Reed discusses plant's future.

Celanese continues probe Arthur Brothers meets today

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Roads around the damaged Hoechst Celanese Chemical Co. plant were reopened Monday as teams of investigators continued what promises to be a lengthy probe into the cause of explosions that killed three men.

Meanwhile, Celanese officials were busy thinking of ways to help their employees deal with the shock left by Saturday's blast.

Thirty-seven people were injured in the twin explosions that rocked the giant chemical complex and damaged property in Pampa, 6 miles to the east.

The explosions, which came seconds apart without warning, left massive destruction in their wake, destroying two of nine units and damaging most of the remaining plant facilities.

Three Celanese employees died in the disaster: Richard Charles Wilson, 25, of 1128 Terrace St.; Eugene Presley Turner, 60, of 1109 Starkweather St.; and Ernest Joe Barnett, 43, of White Deer.

Several hundred people attended funeral services for Turner this morning at Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ. Services for Barnett were to be held at 2 p.m. today, while services for Wilson were planned for Wednesday.

Three of the injured remained hospitalized this morning, although officials at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas said Bob Wilson, 52, of Pampa, who had been treated for eye injuries suffered in the blast, could be released sometime today. Wilson is a contractor for Omni, a Kansas City-based firm that was doing work at the plant.

Elsewhere, Celanese operator Gary Starns, 42, 1526 N. Sumner St., was listed in serious condition at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo with arm and leg injuries, and Bennie Woodward of Panhandle, also a Celanese operator, was in stable condition at Pampa's Coronado Hospital.

Meanwhile, about 200 employees of Arthur Brothers Inc., which did contract work at the plant, were scheduled to meet at 3 p.m. today at M.K. Brown Auditorium to learn about their job status in the wake of the explosions.

Celanese spokesman Herb Reed of Dallas said today that Celanese surveillance, damage-assessment and investigating teams were the only people being allowed into the plant. The teams are made up mostly of employees of the Pampa plant but include experts from company facilities in Dallas, Corpus Christi and New Jersey, Reed said.

The teams are trying to determine the cause of the blast and what needs to be done to rebuild the plant. Celanese officials are making no promises about rebuilding the facility, Pampa's largest private employer, but say they are optimistic about its future.

Officials with the Environmental Protection Agency monitored air quality around the plant Sunday but returned to Dallas Monday. The officials were satisfied that areas away from the plant were not threatened by any toxic substances, said EPA spokeswoman Karen Brown of Dallas.

Officials with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration arrived at the plant Sunday and are investigating any possible health or safety violations involved with the explosion. The federal agency also is conducting an independent investigation into the cause of the blast, said OSHA spokesman Dean McDaniel of Lubbock.

McDaniel said OSHA will interview employees and conduct an on-site inspection. He said it may take weeks to complete the agency's report.

With an annual payroll exceeding $15 million, Pampa and Gray County officials agree that the loss of Celanese to the community would deliver a crushing blow to the area economy. Celanese also pays roughly $2 million in state and local taxes each year and annually makes $85 million in area purchases.

Concern about the future of the plant, which has been in Pampa for 35 years, has prompted a strong show of community support for the plant.

That continued at Monday night's Pampa school board meeting, when trustees offered Celanese the use of school facilities and any support "we can." School board President Joe VanZandt called the firm a "good corporate citizen."

Superintendent Harry Griffith said Celanese taxes fund roughly one-sixth of the school district's budget.

Although roads around the plant reopened Monday, Reed cautioned citizens without official business in the area to stay away. Texas Department of Public Safety troopers remained posted at the plant's entrance along Farm to Market Road 2300 late Monday.

"It's as safe as we can make it, but it's not a playground," Reed said of the plant site. "We don't want to put anybody at any unnecessary risk."

"We discourage anybody from going out there unless they've got official business," he added.

Fire burns Pampan, destroys repair shop

By PAUL PINKHAM

KINGSMILL — Forgive Jim Burns if he's looking over his shoulder a lot these days.

In fact, forgive the whole Burns family.

Burns, 28, of Route 1, Pampa, escaped serious injury Monday when fire destroyed his father's all-purpose auto repair shop in Kingsmill.

Just two days earlier, most of the windows in his father's trailer, adjacent to the shop, had been shattered by twin explosions at the Celanese Chemical plant a short distance away.

Burns said he was underneath his 1976 model pickup truck, working on fuel lines Monday afternoon, when an electric switching valve sparked, setting the truck's two loaded gas tanks ablaze.

His hands and arms covered with minor burns, Burns said he tried to extinguish the blaze with a fire extinguisher that was in the shop, but it didn't work. He then ran to the house to get another extinguisher.

"By the time I got back out, it was too late," Burns said. He then called the Pampa Fire Department, which responded with about 10 men and three units.

Burns' pickup truck and the building, along with what Burns said amounted to $30,000 to $40,000 worth of tools, were destroyed.

Assistant Pampa Fire Chief Ray Fisher said fire crews were hampered by having to shuttle back and forth across U.S. Highway 60 to a fire hydrant. He said firefighters

County may change its investments

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Gray County commissioners continued discussions on a new investment policy but again tabled any action to consider various options at a later meeting.

Meeting Friday with the commissioners, Gray County Treasurer Scott Hahn said the county has no written investment policy as required under state law.

The county has generally just continued to make its investments through the purchase of certificates of deposit or NOW market accounts through its depository bank without considering other investment options, Hahn said.

While those have produced money for the county, there are other investment routes that could generate more revenues in today's investment market, Hahn said. Other investment avenues could include shopping for better interest rates in other financial institutions than the depository bank or even investing through brokerage houses.

Despite the county's past policy of investing strictly through its depository bank, the county is not required either by its contract with the bank or by state law to make investments at one place, Hahn said.

Hahn said he feels the county is "legally bound, and certainly morally bound, to try to produce

School gives final approval to AIDS policy

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Less than a week after 600 people showed up to learn more about AIDS at a school-sponsored meeting, Pampa school trustees unanimously approved a policy for dealing with the deadly disease in schools.

With little comment Monday, the board put a communicable disease policy into effect by passing it on second and final reading. School policy changes in Texas must pass two readings before taking effect.

The quiet vote came six days after 600 Pampa citizens jammed a meeting on AIDS at Pampa Middle School. The meeting featured area doctors and health officials, Texas Department of Health representatives and the school district's lawyer.

Prior to Monday's vote, board President Joe VanZandt read a letter from a citizen commending the district for holding the informational meeting.

The new policy was recommended to all school districts in the state by the Texas Education Agency and the state health department. It also has been approved in Lefors and White Deer and has been discussed in other area towns.

Under the policy:

- Students with AIDS and other communicable diseases will attend class, except in unusual circumstances such as open sores, biting behavior and lack of toilet training, or for the victims' own protection. Those removed from school will be provided homebound or special education.

- Employees with AIDS or other diseases will continue working, unless their condition affects work performance or risks spreading the disease. Employees can be granted a leave of absence or be fired if they exceed the amount of sick or temporary disability leave to which they are entitled.

- School officials can't require AIDS testing of employees or students. Testing can be ordered by the health department or the courts.

- Officials must obey strict confidentiality. See AIDS, Page 2

Quake hits near Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A severe earthquake struck off the south-central Alaska coast, shaking Anchorage 270 miles away, authorities said today.

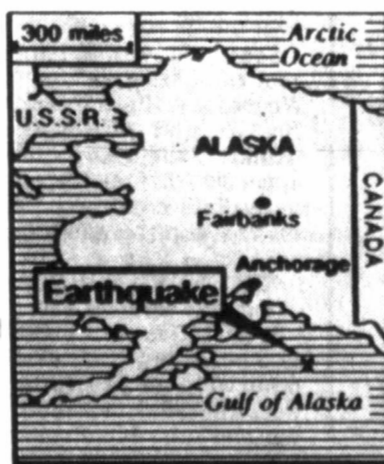

There were no immediate reports of injury or damage, but thousands of coastal residents awakened by sirens and police loudspeakers fled homes in low-lying coastal communities.

The quake struck at 11:46 p.m. Monday, (3:46 a.m. EST today), and had a preliminary Richter scale magnitude of 6.9, said Alec Medbery of the Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer.

The U.S. Geological Survey at Golden, Colo., said it recorded the quake at 6.8 on the Richter scale.

Officials issued a tsunami, or tidal wave, warning for most of the Alaska and British Columbia coasts. It was canceled about 1½ hours later when tidal gauges indicated a rise of only four inches or less at villages closest to the quake's epicenter, the warning center said.

Canadian still an officer short

CANADIAN — Reserve police officers called for duty are under the same insurance coverage as regular police officers, Canadian city officials learned Monday at their regular meeting.

The City Council had asked Police Chief Phil Taylor to look into the status of insurance coverage for reserve officers, who had been used heavily since the resignation of Canadian police officer Donald Dunn in September. The force had lost another position in August when Taylor was promoted to chief and council members voted not to hire a replacement.

Canadian City Manager Dean Looper said the police force, which is down to two members, has had to rely on the three-member reserve force. Reserves tallied 171 hours last month, Looper said.

"We have used them for minor patrols, stand by at dances or control for heavy traffic," he said.

Taylor told the council that, after checking with the Texas Municipal League, he learned that reserve officers on duty are under the same coverage as regular officers.

Looper reported that the city is still looking for a third police officer, but there is no deadline.

"We're going slowly because we're screening applicants very carefully," Looper said. "We are requiring one year law enforcement experience as well as state law enforcement certification."

In other city business, the council "very reluctantly" approved a negotiation settlement on a

In other business, council members authorized City Attorney Ty Sparks to contact North Plains Electric Co-op to respond to a city request on a franchise agreement. Looper said that in January, the council voted to collect a 2 percent fee from co-op customers living in the city. The city heard no reply from North Plains.

Council members also turned down a request by residents in Buffalo Hills division southeast of the city for trash pick up. Council members told division representatives that the division would have to be annexed to get city service. The city agreed earlier to provide trash service to an industrial park just west of town.

Council members authorized Looper and City Engineer Dwight Brandt to fix an apparent drainage problem at Rachael's Little House Day Care Center.

Thursday at M.K. Brown Auditorium, 1100 Coronado Drive.
"We're going to meet with employees periodically," Reed said.

He said the meetings will update Celanese employees on the situation at the plant and address "people concerns."

During Thursday's meeting, he said, McBunch plans to take a "skills inventory" from employees, asking them what skills they might have to assist in cleanup and possible rebuilding efforts.

A room for employees "to gather and talk" has been opened at the National Bank of Commerce Plaza, 1224 N. Hobart St., Reed added.

Celanese administrators, meanwhile, have set up shop in the Hughes Building, 408 W. Kingsmill Ave. The new company telephone number is 669-1081, and Reed said a hotline for employees to call for information is being established.

