SAIGON, (AP) — North Vietnam has announced an agreement to release the final 139 American prisoners held in Vietnam in exchange for withdrawal of the remaining American military forces beginning Tuesday and ending Thursday.

Bui Tin, chief spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation in Saigon, said today the first group of 32 American prisoners captured in South Vietnam and contained on the Viet Cong list, will be turned over to U.S. authorities Tuesday at Hanoi's Gia Lam airport.

Tin made the announcement early Tuesday, Saigon time. He said that North Vietnam will release 40 more American prisoners at Gia Lam on Wednesday and 67 on Thursday.

The Communist-backed Pathet Lao will release nine American prisoners captured in Laos "very, very soon," he added, but said he was unsure of the date.

U.S. demands for assurances that the nine prisoners held in Laos would be released had blocked the release of the 139 Americans in Vietnam since last Saturday.

The deadline for release of all American prisoners and the withdrawal of all American troops is Wednesday under provisions of the Paris peace agreement.

The timetable announced by Tin means that they will be one day late.

"That is to say," said Tin,

"that the American party will receive its POWs by a delay of one day. Our side agrees also that the withdrawal of American troops also will be delayed by one day."

Tin said that the question of 159 U.S. Marine guards attached to the U.S. Embassy, who the Communists had insisted should be part of the U.S. withdrawal, had not been resolved. He said, however, that the Communists agreed to the American withdrawal plan of more than 5,000 troops on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, coinciding with release of the prisoners.

Tin said it was agreed that the four-party Joint Military Commission, which under terms of the agreement was set to expire Wednesday, will end its work after the last American prisoners are released and after the last troops have left.

The North Vietnamese said the release agreement includes the nine American prisoners held in Laos. Communist refusal to give an exact date, time and place for their turnover had held up release of the other American prisoners and final U.S. troop withdrawals.

Tin said the resolution to the dispute was worked out in secret meetings between the North Vietnamese and United States in Saigon and between the Pathet Lao and the United States in Vientiane, the Laotian capital.

Tin said that the 825 members of the North Vietnamese delegation to the four-party Joint Military Commission and the 825 U.S. representatives to the commission will leave South Vietnam on Friday and Saturday.

The United States had refused to withdraw its commission delegation or the rest of the remaining U.S. military establishment in Vietnam until the Pathet Lao or North Vietnamese gave a precise commitment for release of the nine Americans captured in Laos.

Indians Obtain Order

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Militant Indians occupying Wounded Knee have obtained a temporary court order permitting six carloads of supplies to pass into the village daily through Federal roadblocks.

Also on Sunday, Russell Means, an Indian leader in the Pine Ridge Reservation village, said that a possible breakthrough in the 27-day-old confrontation with the federal government might be expected today.

Means, a leader of the American Indian Movement (AIM), said he could not elaborate. But he called it a major development and said it should be a positive one.

In nearby Pine Ridge, Interior Department spokesman James Harpster announced that U.S. District Court Judge Andrew Bogue had issued the temporary order that allows AIM attorneys to take the carloads of food, medical supplies and cooking fuel into Wounded Knee. The order is effective until noon Saturday.

AIM's chief legal counsel, Ramon Roubideaux of Rapid City, indicated that the restraining order was only one of several the lawyers would seek to prevent the government from restricting movement to and from Wounded Knee.

Indians in the village say they are holding out until the government reaffirms its 1868 treaty with the Sioux people.

Patman Introduces Plan To Freeze Rent, Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Contending that President Nixon's program of economic controls is "impossibly weak," House Banking Committee Chairman Wright Patman is introducing a bill to stabilize rents and freeze all prices and interest rates for 60 days.

"The bill is a recognition of the obvious: that Phase 3 isn't working, and that immediate action is needed to halt the spiraling increases in prices, rents and interest rates," Patman said in a statement Sunday.

He said the bill, whose outlines were hammered out by Democratic members of the Banking Committee, would freeze prices and interest rates at March 16 levels and give the president 60 days to develop a system of rollbacks.

Pressure has increased in recent weeks from Congress and nongovernmental groups for the government to at least impose an export ban on logs cut from federal lands.

Dunlop said extra trees will be made available from national forests for commercial harvests this year.

He said the administration will sell 11.8 billion board feet of timber by the end of this calendar year, up from the 10 billion board feet originally planned.

Coward Dies

LONDON (AP) — Sir Noel Coward, outstanding British playwright and actor for almost half a century, died today in Jamaica, his London secretary said.

Mrs. Joan Hirst, Coward's London secretary, said the 73-year-old star died of a heart attack at his vacation home in Jamaica.

"His private secretary informed me he died early this morning, very peacefully," Mrs. Hirst added.

Meat Boycott Gathers Strength

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Consumers from coast to coast with a bone to pick over high meat prices appear to be gathering additional strength for a proposed nationwide meat boycott the first week in April.

"It's getting to the point where you want to scream when you get to the meat counter," said a suburban Salt Lake City housewife, Rosalie Whiting. She started a group called Save Our Sanity, which is urging local families to prepare meatless menus during the April 1-7 protest.

"It's the consumers who keep prices up," she said. "If we don't stop it, who will?"

First suggested by two California women who organized FIT — Fight Inflation Together—the meat ban idea has been taken up by similar consumer groups and concerned individuals.

In the meantime, housewives have been passing up the higher priced cuts, cooking more vegetarian meals and picketing supermarkets and government institutions.

Mrs. Sandy Winslow of Charlotte, N.C., said "lots of casseroles, macaroni and cheese" help keep down the food budget for her family of four, living on $12,000 a year. She said last year she bought one roast and two steaks on twice-a-month shopping trips but doesn't even take a wistful look at them now.

"We had our last roast at Christmas, I think."

Some 30 women carrying picket signs protesting meat prices marched from store to store Saturday in Portsmouth, Ohio, and were treated by one grocer to free bologna sandwiches.

FIT groups in Texas Saturday picketed supermarkets in Dallas, Garland, Grand Prairie and Euless. Besides promoting the general boycott, they're asking consumers to keep meat off their tables on Tuesdays and Thursdays until prices drop.

But market managers in Dallas and elsewhere said the protests so far have had little effect on sales.

"Blaming grocery stores for meat prices is like blaming a thermometer for the temperature," said John Schwegman, owner of the largest food chain in New Orleans. He predicted any general boycott would be ineffective.

Another New Orleans grocer, who asked not to be named, disagreed. "That's the only way to drive prices down," he said. "It's the old law of supply and demand."

DEAN DENIES CLAIMS

McCord Begins Telling Watergate Disclosures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate defendant James W. McCord Jr., who says the public hasn't been told all about the bugging of Democratic national headquarters, has begun telling his story to Senate investigators.

Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the special Senate Watergate investigating committee, told a news conference Sunday that McCord had given him the names of others involved in the burglary and wiretapping and is to supply still more names later.

Dash declined to say if any of those named by McCord were "higher up" than the seven who pleaded guilty or were convicted at the trial here last January before U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica.

Magruder denied knowing about the Watergate operation in advance. And in Key Biscayne, Fla., White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said of the Times story, "Mr. Dean had absolutely no prior knowledge or any awareness whatsoever of the Watergate incident. The story is flatly incorrect."

Sirica disclosed last Friday when he was to impose sentences, that McCord had sent him a letter saying not only that others were involved but that perjury had been committed during the trial and that political pressures had been applied to the defendants to plead guilty and remain silent. Sirica urged McCord and the other six defendants to cooperate with Senate investigators.

No details of what McCord said were disclosed, but Dash said McCord is willing to testify fully and under oath at committee hearings to be held as soon as possible.

Crop Production Increases Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government figures showing that farmers continue to gain most from rising food prices are putting further pressure on the Nixon administration to step up crop and livestock production this year.

An Agriculture Department report Sunday indicated the annual food bill for a typical family of four increased by $34 last month.

Sources say the department soon may announce changes in 1973 acreage programs to make it more attractive for farmers to grow more corn and soybeans. As feed, those crops are vital to production of beef, pork, poultry and milk—keystones in family food budgets—and to White House strategy for cooling off record-high super-market prices.

Although farmers already have indicated they will plant more crops this spring, some top officials say larger boosts are needed if reserves are to be built up for next winter.

