Lake Meredith desalinization legislation sent to Congress

By WENDY E. LANE Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — Thousands of West Texans, plagued for two decades by bad-tasting water containing abnormally high levels of salt, may have some relief on tap with help from legislators in Washington.

Legislation that would pave the way for a desalting project for Lake Meredith was scheduled to be introduced in Congress today, officials said.

The bill, which was introduced last month in the U.S. Senate by Lloyd Bentsen, was to be introduced by Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, said aide Tom Wil-

Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, is co-sponsoring the legislation, which seeks to eliminate the main source of salt pollution in Lake Meredith.

The manmade lake on the Canadian River about 35 miles northeast of Amarillo has contained high salt levels since it began supplying water to 11 cities and 430,000 people in the Panhandle and South Plains in 1968.

"Frequently, water from Lake Meredith is too salty to drink, especially during times of drought," said Bentsen in a letter to subcommittee chairman Bill Bradley, D-N.J.

The lake's current salt level is 350 milligrams per liter, compared to a state recommended level of 250 milligrams, said John Williams, general manager of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority in Sanford.

But that level can rise to as much as 400 milligrams during dry spells.

The salty water tastes bad and is hard on pipes and airconditioning systems, said Wil-

Riot police battle demonstrators in Minneapolis, San Francisco

Baton-wielding riot police scuffled with hundreds of demonstrators protesting the U.S. military presence in Central America and arrested about 275 people at federal buildings in San Francisco and Minneapolis.

Meanwhile, in Spokane, Wash., supporters of continued aid to the Nicaraguan Contras waved signs that read, "Contras Yes, Commies No" and "Stop The Russians Before They Reach Our Borders." About 150 people on opposite sides of the issue gathered for peaceful rallies in front of the federal courthouse.

In San Francisco, a yelling, sign-toting crowd of more than 500 people encircled the Federal Building early Monday. Helmeted police arrested 225 people.

Shortly after the protest began at 7 a.m. Monday, San Francisco police began making arrests for blocking entrances and the streets around the 20-story building.

The main entrance was closed, and for about a half-hour the protesters blocked the rear entrance that police were trying to keep open

More than 5,000 people work in the building.

Some demonstrators held aloft a 6-foot-long sign reading, "This building closed for renovation of morals." Many held signs insultshouted obscenities.

Protesters shouted "No Contra aid" and "U.S., CIA, out of Nicaragua," as they marched in a ragged oval in front of the closed main entrance, while early arrivals for work got in through the back doors

At one point, screaming protesters swarmed against a lawyer trying to get in. Police fought the demonstrators aside and pulled the man through.

Officers with visored helmets and batons marched on the double from one street to another as protesters harassed them with quick moves. Some protesters went limp and were dragged screaming to the police vans,

A man in his early 20s who didn't move fast enough for charging police was hit in the mouth with a baton and bloodied.

The demonstators were photographed and booked on the street before being taken to the Hall of Justice for formal citations.

Police, moving in with batons chest-high, began rounding up demonstrators after police Capt. William Welch warned the hooting crowd through a loudspeaker that they were illegally assembled and ordered them to disperse. Some were charged with resisting arrest

Grand jury indicts three men in marijuana possession case

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

Three El Paso men were indicted Monday by a 31st District grand jury in connection with a cocaine-turnedmarijuana bust on Interstate Highway 40 earlier this month.

Carlos Marquez and Jose Lopez each were charged with felony possession of 5 to 50 pounds of marijuana, a second degree felony carrying a maximum sentence of two to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Bond was set at $10,000 each by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany

Woodall, 40, was arrested by Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Ron Shank of McLean on March 5 on a driving while intoxicated charge Marquez, 34, had agreed to follow Shank and Woodall to Pampa in Woodall's car and post bond the next morning.

But Gray County Sheriff's Deputy Ken Minatrea discovered possible evidence of drug involvement while going through Woodall's posses sions. Later, a search of the hotel room Marquez had rented at the Northgate Inn turned up two large suitcases filled with a white powdery substance. Although initially heralded as a $6 million cocaine bust, the substance turned out to be bricks of condensed marijuana, sprinkled with baby powder to cover its scent, Assistant District Attorney Harold Comer said. The marijuana was worth about $375,000

Marquez reportedly told Shank that he never saw the suitcases, which he claimed were already in the motel room when he arrived

Comer said the third suspect — Lopez — was traveling with Woodall and Marquez and was to have met them in Alabama. He is still at-large, but Comer said he decided to release the name because "he knows we're looking for him.

Woodall and Marquez remain in custody in lieu of bond. Also indicted Monday was the mother of a 2-month-old girl who allegedly was severley beaten by her father last month.

Tina Wilson, 19, 838 S. Cuyler St., was indicted on a charge of injury to a child for failing to seek medical treatment for the infant after finding her beaten and in need of medical care, the indictment reads.

If convicted, Wilson faces five to 99 years in prison and a $10,00 fine. Judge McIlhany set a $10,000 personal recognizance bond for Wilson

Wilson was arraigned a week after her daughter was hospitalized with fractures and multiple lacerations all See JURY, Page 2

After five arrests, manslaughter conviction — still no DWI record

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

On a warm October night in 1986, Steve Helton told his wife, "I love you," and headed out the door of their home at 2400 Rosewood Lane.

It was the last time Toni Helton would see her husband alive.

Steve, 25, and his cousin Justin Helton, then 20, of Route 2, Pampa, told her that they were going to Amarillo in Justin's new Toyota pickup truck to help a friend whose Blazer had broken down. Toni had doubts about the story, and they were confirmed a few hours later when she saw the Blazer on "the drag" in downtown Pampa Later she would learn that the two cousins had attended a party in Clarendon.