Canadian

proposed city rate increase by High Plains Natural Gas, Looper said.

The rate increase would raise transmission rates — or "gate fees" — by 89 1/2 cents per million cubic feet of gas transported to the city. Perryton, Booker and Higgins are also affected by the rate proposal. Miami is not affected.

"We'd have to pay the expenses out of our budget," Looper said, adding that High Plains customers would feel the increase.

Looper said only three council members were at the meeting. Two of them, Lonnie Donaldson and Lee Hendershot, approved the proposal — Donaldson "less than enthusiastically" and Hendershot "under protest," Looper said. Yvonne McDaniel voted against the proposal.

Celanese

Tow trucks could be seen pulling damaged vehicles from the company parking lot Monday. Reed said the vehicles are being taken to A-1 Automotive, 1700 N. Price Road, where insurance representatives will inspect them for damages.

Southwestern Public Service trucks also hovered about the plant Monday, apparently checking their equipment and a system Celanese used to sell electricity to the electric company.

Celanese officials, including Pampa Plant Manager Ron Guard and the plant's manager of human resources, Jane McBunch, have been relaying information to employees via live daily broadcasts on KGRO Radio at 3 p.m.

Reed said a second in a series of private employee meetings has been scheduled for 7 p.m.

Fire

couldn't run a hose from the hydrant to the shop because that would have meant crossing both the highway and Santa Fe Railway tracks with the hose.

Fisher also said the fire had "a head start" on firefighters.
"About all we could do at that point, as much of a head start as it had on us, was cool it down and protect the area," Fisher said. He added that Texas Department of Public Safety troopers were called in because ammunition being stored in the tin building began popping and exploding.

Firefighters spent close to four hours at the scene.
The Burns family has to be wondering what's next. Jim Burns probably would have been called in to Celanese Saturday to help repair a downed coal boiler, had he not been away hunting.

The explosion at the plant, which left three dead and 37 injured, blew out windows in the home of Jesse Burns, Jim's father, adjacent to the shop that burned Monday.

County

more money for taxpayers" through its investments in efforts to help keep taxes down for the taxpayers.

Commissioner Jim Greene expressed some reservations about changing the investment procedures followed in the past.

"You're talking about making more money," Greene told Hahn. "And any time you're talking about that, you're talking about taking more risks," adding that Hahn's suggestions sounded to him "like speculating in the market."

"I don't think we should be speculating with county money," Greene stated.

Hahn said he is not "talking about speculating one penny's worth," adding that he's not planning to play the stock market. The treasurer said the investments he is proposing are secured investments backed by government funds.

He said the investments are only those involving the county's capital funds that are deemed available by the county auditor for deposit investment purposes.

"I can't foresee any situation in which we would not be 100 percent secured and protected in these investments," Hahn said.

But the county has been losing money because of its current restrictive investment procedures, he claimed. By purchasing CDs and NOW market accounts only through the depository bank, the county is failing to take advantage of higher interest rates that might be gained from other institutions and investment options, thus costing the taxpayers money, Hahn said.

In response to commissioners' concerns that the county's money should remain in Gray County, Hahn said he has no objection to that limitation. But even within the county, there may be days when CDs or other similar investments may be purchased at a better interest rate from one institution than from another, he said.

Some commissioners raised questions about Hahn's proposal that the auditor and treasurer should be given authority to make investments as the money is available and then later gain the commissioners' ratification of the action.

They also questioned whether permitting the treasurer that authority also is shifting the investment responsibility away from the auditor.

County Judge Carl Kennedy said, as he understands it, the auditor is not presently the one actually putting the money into CDs and market accounts.

Kennedy said the auditor makes a recommendation to the commission that money is available to invest. If the court agrees to invest, then the treasurer is directed to make the investments, he said.

Hahn's proposal would not change that procedure, Kennedy said.

The only thing that would change is that the treasurer would be able to pursue several options on where to invest the designated amount.

Commissioner Ted Simmons generally supported Hahn's investment policy proposal, as long as the money remains in the county.

Noting that as far as he knows the county has never rejected an auditor's request to invest money, Simmons said he feels the auditor and treasurer should have the authority to invest the money as it is available in order to be able to take advantage of interest rates that can change daily.

"That's just a help to the taxpayers, if we can make more money," Simmons said. "It's actually a savings ... I think we ought to put some trust in our auditor and treasurer," he added, saying the commissioners have trusted their decisions in the past.

At Kennedy's suggestion, commissioners tabled any action on Hahn's proposal, recommending that Hahn bring back some other options to discuss in formulating a specific written policy.

In other action last week, commissioners:

- awarded a bid to Culberson-Stowers Inc. for $11,905 for a new 3/4-ton pickup;
- cast all its 985 votes for James McCracken for election to the Gray County Appraisal District Board of Directors;
- approved a request for County Clerk Wanda Carter to attend a conference on vital statistics in Austin in December;
- authorized a contract with Calame, Linebarger and Graham's branch office in Odessa for collecting delinquent taxes;
- and met in executive session to discuss acquisition of property but took no action after reconvening in public session.

AIDS

ity rules and face fines of up to $5,000 if they release AIDS victims' names.

Decisions on health risks and who will know the names of victims will be left up to a committee that includes the school nurse and local health experts.

The confidentiality issue caused the most concern at last week's meeting, as teachers and parents asked questions about liability if an unwitting classmate or employee catches AIDS from a victim.

School attorney John Aldridge of Austin said those uncomfortable with any part of the policy should contact state legislators.

In other business Monday, Superintendent Harry Griffith informed the board of a plan to hire an additional school nurse for either the middle school or high school. He said Marjorie Penn currently serves both schools.

Griffith recommended dropping one nurse's aide position, and paying another aide with available federal special education funds. That would save the district about $17,000, and an additional nurse would cost roughly $18,000, Griffith said.

"We would double our services at the secondary level," he said.
The board will formally consider the proposal at its Dec. 14 meeting. Trustees expressed support of the plan Monday.

Griffith also said the school nurses have been spending too much time asking parents to get their children immunized. He said the school district plans to send letters home with students, notifying parents that if they don't get their youngsters immunized, the district will file truancy charges against them under state law.

Trustees also:

- approved 1 p.m. dismissal for Nov. 25, the day before Thanksgiving, and for the last day of school.
- divided their votes for the Gray County Appraisal District Board of Directors between Ken Fields, Jim Olsen and Benny Kirksey, all currently members of the appraisal district board;
- offered school facilities and support to Celanese Chemical Co. in the wake of Saturday's fatal explosion at the firm's Pampa plant;
- honored the high school girls' volleyball team and members of the Gray County 4-H Food and Nutrition Project;
- appointed members of the Textbook Committee, made up of teachers and administrators, to decide on textbooks to be used in the schools;
- approved an amendment trimming the district's budget by $15,000;
- accepted an audit of school books performed by Lewis Meers; and
- approved a list of minor TEA policy changes on second reading.

Accounting firm has bleak outlook for oil business

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil prices, which plummeted to $10 per barrel last year and now hover around the $20 mark, must exceed $30 per barrel to halt the growing dependence on foreign oil, a major accounting firm says.

In a bleak eighth annual oil and gas reserve disclosures survey, Arthur Andersen & Co. also said Monday that U.S. oil producers are trimming spending because of lower crude prices and cannot keep pace with domestic demand, meaning the nation will grow even more dependent on imported oil.

"Few expect near-term market and political forces to drive oil prices up to those levels," Richard C. Adkerson, managing director of the firm, said.

"Absent price increases, or government actions — about which there is great controversy — to compensate for lower prices, continuation of present conditions will result in a severe and inevitable increase in our nation's dependence on foreign oil producers."

"The plain fact is that current exploration and development spending is far too low to prevent a further and significant slide in domestic production of oil," added David Moore, director of the Arthur Andersen survey of 270 energy companies.

In addition, the survey concluded that the cost of finding oil is too high to ensure a fair profit, that a recent rebound in drilling activity is not likely to result in higher discoveries and that drilling costs are likely to rise now that equipment surpluses left over from the early 1980s boom finally have been depleted.

The firm also forecasts that to keep imports at the present levels, spending by domestic companies will have to double by 1995.

"1986 clearly is a new world," Adkerson said. "To put it in perspective, in 1985 we saw a good deal of optimism. But much of the optimism began to fade."

Reserve replacements are down 30 percent, production is flat and spending is off by $17 billion, down 47 percent from the previous year, Moore said.

If demand increases by just 1 percent, the 6 million barrels of oil now imported daily will grow to 10 million by 1995, comprising 55 percent of all oil and natural gas liquids, according to Arthur Andersen.

Moore and Adkerson said that the need for further domestic exploration also comes at a time when banks are more reluctant to make energy loans.

"The memory of that $10 oil is going to plague bank lending for some time to come," Adkerson said. "Financing is available but limited. Until (oil prices) get higher, there will be problems with financing."

On the positive side, Adkerson said some companies have been making money and oil prices — even at $20 — have been much higher than some analysts had predicted.

"Prices held stronger than we would have thought, but that support is under a lot of pressure," he said.

He said the stock market tumble, while having the potential to drive oil prices down, also could attract more investment into oil, as a volatile energy market looks more attractive than an even more volatile stock market.

Clements to visit tornado-hit areas

PALESTINE (AP) — Residents in tornado-ravaged areas of Texas readied for a visit from Gov. Bill Clements today as they set about the task of putting their homes, businesses and lives back into order.

Clements planned an afternoon tour of Palestine and nearby Jacksonville, two of the towns hardest hit by tornadoes, after which much of the state could be declared state and federal disaster areas — a forerunner for various types of government rebuilding aid.

The National Weather Service said as many as 32 tornadoes were reported Monday across Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, bringing the two-day total of rare November twisters to 66 in the three-state area.

Texas took the heaviest hit, with the tornadoes claiming 10 lives, injuring more than 160 people and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Fair weather returned to much of Texas by Monday afternoon, and across the state, residents cleaned up under patchy blue skies amid the buzz of chain saws.

Statewide, the fury unleashed by the storms caused property damage in more than two dozen counties. Mike Scott, program manager with the emergency management division of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said no total damage estimate would be available until at least Tuesday.

Clements was to fly to Dallas this afternoon and then on to Palestine, about 100 miles to the southeast, for a 2 p.m. tour of the town where at least 86 businesses and more than 200 homes were damaged on Sunday. Later in the afternoon, he planned to visit Jacksonville, 25 miles northeast of Palestine, where two people were killed and 75 injured in a tornado that destroyed eight homes, 27 mobile homes and a VFW hall.

Sunday's tornadoes began about noon in Central Texas, north of Austin, and churned north-easterly for more than 200 miles. Monday's twisters were concentrated along the upper Texas Gulf Coast and in Southeast Texas. Trees were reported down and a few homes damaged from a tornado at 2:40 a.m. Monday in Orange, in the extreme southeast corner of the state.

