Reagan pushes support for rebels

By MERRILL HARTSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in a State of the Union address brimming with optimism, proclaimed an American economic and military reawakening and vowed to push "to the finish line" for U.S. support of rebel movements in Nicaragua, Afghanistan and elsewhere.

Seeking a fresh start with Congress, Reagan invited both Democratic and Republican leaders to the White House today to discuss their legislative agendas

The president called during the nationally broadcast speech Monday for new assistance to Contra rebels battling the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua and for U.S. support of democracies elsewhere.

He talked of an "economic and social revolution of hope" in the United States and "global democratic revolution" around the world

But Democrats immediately dismissed much of the speech as irrelevant.

"We've come to the end of an era," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. "The feel-good' slogans have gone flat with time.'

Reagan promised to go ahead with plans to submit to Congress on Wednesday a request for new assistance for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

saying "the struggle has extra meaning because that nation is so near our own borders.

He asked for quick Senate confirmation of Supreme Court nominee Anthony M. Kennedy, sought prompt ratification of the U.S.-Soviet mediumrange missile treaty and offered a mocking critique of the congressional budget-making process that even brought laughs from some of the law-

Holding aloft several last-minute money bills that he said represented "43 pounds of paper and ink," Reagan said: "Congress shouldn't send another one of these, and if you do, I will not sign

But Democratic leaders declared that Reagan will not be able to set the national agenda in his final year in office.

House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said Reagan has failed to do enough to protect Americans' economic interests

"As important as our commitments abroad may be, our first obligation is to the American people and to their future," Wright said.

'We can't build a vibrant economy by just delivering pizzas to each other.

Reagan dismissed suggestions that he will be a lame-duck president by promising "a full agenda" in his remaining year in the White House. Reagan, who has used previous State of the Union addresses to honor people he considered national heroes, this time singled out his wife, Nancy, for her "Just Say No" anti-drug campaign.

He announced fewerew initiatives, except for a suggestion that the executive and legislative branches of government revise the budget-making process with "a joint agreement that sets out spending priorities within available revenues.

The address, otherwise, was studded with references to longtime Reagan goals - a balanced budget amendment, a line-item veto for presidents, a school prayer amendment, welfare reform and an anti-abortion amendment.

In an accompanying written message to Congress, Reagan said he will seek $1.5 billion for the fight against AIDS — a ten-fold increase over 1985 funding levels. He also broached the idea of reducing the tax on capital gains "as part of any future tax reform," but he did not offer a specific plan. He urged greater use of merit systems to reward teachers in public education and embraced a program of tax-free savings bonds to help parents pay for college He said he is determined to reduce the danger of nuclear war.

The Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty, he said, marks "an unprecedented achievement in arms reduction.

Police arrest 2 residents in cocaine drug bust here

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

A two-week undercover drug operation conducted at a southside bar and a westside residence has netted Pampa police two arrests with the possibility of at least two more.

Police arrested Tim Thornburg, 32, 1709 N. Zimmers St., and Evelyn Lemons, 28, 113 N. Nelson St., on warrants Monday. Both were charged with delivery of a controlled substance — about a gram of cocaine each — a second degree felony.

If found guilty, they face two to 20 years in prison and a maximum $10,000 fine

Thornburg was arrested at The Party Station, 600 S. Cuyler St., Monday night. He was later released on bond. Lemons was arrested several hours later at the Pampa Mall, 2545 Perryton Parkway, and was undergoing questioning by detectives this morning.

Pampa Police Chief Robert Eberz said today that the low-key undercover operation was carried out by a female agent on loan from another Panhandle jurisdiction. He declined to name where the officer was from out of fear for her safety.

During the two-week operation. Eberz said, the woman bought small amounts of cocaine from several individuals. The purchases were made at a southside drinking establishment and a house near Horace Mann School in west Pampa.

Engineer to examine structural damages at Brown Auditorium

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

An engineer from IRI International Corp. of Pampa will examine structural damage to M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium, the facility's advisory board learned Monday

City Building Inspector David McKinney told the board that moisture around the building had led to damage on the building's south wall in and around the women's rest room and on the floor at the north end of the Heritage Room.

McKinney said IRI had agreed to furnish a structural engineer to provide an estimate on the amount of damage and ways of correcting and preventing the Auditorium Manager Danny Parkerson added that he is awaiting an estimate on repairs to the south wall from Sawatzky Construction Inc. of Pampa.

Some of the damage may have been caused by the Hoechst Celanese Chemical Co. plant explosion that shook buildings and broke windows in November, but McKinney said he thinks most of it is due to the sprinkler system located next to the auditorium. He said the sidewalk surrounding part of the building is holding moisture in, leading to settling of the foundation.

"You need water outside around the foundation, but it should also run off ..." McKinney said. "My recommendation is to get the sprinkler system away from the building."

Parkerson noted that part of the parquet floor in the Heritage Room has been patched. He submitted a bid of $39,000 from Witt Builders Supply of Amarillo to replace the floor.

The board opted to wait for the IRI engineer's recommendation, which may involve replacing the parquet floor anyway.

Parkerson recommended asking the M.K. Brown Foundation for help with the repairs.

In other action Monday, the board began planning for 1988's Fourth of July festivities.

Board members Lance DeFever and Floye Christian were designated to co-chair outdoor activities, while Parkerson will be in charge of the annual talent search inside the auditorium.

Parkerson said activities are scheduled to begin Friday, July 1, and end Sunday, July 3. In addition to the talent competition, scheduled activities include a street dance, a car show, a Sunday morning worship service, food booths and concessions.

Parkerson said game booths and arts and crafts booths probably will be done away with this

The board also:

discussed the possibility of the auditorium sponsoring several shows in 1988, including a Christian act, a country and western show and a professional stage production:

viewed a new painting donated to the auditorium by Irene Webb of Gray County in memory of her late husband Charlie:

discussed the purchase of new table skirting and Christmas decorations for the auditorium; and discussed the possibility of obtaining a new spinet piano for the Heritage Room by donation.

36 German students to visit Canadian in exchange project

By CATHY SPAULDING Staff Writer

CANADIAN - The world will become a little smaller in March and June when Canadian High School students trade places with German students.

Canadian High School Principal Marlin Marcum said Monday that 36 students from Hofgeismar, West Germany, will visit Canadian March 28-April 20. While here, they will attend classes at the high school and live with local families

In exchange, 20 CHS students will venture to Germany June 16-July 13 to live with families and attend classes there

Marcum said the exchange was arranged between Canadian schools and four schools in the Hofgeismar area and is not part of any organized exchange program such as Rotary or American Field Service. The exchange was arranged through CHS English and journalism teacher Lea Podzemy, whose sister is married to a Hofgeismar resident.

"Their contact called us," Marcum said, adding that while he is not aware of any such exchange in Texas, schools in Hudson, Ohio, have offered the exchange program for the past eight years.

Marcum said that he tried to arrange a direct exchange — 36 families in Canadian exchanging with 36 families in Germany but the school has only been able to muster 20 Canadian students to

The exchange students' families are responsible for air transportation and insurance to Germany, which Marcum estimates will run $650 for air fare round The Canadian host families are responsible for room and board for the German students. Marcum said he has located hosts for almost all the students

Marcum said that all but one of the students coming to Canadian are in the 9th, 10th, or 11th grades and are coming during their Easter vacation

"They will miss some school in their country,", Marcum said. When the students arrive, high school counselor Hoyt Lovelace will arrange a class schedule for each student. Emphasis will be placed on American history, government, economics and literature. Electives will be based on the students' interests

Marcum added that because of their short stay, the German students will not be eligible for any extra-curricular activities.

But we will take them to a track meet," Marcum said, adding that field trips are being arranged through the River Valley Area Pioneer Museum and area oil companies Canadian Chamber of Commerce Manager Diane Black said she has prepared and sent area information packets to the visiting students, but she has not yet arranged any area tours.

'We will try to make it a real good time for them," Black said, adding that the German students will probably be interested in such "Texas things" as ranches and rodeos. At 5,000 people, Hofgiesmar is slightly larger than Canadian. Nearby Kassel has about 300,000 residents. The towns are in the north central part of West Germany, within 20 miles of the East German border.

Marcum said the invitation to go to Germany was extended to all students with priority given to student leaders and older stu-

Canadian students scheduled to go to Germany are seniors Shonna Dyess, Howard Varnell, Matt McGarr, Wayne Hand, Molly Krehbiel and Christi Peery; uniors Denise Cleveland, Chris Sieker, Angie Cogdill and Brian Hoobler; sophomores Gabriel Brown, Jared Lee, Dana Dennis, Roberta Kendall, Krista Lovelace, Toby Schaef and Sonja Hoggatt, and freshmen Mark Cornett, Kim Wainwright and Larry Thomas.

CHS biology teacher John Shaller and librarian Wyvonne McDaniel will also go to Germany.

GOP's Robertson sketches national energy

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican presidential candidate Pat Robertson says the next great breakthrough in energy will bear a made-in-America stamp.

"We are hereby putting the world on notice that the next great breakthrough in energy development will not be made in Japan or Mexico or Canada or Saudi Arabia," he said. "It will be made in America. And by God's help it will be made by Americans, and by Texans."

Robertson on Monday offered his version of a national energy policy and said the current generation of Americans may win or lose world peace in the oil fields of the Middle East.

He said the United States does not need an oil import fee but should use other methods of becoming independent of foreign oil within four years.

He compared that goal to former President John Kennedy's challenge in the early 1960s to put a man on the moon within a decade.

Robertson said the United States must negotiate long-term mutually beneficial contracts to obtain oil from Canada, Mexico and Venezuela, then take matters into its own hands.

'That which threatens freedom in this day and time screams from the oil fields of the Middle East. It is there that this generation of Americans will win the peace, or possibly lose it," Robertson said in a speech at the Capitol.

Approximately 500 to 600 supporters crowded into the Senate Chamber after the balcony was closed for apparent security reasons.

In releasing his own energy plan for the first time, the former television preacher called for reinstatement of the 271/2 percent oil depletion allowance and repeal of the so-called windfall pro-

Robertson said Congress should declare a "tax holiday" for two years on all new oil wells drilled in the continental United States.

That proposal drew the loudest applause from an audience which interrupted his 22-minute speech 18 times with applause and cheers.

He said conservation incentives must be given to the energy industry and strategic reserves should be increased from 500 million barrels to 1 billion bar-

He also asked the energy industry to commit itself "to making ours the first nation to develop safe nuclear fusion as an energy source.'

In other political developments: South Texas elected officials announced a committee of more than 1,000 residents of that area support Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis for the Democratic presidential nomination. The Dukakis supporters are from 32 counties.

State Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, said Dukakis' "proven record of job creation and innovative government is what gets people's attention in the Rio Grande Valley.

"He's created almost 300,000 jobs in Massachusetts in the last three years. We need jobs, and we believe a Dukakis presidency will end government's complacency and get things moving again,"

Uribe told a Capitol news conference. Attorney General Jim Mattox said his office will turn over information it has gathered on apparently forged Republican presidential candidate petitions to the Harris and Travis county district attorneys.

