Pampa plans giant rally for Celanese

Town to shut for message of solidarity

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

"Hoechst Celanese: 'The Heart of Pampa.'"

Two o'clock, Dec. 3, Harvester Field.

Be there. That's the message that community leaders will try to get across as planning began Thursday for a massive community rally in support of Pampa's largest private employer.

The chemical giant's huge complex, 6 miles west of Pampa, was rocked by two explosions Saturday. The blasts killed three men, injured 37 people and left massive destruction at the plant.

Although Celanese employees will remain on the payroll pending a decision whether to rebuild the plant, nearly 200 contract laborers were laid off as a result of the disaster. Most of them were from Arthur Brothers, the largest contractor at the chemical plant.

Close to 50 civic leaders packed the Pampa School Board chambers Thursday afternoon for a preliminary planning session. They included state Rep. Foster Whaley, Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy, Pampa Mayor David McDaniel, Deputy Police Chief Jesse Wallace and school Superintendent Harry Griffith, as well as representatives from businesses, industries and churches in and around Pampa.

Organizers said they hope to contact every home and business in Pampa to support Celanese at the rally. Residents of area towns also will be invited to participate.

Mayor McDaniel said the idea for the pro-Celanese rally originated with the school system, where students have been working on sympathy cards to send to those immediately affected by the disaster.

McDaniel called Celanese a friend in trouble.

"Celanese is a neighbor to us — just like a friend," he said. "All of us are hurting a little. We had a friend injured."

Dr. Griffith added that a lot of citizens are looking for ways to help Celanese with what amounts to a technical and corporate problem. He said the rally gives citizens a chance to show Hoechst Celanese officials that Pampa cares.

"Our school system, like all other parts of the community, is intimately affected by the success or failure of Celanese," Griffith said. "The school system without Celanese would absolutely be a different place."

Among the decisions reached Thursday:

- proceeds from the rally will be placed in a Christmas fund for Arthur Brothers and other contract employees.
- stores and other businesses will close for two hours during the rally.
- school will let out early for the rally.

Plant's future to be decided in next month

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Nearly 400 Hoechst Celanese employees attending an employee meeting were told Thursday night that it may be four to six weeks before company executives decide the future of the damaged Pampa plant.

"This is my estimate. This is not a Dallas estimate," Plant Manager Ron Guard said after the closed-door meeting.

Two of the plant's nine units were destroyed by twin explosions shortly before 4 p.m. Saturday. The blasts left three men dead, 37 people injured and set off fires that damaged much of the remainder of the huge chemical complex, 6 miles west of Pampa.

Remaining hospitalized today were: Gary Starns, 42, 1525 N. Sumner St., listed in satisfactory condition at Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo; and Bennie Woodward of Panhandle, listed in good condition at Pampa's Coronado Hospital.

Safeway employees agree to wage concessions

Pampa employees to accept smaller salary reductions

From Staff and Wire Reports

A new wage and benefit contract approved by unions representing Safeway supermarket workers in a three-state area will bring a mixed bag to the chain's 56 Pampa employees.

The contract, ratified by more than a 3-2 margin, affects Safeway's 106-store Oklahoma Division, which includes Oklahoma, southern Kansas, northern Texas and six stores in the Panhandle.

While workers at most other Safeways will lose about $3 an hour in wages and benefits under the contract, some Pampa employees may only see a $1.19 decrease according to Dennis Patterson of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 368 in Amarillo.

Many part-time employees at the store at 2500 N. Perryton Parkway will have a smaller cut or no cut at all in their hourly wage, Patterson said. Some employees even will get a pay raise.

Jerry Bennett, deputy trustee for Local 1680 in Oklahoma City, explained the wage-to-benefit ratio would be determined according to each worker's wage rate, with the top wage cuts coming from the highest-paid employees.

Patterson said the Pampa employees, who only recently joined the union, agreed last year to take a $2 per hour pay cut, meaning the Pampa store won't take the bigger wage cuts outlined for other stores in the division.

The agreement gives all employees at the Dumas store a pay raise, Patterson said.

The contract also increases the number of full-time jobs and enables more senior part-time employees to claim additional hours of work, Bennett said.

Pampa Safeway employees had mixed reactions to the contract. Part-time employees welcomed the pay raise.

Rhonda Dowdy, a part-time employee in the store's bakery, is one who gets a pay raise. She said she likes that part.

"The checkers are the ones it will affect, and I'm upset for them," Dowdy said.

Those who took the pay cut — who did not want to be identified — took it with disappointment and determination.

Said one checker, "The way the economy is, we have no choice."

"It will hurt," added an affected stocker, who was not aware of the contract decision. "But we can rebudget, I guess."

Clayton & Dubilier, the New York investment firm leading the proposed Safeway purchase, had said the deal would not be completed if the contract carrying out wage and benefit concessions was not approved.

Roger Clark, the union's international vice president, said the approval saved Oklahoma Division workers the trauma that Dallas Safeway workers went through in April when 141 stores were closed, and 8,600 workers lost their jobs.

Bennett said Clayton & Dubilier would look closely at the division and a few stores probably would be closed. But, he said, Clayton & Dubilier has discussed plans to build new stores and to spend money on marketing the chain.

For now, Panhandle stores are in no danger of closing, said Safeway Division Manager Don Phillips of Oklahoma City.

"There are other stores that are not nearly in as good a shape as Pampa's is," Phillips said. "There are no plans to close any store in the division. We may replace outdated stores that are too small."

Phillips added he won't know what changes to expect until the Safeway company changes hands.

He said store operators can expect an extensive remodeling drive, but probably not until 1989. Phillips said these changes may include an expansion of services.

"For example, Pampa has a bakery, deli and a salad bar, but Borger doesn't," Phillips said, adding that some changes may include a salad bar at Borger and postal service at one of the five Amarillo stores.

Negotiators reach budget compromise

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — White House and congressional negotiators today reached tentative agreement on a two-year, $75 billion deficit-reduction pact and plans were made for a White House announcement.

Nevertheless, President Reagan intended under the Gramm-Rudman law to order $23 billion in across-the-board cuts to kick in by midnight.

"I think we have an agreement," said House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas.

"A lot of people have said it is short of heroic expectations," he said, adding that it was the best that could be done given the divisions in Congress and with the White House.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., called a Capitol Hill meeting of House and Senate leaders and the president's top aides to review the product of the four weeks of talks.

The goal of the meeting was "closure," said Byrd's spokeswoman, Linda Peek, and if there were no last-minute snags the congressional leaders would go to the White House for an announcement.

The talks were originally aimed at avoiding the automatic spending cuts of the Gramm-Rudman law by producing a substitute deficit-reduction plan.

The Gramm-Rudman cuts would trim 8.5 percent from domestic agencies, spanning a range of programs from farm price supports to education to law enforcement. However, Social Security, welfare and veterans programs are protected.

White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr. said Thursday night that, as far as the president was concerned, the clock had run out and the cuts were to be imposed today.

The tentative agreement would cut the deficit in fiscal 1988, which began Oct. 1, by about $30 billion, including about $9 billion in as-yet-undetermined new taxes. Ground rules for drafting the tax bill, which would raise $14 See BUDGET, Page 2

Report: North stalled probes

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. Oliver North pushed the FBI to investigate opponents of the Nicaraguan Contra rebels and tried to stall other probes that threatened to reveal his secret Contra supply operation, the congressional Iran-Contra committees say.

In one instance detailed in the committees' final report, North encouraged the FBI in mid-1986 to investigate Jack Terrell, a former pro-Contra mercenary who had become disillusioned with the rebels. Terrell had begun to cooperate with a group that sued North associate Richard Secord in connection with alleged gun- and drug-running involving the Contras.

North, a top National Security Council aide until he was fired in November 1986, contacted FBI official Oliver Revell when he learned the bureau was investigating an alleged assassination plot against President Reagan by figures who favored Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

North offered the help of an associate, security consultant Glenn Robinette, as someone familiar with Terrell's activities. The FBI accepted North's offer of assistance but eventually terminated the investigation, concluding that Terrell wasn't a threat to Reagan.

The Iran-Contra committees also concluded that North and his boss, then-national security adviser

John Poindexter, interfered with seven criminal investigations when the probes threatened to expose the Reagan administration's secret Contra supply operation.

The private supply operation was set up after Congress banned U.S. military aid to the rebels.

In one case, the U.S. Customs Service at North's request halted for six weeks an investigation into allegations that the Maule Aircraft Corp. of Moultrie, Ga., had shipped four aircraft to support the Contras in possible violation of U.S. export control laws.

North told Customs Commissioner William von Raab that the company's owner was a close friend of Reagan, that people involved in the plane shipment were "good guys" who had done nothing illegal and that the aircraft were being used only to supply the Contras with medical and humanitarian supplies.

He also told the Customs Service that the probe could compromise national security, including an effort to obtain the release of the American hostages in Lebanon, the report said.

The Customs Service agreed to postpone issuing a subpoena to the Maule company when North promised to produce documents and photographs of the aircraft to verify the legality of the transactions.

North failed to produce the material and the investigation resumed last November about a week before the Iran-Contra scandal broke.

Smokeout

American Cancer Society representative Jane Gattis and Doug Carmichael, chairman of the Great American Smokeout, hand out smokers' survival kits to Leeann Heard at the Pampa Mall Thursday. It was estimated that more than 20 million Americans quit smoking for all or part of the day Thursday, and that a substantial number of those would quit permanently.

Rally

"Celanese employees are still on the payroll," he said. "If they want to raise money, I'd kind of like to see them do it for Arthur Brothers and other contract workers who have been laid off."

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce currently is studying the economic impact of the Celanese disaster. Both the school district and the county face substantial losses in tax revenue next year, even if the plant reopens, because property is appraised from January through March.

Celanese makes up about 18 percent of the school district's tax base, Griffith said, and accounts for about $2.5 million in school revenues annually. If Celanese closes the plant, he said, the number of students could be reduced by a fourth, and the number of employees by a third.

"Obviously, it would have a

substantial impact on population," Griffith said.

The Pampa plant has an annual payroll of more than $15 million and makes annual purchases of about $85 million in goods and services within a 50-mile radius of Pampa.

Griffith said school attorneys are looking into special disaster funding from the state, available to school districts that lose funding after disasters. The funding would depend on a disaster area declaration by Gov. Bill Clements, and Griffith said there is no precedent in Texas for industrial disasters, only natural disasters.

"We're running into something very unique," Griffith said.

Gray County Tax Assessor-Collector Margie Gray said Celanese paid more than $332,000 in 1987 county taxes, and makes up at least one-eighth of the county's tax base.

"They are our largest taxpayer," Gray said.

Griffith said rally organizers plan to include all types of people as participants, from elementary students to senior citizens. Organizers also plan to invite Gov. Clements and other leaders.

McDaniel said the rally will attempt to show Hoechst Celanese officials that Pampa cares for Celanese and its employees.

"The fact that we're trying to do something is what matters," the mayor said.

Celanese spokesman Herb Reed of Dallas said today that the company has been overwhelmed by the outpouring of community support from Pampa.

Lonnie Richardson, a retired Celanese employee and current Pampa school trustee, said the rally will make a difference to Hoechst Celanese executives, with whom rests the ultimate decision whether to rebuild the damaged facility.

"All of our other plants are in communities where you wouldn't see this kind of community support," Richardson said.

billion in fiscal 1989, was one of the final issues in the talks.

billion less than Reagan requested but more than the House had approved.

With the tentative agreement still being revised, large numbers of House and Senate Republicans were already opposing it.

House Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said he considered the tentative agreement, which he cautioned was not yet finished, would clearly meet its primary goal of supplanting the automatic cuts of the Gramm-Rudman law with more selective deficit cuts.

"I do not consider the agreement as failing in any respect," said Foley, who served as chairman of the talks.

Under the law, the president must order the $23 billion across-the-board cuts today.

Future

community leaders began planning a pro-Celanese rally Dec. 3 at Harvester Field; and Celanese officials took a skills inventory of employees Thursday night to see what job skills they may be able to lend to cleanup, security or possible rebuilding efforts.

