

Big Area Raked By Storms

Heavy Snows Halt Traffic; Death Toll Over 30

By The Associated Press
Furious winds whipped snow and sleet over the northeastern section of the nation today while the Great Lakes region tried to shake off the paralysis of the worst blizzard in years.

A traffic crippling snowstorm moved eastward across New York state accompanied by zero temperatures. At the same time a northeast blizzard riding a 23 mile gale rained into New England.

In Boston harbor ships cast anchor rather than hazard mooring at piers. A driving snow lashed New York City. In upstate New York the snowfall ranged up to 15 inches and many roads were blocked by 19-foot drifts.

At least 23 deaths were attributed to the storm in the northern tier of states east of the Mississippi. Three others were caused by rain and wind storms in the south. Eleven deaths, most of them caused by over-exhaustion, were reported in Chicago and suburbs.

Five died in Indiana, three in Michigan, four in New England, four in Ohio, four in New York, and one in Wisconsin.

Flames between New York and Chicago were grounded. Highway traffic was slowed to a walk if not stopped entirely in many areas.

Schools were reopened in Chicago today and factories and business establishments sought to restore normal activity but transportation was still seriously crippled. More than 4,000 men and hundreds of snowplows, trucks, and sweepers were engaged by public and private agencies to clear streets.

State police and motor clubs warned motorists to stay away from snow clogged highways in parts of southern Michigan, northern Indiana, and northern Illinois. Many small communities in southern Michigan were isolated and rural schools were closed.

Heavy rains swelled Indiana's rivers to flood stage in some places to add to the state's winter troubles.

Fugitive Convict Nabbed At Dallas

DALLAS, Jan. 31 (AP)—Captured by two Dallas policemen who had stopped him on suspicion, Roy King, 26, the last of eight convicts who escaped from the Eastman prison farm Aug. 18, 1933, was nabbed by Dallas police today on a series of hijackings and robberies here and in West Texas.

Six of the other convicts in the break were killed or have died since. One was recaptured.

King was nabbed about an hour after he held up Homer Peters, 26, attendant at a service station, robbed the station of $15, kidnaped Peters in the latter's car, later releasing him.

GENE HOWE OFFERS SELF FOR CONGRESS

AMARILLO, Jan. 31 (AP)—Gene Howe, who pilots the "Tactical Texas" column in the Amarillo Globe, was a candidate for congress today with "his own loyal, determined, enthusiastic followers."

"Ole Tack" led up to his factious announcement by predicting Congressman Marvin Jones would be appointed to a federal judgeship within a year. Jones has been mentioned for a federal court bench in the District of Columbia.

In his column yesterday, Howe put "Hon. E. W. Tack" in the life of possible candidates.

"I'm going to run on a platform of opposition to the fortification of Guam," he said in a statement.

"I'm opposed to war, but if we want war, I'm in favor of one close to home. Let's fight Mexico," he joked.

Howe predicted he would be a "second W. Lee O'Daniel."

START OF STAR ROUTE AIRMAIL SERVICE WILL BE CELEBRATED

Plans were advanced today for welcoming a motorcade here Wednesday afternoon coincident with arrival of first airmail by star route from points as far west as Monahans.

Postmaster Nat Shick and chairman of commerce officials urged as many local people who can be at the airport Wednesday at 3:10 p. m. when delegations from Monahans, Odessa, Midland and Stanton are expected to arrive with the Greyhound bus which carries the mail.

The occasion will celebrate the institution of a type of service new in the annals of U. S. postal service—a star route airmail service.

According to plans advanced by Postmaster Midland chairman of

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS REDUCED BY MORE THAN 10,000 IN '38

CHICAGO, Jan. 31 (AP)—The National Safety Council announced today the nation's accidental deaths were reduced by 10,300 in 1938, the greatest improvement ever recorded in a single year.

Last year's fatalities totaled 95,000, the council made known, the lowest aggregate since 1933 and a 19 per cent decline from the 1937 figure of 115,500.

The safety experts disclosed further that 700,000 fewer people were disabled by injuries in 1938 than in 1937, and that the economic loss from accidental deaths and injuries was cut by $100,000,000.

The council said the improvement was general in every classification of accidents except the domestic one. Accidental deaths in the home exceeded the number of traffic fatalities.

Except for 1932 and 1933, last year's accidental death rate of 25 for 100,000 population was the lowest since 1922.

The chief factor in the country's exceptional showing was a 19 per cent reduction in traffic deaths, a saving of 7,600 lives, and a drop from 29,542 in 1937 to 25,000 in 1938.

Of the 33 states reporting for at least 10 months, 27 showed curbed casualties. The greatest decline, 23 per cent, was reported by Michigan.

Committee Reports On Operation Of Colorado Dams

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—A senate committee, which investigated operation of dams in the Colorado river flood of last July recommended today the legislature immediately determine policies of power production and flood control for all river authorities in the state.

In a report members said the Lower Colorado River Authority had refused to make "any definite commitment to this committee" of the amount of empty storage space it would keep available at all times for flood protection.

The report said: "In view of the fact that projects of such magnitude are new in Texas, and because the problem of conservation and reclamation for the benefit of the greatest number x x x is of lasting importance, and because these projects and corporate districts are state agencies supported in whole by taxes extracted from the people, we recommend that the 46th legislature direct its immediate attention to formulating and promulgating a definite state policy as to the operation of all such programs in this state and to provide for the strict observance of such policy by

Says Policy Of Appeasement Succeeding

Cites 'Full Settlement' When Conditions Favorable

LONDON, Jan. 31 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told Adolf Hitler today that Britain wanted him to back up his peaceful word with "concrete evidence" of a "desire for peace" before "we can enter upon the final settlement."