A tornado touched down in downtown Angleton, 40 miles south of Houston, at 8:20 a.m. Monday, blowing the roofs off several businesses and knocking windowns out of cars on the courthouse square.

U.S. Highway 87, on the Sabine River separating Texas from Louisiana in far Southeast Texas, was closed between Port Arthur and Sabine Pass in mid-morning Monday because of flooding from high tides.

Only one fatality was reported from Monday's tornadoes in Texas, in contrast to the nine who perished on Sunday.

A worker was killed in Markham, 80 miles southwest of Houston, about 8:15 a.m. Monday when he fell from a Texaco oil drilling rig that was toppled by high winds. Nearby, U.S. Highway 60, was blocked when high winds blew a railroad car off a track.

After American Red Cross officials provide an estimate of local damage, a request for aid may be submitted, said David W. Barham, also with the DPS division of Emergency Management.

"They're putting their numbers together," Barham said. "What we're looking for now is the amount of insured damage."

Because many of the businesses damaged probably are insured, securing federal aid may be difficult, Barham said.

Hearing aids available for dogs

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Hearing aids for dogs are now available through Texas A&M, whose College of Veterinary Medicine is the only place in the state where hearing loss in dogs can be tested.

Older dogs who have lost their hearing are now able to hear oncoming cars, imminent danger and their master's call — all of which may have been silenced before — says the only board-certified veterinary neurologist in the state, Dr. Patricia Lutgen.

"It's not all that uncommon for dogs to live well into their teens these days — thanks to advances in veterinary medicine," said Lutgen. "With the hearing aid, they can have a better quality of life because that human-animal contact is being maintained."

The device used for testing the type and degree of deafness in dogs is called an electrodiagnostic unit. Texas A&M has the only technology in the state that tests dogs for hearing disorders. The hearing aids themselves were developed last year at Auburn University.

Lutgen said testing for deafness is essential to find out if a dog has conduction deafness, which is helped by the hearing aid, or nerve deafness, which is not.

Lutgen places electrodes under the dog's skin by its ear over the part of the brain where hearing is perceived. By stimulating the ear with sound, an electrical pattern of that stimulation is recorded. Lutgen is then able to discern which ear is worse and what kind of deafness is involved.

When dogs get older, the ossicles — little bones in the middle ear that transmit vibrations — don't vibrate as well as they should.

Dog hearing aids are just like human hearing aids in that they have a volume control and the same electronics. The only difference is they have a long neck which is nestled in a contractable cylinder of foam that expands to fit in the dog's ear.

"That's the way we keep the cost down — human aids have to be fitted exactly to an individual's ear and bought individually — dog hearing aids can be purchased in bulk and fit any dog over five pounds — from Pekingese to German Shepherd — because the foam makes it fit exactly," Lutgen explained.

Hearing aids for dogs cost $250 plus tax, with batteries and foam the only replacement costs. The aids are manufactured in Port Huron, Mich., and can be obtained through Lutgen at Texas A&M's Small Animal Clinic.

Forecast of Texas economy: Slow but steady growth seen

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas will continue a slow but steady growth pattern in 1988, an economist says, gaining 65,000 new jobs, including 20,000 in the hard-hit Houston area.

James L. Cochrane, senior vice president and chief economist of Texas Commerce Bancshares Inc., said Monday that the number of predicted new jobs is a positive sign, even if it is not fantastic by Texas' historical standards.

The new jobs should be of higher quality than in past years and concentrated mainly in manufacturing, he said.

"Texas and Houston are continuing to recover from last year's blows. We see this recovery continuing into 1988," Cochrane said.

"We see Texas recovering at the end of the first quarter of 1988. Houston, obviously, has more to go to get back to where we were," he said.

From the beginning of the oil-patch problems in January 1986, Houston shed 7,500 jobs a month, but that stopped this summer, Cochrane said. During the last several years, jobs have been growing by about 200,000 a month nationally, he said.

"Recent U.S. job growth has, quite frankly, been a higher quality than those of past years, in terms of incomes and secondary impacts on local areas," he said.

Barring a national recession, he said he expects growth in manufacturing jobs to continue, with Texas and Houston in particular sharing in that growth.

A national recession, he said, would blunt but not stop the progress.

"If we do have a national recession, we are so well positioned in Houston and in Texas because we've gone through two periods of leaning down this decade," Cochrane said.

A recession would not affect the rig count, he said. The monthly count probably will top 1,200 in December and will average 1,200 next year, he said.

Cochrane said to avoid a national recession, Congress must produce a budget settlement that convinces Americans real progress has been made. That needs to be done by Thanksgiving, he added.

Before the stock market frenzy last month, consumer spending was at an 18-month high. Less spending during the upcoming Christmas season also could add to a recession, he said.

Report: TDC has reduced violence by isolating dangerous convicts

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Corrections has reduced murders and assaults by isolating its most dangerous convicts, a report by a national prisons expert says.

Dr. James Austin of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency said Monday the "classification" system, or housing scheme at TDC, in which inmates are assigned living quarters based on sophisticated criteria, has ended the gang warfare in which 52 inmates were killed during 1984 and 1985.

Austin said the inmates remain fearful of their safety, though, and many of the newly hired security officers are reluctant to patrol some areas of the prisons.

The results of a survey Austin conducted on the TDC's housing plant for the court-appointed special master overseeing the prison system's operations concluded that "TDC is doing an excellent job of monitoring" inmate cell or dormitory assignments.

With about 2,800 inmates housed alone, Austin said his investigation revealed that "no doubled celled inmates were plainly too assaultive or too vulnerable to be housed in a double cell."

He also concluded that "homicide, suicide and escape rates within TDC are similar or lower than comparable state prison systems."

Five homicides have been reported at TDC this year, compared with 24 in 1984 and 27 in 1985. Non-fatal stabbings have dropped from 404 in 1984 to 58 this year.

Austin's report shows that TDC has been transformed from the days when inmates known as "building tenders" ruled the cellblocks, according to Assistant Attorney General Scott McCown.

"When you changed from a prisoner-controlled system to a staff-controlled system, you were basically building a prison from the ground up," McCown said. "What Austin's report says is they got the job done."

But Austin found that inmates and guards still are unsure of the new system.

Professor halts rescue tape sales

ODESSA (AP) — Because state-owned equipment was used, a professor has pulled off the market a videotape showing the dramatic rescue of Jessica McClure, the toddler who was stuck for 58 hours in an underground well shaft.

The tape was made by Bob Wakefield, an adjunct professor at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin.

University officials say they're concerned that Wakefield, who teaches a television production class, might have used school equipment to produce the videotapes, which he sold for $19.95 plus $3 for postage.

"We're checking into the circumstances to see if university equipment was used to shoot the project," Warren Gardner, UTPB vice president for academic affairs, said late last week. "But I'm quite sure that if he did, he did it unwittingly," he said.

The tape, begun as a class project, shows the final 36 hours of the rescue of the child, who fell into the well last month and was wedged in the narrow shaft.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally

Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"

According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public

If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W992, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800)527-9700, ext. W992.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Leave edict would strap businessmen

The Senate is considering a bill that on the surface just sounds great. It would force companies with more than 15 workers to give employees up to 18 weeks of unpaid leave for the birth, adoption, or serious illness of a child; and up to 26 weeks of unpaid leave for serious health problems.

That's the hope. In reality the bill would hurt employees.

The Chamber of Commerce estimates the bill would cost American companies from $2.6 billion to $16.2 billion. Congress's General Accounting Office, which is controlled by liberal Democrats, said the figure would be only $500 million. Who can say what the real number is? But since Congress is so isolated from the reality of American life, the chamber figure is likely more accurate.

Whatever the figure, this is no time to add costs to business. The country faces a possible recession. And businesses are just achieving success in exporting to new foreign markets. We need fewer restraints on businesses, not more.

What is certain is that the new bill would force layoffs, thus hurting the employees it's supposed to help. It would burden businesses with up to $16 billion in new costs. And, unlike Congress, which passes huge budget deficits year after year, a business has to meet a bottom line.

Sen. Christopher Dodd says hearings before the Labor and Human Resources subcommittee on children, families, drugs, and alcoholism, of which he is chairman, showed "without a doubt the need for a minimum federal standard to protect both families and businesses." What socialist drivel. The bill could drive some businesses into bankruptcy and some families into unemployment and welfare dependency.

Actually, most American companies have already — on their own, without government orders — instituted generous leave policies. And such policies, in contrast to rigid government edicts, flexibly meet individual company and employee needs.

Indeed, assuming laws such as the Dodd proposal don't kill the economic expansion, the problem today is that there aren't enough employees to go around. Unemployment is at 5.8 percent and dropping.

Then there is the question of constitutionality, the document whose 200th anniversary we're celebrating. The 10th Amendment states: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people." Because the Constitution delegates to Congress no powers to regulate business hours or schedules, that means that such "powers... are... reserved to the people" — the businessmen and employees concerned.

Public accepts marijuana use

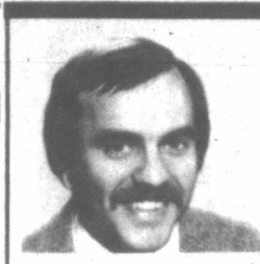

I suspect I'm not the only American whose first reaction to the news that Douglas Ginsburg had smoked marijuana was not shock but relief. Here was proof positive that, as a Supreme Court justice, he would be a spectacular disappointment to Ed Meese. Each passing day made it harder to picture him in the appointed role of point man for the Moral Majority. More likely he'd wind up as High Times magazine's Man of the Year.

His past implied that Ginsburg might depart from Republican practice and actually advance liberty, not just pay it pious rhetorical homage. In fact, the parade of revelations suggested that the Reagan administration had a shrewd strategy for getting its nominee confirmed by a Democratic Senate. At least he would have been sure of Al Gore's vote. If Robert Bork had managed to get himself photographed sucking on a joint, he'd be Justice Bork now.

It wasn't the outrage of the public but the worries of the administration that sunk Ginsburg. A USA Today-CNN poll found that 69 percent of the American people didn't think an acquaintance with cannabis should be a disqualification from the Supreme Court.

The poll didn't reveal what percentage thinks it should be a requirement. Among the 62 million Americans who have used marijuana, there are probably at least a few million who believe they deserve representation in the judiciary, as they already have in the executive and legislative branches.

Unfortunately, the 26 percent of the people who see an incompatibility between marijuana use and the Supreme Court included a few high-ranking Reagan aides, in addition to some key senators. What was reassuring to libertarians was nauseating to the New Eight. It wasn't clear what the administration was most afraid of — that Ginsburg wouldn't be confirmed or that he would be.

