Beau uncorks Ollie's show for Pampans

By LARRY HOLLIS
News Editor

Congressman Beau Boulter brought Col. Oliver North's pro-Contra slide show to Pampa Friday, saying he supports the Nicaraguan freedom fighters' efforts.

But he denied he was here to spread Olliemania.

The Panhandle Republican exhibited the slide show to a combined luncheon meeting of Downtown Kiwanis Club, Pampa Noon Lions Club and Pampa Chamber of Commerce members and guests.

Boulter noted his earlier slide presentations, including one in Wichita Falls last Monday, have "created a lot of interest with the media" across the state. The unclassified slides are the ones Col. North tried to show in the congressional Iran-Contra hearings.

"He was not permitted to show those slides," Boulter said, adding that some of the committee members claimed there were technical problems in the room preventing the slide show. But North did make an oral presentation based on the slides.

"I've seen the classified slides," Boulter said, saying he feels they should be declassified. "If the American people could see the classified slides, they would see some frightening things," he said.

Boulter said he was not here to say everything North did was correct. "I'm not here to spread Olliemania," he contended, adding that he doesn't think all of North's actions in the Iran-Contra affair were right. "I don't agree with everything President Reagan does, either," he said.

The second-term congressman said he feels the hearings are mainly a political attempt to embarrass Reagan. "No reason I know except politics on why the hearings were drug out," Boulter said.

Boulter defended his Contra support, saying he feels Russia is trying to spread communism to the western hemisphere through Latin America. He said Soviet

Farmers Market produce disappears quickly Saturday

Vegetable buyers seeking an afternoon bargain at the Top o' Texas Farmers Market on Saturday were out of luck — the produce was picked over within three hours of the market's 8 a.m. grand opening.

The 10 growers who signed up for the first market had not even finished setting their booths on the M.K. Brown Auditorium parking lot Saturday when early morning shoppers came by to dicker about the prices of the produce.

The low-key opening ceremony, which featured speeches by city, county and state officials, went by almost unnoticed as the fruits of area labor were being bought and sold.

But the speakers didn't seem to mind the mayhem when they lined up to give brief comments.

Top o' Texas Farmers Market President Gary Epperson welcomed the crowd and said simply, "I hope this will be a unified thing with the farmers."

Gray County Judge Cal Kennedy observed that the larger the market is, the better it will be for the area.

"So let's spread the word," Kennedy said.

Gregg Boggs, a Texas Department of Agriculture bulk commodities specialist who helped area residents set up the market, congratulated the small group of growers on their efforts.

He said the market is "a good way for growers to meet locally with buyers."

Gray County Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright, another market promoter, echoed Boggs' statement and added that buyers and sellers "don't have a lot of government regulations."

Gray County Extension Agent Joe VanZandt had predicted 15 to 20 booths at the market, but only about 10 had set up Saturday.

But even so, VanZandt said Saturday had a good turn-out of buyers.

Epperson and his bunch were ready. His family brought a harvest truck full of corn, beans, tomatoes and peas. Another truck was loaded with watermelons.

As growers sold out and began heading out by 11 a.m., the crowded Epperson booth was still showing a hefty business.

The morning market also proved profitable for Wheeler dealer Rose Hess, who sold Black Diamond watermelons from the bed of a pickup truck and bushel baskets of black-eyed peas from an adjoining stall.

"We were through by 10 a.m.," Hess said, sitting around waiting for a couple of packages of peppers to be sold. "They just came in and pfffft."

Hess said she has spent days at a booth in front of the Wheeler County Courthouse and did not sell as well as she did Saturday morning.

Buyers may have missed their chance Saturday, but they'll get another one at 8 a.m. Wednesday at the M.K. Brown parking lot. The market will continue on Wednesdays and Saturdays until the frost bites in October.

Larger park would include camp sites and softball fields

A proposed master plan for Recreation Park east of the city would provide a softball complex, campground facilities, a hiking trail, a playground and a renovated lake to the facilities already there.

The master plan, prepared with the recommendation of the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board, will be discussed in two public hearings this month at the regular City Commission meetings Aug. 11 and 25.

Estimated cost of all the projects is about $1.3 million.

Parks and Recreation Department Director Reed Kirkpatrick said the projects aim towards the goal of increasing public utilization of more of the 134-acre site.

The park, commonly referred to as "the rodeo grounds," is located east of Pampa and north of Frederic-U.S. Highway 60, about 1 1/2 miles from downtown Pampa.

Currently the park land contains the Top o' Texas Rodeo Arena, the Clyde Carruth Livestock Pavilion, the Hereford Breeder's Show Barn, the Pampa Trap and Skeet Club shooting range and the Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club shooting range. The latter two facilities are located east and northeast of the pavilion and barn areas.

Kirkpatrick said presently the area experiences significant visitor traffic only during rodeo and livestock shows, with occasional use from the skeet and pistol club members, rodeo playdays and such activities as a circus coming to town.

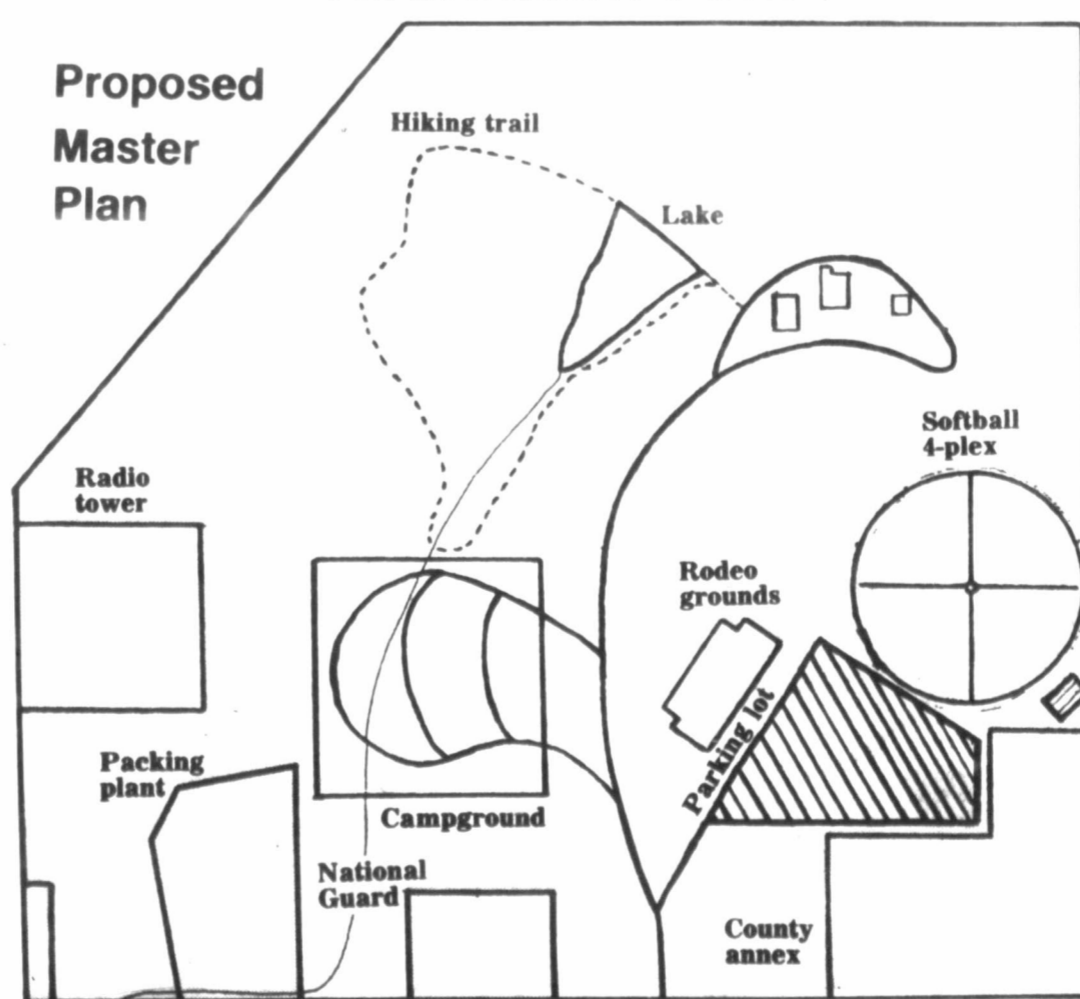

Additional development of Recreation Park will provide a much wider range of recreational opportunities to a greater number of people than are currently available at the park, Kirkpatrick said.

Recreation Park, he noted, alone accounts for 48 percent of the total acreage in the city's 31 parks.

The Parks Board has spent more than a year working on the proposals for development of the park land. A Recreation Park Subcommittee, including members from outside the board, toured the park last year and prepared a set of recommendations for the park's development.

County rejects $5 vehicle fee

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Although the state continues to drive up the cost of operating a motor vehicle, Gray County motorists have been spared paying an extra $5 fee.

County commissioners opted Friday not to add a $5 road and bridge fee to the cost of motor vehicle registrations sold in Gray County.

Commissioners estimated the fee would have added roughly $30,000 to county coffers. "We could use it, but I think we should try to do without it," Commissioner O.L. Presley said.

State legislation passed during the regular session earlier this year gave counties a one-time option to add the $5 fee. The legislation said counties had to add the extra fee by Sept. 1, effective Jan. 1.

Counties that, like Gray County, choose not to add the $5 fee will not have the opportunity to do so again until 1990, according to the legislation.

Carson County commissioners voted Monday to add the $5 fee. In other business Friday, commissioners took no action on a letter from Ray Velasquez, 216 W. Craven, asking that an elevator fully accessible to the public be

Pampa bids a farewell to Patten

A 30-year fire fighting career was remembered Friday as Pampa bid farewell to Capt. Harry Patten.

The 64-year-old Pampa city veteran was honored Friday with a reception at what has been his home away from home for three decades — the Pampa Central Fire Station.

Pampa firefighters, city officials and well-wishers presented Patten with a gold watch and a money plant, with dollar bills pinned to branches.

Patten joined the Pampa Fire Department on June 16, 1957. He was a cowboy before he joined the city ranks.

After 30 years of major blazes, grass fires, smoke scares, ambulance runs, false alarms and endless waiting periods, Patten decided it was time to hang up his gear.

"I'll fish and do whatever my wife tells me to do," Patten said.

Park

The subcommittee suggested a two-phase development program for the park. Phase 1 includes prohibiting off-road vehicles from the site to prevent further erosion, clearing unsightly brush, and increasing the mowing and general grounds maintenance.

Phase 2 includes improving roads and drainage, installing fresh water supply lines, installing restroom facilities others than the ones at the rodeo arena and pavilion, landscaping and developing other major improvements.

The Parks Board accepted the subcommittee's report as a guideline for determining improvements for the park site.

After listening to various proposals and consulting with department staff members, the board prepared the proposed master plan.

The master plan envisions four focal points for the park:

■ The existing Top o' Texas Rodeo Arena and the Clyde Caruth Pavilion area.

■ A 4-plex softball field complex, with a playground located to the southeast and a parking lot to the south.

■ An overnight camping and day-use facility, possibly replacing the current camping facilities located at Hobart Street Park.

■ A lake and a surrounding hike and bike trail.

Helping Kirkpatrick develop the initial proposals, at the board's recommendation, have been Parks Superintendent Bill Hildebrand and Recreation Superintendent Jackie Harper. The staff members presented several options and maps to the board before the board accepted the existing plan.

The major project would be the softball complex, a project being encouraged by the Pampa Softball League to help provide more playing fields and offer a better opportunity to obtain more tournaments in the city.

The 4-plex would consist of a central hub containing a concession stand, restrooms, water fountains, scorekeepers stand and a storage facility. The four fields would have a 300-foot line, with home plate near the hub. There would be two bleachers per field, each seating 50 persons.

The complex also would have fenced warm-up areas, metal halide lights, automatic sprinkler systems, a computerized scoreboard system and a public address system.

At the southeast end of the complex would be a fenced playground facility where children can play in a well-lit, highly visible area without danger of colliding with automobiles or bicycles.

A paved, lighted parking lot would be constructed south and southwest of the complex, serving both the softball fields and the rodeo grounds.

Estimated cost for the complex and parking lot, excluding the playground, is approximately $1 million. The campground, located near the center of the park site, would provide space for a greater number of recreation vehicles and trailer campers than is currently available at Hobart Street Park. The facility would include electrical and water hook-ups, lighted restroom facilities and a sewage dump station.

The camping site also would include a number of picnic shelters, a group picnic shelter, litter receptacles, barbecue grills and other day-use facilities.

The hiking trail would be located directly north of the campground and would encircle the lake.

The board has proposed renovation of the lake that existed at the site more than 10 years ago, commonly called "City Lake" or "Pampa Lake."

The lake, once stocked with fish, became contaminated about 10 years ago by drainage from an adjacent meat packing plant. The lake has since silted in to the point that a shallow depression is all that is left. The board has proposed dredging out and hauling off the silt and repairing the earthen dam, with the park's natural drainage contours filling the lake.

Estimated cost for the playground, campground, hiking trail and lake renovation is approximately $300,000.

Save comic strip, kill daily horoscope

In the past few weeks, readers of our weekday funny pages have probably noticed a few changes. Gone are Steve Canyon and Tumbleweeds. In are Geach and Calvin and Hobbes.

The latter is considered one of the hottest comic strips on the market, although I haven't seen anything yet to justify its exalted status.

Getting rid of Canyon was probably a good idea. I don't know anybody that ever followed 'Steve's exploits, and if I did... well, let's just say they'd probably more closely resemble John Poindexter than Ollie North.

In the case of Tumbleweeds, we traded one mediocre strip for another. At least we haven't heard any great outcry from readers demanding a return to Grimey Gulch.

But while we're on the subject of revamping the funny pages, there's one more feature I'd like to see go. The horoscopes — or Astro-Graph as they're known in this newspaper.

Face it, the old pickup line "What's your sign?" went out with disco and polyester leisure suits. When's the last time some beautiful girl came up and asked what your sign was?

But some people just haven't caught on yet. Just a few weeks back, our food department received a plug for Sunsign Cookbooks — 12 cookbooks based on horoscopes. The Sagittarius, for example, prefers recipes that are simple to prepare, yet look sophisticated.

The boss is a Sagittarius. The last time I went to his house — I think it was to watch the World Series — we had Fritos with bean dip and jalapenos stuffed with peanut butter. Real sophisticated.

The only purpose I can see in still publishing horoscopes is that they give some hack writer somewhere a way to earn a living.

I've often wondered what would happen if we goofed and ran the wrong list of horoscopes on the wrong day. What if on Thursday, for example, Libras weren't supposed to "set your sights on objectives that are truly meaningful." Maybe they were supposed to set their sights on objectives that are unmeaningful. My goodness, we could get sued for offering bad advice!

I took the liberty of reading my horoscopes this week:

★ On Sunday, I was told that substantial opportunities were hovering around me, financially and careerwise. Truth of the matter is, I had just paid the rent and was flat broke, and Sunday just didn't seem the right time to go looking for a new career.

★ Monday, I was told to look my best and be on my best behavior when out in public, because my style of dress and the way I acted would be remembered "in every detail." Actually, Monday was my day off, and I wore cut-off shorts and a T-shirt all day, but nobody I've talked to remembers, probably 'cause I wasn't out in public.

★ The stars told me Tuesday would be productive if I associated with people who took what they did seriously. What are we supposed to do on the other days — associate with people who think everything's a joke?

★ On Wednesday, I wasn't supposed to accept situations at face value. Should I ever?

★ Thursday, the stars were right for "commercial arrangements," but there was a catch — I had to do business with those I've done favors for in the past. I don't remember having done any favors for American Airlines, but when I confirmed my commercial flight numbers for my upcoming vacation, the arrangements were just fine, thank you.

★ Finally, Friday I was told that humility is a virtue, but I shouldn't "belittle myself in an unbecoming manner." I'm already short enough — why would I want to be littler?

What I found reading all this trash was a column that, half the time, offered advice that would be good any day of the year, and the rest of the time, didn't know what it was talking about.

I don't know if this little tirade will produce any results. All I can say is the powers-that-be had better not proceed with plans to kill Alley Oop, as they've threatened.

Those plans aren't in the stars.

installed at the courthouse for the handicapped.

Currently, courthouse patrons unable to use the stairs must ask a sheriff's deputy to be able to use the elevator in the sheriff's office.

Commissioner Ted Simmons said installing a new elevator now wouldn't be prudent because commissioners are planning improvements to the courthouse to alleviate overcrowding. Simmons said a new elevator probably will be included among those improvements.

One reported missing

MONAHANS (AP) — One person was reported missing and five were injured after a twin-engine plane crashed into the Imperial Reservoir Saturday, authorities said.

Divers were searching for the missing person Saturday evening, said Kelly Olson, communications officer at the Texas Department of Public Safety office in Pecos.

ments. "Whether he's aware of it or not, we do have access for the handicapped," Simmons said in response to Velasquez's letter. "He's welcome to use the elevator that's in the sheriff's office to get anywhere in the courthouse."

Velasquez wasn't present at the meeting but said Friday in a telephone interview that he will be satisfied if commissioners include a handicapped-accessible elevator among the courthouse improvements. He said he hoped his letter would prompt commissioners to begin developing a timetable for the improvements.

"That was my main purpose," he said. "But I've been hearing this for almost two years now. I'm not going to sit around and just wait."

