Gray County 4-H youngsters compete in livestock contests

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

An almost carnival atmosphere reigned as Gray County 4-H'ers competed in the 1988 Gray County 4-H Livestock Show Thursday in the Clyde Carruth Pavilion.

While 4-H'ers and their parents busily cared for the show animals, kindergartners and preschoolers firmly clasping the hands of their partners trailed through the pens, squealing and laughing at the animals who either studiously ignored the audience or eagerly pushed up close on the chance that they might be petted.

Lambs bleating, pigs snoring (they slept through the whole afternoon), people talking, cheering and laughing, hair dryers, water sprayers, and the announcer talking over the PA system combined to create a cacophony of sound that filled the livestock pavilion throughout the day.

Add to that a myriad of emotions from joy to deep disappointment, intense concentration to exhaustion, and you'll have some idea of what the livestock show was like.

Parents stood by the show ring, trying to will their children to do their best while the 4-H'ers themselves expended every ounce of energy in showing their animals. The animals were confused by the noise, tired from all the activities, and not always willing to cooperate.

Somehow, they all made it through - 4-H'ers, parents, animals. And here are the results:

Scotty Henderson received "best overall" in the rabbit division and Shawn Dawes, best showmanship.

Sheila Romine's steer won Grand Champion and she was awarded a plaque for showmanship. Timmy Ray showed the Reserve Grand Champion in the steer division.

Grand Champion lamb was shown by Ty Lively and Reserve Grand Champion lamb was shown by Bobbie Pairsh. Kerri Cross won showmanship.

Hart poised to drop out; Dole, Robertson cut back

CHICAGO (AP) — Presidential candidates are foraging through delegate-rich Illinois, with Republican Bob Dole saying he is "no dropout" and three out-of-state Democrats trying to win support away from a pair of favorite sons.

Gary Hart, who dropped out of the Democratic race last May after disclosure of his relationship with model Donna Rice and then re-entered in December, was ready to drop out again.

Hart, who failed to win any delegates in the primaries and caucuses to date, polled no more than 5 percent of the vote in any of the Super Tuesday primaries and lost his eligibility for further federal matching funds.

Five days before the Illinois primary, Democratic candidates participated in a televised forum Thursday night, but in contrast to many of their joint appearances, not a cross word was exchanged.

It was "all sweetness and light," said Illinois Sen. Paul Simon after the forum sponsored by WLS-TV and the Roosevelt Center for American Policy Studies.

A Washington Post-ABC News poll published today but conducted Wednesday, the day after the Super Tuesday primaries and six days before Illinois votes, said Vice President George Bush had the support of 58 percent of Republicans.

On the Democratic side, Simon was backed by 38 percent of the likely voters surveyed and Chicago-based Jesse Jackson had support of 33 percent. The figures for Simon and Jackson were well within the 8 percentage point margin of error.

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York ended his presidential bid on Thursday and said the idea of being the Republican candidate for vice president was "a very flattering and awesome thought."

Kemp declined to endorse any of the surviving candidates — Bush, Dole and Pat Robertson — describing them all as "Reagan conservatives."

Dole scotched rumors that he was about to join Kemp on the campaign sidelines. "Bob Dole's no dropout," he said in a statement issued in Washington and Illinois. "I'm in this one to win."

Bush beat Dole in all 16 Super

Hart

Tuesday primaries and now has 705 national convention delegates compared to 165 for the Kansas senator.

Dole did not say whether he would remain in the race if he loses to Bush in Illinois but an aide said, "I think it's clear to Dole that it's do or die."

Dole cancelled all television commercials in Illinois and ordered deep layoffs in his staff.

An aide said the campaign was considering airing a 30-minute paid broadcast in the closing hours of the campaign.

One bright spot for the Kansas senator was the endorsement of the Chicago Tribune, which said that Bush's identification with President Reagan, while a big help in Republican primary contests, might be a handicap in the general election.

"Bob Dole's no dropout... I'm in this one to win."

"Nowhere have the Republican candidates asked or answered the kind of harsh questions the Democrats surely will raise in November about the Reagan administration, whose colors Mr. Bush has been able to wave more furiously than anyone else," the newspaper said in an editorial headlined, "Why Illinois Should Pick Dole."

Robertson, who also had a disappointing day on Super Tuesday, also ordered deep staff cuts.

"We want to stay lean and mean," he said, declining to give the number of employees laid off.

The vice president also was campaigning in the state in advance of Tuesday's primary. Illinois voters will elect delegates and also express their preferences in a beauty contest on the ballot.

Bush told a Governors Club luncheon in Chicago that he was "tired of being embarrassed" by scandals involving government officials and he called for establishment of a White House ethics panel.

Bush has refused, however, to criticize any administration officials, including Attorney General Edwin Meese III, who have come under investigation by grand juries.

U.S. weighs acts to force out Noriega

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is likely to impose five sanctions against Panama in the next several days designed to cripple the country's tottering economy and force out military leader Manuel Antonio Noriega, administration sources say.

Although no final decisions were reached during a high-level interagency meeting attended by Reagan on Thursday, the officials said they expected approval shortly of a package that included the five sanctions.

The sanction with potentially the greatest impact appears to be a cutoff of Panamanian revenues from a pipeline that carries Alaskan oil to tankers serving East Coast ports.

Gabriel Lewis, a former Panamanian ambassador to the United States who is a leader of the exiled opposition to Noriega, said in an interview Thursday night that the action would cost Panama about $10 million a month in tolls, taxes and other revenues.

The officials, who insisted on anonymity, reaffirmed that it is virtually certain the administration will withhold a $6.5 million payment due to Panama next Tuesday for operations related to the Panama Canal.

Lewis said he was pleased with the signs that the administration apparently plans to step up pressure on Noriega, who is under federal indictment on drug smuggling charges.

"The only money coming into the country is drug money," he said.

According to the officials, other sanctions being contemplated are the withdrawal of Panama's right to participate in a tariff preference system for Third World countries and the Caribbean Basin Initiative.

Under the CBI, Panama and about 20 other countries are eligible to sell most products duty-free to U.S. markets.

But this measure would have mostly symbolic impact because the bulk of Panama's exports to the United States are not subject to duties in the first place. Panama exported between $342 million and $388 million worth of products to the United States last year, according to figures provided by U.S. government agencies.

A final sanction would involve increasing surveillance on all Panamanian individuals and goods moving across U.S. borders and stepping up efforts to discourage other countries from doing anything that assists Noriega's hold on Panama.

"I think we're getting pretty close to doing them all," said one source, "but the president didn't say that today. It will be at least a day or so."

Meanwhile, the House voted Thursday 367-2 in support of a non-binding resolution demanding Noriega's ouster.

The resolution, which took note of allegations of drug trafficking, murder, money laundering and racketeering against Panama's Defense Forces, was approved shortly before the White House meeting was convened.

It called on Reagan to "consider seriously" additional economic and political sanctions.

Wholesale prices fall slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices fell 0.2 percent in February, pushed downward by drops in both food and energy costs, the government said today.

In a separate report, the Commerce Department said retail sales, boosted by strength in autos, rose 0.6 percent in February, following a January decline.

The report said retail sales rose a seasonally adjusted $714 million to $127.99 billion last month.

While the February increase was generally in line with expectations, the government revised the January report to show a small decline of 0.2 percent, instead of an originally reported increase of 0.5 percent.

Even with the January decline, analysts said the retail sales report generally reflected that the October stock market crash has had little effect on consumer buying plans.

The Labor Department said in its wholesale price report that food prices fell 1.1 percent; energy prices, 0.8 percent. The cost of lettuce, which had skyrocketed through the late fall and early winter, fell a remarkable 70.0 percent.

If the overall February drop held for 12 straight months, prices for that year would be down 2.2 percent.

For the first two months of 1988, prices rose at an annual rate of 1.1 percent, half the modest 2.2 percent rate for all of last year.

Prices had risen a brisk 0.4 percent in January but had declined 0.4 percent in December.

Today's report again showed there was little justification for worries of a resurgence in inflation. Economist Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University said that, "On balance, the inflationary fears that were generated with the January report should be dissipated."

Energy prices were down, but far less than they had fallen in January, when they plummeted 4.5 percent.

Gasoline prices fell 0.5 percent after a sharp 8.4 percent plunge in January. Home heating oil costs were off 4.2 percent after a 6.2 percent drop in January.

Singer Andy Gibb dies at 30

LONDON (AP) — Pop singer Andy Gibb, younger brother of the Bee Gees rock group, died Thursday in an Oxfordshire hospital after developing stomach pains, his record company said. He was 30.

Gibb

A spokesman for Island Records Ltd. who asked not to be identified said he could not release the cause of death.

"He died in an Oxfordshire hospital this morning," the record company said in a statement Thursday.

"He was 30 years old. He was taken ill with stomach pains on Monday and was admitted to hospital for observation and then he died this morning.

"The reason for death has yet to be announced."

The spokesman said Gibb, younger brother of Robin, Maurice and Barry Gibb, who make up the Bee Gees, signed a contract with Island Records two months ago and was due to work on a new album this spring.

Last October, court papers filed in connection with his bankruptcy proceedings in Miami showed Gibb earned only $7,755 in 1986 and lived rent-free while playing guitars loaned him by his brothers.

Gibb became popular in the late 1970s by releasing three number one hits in a row: "I Just Want to Be Your Everything," "(Love Is) Thicker Than Water" and "Shadow Dancing." The latter song was the top hit of the year for 1978, beating out his brothers' top hits from the Saturday Night Fever soundtrack for the top spot.

In the next few years he had six other Top 40 hits, then failed to continue with his initial success.

At one time he had considered joining his brothers to become the fourth Bee Gee but never actually joined the group.

Allison board renews Hutto contract

ALLISON — Despite recommendations to the contrary, Allison Independent School District's board of trustees agreed to renew Superintendent Dr. Nora Hutto's contract following an executive session Thursday night.

Today, Hutto confirmed that her contract had been renewed but would not comment further. "My contract was renewed," she said. "I have no comment."

She agreed to send The Pampa News a copy of the minutes from the meeting since it is public record.

In December, Allison ISD board members recommended that Hutto's contract not be renewed after an annual evaluation of her work showed unsatisfactory ratings in personal qualities, staff relations, school board relations, and business and finance abilities.

Hutto received satisfactory ratings in communication, educational programs and administrative processes, however.

Such an evaluation is usually confidential, but Hutto asked that hers be read before the public. She commented at the time that she knew of nothing she had done wrong in the area of "personal qualities."

She also said her rating for school board relations may have stemmed from her failure to tell trustees that the Texas Education Agency was auditing the school in November and that she had had some recent personal problems with some of the trustees.

TEA auditor David McLaughlin said the TEA found the school had violated laws requiring competitive bidding for projects costing more than $5,000 and prohibiting trustees from deciding on matters involving members of their own families, but that this was a "technicality" that happens in many small school districts. He added that the TEA did not suggest any legal action be taken.

Hutto defended her business abilities, saying that the district was operating under budget. She also said since she had become superintendent student scores on the Texas Educational Assessment for Minimum Skills (TEAMS tests) rose 22 points.

The question of Hutto's contract renewal was tabled by board members at both the January and the February meetings. Deadline for action on the contract was April 1.

Hutto, 35, is one of two female kindergarten through 12th grade superintendents in the Texas Panhandle. She is soon to complete her second year in this position. She oversees a faculty of 11 teachers and a student body of 42 students. She holds a doctorate of education degree from Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

'Say kNOW to Drugs' stamp

For a quarter, Pampa postal workers will give citizens a stamp with a special "Say kNOW to Drugs" cancellation during the drug information fair Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Pampa Mall.

Jim Lummus, postal clerk, will man the booth sponsored by the Pampa U.S. Post Office. The special cancellation and a 22-cent stamp is included in the 25-cent price, Lummus said, adding that the local Post Office and Post master Richard Wilson strongly support the Pampa Says kNOW to Drugs campaign.

Philatelic and commemorative items will also be available at the booth, he said.

Other attractions at the drug information fair will be booths sponsored by local pharmacists, Pampa Police Department, area substance abuse centers, Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon and displays of anti-drug posters created by Pampa elementary students.

Range fire burns near Albany in West Texas

ALBANY (AP)—A raging brush fire 35 miles long and six miles wide roared across a vast area of West Texas early today, scorching an estimated 135,000 acres, a Shackelford County official says.

There have been no serious injuries and most homes in the path of the roaring fire have been saved by the hundreds of firemen battling the blaze, Lawrence Winkler, information officer of the Shackelford County Emergency Management team, said.

The firefighters suffered only some minor burns although they kept in close contact with the fire during the night, Winkler said.

"It's been a miracle, so far," he said. Texas National Guardsmen, ordered by Gov. Bill Clements to help local authorities battle the blaze, joined an estimated 14-15 West Texas fire departments. The firefighters used nearly 50 pieces of fire equipment, Winkler said.

Some of the fire equipment was lost to the roaring blaze, mainly because firefighters were working in darkness, Winkler said.

At times during the night, Winkler said, the blaze could be seen as far as 35 miles away.

Firefighters gathered around homes in the path of the inferno to keep the fire away from the homes.

Some children were evacuated from homes in the path of the blaze, but Winkler said, "Most people stayed there to fight the fire."