The odds are 50-1 that the new nominee, Judge Anthony Kennedy, can't even spell marijuana. The trouble for this and future administrations is that the new character standards radically shrink the pool of possible choices. Sainly lawyers are a rare commodity.

Kennedy may have received the nomination only by default. I have it on good authority that one promising candidate has been disqualified for three unpaid parking tickets, and that another was dropped when it was learned he was caught looking up Mary Beth Grigsby's dress in his 8th-grade algebra class. Another whose past was perfectly unblemished declined the honor, fearing that serving on the Supreme Court would spoil his chances of becoming pope.

But maybe the ostentatious moralizing will eventually pass. This is one case where public opinion is far ahead of politicians. No one believes that Al Gore and Bruce Babbitt have doomed their White House hopes by confessing to youthful samplings of dope. If they lose, it will be because they advocate the wrong policies or make dull speeches or fail to get their voters to the polls. Likewise, Ginsburg very well might have won confirmation if the administration had waited for Washington's hysteria to pass.

That doesn't mean the press shouldn't have reported his marijuana use. Better to reveal too much than revert to the cozy silence of the past, when reporters kept secrets from the public to protect politicians. After a few such episodes, we may discover that the public is perfectly able to judge which weaknesses are relevant to public service and which are not.

In fact, the public's sound instincts are already apparent. Most people greeted the Ginsburg revelations with a yawn. The admissions by Gore and Babbitt got hardly any attention at all. And Pat Robertson, despite his dependence on fundamentalist Christians, doesn't seem to have been hurt by the report that his first child was conceived before he was married.

The Ginsburg affair also dramatizes our ambivalence about marijuana. A Newsweek poll found that while 77 percent of Americans think it shouldn't be legalized, only 4 percent said they would report someone to the police for using it. The prevailing attitude is that the laws should be kept but not enforced. Americans are conservative in form but libertarian in practice.

Given that comfortable hypocrisy, most people were willing to overlook Douglas Ginsburg's dope-smoking past. In this case, the average American showed an admirable mature attitude toward human imperfection. Now if the politicians would only grow up.

Computers prompt panic attack

A University of Connecticut study has indicated that at least 25 percent of the population suffers from something known as computer anxiety.

Put simply, the results of the study mean that 25 percent of us feel like throwing up every time we hear about or are confronted with computers.

Why is this? The study answered that as well. It said computer phobia is caused by a number of things, such as the fear that computers might take one's job, the fear that a person might not be able to learn to operate the computer successfully and even the fear of somehow breaking one of the expensive mechanisms.

I suppose my friends and colleagues would find out sooner or later anyway, so I might as well go ahead and admit I am afflicted with computer anxiety myself.

I do all my work on a 1959 model manual typewriter. It won't do anything but type words on a sheet of paper, but quite frankly that's all I need it to do.

"But with a word processor," people say to me, "you can store information, edit your copy right there on the screen, blah, blah, blah."

Yeah, and I could faint and break out in a painful rash, too.

Lewis Grizzard

I'm not certain when I first developed computer anxiety. Perhaps it goes back to my freshman year in college. At registration they handed me a computer card for each class I selected.

On each card were the ominous words DO NOT BEND, FOLD, STAPLE, SPINDLE OR MUTILATE.

The card didn't say what would happen to me if I bent, folded, stapled, spindled, or mutilated them, but the inference was that if I did somehow commit one or more of those transgressions against a card, a harsh and swift penalty would be forthcoming.

I maintained a constant vigil over my cards, but one of my fellow students got strawberry jam on one of his. We never were quite certain what happened to him, but rumor circulated he was taken to a vacant warehouse and flogged with black board erasers.

All that those of us with computer anxiety ask is that you try to understand us.

Don't say things that might hurt our feelings such as referring to us as "backward" or "stupid" or "stubborn" or "air-brained boobs." We prefer to be called the "technically impaired."

Also, do not talk about computers when you are around us. We often turn violent when we tire of computer conversation, and we start looking around for something or somebody to bend, staple, spindle or mutilate.

If people who like and understand computers and those of us who despise them don't learn to coexist, then what very well might result is two separate societies, computer persons in one and the technically impaired in the other.

I would hate to see it come to that, but those of us in the minority on this issue must stand firm and alert our detractors that we have no desire to be around computers or to have computers infringe upon our lives any further than they already have.

And you can bet your floppy disk on it.

Dealing with Canada like kissing a sister

By William A. Rusher

For most Americans, reading about Canada is a bit like kissing one's sister: The experience inherently lacks zing. And the sibling analogy can be extended. Canadians are understandably annoyed because Americans tend to take them for granted. But of course we take them for granted for the same reason we take a brother or sister for granted: because they are there, and always have been and always will be, occupying a big chunk of the foreground of our lives. They can never seem exotic, precisely because they are so familiar.

When it comes to statistics, unless you are bored by those too, the situation gets more interesting. Together, the territories of the United States and Canada are very nearly as big as the Soviet Union. Economically it may be useful to imagine Canada as a sort of California — almost exactly the same number of people (more than 25 million), strung out across the southern region of the country, along its border with the United States

Like California too, Canada is a prodigious producer. It has considerably less than half as many people as Britain, or France, or Germany, or Italy, and little more than a fifth as many as Japan; yet it sells more things to the United States, and buys more from us, than any of these. Canada is, in fact, our biggest trading partner, and we are Canada's.

That is why the Reagan administration's recent trade accord with Canada, looking toward the creation of a genuinely free market for commerce between the two countries, is so important. If ratified (and there remains some lingering doubt about this, as far as the Canadian Parliament is concerned), it will accelerate the economic development of both countries — creating more jobs, and just generally more prosperity, on both sides of the border.

That, in turn, may help to slow down or even reverse one of the most alarming tendencies currently visible in the politics of Canada: the growing influence of the leftist New Democratic Party. Currently the national government is in the hands of the Progressive Conservatives, who constitute the right wing of Canada's political spectrum and are comparable to Rockefeller Republicans. The official opposition is provided by the Liberal Party (roughly equivalent to our Democrats), which was long accustomed to running Canada but went into temporary eclipse upon the retirement of its charismatic leader, Pierre Trudeau.

Unlike the Liberals, whose traditional stronghold has been French-speaking Quebec, the New Democratic Party is a wild hair that sprouted in the Canadian West and is now making alarming inroads in Ontario and elsewhere. Quite explicitly socialist in its economic convictions, the NDP is a clear threat not only to a Canadian-American free trade zone but to just about every other Canadian-American relationship.

For Americans interested in a closer look at our closest neighbor, "The Patriot Game" (just published in this country by the Hoover Institution Press) is a godsend. The author, Peter Brimelow, is a British-born writer who has been everything from a columnist for Toronto's Financial Post to a staff economist for Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, and is currently a senior editor of Forbes magazine. Brimelow, who knows Canada like the back of his hand, analyzes the country's present and future with the sympathetic but gently distanced eye of a shrewd friend. (He is also a born writer, which never hurts.)

Brimelow believes that Canada, as presently constituted, is in serious danger of breaking up, along linguistic and other fault lines, into two or even more separate nations. Running counter to this tendency is the powerful influence of "the Canadian Establishment," which is responsible for the Patriot Game of the book's title. An absorbing study of a deeply divided nation.

Report finds Reagan failed to enforce the law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Iran-Contra committees conclude in their final report that President Reagan failed in his duty to see that the law was obeyed, but other criticism of the president was toned down from earlier drafts, a source says.

The committees' final report, due out Wednesday, said Reagan failed to "see that the laws are faithfully executed," according to the Senate committee source, who spoke Monday on condition of anonymity.

The language is a paraphrase of the Constitution's description of the president's duties. Article 2, Section 3 says "he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

There was sharp debate among committee members about whether to include such criticism in the final report.

Other criticism of Reagan was softened substantially, the source said.

However, eight minority Republicans on the Iran-Contra committees objected to the final report and said in a dissent that the majority reached "hysterical conclusions," according to today's New York Times.

The minority report said the Reagan administration made "mistakes in judgment and nothing more," according to the newspaper.

The House and Senate committees conducted four months of joint hearings into the administration's secret weapons sales to Iran and diversion of profits from those sales to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The panels' final report says there is no evidence that Reagan knew of the diversion, but it does reflect many committee members' belief that Reagan created an atmosphere allowing it to occur.

The Senate committee source did not specify which laws the president is accused in the report of not adequately enforcing. But during hearings the committee often discussed three laws.

They were the Boland amendment, which over specified periods prohibited direct or indirect U.S. aid to the Contras; the arms export control act which restricts the sale of American arms abroad; and laws requiring that any funds spent by the U.S. government first be appropriated by Congress.

The final report was to have been issued Tuesday, but last-minute checking of nearly 1,000 footnotes delayed release, the committees said.

A Republican member of the House panel, Rep. William Broomfield of Michigan, said the possibility cannot be ruled out that some former Reagan administration officials may have violated the law in the Iran-Contra scandal.

Another member, Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla., said he thinks the majority report should have paid more attention to problems with a system that allowed the Iran-Contra affair to occur.

The minority report as summarized by the Times contends "there was no constitutional crisis, no systematic disrespect for the 'rule of law,' no grand conspiracy and no administration-wide dishonesty or coverup."

It added that the evidence does not support "any of the more hysterical conclusions the committees' report tries to reach."

But House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, told reporters on Monday he had read an executive summary of the report and believes it is a "straight, honest, forthright declaration of the facts."

Neither Broomfield nor any of his GOP colleagues on the House panel signed the report. In a separate statement, Broomfield said: "The president did not exceed his constitutional and statutory prerogatives. But unfortunately, the actions of certain subordinates are not clear on this point."

He added, "We should not underestimate the range of potential improprieties and illegalities committed by" the late CIA Director William J. Casey, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter and fired White House aide Oliver L. North, "as well as certain other governmental officials."

Reagan-Wright meeting doesn't smooth flap

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meeting between President Reagan and House Speaker Jim Wright has failed to soften the administration's bitterness over Wright's high-profile role in Central America's regional peace efforts.

Wright, D-Texas, sought the hour-long meeting Monday to explain why he met with Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, leaders of the U.S.-backed Contra rebels and Nicaraguan Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, who is mediating cease-fire negotiations.

But after meeting with Reagan and his top advisers, Wright described the president as intransigent and suggested he was stepping in to fill a foreign-policy void created by the U.S. turning a diplomatic cold shoulder to the leftist Sandinista government.

"Perhaps if they had an open door policy to people in Central America, those people would go to see them instead of coming to see me," Wright said at a luncheon with reporters after the White House meeting.

The Reagan administration "sometimes gives the unfortunate impression that it looks upon people in Central America as inferiors, by scolding them, lecturing them, holding them up to public ridicule, refusing to see them," he said. "I guess I'm just more egalitarian."

