10 communities with leading Jewish population gains in that period, including these increases:

Houston, Texas, 50 percent; Honolulu, 40 percent; Boston metropolitan region, 34 percent; Orange County, Calif., 33 percent; Atlantic City, N.J., 32 percent; Sacramento, Calif., 17 percent; Birmingham, Ala., 13 percent; and Palm Beach, Fla., 11 percent.

The U.S. Jewish population was estimated at 5.8 million, about 2.5 percent of the population and about the same as before.

First Events:

Rev. Richard Michalski

Impact Ministries presents Richard and Sara Michalski preaching the word and telling of the great and mighty miracles of God as seen from behind the Iron Curtain.

This is bound to be a time of hope and amazement at the mighty hand of God as He reveals Himself behind the Iron Curtain. Don't miss this opportunity to hear the word and the latest information about our brothers and sisters behind the Iron Curtain!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It looks like you may fall heir to some problems today that others should be taking care of themselves. Don't be afraid to say no if you feel imposed upon.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A well-meaning friend may put you on to something today that looks like a bargain. However, upon closer scrutiny, it might not be such a good deal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually, you are a rather methodical person who attacks objectives in a sound manner. Today, however, you might ignore your practicality and do things the hard way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Guard against inclinations today to read more into things than others intend. If your feelings get hurt, it could be due to a misinterpretation on your behalf.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may not be at your best today at managing your own resources or those of others. If you have to deal in finances, double-check all your facts and figures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extremely tactful in handling a close companion today. Wrong moves on your part could alienate this person quicker than you may think.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a chance your responsibilities will be a bit heavier than usual today. A failure to keep pace with your duties will make them harder to do at a later date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) For the sake of your own peace of mind, avoid activities today where there might be people present whose company you don't enjoy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're sitting on a rather fragile limb today, so be careful not to do anything that could tarnish your image in the eyes of your peers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Certain views that are attractive to you might not be as popular with your friends today. If your comments are poorly received, be smart and change the subject.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're not careful today, you might come out on the short end in your business dealings, especially if you're pitted against one who outwitted you previously.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Heaven-made marriage lasts 70 years on earth

DEAR READERS: Today is a very special day. It marks the 70th — yes, 70th — wedding anniversary of a couple who are very dear to me: my in-laws, Rose and Jay Phillips of Minneapolis.

Their cornerstone: a devotion to their religion, and respect for the rights of others.

Over the years, Rose and Jay Phillips have handled their good fortune with gratitude and humility, and accepted their misfortunes with grace and dignity. They are a credit to their community, a joy to their friends, and a shining example of love and generosity to their family.

Congratulations and God bless you, Mother and Dad. Love,

ABBY AND MORT

DEAR ABBY: I have a rather touchy problem. Last Mother's Day my husband and I had our 6-month-old daughter christened. Several relatives were present and, much to my surprise, they all brought gifts. While opening the gifts, my great uncle — a very wealthy man who has no children — told me he was going to open a "college fund" for our daughter. Then he started explaining the terms of the fund — how much interest it would draw, etc.

After waiting for six months and hearing nothing more about the "college fund," I asked my uncle about it, and he said he was going to go through a large bank in Nashville. (We live in a very small town in Tennessee.)

Abby, it's been over a year, and we still haven't received any information about the gift. My uncle is a very responsible man, and we would like very much for our daughter to have this gift to assure her college education. How should I handle it?

BLUE IN GRAY, TENN.

DEAR BLUE: Being "blue" will not accomplish anything — neither will procrastinating. Remind your uncle of the "college fund" he promised to establish for your daughter. And don't be shy. He offered it.

DEAR READERS: Rollan Melton, who writes a column in the Reno Gazette, was so taken with a sermon delivered by one V. James Jeffery, rector of the Trinity Episcopal Church in Reno, he shared that message with his readers. I've since discovered that the message in the sermon originally came from Robert Fulghum, a retired Unitarian minister in Edmonds, Wash. Here it is (in part):

"Most of what I really need to know about how to live, and what to do, and how to be, I learned in kindergarten. Wisdom was not at the top of the graduate school mountain, but there in the sandbox at nursery school.

"These are the things I learned: Share everything. Play fair. Don't hit people. Put things back where you found them. Clean up your own mess. Don't take things that aren't yours. Say you're sorry when you hurt somebody. Wash your hands before you eat. Flush. Warm cookies and cold milk are good for you.

"... When you go out into the world, watch for traffic, hold hands and stick together."

"... And it is still true, no matter how old you are, when you go out into the world, it's best to hold hands and stick together."

Thanks, Rector Jeffery and Robert Fulghum. I couldn't have said it better myself. And thanks to Edna Brigham for introducing me to Rollan Melton.

