Fourteen Americans among the casualties

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Investigators are trying to determine why a Burmese airliner taking tourists to an ancient city caught fire and crashed, killing all 49 people aboard, including 14 Americans.

The twin-turboprop plane "caught fire in midair" Sunday and slammed to earth near a village about 20 miles southeast of Pagan, the official News Agency of Burma said. There were no survivors, it added.

It was the second fatal crash of a Burma Airways Friendship Fokker 27 plane in less than four months and the worst air disaster in this impoverished southeast Asian nation since 1978.

"As soon as news of the plane crash was received, responsible authorities of the airways corporation and members of an investigating team left for the crash site by a special plane," the state radio said Sunday.

An official passenger list said 36 of the victims were foreigners — 14 Americans, seven Swiss, five Britons, four Australians, three West Germans, two French and one Thai. Nine Burmese passengers and four crew members also died.

The victims included the parents of an administrative attache at the Australian Embassy in Rangoon, sources said.

Several of the 14 Americans killed in the crash were part of a tour arranged by a San Francisco travel agent, who also was among the victims, relatives said.

Edith Dalle-Feste of Kentfield, Calif., had been a travel agent for more than 30 years before starting her own agency, Cosmopolitan Travel, about 20 years ago. One of the firm's employees, Julie Ann Butler, 45, of Calistoga, Calif., was among the victims.

The plane was on a two-hour, regularly scheduled flight from the national capital of Rangoon, about 300 miles south of Pagan in central Burma.

Pagan, with a population of about 5,000, occupies 40 square miles of mostly flat terrain on the east bank of Burma's major artery, the Irrawaddy River.

Pagan's kings and governors ruled from 1044 to 1369 and built thousands of Buddhist shrines and temples. The buildings have made Pagan one of Asia's archeological treasures, a holy place for pilgrims and a top tourist attraction.

Because of poor roads, however, tourists can go only reach the city by air or river boat.

Authorities have not said what caused the June 21 Burma Airways crash, which killed all 45 Burmese on board. The plane slammed into a mountain minutes after takeoff from Heho, about 280 miles northeast of Rangoon.

In Burma's worst air disaster in recent years, a Burma Airways plane crashed five miles from Rangoon airport on March 25, 1978. Twenty-three foreigners were among the 48 dead.

That also was a Friendship Fokker 27, a Dutchmade medium-range aircraft.

Hurricane Floyd unleashes heavy rains on Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Floyd's leading edge lashed South Florida with powerful thunderstorms today, prompting some tourists and residents to flee inland while others stocked up on staples and prepared to wait out the storm.

Torrential rains flooded some roads in South Florida and hampered the morning rush hour. There were long lines as gas stations and on highways as people fled inland, and grocery store shelves were stripped bare of batteries, bread and other supplies as residents braced for the storm.

On Saturday, prior to the march, thousands of the homosexual protesters participated in a mass "wedding." They said the ceremony was to protest religious and social barriers against homosexual relationships.

The crowd, led by AIDS victims in wheelchairs and bearing signs carrying messages like, "Thank God I'm Gay," heard Sunday from speakers that included Jesse Jackson, the Democratic presidential candidate who attended civil rights demonstrations at the same location more than 20 years ago.

Jackson drew a loud roar when he said, "I came because you asked me, because I disagree with those who divide us, who want to isolate anyone who is different."

After his speech, Jackson spoke to a number of victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome who sat in wheelchairs near the stage. He shook their hands and said. "God bless you." ### Pampa youth injured in motorcycle wreck

A 13-year-old Pampa boy injured Sunday in a motorcycle accident at Lake McClellan was in serious condition this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo.

James M. Brown, son of Nancy L. Middlebrook of 2129 N. Dwight, suffered apparent head injuries while riding his motorcycle around Lake McClellan Sunday morning. The youth was taken to Coronado Hospital in a private vehicle about 12:30 p.m. Sunday and later was transported to NWTH by Rural-Metro ambulance service of Pampa.

According to Gray County Constable Buddy Roland, who is stationed at the lake, the Brown boy rode his motorcycle up to the lake permit office at about 10 a.m. Sunday and told him he had a wreck. Roland had no details about the accident except that the youth had apparently been camping overnight with friends. Roland said Brown was accompanied by one adult, but he didn't know who he was.

Roland said he called the boy's mother to pick him up while employees kept the youth from losing consciousness.

"He was getting incoherent," Roland said. "We walked him around and did everything to keep him awake."

"He seemed to be a real bright kid," Roland added. "The boy was probably out riding by himself."

Lion on chain at flea market mauls 8-year-old Houston girl

HOUSTON (AP) — An 8-year-old girl who was mauled by a lion on display at a flea market was in critical but stable condition, and doctors said the child faces up to three years of follow-up treatment even if she pulls through.

Roxanne Maria Hernandez, who lives with her family on the outskirts of Houston, suffered a cracked skull — leaving part of her brain exposed — when attacked on Saturday by a 300-pound lion that was being displayed as part of an exotic animal show.

Houston Police Lt. C.W. Driskell said the lion was being led through the flea market on a chain by its owner, identified by police as Gary Durkovitz of Houston.

Durkovitz had operated a booth for the past three months along Houston's North Freeway at the Texas Flea Market, where shoppers could have their picture taken with exotic snakes and the lion, said Driskell.

"The lion knocked over an ornament and became excited," said Brian Mason, 27, who said he saw the attack.

"The little girl walked by, and he knocked her down. He grabbed her and started dragging her across the floor. She was screaming and everybody started running around."

A security guard accompanying the lion and its owner fired a shot into the beast with a .44-caliber handgun, but the blast didn't stop the attack, Driskell said.

"That seemed to aggravate the lion, and it grabbed her by the head," he said. "He then shot the lion again, and they still had trouble getting it to release the little girl."

The girl underwent more than six hours of surgery at Hermann Hospital Saturday night.

Doctors are hopeful Roxanne will completely recover, said her father, Joel Hernandez, a commercial carpenter. A second operation was scheduled for today to repair a wound near her right temple where a 2- by 2-inch piece of bone is missing, he said.

Hernandez was bitter at the lion's owner for hav-® ing the animal at the flea market.

"Only an idiot would take a lion in a crowded place with people and kids, endangering them," he said.

Sgt. A.D. Moore, with the Houston Police Department's juvenile division, said police turned the case over to the Harris County district attorney's office for presentation to a grand jury.

Durkovitz could not be reached for comment Sunday. A man at the leasing office of Texas Flea Market, where the attack occurred, refused to speak to reporters on the advice of his attorney.

Apartment utilities on city agenda

Pampa city commissioners will consider ordinances amending solid waste, sewer and water utility rates for apartment owners during their regular meeting at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the City Commission Room

The city staff was contacted in September by a group of apartment owners requesting an evaluation of the method by which sewer and water rates are calculated. The group wants the rate converted to a commercial rate rather than a rate structure established for multi-family units.

In past considerations of utility rates, a number of citizens have argued that occupied apartment units are identical to residential property owners and should be charged accordingly, without receiving a reduction in their utility rates.

Apartment owners have argued that the rate is excessive for the use, noting that many apartments are not occupied full-time. They also claim that apartment complexes should not be treated as a single residential home.