But that was after a restless night of wondering where Steve was and waiting for him to come

That was after an early-morning phone call from a highway patrolman asking her to come to Amarillo to identify Steve's body.

That was after she pleaded with Steve's uncle -Justin's father — not to tell her what had happened.

Steve Helton died when Justin, his reflexes numbed by beer consumed at the party, missed a sharp curve on Highway 70, just south of Interstate 40. The pickup rolled three times, throwing the two Heltons out and pinning another passenger, 18year-old Tonya Parsons of Panhandle, inside

Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Don King of Groom, the investigating officer, said later: "I have determined as a result of my investigation ... and interviewing witnesses that Mr. (Justin) Helton was intoxicated at the time of this

It was not the first time Justin Helton had been accused of driving drunk. Nor would it be the last. He had been arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated (DWI) in Pampa seven months earlier. The case had not vet come to trial Two months after the fatal accident, Pampa police arrested him on South Banks Street. Two months after that, a DPS trooper stopped him on U.S. Highway 60, just west of Pampa. Then, last October — nine days after Gray County Justice of the Peace Wayne Roberts suspended his driver's license for eight months for being a habitual traffic violator, then probated the suspension to give him one more chance - Helton was arrested again, this time on U.S. Highway 83, 5 miles southwest of Wheeler. The case is pending in Wheeler County Court. Despite five DWI-related arrests, Helton has only an involuntary manslaughter charge, stemming from the fatal rollover, on his record. For that, he received five years probation, suspension of his driver's license for a year, a $750 fine to be paid at the rate of $20 per month, and a mandatory 120-day jail sentence, which he is serving on weekends at the Gray County Jail.

He also had his three DWI cases pending in Gray County Court dismissed as part of a plea bargain arrangement

And, according to David Hess, head of the criminal law enforcement division at the Texas attor ney general's office, the involuntary manslaughter conviction doesn't count as a first drunken driving offense on Helton's driving record under Texas DWI laws — meaning, despite the five arrests, Helton has no DWI convictions.

The sentence haunts members of Steve Helton's

'He got off with a very light sentence, according to his record," said Kathy Lemons of Canadian, Steve's sister. "Nothing would have been satisfactory, except to bring back my brother. But the thing that I very highly disapprove of is the dismissal of the other three DWIs. See DWI, Page 10

Prison sentence helped man to reform his life

saved Matthew Jones' life. The 28-year-old drywaller spent "six months, seven days and 13 hours" in Huntsville. He returned to the Panhandle a changed man.

Gone was the old Matt - or Hunter as his friends called him - who led a transient's life of hard drinking and fast women; the Matt who "was putting away a fifth of tequila a day and sometimes another fifth at night"; the Matt whose drinking habits led to a burglary arrest in Lipscomb County, a drunken driving arrest in Gray County and eventually landed him in prison.

Jones now introduces himself as Matthew, a symbolic way of saying "the old Matt" is gone.

"Prison definitely saved me," he said. "It gave me the opportunity to see the difference between being drunk and being sober. When I get to drinking, you can see the old Matt.

Jones now works as maintenance supervisor and youth sports program coordinator at the Canadian Area YMCA. So changed is he that letters recommending to the governor a full pardon were recently written by state Rep. Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian, and Jeane Roper, the probation officer whose testimony sent him to prison.

Roper recalled regretfully telling 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhany in December 1986 that Jones belonged in prison after he violated probation by leaving the state without probation department permission

'Then I went back to my office and cried and cried, she said, explaining that she always saw in Jones plenty of untapped potential. Later, she asked Jones' attorney to recommend to the court shock probation, a punishment where offenders spend a short time in prison and serve out the remainder of their sentences on probation. Her faith in Jones was not in

"He came back a different person," she said. "He came back the Matt I knew he could be. 'That's why prison is not always negative. Prison can be a positive thing.

Jones, the son of an alcoholic father, began drinking as a teenager growing up in Paris, Texas. Although he doesn't consider himself an alcoholic, he said he was a problem drinker by the time he moved to Higgins in 1979. "It (alcohol) had consumed me to where I had no other drive than just to make a few dollars and go out and have a beer," he said. "There were days when there wouldn't be anything to eat in the house, even though I'd be out See PRISON, Page 10

Some complaints have involved teaching assistants, students who have some instructional duties, Peter Winship, president of the SMU Faculty Senate,

The proposal will be refined before it is sent to the SMU Board of Trustees, the school's governing panel, this year.

Congress moves to override Reagan's veto on civil rights

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate and House leaders say they have the votes to override President Reagan's veto and win a four-year struggle to restore full civil rights protection to women, minorities, the elderly and the disabled.

The Civil Rights Restoration Act passed both chambers earlier this year by lopsided margins far greater than the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto. Supporters and opponents said there was little chance the veto would be sustained. "We expect a vote to override," House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, said Monday.

The House passed the bill 315-98 and Republican head-counters said only a dozen members at most were expected to move into the president's corner. The Senate vote was 75-14 in favor, with seven absentee co-sponsors who would have voted for the measure had they been there. A leadership aide said there were more than enough votes for an override "if all goes as planned and hoped.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, leader of the Senate opposition, said he and the president had fought an uphill battle. He said some senators planned to switch sides but added, "Let's face it, some people are afraid to vote against a civil rights bill. Vice President George Bush on Monday indicated last-minute support for the Reagan veto, saying the legislation "is imperfect and the imperfections should be corrected.' The restoration act forbids the distribution of federal funds to entire institutions, state and local government agencies and many corporations if any part of them practices discrimination.

It was spurred by a 1984 Supreme Court ruling that civil rights laws applied only to a specific program or activity receiving federal aid. The government could not cut off money to a college, for example, if discrimination occurred in a department that did not receive such aid.

Supporters of the legislation say it restores civil rights laws to the way they were interpreted before the court challenge mounted by tiny Grove City (Pa.) College.