"We are coming to the conclusion that it would be best to allow them to carry on the investigation. We will do our own review of the matter after their work is completed to see what action has been and determine whether or not additional areas need to be covered," said Mattox, a Democrat.

Illinois Sen. Paul Simon's campaign for the Democratic nomination said Illinois businessman Bernie Alchon would visit seven Texas counties Wednesday through Friday on Simon's behalf.

Railroad Commission candidate Jerry Langdon said incumbent Jim Nugent "laid a giant dinosaur egg" at this past weekend's Mexican American Democrats convention, getting only about 25 percent of the vote. Langdon, a Midland oil and gas consultant, said he received the support of 64 percent of the delegates, just short of the two-thirds needed for formal MAD endorsement.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he will lead the fight during upcoming conference committee negotiations on federal trade legislation to repeal the windfall profit tax. "That conference will be our best opportunity to repeal the windfall profit tax in 1988, and repeal will be one of my highest priorities," he said.

Dallas Appeals Court Judge Charles Ben Howell said he has filed a motion seeking to disqualify the current Texas Supreme Court justices from hearing a lawsuit he has filed.

Howell, a GOP candidate for the Supreme Court, said of the Democraticdominated court, "Each of the ... justices harbors a personal bias or prejudice" against him.

Plants closed by radiation contamination

DALLAS (AP) - Radioactive particles that apparently leaked from air guns used to eliminate static at a chemical company's facilities were probably not ingested by employees, a spokesman said.

The Ashland facilities were exposed to low-level radiation in a leak discovered Saturday night, company officials said.

While ingestion of these particles is possible, even if they are ingested, the particles should pass through the body without any harmful side effects," Ashland spokesman Peter Loscocco said Monday.

Officials of 3M Corp. on Monday halted sales of the air guns at the order of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission until they found the cause of the apparent leak.

Testing was still ongoing but results should be available soon, Loscocco said

"As far as the health hazards. we had some thorough discussions with the NRC and 3M technical experts," he said. "Based on those discussions, we believe those health hazards associated with the radiation leak from the units are minimal.

not want to downplay any impact of the malfunctioning units. "Our employees' welfare is our primary concern here," he said.

The Texas Bureau of Radiation Control in Austin was conducting tests to reveal whether workers had ingested or inhaled any of the radioactive particles that leaked from the cleaning devices.

'We are taking blood and urine samples from all employees who were in the room in which the static elimination devices malfunctioned," said David Lacker, agency director.

He said it appears the radiation leakage was confined to one room at the Dallas plant.

Loscocco said the two plants. which bottle acids used in the manufacture of semiconductors. will remain closed during testing and cleanup. All 37 employees in Dallas and 90 employees in Easton, Pa., were being tested.

The NRC staff on Monday ordered 3M to suspend distribution of the models of guns used at the two plants, models in the company's 900 series, until the cause of the leaks is found and corrective action is approved by the commission.

A two-man team sought to determine how the ceramic microspheres leaked from air guns leased from 3M Corp., 3M spokesman Dennis Mick said from the 3M Static Control Systems Division in Austin.

The radiation leak was discovered Saturday night after officials checked equipment similar to that involved in radiation leaks found Thursday at Ashland's plant in Easton, 60 miles north of Philadelphia, Loscocco said.

The company notified the NRC and state officials of the contamination at the Dallas plant, Loscocco said.

Officials of 3M were ordered to inform all users of the incident, to call for user reports of anything similar and to test other devices to come up with a "comprehensive test plan which will provide a high degree of assurance that any other leaking devices will be identified," said an announcement from the commission's staff headquarters in Bethesda, Md., near Washington.

A third Ashland plant, in Newark, Calif., showed no contamination, an NRC spokesman said Sunday.

DALLAS (AP) — Hundreds marched on City Hall and motorists turned on headlights to show support for police as authorities prepared for a memorial service for an officer gunned down by a man officials say was egged on by onlookers.

Thousands of people were expected at today's memorial services for 35-year-old Officer John Chase, who was shot to death with his own gun Saturday after a struggle with a deranged vagrant who was later fatally shot by other officers Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot and oilman Ray Hunt have offered planes to transport officers to Chase's funeral Thursday in Des Moines, Iowa. Fort Worthbased American Airlines offered a jet to fly officers and family members to Des Moines.

'What's occurred today is unprecedented in terms of the calls. the expressions of support and sympathy for officers," police spokesman Ed Spencer said late Monday

Investigators today also planned to re-interview some of the 45 bystanders to try to identify the two to 10 onlookers who according to witnesses yelled "Shoot him, shoot him," during the confrontation, said Spencer.

Capt. John Holt said bystanders may be prosecuted if police find they did goad the vagrant on.

Saturday morning's killing was the second fatal shooting of a Dallas police officer within two

Although Chase was white and the 34-year-old vagrant, Charles Dudley Williams, and many of the onlookers were black, police do not believe the shooting was racial

However, the predominantly white department has been criticized for several shootings of nonwhites and accused of being out of touch with minorities

Police Chief Billy Prince ointed to the critics as a factor behind the shooting.

'The feeling and atmosphere of controversy and criticism that permeated this past year ... you take someone a little mentally deranged, and the circumstances are just right and they're on the edge, it makes them just bold enough to attack an officer," he Initially, leaders of the Dallas

Police Association said critics, in particular two black City Council members, wouldn't be welcome at today's service. But they changed their mind after Mayor Annette Strauss met with Chase's relatives and said she would attend

The mayor also denied that criticism of police led to the shooting. She said City Council granted many police requests during last year's budget negotiations despite lean revenue.

In response to the Chase shooting, Dallas residents formed police booster groups and organized pro-police events.

On Monday, hundreds marched 11/2 miles between the John F. Kennedy Memorial and City Hall, with some carrying signs reading "God Bless Our Men and Women in Blue" and "Police Are People, Too.'

One group sought to have a monument to police erected, while another planned to hold a vigil in front of City Hall. The Dallas Crime Commission announced a "Thumbs Up" bumper sticker campaign. Groups also are distributing black ribbons and asked motorists to turn on headlights in a silent daytime show of support.

Just before Saturday's shooting, Chase stopped a man driving a car that police computers said was owned by someone with an outstanding warrant, Holt said.

Holt said the driver told investigators Chase was polite and didn't mistreat him, and that when the vagrant approached him, holding Chase's gun, he left the scene at the vagrant's request, and did not see the shooting.

Williams argued with Chase and grabbed the officer's .44caliber Magnum pistol, said police spokeswoman Vicki Haw-

Regents affirm commitment to A&Ms College of Medicine

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A report showing that Texas A&M University's College of Medicine is the most cost-effective of the state's eight medical schools prompted regents to pledge unequivocal commitment to the college.

The report, compiled by Interim Dean of Medicine Sam Black, also showed research funding at A&M's 10-year-old medical school has grown from $50,000 in 1977 to more than $3 million last year, a level that exceeds most of the state's universities.

The A&M system's board of regents pledged their commitment to the college Monday after receiving the report.

Graduates of the college have scored better on national licensing examinations in many recent years than other medical students elsewhere in

At the same time, the school's per-student cost has gone from one of the highest to one of the lowest, in addition to having an overall operations budget among the lowest of any medical school in the state, Black said.

According to figures compiled by the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, perstudent general revenue expenditures for the Texas A&M College of Medicine was $39,400, more than $6,000 lower than the mean average of the state's medical schools.

Texas A&M's medical program is the smallest in the state, admitting 48 students each year. It operates without a state-supported teaching hospital.

The college conducts its first two years on the College Station campus and receives clinical phase instruction and experience at the Scott & White Hospital and the Olin E. Teague Veterans Administration Hospital in Temple.

Also on Monday, regents Chairman David G. Eller said two committees will be involved in the national search for a successor to outgoing A&M President Frank E. Vandiver.

Eller said a nine-member search advisory committee will make recommendations to a fivemember presidential selection committee, which will present its final recommendation to the board.

"The chancellor (Perry L. Adkisson) has been authorized to initiate the search immediately with the goal of having the new president of Texas A&M University in office by Sept. 1, 1988," Eller said.

Vandiver, who announced earlier this month he was resigning so he can establish a national defense "think tank" at the university, will serve on the search advisory committee. Eller said he asked Adkisson to serve on both committees.

Parks officials trying to return undeveloped beach to parks system

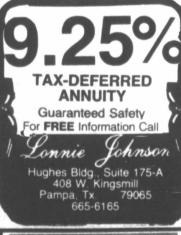

216-acre piece of beach that generated controversy when the Texas land commissioner tried to lease it to a developer may be returned to the state's parks

Negotiations begin this week to return Brazos Island to the state parks system, but Playa del Rio Inc. apparently will retain a road easement granted by the General Land Office, said Andrew Sansom, coordinator of land acquisition and management for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Depart-

The piece of beach near the mouth of the Rio Grande became the subject of controversy in 1986 when Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro attempted to lease it to Playa del Rio, which plans to build a 12,500-acre, $8 billion resort development to include areas north and south of Brazos

'We would very much like to take it (Brazos Island) back and manage it on some basis as a park or a preserve," Sansom

Environmentalists have fought development of the area, maintaining it is a sensitive wetland and part of a shrinking wildlife habitat in the lower Rio Grande Valley. Others, however, see the ambitious development by the Brownsville-based company as a source of jobs and economic sti-

But in 1986, the General Land Office, whose purpose is to earn money from state lands, took the land back. The 1957 transfer to the parks system had been deemed invalid because the parks department never paid the land office for the property, as The state Legislature in 1957 required by the state.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Federal controls hamper education

America's 30-year plunge in educational standards coincides with the rise of federal funding and control. This is no coincidence. The federal bucks have brought long puppet strings extending to Washington.

Schoolmen spend more and more time meeting the vast paperwork and other requirements of federal programs, rather than establishing discipline and teaching the three R's. And only a cockeyed optimist would expect that the feds, whose incompetence was on display recently when Congress passed a budget almost three months late, could do any better at educating kids.

This isn't to say that the federal government sometimes doesn't do something worthwhile. At an editorial meeting with a newspaper last month, Education Secretary William Bennett announced a preliminary version of a core curriculum list he was preparing for American high schools. He also commended James A. Garfield High School in East Los Angeles for surmounting large obstacles, including the poverty of the school's students, to implement a similar program.

In Washington, Bennett officially proposed the curriculum, and again commended Garfield High. All this is to the good, but concerned teachers, principals and parents already knew what should be taught. The real problem is that federal controls have hindered their efforts.

The best way for the federal government to advance American educational standards is to have no policy or programs at all. Alas, the federal government may soon get a chance to make matters even worse. Federal bureaucrats and misguided school officials are now pushing for a mationalized testing system. They say America is the only major country without one

Ramsay W. Selden, head of the testing arm of the Council of Chief State School Officers, which represents state school superintendants, said, "The old view of states and local districts doing their own thing is obsolete." This is really an amazing state-Selden is saving essentially that the school superintendants who employ him are incompetent and need federal help. Wouldn't it be easier if he urged these presumed incompetents to quit? Or that the state governors replace them?