At least one home, some mobile homes and outbuildings were destroyed

during the early hours of the blaze Thursday night, authorities said.

The fire threatened Albany, the Shackelford County seat town with a population of 2,400, but winds died down and the fire moved northward away from the town, officials at the sheriff's office in Albany said.

Nervous residents watched during the night as the glow of the approaching fire got closer, but there were no evacuations.

Red Cross officials sent units from Abilene and Fort Worth to provide food and refreshments for the firefighters.

No shelters were set up because families that moved away from their isolated rural homes chose to stay with friends, said Red Cross spokeswoman

Cheryl Parks said.

Clements called out about 90 guardsmen Thursday night after receiving requests for help from local authorities, press secretary Reggie Bashur said.

Winkler said only about 40 of the guardsmen were involved in fighting the fire while others were being held in reserve.

Texas Department of Public Safety troopers, who had closed Farm Road 351 between Abilene and Albany, directed traffic away from the fire area.

The National Weather Service said winds gusted to 30 mph in the area around the fire Thursday night, but Winkler said the wind died down some during the night.

Other range fires were reported in

Nolan, Jones, McCulloch and Callahan counties Thursday afternoon.

"You can't believe what it was like up there (on 351)," a volunteer fireman said. "It was just hell."

Winkler, who also serves as county extension agent for Shackelford County, said ranchers will not be hurt so badly if they get rain because of the timing of the fire.

"If we get some rain, it won't be all that serious," Winkler said. "If it stays dry, it's going to be serious."

"The small rancher wouldn't have any place for his cattle to graze," the county agent said.

Albany was an early supply point on the western cattle trail to Dodge City. It dates from about 1878.

GOP looking at one state Senate race

AUSTIN (AP)—The defeat of veteran state Sen. Grant Jones in the Democratic primary prompted Republican Party officials to explore resurrecting the campaign of a GOP candidate who dropped out of the race two months ago.

Even though Rex Andrew of Abilene withdrew from the race in January, Texas GOP executive director John Weaver said Andrew could be certified next week to appear on November's general election ballot.

If Andrew isn't allowed back into the race, Sweetwater lawyer Temple Dickson, a Democrat, becomes the automatic general election winner in the 14-county district that stretches from Temple to Abilene.

Dickson unseated Jones, a 23-year veteran of the Legislature and chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, by winning more than 56 percent of Tuesday's primary election vote.

"I talked to him. He is interested," Weaver said of Andrew, a television news reporter.

Weaver said the party is seeking a ruling from Secretary of State Jack Rains, a Republican, on whether Andrew could stand for election in light of the fact that he stopped payment on the check he used for his filing fee.

Rains' spokesman Jim Warren said Thursday that the questions were being reviewed. It wasn't certain how quickly a ruling would be made.

Andrew sent a letter to the party in January, saying he was withdrawing from the race. But his name appeared on the primary ballot because he did not pull out before the deadline for withdrawing.

"Technically, he withdrew too late. So he really didn't withdraw," Weaver said. "We'll make a decision next week whether to certify him to be on the general election ballot or not."

Republican State Chairman George Strake has the power to decide if Andrew can run in November, Weaver said.

In an interview with the Austin American-Statesman, Andrew said he didn't realize it was possible to rejoin the race. He said he didn't know whether he would try to do so.

"I'm as much in the dark as you," the 31-year-old political novice said. "My situation is really unchanged from two months ago. It still would be very hard for me to do because of the family obligations that I have."

Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, said the GOP tried to recruit a viable candidate for the Senate seat but could find no one except Andrew.

Technology will improve energy recovery

MIDLAND (AP)—Computers will help increase America's energy supplies in the future, the head of a major oil company says.

"Current technology can recover only about 10 percent" of the 300 billion barrels of oil out of reach of today's recovery technology, said Richard M. Morrow, Amoco Corp.'s chairman and chief executive officer.

"If a higher percentage is to be recovered new and innovative technology will be needed in the industry," Morrow told the Permian Basin Oil & Gas Recovery Conference on Thursday.

Morrow called the Permian Basin's enhanced oil recovery projects prime examples of what technology can mean to a mature oil producing region. Of the 24 carbon dioxide and chemical floods in the Permian Basin, Amoco operates 12.

He also credited high tech computers and refined computer models as a key in stimulating performance in the reservoirs.

"Our engineers were able to use the computer models to study a variety of injection rates and volumes and analyze the results for optimum recovery," Morrow said.

Morrow predicted that "formidable technical challenges" lie ahead for the petroleum industry, including production in water depths greater than 1,300 feet, development of alternate fuels, and economic development of lower permeability reservoirs.

"Even more ominous for the future," Morrow warned, "is the dropoff in enrollments in the fields of engineering and the earth sciences. We depend on new graduates to develop and implement future technical advances. They are essential to our industry's success."

He added that the nation could face a shortage of 250,000 engineers in only 25 years unless measures were taken to halt the shortfall of technical talent.

Expressing concern that schools are increasingly failing to provide "technically literate graduates," Morrow proposed several solutions.

They included increased scholarship funds for technical achievement, training and money to upgrade technical instruction, and encouraging more avenues for cooperation between schools and industry.

Morrow suggested that improvement in technical education is possible "through cooperation with other business people, as well as educators, parents, government officials, and students themselves."

Medicaid payments recovery postponed by state board

ABILENE (AP)—Texas Board of Human Services members say they will not vote on proposed regulations concerning a new law allowing the recovery of nursing-home costs from the estates of Medicaid recipients.

The three-member board Thursday unanimously postponed a vote on proposed regulations after several witnesses, including some legislators, complained about the program, which was to begin April 1.

"We need time for the Legislature, consumer groups and senior-citizen organizations to look objectively at this program to see what it does and, more important, what it does not do," Sen.

Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, chairman of the committee that drafted the legislation containing the provision, said.

The Medicaid cost-recovery law was approved in 1987 as part of legislation extending the life of the welfare agency 10 years. Edwards said he and others need to take another look at the cost-recovery program to determine whether its passage was a mistake.

The board was to have voted on rules to implement a law requiring the Department of Human Services to recover as much as it can of the cost of treatment for Medicaid recipients in nursing homes. The program is used in 17 other states.

Youth arrested after four prostitution 'busts'

AUSTIN (AP)—A 17-year-old is free on $3,000 bond after police said he donned a sheriff-style uniform and pistol, then tried to convince employees at four motels that he was a lawman making a prostitution bust.

The Williamson County youth was arrested on charges of impersonating a public officer, authorities said.

"It's hard enough for us to convince people that we are cops to have guys running out there pretending they are," said vice investigator Earl Hall.

Hall said the youth allegedly handcuffed an escort service employee when she met him at one motel, then took her to three more where he sought a room to make a prostitution arrest.

Hall gave this account: A young man wearing a brown sheriff-style uniform, a heavy police-type jacket and a gun belt with .38-caliber snub-nose pistol entered a motel Feb. 24.

The youth identified himself as a member of the Williamson County Sheriff's Department assigned to a "warrant and arrest team" on a prostitution case.

The man used the motel office phone to call for an escort from an Austin escort service. He asked for a room in which to make an arrest. The man went to a room, and a woman from the escort service arrived.

The woman was told she was under arrest for prostitution, but the man implied that he would let her go if she had sex with him.

The motel's manager arrived and wanted the man to pay for the room. The young man handcuffed the escort to a bar in the room's bathroom while he argued with the manager.

The youth took the woman and went to two other motels, where he asked for rooms to make an arrest. He identified himself as a Hays County deputy constable at one motel and as a Travis County deputy sheriff at the other. Both refused his request.

At a fourth motel, the man said he was an Austin police officer and paid for a room. He and the escort had sexual intercourse. He then released her, saying no charges would be filed.

The woman went to a nearby hotel where she and her boyfriend lived. The boyfriend confronted the impersonator at a gas station, taking his gun belt and briefcase trying to learn his identity.

The youth reported a robbery to the Austin Police Department. Police arrested the woman and her boyfriend that day, but the two were released after questioning.

The youth was arrested Feb. 24 when he allegedly tried to reclaim his property at the police station. He was released pending further investigation, then rearrested Wednesday on the impersonation charge.

Three more Texas banks fail, boosting this year's total to 15

HOUSTON (AP)—Liberal lending practices contributed to the failures of three affiliated banks in the Houston area, increasing the state's total to 15 so far this year.

Texas State Banking Commissioner Ken Littlefield closed First American Bank & Trust of Baytown, First American Bank & Trust of Friendswood and First American Bank & Trust of Manvel on Thursday and named the Federal Deposit and Insurance Corp. receiver.

FDIC spokesman Steven Katsanos said the Baytown bank's assets will be assumed by a new institution, insured depositors of the Friendswood bank will be paid off and the Manvel's bank insured deposits will be transferred to another bank.

The three Texas bank closings boost the nation's 1988 total to 36 so far this year, Katsanos said.

Littlefield said a recent examination of the institutions identified losses that exceeded the banks' capital. Losses were attributed to liberal lending practices under the direction of current management and the board of directors.

When the resulting capital deficits could not be remedied, the banks were closed Thursday afternoon, he said.

The three banks are affiliated with First American Bancshares in Baytown, said Richard Nun, spokesman for the banking commission.

All of the Baytown bank's deposits will be assumed by Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Baytown, Katsanos said. The bank's only office will not reopen, but customers can do business at Citizens Bank's main office beginning today.

The failed bank had total assets of $39.8 million, Katsanos said.

Citizens Bank and Trust Co. will assume about $38.5 million in 6,000 deposit accounts and it also will purchase $24.8 million of the failed banks loans and other assets. The FDIC will advance about $14.6 million to the assuming bank and will retain assets of the failed bank with a book value of about $15 million.

Insured depositors of the failed bank in Friendswood will be paid off because the FDIC did not receive any bids for the institution. The bank had total assets of about $6.9 million.

Deposits in the failed bank totaled about $6.4 million in 500 accounts, including about $143,000 in seven accounts that exceeded the insurance limit of $100,000, Katsanos said. Uninsured depositors will share with the FDIC in proceeds from liquidation of the failed bank's assets.

The FDIC board also approved the transfer of insured deposits of the failed bank in Manvel to First National Bank of Alvin. The failed bank's sole office will reopen today as a branch of the Alvin bank.

No acceptable bids were received for the failed Manvel bank, so the FDIC approved the deposits transfer.

The failed bank had total assets of $13.3 million. Deposits totaled about $12.5 million in 2,200 accounts, including $10,000 in five accounts that exceeded the insurance limit. Uninsured depositors will share with the FDIC in the proceeds from liquidation of the failed banks assets.

Insured deposits will be available to owners today, and checks drawn on the failed bank's account up to the insured limit will be honored.

Singer Andy Gibb dies at 30

LONDON (AP) — Pop singer Andy Gibb, younger brother of the Bee Gees rock group, died Thursday in an Oxfordshire hospital after developing stomach pains, his record company said. He was 30.

A spokesman for Island Records Ltd. who asked not to be identified said he could not release the cause of death.

"He died in an Oxfordshire hospital this morning," the record company said in a statement Thursday.

"He was 30 years old. He was taken ill with stomach pains on Monday and was admitted to hospital for observation and then he died this morning."

"The reason for death has yet to be announced."

The spokesman said Gibb, younger brother of Robin, Maurice and Barry Gibb, who make up the Bee Gees, signed a contract with Island Records two months ago and was due to work on a new album this spring.

Last October, court papers filed in connection with his bankruptcy proceedings in Miami showed Gibb earned only $7,755 in 1986 and lived rent-free while playing guitars loaned him by his brothers.

Gibb became popular in the late 1970s by releasing three number one hits in a row: "I Just Want to Be Your Everything," "(Love Is) Thicker Than Water" and "Shadow Dancing." The latter song was the top hit of the year for 1978, beating out his brothers' top hits from the Saturday Night Fever soundtrack for the top spot.

In the next few years he had six other Top 40 hits, then failed to continue with his initial success.

At one time he had considered joining his brothers to become the fourth Bee Gee but never actually joined the group.

Allison board renews Hutto contract

ALLISON — Despite recommendations to the contrary, Allison Independent School District's board of trustees agreed to renew Superintendent Dr. Nora Hutto's contract following an executive session Thursday night.

Today, Hutto confirmed that her contract had been renewed but would not comment further. "My contract was renewed," she said. "I have no comment."

She agreed to send The Pampa News a copy of the minutes from the meeting since it is public record.

In December, Allison ISD board members recommended that Hutto's contract not be renewed after an annual evaluation of her work showed unsatisfactory ratings in personal qualities, staff relations, school board relations, and business and finance abilities.

Hutto received satisfactory ratings in communication, educational programs and administrative processes, however.

Such an evaluation is usually confidential, but Hutto asked that hers be read before the public. She commented at the time that she knew of nothing she had done wrong in the area of "personal qualities."

She also said her rating for school board relations may have stemmed from her failure to tell trustees that the Texas Education Agency was auditing the school in November and that she had had some recent personal problems with some of the trustees.

TEA auditor David McLaughlin said the TEA found the school had violated laws requiring competitive bidding for projects costing more than $5,000 and prohibiting trustees from deciding on matters involving members of their own families, but that this was a "technicality" that happens in many small school districts. He added that the TEA did not suggest any legal action be taken.