The commission will consider three ordinances classifying multi-family units under commercial service status, with the charges changed accordingly for solid waste collection, sewer and water rates

In other business, the commission will consider: first reading of ordinances relative to annexation of and zoning change for the Lawley Ranch Addition awarding of bids to renovation of Waste Water Treatment Plant for electrical services, machinery and equipment;

nominating board of director members for the Gray County Appraisal District;

approving a resolution for participation in the Telephone Franchise Study Committee: and authorizing a letter of agreement with Municipal

Administrative Services Inc. for auditing utilities franchise tax

The commission also has scheduled an executive session to discuss purchase of water rights.

Iraq hits tanker with missile

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) - Iraqi jet fighters today hit a Panamanian-registered tanker with an Exocet missile, setting the vessel ablaze and killing two crew members, Persian Gulf-based marine salvage executives reported.

The tanker was identified as the 21,166-ton Marianthi, managed by the Greek shipping company Anastassiou. It was attacked about 60 miles south of the Iranian port of Bushehr, the executives said. They spoke on condition of anonymity.

The nationality of the dead crewmen was not immediately confirmed, but they were believed to be Greek, the executives said.

The raid on the Marianthi came as U.S. Navy warships were escorting reflagged Kuwaiti tankers through the gulf. It followed weekend strikes that devastated one Iranian-chartered supertanker and left an unexploded Exocet missile in a second.

Iraq reported today that its warplanes attacked a ship in the gulf and four oil and industrial targets deep inside Iran.

The official Iraqi News Agency, in a report monitored in Cyprus, said the targets on the Iranian mainland included an electric plant and oil refineries in the city of Esfahan, 250 miles east of the Iraqi border

Other jets blasted an oil pumping station in the southwestern Iranian town of Tanki Feni, oil installations in Khoramabad and a communications center in Ilam, Iraq said. Khoramabad and Ilam both are in the western province of Lorestan, near the Iran-Iraq border.

The agency quoted a military spokesman as saying that at noon warplanes raided a "large naval target off the Iran coast." The term is generally used by official Iraqi media when referring to attacks on tankers ferrying Iranian oil.

The U.S. Navy was escorting four Kuwaiti vessels flying the American flag through the Persian Gulf to the Mina Al-Ahmadi, Kuwait's main oil loading terminal. The convoy, including two gas carriers and two tankers, began its 550-mile journey early Saturday and was reported halfway through the gulf when today's Iraqi raids were announced

The United States began escorting 11 Kuwaiti tankers through the oil shipping lanes in July to protect them from attack by Iran, which accuses Kuwait of aiding Iraq in the 7-year-old Iran-Iraq war

Iraqi jets fired two Exocet missiles Sunday at another ship off the coast of Iran. The 239,435-ton Liberian-flagged Rova was set ablaze and severely damaged, according to gulf-based shipping sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Both Iraq and Iran reported Sunday that a longrange surface-to-surface missile crashed overnight into Baghdad, Iraq's capital.

Iran claimed the missile struck a military garrison. Iraq said it landed in a residential area, killing 'numerous'' civilians. No figures were given.

The attack on Baghdad was the first since Oct. 5, when two of the projectiles, believed to be Sovietdesigned Scud-Bs, hit the city of 4 million. Iran's U.N. ambassador, Said Rajaie Khorassani, said Sunday that America's "provocative acts" in the gulf could lead to war. He was referring to an attack by U.S. helicopters on three Iranian patrol boats last Thursday. U.S. officials said the Iranian ships had fired on an American observation helicopter.

One boat was sunk and two seized; two Iranians were killed.

Iran denied its patrol boats fired first and said it used a Stinger anti-aircraft missile to shoot down one of the U.S. helicopters.

U.S. officials said no helicopters were shot down and some expressed doubts about the Iranians having U.S.-made Stinger missiles.

GALVESTON (AP) - Trying death row inmate Clarence Brandley a third time for the rape-slaying of a 16-year-old girl seven years ago could be problematic, a lead prosecutor says.

'It's obvious that, given all that's happened since the last trial, it would be extremely difficult to put together a sound case," said Mongomery County District Attorney Peter Speers.

Retired State District Judge Perry Pickett said Friday - at the end of a nine-day evidentiary hearing - that he will recommend to the state Court of Criminal Appeals that Brandley be given a new trial.

Speers was asked if his statement means he will not retry the case if the appeals court agreed with Pickett's recommendation. 'Well, I'm not quite prepared to go that far," he told the Houston Post.

The credibility of witnesses and loss of evidence were crucial items in the hearing, which Pickett moved 90 miles from Conroe to Galveston because of what he termed fear among witnesses and fear in the black community. Brandley's first trial in the 1980 rape-slaying of Cheryl Fergeson ended with a jury hung 11-1 for conviction. A second trial in 1981 resulted in a conviction and death by the prosecution.

"(It would) be a problem even if the exhibits and physical evidence hadn't disappeared and even if the witnesses hadn't been messed around with to the extent they don't even remember ... and are telling different stories,' Speers said

After Pickett's announcement Friday, Brandley smiled briefly and stood by the defense table, stunned and nearly speechless when confronted by reporters. One of his attorneys, Don Brown, was in tears while about 200 supporters - many of them wearing T-shirts and buttons proclaiming "Free Clarence Brandley" — cheered in the courtroom

"I find it hard to describe," lead defense attorney Mike De-Geurin said. "I'm very happy. To have the words that the judge used, the feelings he was speaking of from the stand, to have him articulating so much better than I could what I believe, it moved me. I can't describe it. We finally got a shot for a new trial.

Brandley has been in custody since the week after Miss Fergeson, the manager of the Bellville High School girls' volleyball team, was found slain in a restroom at Conroe High School, where Brandley worked as a jani-

Man refuses to get daughter a Social Security number

SAN ANGELO (AP) — In an attempt to keep his daughter's name out of government computers, a union official says he won't get her a Social Security card as required by law.

She doesn't have a job," Jim Wilburn said of his daughter, Amber. "Why should an 8-year-old need a Social Security card?

Under income tax reform passed last year, anyone 5 years old or older claimed as a dependent has to have a tax identification number, usually a Social Security card. The measure was designed to identify divorced parents who claim the same dependents and cheat on their taxes. IRS officials

But Wilburn, who is president of Communications Workers of American Local 6171, said it could allow any government agency or anyone with access to government computers to invade his family's privacy

"They can check back into what I do, what my wife does, on my family and my friends," he said. "They can track you from the day you're born to the day you die - from cradle to grave.

Each dependent a taxpayer claims saves $1,900 off taxable income, or $532 in taxes for most people. If Wilburn does not list a Social Security or tax number for his daughter, the IRS can order him to pay the $532 plus a $5 fine.

Wilburn said he will drop his daughter as a dependent on his tax return rather than get her a number. "It'll cost me a little more, but I won't have this on her, at 8 years of age," he said.

Fears that Social Security numbers will be used to track citizens are unfounded, IRS spokeswoman Marlene Gaysek said.

"The record of how it has been used does not bear that out," she said. "The number is not given to anyone else and is protected under federal and IRS disclosure laws. We are prohibited to use the information for any reason other than what we say we'll use it for," she told the San Angelo Standard-Times

But the IRS uses bank data, sent via computer, to be sure taxpayers report interest income on their returns, she said. And computers from state agencies scan IRS files to find cases of food stamp and welfare fraud

The data is organized by name and Social Security number. Other groups --- including the military. stock exchanges and many colleges - use Social Security numbers to identify people.