Those who urge federal control themselves need a remedial course in American history and government. The founding fathers established a federal system in which the states acted in most respects like independent countries. The founders would be aghast if they could observe the federal octopus that has suffocated the precious state, local and individual liberties they enshrined in the Bill of Rights.

Anyway, the nation already has a functional national testing system, the Scholastic Aptitude Tests, operated by the private Educational Testing Service. And a federal test almost certainly would be a variant of the SAT's much-criticized multipleguess system; indeed, ETS might end up writing the test, as it already writes military tests.

What's more, many top universities are dropping the SAT and similar tests from their criteria for judging prospective students because they don't contain essay questions and other true tests of ability. Typically, the feds are pushing to establish something that's becoming obsolete.

Censorship reasoning wrong

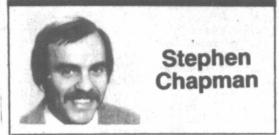

In its decision allowing a principal to censor a high school newspaper, complained dissenting Justice William Brennan, the Supreme Court gave the students an unexpected civics lesson, teaching them "to discount important principles of our government as mere platitudes."

The decision, written by Justice Byron White. is distressing less for its outcome than for its reasoning - though the outcome was also mistaken. The court, reaching a verdict that doubtless will please many conservatives, showed no respect for the conservative belief that judges should not deal with questions they don't have to. It granted school administrators far broader authority than they require to carry out their legitimite duties, and narrowed student rights far more than is necessary or wise.

The case arose when students at a public school in St. Louis, putting out a paper as part of a journalism course, wanted to publish articles dealing with teen-age pregnancy and with the effects of divorce on children. The principal ordered the articles removed. Three of the student journalists sued, but the Supreme Court sided with the principal.

Schools, of course, are not settings of unlimited freedom. Students are restricted in a host of ways: their attendance is mandatory, their courses are mostly chosen for them, the assignments they perform are not optional. All these constraints are designed to advance society's purpose of educating young people.

But there are limits on what administrators can impose on children, even in schools. One limit was erected in a 1969 case involving a student who had worn a black armband to school to protest U.S. policy in Vietnam. Despite the principal's objections, the Supreme Court dismissed the idea that "either students or teachers shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate.

When the exercise of those rights interferes with the smooth functioning of the school, the court said, they may be curtailed. But the school administration must be able "to show that its action was caused by something more than a mere desire to avoid the discomfort and unpleasantness that always accompany an unpopular viewpoint.

In this case, though, the court labored mightily to ignore those words. The principal's action reflected other fears — that the anonymous pregnant students quoted in one article might be identified, that the material about sex might be inappropriate for teen-agers, that the parents of the students quoted about divorce might resent the publicity. His fears, in other words, reflected a fear not of disturbances but of "discomfort and unpleasantness.

The court devised unpersuasive excuses for this anomaly. "A school need not tolerate student speech that is inconsistent with its 'basic educational mission.'" It also claimed that for a school to suppress a student's personal express- the court offered ion of his opinion is one thing, but to decline to 'lend its name and resources to the dissemination of student expression" is another.

A defensible argument for the decision is that, in student newspapers as in other ones, whoever is bankrolling the publication has the ultimate say in what goes into it. But there are limits there too: No one would argue, and no Supreme Court would rule, that a principal could ban articles about Democratic officeholders while permitting those about Republicans. When the government is underwriting this sort of venture, it may be free to dictate the types of articles but not the content.

And the court's decision went beyond this rationale, arguing that any speech can be banned unless it fits the school's educational mission. As University of Chicago law professor Michael McConnell notes, that would allow administrators to ban a student-published newspaper that was produced outside of school and supported by its own revenues, as many college papers are. There would be no state subsidy: there would be no danger that the publication would carry the implied endorsement of the administrators. But the censorship apparently would still have the blessing of this court.

Students shouldn't be free to publish anything they choose in official school publications, but the limits imposed on them should be no tighter than necessary for the protection of children and the functioning of public schools. We shouldn't forget that we are dealing here with newspapers, whose importance in disseminating ideas was judged by the framers to be great enough to warrant special constitutional protection. Overriding that protection, even for a student publication, warrants better reasons than

I wish O.P. Evans had lived long enough to have known of controversial "Crazy Joe" Clark, the Patterson, N.J., high school principal who took over an urban school with a reputation for drugs, fights, stabbings and rapings and turned it into a model institution where students now actually are learning something.

O.P. Evans was principal of Newnan Ga. High School, where I was a student from 1960 until I graduated in 1964.

Mr. Evans, and I cannot refer to him in any other way, was a tall, reed-like man, with dark hair, bushy eyebrows, and there was a certain commanding presence about him.

He opened each of his many addresses to the student body by pulling forth an old tattered Bible he had carried since his Army days. It was held together by a rubber band and the Lord's

"When I was a child..." he would begin reading from the Scriptures with his deep, foreboding voice. God must have been quite pleased to hear his messages delivered in such a striking manner.

Mr. Evans did not have as tough a job as Joe Clark has. He principalled in a simpler time. His students, during my enrollment, were all white and mostly middle-class who still feared and respected authority.

But had he ever been confronted with Joe Clark's problems, I think he would have handled them in the same manner as Crazy Joe. - Joe Clark carries a baseball bat at Eastside

Certain members of the Newman boys basketball team were involved in the theft of a small amount of fireworks at a roadside restaurant where the team had stopped while returning home after a game.

Mr. Evans kicked each player involved off the team, suspended him from school and then called in the sheriff. To my knowledge none of the boys involved stole again.

 Joe Clark chained a firedoor shut to keep dealers out of his school.

 Mr. Evans made a grocery store adjacent to the school grounds off limits because some students were slipping off to the store during the lunch period and buying candy - the sugar which, Mr. Evans said, was responsible for poor nutrition, bad teeth, acne and a shortening of the attention span.

To Sen. Gore: don't bash Iowa's voters

By ROBERT WALTERS

COLFAX, Iowa (NEA) - The big news these days here on the banks of the South Skunk River is the mid-January fire that severely damaged Lenny's Barber Shop in this strug-Iowa farming gling central community.

The blaze apparently started on what's known locally as a davenport, a piece of furniture referred to elsewhere as a couch or sofa. It's a popular topic of conversation because it follows by only a few weeks a fire that broke out in a locker plant in the nearby community of Mingo.

When asked about the presidential campaign in general, or Iowa's Feb. 8 precinct caucuses in particular, however, folks here in Jasper County usually offer either taciturn responses or quizzical looks.

"I live in the country, I haven't heard much talk about it," says farmer Bob Luther. "Most folks won't get into it until the field is narrowed down," adds retiree Oliver Smith. Shopkeeper Harold Taylor says he's not especially impressed with the quality of the candidates, then bemoans the fact that "they're starting too early. That brief portrait of life here in

Colfax is offered in support of the contention that Iowa residents generally are thoroughly sensible people when dealing with presidential politics, even when their state begins the delegate selection process.

That's important to understand because in recent years the two states that vote first in presidential campaigns - Iowa and New Hampshire routinely have been depicted as havens for political zealots, ideological fanatics and assorted other misfits thoroughly unrepresentative of the population elsewhere in the country. When New Hampshire had the honor all to itself, its voters were portrayed as too conservative, too cranky and too irascible. Now that Iowa votes even earlier, its residents are characterized as too liberal, too fixated upon agriculture and too peace-oriented.

Are Iowa and New Hampshire typical of the nation? Of course not. Both are relatively low population states with a high share of rural residents but very few members of minority groups

But what two other states would be thoroughly representative of the en-tire country? Idaho and New Jersey? Arizona and Rhode Island? Louisiana and North Dakota? The Iowa-New Hampshire combination is surely no worse - and perhaps a little better than any other.

Because farm products are among this country's leading exports, Iowa's abiding interest in agriculture is directly linked to the larger, crucial issue of international trade. Similarly, New Hampshire's concern about the future of the state's high-technology industries is a manifestation of the nation's sometimes difficult transition to a post-industrial economy.

The entire delegate selection process following the voting in Iowa in New Hampshire is a "wholesale" affair dominated by impersonal forms of politician-to-voter contact, notably television commercials. Only the first two states, with their manageable populations, allow the luxury of faceto-face "retail" politics. Leading the pack of Iowa-bashers this year has been Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., a previously classy politician who has displayed a proclivity for cheap stunts ever since he entered the presidential race.

"Some say the Iowa caucuses reward ideological purity rather than intellectual honesty," Gore pro-claimed in a speech at a major Democratic party dinner in Des Moines last autumn. "I won't ... change my tune and back down from my convictions ... I will not barter my beliefs to win votes here or elsewhere.'

In fact, the precinct caucus system here has never required politicians to make such compromises. But Gore, in a display of petulance, has slashed his Iowa campaign staff from 21 to four and virtually boycotted the state.

In addition to unfairly sullying the reputation of the state and its voters, Gore has ignored the admonition that one of the marks of adulthood is playing the cards you're dealt, rather than bemoaning the lack of a different

Man captured in girl's death 37 years ago

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Nebraska man was heading here today to face murder charges after incriminating himself in the strangling of an 8-year-old girl whose body was found at a Pennsylvania carnival 37 years ago, authorities said.

William Henry Redmond, 66, spent most of Monday and this morning traveling by train from Nebraska with a Pennsylvania state trooper who said he located Redmond shortly after the investigation was reopened in 1985.

Redmond, who operated a Ferris wheel at the carnival. "has made a statement to police inculpating himself" in the April 1951 slaying of Jane Marie Althoff, Delaware County District Attorney William Ryan said Monday.

An arrest warrant in the case was issued for Redmond in January 1952 but apparently was never served because he left the carnival and could not be located, police said

Redmond, who has been arrested twice on child molestation charges, was arrested Friday in Grand Island, Neb.

Redmond was a Ferris wheel operator with the Penn-Premier Show carnival that had stopped in the nearby town of Trainer in late April 1951. Jane Marie was found dead on the front seat of a truck at the carnival grounds on April 26, 1951, Ryan said. She had been strangled the previous night, he

The truck cab was covered with fingerprints matching those of Redmond, police said.

Redmond, bent by age and slowed by emphysema, sat quietly during a Monday evening stopover in Unicago. The state troop er, Malcolm Murphy, would not let Redmond speak to a reporter.

Murphy said he had been working on the case since October 1985 after police in Trainer told him about the girl's death.

Shultz said the treaty's anti-cheating provisions, which include authorization for on-site inspections, comprise "the most stringent and comprehensive scheme of verification in the history of arms control."

But those promises Monday weren't enough to satisfy conservative Republican critics.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., told Shultz: "This treaty is an engraved invitation to cheat. I am confident that the Soviets, right now, have plans to cheat. In fact they are cheating - right now."

Helms offered no evidence for that contention, but he did wave a document at Shultz which Helms said proves the Soviets are cheating. He declined to reveal details of the document, marked "TOP SECRET."

The INF treaty, signed by President

Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev in December, provides that within three years of ratification both nations will eliminate all of their nuclear-tipped missiles with ranges from 315 to 3,125 miles.