Religious schools, many of them fundamentalist Christian, opposed the bill.

Reagan said it would impinge on religious freedom and vastly expand the power of the federal government over churches, synagogues, corporations and state and local government agencies. Congress had tried since the Supreme Court de-many Republicans asked the president not to veto An eleventh-hour push by the conservative Moral Majority group resulted in thousands of phone

With a pickup, a gooseneck trailer, a portable pen, a bag of feed and a good dog, a cattle thief can drive onto a small ranch — or ranchette — load up four or five head and be out in 10 minutes, said Johnson County Sheriff Eddy Boggs. The nearest livestock auction could be less than an hour away.

The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association says almost $4.5 million worth of livestock and ranch equipment were stolen in 1987, a 320 percent increase since 1979.

There are no accurate statistics on suburban rustling. But Don King, the association's secretary-general manager, said as a result of rising prices for dence of these thefts in metropolitan areas is increasing.

In one case, it took five months of methodical investigation, searching through sale barn records, scanning computer files, checking brands, taking depositions and scraping livestock trailer paint from corral gates.

The trail ended on a dusty road at a log house on a ranchette.

The owner, arrested without incident and brought to the Johnson County Jail, told officers how simple it was to truck off livestock from subdivided and unattended range, said Jim Tuck, the cattle raisers association inspector who tracked him down.

First-time suburban rustlers often are behind on their house, credit card and pickup payments and steal livestock out of desperation, said Larry

Gray of Graham, an association field inspector.

Some thieves may steal livestock to raise money for drug habits, said Tuck, who like Gray is a former Fort Worth police officer.

Drug-related cattle thefts have increased 70 percent to 75 percent during the past two years, said Tuck, one of 32 association field inspectors. Field inspectors carry special Texas Ranger commissions

While an urban burglar might be lucky to get 20 cents on the dollar from a fence for videocassette recorders or jewelry, the suburban rustler can receive full market value for purloined beef, Tuck said, because it is difficult at an auction to quickly determine whether livestock has been stolen.

Boggs puts the blame for the proliferation of suburban rustlers on a surge of drug abuse in rural and semirural

In Johnson County, which includes Burleson and Cleburne — both within commuting distance to Fort Worth the population has leaped from 60,000 to 100,000 since 1980, he said. A number of newcomers buy one to 15-acre ranchettes with room for a horse and a few head

'There is a certain amount of Western romanticism to it," the sheriff said.

While some weekend ranchers once lived on a farm or ranch, they might now live in town and depend on a neighbor to look after their livestock.

A thief can spot an unattended homestead from the road, Tuck said. Some owners don't realize that their cattle are missing for days or weeks.

Then there are those who make the investigator's job more difficult by refusing to have their cattle branded.

"They think it hurts too much," said Jody Henderson, special assistant to

There is no law in Texas requiring branding, and designs used are exclusive only within a single county. But the nearly 10,000 brands registered in Texas and Oklahoma are kept on file at the computerized archives of the 111year-old Cattle Raisers Association.

In the Johnson County case, the suspect's name had been found on receipts issued by a Cleburne livestock auction after association staff members searched for brands spotted by one of the 86 inspectors the association employs at sale barns in Texas and Oklahoma.

Officials considering how to control drunk spring breakers

PORT ARANSAS (AP) — Officials said they are unsure how to control it, but drinking among teenagers apparently was at an all-time high on the beach where a hit-and-run accident triggered a weekend riot involving students celebrating spring

Authorities reported Monday beach revelry was relatively tame. Teens — many of them high school students — were largely to blame for the Saturday violence, officials said.

The Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission has six agents roaming the beach issuing citations to teen-agers caught drinking, but their efforts barely make a dent in the overwhelming number of intoxicated students, many under the legal drink-

TABC agents issued 350 citations last weekend, mostly to those underaged or those who lacked identification.

A total of 700 citations were written last year. This year, the total already stands at 720 with two more spring break weekends left, the Houston Chronicle reported.

The citations are issued in most cases for public intoxication, said Ed Mosser, TABC's regional supervisor in Corpus Christi.

A fraction of those ticketed are arrested, he said, but most are allowed to remain on the beach provided they pour their beers on the sand.

A county commissioner whose district includes nearly 20 miles of public beaches in the Aransas Pass area said he favors putting more law enforcement officers on the beaches

"We want the spring breakers to have a good time, but things should be worked out so that we have a better understanding of the problems," said Nueces County commissioner J.P. Luby

"We had 35 units patroling the area of Port Aransas and the Padre Island National Seashore. But at night, there are not as many to go around," Luby said. "The Department of Public Safety had 18 officers out and that wasn't enough.

Authorities have considered placing a curfew on the spring break beach crowd, City Manager Gordon Beck said. But the idea is unpopular with local merchants, would be hard to enforce and may even be a violation of the Texas Open Beaches Act, Beck Luby said he and constables, police and emergency workers met two weeks ago to prepare for the onslaught of college students converging on Corpus Christi-area beaches.

But no one was prepared for the fracas Saturday night on nearby Mustang Island, he said.

Eight spring break revelers were arrested following a late-night riot, four stabbings and several drunken driving incidents. Two San Antonio men were killed when their car crashed through a flashing barrier and plunged off a ferry dock, sinking in 20 to 25 feet of water. Alcohol played a major role in the accident, police said.

The victims were identified as Augustine R.

Marmolejo, 19, and Merced Gutierrez, 26. Police said the rioting and the accident were unrelated. The riot on Saturday, shortly before midnight erupted when a motorist struck a 16-year-old girl on the beach and then attempted to leave, said Police Chief Don Perkins. Angry youths began to attack the driver, but he was pulled away by They tipped over his car, smashed in the windows and set it and a portable toilet afire, police

The 26-year-old driver was charged with failing to stop and render aid and was released Monday from the Nueces County Jail after posting a $500

Police estimated the rioters at 3,000. About 100 officers were called to the scene, where they had to use tear gas and helicopters with search lights before they could break up the crowd.