Baptist ministers get good pay

DALLAS (AP) — According to a survey of salaries paid the clergy in 10 American denominations, Dallas ministers and Southern Baptist clergy rank among the highest paid in the United States The study finds striking differences among denominations and regions in the average senior pastor's total compensation.

Heading the list are Southern Baptists, who pay their senior pastors an average annual package of $50,458. Presbyterians run a close second at $49,934, and Episcopalians are third, with an average of $46,811.

Denominationally, Presbyterians, Lutherans and Episcopalians pay well above the average retirement package, at 11 percent of total compensation. Disciples were just above the 10 percent level recommended in the study. But along with the Baptists, the United Methodists, the Lutheran Church -Missouri Synod, Assemblies of God, the Church of Christ and the Nazarenes all were below 10 percent. The association examined the full financial package for pastors in the Assemblies of God, the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), the

The average pay drops considerably for an associate minister, whose average full compensation is $34,424, and a minister of preschool education, whose average pay package is $20,789

Pickett

Defense attorneys have argued that Brandley, now 37, was singled out for prosecution by Montgomery County officials and that racial prejudice played a role in his conviction.

At the end of Friday's hearing, Pickett strongly criticized the handling of the case.

"The litany of events graphically described by the witnesses, some of it chilling and shocking, leads me to the conclusion the pervasive shadow of darkness has obscured the light of fundamental decency and human rights." Pickett said.

Speers, while declining to assess prospects for a third Brandley trial, outlined some of the obstacles that might be faced

The highest-paid minister reported in Dallas, a Southern Baptist earning $149,150, was not identified by name in the survey, conducted by the Ministers' Financial Services Association of Lubbock. The company gathered information from nearly 1,000 congregations in 10 Christian denominations.

The top pay doesn't go to Dallas' most prominent Baptist preacher, W.A. Criswell, pastor of First Baptist Church

"I wish. I would be delighted if it were,' joked Criswell, who earns $50,000 a year, excluding allowances, book revenues and housing

Independent Churches of Christ reported the lowest average - $31,908, with the Nazarenes, at $33,420, and Disciples of Christ at $34,069, second and third from the bottom, respectively

The survey also shows that Baptist provisions for their ministers' retirements are among the lowest.

The response from Roman Catholics was so small that even though the results were published, they were not considered by those who took the survey to reflect an accurate picture of the compensation received by priests

Among the 10 denominations, the average compensation package for the senior minister of a church is $42,481. The total includes base salary, housing and utilities allowances, insurance and pension payments and other benefits such as continuing education and

Michael J. Springer, executive director of the Ministers' Financial Services Association, told the Dallas Morning News that when compared with the $50,525 median income for people across the nation with graduate education - equivalent to seminary - many ministers "could possibly be significantly underpaid

Geographically, the Sun Belt warms up the most to its preachers. In ranking of clergy pay state by state, the survey shows that the South and South Central regions dominate the top of the pay charts.

Fifteen of the top 20 states are in those two regions. Every state in the South Central region except Kansas was in the top 20. Ranked in order, the most generous are Georgia, Mississippi, Florida, Texas, Arkansas, Alabama, Tennessee, New York, California and North Carolina

By cities, although Dallas ranked first, it is followed closely by Atlanta and Jackson, Miss. Houston was fourth, San Antonio 12th, and Fort Worth ranked 15th.

Community boosts development by improving local businesses

BRENHAM (AP) — Civic leaders in Brenham are disproving the myth that money should be spent on recruiting new industry rather than nurturing existing business

Brenham's economic development director, Doug Hutchinson, said far more responses have developed since the city stopped recruiting in the traditiona' sense and began showing its app reciation for businesses it already had. "We are recruiting now, but we are going to take care of local business first," he said. "Seventy percent of all new jobs are going to come from local business. It just made sense.

There was strong opposition at first when city and county development officials suggested the Industrial Foundation host a dinner for all major business in Brenham, a town of 12,900 people. But it has since drawn local favor and helped attract new business, Hutchinson said.

The efforts apparently have produced inquiries from 10 serious prospects about locating operations in Brenham - compared with only six during the two years previous, Hutchinson said. And two of those prospects have opened for business.

Many rural economists believe that such self-development efforts must replace traditional industrial recruitment for rural towns to stem a flight of jobs to urban areas. Rural leaders have fostered development of cottage industries, food processing and tourism in their areas. "What communities throughout Texas are realizing is that industrial development is not the single answer to economic development, but rather it's only one of the answers," said Greg Taylor. a community development specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station. "And communities such as Brenham are looking at alternatives and innovative economic development strategies.'

Brenham also is developing plans for a venture capital fund that would tap the resources of wealthy landowners around Brenham for investment in new and existing businesses.

"All Doug and I heard when we first took our jobs was recruit, recruit, recruit. All the workshops we attended said expand your business," explained Bryan Swedlund, executive vice president of both the Washington County Chamber of Commerce and Brenham Industrial Founda-

Not every rural community in Texas is blessed with as diverse an industrial base as Brenham's The town has an unusually large concentration of manufacturers for a town its size, with products ranging from ice cream to mattresses, and from cotton fabric to business forms

Manufacturing accounts for roughly 20 percent of all jobs in Washington County, compared with only 7 percent in Bryan-College Station - the closest metropolitan area, about 40 miles to the north — according to a study by the Brazos Valley Private Industry Council.

"There has to be a blend of several things, but I think it was a good idea," Bryan Miller, president of Brentex Mills, said of the regular business "round table" meetings. "With the size of Brenham, the ones that are here now really don't know each other.

Miller also believes there is great potential for the proposed venture capital fund.

"One of our customers wanted to put an apparel manufacturing plant here (with venture capital money). Now that would have benefited us." Miller said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Greedy guardians abuse the elderly

America's elderly, rarely venerated and often scorned, sometimes find even the law working against them. An excellent series, compiled by 67 Associated Press reporters and editors, concludes that "elderly in guardianship court are often afforded fewer rights than criminal defendants.

The reporters gloomily find that, "in thousands of courts around the nation every week, a few minutes of routine and the stroke f a judge's pen are all that it takes to strip an old man or woman of basic rights.

Guardianship laws allow a court to appoint a guardian to handle the affairs of an incapacitated elderly person — the 300,000 to 400,000 people under guardianship cannot receive money or pay bills; they cannot marry or divorce; the guardian can de-cide where the ward will live and what medical treatment they will get.

In 44 percent of the cases, AP found, the proposed ward is not represented at the hearing by an attorney; 49 percent of the wards were not even present at their hearings; 30 percent of the files con-tained no medical evidence pointing to supposed incapacitation. And after they are declared incapacitated, the elderly have little recourse to complain.

The opportunities for abuse are obvious — and the AP reporters found many awful examples. Unscrupulous people can, and have, spent a ward's life savings, sold her house, put her in a nursing home when the need is not proven and cashed her Social Security checks. In one sickening case in Chicago, a social worker found an 83-year-old women lying in a urine-soaked bed suffering from severe malnutrition and dehydration. The woman's daughter had been appointed her guardian, and the grandchildren who actually cared for the old women, called her "Fido.' and spent her Social Security checks. A court eventually appointed another guardian.