Kids love huggable bear pillow

By BETH COTTEN

I'll never forget the stretchy, cling-fit, leopard skin jumpsuit I received from my husband and kids on my birthday last year. No matter how hard I try.

I don't want to seem ungrateful. I really did appreciate the thought, but I wish they'd thought a little harder. If you're going to give someone a gift, why not put some effort into choosing something they'll like?

That's how the huggable bear pillow was born. My youngest daughter had a birthday coming up, and I asked if she had anything special in mind. She wanted a bear soft enough to sleep with.

It certainly made my job easier — no fighting crowds at the toy store or mall, no agonizing over the choice. I dug through my fabric scraps and came up with this simple project.

The 2-foot-tall bear pillow is a breeze to make. It features a gingham cover that has cross-stitched bear features, a pleated bib and bow tie, and a pleated lower ruffle.

If you would like more details than provided below, you may order our step-by-step plans. They include a materials list, full-size patterns and complete illustrated instructions.

Another cute cross-stitch project is our tooth fairy pillow, a 10-inch-tall stuffed character that has a tooth pocket plus holders for a toothbrush and paste.

To order plans for the bear pillow, specify Project No. 1313; or for the tooth fairy pillow, specify No. 1342. Send $4.95 for either plan, or save a dollar and receive both for only $8.90.

Mail to: Makin' Things, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008-1000. Add $2.95 for a catalog, featuring $16 worth of coupons.

To make the bear pillow, you'll need about 2 yards of white fabric, a bag of fiberfill, 2 yards of brown-and-white gingham, three small red buttons, 1/2 yard of 1-inch-wide red grosgrain ribbon, 2 yards of white corded piping and embroidery floss in white, black and red.

Begin by making a bear-shaped pillow casing from white fabric. About 2 feet tall, it is a rectangle with a head and arm extensions. Don't cut leg contours, as the lower edge is left square.

Cut two casing pieces and stitch together, leaving the lower edge open. Turn and stuff, and press the seam allowances to the inside along the lower edges. Top-stitch closed.

To make the pillow cover, cut two slightly larger bear shapes from gingham. In addition, cut two gingham ears and two white ears.

On the front pillow cover, cross-stitch eyes, nose and mouth, paw pads near the ends of the arms, and leg outlines.

To make the bib, cut a large horseshoe-shaped piece of white fabric and fold it into six horizontal pleats. Stitch piping along the side and lower edge, then press the edge allowance to the wrong side, so that the piping forms a border.

Finish the top edge of the bib by attaching a facing and turning it to the wrong side. Cut a rectangular piece of white fabric for the front placket. Hem the long edges and one end, and topstitch the placket along the center of the bib.

Make a bow tie from the red ribbon and place it across the bib, just below the top edge. Baste in place at the ends and tack with invisible stitches near the center. Sew the buttons to the placket below the bow tie.

Baste the bib to the front pillow cover at the seam lines, and topstitch along the piping to secure.

To make one ear, sew a gingham and a white ear piece right sides together, leaving the lower edge open. Turn and stuff lightly. Make a second ear.

Pin the two ears, white sides down, to the right side of the front pillow cover. Pin the back pillow cover on top, right side down, and stitch the seams, leaving the lower edge open. Turn right side out.

Soft, bear-shaped pillow has cross-stitched features.

To make the ruffle, piece together a 6 x 64-inch strip of gingham fabric. Fold it in half lengthwise, wrong sides together, and fold into even pleats to fit the lower edge of the pillow cover.

Pin the ruffle around the lower edge of the pillow cover, adding a length of piping if you like. Stitch the seam and turn the ruffle downward, pressing the seam allowances toward the pillow cover.

Stuff the pillow inside, and your bear is ready to hug!

Practice self-defense when buying a house

NEW YORK (AP) — Take precautions to prevent your dream house from turning into a nightmare.

Attorney Armond Budish writes in Family Circle magazine that "you are always better off knowing any problems that exist before you buy a house."

Budish offers these tips to help avoid unwelcome surprises:

—State in your purchase offer that you may hire a professional inspector to look over the property after the seller accepts and might terminate the offer if flaws are found.

—Add a clause requiring the seller to list all repairs over $100 made to the property in the past five years. This should alert you to potential problems and to warranties for previous repair work, which should be signed over to you.

—Consult a lawyer for help in preparing your purchase offer.

Researchers report new mailing addresses

MARGARET PERRY sends a new address for those who have assisted with her MARTIN and WHITEHEAD family lines. She is still interested in corresponding with other researchers but has a new branch on her family tree that requires most of her time and attention.