"The real problem is we have 21½ miles of beach in Nueces County and Port Aransas has 3 miles and everyone congregates in an area of about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  to 2 miles of beach," Luby said. "You've got too many people in a small area. It needs to be more diversi-

Iwo suspects arrested in shooting death of deputy

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men suspected of killing a Fort Bend County sheriff's deputy were arrested early today at a north Houston home where they were sleeping, authorities said.

Both men were armed, but neither offered resistance, said Lt. Marshall Whichard, spokesman for the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department.

"With the help of the Houston police, Texas Rangers, and a lot of hard work, they got it all put together," said Sgt. Skipp Sapp of the Fort Bend County Sheriff's Department. He declined to be more specific, saying the case was still being investigated.

Deputy Eugene James Heimann, 33, was investigating two burglaries near Damon on the Brazoria County line Monday afternoon when he stopped to question two hitchhikers, said Whichard.

Heimann, who had served for five years and had two children, was shot several times in the back and chest, and was found sprawled in the center of a rural road, authorities said

The suspects took Heimann's patrol vehicle as well as the officer's .45-caliber pistol and 12-gauge shotgun. They then used the patrol car to commandeer a private car. Whichard said

"He thought he was complying with a lawful order to pull over," Lt. Marshall Whichard said of the car theft victim. "He was then rousted out of The two suspects then drove the private car north to Houston. The car was spotted on Highway 59 by Sugar Land Police, who gave chase, but lost Whichard declined to release any more information about the theft victim.

"He is a material witness and he is rightfully scared," Whichard said.

Investigators late Monday were dusting Heimann's patrol car for fingerprints. Lorenz said no one knows what transpired after

Heimann stopped the hitchhikers. 'All we know is we had gunshots," Lorenz said. "Several witnesses were here right after the officer was shot, seeing the suspects flee in the patrol

Whichard said Heimann "was a very conscientious young fellow and very highly thought of." Heimann was the first Fort Bend County deputy killed in the line of duty in 10 years. "This is a loss you cannot calculate.

State to serve 95,000 more with food program; company cries foul

AUSTIN (AP) — A competitive bidding process for buying infant formula in a nutrition program has worked so well that the state will be able to serve 95,000 more needy women and infants, says the Texas health commissioner.

But a company that lost out in the bidding process says it could have saved the state even more. Savings from the winning bid by Mead-Johnson will bring the number enrolled in the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children — WIC — to 335,000, or about 23 percent of stein told a news conference Monday 'It is earth-shattering," Bernstein said. The bid will give the state a 99-cent rebate on each can of infant formula purchased through the WIC program, for a total of $85.67 million.

those eligible, Health Commissioner Robert Bern-

But Ross Laboratories — which along with Wyeth Laboratories lost in the competition to provide formula for WIC - said its bid would have allowed more Texans to be served.

This is the first time competitive bidding has been used to buy formula for the Texas program. Health officials initially had estimated that the competitive bidding process would save enough money to serve an additional 42,000 people.

The Mead-Johnson contract offers a substantial savings to Texas compared with other states that use competitive bidding for infant formula, Bernstein said. Oregon gets a rebate of 60 cents a can, while the rate in Tennessee is 56 cents.

In the primarily federally funded program, mothers purchase infant formula with WIC vouchers from grocery stores, which are reimbursed by the state. Mead-Johnson's 29-month contract will make it the sole supplier of infant formula for the program, except when infants require another formula for health reasons. The savings from Mead-Johnson's bid will allow the state to expand the WIC program to 39 counties, mostly in the Panhandle, that do not now have access to its nutrition counseling and food supplements, Bernstein said. He also said the program would be expanded to serve more people in urban Mignon McGarry, representing Ross, said her company's bid would have saved the state $93.74 million and allowed it to add 108,700 people to the WIC program. The bid, which was for 10 percent above other bids, would not have restricted the state to a sole supplier of infant formula.

Wyeth offered a rebate of 71.5 cents per can. Bernstein said the department could not accept Ross's bid because it did not meet requirements set by the Board of Health, including that the bid be for a sole supplier.

Ross's bid also was so confusing that department staff could not figure out how much it would save the state, Bernstein added.

"They never bothered to ask any questions about our proposal," said Lynn Nabers, representing Nabers said Ross' bid: "was responsive in that the bid request said that the state could grant the contract in the best interest of the state. We feel our bid is in the best interest of the state because it would feed more people."

Brush fire fight cost $305,000

ABILENE (AP) — It cost the state of Texas $305,000 to battle the huge range fire that swept across about 300,000 acres of West Texas, officials say

Several state agencies helped volunteer fire departments battle the blaze that spread into Shackelford, Haskell, Throckmorton, Callahan and Jones Counties after it erupted March 10.

The Texas Forest Service incurred the most expense, estimating the labor of their 62 employees at the site to be about $125,000

Pat Ebarb, head of the forest service's fire control department, said, for the short amount of time involved, five days, the blaze was the most expensive struggle recently fought by the

Students drum up support for Bishop College

DALLAS (AP) — Some Bishop College students organized a march in an effort to drum up moral and financial support for their school, which may be forced to close because of financial problems. About 40 Bishop College students carried signs and marched around City Hall Monday morning in an effort to gather moral and financial support for their school that might be forced to closed today. "I would be devastated if the school closed," said Darryl Sanders, 26, a junior at the predominantly black college in South Oak Cliff. Sanders organized the march, because the students wanted to show how much they love the school, he said.