Elderly people have to be especially careful about heir behavior. In a brilliant, but sad, summary of this warning, an Arizona legal services attorney, said: "If you're old, you can't be foolish." Eccentric activity, perhaps merely wanting to buy a camper and tour the country, can be twisted by a potential guardian-leech into "proof" of incapacitation and inability of an elderly person to run her own life. The sytem of guardianship is, of course, a much needed one. People do become, for example, senile or fall victim to Alzheimer's Disease, and thus unable to care for themselves. But the elderly deserve, at least, the due process of law. And they deserve a lot more — only in the most obvious cases, only when a person's incapacitation has been proven beyond a reasonable doubt, should that person's rights be abridged. Guardianship should never be used to get rid of a pesky mother-in-law or put a family embarrassment out of sight.

Defend rights to private clubs

WASHINGTON - Within the next few weeks a kind of unisex ordinance will become effective here in the District of Columbia. The law will compel private social clubs that now are menonly or women-only to admit members of the opposite sex.

Such ordinances and state laws are spreading around the nation. Minnesota's statewide statute led to the Supreme Court's 1984 decision in the matter of the Jaycees. California's Unruh Act of 1982 led to last May's decision in the case of Rotary clubs. Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles and Buffalo have adopted ordinances of local application to social clubs. A major test case will challenge New York City's Local Law

The District of Columbia ordinance, adopted unanimously on Sept. 29, applies to all private clubs with at least 350 members, provided they regularly serve meals and receive payment for use of their facilities "directly or indirectly from or on behalf of non-members for the furtherance of trade or business." This means that if members take non-members to lunch, and they talk business, the club is covered by the law.

The local ordinance, reflecting what has been termed the "politics of envy," is aimed primarily at the three most prestigious clubs in the capital. The Metropolitan Club, with about 2,000 members, was founded in 1864. The Cosmos Club, with 3,000 members, dates from 1878. The Sulgrave Club, launched in 1932, has 900 members. The Metropolitan and the Cosmos have a men-only policy; the Sulgrave is women-only.

After a 30-day waiting period, in which Congress might (but won't) intervene, the D.C. ordinance will go into effect. The general assumption is that unless the clubs' governing bodies abruptly reverse their long-standing policies, a few egalitarian members will nominate women to Cosmos and Metropolitan; a couple of men will be put up for Sulgrave. The convivial atmosphere around the club rooms will turn a sulfurous blue, and some of the brothers and sisters will be deeply upset.

The popular reaction is likely to be, "So what?" or "Serves 'em right." Not many persons will have much sympathy for the wealthy and influential men and women who belong to exclusive social clubs in major cities. To impose a compulsory policy against discrimination may be seen as no big deal.

But it is a big deal. As even Justice William Brennan acknowledged, writing for the court in the Jaycees case, "There can be no clearer example of an intrusion into the internal structure or affairs of an association than a regulation that forces the group to accept members it does not desire." Freedom of association, said Brennan, "plainly presupposes a freedom not to associate Fifteen years ago, in a case involving the Moose Lodge, Justice Wiliam O. Douglas said much the same thing. Significantly, he was joined in his opinion by Justice Thurgood Marshall. The First Amendment, said Douglas, creates "a zone of privacy which precludes the gov- enforce it.

"The associational rights which our system honors," said Douglas, "permit all-white, allbrown and all-yellow clubs to be formed. They also permit all-Catholic, all-Jewish or allagnostic clubs to be established. Government may not tell a man or woman who his or her associates must be. The individual can be as selective as he desires.'

The high court's theory in ordering women admitted to full membership in Rotary and the Jaycees is that such civic clubs are not truly private. Their luncheon meetings are open to the press. Membership is widely extended. The clubs sell services to their members. In effect they are "places of public accommodation" where business and professional contacts are developed. The state's "compelling interest" in preventing sexual discrimination overrides the members' rights of association.

It seems to me that a distinction should be made in the matter of purely social clubs. By no stretch of the imagination could Washington's Metropolitan Club be described as a place of public accommodation. It is a posh version of Duffy's Tavern, where the elite meet to eat. Club rules sternly forbid the production of business papers at a luncheon table, but no one doubts that business is transacted there.

Does this admitted fact transform a social club into a restaurant required to serve all customers? I don't think so, and my guess is that the Supreme Court ultimately will apply the Douglas-Marshall doctrine to these local ordinances. I don't understand why clubs have a men-only policy - I delight in the company of women - but I have to defend their right to

'Bork' sounds like indigestion

Many a truth oft is spoken in jest. Johnny Carson says Judge Robert Bork is handicapped by the named "Bork.

'Bork,'' Johnny repeats, "sounds like the sound an (overweight) Raymond Burr makes when he gets up from a vinyl sofa."

It makes one wonder how much of Lt. Col. Oliver North's appeal was due to the disarming nickname "Ollie." Who could fail to like anybody named "Ollie"?

Yet, it's a heckuva way to pick a Supreme Court justice.

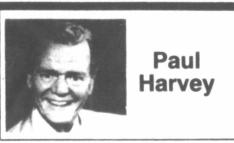

California's Sen. Alan Cranston believes he has enough votes in the Senate to defeat the Bork nomination

Is it something the judge said? Something he wrote? Not really

Senators are influenced by the public opinion polls they read and the public opinion polls indicate the public is less than enthusiastic about Bob Bork

Even The Wall Street Journal concedes that "The nomination has lost its momentum.

The Journal also notes that not one TV ad has been seen supporting the Bork nomination while the organizations opposed have conducted an anti-Bork media blitz.

"Conservative groups have simply not been able to match the passion of the anti-Bork campaign.

And where a statesman gives us the benefit of the best judgment, a politician goes whichever way the wind blows.

For all the money spent on propaganda, I have always felt that the American people have an overriding gut instinct about things. I have relied on that and seldom have been disappointed.

Yet, in this instance, very few of us are intellectually competent to stand in judgment of Judge Bork's credentials. I know I am not.

Esperance.

Thus a majority vote might be the worst possible basis for this decision. After all, it was a misled majority that crucified Christ

Nonetheless, at this moment, it appears that the U.S. Senate is going to reject a man whose qualifications for the job are monumental, if not unprecedented.

And, as former Attorney General Griffin Bell says, "without even waiting to see who's coming down the road next.--

In Chicago we have known Bob Bork for many years as a distinguished teacher and jurist. Among those who know him he is universally esteemed.

But while he is admirable, he is not lovable. Ollie North, you recall, was both.

We do have to worry a little about "lovability" as a qualification for the judiciary.

If charisma were the criterion, Elvis Presley would surely have been president of the United States

The more you make, more you spend

By Sarah Overstreet

There was a time when I thought if I ever made as much money as I'm making now, I'd be in tall cotton.

It's not like I'm a candidate for the Fortune 500 anytime soon, but my salary today would have made my eyes spin the year I signed my first teaching contract. And even that seemed like untold riches after years of dishing out McDonald's fries and Mr. Swiss burgers. I was to make $7,400 a year for merely working 10 hours a day corralling seventh-graders, grading papers and taking tickets at football games

But that $7,400 didn't go very far after I started dipping into it, any more than my much larger paycheck stretches now. It's amazing how a few years can dim the figures of a fivedigit salary. My friend Marla Geary succinctly calls it the "Charmin bathroom tissue theory of economics."

At first, you think this new cache of money will manifest itself in a handsome savings account, maybe a few stocks and bonds to pigeonhole against old age. Then, little by little, it starts to fritter itself away.