Employees remained optimistic about the future of the plant. At one point, lengthy applause could be heard inside the meeting room at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Asked by reporters to explain later, Jane McBunch, manager of human resources at the plant, said the applause followed a statement by one employee thanking Guard and the company for what they've done for employees since the disaster, including a support center at National Bank of Commerce Plaza, 1224 N. Hobart St., and a hotline for employees to call for updated information. Both are open from 6 a.m. until midnight, and McBunch stressed that contract employees, such as those laid off Tuesday by Arthur Brothers, are welcome to use the facility.

Celanese employees will remain on the payroll until a determination is made on the plant's future, but nearly 200 contract workers at the plant have been laid off indefinitely.

One Celanese employee, who wouldn't identify himself, said as he was leaving Thursday night's meeting that a spirit of optimism could be felt at the meeting. He said he and his fellow employees appreciate community efforts on behalf of Celanese.

Guard said after the meeting that "our management is really optimistic that we can put this plant back together."

"That's an intuitive feeling," he said.

The plant manager said damage may not be as bad as company officials originally thought. Although many buildings were damaged, he said, external observations indicate that hardware may not be that badly damaged.

However, he cautioned, on-site inspection still needs to be completed.

The decision whether to rebuild will be based on damage assessment and an ongoing investigation into the cause of the blasts. He said company officials want to be sure such a disaster won't occur again.

"If we can't assure ourselves of that, we as a company aren't going to be able to rebuild," he said. "There's more than just economics involved."

Guard said another employee meeting has been scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the auditorium. Spouses also will be invited, he said.

City and Pampa Chamber of Commerce officials received a letter today from Gov. Bill Clements, who expressed condolences for the loss of life and property damage that resulted from the explosions.

"Immediately following the disaster, I instructed members of my staff to closely monitor the situation, and to help marshal whatever assistance was necessary or requested," Clements wrote.

The letter was delivered by Andres Tijerina, manager of the Work Force Readjustment Division of the Department of Commerce. Tijerina and an assistant came to Pampa this morning at the governor's request.

Tijerina said his role will be to assist the needs of the community and Hoechst Celanese, and ultimately make recommendations to officials about what kind of state assistance is available.

"Our mission is to assess the immediate needs and concerns of the Pampa community, and to make recommendations of the state assistance and program resources which should be applied to this situation," Tijerina said.

Plant Manager Guard said the team also will assist in expediting permit applications, should the plant be rebuilt.

Other state and federal agencies also remained in Pampa today.

Dean McDaniel of Lubbock, spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said OSHA representatives have been on the plant site as part of their independent investigation into the cause of the explosions. He said the investigation is continuing, and he expects a report in several weeks.

Texas Water Commission spokesman Bill Colbert of Austin, said TWC officials remain in Pampa, despite a determination that "everything is under control" with regard to any environmental threats caused by the plant explosions Saturday.

Guard said all employees are receiving paychecks for 40-hour work weeks. He said some employees are working on a computer program that matches job skills that employees have with tasks that need to be done at the plant.

Feds launch largest S&L bailout in history

DALLAS (AP) — Federal regulators are launching the costliest thrift rescue in the nation's history today, saying damage that former officers wreaked on Vernon Savings and Loan Association is beyond repair.

Despite the ouster of the thrift's past board and several months of management by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, the Dallas-based institution was hopelessly insolvent and getting worse, FHLBB chairman M. Danny Wall said Thursday night.

Vernon's 10 offices will be closed today while federal regulators embark on their $1.3 billion rescue plan by transferring Vernon's insured deposits to the newly created Montfort Savings Association, he said.

The FHLBB, regulator of 3,200 thrifts nationwide, said Montfort will operate as a mutual association owned by de-positors under management by the bank board, FHLBB spokeswoman Martha Gravlee said.

The new entity will receive $200 million in cash and a $1.1 billion note from the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., which guarantees S&L deposits up to $100,000.

"We've done the best we could to salvage what we could out of that operation," said Tom B. Scott Jr., the chairman of the Vernon board of directors who will also be Montfort's chairman.

Scott, president of Unifirst Bank for Savings of Jackson, Miss., said he would be in Dallas today for a 1 p.m. board meeting at Vernon.

Vernon's net worth had sunk to negative $716.86 million by Sept. 30, and was projected to top negative $1 billion by next year. At the end of September, it had assets of $1.17 billion and deposits of $1.4 billion.

"The damage done to Vernon by the management before March of this year was irreparable," Wall said. The current management, appointed by the bank board March 20, inherited a portfolio in which 96 percent of the loans were not paying.

Under the direction of Donald R. Dixon, who acquired Vernon in January 1982, the institution increased its assets tenfold by making large, speculative development and construction loans, according to the bank board.

The FSLIC filed suit in April for $100 million against Dixon and other former officers, charging fraud and other breaches of the officers' duties.

"It's a massive problem," said current Vernon board member Thomas J. Hayman of Dallas. "It's a problem that has to be worked out."

Dixon was ousted in March when Vernon was converted from a state charter to a federal charter and a new board of directors was appointed.

The Vernon rescue is the biggest ever in terms of the cost to FSLIC, Ms. Gravlee said. The earlier record was the $681 million bailout in 1986 of Sunrise Savings and Loan Association of Boynton Beach, Fla.

Those transactions are dwarfed only by the $4.5 billion bailout in 1984 of Continental Illinois Bank & Trust of Chicago by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., a separate agency that insures commercial banks.

Regulators hope to sell Montfort eventually, reducing the cost of the bailout, Ms. Gravlee said. FSLIC also may reduce the size of the note over time by transferring healthy assets, such as paying loans, to Montfort.

Vernon's 10 offices will reopen Monday under the new Montfort name, honoring the same rates and terms on all certificates of deposit, she said. Vernon had been based in the North Texas town of Vernon, but was moved to Dallas in March.

Depositors with less than $100,000 in the institution will have immediate access to their money Monday. Depositors with more than that must apply for access in writing.

Ms. Gravlee said a small number of deposits were above the insurance limit, but she said the bank board could not yet put a dollar limit on the amount.

Vernon is the 16th association to be liquidated by the bank board so far this year, the second in Texas. Two others Texas thrifts were declared insolvent and bought out by other institutions.

Workfare committee strives to reform state welfare system

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans have differing opinions about the welfare system, but they seem to agree that it's not working, says the chairman of a committee studying ways to reform the system.

Some Texans believe that welfare "assists people who are too lazy to work," Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, said at a Thursday meeting of the Special Senate Interim Committee on Workfare.

Others — including Parmer — say the system provides inadequate benefits to those needing them.

"While these views are quite distant, I would suggest to you that they reflect a common feeling on the part of many Texans that the system for public assistance simply does not work," Parmer said.

The committee was formed to study the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program and other parts of the welfare system to see if it is possible to reduce long-term dependence on welfare through a plan such as workfare.

Under the present system, a hypothetical single parent in Texas with two children would get $184 a month in AFDC payments. Adding food stamp and Medicaid benefits brings the total to $549 a month, according to committee testimony.

Parmer said the committee has an opportunity to "design something better, something that will be pro-family and not anti-family, that won't create a necessity for one spouse to leave the family before the children can be recipients of assistance."

A single mother may not be able to afford to take an entry-level job because she wouldn't make enough money to replace the loss of health benefits for her children, said Dave Cox, vice-chairman of the State Job Training Coordinating Council.

The council is developing pilot programs in Beaumont, Houston and San Antonio to move people from the welfare rolls to the job market.

As part of its work, Parmer said committee members will travel to California and Massachusetts to study those states' programs to put welfare recipients to work.

California has a mandatory workfare program that includes sanctions for not participating, while Massachusetts has a program that works through incentives, Parmer said.

The committee also plans to have hearings across the state to get suggestions for improving the system, he said.

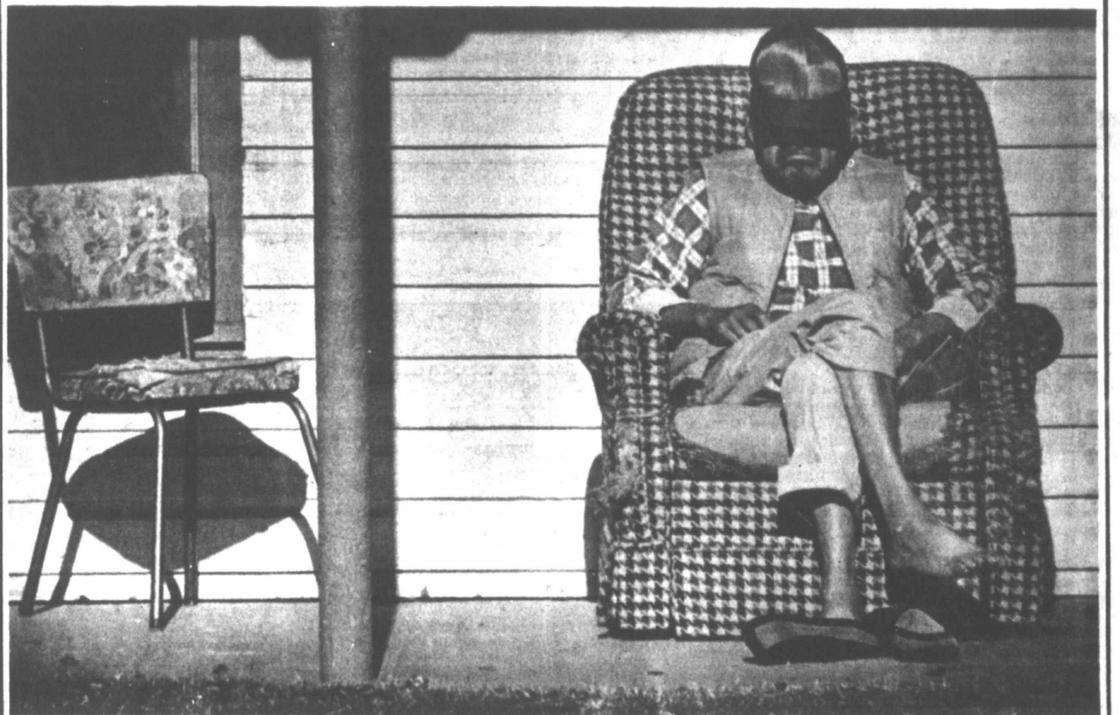

A system should be designed "to invest in people to create a new resource for Texas, and that's a new group of people who have the skills and the capability to contribute to the future of our state," Parmer said.

Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, said the committee should look at suggestions to make it easier for people who need food stamps to get them.

"The incidence of food stamp applications in Houston is on the decline, while ... the applications for private food pantries is on an increase," Whitmire said.

Only 30 percent of those eligible for food stamps receive them, he said.

La Joya police sergeant indicted on weapons charges

LA JOYA (AP) — This South Texas city's police chief had to hastily swear in six reservists to help keep the peace after the force's second-highest ranking officer was indicted on weapons charges.

Sgt. Jose Santos Villareal, 29, was arrested Wednesday because of an 11-count indictment that says he bought 10 paramilitary weapons between March 9 and April 20 and delivered them to a Mexican citizen.

The Mexican citizen named in the indictment, Juan Garza, remains at large, said Christ Heart, resident agent-in-charge of the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Villareal was released Wednesday on a $50,000 unsecured bond after an appearance before a U.S. magistrate.

"It caught everybody completely by surprise," La Joya Police Chief Jesus Perez said Thursday. "No one had been approached by ATF. They came in and told me, 'We have a warrant for your sergeant.'"

Perez suspended Villareal without pay pending the outcome of the charges. Perez said Villareal has not submitted a letter of resignation.

Homeless victims could get one year of free shelter

DENTON (AP) — State officials say they hope to receive presidential approval this week of a plan to find houses for victims left homeless by the string of tornadoes that battered East Texas.