A federal bankruptcy judge will decide today whether to dismiss the school's bankruptcy petition. If approved, the dismissal would leave Bishop open to suits by 400 creditors who are owed more than $12.5 million.

Creditors could proceed to foreclose on collateral and sue in state court for collection of debts, George McElreath, assistant U.S. trustee overseeing Bishop's bankruptcy case, said.

Bishop attorneys plan to ask the judge for more time to raise funds, McElreath said. They will point out that in mid-April school officials plan to raise money during the L.K. Williams Institute, an annual fund-raising event for Bishop, said McEl-

They also are expected to argue that the U.S. Department of Education might provide funding, and that officials are still working to get back $150,000 in donations from two churches that recently withdrew matching funds.

Bishop officials are facing a decision March 31 from the Department of Education on whether to renew the school's federal funding, lost last year after Bishop's accreditation was revoked by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Robert Jamroz, a Department of Education official, said Bishop's problems might be a barrier to renewing the federal funds, according to Robert Jamroz, a Department of Education official.

"The way it's looking, it probably parallels their fund-raising efforts," he said. "I'm not pleased to see the hearing come so soon for Bishop, but it will help to clarify the situation."

Detente's 'reality' is only a delusion

In May President Reagan travels to Moscow for a summit with Soviet dictator Mikhail Gorbachev. A new arms control agreement may not be ready for them to sign, but the two should have a jolly time no matter what. Reagan may even give Gorbachev a sloppy kiss on the cheek, as President Jimmy Carter did to Leonid Brezhnev in Vienna in 1979.

It's all part of Reagan's reappraisal of what he once correctly called the "Evil Empire." Just after last December's summit with Gorbachev in Washington, Reagan met with four journalists, telling them that Gorbachev was quite different from his Communist predecessors, that he no longer sought to expand Soviet power in the world, that he promised to end Soviet imperialism in Afghanistan and Nicaragua, and that he sought world peace to help advance economic reforms at home.

Maybe that's what Gorbachev said in the Oval Office. But back in the USSR, his propaganda agencies were being just as belligerent as ever. Consider these reports published over the past year in Pravda and Izvestia, the two major newspapers controlled by the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, of which Gorbachev is chairman:

"Coming to power (the Reagan administration) did everything in order to give back freedom of action to the organs of repression ... The secret police have been legally empowered to eavesdrop on Americans and to watch them, as well as to inform on them. As before, blacklisting was introduced.

Wealth and power are increasingly concentrated in the hands of a few. Militarism expands boundlessly and strives to gradually seize the levers of political power as well. It becomes the ugliest and most dangerous monster of the 20th century.

"Almost every day participants of anti-war marches and demonstrations are thrown behind bars. At the same time, members of the Ku Klux Klan feel very comfortable, and poice terror in Negro ghettos has more than once exceeded any imaginable boundaries. Such are only a few examples of 'human rights' in the United States of America.'

"In today's America they most often shoot at those who protest against violence, who fight for one's rights. The crime syndicate Mafia and the government agency CIA ... do not just co-exist but closely cooperate. They are united in their mutual hatred of those who do not agree with the omnipotence of violence in the country, of those who would like to see America genuinely democratic and free.

It's hard to think how one could paint a more false image of America and the Reagan administration. Before Reagan meets with Gorbachev, he could at least insist that Gorbachev's propaganda organs stop printing such lies.

But as with President Nixon and Henry Kissinger 15 years ago, Reagan and Secretary of State George Shultz won't let Kremlin reality waken them from the delusion of detente.

Gore needs a better strategy

Al Gore has established himself as the ABD candidate — anybody but Dukakis. Democrats repelled by the front-runner but not attracted to Jesse Jackson now have only one realistic option. Gore's problem is that "anybody but" campaigns thrive on fear. Most Democrats aren't afraid of Dukakis, and Gore hasn't give them any reason they should be.

His showing earlier this month was not an impressive as advertised. Before the Iowa caucuses, he admitted that on Super Tuesday, "I have to be among the two winners. I hope to have more delegates than anyone else at that point." As it happened, he was third in both the delegate race and the popular vote Tuesday, with Dukakis first. That leaves Dukakis ahead in the total delegate count and Gore, again, only Dukakis showed that he can win outside his home region. Gore, who prudently skipped Iowa and New Hampshire, has yet to show he can do the same. His main achievement may have been to help Dukakis by crippling the one candidate (Dick Gephardt) who could have given him a race in the Northern industrial states that will vote next.

Gore's argument all along has been that only he has the strength in the South to win in November. He's right that a Democratic victory is almost impossible without at least a few Southern states. In recent elections, only nominees from the South (Jimmy Carter, Lyndon Johnson) have done well in the South.

Gore's strength is with Southern white males, which is exactly where Democratic nominees for president have been weak. On Super Tuesday, according to ABC News exit polls, he got 37 percent of those votes, against only 31 percent for Dukakis. But in some places, like Texas and Florida, the New England liberal ran far ahead among white men — far enough to suggest that he might be able to beat a Republican.

Reagan won the South in 1984 largely because more than one of every four Democrats spurned their party's nominee. Gore is the most popular candidate with the "Reagan Democrats," getting 37 percent of them on Super Tuesday, compared to Dukakis' 25 percent.

Surprisingly, though, Dukakis doesn't remind them of Walter Mondale or George McGovern. Only 16 percent said they wouldn't vote for Dukakis if he gets the nomination — only slightly more than the 12 percent who named Gore. By contrast. 28 percent said they wouldn't vote for George Bush, and 22 percent said they wouldn't vote for Bob Dole.