One source said the Office of Management and Budget, which heretofore has used an ax on much farm spending, has given approval to USDA planners for taking any "justifiable action" to increase grain and soybean output this year.

Meantime, the upward spiral of farm prices continues to push up consumer costs at supermarkets.

The department Sunday released new figures showing that the farm value of items in a "market basket" of retail food rose 3.2 per cent in February and that middleman shares—which had been stagnant or declining for three months—went up 1.9 per cent.

A complete market basket—theoretically enough farm produced food for a typical family in an entire year, cost $1,409 last month, up $34 from the January rate. This means that if a typical four-member family had bought a year's supply of groceries in February, they would have paid $1,409.

Officials who explained the report said the farm share rose $18 and that middlemen—who transport, process and sell food—got $16 more.

The upward food-price spiral has brought calls for a freeze on food prices, including raw agricultural products which have been exempt from federal restraints since President Nixon imposed economic controls 18 months ago.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, in a view so far shared by the White House, says the best way to help consumers is for farmers to produce more.

But farm prices have risen dramatically since last fall. The February market basket of food cost 14.7 per cent more in retail stores than did the November selection. Compared with a year earlier, the price was 18.2 per cent higher.

The February increase in the farm-to-retail middleman spread was the first since last October, according to department records.

Soviet Cosmonauts Turn Into Cowboys-For-A-Day On Ranch

LIBERTY, Tex. (AP) — Vladimir Shatalov rode horses, roped cows and danced with Indians Sunday, but said if he had his choice he'd stick with something safe—like riding in a spaceship.

Shatalov, a Soviet cosmonaut, was one of 39 Russian space experts who turned cowboys for a day Sunday during a visit to a working Texas ranch near here.

The Russians, members of a delegation working with American exports at the Johnson Space Center near Houston on the planned U.S.-Soviet space project, got a taste of the rugged old west as guests at the Plantation Ranch of Gov. Bill Daniel, the one-time governor of Guam and brother of former Texas Gov. Price Daniel.

Site of the party was a reconstructed 19th century Texas village, complete with saloons, a smithy, general stores, a dance hall and stables. Cowboys strolled the streets in jeans, boots and stetsons and women in long skirts and checkered aprons served a lunch of Texas barbecue.

It appeared as a typical Texas town of a century ago with one exception: the scarlet banner of the USSR flew from pine trees and rooftops beside the flag of the USA.

The Soviet delegation was led by Professor K. D. Bushuyev. The group included Shatalov and another cosmonaut, Dr. A. S. Yeliseyev, both spacelift veterans.

Accompanying the Soviets were astronauts David R. Scott of Apollo 15; Ronald E. Evans of Apollo 17; Vance D. Brand, an American crewman of the Soviet-U.S. space mission, and Robert Overmyer.

The Soviets watched horse races, listened to western prairie music and watched a roping demonstration.

Then Daniel brought out some horses and urged the spacemen to mount up. He grabbed Bushuyev and pulled him toward a horse called "White Charger."

An interpreter, suddenly turned pale, stepped forward and said, "Be careful. The professor has never been on a horse in his life."

But Bushuyev climbed easily into the silver saddle on White Charger. Shatalov and Yeliseyev mounted other horses, as did the astronauts.

Shatalov struck a western pose and waved his hand overhead, twirling an imaginary lasso.

Later, though, he admitted, "I'm less afraid to go in a spaceship than on one of these horses."

A group of Indians from the Alabama-Coushatta tribe performed dances and the spacemen joined them in snaking in and out of the crowd in the traditional "friendship dance."

Daniel, who wore flowing white hair and goatee, a white cowboy suit with black knee boots, black gloves and a black leather string tie, formed two teams from the astronauts, the cosmonauts and Bushuyev. He handed each man a rope and said to practice for a calf scramble.

Shatalov twirled the lasso several times and then surprised everyone by skillfully roping one of the Soviet engineers and yanking him out of the audience.

The spacemen were led to a pen containing several small calves and were told to rope 'em for brandin'.

Shatalov roped three, one after the other, and held them while Daniel branded them with a big "BD." The astronauts got their share and helped the Soviets hold down the bawling calves while the air was filled with the smell of burning hair and hide.

The Soviet and American spacemen later sat, western style, atop a fence rail to watch a wild west show staged by working cow hands from Daniel's ranch.

Daniel gave each of the spacemen yellow straw Stetsons and one Soviet engineer observed: "Once you put on a cowboy hat everybody looks almost alike. You can't tell a Soviet from an American."

The mission calls for a Soyuz with two cosmonauts aboard to be launched from Russia followed a few hours later by the launch of an Apollo spacecraft, with three astronauts aboard, to be launched from Cape Kennedy.

The Apollo will rendezvous and dock in orbit with the Soyuz and crews of the two craft will exchange visits.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

All households contain poisons. No home is likely to be without a large bottle of aspirin, a container of some cleaning fluid, a can of caustic soda or similar product for stopped-up drains, laundry detergent or bleach, or perhaps some poison seeds for mice.

In our sleeping-pill-age, barbiturates and other sedative drugs are found in many households.

More than 500,000 children—like the little girl next door or the toddler in your own home—will swallow poison this year. Most cases reported will involve children under five years of age.

Sadly, virtually all of these poisonings are preventable, says the Texas State Department of Health.

In Texas last year, there were nearly 200 fatal poisonings listed as accidental. Almost half the child poisonings involve aspirins, the single most common offender.

March 18-24, 1973, has been set aside as national "Poison Prevention Week" in an effort to focus public attention on the potential poisoning dangers widespread throughout the household.

Huge numbers of commercial products of one kind or another are either toxic or poisonous. It is sometimes difficult to know whether a particular product is dangerous or not. Many of these products often are in easy reach of children and their inquisitive young minds and hands.

In some cities, Poison Control Centers have been set up to identify the ingredients of commercial products and to offer advice to the attending physician concerning treatment. The Poison Control Center in your area is at your doctor's fingertips, and can help him diagnose symptoms, identify the substance and the proper antidote for it.

The State Health Department has helped develop some 22 Poison Control Centers across Texas. Information on proper antidotes is usually given directly to a physician. Thus, you should call your doctor first, and take a sample of suspected poison or its container with you to the hospital emergency room.

Obviously, many of the commercial products that are accidentally swallowed may not be particularly dangerous. However, if one is not sure, and the nature of the product cannot be identified quickly, a good rule is always to treat it as a potential poison.

There are two broad types of treatment for poison victims: the "evacuate" treatment, and the "dilute-and-neutralize" treatment.

The aim of the evacuate treatment is to have the victim vomit up the poison, and thus to get it out of his system. This is accomplished in various ways, including the use of substances called "emetics" to induce vomiting.

The dilute-and-neutralize treatment keeps the poison in the system but renders it harmless by the double action of weakening or diluting it and neutralizing its effects. It is most effective with strong acids, alkalis, and the corrosive poisons in general.

Common emetics to induce vomiting are salt water (add two tablespoons of salt to a pint of warm water); mustard water (add one to two tablespoons of BLOOD HAS TO CLIMB

Trading Decline Studied

NEW YORK (AP) — The securities industry is growing increasingly distressed about the decline in share ownership and trading activity by individual investors, whose numbers had doubled in the decade of the 1960s.

The concern is shown in advertising programs, in statements by stock exchange officials and in testimony before congressional committees, where the industry hopes to win backing for investor tax incentives.

The people whose business is now being sought include small investors, the very ones that many brokers turned down in recent years because of heavy volume and the feeling that small accounts failed to pay their way.

As a result, many individual investors took their money elsewhere. For the 12-month period ended in mid-March, share-owner population declined by about 800,000, the first such drop since the mid-1940s.

The loss is being felt not only in brokers' pocketbooks but in the functioning of the markets, where activity on some days is made up largely of institutional trading. There exists a serious loss of liquidity.

A market is liquid when buy and sell orders are easily matched because there is an abundance of traders. In a liquid situation, buy and sell orders are matched without sharp price changes.

Institutions, however, trade many thousands of shares at a time, and it is sometimes impossible to match buyer and sellers quickly without permitting prices to rise or drop sharply.