Ortega, in Mexico City to brief Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid on his cease-fire proposal, said he had sought meetings with both Wright and Reagan, but only Wright agreed to see him.

"What the fact that President Reagan did not want to meet with me shows is the lack of willingness on the part of the North American government to support the initiatives for peace in Central America," Ortega said, adding he hoped the U.S. government had changed its attitude.

Wright met at least three times last week with Ortega and attended a session Friday at which the Nicaraguan president presented an 11-point cease-fire proposal to Obando y Bravo. The speaker's continuing involvement has prompted growing criticism that he is overstepping his role and threatens to confuse U.S. foreign policy in the region.

The Sandinistas and the Contras are seeking to devise a cease-fire plan to comply with a five-nation Central American peace accord signed in August.

A White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, called Monday's meeting "a fairly tense discussion."

"We were unconvinced" by Wright's arguments, the official said.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan used the session to point out "the confusion that arises and the misleading impressions that can be left if members of Congress, without coordination with the Executive Branch, involve themselves in complex negotiations with foreign heads of government."

Fitzwater said: "The president expressed his concern over the speaker's role in getting involved in what should be essentially a matter between the Sandinista government and the Nicaraguan resistance."

Wright gave no indication after the meeting that he intended to back away from his activism.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman rejected Wright's contention that the administration looks down on Central Americans.

"I'm not quite sure which Central Americans" Wright had in mind, Redman said. With "the Central American democracies, at least, we have very close, cordial relations."

The administration has said it may send a request to Capitol Hill this week for an additional $30 million in non-lethal "humanitarian" aid to the Contras.

Democrats have vowed to fight any such request.

Ice buildup emerging as prime suspect in Continental crash

DENVER (AP) — Ice buildup during a snowstorm should be considered a prime suspect in the Continental Airlines jet crash that killed 27 people and left five in critical condition today, according to an aeronautics professor who helped design the plane.

A spokesman for federal investigators said today it was too early to rule out any causes, but an outside expert, a witness and a report on a 1985 crash of a similar DC-9 jet fueled questions about whether a hazardous amount of ice accumulated on the plane's wings.

Flight 1713 rolled sharply left and right just after liftoff Sunday with 82 people aboard, then caught a wingtip, flipped onto its back and broke into three pieces as it slid down the runway.

"I would strongly suspect there was ice on the wing," said Richard Shevell, a Stanford University aeronautics professor who worked on the DC-9's design as chief of aerodynamics for Douglas Co. in the early 1960s.

Asked if icing was the prime suspect, National Transportation Safety Board spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz said today, "We at this point haven't eliminated anything... that would be an area of investigation at this point, yes."

Investigators also are looking at snowy runway conditions, possible engine failure, wind shear and other factors, said Bob Sheldon of the Federal Aviation Administration. NTSB director Jim Burnett was scheduled to give the news media its first briefing today on early findings.

The 21-year-old, twin-engine jet had been sprayed with de-icing fluid 20 minutes before it tried to take off from Stapleton International Airport for Boise, Idaho, airline officials said.

But the delay between de-icing and takeoff could have allowed ice to collect on the DC-9's wings, Shevell told the Denver Post on Monday. Ice can distort the shape of an aircraft wing and destroy its lift ability.

Ice buildup is a particular concern on early models of the DC-9, such as the one used for Flight 1713, because they are not equipped with slats on the front edges of the wings to give added lift during takeoff. The New York Times reported today.

The Times cited an NTSB report on the February 1985 crash of a DC-9 taking off at Philadelphia International Airport: "Aircraft without leading-edge devices are more sensitive to even light amounts of airfoil ice, which may not always be visibly detectable and which may accumulate during pretakeoff taxi operations."

Airfoil refers to the surfaces designed to keep an aircraft up or control its movements.

A survivor, Patti Halford, 27, of Boise, Idaho, said icing on the plane frightened her before the crash.

Five of the 55 injured passengers remained in critical condition early today. One injured passenger died Monday, raising the death toll to 27.

Flight 1713 originated in Wichita, Kan., took on an entirely new set of passengers in Denver and was bound for Boise, Idaho, when it crashed.

Housing bill advocates need more votes to ward off veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate advocates of a $30.6 billion housing bill are scrambling for 14 more votes as insurance against a veto by President Reagan, who is describing the measure as a blatant "budget-buster."

And they need at least seven more votes just to get the House-passed measure moving again, after opponents stalled it Friday with a parliamentary move.

The Senate's majority Democrats planned to take up the bill again today, after they mustered just 53 votes in a test vote on a point of order raised Friday by conservative opponents.

They need at least 60 votes to overcome that parliamentary move, and would need two-thirds backing — 67 votes — to overcome a presidential veto.

Reagan told the annual meeting of the American Council of Life Insurance on Monday that the bill is "a perfect example" of how Congress calls for reduced deficits but approves expensive legislation.

"Federal housing programs should be designed to help those who cannot help themselves," he said.

Ortega: Sought out Wright, agrees to Americans at talks

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua says he sought meetings with both President Reagan and House Speaker Jim Wright in Washington last week because they had presented a Central American peace plan in August, but only Wright would meet with him.

Ortega told a news conference Monday that because of the bipartisan peace proposal, "it was natural that I would look for these two political leaders ... to discuss with them the cease-fire proposal."

The U.S. plan was presented to the Central American presidents who were meeting in Guatemala. The presidents instead signed a plan submitted by President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica.

Ortega spoke after briefing President Miguel de la Madrid on the talks in Washington and on progress toward fulfilling the peace plan in Nicaragua.

Wright has come under fire from the Reagan administration for taking part in a meeting in Washington on Friday at which Ortega presented a cease-fire proposal to Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, archbishop of Managua.

Obando y Bravo has been acting as a go-between in trying to arrange a truce between the leftist Sandinista government and U.S.-backed Contra rebels. He met informally with Contra leaders in Miami en route home from Washington and is expected to meet with them later this week.

Ortega's proposal calls for a cease-fire to begin on Dec. 5 and for the Contras to move to one of three cease-fire zones. The rebels would lay down their arms on Jan. 5 before independent observers and then be granted amnesty and be able to participate in the political process in the country.

Rebels have said they have prepared their own cease-fire proposal to present at the formal session.

A director of the Nicaraguan Resistance, the umbrella organization of the Contras, said Monday the Contras would make a "serious counterproposal" to Obando y Bravo.

"Our answer will be given to Cardinal

Obando," Alfonso Robelo said in an interview. "We will not negotiate through the media."

Wright said Monday on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" program that he was not pretending to be a diplomat and took part in the talks at the invitation of Obando y Bravo.

"What the fact that President Reagan did not want to meet with me shows is the lack of willingness on the part of the North American government to support the initiatives for peace in Central America," Ortega said, but added he hoped the U.S. government had changed its attitude.

Nicaragua insists on direct talks with the United States, which it holds responsible for the conflict. The Reagan administration refuses, saying the talks must be with the Contras.

The Sandinistas agreed only to indirect talks, through Obando y Bravo.

Ortega said his government accepted Wright's suggestion that four American advisers take part in cease-fire negotiations.

He said Obando y Bravo would name his own support team, but added: "Here a team of experts is needed, a technical support group ... and there lies Wright's proposal, which includes highly recognized people."

He said the cardinal also would present that proposal to the Contras and receive their answer.

The four named are Paul C. Warnke, head of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency when Jimmy Carter was president; Ed King, a retired colonel who has studied Central American armies; Wilson Morris, an aide to Wright, and Richard Pena, who has worked with Wright on Central American issues.

Obando y Bravo said Sunday he was waiting for authorization by the nine-member Conference of Nicaraguan Bishops before formally accepting the role of mediator.

Roman Catholic Church spokesman Bismarck Carballo said over the weekend in Managua that the meeting with Contra leaders would probably be in a Central American country, but Ortega cast doubt on that.

"The Nicaraguan position is that it should be in the United States because it is the United States where the headquarters of the policy against Nicaragua is located," he said.

He also said holding talks on Nicaragua in another Central American country would violate the Guatemala accord.

But Robelo, the Contra official, on Monday ruled out the possibility of meeting the cardinal in the United States.

Besides cease-fires, the agreement calls for amnesties, democratic reforms and an end to outside aid for insurgencies and to the use of territory of one country by insurgents of another.

"No Central American country can be the site of the conversations" because the Guatemalan accord bars "political activities by people linked to the armed activities, irregular groups or insurgent forces," Ortega said.

$500 million talked as a settlement for Bhopal

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Lawyers trying to reach a settlement in the Bhopal gas disaster case are discussing a possible payment of more than $500 million, sources close to the case said today.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said no agreement was likely before Wednesday, when lawyers for the Indian government and the Union Carbide Corp. are due in court here.

India has sued U.S.-headquartered Union Carbide for $3 billion, charging it was responsible for the gas leak from a subsidiary's pesticide plant here that killed more than 2,600 people on Dec. 3, 1984. It was the world's worst industrial accident.

The Indian government says at least 40,000 others were injured when lethal methyl isocyanate gas leaked from the plant owned by a Union Carbide subsidiary.

The Indian government maintains the accident resulted from negligence; Carbide says it was caused by sabotage.

The sources here said the format being discussed for a settlement would award $2,000 a year for 10 years to survivors of 2,660 people who died and $1,000 a year over the same period to 20,000 people seriously injured.

Another 186,000 people affected by the gas leak would receive a single payment of $500 under the arrangements being discussed, the sources said.

One source said other compensation was still under consideration.

"The total payout would be more than $500 million over a 10-year period," this source said.

In Danbury, Conn., Union Carbide said in a statement Monday that no out-of-court settlement had been reached.

The compensation figures given by the sources here would represent a considerable narrowing down of those who say they are victims of the gas leak. A total of 531,770 claims have been filed.

India has declared itself the sole representative of all victims.

Pre-summit talks take up Afghanistan

GENEVA (AP) — Afghanistan and other regional issues temporarily dominated today's U.S.-Soviet pre-summit talks, and Moscow reportedly considered offering a shortened timetable for withdrawing Soviet troops backing the Kabul government.

Assistant Secretary of State Michael Armacost and first deputy Soviet foreign minister Yuli Vorontsov met today, said U.S. mission spokesman Art Skop.

No details were released from the discussions, which also were to cover a possible Arab-Israeli peace plan and the Persian Gulf war.

Vorontsov is also the chief negotiator at the U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations, which also are continuing today. The meeting aims at trying to remove final obstacles to a treaty eliminating intermediate-range nuclear missiles, those with a range from 300 to 3,000 miles.

These talks originally were to wind up Monday. But a U.S. source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Vorontsov and the chief U.S. delegate, Max Kampelman, decided on an extension because they did not have enough time to cover all points.