Velasquez has threatened to sue the county if commissioners don't install the elevator, and said Friday that threat is still valid if commissioners don't announce firm plans for courthouse improvements soon.

Commissioners also:

- bid $4,200 for renting office space at the county annex to the Soil Conservation Service, up from $3,500 currently;
- authorized the transfer of funds in the Precinct 2 and tax office budgets.

Pets parade for judges at Groom

GROOM — Pet owners here didn't have to worry where, oh, where had their little dogs gone Friday.

All the top dogs, plus a klatch of kitties, a piglet and a decked-out donkey were out strutting their stuff at the fourth annual Groom Days pet show at the school football stadium.

The pet show was one of the highlights of Groom's weekend festival that included a variety show, pancake breakfast, parade, barbecue, games and reunions.

The donkey, Krystle Carrington Britten, and his rider, 6-year-old Cody Britten, won the pet show hooves down, defeating Sara Britten's cat and black-eyed Daniel Treadwell and his black-eyed dog (both made-up) Spuds.

The Pet Contest took on a new look this year as the judges — two area Girl Scouts and the entertainment editor for an area newspaper — tried to decide which pet more closely resembles its owner. The winner, again, was the duet of Cody and Krystle, who each wore red and white striped tops and baggy dungarees.

The Whatley and Precious act set the theme for Saturday's parade, "Bring on the Clowns."

A Friday night variety show featured skits by Brownies and Girl Scouts, cheers from elementary and high school cheerleaders.

leaders have stated their main target is Mexico. He said the goal of the Soviets is to spread communism in the Americas "so that the United States would tie up its resources in defending its borders."

That would leave Russia free to exercise its power in the other parts of the world, Boulter claimed. Boulter said North's testimony at the hearings have shown the American people "what dangers communism is making for us" in this hemisphere. "We have got to help these people in Nicaragua (the Contras), who are the first line of defense" against Soviet-dominated communism spreading north into Mexico, he stated.

After his opening remarks, Boulter then showed the slides, using North's prepared script only as a basis for his own remarks and as a guide to what specific slides showed.

One of the first slides was a map of the Central America and Caribbean areas, indicating "the strategic importance of the region to the U.S.," Boulter said. The region, including the Panama Canal, has some of the nation's major shipping lines for transportation of supplies to NATO nations, import of oil and the import-export of numerous goods.

Boulter said thousands of foreign troops and advisers are in Nicaragua, from Russia, Cuba, Bulgaria, Romania, Ethiopia and other communist nations. "Some strange folks to be in a small, peace-loving country," he said.

A group of slides showed photographs of Soviet and other communist leaders with statements showing Soviet policy's aim to bring revolution and communism to the western hemisphere. One showed a chart of U.S. and Soviet economic and military aid in the Central American area; the Soviets, according to the charts, are making much larger investments in the region.

Another slide showed a battle group of Soviet ships only 16 miles off the coast of Louisiana; another showed a Soviet submarine in the sea near the U.S. coast. The Soviets have such naval groups based in Cuba, Boulter said.

Other slides showed captured Soviet-made weapons found in El Salvador, Grenada, Nicaragua and other nearby nations. Also captured on Grenada, Boulter said, were military agreements with Grenada from Russia, Cuba, Bulgaria, North Korea and Hungary.

Other slides showed various airfields, naval bases and other military installations "built on Soviet lines" located in Grenada and Nicaragua and occupied or supervised by Soviet and Cuban troops and advisors. Such installations are being on both sides of the ocean in Nicaragua, Boulter noted.

"Why in the world is a non-aggressive regime" — like the Sandinistas claim to be — "building such strong military facilities if they are just peace-loving farmers?" Boulter asked.

Boulter said there "certainly are atrocities committed by the Contras," adding that they are not completely innocent. But most of the evidence of alleged Contra atrocities is fabricated by the Sandinistas and other sympathetic groups, he claimed.

Boulter said U.S. aid to the Contras is needed for weapons, maps, medical assistance and other needs. He said Contra strength is growing all the time, with about 25,000 to 30,000 now in uniform and numerous civilians supporting them.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Ted Kennedy wrong on minimum wage

Know how to throw thousands of people out of work? Easy. Raise the minimum wage. It's guaranteed to eliminate jobs, especially those held by the poor and members of minorities. That would be the effect of minimum-wage legislation introduced by Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Rep. Augustus Hawkins of Los Angeles, which would boost the minimum wage to $4.65 an hour by 1990.

Here's an example showing why. A small businessman wants to hire someone to sweep out the store at night. He can afford to pay only the current minimum wage, $3.35 an hour.

If the new worker proves trustworthy, the boss will give him a raise to $5 and set him to stocking shelves. The boss will then use his own extra time to plan a business expansion.

But if the minimum is raised to $4.65 the boss will think: "No way I can afford that. The place will just stay a little dirty. I'll stock the shelves myself. Expansion, including the new workers I was going to hire, will have to wait."

Net cost of a higher minimum wage: At least one, maybe three or four jobs lost. Businessmen make decisions like this every day. It's reality.

Business statistics prove the fact. When the minimum wage was last increased, in several increments from 1977 to 1981, as many as 600,000 workers were fired, and uncoupled others never hired. This time, the Kennedy-Hawkins bill could mean the loss of even more jobs.

Moreover, economist Walter Williams has shown that the minimum wage always hurts the poor and minorities the hardest. In the late 1940s, when the minimum wage was especially low, black teen-age unemployment was consistently below 10 percent, lower even than for white teen-agers. In contrast, black teen-age unemployment today exceeds 40 percent, twice the rate for white teen-agers.

Despite all this, a rally was held last weekend at Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles to support a minimum-wage boost. Sen. Kennedy attended, booming his ignorance for all to hear. That's not surprising. Teddy has spent a lifetime in politics, and knows little of things that affect working Americans.

But it was odd that Archbishop Roger Mahony joined him on the podium. The archbishop caused a scandal by appearing with the pro-abortion Kennedy.

Just last month, Kennedy promised to vote against confirming Robert Bork for the Supreme Court, because Bork thinks the Constitution does not support the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision allowing abortion on demand. Moreover, the archbishop, who has done so much to help immigrants settle in America, contradicts himself by supporting a policy that would eliminate just the kinds of entry-level jobs immigrants take.

Immigrants come here with few assets, but a will to work. Low-paying jobs give them a chance to live in America, learn our customs, and build for their future. Soon they're earning more than the minimum wage, in many cases more even than average white Americans.

Archbishop Mahony rightly wants to help poor Americans. He can best do so by supporting a reduction of the tax burden placed on the poor by the likes of Sen. Kennedy.

Berry's World

"That reminds me, I want to call our broker and find out if the market has bottomed out."

You just can't alter the facts

"Walter, you know why people don't understand economics?"

"Why?" I asked Marion Friedlander, my secretary-assistant.

"They don't really appreciate the difference between normative and positive propositions," she replied, "You ought to do a column on it."

That's an excellent idea, but it's a topic that takes at least one class period and constant reminders throughout the semester. But Mrs. Friedlander prevailed, so here goes.

Most physicists agree that the independent influence of gravity on a falling object causes it to accelerate approximately 32 feet per second squared. This is a positive statement that can be refuted or confirmed by appealing to the evidence. But suppose a physicist said, "That's mean; gravity should cause objects to accelerate at 8 feet per second squared." That's a normative statement. There's just no evidence, to which we can appeal, to either refute or confirm the statement; it's a value judgment. Disagreement over how gravity should, as opposed to how it does, influence a falling object leads to an unending argument.

Economic theory is positive. It makes theoretical propositions that can be refuted or confirmed by appeal to evidence. The Law of Demand is a proposition that says: The higher the cost of something, the less people will take of it; and the lower its cost, the more people will take of it. The Law of Demand wasn't written by economists sitting around trying to make things uncomfortable. Like physicists, we watched behavior and wrote a theory to help explain that behavior.

People like to say that if you laid economists end to end, you couldn't get them to agree on anything. That's an overstatement. Most of the disagreement you see among economists involves economic policy issues, which are essentially normative matters such as whether it's more important to fight inflation or unemployment. One economist's opinion on that is no better, nor worse, than any other person's. There's no facts to which we may appeal to resolve conflicts between value judgments.

Whenever you hear the words "should" or "ought," you know a normative statement or value judgment is being made. We shouldn't purge ourselves of value judgments; just know when one is being made. That way we can tell whether standards exist permitting us to refute or confirm our statement.

Normative statements and attempts to deny the Law of Demand are ways to track people. For example, your kid says he needs or cannot do without a telephone. The implication of his argument is that there are no substitutes for telephones. There's a substitute for everything as evidenced by the fact that mankind has somehow managed longer without telephones than with them. Needs is a nice trick word, but has no operational meaning in economic theory.

Sometimes students try to catch me by saying, "People need food." I ask what kind? The World Health Organization once estimated $120 could supply one person with a year's worth of nutritious meals — porridge. The students respond, "Still they need food!" But there are no facts to support that. History records many incidences of millions of people doing without food. Of course, we don't like the results of that alternative.

After this excursion into normative vs. positive economics, you might reach the conclusion that economics is some cold-hearted stuff. To the contrary, compassionate policy demands dispassionate analysis. It's like the physician tending to a cancer patient. Real compassion commands that he be tough-minded in his analysis if he's going to be kind to his client.

Glass doors may kill Catfish

My dog, Catfish, the black Labrador, has been trying unsuccessfully for some time to catch a squirrel in the backyard, and I am concerned this failure eventually will lead him to a nervous breakdown, or even worse.

I have a great number of trees in my backyard and countless squirrels cavort amongst them. When Catfish is outside and spots a squirrel, he immediately dashes after it.

I think the squirrels have taken to tantalizing him. They allow Catfish to get just beyond striking distance, and then they dash away and up a tree and look down at my frustrated dog and laugh at him.

Catfish returns from squirrel chasings with a pained, disappointed look on his face. I think he has become obsessed with catching at least one squirrel.

I've tried to trick him into thinking he has caught one. I bought a stuffed squirrel and put it in the yard. Catfish spotted it and attacked. When it didn't run away, he became suspicious. He wasn't dealing with a bona fide squirrel here and brought it into the house and laid it at my feet, as if to say, "Nice try, Dad, but if it's not the real thing, I'm not interested."

Lewis Grizzard

Even if the frustration of coming up empty time and again doesn't make Catfish loony, there is also the problem of what happens when my dog is inside my house and sees a squirrel on the outside.

The back of my house is a series of glass doors, which remain closed most of the time. Catfish has not figured out the theory of glass. He sees a squirrel outside and goes dashing for it and runs into the glass at approximately 65 mph.

"You can't run through glass," I tell him after he has regained consciousness. He gives me that pained, disappointed look again, along with his flattened nose and crossed eyes.

I'm torn here, as one might imagine. I want my dog to live a happy, healthy life and not become brain-damaged. Perhaps, I thought, if he were to catch just one lousy squirrel, he would be free of this obsession.

On the other hand, I don't want harm to come to any of the squirrels who live in my backyard. They're cute little boogers, and I enjoy watching them run around in the grass and straw looking for whatever it is squirrels look for.

This experience — and dilemma — has taught me to have a great deal of appreciation for the order of nature.

Dogs naturally chase squirrels, but squirrels are naturally faster than dogs. They scamper up trees to get away from dogs, who have no earthly idea how to climb a tree.

Glass doors, on the other hand, are not a part of the natural order of things.

I simply hope that if one day Catfish crashes headfirst into another one in hot pursuit of a squirrel and suffers a fatal injury, he will somehow know it was the door, not the squirrel, his avowed enemy, who killed him.

Ring down Irangate's curtain

The curtain has all but descended on Act II of the Iran-contra melodrama, but never fear. This is going to be one of the longest-running plays since "Fiddler on the Roof."

Act I was the Tower Commission probe.

Act II is the current congressional hearings.

Act III will be the indictments by the special prosecutor and the subsequent trials.

It goes on and on, like some motor-mouth beside us on a long flight, but little of it carries any heft.

Why do we slog on so earnestly? An outline of the affair — the attempted trade of arms for hostages, diversion of profits, cover-up, the president's ignorance — has been visible for months, yet press and political indignation has hardly subsided.

Does this tangled White House operation really deserve greater censure — nine months of non-stop anguish and heaven knows how many more to come — than our inept Lebanon policy that resulted in 241 deaths in 1983, or the doctored Gulf of Tonkin episodes in 1964 that helped give a green light to escalation in Vietnam, or the Bay of Pigs fiasco in 1961, or ...

Vincent Carroll

well, you get the idea.

The time and energy expended on Irangate alone have been enough to convince people of its unique gravity. Perhaps it's time to retreat a few steps and put the affair in perspective — and, if only in the minds of some of us, to rest.

We might start by listing laws that were broken. Hmmm. Rumor has it that the special prosecutor may have to cobble together a case involving "conspiracy to defraud the United States" or some equally unlikely charge, a sure sign of a man who's reaching.

It was stupid to trade arms for hostages, but it was apparently legal. If administration officials had informed Congress, as they were supposed to, surely even that exchange would have generated much less retrospective heat.

Meanwhile, we still don't know whether diversion of profits to the contras was illegal, despite the assumption by congressional committee members and most journalists.

No less a critic of Reagan policy than Gen. Brent Scowcroft, a member of the Tower Commission, has marveled that the Boland Amendment could contain such a convenient loophole. Why did it only proscribe "funds available to the Central Intelligence Agency, the Department of Defense or any other agency or entity of the United States involved in intelligence activities ...?" Why not simply ban aid to the contras by all agencies and thus leave no doubt about the inclusion of the National Security Council?

If criminal wrongdoing occurred, it probably took place when White House operatives felt the hot breath of public scandal on their necks and began destroying documents.

As for most other issues, we'll probably never discover full answers. For example: Was there a plan to set up a "full-service" private intelligence agency? Oliver North says there was. His former boss says no. Former CIA director William Casey, who could settle the question, is dead.

Don't get me wrong. I wince when news broke that the Reagan administration, against all public rhetoric, had traded arms for hostages. What nauseating brass: to lecture the world against the very practices our government had been quietly perfecting.

Nor was it wise to risk congressional vengeance by violating the spirit of the Boland Amendment, however pitted with loopholes it may have been.

Yet stupidity and a cover-up do not a constitutional crisis make. It is long past the hour to move on.

Letters to the editor

Tired of running after being raped

To the editor:
About a year ago, I wrote a letter to the editor about being raped and asking why something has not been done about it.
Well, it has been two years since I filed my report, and still I am waiting to go to trial.
Back then, David Hamilton was on my case, and now Harold Comer is doing it.
It seems all anyone is doing about it is giving me the runaround. I am tired of getting the runaround. Why hasn't anyone done anything to this guy? Why are they letting people like him run loose?
My life and my baby's life have been threatened by this man. He has done other crimes and has gone to court about them — and they happened after I was raped.
I don't want to have to run for the rest of my life.

Thanks to county for repairing drive

To the editor:
I am writing in regard to Cathy Spaulding's article in last Tuesday's paper about the Carson County commissioner using equipment on private lands.
I am a taxpayer, and if I need some help with my roads, what is so wrong with Commissioner Lee Lockridge helping me out?
The previous commissioner would not leave his domino game at the county barn to help me. That is why he did not spend as much as Commissioner Lockridge. How much can you spend over a table of dominoes day after day?
Cathy also did not report that the county judge commended Lockridge for doing a good job and being busy.
The previous commissioner, Pleasant Meadows, spied on Lockridge and turned him in to George Eller, who turned Lockridge in to the judge.
I had stopped by the county barn several times to get Commissioner Meadows to grade my Dad's road — not a private one. He could never even look up from his domino game. Just told me no — he was busy.
I called Commissioner Lockridge the other day and told him about my drive having big holes in it. He came and repaired it that same day.
Thank goodness for people who help others.
What is wrong with our county, if it can't work for the taxpayer?
Name withheld
EDITOR'S NOTE: One thing wrong with using county equipment and labor (paid for with funds confiscated from all of the county's taxpayers) on private properties is that it's against the law. You commend the commissioner for repairing the holes in your private driveway. You should also thank your fellow county taxpayers — they were forced to pay for those repairs. Carson County town dwellers in White Deer, Skellytown and Panhandle probably need repairs to their homes' driveways, roofs, sidewalks or flowerbeds. But it wouldn't be proper for county crews to make those repairs at the expense of the rest of the county's taxpayers. On the same note, it isn't proper — or lawful — to force those town dwellers to pay for repairs to rural residents' properties.

Don't pay carriers without route cards

To the editor:
I would like to let our customers know they should not pay anyone for their newspaper subscriptions unless the carrier has route cards and a hole punch.
The punched cards are the only receipt given by Pampa News carriers.
When customers pay for subscriptions, their cards and carriers' cards will be marked.
Also, customers who want to start or stop delivery of their Sunday paper must notify the newspaper office by 3 p.m. Friday. Requests to start or stop newspaper delivery on weekdays must be made no later than 10 a.m. on the day of the change in service.

Restrooms at movie shocking to children

To the editor:
Saturday evening, July 25, I went with a friend, my two granddaughters (ages 3 and 8) and a neighbor child (age 9) to see a marvelous movie, the Walt Disney classic, Snow White, at our local cinema.
What a wonderful masterpiece it was and will continue to be for generations to come.
As all young children do, our youngsters had to use the restroom at the show.