To win ratification, it will need the support of 67 members, two-thirds, of the Democratic-controlled Senate. A vote in the full Senate is expected by Senate GOP Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said late Monday that he thought the INF pact would be easily approved. "I'd say by about an 88-12 vote," Dole said after Reagan's State of the Union speech. He didn't name the 12 senators he thought would vote against the pact.

While Shultz was grilled by Helms, Carlucci faced similar queries from Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind., who said he sees "potential major loopholes" that may "come back to haunt us unless we pin them down.

Quayle's chief complaint was with Article 14 of the treaty, which says both nations won't enter into any "international obligations or undertakings which would conflict with its provi-

That restriction needs to be more clearly defined, said Quayle.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., also said verifying Soviet compliance was his major concern.

For example, McCain said, "there are major contradictions between virtually all of the data" the panel was given last year on Soviet nuclear weapons and new information provided in the treaty's annex.

Shultz pledged to "react vigorously to questionable Soviet activities."

"We have the willpower to press them on our concerns ...," he said. "If we detect a Soviet action that seems in violation of their INF treaty obligations, we will press them on it.

Carlucci said any Soviet violation should have to be "militarily signficant" to force a formal U.S. response. "Our job is not to spank the Soviets," he said. "Our job is to deter."

But Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, told Carlucci, "I'm disturbed by our absence of a clearly set-out policy on what happens if there is a violation.'

Crowe said the military has "high confidence" that it "can detect breaches of treaty provisions by the Soviet Union before such violations become militarily significant.

Reagan trying to direct attention to Sandinistas

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan is trying to capitalize on congressional nervousness about Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government to build support for the request he will make Wednesday for new aid for the opposition Contra rebels.

The focus is on the Sandinistas, their promises and their actions," Reagan said Monday night in his State of the Union speech, the most visible lobbying platform he will have before the Contra aid request goes to a showdown vote in the House next

Reagan will submit a formal request for between $40 million and $50 million in renewed aid for the rebels, with about 10 percent of that amount designated for weapons and ammunition, and the rest for "non-lethal" supplies, said a senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity. The money would keep the Contras in the field through July.

"We are going to request an amount that is a sustainment level, that will allow us to keep the force in being, but we are not looking for a major increase in the size of the force or the capability of the force," said the offi-

Administration officials have said the lethal aid portion probably would be held in escrow for a time, until it is determined whether a cease-fire can be arranged between the Contras and the Managua government.

In a statement, the Nicaraguan government denounced Reagan's decision to ask for more aid, saying he is opting "for war and impoverishment in Central America, instead of for peace and prosperity.

Both Reagan and Contra opponents are trying to woo the three. dozen or so House members who remain undecided on the issue, and both sides say the Feb. 3 House vote to decide the future of U.S. policy in Central America will be extremely close.

Those who oppose aid gained momentum 10 days ago when Nicaragua's president, Daniel Ortega, agreed to a series of concessions in order to keep alive a peace plan signed by Nicaragua and its four neighbors.

Democratic opponents of new aid to the Contra rebels have been eager for a showdown vote on the administration aid request, believing they can derail Reagan's policy and at the same time hand Republicans an election-year political defeat.

Coastal storm pelts Northeast; wind blows snow in Midwest

By The Associated Press

A "classic nor'easter" that whirled into New York and New England left a soggy blanket of up to 13 inches of wet snow today, caused scores of fender-benders and prompted travelers to flee for

A storm tapering off in the Great Lakes states left a foot of snow by Monday night. Icy winds caused drifting on slick highways in Minnesota and Wisconsin early today.

Since Sunday night, at least 10 traffic deaths were blamed on the storms.

The National Weather Service posted snow advisories this morning for much of New England, New York and New Jersey. Warnings of snow and blowing snow were posted in most of eastern and central Wisconsin, northern Illinois and north-central lower Michigan.

The Eastern storm left a foot of snow and sleet in Connecticut, closing Hartford's Bradley International Airport for two hours Monday and contributing to two traffic fatalities before tapering off this morning, officials said.

"It's a classic nor'easter because it developed on the (East) Coast and is spinning counterclock wise," said Mel Goldstein, director of the Weather Center at Western Connecticut State University Hardest hit were New York's lower Hudson Valley and the Catskill Mountains, where up to 20 inches was forecast. By early today at least 13 inches had fallen in Sullivan and Ulster counties, with 10 inches in Columbia County, according to the weather service in Albany.

About 20 travelers had stopped Monday night at the Howard Johnson motel in Liberty, N.Y., just to get off the slippery Catskill Mountain roads, said Debbie French, a desk clerk.

Minor accidents were reported by police agencies around eastern New York. Albany area police said there were scores of accidents.

Nine inches of snow had fallen by early today in Rockland County, north of New York City, where police attributed one fatal traffic accident to the weather and a county fire dispatcher said about 9,000 people lost electrical power.

A foot of snow and sleet in Connecticut, closed Bradley International Airport for two hours Monday and contributing to two traffic fatalities before tapering off this morning, officials said.

In western and central Massachusetts, including the Berkshire mountains, 5 to 6 inches of heavy, wet snow piled up. The storm brought rain to the eastern part of the state.

A 6-inch layer of snow over much of the Chesapeake Bay region caused at least three fatalities

In the Midwest, up to 15 inches of snow fell over night Monday in Ashland County, Wis., and the storm stranded scores of travelers in Minnesota. The snow was followed by wind gusts of 35 mph and below-zero temperatures.

Minnesota authorities blamed two traffic deaths on poor visibility caused by blowing snow.

Auto sales rise, home sales

By The Associated Press

Auto sales jumped in mid-January, but sales of existing single-family homes fell last year for the first time since the recession year of 1982, according to separate reports.

On Wall Street, the stock market staged a broad advance Monday in heavy trading as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 42.94 points to 1,946.45.

The stock market was helped by the dollar's relative stability and a continuing rise in bond prices that sent interest rates lower and made the potential returns on stocks more attractive, analysts said.

Mid-January sales of domestic cars and light trucks were up 32.7 percent from weak results a year ago, the automakers said.

'We've been expecting a more even (sales) pattern and this looks like what we're getting" compared with sales during much of 1987, said Jeannette Garretty, industry analyst with Bank of America in San Fran-

"This is a fairly positive sign regarding consumer spending and will be viewed as such," she said. "These numbers indicate that consumer sentiment regarding the economy continues to improve from the lows it hit in November immediately following the (Oct. 19) stock market crash.

The National Association of Realtors said home sales dropped about 1.3 percent to 3.52 million units last year, compared with a seven-year high of 3.57 million homes that had been resold in 1986.

Sales fell 3.8 percent in December, the group said.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) - The handcuffed body of Colombia's kidnapped attorney general was found outside Medellin after men believed working for drug traffickers riddled his car with machine gun fire and killed two bodyguards

While searching the countryside around Colombia's second-largest city for Attorney General Carlos Hoyos, security forces stumbled onto a Bogota mayoral candidate who was abducted by narcotics traffickers Jan. 18.

The candidate, Carlos Andres Pastrana, was unharmed and police said they captured one of his kidnappers. Pastrana, 34, is the son of former President Misael Pastrana.

Both Pastrana's kidnapping last week and Hoyos' murder Monday were claimed by a group calling itself "Los Extraditables," Spanish for those facing extradition. The group said it declared "total war" on the government or anyone else trying to extradite Colombians to the United States to face drug charges.

In Bogota, the president of the council of state, Carmelo Martinez, said Monday afternoon that Hoyos' attackers "can only be the drug traffickers the prosecutor has strongly condemned."

A man who telephoned radio network Caracol said Hoyos was "executed for betraying the country" in his drive to extradite Colombians to the United States, the radio reported.

"The war goes on. I repeat. The war goes on," the anonymous caller said, Caracol reported. The man gave the exact location of Hoyos' body. Hoyos, 49, was in Medellin on an investigation he ordered into the illegal release of an accused cocaine trafficker and was driving to the airport at 7:30 a.m. for a flight back to Bogota, 200 miles southeast

Six men in three jeeps and a car forced Hoyos' Mercedes Benz car off the road as it approached the airport entrance and began firing with submachine guns, witnesses said. Hoyos' driver and a bodyguard were killed and the attorney general was taken.

Security forces fanned out through the hills surrounding Medellin, the center of Colombia's drug trade, looking for Hoyos. Four hours later, troops came upon a remote farmhouse where Pastrana was discovered.

Shortly after, a Caracol reporter led authorities to a place about five miles from the farmhouse in a wooded area of the Andes, following directions from the anonymous caller. Hoyos' body was found at the location, said the governor of Antioquia province, Fernando Panesco.

The Caracol reporter said Hoyos was blindfolded, handcuffed and shot many times. Both the farmhouse and the place where Hoyos was found are about 15 miles southeast of Medellin and near the airport.

Pastrana had quit his job as a television news announcer to run for mayor of Bogota in nationwide mayoral elections March 13.

On his news program and in his campaign Pastrana had called for strong action against drug traffickers. He was kidnapped at his party's headquarters in Bogota and a communique from "Lost Extraditables" delivered to his family on Sunday.

In a radio interview, Pastrana said he was blindfolded and taken by helicopter to the farmhouse a day after his abduction in Bogota.

Members of the infamous Medellin Cartel drug ring have waged a bloody four-year war against efforts to prosecute them, and even offered to use their billions to pay off the Colombian national debt. Murder victims have included journalists, a justice minister and 21 judges handling drug cases.

The prosecutor recently ordered the investigation of two judges and five government officials for suspected involvement in Ochoa's release. As a result, the judges and four of the officials were fired. The fifth, Justice Minister Enrique Low Murta, is under investiga-

At least 20 killed in explosion, Armed escort fire at coal mine in Mexico

LAS ESPERANZAS, Mexico (AP) - Rescue workers pulled more bodies today from the charred depths of a coal mine, where an explosion and flash fire killed at least 20 men. Federal investigators said 18 people were still missing. Friends and relatives of the buried miners huddled around campfires outside the mine's entrances, about 80 yards from the mine shaft where workers were bringing victims to the surface. As bodies were slowly recovered, guards at the gates called for family members to come inside and identify them.

Jorge Antonio Bonita said he was asked to identify a body believed to be that of his brother.

'We couldn't tell who it was," Bonita said. "He didn't have a crown (on his tooth), so maybe it wasn't him.

Disaster struck in "Mine 41/2," operated by Compania Hullera Mexicana, at 8:30 a.m. Monday, about 11/2 hours after the first of the day's three shifts of workers entered it. Gerardo Acosta Garcia, an investigator with the federal Public Ministry, said 138 men were inside when an electricity transformer at one of the mine's substations short-circuited and caused the explosion and fire.

Twenty bodies were recovered, and 18 miners were still unaccounted for, Acosta said early today. But authorities did not know if all 18 were trapped inside or if some had walked away.

Acosta said 50 men were injured, five of them seriously, and about 50 others "walked out of the mine by themselves.

'We don't know how many more (bodies) we'll recover," he said in an interview at the gates outside the mine. "It's very difficult to say exactly how many are down there.

The mine is about 70 miles southwest of the Texas border community of Eagle Pass and a couple of miles outside this mining town in northern Coahuila state.