First, the Always Save bathroom tissue gives way to the Charmin. You're in the supermarket, a newly rich person, and you begin to wonder why with all this money in your pock-et you have to use toilet tissue that has the texture of the paper towels in a low-rent gas station

Next, you begin to believe your soft palate deserves canned green beans without the stalks in them. You chafe at K-Mart underwear, and then you want the mascara without the big lumps in it. Pretty soon it's the end of the month, and Exxon will have to survive a little longer without you as a stockholder.

There are people who will save, invest and prosper no matter what peri-od of history they live in. But I suspect that for the rest of us, it's all in how you look at money, and a lot of that depends when you grew up. My parents grew up wearing flour sacks and rearing two little boys in the Depression. My folks could save money panhandling at bus stations. Putting money away meant they'd never again have to wonder if they could afford chicken necks instead of potatoes and beans, and the bank wouldn't foreclose on their two-bedroom bungalow.

But they died not having spent much of what they saved, and my father left the bulk of it to a third wife. That has a powerful impact on a kid. It tends to propel a shopping cart straight to the Charmin and the Del Monte green beans while one is alive. Future generations - especially future spouses - couldn't possibly need money as much as the one making it who has it burning right through her pocket at this very moment.

Many of my contemporaries have taken this economic theory to the extreme, believing one doesn't need to even make money before spending it. I don't know why this should bother me so much, but it does. Call it a quirk; I want people to pay for their own Charmin. But then I guess those folks were around when my parents were making one chicken last through three suppers. Just like those who always invest their money wisely, there are those who ride through life on their brother's dollar.

I know I could do better financially. I could subscribe to a few investment magazines and start reading Sylvia Porter, but I think I already know my economic prognosis: The sum total of my need for the high-price spread and soft bathroom tissue is equal to the expansion of my means. So, there are worse sins. I have an IRA and medical insurance, and I make my house payment on time. I may not ever challenge Malcolm Forbes, but I don't think he has to worry about paying my tab if I get sick or lose my job. In the interim, I don't care for industrial-grade toilet paper. Pass the Charmin, please, and don't squeeze it.

Tilting pitchers lost favor after refrigeration

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL wood 1883, R." There is also a pic-

Cold water is always in demand, but ice cubes from an automatic ice maker were not part of the 19th century life in America. Ice was harvested in the winter. Huge blocks were cut from frozen lakes and hauled to a cool storage area and packed in sawdust

Ice was scarce and expensive, so it was conserved in many ways. The metal ice-water pitcher was popular after about 1854. when a double-wall pitcher was patented. The trapped air space kept the contents of the pitcher cool

Extra insulation was efficient, but the pitcher could weigh as much as 10 pounds when it was empty. To help with this problem, the tilting pitcher with a stand was designed.

One maker said the stand "enables the person ... to pour water from the pitcher without being compelled to lift it. It is so constructed that the base forms a tray for holding the goblet and for catching the water that may condense and drip from the outside of the pitcher."

When refrigeration became more common in the 20th century, the tilting pitcher lost favor. By 1900, very few can be found in the catalogs issued by the silver plate manufacturers.

A. Start by locking the doors and making sure that no one enters the house without you. Wellmeaning friends and employees often clean, or even "liberate," small pieces without telling you about it.

The court will probably require an appraisal before anything can be sold. Everything in an old house has some value, including old magazines, Christmas ornaments, toys, pots and pans, tin cans, clothes and of course furniture, paintings, rugs, silver and china.

Do not discard anything. Search through everything for personal papers and pictures and records of what is in the house. Perhaps there was an insurance policy that listed some of the contents

Look inside every book, behind every picture, and beneath every cushion for hidden money. Then decide what you want to own and take it out of the house.

The sale of the house and remaining contents is a major job. If you have time, you can do much of the work. If you do not, call in a local auctioneer or a house sale expert and have the sale conducted for you.

You might want to sell some items to dealers, but rememeber if you sell all "treasures" in the house before a sale, the "trash" that is left will not attract buyers. So many of our readers have asked about problems like yours that we have finally written a book on just that subject. "Kovels Guide to Selling Your Antiques and Collectibles" (Crown, $9.95) is now at local bookstores or by mail from Kovels, Box 22900, Beachwood, Ohio 44122. Add a dollar for postage. Included are lists of where and how to sell everything from jewelry and fine furniture to comic books and toys.

letter from the man who hasn't kissed his wife in 10 years because she was a heavy smoker and he couldn't stand the taste and smell, I had to write. My husband chews tobacco — specifically, he dips snuff, which is why I haven't kissed him in 10 years!

His teeth are brown, his tongue is cracked and his mouth tastes so bad my tongue and mouth "burn" when he tries to kiss me. It's a real turnoff when making love, and yet he insists that I kiss him. "It's not that bad," he says. Ha! Cancer runs in his family, yet he's into total denial of all the statistics.

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Cowboys president Tex Schramm said there is no chance the National Football League will give in to demands of the players union that the games being played by nonstriking players be thrown out of the standings.

"I'll guarantee you one thing - these games are going to count," Schramm said Sunday night during an interview with Dallas television station WFAA-TV

"If that became the single issue" preventing an end to the strike, Schramm said, "then we would go to the end. We would play the Super Bowl. These games are in the books. They count."

Schramm denied that the NFL was trying to slow down negotiations with the players union by its call for a six-year contract instead of three-year contracts

'We can't have a strike every two or three years, and that's why in our latest negotiations we are talking about a six-year contract," Schramm said.

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Tony Dorsett scored on a 10-yard run and was booed. No, he wasn't in Philadelphia.

Danny White faded to pass and was sacked by Troy West, who was cheered. No, this wasn't in Philadelphia.

It was in Texas Stadium Sunday where 40,622 fans showed up to cheer their replacement Cowboys to a 41-22 NFL victory over the Eagles and unleash some big league boos on two veteran heroes.

"When you get booed, it bothers you," White said. "Still, that's the easiest 45 grand ($45,000) I ever made.

"I thought they were booing Tony until I got sacked.

White was madder about the booing directed at Dorsett.

"In my opinion, he's the finest running back in the NFL and doesn't deserve this treatment. It's hideous to hear Tony booed like this on his own field. I wouldn't call anyone a good Cowboy fan who booed Tony like that," White said.

The Dallas victory left the Cowboys, 3-1, tied for first place in the NFL East with the Washington Redskins, who dropped the defending world champion New York Giants to 0-4 with a 38-12 victory Sunday. The Cowboys and Redskins play here next #### week on Monday night.

Kelvin Edwards ran 62 yards for a touchdown on a reverse on Dallas' first play and the Cowboys (3-1) were never threatened by the 1-3 Eagles

Sub Cowboys cheered, veterans booed

After Dallas built a 27-10 halftime lead, Landry put Dorsett and White into the game.

Dorsett avoided the Cowboys' interview room after the game and went out a back door to board the team bus. He told a reporter who talked to him later on the darkened bus, "I expected what happened. It's not the first time and It won't be the last. It didn't really concern me."

After the game, as Dorsett was running off the field and into the ramp leading to the dressing room, someone in the stands hit him with an empty cup.