Gov. Bill Clements and the Federal Emergency Management Agency are asking President Reagan to declare Anderson and Cherokee counties major disaster areas, said Edd Hargett of the agency's regional office in Denton.

"There is probably housing that we would put folks in temporarily. If it is available locally, we'll just use it," Hargett said Thursday. The housing would be rent-free for up to a year.

Residents with verifiable losses could receive up to $5,000, qualify for temporary housing or receive a Small Business Administration Loan, Hargett said.

People take care of people here

Seldom has there been a week so damaging to people's hopes as this week.

It used to be when you thought of a plant exploding that you would think of places like Texas City or Baytown or League City. Somewhere along the Texas coast. Never in Pampa.

But the unthinkable became reality on Saturday, and now this town must deal with it.

It is sometimes difficult to understand the ugly course life takes. The hand of fate becomes twisted and people's lives are changed forever.

And don't think the Celanese blasts won't change your life.

There is not a person in this town — or the towns of White Deer, Skellytown or Kingsmill — that Saturday's explosion will not affect.

If you're sitting back, idly thinking how lucky you were to have survived the blast without it having any repercussions on your life, think again.

The immediate impact — the explosion itself — is over. What is left is the cleanup. Not just the physical cleanup necessary at the plant but the cleanup of people's outlooks.

This town has been dealt perhaps the most severe blow it has ever experienced, and many people, who used to be merely skeptical, are now outright pessimistic about their future and the future of the city itself.

When the explosion occurred Saturday, you could almost feel the panic in the air. It has been evident all week in people's faces that they are concerned for themselves and their families.

Throughout town, there have been two topics of conversation this week: The explosion and the future.

My family and I have not been here long. Nine months, to be exact. Some may even mistakenly consider us to be outsiders.

But we're just as much a part of this town now as people who have lived here many years.

We have noticed since our arrival that this town has a lot of spunk. A lot of togetherness.

This unity was most evident in two previous disasters this year: The March blizzard and the July tornado.

Off Beat

By Jimmy Patterson

So many people helped others in the blizzard that it was obvious to us, after having been here only a month at the time, that this town looks out for its people. Those who weren't directly affected by the heavy snow or tornadic winds helped the ones who were.

If you're in trouble, the place to be is Pampa. Because people take care of you here.

Pampa has come together again because of Saturday's tragedy, and it must work its way through it. It must again extend that helping hand just as it did in March and in July.

The workers at Celanese and those contractors who worked at the plant will make it. They are gutsy.

It may be rough for a time, but the workers and family directly affected by the blast will make it. Again, though, a lot depends on whether this city is willing to help out the way it has in the past.

The funerals of Eugene Turner, Richard Wilson and Joe Barnett showed us a glimpse of what is, hopefully, to come.

Long processions and packed funeral services showed that everyone is in this together. People in attendance were behind those who needed the help.

The headline in Wednesday's Pampa News summed it up: "Celanese buries family."

And family is what it's all about.

There is little doubt that the townspeople of Pampa and of White Deer and Skellytown and Kingsmill will come through again and make it easier on those who are less fortunate.

Oil futures fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil futures prices retreated slightly in uncertain trading one day after posting a sharp gain.

On Thursday the December contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark grade of U.S. crude oil, fell 7 cents to close at $18.57 per 42-gallon barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Volume was moderate.

In a volatile session Wednesday, crude prices hit three-month lows in early trading but wound up closing sharply higher. West Texas Intermediate dropped as much as 35 cents before bouncing higher to close up 24 cents from Tuesday's close.

Refined oil products also declined slightly Thursday.

Opinion

Gov. Cuomo's panel would push tax hike

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo says he's not running for president. Yet few people take him at his word; and he tops polls that include his name along with the five declared candidates.

To help boost his profile during his supposed non-candidacy, Cuomo recently stumped for a plan, which he first proposed last year, for a national economic commission to develop a long-range economic strategy for America. Cuomo quickly garnered support from Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, a declared Republican presidential hopeful; got possible support from White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker; and talked with Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd. The five declared Democratic candidates have endorsed the proposal.

Cuomo says his commission would be modeled after the bi-partisan Greenspan Commission, which in 1982 recommended a record Social Security tax hike. Considering the politicians already supporting Cuomo's commission, the outcome almost certainly would be the same: Another record tax increase.

Cuomo's commission supposedly will set priorities for the next president. Yet isn't that why we have elections? In 1988 the American people, not some bogus commission, will establish the country's economic priorities. In both the primaries and the general election they will make real choices between very different policies. We, the people, not they, the commission, will determine whether the nation will pursue a policy of high taxes, protectionism, and recession — or a policy of low taxes, free trade, and prosperity.

Cuomo, as usual, is blurring the meaning of words. His "American family" rhetoric at the 1984 Democratic convention confused something with real meaning — independent American families, made up of moms, dads, and kids — with a socialistic conception of American as one big welfare "family" enslaved to, but taken care of by, the vast liberal government plantation.

In the same way, Cuomo's commission would solve economic problems in name only. It would consist of representatives from big government, big business, big labor, and the big economic schools, but would shut out the real concerns of working Americans. It would establish a kind of Mussolini-style corporatism. "In this crisis," Cuomo told the Senate banking subcommittee, "there is no Democratic solution; there is no Republican solution. The truth is somewhere in between, and we're going to have to find it together."

"Nonsense. The current 'crisis' — which is really just a panic amidst continuing prosperity — has real, identifiable causes. We already have too much government, and don't need another layer, such as Cuomo's supra-governmental commission, to make things worse. To ensure continued economic growth, we need lower taxes, less government spending, and more stable money. Nothing mysterious there.

Cuomo won't refuse nomination

WASHINGTON — New York's Gov. Mario Cuomo last week publicly acknowledged what has been privately known all along: He's available. If the Democratic Party wants to draft him as the party's presidential nominee, he won't say no. This makes him the leading unannounced non-candidate, and puts him, if not squarely in the race, at least obliquely in the race.

A lively possibility comes to mind. The Democrats could wind up by giving the country a reprise of the convention of 1952. Governor Cuomo could be cast in the role that was played 36 years ago by Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. The parallels are inexact, but the story is worth recalling.

The '52 conventions were my first conventions, and I went off to Chicago as bug-eyed as a boy at his first state fair. The Republicans' bloody fight between Dwight Eisenhower and Bob Taft had been good fun. The Democrats' fight over a "loyalty oath" for Southern states promised a splendid brawl. Conventions were not so dignified then. Oklahoma's Bob Kerr, if memory serves, had erected a log cabin and an Indian tepee in the lobby of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

The overwhelming favorite as the Democrats gathered was Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. Harry Truman hated Kefauver, largely because Kefauver had whipped him decisively in the New Hampshire primary four months earlier, but rank-and-file Democrats appeared to love the gentleman from Tennessee.

Kefauver was an interesting politician, a long, tall, loping fellow with a horsy face and horn-rimmed glasses. He affected a coon-skin cap in the fashion of Davy Crockett. His public reputation had been made first in the House and later in the Senate, where he was a champion of reform in the laws on prescription drugs. His private reputation reportedly had been made in a good many bedrooms, but 35 years ago we didn't cover that sort of thing.

In any event, Kefauver had worked diligently for the nomination. The Democrats held 14 contested primaries in 1952. Kefauver won 12 of them outright and finished second in the other two. He polled more than 3 million votes in these primaries, about 64 percent of the total. Nobody else was even close. In sixth place was Governor Stevenson, who made no campaign of any sort.

Stevenson, like Cuomo, kept insisting that he was not a candidate for president, that he wanted only to be an effective governor of his state. His friends had put him on the primary ballots in Oregon and in Illinois, but Stevenson had not lifted a finger to encourage them. Then came the Chicago convention, and Stevenson, as host governor, made the welcoming speech.

What a speech! Here was a man of literacy, wit, good humor and sound rhetoric. Stevenson captivated the visiting press. We listened in rapt attention as he hid the just-departed Republicans:

"For almost a week, pompous phrases marched over this landscape in search of an idea, and the only idea they found was that the two great decades of progress in peace, victory in war, and bold leadership in this anxious hour were the misbegotten spawn of socialism, bungling, corruption, mismanagement, waste and worse. They captured, tied and dragged that ragged idea in here and furiously beat it to death.

"But we Democrats were not the only victims here. First they slaughtered each other, and then they went after us. And the same vocabulary was good for both exercises, which was a great convenience. Perhaps the proximity of the stockyards accounts for the carnage."

Well! With that address the Kefauver candidacy began to unravel. It helped that Chicago's Jack Arvey had packed the hall with leather-lunged Stevenson rosters. It also helped that Truman behind the scenes did his damndest to defeat the Tennesseean. On the third ballot Stevenson went over the top. In November he lost to Eisenhower by 6.6 million votes; he carried only nine Southern and border states.

Cuomo at his oratorical best is a magnificent speaker. He stands just outside a pathetically weak field of Democratic candidates, not one of whom has yet demonstrated presidential class. Over the next six months Paul Simon, Michael Dukakis, Dick Gephardt, Al Gore, Bruce Babbitt and Jesse Jackson could exhaust themselves in a campaign that could see no clear winner before the Atlanta convention. In that event, let us listen for an echo. History has a curious way of repeating its most dramatic scenarios, and New York's globe-trotting governor is waiting in the wings.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 20, the 324th day of 1987. There are 41 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Forty years ago, on Nov. 20, 1947, Britain's future queen, Princess Elizabeth, married Philip Mountbatten, Duke of Edinburgh, in a ceremony broadcast worldwide from Westminster Abbey.

On this date:
In 1620, Peregrine White, the son of William and Susanna White, was born aboard the Mayflower in Massachusetts Bay. He was the first child to be born of English parents in present-day New England.

In 1789, New Jersey became the first state to ratify the Bill of Rights.

In 1910, revolution broke out in Mexico, led by Francisco I. Madero.

In 1925, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was born in Brookline, Mass.

In 1943, during World War II, American forces landed on Tarawa and Makin Atoll in the Gilbert Islands.

In 1945, 24 Nazi leaders were put on trial before an international war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg, Germany.

Zinc relieves cold symptoms

Is there a cure for the common cold? There is one that is worth a try.

Dr. William Holcomb of Austin dared to listen to one of his own patients who insisted that anybody could ward off a cold by sucking on zinc tablets.

If this were a medicine we're talking about, he and we would be in trouble with the FDA — but anybody can buy zinc tablets at any health food store.

Dr. Holcomb was willing to test the theory. His methodology was less than comprehensive, but the results were sufficient so that Dr. Holcomb published a paper in a scientific journal called Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy.

He suggested: "At the first sign of a cold, dissolve two zinc tablets in the mouth and the symptoms will go away."

His study on the subject seemed to interest nobody.

But some British scientist saw his report and decided to submit the hypothesis to more structured, scientific research.

Paul Harvey

Sixty-nine healthy volunteers had their nostrils swabbed with a cold virus (HRV-2).

Then half of them were given zinc tablets to suck on; the other half were given non-medicinal placebos.

And sure enough, the patients who dissolved zinc tablets in their mouths reduced symptoms markedly within one day.

This last month, four years after the first Texas tests, the prestigious British Medical Research Council's common cold unit reported that zinc does, indeed, zap colds!

Nobody knows how or why.

It does not kill the cold virus. The virus remains apparent in nasal secretions and in urine. But the cold's symptoms appear to disappear.

The precise prescription recommended by Dr. Holcomb is this:

At the first sign of a sniffle or sneeze, dissolve in your mouth the equivalent of 23 milligrams (usually two tablets) of zinc gluconate.

Don't chew or swallow the tablets. Allow them to dissolve gradually.

Repeat every two waking hours until symptoms vanish. Then quit.

For children up to 60 pounds cut the dose in half.

Read labels carefully at the health food store. You will need less "elemental zinc" than "zinc gluconate." Whichever, the recommended dose is whatever adds up to 23 milligrams of "elemental zinc."

Have I tried it? Sure.

Former science writer Bill Hines called my attention to the early studies and I tried it. Did it work? So far.