After declaring Hitler's speech of last night was not that of a man who is preparing to throw Europe into another crisis, Chamberlain asserted in a house of commons foreign policy debate:

"After this long period of uncertainty and anxiety in Europe confidence is not easily or quickly established.

"I say therefore that what we want to see is not only words which indicate a desire for peace, but before we can enter upon the final settlement we shall want to see concrete evidence in a willingness, let us say, to enter into arrangements if not for disarmament at any rate for a limitation of armaments."

Defending his foreign policy in a house of commons debate, Chamberlain declared British prestige was as high as it ever had been and "there never was a time when our friendship was more eagerly desired by other countries."

"It is untrue," he said, "that the policy of appeasement has failed. On the contrary, I claim that it is steadily succeeding."

The prime minister said only large scale intervention in behalf of the Spanish government would make Spain's war a menace to European peace and added that it was not the time to change the non-intervention policy.

Chamberlain asserted he had "similar assurances from Herr Hitler"—like those from Mussolini that Italy wanted nothing from Spain after the war was over.

This assurance presumably was given during Chamberlain's conferences with Hitler on the Czechoslovak crisis last September.

In what some of his hearers considered a reference to the possibility of negotiating with Hitler concerning return of Germany's pre-war colonies, Chamberlain said a favorable atmosphere was necessary for "a full settlement."

Vote Indicates It Will Join Senate's Move

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—The house strongly indicated today it would follow the lead of the senate in voting to abolish the office of state tax commissioner, a motion to send the senate bill back to committee was killed, 107 to 40.

Two more favorable votes would be required to send the bill to the governor's office. It would have to be passed to third reading, then passed finally.

An effort to get immediate final action on the bill failed. A motion to suspend the rules and take the proposal up out of order lost by one vote. It received 96 affirmative votes against 46 negative whereas a two-thirds majority would have been required. Opponents said it would come up in regular order tomorrow.

Meanwhile Sen. Morris Roberts of Pecos, author of the bill, stated from the senate floor that the proposal was not a slap at Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel. The tax commissioner is appointed by the governor. Roberts said O'Daniel wanted either abolition of the department or a sharp reduction in its cost.

Reps. G. C. Morris of Greenville and Joe A. Keith of Sherman led the fight to send the proposal back to committee, claiming that in its present form it would cost the state money instead of saving money. Advocates contend the bill would save about $50,000 a year.

Meanwhile, the summary execution of O'Daniel's plan to make one of his closest friends, Carr F. Collins of Dallas, chairman of the state highway commission still had the capital agog. The senate unexpectedly rejected the nomination yesterday.

Action by the upper legislative branch on appointment of Joe Kunschik of Austin as labor commissioner, protested by some labor organizations, and Trust Smith of Tahoka as life insurance commissioner, was anxiously awaited. A hearing for Kunschik before the governor's nominations committee has been set for tomorrow.

Speculation was rife on whom Governor O'Daniel would select for the highway commission chairmanship. He remained silent.

Although no reason was given for the rejection, some members mentioned geography. The three highway commissioners in the past have been from widely separated Texas cities. Harry Hines, another member of the present commission, spends much of his time in Dallas, Collins' home city.

Some observers were inclined to the belief the senate intended the rejection as a "crack" at the governor and a display of its independence.

TWO ARE KILLED IN DYNAMITE BLAST

FORT COLLINS, Colo., Jan. 31 (AP)—Explosion of three truckloads of burning dynamite killed two workers at a cement plant six miles north of Fort Collins tonight. It happened a minute or two later.

Twenty-five workers at the Colorado Portland Cement company plant were dragging a hose line toward the burning explosives when the dynamite detonated late yesterday, leaving a crater and a mass of splintered wood and crushed automobiles where the plant garage had stood.

Coroner Orville Miller of Larimer county said he would not call an inquest until he had made a complete investigation of the blast.

SALAZAR IS DENIED A NEW TRIAL

SWEETWATER, Jan. 31 (AP)—Judge John F. Sutton this morning overruled in 32nd district court here a defense motion for a new trial of the case of Frank Salazar, young Mexican farm hand who last Wednesday was given death in the electric chair for the double slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kennedy near Miles the night of Dec. 18.

Defense attorneys gave notice of appeal to the court of criminal appeals in Austin.

QUITTS BENCH

Martin T. Manton (above), judge of the U. S. circuit court of appeals in New York, resigned his post after District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had filed charges with a house committee that Judge Manton had accepted loans from litigants. The judge said he had done nothing of which he "was ashamed."

Four Probes Into Judge's Affairs

Denying All Accusations, Manton Resigns Post

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (AP)—Two federal and two state inquiries were pushed today into the involved business affairs of Martin T. Manton, resigned senior judge of the U. S. circuit court of appeals.

The investigations were undertaken by the U. S. department of justice, U. S. District Attorney Gregory F. Noonan, the state department and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

The 58-year-old jurist—youngest federal judge in the nation when he was appointed to the bench in 1916 after a brilliant law career—gave up his post yesterday while categorically denying charges he had accepted more than $400,000 in loans from persons interested in affairs before his court.

Judge Manton said he preferred to step down rather than become "the central figure in a controversy" which might "weaken public confidence in the administration of justice."

In a letter to President Roosevelt, the $12,500-a-year judge, highest ranking jurist next to the nine supreme court justices, asked to be relieved of his duties not later than March 1. Later Judge Manton made

North-South Air Service For City Reported From Angelo

Announcement came by press dispatches from San Angelo today of the proposed inauguration, on Thursday, of an airline from Austin to Amarillo, with stops at San Angelo, Big Spring and Lubbock; but civic, municipal and aviation representatives here were completely "in the dark" as to the project.