This letter is to warn all conscientious and loving parents that the restrooms in the local cinema house are a disgrace. Dirty, nasty words and phrases are carved and written almost over the entire walls, including the stalls.

Our little girls were disturbed and asked why all the nasty words were there. It is hard to rear children properly in our world today, but places like that make it even more so.
I am sorry we do not have a decent place to see wholesome films like the one we saw, but we will certainly stay away from now on.

Blighted downtown areas hurt potential

To the editor:
Someone has written, "For all the words from mouth or pen, the saddest is, 'It might have been.'"
The parking meters, the meter maids patrolling and marking cars, the flooded streets and lack of drainage during rainy spells, the apathy toward upkeep of properties, combined with promotion of new shopping areas, has caused the downfall of downtown Pampa.
Next time you visit the post office, which is a very pretty building, admire the flowers that are on the lawn. Then take a look across the alley at the unkempt property with weeds waist-high.
Nothing can be more discouraging to a downtown shopper or to the shop owner.
Is it possible that the $100,000 comprehensive plan that we bought a few years back could aid in this distressing problem?

Prices hurt retailer as much as economy

To the editor:
On July 24, you published an article regarding the closing of Behrman's store. The first five paragraphs were very interesting and even sad in regards to the tornado incident. Then you began quoting Mr. Coon on three reasons for his store's failure.
The first two reasons have hit all of Pampa — oil and farming. The third reason was no more than a "slap in the face" to Pampa residents.
Pampans do support their local merchants! Yes, sometimes we do go to Amarillo if the price is right. But if the difference between an Amarillo and a Pampa price is the same as a tank of gas, we stay and trade here.
I'm sure that this is true from a lot of Pampans.
Yes, we are as Mr. Coon stated "small-town thinkers," but we are not stupid. Behrman's caters to the "upper class" in this town. Maybe if the store's goods and services reached all people's pocketbooks, things would have been different.

I once went into the store and could have been a good cash customer, but I am just an upper-middle-class, hard-working citizen who wants his money's worth in merchandise and service. There was certainly no service as far as I could see, because I could not get waited on.
Was it my jeans?
Sure, the depressed of oil and farming sectors hurt Behrman's, but the "snobbish atmosphere" didn't help matters, either. Why trade somewhere that has outrageous prices and poor service? Seems to me that these are the two most important factors in a good business!
There was another statement that Pampa's economy is only as good as its residents. Let me say I'm darn proud to be a Pampans, and we are all working towards a better economy.
Also in your article there was no thanks to Pampa for the years of good business Behrman's had.
I hate to see any business close and am sympathetic to Coon's situation, but his attitude and blaming Pampa were wrong.
To Pampa merchants — hang in there. Give us prices that are competitive and good service.
Most Pampans do shop Pampa first!

Some reporters are relatives to the mule

To the editor:
This regards Larry Hollis' "Off Beat" column in the July 23 Pampa News.

1. Your reporter had the very best subject he'll ever have.
2. His column is laced with lies.
3. He proved beyond "the shadow of a doubt" that some reporters are jackasses.

Garland boy, 10, pulls tot from apartment pool

GARLAND (AP) — Several adults who saw the body of a 3-year-old girl floating in a pool froze in panic, but a boy who taught himself to swim pulled the toddler to safety.
Sergio "Chico" Elivondo, 10, dove into the dark waters of an apartment complex swimming pool Thursday night and saved Jettie Ann Horton.
He emerged before his mother and others realized what had happened.
"You could see her little body just floating," said Elivondo. "I didn't have time to think. It was just like it was my little sister."
The child's mother, Carol Horton, and several friends she had been visiting around the pool had just discovered the girl missing when Elivondo dove in Thursday at about 10:30 p.m.
His own 3-year-old sister, Jessica, and his mother, Mary Jane Alvarado, watched in horror as Elivondo retrieved the child.
"I can't believe he did it. I'm so proud of him," said Mrs. Alvarado.
Mrs. Horton said her daughter had been playing near the pool with Elivondo, and the mother discovered the girl was missing when a friend asked her whereabouts.
"I saw a bob at the end of the pool. I saw her hand," Mrs. Horton said. "I freaked because I can't swim a lick."
Mrs. Alvarado said everyone panicked but her son.
The girl was treated at an area hospital, transferred to Children's Medical Center in Dallas and later discharged, Jean O'Neal, an admission clerk at the center, said today.
Fire officials plan to honor Elivondo for the rescue.
When he was 7 and splashing around in the shallow swimming pool in a pair of plastic flippers, Elivondo ventured into the deep water without his flippers to learn to swim.

Iran scandal prompts procedural changes

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—Congress is closing down its long, televised investigation into the Iran-Contra affair, and one senator says the message delivered to future presidents is so stinging the deterrent effect will last 10 to 15 years.

On Monday, the 41st day of hearings which opened May 5, a final public witness, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger, concludes his story of futile opposition to secret plans to sell arms to Iran.

Then, after hearing privately from a trio of Central Intelligence Agency officials, the combined House and Senate investigating committees begin the process of writing a final report. The target date for issuing it is Oct. 1.

But members are already beginning the process, to be formalized in that report, of sorting out the evidence and deciding what it means.

Sen. William S. Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the Senate Iran-Contra panel and vice chairman of the Senate

Intelligence Committee, says the investigation already has had a "salutary effect."

"Fundamental changes already have taken place," Cohen said, citing both a change in personnel inside the Reagan administration and "a change in attitude."

On the personnel side, he said, former Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker has replaced former Wall Street executive Donald Regan as White House chief of staff. Foreign policy veteran Frank Carlucci has replaced Rear Adm. John M. Poindexter as national security adviser. Lt. Col. Oliver L. North has been sent back to duty with the Marine Corps.

On the attitude side, Cohen hailed President Reagan's declaration that there will be no further covert operations "unless he would be able to proudly stand up and acknowledge them" if they are publicly disclosed.

Cohen said the congressional intelligence committees have tightened security procedures to prevent leaks and that intelligence officials are becoming far more cooperative and forthright in sharing the nation's secrets with Congress.

Two of last week's three witnesses, Weinberger and Regan, said they resisted selling arms to Iran and were told nothing about the secret diversion of some of the proceeds to Nicaragua's anti-Marxist Contra rebels.

The third, Attorney General Edwin Meese III, told of the Justice Department inquiry he led last November that discovered a crucial memo drafted by Col. North spelling out the diversion plan.

U.S. Navy escorts resume gulf cruise

By The Associated Press

The tanker Gas Prince slipped out of Kuwait on Saturday without the mine-damaged super-tanker Bridgeton, Pentagon sources said, and it reportedly met its U.S. Navy escort in the Persian Gulf.

The 46,723-ton Gas Prince left Kuwait because it was already fully loaded and can sail faster than the Bridgeton, another Kuwaiti vessel flying the U.S. flag, according to the sources in Washington.

Britain's ITN news said the decision to have the Gas Prince leave Kuwait apparently was prompted by the attack Saturday on the Kuwaiti Embassy in Tehran.

"The U.S. warships ... are now shadowing the gas carrier (the Gas Prince)," said ITN reporter Brent Sadler, aboard a ship in the gulf, in a dispatch monitored in London. "It also appears that the Navy escort waited for the Gas Prince to pass through the possible minefields before they moved in, the lack of minehunting capability clearly restricting the U.S. movement."

The 401,382-ton Bridgeton was still in Kuwait on Saturday, taking on crude oil before beginning its return trip down the gulf by midday today, sources said.

Pentagon officials had said the return 500-mile trip of the two re-flagged Kuwaiti tankers and their escorts back through the Straits of Hormuz into the Gulf of Oman had been expected to begin sometime this weekend.

Earlier Saturday, the USS LaSalle, its starboard side scorched by a fatal helicopter crash, docked in Manama, Bahrain, after a fruitless search for the three U.S. servicemen missing in the Thursday accident.

Sadler reported the Gas Prince had cleared the area near Farsi Island where the Bridgeton struck a mine July 24.

"It was almost dusk in the Persian Gulf when the Gas Prince emerged from the heat haze, the vessel fully loaded with propane and butane having successfully made passage through one of the most dangerous areas," he said.

U.S. Navy teams have worked to clear mines from the area west of Farsi Island, about 120 miles south of Kuwait.

Pentagon officials say the mine was almost certainly planted by Iran, which has threatened to escalate attacks against Kuwait and its shipping because it has turned to the superpowers to protect its oil shipments.

Iran considers Kuwait an ally of Iraq — Iran's enemy in the nearly 7-year-old Persian Gulf war.

The Bridgeton and the Gas Prince were the first of 11 Kuwaiti tankers to be reflagged under the Stars and Stripes to afford them U.S. naval protection in the gulf.

U.S. hopes of receiving outside minesweeping help while awaiting the arrival of its own minesweepers and mine-sweeping helicopters were dashed Friday when Britain, France and the Netherlands said they had no plans to send such vessels to the gulf. On Saturday, Italy's Defense Ministry also said it had declined a U.S. request for assistance with mines in the gulf.

Reagan 'feeling just fine' after skin cancer surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, relaxing at the White House after skin cancer surgery, reported Saturday that he'd be "up and about" this weekend and was "feeling just fine," his spokesman said.

"He's doing great," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters.

Late Friday afternoon, a seven-doctor team at Bethesda Naval Hospital cut basal cell carcinoma from the tip of Reagan's nose and closed the wound with 20 stitches.

Reagan and his wife Nancy returned to the White House after the nearly three-hour procedure. They decided to forgo their usual weekend at Camp David because of the surgery and elected to remain in the White House residence.

Fitzwater relayed comments from Reagan's physician, Col. John Hutton, who visited with the president Saturday morning.

Hutton said after Friday's surgery that Reagan is expected to go to work Monday and the stitches will be removed in five to seven days.

Dermatologists say the micrographic procedure used to excise the cancerous tissue on Reagan's nose removes the smallest amount of healthy cells and has the highest cure rate, about 99 percent.

'Star Wars' cost pegged at $1 trillion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Launching "Star Wars" anti-missile defenses into orbit could cost up to $1 trillion, depending on countermeasures taken by the Soviet Union, according to a congressional study released Sunday.

"These results have disturbing implications," the Congressional Research Service said in a report that estimated the cost of launching a system but not its development and manufacture.

"Many of the variables that will drive up (Star Wars) launch costs are influenced partially or completely by Soviet actions," said the report, based in part on information from Star Wars scientists at the Sandia, Los Alamos and Lawrence Livermore national laboratories.

Costs could be cut if the Pentagon registers "spectacular advances" in anti-missile technologies, and develops launch systems less expensive than those now available.

Among the steps the Soviets could take to frustrate Star Wars, and drive up costs, would be developing rocket boosters for its missiles which leave the atmosphere more quickly, equipping them with up to 500 decoys and building more missiles capable of reaching the United States.

Costs could be controlled if the superpowers reach a treaty governing strategic arms and space-based missile defenses, the report said.

Scientists and officials involved in the Strategic Defense Initiative, as Star Wars is formally known, have made similar points in the past, but the congressional report offers the most detailed projection of launch costs.

The computer estimates were made by congressional researchers Cosmo DiMaggio and Robert L. Civiak, and released by three vocal Star Wars critics, Democratic Sens. William Proxmire of Wisconsin, J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas.

Iranians attack embassies

Mobs retaliate over shootings in Mecca riot

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Security forces rounded up Iranian pilgrims in this holy city Saturday after a riot that reportedly killed about 200 people and prompted mob attacks on four embassies in Tehran.

Iranian media said the French Embassy was among those stormed and penetrated Saturday in the Iranian capital. But a French Foreign Ministry spokesman in Paris denied the report, saying the mission was stoned but not entered.

Mobs also attacked the Saudi, Kuwaiti and Iraqi embassies, ransacking the first two. Riot police took up positions at key intersections throughout Mecca to prevent Iranian pilgrims from trying to repeat Friday's demonstration. Police opened fire on that rally, which began with religious overtones, then turned political.

Residents said they saw "scores" of Iranian pilgrims taken into custody Saturday, but there was no official word. The Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said 200 Iranians were killed by Saudi police gunfire and more than 2,000 wounded. It claimed the Iranian pilgrims had been taking part in "a peaceful march previously approved by Saudi authorities."

An official in Mecca was quoted Saturday as saying at least 165 Iranians have been confirmed dead and a large number were still missing. The unidentified official said the death toll was expected to rise to around 300.

Iraq's ruling Revolution Command Council, which is headed by President Saddam Hussein, called for the expulsion of Iranian pilgrims from Mecca. It said in a statement on Baghdad Radio: "From now on ... Iranians should not be allowed in the holy places."

IRNA said stone-throwing demonstrators attacked and attempted to storm the Iraqi embassy in Tehran, but were prevented from taking over the mission by security forces.

Despite its war with Iran, Iraq still maintains an embassy with minimal staff in Tehran. Iranians also have an embassy in Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

Iranian media reported earlier that 155,000 Iranians are in Mecca for the annual pilgrimage, or Hajj, which all devout Moslems with the means to do so are required to make at least once in their lifetime.

About 2.1 million Moslem pilgrims from all over the world are in Mecca, the holiest site in Islam, for the Hajj.

Saudi Arabia warned the Iranian pilgrims and their leaders Saturday that it "will under no circumstance show any mercy to those who transgress the rules of God in His peaceful shrine in the holy months."

Mecca residents reported ambulances with sirens wailing raced around the city Saturday to pick up casualties. Firemen and Civil Defense personnel removed burned out cars and broken glass from streets and sidewalks.

Residents said more than 100 people died in a stampede when security forces moved to repress the demonstration.

IRNA reported that Pakistani, Palestinian and Lebanese pilgrims were among the wounded.

Meccans said the Friday demonstration began minutes after the afternoon prayer at the Grand Mosque, home of the black-draped Kaaba, venerated by the world's 850 million Moslems as the "House of God."

Mexican crash toll expected to grow

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Investigators on Saturday examined the charred wreckage of a 35-year-old cargo plane loaded with competition horses that crashed into rush-hour traffic and exploded, killing at least 40 people.

The death toll rose late Friday as forensic experts and relatives identified body parts of more victims, according to Elsa Valencia, a spokeswoman in the Federal Attorney General's Office.

She said 30 bodies had been identified and turned over to relatives, and that 10 others remained to be identified.

Twenty-five 25 people were hospitalized after Thursday's crash, said Felipe Flores, spokesman for the Attorney General's office. Nearly all the victims were on the ground.

Those hospitalized included the four-member American crew of the Boeing 377 and five of the eight Mexican passengers who were aboard, officials at the American-British-Cowdray Hospital said.

Two of the passengers were listed among the dead, including one who died Friday. The condition of the other passenger was not immediately known.

At least 26 cars were destroyed or damaged at the site, 13 miles from Mexico City's international airport.

Sixteen of the 18 finely-bred jumping horses from the Mexican Equestrian Federation died immediately. One horse was so badly burned a police officer at the site had to destroy it. Another horse, badly injured, was later found munching grass in an embankment and was also destroyed.

A charred, crate-size horse stall bearing the words "Animal Air Service" lay overturned in a muddy field farther up the road from the crash site.

The horses were bound for equestrian events in Culpeper, Va., and Hamilton, Mass., and the passengers included their handlers.

The plane was flying to Miami when it crashed in rain Thursday afternoon on a highway southwest of Mexico City less than 10 minutes after takeoff from the airport.

Airport officials said the plane was operated by Belize Air International, a charter cargo service.

Airport Director Carlos Padilla said the cause of the crash would not be known until the investigation is complete. But he said authorities have pieced together a version of what happened from Guadalupe Pina, one of the surviving passengers.

Padilla said the plane had problems from the time it took off and lost contact with the control tower. Witnesses said the plane's tail was on fire as it went down, while other accounts place the fire in the forward part of the craft.

"It seems a short circuit in the plane caused the fire," Padilla told reporters at the crash site Friday. "The pilot then tried to make an emergency landing that produced the crash."

"WHO THEN CAN BE SAVED?"

"And Jesus said unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, it is hard for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven. And again I say unto you, it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. And when the disciples heard it, they were astonished, saying, Who then can be saved? (Matthew 19:23-25.) The man had just come to Jesus and asked, 'Teacher, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?' (Matthew 19:16.) His unwillingness to give up his earthly possessions prevented the man from becoming a disciple of Jesus and from entering the kingdom of heaven. Then Jesus explained the difficulties rich people have in being saved. The obvious reason, as with the young man who had gone away sorrowful, is that most are unwilling to give up their riches in order to have treasures in heaven.

16:15-16.) According to our Lord, an unbeliever cannot be saved and neither can one who is not baptized. Most assuredly, without faith it is impossible to please God (Hebrews 11:6.) Also, faith must work in order to be perfected (James 2:24.) Paul tells us that "confession is made unto salvation" (Romans 10:10.) Therefore, we know that confession of Jesus Christ as the Son of God is necessary to being saved (cf. Acts 8:37.) Any and all who do not confess Christ cannot be saved. Peter told those people in Acts 2 that they should "repent and be baptized" in order to realize the remission of their sins (Acts 2:38.) Therefore, we understand that repentance is essential to salvation. Those who refuse to repent, therefore, cannot be saved. James teaches: "Wherefore putting away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls." (James 1:21.) A failure to have this attitude toward the Word of God would negate the Word saving one. Those who believe and obey the gospel can be saved. Those who do not cannot be saved.