Dateless women need to find new places

By Sarah Overstreet

A female friend and I were recently discussing what she not-so-affectionately calls her "long dry spell" and I, with a similar lack of enthusiasm, refer to as the "dating dearth."

(Her therapist presented it as a "period of growth," a time when she could work on "personal goals" without having to worry about relationships. My friend wasn't buying that, either.)

We deliberated about what some of the problems might be, sort of in the manner of two seventh-grade girls examining why they didn't make cheerleader. I trotted out all the excuses that have served me so well for many years in this Midwestern town of 130,000, and which I was so proud to be able to present to this newcomer: This is a town where the men marry early, the bar scene is lousy, and the church singles groups are places where the unattached gather to bemoan the lack of acceptable members of the opposite sex. It's not us, it's the place.

But then she came up with an idea that made my blood run cold: Hey, this is the '80s, heading into the '90s, and 24 years since Gloria Steinem donned a Playboy bunny suit to expose the double standard. Why can't we ask MEN out? I mean, fair's fair.

Now, I'm not sure what the answers to the dating dilemma are, and I have a feeling mine aren't accurate even while they are comforting. But there is one precept I am as confident of as I am that the sun will rise and I will not have any stamps when it's time to pay bills: Men do not delay asking women out because they are too shy, too poor or because they are waiting for us to ask THEM out.

I have come to this realization despite the men who have confided to me how shy they were in high school and how they really would have liked to ask me out all those Saturday nights when I sat watching Guns n' Roses with my dad, if only they could have gotten their Adam's apples to work in unison with their tongues. It comes despite the men in more recent years, who have sworn they'd LOVE to be sought after by women, would relish the thought of women facing the same rejection they face.

Someone tried this on me in high school. Teachers planned "Sadie Hawkins Day" dances and encouraged us to prowl. My prowling led me to three memorable social encounters:

1. The Famous Music Club Party of 1965: I asked one member of a set of twins to the party and his father picked up the two hapless girls who had chased after his sons and sat us both in the back seat. Later, the boys told everyone in school how we'd tried to kiss them good night even though they thought it was the grossest experience of their combined 28 years.

2. The Notorious Future Homemakers of America Picnic of 1966: I asked out my best friend's brother, who promptly took up with a girl nicknamed "Juicy Lucy" at the picnic. It almost ruined a good friendship.

3. The Misogynists' Turnabout Dance of 1969: I asked a guy in my math class who looked normal enough. For one brief intoxicating moment when he wheeled his folks' 1966 Impala up in my drive and I discovered my parents weren't home, I thought I might actually get to slap a boy's face like they did in the teen romance novels. Then he spent the next hour in our rec room lighting matches, watching them explode on the tile floor and making missile noises with his mouth. I concluded this was not a man who'd been hiding in his social reticence, waiting for me to make the first move.

OK, so it's not 1969. I asked a few male contemporaries how they viewed women asking men out. They said they'd be flattered, but that I was basically right: If they hadn't already been eyeing the wares, I could offer them an all-expenses-paid trip to Cozumel and it wouldn't make any difference.

So, just as I suspected. It ain't me, it's the place.

Dolphins win at swim meets

Pampa Dolphin swim club members competed in two recent meets at Amarillo and Stillwater, Okla.

The Dolphins competed against swimmers from Amarillo, Plainview and Dumas at the Amarillo Aquatic Club meet.

The Dolphins' results were: Bobby Venal, boys' 10 & under, 1. individual medley; 3. 50 backstroke; 2. 50 breaststroke; 1. 50 butterfly; 1. 50 freestyle; Talitha Pope, girls' 12 & under, 1. 100 individual medley; 1. 50 backstroke; 2. 50 butterfly; 1. 100 freestyle; Heidi Venal, girls' 12 & under, 4. 100 individual medley; 4. 50 backstroke; 2. 50 breaststroke; 1. 50 butterfly; 1. 50 freestyle.

The Dolphins competed as a team with just three members at the Stillwater meet and finished 11th. The Trojan Aquatic Club of Tulsa won the meet.

The Dolphins competed against 457 swimmers from eleven Oklahoma towns.

Individual results for Pampa were: Rhea Hill, 13-14 girls, 3. 400 individual medley; 2. 500 freestyle; 3. 200 individual medley; 8. 100 breaststroke; 10. 100 backstroke; 6. 100 freestyle; 2. 200 freestyle; 6. 100 butterfly; 2. 200 backstroke; 1. 50 freestyle; Rene Hill, 10 & under girls, 2. 200 freestyle; 5. 200 individual medley; 11. 50 breaststroke; 3. 100 butterfly; 4. 100 freestyle; 9. 100 individual medley; 7. 100 breaststroke; 6. 50 butterfly; 5. 50 freestyle; Jamie Danner Hill, 11-12 girls, 1. 500 freestyle; 4. 200 individual medley; 1. 200 freestyle; 2. 50 backstroke; 2. 100 freestyle; 7. 100 individual medley; 3. 50 butterfly; 3. 100 backstroke; 1. 50 freestyle.

Blackout lifted

IRVING, Texas (AP)—A cable television network has agreed to by the remaining tickets to Sunday's National Football League game between the Miami Dolphins and Dallas Cowboys to keep the game from being blacked out in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The decision Thursday to buy the remaining tickets was made by ESPN, which will televise the Sunday night contest nationally. The game will be carried locally by KXAS-TV.

As of Thursday, 8,500 tickets remained unsold.

It means that Dallas-Fort Worth area fans will be able for the first time this season to see the Cowboys play a home game at Texas Stadium. None of the other games, including exhibition games, were sellouts.

Practice greeting

Ohio State head coach Earl Bruce shakes hands with supporters after practice Thursday. Bruce, fired Monday, allowed the public on the practice field to watch the Buckeyes prepare for Michigan. It will be Bruce's final game at the school. Bruce's overall record is 80-26-1 going into Saturday's Big Ten clash.

Pokes meet Dolphins in game of intrigue

Encounter features NFL's winningest coaches

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

They are the two most successful NFL franchises since the merger, with two of football's winningest coaches, the game's most dynamic passer and one of the best runners.

Even though neither the Dallas Cowboys nor the Miami Dolphins are powerhouses anymore, Sunday night's game is especially intriguing. Both teams need victories to remain viable playoff contenders. Both have weak areas which could play right into the strengths of the opponent — Dallas is ranked 20th against the pass, Miami 22nd against the run.

And, of course, there are the coaches — Tom Landry of Dallas and Don Shula of Miami. Shula is 4-3 in games against Landry, but the Cowboys won the biggest of those encounters in the 1972 Super Bowl, a 24-3 victory.

Shula, in his 25th year, is the NFL's winningest active coach and second to George Halas. Landry, in his 28th season, has 265 victories, two fewer than Shula.

"You've got to stand back and admire everything that he's (Landry) done," Shula said. "Not only the way he's handled himself, but the positive influence he's had on young people and people in general."

"We don't get to go against each other very often," Landry said. "Don is just a great coach. Right now, he's struggling like we are, but his teams are always well coached."

The Cowboys are 5-4 and coming off a 23-17 overtime victory over New England, which dropped the Patriots to 4-5 in the AFC East, the same record as Miami. Shula is hoping the Cowboys help his team again this week.

He's also hoping the Dolphins can find a way to stop Herschel Walker, whose 60-yard touchdown run won last Sunday's game.

The Dolphins don't have any comparable all-around threats. Their forte is passing, with Dan Marino, the league's top-rated quarterback, throwing to standout receivers Mark Duper and Mark Clayton.

Dallas quarterback Danny White has a sore wrist and Steve Pelluer might start. Pelluer hasn't thrown a pass during a game this season.

Several key AFC divisional games are set for Sunday. Central co-leaders Cleveland and Houston meet, as do the West's top two teams, San Diego and Seattle. In the East, where Indianapolis and New York are 5-4 and the other three teams are 4-5, the Colts are at New England and the Jets host Buffalo.

Also, it's Atlanta at Minnesota, Detroit at Chicago, Green Bay at Kansas City, Pittsburgh at Cincinnati, St. Louis at Philadelphia, San Francisco at Tampa Bay, the New York Giants at New Orleans, and Denver at the Los Angeles Raiders.

On Monday night, the Los Angeles Rams are at Washington.

Cleveland and Houston are 6-3. The Browns are used to being in first place, winning the division in 1985 and 1986. The Oilers haven't been in such a heady position since 1980.

The game will feature big-play defenses that could steal the show.

The Browns lead the NFL in total defense and pass defense and have allowed an NFL-low 131 points. The Oilers' defense is second in the NFL with 18 interceptions, including six by safety Keith Bostic, the AFC leader.

After 1980, the Oilers lost more games than any NFL team over the next five years. But they won four of their final seven games on the way to a 5-11 season in 1986. This year they have beaten all three divisional rivals on the road for the first time ever. Houston's 15-10 victory at Cleveland came during the strike.

Cotton Bowl possibilities numerous

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas and Texas A&M have the best chances to be in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day but there are numerous possibilities:

- If A&M wins two games, the Aggies win the title.
- If A&M beats TCU and loses to Texas, and UT beats Baylor and A&M, UT goes.
- If A&M loses to TCU and Texas, and UT beats Baylor and A&M, UT goes.
- If A&M beats Texas and loses to TCU and UT loses to Baylor and A&M, A&M goes.
- If A&M beats TCU and loses to UT, and UT loses to Baylor and Beats A&M, Texas goes.

- If A&M loses to TCU and ties Texas, and Texas beats Baylor and ties A&M, Texas goes.
- If A&M loses to TCU and ties Texas, and Texas loses to Baylor and ties A&M, Arkansas goes.
- If Texas and A&M win next week's games but tie Thanksgiving, Arkansas goes.
- If A&M loses to TCU and beats Texas, and Texas loses to Baylor and A&M, A&M goes.
- If A&M loses to TCU and beats Texas, and Texas beats Baylor and loses to A&M, A&M goes.
- If UT ties two games, A&M beats TCU and ties Texas, A&M goes.
- If A&M ties two, UT beats Baylor and ties A&M, UT wins.
- If A&M ties two and UT ties two, Arkansas goes.

Mexican peso levels off in shaky trading

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican peso leveled off against the U.S. dollar after a breathtaking fall caused by the government's decision to pull out of the market and conserve its supply of dollars.

Private exchange houses in Mexico City were short of dollars Thursday, turning away customers who wanted to exchange their pesos for dollars.

Pesos were even scarcer. Residents said some trading firms limited the amount of the national currency they could buy.

Some shopowners, especially those catering to foreigners, quickly raised their prices to make up for the peso's decline.

The stock market, benefitting from the peso plunge, soared nearly 18 percent in the second straight day of gains for the exchange, which had been badly shaken by investor nervousness in recent weeks.

Today is a national holiday to mark the anniversary of the start of the Mexican revolution in 1910. Banks, the stock market and many exchange firms will be closed until Monday.

Treasury Secretary Gustavo Petricoli defended the decision by the Bank of Mexico, the nation's central bank, to stop selling dollars to support the peso in the free market.

In a speech to congressmen, he said purchases of dollars by private firms to pay their foreign debts and instability in the stock market "generated a drastic growth in the demand for foreign currency in our country."

Analysts said many investors who were worried about the sharp falls in the stock market shifted their money out of stocks and into dollars.

"The government chose to resolve the dilemma by permitting an adjustment in the price of foreign currency and protecting the international reserves of the country," said Petricoli.

The government has reserves of about $15 billion, an enormous sum built up this year from greater exports and loans by foreign banks.

When the Bank of Mexico bowed out of the free market Wednesday morning, the value of the peso plunged throughout the country. The free market is used in tourism and transactions along the U.S.-Mexico border.

The government regulates a second exchange rate, called the controlled rate, which is used in 75 percent of commercial transactions. That market was not affected by the central bank's decision.

The Business Coordinating Council, a prominent umbrella group for businesses, backed the government's action.