GEORGE and MARGARET have a new daughter, ANNA MEAGAN, born April 26, 1987. MEAGAN is the fourth generation to be named "ANNA," for her mother, ANNA MARGARET; her grandmother, ANNA MAXINE; and her great-grandmother, GEORGIA ANNA.

The new address is: MARGARET PERRY, 5086 E. Shelby Drive, Memphis, Tenn. 38118.

Another new address is for me — 205 Admiral's Walk Drive, St. Marys, Ga. 31558. If you have written the past month, please be patient — you will receive an answer soon.

St. Marys is located on the southeastern tip of Georgia, approximately 40 miles from Jacksonville, Fla. Camden County is rich in historical and genealogical information, and I am excited about this assignment.

If you have lines in this area of Georgia or the northeast part of Florida, I may be able to help with local research. We anticipate being here "long-term" — about 18 months!

Camden County was one of the original counties formed in 1777 and has all the records except for Will Book "B" 1828-1860. That book was lost in a fire in 1870. It is a small county and all the records are kept in the county seat, Woodbine. Much of the land can be traced back to land grants, and documentation is available.

If I can assist with any research, remember the self-addressed, stamped envelope and the new address: GENA WALLS, 205 Admiral's Walk Drive, St. Marys, Ga. 31558.

Levine wins poetry prize

CHICAGO (AP) — Poet Philip Levine has been awarded the second annual Ruth Lilly Poetry Prize by the Modern Poetry Association and the American Council for the Arts.

The $25,000 award is believed to be the largest prize offered specifically to poets in the United States.

Levine is the author of 17 volumes of poetry. His latest collection is "Sweet Will."

A graduate of Wayne State University, the University of Iowa and Stanford University, Levine has been a professor of English at California State University in Fresno since 1969.

Wadkins' 68 paces PGA Championship

Bobby Wadkins is first-round leader

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Raymond Floyd didn't like the setup when he saw it, but he believes it may have worked out for the better.

"Now I can take a disadvantage and turn it into an advantage tomorrow," Floyd said Thursday after posting a 2-under-par 70 that left him two strokes off Bobby Wadkins' pace in the opening round of the 69th PGA Championship.

"I feel confident now after playing a good round," Floyd said. "I've put myself in a good position."

Floyd, 44, knows what it takes to win golf's major events. He already owns four titles in the Grand Slam tournaments — the 1969 and 1982 PGAs, the 1976 Masters and the 1986 U.S. Open.

Floyd, who had an afternoon starting time on Thursday, said the morning players in the first round of a tournament always have an advantage because the course is well prepared for the opening round.

Officials don't have the time to prepare the course again after the first day of play, so Floyd doesn't expect the conditions to match Thursday's when he has his morning starting time today.

Wadkins, a non-winner in his 13 seasons on the PGA Tour, had a good driving round in building his lead, generally avoiding the severe rough on the 7,002-yard, par-72 Champion course of the PGA National Golf Club.

Wadkins had six birdies to offset the two bogeys he recorded on the only holes on which he caught the rough — Nos. 1 and 14.

His longest birdie putt was a 12-footer on the eighth, and he got his others from six feet or less, once two-putting from 20 feet and then closing his round with a birdie-3 on the final hole when he two-putted from 45 feet.

"The fairways are perfect, rough unplayable and the greens are so-so," Wadkins said.

"They made it tough enough that it may be a driving tournament," he said, adding that the rough was "more than severe. It's brutal."

Wadkins posted a one-shot lead over journeyman Dave Edwards and Fred Funk, the golf coach at the University of Maryland.

There was a much more imposing list of challengers another shot back.

Floyd was the only one of the six at 70 who played in the afternoon.

The others who finished two shots behind the lead were Tom Watson, West Germany's Bernhard Langer, Curtis Strange, 1981 PGA champion Larry Nelson and Lanny Wadkins, Bobby's brother.

"I know Bobby's playing well and I've only played fair lately," Lanny Wadkins, the 1977 PGA winner, said.

Langer, the 1985 Masters champion, dropped out of a share of the lead when he bogeyed his last two holes of the day, Nos. 8 and 9.

"Finishing with two bogeys is very disappointing, but I'm happy with the 70," Langer said.

"I think I got out with kind of a steal," said Watson, who owns eight major titles but needs a PGA crown to become the fifth player in history to win each of the Grand Slam events.

"I played solid," said Strange, the Canadian Open winner who also won at Memphis last week.

"My confidence and my game has carried over physically and mentally," Strange said.

Watson was in the most popular threesome of the day, being paired with two of the greatest players the game has ever known — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer. Neither Nicklaus, a five-time PGA winner, nor Palmer, who has never won this event, could get anything going. Both shot 76.