The San Angelo announcement said that Essair, Inc., would establish the line. Bill Gieber, municipal airport manager at San Angelo, said arrangements had been completed after confidential negotiations with Dallas officials of Essair, Inc. would operate under a typical West Texas slogan, "Flying the Range." The daily schedule, it was said, calls for a round trip from Amarillo to Houston. Passengers and air express would be carried.

City officials, airport attaché and chamber of commerce leaders here said they knew nothing of the proposed line. No arrangements have been made for service at the airport. The chamber of commerce here, along with civic organizations at Amarillo, Lubbock, San Angelo and San Antonio, for many months has been working on establishment of a north-south air mail line, but the Essair development was not included in their plans.

The cities are seeking formal approval of the route from the Civil Aeronautics Authority, with the granting of a certificate to some airline to haul passengers, express and airmail. No regularly established flight scheduled can be maintained without such CAA authority, and CAA lays down strict requirements for commercial lines, such as use of certain type planes, radio communication, full pilot personnel, and the like.

Recently, Braniff Airways indicated it would seek a certificate to operate a line from Pueblo, Colo., to San Antonio, by way of the West Texas cities mentioned, this line to be a part of a proposed expansion of the present Braniff system. The campaign for establishment of a north-south line through Big Spring had dovetailed with the Braniff proposal.

Further details on the Essair project were not available.

C-C Members Will Have Moore Residents As Guests

Showing an enthusiasm beyond expectations of the chamber of commerce trade extension committee, local business men Tuesday had exhausted all but 12 of a list of more than 60 men to be honored at a dinner in the Moore community Feb. 7.

A survey of the list maintained at the chamber of commerce office showed 23 Big Spring men had claimed one or more guests from a list of Moore community men furnished by the women of that community.

Others who anticipate attending the event were advised by Charles Frost, chairman of the committee, to make haste in claiming guests for the occasion.

Others Wounded In Shooting At Birthday Ball

PAMPA, Jan. 31 (AP)—Constable Otis Hendrix and J. D. White, night club operator, were shot to death early today on the crowded dance floor of a night club packed with celebrants at a president's birthday ball.

Two men and two women were injured.

Sheriff Cal Ross and District Attorney Clifford Brady declined comment on the shooting.

Injured in the shower of bullets were Mrs. John Strange; I. J. Huvall, American Legion commander; Mike Mitchell and an unnamed woman.

White, former Burk Burnett banker and Texas ranger, was shot four times in the heart and Hendrix through the abdomen. Mrs. Strange received a bullet wound in the left thigh which severed an artery.

G. Burns Is Fined $8,000

Burns Also Draws Suspended Term For Smuggling

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (AP)—George Burns, radio comedian, was fined $8,000 and given a suspended sentence of one year and one day and placed on probation for one year by Federal Judge William Brady today on his plea of guilty to two indictments charging the smuggling of jewelry into this country.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Joseph W. Delaney had recommended a $12,000 fine and the suspended sentence.

Burns pleaded guilty several weeks ago to the indictments in which he was named with Albert N. Chaperau, self-styled Nicaraguan consular official, and Mrs. Elma N. Lauer, wife of State Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer.

Both Chaperau and Mrs. Lauer have pleaded guilty, also.

Other indictments in the case named Jack Benny, radio comedian, who has pleaded innocent. Benny's trial has been set for February 14.

Under the nine counts in the two indictments against him, Burns had faced a possible maximum sentence of 18 years imprisonment and fines totalling $45,000.

At the time Burns made his plea, Delaney asked consideration by cause the comedian had cooperated with the government in a wide investigation of smuggling.

Specifically, Burns was indicted for smuggling two bracelets and a ring valued by the government at $4,500.

Burns already has paid $9,770 by penalties to the custom authorities.

Burns was not accused of actually smuggling the jewelry into this country himself, but of abetting evasion of customs duties and receiving, concealing and transporting the jewelry after it had been smuggled by others.

His attorneys said he had bought the jewelry and had "no purpose or intent to offend against the laws."

Fuehrer's Talk Gives Hope For Peace

Advices U. S. Not To Interfere In His Trade Program

BERLIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—Diplomats saw hope today for peace in Europe in the assurance of Adolf Hitler there would be no cause for war in his pursuit of the great Nazi objective, return of war lost colonies.

They were not sure, however, of the full meaning of the chancellor's firm promise of aid to Italy if she were involved in an ideological war and his declaration: "National socialism Germany and fascist Italy are strong enough to safeguard peace against everyone; and to end resolutely and successfully any conflict which irresponsible elements lightly start."

Charting the course of Nazism for 1939 in a two-hour and 17-minute speech before the Reichstag last night, the chancellor declared his own belief in a "long peace."

He set increasing world trade, to include Latin American countries, as a pressing need to bolster German economy while the campaign for colonies is carried on, and advised the United States not to interfere.

Devoting much of the address starting his seventh year in power to the economic need for Germany's 80,000,000 people, the chancellor hinted the colonial issue would be handled by negotiation.

"Germany has no territorial demands against England and France apart from that for the return of our colonies," he said.

"While the solution of this question would contribute greatly to the pacification of the world, it is in no sense a problem which could cause a war."

He did not mention the Italian agitation for colonial concessions from France.

Hitler blamed Jews, bolsheviks, and unfriendly political and financial interests in other countries, in

THE GOVERNOR RUNS SECOND THIS TIME

W. Lee O'Daniel may still have the support of many thousands who voted him into the governorship of Texas, but he evidently isn't held so much in awe by the state's legislators.