"The decision ... is correct," it said in a statement, "since it permits supply and demand to determine the parity of the peso."

The exchange rate on the free market varied throughout the day.

It opened lower but then rebounded a bit at some exchange houses.

At the close of business, private exchange houses were quoting a rate of 2,100 pesos for those wanting to exchange a dollar for the local currency.

India calling for Sri Lanka cease-fire after soldiers freed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India today announced a 48-hour cease-fire in its battle against Tamil militants in Sri Lanka. The action came one day after the Tamil rebels released 18 Indian soldiers and called for a cease-fire.

K. Natwar Singh, minister of state for external affairs, announced in Parliament that Indian troops in northern and eastern Sri Lanka would begin the cease-fire at 7 a.m. Saturday.

On Thursday, Tamil militants released 18 Indian soldiers held captive in the Jaffna Peninsula for more than a month. They were held by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, the largest rebel group.

In freeing the prisoners, the Tigers urged a cease-fire and a pull-back of Indian troops. India has demanded the Tigers surrender unconditionally.

White House backing off Gorbachev invitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is backing off a plan to ask Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev to become the first communist leader to address a joint meeting of Congress, administration and congressional sources say.

The idea all but died Thursday after House Republican leader Robert Michel joined 79 other congressmen in asking President Reagan to find a less formal setting for lawmakers to meet with Gorbachev during the Dec. 7-10 summit.

Faced with a GOP revolt, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater issued assurances that "we have not proposed or asked for a special session of Congress.... The Soviets are considering what they want to do, and will let us know in a few days."

Another senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said, "I would be very surprised if he (Gorbachev) ever ends up addressing a joint meeting."

Michel, R-Ill., said asking Gorbachev to address a joint meeting of Congress "would be a terrible mistake and I have relayed my views to the State Department."

Aides to House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said "a White House liaison officer" had requested that Gorbachev be invited to address a joint meeting of Congress, and that Wright and Senate Majority leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., had set the time for 10 a.m. on Dec. 9.

"A request for a visit by a leader is made by the White House and then the speaker and the majority leader come up with the time when it would be best to do this," said Charmayne Marsh, Wright's spokeswoman.

An aide to Byrd said the majority leader endorsed the idea in a meeting last Friday with the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Yuri Dubinin.

Three congressional sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the idea was discussed without any apparent objections Tuesday at a breakfast meeting attended by Wright, Byrd, White House chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr., Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III and James C. Miller III, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Some Democrats said the dispute was between the White House and the conservative wing of the Republican Party.

"If they don't want Mr. Gorbachev here, all they have to do is pick up the telephone and say, 'We don't want it,'" said another Wright aide, Wilson Morris.

"Really, it's a fight between the president and his own party. When they settle it, they can let us know. There is no reason to point fingers."

The Democratic whip, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, endorsed the proposed appearance, saying that "giving Gorbachev the cold shoulder is no way to end the Cold War."

Byrd said an appearance by Gorbachev "would make sense only if the Soviets would agree in advance to allow Reagan to address the Soviet people live and unedited and through his own interpreter on prime-time Soviet television."

Final action on trade bill off for this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators are unlikely to produce a compromise on their 1,000-page trade package until February, Democratic congressional leaders say.

"I am loathe to see us fritter away our time this year," House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, told reporters Thursday as he arrived to testify at a Rules Committee meeting.

But he said "logistical considerations and technical considerations" made it doubtful that House and Senate conferees who have been meeting on and off would reach a compromise package this year.

Wright's remarks appeared to all but end any hope for final action this year on the issue, which has been heavily debated since 1985.

"Now we will target it for February," he said. He said he continued to view legislation to sharpen the U.S. edge in global markets and combat unfair trade practices by other countries as urgently needed.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, also expressed doubt it would be possible to wrap up work on the bill this year.

A timetable that has been under discussion among Democrats would set late February as a deadline for producing a finished product. The House then would vote on such a measure by March 15.

There was speculation following the stock market crash on Oct. 19 that uneasiness among investors might have meant the end of the trade bill. Both Wright and Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., stressed afterwards the importance of completing work on the issue as soon as possible.

The administration and other opponents of trade legislation have been highly critical of "protectionism" contained in the bill. They say it would invite retaliation against U.S. exports, cost more jobs than it would save and raise prices while narrowing consumer choices.

President Reagan on Thursday renewed his attack on what he called "draconian protectionist trade measures." He said he has enough support in the Senate to sustain a veto of any legislation that could "knock the legs out from under the world trading system and send our economy reeling at the same time."

But proponents say such a bill is needed to cope with unfair trade practices overseas and with record trade deficits and related unemployment in manufacturing industries.

Congressional aides say the main factors stalling agreement were a lack of time, the demands of efforts to reach an agreement on a $23 billion budget cut and an assortment of knotty issues within the trade bill that are proving hard to resolve.

They cited a Senate provision to require employers to give unions notice of upcoming plant closings and a House amendment to compel foreign investors in the United States to make disclosures with details of their holdings.

Little progress has been made on those issues, as well as on banking features dealing with currency exchange rates and Third World debt and a Senate plan to penalize Toshiba Corp. for selling submarine-silencing technology to the Soviet Union.

Also remaining to be worked out are the actual trade provisions for procedures under which the United States would retaliate against unfair trade practices by other countries and provide import barriers to aid beleaguered U.S. industries.

U.S., Soviet negotiators clash

TOOELE ARMY DEPOT, Utah (AP) — A top Soviet arms negotiator has proposed a May deadline for an international treaty to reduce and eventually ban chemical weapons, but his U.S. counterpart rejected the idea.

Yuri Nazarkin made the proposal Thursday after he and five other Soviets arrived to visit the Army's chemical weapons disposal plant. The delegation was to tour the prototype plant 50 miles southwest of Salt Lake City today.

Despite U.S.-Soviet differences on verification and other matters, Nazarkin said in an interview that a treaty could be reached by late May, when the third session of the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva is scheduled.

"I think it is feasible if the other side takes a more optimistic approach," said Nazarkin, the top Soviet bargainer on chemical weapons.

Chief U.S. negotiator Max Friedersdorf said he would not accept an arbitrary deadline before all details were worked out.

Friedersdorf said in an interview that the Soviets want the deadline to put congressional and public pressure on U.S. negotiators.

"The Soviets are always wanting to set artificial deadlines," he said. "We don't deal with them on trust; we deal with them on making a treaty so tightly bound and ironclad that they can't cheat."

On Thursday, the Soviets tried on gas masks, and were shown live and simulated chemical bombs, rockets, mortar rounds and mines from the U.S. arsenal.

The weapons are filled with liquid nerve or mustard agents, which are vaporized and dispersed by explosives on impact. Nerve agents attack the central nervous system, while mustard agents blister the skin, mucous membranes and lungs.

The Soviet Union refused to attend a United Nations workshop at the plant in 1983, but earlier this year accepted an invitation from the State Department's Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Last month, Friedersdorf led a U.S. delegation that inspected Soviet chemical weapons. The Soviets have given no indication they have a disposal plant, he said.

Nazarkin and Friedersdorf also disagreed Thursday over the progress of the Geneva negotiations.

SEC seeks legislation allowing investors to sue insider traders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission is proposing legislation that would give investors who lose money in the stock market the right to sue inside traders who profited at the public's expense.

That provision is part of a bill offered Thursday by the SEC. It also would legislatively define insider trading, an offense that has been developed through judicial and regulatory interpretations of fraud and securities law.

SEC Chairman David S. Ruder, in a letter to two senators, called for the creation of "broad private rights of action for contemporaneous traders and other persons injured in their securities transactions by insider trading violations."

Insider trading is sometimes seen as a victimless crime, but the SEC contends the true victims are securities owners who sell to or buy from those with undisclosed and improperly obtained knowledge of the securities' true value.

Legislators, in the wake of insider trading scandals on Wall Street, have sought to codify case law after complaints from securities businesses and traders that they had no firm guide as to what is a violation.

The SEC earlier had been reluctant to see the offense defined legislatively, contending the definition developed through case law gave the agency flexibility and that the courts were upholding the cases the agency chose to prosecute.

Sen. Donald W. Riegle, D-Mich., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee's securities subcommittee, and Alfonse D'Amato of New York, the senior Republican on the committee, introduced legislation in June.

The SEC offered a counterproposal in August and the latest proposal represents a compromise between the two.

The SEC proposal sent to Riegle and D'Amato would prohibit persons from "trading, or causing trading of, any security while in possession of material nonpublic information where they know or recklessly disregard that the information has been obtained wrongfully or that a trade would constitute wrongful use of the information."

Tower says latest report is old news

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The new congressional report on the Iran-Contra scandal contains "no new revelations," according to John Tower, head of a presidential commission that investigated the scandal earlier this year.

"There are no substantial differences from what we found," Tower said during an appearance at the State University of Buffalo Thursday. "They were able to flesh out some of the details, but that was expected because they had more time and resources."

Tower, a former Republican senator from Texas and a Reagan ally, said the Democrats who authored the congressional report did offer harsher criticism of the Reagan administration.

Because of the tone of report, several Republicans on the congressional committee refused to sign its final draft.

The report says Reagan allowed "a cabal of zealots" control American foreign policy and skirt the law and Constitution.

Tower said he essentially agreed with the conclusions of the new report.

A Look at the Cross on THANKSGIVING

"Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

"But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed."

"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way, and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Isaiah 53:4-6

Our prayer this Thanksgiving Season is that everyone will attend the house of God, giving thanks unto him for his great gift, which is eternal life through his son.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Coleman Adv.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Baptists elected

FORT WORTH - Two Pampa residents were elected to major positions on Texas Baptist boards during the annual meeting of the 2.4 million Baptist General Convention of Texas (BGCT) in Fort Worth last week.

Billy Neal Stovall, a cattle rancher, was elected to the board of trustees of High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

Don L. Babcock, president of First National Bank, was elected to the board of trustees of Wayland Baptist University in Plainview.

BGCT institutions include eight universities, one academy, seven hospitals, four children's homes and four homes for the aging.

The work is supported by the more than 5,000 Texas Baptist churches and missions that will give about $59 million this year through the Cooperative Program for mission work at home and abroad.

Besides the institutions, the convention helps support worldwide missions causes, including 7,350 missionaries in the United States and more than 100 foreign nations.

Unitarians to meet

AMARILLO - "Medical Ethics" will be the topic of concern at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at the Amarillo Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, 4901 Cornell.

Speaking on the topic will be Dr. Joleen Walsh, division head of the Department of Nursing at West Texas State University at Canyon.

The focus of her presentation will be on how such difficult ethical decisions are made by medical practitioners: what facts and opinions must be assembled (starting with the wishes of the patient) and what processes then must be followed, such as getting the proper legal permissions.

Children's classes are also conducted in the Sunday morning service time. There is a nursery for babies.

Murphy concert

Contemporary Christian music artist Michael James Murphy will be in concert at 7 p.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church, 203 N. West.

Murphy, the son of a Texas Baptist preacher, has been in music since an early age, touring with The Cruise Family by the time he was 18.

Since then he has appeared in concert with such Christian artists as Amy Grant, Sandi Patti, Russ Taff, The Imperials and Twila Paris. He most recently was on tour with Dallas Holm.

There will be no admission charge or tickets required for the concert, but a free-will offering will be taken.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Come and see what God has done, how awesome his works in man's behalf! (Psalm 66:5 NIV)

My reverie is pleasantly scattered and fragmented. What I have seen has jumbled together with my thoughts and plans for teaching about God's care to second graders in Sunday School.

I've just returned home from a short drive around town. The town has painted the multi-hues of a long, languorous Indian Summer. Birds and crickets honored the new day with hearty songs. I watched a roadrunner until it saw me and flew away.

A tree-lined street boasted splashes of dazzling, still-blooming salvia, petunias, chrysanthemums, marigolds and geraniums. The sun pierced the variegated foliage of the trees and turned the scene into a golden picture postcard.