None of the winners of this season's earlier majors was in a strong position.

Great Britain's Nick Faldo, who won the British Open three weeks ago, shot 73. Master champion Larry Mize had a 75 and U.S. Open winner Scott Simpson 78.

Australia's Greg Norman and Spain's Seve Ballesteros, considered the top players in the world today, didn't break par. Ballesteros shot 72, Norman 73.

Ben Crenshaw, who has finished fourth in the other three majors this year, and Tom Kite each matched par, but defending champion Bob Tway struggled in with a 78.

Paul Azinger, the PGA Tour's leading money winner this year, really had his problems and shot a fat 82. It included a 43 on the back side, where he had three 6s.

Cavalier 'shapes up' football fieldhouse

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Walking into the Pampa High School football fieldhouse these days is almost like entering a marine barracks on Paris Island.

Amid the 'spic and span' atmosphere is an aura of authority and purpose. But there's also a tingling of excitement not found in any boot camps. That's because footballs instead of hand grenades are about to be thrown as the 1987 season is fast approaching.

The Pampa Harvesters, under the direction of new head coach Dennis Cavalier, begin three-day workouts next week. That's when the fun really starts for some 70 Harvester prospects.

"I don't expect to lose many from the off-season. The players know what to expect from me by now," Cavalier said. "They know I'm going to work them hard."

The wiry-built Cavalier may project the appearance of a non-nonsense drill instructor, but that image fades when prospects come to the fieldhouse to work out on weights or pick up football gear. He shakes hands with several players and asks how they're doing. Color him a tough, but fair-minded coach.

Cavalier and his coaching staff have spend several manhours transforming the fieldhouse into a neat, orderly place of business. Rooms have been painted from top to bottom, carpet has been ripped out and walls have been torn down to create more space. Every hook and every slot in the dressing area and equipment room is designated for a specific piece of clothing or gear.

Why bother? Cavalier has a ready answer.

"A first-class program needs a first-class facility," he said. "We want efficiency. That's the purpose of the changes."

Cavalier, who comes here after establishing a winning football program at Chickasha, Okla., is looking forward to a happy and successful association with the Harvesters.

In the coaches' staff room, Cavalier's desire to snap Pampa's streak of losing seasons is readily apparent. Along the west wall, Cavalier has painted a list of future years (from 1987 through '92) and beneath each year are several blank spaces. Cavalier refers to it as "our wall games."

"Everytime we have a great victory, the score will be posted under the year. I lied to the players and told them the scores would be here for all eternity, but they will be here until the wall crumbles," Cavalier said.

One of the more notable changes is in the spacious warehouse-like area known unofficially as "The Barn," located on the north end of the fieldhouse. The area is used as a combined weight room and practice facility during bad weather.

"The fire department was kind enough to let us use one of their hoses to wash everything down and we've also done a lot of painting in here," Cavalier said.

Cavalier has also installed additional weight-lifting equipment and hopes to add more in the near future.

"I plan on bringing in more equipment, but I just ran out of time for now," he said.

Cavalier also felt an official title was needed for the area and he left it up to the players to select the name. The players voted to call the area "Valhalla," which caught Cavalier by surprise.

"I didn't know what Valhalla meant, but it's a place where an elite warrior goes in Scandinavian mythology," Cavalier said. "A warrior goes there after he dies and keeps on fighting. It's a good name."

The Harvesters' football emblem — the giant green letter

"P" with a white background — has been repainted and adorns both the inside and outside of the fieldhouse.

"I want the people to be proud of their school and I'm hoping to see that letter all over the community before the season is over," Cavalier said.

Cavalier has finished assembling his coaching staff for the '87 season. The final two were selected during the last school board meeting. Mike Shklar, who coached under Cavalier at Chickasha, will be one of the ninth-grade coaches. Shklar was recently a head coach at a small school near Enid, Okla. Sam Haynes, who coached last season at McLean, will be helping with the seventh-grade team.

Ernie Manning, another ex-Chickasha coach, is among five assistants on the high school staff. Others include Sam Porter, Steve Porter, Bill Butler and Max Plunk. Steve Porter moved up from the ninth-grade head coaching post, which is now occupied by Rod Porter. None of the Porters are related.

Clay Richerson will be an assistant ninth-grade coach while Dick Dunham will again head the middle school coaching department. Darrel Adkins and Dennis Doughty will assist with the seventh and eighth-grade programs.

Equipment checkouts ended Friday as the Harvesters get ready for the first week of practice. Practice times are from 8-10:30 a.m.; 1-2:30 p.m. and 6-8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A pride drill is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 15 at Harvester Stadium, followed by a photo period at 1:30 p.m. Parents and friends are invited to take pictures of their favorite player.