The evidence is seen daily in stock price listings.

James Needham, New York Stock Exchange chairman, concedes the liquidity problem. "The securities markets need the individual investor, both small and large," he said in commenting on declining share ownership.

Needham is among securities industry spokesmen who have testified, or plan to testify, before the House Ways and Means Committee, seeking legislation to make share ownership more attractive.

While couching their testimony in idealistic terms, the motive of industry spokesmen is at least partly that of self-survival. The NYSE claims the nation's economic and social objectives require broad ownership—but so do the goals of stock exchanges and their members.

Another concern increasingly expressed is that the capital needs of American corporations might not be met in future years unless investors are provided with more encouragement.

One of Needham's proposals, which are similar in some ways to others presented or planned for presentation, is to increase to $200 from $100 the dividend income exclusion on income tax returns.

He would also permit commissions paid on purchases and sales to be treated as deductions against ordinary income. At present, such commissions cannot be deducted, a rule Needham considers illogical.

A third proposal would permit a limited tax deduction for individuals who buy stock as part of a personal pension plan, providing they are not adequately covered by employer-sponsored plans.

Another widely sponsored proposal, offered by Needham and others, would tax capital gains on securities at a rate that would decline with the length of time the securities are held.

Many investors are believed to be locked into stocks in which they have big gains, these securities leaders feel, because to sell would be to incur too large a tax bite. This, they say, damages capital mobility. You might add that it hurts commissions too.

The chairman's thesis, it appears, is that the individual investor is needed for the functioning of free enterprise, by the corporations which need capital, by the exchanges which need liquidity, by the brokers who need commissions.

The oft-scorned individual investor ought not to forget it.

The sun is 30 trillion miles closer to earth than the next nearest star.

Study Of Rock Culture Can Bridge Over Gaps

NEW YORK (AP) — Understanding "rock culture" can help educators reach their students, according to the man who devised a graduate course on rock music for Teachers College at Columbia University.

"Rock is young people," says Alan Raph, a professional bass trombonist and composer.

"Like them it is energetic, electric, vibrant, involved, emphatic. But for young people rock is more than just music; it is a way of life, a culture which is affecting us all," he said in an interview.

Raph said the fact that many members of the over-30 generation don't understand rock may make it all the more appealing to young people.

"The understanding and use of rock vocabulary can break down barriers and close gaps," he said. "Educators should know that rock may be the best index available of what young people are thinking today."

When Raph first taught his course on rock music at the summer session last year, it was believed to be the first ever offered by a graduate school of education. The course begins with an historical survey of rock, covering the 1950s rock 'n' roll from Bill Haley and the Comets to Elvis Presley; the early 1960s when the "roll" was dropped; the 1967-69 period of the drug culture's "freaky head rock," and current modes.

Because the course is intended for music majors and nonmajors alike, much of the source material used is suited for the neophyte, Raph said. Besides the music itself, his students read underground newspapers and specialized rock magazines as well as trade journals and record reviews in "straight" newspapers.

One full session is devoted to the Beatles and their influence. "You can learn more from that than listening to and discussing anything else," Raph said.

There also are separate sessions on the harmonies used in rock and the youth culture.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

TUESDAY, MARCH 27

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Inspiration leads you into a promising upward move which brings better organization into your work and daily living. You can re-define your life goals this year, and make good progress. Today's natives are impulsive, sometimes extremists in conversation.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Yesterday's pressures continue, from another angle, involving people you haven't seen for a while. Avoid exaggeration.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Your regular associates expect definite answers, decisions from you, may compare notes and work together.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Much is required from you—if it's merely material resources used for the common good, you're lucky.

Cancer [June 21-July 21]: Meddlers are probably busy in any relationship worth maintaining—check any stories with your partner.

Leo [July 22-Aug. 22]: Along with having more work than you would like, the initiative is not in your hands for the moment.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: For once those you care about have surprisingly good advice on subjects you hadn't asked them to discuss.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]:

This is a time when your principles are the main factor—what you really want and believe, and how firmly you express yourself.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You needn't expect to stand pat on old ideas and play according to old rules. Make experimental moves, compare notes.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Put your bid in early, try for the maximum. You should be in a good bargaining position.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You are highly persuasive, able to sell practically any idea, but unsure of where you really want to settle.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Today should be a fact-finding day for you, profitable in all but financial terms.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: You can profit from others' experience, so don't be shy about asking friends how they do the things that turn out well.

WASHINGTON CAMPED THERE

NEW YORK (AP) — The American elm beneath which George Washington camped during the battle of Long Island was 327 years old when it went down in a storm last fall.

The figure was determined by scientists who examined cross sections of the 102-foot giant's trunk. Inside its hollow heart was a bees' nest some 30 years old.

Organized Crime Council Tries To Battle Organized Criminals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth and final story in this series about organized crime in Texas. Organized Crime does exist as evidenced in the preceding stories.)

(The Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council, the Attorney General's Office, the Department of Public Safety and many other agencies are working with law enforcement officials at the local level to help put an end to organized crime.)

(This story deals with some of the progress which has been made. This series is part of a public education program developed by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council with assistance from the Texas Criminal Crime Prevention Council with assistance from the Texas Criminal Justice Council, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Office of the Attorney General of Texas and local law enforcement agencies.)

A few months ago outside a Dallas night spot, a well-known police character with an intriguing nickname, "The Creeper," died in a hail of gunfire in a scene straight out of a Hollywood gangster film.

Police had suspected he was the "enforcer" for a loosely-knit group of southern and southwestern thugs known as the "Dixie Mafia."

But before this scene conjures up visions of an organized crime take-over in the Lone Star State, Texans should be aware of the unrelenting statewide efforts already underway to crack down on crime.

Little publicized up to this point, the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council is conducting an all-out drive to corral all segments of the criminal world. The Council, co-chaired by Atty. Gen. John Hill and Col. Wilson E. Speir, director of the Department of Public Safety, is comprised of top law enforcement officials from throughout the state.

"Some hoodlums are organized, but we are organized, too," Col. Speir pointed out recently, "and we are moving ahead steadily on all criminal fronts including gambling, auto theft, prostitution, gang killings, narcotics, fencing of stolen goods, credit card thefts and many others."

Atty. Gen. Hill, since taking office in January, has expanded the organized crime division within his office. Head of the office Tim James, a former vice squad officer and attorney, has the sole responsibility to work in close cooperation with law enforcement officials to help ferret out organized crime activities.

"My office can give legal and auditing help, and in conjunction with the DPS and officers at the local level, assist in yanking the welcome mat from under the organized criminal element in our state," Hill said.

Both Hill and Speir acknowledge organized crime does exist, but not of the classic Mafia or La Cosa Nostra vintage.

"Some of our home-grown hoodlums have friends within out-of-state mob ranks, and they may be getting some tips and coaching, but we have no concrete information at this time the national syndicates as such are operating in the state," said Speir.

That fact is indicated in statistics compiled by the Council.

Leading the list of crime categories in profits by far is illegal gambling. Texans wagered more than $815 million in football bets alone during the 1971 season with some $98 million flowing directly into the mainstream of organized criminal activity.

But during the calendar year from which the Council's gambling figures were taken more than 130 arrests were made as the bookies began to feel the heat.

"I regard this as a sizeable accomplishment in such a period of time, when the problems and restrictions in making bookmaking cases are taken into consideration," says Speir. "Our records indicate that on the average, it takes 360 man-hours to make a single case on a bookie."

Increased pressure is being applied daily on drug traffickers in Texas. The DPS Narcotics Service has been averaging over 200 cases per month, mostly for sale of narcotics and dangerous drugs.

Agents estimate they will file some 3,000 cases against 2,000 defendants this year, compared to some 960 cases against 680 defendants three years ago. As law enforcement officials move ahead with arrests on all fronts there is accelerated activity behind the scenes as well.

A "Texas Law Enforcement Intelligence Unit Association" has been formed which will:

Promote the exchange and sharing of confidential information on organized crime activity through establishment of an intelligence system involving law enforcement agencies throughout the state.

Exchange information on organized crime with appropriate neighboring states and federal agencies.

Establish a central file or clearing house for criminal intelligence information and provide it with data and authorized dissemination.