"I would prefer to do this (play) under different circumstances," Dorsett said. 'But that's not the case. The longer the strike goes on, it's inevitable that I'd have to play. That's what I get paid to do."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said he could see the fan hostility coming, particularly after Dorsett was quoted earlier in the week that he would beg not to play. Dorsett later recanted.

"I wasn't surprised," said Landry. "Tony was so outspoken about not wanting to play that he knew he would be booed. I felt both of them needed to play even though I knew there would be boos." Dorsett and White didn't play last week although they crossed the picket line week before last.

Landry was pleased by the Cowboys' explosive first quarter in which they scored on their first three possessions.

'Our first play was a good one. It really started us off. We really have something good going," Landry said.

Eagles' Coach Buddy Ryan said he was ready to take the Cowboys on with his regular players.

"Our offensive line did a super job when you consider who they were blocking. You can't give up three touchdowns in five plays and win in this league," Ryan said. 'I hope the strike is over next week. And

'm looking forward to getting them in Philadelphia. I'm looking forward to playing 'em with our real guys.'

Dallas Club President Tex Schramm insisted that the games played during the strike "will count. They are in the books." However, Schramm said he was afraid the fan hostility might still be present after the veterans return

"I'm afraid there will be some carryover," Schramm said. "We want the fans to be proud of our team.

The announced crowd of 40,622 was the 'smallest in Texas Stadium history and the smallest for the Cowboys since 38,499 watched them play St. Louis in the Cotton Bowl. However, it was the biggest strike crowd of the day.

There were 6,018 fans who didn't use their tickets.

'It was a fantastic crowd," said defensive tackle Mike Dwyer. "It was like a college crowd."

In addition to the touchdown runs by Dorsett and Edwards, running back Alvin Blount scored on runs of 8 and 1 yard, Luis Zendejas kicked field goals of 44 and 50 yards, and Cornell Burbage caught a 77yard scoring pass from Kevin Sweeney for the Cowboys

The Eagles' Scott Tinsley threw scoring passes of 62 yards to Kevin Bowman, and 13 yards each to Mike Siano and Topper Clemons

"It was a little different playing in front of a big crowd," Tinsley said. "We only had 4,000 in Philadelphia last week."

Cowboys' player representative Doug Cosbie headed a band of players who began picketing an hour and a half after the team buses had already arrived.

"Oklahoma could beat either one of these teams," Cosbie said. "The fans ought to give their $25 to charity. They would at least get a tax deduction.

The striking players left for a picnic before the game started.

Twins go up 3-1 By HARRY ATKINS AP Sports Writer may DETROIT (AP) - Kirby Puck ett and Greg Gagne, who had been held in check by Detroit through the first three games of the American League playoffs, helped power the Twins to a 5-3 victory in Game 4. The victory Sunday night put the Twins up 3-1 in the best-of-seven series with the AL East champions, who found themselves in a must-win situation in Game 5, which was scheduled for 3:07 p.m. today

Doyle Alexander was scheduled to start for Detroit. Bert Blyleven was scheduled to go for Minnesota

Puckett, who had only a double in 13 at-bats in the first three games, had two hits, including a home run, in five at-bats and scored two runs Sunday.

Gagne, who had only a sole homer in 10 at-bats, had another homer in Game 4 while going 2for-4 and scoring two runs.

'My teammates know it's just a matter of time," Puckett said of his slow start for the AL West champions. "I just play hard and let the chips fall where they

A two-out throwing error by Gagne at shortstop allowed Lou Whitaker to score Detroit's first run as the Tigers took a 1-0 firstinning lead.

But Puckett, who hit 28 home runs during the regular season, got that back in the third when he slammed the first pitch from Frank Tanana into the left field seats

"The pressure was on the Tigers," Puckett said. "Nobody expected us to do anything anyway.

Tigers Detroit compiled the best record in baseball, winning 98 games in 1987. Their victory Sunday night was only the 10th road victory since the All-Star game for the Twins.

Gagne put the Twins ahead to stay when he hit Tanana's 1-1 pitch into the left field seats in the fourth.

The game turned on an unthinkable mistake by Detroit veteran Darrell Evans.

With one run in, cutting the Twins lead to 4-3 in the sixth, the Tigers had Evans on third and Dave Bergman on second with one out.

Giants steal Cardinals' act

By STEVE WILSTEIN AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - The San Francisco Giants taught the thieves from St. Louis a lesson in base-stealing and outdinked the 'dink ball'' champions.

San Francisco, one victory from its first National League pennant in 25 years, put on another show of power and pitching Sunday while beating the Cardinals at their own game.

The Giants set a playoff home run record, swiped three bases, strung together some singles and secured a 6-3 victory with reborn relief pitcher Joe Price's brilliant one-hit pitching over the last five innings.

"They looked like the Gashouse Gang today and we looked like a bunch of leadfoots," said St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog. "We couldn't get them out with a cannon.

The victory gave the Giants a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven playoffs with Game 6 on Tuesday night in St. Louis. The Giants will send Dave Dravecky against John Tudor. The two met in the second game when Dravecky threw a two-hitter in a 5-0 victory. Price became the latest surgically repaired hero for the Giants, a team to make medical science proud.

"It's every ballplayer's dream," Price said of his first playoff victory, calling it the most important game in his eight-year career.

Price's dream game - he had six strikeouts and one walk --held more significance for him because it marked the climax of his comeback from elbow surgery.

ing the regular season and he quietly led the club with a 2.57 earned run average. With all the big trades for pitchers Rick Reuschel, Don Robinson and Dravecky, hardly anyone noticed

> "I think I'm really lucky because I'm one of the few guys who didn't get traded away, so I must be doing something right," said Price, who throttled the Cardinals with fastballs and curves.

Price was 2-2 with one save dur-

The Cardinals are hoping a return to Busch Stadium will blunt the Giants' attack.

St. Louis scored first in Game 5 when Vince Coleman started the game with a double, advanced on a sacrifice bunt and scored on Tommy Herr's sacrifice fly.

But in the bottom of the inning, the Giants' Robby Thompson walked and stole second almost by the time catcher Tony Pena caught Mathews' pitch. Kevin Mitchell then singled, scoring Thompson, and stole second with just as much ease.

The Giants scored again on Mitchell's homer in the third, the team's ninth homer in the playoffs against one for the Cards.

Tipps, Lafoon to receive athletic honors

Former Pampa High football coach Tom Tipps and a player he coached while at Pampa will be inducted into the Athletic Hall of Fame at Sul Ross State University. Tipps and ex-Harvester Charlie Lafoon will be inducted along with eight others during homecoming activities Oct. 23 at 6:30 p.m. in Mountainside Cafeteria.

Tipps, who was a standout football and basketball player at Quitaque, received his degree from Sul Ross in 1938. He was named to the All-Time SRSU Football Team in 1939.

Tipps coached in Texas public schools for 15 years before becoming the head line coach at Texas A&M University under Coach Paul "Bear" The solo shot also gave the Giants a National League playoff record of home runs in five straight games

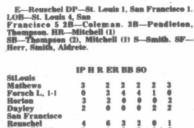

But they resumed dink ball and base-stealing in the fourth inning, scoring four runs to overcome a 3-2 deficit.

Chili Davis singled on the first pitch from reliever Bob Forsch, and Will Clark singled on the next pitch. Bob Brenly then walked to load the bases, and former Cardinal Jose Uribe drove in two runs with another single Brenly scored on pinch-hitter Mike Aldrete's sacrifice fly, and Uribe stole The Cards led the league with 248 stolen bases, compared with 94 for San Francisco, but the Giants have a 5-3 edge so far in this series.