Hutto defended her business abilities, saying that the district was operating under budget. She also said since she had become superintendent student scores on the Texas Educational Assessment for Minimum Skills (TEAMS tests) rose 22 points.

The question of Hutto's contract renewal was tabled by board members at both the January and the February meetings. Deadline for action on the contract was April 1.

Hutto, 35, is one of two female kindergarten through 12th grade superintendents in the Texas Panhandle. She is soon to complete her second year in this position. She oversees a faculty of 11 teachers and a student body of 42 students. She holds a doctorate of education degree from Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

'Say kNow to Drugs' stamp

For a quarter, Pampa postal workers will give citizens a stamp with a special "Say kNow to Drugs" cancellation during the drug information fair Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Pampa Mall.

Jim Lummus, postal clerk, will man the booth sponsored by the Pampa U.S. Post Office. The special cancellation and a 22-cent stamp is included in the 25-cent price, Lummus said, adding that the local Post Office and Postmaster Richard Wilson strongly support the Pampa Says kNow to Drugs campaign.

Philatelic and commemorative items will also be available at the booth, he said.

Other attractions at the drug information fair will be booths sponsored by local pharmacists, Pampa Police Department, area substance abuse centers, Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-Anon and displays of anti-drug posters created by Pampa elementary students.

Range fire burns near Albany in West Texas

ALBANY (AP)—A raging brush fire 35 miles long and six miles wide roared across a vast area of West Texas early today, scorching an estimated 135,000 acres, a Shackelford County official says.

There have been no serious injuries and most homes in the path of the roaring fire have been saved by the hundreds of firemen battling the blaze, Lawrence Winkler, information officer of the Shackelford County Emergency Management team, said.

The firefighters suffered only some minor burns although they kept in close contact with the fire during the night, Winkler said.

"It's been a miracle, so far," he said. Texas National Guardsmen, ordered by Gov. Bill Clements to help local authorities battle the blaze, joined an estimated 14-15 West Texas fire departments. The firefighters used nearly 50 pieces of fire equipment, Winkler said.

Some of the fire equipment was lost to the roaring blaze, mainly because firefighters were working in darkness, Winkler said.

At times during the night, Winkler said, the blaze could be seen as far as 35 miles away.

Firefighters gathered around homes in the path of the inferno to keep the fire away from the homes.

Some children were evacuated from homes in the path of the blaze, but Winkler said, "Most people stayed there to fight the fire."

At least one home, some mobile homes and outbuildings were destroyed

during the early hours of the blaze Thursday night, authorities said.

The fire threatened Albany, the Shackelford County seat town with a population of 2,400, but winds died down and the fire moved northward away from the town, officials at the sheriff's office in Albany said.

Nervous residents watched during the night as the glow of the approaching fire got closer, but there were no evacuations.

Red Cross officials sent units from Abilene and Fort Worth to provide food and refreshments for the firefighters.

No shelters were set up because families that moved away from their isolated rural homes chose to stay with friends, said Red Cross spokeswoman

Cheryl Parks said.

Clements called out about 90 guardsmen Thursday night after receiving requests for help from local authorities, press secretary Reggie Bashur said.

Winkler said only about 40 of the guardsmen were involved in fighting the fire while others were being held in reserve.

Texas Department of Public Safety troopers, who had closed Farm Road 351 between Abilene and Albany, directed traffic away from the fire area.

The National Weather Service said winds gusted to 30 mph in the area around the fire Thursday night, but Winkler said the wind died down some during the night.

Other range fires were reported in

Nolan, Jones, McCulloch and Callahan counties Thursday afternoon.

"You can't believe what it was like up there (on 351)," a volunteer fireman said. "It was just hell."

Winkler, who also serves as county extension agent for Shackelford County, said ranchers will not be hurt so badly if they get rain because of the timing of the fire.

"If we get some rain, it won't be all that serious," Winkler said. "If it stays dry, it's going to be serious."

"The small rancher wouldn't have any place for his cattle to graze," the county agent said.

Albany was an early supply point on the western cattle trail to Dodge City. It dates from about 1878.

GOP looking at one state Senate race

AUSTIN (AP)—The defeat of veteran state Sen. Grant Jones in the Democratic primary prompted Republican Party officials to explore resurrecting the campaign of a GOP candidate who dropped out of the race two months ago.

Even though Rex Andrew of Abilene withdrew from the race in January, Texas GOP executive director John Weaver said Andrew could be certified next week to appear on November's general election ballot.

If Andrew isn't allowed back into the race, Sweetwater lawyer Temple Dickson, a Democrat, becomes the automatic general election winner in the 14-county district that stretches from Temple to Abilene.

Dickson unseated Jones, a 23-year veteran of the Legislature and chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee, by winning more than 56 percent of Tuesday's primary election vote.

"I talked to him. He is interested," Weaver said of Andrew, a television news reporter.

Weaver said the party is seeking a ruling from Secretary of State Jack Rains, a Republican, on whether Andrew could stand for election in light of the fact that he stopped payment on the check he used for his filing fee.

Rains' spokesman Jim Warren said Thursday that the questions were being reviewed. It wasn't certain how quickly a ruling would be made.

Andrew sent a letter to the party in January, saying he was withdrawing from the race. But his name appeared on the primary ballot because he did not pull out before the deadline for withdrawing.

"Technically, he withdrew too late. So he really didn't withdraw," Weaver said. "We'll make a decision next week whether to certify him to be on the general election ballot or not."

Republican State Chairman George Strake has the power to decide if Andrew can run in November, Weaver said.

In an interview with the Austin American-Statesman, Andrew said he didn't realize it was possible to rejoin the race. He said he didn't know whether he would try to do so.

"I'm as much in the dark as you," the 31-year-old political novice said. "My situation is really unchanged from two months ago. It still would be very hard for me to do because of the family obligations that I have."

Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, said the GOP tried to recruit a viable candidate for the Senate seat but could find no one except Andrew.

Technology will improve energy recovery

MIDLAND (AP)—Computers will help increase America's energy supplies in the future, the head of a major oil company says.

"Current technology can recover only about 10 percent" of the 300 billion barrels of oil out of reach of today's recovery technology, said Richard M. Morrow, Amoco Corp.'s chairman and chief executive officer.

"If a higher percentage is to be recovered new and innovative technology will be needed in the industry," Morrow told the Permian Basin Oil & Gas Recovery Conference on Thursday.

Morrow called the Permian Basin's enhanced oil recovery projects prime examples of what technology can mean to a mature oil producing region. Of the 24 carbon dioxide and chemical floods in the Permian Basin, Amoco operates 12.

He also credited high tech computers and refined computer models as a key in stimulating performance in the reservoirs.

"Our engineers were able to use the computer models to study a variety of injection rates and volumes and analyze the results for optimum recovery," Morrow said.

Morrow predicted that "formidable technical challenges" lie ahead for the petroleum industry, including production in water depths greater than 1,300 feet, development of alternate fuels, and economic development of lower permeability reservoirs.

"Even more ominous for the future," Morrow warned, "is the dropoff in enrollments in the fields of engineering and the earth sciences. We depend on new graduates to develop and implement future technical advances. They are essential to our industry's success."

He added that the nation could face a shortage of 250,000 engineers in only 25 years unless measures were taken to halt the shortfall of technical talent.

Expressing concern that schools are increasingly failing to provide "technically literate graduates," Morrow proposed several solutions.

They included increased scholarship funds for technical achievement, training and money to upgrade technical instruction, and encouraging more avenues for cooperation between schools and industry.

Morrow suggested that improvement in technical education is possible "through cooperation with other business people, as well as educators, parents, government officials, and students themselves."

Medicaid payments recovery postponed by state board

ABILENE (AP)—Texas Board of Human Services members say they will not vote on proposed regulations concerning a new law allowing the recovery of nursing-home costs from the estates of Medicaid recipients.

The three-member board Thursday unanimously postponed a vote on proposed regulations after several witnesses, including some legislators, complained about the program, which was to begin April 1.

"We need time for the Legislature, consumer groups and senior-citizen organizations to look objectively at this program to see what it does and, more important, what it does not do," Sen.

Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, chairman of the committee that drafted the legislation containing the provision, said.

The Medicaid cost-recovery law was approved in 1987 as part of legislation extending the life of the welfare agency 10 years. Edwards said he and others need to take another look at the cost-recovery program to determine whether its passage was a mistake.

The board was to have voted on rules to implement a law requiring the Department of Human Services to recover as much as it can of the cost of treatment for Medicaid recipients in nursing homes. The program is used in 17 other states.

AUSTIN (AP)—A 17-year-old is free on $3,000 bond after police said he donned a sheriff-style uniform and pistol, then tried to convince employees at four motels that he was a lawman making a prostitution bust.

The Williamson County youth was arrested on charges of impersonating a public officer, authorities said.

"It's hard enough for us to convince people that we are cops to have guys running out there pretending they are," said vice investigator Earl Hall.

Hall said the youth allegedly handcuffed an escort service employee when she met him at one motel, then took her to three more where he sought a room to make a prostitution arrest.

Hall gave this account: A young man wearing a brown sheriff-style uniform, a heavy police-type jacket and a gun belt with .38-caliber snub-nose pistol entered a motel Feb. 24.

The youth identified himself as a member of the Williamson County Sheriff's Department assigned to a "warrant and arrest team" on a prostitution case.

The man used the motel office phone to call for an escort from an Austin escort service. He asked for a room in which to make an arrest. The man went to a room, and a woman from the escort service arrived.

The woman was told she was under arrest for prostitution, but the man implied that he would let her go if she had sex with him.

The motel's manager arrived and wanted the man to pay for the room. The young man handcuffed the escort to a bar in the room's bathroom while he argued with the manager.

The youth took the woman and went to two other motels, where he asked for rooms to make an arrest. He identified himself as a Hays County deputy constable at one motel and as a Travis County deputy sheriff at the other. Both refused his request.

At a fourth motel, the man said he was an Austin police officer and paid for a room. He and the escort had sexual intercourse. He then released her, saying no charges would be filed.

The woman went to a nearby hotel where she and her boyfriend lived. The boyfriend confronted the impersonator at a gas station, taking his gun belt and briefcase trying to learn his identity.

The youth reported a robbery to the Austin Police Department. Police arrested the woman and her boyfriend that day, but the two were released after questioning.

The youth was arrested Feb. 24 when he allegedly tried to reclaim his property at the police station. He was released pending further investigation, then rearrested Wednesday on the impersonation charge.

Three more Texas banks fail, boosting this year's total to 15

HOUSTON (AP)—Liberal lending practices contributed to the failures of three affiliated banks in the Houston area, increasing the state's total to 15 so far this year.

Texas State Banking Commissioner Ken Littlefield closed First American Bank & Trust of Baytown, First American Bank & Trust of Friendswood and First American Bank & Trust of Manvel on Thursday and named the Federal Deposit and Insurance Corp. receiver.

FDIC spokesman Steven Katsanos said the Baytown bank's assets will be assumed by a new institution, insured depositors of the Friendswood bank will be paid off and the Manvel's bank insured deposits will be transferred to another bank.

The three Texas bank closings boost the nation's 1988 total to 36 so far this year, Katsanos said.

Littlefield said a recent examination of the institutions identified losses that exceeded the banks' capital. Losses were attributed to liberal lending practices under the direction of current management and the board of directors.

When the resulting capital deficits could not be remedied, the banks were closed Thursday afternoon, he said.

The three banks are affiliated with First American Bancshares in Baytown, said Richard Nun, spokesman for the banking commission.

All of the Baytown bank's deposits will be assumed by Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Baytown, Katsanos said. The bank's only office will not reopen, but customers can do business at Citizens Bank's main office beginning today.

The failed bank had total assets of $39.8 million, Katsanos said.

Citizens Bank and Trust Co. will assume about $38.5 million in 6,000 deposit accounts and it also will purchase $24.8 million of the failed banks loans and other assets. The FDIC will advance about $14.6 million to the assuming bank and will retain assets of the failed bank with a book value of about $15 million.

Insured depositors of the failed bank in Friendswood will be paid off because the FDIC did not receive any bids for the institution. The bank had total assets of about $6.9 million.

Deposits in the failed bank totaled about $6.4 million in 500 accounts, including about $143,000 in seven accounts that exceeded the insurance limit of $100,000, Katsanos said. Uninsured depositors will share with the FDIC in proceeds from liquidation of the failed bank's assets.

The FDIC board also approved the transfer of insured deposits of the failed bank in Manvel to First National Bank of Alvin. The failed bank's sole office will reopen today as a branch of the Alvin bank.

No acceptable bids were received for the failed Manvel bank, so the FDIC approved the deposits transfer.

The failed bank had total assets of $13.3 million. Deposits totaled about $12.5 million in 2,200 accounts, including $10,000 in five accounts that exceeded the insurance limit. Uninsured depositors will share with the FDIC in the proceeds from liquidation of the failed banks assets.

Insured deposits will be available to owners today, and checks drawn on the failed bank's account up to the insured limit will be honored.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Glasnost hope's just more hype

How is Soviet dictator Mikhail Gorbachev's glasnost campaign going? In the West it is billed as a program to spread openness and more freedom throughout Soviet society.