Tudor pitches Cardinals to victory

By The Associated Press

After three months on the disabled list, John Tudor is starting to feel comfortable on the mound again. He may want to avoid a seat in the dugout, though.

Tudor pitched four-hit ball over 5 2-3 innings Thursday night for his first victory since April 17 as the St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia, 5-2.

Tudor, 3-1, suffered a broken bone in his right knee April 19 in a freak dugout collision with New York Mets' catcher Barry Lyons. Lyons was trying to make a play on a foul ball when he charged into the Cardinals' dugout and slammed into Tudor, sitting on the bench.

He came off the disabled list July 30, pitched two games in the minors, and on Aug. 1 went four innings against Pittsburgh.

"I don't know if my knee is 100 percent, but it's good enough to play on," Tudor said. Tudor struck out four and walked none. Bill Dawley pitched one inning, Ricky Horton 2-3, and Todd Worrell got the final two outs for his 23rd save.

Willie McGee and Terry Pendleton drove in two runs each to help snap a two-game losing streak and extend the Phillies' losing streak to six. The victory kept the first-place Cardinals 4 1/2 games in front of the New York Mets in the National League East.

Elsewhere in the NL, New York edged Chicago 7-6, San Diego beat Atlanta 7-4, and Montreal defeated Pittsburgh 6-3.

Tudor, who went 21-8 in 1985 to help St. Louis win the pennant, relies on pinpoint control and changing speeds to win.

"My location was good," Tudor said. "I hit the inside and outside corners. I got a lot of outs on the change-up. The key to my success was my control."

Mets 7, Cubs 6

Kevin McReynolds scored Lee Mazzilli with a bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning and Howard Johnson had his bat confiscated again as host New York won its sixth straight game.

Mazzilli led off the ninth inning with a walk off reliever Lee Smith and moved to second on Tim Teufel's sacrifice. The Cubs intentionally walked Keith Hernandez and Darryl Strawberry's infield hit off the leg of Smith loaded the bases. With the infield and outfield playing in, McReynolds hit a long fly to left that fell in for a hit and scored Mazzilli with one out.

Strawberry hit two homers, his 26th and 27th, for the Mets and Andre Dawson hit his 33rd and 34th for the Cubs.

Johnson hit his 27th home run in the second inning and for the second time in a week the Mets' third baseman had his bat confiscated by the umpires. Last Thursday in St. Louis, the Cardinals asked for Johnson's bat to be checked after he homered.

"To me, this is silly," Johnson said. "If they're trying to catch me they are wasting their time."

Expos 6, Pirates 3

Tim Wallach tied the score with a single and Andres Galarraga's run-scoring fielder's choice put visiting Montreal ahead, as the Expos rallied in the eighth inning to beat Pittsburgh.

With Pittsburgh leading 3-2, reliever Jim Gott walked Tim Raines to start the eighth and Raines stole second. Mitch Webster was credited with a single when shortstop Al Pedrique's shoe caught in the turf and he was unable to make a throw, allowing Raines to take third.

One out later, Wallach singled to center to score Raines and send Webster to third. Webster scored the go-ahead run when Galarraga just beat second baseman Johnny Ray's relay throw to first on an attempted double play, allowing Webster to score.

Drug-troubled Howe gets another shot at majors

Rangers promote pitcher from farm club

By JODY COX
Associated Press Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — For the first time in more than two years, relief pitcher Steve Howe may take the mound tonight in a major league uniform.

Texas Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve said Howe will be in uniform for the Rangers in Baltimore for a game against the Orioles.

The Rangers, without the approval of Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, gave the pitcher another shot at the major leagues Thursday.

Howe, suspended in the past from both the major and minor leagues for cocaine use, was acquired from the Rangers' Oklahoma City farm club.

"We feel comfortable we're doing the right thing," Rangers President Mike Stone said at a news conference a day after he and the American League team's owner, Eddie Chiles, flew to New York to discuss Howe's situation with Ueberroth.

"We didn't ask for (Ueberroth's) endorsement," Chiles said. "We discussed generalities — what effect it would have on baseball, on the Rangers and on the commissioner."

"We didn't go up there to please anybody, we went up there on our business," he said. "We believe this decision is legal, ethical, moral and sound."

But Chiles said the team had not consulted legal counsel on the decision. And none of the Rangers officials at the Arlington Stadium press conference would speculate on what Ueberroth's reaction would be.

At first, the commissioner's office said it was working on a statement. Later, spokesman Rich Levin said Ueberroth would have nothing to say on the matter Thursday.

After the Rangers signed Howe last month, they sent him to their Class AAA team at Oklahoma City and said they hoped to use him as a starter, even though all his major league action had been as a reliever.