Develop personal relationship and trust among members of the organization and law enforcement agencies. Promote professionalization of law enforcement, and Execute the planned law enforcement program through investigation and vigorous prosecution of organized crime.

One of the major areas of concern among law enforcement officials is the lack of public awareness of what constitutes organized crime.

Col. Speir says, "To understand organized crime, a definition is in order. Organized crime, in general, consists of unlawful activities of the members of a highly organized, disciplined and sophisticated association engaged in supplying illegal goods and services including, but not limited to, gambling, prostitution, loan sharking, narcotics, labor racketeering and other unlawful activities."

"Organized criminals seek to infiltrate and control legitimate business. They also strive to corrupt public officials and others in an effort to minimize exposure and the possibility of legal intervention."

The Texas Criminal Crime Prevention Council, working through Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, is helping fund an approach to public education.

As one officer points out, "The public itself needs to understand that a seemingly innocent little football bet is a contribution to organized crime."

"The public needs to understand that 'cheap' bargains on some items of merchandise very well could be from a 'fence' who is peddling stolen goods."

"The public needs to understand they are the ones being victimized, and it won't stop until all citizens awaken to the fact that organized crime is everybody's business."

Members of the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council along with Hill and Speir are Dist. Atty. Ted Butler, Bexar County; Dallas Police Chief Frank Dyson; San Antonio Police Chief Emil Peters; Harris County Dist. Atty. Carol Vance and Dallas County Dist. Atty. Henry Wade.

These men are charged with combining top talent from law enforcement agencies all over Texas to combat organized crime.

"Public office holders in all states have a mandate from the citizens to stamp out organized crime, and it is essential that we all cooperate to live up to that mandate," Atty. Gen. Hill said shortly after taking office.

While the major responsibilities within the state's organized crime prevention and control operation have been assigned to the Department of Public Safety, all law enforcement agencies in Texas are playing a role.

Enforcement, and especially prosecution, at local levels are fundamental to the operations' success, according to Hill, who added:

"Until we break the cycle and crack down in areas which supply so much of the illicit cash which bankrolls the mob's operations in illegal drugs, auto theft, murder and robbery we can't truly say we are breaking up organized crime."

An "omnibus crime bill" is being prepared at this time for presentation to the 63rd Legislature now underway. It will contain a wide range of requests for new legislation and some Constitutional revisions.

Legislative needs which have been delineated for Texas include:

1. Admissibility of oral confessions of criminals; 2. Electronic surveillance under strong safeguards; 3. Concurrent jurisdiction for the State Attorney General and state wide grand jury capability; 4. A law making possession of gambling paraphernalia a felony; 5. Receiving and concealing stolen property law.

Also, there is a need for a general overhaul of criminal statutes to cope with specific offenses subject to organized crime, such as loan sharking, prostitution, bookmaking and others.

Electronic surveillance (popular name, wire tapping) is probably destined to become the most controversial new law being sought. Law enforcement officials feel, however, such surveillance is grossly misunderstood. With the news media telling daily of "bugging" in high places, the process has rapidly become a code word meaning "invasion of privacy" to many people.

But without such investigative aids, Col. Speir says, "it is almost impossible to get to the top of major illicit narcotics distribution systems and other organized crime activities simply because the most powerful mobsters never get involved beyond their telephones and penthouses."

The same situation holds true with organized gambling.

What will be proposed to the Legislature will be a tightly controlled electronic surveillance law—patterned after federal law—which could be used only under formal orders by a District Judge, obtained only for a specific period of time and only after the judge has become convinced that there is probable cause to believe that a person or persons are involved in organized crime.

With these proper safeguards, says Speir, "the public can be guaranteed its right of privacy. The only people who need fear a wire tap are those with something to hide from the law."

The Organized Crime Prevention Council also is recommending a state statute to create and finance a statewide organized criminal investigation commission with independent, permanent status.

It would contain an adequate staff of investigators with subpoena power to keep a constant watch on danger areas. The commission would make periodic reports to the governor and the legislature and maintain close contact with law enforcement officials for possible prosecution purposes.

Both Hill and Speir are confident Texas is moving in the right direction—and rapidly—in efforts to control organized crime.

"We have identified the problem, begun to speed arrests and push prosecution and the word is increasingly spreading that organized crime can't do business in Texas," Hill says.

Dear Abby

80-year-old widower looking for a woman

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I may be the first 80-year-old man to ask you for advice, but I assure you I am sincere. After 57 years of a good marriage, my dear wife passed away last year. Now I would like to meet a sensible woman to invite out or invite to my home occasionally.

My friends want to fix me up with women who are much too young for me. (A man who has daughters 53 and 55 years old does not want to go out with a woman who is 40 or even 50. In fact, I don't want a woman who is under seventy.)

I'm not interested in any woman's money as I am retired with substantial income. I am in good health, play tennis three times a week, and walk no less than five miles every day, rain or shine. I enjoy traveling and can do anything a man half my age can do, but I don't go overboard on anything.

I would like a refined woman with a good sense of humor who doesn't run to doctors every day and preferably one who can play a good game of gin rummy. So where is she?

LOOKING IN N. Y.

DEAR LOOKING: Have you looked in Florida and California? There are more women there who fit your description than in all the other states combined. But I warn you, if your identity ever becomes known, you'll have to give up walking and start RUNNING, or get a bicycle.

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday my boss' wife came down to the office while he was out of town. She went into his private office and closed the door. I heard her opening and closing drawers and rummaging around in there. Whether she found what she was looking for or not I do not know.

She rarely comes to the office, and when she does she is very cold, abrupt, and unfriendly. She has asked me some questions about her husband's activities, but I am very careful not to give her any information. After all, my first loyalties are to my boss, and I am not about to give his wife any ammunition.

Now I wonder if I should tell my boss that his wife was down here rummaging around in his drawers. Would you?

DEAR LOYAL: I wouldn't.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column every day and learn a lot from it, but I have a question for you. Where did the American Indians come from? Nobody I ask seems to know, and neither do I. Do you?

DEAR CURIOUS: The Encyclopedia Britannica says that the North American Indians probably migrated to the Americas from Asia. Some 15,000 to 25,000 years ago they crossed from Northeast Asia at the Bering Strait. By the time the Europeans arrived in the 15th Century, waves of these Asiatic migrants had spread over the Americas.

There is much more on this subject in that book, and in many others. Look it up, if you're curious.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69788, L. A., Calif. 90088. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Memphis State, Bruins To Play Tonight

Tigers Will Probably Ignore Coach Gene Bartow's Intuition

ST. LOUIS Mo. (AP) — Memphis State probably will ignore its own intuition and try to play a run-and-shoot game against UCLA tonight for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Basketball championship.

The showdown battle for all of the marbles in college basketball begins at 8:10 p.m. CST. It will be televised nationally by NBC.

Gene Bartow, the Memphis State coach, said he doesn't believe "anybody in the country can beat UCLA playing a run and-shoot game." Almost in the same breath, Bartow insisted his Missouri Valley Conference champion Tigers "can't completely change from what they have been doing for 29 games."

Well aware that UCLA, the most powerful dynasty in college basketball history, seeks its seventh straight national crown, Bartow said beating the Bruins is "a matter of playing a great basketball game. It possibly would help if they didn't play 100 per cent...if UCLA should be slightly down."

Memphis State, 24-5 this season and ranked 12th nationally, reached the finals Saturday with a stirring second half comeback that cut down fourth-ranked Providence 98-85.

Jack Nicklaus

Jack Accomplished What He Started Out To Do

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lee Elder had the right idea. It just didn't turn out.

"I was playing Jack (Nicklaus)," he said. "I figured if I could stay close to him, if I could beat him, I'd be okay. Miller (Barber) and Lou (Graham) were up there close, but I was playing Jack."

And he lost.

So did everyone else as Nicklaus conquered his nagging problems, came from behind on the final four holes, caught Barber at the end of regulation and won the Greater New Orleans Open with a birdie on the second sudden death playoff hole.

"I accomplished what I came to accomplish," Nicklaus said Sunday after completing his first tournament before beginning defense of his Masters crown week after next.

The Masters, that staid, tradition-bound old event at Augusta, Ga., also was a major factor in Elder's efforts on the wet and soggy Lakewood Country Club course.