Last month glasnost was on display in the Soviet "republic" of Lithuania. The Baltic land's people had planned demonstrations to celebrate the 70th anniversary of Lithuania's Declaration of Independence. Lithuanians look on the date much as Americans look on July 4.

But Soviet troops placed Lithuanian patriots under house arrest and beat hundreds of people marching to a cemetery where Lithuanian national heroes are interred. The Soviets thugs also blocked the area around a statue of Adam Mickiewicz, the great 19th century Polish poet also beloved by Lithuanians (the two countries have ancient ties). Demonstrators had gathered at both sites for protests last August.

This is the reality behind the glasnost hype. Despite a few cosmetic changes made to impress Western liberals, the Kremlin has no intention of granting its 300 million slaves (they're not citizens) any decent amount of freedom.

And let's not forget that Lithuania, along with neighboring Latvia and Estonia, is not really a Soviet "republic" at all, but an independent nation enslaved by the Soviet Union; even the U.S. government still recognizes these countries as independent.

In 1939 Adolf Hitler "gave" the three countries, along with parts of Poland and Finland, to Gorbachev's predecessor, Josef Stalin. The Red Army invaded in 1940 and the countries were absorbed into the Soviet Empire. It was all part of the 1939 Nazi-Soviet pact, which Gorbachev again defended last November.

Of course, Hitler had no right to "give" these countries to anybody, any more than he had the right to "give" other peoples to the gas chambers. The continued Soviet enslavement of these countries is nothing more than a continuation of Hitlerism. Hitler has been dead almost 43 years, but his atrocious policies live on as implemented by his former allies, the Soviets.

What can the U.S. do? Unlike Afghanistan or Nicaragua we cannot, unfortunately, arm anti-Soviet freedom fighters. Yet Poland has shown how peaceful resistance and publicity in the West can keep a people's spirit alive despite continuing repression.

So what we can do is continue to insist that these countries are independent, despite their rape by Hitler and the Soviets. To this end last week President Reagan signed legislation designating Feb. 16 as Lithuanian Independence Day. He announced: "We have never recognized the forcible incorporation of Lithuania into the Soviet Union, and we never will."

We can press the Kremlin to grant more freedom to Lithuanians, Latvians and Estonians. We can help keep the countries' ancient culture alive by broadcasting from the West in the face of intensified Soviet jamming. And we can keep the Baltic peoples, and all enslaved peoples, in our prayers.

Press won victory, didn't it?

WASHINGTON — In 251 B.C., as Plutarch tells the tale, King Pyrrhus of Epirus set out to conquer the Romans. He had 25,000 infantry, 3,000 horses and 20 elephants. In 279 the opposing forces met at Asculum. Pyrrhus won, but at terrible cost. An aide complimented him on the victory.

"One more such victory," said the weary monarch, "and we are lost."

It is a long way from the glory that was Greece and the grandeur that was Rome to the pornographic pages of Hustler magazine. Make the leap. We of the press won a victory, so to speak, in the U.S. Supreme Court a few days ago. Under the repulsive aegis of Larry Flynt, publisher of Hustler, we won a victory over the Rev. Jerry Falwell of Lynchburg, Va. One more such victory and we may be lost.

The facts of the case are well known. In its issue of November 1983, Hustler carried on its inside front cover what appeared to be a full-color ad for Campari liqueur. The company had been running a series of ads in which prominent people recalled "the first time" they have tasted Campari. Hustler's version was a parody, and a vicious parody at that.

The mock advertisement purported to quote Falwell on the first time he had sexual intercourse. This was "during a drunken incestuous rendezvous with his mother in an outhouse." At the bottom of the ad, in the tiny type known as Surgeon General Light, appeared a notice: "Fiction: Ad and Personality Parody."

Falwell sued on three grounds — invasion of privacy, malicious and willful libel, and intentional infliction of emotional distress. The presiding judge dismissed the count on privacy; the trial jury strangely concluded that Falwell had not been libeled because the parody "could not reasonably be understood as describing actual facts or actual events." But the jury then awarded Falwell $200,000 in damages for the emotional distress he had suffered.

Then the high court overturned the judgment. In a unanimous opinion written by Chief Justice William Rehnquist, the court held that public figures may not recover damages for the distress that results from "speech that is patently offensive and is intended to inflict emotional injury."

Rehnquist reasoned that the sort of robust political debate encouraged by the First Amendment is bound to produce speech that is critical of public figures. Inevitably, such speech "will not always be reasoned or moderate." It may be motivated by hatred or ill-will. It may be "slashing and one-sided." Since the dawn of the Republic, political cartoonists have attacked with drawings "beyond the bounds of good taste and conventional manners."

Falwell had argued that Hustler's parody went beyond the political cartoons of Thomas Nast a century ago. The fake Campari ad hit a new depth of "outrageousness." Rehnquist was not impressed. There must be some principled standard for determining what speech is beyond constitutional protection "but we are quite sure that the pejorative description 'outrageous' does not supply one." If judgments could be awarded for "outrageous" speech, jurors would be free to impose liability on the basis of their own tastes or views.

In any event, said the court, "the free flow of ideas and opinions on matters of public interest and concern" must be protected. Public figures retain a right to sue for libel based upon false statements of fact made with reckless disregard for truth. They cannot recover for "a caricature such as the ad parody involved here."

Very well. It was a victory for freedom of the press. If the court had upheld the verdict in Falwell's favor, a floodgate might have opened for lawsuits based on "emotional distress." Cartoonists and editorial writers would have been rendered impotent, and much of the remaining vigor of our press would have drained away. So we rejoice.

All the same, the decision is worrisome. Hustler's degrading parody had nothing to do with "ideas and opinions on matters of public interest and concern." It was miles removed from "the sort of robust political debate encouraged by the First Amendment." This was not "political and social discourse." This was a brutal, savage personal attack.

Those of us in the press, whose stock in trade often is to hurt the feelings of public figures, ought to remember King Pyrrhus. One more such victory, and the people who gave us the First Amendment may rise in irresistible wrath and take it away. Falwell was grievously wronged. Our precious right of a free press should not obscure that undeniable fact.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, March 11, the 71st day of 1988. There are 295 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

One hundred years ago, on March 11, 1888, the famous "Blizzard of '88" struck the northeastern United States. In the days that followed, some 400 people died as a result of the harsh weather.

On this date:

In 1810, Emperor Napoleon of France was married by proxy to Archduchess Marie Louise of Austria.

In 1847, John Chapman, better known as "Johnny Appleseed," died in Allen County, Ind.

In 1861, the Confederate convention in Montgomery, Ala., adopted a constitution.

In 1865, during the Civil War, Union forces under General William T. Sherman occupied Fayetteville, N.C.

In 1930, former President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft was buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Classicists should face music

Within the past couple of seasons: The Oakland (Calif.) Symphony has folded. The San Diego Symphony temporarily suspended operations.

The San Francisco Opera, burdened by a $2 million deficit, had canceled its summer season.

Canada's third largest orchestra, the Vancouver Symphony, $1.7 million in debt, has canceled the rest of this season's concerts, has placed itself in receivership.

Also, the Nashville Symphony has canceled the remainder of the season's performances because of financial problems.

Ernest Fleischmann, executive director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, says, "The orchestra as we know it is dead!"

What killed it?

Dare I suggest that perhaps you did, that you may have killed it with kindness?

It's weaning time for so-called "classical music."

It's been spoon-fed by government and propped up by foundations and corporations; it should, by now, begin to take responsibility for its own survival.

The concert hall cloister has presumed to "educate" audiences instead of entertaining them. Noisy contemporary compositions have defied their hearers to accept them.

Historically, a primary requisite of concert music was that it must appeal to somebody outside the professional music field. Audiences mostly. Perhaps an isolated, individual patron. But one way or another, concert music, to justify itself, had to reach out to human hearts beyond the footlights.

Today we have composers capable of doing that. John Williams is one. So capable is he of stirring our emotions that his work is regularly commissioned to enhance America's finest motion pictures.

Yet, such is the arrogance of right-now concert programmers that they will accept the theater music of a teen-age Mendelssohn on a "serious" program while rejecting the incidental music of John Williams.

Such snobbery reflects a knee-jerk reaction against derivative music of any kind — music that can trace its roots to other music.

The principal criterion ought to be: Is it sufficiently appealing to pay its own way?

But what of the "great music of the past" which too few will pay to hear? The academic community has always preserved — and should — the acknowledged classics. But only a cultural sadist would suggest that the viola da gamba be rammed down the throat of an unwilling consumer.

Author Allan Bloom writes: "Classical music is now a special taste, like Greek language or pre-Columbian archeology ..."

The time has come for classical music to face the music.

Artists of the past forced nothing on anyone. Music lovers were never intimidated into appreciating a piece because elite "insiders" called it worthy. Let's not let that happen now.

Let's not pay for music we don't like or, worse still, insist that others pay for it.

Has Ronald Reagan become irrelevant?

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — What ever happened to Ronald Reagan?

History will record that he was elected president in the autumn of 1980, assumed office in early 1981 and governed the country for more than five years as an enormously popular and highly effective leader.

He continues to occupy the White House but has become increasingly isolated from the events that ought to be of interest and concern to a president. He is, in a word, irrelevant.

Item: Reagan schedules an evening address to the nation to promote continued financing of the Contras in Nicaragua, but all three television networks flatly reject his request to carry the speech live.

The ineffectual president attempts to deal with the humiliating incident by joking about it. He opens a press conference several weeks later by noting that he is "on the networks at last."

Item: That news conference is his first in four months, perpetuating a pattern that has made Reagan the president least available to the press in the past half century. Journalists covering the White House used to complain bitterly about that isolation, but they no longer care.

Item: At the press conference, Reagan proclaims the Palestinian violence of recent months to be "not just spontaneous and home-grown" but abetted by "certain people suspected of being terrorists, outsiders coming in."

Only one day later, he is publicly contradicted by Secretary of State George Shultz, who says the "fundamental origins" of the violence in the territories occupied by Israel are "essentially indigenous."

Item: In his State of the Union address in late January, Reagan berates Congress for including in the 1987 year-end omnibus appropriation bill funds for pork barrel projects such as "cranberry research, blueberry research, the study of crawfish and the commercialization of wild flowers."

Reagan boldly proclaims his intention to confront Congress by formally calling for recision of the wasteful spending. One month later, the head of his Office and Management and Budget announces that no such request will be forthcoming because the president's challenge was not serious.

Item: The proposed budget Reagan sends to Congress in mid-February is routinely identified as a submission of the "Executive Office of the President" — but Reagan does not share most of its priorities.

To restore public confidence in the nation's economy following the stock market plunge last autumn, the president was forced to agree to a budget that includes major compromises with the congressional Democrats he not long ago reviled as fiscally irresponsible.

There's more. Scandals — several of them involving Reagan's most trusted friends — continue to proliferate. Scores of assistant secretaryships and other top policy-making positions are vacant and are likely to remain unfilled in the final year of the president's tenure.

Reagan always has been distracted if not disengaged from the nitty-gritty work of the presidency — but during all of his first term and almost half of his second term he was widely admired and very powerful.

His slide into fecklessness occurred over many months, but it is possible to identify a single date as the turning point — Nov. 4, 1986.

That was the Election Day when voters returned the Senate to Democratic control despite Reagan's cross-country travels appealing for support of Republican candidates.

On the same day, the first reports surfaced of a bizarre deal in which the Reagan administration agreed to supply arms to Iran in return for its assistance in securing the release of hostages captured earlier in the Middle East.

Those events signaled the beginning of the end Reagan presidency. In the ensuing 16 months, most of the influence he once enjoyed has slipped away.

Powerful late-winter storm closes highways

By The Associated Press

A powerful late-winter storm lashed the High Plains with a blizzard and up to 14 inches of snow today, closing hundreds of miles of highway in Nebraska and Wyoming, and stranding hundreds of travelers.

In southwestern Nebraska, the snow pileup cut off the town of Kimball, whose residents opened their doors to about 600 stranded motorists.

The storm occurred 100 years to the day that the four-day Great Blizzard of 1888 began March 11 in the eastern United States. That storm claimed 400 lives.

The storm, stalled near the Nebraska-Wyoming line before moving east, pumped heavy snow and winds gusting up to 40 mph from the western Dakotas across western Nebraska and much of Wyoming and Colorado.

"It's going to continue to pack quite a punch as it spreads across Nebraska and South Dakota particularly," said meteorologist Pete Reynolds of the National Weather Service's Severe Storm Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo.

Blizzard warnings were posted over eastern Wyoming, northeast Colorado, northwest Nebraska and western South Dakota, and winter-storm warnings were posted through tonight for east-central South Dakota and southwest Minnesota.

Authorities closed 112 miles of Interstate 80 in western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming early today due to snow-packed roads and blowing snow, forcing hundreds of stranded motorists to find shelter. Almost 100 miles of other Nebraska roads also were closed.

"I think I could have stayed home because I'm not going to have any business," said Kelly Cheshire, 22, a cashier at a major truck stop west of Cheyenne, Wyo. "It's bad."

Up to 14 inches of snow and buffeting winds kept almost 140 miles of Interstate 25 closed in Wyoming. An average of 6-12 inches of snow accumulated in the eastern third of the state.

Wyoming Highway Patrol officers spent most of Thursday searching for motorists on snow-closed roads, a patrol dispatcher said.