Tornado 'seems like end of world'

Edmonton twister kills 27

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Rescuers searched for survivors in shattered homes and factories Saturday after the deadliest tornado to hit Canada in 75 years devastated parts of Edmonton and killed at least 27 people.

About 200 others were injured in Friday afternoon's twister. "It seemed like the end of the world," said Ted Gartner, who was working in a mechanic's shop when the vortex struck.

The final death toll was not yet known, and there had been some confusion over casualties because of double-counting in the wake of the devastation. The city's emergency planning officer, Bruce Wilson, said 27 people were confirmed dead and 200 hurt, but police spokesman Joy-Lynn Dorash put the fatality count at 35.

Hardest hit was the Evergreen trailer park on the city's northeastern edge, where 200 mobile homes were demolished, 150 were damaged and at least 13 people were killed, Wilson said.

Witnesses said the pillar of whirling black air was two blocks wide as it smashed its way northeast across the city and parts of adjacent Strathcona County.

A state of emergency was declared as rescuers searched collapsed houses, warehouses and overturned cars for survivors. Police used dog teams to comb the wreckage for signs of life.

Police Chief Leroy Chahley said extra patrols were sent to devastated areas after looting was reported.

The twister leveled an entire industrial park, tossing tractor-trailer trucks like toys and picking up cars as if they were plastic models.

Reporters said the twisters slammed cattle to their deaths on farms outside the city. Broken gas mains caused several fires, power lines were cut and some streets flooded by torrential rain and grapefruit-size hail.

Weather officials had forecast thunderstorms in this normally dry western city of 530,000 people, but had only very short notice of the tornadoes. Many families took shelter in their cellars and emerged to find the roofs of their houses gone.

Factories were reduced to piles of rubble and vehicles were twisted into heaps at the Strathcona industrial area south of the city.

The homeless took shelter in high schools and hotels.

Vehicles and parts of houses sailed across a freeway southeast of the city. Dale Campbell was caught in it as he drove home. "I got out of my truck to help people and got thrown 30 feet across into a field. When I got up, there were people laying all over the place."

Strathcona County official Jim Common said: "Buildings were literally blown apart like matchboxes, it was a frightful sight."

Apart from flooding to about 190 basements, downtown Edmonton, the northernmost major city in Canada, escaped damage.

It was the deadliest tornado in Canada since 1912, when 38 people died in a twister that hit Regina, Saskatchewan. Hurricane Hazel left 83 dead in the Toronto area in October 1954.

John Connally goes bankrupt Big John has big debts

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — He is Texas-tall, Texas-tough, and until the oil bust sapped the fortunes of many, he was Texas-rich.

Now, like some of Texas' other big names in big money, Connally says he cannot pay his bills.

At age 70, the former governor, former treasury secretary, former Democrat and former presidential candidate is a former millionaire with debt that runs deep.

"We just got into an economic environment we couldn't pull ourselves out of. We worked at it for a year, doing everything we knew how to do, and still couldn't do it. So we had no choice," Connally said Saturday.

On Friday, he filed personal and business bankruptcy actions in federal court here.

The money problems stemmed from tough times encountered by Barnes-Connally, a real estate partnership formed with former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes in the early 1980s, when land prices were booming. But, in recent years, the oil slump killed much of the Texas real estate market.

Barnes and Connally had borrowed millions of dollars to build shopping malls, office buildings and luxury condominiums. Their assets at one point totaled $300 million. But they were caught with unwanted property as many wealthy Texans went either broke or cautious.

"We just got into it at the wrong time. If we had waited two years it would have been a different story. And if the Texas economic expansion had continued for another two years it would be an entirely different story. We'd be rich," Connally said.

"John is a very interesting fellow with a lot of charisma, but he didn't know anything about real estate, in my judgment," said former state Sen. Charles Herring, a longtime Connally friend and political supporter. "He was worth millions before he got into all this stuff."

Herring, 73, retired last fall as chairman of First Federal Savings Association of Austin.

"I'm too old to take that risk and I don't know why he got into it. I'm sure he had his reasons, but it went south," Herring said of his friend's financial failings.

Connally's last political endeavor ended on a similar note—nothing on hand and a lot of debt. After three terms as a Texas Democratic governor from 1963-1969, he served as President Nixon's treasury secretary and stayed off the ballot until 1980, when he decided to try and become a Republican president.

That bid ended at the GOP national convention, where Connally discovered he had spent about $12 million to pick up a lone delegate.

According to Mark Browning, his lawyer, Connally's current debt has not yet been figured. Last fall, to stave off the financial crisis, Connally auctioned off 126 horses at his ranch at Floresville, near San Antonio, raising about $398,000.

The list of creditors attached to Connally's bankruptcy filing includes savings and loan associations, credit corporations, construction companies, lawyers and individuals. The largest single unsecured creditor listed is Bell Savings & Loan Association of San Mateo, Calif., to which Connally owes $11 million.

Connally filed in federal court at Austin under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code, which calls for reorganization of assets. Barnes-Connally filed under Chapter 7, which calls for liquidation of assets.

Supporters predicted Connally would not cave in during his cash crisis.

"Connally's a fighter. Don't write him off. He'll be back," said U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Austin, a longtime Connally friend.

Former Gov. Preston Smith, who served as lieutenant governor when Connally was governor, said it sounded like a sad, familiar story.

"I'm just real sorry. These things are happening to a great many people these days. He apparently made some investments that didn't work out," Smith said.

Connally joins a growing list of once-rich Texans battling money problems. The wealthy Hunt brothers last month filed a debt reorganization plan indicating their energy companies and real estate held in trust are about $1.4 billion in the red.

Haynes named recipient of Frist hospital award

Linda Haynes was named last week as the 1987 recipient of the Dr. Frist Humanitarian Award at Coronado Hospital.

The award is given each year to an employee in each Humana Corporation of America facility who is considered to best exemplify the philosophy of caring concern.

Other finalists in the balloting for the honor, awarded Wednesday, were Debbie Douglas, LVN, who works in the Intensive Care Unit (ICU), and Chuck Tanner, head of radiology.

Haynes, public relations director, has been at Coronado for four years. She is active in church and community activities.

Douglas and her husband are the parents of three children. She is active in her church, where she teaches a Sunday School class.

Tanner has been at Coronado

Mayo promoted

Security Federal Savings and Loan Association has promoted Pat Mayo to assistant vice president of the downtown Pampa office, announced J.E. Sweet, president.

Mayo joined Security Federal in 1982 in the bookkeeping department. She was named supervisor of loan servicing in 1984 and continues in that capacity along with her promotion.

Her prior banking experience has been with Waggoner National Bank in Vernon and Sandia Savings in Las Cruces, N.M.

Her husband, Larry, is the manager of the Social Security office in Pampa. She has a daughter, Brittany, 7, and a son, Steven, 3.

Ear, nose, throat specialist sets up office in Pampa

Dr. Don C. McLarey, an ear, nose and throat specialist, has opened an office at the Coronado Medical Building.

McLarey specializes in head and neck surgery, allergy testing and treatment, facial plastic surgery and diseases of the ear, nose and throat. He is certified by the American Board of Otolaryngology.

He practiced at Bryan-College Station until 1984 when he and his wife Sandra, a registered nurse, went to the mission field in Honduras with the Christian Medical Society.

McLarey said he came to the Panhandle because "there is not a specialist in my field north of Amarillo for hundreds of miles."

He currently serves as clinical assistant professor of otolaryngology at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston and is director of the ENT Allergy Clinic. Mrs. McLarey is a nurse therapist at Girls Town.

He attended medical school at the University of Arkansas Medical Center at Little Rock, and completed his internship at John Sealey Hospital in Galveston. He served a residency in

Dr. Price attends seminar on lasers

Dr. Steven Price recently returned from Washington, D.C., where he attended a two-day seminar on endoscopy and lasers.

Sponsored by the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons, the in-depth review course included a series of lectures on endoscopic procedures and the use of lasers in surgery. Endoscopy involves the inspection of body cavities with a lighted instrument.

Dr. Price came to Pampa in 1982 from West Plains, Mo.

He is a member of a number of medical organizations and is president of District 1 of the Texas Osteopathic Medical Association.

Okies pound National League All-Stars Pampa plays again Monday in regional tournament

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

PLAINVIEW — Hopes for a trip to Oakland, Calif. and the Bambino National Championship were temporarily dashed Saturday as the Pampa National League All-Stars were ruthlessly pounded by Oklahoma 12-2.

The Pampa N.L. Stars, officially designated as "West Texas" in the Southwest Region Regional Tournament, collected only four hits in the first round game compared with 10 for the Broken Bow, Okla. "Savages."

The Savages were led by Ryan Martin, who hammered a three-run second inning homer to start off the scoring for Oklahoma. Martin added a single in the game.

Oklahoma's Jason Cavender also hit a two-run homer in the fourth.

Pampa's loss thrusts the N.L. Stars into the losers' bracket with their next game coming Monday at 5:30 p.m. against an opponent that will be determined in Sunday's game.

The fourth frame was Oklahoma's most damaging as they picked up five runs on four hits and one Pampa error.

After four complete, Oklahoma had taken an insurmountable 10-1 lead.

Pampa scored its first run in the top half of the fourth as Will Winborne hit a sacrifice fly to drive in Jeff Tidwell. Tidwell had reached base on an error by the Oklahoma shortstop.

On the same play in which Winborne sacrificed and Tidwell came around for the score, Pampa third baseman-catcher Kurt West tried to score, but got caught up in a run down between third and home. West was called out at third to halt Pampa's chances for a second run.

Oklahoma added to its lead in the fifth — an inning when they collected no hits, but garnered two runs. The first run — the eleventh of the game for the Savages — was due to a throwing error; the second and final run came when Jay Stow, Oklahoma's shortstop, hit into what appeared to be a fielder's choice. Third base runner Trent Hunkapillar ran home on the play and the throw by Pampa was late, which made the score 12-1.

Pampa added its final run in the top of the sixth as relief pitcher Tarin Peet reached base on a single. With two out in Pampa's last turn at bat, John Graves knocked a single to left which scored Peet.

Graves, though, was caught in the second hot-box run down of the game by Pampa and was thrown out trying to slide into second to end the game.

Jeff Tidwell was tagged with the loss, pitching three innings and allowing six runs on six hits. Tidwell struck out three and walked only one.

Oklahoma's Ryan Ward picked up the victory, throwing three innings, allowing only two hits and walking none.

Rozier looking for big numbers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Like so many other Heisman Trophy winners, Houston running back Mike Rozier has yet to live up to his pro potential.

But he's retained his relaxed sense of humor.

"I'd like to be a role model, but I guess that's out of the question," Rozier said. "I like to joke around too much. That keeps me going."

"If I didn't do that, I think I'd be mad at the world."

Going into this third season with the Oilers, Rozier is only angry with his lack of production. "I haven't done anything yet," Rozier said at the end of a long day of preseason workouts. "When you win the Heisman, they expect you to come out and be Superman."

In his two seasons with the Oilers, Rozier hasn't produced super stats.

He rushed 462 yards in 14 games in 1985 after playing his first two pro seasons in the United States Football League.

Last year, Rozier rushed 662 yards in an injury-shortened season, catching 24 passes for another 180 yards for 842 yards in total offense.

But he wants more. "I just want 1,000 yards and I'll be happy, that would be a beginning," Rozier said. "I think I would have gotten 1,000 yards last season but I got hurt."

Rozier missed the final three games of the season with a knee injury that required off-season surgery.

Now he's back for the 1987 season and he'll likely have to share the ball with first-round choice Alonzo Highsmith, who is still unsigned.

"I'd like to get the ball more, if I do, I can accomplish more," Rozier said. "As long as I don't get the ball, things aren't going to come together for me."

The Oilers also intend to utilize Warren Moon's passing skills more than last season, when the Oilers had to win four of their final seven games to finish with a 5-11 record.

Rozier would like to be a part of that passing attack.

"I don't care if I catch the ball one time or run the ball one time," he said. "I just want to win. Everybody loves winners."

Adams fields questions from press.

Have Oilers worn out welcome mat?

Adams considering Jacksonville move

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams says he doesn't want to move his National Football League team to Jacksonville, Fla., but he's listening to their offer because officials in the team's hometown haven't topped it.

He says while Jacksonville has offered a bigger stadium, bigger crowds and a better playing field, Harris County officials are quoting costs of his request for additional seats at the Astrodome.

In a rare meeting with the news media Friday, Adams discussed what it would take to keep the problem-plagued Oilers in Houston.

"One thing I have to weigh is have we outstayed our welcome and maybe we should move on to some place and start over and let someone else come in," Adams said. "We don't want to leave. Houston is my home. But these are things that must be weighed in making a decision."

The Oilers are trying to get Harris County to expand the 50,000-seat Astrodome by at least 10,000 seats, put in a new artificial playing surface and give them a better lease agreement.

Jacksonville has guaranteed the Oilers a sold out 80,000-seat Gator Bowl for the next 10 years if Adams will move his team to Florida.

"So far, Jacksonville hasn't come up with anything but rhetoric," Adams said. "But they've guaranteed us 80,000 crowds for the next 10 years. Wouldn't you be interested if you were an NFL owner?"

Skybox ticket sales are off and the Oilers' season ticket sales are at a 10-year low for this time of the preseason, Adams said.

The Oilers have not had a winning season since 1980 and their 16-53 record over the last five years is the worst in the NFL for that time span.

The team also has lost the media's respect, Adams said adding he doesn't blame the media for the Oilers' problems.

"We've had some report saying 'don't buy tickets, that's one way to get back at the Oilers for the quality teams they have on the field,'" Adams said. "I guess some of them have listened."

The Oilers' lease at the Astrodome expires at the end of this season and the team is pressed to work out a new lease agreement with the Houston Sports Association, operators of the stadium, within the next three months.

"I'm not saying we're going to leave unless we get the 10,000 seats but we've got to have a new rug," Adams said. "Everyone is afraid to play on it for fear of getting hurt."

Adams reiterated that he would not sell the Oilers, despite its lack of success on the field.

"Nobody likes to have six straight losing seasons," Adams said. "Has it really been six years?"

Grid magazine predicts three-way tie in 1-4A

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

The 19th annual edition of Top-O-Texas Football, expected on Pampa newsstands Monday, has given the Pampa Harvesters a chance to rise from the District 1-AAAA cellar.

The magazine expects Pampa to finish eighth in this year's race, topping only the Dumas Demons.

Publisher Sam Mayo and his staff has also looked into the future to forecast a three-way first place tie in the district between Lubbock Estacado, Canyon and Hereford.

Top-O-Texas quoted first year head coach Dennis Cavalier as saying, "Senior leadership will be our major strength, but we lack size, strength, speed and experience."

"This season," Cavalier said, "should provide us with plenty of challenges."

The magazine, which has a circulation area from the South Plains to near Wichita Falls to literally the top of Texas, has also forecasted outcomes concerning the eight other schools in The Pampa News readership area:

★ The Canadian Wildcats have been picked to win the race in District 2-AA, while the Shamrock Irish, in the same district, have been picked last.

★ In District 1-AA, the White Deer Bucks were picked to place fifth with Panhandle winning the race.

★ In a reversal of opinions from the recently published Dave Campbell's Texas Football, Top-O-Texas has the Wheeler Mustangs as the eighth best 1-A team in the region. Texas Football has the Mustangs as the fourth best statewide Class A team. The magazine also lists Groom as the region's seventh best in Class A.

★ Wheeler was also placed in the runner up position, behind Booker, in the District 1-A North Zone race. In the same zone, McLean was picked last.

★ In the 1-A South Zone, Groom was projected as the third place finishers, behind Vega and Happy.

★ In District 2 Six-man football, Miami was picked to finish fifth, followed by Lefors in sixth.

Several other features dot the magazine's table of contents, including several area players who were expected to finish on each district's "Honor Roll."

Mayo also has included Wheeler head coach Preston Smith as one of this year's inductees in the "Top-O-Texas Hall of Fame."

Other '87 inductees include Post's David Thompson, Sweetwater's W.T. Stapler and New Deal's Buster Leaf.

Smith joins former Canadian boss Bill Cross as this area's only other member of the publication's Hall of Fame.

Physical exams required for local grid prospects

Football season is rapidly approaching as Pampa high school and middle school prospects take physicals and check out equipment this week.

Prospects in the seventh and ninth grades are urged to have their physicals taken as soon as possible. Prospects from the eighth through the twelfth grades are to fill out a medical history form and return it to the high school weight room sometime this week. Both the prospect and his parents must sign the form.

For more information, prospects may call 665-1781. Middle school prospects needing information may contact Coach Dick Dunnam.

High school players begin checking out equipment Wednesday through Friday at the high school fieldhouse. Check out times are from 9 to 10 a.m. Wednesday for seniors; 9 to 10 a.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday for juniors; 9 to 10 a.m. and 7 to 8 p.m. Friday for sophomores.

Players who cannot check out equipment during those dates or times should call 665-1781.

The Harvesters begin three-day workouts Aug. 10 and continue through Aug. 14. Practice times are 8 a.m.-10:30 a.m.; 12:30 p.m.-2:30 p.m. and 6 p.m.-8:30 p.m.

On Aug. 15, the Harvesters have a "Pride Drill" and photo session scheduled for the public, starting at 1:30 p.m.

The Harvesters open the season Sept. 11 against Amarillo High.