Acosta said the bodies, many burned beyond recognition, were being identified by family members or by the identification numbers of the lamps they carried with them underground. Rebecca Alfaro, mother of one of the missing workers, said she learned of the explosion on the Mrs. Alfaro said her 18-year-old son, Juan Hilario Redondo, started working at the mine just two months ago. 'We've been here since 11 in the morning (Monday), and we still don't know anything about him,' she said before dawn today

Aron Alfaro Garza, Redondo's uncle, complained that mine authorities were not giving family members information.

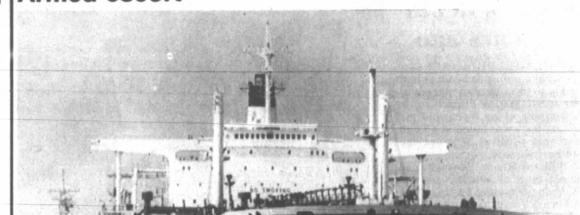

"It's total anguish. We see all the ambulances coming and going, and they don't tell us anything,'

Garza said. More than 100 firefighters from towns as far away as Monclova, about 50 miles south of Las Esperanzas, battled all day Monday to put out the Early reports produced conflicting numbers on how many miners were inside the mine at the time of the disaster.

Maria Teresa Mendoza, a spokeswoman for the mine owner, said in a telephone interview from Mexico City that there were 128 men inside. Rescue workers at the scene, however, said they obtained their figures from company documents at

"Here we have six, and 11 more are in a very serious condition at the Social Security hospital in the town of Nueva Rosita," Maria Teresa Jeiza, a spokeswoman at the Palau Social Security Hospital, said in a telephone interview.

TREATMENT FOR STIFF NECK

If you're suffering from a stiff neck, don't wait for it to take care of itself when treatment is available to correct it. Of all the bones in the spinal column, none are more easily injured or more vulnerable than the seven vertebrae in the neck None are moved more often. We are constantly turning our heads to look at people and things.

Neck stiffness can have many causes, from sudden and violent accidents to such simple activities as painting a ceiling or just sitting reading a book for a long time. But there's nothing simple about the pain.

A careful examination will reveal the source of the pain and how best to treat it. Any misaligned vertebrae in the spinal column should be properly adjusted so there will be no abnormal pressure on your nervous system. Treatment may also include exercises for the cervical muscles such as gently rotating your head in all directions. This can help restore muscle strength and tone.

The 15th anniversary edition of the presentations shown Monday night on ABC-TV also recognized the talent of Anita Baker, Whitney Houston and Paul Simon, the only other multiple winners with two apiece.

Luther Vandross, Reba McEntire, Janet Jackson, Michael Jackson, the country band Alabama and hard rockers Bon Jovi were also winners, reflecting the contrast in musical tastes of 20,000 people polled nationwide.

'It's just country music. I try to sing 'em with as much emotion as I can," the painfully shy Travis said backstage

Travis was voted top male country singer, his album "Always and Forever" was picked best country LP, and his single and video "Forever and Ever, Amen," were judged the favorites in those categories

Travis, a leader in the return to simpler, traditional country music roots, has been called a cross between Merle Haggard and George Jones.

Bill Boyd, executive director of the Academy of Country Music, said: "Randy's strictly a traditionalist. He's what we needed.

Miss Baker won favorite female soul-rhythm and blues singer and favorite album in that category for her nearly 2-year-old "Rapture" LP.

Miss Houston did win favorite pop-rock female vocalist and her "I Wanna Dance With Somebody (Who Loves Me)" won favorite single in the same category. Borrowing from the oft-stated phrase by multiple-winner Lionel Richie, she shouted, "This is outrageous," when she won her second trophy. Last year, Miss Houston won seven American Music Awards.

Miss McEntire won the favorite female vocalist in the country category and accepted via a satellite hook-up from a Nashville recording studio. Simon, who didn't attend, won favorite pop male vocalist. His Grammy-winning "Graceland" won favorite pop-rock album.

No-show Michael Jackson, winner of 11 previous American Music Awards, won in the soul rhythm and blues single category for "Bad."

Other winners included Bon Jovi for favorite pop-rock group, Cameo for favorite soul-rhythm and blues group, and Alabama as favorite country

For Alabama, it was the group's sixth American Music Award in that category and 11th overall. Janet Jackson, who like brother Michael also skipped the show, won the combined pop-rock, soul-rhythm and blues favorite video category for When I Think Of You.

Vandross won for favorite male soul-rhythm and blues male vocalist.

After the competitive awards were handed out, the remaining 18 minutes of the three-hour Shrine Auditorium show was dedicated to the presentation of the Award of Merit, given to the quintessential surf-rock group the Beach Boys.

Award ballots were sent to 20,000 members of the public selected by Herbert Altman Communications Research Inc. on the basis of age, sex, geographic location and ethnic origin.

Results of the voting were tabulated by Peat, Warwick, Mitchell and Co. accounting firm.

Ricky Joseph Martin, 21, of suburban Haltom City, was charged with capital murder Monday in connection with the Jan. 16 slaying of Deborah Leugemors, 34, whose body was found Jan. 17 in an office complex where she had been working late.

Martin was ordered held in the Tarrant County Jail without bond following an arraignment.

Fort Worth homicide Lt. Tommy Swan said Martin gave investigators a statement Sunday, but Swan declined to discuss the statement.

Leugemors was reported missing Jan. 17, when she failed to return home from working overtime at her office the night be-

Her car, which had been set afire, was discovered about 9:30 p.m. the night of the slaying by police in Haltom City, but Fort Worth police investigators did not learn of the car's discovery until the following Monday.

Martin was arrested at his parents' home, only four blocks from the parking lot where the burning car was found.

Records at the Texas Department of Corrections show Martin was released from prison Jan. 14 after serving six months on a three-year burglary conviction. A TDC spokesman said an additional 14 months he served in the Tarrant County Jail waiting for his case to come to trial were applied to his sentence.

Police said Martin might have been planning to burglarize the office building when he was surprised by Leugemors.

"We believe the murder was a crime of opportunity, that he took his chance when he found the victim alone there," Swan said.

ABC cancels Hispanic show; El Pasoans planning to ask the network to reconsder

EL PASO (AP) - The producer of a predominantly Hispanic television series that was shelved before the first episode was broadcast says a letter-writing campaign may not be enough to persuade ABC to resurrect the drama.

But leaders of two Hispanic arts groups vow they'll try to meet with ABC officials and ask people to write the network in an effort to bring 'Juarez'' to the air. It would have been the first drama series on a U.S. network with a mainly His-

The first two episodes of "Juarez" had been filmed and were being edited in Los Angeles when network officials viewed rough cuts earlier this month, producer and director Jeffrey Bloom said Monday

The network executives liked what they saw, Bloom said, and ordered four more shows. Three days later, they told Bloom the one-hour police drama was canceled.

But Bloom also had screened the pilot to officials of two Hispanic groups - Nosotros and the Hispanic Academy of Media Arts and Sciences.

"I liked what I saw and I was despaired when it was canceled before it had a chance to air," Nosotros treasurer Anthony Cordova said. The two groups, which lobby TV networks and movie studios to include more Hispanic actors and crew members, plan to exert pressure on ABC executives. "It's a shame the network isn't giving this show a chance on the air," Nosotros President Richard Yniguez said. "Juarez," starring 24-year-old Benjamin Banda as an El Paso County sheriff's deputy and son of Mexican immigrants, was scheduled to debut Jan.

16, then in February. It finally was shelved because of scheduling changes and creative differences with Bloom, ABC spokesman Jim Brochu

He added that the network might go back to the drawing board with "Juarez" because it still wants to add a series with mostly Hispanic charac-

But Bloom, who wrote the first two episodes, said the network's priorities were different from his. 'The way they approached it, they said, 'We want to do a show presented in the Southwest with a Hispanic lead.' They didn't say they wanted a show with a Hispanic lead set in the Southwest.' The Southwest the executives saw — industrial, poverty-stricken El Paso - differed from what they expected.

"El Paso doesn't have that sort of rarified, beautified atmosphere they were looking for,' Bloom said. "They wanted more of an upscale look, and there's not much of an upscale look in El

Robert Knight, director of El Paso's film commission, agreed. "Probably one or two (ABC executives) have been to a party in Santa Fe and think that's what the Southwest is all about," he

Luz Taboada, general manager of Cimarron Media Services in El Paso, said she would like to join the Hispanic Academy's campaign, partly because she has a stake in the show. She helped cast

Ms. Taboada said CBS viewers set a precedent when they wrote enough letters to keep "Designing Women" and "Cagney and Lacey" on the air after the network announced the cancellations of those

Bloom and Ms. Taboada said network officials might have been skittish when they watched the show and discovered that about 90 percent of the cast was Hispanic, even though they ordered the show to appeal to the fast-growing minority group. "If they're worried about selling the advertising time, the Hispanie market is one of the biggest," Ms. Taboada said. "We haven't been wiped off the map as far as I know. We still have to buy cars. We have to eat; we have to go to McDonald's.

Def Leppard bows out of El Paso show

EL PASO (AP) — Def Leppard, on the road promoting its "Hysteria" album, decided to bow out of El Paso because of death threats stemming from an ethnic slur the lead singer made five years ago, promoter Barbara Welch said

The decision came Friday despite a good advance showing for the Feb. 15 concert, she said. About 4,000 of the 8,500 tickets had been sold at $15.50 each.

"It's the band's idea, 100 percent," Ms. Welch said of the cancellation. The show's producers, Pace in Houston and Stardate in Dallas, tried to keep the show alive, she said. But band members decided they didn't want to take the chance.

"There's been a few phone calls to the university by people saying they'd disrupt the event if things went as planned," Ms. Welch said. "Even four or five death threats can pretty much cancel out 4,000 tickets.'

The anger stems from a comment lead singer Joe Elliott made at a Tucson, Ariz., concert on Sept. 7, 1983. Elliott told the crowd that the band had played the day before in El Paso, "that place with all the greasy Mex-

Center: A memorial continuing the mission

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After Challenger blew up, while people across a shocked nation groped for ways to honor the seven lives snuffed out, the families of the astronauts came together in June Scobee's living room.

Their mail was heavy with condolences. There were bushel baskets of suggestions for statues, for memorials of brick and mortar. They rejected them all.

Instead, the families dwelled on the objectives of flight 51L, which were in large part scientific and educational. The mission, No. 25 in the space shuttle series, was billed as a new chapter in space travel because Christa McAuliffe was aboard to teach science to a primed and ready national television audience of school chadren.

Says Mrs. Scobee, widow of the Challenger's 46-year-old commander, Dick Scobee: "The families thought that the best tribute to the crew, who were ordinary people in a not-so-ordinary job, would be to somehow focus on their mission, because that was so important to them.'

Out of the discussions was born the idea for a space science education facility. Its name was a natural: The Challenger Center.

"We knew we couldn't launch satellites for them, we couldn't conduct the scientific experiements in space, but we could continue the science and education,' said Mrs. Scobee, who holds a doctorate in education.

"It all centered around the objectives of the mission. We're now continuing that mission."