What Gore doesn't mention is that nominating a Southerner no longer guarantees Southern votes. The first Democratic nominee from the Deep South in this century was Jimmy Carter, who in 1976 carried every Southern state but Virginia. But by 1980 Southerners were no longer voting on the basis of accent, and Carter won only Georgia. He had the advantage of being distinctively Southern. A Southerner who had never heard of Gore could take him for a Califor-

That's a worry for the general election. Gore's more immediate problem is the race for the nomination. Blocking Dukakis may be fairly easy - the governor needs 65 percent of the delegates still to be chosen in order to clinch the nomination, a stiff requirement in a race with three serious candidates, not to mention two

But for Gore to win will be much harder. From now on, geography is working against him, as the contest moves into states that are closer. physically and culturally, to Massachusetts -Illinois, Connecticut, Wisconsin, New York, Pennsylvania. If he arrives in Atlanta in July still running third in delegates, it's almost inconceivable that a deadlocked convention would turn to him. A deal between Gore and Jackson is only slightly easier to imagine.

Gephardt, who had a clear theme, might have been able to derail Dukakis. But Gore has yet to give voters a convincing reason to prefer him. His professed toughness in foreign affairs is about one part substance and three parts rhetoric. Elsewhere, his voting record is only slightly to the right of Democrats, such as Paul Simon, who embody old-fashioned liberalism.

In the wake of Super Tuesday, Gore yammered endlessly about the need for new leadership for a new era. This is an attempt to make an asset of his age (39). But the 54-year-old Dukakis is not exactly ready for the rest home. And few voters are likely to decide by counting gray

George Bush has proven that a winning candidate doesn't necessarily have to stand for anything distinctive. Gore is running a vice president's campaign without the vice presidency. If he wants to be Dukakis' running mate, that strategy may work. But if he expects to be president, he'll have to do better.

Hey, that dog's really a lady!

Word has leaked out that Spuds McKenzie, the controversial party animal dog of the beer commercials, is actually a female.

I was astounded by this information. I also wonder if this revelation will make more heated the charge that Spuds commercials are encouraging young people to drink.

Likely, it will make those opposed to the commercials even more anxious to have them removed from television.

People who are in this movement support Pat Robertson for president, wear knee-length black socks with their Burmuda shorts, eat a lot of prunes and are against most everything.

The fact that we have a female dog here portraying a male will no doubt further flare the nostrils of the pious.

So intrigued was I by the situation, I phone Hollywood and talked to Spuds' agent to obtain background information on the controversial

I was told Spuds' parents, Bowser and Fifi, also had been in show business, having played opposite Ed McMahon in several Alpo commer-

'And Spuds' real name?'' I asked. "Elaine," the agent answered. "After a great

"She was a very precocious pup," the agent explained. "At a very early age, she was fetching sticks, rolling over, and playing dead for humans who rewarded her with stomach scratches and morsels of food

"Soon, however, she tired of this and headed for Hollywood. She got lucky and met Rin Tin Tin at an alley cat-chasing and Rinty introduced

"She broke in as one of the dogs Clint Eastwood spit on in The Outlaw Josie Wales.' 'And afer that?

"She had a part in the off-Broadway version of Lady and the Tramp, and was hired to howl at the moon in various horror flicks.'

'How did the beer thing come about?" She got the part because she knew how to cha-cha with those bimbos on the beach.'

'And a crucial question here," I went on, "does Elaine (Spuds) think she is promoting alcohol consumption?'

"Of course not," said the agent. "She is simply an actress doing a job. She rarely drinks herself except for an occasional bowl of white wine or perhaps a rum-soaked dog biscuit."

'And this thing with Rin Tin Tin. Was it se-

All of us have grown up, safe and secured by certain eternal verities. Among them is the arrival of spring, announced by the first robin hopping across our lawns, squirrels nibbling tender sprouts at the end of tree branches, and a young man's fancy lightly turning to thoughts of aroused passion.

No more.

The arrival of spring is now proclaimed by the unveiling of Secretary of Education William J. Bennett's annual "wall chart," which purports to be a report card on U.S. schools. It is the biggest con job since Attorney General Edwin Meese promised to uphold the law. If Bennett's "wall chart" belongs on any wall, it is the wall of a latrine.

Bennett's chart doesn't tell us what causes educational deficiencies, how they can be remedied, or why schools in some states perform better than schools in others. Instead, he uses 15 indexes to rank the schools. You - nett's 15 indexes interrelate. You simply hear fulminations by Bennett, who resembles, on these occasions, a chimpanzee in heat

Bennett's report card fails to earn a passing mark because its starting point is the annual state-by-state scores of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) and the American College Testing program (ACT).

SAT scores tell us five things: Wealthy kids are smarter than poor kids; New England kids are smarter than Southern kids; white kids are smarter than black and Hispanic kids; Asian kids are smarter than all other kids in math; and male students are smarter than female students.

According to the SAT scores, the six New England states whose SAT scores are in the top 12 have smarter students (on the average) than the six southern states of Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas whose SAT (and ACT) scores are in the bottom 12.

Part of the reason may be the Alaska, on the other hand, pays its teachers the highest average salary in the nation ($43,970) and ranks No. 1 in per capita student spending, yet its statewide ACT scores rank in the bottom third!

I repeat what I wrote last year when the annual P.T. Barnum psychometric circus was held. Standardized tests should be abolished. Like IQ tests, SATs are misleading, misused and misinterpreted. And they unfairly punish minorities.

But if you want to know whether or not your child is mastering what he or she is supposed to know, a criterion-referenced test will tell you that. You don't need to lay out large sums of hard-earned money to support the psychometric moguls at the Educational Testing Service.