However, Manager Bobby Valentine said Thursday that Howe, the National League rookie of the year when he broke in with the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be a reliever for the Rangers.

"He'll be the first left-hander we'll call in," Valentine said. "We had a pretty good bullpen before — now it's even better."

Howe said, "It's taken me a long time to get back — it's been a long hard battle. All I can say is thank God for the Texas Rangers. I'm ready to drop the controversy. I'm ready to play baseball."

The decision to purchase Howe's contract from Oklahoma City was made in a morning meeting that included Chiles, Stone, Grieve and Valentine.

Grieve said the Rangers didn't need permission to call Howe up.

"It's entirely in the Rangers' hands," Grieve said. "Steve Howe has done everything and more off the field and on the field to prove he's a good baseball player and a first-class citizen."

Jim Small, a spokesman for the commissioner's office, said Wednesday there was no current suspension or restrictions prohibiting Howe from playing for Texas.

Howe played for the Dodgers until 1983 when he was fined $54,000 and suspended through the 1984 season by then-commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Howe was placed on the National League restricted list in June 1985 and then signed with the Minnesota Twins in August of that year. The Twins later released him, also for drug-related reasons.

He had a 25-27 record and 56 saves in the majors.

Howe began the 1986 season with the San Jose Bees, an independent team in the Class A California League, but tested positive for drugs and was suspended.

Howe was suspended by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which governs the minor leagues, in 1986, but the drug-related suspension was lifted last month and he joined the Oklahoma City 89ers.

He also agreed to participate in a drug-rehabilitation after-care program with the 89ers.

"The Rangers have tested him at least two times a week and sometimes three or four times a week. Every test has been negative of any chemical substance. That includes cocaine, amphetamines, uppers, downers and even alcohol. His pitching performances (show it is) obvious he is physically and mentally ready," Lence said from his home in Kalispell, Mont.

To make room on their roster, the Rangers sent pitcher Mike Loynd to Oklahoma City.

Steve Howe (center) meets with reporters after Ranger promotion.

Pampa class of '47 had good times watching Oilers

FROM THE NOTEPAD: Welcome to the PHS Class of '47 on its 40th reunion here this weekend. It wasn't the best year athletically, but not as bad as last season at PHS. At least you had good times watching the Pampa Oilers in the summertime. Major coaching changes occurred for the 1947-48 school year.

Basketball and football coaches have been busy this summer cleaning, painting and renovating dressing room and coaching office facilities at the high school, preparing for fresh starts, and hopefully, better finishes.

A newly erected turnstile keeps out young taxpaying mothers who have been using the high school track to exercise safely with their young 'uns. Why?

Pampa's longest-tenured and most successful football coach, Odus Mitchell, is among the first group of individuals who will be inducted into the West Texas State University Hall of Champions September 5. In 13 seasons at PHS, Mitchell's Harvesters won 86 grid games of the 152 he coached. He earned 18 athletic letters as a student at WT and now lives in retirement at Denton after a 42-year coaching career. Another of the initial 20 inductees is Al Baggett, who coached many Pampa area old-timers between 1933 and 1942. If any of them know the whereabouts of any of Baggett's family,

Meeting scheduled for frosh gridders

A meeting has been scheduled for 5 p.m. Monday at the high school football fieldhouse for freshmen interested in playing football this season.

Questions will be answered about physicals, release forms and equipment checkout during the meeting.

Freshmen who want to play football, but can't attend the meeting should contact Coach Rod Porter at 669-6722 or 669-7122.

Physicals are scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 13 at the high school football fieldhouse, starting at 1 p.m. Equipment checkout will be Aug. 17-18, beginning at 3 p.m.

Practice begins Aug. 19. Practice times are 8:30-10:30; 3-4, and 5:30-7:30.

Cowboys pick Banks to replace Sherrard

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Running backs Herchel Walker and Tony Dorsett will have to carry the offensive load for the Dallas Cowboys in 1987.

The Cowboys had planned on a deep passing attack featuring wide receiver Mike Sherrard.

Sherrard's broken leg on a freak play on Wednesday has forced Coach Tom Landry to think again.

"Losing Sherrard was a major blow," Landry said. "We'll have to change the balance of our offense. We'll have to run the ball better and run it more with Sherrard out of there."

Gordon Banks, who was fighting for a job on the squad a week ago, was promoted to Sherrard's starting split end position on Thursday by Landry.

Banks is a five-year veteran who caught 17 passes for 22 yards but didn't score in 1986.

"If the season started tomorrow Banks would be in Sherrard's spot," Landry said. "Karl Pove and Rod Barksdale will backup Banks. On the other side we'll have Mike Renfro then Kelvin Martin."