The senate Monday handed the executive a resounding slap in rejecting his appointment of Carr Collins as Dallas to the chairmanship of the highway commission, and in voting to abolish the office of tax commissioner. That office, you will recall, was to have been filled, Mr. O'Daniel hoped by Elster M. Halle, Mr. Halle is the gentleman whose bona fide residence in Texas was questioned by some.

The rejection of Collins takes on added significance from the fact that he has been generally regarded as the governor's No. 1 political advisor. News dispatches from Austin indicated that the Collins appointment was unsatisfactory because he is a Dallas man, and his selection was not in keeping with geographical considerations that has been customary in highway appointments. But some observers will be able to see more behind the senate's action than that. The rejection, together with the veto of the tax commissioner's appointment, it appears that the senators have decided to let the legislative branch of the government, too, have some authority along with the executive department. Whether this is true, remains to be seen, but if the appointment of Joe Kunschick as a state labor commissioner is turned down, then Mr. O'Daniel indeed will be trailing in the first battle between governor and senate.

His transaction tax proposal, it should also be remembered, is not attracting too many ardent devotees in the capital building.

Mr. O'Daniel has had that "baptism of fire" which has been predicted for the newcomer to the maneuverings of politics. It was conceded that he must have some difficulties, and it should be asserted that he must go half way to help smooth out the difficulties. We think this method—adopted Sunday—of using his radio hour to lambast those who criticize his doing is a pretty tactics way to go about developing a smoothing governmental scheme. He could spend the time better in trying to understand the minds of his legislators, trying to reach them on common ground. It can't be done by the broadcasting of bitter and sarcastic words. There is education yet ahead for the governor.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

THIS EUROPEAN CRISIS

The situation in Europe is being described as equal in gravity to the situation in September. It may be that it is. But in certain important respects it is a very difficult situation. For in September the British and the French democracies had to decide whether they would risk a war in which they would have had to fight the German and Italian.

Lippmann to attack Germany and Italy. That is what supporting the Czechs would have meant. Today, Hitler and Mussolini have to decide whether they will risk a war in which they would have to fight the British and the French democracies. That is what taking Tunisia or Corsica involves.

As a military and as a psychological problem the situation today is almost completely the opposite of what it was last summer. It is, I believe, the settled opinion of all military men that in modern war on land a successful attack requires a superiority of perhaps as much as three to one in materials and in trained officers and reserves. The offensive is a terribly costly undertaking, especially against prepared positions and against troops fighting on their own soil and defending their homeland.

Moreover, since modern wars are fought by the whole population, the morale of the attacker, that is to say his will to fight and his willingness to endure losses, must be much higher. His morale is harder to sustain than is that of the defender. In September the British and French peoples were not unitedly prepared to pay the price in blood and treasure of a military offensive that they were to wage, they would have been dissuaded from the start, and from the start they would have been asking themselves why they must die and have their cities devastated for the sake of the Czechs and the other small nations of central Europe. The diplomats might tell them that in fighting for the Czechs they were fighting for their national interests. But what the ordinary man saw was that he and his son had to charge against the German army when Germany was not invading France.

The British and French gave way at Munich because their interest in fighting for the Czechs was not plainly and indisputably great enough to guarantee the united willingness of their people to pay the price of a sustained military offensive over a long period of years. In the present crisis the French certainly, and the British almost as strongly, are in a fundamentally stronger position than they were in September. If there is to be war, it is Mussolini and Hitler who have to attack, and they have to attack, not an ally of France, but France herself. That this is a very different matter may be judged from the fact that in September the French government never felt about to submit its position to the French Parliament, today M. DeLadriere and M. Bonnet have gone to Parliament and have received unanimous support. There can be little doubt that on the question of defending the French empire there is a solidary in France which did not exist on the question of fulfilling the Casablanca promise.

The British position, also, is psychologically much stronger. The British are maritime people, and wars on land over strategic positions in the interior of the Continent are contrary to all their traditions. But they understand very well the necessity of sea power, and the importance of Spain, of Spanish Morocco, of the Balearic Islands and of Tunis, to the maintenance of their sea power. Under Marlborough in the eighteenth century, and under Wellington in the nineteenth century they went to war to keep Spain independent, so that it could not be used as a base from which to attack their command of the sea. Moreover, just as the French have a strategic military problem now because they are on the defensive, so the British have an easier military problem because they are acting in a region where their navy is capable of being used effectively.

As against this it may be said that the British and French have lost the support of the Czech army, and of loyalist Spain. It is by no means certain that these are net losses. The Czechs had a fine army. But that army was one thing if Germany attacked France; it was another thing if France had to attack Germany. For if France had had to attack Germany, the Czechs would have been annihilated long before the French could have hoped to make a breach in the German lines. Given the superiority of the defensive, the Czech army could have helped little in a war of attack against Germany; in a war of attack by Germany now, the Germans have to be sure, more troops available, but they would need many more troops than they did to hold the French in September.

Life's Darkest Moment

OSWALD! COME BACK HERE THIS INSTANT!

The Boy Who Wanted to Let a Bull Sniff Some Flowers

doubt, I think, that the British and French had acted wisely in refusing to prolong the civil war. Only in that way are they able to clarify their real interest in the Spanish question, which is that Spain should remain a genuinely independent nation. And in taking this position they are likely to get more support among the Spanish people as a whole than they could possibly have gotten by helping Barcelona to resist.

In any event they really had no other choice. For what prevented them from assisting loyalist Spain was not, in the last analysis, the threat of Mussolini; it was the fact that intervention in the Spanish civil war would hopelessly have divided the French and the British at home. A democracy is a democracy; it cannot face great perils except on issues which unite the democracy. The civil war in Spain had to be removed as an internal issue in France and in Britain before the two nations could unite their peoples on the national issues which vitally concern them.