Both sides have reported progress on completing the treaty. President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev hope to sign such an agreement at a Washington summit that begins Dec. 7.

But a State Department official said Monday that the summit may have to be postponed.

A senior U.S. official said in Washington last weekend that the summit was not expected to produce a breakthrough on Afghanistan, the principal issue straining U.S.-Soviet relations.

Mitterrand acknowledges being informed of illegal military arm sales to Iran

PARIS (AP) — President Francois Mitterrand acknowledged for the first time that he knew a French company illegally sold arms to Iran, but he swore that his Socialist Party did not profit from the deals.

Mitterrand said Monday he had advised Defense Ministry officials about the sales after he was informed of them. It was his first public comment on the issue, which newspapers initially reported two weeks ago.

Several newspapers published a secret Defense Ministry report involving the sale of 500,000 artillery shells to Iran by the Luchaire company between 1983 and 1986. The report has since been declassified.

Mitterrand, in a radio interview, said that after he informed officials responsible for controlling arms sales, he heard nothing further and assumed there were no more infractions of France's arms embargo of Iran.

The Defense Ministry report said Mitterrand and former Defense Minister Charles Hernu knew about the sales to Iran as early as May 1984. It also said it was possible some of the money from the sales went to Mitterrand's Socialist Party.

The Socialists have said the charges it received funds from the deal were made by conservative and right-wing parties that have candidates running against a Socialist, possibly Mitterrand, in presidential elections next spring.

Mitterrand swore "with my hand in the fire" that the Socialists received nothing from the sales. He said the manner in which the report was made public through the press was "an immense moral swindle with regard to this party."

Iran and Iraq have been at war since September 1980, and an embargo on arms sales to Iran was declared by Mitterrand shortly after he became president in May 1981.

Book tells how to persuade a smoker to kick the habit

There are 54 million smokers in the United States. If you know one or are one, you've discovered that lectures, shame, pleading and threats only serve to encourage defensive behavior—usually the lighting of yet another cigarette to soothe a battered ego.

Today's smokers face a barrage of warnings, statistics and prohibitions against the backdrop of an inhospitable social climate, you say. Why don't they quit?

Probably because they're addicted. The average smoker depends on 30 doses of nicotine a day to maintain a continuous level of nicotine in the brain—and stave off the painful physical and psychological symptoms of nicotine withdrawal.

What is the solution? M.M. Kirsch, author of "57 Reasons Not to Light Up" (CompCare Publishers), says positive motivation is the key. For instance, nonsmokers are more kissable and have more fun. Also, they have more energy and freedom.

Another excellent source of motivation is the upcoming Great American Smokeout, happening this year on Thursday, Nov. 19. Sponsored by the American Cancer Society, the Smokeout is a nationally coordinated effort to encourage smokers to quit for one day—and to begin the process of quitting one day at a time.

What's the best way to inspire smokers to quit after the Great American Smokeout is over? To inform, assist, strengthen and humor them, Kirsch says. In "57 Reasons Not to Light Up," Kirsch offers one-word cues, showing the possibilities inherent in a smoke-free life.

Humorously illustrated by Steve Bjorkman in color cartoons, Kirsch's 57 reasons are all designed to help smokers conclude they just don't want to light up anymore.

In the meantime, here are some dos and don'ts for handling the smoker in your life.

DON'T tell them that smokers experience a 23 percent loss of clear-thinking ability because their brain tissues are deprived of oxygen.

DO tell them they will remember things better!

DON'T tell them that more than 350,000 smoking related deaths will occur this year.

DO tell them that a smoker is never too old to benefit from quitting. The risk of dying suddenly because of heart disease is reduced almost immediately due to the decline in carbon monoxide blood levels.

DON'T tell them that what they are tasting is benzopyrene, arsenic and prussic acid.

DO tell them a slice of watermelon or piece of pecan pie tastes better for dessert.

DON'T tell them smoking is responsible for more than 85 percent of chronic bronchitis and emphysema.

DO tell them how pleasant it is to sit through a movie, a concert, even a conversation without coughing!

DON'T tell them that all lifetime smokers die seven to eight years prematurely.

DO tell them you plan to spend your 60th wedding anniversary hiking the Grand Canyon!

DON'T tell them to read the Surgeon General's report.

DO tell them they will never have to root through an ashtray looking for a butt after they've run out!

DON'T force them to watch a lung cancer operation.

DO invite them to a field of fresh flowers for a breath of fresh air!

DON'T tell them that smoking's effect on peripheral vasculature makes it a major cause of skin wrinkles and organic impotence.

DO tell them how young and healthy they will look as a nonsmoker!

DON'T tell them that fires caused by smoking are blamed for about $300 million in property damage and 2,000 deaths each year in the United States.

DO tell them they can watch the late show without falling asleep with a lit cigarette in hand!

DON'T tell them only one-third of smokers who quit will gain weight.

DO tell them that stopping smoking doesn't put on weight. Overeating does.

DON'T tell them smoking is hazardous to their children's health and that studies indicate a two- to three-fold increase in symptomatic respiratory illness and a decline in pulmonary function in young children whose parents smoke.

DO tell them they won't run out of breath chasing down that loose softball!

DON'T tell them smoking is a major cause of hypertension, stroke, myocardial infarction (heart attack) and peripheral arterial insufficiency. Nicotine stimulates smokers by sending up the blood pressure, constricting the blood vessels and forcing the heart to beat 10,000 extra beats a day.

DO tell them they will have twice the energy and feel more relaxed after they quit!

DON'T tell them tobacco kills 1,000 Americans a day and is therefore the nation's most important health problem.

DO tell them how you look forward to a sweet, tobacco-free kiss!

DON'T tell them that soon there won't be a restaurant, airplane or office they can smoke in.

DO tell them their senses of taste and smell will be heightened after they quit.

DON'T tell them most lifetime smokers started at a young age.

DO tell your teenagers you're proud that they are well-informed and strong and that you will always love them.

DON'T quote Mark Twain: "It's easy to quit smoking. I know because I have done it a thousand times."

DO tell them the Pentagon has announced an 18 percent decline in tobacco sales in the military, and the Air Force has seen 48,000 of its smokers quit!

20-year Air Force marriage bears stamp of holiday mail

DEAR ABBY: Nearly 21 years ago, an Air Force sergeant working in the mail room at Khorat Royal Thai Air Base in Thailand wrote to you saying that many young, lonely airmen stationed there received little or no mail, and perhaps you could generate a little mail to cheer them up during the Christmas holidays.

You printed his letter, and mail came in by the truckload—as many as 100,000 letters in a single week! That was December 1966, and I was one of the young, lonely airmen.

We shuffled through the mountain of mail searching for letters from our home states. I was particularly interested in those with New York addresses, as my hometown is in upstate New York. A letter from Kathy Birmingham from Long Island caught my eye. She sounded like my kind of girl, so I wrote to her. Surprisingly, she wrote back immediately. We were both 21, and had so much in common. By April 1967, we had a very exciting correspondence going and made plans to meet when I returned from my overseas tour.

In August 1967, I flew home, then drove to Long Island to meet Kathy and her family. It was love at first sight! I asked her to marry me on the third day, she accepted on the fourth, and we were married in November 1967!

We have remained an Air Force family, and have traveled around the world with our lovely daughter, Kelley, who is now 16. Every time we tell the story of how we met, people say, "You should tell Abby!" What more appropriate time than on our 20th anniversary!

So to you, Dear Abby, our thanks for a lifetime of happiness and memories. And to Kathy, the girl who wrote that letter to a lonely sergeant so long ago, my love, now and always. Happy 20th anniversary!

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me why retired men tag along with their wives to do the weekly grocery shopping. I see this constantly. The poor wife has to listen to her husband tell her why another brand is better (or cheaper) than the one she selected. Then there's the hassle of taking items out of the cart and replacing them with others while they argue back and forth. Abby, these women have been shopping for 40 years or more without their husbands—now suddenly he's a maven.

When my husband retires, I will either leave him at home, or give him the shopping list and let him do the grocery shopping.

Please deal with this problem in your column.

Donations, grants stock Good Sam's pantry

Good Samaritan Christian Services, Inc. has a good supply of food due to the recent Can Hunger food drive, a grant used to buy food, and cases of food brought in by churches and individuals, according to Bill Ragsdale, executive director.

"With the Christmas season approaching, many local folks will think of others and their needs, so we do expect to be in good shape for awhile," Ragsdale said.

"The Good Samaritan pantry is in the best condition we have seen in quite awhile, but we do expect some shortages in some items from time to time," he said.

The interfaith mission's monthly board of directors meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. today at the Good Samaritan house, 309 N. Ward, and will include election of officers. The meeting had originally been scheduled for Thursday evening.

October requests for aid at Good Sam were down 12 percent from September. Food requests were down 3 percent, and utility aid requests were down 37 percent. The amount paid for utility aid was down 19 percent.

Clothing requests were generally down from September.

Of 237 families seeking help, 221 were aided, with food going to 177; clothing, 72; rent, two; utilities, 22; transportation, 12; lodging, three; medical, 14; and other, seven. A total of 667 individuals received assistance.

Sixteen families were not helped, in part because of lack of an emergency necessitating aid, according to Ragsdale.

Gray County families receiving help totaled 221. There were nine newcomers, one family outside Gray County but within 25 miles of Pampa and six transients.

Two were referred by churches, 24 by friends, one by news, seven by other organizations or agencies and 204 returning families.

There were five emergency after-hours calls.

Out-of-pocket expenses for October totaled $3,223.01, compared to $3,217.58 for September. Expenditures were food, $353.24; clothing, $241.67; rent, $50; utilities, $1,371.53; transportation, $425.83; lodging, $314.08; and medical, $299.81.

Clothing needed most by the mission includes children's clothing, work clothing, jeans and tennis shoes.

Quitting smoking is one thing to be thankful for

On this Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, some may be thankful for having quit smoking.

The Surgeon General reports that smoking is responsible for 100,000 deaths from lung cancer and 170,000 deaths from heart attack each year.

Here are some of the dangers of smoking cigarettes and the benefits of quitting:

*Two-pack-a-day smokers die, on the average, 8.3 years younger than nonsmokers. By quitting, the risk drops daily. After 10 to 15 years, it is close to that of those who never smoked.

*By quitting cigarettes, your risk of coronary disease drops sharply after one year; at 10 years it is about the same as someone who has never smoked.

*When you quit smoking, your risk of lung cancer recedes steadily. After 10 to 15 years, it is down to normal.

*The risk to smokers of death by emphysema and bronchitis is four to 25 times as high as nonsmokers. When you quit, coughs disappear in a few weeks, lung function improves and deterioration stops.