Sherrard broke his own leg on a freak play Wednesday during a passing drill against the San Diego Chargers. Sherrard's left leg crossed over his right leg to cause the break and he will be out for the year.

Dr. Robert D. Vandermeer, the Cowboys' team physician, said "Mike will be in a cast for approximately 10 weeks. If all goes according to expectations, he should be ready to play in 1988."

Landry, Club President Tex Schramm and some teammates visited Sherrard Thursday at Los Robles Regional Medical Center.

"Mike was in good spirits," Landry said. "He wasn't in a lot of pain. He's on the mend."

The Cowboys asked the media not to try to interview Sherrard for several days.

Landry said the Cowboys will now be an even more ground-oriented team in 1987.

"It's a major blow to lose Sherrard," Landry said. "We knew we had a tough fight to start with even with him in the lineup."

Sherrard at 6-foot-2 is an excellent downfield target whereas the 5-foot-10 banks is harder to find.

"Banks has good speed but he's short and not a great target downfield," Landry said. "He has good experience and that's what we need in there."

Banks has been bothered with a hamstring pull as injuries plague the Cowboys' receiving corps. Ray Alexander broke a wrist and rookie Everett Gay severely sprained an ankle.

Landry defended his hard workouts saying "if you want to have a tough football team you've got to do it. If you try to protect players, you won't be in condition to play. That's the price you pay."

Until Sherrard's injury, Banks was fighting nine other players for one of the four wide receiver spots.

Thomas Hearn wants shot at Tyson

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
AP Boxing Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Hearn wants to become middleweight champion, and he would like to fight Marvellous Marvin Hagler, Sugar Ray Leonard or heavyweight champion Mike Tyson.

"He believes that if Tyson hasn't been beaten in (the next) 15 months he has the style to beat him," manager-train Emanuel Steward said Thursday in a telephone interview from Detroit.

"I said, 'Are you kidding?' But he said he could get up to 195-200 pounds. He does have the frame to do it."

A Hearn-Tyson fight seems to be just wishful thinking, and a

Hearn-Leonard fight isn't likely either since Leonard retired after beating Hagler for the World Boxing Council middleweight title. But a second Hearn-Hagler fight could happen.

The 6-foot-1 Hearn has surrendered the WBC light heavyweight title in order to pursue the vacant WBC middleweight title against Juan Domingo Roldan.

Nunamaker places fifth

Larry Nunamaker placed fifth nationally in the smallbore hunter's pistol division during the National Championships held recently in Raton, N.M. Nunamaker was also eighth in the hunter's pistol division.

As a team, Nunamaker, Doug Abbott and Brian McAdoo finished second in the hunter's pistol championship.

Individually, Nunamaker was sixth in match three and fifth in match seven. McAdoo was fourth in match one and fifth in match two.

All three are members of the Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club.

Teen-age suspect arrested in murder of banker's wife

KERRVILLE (AP) — A teen-ager accused of murdering the wife of a prominent banker was liked by teachers at his school but wasn't popular among his classmates, one teacher said.

"He was a good kid. This is really sad," elementary school teacher Brenda Albrecht said Thursday after the bullet-riddled body of Joyce Louise Walters was found buried near her ranch home.

Two Kerr County Sheriff's deputies discovered the body of Mrs. Walters, 44, about 7:30 a.m. underneath trash less than a mile from her Prison Canyon Ranch home, Sheriff Cliff Greeson said.

Mrs. Walters, who had been missing two days, was shot several times with a small-caliber rifle and her body was sent to the Bexar County Medical Examiners Office for an autopsy, Greeson said.

Raymond Charles "R.C." Tabares Jr., 18, the son of a ranch hand, was charged with murder and jailed in lieu of a $500,000 bond set by Peace Justice Betty Burney.

Albrecht said Tabares was a special education student at a high school a few miles away at Center Point, a sophomore and a loner. Teachers liked him but some of the other students didn't like his attitude, she said.

Darroll Blumel, 18, said Tabares lived across the street from him about two years ago.

"It doesn't surprise me because he's pulled out a gun on people before. When they moved in across the street from us, he had a .30-30 and he threatened to shoot my sister," Blumel said.

Greeson said Tabares, who also did odd jobs at the ranch, gave authorities a statement, but the sheriff declined to discuss a possible motive.

"Two of my deputies were digging through a trash dump area and discovered the buried body," Greeson said. "This is like trash that's dug on many ranches for their own disposal."

Mrs. Walters was reported missing her by husband, Roland Walters, chairman of the board of the Bank of Kerrville. Walters called Greeson Tuesday to report his wife missing, saying he was in Houston on a business trip and had been unable to reach his wife by telephone since Monday night.