For these reasons one is entitled, I think, to have faith that what is averted in the present crisis, it all depends on whether Hitler believes that the British and French are as resolute as they seem to be. If he does, the chances are that he will not strike, and that he will restrain Mussolini. That will preserve the peace for the time being. If he thinks that the British and French are bluffing again, as he knew that they were last summer, he will probably take a position from which he cannot retreat; then if they are bluffing again, they will go to a second Munich. And that will preserve the peace.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

by GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Not long ago a composer asked me to write some lyrics for him, which I did, and the experience taught me that songwriters aren't really crazy after all—they just aren't that way. I don't mean the composers themselves, the men who dream up the music. I mean the lyricists, the fellows who think up the words.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds by ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's ashamed I ought to be, but a gent named Juarez didn't mean much in my life until I heard Paul Muni was going to play him in a movie.

Oh, yes, vaguely, I knew this Juarez had some place in Mexican history along with a couple of imported rulers named Maximilian and Carlotta, and down in Los Angeles' Olvera street (the tourists' Mexican center) they still sing of Don Benito Juarez on fiesta days.

But when Muni said he'd play Juarez—then I knew Don Benito was Somebody. It's an axiom. Muni can say yes or no on parts he'll play. Anybody he plays is bound to be Somebody. Witness "Pasteur," Witness "Zola." Now witness "Juarez."

So I've gone back to school—at Warner Bros. college in Burbank. And now I know. Take the word of Prof. Henry Blanke, the associate producer; take the word of Muni himself; of Bette Davis, the film's Carlotta; of Brian Aherne, the Maximilian. Or (more simply) look it up in your history book, and you'll find the film's slogan—"a timely as tomorrow's newspaper"—isn't far wrong.

Blanke and associates picked "Juarez" as a subject soon after their "Zola" was completed, and the script has been preparing since September of 1937. Blanke—38, boyish, scholarly—and four writers have been laboring over it that long. Aeneas MacKenzie, Wolf Lang Reinhardt (son of Max), John Huston (son of Walter) and Abem Finkel are the quartet.

First steps were to acquire screen rights to Hans Werfel's play, "Juarez and Maximilian," and Bertita Harding's novel, "The Phantom Crown." Then research—digging into more than 200 sources. The story, briefly, concerns the efforts of dispossessed Mexican land-owners to regain their holdings after the great liberal president Juarez, an Indian from Oaxaca, has distributed it among his impoverished exploited people. In France, Napoleon III and Eugenie are persuaded to send French troops to Mexico to drive out Juarez, and in the deal the Hapsburg Austrian Maximilian is made Emperor of Mexico.

Driven to the north by French armies, Juarez remains obstinate in his battle for democracy, even when Maximilian, after study of the patriot's doctrines, becomes a convert and offers the fugitive high place in the monarchy. With the end of the Civil war in the United States, Lincoln invokes the Monroe Doctrine, Juarez captures the capital, and the erstwhile emperor is sentenced to death.

This brings on the great scene in the film—the all-important speech in which Juarez refuses, despite the collective pleas of Europe, to veer from his democratic ideals by sparing Maximilian's life. It was important enough to keep the producer and writers busy on it one solid month. Important because, up to then, audience sympathy has been with Maximilian and Carlotta, now must be switched to Juarez.

From the Warner college I learned, too, that Secretary William Seward, who knew both Lincoln and Juarez, once called the latter "the greatest man and greatest leader of his time."

Which ought to be enough—even for Muni. He took Maise's cable and stared at it. There was no question, he agreed. Maise had done a great deal for them both. It was Peter's duty to look him and look after her. And if there was anyone particular, here, he hinted—well, they came home every few years, on leave!

Peter went to the telephone. He telephoned the shipping office, and reserved a second berth on the "Stirland," sailing next Friday.

DANGEROUS SERVICE

by GRACE ELLIOTT TAYLOR

Petronella received the cable on the following Monday. She was changing, after tennis. Peter was going to take her to the Gym to dance. The "children's corner" would be collected there for Peter's farewell. Father was out. The rebellion kept him busy. Although life went on just the same in Rangoon, terrible things were happening in the green villages, and agitators were spreading discontent in the bazaar.

She opened the envelope. She read the cable through again. She began to realize other possibilities. She faced all the things she recalled meant. For the wording did not state that she was very seriously ill. She would be able to go home! Father could not refuse! She was suddenly filled with prayerful thankfulness. Aunt Maise would get better! She must! And she would forget her own unhappiness, in looking after her.

Petronella never wanted to endure suspense, like that of the past months, again. She had watched every post. Tony had not written. She had sent a subscription to Claire Horton, whose fund for White Russians, and the particulars of the camps she was establishing, were now receiving a good deal of publicity in the English papers. Very casually, she had mentioned that she had met Tony and asked for news of him. Miss Horton had answered. She had not seen him since early December, when he had been very helpful to her. He had had fever, and he was looking ill. She believed he must have left China. Petronella, and Peter, had thought the same. The Daily News published no more of his articles. Had he returned to England? Or might he have arrived suddenly, unexpectedly, in Rangoon, to explain?

But he had not come. The moment Peter entered the bungalow, she handed him the cable. Even though the news was sobering, he, too, gave a shout of wonder. "You'll sail with me! Poor old Maise," he added dutifully. "But perhaps she's all right."

"I think that, too. I do hope she is. I believe it is because I wrote to her." His eyes met hers. "So we go together after all! That's the grand part of it!" Petronella walked to the window and leaned out. "Yes, Peter, I shall hate leaving Burma, in some ways. I rather love it."

He dismissed the past, jerkily. "But it isn't our road." "To the west," the sky was aflame with sunset. The trees of Burma stood darkly etched against its glory. "No, it isn't our road," she answered softly.