Economics exposes the futility of using SATs to rank states. Since students have to pay to take the exam, wealthy students are more likely to take the exams in the first place, and they also can afford prep courses designed to raise their scores. This selfselection process determines what percentage of students take the exam and widens the gap between rich and

The Senate Finance Committee voted Monday to grant farmers and some other taxpayers relief from the 15.1cent-a-gallon tax on diesel fuel used for logging, farming, oil drilling, mining, fishing and other off-the-road business

But since budget constraints require that every dollar of tax relief be offset by a dollar of tax increase on somebody else, the committee's bill would double the tax on fuel-guzzling cars - mostly expensive imports whose miles-pergallon don't meet federal standards.

Other sources of revenue for the diesel relief and a new "taxpayer bill of rights" include a few distilleries that dodge some of the $12.50-a-gallon tax on liquor by watering down products with a grape-based alcohol, and any number of people whose tax refunds could be grabbed to pay an overdue government

After all that, farmers may have to wait six, months for their tax relief. There is some doubt Congress can complete action on legislation before April when off-the-road diesel users are to begin paying the tax. They would have to wait for a refund until they file their income-tax returns next year.

"I just don't want to go back home and explain to my farmers why we've set up this ridiculous bureaucratic nightmare," moaned Sen. David Boren, D-Okla.

Farmers and other off-road diesel users were caught up in Congress' efforts last year to reduce cheating on the fuel tax. The solution was to change the point of tax collection to the producer or wholesaler, and to require that those legally entitled to an exemption pay the tax and then apply for a refund when they file their income-tax returns the following year.

The typical farmer would thus allow the government interest-free use of $320 of his money, some of it for up to a year.

The panel's bill does nothing for another big group with a complaint: about 82,000 state, county and city government units that, starting Jan. 1, are now having to pay the 9.1-cent gasoline tax and apply for a refund later.

The Finance Committee package, still subject to action by the Senate and House, would:

Allow diesel bought for off-road business use from wholesalers to escape the tax altogether. Tax-exempt buyers from retailers would have to pay the tax and get a refund next year. This would cost the government $543 million through 1993.

Create a "taxpayer bill of rights," clamping down on perceived abuses by the Internal Revenue Service. This would lose $517 million over five years.

Extend through June 30, 1989, the expiring authority for the IRS to withhold tax refunds from people who owe student loans, farm loans and other federal debts. This would raise about $400 million.

Double the tax on new cars whose fuel efficiency does not meet federal standards, raising $375 million through 1993. In the current model year, the tax hits only expensive foreign cars, such as the $38,000 Volvo 780, which gets 21.2 miles per gallon, and the $61,130 Mercedes 560SL. Their guzzler taxes would rise to $1,300 and $3,600, respectively.

Limit use of a "wine flavors credit" under which some manufacturers of distilled spirits avoid a significant share of the $12.50-a-gallon liquor tax by mixing some products with a grapebased alcohol. This is expected to raise $360 million over five years.

Hank Williams Jr., Randy Travis get country music awards honors

BUENA PARK, Calif. (AP) - Soft-spoken gentleman cowboy Randy Travis won the most trophies but the Academy of Country Music voted once again the heartland's rowdy leader of song, Hank Williams Jr., its favorite entertainer.

It was the second consecutive Entertainer of the Year trophy for the man nicknamed Bocephus, the 38-year-old son of country music great Hank Williams.

'This is what my momma wanted all the time. She would be so proud and, of course, my daddy, I know he'd be proud," Williams said after taking the top honor Monday night at Knott's Berry Farm

The 23rd annual awards presentation was televised nationally by NBC.

Travis, 28, won three awards: top male singer, song and single of the year for his hit, "Forever and Ever. Amen.

"It's still a big thing to keep winning. It makes me quite nervous. It doesn't feel any different than it did the first time," said Travis, who last year won four awards on the strength of the song 'On The Other Hand.'

Dolly Parton, Emmylou Harris and Linda Ronstadt won the album trophy for "Trio." The mother-daughter duo The Judds took the duet trophy. Los Angeles-based Highway 101 was best group, and Reba McEntire won top female vocalist for the fourth time.

"It's like they're saying 'Reb, you still got it," and that's nice," Miss McEntire said.

Ricky Van Shelton won for new male vocalist. K.T. Oslin was the new female vocalist and won the video honor for "80's Ladies."

"It's better than wonderful. It's marvelous," Van Shelton said. "It means you've finally arrived. It means you're there. Roger Miller received the non-competitive

Highway 101's group award marked the second consecutive loss in that category for perennial favorite Alabama, although Highway member Cactus Moser didn't think the awards should be considered a horse race.

"I don't feel like we beat them," Moser said. "It's wonderful to be recognized.

Williams and Travis faced off in Entertainer of the Year, vocalist, single, song, album and video categories. "It's a great feeling but it comes with a lot of work," Williams said of his victory. Nominees were picked by the 2,500-member Academy of Country Music and they voted by mail-in ballot

Drummer Archie Francis won his 11th academy trophy and fiddler Johnny Gimble and steel guitarist J.D. Maness each won their 10th awards to lead winners in instrumental cate-

Bass player Emory Gordy Jr., guitarist Chet Atkins and keyboardist John Hobbs won their second-consecutive academy trophies

David Hungate tied Gordy in the bass category, Ronnie Milsap tied Hobbs in the keyboard category, and Ricky Skaggs, who plays the mandolin, tied with Jerry Douglas, who plays the dobro, in the specialty instrument category

The Strangers won their eighth touring band trophy and Nashville Now won the non-touring band award

Jim Tabor of radio WMC in Memphis, Tenn., was selected disc jockey of the year, his first academy win, and KNIX radio in Phoenix, Ariz., was picked the top radio station for the second consecutive year. The Crazyhorse Steakhouse & Saloon in Santa Ana, Calif., won the nightclub of the year honor for the second consecutive year.

luclear war risk center open

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze today are opening a new communications center to reduce the risk of nuclear war, but they remain at odds over the conflicts in Central America and Afghanistan.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony in a tightly guarded room on the seventh floor of the State Department puts into effect an agreement for superpower cooperation that is in contrast to the U.S. and Soviet regional rivalries.