No major traffic accidents were reported in Wyoming or Nebraska, though the storm triggered scores of minor ones, authorities said.

"We've mostly had people sliding off the road. We're not even pulling them out. We're just getting people out of the vehicles," said Nebraska State Patrol dispatcher Alex Haberkorn in Scottsbluff.

All roads into Kimball were closed Thursday night, stranding at least 600 motorists in the town of 3,800, said Region 21 Civil Defense Director Dan Jensen.

He said residents were opening their homes to the stranded and overnight accommodations were found for hundreds by midevening, but the Kimball County Courthouse remained packed with people at 8:30 p.m.

"I've never seen so many gosh-dang people," Jensen said. "I really appreciate the citizens of the city of Kimball for opening their homes to strangers."

In Colorado, several hundred students in the Weld County School District RE3J made themselves comfortable for the night in school buildings when district buses couldn't get them home Thursday.

"We just have some awfully bad weather, just a whiteout (and) some of our roads now are plugging with drifts," said superintendent Bob Gudka, who had 250 to 300 of the district's 1,200 students kept overnight in several schools.

Roads across northern and eastern Colorado remained closed early today. The storm struck suddenly Thursday.

Nuclear pact with Japan is criticized

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two former Pentagon officials and the General Accounting Office are sharply criticizing a pact with Japan for the retrieval of plutonium from U.S. nuclear wastes.

Critics of the nuclear cooperation agreement said Thursday they may move to kill the accord next week in Congress.

The former officials, Richard N. Perle and Frank J. Gaffney Jr., said the Defense Department was not given a significant role in negotiations and considers the agreement "seriously flawed."

"The strong position that the department has taken against nuclear proliferation would have helped to shape the accord differently," they said in a letter written to Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and obtained by The Associated Press.

Perle and Gaffney cited two provisions of the agreement as "especially troublesome." First, they said, the pact gives Japan advance U.S. consent to reprocess and use American plutonium in any Japanese facility without restriction on the amount or the purpose.

Second, they said, the pact "imposes extraordinary and unprecedented restrictions on the right of the United States to suspend that prior consent."

Perle and Gaffney said they were the Pentagon officials responsible for nonproliferation issues while the agreement was negotiated.

A GAO report, meanwhile, says the agreement would leave the United States without "effective control" over reprocessing of the hazardous material.

The Feb. 29 report, obtained by The Associated Press, also found fault with the agreement's provisions to guard against proliferation and said it deprived Congress of its oversight function.

The agreement, signed last November, gives Japan advance permission for 30 years to recover plutonium, the principal ingredient of nuclear weapons, from the fuel once it is used by nuclear plants in the United States. The U.S. government supplies the fuel in the first place.

Congressional opponents want the United States to have the right to review Japanese use of plutonium on a case-by-case basis, and to be able to suspend the agreement to counter terrorism threats or address other national security concerns.

These changes would require renegotiating the terms with Japan, which the State Department declines to do, said a congressional source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

A leading opponent, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said "it is extremely unfortunate the State Department has rejected a compromise agreement. It is a bad agreement."

Cranston, chairman of the Senate Asia subcommittee, called on the Reagan administration to withdraw the accord.

The GAO report said the agreement did not meet various requirements of the Atomic Energy Act. It said giving blanket approval to Japan for reprocessing plutonium "would leave the United States with no effective control over the life of the proposed agreement."

A U.S. official involved in the negotiations said, however, that the "safeguard concepts" in the pact are adequate and that the agreement could be suspended in the event of proliferation or a terrorist threat.

Sifting through debris

Investigators sift through debris at a Warran, Mich., home Thursday after a twin-engine Beechcraft cargo plane crashed, killing the pilot and a sleeping couple inside the home. Three young girls were rescued from the house by neighbors.

Reagan says he will push Shamir on peace plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan says he will try to persuade Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to drop objections to an American peace plan for the Middle East.

Reagan said Thursday that "a great element" of Israel's coalition government supports the plan. He said the plan offers "a pretty good solution that would remove some of the problems besetting the people in the occupied territories."

"I believe that peace is inevitable," Reagan said. "We may have some differences there as to how to achieve it but I don't think anyone believes that we can go on just with a constant state of warfare and unrest (in the Middle East)."

The president conducted four separate interviews in the White House map room with television journalists from France, Britain, Italy and West Germany. Transcripts of the remarks were released by the White House.

He criticized Israel's ban on press coverage of unrest and the military's response in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

More than 80 Arabs have been killed by Israeli troops or settlers since the demonstrations began late last year. Israeli officials concerned about the negative publicity have now restricted press access to the areas involved.

"I'm a great believer in a free press and the right of the people to know... so I would have to be opposed to it—thinking that they want to conduct operations in which they would rather not have public knowledge of them."

Next week, Shamir will meet at the White House with Reagan to discuss the administration's proposals. The prime minister has blocked efforts to force a vote within Israel's government on how to respond to the American plan.

Shamir rejects the U.S. plan because it sets a timetable for negotiations between Israel and the Arabs on the future of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Thirty U.S. senators have criticized Shamir for rejecting an exchange of "territory for peace."

Reagan, asked what kind of pressure he would put on Shamir, said, "Well, I don't think it's so much pressure as it is just an attempt at persuasion."

Lancer Club open Sunday for M.S.

Sunday afternoon in Pampa finds most bars and clubs closed. But one club has received special permission to be open Sunday afternoon for a special event — an auction to raise funds for the Panhandle multiple sclerosis drive.

The Lancer Club, 535 W. Brown, will be opening at 1 p.m. Sunday for the auction of various items, with all proceeds going to the campaign to conquer multiple sclerosis, more commonly known as M.S. M.S. is a chronic progressive disease adversely affecting the central nervous system.

Owner Lottie Lance said the occasion is meant to offer fun and entertainment while also doing something for a worthy cause. Local merchants have donated items, goods and gift certificates for the auction. Lee Scott of Pampa will serve as auctioneer.

Lance said the club will remain open until about 8 p.m., or until all the items have been auctioned off.

But in addition to the auction, there will be other activities. She said all Pampa area musicians are invited to come and participate in a jam session. "There will be no single band playing," she explained, "just a bunch of musicians getting together for some good jamming."

And there will be food available — hamburgers, beans, cole slaw, fried fish, chips — with all proceeds from the sale also going to the M.S. drive. "The bar will keep none of the proceeds" from the Sunday activities, Lance said. "All of it will go to M.S."

The Sunday event is just one of the activities the Lancer Club has been sponsoring this month as part of the Panhandle and Pampa area Ugly Bartender contest, an annual event for bars and clubs to raise money for M.S. under the sponsorship of the North Country Coors Distributorship in Borger and Amarillo.

Tonight there will be a pool tournament at the Lancer Club. Prizes will be awarded, with a $3 entry fee from each player going to the M.S. drive.

Saturday night, beginning at 9 p.m., there will be a "Nuts and Bolts" dance, with music by Amarillo band Coupe De Ville. Men and women can purchase nuts and bolts, then find the match-up, Lance explained. Again, proceeds will go to M.S.

Avalanche hits Prince Charles' ski party, killing close friend

KLOSTERS, Switzerland (AP)— Prince Charles was reported found trembling and weeping after an avalanche swept two close friends in his skiing party down a steep, unmarked Alpine slope, killing one and breaking the other's legs.

Charles, the Prince of Wales and heir to the British throne, escaped unhurt.

The loose snow cascaded down as Charles, 39, and five companions were skiing Thursday at about 5,800 feet in an area of the Swiss Alps that authorities earlier in the day warned was prone to avalanches. The area was off the main skiing trails.

Charles' wife, Diana, and sister-in-law, the Duchess of York, were safe in a chalet when the avalanche struck. The duchess, the former Sarah Ferguson, is married to Charles' younger brother, Prince Andrew, and is expecting the couple's first child in August.

Maj. Hugh Lindsay, 34, was killed on the spot. Patricia Palmer-Tomkinson was knocked unconscious and suffered fractures on both legs.

According to a statement from Buckingham Palace, "All members of the party were in a position to take avoiding action with the exception of Maj. Lindsay and Mrs. Palmer-Tomkinson who were both caught in the avalanche."

Charles helped dig the injured and unconscious Mrs. Palmer-Tomkinson from under the snow. He also aided in freeing the body of Lindsay, said Press Association, the British domestic news agency.

The two victims had been swept about 400 yards down the slope.

Witnesses said Charles looked distraught, and one said he was crying and shaking as a rescue helicopter came to take him away.

There were calls in Britain for members of the royal family to be more careful. Press Association said the duchess had a fall earlier in the day from which she emerged wet and shaken. She was told to spend the afternoon resting.

Prince Andrew was not on the ski trip.

Mrs. Palmer-Tomkinson regained consciousness after mouth-to-mouth resuscitation on the scene. A helicopter took her to Davos, where she underwent surgery for multiple fractures of both legs and was reported in satisfactory condition this morning in a hospital intensive care unit.

The accident was considered certain to end the royal family's traditional winter holiday at Klosters, which had begun Tuesday.

The skiing party, including a guide, was standing still on Mount Gotschnawang when the snow rushed down from about 100 yards above at 2:50 p.m., said officials of the Grisons canton, or state.

Charles knows the Klosters ski area well, having vacationed there for years. The cable car station from which his party had descended is at 7,540 feet. The Swiss Federal Avalanche Research Institute had warned of considerable avalanche danger above 5,200 feet in northern Grisons.

Harold Brooks-Baker, publisher of Burke's Peerage, a directory of aristocracy, said his representative in Switzerland told him the royal ski party was warned of the avalanche threat.

Vietnamese Premier Pham Hung dies, 75

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)— Premier Pham Hung of Vietnam, an "old guard" revolutionary who ranked No. 2 in Vietnam's Communist party, died of a sudden heart attack, a Vietnamese official said today. He was 75.

Hung died Thursday afternoon, said a Vietnamese Embassy spokesman in Bangkok.

Hung was born in Vinh Long province in the Mekong River Delta of southern Vietnam, where he engaged in radical student activities from an early age.

He was admitted to the Indochinese Communist Party in 1930, the year it was founded by Ho Chi Minh.

Hung was a key figure in the war against the U.S.-backed government of South Vietnam. He was sent south in 1967 as secretary of the South Vietnam Commission of the party's central committee and as political commissar of the South Vietnam Liberation Armed Forces, commonly known as the Viet Cong.

Settlers plan self-defense measures

JERUSALEM (AP)— Israeli troops wounded two Palestinians in the Gaza Strip and 500 Jewish settlers met in the West Bank to plan self-protection measures against what they view as increasing threat from Arabs in nearby Hebron.

Israel radio reported that as the settlers gathered in Kiryat Arba, Israeli soldiers clashed with Arab demonstrators who burned tires and set up roadblocks in Hebron.

There were no casualties, but 10 Palestinians were arrested, the radio reported.

Police in northern Israel arrested four Israeli Arabs suspected of throwing firebombs on roads leading to Israeli towns. In Jerusalem, three Arabs were detained after police discovered three firebombs in a busy industrial area in the southern part of the city.

Foreign Minister Shimon Peres warned that the Jewish state would lose an opportunity to make peace by passing up the initiative of U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

But about 1,000 Jewish women living along Israel's northern border urged Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir not to give in to American pressure.

The army command said an Israeli patrol fired on Palestinian protesters in the Shati refugee camp near Gaza City after rock-throwing demonstrators surrounded the soldiers. An army spokesman said one protester was hit in the chest and taken to an Israeli hospital. Hospital officials in Gaza said two protesters were in critical condition with gunshot wounds in the chest and abdomen.

In Kiryat Arba, outside Hebron, Jewish settlers worried that Palestinians are organizing to attack Jewish homes in the Hebron area demanded the right to set up a civil guard and called on the army to take tougher measures. Hebron is a city of 50,000 Arabs with two small Jewish enclaves.

Two Arab Bedouins were arrested for throwing stones at a car near Carmiel in Galilee.

Peres, head of the left-centrist Labor Party, said upon receiving an honorary doctorate from Hebrew Union College in Jerusalem that Israel would be making a fateful decision in the next few weeks.

"In 40 days time there is a chance that direct negotiations may start between a Jordanian-Palestinian delegation and an Israeli delegation," he said. "In 40 days we may lose the opportunity as well, and the grayness of hesitation, of suspicion, of postponement may cover our skies again for time to come."

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin urged the Labor Party to demand new elections if Shamir rejected the U.S. peace initiative.

MAKING WAY...

The drawbridge makes way for the boat to come into the city and down the canal. Dredges make canals in open waters such as the gulf to make way for ships to travel an inter-coastal waterway. Police officers and secret service men clear a path in the crowds to make way for an important foreign potentate so that he might arrive at his destination.

Church members are the ones who can clear the way, and show the right path to those who have not found the way to our Lord.

Isaiah 40:3B reads, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God."

Support your church in every way you can. Ask someone to attend church with you this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Choir festival
New Hope Baptist Church, 404 Harlem, will have its annual music festival at 3 p.m. Sunday. The choirs of the church will be performing under the direction of Sister Edith Sayles. Alma Martin will play the piano, and Barry Fields, president of the Senior Choir, will provide accompaniment on the organ. President of the Junior Choir is Tasha Ryan. Wayne Williams is president of the Male Chorus. Rev. V.C. Martin, pastor, invited the public to attend the music festival Sunday afternoon.