Father looked very lost, for a moment, when Peter told him the news. She felt sorry for him, and guilty, herself. He had done his best, as he understood it. It was not his fault, in his over anxiety for her future, that he had threatened her happiness. Perhaps, some day, she would see that she had been to blame more than she would now admit for accepting in a way she was very fond of him. Or rather, she would have been, realized Petronella regretfully, had not the clash of their ideas continually frustrated the possibility of real friendship between them.

He took Maise's cable and stared at it. There was no question, he agreed. Maise had done a great deal for them both. It was Peter's duty to look him and look after her. And if there was anyone particular, here, he hinted—well, they came home every few years, on leave!

Peter went to the telephone. He telephoned the shipping office, and reserved a second berth on the "Stirland," sailing next Friday.

Standing side by side on deck on March 23, they looked back across the same brown water which had welcomed them to Burma five months before, to the same flat, dark country on the sky-line, the round oil dums, the little golden pagoda. The cheers of their riotous send off still rang in their ears. They were very sad. "We've left a lot behind," said Peter.

Would Put Refugees On Various Tracts Over Texas

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (AP)—Henry Santrey, who envisioned—with million-dollar backing—he claimed—a Texas settlement for refugees of Europe, reported today his plan was to take tracts from various parts of the state.

The promoter at first planned to utilize a single vast acreage near Pampa but said various offers, including one of 500,000 acres in the Rio Grande valley near Brownsville, brought the change.

Santrey, who asserted a New York banker, whom he would not identify, was ready to back the enterprise, said he also had offers of land near San Antonio, Lubbock and Plainview.

He would not specify from whom came the offers, saying that would bring price increases. Santrey said the proposal had met with no disapproval, but in Texas state government officials expressed sympathy for the refugees, but no approval of the plan to stake thousands of them in that state.

Church Continues Revival Meeting

Fine results in the revival meeting at the West Side Baptist church have prompted the leadership to continue the campaign another week, it is announced by Rev. E. E. Mason, pastor. There have been several reconsecrations of lives, he said. "We have had eight confessions of faith, and ten persons have come into the church for baptism," the pastor said. "In all there have been 22 united with the church."

Rev. Mason said his church extends a hearty welcome to all to join in the services, held each evening at 7:30. Frank Haley of Wichita Falls is assisting in the song services.

They received a cable from Aunt Maise as soon as they were at sea. It cheered them. "Very much better. But continue journey. Love, Maise."

"I wonder!" smiled Petronella. She looked at Peter. "I did write miserable letters. He guffawed in sudden delight. "Good old Maise! Wonderful old Maise!"

They found her in excellent health. Petronella hugged her in gratitude. The truth was never fully confessed. That would have been disastrous to her father. But Aunt Maise did not contradict their obvious conclusion.

James came in to dinner their first evening at home. He had broadened. He had grown an amazingly small fair mustache. His ears were very red, as he shook both Petronella's hands in his.

Big Bend Park Legislation To Be Offered

Del Rio Legislator Is Drawing Up Necessary Statute

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—Legislation to create the Big Bend National Park is being drawn up and will be introduced in the house of representatives soon, Rep. A. R. Coulthron of Del Rio said today.

Coulthron did not say the amount to be asked of the legislature, but the project would call for expenditure of between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000. Eight hundred thousand acres of land would be involved.

The proposed park lies about 70 miles south of Alpine and Marathon in Brewster county. It includes the Chisos mountains and also takes in the St. Helena canyon of the Rio Grande, which is comparable to the Grand Canyon on the Colorado.

Coulthron said present plans were to ask the legislature for authorization to hold the necessary funds and raise the remainder by popular subscription.

Coulthron estimated approximately $75,000 to $100,000 already had been raised. Counties have been requested to raise 20 per cent per capita.

Mexico has promised to contribute to development of the area by creating a park on the opposite side of the Rio Grande. There is a move on foot to call the project the Pecos Park when and if Mexico carries out her promise, Coulthron said.

Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel pledged his support for the project last summer calling it "one of the greatest things that can happen for Texas."

France Putting Refugee Sector Under Military

PERPIGNAN, France, Jan. 31 (AP)—Additional motorized French troops arrive at the French-Spanish frontier today and the vanguard of large forces being sent to place the refugee-crowded area under strict military control.

One newspaper placed the number of troops likely to be sent to the district at 50,000.

Asked for confirmation, the prefecture declined comment. The war department at Paris likewise refused information and the foreign office said the 50,000 figure seemed "high."

Deaths from exposure and hunger were said to be taking a heavy toll from thousands of refugees gathered at the Spanish side of the border seeking admission into France.

In snow-capped mountains at Bourg-Madame French and Spanish border guards sought a caravan attempt to cross the frontier last night.

Searchers likewise were hunting 1,500 refugees reported trapped by snow in the Pyrenees.

Albert Sarraut, interior minister, and Marc Rucart, health minister, arrived from Paris with a carload of diphtheria and tetanus vaccines.

GOVERNOR GRANTS FIRST CLEMENCY

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel has granted his first clemency since taking office two weeks ago.

The first was a two-day reprieve to James O. Lynch of Caldwell county, convicted murderer in 1935 and sentenced to 25 years. The reprieve was given to permit Lynch to attend the funeral of his wife.

The second was a 60-day extension of parole issued Erskine Fross of Docket county. Fross was out at the time on a 60-day parole granted Dec. 31, 1938, by Gov. James V. Alfred. Fross was convicted in 1936 on charges of theft of cattle and conspiracy to steal cattle. He was sentenced four years in the penitentiary. His parole was granted to permit him to settle his estate.