The 38-year-old Elder led at the end of the first round, shared the top spot after Saturday's scheduled third round was washed out by a three-inch rain. It forced a double round of 36 holes on the 7,000-yard Lakewood Country Club course Sunday.

He needed a victory to become the first black to play on the famed Augusta National course but saw that dream die when he pumped his second shot into a lake on the 14th green in the morning round. He made double bogey six and wasn't a factor again.

"I gave it the best I could," Elder said. "That's all I could do."

He finished in a tie for sixth. Nicklaus gained the playoffs with a final round 69 and tied the 41-year-old Barber at 280, eight under par. Barber had a 70, including a bogey five on the final hole where he missed the green.

Graham, tied for the lead most of the final round, went to a 73 and was third alone at 281. Next came Billy Casper and young Tom Watson, tied at 283. Casper had the best round of the cool, breezy day, a 67, and Watson closed with a final 69.

Elder's final two rounds of 75 and 70 put him at 284.

Arnold Palmer wasn't a factor. He finished at 292, far back.

Lieder, Bobby Stevens Give Gobblers NIT Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Virginia Tech played "Follow the Lieder," and he brought them to the brink of the National Invitation Tournament title.

Then Bobby Stevens pushed the Gobblers over the threshold and onto the throne with a mind-bending 92-91 overtime victory... and the luck of the Irish had run out.

Craig Lieder who had bombarded Notre Dame with 18 points in the first half of Sunday's nationally televised championship game, got only eight more in the second half. But it was those final two that gave the Gobblers a second life.

It was a 20-foot jump shot unleashed as the buzzer sounded 'the end of regulation time. It was a perfect shot, one which tied the score 79-79. And it climaxed a frenetic climb from a 12-point deficit in the final six minutes of regulation play.

But Notre Dame bounded out to a 91-87 lead with 55 seconds to go in the extra period. It seemed again that Virginia Tech's dreams were flickering out.

Twelve seconds later, though, the dream was very much alive as Stevens, fouled as he sank an off-balance one-hander from 10 feet away, completed the three-point play with a free throw.

The score was 91-90. Notre Dame had the ball—and Virginia, with 18 seconds to go, needed it desperately.

Virginia Coach Don DeVoe gestured as if to say, "Grab him!" and Charlie Thomas clutched Gary Brokaw. Two foul shots would lock up the Irish. But Brokaw missed the first of the one-and-one and Allan Bristow got the rebound. Virginia had the ball back and called time out with 12 seconds on the clock.

DeVoe called for the same play that had tied it up before. Work the ball to Lieder, he said. Have Bristow set up a screen and have Lieder shoot his 20-footer again.

Time in.

Stevens took the inbound pass and looked at Lieder—but Brokaw was swarming all over the intended target. Notre Dame had busted the play.

So Stevens improvised. He wheeled around one defender and, with nine seconds left, shot a 15-footer from the left side of the key.

The ball hit a rim and twisted out to a right side. And, as players all over themselves trying to get it, Stevens, at 5-foot-10 the shortest man on the court, saved it in the corner.

Three seconds were left. Stevens looked for someone to pass it to. Everyone was covered.

Two seconds... Stevens dribbled once to elude a charging Notre Dame player.

One second... He jumped and, from 10 feet away, flicked the ball softly toward the basket.

No seconds. The buzzer sounded... and the ball barely rippled the cords as it went through the hoop.

Madison Square Garden was bedlam!

UCLA, 29-0 and naturally first ranked, swept past sixth-rated Indiana 70-59.

Providence, 27-3, playing without star rebounder Marvin Barnes, and Indiana, 21-6, collide at 5:35 p.m. for third place.

Bartow, known as "Clean Gene," said he believes "in the positive thinking approach" in sending the Tigers against the vaunted Bruins. "I think we can win. We not only think it, we believe it."

John Wooden, now in his 25th year as boss of the amazing Bruins, seemed relaxed, almost regarding Memphis State as just another opponent.

"I expect to try to have a UCLA team ready to play their game," Wooden said. "No, we're not feeling the pressure of winning 74 games in a row. There has been no pressure since we got past the record."

Wooden considered stalling against the Tigers?

"We're not a wild team," Wooden said. "We play a relatively disciplined game against all opponents."

replace Pat Dobson as Baltimore's fourth starter, walked the last mile Sunday. The Yankees tagged him for nine hits and seven runs in 1-2-3 innings, including a two-run double and RBI single by Nettles and assorted run-scoring hits by Callison, Lou, Allen and Blomberg.

In other developments, Cleveland drew first blood in the weekend trade with Oakland when newly acquired center fielder George Hendrick doubled and singled twice and Dave Duncan doubled in the Indians' 7-4 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

The A's also won, blanking the San Diego Padres 3-0, but their new acquisitions—catcher Ray Fosse and infielder Jack Heidemann—went hitless in nine at-bats.

Elsewhere, the A's 'B' team edged the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3 in 10 innings, the Chicago Cubs whipped the California Angels 8-3, the Los Angeles Dodgers trimmed the Montreal Expos 7-1, the Dodgers' 'B' squad nipped the Houston Astros 3-2, the Texas Rangers mauled the Kansas City Royals 15-7 while the Detroit Tigers shaded the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and the Minnesota Twins topped the Atlanta Braves 1-0 in games shortened to 4 1/2 innings by rain.

Games between Cincinnati and St. Louis, Pittsburgh and the New York Mets, and Boston and Philadelphia were rained out.

Oakland's Catfish Hunter and rookie Glenn Abbott pitched a six-hitter and Reggie Jackson hit his first home run of the spring as the A's blanked San Diego. Mike Hegan's 10th-inning homer enabled the A's 'B' squad to edge Milwaukee.

Home runs by Rick Monday and Tony LaRussa helped the Cubs beat the Angels 8-3. Willie Davis homered, tripled, doubled and scored from second base on a sacrifice fly, and Ron Cey also homered in leading the Dodgers over Montreal. Henry Cruz' ninth-inning single gave the rest of the Dodgers their triumph over Houston.

Jeff Burroughs crashed a pair of three-run homers and a double to highlight the Rangers' rout of Kansas City. Dick Billings also homered for Texas.

Duke Sims' two-run homer in the fourth inning gave the Tigers their victory over the White Sox and Bert Blyleven pitched the Twins to a two-hit victory over Atlanta.

Lee Evans Tells All

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lee Evans says he took money as an amateur runner and he's willing to tell the whole story of what he calls "the hypocrisy of amateur track."

The 26-year-old world record holder in the 400-meter dash has never minced his words and when he signed a contract with Mike O'Hara's International Track Association newsmen knew it wouldn't be long before he'd fired the first salvo.

It took only as long as Saturday night, the first pro track meet on the ITA circuit. A crowd of 12,280 saw Kip Keino beat Jim Ryan in the mile despite a miscout of the laps by officials, saw Bob Hayes return to his first love in a special 40 yard dash and Brian Oldfield uncork a fine throw in the shot put.

"I think pro track will go and I think it'll hurt the U.S. Olympic team," said the former San Jose State star who won two gold medals in the 1968 games.

"We might be shallow on veterans at the Montreal Olympics. You could see that hurt us against the Russians last week."

"I hope they make the Olympics open, though, because it's a big hypocrisy now. Everybody is taking money under the table. The first real money I ever made in track wasn't here with the ITA. It was in Europe when some German promoters gave me money."

Evans did more than talk, too. He came within one second of the world indoor amateur record for the 500, running 1:03.9.

Keino held a 20-yard lead over Ryan, the former Kansas flash, and barely hung on for the victory, worth $500. He was timed in 4:06 to Ryan's 4:07.1, good for $250.

Oldfield, the blythe spirit of shot putting, was credited with six fine throws, the best being 68-4 1/4.

Girls Play

Pampa's girls volleyball team is in Borger tonight in search of its third district second half win. The Harvesters are now 2-1. Tascosa and Caprock lead the second half with 3-1 records.

Pampa shared the league's first half crown with the Amarillo High squad. AHS is 2-2 in the second half race.

Coach Bucky Buckwalter of the Seattle SuperSonics says that "when Jerry West dies, they ought to cut off his hands and bronze them." After Sunday, Buckwalter might want to wait that long.