It pays to remember what the crew of 51L had planned for itself and the nation on their six-day flight. Their mission, first of all. was to deliver a huge, vitally needed NASA communications satellite into orbit.

Also in the cargo bay was an instrument to measure the ultraviolet spectrum of comet Halley. this nation's very small contribution to studying the ball of ice and dust that comes into Earth's view only every 76 years. There were The Space Shuttle Challenger explodes after launch.

other experiments.

The memorable work, however, was to be by S. Christa Corrigan McAuliffe, a Concord, N.H., high school teacher, chosen in a nationwide competition to be the first Teacher in Space.

She was to have demonstrated for waiting classrooms the effects of microgravity on hydroponics, magnetism, Newton's laws, effervescence, chromatography and the operation of simple machines. These were to have been lessons like no other before.

Those plans ended in that dreadful fireball on Jan. 28, 1986, when the Challenger was only 73 seconds into its flight.

'Our nation saw them die in the sky that day," said Mrs. Scobee. "It was a very personal loss for all of us, but these were pioneers who represented our nation."

In the fall of 1986, June Scobee and the families of Mike Smith, Judy Resnik, Ellison Onizuka, Ron McNair, Greg Jarvis and Christa McAuliffe announced their plans for the Challenger Center. Reports had circulated of disagreements among them as to what legal course to follow in the astronauts' deaths, but they were unanimous about the center, says Mrs. Scobee.

'We are so together on this," she says. "We live and breathe it together. We see each other every other week. We talk to each other on the phone regularly. We've formed a very close bond out of this adverse condition."

The Challenger Center will be both a program and a place. Planned to be ready by late 1991, the headquarters, somewhere in the Washington area, will be a 40,000 square-foot "Space-Life Station." It will be patterned after one proposed in a report last year by a presidential commis-

The space station will be home to 50 to 75 youngsters for a week at a time. They will conduct hands-on simulated space missions on computers and displays and will be in laboratories that can cover topics from artificial biosphere technologies to space telescope operation or space navigation.

The Washington area center will be the hub of a network of learning centers across the country, bringing the center's programs into the reach of nearly every science teacher in the country, according to the Challenger Center's prospectus.

In Houston, a spacecraft lifesupport module will open at the Museum of Science on April 1. It will provide students with lifelike space-simulations, using equipment run by computers. The facility is being built under a $158,000 grant and is the first such satellite Challenger Center.

Others will be in Boston, San Diego, Chicago, Oregon and Washington state, said David Winstead, who became president of the center last September.

The Washington area facility will cost $15 million to build and $1.8 million to $2.2 million a year to operate. How students will be chosen to spend a week at the center and how much each will payin the $250 range — has not been worked out.

Money is being raised privately. Rockwell, which built the Challenger and the other shuttles, was the first sizable contributor with $50,000. Morton Thiokol, builder of the rocket that doomed the shuttle, is listed as a $100,000 contributor. So is the kingdom of Saudi Arabia, whose Prince Sultan bin Salman was a shuttle Discovery crew member in 1985.

Mrs. Scobee is chairman of the board. The spouses of the other married astronauts are members and so is the brother of Judy Resnik, who was single. Members also include journalists Walter Cronkite and Jack Anderson, Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Jake Garn, R-Utah, and singeractor John Denver.

"It's important to the nation to bring space home," says Mrs. Scobee. "We can't all climb aboard a shuttle, but we can offer opportunities to youngsters and teachers to feel the excitement of

Hotel fires employee who carried man from fire

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man who carried an elderly man two blocks to safety during a fire was fired from his job at the Travelers Hotel because he refused to help in the cleanup effort, hotel officials say.

Rodney Feese, 51, said he returned to the hotel in downtown San Antonio after helping evacuees from a Sunday morning fire only to find his boss was angry

"He was mad at me, saying I shouldn't have left the hotel, said Feese, who has worked as a maintenance man at the hotel for about three months. "He said he didn't need me anymore," Feese told the San Antonio Express-News. "I told him I was helping some people, and he said I shouldn't have left.

Martin Vega, maintenance supervisor for the hotel, said later that Feese was fired because he refused to help in the cleanup work after residents were allowed to return to the hotel.

The hotel suffered smoke damage in the fire, which destroyed three businesses and caused an estimated $550,000 in damage.

"Everybody else was pitching in to help but he just wanted to stand around here and drink coffee," Vega told the newspaper.

Students learn lessons of life when they are free to choose

DEAR ABBY: I am the president of the Associated Students of the University of California at Berkeley. Your column regarding behavior in college dorms was forwarded to me by a campus administrator. I can speak only for the students here, but I think your readers' letters were somewhat hysterical on several counts.

First, even if college authorities wanted to provide a morally sanitized atmosphere for their students, they could not. Students, like other Americans, are entitled to constitutional privacy rights, which prevent university officials from peering over their shoulders at all hours of the night and day. Most university dorms, including Berkeley's, forbid use of drugs or alcohol in public areas - but universities cannot and should not control what students do in the privacy of their own rooms. If your readers have a problem with the Constitution, they should write to their congressmen.

Second, the existence of co-ed bathrooms hardly converts dormitories into "brothels." We trust young adults to vote for our presidents and die for our country; I hope we can also trust them to use adjoining bathroom stalls without being overcome by their hormones. In fact, living in the close quarters of a residence hall is not particularly conducive to romance: The existence of roommates usually presents more of an inconvenience to sexual adventurism than an incentive. Furthermore, based on my observation of both co-ed and sexually segregated dorms at Berkeley, co-ed dorms actually foster sincere respect and dialogue between young men and women. It is when men and women are forcibly separated on all but social occasions that they view each other as munity property state, only Postage and handling are included.

Dear Abby

nothing but sexual objects

It is the business of colleges and universities to educate students. It is also their business to provide an atmosphere where students wishing to refrain from sexual behavior, drinking or drug use can do so without harassment or embarrassment. But universities are not monasteries; they are not equipped to be moral policemen. Therefore, some college students do drink and have sex, just as they did when your readers went to college. Behavior hasn't changed all that much; students today are simply more honest about it.

MATTHEW DENN

DEAR PRESIDENT DENN: Thank you. I agree, and I'm sure you speak for many.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can help me on this. A wife inherits money from a wealthy relative. Is it hers to spend as she wishes? Or does her husband have a say in the matter? We live in a community property state.

DEAR WINDFALL: In a com-between husband and wife. Money inherited belongs to the person to whom it was left.

DEAR ABBY: While I was in college in 1972 in Orlando, Fla. (Florida Technical University), my roommate was in a financial bind and he sold me his grandfather's Civil War saber. My roommate's name was Charlie Wheatley. I would like to return the saber because it's an heirloom and really should be owned by someone in Charlie's family, but I've lost track of Charlie and can't locate him.

I would be ever so grateful, Abby, if you would print this. Maybe Charlie or one of his friends or relatives will see it and write to you. I hope so.

Area National Guardsmen participate in winter training

CAMP MABRY, AUSTIN — The 2nd Battalion (Mechanized), 142nd Infantry, Texas Army National Guard, headquartered in Amarillo, is participating in winter training exercises now through Feb. 6 at Camp Ripley, Minnesota.

The training consists of cold weather survival techniques, ski and cross-country ski instruction, cold weather shelter construction and wet weather and extreme cold environment. The training is crucial to the unit's mobilization readiness

The 2nd Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Max Rucker, has units throughout the Texas Panhandle and High Plains areas. Units participating in this winter training are from Amarillo, Borger, Lubbock, Brownfield, Pampa, Shamrock, Plainview, Tulia, Levelland and Wellington.

Camp Ripley is located at Little Falls, Minn.. northwest of Minneapolis-St. Paul. It is considered one of the prime locations in the continental United States for winter training since it is large and remote, and winter temperatures often reach minus 30 to minus 50 degrees.

The Texas Army National Guard normally sends only one battalion per year to the winter training school at Camp Ripley. The Texas Guardsmen will train in a realistic environment with strong emphasis on safety and cold weather survival.

Texas National Guardsmen serve one weekend per month and for 15 days of Annual Training. Unlike other military forces, the National Guard serves a dual role. The primary role is to serve the nation, along with the active military services, in time of war or national emergency. The second, but more commonly used role, is service to the state and local community during natural disaster or civil disturbance at the call of the Governor of Women over 18 urged to have annual test

WASHINGTON (AP) - Medical experts are broadening their recommendations on who should have annual Pap smears, urging all women over age 18 to have the test to detect cervical cancer.

The new guidelines, updating those in place since 1980, were outlined recently by the American Medical Association, the American Cancer Society, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists and the National Cancer Institute.

The old guidelines called for screening to start at age 20 and to stop after age 60, but the new standards set no upper age limit.

"For the vast majority of American women, the Pap test should be an annual part of their health care and will lead to even greater reductions in our nation's death rate from cancer of the cervix," said Dr. George W. Morley, president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gyneco-

Representatives of all three of the private organizations said a main reason for calling their press conference was an attempt to counter confusion about the value of the Pap test in light of recent publicity about a high percentage of false negative results reported by some labs. While the new guidelines stop just short of recommending that every woman have a Pap test every year, the thrust of the new guidelines is clearly in the direction of annual tests for all women 18 and older. Medical authorities said the Pap tests could begin sooner for women who are sexually active.

The old standards said a woman and her doctor might opt for less-than-annual screening after negative Pap smears in two successive years, while the new recommendations said there should be three consecutive negative results before consideration is given to less frequent testing.

Harmon J. Eyre, president of the American Cancer Society, suggested that even after three negative tests, there should be a predisposition to continuing

SAN DIEGO - The Washington Redskins and Denver Broncos are heading for the same objective from different directions. Losing a Super Bowl can do that.

Last year's Super Bowl loss dominates the Broncos' thoughts, words and approach. Just hours after they arrived here, they were vowing this NFL championship game would have a more successful

"The feeling of last year's loss stuck in all our craws," quarterback John Elway said. "That's the last thing we want to feel again. Nobody has to bring it up. We all remember what it was like in that locker room."

So the Broncos have developed a tunnel vision toward this year's Super Bowl.

"We're all business this time," defensive end Rulon Jones said. "We need a good focus on the way we play football and what we have to do on the field Sunday. Nothing else."

The Redskins, who lost in their last Super Bowl appearance in 1984, aren't so single-minded.

We're pretty relaxed and loose and excited to be here," said offensive tackle Joe Jacoby, one of 18 Redskins to make it this far before. "We're keeping it all in perspective, but we're trying to enjoy it, soak it all in. You just got to enjoy it but get

"It's another game to win and go out big time." For the Redskins to have a big time Sunday. they're willing to observe a curfew - something Coach Joe Gibbs did not institute when Washington won the 1983 Super Bowl and lost in '84. But they won't ignore the festivities around them, just as they couldn't ignore a moderate earthquake that shook the area Monday morning.

"That's a strange way to get started," defensive end Dexter Manley said of the earthquake. "But that's what you get in Super Bowl week.

'The memory of what happens in this game lasts forever. Our job is to have fun and produce.' The Broncos seem to have eliminated the enjoyment in their approach. Hours after their arrival, they spoke of how they will handle this week.