Pancake breakfast
St. Mark CME Church, 406 Elm, will have a pancake breakfast at the church from 8 a.m. until noon Saturday. Members of the congregation will be serving bacon or sausage with the pancakes, or bacon and eggs. Toast, coffee, and orange juice also will be available. Donations will be accepted for the breakfast. Rev. H.R. Johnson, pastor, said the public is invited to attend the pancake breakfast.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree
Scripture: So God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them. God blessed them and said to them, "Be fruitful and increase in number; fill the earth and subdue it." (Genesis 1:27-28a NIV)

Few sights are as innocent and flawless as that of a sleeping baby. As a young mother, early morning often found me with a sleeping baby girl beside me on the bed. Predawn-cast soft blue light to bathe my child's smooth cheeks, her lash-laced eyes and her little mouth making gentle sucking motions in her sleep. During those moments, I could see in her the perfection God intended when He created man.

Recently, I had the pleasure of attending a concert presented by the high school all-state orchestra. The concert hall was designed for acoustical excellence and was a massive auditorium with two balconies. The stage was wall-to-wall with polished instruments manned by teen-agers dressed in tuxedos or formals.

A tiny woman walked to center stage and stepped onto the conductor's stand. She and that group of kids, who had worked together only two days, proceeded to dazzle the audience with an indescribably superlative performance. I listened with my mouth gapping with astonishment.

I kept reminding myself those were kids on the stage—the same kids who chomp four pieces of gum at a time and who pop their knuckles; the same kids who leave trails of damp towels and dirty socks; the same kids who tie up the phone for hours and who flit away gallons of gasoline going around and around the drag; the same kids who stand precariously with one foot in childhood and one foot in adulthood and are notorious for errors in judgment.

In spite of all their growing pains, for the too few moments of the concert, those kids were dedicated, gifted musicians. Once again, all the goodness and beauty God intended for man could be glimpsed in them and heard in the exquisiteness of their music.

The young people in that particular orchestra are representative of a relatively small interest group. Just consider the possibilities in all today's youth who are equally gifted in a limitless variety of ways and interests!

Through the mystery and wonder of children becoming men and women, God works His miracle of diversification of personalities and abilities; and, thus, He perpetuates our civilization.

Such capable hands are those to which we pass our Earth home—the hands of our young!

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Jewish Committee says responses of presidential contenders to a questionnaire shows all the Republican candidates support voluntary prayer or a moment of silence in public schools. None of the Democrats support school prayer nor a constitutional amendment allowing it, the committee says, while most of the Republicans support such an amendment.

The Joel Perales Family

Perales Family to minister at New Life Worship Center

The Joel Perales Family will minister at the New Life Worship Center Sunday through Wednesday.

Services will be at 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

The Perales family has been known for their "family to family" delivery. Most of their material sung is family oriented and original. The family crusades are with strong emphasis on restoration of family relationships.

Joel preaches and teaches solely on this area, and many an altar call involves the whole family. Daughter Yvonne Damaris also does an afterglow concert for youth, enabling Joel and mother Rose to minister to parents in another area of the building.

Through their travels in the past 16 years, the family has developed many styles of music, ranging from Southern gospel, Mexican and country music to more contemporary styles. Not any one style dominates their program.

Joel Perales has recorded 27 long-play albums, several singles and one music video in his 16 years of fulltime ministry. He has written numerous songs that have made the Top 40 gospel music national charts, including "Born Again Children," "The Horoscope Song," "Heaven's Saddest Meeting," "Flickering Lights" and many others, including Spanish-language songs.

The Joel Perales Family has been seen on The PTL Club, The Gospel Singing Jubilee and their own television program, Family to Family.

The family group travels over 50,000 miles a year, coast to coast, with more than 5,000 singing engagements to date.

The congregation invites the public to come and hear the family group on their appearance in Pampa.

Jerry Hull to lead seminar at First Methodist Church

Jerry Hull of Walk Thru the Bible Ministries will conduct one of his seminars in Pampa at the First Methodist Church, Ballard and Foster, on Saturday, March 19.

The seminar, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., offers visual and participatory activities in acquainting people with the lands of the Bible and the chronology, events and people of the Old Testament.

Registration information can be obtained by calling 669-7411.

A native of Illinois, Hull earned his associates degree in liberal arts at Joliet Junior College at Joliet, Ill. He then received a bachelor of arts degree in Bible theology from Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

Hull chose Dallas Theological Seminary for his master of theology degree, majoring in Christian education. He has also worked toward a second master's degree in Christian education.

His love for music and people has led him into a wide range of activities, including professional musician, assistant manager of a retail store, and junior college instructor in Texas and Illinois.

Church-related ministries have included student ministries, summer home missionary outreaches and teaching Sunday School, Bible study seminars and teacher training classes.

Presently Hull serves as pastor of children's ministries at Faith Bible Church in DeSoto, Texas, a Dallas suburb.

His wife Cathy is a fulltime mother to their infant, David Michael. She also teaches Sunday School and serves in the Awana ministry.

Relaxation for the Hulls comes from a variety of interests, including music, photography and water sports.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has turned down a 2-year-old legal effort to overturn an action by a former Southern Baptist president that voided a convention vote and helped consolidate power of a fundamentalist wing.

The disputed parliamentary procedure occurred in 1985 when the Rev. Charles Stanley of Atlanta headed the denomination, and a group of opponents have fought it since through district and appeals courts, which held they couldn't interfere in church matters.

The Supreme Court declined to review those lower-court decisions.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Baptist home and foreign mission boards report that contributions to their denomination's program for world hunger relief in 1987 declined for the second year in a row.

Sums given fell to $8.9 million, a decline of 2.3 percent.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Roman Catholic worshippers in this diocese — and others across the country — last weekend took home a little cardboard piece that folds into a small "bowl."

During the Lenten season between now and Easter, they're asked to place in the "bowl" each week the cost of a small meal — the accumulated proceeds of which will go to feed the hungry.

Called "Operation Rice Bowl," the program is sponsored by Catholic Relief Services, with 75 percent of the total collected going to worldwide relief, and 25 percent of it retained to help the local poor.

Youngstown Bishop James Malone said the project is an excellent means of observing the Lenten practice of almsgiving and "adds an element of awareness of the hunger that others suffer."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A faith-based organization, Witness for Peace, says it has documented 90 cases of actions by Contra rebels against unarmed civilians in Nicaragua in which 96 civilians were killed, 143 wounded and 137 kidnapped since the signing of Central American peace accords last fall.

Swaggart belittled himself before fall

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the month before TV evangelist Jimmy Swaggart was silenced by scandal, his preaching turned from outward attacks to self-criticism in what "may have been the outgrowth of his own sin," a researcher says.

"He lately started putting himself down," says Stephen M. Winzenburg, a communications professor at Florida Southern College. "It makes you wonder how much of it was guilt seeping through."

"He usually had put others down and pumped himself up as being greater than anyone else, with an inside, direct line to God. But then all of a sudden, he started saying these negative, deprecating things about himself. He seemed to be pointing a finger at himself, and preaching it to others."

Leaders of the Assemblies of God in Swaggart's Louisiana district initially recommended that he be suspended from preaching for at least three months because of his reported involvement with a prostitute. National leaders of the church have asked the district to review that recommendation, and perhaps make the penalty more severe.

Winzenburg, a Catholic whose monitoring project mainly aimed at timing and comparing fund-raising pitches of TV evangelists, said he was puzzled when Swaggart began switching his preaching targets.

"It was something that hadn't been there before, but now it makes more sense," he said in a telephone interview. "It may have been the outgrowth of his own sin."

"He also started picking on fellow Pentecostals. Before, he had focused more on attacking Catholics and mainline Protestants. But now he was denouncing his own kind."

From Swaggart's preaching since mid-1987, some of it taped and broadcast after his Feb. 21 confession to his congregation of "grievous sin," Winzenburg cites these samples of Swaggart's self-deprecation:

July 12 — "I'm scared to death of money and scared to death of women. Those two things have caused more creatures' downfall than any other."

Dec. 14 — "I'm a poor, pitiful, flawed creature."

Dec. 20 — Taking an odd subject for a Christmas sermon, he identified himself with Judas, who betrayed Christ.

Feb. 21 — Comparing himself to the biblical harlot, Rahab, he said he was a "poor, pitiful, scared, flawed piece of humanity."

Samples given of his put-down of other Pentecostals:

Feb. 24 — Attacking higher education, he said, "Even Pentecostal schools are straying."

Feb. 25 — "Holy Ghost preachers are falling for seducing spirits at an alarming rate. This is the paramount danger of the church.... In supposedly Holy Ghost (Pentecostal) churches, the pastors never preach on the Holy Spirit."

July 24 — He said that after criticizing the Catholic Church, "all hell broke loose," but he had "a right to criticize others because the book (Bible) gives us the right."

"If Catholics go wrong, somebody's got to let them know. If Baptists go wrong, somebody's got to let them know. Even if Pentecostals go wrong, somebody's got to let them know. That's what we'll continue to do."

Swaggart lodged complaints of sexual misconduct that led to the ouster of former TV evangelist Jim Bakker and that also bumped a New Orleans evangelist, Marvin Gorman. Both were ministers of the Assemblies of God. Gorman reportedly provided evidence that unseated Swaggart — pictures of him at a motel with a prostitute.

Swaggart also has harshly assailed other denominations, declaring Dec. 13 that "in most churches in America, you couldn't get saved if you wanted to."

Some of his sharpest assaults on Roman Catholicism seem to have been toned down lately. Winzenburg said. Some TV stations had threatened to drop his program if the attacks continued.

The Louisiana Interchurch Conference, including most major Protestant and Catholic bodies in the state of Swaggart's headquarters, in 1983 formally protested his attacks on Catholicism.

The Rev. James L. Stovall, the conference executive director, says "we took it pretty lightly" when Swaggart denounced Baptists, Methodists and other Protestants, but when he began stirring up anti-Catholic venom, "We had to condemn it."

Spirit of Truth Church to celebrate Purim feast

Claude C. Hargis of Ariel International Ministries, based in Midwest City, Okla., will be ministering at the Spirit of Truth Church, 1200 S. Sumner, Sunday through Tuesday.

Sunday will be a special celebration of the Feast of Purim, which was celebrated by Jewish people around the world earlier in the month. At the 10 a.m. service, Hargis will be sharing concerning the importance of Purim and its meaning for believers in the Lord Jesus.

A special Purim party will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday for children, with traditional Jewish treats such as Hamantaschen and the recounting of the story of the Jews' deliverance by Queen Esther and Mordecai.

Purim is the yearly celebration remembering how God protected the Jewish people from evil Haman's attempt to kill all the Jews. The complete account is told in the Bible in the Book of Esther.

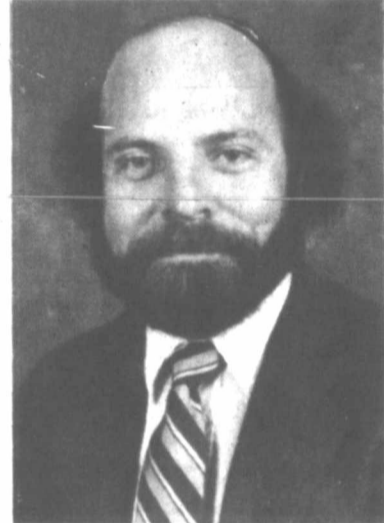

Hargis also will be ministering at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Hargis draws from his Jewish background, teaching the church of its Jewish roots and how to understand the Bible from a Hebrew perspective. His topics will include teaching on aspects of praise and worship, spiritual welfare, and discovering God's will for one's own life.

Tom McGuire of Lubbock will be ministering in some of the services with special music. Shira Simcha, Spirit of Truth's dance troupe, will also minister in Davidic worship through dance and pageantry.

Mark and Brenda Zedlitz, pastors, invite the public to attend these special services and "be blessed by the anointed teaching and praise."

Pink Flash seminar planned

First Baptist Church of Pampa, 203 N. West, will be sponsoring the Pink Flash seminar for girls in the sixth through 12th grades Friday and Saturday, March 18-19.

The seminar, featuring former model Patty Ellis, will be held from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday.

Deadline for registering for the self-improvement and motivational seminar for teenage girls is Saturday, March 12.

Ellis is a speaker, entertainer and concert pianist. Her topics will include "Inside Wiring," concerning personality, self-esteem, parents, friends, boyfriends, goals, morals and ethics, and "Outside Packaging," concerning cosmetics, skin care, hair, body care, clothes, and posture and poise.

The seminar will begin with a mother and daughter banquet at 6:30 p.m. Friday, March 18. There is no cost for the mothers attending with their participating daughters.

Cost for the seminar is $15, which includes a workbook. Payment may be made at the conference.

For registration information, call 669-1155.

Resignation a victory for deaf students

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elisabeth Ann Zinser resigned today as president of Gallaudet University in a victory for students demanding a hearing-impaired president for the nation's only liberal arts college for the deaf.

The university, which was shut down by protests over Zinser's appointment five days ago, never has had a deaf president in its 124-year history.