Shortly after Mrs. Walters' body was found Thursday, authorities arrested Tabares, who lives on the Walters' 9,000-acre ranch near Camp Verde, about 12 miles south of Kerrville.

Tabares is the son of ranch hand Raymond Tabares Sr., who has worked for Walters many years, Greeson said. The youth was arrested in the vicinity of Camp Verde, where Mrs. Walters owned and operated a store, the sheriff said.

"R.C. was very kind. He never gave me any problems at school," said principal Burt Slater. "This really comes as a shock."

Federal, state and local law enforcement officials began searching for Mrs. Walters Tuesday after her jewelry and the clothing she was last seen wearing were found near Verde Creek, about one-third mile from the general store she operated.

Names in the News

Stallone

NEW YORK (AP) — Sylvester Stallone's mother consulted the stars about her film idol son's marriage to Brigitte Nielsen and predicted it wouldn't last.

"They are both ruled by the moon, and no two people of the same star sign should ever marry," Jacqueline Stallone said in an interview with Us magazine. "They are both too emotional and too impractical."

The problem with Stallone and Nielsen, who are getting divorced, was "Brigitte was way ahead of him," Mrs. Stallone said. "She had the smarts. She has had a lot of experience. She is very worldly. He's not worldly."

"The best marriage for Sylvester would be marriage Italian-style," she said, but added:

"He should have a mistress of every nationality. He should have Little Italy, Miss Sweden here, Miss Denmark there. This way he is taking care of the whole world."

NEW YORK (AP) — Feminist Gloria Steinem says she feels she's more radical at age 53.

"When I was 33 I wasn't even a feminist. I worked for George McGovern. I worked for the Farm Workers. You only really get radicalized on your own concerns, when you realize that it's in your long-term interest," the editor of Ms. magazine said in an interview in the Aug. 10 issue of Us magazine.

"When I first got involved in feminist issues, I was quite naive," she said. "I thought this is so unjust, surely they will change this if I just explain it. I wouldn't stop to think about the people who were profiting from it."

"It makes you realize this is something you're going to do for life, not just for a couple of years."

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Ivan Lendl, the No. 1 seed and defending champion of the Volvo International Tennis Tournament, has another racket these days.

"I came here to play golf. It's no secret," Lendl said Thursday right before another trip to the course. "I just came here because I like it and it's very nice out here. I didn't even enter into the doubles because I wanted more time to play golf."

And he's been lucky during this $315,000 Grand Prix tournament. Each of his first three matches has been scheduled for 10 a.m.

"Every day, when I come, I check out what time I have to play next, and my face just lights up when I find out I play at 10 so I have all day to play golf," he said.

Lendl has had an easy time of it at the Volvo so far, advancing to Friday's quarterfinals by defeating Robert Seguso, Jim Pugh and Marc Flur.

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A judge considering a community service sentence for actor George Kennedy for drunken and careless driving charges found the actor a real gentleman.

"He's gonna come back at his own expense," Judge Tom Fiorina said Wednesday, when he deferred sentencing to review the case. "Kennedy says he'll come back whenever we want him."

"The one thing I can say is that he's a hell of a guy. He's just a gentleman."

Kennedy, 63, was arrested July 14 while he was in Santa Fe filming a made-for-television movie, The Gambler III, with Kenny Rogers.

Kennedy refused to take a blood-alcohol test when he was pulled over that night while driving a car without headlights, authorities said. Nine days later, he entered a no contest plea to drunken driving and a guilty plea to careless driving.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Archie Campbell, a regular on the Hee Haw television show, has been moved from the coronary care unit and into a regular hospital room, officials said.

Campbell, 72, is recovering from a June 15 heart attack and was listed in serious condition Thursday at the University of Tennessee's medical center, said spokeswoman Lisa McNeal.

Campbell's family has asked that there be no visitors or flowers, but said that the country musician-comedian appreciates the cards he has received, McNeal said.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Miss America Kellye Cash is defending the pageant's swimsuit competition, saying the contest is designed to show self-discipline in diet and exercise.

Cash not to display skin.

"The swimsuits worn in the pageant are very conservative. I'd never wear one on the beach," she told a news conference Thursday.

"I'd always thought the Miss America pageant was silly," the former Miss Tennessee added. "Then someone told me no, it's a scholarship pageant, judged on talent and it gives the winner lots of opportunities. During the competitions, I've won $36,000."

"The 'difficult lifestyle' of her great-uncle, singer Johnny Cash, has persuaded her to stay out of show business in favor of a broadcasting career, said Miss Cash, who sang and played piano in the Miss America talent competition.