Broncos keep playoff hopes alive

Missed PATs doom Bears

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Denver's John Elway and Chicago's Jim McMahon fought a dazzling passing duel that was decided, somewhat anticlimactically, by a pair of missed extra points.

Thanks to the failed conversions and a fumble by William "The Refrigerator" Perry at the goal line, Denver escaped with a badly needed 31-29 NFL Monday night victory over the Bears.

The Broncos' record rose to 5-3-1 and kept them 2½ games behind San Diego, 8-1, in the AFC West. Chicago fell to 7-2 but remained atop the NFC Central.

—Chicago dominated the first and third quarters, Denver the second and fourth as the teams played to a virtual standoff: —Chicago had 446 total yards and Denver 439.

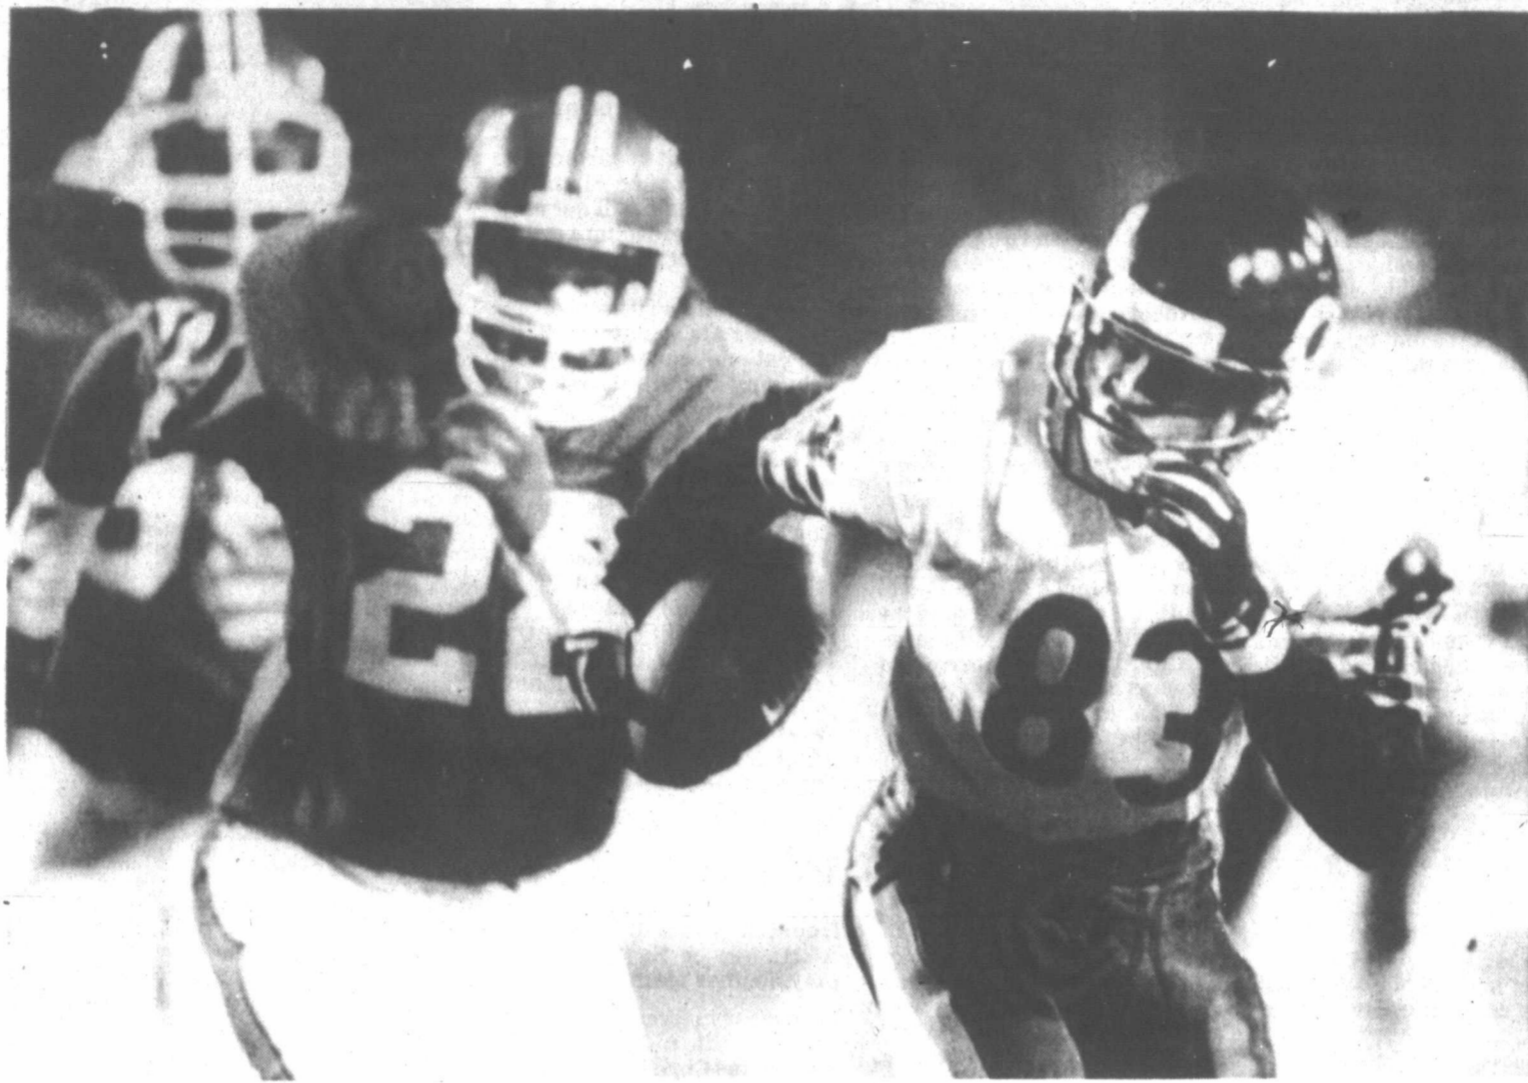

—The Broncos had 25 first downs to the Bears' 24.

—Both teams averaged 6.5 yards per offensive play.

—Elway completed 21 of 40 passes for 341 yards and three touchdowns, while McMahon hit 21 of 34 for 311 yards and three scores.

"We didn't have much of a running game, and that makes it difficult, but John had a tremendous game," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said of Elway, who also led the Broncos in rushing with 35 yards on five carries.

If there was one turning point, it came midway through the second quarter. The Bears, leading 14-7, were threatening to score. Facing a third-and-goal from the Broncos' 1-yard line, McMahon handed off to the 315-pound Perry, a defensive lineman who was making his first appearance in the offensive backfield this season.

Perry was stacked up, however, and Mike Harden pried the ball loose. Cornerback Mark Haynes picked it up and returned it 24 yards, setting up Denver's tying touchdown drive.

Elway, who earlier in the quarter tossed a 22-yard touchdown pass to Vance Johnson, made it 14-14 with a 22-yarder to Mark Jackson.

Elway capped the Broncos' flurry with a perfectly thrown 35-yard TD pass to rookie Ricky Nattiel.

But McMahon, who had two TD passes in the first quarter, brought Chicago back after intermission.

He hit a wide-open Willie Gault on a 26-yarder for one score. Barely two minutes later, after an interception by linebacker Ron Rivera, McMahon sneaked over from one yard out.

Both extra points were botched, however. On the first, holder Mike Tomczak appeared to have trouble getting a low snap down and Kevin Butler hooked the ball outside the left upright. On the second, Tomczak again had trouble with the snap. He tried to run, eventually pitching to Butler, but they were stopped short of the goal line.

With Chicago ahead 26-21, a 42-yard Butler field goal appeared to put the game away.

Denver's Rich Karlis kicked a field goal early in the final quarter to cut the lead to 29-24, but Chicago began marching again, reaching the Bronco 31. Rookie cornerback K.C. Clark intercepted a McMahon pass and returned it 20 yards to the Denver 39. Elway passed 24 yards to Jackson to set up Steve Sewell's clinching score from four yards out with 4:58 left.

The Bronco defense secured the victory with three sacks.

PHS cagers tip off season tonight

Soccer club sets awards ceremony

The Pampa Soccer Association's annual awards ceremony is scheduled at 7 p.m. Thursday at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Awards will be presented to youngsters who participated in the fall soccer program. The public is invited to attend.

PHS cagers tip off season tonight

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Both Pampa High School boys' and girls' basketball teams share the spotlight as the 1987-88 season tips off tonight at McNeely Fieldhouse.

The Lady Harvesters, coached by Albert Nichols, meet Caprock at 6 p.m., followed by the Harvesters and Palo Duro at 7:45 p.m. Robert Hale starts his second year as Pampa boys' coach.

"We're hoping by not splitting the teams up, we'll draw a bigger crowd. I understand some reserved seats are still available," Nichols said.

Both coaches are excited and eager about getting the season under way, but Nichols' enthusiasm was dimmed somewhat after scheduled starter Shawna Ford was hurt in a car accident Monday.

Ford, a sophomore transfer from White Deer, was hospitalized with a head injury after the car she was driving slammed into a tree, according to Nichols.

"She's got a knot on her head and she's awfully sore, but there's no broken bones," added Nichols.

Diane Wood, a 5-11 junior, will be taking the 5-7 Ford's spot in the starting lineup tonight.

"I've visited with Shawna and her spirits are high," Nichols said. "I told her to take it easy. There's plenty of games left in the season."

The Harvesters were honored with a tipoff dinner last night at a local restaurant where school officials and coaches gave inspirational talks, followed by the inroduction of varsity and junior varsity players.

The turnout of parents and fans made Hale anxious to begin the season.

"I'm so excited it makes me almost want to suit up myself, almost," Hale said.

The Harvesters return three starters from last season in 6-4 junior Dustin Miller and senior guards David Doke and Chris Evans.

"I look for Dustin to be much more aggressive under the boards this season. David has improved his ballhandling and it's going to be harder for the defense to take the ball away from him," Hale said. "Chris is a real fine athlete."

Jason Farmer, a 6-2 senior and a parttime starter last season, is a hard hitter on the boards.

"Jason has really improved over last year. Watch him rebound," Hale said.

Hale also expects help at the guard spots from 5-10 junior Jimmy Massick and 5-11 sophomore Ryan Teague.

"I'm expecting some good things from Ryan while Jimmy is one of the most natural players on the team and a heck of a shot," Hale said.

Others expected to see action for the Harvesters tonight are 6-0 sophomore Mark Wood, 5-8 junior Kerry Brown, 6-0 senior Derek Ryan, 6-3 senior Keith Barr and 5-11 Billy Wortham.

"Mark could be one of the better shooters to come out of Pampa High School before he's through," Hale said. "Kerry has a lot of natural ability and Billy will be a good player once he gets more experience," Hale said.