"My decision to resign was reached with great difficulty as I came to understand how deeply some see the social stature of deaf persons reflected in the presidency of this university," Zinser, who has normal hearing and doesn't know sign language, said in a statement early today.

Jerry Covell, a leader of the protests, hailed the resignation, but said students still were seeking the removal of Gallaudet Board Chairman Jane Bassett Spilman, who had resisted the push to oust Zinser.

"We are glad that she resigned but we are still waiting for Spilman," Covell said.

Zinser, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, had stayed away from Gallaudet's campus this week in the hope that the furor would die down, but had insisted she was in charge.

Spilman called the resignation a tragic loss to the university.

"We selected Dr. Zinser as president in recognition of her superior academic, administrative and research skills," she said.

Rep. Steve Gunderson, R-Wis. and one of the university's trustees, said a hearing-impaired person should be at the helm at Gallaudet. Zinser was the only one of the three finalists for the job who was not deaf.

A large majority of the institution's 2,300 students joined in the protests, which began Sunday with a march on Capitol Hill. Students on Thursday threatened to seize the president's campus house and office if Zinser made her way past students blocking entrances to the school, and school officials chained shut the doors to the administration building.

Students from the National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester, N.Y., had planned to travel to Washington by bus today to show their solidarity with the protesters.

Presidential candidates Jesse Jackson and Paul Simon offered words of encouragement to the students, saying their protest reflected the desire of handicapped Americans everywhere to take control of their own destiny.

The National Association of the Deaf, a 20,000-member deaf rights group based in Silver Spring, Md., said it had been receiving calls, letters and pledges of support for the Gallaudet students from around the country and as far away as Great Britain.

A university official who was one of the other two finalists for the president's job, I. King Jordan, on Thursday had withdrawn his support for Zinser.

The resignation followed a warning by Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., another university trustee, that federal aid for the school could be jeopardized if she refused to leave the post.

The House Education and Labor subcommittee on select education, which oversees Gallaudet's budget, scheduled hearings for next week on the dispute.

About 75 percent of the school's $76 million operating budget comes from federal funds.

More than half the school's 274-member faculty endorsed the protesters' demands for the replacement of Zinser and Spilman.

Man is charged in fatal shooting at police station

ROBSTOWN (AP) — A records clerk who had begun divorce proceedings against her husband was shot to death at her desk just outside the police chief's office, officials said.

Rachel Guzman, 33, was shot three times and patrol officer Lynn Martin also was wounded in the shootout Wednesday just outside Police Chief Roy De Alejandro's office.

Her estranged husband, Edward Guzman, 31, was wounded in each arm during a shootout with three police officers in the office after his wife was slain, the chief said.

Both Guzman and Martin, 30, remained in Riverside Hospital Thursday. Guzman was listed in good condition, while Martin was in stable and guarded condition, said nursing supervisor Janice Jeffries.

She said Martin was moved out of intensive care on Thursday.

Guzman was in police custody at the hospital.

Robstown City Attorney Juan Perales, who represented Rachel Guzman in an unfinished divorce case with her husband, said she had filed trespassing and disorderly conduct charges against Edward Guzman two months ago, but the charges later were dropped.

De Alejandro said Guzman, owner of a Robstown bar, apparently was distraught about the couple's pending divorce.

Youth becomes state's youngest prison inmate

DEDHAM, Mass. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy convicted of killing a classmate with a baseball bat "to know what it was like" has been sentenced to life in prison, becoming the state's youngest prison inmate.

Rod Matthews could be paroled in 15 years under the mandatory sentence he received Thursday after being found guilty of second-degree murder in the Nov. 20, 1986, slaying of 14-year-old Shaun Ouillette.

Two former friends of Matthews testified he told them of planning the killing and took them to see Ouillette's body, which police did not find until nearly four weeks later in woods in Canton, a suburb 15 miles south of Boston.

Matthews showed no emotion when the verdict, reached after almost 10 hours of deliberations over two days by the Norfolk County Superior Court jury, was announced.

The decision satisfied neither the victim's mother, Jeanne Quinn, nor the defendants' parents.

Mrs. Quinn, carrying a portrait of her son and choking back tears, told reporters she had hoped Matthews would be convicted of first-degree murder, which carries a mandatory life sentence without parole.

"He planned this," she said. "Fifteen years. No, I'm sorry, that's wrong. Shaun is not coming home in 15 years, is he? He's not ever coming home."

"It's terrible," Matthews' mother, Janice, said on the courthouse steps hours after the verdict. "A child shouldn't be persecuted and forced to go through something like this."

"God only knows how much worse it's (prison) going to make his condition," she said.

Matthews takes Ritalin for hyperactivity, and defense attorney John Philip White argued for acquittal by reason of insanity.

White portrayed Matthews as a mentally unstable child whose pleas for help were ignored by teachers and friends and whose irrational behavior was possibly exacerbated by Ritalin.

White, expressing concern for Matthews' safety and the possibility the youth might attempt suicide, said he will try to have the boy moved from prison to a mental health center while considering whether to appeal.

An appeal must be made within 30 days, said Superior Court Judge Roger Donahue.

Matthews is the youngest of more than 6,500 Massachusetts prison inmates, said Correction Department spokeswoman Mary McGeown.

"It just doesn't make any sense because there's no treatment facility there," said Matthews' father, Kenneth.

Prosecutor Peter Casey, a Norfolk County assistant district attorney, called the decision an "appropriate, well-counseled verdict."

Matthews' trial was highlighted by graphic descriptions of the slaying and testimony by Matthews' former friends, Rob Peterson and onathan cash, who said he told them of his desire to kill in the fall of 1986.

"He said he wanted to know what it was like to kill somebody," Peterson said.

After rejecting two possible victims, Matthews chose Ouillette, an overweight high school freshman relatively new to Canton, because he felt he would not be missed, the youngsters testified.

Ouillette was lured to the woods after school by the promise of fireworks before being hit at least three times in the head with the baseball bat.

Matthews took Peterson to see the body several hours after the slaying, and they hid a knife Matthews planned to use to cut off Ouillette's arms and legs, Peterson said.

Learn techniques to avoid being raped

Editor's Note: This is the last in a series of articles in The Pampa News concerning sexual assault. Texas Gov. Bill Clements has declared March 6-12 as Sexual Assault Awareness Week.

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

You are walking from the shopping mall to your car after dark. Your car isn't in a well-lighted place, and you fumble for the keys you dropped in your purse, juggling several packages as you search for them.

A man appears seemingly from nowhere the minute you have your car door unlocked and forces you inside with him. He drives you to a secluded place outside of town and rapes you.

What could you have done to prevent this nightmare?

There are several precautions a woman can take to lessen her chances of being raped, according to Pampa Police Chief Robert Eberz and Detective Gary Boydston.

"The biggest thing she can avoid is environment. If she's by herself in a bar or dance hall until 1 or 2 a.m., she's making herself a target. Walking through troubled areas in the late hours is making yourself a victim. You're in the wrong place at the right time," Eberz said.

Women who work night shifts and others who will be getting into their cars at night should park their cars as close to the entrance of the building as possible. They should keep their cars locked, and check the car's interior before getting into it to make sure no one has broken in and is waiting for them in the floorboard or back seat.

If possible, when leaving a building to walk to the car at night, the woman should have another person walk with her to the car. Convenience store personnel who are working at night should make sure they remain visible to the public through the building's front windows and doors, and should keep the back door closed.

"If we can't see the clerk, we go inside and check on them," Eberz said.

At home, install deadbolt locks on doors, make sure all windows are locked and keep the exterior of the house and surrounding area well lighted.

Other tips, offered by Boydston, include:

- Stay out of alleys.
- Don't walk alone or travel alone.
- Have your keys ready. Don't stand and fumble with your keyring.
- Don't hesitate to report prowlers to the police. Sometimes criminal activity is progressive, and the peeping Tom who looks in your window tonight may one day become the rapist who breaks into your house and attacks you.

Boydston and Eberz agree that carrying a weapon is not a good idea.

"I don't recommend firearms. It's the wrong approach to buy weapons. You may get shot yourself or shoot innocent others," Eberz said.

"Don't carry a gun. Most people are hesitant to use a gun, but the guy attacking you doesn't care. The average person thinks a little too long before firing. This gives the attacker a chance to get the gun," Boydston said.

Other forms of self-defense may be attempted, Eberz said. He suggests that a woman who desires some form of protection use mace, police whistles and self-defense courses, including karate and taekwon-do.

"The smartest thing is self-defense classes, where you learn tricks to get free and run. To become proficient in karate or taekwon-do just for that purpose is misdirected. You have to be practical. You need mainly to know how to break free and run. A woman usually has some weapon to carry (such as a purse) and deliver a blow that can allow them to get away," Eberz said.

"Defend yourself. I am not a believer in non-resistance. I have my own opinion. I believe a girl should resist with every strength in her body. Consider the possibility of the rapist killing her afterwards, if she doesn't try to get away. She might have more of a chance to get away if she fights."

"Some people say, 'Don't fight.' Then a lawyer in court will say, 'Why didn't you fight?'" Eberz said.

Boydston said that the effectiveness of struggling depends on the type of rapist. There are three main psychological profiles of rapists, he said — passive, aggressive and power assertive. Each type reacts in different ways to different situations.

"The largest percentage of rapists are the passive ones. The passive rapists are apologetic, and the rape is a way for them to assert themselves. If the woman argues with a passive rapist, he'll leave. But the rapist may be power assertive. If you don't fight with him, he'll let you off easier than otherwise," Boydston said.

"You can't tell what type of rapist you're dealing with. For some people, the rape is secondary to violence. He doesn't care what you do. In certain situations, there's nothing you can do. Nothing will stop certain people.

If you meet them with violence, they'll react with more violence," he said.

Eberz also suggests that women not wear provocative clothing, such as appearing alone at a bar in a miniskirt. "Out of 10, one male will go too far. Alcohol releases inhibitions. A lot of rapes occur because of alcohol," he said.

Women who have escaped rapes have three common characteristics in their reactions to the attack, according to information provided by Tralee Crisis Center. The three common characteristics are:

- Extreme anger at the attacker for even considering the attack.
- Quick reaction by doing something early in the assault rather than hesitating.
- Reacting in an assertive manner; being aggressive.

Other tips provided by the crisis center and police department for avoiding rape include:

- Never pick up hitchhikers.
- Keep car doors locked at all times.
- Keep your car in good running condition, and keep the gas tank full.
- If you are being followed, drive to the nearest open business, police station or fire station for help. Do not drive to your home.
- If you are walking and are harassed by the occupants of a car, simply turn and walk the other direction. The driver will have to turn around to follow you.
- Don't stop to help a stranded motorist when you're driving alone. Report the stalled vehicle to the police at the first opportunity.
- Never let a stranger into your home to make a phone call.
- If you haven't called for a repairman, don't let one inside. Leave him waiting outside and call his place of business to verify his reason for being in your area.
- Never admit that you're home alone; if you live alone, use only your first two initial and last name on your mailbox and in the telephone book.

Children should be made aware of the dangers of accepting rides from or talking to strangers. Parents should encourage children to talk with them if they ever have a problem with a stranger, friend or relative.

"You can't afford to be courteous. Don't take gambles. The best action is knowledge and common sense," Eberz said.

Classes in self-defense are offered by Pampa Police Department and are taught by Cpl. Danny Lance. Sgt. Ken Neal is instructor for a women's firearms class. Information concerning rape is also available through the police department or from Tralee Crisis Center, 119 N. Frost, 669-1131.

John Cooley and Jeff Jones with their awards.

Cooley, Jones advance to state forensic contest

Pampa High School students John Cooley and Jeff Jones will compete in the Texas Forensic Association state meet this weekend at Austin.

Cooley and Jones compete as a team in cross-examination debate. They won the right to attend the tournament by winning first place at the Amarillo High School tournament in December.

The two placed first in novice cross-examination debate in October at Tascosa High School in Amarillo. At the Coronado tournament, they moved up to the championship bracket and advanced to the quarterfinal round before being eliminated.

They were ranked 10th at the West Texas State University tournament this academic year. They also placed second in Friona and first at Canadian in other contests.

In the Texas Forensic Association state meet, teams are not divided according to school size. All teams from A to AAAAA will compete as equals.

"TFA state will give the team excellent practice before they enter UIL competition. Each team competing at state has placed either first or second at tournaments around the state," said Barbara McCain, PHS sponsor for the team.

University Interscholastic League district competition will be March 25 at West Texas State University in Canyon.

Use proper technique in genealogy queries

Writing letters takes a lot of time and a lot of thought in order to receive an answer to your genealogy questions. If you are not receiving a reply, perhaps it is the way you have made the request.

When writing letters, especially to strangers, follow the seven Cs: Clean, Correct, Clear, Courteous, Considerate, Concise and Complete.

Sometimes a handwritten letter instead of a typewritten one will produce better results. A stiff letter typed on a cold sheet of paper, especially one with a letterhead, can often be more of a hindrance than a help.

If you type your letters (they are usually easier to read), make the effort to be informal, warm and kind. Make it clear that you are a genealogy enthusiast trying to complete records for your family tree and you will respect the privacy wishes of others. If the research is for someone else, be sure and state that it is not your family.