Tyson is undisputed champ

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mike Tyson won the undisputed heavyweight championship of the world Saturday night, but Iron Mike had to settle for a 12-round unanimous decision over 10½-1 underdog Tony Tucker.

Tyson's victory before 7,600 fans at the Las Vegas Hilton made the 21-year-old New Yorker the first undisputed champion since Leon Spinks upset Muhammad Ali on a split decision at the Hilton on Feb. 15, 1978.

Michael Spinks, who was stripped by the International Boxing Federation for refusing to fight Tucker, contends he is the true champion. But all three sanctioning bodies — the IBF, World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association — now recognize the unbeaten Tyson.

Most observers didn't feel Tucker would last long with Tyson, despite being unbeaten himself, and many of the fans were disappointed Tyson didn't end the fight inside the 12-round limit.

But Tyson was in charge all the way and was a clear winner.

Judge Phil Newman scored it 119-111, Bill Graham had it 118-112 and Julio Roldan scored it 118-113.

Tyson, who weighed 221 pounds, had entered the ring as WBA and WBC champion while Tucker, 28, who also weighed 221, was the IBF champion.

Dolphins place in Amarillo meet

Three Pampa Dolphin swimmers participated in an Amarillo C meet recently at the Amarillo Aquatic Club.

Rene Hill and Bobby Venal won first-place ribbons for the Dolphins. Rene won the 100 individual medley, 50 backstroke and 50 breaststroke in the girls' 10 and under division. She also placed second in the 50 freestyle. Venal won the 25 butterfly in the 8 and under division and the 100 individual medley, 50 breaststroke and 50 freestyle in the 10 and under division.

Heidi Venal, competing in the girls' 11-12 division, placed third in the 100 individual medley, 50 breaststroke and 50 butterfly, and fourth in the 50 backstroke and 50 freestyle.

The Dolphins competed against swimmers from Plainview, Dumas, Clovis and Amarillo.

Field already full for popular TOT golf tournament

FROM THE NOTEPAD: Despite an increase in entrance fees, the field for the 50th annual Top O Texas Golf Tournament scheduled for Labor Day weekend has been full since early July and has a waiting list of more than 30 hopefuls. Good testimony to the quality of the event, and competitiveness of the par-71 Pampa Country Club layout.

Meanwhile, the field for the Pampa Open tennis tournament next weekend has more than 50 entrants, with room for more. Entry deadline is Wednesday. A junior tournament will be held Thursday and Friday. Enter or get more information by calling 669-2537 or 665-9401.

Thanks to HELEN FREEMAN for the kind note. That's part of the purpose of this column, to recognize worthy accomplishments of deserving persons involved in athletics.

As for signing with the San Antonio Spurs, first-round selection Ens. DAVID ROBINSON (USN) says: "They have to show they have the will to make their team better in the next few years, that the players are happy there, that the fans will come out and support the team." Those are the problems ownership expects the talented athlete to provide answers.

While the Texas Legislature forces increased charges to attend state colleges, tripling tuition for out-of-state students, the Oregon Board of Higher Education has voted unanimously to waive tuition charges for student-athletes for all its state-supported colleges at an estimated cost to the state's taxpayers of more than $1 million. It will also impose a major imbalance on private institutions, again at taxpayer expense.

"We had four good camps, all filled," reports Panhandle State basketball coach EARL DIDDLE. The relative of the legendary Earl Diddle, famed coach at Western Kentucky, has been recruiting hard "in the Detroit, Chicago and Amarillo areas" in an effort to bring the NAIA championship to PSU, which was almost accomplished last season. Since the areas have to be mowed and maintained at taxpayer cost anyway, would it be possible to fit a nine or 18-hole par-3 golf course on city property along Red Deer Creek?

Did you realize that 13 Johnsons played in the NBA last year, and three more were drafted. The cost of losing: The University of Cincinnati has signed a contract to play at Tennessee during the 1992 football season in exchange for a check in the amount of $250,000.

Alright, who kidnapped The Hulk? Circle K Corp reports that 300 to 400 of the 6'-8" cutouts of HULK HOGAN have vanished from its store in the South and Southwest. The cardboard cut-outs, costing $22 each, are treasured by wrestling fans, one of whom used a gun to steal one from a store in Arizona, leaving the cash.

Holy cow! This might be the final go-round for the People Person, 70-year old Chicago Club broadcaster HARRY CARAY. Victim of a severe stroke last February, he missed the early part of the season and has had a radical change of lifestyle, negating his legendary visits to bistros until the wee hours. For the first time, his wife, Dutchie, has accompanied him on all road trips, an imposition on her. And having gone into the Arizona restaurant business with broadcast partner STEVE STONE, former Amarillo Giant player, Caray will open a Chicago eatery later this fall, joining the Windy City's sports notables JIM McMAHON and MIKE DITKA in that type venture.

Did you know most sports agent charge from five to seven percent of a negotiated contract's total figure? And when you hear a player "got a signing bonus" it normally covers that agent's total fee.

The Fullerton (Cal.) State Titan football team will play in all five time zones in the United States in completing its seven-game road schedule this fall.

It's a special pleasure to score a hole-in-one on the twelfth hole at the Pampa CC, as B.F. DORMAN did this past week, because you can watch the ball all the way into the cup. And how about this specialization: MANCIL DAVIS, who has more holes-in-one (48) than any other golf pro, is the new executive director of a Dallas-based insurance carrier which insures for hole-in-one prizes

Davis got his first at age 12 on his hometown course in Odessa. Six months later he got his second, two days later his third, two days later his fourth. That was 1967, a year he finished with eight. Simple game!

It was on this day in 1938 that The Cat, JOHNNY MIZE, hit the first home run with a yellow baseball being tested in a game between the Cardinals and Dodgers at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn.

It would be sad to see Highland Park HS drop from 5A, ending those regional-level playoff games with Plano that matched bosses against employees, silk stockings vs. blue collars.

Did you know that UT-Austin spends nearly $400,000 each year just bringing in prospective student-athletes (?) on recruiting visits? Or that a football scholarship at Notre Dame now costs the school $56,000! Just 15 years ago it was $14,000 for the four years.

Teaff senses positive outlook among SWC coaches

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference has reached its lowest point in 30 years, but Baylor Coach Grant Teaff says the problems have spurred a new camaraderie among the conference's nine schools.

About 1,200 people gathered in the Hyatt Regency Hotel Friday for the annual SWC football kickoff luncheon and to honor the 1987 GTE-SWC Academic Honor Team. Three football players from each team were honored on the academic squad, and two other top players from each SWC team also were introduced.

After talks of tradition and competitiveness, Teaff analyzed the good that has come of the scandals and NCAA investigations that have plagued the conference.

"The last two or three years, without doubt, were the low point of my 30 years of coaching, in terms of negative publicity, investigations, ill will festering all around," Teaff said.

"But in the past six months — I noticed it after football season really — I have begun to sense a very positive feeling about a lot of things," Teaff said.

"This group of coaches has a unique camaraderie and closeness unlike any I've ever seen. It's a feeling I haven't felt in the Southwest Conference in many years."

Each coach showed a 2-1/2 minute video highlight film on his school's 1986 football season and then spoke briefly about his prospects for 1987.

"We accomplished everything we wanted to during the spring. We have a lot of fine, young players returning," said Ken Hatfield, whose Arkansas Razorbacks are preseason favorites to win the conference and represent the SWC in the Cotton Bowl.

"The worst thing that can happen to a team like this is complacency. These guys know they're good. Realistically, we should battle for the championship," Hatfield added.

Teaff said, "Last fall, we fired some of the best shots we've ever fired. Now we have a lot of empty cartridges lying around. We've got to get them ready for the next shootout, so the order of the day is to reload, then get ready to fight."

Teaff added, "Our big change will be at quarterback. We have had for four years consistently great play from Tom Muecke and Cody Carlson. We're going into an era now where we'll be going with inexperienced players, and that's both interesting and scary."

Jack Pardee, in his first year as head coach at Houston after several years of coaching in the pro ranks, said college football is refreshing.

"I've been in football all my life, but I've never had as much fun as I've had the last few months," said Pardee, who is shelving the Houston veer offense and replacing it with a pro-style "Run and Shoot" offense.

"Our players are excited, and their enthusiasm has rubbed off on the coaching staff. We're looking forward to the start of the season," Pardee said.

Jerry Berndt, who had a 4-7 record last year in his first campaign as head coach at Rice, said he feels more confident going into this season.

"Not only do I know all the players and their names, but finally all the players know my name," he quipped.

"We have a renewed vision, renewed excitement on our campus. I feel very much that our players will be a force to be reckoned with," Berndt said. "I think teams that don't take us seriously may be surprised."

Texas A&M coach Jackie Sherrill, after two consecutive appearances in the Cotton Bowl, said his team doesn't have to prove itself anymore, but said the conference race should be wide open, especially since Aggie quarterback Kevin Murray gave up his senior year to go into professional football.

Sherrill praised Craig Stump, who backed up Murray, and said the question he is asked by sportswriters is whether freshman sensation Lance Pavlos will take over now that Murray is gone.

"If Lance Pavlos becomes our starting quarterback, then we will win a lot of games, because this man here (Stump) is a great quarterback himself. I don't think Lance will beat Stump out, but if he does we'll be back in the Cotton Bowl, I can tell you that," Sherrill said.

Texas coach David McWilliams, a longtime assistant who coached Texas Tech last year and then was hired to return to UT as head coach, said he will run the same offense at Texas that he did with the Red Raiders.

"Formation-wise, things are not going to be much different, and the running game will be the same as the last two or three years. The difference will be the emphasis on the passing, even though Texas threw the ball a great deal last year," McWilliams said.

"We're going out with the idea of starting out the game throwing the ball and forcing the other team to have to stop our throwing game first, which we think if we do well enough, it'll open up our running game," he said. "As opposed to going out and running the ball and then starting to throw."

Texas Christian coach Jim Wacker, who went from riches to rags after booting seven players off the team for recruiting violations, said he's looking forward to this season, when several of the Frogs' very best players will be back after redshirting last season, when TCU were on probation.

Padres' record best in NL West since June 4

HOUSTON (AP) — With the help of right handed pitcher Ed Whitson, the San Diego Padres are not feeling so slowly or humiliated lately.

The 38-65 Padres are 26-23 since June 4, for the best record in the National League West during that stretch.

Whitson, 10-7, extended that with a 6-2 win over the Houston Astros Friday night getting relief help from Lance McCullers who earned his 10th save.

"We've been kicked, laughed at and embarrassed to walk anywhere in San Diego," Padres manager Larry Bowa said. "It wasn't from a lack of effort. We were just making mistakes, and we're still making them, but the team is much better than in April and heading in the right direction."

Whitson gave up 10 hits in his six and two-thirds innings at work, but he did chip in with a two-run single in the second inning that gave the Padres a 3-1 lead.

It was his first game-winning RBI in Whitson's eight-year career. Garry Templeton added three RBIs on a 3-4 performance.

"The ball just met the bat and fortunately it fell in for a hit," Whitson said. As for his pitching Whitson said, "Getting my breaking ball over was the key. I was keeping their big hitters, like Davis, Bass and Doran, off stride. I had an excellent curve ball probably the best I've had all year."

To losing pitcher Danny Darwin the key was Whitson's hit. "It was right down the middle. I was trying to get ahead of him," Darwin said.

The whole inning was a wash-out for Darwin, who knocked in a run in the fourth inning. "The second inning was like I hadn't even warmed up. The more I threw, the worse it got."

Houston, 50-52, is going in the opposite direction from San Diego, dropping 19 of their last 29 games.

With nine Houston runners stranded including five in scoring position, Houston manager Hal Lanier assessed the problem.

"You have to get hits at the opportune times or you don't win. We had our chances for a big inning and Darwin made one bad pitch to the pitcher."

The Padres have already been through these doldrums and Whitson is looking forward to a brighter future. "You can see improvement in every ball player on this team. Next year hopefully we can get off to a good start and be right in the middle of the race."

Dawson delivers

Andre Dawson watches the first of his three home runs go over the fence Saturday at the Chicago Cubs defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-3. Dawson's four-baggers accounted for all five Cub runs.

Yankees' win streak ends

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Whitaker had four hits and scored four runs, and Frank Tanana gave up six hits in eight innings as the Detroit Tigers beat New York 10-5 Saturday, ending the Yankees' five-game winning streak.

The Tigers won before 55,103 at Yankee Stadium and moved back into second place in the American League East, two games behind

New York. Detroit won for just the second time in eight games against the Yankees this season.

Tanana, 11-7, retired the first 11 batters. Dennis Rasmussen, recalled from Class AAA Columbus earlier in the day, took the loss. Rasmussen, 8-5, gave up four runs on seven hits in 4-1/3 innings as his five-game winning string ended.

McGwire a shoo-in for AL rookie award

If they ever filmed a sequel to "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly," the Oakland Athletics' Mark McGwire could play the good guy. John McEnroe would be both bad and ugly.

In these days of overpaid athletes, cry babies and other assorted professional malcontents, it is refreshing to see a Mark McGwire enter the limelight.

It still sickens me, though, to watch, or even hear of John McEnroe.

Barring injury, McGwire will be the American League's Rookie of the Year this season. That is not a prediction — that is fact.

Just 23-years-old, McGwire Wednesday tied the rookie mark for most homers hit in a single season.

McGwire, looking more like a high school senior than a major league rookie, displayed his usual politeness to the press after he hit his record-tying 37th home run.

"The record doesn't mean anything," he said. "Maybe at the

In My Corner

By Jimmy Patterson

end of the season it will. The only thing meaning something now is for us to win. That's being truthful."

During ESPN's coverage of All-Star ceremonies, McGwire was interviewed by sportscaster Chris Berman.

McGwire was humble and shy in answering questions concerning his quest to break Roger Maris's single season homer record.

Maybe the reason for his polite nature is because he's a rookie. Hopefully not, but maybe his ego just hasn't had time to grow yet.

Both Roger Clemens and Dwight Gooden were pleasant during their rookie years. But, look at them now.

Hopefully, McGwire will not be like other rookie phenoms and allow success to ruin him.

And, then there's John McEnroe.

Success never spoiled his attitude. It was bad to begin with.

Featured earlier this year on the cover of Esquire magazine, it was believed that his marriage to Tatum O'Neal and fatherhood had humbled him, made a man out of him.

Marriage and fatherhood has not changed John McEnroe. Nothing will ever change him.

Adorned with the nickname "SuperBrat" a few years ago, McEnroe doesn't even do justice to that name anymore.

Evidence comes from his behavior in last week's Davis Cup competition in Hartford, Conn.

In his match with Boris Becker, McEnroe said he was "disappointed about the ambivalence of the crowd."

That he even used a word as big as "ambivalence" sort of threw me for a loop.

Another jibe from McEnroe: "It's unfortunate about what happens in Davis Cup competition. A quarter of the people are left at the end of one of the greatest matches I've ever played and half of them were rooting for a guy from another country."

He of course was referring to the mild-mannered West German Becker.

If McEnroe would only realize that Becker's on court behavior was the reason they were rooting for him.

Who wants to root for the enemy? Who cheers for the bad guy?

When McEnroe hit a volley that fell short of the net, the crowd began to cheer.

In one of his typical tirades, McEnroe turned and shouted while pointing his finger as if to scold the crowd, "You quit clapping when I miss a shot. Where do you think you are?"

McEnroe is a direct behavioral descendant of Ilie Nastase and Jimmy Connors.

As a kid, I used to enjoy the antics of Nastase and Connors. I was at that age where I liked to witness wreckers of authority such as those two.

That sort of behavior is not cute anymore. It is abhorrent. It should be banished, as should players who exhibit such mannerisms.

The best place to start is with McEnroe. If tennis is to save its credibility, officials must stop slapping him on the wrist and kick him out of the game for good.

Biggs scores technical knockout to keep No. one ranking intact

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — No. 1-ranked heavyweight contender Tyrell Biggs overpowered self-admitted journeyman Lorenzo Boyd to win a bout here Friday with a technical knockout in the third round.

Biggs kept Boyd at bay with stinging left jabs after the bell, throwing only one combination throughout the first round and stalking Boyd around the ring. The 6-foot-4, 231-pounder opened in the second with leading rights answered by scoring flurries from Boyd.

The fight turned when Biggs caught Boyd off guard with a left to the right temple. Boyd momentarily dropped to one knee and took an eight-count from referee Jesse Garza. Seconds later, a left jab followed by a right uppercut put Boyd flat on his back.

Biggs sent Boyd to the canvas four times before Garza waived the fight at 1:12 in the third.

"That clown wore me out because of his weight," said Boyd, 5-11 and 201 pounds. "I was hitting him with punches and he was wearing me out."

Biggs will carry a 15-0 record into his Oct. 16 match with Mike Tyson.

"I didn't feel slow. I may have looked slow, but I'm weighing 235 pounds right now. That's not my fighting weight."

It's amazing how often the number 4 occurred in Hank Aaron's career. . . . Aaron's uniform number was 44. . . . He broke Babe Ruth's all-time home run record in the 4th inning of the 4th game of the season, in the 4th month of the year (April) in 1974. . . . The pitcher he hit that historic homer against (Al Downing) also wore 44 on his uniform. . . . Aaron was batting 4th in the lineup. . . . 4 times in his career he hit exactly 44 homers in a season, and so it goes.

What's the farthest out of first place any big league baseball team ever finished? . . . The record was set by Cleveland in 1899. . . . They wound up the season 89 games out of first place.