'Last year, we made it like a once-in-a-lifetime thing, like it might never happen again," Jones said. "You don't see any of us carrying around video cameras this time.

"We will win the football game, whatever it takes," linebacker Ricky Hunley insisted. "There will be no celebrations until then. We don't want to carry around the feeling for two years of what it would be like to win a championship.

"I think most of the guys were caught in the festivities last year. We weren't as confident going in. This year, we expect to win. We are destined to

Ironhead' ready

By ALAN ROBINSON AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — Opposing coaches say tacklesized Pitt tailback Craig "Ironhead" Heyward should be playing in the pros rather than in college.

Apparently, Heyward agrees. Heyward, a junior All-American running back who ran for 1,655 yards last season, said Monday he will pass up his senior season at the University of Pittsburgh and petition the NFL to include him in a supplemental draft. The 6-foot, 280-pound Heyward — football's biggest running back and also one of its most productive - can't be selected in the regular National Football League draft in April because he has college eligibility remaining and hasn't graduated.

Heyward was the only junior to finish in the top five in the Heisman Trophy balloting last season and would have been a frontrunner for the 1988

"I plan to petition the NFL," Heyward said. "As of now, I'm considering myself for the NFL. I think that's the goal of each guy in high school who performs very well and goes to college and performs very well.

Heyward, who gained more yardage the more he gained weight, is one of only eight NCAA Division I backs to gain at least 100 yards in every game his team played in a season. Heyward was the nation's second-leading rusher last fall. Heyward fueled speculation he would turn pro when he failed to begin second-semester classes Jan. 6. Then, it was reported last weekend he flew to Washington, D.C., to meet with Bruce Allen, although Heyward has denied signing with the Phoenix-based sports agent. "I've met with a lot of other agents," Heyward said.

The second-leading rusher in Pitt history, Heyward announced he would turn pro Monday night, shortly after Coach Mike Gottfried tried to talk him into staying in school.

Only minutes after Gottfried held a news conference to accuse agents such as Allen of being "vultures, leeches and bloodsuckers" who prey upon immature college athletes, Heyward went on television to announce his decision.

"He tried to persuade me to come back and to finish the educational part of it and I had my mind made up I wanted to turn pro and he had a somewhat hesitant reaction to it," Heyward said.

Heyward said Gottfried's insinuation he had under-the-table dealings with agents in apparent violation of NCAA rules and a well-publicized arrest by campus police prompted his decision to leave Pitt. "It all boiled down that I've had enough of Pittsburgh and it's time for me to move on," Heyward said. "My reasons for doing that are being a father of 21/2-year-old Craig Jr.) and coming from a family of eight - you know, a low-income family - so I think the decision I'm going to make is the decision for me," he told WPXI-TV Gottfried said he was "disappointed but not surprised" by Heyward's decision.

Heyward, from Passaic, N.J., ran for 539 yards as a freshman in 1984 and gained 756 yards in 1986 after sitting out the 1985 season for disciinary reasons. He was thrown out of a Pitt dormitory for striking another student in the face with a crutch and later was fined in municipal court for an altercation with a 12-year-old newspaper delivery

Heyward was arrested by college police Jan. 10 for allegedly assaulting an officer investigating an on-campus shooting. Heyward said he became "a little frustrated" when the arrest led some to wonder if it would affect his Heisman chances.

Niekro not ready to quit

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro has a problem even more tricky than catching his knuckleball.

After he was released by Toronto late last season, Niekro was signed by Atlanta to pitch one last game in a Brave uniform. He did that on Sept. 27 against the San Francisco Giants and left to a standing ovation and a probable journey to the Hall of Fame. There may be a detour to Cooperstown, though.

Niekro, 48, is currently an executive vice presient with a Georgia firm that produces fishing equipment, but as spring training nears, he says he can still win in the major leagues

Niekro, however, promised he would retire when he agreed to make his farewell appearance with the Braves.

"I gave my word to the Braves that would be my last game," Niekro said of his September salute in Atlanta. "But there's no doubt in my mind that I can still pitch.'

There was never much doubt in the minds of the opposition, either. Niekro was 318-274 in 22 seasons — 18 with the Milwaukee and Atlanta

"There are a lot of teams looking for a fourth and fifth starter who can win 10 to 12 games, which I'm certainly capable of doing," said the man for whom the Braves erected a statue of outside the stadium, alongside those of Ty Cobb and Hank Aaron.

"All the ball clubs know I'm retired. But a lot of people retire and come out of it. It's up in the air right now, but my plans are mostly with my busiIn the next breath, however, Niekro had visions of knuckleballs dancing again in the spring. 'Spring training. You know, it's the first time in 27-28 years I won't be going. But as it gets closer, I know my blood will be jumping.

Niekro said after being released by Toronto that, "I'll be in uniform somewhere next year, somehow, in some capacity. I'm not going to walk away from the game completely."

Niekro, released by the Brayes in 1983 after win ning 268 games for the organization, pitched two more years with the New York Yankees, another 11/2 years with the Cleveland Indians and about a month with Toronto before his release.

He then agreed to sign for the one game with Atlanta to fittingly conclude his career.

The Braves said Niekro would be rewarded with a job with the club, either as a manager with their Burlington club in the low minors, pitching instructor in the organization or a public relations job.

"It just didn't work out with the Braves organization," Niekro said. Earlier in the winter he was offered jobs either managing a rookie league team or as a pitching coach in the minor leagues. He turned them down.

"I hope he can come to spring training with us as an instructor," Braves general manager Bobby Cox said. "I know he's spending a lot of time with his new business, but we sure want him. Hopefully something will pop up for him with us next year.'

Lady 'Horns roll

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas Coach Jody Conradt, who has not been happy lately with her Lady Longhorns' progress on the boards, was pleased to see her players come through against Texas Christian

'Our objective going in was to do a good job on the boards,' said Conradt after Texas blasted TCU 102-62 in Southwest Conference action Monday. "We have not done a good job there lately and I think we did do a good job tonight.

Reserve center Michelle Eglinger led seven Texas players in double figures. The 6-4 senior had 17 points and pulled down nine rebounds as the Lady Longhorns won their seventh game in a row and 88th straight in the SWC.

"I'm glad everybody got a chance to play tonight," said Conradt. "We play three games this week and nobody needed to play a lot of minutes. We got a good effort from everybody.'

Texas built up a 52-20 halftime lead despite getting off to a slow The Lady Longhorns' leading scorer on the season, Yulonda Wimbish, followed Eglinger with 13 points after playing only 13 minutes in the first half.

Texas improves to 16-2 on the year and 5-0 in conference play, while the Horned Frogs drop to 9-7 and 2-4 and lost four of their last five games

Senior guard Terri Janak hit 5-of-7 from 3-point range to lead the Horned Frogs with 19 points, a new career high.

'We were intimidated early. We have been in a little shooting slump lately and it just carried over tonight, unfortunately, said TCU Coach Fran Garmon. "They were making the short easy jumpers and you can't let any team do that.'

Texas, which has not lost to TCU in 12 games, led by as much as 42 in the second half.

Blue Devils have narrow escape

College basketball

By The Associated Press

On paper, the game had the makings of a breather for Duke. But the fifth-ranked Blue Devils were nearly breathless after another narrow escape against unranked Stetson.

'It was like a typical threepoint game with Stetson," Coach Mike Krzyzewski said Monday night after Duke beat the Hatters 81-78 at Daytona Beach, Fla.

He wasn't kidding. A year ago, Stetson scared Duke before dropping a 62-59 decision at Durham,

"Stetson did a heckuva job," Krzyzewski said. "They were very confident and took the game to us. Every time we got ahead, they came up with a big offensive play. They kept pressure on us throughout the game." But pressure is something Duke is thriving on these days. The victory was its third on the road in five days. Other victims were third-ranked North Carolina and Wake Forest, two Atlantic Coast Conference foes.

The game was one of three involving ranked teams. In the others, it was No. 11 Pittsburgh 90, Providence 56, and No. 16 Iowa 104, Wisconsin 89.

Perhaps a contributring factor in Duke's lackluster play was the demanding schedule of the last week. The Blue Devils slowed the tempo with four minutes remaining.

"I thought we did a decent job on the stall," Krzyzewski said.

Still, Krzyzewski was not satisfied, especially in view of Stetson's recent play. The Hatters came in having lost three straight in the Trans America Athletic Conference — hardly the caliber of the ACC.

We have shown we can play two great games, then have an emotional letdown," Krzyzewski Stetson Coach Glenn Wilkes said, "This game lets us know that we can compete better than we have in the past three games.

Kevin Strickland scored 22 points and Robert Brickey led a decisive second-half surge as Duke, 13-2, won for the seventh time in its last eight games. Stetson is now 8-7

Jimmy Kuhl and Terry Johnson led Stetson with 16 points apiece.

No. 11 Pittsburgh 90, Providence 56 Jerome Lane had 17 points and 17 rebounds, but it was his backboard-shattering slam-dunk that halted the game for a halfhour for repairs — that was the main topic in Pittsburgh.

"It was like a dream. I was waiting to wake up," Lane said. "I just tried to dunk it as hard as I could to fire up the crowd. When the rim came down, I just said, 'Yeah!' After everyone gave me high fives, I felt like I could break three more.

Providence, 8-8, lost its fourth game in a row despite Steve Wright's 14 points.

No. 16 Iowa 104, Wisconsin 89 B.J. Armstrong and Al Lorenzen keyed a 26-6 surge in the first half as Iowa raised its record in the Big Ten 10 to 4-2. Amstrong scored nine of his 19 points during the burst and Lorenzen had seven of his 18 as Iowa took a 45-22 halftime lead.

Roy Marble scored 21 points for Iowa, 14-5 overall. Bill Jones added 17 points and 10 rebounds Trent Jackson led Wisconsin, 2-4 in the conference and 8-8 overall, with 24 points. Tim Locum and Tom Molaski added 16 points apiece for the Badgers.

Utah Coach Frank Layden said. It was only the third 3-pointer for Green, playing in his 10th NBA season, this year and his only field goal of the night. He finished with six points, the other three coming on free throws.

"I'm very happy for Rickey," teammate Marc Iavaroni said. 'Yesterday I thought, wouldn't it be neat to score the five-millionth point. Now we're all on the team that scored it, something to look back on and tell all my grandkids.

The landmark field goal ended the countdown monitored by the NBA through radio hookups to the Cavs-Jazz game in Salt Lake City and the Milwaukee Bucks contest at the Golden State Warriors, which were being played simultaneously. What to expect in Super Bowl

Team by team

By Murray Olderman SAN DIEGO (NEA) — This is how I grade the AFC champion Denver Broncos and the NFC champion Washington Redskins as they match up for Super Bowl XXII

• PASSING Broncos - All John Elway does is add to his legend. His stats aren't always impressive, and he'll sometimes get in trouble throwing into coverage. But he has improved his touch. He comes up with miraculous plays. He's an unequaled gunner. Grade: A. Redskins - Doug Williams is most dangerous throwing down the middle.