As I drove into my driveway, I noticed the tree in my own front yard had put on a crayon-yellow dress. Although I pass the tree several times every day, I had not taken the time or thought to see the changing beauty of it.

My tumbling, scuffling kittens were playing in the fallen leaves under the tree. A breeze stirred the leaves and sent the rascals scampering after more "toys" than they could catch. The sight of the kittens playing with the awkward coordination of infancy and the sound of wind-tickled leaves skittering over the asphalt street brought back sweet memories of long-past Thanksgivings.

When I reluctantly came inside to get down to the business of the day, the mood for the Thanksgiving season had been set for me. And I knew I'd have no trouble teaching little children about God's care; God, Himself, wrote the lesson in autumn ink.

St. Mark's to note 55th anniversary

St. Mark Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, 406 Elm, will be having special services at 3 p.m. Sunday in honor of the church's 55th anniversary in Pampa.

Leading the congregation in the service will be C.D. Coleman, presiding bishop; Homer L. Pacey, presiding elder; Herbert R. Johnson, pastor, and Beatrice Taylor, secretary.

Rev. V.C. Martin, pastor of New Hope Baptist Church in Pampa, will be master of ceremonies. The pulpit devotion will be presented by Rev. M. Brooks of St. Stephens Baptist Church in Clarendon.

Introducing the speaker will be Rev. J.H. Blakemore of Bethel Baptist Church in Borger. Giving the sermon and invitation will be Rev. I.L. Patrick, pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church in Pampa.

Serving as alternate will be Rev. Ben Roberts of Shiloh Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Other guest churches participating in the anniversary include New Zion Baptist Church, Borger; Carter Chapel CME Church, Amarillo; and the Open Door Church of God in Christ and the Holy Temple Church of God in Christ, both in Pampa.

Stewards and deacons will be in charge of the devotion, with the St. Mark Choir and guest choirs providing musical selections. Willie Bradshaw will give the welcome, with Macedonia Baptist Church giving the responsive.

Beatrice Taylor will talk on "The Task of the Church," and Jessie Samuels will give a brief history of the church.

Dinner will be served after the evening service.

Six committees are helping with plans for the anniversary service:

† Finance Committee: Willie Bradshaw, Alex Holt, Kay Simmons, W.M. Griffin, Clyde Durham.

† Program Committee: Bea Taylor, Kay Simmons, Willie Bradshaw, Rev. H.R. Johnson.

† Decorating Committee: Irene Sanders, Lynn Johnson, Alma Powell, Ruby Morgan.

Pampa Ministerial Alliance sets Thanksgiving Service

The Pampa Ministerial Alliance's annual Thanksgiving Worship Service will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the First United Methodist Church, corner of Foster and Ballard.

Rev. Herb Peak, minister of the First Assembly of God, will be the guest speaker. He will be assisted by other ministers who are members of the Ministerial Alliance.

Dating back many years, the Thanksgiving service has long been a tradition in the Pampa community.

Ministerial Alliance President Rev. Dr. Max Browning, pastor of First United Methodist Church, said the public is invited to join in the interdenominational observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

A nursery will be provided.

The music, under the direction of Ken McDonald, will be presented by the Chancel Choir of First United Methodist.

Joining Rev. Peak in participating in the service will be Rev. Browning, First United Methodist; Rev. Gene Allen, Briarwood Full Gospel Church; Rev. LaVerne Hinson, Church of the Brethren; and Rev. Cecil Ferguson, Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Other ministers helping at the service will be Rev. Darrel R. Cory, First Presbyterian Church; Rev. H.R. Johnson, St. Mark CME Church; and Father Bill Bailey, St. Matthew's Episcopal Church.

Religion regains more trust

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Organized religion, which slipped in public esteem last year, is getting back more trust in the eyes of Americans, despite the recent TV evangelism scandals.

But it still hasn't regained the top level of confidence among various institutions that religion held for many years. It now stands even with the military in first rank.

This is the finding of the Princeton, N.J., Religion Research Center, an affiliate of the Gallup organization, based on interviews with a scientifically representative 1,607 adults.

Currently, both organized religion and the military were found to head the field in the degree of people's confidence, 61 percent of them considering those institutions dependable.

Last year, the military had edged ahead, with 63 percent confident in it compared with 57 percent in organized religion, after seven years in which religion had been rated ahead of all the rest.

This time, religion moved back to the top rung but shared it with the military, despite the distrust found to have hit TV ministries because of ex-PTL evangelist Jim Bakker's downfall and other TV preaching excesses.

Standing below religion and the military, in public regard, were these institutions in this order, along with percentages confident in them:

U.S. Supreme Court, 52 percent; banks, 51 percent; public schools, 50 percent; newspapers, 31 percent; television, 28 percent, and organized labor, 26 percent.

As in past surveys, Protestants, women, blacks, older Americans and the less well-educated expressed the greatest confidence in the church, but increased trust in religion showed up in all population groups this time.

New surveys among teenagers, however, find that faith has edged downward in their estimate; only 44 percent of them considering it very important, compared with 51 percent in 1984.

Fewer of them also believe hard work is very important, down from 82 percent to 70 percent, but more of them rated other qualities in the important category, including:

Responsibility and honesty, both 89 percent, self-respect, 87 percent.

Most teen-agers favor a time for prayer in public schools, 55 percent of them, with 31 percent opposing it and the rest undecided.

Churches ministering to immigrants' needs

By MARY PAPE
Conroe Courier

CONROE (AP)—Montgomery County has a large Hispanic population that, in recent years, has been estimated to be 3,000 strong. Local churches in this rapidly growing area north of Houston are ministering to the new residents by providing special programs and services for the Spanish-speaking population.

Primera Iglesia Bautista Hispana de Conroe is a small church which has been befriended by three Baptist congregations.

"Groceville Baptist Church started teaching English to the Hispanics, but it was too far away, so they moved the classes into Conroe," said Winnie Jacobson.

Members of West Conroe Baptist and Mims Baptist have joined those from Groceville to teach immigrants from Mexico and Honduras.

"Children are taught English in school, but many of the adults don't get any training in English," Mrs. Jacobson said. "We have a series of five books which give the equivalent of a fifth-grade reading level. The books have a picture chart on one page, with a story on the opposite page. This lets the student read in the first lesson of the first book."

Mrs. Jacobson said the churches are using a series of books missionary Frank Lawbach developed to teach English in the Philippines more than 50 years ago. Participants in the course get a diploma for each book they complete.

"My husband Herbert and I have also worked with Cambodians teaching them English. I'm not bilingual, but I can communicate. And teaching English is an excellent work of the church. We have Bible verses which are translated into Spanish, and we make them a part of each lesson," Mrs. Jacobson said.

Sacred Heart Catholic Church ministers to the Hispanic community with "Spanish Masses, sacrament preparation, religious instruction, marriage counseling, and help with medical expenses and food," said the Rev. Lee Flores.

One of the main programs is the immigration and amnesty assistance offered by the church. Recently, a Mass and reception were held in celebration of the first group to complete the amnesty process. The Mass was said in both English and Spanish by Flores.

"You are special immigrants," Flores told the group. "Remember Joseph and his 12 brothers who moved to Egypt and were enslaved. Then they were led out of Egypt. You are special as they were special."

Jose Sentmanat, a Cuban immigrant, and his wife, Chiquie, started the church's program to assist immigrants 10 years ago.

"The amnesty program lets people have 18 months so they can apply for temporary residency. They will need to have some knowledge of English in order to begin their five-year wait for citizenship," he said of the government's new amnesty law.

But he said there has been a problem with getting people to come forward and register because for years, the federal government was viewed as the enemy.

"Generally, the people are afraid to come to us. We explain that if they don't tell us who they are, we can't help them," Sentmanat said. "But they mistrust authority. When we do something for them, they want to know how much they owe us. That is the way it is in their country."

Charlotte Pickford, head of the St. Vincent de Paul Society, said, "We ask 10 basic questions of people to see if they qualify for amnesty. Then the INS sees them in Houston and they are granted a temporary three-month green card giving them legal status to stay. Their application is sent to Austin, and they are given final approval for permanent status which lasts for 18 months. After that, the five-year waiting period for citizenship begins."

Ms. Pickford also said Sacred Heart has given programs at the church designed to allay the fear of authority held by some immigrants. "Last year, Lloyd Gilliland and Rodney Meadows of the Conroe Police Department came out after Mass in an effort to befriend the Hispanic community. We had them come to the church so that the people wouldn't be afraid."

"We also had a representative from the Texas Department of Corrections come out and speak to the congregation," she said.

Harvesters 4 to be in Dallas

The Harvesters 4 of Pampa recently traveled to the Dallas-Fort Worth area to perform for the Richardson Waterview Church of Christ and the Fort Worth Midtown Church of Christ congregations.

The quartet had a great response and will be traveling back to Dallas in early December for a return engagement at the Richardson Civic Center.

Members of the group are Billie Lemons, Paul Searl, Wyatt Earp and Rick Smith.

Make a doll house for that special girl's Christmas gift

By BOB SAWYER

It's never the wrong season to begin work on the projects that will make Christmas really special. Too often I start too late...

This year, I've already completed one gift that I know will please the punch out of my youngest daughter.

It's a two-story, country-style doll house with gingerbread trim, window boxes, wrap-around porch, four large rooms and a full attic. The 26 x 19 x 30-inch doll house was made from a single sheet of 1/4-inch plywood and some wood stripping.

Step-by-step plans for this project are included in our Doll House packet. This packet features plans for three doll houses; eight-plus rooms of furniture; cradles, beds and dining set for large dolls; miniature schoolhouse, outbuilding and playthings; plus a fold-up "mouse house."

All plans include materials lists, patterns and complete illustrated instructions. Specify Project No. 4004 and send $19.95. Our catalog is $2.95.

To order, specify the number and enclose a check or money order to: Makin' Things for Christmas, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008.

For the doll house, cut one front wall 18 x 25 inches, two side walls 15 x 18 1/2, two roofs 16 1/2 x 12 1/2, one attic floor 15 x 18, one second floor 15 x 17 1/2, one interior wall 15 x 18 1/2, one base 19 x 26, and 28 panels 3 1/4 x 3 1/4.

The base is supported on a four-sided frame, which is composed of decorative panels. Cut out or paint a diamond shape in the center of each of the 28 panels. Assemble the panels to form the four-sided frame and attach the base on top.

Crafts

Peak the upper end of the front wall, and make window cutouts in the front and side walls. The interior wall and the second floor fit together by means of interlocking slots. Assemble the exterior walls and install the interior wall-and-floor assembly.

Attach the two roof sections. Use support strips to reinforce the wall and floor joints, and glue blocks for the roof joints.

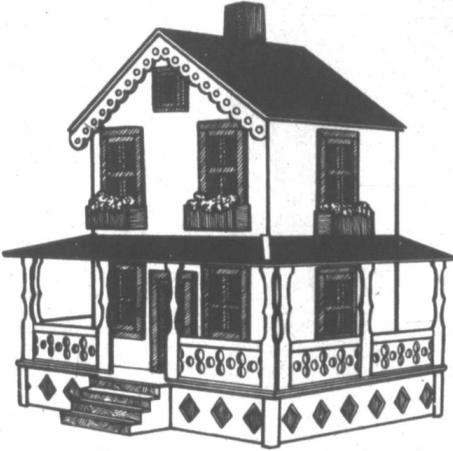

Cut and attach trim around the outside of each window. Make simple planter boxes for the top floor windows, to fit over the trim. Trim the door opening as well.

The porch railings consist of panels, posts and rails. Cut 10 contoured posts 1 x 8 1/2 inches, and 24 panels 1 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches. Make decorative cutouts in the panels and groove the rails to accommodate the panels.