A conditional pardon was granted Lawrence Skinner of Rank county, sentenced to 10 years on Dec. 20, 1935, for murder. He was credited with having served approximately four years and eight months of his sentence.

A conditional pardon also was granted Frank Kolosky of Falls county, credited with serving two years and eight months of a five-year term for burglary. The clemency plan granted Kolosky was only 23 years old at the time of his conviction.

Vet Looks For Bees To Be In Flag Chase

BRADENTOWN, Fla., Jan. 31 (AP)—Danny MacFadden, a mainstay of the Boston Bees' veteran hurling staff, packed into two words today his advice to rookie pitchers:

"Practice control."

"The average young pitcher coming up needs control above all else," explained Danny, who speaks with the wisdom acquired through 13 years of play in the American and National leagues.

MacFadden, here for a month of golf and swimming before the Boston training camp opens, was anxious to talk about the Bees.

"If we get the same kind of fine pitching we've had the last two years, along with the batting strength Al Simmons, Buddy Huggins and Al Todd, all newcomers, should give our club, the Bees are going to be right up there battling for second place," he declared.

Danny said he looked for Jim Turner, Lou Fette and Milburn Shoemaker—the other "old men" of the mound corps—to perform successfully than they did in 1938.

VOLCANO ACTIVE AGAIN FOLLOWING QUAKES IN CHILE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 31 (AP)—The governor of Biobio province sent a warning telegram today to the minister of interior that the 9,807-foot Antuco volcano was active after almost two centuries of inactivity, following disastrous earthquakes of the past week.

An earthquake of moderate intensity was felt last night at La Serena, in the southern zone where thousands of workmen still labor to remove an estimated 25,000 to 30,000 bodies of persons killed last Tuesday. The population of La Serena feared further quakes.

As a precautionary measure, the minister of health ordered that all persons within the stricken area or passing through it must be vaccinated against typhus and smallpox.

READING AND WRITING

"DAYS OF OUR YEARS," by Pierre van Paassen; (Millman-Curt; $3.50).

If you have occurred to the reading public by now that all the European correspondents who have written books these last few years have essentially only one story to tell. The clever ones do not recede the story that it seems new, but it is not new. It is the same old "my goodness a World War; Versailles; my goodness look at Russia; Mussolini; era of plenty; era of war; Hitler; Spain; Japan; Czechoslovakia." Plus the garnishing, this last too often merely spinach in the mouth.

Come today a better correspondent's book. That is called "Days of Our Years," and it is by Pierre van Paassen. The Dutchman whose great gift seems to have been one of observation. Van Paassen may or may not have been a good and reliable newsmen; that is not important in connection with his book, for the major events are the same in all books. The important thing is the astounding richness of the side material; his gift for clothing it in words is, after the first few pages, taken for granted.

Van Paassen takes him to Geneva for the League sessions. There he begins, after a while, to burge on the noble pledges made after the war. But the thing that sticks in the reader's mind is van Paassen's masterly description of Briand as he speaks in his "cello voice." "Perhaps," writes van Paassen, "music critics, not political observers, should have been sent to report the speeches of Briand. The contents occupied you as one misses the words of an opera. In vain do I rub my memory in an effort to recall a single one of his utterances.... That was the year 1928. That was the blossoming of fate."

The author went to all the places all the correspondents went to, but he went to others. He knew the oddest people of Europe, the Near East, Asia Minor and Africa. These he puts on paper so vividly that the inane ones make you giddy; the voracious tempt you to scratch in sympathy. Van Paassen has no surplus a system of evaluation as you have seen—he is just an appreciative of a man like the wandering Rumanian story teller Penat Istrati as of the most elegant British prime minister. He will, in short, make you see the familiar picture afresh if you give him the chance.

House Of Representatives At State Capital Just A Big, Informal Club

AUSTIN, Jan. 31 (AP)—One of the state's biggest and most informal clubs—with a membership of 150 and an unlimited guest list—probably is the house of representatives between meetings.

It's a mecca for members, wives, children, friends and an almost endless stream of visitors.

An easy informality prevades the great chamber. Whose sometimes bring knitting. Members relax in swivel chairs, feet planted on desks. Children race around chairs and desks. Newspapers, magazines and books appear and the inevitable checker or domino game grinds away at the deserted press table.

Because, unlike senators, house members have no offices. They do most work and post-meeting work at their desks. It's a welcome opportunity to catch up on correspondence, visit with constituents and often just to rest.

Most members prefer their house desks to apartment or hotel rooms when the house is in recess.

Like Rep. Bryan Bradbury of Abilene, they like the companionship of others.

"It's the same principle as hunting a cafe where friends meet when you want a drink or something to eat," he says.

"We like to be where people are." And the spacious room is seldom without people.

From early morning to midnight scores drift in and around the big room. Some are tourists but most are members, relatives or friends. The conglomerate hum of a hundred conversations, a pale haze of tobacco smoke and a general air of easiness lend comfort to the surroundings.

GOV. PHILLIPS FIRM IN OPPOSITION TO RED RIVER DAM

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 31 (AP)—Governor Leon C. Phillips, denying he had conferred with anyone representing any power interest, today remained adamant in his stand against a Red river dam at Denton, Tex.

Yet each of these people who go peeping off in congress don't know the answers, nor do those who call this a public utilities fight. Governor Phillips said last night. Apparently this was his reply to Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) who charged Phillips was being made the catpaw of power interests.

The governor said he was convinced President Roosevelt would consider the project impractical "if he knew the facts."

LEGAL NOTICE

IN THE MATTER OF PROCEEDINGS BY CITY OF BIG SPRING, TEXAS, FOR THE CONDEMNATION OF CERTAIN PROPERTY OF MAY THIXTON AND J. F. THIXTON.