Did you know that the idea for using rear-view mirrors on cars came about because of automobile racing? . . . In the early days of auto racing, there were 2 people in each car — the driver and a mechanic. . . . The mechanic served as a "co-pilot," telling the driver if anything was coming up behind him. . . . But in the 1911 Indianapolis race, Ray Harroun wanted to lighten his racer and drive alone. . . . Now would he know what was behind him? . . . He got the idea of the rear-view mirror, and is credited with being the first to use one. . . . Over the years, many other auto improvements have come from auto racing.

I bet you didn't know. . . . That this is the time to save on a used car at Bill Allison Auto Sales. We have a good selection of late model low mileage cars and vans. Come in today and see for yourself.

Hargrove hopes to make it back to biggies as manager

Perryton native now at Kinston

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

Dudley Michael Hargrove enjoys the good life. His attitude is always positive, but it has to be. There are a lot of stories about how players and coaches do not like the world of Class A baseball. Too many long bus rides, not enough luxuries. But Hargrove is happy as manager of the Kinston (N.C.) Indians in the Carolina League. He is content for now.

Better known as Mike Hargrove, the Perryton native was the American League Rookie of the Year in 1974 while playing for the Texas Rangers. A .300 hitter for several years in the majors with the Texas Rangers and Cleveland Indians, Hargrove was a good player. But he thinks he can be an even better manager.

"As long as I can do this and afford it, I'll do it," Hargrove said. "The only reason I am doing it is because I enjoy it. But, I don't want to do it for ten years."

Kinston is currently in first place by three games in the Carolina League's second half with a record of 21-16.

Hargrove's ultimate goal is to manage in the major, preferably with Cleveland, but he said he would have no qualms about returning to the Ranger organization if given the chance.

Making the downward transition from a first-rate major league hitter to a minor league manager was not exactly easy, in terms of luxuries.

"There are no luxuries (in the minors)," he said.

Kinston, which boasts a population of 25,234, rates with Pampa in terms of entertainment opportunities and size. Hargrove said the people are also top quality.

"The people here compare with the people in the Panhandle," he said. "They're very friendly and are always open and willing to give you a hand."

After this season, Hargrove intends to spend a month in the Florida Instructional League and then return to live in Perryton during the remainder of the off-season.

If the day ever comes when Hargrove is offered a major league managerial job, the former first baseman foresees no problem with "reverse discrimination."

The hot issue in baseball this year is the lack of blacks and other minorities in managerial and front office positions.

Hargrove pointed out that because baseball is so much in the public eye, the racism problem has been distorted to a certain extent.

"I don't think racism is any more of a problem in baseball as it is in the doctors, lawyers or roughneck professions," he said. "I have no problem with minorities in front office positions as long as they're qualified."

When Hargrove was a slugger in the big leagues, he was known for his unique mannerisms at the plate. Neglecting to call them nervous habits, Hargrove just said there were certain things that bothered him when he came to the plate.

"I wanted to do my job to the best of my ability and concentrate to the best of my ability."

"It always seemed like my batting glove had a crease in it and I'd have to straighten that out or the sleeve on my right shoulder always hung down further so I always had to pull it up before batting."

As far as his favorite memory as a Ranger, he cited one that continues to please him: A game winning hit in 1975.

"I hardly ever started against left handers," he said. "But, one night, Billy (Martin, then the Texas manager) had the confidence to leave me in the game and I got a hit off Detroit left hander John Hiller to win the game in the fourteenth inning."

As far as his favorite manager, Hargrove said he always enjoyed playing under Dave Garcia in Cleveland and Martin in Texas.

"I played for 12 managers in 12 years," he said. "That includes five in one year in Texas."

"I enjoyed Billy because he was always behind his players — sometimes to a fault. You always knew he was going to be in your corner."

A basketball player at Northwestern Oklahoma State University in Alva, Hargrove got into baseball only at his father's urging.

"When spring rolled around, the basketball season was over and all my friends would want to go out and have a good time. But, dad wanted me to play baseball and thought I would be good at it. I'm certainly glad he talked me into it and I hung with it."

Hargrove said he never would have made it as a professional basketball player, because he was too short — 6 feet.

"I would have grown tired at looking at other people's knees."

Sherrill hopes to change image

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

LAKE CONROE, Texas (AP) — Being head football coach at a school in the Southwest Conference is not conducive to winning first places in popularity contests.

Add athletic director to the job and that narrows the circle of consistent friends to spouse and banker.

Jackie Sherrill entered the SWC's competitive cauldron five years ago with a big salary, big ideas, and, some thought, a big mouth.

The fancy-dressing easterner was paid more than any college football coach in history by Texas A&M University to leave Pittsburgh. His mission was to get to the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day.

He did so after a slow start with back-to-back SWC football championships.

However, along the way Sherrill, who dresses like a gentleman banker, got into scrapes with the media, coaches, and prominent SWC figures.

Sherrill's ego and football team took a trampling in his early stint at Texas A&M but he kept warning the other coaches to get in their licks while they could.

He promised Saturdays of retribution. And he delivered, offending some, such as Texas

The Freeman File

Christian Coach Jim Wacker, in the way he ran up scores.

Meanwhile, the media, which had ranked Sherrill early in his A&M campaigns by calling him a $1 million mistake, launched a series of investigations to see how clean a program he was running.

Sherrill had a running feud with WFAA-TV in Dallas over their investigation of quarterback Kevin Murray and newspapers kept up the pressure. The NCAA has yet to act.

Faced with a difficult situation, Sherrill fought back.

He lectured the press on how to run its business instead of talking about Auburn before the 1986 Cotton Bowl, maintaining the press should focus on good news about the SWC instead of problems with the league.

On the Thanksgiving night after the Aggies clinched the Cotton Bowl against Texas he had a shouting match with the bowl's executive director Jim Brock. Sherrill also chased some writers out of the locker room who had assembled to hear A&M's invitation to the Cotton Bowl.

Sports Information Director Tom Turbiville decided after the Cotton Bowl to quit working for Sherrill and entered private business.

Sherrill even had to twist balloons into toy animals for Ohio State Coach Earl Bruce at a press conference as a form of apology after an exchange of unpleasanties during January's Cotton Bowl week.

If ever an SWC sports figure needed an image polishing, it was Sherrill, a man of tremendous energy but short in diplomacy.

Then, in late July, Sherrill held an extraordinary hour-long, off-the-record session with the press aboard a party boat on Lake Conroe to break some image ice.

Champagne was served and Sherrill stated that "he was not a bad guy, no monster" and wanted to clear the air with the media. Right up front, he admitted he had made mistakes.

What followed was a remarkable round of name-calling where true feelings were laid bare. Sherrill said he didn't want anything held back and nothing was.

Sherrill gave his side, admitting to some mistakes and defending his actions in other instances, while the media delivered its grievances.

Amazingly, Sherrill had put an anchor around his ego and tossed it into Lake Conroe for this soul-searching session.

Also present was someone Sherrill has hired to do something about his public relations, Johnny Keith, who got some good experience when he was at Oklahoma trying to help the feisty Barry Switzer.

Jackie Sherrill... "No more Mr. bad guy."

Cowboys' Rohrer angered by latest contract offer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The latest contract offer by the Dallas Cowboys to Jeff Rohrer has angered the linebacker and started him thinking about retirement.

"I could very easily retire," Rohrer said Friday. "Given the circumstances, and given the money they're offering me, I wouldn't hesitate about retiring."

Defensive back Ron Felloes also was absent from camp in a contract dispute.

Rohrer faced $1,000 dollar daily fines, starting Friday, for missing training camp.

Joe Bailey, a Cowboys' vice president who handles contract negotiations, said Felloes can't be fined because he doesn't have a signed contract.

"I'm both disappointed and surprised," Bailey said. "In Felloes' case, I thought we had a deal worked out. I still feel we can."

Coach Tom Landry warned that the pair may lose their positions.

"I'll have to wait and see but the longer they are out, the more their jobs are in jeopardy," Landry said.

Rohrer, a six-year veteran from Yale and the starting right outside linebacker, showed up Thursday night, then left after deciding he wanted more money.

He is the option year of his contract and wants more than the $192,000 the NFL team has offered.

Felloes, a seven-year veteran will be replaced by Manny Hendrix. Also working at the right cornerback position will be Ron Francis, the second-round draft pick from Baylor who has been having an excellent training camp.

Bailey did sign linebacker Steve DeOssie and defensive end Don Smerek on Friday.

Also still missing from the Cowboys' training camp was first-round pick Danny Noonan of Nebraska.

Friends are welcome to attend the reception.

Nominations sought for service awards

Women's Forum, Amarillo Area, is accepting nominations for the 1987 Texas Panhandle Distinguished Women's Service Awards.

Nominations will be accepted by Women's Forum awards committee until Sept. 1, according to committee chair Allegra Bush.

The awards are presented to Panhandle women who have made outstanding contributions to the region.

Women's Forum reestablished the Distinguished Women's Service Awards after West Texas State University discontinued them in 1985. Since 1976, 89 Panhandle women have been honored with the award. Past recipients have been leaders in farming, ranching, business, medicine, education, voluntarism, finance, communications, civic responsibility, health care and the legal system.

Women who are legal residents of the top 26 counties of the Panhandle and who have NOT previously received this award are eligible for nomination. The Awards Committee encourages nomination of any woman who has had a significant impact on the Panhandle of Texas through her local community in one or more of these categories: Arts, Civic Leadership and Public Service, Education, Health Care, Legal, Science and Technology, and Voluntarism.

Winners are selected on the basis of lasting contributions or achievements that have impacted the region. A representative panel of Panhandle citizens, including former award recipients, will select the award winners. Recipients will be honored at an awards ceremony scheduled for noon Oct. 17 at Tascosa Country Club in Amarillo.

For more information or to request a nomination form, contact Women's Forum, 3403-A Thurman, Amarillo, 79109.

Vacations dominate summer

Welcome to August! Vacations, where and when, make a strong bid for conversation topics.

Taking the big step from high school to college is a favorite subject for recent high school graduates. Decisions on dust ruffles, bedspreads and colors were fun talk to Leslie Knox and Cindy Epperly, who will be college roommates at Angelo State.

Dana, Fred and Cindy, Jane and Leslie attended orientation.

Shirley, Harold, Laurie Leigh, Andrea and Kelly Haines might well be Pampa's most excited family. During family sessions early in February, the decision to be host family to an American Field Service student, a Japanese girl, was unanimous. Confirmation came early in May. The postage tab on a PHS annual, Texas T-shirt, Chamber of Commerce brochure, family and local pictures came to $45. Harold thinks Shirley talked to the future on an American Friday morning to a Japanese Saturday night. Sumi Hayes, whose native tongue is Japanese, will talk next call before the guest arrives in mid-August. Sue Hutchison is head of the local AFS.

Do ask Elena Donald and her mother Zola about their Mississippi River Great American Steamboat Race on the Mississippi Queen from New Orleans to St. Louis. Elena became part of the entertainment when she was awarded the "Vox Calliopus" certificate, all because she played a recognizable tune in a caliope contest! Opportunities like that are few and far between.

Mattie Waver and W.A. Morgan, Nell Wray, Marie Houston are still talking about their seven-day Royal Princess Cruise to Alaska and a five-day land tour, including the Midnight Express. The Morgans are seasoned know-how travelers.

Lots of kind words to Debbie Stubblefield, secretary of Calvary Baptist Church but not a member, for volunteering as a sponsor of a young people's group at Pan Fork Baptist Camp in Colorado because of an urgent need for one more sponsor. Charles McGahen, Skip Matson, the Rev. John Denton and Jim Jennings split days at camp to assure enough sponsors. It's called doing one's part and more.

Sometime soon Mike Warnke of Dansville, Ky., known as a Christian comedian, will appear at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Mike is an ex-Satanist, ex-addict and ex-pusher, who had a religious experience in naval boot camp. Watch and ask for more details.

Charles Johnson attended the Texas Band and Orchestra Directors Association Convention in San Antonio.

The Pampa High School Show Choir will begin rehearsals on Aug. 11. First appearances will be on the first in-service day for teachers and Chautauqua on Labor Day. Singers are Kathy Smith, Leslie McQueen, Angie Harvey, Amber Whatley, Jana Kitchens, Krystal Keyes, Cannon Allen, Ronnie and Donnie Berry, Brian Hogan, Corey Coon and Scott Peak. Other personnel are Ashley Russell, keyboard; Mark Bridges, drummer; Kathy Hall and Matt Walsch, guitarists; Scott Webb and Lance Matthews, technicians.

When Mary Seedig returned to work in the admissions office at Coronado Community Hospital after recent surgery, she did feel missed. Big balloons on her desk said, "Welcome back, Mary!"

A warm Pampa "Welcome!!!" to the Rev. Bill Bailey, his wife Edith, and TWO sets of twins — John and Compton, age 5, and Richard and Meg, age 3. Bill will conduct his first worship service at St. Matthews Episcopal Church this morning. The Baileys moved to Pampa only days ago from Rock Hill, S.C.

Dr. Vijay and Shanta Mohan, Salil, Sameer and Sarita are all back home after a lengthy visit with family and friends in India.

Philip and Mary Brady and their two daughters, Janee', 5, and Jocelyn, 7, spent the first 12 days of July on a vacation trip to visit Philip's family in Endicott, N.Y. While there, they toured Thousand Islands, the St. Lawrence seaway, the Adirondack Mountains and the Statue of Liberty.

Mary said the weather was hot and humid but nice, not too bad. The day they visited the Statue of Liberty, the temperature was 100 degrees with 90 percent humidity — "and no wind." The temperature inside the statue was "well over 100 degrees," which kept them from being able to climb into the statue itself.

Wedding congratulations to the former Helen Wirth and Pat Ley, also a reative Pampa newcomer. Pat is the superintendent of Arthur Brothers.

Family and friends are pleased to have Margaret Nichols back in home territory. She is enjoying phone calls, cards and visits while recovering from a broken bone.

Lance Matthews, son of Sandie and Richard Crosswhite, is walking on air with good reason. He enjoyed a two-for-one family visit when his cousin Randy Matthews and family Janice and Slugger came from Andrews and an opportunity to see Randy play baseball in the Babe Ruth Tournament. Randy overcame what many would consider a disability to become a first-rate baseball player with one good hand and one helping hand. Janice and Slugger commuted from Andrews to Pampa to see Randy play and back to Crane to see a younger son play. Lance is proud of his Uncle Mickey Matthews, who will be coaching defensive secondary football for TCU in Fort Worth.

Claudine and Elmer Balch, Betty and W.E. Epperson met Claudine and Betty's brother Gordon and Joyce Frasher, Elaine and Bonnie and families for a family get-together in Albuquerque, N.M. Annie and L.D. Frasher flew in from Malibu, Calif. A highlight along the way was a trip on the scenic railway from Chama to Colorado. Family visits have taken Claudine from Pampa to Houston, Albuquerque and Colorado.

Belle and Lacy Lee visited Debbie and Mickey Lee in Abilene with the best of reasons: to see a new grandson, Cameron Adam. Great-grandparents are Audrey and Jim Steward.

See you next week. Katie.

BRIDAL BOUQUETS

A QUESTION OF FLOWERS

Rarely in your life will you utilize flowers so freely — as decorations and personal accessories — as for your wedding. Here are some things you'll need to know.

Corsages are normally given to the mothers of the bride and groom, and to the grandmothers of each. It is normally not considered necessary or appropriate to give flowers to other women guests, but in the absence of a mother or grandmother it is appropriate to honor a particularly dear aunt or stepmother with flowers.

Boutonnieres are worn by the groom, of course, and his ushers and best man. The fathers of the bride and groom and grandfathers, if present, also wear them. If you have groomsmen instead of ushers — i.e., friends who aren't formally attired but who are helping to seat guests — a boutonniere will help to distinguish and honor them.

If you fear your flowers may wilt, keep them refrigerated or in water until just before the ceremony, and equip a relative or friend with a sprayer of cool water, just in case, to revive a droopy bouquet.

Use same watering techniques for all plants

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

GUIDES FOR EFFECTIVE LANDSCAPE IRRIGATION

Watering plants seems to be one of the most confusing parts of gardening. The trouble is, too many gardeners don't realize this until it's too late.

"How often should I water?" and "How much should I apply?" are, at this time of year, the top questions from gardeners. Since water is both essential for healthy plant growth and expensive, it's important to get it to the plant's roots and keep it there.

The following are several suggestions for watering. These techniques apply to all gardening, from shade and fruit trees and vegetable gardens to lawns and houseplants.

■ Never water strictly by the calendar. We don't drink water every 10 minutes or every hour, so why should plants be watered every two days or once a week? Instead, learn to recognize dry plants and soil and use these as your tip-off for watering. Too many factors determine how fast a soil dries for us to put watering on a regular basis.

■ When the plants are dry, water thoroughly. Water lawns so that the soil will be wet several inches down, to encourage deep rooting and drought tolerance. One of the worst mistakes people make on their lawns is trying to "sprinkle" them each day by using their thumb and the end of a running hose. Most gardeners just don't have the patience to stand in one spot long enough for deep water penetration.

Water trees by taking the sprinkler off the end of the hose and letting water run slowly for several hours. Root feeders are also effective.

■ Most plants should be watered in the morning. Watering during the day results in great water loss by evaporation and can result in burned leaves where sunlight hits the water droplets. Evening watering increases the likelihood of disease invasion, as most diseases develop rapidly in cool,

For Horticulture

moist conditions.