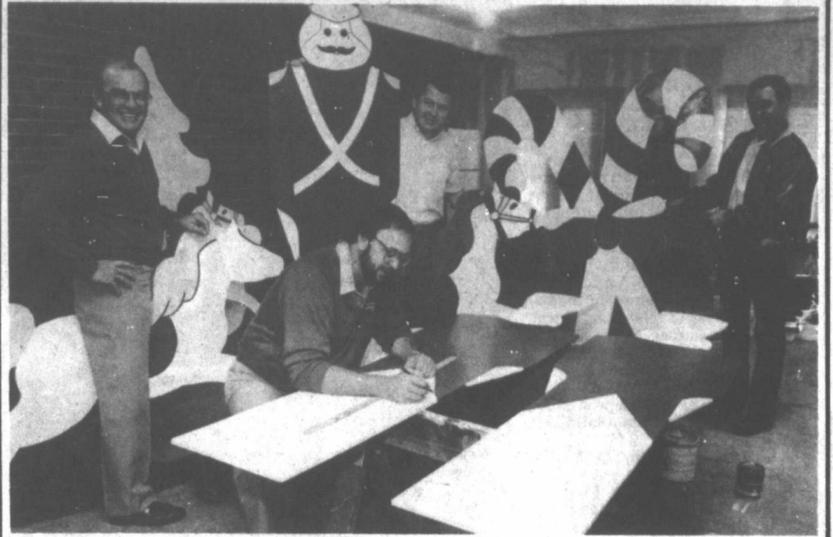

Assemble a small flight of stairs to lead up to the gap in the front railing. The porch roof is cut in three sections, and is beveled to fit against the walls at an angle.

Assemble and install a chimney on the roof. Cut scalloped gingerbread trim to go along the underside of the front roof overhang. Cut trim to cover the corner joints of the base frame and the peak joints of the porch roof.

Country doll house with gingerbread trim makes a great holiday gift.

Funds from the gala will also be donated to the Pampa Salvation Army, Tralee Crisis Center and other local charities.

Forgotten negligee reveals pain at woman's departure

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, the woman I had loved for six years moved to another city. We lived together for the last three years. Finally, she said she needed to get on with her life, and she left me.

In the process of moving, she inadvertently left behind a gift I had given her last Christmas. It was a beautiful, expensive (not that the price matters), sexy, very revealing nightgown. Our relationship is over, but I can't bear the thought of her wearing that nightgown for another. I feel that I should mail it to her, but, as I have said, I hate the idea of her wearing it for someone else.

What do I do, Abby?
BEWILDERED IN LA CROSSE

DEAR BEWILDERED: You pack up the lady's property and send it to her, that's what you do. If it's any consolation, Freud said, "There are no accidents." Could she have left it behind because, unconsciously, she wanted to come back?

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Jeffrey's Mother" hit home with me. It seems that Jeffrey had been dating Karen exclusively for two years, a fact well-known to his mother, but in introducing Karen to her friends, she said, "This is my son, Jeffrey, and his friend, Karen." Karen took offense, saying she should have been introduced as "Jeffrey's girlfriend."

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Here's my situation: My boyfriend and I have been living together for six months. Although we are not formally engaged, we plan to marry next year.

Last month, at his sister's wedding, I had a chance to meet his whole family, who all live out of state. His mother, who is aware of our relationship and future plans, introduced me to all the aunts, uncles, sisters, brothers and grandparents as her son's "little friend!"

DEAR BELITTLED: The letter from "Jeffrey's Mom" sparked other memorable introductions. For example:

DEAR ABBY: Years ago when I was just a poor college kid, I was invited to spend the Christmas holidays with the family of a girl I'd been dating for about six months. We liked each other a lot, but I was in no position to make any kind of commitment. Well, can you imagine how I felt when her mother introduced me all over the place as "Jennifer's fiancee"?

GIL (STILL SINGLE)

CONFIDENTIAL TO 'A LOVING MOTHER': So far you have given your son a car for his 18th birthday. He totaled it after three days. You gave him another car, which he totaled in two months. You gave him a chance for a college education. He dropped out in his sophomore year. You paid for his diamond ring that he gave his fiancée. He then broke the engagement, she returned the ring, and he hocked it and kept the money.

And now you ask me if you should borrow on your home to put this son in business.

My answer is an unqualified no! Give him one more gift: a chance to prove that he is a man. Let him find his own job, stick to it, and learn how to stand on his own two feet.

Thanksgiving bird sparks funny cards

By The Associated Press

The turkey is a strange bird, and has always been fair (fowl?) game for humorists.

"It's hard to keep a straight face when you're talking about turkeys," says Ed Wallerstein, a humor editor at Hallmark Cards. "They leave themselves wide open for jokes."

"What would a turkey say if asked its thoughts about Thanksgiving? Probably something fowl."

Visual humor is only natural with the turkey, Wallerstein says. One Thanksgiving card shows a chorus line of high-kicking flamingos — and one rotund turkey.

On a "Peanuts" card, Snoopy asks why the Indians left early after the first Thanksgiving dinner. Answer: "They didn't want to miss the big game between the chiefs and the cowboys."

Yet, according to Hallmark, most of the estimated 40 million Thanksgiving cards to be given this year aren't designed for a laugh. They'll have traditional messages about family, friendships and homecoming.

Fulcher's book aids Tennessee researchers

Tennessee researchers will find Richard C. Fulcher's new book an asset in establishing the early settlers in that area. Cost is $22 including postage and handling and can be obtained from Genealogical Publishing Co., 1001 N. Colvert St., Baltimore, Md. 21202. Request a catalogue at the time you place your order.

Fulcher divided the book into three sections for each of the three counties and included most of the public record references found on each individual during 1770-1790. This is a much better tool than trying to use the federal census of 1820 and regress from that point. The counties covered are Davidson, Sumner and Tennessee, and today this same area encompasses all or part of some 40 counties in the state.

The book identifies many of the families that settled in western North Carolina along the Cumberland River. This land was originally part of Washington County, N.C., and Davidson County was carved from that area in 1783. Because of the mountain ranges providing a natural barrier, it was much easier to come into Tennessee from the north rather than the east and explains the influx of settlers from Virginia.

A major problem in locating ancestors in Tennessee is the confusion of jurisdiction and the recording of vital records such as marriage, wills and deeds in the county court minutes instead of the appropriate book. Many counties have indexed their minute books in recent years and should be checked for any missing cousins.

When writing to the county clerks, it is a good policy to ask if a fee is charged prior to requesting a search, and include a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Thanksgiving is next week, and as you celebrate the holiday, include my tradition of calling or visiting one person just to say, "I am thankful that you are a part of my life." This can be a new friend, a co-worker, or a family member — anyone that you want to acknowledge. Also, ask them to carry the tradition along. Happy Thanksgiving!

New AIDS test okayed

NEW YORK (AP) — Blood banks, hospitals, health centers and physicians have been given a new tool to test patients for AIDS.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved an investigative new drug status for Fluorognost, an advanced AIDS confirmation test, according to Thermascan Inc., developer of the new checkup system.

Some 10,000 of the tests will be conducted at New York's Beth Israel Medical Center, the Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Center, the Karolinska Institute, Stockholm, and the Institute of Hygiene, University of Innsbruck.

Fluorognost detects antibodies in one or two weeks after infection, compared with six weeks or more with current confirmation tests.

Showdown!

A&M or Texas will represent SWC at Cotton Bowl meeting

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Texas A&M and Texas are headed for a Thanksgiving night showdown to decide the Southwest Conference's Cotton Bowl representative no matter what happens on Saturday.

The 16th-ranked Aggies, who have won five games in a row, meet the revenge-seeking Texas Christian Horned Frogs at noon (Raycom regional television) on Saturday in Fort Worth.

The Longhorns host the Baylor Bears, who have never won under Coach Grant Teaff in Austin, at 1 p.m.

A&M and Texas are both 4-1 in SWC play and they could both lose and meet in Kyle Field for the host team in the Cotton Bowl.

Arkansas is 5-2 and the only way the Razorbacks could get a ticket to Dallas on January 1 is if both A&M and Texas lose on Saturday then tie on Thanksgiving night. The Hogs lost to both Texas and A&M.

In the only other SWC game this weekend, Texas Tech can earn an Independence Bowl invitation with a victory over the Houston Cougars in the Astrodome in a 7 p.m. game.

Texas A&M has won 14 consecutive games against the Horned Frogs, including a 74-10 slaughter last year.

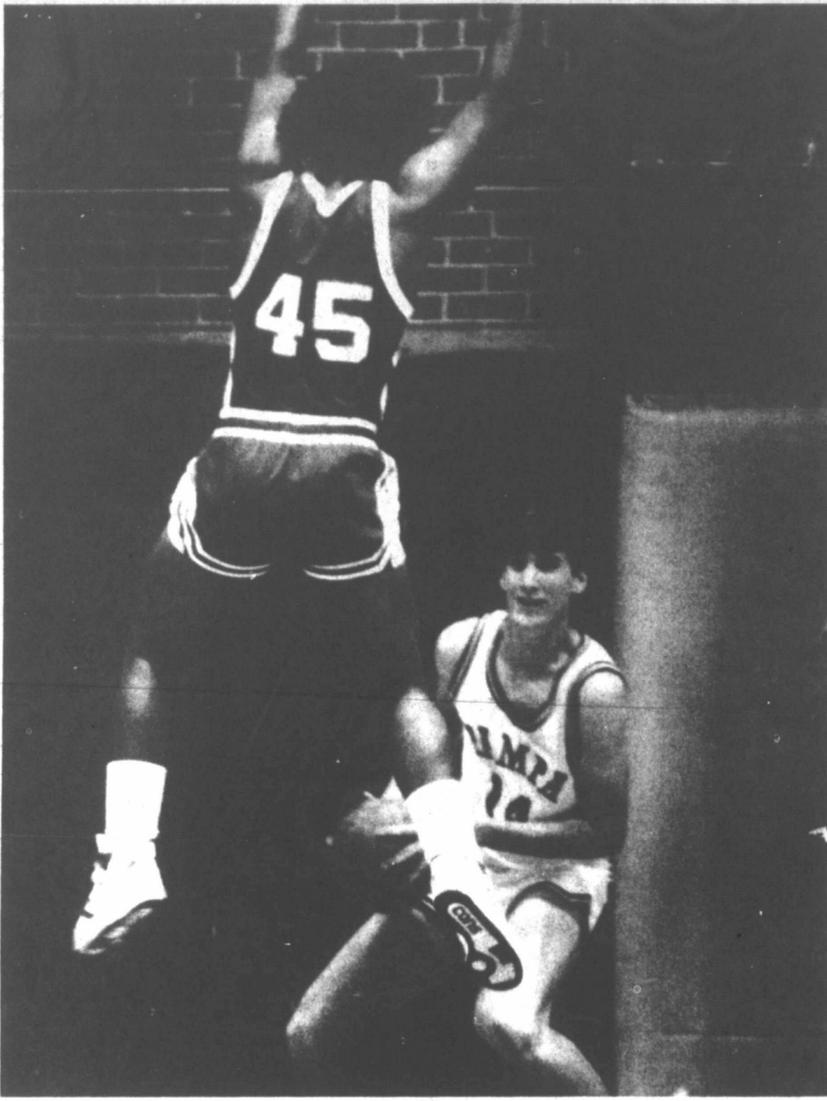

There's also no love lost between A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill and TCU Coach Jim Wacker.

Wacker has accused Sherrill of running the score up on him.

"We have 15 seniors who want to erase memories of last year's game," Wacker said.

Sherrill said A&M won't let down even if it doesn't have to win.

"Our confidence is high right now," Sherrill said. "We need to maintain that through the Texas game. We can't allow ourselves to go flat."

Hurricanes hope to avoid another scare

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

The traditional "big" games are this Saturday: Oklahoma-Nebraska, Ohio State-Michigan, UCLA-Southern California, Tennessee-Kentucky, Kansas-Missouri, Oregon State-Oregon, Washington-Washington State and Utah-Brigham Young.

And then there's what always has been known as "The Game," Harvard-Yale.

For third-ranked Miami of Florida, there's a big temptation to overlook Saturday's game against Toledo, a contest definitely not in the "big" category. It's especially true this year because Miami still has a regular-season game against Notre Dame and a possible national championship game against the Nebraska-Oklahoma winner in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day.