"Keith is improving every day and Derek moves well without the ball. You'll always find him around the ball."

Joining Wood in the starting lineup for the Pampa girls are 5-11 junior Yolanda Brown, 5-2 sophomore Shelly Thompson, 5-9 senior Keitha Clark and 5-8 senior Tacy Stoddard. Brown is the only returning starter.

"We're going to have to keep our turnovers down and keep our heads in the game," Nichols said. "We need to take advantage of every opportunity Caprock gives us."

Caprock also fields a young team with only 5-10 junior Heather Knightstep returning as a starter.

The 1987-88 basketball schedules for both the Pampa High boys' and girls' teams are as follows:

Walker's heroics sideline Dorsett

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP)—Herschel Walker's 60-yard touchdown run in overtime not only gave the Cowboys a 23-17 NFL victory over New England, it secured a sideline seat for Tony Dorsett.

"Herschel has the capability of doing that every time he carries the ball," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "Herschel is our future."

Walker, 25, replaced the 33-year-old Dorsett at starting tailback Sunday against the Patriots and responded with 173 yards rushing on 28 carries. It was the fourth-highest rushing total in Cowboys' history.

"They (the coaches) have made their decision to go to Herschel and I'll have to live with it for this season," Dorsett said.

Dorsett suffered a bruised shoulder during the game. He carried once for five yards and caught two passes for 19 yards.

"I have no problems with Herschel," Dorsett said. "It's just obvious the team wants to go with a younger man. We're still good friends. Remember, we were roommates in training camp. Eventually, everyone's time comes to be replaced in the NFL. I guess mine is here."

Dorsett, in his 11th NFL season, needs 108 yards to become the fourth-leading rusher in league history.

"It was a tough decision for me to make to replace Tony," Landry said. "He's almost to the 12,000-yard rushing mark and he can still do the job. It was hard on me and hard on Tony."

Walker's frustration of being a part-time wide receiver reached a peak last week when he complained he didn't understand his role on the team. Walker suggested he might be better off on another club.

Ohio State fires Bruce AD Bay resigns to protest firing

By RUSTY MILLER
AP Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Earle Bruce is proud of his accomplishments as the head football coach at Ohio State. Yet the winningest record in the Big Ten over the last nine years wasn't enough to guarantee his job.

The 56-year-old Bruce, 80-26-1 since replacing the late Woody Hayes at his alma mater, was fired Monday by Ohio State President Edward H. Jennings. The dismissal, following three straight losses by a combined 10 points, prompted Athletic Director Rick Bay to resign in protest.

"I'm a Buckeye and so is most of my coaching staff," Bruce said as he left the Ohio State football practice facility Monday night. "I'm kind of proud of what I've done here. Dog-gone proud."

Bruce's Buckeyes are 5-4-1 this season, the worst record for an Ohio State team since Hayes' 1966 team was 4-5. Just as the losing record wasn't indicative of Hayes' tenure, this season was an aberration in Bruce's career.

In eight previous seasons, all of which ended in bowl appearances, Ohio State had won at least nine games. The 1979 and 1984 teams won Big Ten titles and the 1981 and 1986 clubs tied for the league championship.

"I'm not allowed to have this year — one year, one bad year at Ohio State?" Bruce asked.

Bruce, working on the second year of a three-year contract that started at a salary of $87,120, had a 56-17 record in Big Ten games, a mark exceeded only by Michigan's Bo Schembechler, who is 59-15-1 over that stretch.

In an interview with The Columbus Dispatch, Jennings said pressure to dismiss Bruce came from "all over."

"In our judgement, it was time to make a change. That's all there is to it," Jennings said. "It was a personnel matter."

Bay, who announced the firing and his own resignation at an afternoon press conference, said Jennings "asked me to meet with him and informed me that he was under pressure to make a coaching change and that we had to do that."

"I think it was building and, in my own view, his detractors were just waiting for an excuse."

In a statement issued through Jennings' office, associate athletic director James L. Jones was named to replace Bay. Jennings said the university would fulfill the remaining financial terms of Bruce's contract.

"This is very poor timing, right before the Michigan game, the most critical on our schedule," Bruce said. "It's unfair to do it now. They can do it any time, but not before the Michigan game."

Bay said that regardless of the outcome of the Michigan game, Ohio State will not play in a bowl game, ending a string of 15 consecutive postseason appearances.

Bruce had an 11-1 season his first year at Ohio State, losing the national championship by dropping a 17-16 decision to Southern California in the Rose Bowl. He followed with six 9-3 seasons before going 10-3 last year, with a 28-12 victory over Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl.

Ohio State was ranked No. 4 in the first Associated Press preseason poll and was the preseason choice to win the Big Ten crown. But losses to Indiana (31-10), Big Ten champion Michigan State (13-7), Wisconsin (26-24) and Iowa (29-27) ended all hopes of a third trip to the Rose Bowl.

'Horns hopes high for bowl bid

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas football victory over Baylor on Saturday could open up a second bowl opportunity for Texas, says first-year Coach David McWilliams.

But as of Monday, according to McWilliams, the Longhorns face a Cotton Bowl-or-nothing game with Texas A&M to close out the regular season on Thanksgiving night. Texas, 5-4, must defeat Baylor and A&M to win the Southwest Conference championship and gain the host spot in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas on Jan. 1.

An A&M victory on Thanksgiving would send A&M to Dallas for the third straight year.

"We've got two games left. ... You get beat by Baylor, and all of a sudden you go down and

A&M beats you — we're 5-6. There's nobody going to take us at 5-6," McWilliams told his weekly news conference.

What if Texas beats Baylor, which has not won in Austin since 1951?

"If we beat Baylor, then possibly there would be an opportunity for another bowl with say us, or A&M," McWilliams said.

There has been speculation that the Bluebonnet Bowl at Houston would like Texas; A&M, 7-2; or Baylor, 6-4, to play another team.

Texas remained in the bowl picture with a 24-21 victory over Texas Christian on Saturday. A&M defeated Arkansas 14-0, and Baylor edged Rice 34-31.

The Longhorns lost its second starting defensive tackle in two weeks as Ken Hackmack hurt his knee.

Shockers down Borger in finale

Pampa closed the junior varsity football season with a 27-7 win over Borger Thursday night at Harvester Stadium.

Barry Coffee, who rushed for around 120 yards, scored two of the Shocker TDs.

James Bybee and Mike Cagle teamed up for scoring passes.

Bybee threw 70 yards to Cagle for a scoring strike and then the two traded positions with Cagle hitting Bybee for an 84-yard TD.

Borger scored its only TD late in the fourth quarter on a 35-yard pass.

Defensive standouts for the Shockers were Dale Sanders, Jason Allen, Kyle O'Neal, Michael Parker and Scott Lucas.

The Shockers ended the season with a 2-6 record.

Nebraska replaces OU in AP football rankings

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Football Writer
Saturday's annual showdown between Oklahoma and Nebraska will still feature the 1-2 teams in the country. The order, however, has been changed.

Oklahoma, bidding to become the first team ever to be No. 1 in the Associated Press rankings from the preseason through the post-bowl poll, was replaced by Nebraska on Monday after an 11-week reign. The Cornhuskers had been No. 2 in every poll this year.

While Nebraska was idle last weekend — its game with Colorado was switched to Nov. 28 for television — injury-riddled Oklahoma struggled offensively for the third time in four games in downing Missouri 17-13.

Nebraska, 9-0, received 32 of 60 first-place votes and a 1,644 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Oklahoma, 10-0, received 20 first-place votes and 1,128 points.

The other eight first-place votes went to Miami of Florida, which is No. 3 for the eighth week in a row. The Hurricanes, 8-0, defeated Virginia Tech 27-13 and received 1,101 points.

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said, "My feeling is that we're probably as deserving of being No. 1 as anybody. We're really playing well and we played some good teams early — UCLA, Arizona State, South Carolina, Oklahoma State. But until we play (Oklahoma), it's kind of a moot point. Nebraska and Oklahoma are going to play, and it will be settled on Saturday."

Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer wasn't surprised by the switch in positions.

"I didn't expect to be (No. 1) after the way we played," he said. "I wouldn't vote for us, either, the way we've been playing the last couple of weeks. We're not scoring with the opportunities we have."

However, Switzer recalled that "we played them up there (Lincoln) in 1984 when they were No. 1 and we beat them (17-7)." Oklahoma was No. 6 going into that game.

The 4-5-6 teams also remained the same. Fourth-ranked Florida State, 9-1, trounced Division I-AA Furman 41-10 and received 1,025 points; No. 5 UCLA, 9-1, swamped Washington 47-14 and earned 958 points; sixth-ranked Syracuse, 10-0, whipped Boston College 45-17 for 894 points and No. 7 Notre Dame pounded No. 11 Alabama 37-6 and received 834 points.

However, No. 8 Georgia lost to No. 12 Auburn 27-11 and slipped out of the Top Ten. Clemson jumped from ninth place to eighth with 834 points by defeating Maryland 45-16, LSU beat Mississippi State 34-14 and rose from 10th to ninth with 697 points and Auburn moved up from 12th to 10th with 689 points.

The Second Ten consists of Michigan State, South Carolina, Oklahoma State, Georgia, Tennessee, Texas A&M, Alabama, Iowa, Pitt and Indiana.

Last week, it was Alabama, Auburn, Michigan State, South Carolina, Penn State, Indiana, Oklahoma State, Tennessee, Texas A&M and Arkansas.

Irish look for another Cotton berth

DALLAS (AP) — Is Notre Dame on its way to a fifth Cotton Bowl?

There's every indication the Fighting Irish will be taking on the Southwest Conference champion New Year's Day.

Of course, the Cotton Bowl officials won't confirm or deny the team will sign on the dotted line this Saturday, the first legal day for bowl announcements.

They've been in the bowl business since 1937 and old heads like Field Scottell and Jim Brock aren't about to do something in bad form.

"We'll just stick to our business and see what happens," says Executive Vice President Brock, who has seen Notre Dame four straight weeks.

The on-again, off-again rumors of a deal with the Orange Bowl should be dead and buried as far as the Cotton Bowl is concerned.

Former UWF tag team champions Tommy Rogers and Bobby Fulton will be featured in a wrestling card scheduled for Friday, Nov. 20 at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Rogers and Fulton, known as The Fantastic, will take on Dennis Stamp and Dr. Death in the main event.

In other matches, Kevin Collins meets Bruce Savage, Junkyard Dog

No. 2 takes on Super Destroyer and Ted Heath tangles with Al Martinez.

One of The Fantastic will also compete in a singles match.

Matches start at 8 p.m. and tickets are available at the box office starting Monday. Tickets are seven dollars for adults and three dollars for children under 12.