West, whose third-quarter ball-handling led the Los Angeles Lakers past the Sonics 109-93 in a nationally televised National Basketball Association game, said simply: "It's a gamble you take. But we have good guys back behind you to take the pressure off if you're willing to take that gamble."

West had three baskets, three assists, six steals and blocked a shot by Spencer Haywood as Los Angeles leaped from a 47-43 halftime advantage to a 79-63 lead at the end of the third quarter.

West had nine assists. Gail Goodrich, Will Chamberlain and Mel Counts, playing much of the game at forward, also hit for 20 points apiece. Haywood had 25 points and 25 rebounds for Seattle.

The victory gave the Lakers a 59-21 record and kept them a game in front of the Milwaukee Bucks, who defeated Phoenix 114-112, for the best record in the Western Conference and the home court playoff advantage that goes with it should they meet in the conference finals.

Elsewhere, Boston shaded Houston 125-121. Baltimore ended Atlanta 112-105. Cleveland turned back Chicago by the same 112-105 score. Portland beat Buffalo 113-107 in overtime and Detroit trounced Philadelphia 115-96.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Carolina 124, San Diego 113; New York 118, Indiana 115 in overtime; Memphis 133, Utah 117; Denver 114, Dallas 106; Kentucky 111, Virginia 95.

Milwaukee blew a 17-point lead against Phoenix and fell behind by a point with 2:06 left. Two free throws by Oscar Robertson with four seconds to go finally nailed down the Bucks' triumph. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led the winners with 36 points and 17 rebounds and Robertson added 23 points and 14 assists. Neal Walk had 24 points for the Suns.

Jo Jo White's 12-foot jump shot with 1:54 to go put Boston ahead of Houston for good. Houston led by as much as 17 points in the first half and won on top 100-86 at the end of the third quarter.

Mike Riordan and Elvin Hayes combined for 44 points in Baltimore's conquest of Atlanta. Walt Bellamy paced the Hawks with 30 points, one more than teammate Lou Hudson, but Atlanta missed Pete Maravich, who remained at home nursing a knee injury.

The Cavaliers outscored Chicago 13-2 in the first five minutes of the final period and went on to post their first victory over the Bulls since joining the NBA.

Geoff Petrie scored 10 of his 39 points in overtime to lift Portland over Buffalo. Petrie, the seventh leading scorer in the NBA, collected 14 points in the fourth quarter as the Blazers overcame a seven-point deficit.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP OF TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Betrayal in Austin

(Dallas Morning News) Texas voters who clearly let their desires for legislative reform be known in last year's election have a right to feel betrayed by the recent House action in watering down an ethics bill.

It should be easy for legislators to recall that most 1972 campaigns were waged on the need to clean up state government. And an essential of such a cleanup is an ethics bill that is meaningful.

Voters took the campaigners to their word by electing those who promised to go to Austin and provide meaningful cleanup and reform.

When it convened in January, the Legislature seemed to remember what the voters had said. It gave every indication of dealing with the ethics problem. One key feature of an ethics bill, as drafted, was to make mandatory full-public disclosure by state officials of sources and amounts of income.

But soon a legislator forgets. In three days of slicing and tacking last week, the House finally produced and passed an ethics bill that makes such reporting vague and, to a large extent, hidden. The reporting of amounts of income earned is to be obscured in a wide-ranging bracket, and many financial statements, including holdings in stock, real estate or other property, debts and corporate liabilities would be filed confidentially with a proposed State Ethics Commission, instead of publicly.

In short, the bill provides many dark corners in which a government official can hide financial information, and the public will never be able to search it out.

As Sam Kinch of The News Austin Bureau said: "Nobody covered himself with glory during the House's 3-day debate and vote on the ethics bill."

The legislators may have forgotten what they told the voters last year. But the public's memory may not be so short.

Pampa's Rep. Phil Cates voted against watering down the ethics bills.

Meditation for Monday

What this country needs is a "love Monday" cult. Blue Monday has been around since Heck was chewing the toes off of grampa's socks.

No excuse for its moody reputation, either. There are seven days in the week, each with 24 golden hours, each hour brimful with 60 beautiful minutes, and every one of them tick-thick with 60 lovely seconds. Together they constitute the thread of life.

If the span of man is three score and ten, which of us would cut ten years off and throw them away? Yet that is exactly what we do when we write one day of the week down, which day is usually Monday.

Look around you. Greet co-worker and ask how he's doing. The typically dour response is, "Pretty well for Monday." And even in your own home on a Sunday night, the melancholy droops commence.

The final flick of the TV knob is followed by a long silence, and when you ask "What's the matter?" you get a groan that "tomorrow's a school day." And thus begins a syndrome that follows us into the workaday world long after we ourselves have been graduated from the six-hour prisons of compulsory learning. It would appear that, after a day of rest, recreation and revival, we would begin our career week with a roopin'-tootin' two-fisted cross between a Comanche raid and a parachute drop.

Monday is the day that our internal batteries are fully charged. Any feeling to the contrary is an obvious mirage, to be discarded with the first ping of the alarm clock.

Monday is the day we start making good on all the bright promises of the former week. Monday is the day we point the slightly rusted tip of the plowshare into the waiting soil, square our shoulders, shout "gee up" to the team, and move ahead as men who know toil.

Monday is to pit our energy, our skill, our wisdom into the great rewarding contest of the marketplace. Monday vibrates with the song of expected accomplishment.

Monday is the gateway to the garden of our hopes. Monday is the flashing sunrise to a whole new week of joyful labor.

Monday is to do more. Monday is to do better. Monday is to be young again! Young, that is, with wisdom. Do you know any better day than the day that challenges you to do your best?

Crossroads Report

Dear Editor:

I see where very few U.S. income tax payers have earmarked $1 of their tax money to go to political party campaign treasuries.

Which must be a disappointment to the great statesmen who set up this extra raid on federal funds with droolish dreams of being able to run for office without having to swap their votes for campaign money.

But my political neighbor says if his "representatives" get any more of his money than they're getting now, they'll have to get it the old way.

Considerable commentary these days about our oil and gas supply running low, with emphasis on the hardships this development would cause us auto addicts.

The oil companies, of course, will be hurt, too, with vast credit card charge systems set up that will be white elephants when they run out of gasoline to sell.

But they are preparing for the time when we can't buy any gasoline to get away from home. They are going into the business of selling vacuum cleaners, coin collections, stereo systems, etc., by mail or credit.

I see where a Mexican-American city official in San Francisco is upset because the late Senator Robert Kennedy's son has been hired to report on the health problems of low-income Chicanos in that city.

He says that 20-year-old Joe Kennedy III is just a rich kid from Boston who knows nothing about the health of poor Mexican-Americans, and can't even speak Spanish.

Of course, some of our ambassadors can't speak the language of the countries they're sent to, either. Getting a political job as a rule only requires the appointee to speak Money.

News is that the Penn Central Railroad is worse than broke and some bureaucratic wheels want a government corporation to take it over and run it.

This is the same miracle medicine that was given to our sick postal service, which is now sicker. Political fumbling and meddling fouled up the post office and the railroads in the first place, and more of it is not likely to cure them.

But the politicians' urge to run everything may turn out to be useful. A public corporation to take over the crime business could make it unprofitable and wreck it.

I see where it is reported in a newspaper filler that only 5 percent of the coal known to be underground in the U.S. has been mined.

Which may be good news to anybody with a pick and shovel and some fear of freezing to death on account of our gas and oil supplies running out.

And may put some enterprising inventors to work on the task of developing and producing equipment to cope with the crisis, such as coal-fired autos and motorcycles and cigarette lighters.

Even though a Marxist is in power Red guerrillas have not slackened their attacks. They bomb light plants, power lines, railroads and reservoirs, and engage in political kidnapping as their opponents.

The secret police are everywhere. Trained in Castro's Cuba, they have instilled fear in the minds of the people, who know that they can be arrested at any time and for any reason. The head of the secret police, General Carlos Prats, has recently been made the No. 2 man in the government, showing the importance Allende attaches to this organization.