Writing distant cousins that

Gena on Genealogy

Gena Walls

you barely know or have not met can be touchy, too. Put some of your own personality into it rather than making it seem like a questionnaire. Include a family picture or a tradition, indicating your willingness to share information.

Remember the K.I.S.S. technique and "Keep It Short and Simple." Try not to ask more than two questions in the first letter. Be direct but do give enough information so that your request is clear.

It is important to always include the reason for the questions. Also, ask if they know someone who might be of assistance if they cannot supply the answers. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (Reminder: postage rates are increasing in the spring.)

When requesting the specific information, word the request to take on the receiver's point of view. Say, "Your help is needed" as opposed to "I would like to know."

Finally, if you are writing a public office, librarian or historian, enclose a check for at least $1 and offer to pay an additional nominal amount if necessary. This shows your good faith and at the same time indicates a ceiling on the amount you will pay.

Usually, if you include the return envelope, the money is returned if they cannot fulfill the request. Many county clerks are now charging a search fee. If that is the custom, they will not refund the money but will send a negative reply.

Keep a correspondence log with the date, address and topic for later reference. When you receive a reply, make that notation on the log for accurate record keeping and to save time later.

ABWA chapter hosts event

Magic Plains Chapter of American Business Women's Association (ABWA) will host a special program at 2 p.m. Sunday, March 13 in Lovett Library. The program will provide information on the national ABWA organization and local chapters' benefits for working women.

There is no charge for the program. All business women are welcome to attend.

ABWA's 2,100 chapters nationwide provide college and continuing education scholarships for women. The association awarded more than $3 million in scholarships and grants to women in 1987.

Founded in 1949, ABWA provides programs, materials, publications and a national resource network for its members. ABWA earned presidential recognition for its work in 1983 to establish Sept. 22 as American Business Women's Day. In 1985, ABWA received the C-Flag, a special award for private sector initiative, from President Ronald Reagan for its contributions to women's education in the United States.

More information about the local chapter and the national association is available by calling Ellen Malone at 665-8631.

Dollars, sense don't mix for bill-collecting computers

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who was dunned for months by the General Telephone Co. of Holiday, Fla., for a 1-cent bill reminded me of my own experience.

My dear departed wife left me one share of some vague stock that earns 8 cents a quarter — that's 32 cents per year! I have pleaded with the bank that sends me these "8-cent checks" to forget the whole thing, as my CPA, in preparing my tax returns, charges me the same amount to report that one share as all the other earnings — $10 for each listing.

I have subscribed to a soft-water service for 30 years, never missing a payment — and always punctual. Recently, I received a threatening, dunning computer printout in red to show that I was "seriously in arrears in my payments," and if I didn't send my 6 cents immediately, service would be discontinued and legal action taken.

Dutifully I endorsed one of my quarterly 8-cent checks and sent it to the company requesting that a check for 2 cents be returned to me.

In due course, the check for 2 cents arrived. Any company that uses computers and doesn't have a built-in sense of humor is in trouble. I canceled that purified water service, am now drinking water from my tap, and I never felt better in my life.

JACK DEDERICK,
COSTA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the telephone bill of 1 cent, I'd like to bring you up to date. It would seem ridiculous, as you say, if the bill had been sent by a human being. Today these matters are handled by computers. Computers have many fine qualities, but common sense is not one of them.

A friend of ours, on returning from vacation, received a bill for $0.00. When he ignored it, he received a letter threatening to cut off his utilities if the bill was not paid immediately. He sent a check for $0.00. The computer was satisfied.

BERTHA PIRRCY,
COOLIDGE, ARIZ.

NCAA plans crackdown on tournament brawls

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Anybody who throws a punch in this year's NCAA Tournament may knock himself all the way out of the tournament.

"We're going to warn players that if they throw a punch, their chances of missing the rest of the tournament are very, very good," NCAA Executive Director Dick Schultz said. "We're also going to tell them that if somebody throws a punch at them, they'd better walk away from it, or they could wind up out of the tournament along with the player who threw the first punch."

In an interview Thursday with the Associated Press, Schultz made it clear that NCAA officials have kept a wary eye on the fights which have erupted in several games, particularly in the East. The NCAA has no authority to enforce anti-fighting rules during the regular season. That's entirely up to the conferences and the schools themselves.

But the NCAA intends to move decisively against any players who get into fights during its 64-team tournament beginning next weekend at eight first-round sites across the country.

"It will be a special edict dealing with the possibility of fighting," said Schultz, who resigned

"The game officials can always eject a player from the game. But we're talking about suspending a player from the tournament altogether."

—Dick Schultz
Executive Director

as chairman of the Division I basketball committee last year when he succeeded Walter Byers as executive director. Schultz said he will discuss the anti-fighting policy with the nine-member committee before it begins a week of meetings Friday night. The tournament bracket will be unveiled on Sunday.

"I'm going to suggest to the games this season. In addition, the Big East suspended Jayson Williams of St. John's for the first round of this weekend's Big East tournament for throwing a punch at Abdul Shamsid-Deen of Providence.

"We've always had a misconduct rule that applies to on-court as well as off-court behavior," Schultz said. "The misconduct rule applies as long as your team is in the tournament, even if something happens back at the hotel."

"But we're coming out with a special statement dealing with the fighting issue so that everybody knows we are not going to tolerate it."

Schultz said the decision to suspend a player would be made by the games committee at the tournament site. Each games committee is headed by a member of the basketball committee.

"The game officials can always eject a player from the game. But we're talking about suspending a player from the tournament altogether," Schultz said. "The basketball committee would be the appeal board if a player is suspended. We don't think there will be any fighting. But the committee needs to go on record right up front that it will not be tolerated. We think this is especially important in light of what's been happening."

Eagles earn NCAA bid

DENTON (AP) — For the first time in its 72-year basketball history, North Texas State is headed for the NCAA tournament.

The Eagles earned the automatic bid to the 64-team tournament Thursday night, winning the Southland Conference Post-Season Tournament, 87-70 over Northeast Louisiana.

Senior forward Tony Worrell poured in 33 points and freshman forward Ronnie Morgan added 9 as the Eagles shot 21-of-32 from the floor in the second half (74 percent), 60.5 percent for the game.

"We're extremely happy with this win," North Texas coach Jimmy Gales said.

Lions Club plans donkey ballgame

A benefit donkey basketball game, sponsored by the Pampa Noon Lions Club, is scheduled for Friday, March 18, in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Proceeds from the game will go to help a needy Pampa. Lions spokesman Bobby Trollinger said club members are in the process of selecting the recipient.

Advance tickets to the 7 p.m. game are $3 for adults and $2 for students. Tickets will be a dollar more at the door.

Trollinger said the teams, which will be made up of local personalities, have not been picked yet.

Another benefit game is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday between the Long Rangers (KFDA-TV Channel 10 news team) and a team from Cabot R&D.

The game will be played at McNeely Fieldhouse and proceeds will be donated to the Gray County Retarded Citizens Association.

Softball players schedule meeting

The Pampa Softball Players Association will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Flame Room of the Energas building.

Officers for 1988 will be elected and players fees and bleacher construction will be discussed.

All players are urged to attend.

Harvesters clobber Dumas JV in tournament opener

DUMAS — The Pampa Harvesters breezed to a 26-11 win over Dumas junior varsity Thursday in the first round of the Dumas baseball tournament.

The Harvesters pounded out 20 hits, including a perfect four of four by Kerry Brown, to lift their record to 5-0.

"We had a bunch of hits and only one player struck out and that was a pinch hitter, but we just weren't mentally ready to play. Probably because we were playing their junior varsity, but we've got to get out of this rut of dropping to the other team's level," said Pampa coach Rod Porter. "That bothers me, because somebody's going to knock us off if we don't snap out of it."

The Harvesters played different players at different positions and three JV pitchers, Ricky Sewell, Brandon Knutson and Ray Ward, saw their first high school varsity action.

"They were nervous and I would be too in that situation," Porter said. "I didn't mind giving up the runs to get them some experience. Playing a junior varsity team gave us a break because we had a chance to develop some of our other pitchers."

Knutson, who went three innings, was the winning pitcher.

Brown, a junior, lifted his batting average to .888 (8 of 9) with his perfect day at the plate.

"Brown has just been phenomenal," added Porter.

"He's got to be one of the top hitters in the panhandle and he wasn't eligible to play until the third game of the season."

Mike Cagle, a sophomore, came off the bench in the late innings and collected a single, double and triple.

"He wanted to bat one more time so he could hit for the cycle," Porter laughed.

Chris Martinez, James Bybee, Brandon McDonald and Knutson added two hits each to the Harvesters' attack.

Porter said backup catcher Matt Brock started behind the plate and had two hits in three trips to the plate.

Pampa meets Hereford, also 5-0, at 5:30 p.m. today in the second round of the double-elimination tournament.

Porter said Troy Owens would start on the mound.

In other tournament games, Dumas downed Pulo Duro 11-6 Thursday.

Cunningham dead

(AP Laserphoto)

Track star Glenn Cunningham crosses the finish line in the 1500 meter run at the 1937 national AAU championships in Princeton, N.J. Cunningham, who overcame life-threatening burn injuries as a child to become one of the world's greatest middle distance runners, died of an apparent heart attack Thursday. He was 73.

SMU hopes to avoid 'death kiss'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Being seeded number one in the Southwest Conference Post-Season Basketball Classic can be the kiss of death.

Only six top seeds have captured the trophy in 12 previous tournaments, the most recent being Texas Tech in 1985.

Southern Methodist comes into today's quarterfinals of the tournament seeded No. 1 for the first time. The Mustangs have never made it to the championship game, losing in the semifinals twice.

"This tournament, historically, has been tough on favorites and top seeds," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss. "Look what happened last year. The number eight seed (Texas A&M) upset the number one seed (Texas Christian) in the first round. Coaches are scared to death of games against underdog teams."

SMU, which won the SWC regular season title for the first time since 1967, was to play number eight seed TCU at 7 p.m. The Mustangs have defeated TCU twice this year.

"I hope we come out with a lot of intensity because TCU sure will," Bliss said. "I think we will. We've been through a lot this year."

The Baylor Bears, who won their last eight games and posted their best season in 40 years, were the second-seeded team and drawing a lot of pre-tournament raves.

"It doesn't bother me," Bliss said. "That's why you play the tournament. Baylor has been playing awfully well and that's why everyone is picking them."

Baylor (21-9) and second seeded meets seventh seeded Texas Tech (9-18) at 2 p.m. on Friday after third-seeded Arkansas (20-7) and sixth-seeded Texas A&M (16-14) open the tournament at noon.

Top seeded SMU (24-6) and eighth-seeded Texas Christian (9-18) play at 7 p.m. while fourth-seeded Texas (16-12) and fifth-seeded Houston (16-11) meet at 9 p.m.

The semifinal games will be played at 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday while the finals are set for 3 p.m. on Sunday.

"Baylor is the team to beat," said Texas Tech Coach Gerald Myers. "They're playing better than anybody in the league. In their last three games they've just blown everybody out."

Baylor defeated Tech by 18 and 42 points in their two games during the regular season.

"We're probably playing the toughest team we could draw in Baylor as far as matching up," Myers said.

The Red Raiders do have tradition going for them.

They are 9-0 in tournament openers and 3-0 against Baylor in the post-season event. Tech's record of 22-9 is the best mark in tournament history.

Baylor Coach Gene Iba is wary of all the pre-tournament hype about his Bears who lost in the finals to Texas A&M last year and have never won the championship.

"One of the hardest things to do in college basketball is play a team three times in a year and beat them every time," Iba said. "It's a difficult situation for us."

Baylor's motivation is the automatic NCAA playoff berth that goes with the tournament title.

"I think we will have to win the tournament for sure to go to the NCAA playoffs," said Middleton.

"We have to remember that no matter who our opponent is..."

Middleton, a senior from Queens, N.Y., who led the SWC in scoring and rebounding, on Thursday was named the SWC Player of the Year.

Arkansas and Texas A&M split their season series with the Aggies winning in College Station when Razorbacks' center Andrew Lang got into early foul trouble.

"I pray at night that Andrew can last more than 14 minutes in this game before fouling out," Richardson said. "I have a lot of respect for (Texas A&M Coach) Shelby Metcalf and 'the playground king' (A&M guard Darryl McDonald). We know it won't be easy."

Metcalf said "We feel like we will be playing against the host team. Arkansas has more people in the stands here than the other seven teams."

"We have to slow the ball down against Arkansas. If we run with them the end result will be a mercy killing."

"Texas is one of the hottest teams going into the tournament," said Houston Coach Pat Foster. "They are just hitting their stride."

Texas Coach Bob Weltlich said he's hoping guard Courtney Jeans will be available.

"We are not sure of his status and we're not the same team without him," Weltlich said.

Raycom television has decided to beam the two semifinal games over a regional network and ESPN will televise the finals to half of the nation.

ENMU coach axed

PORTALES, N.M. (AP) — Eastern New Mexico University has decided not to renew basketball coach Larry Riley's contract next season, the school's president says.

"We certainly appreciate the contributions Coach Riley has made to the athletic program during his career, but we felt it was time to make a change," Robert Matheny said Wednesday.

Riley, 43, posted a 112-60 record during his 10 seasons coaching the Greyhounds. The Greyhounds were 4-23