'We do whatever it takes to win," said Clark.

Bryant. He later coached at Washington before becoming a professional scout for the Dallas Cowboys and the Green Bay Packers.

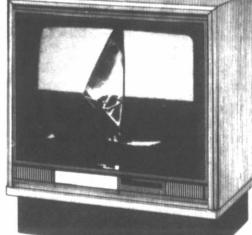

Tipps coached Lafoon in 1947, his first year as Harvester head coach.

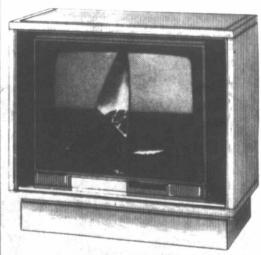

Lafoon was a four-year letterman at Sul Ross and was named All-Conference in 1949, 1950 and 1951. He was fifth in the nation in total offense his senior year and broke the Lone Star Conference record for total offense.

Lafoon's first collegiate pass went for a touchdown and he once threw six TD passes in a single game. He has been the postmaster at Iraan for 25 years.

Japanese researcher at MIT wins Nobel Prize in medicine

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) -Susumu Tonegawa of Japan today won the 1987 Nobel Prize in medicine for his discoveries on the structure of the body's immune system.

Tonegawa, a 48-year-old researcher at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., wrote a pioneering study in 1976 outlining "the genetic principle for generation of antibody diversity," the Karolinska Institute said in its citation

"Tonegawa could, through a series of ingenious experiments, show how parts of the genome of the cell (DNA) is redistributed under its differentiation from an embryonic cell to an antibody producing B lymphocite," the institute said which can trigger the production of a different antibody.

"During the following two years, Tonegawa completely dominated this area of research.

Tonegawa, who won the 1987 Nobel Prize for Medicine today, has been a much-honored researcher for his discoveries in understanding the body's immune defense

Last month, Tonegawa was among three molecular biologists to share the Albert Lasker medical research award. In February 1986 he was named a recipient of the $50,000 Bristol-Myers Award for Distinguished Achievement in Cancer Research.

Today's announcement was made by the Nobel Assembly at the Karolinska Institute, a hospital and research facility

The Lasker award cited Tonegawa for using the new techniques of molecular biology to explain a long-standing problem: how the body can manufacture a seemingly limitless variety of antibodies each specifically

Philip Leder of Harvard Medical School and Leroy Hood of the California Institute of Technology

Tonegawa showed that DNA, the chemical that makes up genes, can be rearranged to form many different blueprints, each of which can trigger the production of a different antibody.

The Lasker citation recognized him for "his brilliant concepts and experimental achievements in appyling molecular biology to the analysis and understanding of the genetics of antibody diversity.

He was creditied for discovering that rearranging the fragments of genes activates cancercausing genes in blood cells known as "B" cells. The research demonstrated that the immune system's ability to recognize a wide variety of invading germs stems from the "B" cells, which produce antibodies, the proteins that seek out germs and mark them for destruction by other components of the immune

Nessie not aroused by sonar, but blip keeps world guessing

DRUMNADROCHIT, Scotland (AP) = A $1.6 million hightechnology hunt for the Loch Ness Monster didn't arouse Nessie, but a tiny sonar blip may keep the world guessing about the legendary beast.

Nessie enthusiasts were undoubtedly disappointed that the three-day sonar sweep of the murky loch which ended Sunday turned up no flippers, humps, heads or tails.

Organizer Adrian Shine said he could not deliver the "media monster" - the prehistoric reptile that is a favorite conception of Nessie

"Nobody really believed in that anyway, did they?" asked Shine, who has spent 14 years doing research on the loch.

But the 38-year-old London salesman told a news conference Sunday night he was more encouraged than ever because of three sonar contacts with large objects that may have been moving in the 750-foot-deep waters.

Darrell Lowrance, president of Lowrance Electronics Inc. of Tulsa, Okla., which supplied the echo sonars for the simultaneous sweep of the loch by 20 motor boats, said he was surprised by the strength of one contact at about 620 feet. The blip depicted an object that looked like an inverted V.

Lowrance said the three sonar contacts were stronger than those from the largest pike or salmon found in freshwater lakes like Loch Ness, "and remind me of what you get from large, saltwater fish, sharks, grouper of 200 to 400 pounds or possibly marine mammals such as seals.

Hotel owner Ronnie Bremner, who founded the Loch Ness Center and has a vested interest in promoting the 1,400-year-old Nessie legend, said he isn't convinced it's a big fish.

"Unlike Adrian, I've seen it and I still go for the media monster," he said. "To me, this (search) just enhances the whole position.

One million tourists spent some $250 million annually in the Loch Ness-Inverness area.

More than 4,000 eyewitnesses have reported sighting Nessie in modern times and monster hunters have used everything from breadcrumbs to submarines in an effort to track it.

Shine said he believes Operation Deepscan will spark more scientific and technical research in the loch "in addition to the silliness.

He said he wants to continue studying fish and temperatures in the loch.

Bremner said the 300 journalists from around the world who traveled to this beautiful loch in the Scottish Highlands to cover Operation Deepscan were the largest media contingent ever assembled at Loch Ness.

While nobody got a glimpse of Nessie, Shine debunked one of the most famous supposed pictures of the monster, a photo taken in 1975 by the Academy of Applied Science in Concord, N.H.

The gargoyle head in the picture turned out to be a rotting tree stump 22 feet below the surface of the loch.

The head of the Academy of Applied Sciences, Robert Rines, said in a telephone interview that he was not discouraged about the photograph.

Brazilian clinic doctors indicted

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - The release of radioactive material that contaminated 243 people, 10 of them critically, has led to the indictment of three doctors who owned an abandoned radiation therapy clinic.

Forty people remained hospitalized after being exposed to material released from a container of cesium 137, a radioactive isotope used in cancer research and radiation therapy.

The World Health Organization said it was the worst cesiumrelated radiation disaster in history

Orlando Teixeira, 37, Criseide Dourado, 40, and Carlos Bezzerril, 43, directors of the Goiania Radiation Therapy Institute, were indicted Saturday on charges of causing grave injury to 10 people. If convicted, they face two to eight years in jail. Health officials said seven areas of Goiania, a city of 1.2 million about 130 miles south of the capital of Brasilia, and 243 people were contaminated in varying degrees by the cesium.

Scrap metal dealer Devair Ferreira found the 500-pound lead casing Sept. 30 in the rubble of the partly demolished Goiania clinic. He took it home in a wheelbarrow and took it apart.

The chemical's phosphorescent yellow glow fascinated the neighborhood residents in Goiania. They carried it in their pockets and passed it around to show their friends. Children rubbed it on their bodies and Ferreira's 6-year-old niece ate some of it.

Police weren't notified for five days. They began searching for the owners of the clinic, which was torn down last year. Ten of the most critically injured, including Ferreira and his niece, were flown to a naval hospital in Rio de Janeiro for treatment.

The Nuclear Energy Commission said the container, encased in concrete, will be deposited in a 100-foot deep hole initially built for nuclear tests on a military installation in the Amazon jungle in northern Brazil.

Environmentalists oppose the plan, saying the region is the source of several Amazon rivers that could be contaminated by the waste.