Freedom of the press is now nonexistent. Allende obviously plans to build a communist state in Chile similar to the USSR or Cuba. The Chilean people, however, have not yet lost their will to be free; there are encouraging reports of resistance to Allende's dictatorship. People of the U.S. should let it be known that we support freedom for the Chilean people.

BRUCE BLOSSAT Nixon... Watergate? We'll Never Know

By BRUCE BLOSSAT (First of two related articles.)

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The probability is high that no inquiry and no public utterance is going to settle the question whether President Nixon personally ordered the 1972 rash of political spying and sabotage whose disclosure began with the Watergate bugging case last June.

An influential Republican source suggests convincingly that top aide H. R. (Bob) Haldeman is almost certainly the only man who would know directly whether or not the President ever issued such an order. It is clearly evident that Haldeman cannot be compelled to speak on this matter by the U.S. Senate, the courts, or anyone else. Nor should the nation hold its collective breath waiting for Haldeman's post-regime memoirs to set the record straight.

My source, who cannot be properly portrayed as an apologist for Mr. Nixon on this issue, believes the President most likely did not order the controversial activity aimed at undercutting the democratic party and its presidential candidates last year. Says this man: "The President, in my judgment, would have regarded such an undertaking as counter-productive. If he had become aware of it at all in the critical formative stage before the damage was done, he'd have stopped it."

This Republican thinks that Haldeman, knowing and acting for Mr. Nixon as he does, also would have stopped the operation.

My informant is thoroughly persuaded that the president, early in 1972, understood his advantages over any plausible Democratic rival. Those were, of course, his incumbency, an improving economy, his widely approved overtures to Peking and Moscow, his winding-down of the Vietnam war and his peace efforts. Coupled with the Democrats' noisy internal stresses, these things would seem to have made spying and disruptive tactics unnecessary even to contemplate.

Nevertheless, not only the President's confirmed critics but many independent appraisers may find it hard to accept the idea of his non-involvement, at least to the extent of having knowledge of the undertaking and tolerating it.

A combination of factors—diligent investigative reporting by a few newsmen, Senate testimony by acting FBI Director Patrick Gray, public statements by some involved in the shenanigans—has drawn the whole enterprise into the White House, to the President's re-election committee, to high administration officials with presumed close access and responsiveness to Mr. Nixon.

Well known now, of course, are the departures as such White House aides as Charles Colson and Dwight Chapin, the latter after disclosure of his dealings with the evasive political operator, Donald Segretti.

None of this truly proves Mr. Nixon either gave direction to these dubious activities or had personal knowledge of them at a time when he might have effectively halted them. It may say a lot about how some of Mr. Nixon's associates perceive him and interpret his wishes.

My informant believes some of the men involved, including Chapin and Nixon lawyer Herbert Kalmbach, are not the types to have acted without orders from someone in reasonably high authority.

The big question is still who gave the order. It can be guessed they were periously general, since the operation got badly out of hand, too many operatives were left to make free-wheeling personal judgments, and at least one (convicted Watergate participant Gordon Liddy) said openly he felt free to go beyond his "authority." That means there was authority—to act in ways which have proved foolishly damaging to Mr. Nixon and to politics and have in the end been a botch.

Your Health Too Many Vitamins Can Be Harmful

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Just read in one of your articles that one of the few vitamins that can cause vitamin poisoning is a very high dose of vitamin A. I have before me a bottle and there's a label on it that reads 25,000 A units. What is all this about, the big old dosage?

Dear Reader—I am afraid so. The big old buck aided and abetted by competition and a lot of misinformation plus too many people who think if a little's good, more is better. The simple truth is the American Medical Association's Council on Drugs states: there is no evidence that anyone, even those deficient in vitamin A, can get any additional benefits by dosages higher than 25,000 units a day. Moreover, there is considerable evidence that in people who do not have a deficiency, doses of over 25,000 units a day taken regularly can induce vitamin A toxicity.

The Food and Drug Administration recently had a few words to say about the problems imposed by too much vitamin A and D in a number of the vitamin preparations available to the public and their toxic effects. Since a lot of our food is fortified with both vitamin A and D, this includes milk, breads, cereals, and perhaps a few other things, it's clear that anyone who's taking a vitamin tablet that contains 25,000 units of vitamin A on a daily basis is getting an excess of vitamin A regularly.

Incidentally, the daily requirement for normal healthy people appears to be in the range of 5,000 units daily; I am all for vitamins for people who need them, in the proper amounts. Many people who live by themselves or for other reasons aren't able to get a balanced diet need vitamin supplements. But the preferable way to get the needed vitamins is to eat a proper diet and regardless of their benefits or the fact that they are essential to good health, vitamin A and D can also be harmful when taken in excess amounts. In short, if a little's good, more is not better.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have two questions I hope you can answer. I am 50 years old and am a grandmother. For the past three months I have not drunk any water. However, I drink a lot of juices and milk and diet cola. Is this a harmful habit? Also I am in my change of life. I am not dieting but I have suddenly gained weight in the past three months. Can you explain what this means?

Dear Reader—It means that there are a lot more calories in juices, milk, and diet cola than there are in water. You are no doubt quenching your thirst with fruit juices, milk and diet cola because the body must have water. Fruit juices are excellent for people but they do contain calories and if you use enough of them you'll significantly increase your calorie intake.

Devaluation Turns Folk To Substitutes for Cash

Chicago Tribune

Speculators and investors once again are proving the validity of Gresham's Law—"bad money drives out good." As free world governments tinker with the values of their currencies, people are turning to such monetary substitutes as gold, antiques, diamonds, works of art, stamps, coins, almost anything but paper money.

Since February 12, when President Nixon unilaterally devalued the dollar, the price of gold on the private market has soared 14 percent, briefly setting a record of more than $95 an ounce. In the same period, silver has risen 14 percent, and platinum set a record of $171.50 an ounce.

All of this suggests a worldwide crisis of confidence in paper currencies. The reasons for the crisis differ from country to country: in France, where farmers and shopkeepers have a traditional fear of paper francs, the threat of a leftist victory in the forthcoming national elections has made the hoarding of gold a manic obsession.

Gresham's Law applies where inconvertible money is put into circulation side by side with a metallic currency. Since August 15, 1971, the American dollar has not been convertible into gold or any other monetary reserve asset. The most recent flight from the dollar into German marks and Japanese yen reflected in part this inconvertibility of the dollar.

And for many people, the devaluation of the dollar has tended to increase rather than relieve the fear of future devaluations. Foreigners have turned to gold. Americans, who by law are prohibited from owning gold, have been purchasing gold mining shares, precious metals futures, gems, and other items of value as a hedge against further debasement of the dollar.

The problem since mid-1971 has been the abrogation of the rules of international monetary conduct and the failure of the leading industrial nations to come up with adequate reforms. The linchpin of the Bretton Woods agreement was the assurance that the American dollar was "good as gold"—that the United States was ready, willing, and able to exchange gold for dollars held by foreign central banks.

The deficits in our balance of payments since 1957, however, have flooded central banks with far more dollars than could be redeemed with our remaining gold. As a result of this flood of dollars, the proportion of official monetary reserves held in gold has declined from about 50 percent to about 26 percent despite the two increases in the official price by devaluation of the dollar. Although official U.S. policy is the eventual demonetization of gold, this is a long way down the road. And before gold can be eliminated as a metal of monetary value, a substitute must be found which will be as stable and reliable as gold.

One possible substitute is the SDR—the Special Drawing Right deliberately created by the International Monetary Fund to provide additional liquidity to finance international trade. The SDR does not exist except as a bookkeeping entry in the ledgers of the IMF member nations. It can be expanded, however, as a replacement for the dollar as the free world's currency of transaction by vesting it with all the good faith and credit of all IMF member nations.

For better or worse, the free world seems headed toward a credit-based system of international finance. Although the American economy remains the largest in the world, it no longer is omnipotent and confidence in the dollar has been seriously undermined. Even if America's trading partners would permit it—and they could not—the official price of gold would have to be quadrupled from its present level of $42.22 an ounce before the U.S. could hope to redeem the dollars now held by foreign central banks.

The continuing flight from paper currency should provide the incentive that is needed to reform the international monetary system. Such a system must provide some method of automatic adjustments of currency values to reflect fundamental changes in a nation's balance of payments. It also must define the future role of gold, if any, in international monetary affairs.