■ While watering your lawn, try to keep water off the leaves of trees and shrubs as much as possible. This is especially important for such plants as crape myrtle and roses, which are troubled by leaf diseases which spread rapidly on wet surfaces. ■ Symptoms for plants which have been kept too wet are about the same as those kept too dry. Roots in waterlogged soils die and do not take up water, so plants wilt and turn yellow. Try not to water a drowning plant! ■ Organic matter, such as peat moss and rotted manure, can reduce water loss by runoff when they are worked into the soil. To keep moisture in the soil, use a mulch such as straw, grass clippings, redwood bark or gravel. In addition to reducing evaporation, mulches also keep the soil cooler.

■ Be especially careful to keep newly planted trees and shrubs well watered. Their developing root systems are sensitive to under- and over-watering.

■ Always soak inorganic fertilizers into the soil immediately after applying. These materials are excellent sources of plant foods, but they are all salts and can pull water out of plant tissues, resulting in burn.

VEGETABLE GARDEN QUESTIONS-ANSWERS

Q. Should you allow tomatoes to become fully ripe and red on the vine before harvesting?

A. Generally, yields will be increased by harvesting the fruit at first blush of pink instead of leaving them on the plant to ripen fully. A tomato picked at first sign of color and ripened at room temperature will be just as tasty as one left to fully mature on the vine. Picking tomatoes before they turn red reduces damage from birds.

Q. If tomatoes are picked green or before they are fully mature, how should they be handled to insure proper ripening and full flavor?

A. Never refrigerate tomatoes picked immature. Place them in a single layer at room temperature and allow them to develop full color. When they are fully ripe, place them in the refrigerator where they will store for several weeks. Those handled in this manner will be of high quality and full flavor.

Q. After harvesting, how should I handle my potatoes to result in the longest storage time possible?

A. Dig potatoes when the soil is dry, being careful not to skin or bruise the tubers. Do not wash the potatoes. Place them in crates or some suitable container and store them in a dark area for about 10 days at a temperature of 60 degrees to 65 degrees F. with a relatively high humidity. After this curing period, keep the potatoes at 40 degrees to 45 degrees F. with the humidity near 85 percent, and provide good circulation.

Q. Will it help to remove the tips of my pumpkin vines late in the season to encourage fruit size?

A. The tips of vining pumpkins may be removed about 45 days prior to the anticipated first fall frost to discourage plants from further spreading. This practice will generally encourage larger fruit and will not harm production, as any additional fruit which might set after that time will not ripen before the first killing frost of the fall.

Flooring offers variety of decorating styles

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Amid the redecorating plans of painting, wallpapering and changing cabinet styles, one should not overlook the possibilities of new flooring. Some flooring options are even within the realm of the do-it-yourselfer. Let's explore some flooring options.

The least expensive type of flooring is resilient flooring. This flooring is flexible and has a degree of built-in comfort. Resilient flooring comes in sheeting and tile. Sheetings come in a variety of designs, is easily maintained, and sometimes preferable in areas where moisture is a factor. Tiles are available in various materials, designs and colors and are easy to install.

Sheeting is harder to install than tile, and there may be more waste. However, tile is harder to keep clean and may come unglued in moist areas. Most vinyl sheeting and tiles can be installed over the existing flooring, except if the flooring is embossed, cushioned or badly damaged. The floor should be in good shape, smooth and firmly bonded to the subfloor.

If the floor is in poor shape, cover the existing flooring with 1/2-inch sheets of plywood or hardboard, or install an elastic-backed cushioned vinyl flooring that can go over floors in relatively poor condition or over embossed and cushioned vinyl.

Elastic-backed flooring is adhered only around the edges and not all over the floor. When there are large holes or gouges in the existing flooring, elastic-backed vinyl won't work well and you'll still have to cover it with plywood or hardboard. In some cases, the old flooring will simply have to be removed before the new sheet goods or tiles can be installed.

Stain resistant carpeting is another new flooring option. The days of crying over spilled juice on the carpet are over. Stain re-

Homemakers' News

sistant carpeting is a great break for the homeowner. It frees homeowners from the worry of most permanent stains, may reduce cleaning costs and allows the homeowner to decorate with light colored carpeting anywhere in the house.

The stain resistance is added during processing, when the chemical resistant agents are locked into the filaments of the carpet fibers. You should be able to clean up nearly every household spill or pet accident on this carpeting without a problem. Stains from foods, dirt or beverages, including red wine and fruit flavored drinks, should come out.

However, stain resistant carpeting also has some limitations. Acidic products such as bleach, iodine, mustard and acne medicine can destroy the stain resistant agents and leave spots on the carpeting. Extremely hot foods or beverages may also stain the carpeting, and high traffic areas will show dirt over time. Before buying stain resistant carpeting, carefully read the warranty to determine its limitations.

Clay tiles give a cool feel and southwestern or Spanish look to homes. If you are selecting flooring for an entryway, kitchen or family room, consider the advantages and disadvantages of the different types of clay tile.

Quarry tile is a baked clay product, usually found in an unglazed or natural form for home use. Because it is extremely porous, it requires an oil-based sealer for stain resistance.

Quarry tile is durable and highly impact resistant, but will chip and crack if given a severe blow. It is installed with mastic, a thick, sticky paste, and can be put over almost any base.

The colors of quarry tile range from terra cotta to slate blue. You will need to clean it with a damp mop and synthetic soapless detergent, rinse and sponge dry, then wax with a water base wax.

Ceramic clay tile is non-fading and very resistant to wear. It is available glazed or unglazed and doesn't stain from grease or chemicals, which makes it a good choice for kitchens.

Ceramic clay is available in many shapes and colors. Be aware that certain ceramic tiles are used only for walls, and others are used only for floors. Make sure you get flooring tiles, since wall tiles will not be as usable.

Wash ceramic glazed tiles with a synthetic detergent. If the tiles aren't glazed, apply a coat of water-based wax for protection.

Mexican clay tiles have a crude base with a smooth surface. They are durable and inexpensive, but available in only limited colors.

True Mexican tiles or "pavers" are still produced by hand with local clays and dried in open fields. Firing in primitive ovens leaves them porous. Although they are less expensive, you should order 20 percent more than needed to allow for tiles that break in shipment or those that are defective.

Mexican tile requires installation by a professional on a depressed floor, because they are about one inch thick, uneven, warped and dry. For care, the Mexican tile requires regular dusting. Wash it occasionally with a synthetic detergent, then wax it with a water-base wax.

Best vacations start before leaving home

DEAR READERS: Are you going away for a well-earned vacation? Well, if you are, make sure your vacation doesn't cost you more than you anticipated and take a few precautions before taking off.

It doesn't matter if you're going to be gone a week, a month or a weekend. An experienced burglar can steal more in one hour than you can earn in a year. So take a tip from Abby, and:

Cancel all deliveries such as newspapers and milk. And have your mail held at the post office.

If you live in a house, maintain a lived-in look around the place.

Ask a neighbor to pick up throwaway circulars, fill your trash cans with a little of his trash, and park a car in your driveway occasionally. And if you're going to be gone for a couple of weeks or longer, have your lawn mowed.

Invest in a "timer" to turn your TV, radio and lights on and off at varying times. Also turn the bell down on your telephone so constant ringing won't announce to the world that nobody's home.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

If you leave your car at the airport, be sure to remove any materials from your car that show your home address.

If you have an alarm system at home, test it before you leave. Have a wonderful, worry-free vacation.

thousands of dollars this is costing me, I could have paid someone to mow my lawn each week for the next 9 1/2 years!

The mower was not one of those dangerous-looking monsters. It was a cute, lightweight, low-power, 19-inch model, but definitely due more respect than they usually get.

Thank goodness I was wearing hard-soled leather shoes as the blade hit the sole first, which probably saved the foot. I wasn't paying full attention to the task at hand when I felt the machine hit something and rise up. As it was about to land on a large metal stake, I instinctively jerked it back, and the rest is history.

Abby, please tell your readers that all power mowers can be dangerous, and a mower wound is a filthy one — with the blade forcing bits of grass, weeds, dirt, insecticide, pet eliminations, rust, etc. into your flesh. Aside from the pain, loss of time and expense involved, no one wants to lose even one, little, relatively unimportant toe. Sign me, Betty Brown of High Plains Epilepsy Association examines one of the figurines in the circus wagon chess set for sale by the association at Las Pampas Galleries.

Sale of wagon to raise funds for epilepsy group

A pewter circus wagon with removable figurines that make up a chess set has been donated to High Plains Epilepsy Association, with proceeds from the sale of the wagon to be used by the association.

The wagon, on display at Las Pampas Galleries in downtown Pampa, is mounted on a solid walnut base. It is one of a limited edition of 250 by artist Michael Anthony Ricker, and is signed, numbered and accompanied by a certificate of casting.

Two zebras pull the wagon, whose facades feature niches for the Circus Ringmaster and his entourage of ringside helpers. The characters can be removed from the wagon and used as a chess set, with one side pewter, the other gold-plated.

The circus wagon is valued at approximately $2,500.

High Plains Epilepsy Association acquired it when one of the association's board members, Dr. Chris Brady of Amarillo, persuaded Johnson and Co. in Red River, N.M., who had bought the wagon, to donate it to the association, according to Betty Brown of Pampa, regional executive director.

Proceeds from the sale of the circus wagon will be used to provide medical services for epileptics in the area. High Plains Epilepsy Association serves almost 100 persons in Gray County, and over 1,000 in a 25-county region of the Texas Panhandle.

The association, a United Way agency, receives no public funds and depends on donations to cover its operating expenses. Services provided include information on epilepsy, public education programs and epilepsy-related medical services on an emergency basis.

The association's central office is at 806 S. Bryan in Amarillo. The Pampa office is located at 108 N. Russell. Brown is in the Pampa office on Wednesdays, and callers can leave messages on an answering machine at other times and she will return the calls. The Pampa office phone number is 669-9323.

Pasta is useful in many foods

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Pasta, in a variety of shapes and sizes, is one of the most versatile staples you can have on hand, Better Homes and Gardens says.

It says pasta may be used for hot or cold salads, casseroles, main dishes, soups and side dishes. In fact, you can even decorate your kitchen with it by storing your favorite pastas in airtight jars and glass canisters. When it comes to cooking pasta, the Italians use the phrase "al dente" to describe pasta cooked to the just barely done stage. But the best person to determine if pasta is done is you. Simply taste the pasta and decide.

Dentist phobia alive and well

NEW YORK (AP) — Patients are still as fearful of the dentist as ever, according to Health Magazine.

Research indicates that as many as 12 million Americans qualify as dental phobics — people whose fear of dentistry is so intense they avoid seeing a dentist altogether. Studies also show the biggest fear a patient has is the injection that renders the actual treatment painless.

All this fear is in spite of recent attempts by dentists to control anxiety. One in five dentists is trained in hypnosis. Many use movies or headphones to distract their patients.

DISTRICT 4-H FASHION SHOW RESULTS

State 4-H Fashion Show — here we come! That's right! Gray County will be represented by two 4-H'ers who won their respective categories at the District Fashion Show in Borger Monday.

Stacie McDonald will be the District 1 representative in the Active Sports and Specialty Wear Construction Category. Heather Kludt was named to represent District 1 in the Tailored Daywear Buying Category.

In addition, Gray County had two Senior alternates. Jeffrey Lane was named first alternate in the Evening Wear Construction Category and Becky Reed was selected first alternate in the Non-Tailored Daywear Construction Category.

Other Gray County 4-H'ers placing in the top four in their categories were:

Tamara Lane — Tailored Daywear Construction Category, Senior Division.

Mary White — Non-Tailored Daywear Buying Category, Senior Division.

Kirk McDonald — Active Playwear Construction Category, Intermediate Division.

Other Gray County 4-H'ers representing us in top form were Kim McDonald, Erin McCracken, Amanda Kludt, Lisa McClellan, Terrina Anderson and Heidi Phetteplace.

In addition, Gray County had three adults serving as judges. They were Dorothy Miller, Janie Morris and Janie VanZandt.

District 4-H Council members Becky Reed and Enoch Phetteplace, from Gray County, contributed to the evening program as well.

GRAY COUNTY PROJECT FAIR

Gray County 4-H will host a Project Fair on Aug. 26 at the Pampa Mall. Any Gray County 4-H member can enter.

Entry categories and superintendents are: Arts and Crafts — Jan Ragsdale; Woodworking — Cheryl Underwood; Clothing and Accessories — Janie VanZandt; Ceramics — Barbara Holt; Rabbits — Henry and Marion Dawes; Home Accessories — Jan Ragsdale; and Bake Show.

Most categories will be judged and ribbons awarded. Check-in time will be 9-10 a.m. and put-up time for items will be 5 p.m. For more information, contact the division superintendent or Gray County Extension office.

All Gray County 4-H'ers will receive a Project Fair catalog sometime during the first part of August.

Also, the Gray County 4-H Council will have a 4-H enrollment and information booth, and we will need 4-H Council members to man the booth.

Any 4-H clubs or project groups who want to set up a booth or exhibit may contact the Extension office.

4-H BREADS PROJECT

Bread-in-A-Bag will be the topic at the breads project from 2 to 5 p.m. Wednesday at the Courthouse Annex.

Participants should sign up by Monday. They will learn the basic techniques of making whole wheat yeast bread by making a loaf of bread in a plastic bag. Adapting recipes to whole wheat flour will also be discussed.

Responsible-sex songs are popular with teens

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A Spanish-language record extolling the virtues of sexual responsibility is becoming popular among Hispanic teen-agers through a giveaway program operated by Planned Parenthood, an official says.

The Planned Parenthood chapter in El Paso began giving away the first of 500 records on Monday and interest picked up by Tuesday, said Ray Silva, executive director of the chapter.

Silva said the 45 rpm single, "Cuando Estamos Juntos," by Tatiana and Johnny, hit the charts in 17 Spanish-speaking countries beginning late last year.

The title means, "When We're Together." On the B-side is "Detente" — "Hold Back."

In "Cuando Estamos Juntos," Tatiana sings, "You will see that I'm right when I say no, even though my heart is burning."

"Detente" takes a more economic approach, warning that "Love on the run creates bread-and-water children."

Tatiana Palacios, who is Mexican, is a popular singer in Latin American countries, Silva said. Johnny Lozada Correa is a former member of the Puerto Rican group Menudo, he said. They are not romantically linked.

"We've been giving them (the records) out pretty fast," Silva said. "We'll probably have enough to last a week or two."

The singles are available to anyone who drops by the Planned Parenthood office and asks for one, he said.

The idea for the records was developed last year by the Population and Communication Services project at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health, Hopkins spokeswoman Marion E. Glick said Tuesday. The U.S. Agency for International Development — a branch of the State Department — gave $300,000 to the project to hire songwriters, select the singers and record the song and videos.

The Hopkins project, through Planned Parenthood, distributed the records and videos to 30 cities.

Physicist develops lightning detector

By MATT MYGATT
Associated Press Writer

Dan Jones remembers the reddish glow of a day-old sun streaming around a big cloud billowing up south of Boulder, Colo., that June evening in 1984.

The New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology research physicist remembers reading the next day the same cloud spawned lightning that killed two children playing in their yard.

"That was one thing that started me thinking about building a lightning forecaster," he said.

The device is a personal detector that warns when conditions are favorable for lightning to strike.

Jones has built two rod-like lightning forecasters.

One, about a yard long, is portable. It consists of a telescoping television antenna, a 6-inch grounding spike and a sounding gadget on the side of some PVC pipe that contains an electronic circuit driven by two 6-volt batteries.

The other is longer and runs off a standard 9-volt battery. It is installed at a swimming pool at the New Mexico Tech campus at Socorro.

Both versions have been operating for about a year without a hitch. Different versions can be made.

"I haven't built one like a staff yet, but it can be done," Jones said.

"One value of a staff version is that a golfer can keep it in his bag and it will tell him there's a cloud overhead and it says this is dangerous," he said.

Golfers, with their long metal golf clubs, make good lightning rods. Golfers make even better targets if they live in Florida, where Jones said lightning strikes most frequently in the United States.

"The predominant type of people who are killed are males engaged in outdoor activity — on golf courses, out on a lake in a boat, recreation areas, that sort of thing," he said.

Jones' device is triggered by an electric field produced by an electric charge generated inside storm clouds.

"The strength of the electric field draws a weak current from the sharpened tip of the antenna," he said. "The weak current is utilized by the electronic circuit to sound the alarm."

"The bigger the current, the more frequently it beeps," Jones said.

Researchers trying to make pork more healthy

HOUSTON (AP)—Texas scientists are working on relief for those cholesterol-conscious Americans who are tired of eating sushi and crave a traditional pork chops and potatoes meal.

Research is producing a new way of raising swine that makes pork meat higher in unsaturated fat, which has been shown to reduce the risk of heart disease.

"If this type of meat became available, then you could eat bacon and sausage and ham without raising your cholesterol level," says Dr. Scott Grundy, who heads the Center for Human Nutrition at the University of Texas at Dallas.

Grundy says studies show the new pork would be extremely beneficial, because unsaturated fats lower cholesterol in the bloodstream.

Pork already has one of the highest levels of unsaturated fats among all meats and doesn't deserve the bad image it has in the minds of some, notes Steve Smith, one of the researchers conducting experiments on the subject at Texas A&M University.