Brazil has just one nuclear power plant and does not have facilities to store atomic waste.

Nation Air Force wants more for rockets

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Air Force is seeking nearly $1 billion to further decrease its reliance on the space shuttle for lofting military satellites into orbit, according to congressional testimony.

The January 1986 explosion of the space shuttle Challenger and subsequent mishaps in two Air Force launches of single-mission rockets has hobbled the Pentagon's satellite-launching program.

The first of a series of mediumlift Delta II rockets, built by McDonnell Douglas Corp. under a contract awarded in January, is scheduled to take a navigation satellite into space next fall.

But, according to Air Force Secretary Edward C. Aldridge, recent revisions in the National Aeronautic and Space Administration's plans for a renewed space shuttle program make it clear the military needs to further increase its ability to launch satellites independent of NASA.

Aldridge, in testimony before Congress released Sunday, said the Air Force needs $961 million over the next two years to build five additional Delta IIs and a new fleet of 10 rockets, designated Medium-Lift Vehicle II.

The Air Force also wants to increase the production of heavylifting Titan IV rockets from six per year to 10 per year through 1995, he told a closed session of a Senate Armed Services panel last Tuesday

It would acquire 25 Titan IVs in addition to the 23 already authorized by Congress. It also needs to refurbish its Titan IV launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and build a second pad at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., he said.

The testimony was released by the Air Force after a report on the subject in Saturday's editions of The New York Times. Aldridge had referred to the request in a speech Thursday to the National Security Industrial Association.

The expansion of the Air Force program is made necessary by NASA's decision in May to postpone the next space shuttle flight until June 1988, reduce the maximum number of flights to 14 per year and lower the weight limit for shuttle payloads, Aldridge said.

He asked the subcommittee on strategic forces and nuclear deterrence for $316 million in the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 and $645 million in the subsequent

An AP News Analysis character has been drawn into the campaign again, and yet another candidate is defending his integrity.

The former television evangelist and Baptist minister appears genuinely bewildered at the furor over some aspects of his personal life.

As the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch put it, "He fibbed about his wedding date, exaggerated his educational achievements and his services as a member of a bank board and embellished certain other aspects of his personal life.' Robertson tried to shrug off the questions, saying, "I'm a human being. But he has staked his cam-

Robertson bewildered by accusations

So what are these allegations that threaten to set askew Robertson's halo?

-His first child was born 10 weeks after his marriage to wife Dede in 1954. The Robertsons had always celebrated their anniversary on March 22, though it was disclosed last week they were legally married on Aug. 27, 1954. Robertson explained the couple considered themselves wedded the day their son was conceived, which he placed at March 22.

-Robertson revised campaign literature that listed 'graduate study, University of London, England, 1950." After it was disclosed that he took only a brief course in art and architecture, a subsequent version of his resume said only, "studied briefly at the University of London."

-He claimed on his resume to be a member of the United Virginia Bank board of directors, though he actually was on the board of a much smaller bank later absorbed by United Virginia.

Robertson, of course, has counseled against sex outside of marriage and called for a return to basic moral values. He has also, in a book, defined a lie as "a deliberate attempt to deceive by use of any form of untruth.'

The disclosures, Robertson said, are "not going to hurt me at all. Christians are very forgiving people.' Robert Grant, chairman of the conservative lobby Christian Voice, dismissed the media attention to "minor glitches.

"There's been no real egregious revelation that I'm aware of. The people who are committed to Pat believe in Pat and his integrity," Grant said.

But GOP consultant Eddie Mahe zeroed in on the real impact.

"It's a lot like the Joe Biden story, isn't it? His core constituency will forgive him, but I do think it will impact on his capacity to expand beyond his base," Mahe said.

Robertson says he won't go the Biden route -- "I'm not going down" - but the fire may yet become too hot for the preacher

The Richmond paper has already called on him to quit. "It shouldn't take a special message from Above to convince Mr. Robertson that the wise thing for him to do now is withdraw from the race." But will God let him do it?

Nebraska man gives statement in triple slaying

AMARILLO (AP) — A 22-year-old Omaha, Neb., man told police he might be wanted for murder and later gave a statement about a recent triple slaying in Omaha, authorities said.

Patrick Hankins was scheduled to appear today before a judge — "probably on a murder charge" — and would be asked to waive extradition to Omaha, Lt. Milton Pool of the Amarillo (Texas) Police Department said Sunday night.

Two Omaha police detectives were in Amarillo Sunday to question Hankins about the murders a week ago in Omaha of Danae Cook, 18; Kevin Cook, 16; and their mother, Barbara Cook, 45. Their bodies were found in Miss Cook's apartment.

"There was a statement obtained from him. That's all I can say," Pool said.

"He will be asked if he will agree to extradition. If so, the paperwork will be filled out, and he will be taken back to Omaha," Pool said.

Pool said the time and place of the arraignment had not been determined. Hankins had not been formally charged Sunday night, Pool said, adding, "He's in our jail for investigation of murder.'

Amarillo Deputy Chief James Skinner said Hankins called the Amarillo police at 12:05 a.m. Sunday from the Union 76 Truck Stop on Interstate 10 in east Amarillo. Hankins was taken into custody about 10 minutes later.

"He said he thought he was wanted for murder in Omaha," Pool said.

Earlier, Omaha police had said they had no evidence to link Hankins directly with the deaths.

Omaha police had learned that Hankins had been staying with Miss Cook for some time and had stopped living with her just before last weekend. Investigators said they did not believe Miss Cook and Hankins were romantically involved.

Mrs. Cook and her son, Kevin, formerly lived in Omaha but had moved to Aurora, Colo.

The three murder victims all suffered fatal head injuries. Police declined to comment on how the injuires were inflicted except to say the three died violent deaths.

Miss Cook's 1974 Chevrolet . Monte Carlo had been missing since the bodies were found.

The Delta IIs are intended to launch Navstar Global Positioning System satellites, which enable U.S. aircraft and ships to navigate more accurately and aim weapons more precisely.

The new rockets would launch components of the Defense Satellite Communications Systems, the main audio and video link for U.S. land and sea forces around the world.

The Times, quoting Pentagon sources it did not identify, said General Dynamics Corp., McDonnell Douglas and Martin Marietta are among the leading candidates to build the new rocket fleet.

Agent Orange bill welcomed by vets

FORT WORTH (AP) - A congressman's bill to force the Veterans Administration to compensate Vietnam veterans who were exposed to Agent Orange sounds good, but whether it actually occurs is something else, some veterans say.

About three dozen veterans told U.S. Rep. John Bryant, D-Texas, of Dallas at a Saturday meeting in Fort Worth that they welcome the legislation he plans to introduce this week. But they also noted that many other laws already on the books have failed to help them.

"What will give it teeth?" said one vet who walked into the meeting on crutches.

Agent Orange, a herbicide that contains dioxin, was used to strip jungle foliage in Vietnam. Agent Orange has been blamed for a variety of serious health disorders. Researchers have found that dioxin can cause cancer.

"For the Veterans Administration to continue to deny compensation to veterans who were disabled by Agent Orange while fighting for their country is a national outrage," said Bryant, a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

Several veterans complained of being treated poorly when they mentioned Agent Orange and of being required to produce much evidence when seeking medical care.

Bryant said the comments were typical of several meetings he has held across the state last week.