We can't afford to wait very long for such reforms. The recent dollar devaluation, like the Smithsonian agreement that preceded it, is only a stopgap measure. There will be other currency crises, whether in the dollar or some other weak currency, and they may be worse than the last one. Each new crisis inevitably will bring the world closer to protectionism, trading blocs, and destructive trade wars. The time to act is now.

"Far better it is to dare mighty things, to win glorious triumphs, even though checked by failure, than to take rank with those poor spirits who neither enjoy much nor suffer much, because they live in the gray twilight that knows not victory nor defeat."

—Theodore Roosevelt

Social Security Q & A

This column of questions and answers on the President's Economic Stabilization Program is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about wages and prices.

Q. Will the Internal Revenue Service answer questions on Phase III?

A. Yes. The Internal Revenue Service will disseminate information and informal guidance in response to public inquiries on Phase III, except that questions received regarding firms with annual sales or revenues of $50 million or more or pay units of 1,000 employees or more will be forwarded to the Cost of Living Council for response.

All requests for interpretations and rulings should be made directly to the Cost of Living Council in Washington, D.C.

Q. Will the Internal Revenue Service continue to receive complaints of price and wage increases?

A. The IRS will receive, investigate and, where possible, resolve by obtaining compliance, complaints received regarding alleged violations in the food and health services industries. Where necessary, the IRS will recommend enforcement action to the Cost of Living Council.

Q. Are doctors, dentists, hospitals and other health providers still subject to base price posting requirements?

A. No. Although health providers are still subject to mandatory wage-price controls, they no longer have to maintain base price schedules for public inspection or post a sign announcing the availability and location of the schedules.

Q. Do posting requirements still apply to food retailers?

A. No. The Phase II posting requirements for retailers have been revoked. However, food wholesalers and retailers must maintain quarterly markup and profit margin records in accordance with regulations issued by the Cost of Living Council.

Q. Are those pay and price adjustments left uncontrolled during Phase II exempt under Phase III rules?

A. Yes. Those items exempted during Phase II continue to be exempt from Phase III controls. For a list of exempted pay and price adjustments, see the Jan. 12, 1973, "Federal Register". It's available for 20 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Q. I operate a grocery store with 15 employees. Do I still have to follow the mandatory Economic Stabilization rules for food retailers?

A. No. The small business exemption is still in effect under the new regulations. This means that if you have an average of 60 or fewer employees, you are exempt from controls.

However, prices and wages of food industry firms remain under control in all those small businesses where more than 50 per cent of the employees are affected by a master employment contract or jointly negotiated contract covering more than 60 workers.

Q. What fiscal years may a firm use in calculating its base period profit margin?

A. Effective Jan. 11, 1973, a firm may use any two of the following fiscal years in calculating its base period profit margins: the three fiscal years ending before Aug. 15, 1971, plus any fiscal year completed on or after Aug. 15, 1971.

Soap Operas Can't Compete With Bus Rides For Good Drama

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Soap operas are all right if you're content with minor-league drama; but if you really want to know what's going on in the suburbs, a commuter bus is where it's at.

Not only does the same cast of characters appear every day, but you get a one-hour segment — uninterrupted by commercials.

Women under the hair dryer in the neighborhood beauty salon are reticent compared with the women — and men — who ride the 7:30 bus I take into Manhattan every weekday morning.

Without benefit of organ music, they go right into their dialogue, audibly reporting the details of their private lives to their seatmates. But if their favorite head-nodder or tisk-tisker hasn't managed to get a place nearby, they shout their confidences across the aisle.

Although our eyes may not be open that early in the morning, our ears unfortunately are, and when they tell all, we hear all.

Thus I have been able to follow the continuing saga of job troubles, in-laws problems, financial worries and love affairs through the humid days of summer and into the shivery days of winter, missing hardly an episode.

By the time the bus reaches my stop and I have to tune out, I have become so involved I can scarcely wait for the next instalment.

Will the man in the third-row window seat get fired because the resentment he has been building up for months finally caused him to explode to his boss?

Will the blonde who still wears a beehive hairdo finally settle for the widower she met on a singles weekend in the Catskills?

Will the aisle-seat financier who made a killing last week in the stock market be just as vocal about all the money he lost yesterday?

Will the son of the modishly dressed man whose ties out-dazzle the sunrise make it into one of those colleges that don't seem to appreciate his brilliance?

Will the loudest member of the back-seat coffee klatch forgive her husband for forgetting to take out the garbage last night?

Alas! I may never know how it all comes out — I missed the 7:30 this morning. But I have a feeling they'll all do a reprise tomorrow.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Monday, March 28, the 85th day of 1973. There are 280 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1953, a new vaccine to immunize against polio was announced by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pennsylvania.

On this date — In 1793, the Holy Roman Empire declared war on France.

In 1804, the Louisiana Purchase was divided into the territory of Orleans and the territory of Louisiana.

In 1895, Japan occupied the Pescadores Islands in the Formosa Strait.

In 1913, more than 1,400 persons perished in floods in Ohio, Indiana and Texas.

In 1918, Marshal Ferdinand Foch of France was named commander of Allied Armies in World War I.

Five years ago: North Vietnamese troops sliced the barbed wire of an artillery outpost in South Vietnam's central highlands and attacked American troops with flamethrowers, grenades and machine guns.

One year ago: The Mediterranean fortress island of Malta and Britain signed an agreement keeping Malta in the Western defense system.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.
Luella was a 4-way winner in her sex contest: For she regained her bridal weight; slipped into a youthful Easter dress; got her mate to stop smoking; and rejuvenated their erotic routine via her superior brand of "bondoir cheese cake."

CASE W-561: Luella B., aged 38, made a wager with her husband.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I am 30 pounds overweight."

"And my husband is a chain cigarette smoker."

"Both of us have grown somewhat platonic since our wedding day 16 years ago."

"And I have read your column daily so I know that obesity and tobacco tend to make us neuter!"

"So I told my husband if he'd stop his cigarettes, I'd take off my extra 30 pounds."

"He was heading out West for a month's sales trip."

"So he said he didn't believe I could diet at all, let alone eliminate 30 pounds."

"But he agreed that if I'd be down 15 pounds the month he was gone, then he'd vow to stop tobacco."

"Dr. Crane, give me another pep talk and outline once more your fan-us 10-day dehydration diet."

DIETING CONTEST

This diet works quite well in cool months and doesn't involve any drugs to overwork your heart or increase your metabolic rate.

Essentially, it means you must shrink your stomach and give your ego a quick tonic the first 10 days.

So you women should limit yourself to 800 calories per day and drink only ONE glass of total fluids the first day.

On the 2nd day, you remain on that 800 calories but may move up to TWO glasses of fluids (soup, milk, beverages, water, etc.).

The third day you are allowed THREE glasses of fluids, but you must stay on your 800-calorie food intake through the 10th day.

An average housewife or office girl will then be down 10 pounds at the end of that 10th day.

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

After a couple of days, you find yourself fairly content on 800 calories intake, especially if you shop around properly.

For example, a cup (8 ounces) of cottage cheese counts approximately 200 calories, but will fill your stomach quite well.

And its protein nourishes your muscles (including the heart) so you don't grow weak.

Besides, protein loses 15 percent of its calories in the process of digestion by what is called the "specific dynamic action" of protein.

No other food does so! And protein is not stored, though you have plenty of fat and sugar in your system, even if you adults weigh "only 100 pounds."

Green beans, raw cabbage and head lettuce count little but are filling.

An average banana counts about 100 calories; a boiled egg, 75.

So save 50 to 100 calories for mid-meal hunger stoppers! Eat half a banana an hour before the next meal time, for that will kill your appetite better than to wait so long that you get gnawing hunger cramps.

Go low on caffeine, limiting yourself to half a cup, for you must stay on your 3-glass total fluids after the 3rd day.

At the end of 10 days, you may move up to 1,200 calories and drink freely.

Luella lost 11 pounds the first 10 days and 4 pounds the next 21 days, so she surprised her "Doubting Thomas" husband.

He then quit his cigarettes and by Easter she was down her 30 pounds.

So send for my booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. It also contains a calorie chart.