Even Toledo Coach Dan Simrell can understand how the Hurricanes might be looking past Saturday night's game.

"We understand what we're up against," Simrell said.

Toledo has a 3-6-1 record against Miami's 8-0 mark. And, thanks to Virginia Tech, Toledo won't even be able to sneak up on the Hurricanes.

Last week, Miami had to score two touchdowns in the final five minutes to down Virginia Tech, 1-9, 27-13.

Injuries strike Virginia Slims Tournament

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The Virginia Slims tennis championship is turning into a survival contest.

On Thursday night, seventh-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia became the second player in the 16-woman field to retire from a

"Virginia Tech put a big scare in us," Miami safety Bennie Blades said. "We know that right now we've got to focus ourselves on the Toledo game."

Wide receiver Michael Irvin said the Hurricanes will have something to prove against Toledo after last week's close call.

"We were in a dogfight, and we weren't able to have fun like we like to have on Saturdays," Irvin said. "I'll tell you, right now I wouldn't want to play for Toledo. I wouldn't want to play for anybody that was playing Miami this week."

Still, Hurricanes Coach Jimmy Johnson is worried that his team might look past Toledo to the Notre Dame game.

"I think there's a real danger of that," Johnson said. "We've got to make sure we do everything possible in practice to go into the ballgame Saturday night without any thoughts of anybody else."

The injury-plagued Rockets may not tax Miami much in their season finale. Toledo used three quarterbacks in last week's 17-17 tie with Central Michigan, and all three are hurting. In addition, leading rusher David Rohrs has missed the last three games with a back injury and won't play Saturday.

In what will be the regular-season finale for most of the nation's major schools, traditional matchups are the norm. This year, the Harvard-Yale battle is even more special.

match because of injury. Sukova was trailing top-seeded Steffi Graf 6-2, 2-0 when painful muscle spasms in her neck forced her to walk off the Madison Square Garden court in tears.

"She said she couldn't turn her head anymore," Graf said. "She was having problems serving and with her forehead."

Two nights earlier, fifth-seeded Hana Mandlikova pulled a hamstring in her opening-round match against Raffaella Reggi and had to quit after losing the first set.

The Ivy League championship will be at stake Saturday in the 104th renewal of what the influential Harvard and Yale alumni refer to as "The Game."

More than 70,000 spectators, many of them powerful captains of business and industry who attended the prestigious universities, are expected to cram Yale Bowl.

The teams have identical 7-2 records, 5-1 in the league, with Harvard's lone Ivy loss coming against Cornell six weeks ago and Yale's against Brown in the first game of the season. Yale is favored by one point.

The Nebraska-Oklahoma game will pit the nation's top-ranked teams, with the winner heading to the Orange Bowl for a Jan. 1 meeting against Miami and the loser heading to the Fiesta Bowl.

In other games Saturday involving The Associated Press Top Twenty teams, it will be No. 5 UCLA at Southern Cal, West Virginia at No. 6 Syracuse, No. 7 Notre Dame at Penn State, No. 8 Clemson at No. 12 South Carolina, No. 9 Louisiana State at Tulane, No. 11 Michigan State at Wisconsin, Iowa at No. 13 Oklahoma State, No. 15 Tennessee at Kentucky, No. 16 Texas A&M at Texas Christian, Minnesota at No. 18 Iowa, Kent State at No. 19 Pittsburgh and Purdue at No. 20 Indiana.

No. 4 Florida State, No. 10 Auburn, No. 14 Georgia and No. 17 Alabama are idle this week.

Mandlikova also withdrew from the doubles competition. But Sukova returned to action late Thursday night after receiving heat treatment and won a doubles match with partner Claudia Kohde-Kilsch.

Pampa hosts tall Sandies

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

The center of attention will literally be Amarillo High's Lance Perry when the Pampa Harvesters host the Sandies at 7:45 p.m. tonight in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The 6-6 Perry is the only returning starter from last year's regional finalists and the player the Harvesters must contain.

"We're going to have to hold him down and do a good job of rebounding to have a chance against them," said Pampa Coach Robert Hale. "Tall players are going to hurt us if we don't turn in a good defensive effort."

Perry led the Sandies in rebounding last year and has a deft shooting touch, hitting 57 percent from the floor. And he's not the only 6-6er on the Sandies' roster. There's also Brad Daje and Kenneth Shaw, both listed at that height. Both were lettermen last year.

"Dale is another good player we're going to have to contain," added Hale.

Speaking of containment, the Harvesters held off a taller, quicker Palo Duro squad to gain an important 53-51 season-opening victory Tuesday night.

"That was a big upset for us," Hale said. "They were about a thousand times quicker than us and we were at a disadvantage size-wise. It was a big, big victory."

Palo Duro's height and quickness couldn't bottle up Pampa's frontline of Jason Farmer and Dustin Miller, who combined for 37 points and 11 rebounds. The 6-2 Farmer was a 50 percent shooter (8 of 16) from the floor in scoring 20 points while the 6-4 Miller missed only two shots during his 17-point night.

"Both of those guys did a great job, but I felt everyone on the team did well," Hale said.

The Harvesters suffered through some tense moments during the final four minutes of the game when the Dons came from eleven points down to slice the lead to two. Three-pointers by PD's Tim Colbert and Ismael Chavez helped cut the deficit.

Hale, however, was more concerned about Pampa's turnovers than PD's 3-point shots.

"That one three-point shot didn't hurt us that much, but we turned the ball over and gave them another chance, that's what hurt," Hale said.

PD's press throughout the game forced Pampa into 23 turnovers (8 more than the Dons), but half of those came in the fourth quarter when the Dons were applying extra pressure.

"Being able to hold off their surge made the win that much better," Hale added.

In a JV boys' game last Tuesday night, Pampa lost to Palo Duro 46-41. Greg Ferguson led the Shockers with 16 points while Reggie Williams added 11.

The Lady Harvesters will also try and make it 2-0, meeting Palo Duro at 6 p.m. tonight in McNeely Fieldhouse.

The Pampa girls led all the way in defeating Caprock 67-42 Tuesday night.

Palo Duro girls suit up an experienced team with four returning starters, plus transfer Peggy Shepherd, a 5-7 playmaker who starred at Bovina last season. Shelanda Diggs, a 5-9 senior, returns a 10-point scoring average from last season.

"We'll look for a tough game against Palo Duro. They have a lot of jumping ability and quickness," said Pampa Coach Albert Nichols.

The junior varsity teams also play tonight, starting at 6 p.m. in the girls' gym.

Are Oilers for real?

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

They still don't believe the Houston Oilers.

The Oilers, tied with Cleveland for the AFC Central lead at 6-3, entertain the Browns Sunday at the Astrodome — as underdogs. Cleveland is favored by two points, which means the oddsmakers think they're really five points better, discounting the Home-Dome advantage.

There are two factors working here besides the Dome.

The first is that Houston has talent, young talent that isn't used to big games. The second is that Cleveland has experience that can capitalize on the mistakes of youth.

But Warren Moon isn't young.

A vote for talent.

OILERS 27-24. San Diego (plus 7) at Seattle

SEAHAWKS, 24-13. New York Giants (plus 2) at New Orleans

GIANTS, 20-19. Indianapolis (plus 2) at New England

COLTS, 20-13. San Francisco (minus 6) at Tampa Bay

49ERS, 24-20. Miami (plus 2) at Dallas (Sunday night)

COWBOYS, 31-24. St. Louis (plus 6½) at Philadelphia

EAGLES, 27-10. Denver (minus 2) at Raiders

BRONCOS 33-24. Rams (plus 10) at Washington (Monday night)

REDSKINS, 20-13.

OTHER GAMES (Home teams in CAPS)

CINCINNATI (minus 5½) 24, Pittsburgh 21.

CHICAGO (no line) 30, Detroit 20.

MINNESOTA (minus 13½) 31, Atlanta 10.

Buffalo (plus 3½) 20, JETS 17.

Green Bay (plus 4) 21, KANSAS CITY 20.

Last Week: 7-7 (spread); 9-5 (straight up).

Season (non-strike games) 44-40 (spread); 50-33-1 (straight up).

Controversial HB 72 developing positive results

■COWBOY COMMENTARY: "Cowboy tickets and parking for four home games. Will sell all or individually." (Classified ad in the Amarillo Daily News this past week.)

OTTO RICE, president of the Pampa High School Class of 1935 and who still accepts that responsibility with pride, continues to shepherd his flock. He sends word that a very popular member of that class, Bill Parks, died in October in Dallas of Alzheimer's Disease.

"Bill played guard on Odus Mitchell's football teams (the 1933 team won district and lost to San Angelo in the quarterfinals) and was a member of Ben Guill's drama group. At Texas Tech he was president of several organizations, and was listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

"During World War II Bill was an officer in the Marine Corps," says class President Otto. Parks went on to attend Stanford University and graduated from University of Texas Law School and practiced law in Dallas, where his wife, Betsy, still resides.

Thanks, Otto, for the information which I am sure all longtime Harvester fans will appreciate. And Otto, folks, is a great example of Harvester Pride and dedication!!

■IN THE NEARLY 13 years I have been closely acquainted with Maurice Cheeks I can only recall two occasions he asked for something. Once was a ride from point A to point B and back in another state; and second was an important request. "Would you go down to West Texas and see how many hours I need to graduate?" I did...and he did! So it was surprising when he asked his Philadelphia 76er Coach Matty Goukas to make him a team co-captain. Surprising until we found the reason.

"It won't ever be the same without No. 6 (Julius Erving) being here. It's so different. I don't know if I'll ever get used to it," says the nine-year NBA star

Sports Forum

By Warren Hasse

who most experts say is the best pure point guard in the game.

Erving had been the team's sole captain almost since the day he first donned the red, white and blue uniform. When Cheeks joined the club as a quiet, not too world-wise rookie from West Texas State nine years ago, Erving personally took him under his wing. Dr. J. drove him to practice and games, fed him, sheltered him from the Big City, led him along the paths that made The Doctor the favorite of teammates, opponents and fans alike.

But when Cheeks heard that husky teammate Charles Barkley, the one-time "round mound of rebound" known for his numerous explosions of immaturity, had asked to be named captain, Cheeks made his move. Fearing the necessary leadership wouldn't be provided by Barkley, Maurice went to Goukas and asked to share the job. Goukas quickly and happily agreed.

"He's done everything we've ever asked him, uncomplainingly. The last two years we've asked Mo to increase his scoring and he's done it each year. I'm sure he can do it again," said Goukas of his leader.

Cheeks may have to go back to his coach with one more request, as I learned early while broadcasting his games in college. Trying to save airtime in a fast-paced game I, too, referred to the freshman from Chicago as 'Mo'.

His lone, soft-spoken almost apologetic, to-the-point statement was: "My name's Maurice". And it has been with me ever since, and is today with almost all of the world of basketball. But Captain Cheeks of the Sixers surely does sound beautiful!

■LIKE IT OR NOT, coaches, the no pass-no play aspect of hotly controversial HB 72 is working. Now in effect for two years, there is some history available to the Texas Education Agency, and it is positive.

Using the state's largest school districts where the greatest volume of students of all backgrounds could be quickly assessed, the study shows that in the Dallas ISD, the percentage of all students in grades 7-12 who failed one or more classes fell from 55.6 percent in 1985 to 46.4 percent in 1986. In Houston, the percentage of students in grades 9-12 who failed at least one class declined from 53.4 to 41.1 percent over the same period.

Only 37 of the 1,751 varsity football players on the state's top 50 teams (2.1 percent) had failed a class in the first six weeks of last season, and 29 of those teams reported no failures.

The TEA report explains that students may be working harder, but it is also true that some may also be avoiding more difficult classes such as algebra II, chemistry and foreign languages.

But the report also emphasizes that "it appears that students have gotten the message of the no pass, no play rule...that it will be enforced, and students must pass their classes in order to participate in extracurricular activities."