STATE OF TEXAS, COUNTY OF HOWARD. To the City of Big Spring, Petitioner, and to May Thixton and J. F. Thixton, Owners:

That each of you are hereby notified that on the 15th day of February, 1939, at 10 o'clock A. M., and at the County Court Room in the Court House in Big Spring, Howard County, Texas, the undersigned, special commissioners appointed by the Judge of the County Court of Howard County, Texas, to assess the damage occasioned by the condemnation, in fee, of the following described property, to-wit:

KBST NOTES—

Dramatic Skit To Be Offered This Evening

"A Nine-Count for Cupid," delightful three-act comedy romance in modern tempo, will be the fourth dramatic offering of the TSN Theater of the Air to be heard over KBST from 8:05 to 8:30 tonight.

The plot concerns the frustrations that beset a young lady in her efforts to frustrate the activities of the little fellow with the bow and arrow.

Chick Webb is conceded to be one of the great swing drummers. The dusky little drummer is heard several times weekly over the Mutual network from New York's Park Central Hotel.

An integral part of the Webb organization is vocalist Ella Fitzgerald who sang "A Tisket—A Tasket" to national fame.

It's reached a point where a Mutual network artist just steps up to a microphone and wonders. The fan mail comes back from all over the place. Like Capetown, South Africa.

Not, you understand that the big 500,000 watt WLW, or 50,000 watt WOR and WGN flatten any loud-speakers on the dark continent. That's too much to ask of any broadcasting affiliate. But these Mutual programs go a long way in this world. All around it a couple of times, bouncing and skipping from ionosphere to Borneo and back.

The answer, of course, is that gentle short wave which hurls the slightest whisper across seas and mountains and continents. And various Mutual programs have been singled out for international distribution via WEKAL in Boston WEXAL in Cincinnati (WLW) and WOR's own WEXJI in the heart of New York City.

The Effects of Liquor Cannot Be Repealed
WHY WE WEAR THE WHITE RIBBON
All members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, we love and wear the white ribbon bow.

It is a biased bond of fellowship among our members. It is a privilege of which we are proud. It is a plea for purity of life. It is a pledge of total abstinence. It proscribes the international prohibition of the liquor traffic.

It proclaims the Gospel of Peace and a world-wide family of nations. It is a prayer for home protection. It prece a safe path for children's feet.

It is the emblem of patriotism. It is a protest against the drink habit and the liquor traffic. It is a promise of hope to the tempted and help to the suffering. It prophesies the coming of Christ's brotherhood in all hearts, all homes and all governments.

Let us wear the white ribbon and follow its gleam.—Anna A. Gordon. (Submitted by, and published at the request of the local WCTU).

ELLIOTT ASKS FOR A DEFINITION OF 'TAX DODGERS'
CORPUS CHRISTI, Jan. 21 (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt of Fort Worth, son of the president, wants to know if Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel "believes those who did not pay their poll taxes last year are 'tax dodgers'." (O'Daniel did not.)

Economy Move Gains Force

Savings The Big Motive In Reorganization

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Encouraged by the success of efforts to trim the relief appropriation, some of the chief strategists in congress are planning a concerted effort to make economy the dominant motive for reorganization of government departments.

That was the approach to the reorganization problem for which Senator Byrd (D-Va) and a group of economy-minded associates argued last year. Administration followers replied that, while some small economies might be obtained through such departmental revision chief effort should be directed toward obtaining more efficient administration of government.

Bills to give the president power to consolidate federal agencies, do away with those that were found unnecessary, and provide him with more secretarial and administrative assistants, passed the house last year in several separate measures.

The senate tied all the reorganization together into one bill and passed it amid a shower of telegraphic protests. In the house, the members voted to shelve the new measure. It stayed on the shelf for the rest of that congress.

At the start of the 1935 congress Mr. Roosevelt renewed his request for reorganization legislation. When the legislation finally is

Administration To Base Pension Payments With Those Advocating Liberal Payments To All Aged

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—The Roosevelt administration and proponents of old age pensions rapidly are approaching a hand-to-hand struggle in congress. The first encounter will be in hearings of the house ways and means committee, beginning Wednesday. Administration advocates of the social security system and the pension proponents have been promised full opportunity to express their views.

Both groups are seeking the same end insofar as the nation's old people are concerned; they want to assure the aged of a livable income when productive years are over.

But the methods and the incidental results they hope to accomplish are vastly different. President Roosevelt and other social security backers envision brought up, it is likely to be a series of separate bills. Each of these will arouse a certain amount of opposition. But the administration leaders figure this will be divided. Some members who object to one bill, they believe, may assent to another.

In view of the increased republican representation, proponents for the reorganization program argue that wrapping it up in one bill would unite the foes and make them harder to beat.

TO INVITE HULL TO COTTON FARLEY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (AP)—Burris Jackson of Hillsboro, president of the Texas Cotton Association, said today he would invite Secretary Hull to attend a meeting of the association in Houston March 21.

Jackson said he would ask Hull to speak on reciprocal trade agreements. Jackson and Roy Miller, vice president of the Louisiana-Texas Intra-Coastal Canal Association, will entertain the Texas congressional delegation at a luncheon Wednesday.

A FATAL RIDE

MT. PULASKI, Ill., Jan. 21 (AP)—Two of Roy Girtman's roosters made a poor choice of roosts. They camped on the front bumper of Girtman's automobile, nearly threw themselves out keeping their balance while Girtman drove seven miles to town, and then were noticed by their owner and sold to a local butcher.

60 years old. The present social security law is of little or no direct help to them. It is primarily to those that the pension leaders beckon. Pension advocates argue payment of pensions, once congress set up the machinery, would start within a matter of months and that all the people over a certain age would benefit quickly and substantially.