"We're starting with something good and trying to make something better," he says.

Researchers are putting laboratory animals on a health regimen of their own, increasing the amount of unsaturated fat in their diets to raise the ratio of unsaturated-to-saturated fat deposited in tissues, he says. The meat is not lower in total fat, however.

Smith says the unsaturated fat in research animals was about 76 percent of total fat, while normal pork contains about 58 percent unsaturated fat.

The meat cooks and tastes about the same as regular pork, but is slightly "springier" when bitten, he says.

The diet does have problems. The modified feed costs about 30 cents per pound, compared with about 6 cents per pound for regular feed.

So researchers now are looking into cheaper ingredients, such as sunflower and cottonseed oil, to provide the unsaturated fats, Smith says.

Another drawback is a sheen of oil on the raw meat that makes it look a little less desirable. The meat has a wet look caused by its higher content of unsaturated fats, which do not harden as readily as normal fat.

Similar experiments with cattle have not been as successful because of differences in the digestive systems between the two types of animals, he said.

Grundy says the idea for the experiment came from a study of Mediterranean people showing that mono-unsaturated fats in the diet reduced the risk of heart disease.

The experiment also is part of the doctoral studies of Texas A&M student Lori St. John and is among the first to try to modify animal fat.

Not everyone, however, is optimistic the product of the research will end up at supermarket meat counters.

Actor Matthew Modine portrays Pvt. Joker in Kubrick film.

By PATT RICHARDS
Guest Entertainment Critic

Simply put — Stanley Kubrick is a genius.

His use of cameras, his use of tight facial close-ups, his use of high decibel music, his use of ominous lighting — he knows every trick, and he uses those tricks to his full capacity in his latest masterpiece, Full Metal Jacket.

Director and producer Kubrick has created such gems as A Clockwork Orange, The Shining, 2001: A Space Odyssey and Dr. Strangelove. Now he has used his "Midas touch" and created the quintessential war/Marine film.

The film begins with views of no-name grunts getting their heads shaved for boot camp. Then, the dreaded drill instructor enters and begins to grill the new recruits. He has the first dialogue, and it's a shame, because it is the same drill instructor schtick in An Officer and a Gentleman. This scene is the only low point of the film.

After the film's first five minutes, the viewer hates the drill instructor. The no-name grunts start receiving nicknames from the D.I. — Joker, Gomer Pyle, Cowboy, Snowball — and they soon are known by those names only.

The first 50 minutes take the viewer through the vigorous and brutal boot camp. The enlistment rate of the Marine Corps will likely drop because of the movie. It makes the U.S.M.C. look like a senseless group of armed, foul-mouthed mercenaries trained to kill and to believe they are invincible. Later in the film, they aren't as invincible as they think.

Full Metal Jacket refers to the casing that wraps around a round from a rifle. The viewer finds this out in the shock ending of the first part of the movie. The film is basically in two parts: (A) The Boot Camp and (B) Vietnam.

Part B follows Joker through his life in Vietnam as a combat reporter for The Stars and Stripes. It becomes more combat than reporting.

The last hour of the movie could be basic, typical Vietnam war "Please don't let it happen again" battle scenes. But Kubrick brings the pain, the anguish, the senselessness, the brutality of the killing into it. Every shot that hits a soldier is shown in slow motion, with the blood flying into the air.

The most gut-wrenching scene is the first stop Joker and his photographer, Rafterman, makes on their beat. They just arrive upon a burial of villagers that have been killed by the Marines. More than 20 villagers, lying in a single grave, head to foot, and then covered with lye. Very serious spine shivers.

Full Metal Jacket contains violence and much profanity, which easily netted it an R rating. Don't take the kids to this one, but definitely take yourself. This is not one for virgin ears and queasy stomachs.

It is more like a documentary than a major motion picture, but it doesn't preach any points. Any points can be drawn from this picture, it would be one of the last lines in the movie: "I'm lucky to be alive!"

Panhandle museum to exhibit works by White Deer artist

PANHANDLE - White Deer artist Viola Coffee will be the featured Carson County Square House Museum exhibitor for the month of August.

Her work will be on display Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5:30 p.m. from Aug. 3 through Aug. 31. Many of the works will be for sale.

All those desiring to meet Coffee or discuss her works with her are invited to attend a reception for the artist from 3 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 9.

The exhibit is not the only connection Coffee has with the museum. The busy artist is an active member of the board of directors, has painted backgrounds for some of the dioramas and did pencil sketches for the world-famous Museum Cookbook.

Coffee has been active in art for 30 years, beginning with the technique of delicate brushwork on fine china. She has experimented with sketching, watercolors and toile painting. But oils have been her major passion since about 1970.

She has been involved with farming most of her adult life but does not limit her subjects to farming titles. Her works include flowers, landscapes, street scenes and western themes such as Indian portraits, windmills, barns and horses.

Coffee is a prolific painter, working at her canvases almost every day. She is enthusiastic about painting and is elated when one is finished and framed.

"I need to paint often in order to keep the feel of the brush; it's good therapy for me," she says of her commitment to her art.

Her paintings hang in every state of the Union and in many foreign countries. Locally, her works are in the White Deer library, elementary school and the Methodist church.

Coffee also was named Artist of the Year for 1987 by the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Love underlies Russian stories in new volume

YOU LIVE AND LOVE. By Valentin Rasputin. Vanguard, 208 Pages, $16.95.

Russian readers have valued the stories of Valentin Rasputin since he became generally known inside the Soviet Union a decade or more ago as one of the best of that group of Russian writers who find their material in village and rural life.

American readers can now enjoy his work in this collection of short stories. But they need not search the book for political views or analysis of Soviet life on any broad scale. Rasputin is more concerned with the subtleties and human traits found in rural and provincial Russia and particularly in Siberia, near Lake Baikal, where he was born and still lives.

Rasputin clearly loves his part of the world and the Russian peasant traditions still found there. His rich, appreciative descriptions of the vast Siberian forest — the taiga — and the people who live there, will provide new insights for those who previously thought of Siberia in terms of deportations and labor camps.

The title story, "You Live and Love," tells of 15-year-old Sanya and his introduction to the taiga for berry picking under the tutelage of a crusty old veteran of the wilderness. Sanya's mystical response to the ancient, unspoiled forest is described at one point: "He fancied that he had unwittingly recoiled, then yielded to some eternal summons."

Another story, "French Lessons," takes a village youth to the district town for schooling. There he is encouraged by a young teacher whose unconventional devices to thwart his peasant wariness eventually gets her into difficulty. She is sent away by a hard-line, hackneyed headmaster, but her efforts score a teaching triumph. The theme of adolescent love is examined in "Rudolf," and a reunion of former adult lovers is examined in "Meeting."

And love underlies "Vasilisa and Vasilisa," the only story in the collection confined solely to village life. It tells of the tender affection that survives long alienation in a peasant marriage.

ACT I seeks piano player

Pampa's Area Community Theater Inc. (ACTI) is looking for a piano player for its upcoming season.

ACT I president Kayla Pursley said the pianist will be needed for the musical You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown, one of four productions under consideration for the 1987-88 season.

The pianist will be needed for about five weeks of rehearsals in January and February, said Pursley, who will direct the play. Performance dates will be in February.

There lies the catch, Pursley says.

The availability of a piano player will determine whether the popular musical based on Charles M. Schultz's Peanuts comic strip can be presented next year. She needs to know within the next two weeks so that the ACT I board can set the season.

Pianists interested in trying their fingers for the musical tribute to childhood or who want more information may contact Pursley at 669-8312.

Economist puts farmland prices into historical perspective

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department economist, trying to give historical perspective to the recent volatility in farmland prices, says fresh memories of the 1930s Depression may have held down price increases for farmland in the 1940s and 1950s.

No one claims the same thing is happening now as farmers begin to creep out of a five-year financial tailspin that has seen land prices plummet by a third. But neither do USDA experts predict a sudden land boom, despite signs that prices may be edging up in some areas.

Bill Heneberry of the department's Economic Research Service, looking at the history of U.S.

farmland prices, says farmland values were spurred higher by World War I inflation to a national average of $69 per acre by 1920, a 60 percent increase from 1915, Heneberry said.

But the boom was reversed quickly in 1921 when falling commodity prices put financial pressure on farmers "and ended the speculation in land among non-farmers," he said. By 1928, U.S. farm real estate was averaging $49 an acre.

A much steeper decline began in 1930 as the Depression hit the entire economy. By 1933, farmland averaged $30 per acre nationally.

Heneberry said that although farmland values leveled off after 1933 and rose in the 1940s and 1950s, "memories of the Depression may have dampened even larger increases" by causing many families to hold back on expansion.

"Nevertheless, values more than doubled from 1940 to 1950 and rose 80 percent from 1950 to 1960," Heneberry said in the current issue of Farmland magazine.

"During the 1960s, American agriculture was relatively stable," he said. "Inflation and farm mortgage rates were relatively low, and federal price support programs were in place to support commodity prices and farm income. The U.S. average farmland value rose moderately, from $117 (per acre) in 1960 to $203 in 1971, an average compound increase of 5.1 percent annually."

For most farmers, perhaps, the drop in farmland values since the early 1980s is uppermost in their minds. When that happened, the borrowing power of thousands was wiped out, along with equity in their property.

In 1982, the average price of farmland was $823 an acre. This year, according to USDA, it was $548 per acre.

Heneberry said it may be difficult to recall that "apart from little-noticed dips" in 1939 and 1950, farmland values, on the average, climbed steadily from 1933 to 1982.

In the decade of 1972 to 1982 alone, he said, farmland values increased an average of more than 10 percent a year as the largest farm export boom in U.S. history "gave a golden tint to American farmland"—a picture that faded sharply in the early '80s.

"By early 1987, farm real estate values had fallen by percentages unprecedented since the Great Depression," Heneberry said. "When adjusted for inflation, land values in the United States had fallen 45 percent below the 1980 level. In the Corn belt, values were only 36 percent of the inflation-adjusted value in 1980."

It has been the most volatile boom-and-bust period for farmland in U.S. history, he said. Even after the Depression had done its damage, land values improved at a gradual rate, not like the sharp upward spirals of the 1970s.

From 1850 to 1910, information on the value of farmland was collected in the U.S. census every 10 years. In 1912, the USDA began its own annual estimates.

Heneberry said land values in early U.S. history were affected greatly by the efforts of the federal government to dispose of land and encourage widespread ownership to hasten the westward movement. By 1820, for example, prices had dropped to $1.25 per acre for public land.

But there was a big difference between raw and developed land, he said. Clearing land of timber or breaking prairie sod was painstaking and expensive. By 1836, the cost of an operating farm might have required $5 or $6 per acre, and some farmers asked $10 or more.

"Values fell by 50 percent or more between 1860 and 1870 in North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana as a result of the physical destruction of farm property and disruption of the economy of the South during and after the war," he said.

Bergland votes for infrastructure as campaign issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Bergland, the onetime secretary of agriculture, says that if the 1988 presidential hopefuls want to latch onto an important domestic issue, they need only look out the window of their campaign caravans.

What they will find, says the former Carter official, now one of Washington's most active rural lobbyists, are deteriorating highways, bridges, dams and railroad beds and rolling stock.

All across the country the roads and other public facilities are wearing out faster than they're being replaced, Bergland said.

But if national polls are any indication, the public mostly is yawning at the thought of the Nov. 8, 1988, presidential election. After all, Bergland said, the flurry of delegate hunting doesn't begin until February in Iowa.

"And I also get the feeling that a great many people are looking for a candidate who doesn't exist," Bergland said. "A kind of super president, who not only has a great public presence but has the answers to all our problems: the deficit, the alarming decay of our economic infrastructure, the mounting threat of people's life savings being wiped out trying to pay doctor and hospital bills, the falling dollar, farm bankruptcy and more."

Bergland, who is general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, expressed his views in the association's July issue of Rural Electrification magazine.

Some political experts, he said, say the candidates who do best are those who "avoid in-depth discussion of the nation's problems and focus more on traditional values, assure voters all along that no problem is too large to be surmounted," Bergland said.

Both Republican and Democratic candidates need to discover the real issues at hand, he said.

"I'm not just talking about the farm-depression," Bergland said. "I'm speaking of the fact that the country's public facilities are wearing out faster than we're replacing them."

Bergland went on: "The 42,500-mile interstate highway system is deteriorating at a rate that requires rebuilding 2,000 miles of road each year. And we're way behind in repairs. Some 8,000 miles of this system and 13 percent of its bridges are now beyond their designed service life and need to be rebuilt."

Agriculture agencies lag in minority hiring

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal review shows that some Agriculture Department agencies in Florida are lagging in their hiring of women and minorities, and have been slow to meet many other federal equal opportunity requirements.

Unlike an earlier review of USDA agencies in Arkansas, which was turned over to the department's Office of Inspector General for in-depth investigation after complaints of alleged activity by the Ku Klux Klan and other extremist groups, no such complaints were received about Florida operations, said Vivian Culp-Mann, deputy director of information.

The Arkansas investigation did not turn up any evidence of KKK activity affecting USDA employment in the state.

All six agencies showed some shortcomings in their Florida operations.

TEST SOILS NOW FOR WHEAT

Gray County farmers should take time in the next few weeks to collect soil samples from those fields which will be planted to wheat this fall. We are seeing a lot of dryland fields respond to fertilizer so I certainly believe a soil test for $6 is a good investment.

Soil test results will be returned early enough to allow plenty of time to apply recommended nutrients and incorporate them into the soil during land preparations.

Incorporating or knifing nutrients into a moist seedbed is important to reduce nitrogen volatilization losses associated with surface-applied urea-containing fertilizers. It also allows placement of non-mobile nutrients such as phosphorus into the active root zone of plants.

Small grains which are grazed naturally require more fertilizer than ungrazed grain because of nutrients removed by grazing. About 30 to 40 pounds of nitrogen are removed in forages grazed by stocker cattle for each 100 pounds of beef produced per acre. This nitrogen, less some recycling, must be replaced to provide adequate nutrition for grain production after livestock are removed.

A soil test is still the best way to determine fertilizer needs. How much of a given nutrient to apply depends on the level of that nutrient in the soil, residue levels, cropping history, available moisture, grazing practices and general management.

A general "rule of thumb" says that wheat requires about 2 pounds of nitrogen per bushel of grain produced. Therefore, a 30-bushel yield would remove about 60 pounds of available nitrogen per acre. A soil test will determine the amount of residual nitrate-nitrogen in the soil and reduce nitrogen recommendations by that amount.

Producers who have not yet made a final decision to plant wheat this fall, but wish to leave the door open to plant sorghum or other crops later on, can submit a soil sample now and request fertilizer recommendations for all cropping alternatives. Resulting fertilizer recommendations then can be used to assist each person in making cropping decisions.

Extension Service Soil Testing Laboratories at Lubbock are ready to assist wheat producers in making these economically important decisions. Although new automated laboratory procedures and computerized integration and reporting of soil test results have improved speed and precision, soil test recommendations will be no better than the quality of the soil sample analyzed. Therefore, it is important to collect soil samples which are truly representative of the field being tested.

To take a soil sample, remove the top inch and collect soil samples to a depth of 6 inches. Soil sample bags and detailed instructions for sample collection are available at the County Extension office.

SAFETY TIPS FOR CONCRETE

Do-it-yourselfers who plan to mix and pour concrete for a construction project should keep safety rules in mind.

Wear protective clothing and keep the concrete away from bare skin. Wet concrete is caustic and can irritate or chemically burn skin, eyes and clothing. If you do get wet concrete in your eyes, on your skin or soaked into your clothes, wash it away immediately with fresh water.

It is suggested that people wear waterproof gloves, long sleeves, trousers and rubber boots if they will be standing in the concrete during placement. You could end up with third-degree chemical burns if wet concrete spills over your work boots and remains on your ankles for an appreciable amount of time.

Concrete is normally quite safe for experienced construction workers. The problem occurs when someone who isn't aware of the potential danger handles wet concrete.

For Ouchless Checking. Think Security.

Security Checking. Consider your normal bank checking fee. Not a pleasant thought, eh? At Security Federal, checking costs only $4.00 a month. And it's free with a minimum balance of only $200 or more. We'll even pay you 5 1/4% interest.

And senior citizens, age 65 or more have no service charges, regardless of balance. Why do all this? Because checking shouldn't be a pain.

SAVE 50% ON LIFESTYLE EYEWEAR.

Most people still try to make one pair of glasses work for every occasion. Yet optical research has demonstrated that different glasses work better for different activities.

Now Texas State Optical is making it easier to afford the glasses you need. We're introducing "Lifestyle Eyewear," a selection of glasses that can help you do whatever you do, better. And to introduce Lifestyle Eyewear, we'll take 50% off your second pair of glasses!

Save 50% on your second pair.

Through August 16, 1987, you can save 50% on your second complete pair of glasses at participating TSO offices. Second pair must be of equal or lesser value. Doctor's prescription required. No other discounts apply.

Jogging/Cycling Snug fitting protective eyewear features lenses that filter harmful UV light rays and reduce glare.

Children An impact-resistant lens absorbs harmful ultraviolet rays, with a safety frame to prevent serious eye injuries.

Musician Look and be comfortable while performing with lenses that help you focus at the exact distance you need to read music.

Desk/Office Reading glasses or a specially placed reading segment can eliminate eye strain and excessive head movement.