But his low trajectory tosses are prone to be tipped and picked off. At 32, he's not going to lose his poise. It's unlikely that coach Joe Gibbs will switch to Jay Schroeder in a game this big. Grade: B. • WIDE RECEIVERS Broncos - Vance Johnson, who missed the AFC title game, reclaims the outside post. He is a big-play man. So are starter Mark Jackson and nifty rookie Rickey Nattiel. Vet Steve Watson spells the "Three Amigos." Grade: Redskins - Gary Clark is especially dangerous around the goal line. He comes off a super year. Fortunately, Ricky Sanders replaces injured Art Monk. Replacement player Anthony Allen is part of "Posse" package

Grade: B-plus. • TIGHT ENDS Broncos — Clarence Kay became a productive receiver as well as a steady blocker this season. He is joined in occasional TE tandem by huge Orson Mobley. They'll surprise people. Grade: B.

Redskins - The names don't make Pro Bowl lists, but Clint Didier, Don Warren and Anthony Jones fortify the ground attack with strong blocking. Didier is an outstanding receiving threat. Grade: B. • RUNNING plugger who doesn't make mistakes;

Gene Lang has more speed to the outside. They catch the ball, too. Steve Sewell is an all-purpose threat.

Redskins — George Rogers is a strong. Kelvin Bryant comes in on Grade: B. passing downs. Grade: R • OFFENSIVE LINE Broncos - This active group withstood two changes - Mike Freeman at center and Stefan Humphries at guard — without losing effectiveness. LG Keith Bishop excels getting out ahead of ball carriers. LT Dave Studdard is the oldest at 32. Grade: B.

Redskins — This big veteran group provides good pass protection. LT Joe

Jacoby, heaviest at 305, had the best year. They like to run left, behind Jacoby and guard Reggie McKenzie. Tip to caliber of line: Ex-Pro Bowler Russ Grimm can't regain starting job.

Grade: A. • DEFENSIVE LINE Broncos — Their three-man front bends, but doesn't break. It's the lightest in the NFL at an average of 257. RE Rulon Jones is the premier pass rusher. LE Andre Townsend is steady. Greg Kragen in the middle survives on agility. Freddie Gilbert adds heft in reserve. Grade: B. Redskins - Superlative outside pass rush comes from ends Charles Mann and Dexter Manley. Dexter talks; Mann acts. Bulky Dave Butz, oldest Skin at 37, fills the middle. 'Skins use youngsters Markus Koch and Steve Hamilton as pass-rushing package. Grade: A. LINEBACKING Broncos - Strength of defensive unit is here. Karl Mecklenburg is handiest man on defense. He and Simon Fletcher and converted downlinemen; they're strong and mobile. Ricky Hunley and Jim Ryan round out an aggressive, mobile quartet that's always around the ball. Grade: A. Redskins — Threesome of Mel Kaufman on the left, Neil Olkewicz in the middle, Monte Coleman on the right has been together several years. They're not spectacular. They don't Broncos - Sammy Winder is a blitz much. But they're fine in covering short passing zones. Kurt Gouveia is a young comer. Grade: B.

Broncos - Mark Haynes began to come around again to All-Pro form he showed as a N.Y. Giant. He can force heavy-duty carrier. But Gibbs is lean- the run as well as cover receivers. ing increasingly to rookie Timmy Steve Wilson has developed into a Smith, who's niftier and almost as steady coverage man on right.

Broncos - Return of All-Pro Dennis Smith compensates for the loss of nickel package. Grade: B-plus.

teams with Todd Bowles. Vet Vernon been adequate. Grade: B.

• PUNTING Broncos — Mike Horan's left-footed boots spin the "wrong" way, and they can confuse return men. He's goals, too.) Grade: B. PLACE-KICKING ed, had excellent campaign. He's a distance threat, too. Grade: B-plus.

Redskins - Ali Haji-Sheikh's leg is strong enough, but he tends to be erratic. Punter Steve Cox handles kickoffs. Grade: B. • KICK RETURNS Broncos - Both K.C. Clark and good average on kick-off runbacks. Grade: B. Redskins - The switch to speedy Darrell Green on punts in the NFC playoffs paid off in victory over Chicago. Eric Yarber is the fearless alternate. Keith Griffin handles kickoffs. Grade: B-plus.

Redskins - Darrell Green is outstanding. He takes on top receivers man-to-man. Barry Wilburn had fine year with nine interceptions. Rookie Brian Davis is heady relief man. Grade: A. • SAFETIES

Mike Harden. Tony Lilly always manages to be around the ball. Jeremiah Castille and K.C. Clark are used in the Redskins - This is the most vulnerable part of Washington's secondary even though SS Alvin Walton is building reputation as hard hitter. He

Dean used in nickel package. Grade: B

Ricky Nattiel can break for big returns on punts; Ken Bell maintains a

Lifted gravity penalties lighten oil producers' mood

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND Midland Reporter-Telegram

MIDLAND (AP) - Permian Basin crude oil buyers are sitting back, waiting to see how producers will react to a recent decision by Sun Refining & Marketing Co. to eliminate gravity adjustments on crude oil with gravities between 30 and 60 degrees API.

Wayne Malone, chairman of Abilenebased Pride Pipeline Co., said that his company is "studying and evaluating what a similar change could mean to us." One consideration for Pride will be discussing the no-adjustment system with the companies it resells to.

"We have to be able to sell on the same basis as which we buy in order for it to work for us," Malone said. Pride owns a refinery but buys more crude than it can refine and resells to other refiners, he explained.

We're watching to see if it catches on," said Bill Kleine, president of Midland's Permian Corp., one of this region's largest purchasers. "If staying competitive means changing the way we figure our prices we'll do it."

Sun has been gaining a lot of support for its decision, according to Tom Fewox, senior crude oil buyer for Sun in Midland, Fewox said that even though Sun lowered its posting for sour crude by $1, customers are pleased with the

Said Dr. Tom Haywood, executive vice president of the North Texas Oil & Gas Association: "Giving a $1.50, even if they take back $1, you're still 50 cents ahead of the game.

The exact impact of Sun's decision will depend on a particular operator's production stream, Haywood said. In many parts of North Texas, he said, there is neither low-gravity crude nor high-gravity condensate production; but in other areas, the impact could be significant.

'For typical West Texas Spraberry production, the difference may not be more than a couple of cents per barrel," claimed one crude purchaser. However, added revenue will be based on the specific characteristics of the crude.

When gravity deductions became widespread, oil was in the neighborhood of $35 per barrel, and a dime or so per barrel didn't worry many people, Haywood recalled. "But producers aren't yawning at 10 cents per barrel with prices where they are today.'

Purchasers' per-barrel adjustments per degree of gravity remained constant at 15 to 20 cents while oil prices collapsed by nearly two-thirds. That fact got producer Waylan Martin of Monahans concerned about adjustments back in 1986.

As a member of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, Martin wrote to the group to see if anything could be done to have adjustments "based on a percent of the total price instead of a flat per-barrel amount."

In the letter Martin pointed out that at its peak, West Texas sour was discounted 50 cents per barrel below intermediate postings plus 15 cents per degree of gravity below 40 degrees. At a posting of $35, the total penalty was about 5.7 percent.

By mid-summer 1986, West Texas sour dropped as low as $11 per barrel, but the per-barrel adjustments were the same, resulting in total penalties amounting to 18 percent of the posted price. With posted prices in the $18 range, where they spent much of 1987, 30 degree sour crude was adjusted down by about 11.4 percent - double the adjustment percentage taken during the pricing heyday.

Permian Basin Petroleum Association, NTOGA and other producers' groups began campaigning against "differential charges as unfair, unjust and not reflecting the true costs of refining," said Harry Spannaus, executive vice president of PBPA:

The groups presented their views to the Department of Energy last June and encouraged the DOE to refuse to pay such adjustments when it purchases crude for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and when selling production from federal leases. "We hoped that convincing the government would help give us leverage with the purchasers, Spannaus explained.

The DOE has not changed its policy, but "Raising the visibility of the question may have helped nudge Sun along in making their decision," said NTO-GA's havwood.

He predicted that if others do not match Sun's program, some producers will change purchasers, especially those with production outside a 38 to 42 degree range.

Kleine of Permian noted that "there had already been some competitive adjustments on high gravity produc-

"If one assumes that 5 percent of our production will be affected by a dollar per barrel - which I don't think exaggerates the impact," Haywood said, "that could mean an additional $1.5 million for the North Texas economy.'

Tinsmith retires after nearly seven decades as worker

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) -They don't make 'em like Stan Graham anymore

Wire-rimmed glasses, stiff white shirt, bow tie, brown leather boots and green trousers. At 74, he looks more like a 55-yearold who has stepped out of a portrait, vintage 1961.

Hard-working and built to last. But the last of the old-time Lancaster tinsmiths is finally packing it in. After 68 years of working with metal, Graham may have finally done himself in.

"I don't know whether my iron was too good and it lasted too long for the people or not," he said, "but it don't pay to bother anymore to be in the business.'

Up until December, Graham's tidy shop had taken in $267.85. The year before, he took in $1,920. While business had been bad for the past 10 years, Graham couldn't tear himself away.

"They tell me that if you sit around, you don't live long, so I figured I'm going to keep active," he said. "Then when I got close to 60, my mother-in-law suggested slowing down.

Graham's father started the tin business 76 years ago out of a chicken coop down the block from Graham's shop.

He estimated that he was 6 or 7 when he began working for his father

"He put (me) on a box to reach up to the bench to rivet elbows on that mandrel back there," he said, pointing to the shop's rear. His father, Robert L. Graham, built the shop Stanley now owns in 1925

"Dad was the first sheet metal worker out at Armstrong when they first built the place," he recalled. "An executive out there suggested to him that he make heavy-gauge pans — I don't know what they used them for - and that started off the business.

'In the old days, he'd get piles of sheet iron — and I mean piles - and my brother and I used to carry it back to the shop," he said. "And I don't know if we got an ice cream cone or not for doing that, but we never got paid.

When his father died in 1952, Graham and his brother Robert became partners. In 1977, the brothers went their separate

"Ever since Dad died, business just turned around," he said. "The material isn't made like it was 35 years ago and the (rain) spouting - now they're using a lot of aluminum. We wouldn't use aluminum

"Your spouting would only last about eight years now and the spouting on this shop was on for 61 years and I just replaced it with copper last year — that's the last big job I done. That will last for 40 years, so I'm not going to worry."

In 1940, Graham married Miriam Wesley, a well-known local painter.

"I was making $10 a week working for my Dad and I married money," Graham chuckled. "My wife was earning $25."

Graham says he hopes to spend more time with his wife now that he's retired, and also wants to continue hunting down bargain antiques.

In his time, Graham installed countless coal-burning, cast-iron furnaces, stoves, roofs, spouting and ice refrigerators.

Work was hard and the hours were long.

"We did mostly tin roofing," he said. "If we put on a flat-seamed tin roof, you had to solder every seam and you were bending over for eight hours a day with a hot charcoal firepot beside you. The heat would come off the tin roof. the firepot was hot, your irons you were holding in your hand, they were hot.

"And you perspired," he said. "You didn't bother wiping it off. You shook your head.