The Reagan administration has supported rebels in Nicaragua and Afghanistan who are trying to topple Soviet-backed leftist governments. Shultz wants Moscow to stop its military aid, while Shevardnadze voiced "some serious concern" with U.S. policies in Central America. But they put aside their differences for today's ceremony.

From the new center, the United States will have a satellite link to a similar center in Moscow over which full texts and graphics can be transmitted rapidly. The idea is to prevent nuclear war by miscalculation or accident. Shultz and Shevardnadze reached agreement last September on the link, which supplements the telecommunications "hot-

It falls short of the crisis control centers Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and John Warner, R-Va., the chief congressional sponsors, had hoped to establish in the U.S. and Soviet capitals.

The windowless room will be manned aroundthe-clock by an American communications specialist and a Russian-speaking officer. Twin steel security doors restrict access.

During his talks here, Shevardnadze was expected to offer May 25-28 as the dates for President Reagan to visit Moscow for his fourth summit meeting with General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev. U.S. acceptance is virtually certain.

The projected centerpiece for the meeting is a treaty to slash U.S. and Soviet arsenals of longrange nuclear arms by 30 percent to 50 percent.

While Shultz said Sunday the agreement was not yet "in the bag," U.S. and Soviet experts will try to square drafts of their treaty proposals during Shevardnadze's three-day visit. Shultz also said the president is prepared to meet with Gorbachev even if the treaty isn't ready.

But the wars in Nicaragua and Afghanistan cast a cloud over the summit preparations.

Assistant Secretary of State Rozanne L. Ridgway and State Department spokesman Charles E Redman accused Moscow on Monday of an unceasing supply of weapons to the leftist government in Nicaragua.

Apparently referring also to the reported supply of Soviet rifles and other arms to embattled Panamanian strongman Manuel Antonio Noriega from Cuba, Ms. Ridgway said: "What we need now is an end to the continued Soviet provision of these high levels of military equipment."

Redman, meanwhile, accused the Soviets of shipping more than 3,000 tons of equipment to Nicaragua in January and February alone.

Special prosecutor implicated in manufacturing terror case threats

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - The disclosure that a former federal prosecutor may have fabricated death threats against herself and a magistrate during an extradition case has shocked her former colleagues. On Monday, U.S. Attorney

Samuel A. Alito Jr. said that Judy Russell allegedly cut out words from newspapers to form threatening messages that she received in the mail during the case sne was nandling against two Sikhs accused of terrorism in India

A search of her house turned up similar threatening messages in a travel bag and scissors apparently used to clip newspapers and magazines, Alito said. No charges were filed, but an investigation was continuing, he

Few lawyers in the U.S. attorney's office and in private practice would speak publicly, but almost all interviewed Monday said Ms. Russell had been a highly intelligent and hard-driven assistant U.S. attorney

"I've been sick over this thing ever since I found out about a week and a half ago," said Thomas G. Roth, one of Ms. Russell's three partners who left the U.S. attorney's office with her last summer to form their own firm.

After leaving, Ms. Russell was appointed a special assistant U.S. attorney to enable her to continue with the case against the Sikhs. Ranjit Singh Gill, 25, and Sukhminder Singh, 26.

Singh's attorney, Ronald Kuby, called Monday's disclosures clearly the most astounding thing I've heard" and said he would seek to have all extradition proceedings against the men dropped.

During the case, Kaby had strongly denied that any supporters of the Sikhs were behind the threats, and had suggested the Indian government may be involved.

Alito said Ms. Russell's alleged responsibility for the threats had no affect on the outcome of the extradition hearings in February, when U.S. Magistrate Ronald J. Hedges approved extradition. But Alito said he would seek a new hearing "to avoid any appearance of impropriety During the hearings, Ms. Russell did not specifically accuse the two men of having sent the notes, but cited the death threats in requesting added security.

Sharpshooters lined nearby rooftops, observers passed through two metal detectors, dozens of U.S. marshals attended and nearby streets were closed.

The Justice Department's Department of Public Integrity is handling the investigation of the 36-year-old Ms. Russell, the former deputy chief of the U.S. attorney's Criminal Division, Ali-

Robert J. Fettweis, Ms. Russell's attorney and former colleague in the U.S. attorney's office, said she was in a private hospital. He would not comment on any aspect of the case or the nature of her hospitalization. The disclosure of the investigation came during a court session requested by Alito to "correct and supplement" the record regarding the threats. Suspicions about the threats were raised when Ms. Russell told FBI agents on Feb. 5 that a letter saying "No more warning Federal Court death for you" was hand-delivered to the hotel where she was under 24-hour guard. An FBI agent's affidavit unsea led Monday said none of the deputy U.S. marshals guarding her saw anyone enter or leave the area around her room. The 24-hour guard was ordered after Ms. Russell submitted to Hedges during the extradition hearings sealed information about previous alleged threats. One letter addressed to Ms. Russell said, "Don't get dead, fore the extradition hearings, Ali-An FBI laboratory analysis showed that typewritten characters on envelopes containing the threats matched those on Ms.

Russell's 1983 application to the U.S. attorney's office, he said.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) -U.S. and Honduran troops will hold joint maneuvers now that Nicaragua has withdrawn its soldiers from the Honduran border and halted fighting for truce talks with the Contra rebels.

Nicaragua announced Monday its troops had withdrawn from the border, and the Honduran military reported Sandinista soldiers had retreated.

Col. Manuel Suarez Benevides, the Honduran armed forces spokesman, said Monday the 3,200 U.S. troops that rushed to Honduras after a reported incursion by 2,000 Sandinista troops won't be needed much longer. "It'll be a very short time. We're talking days only," he said in an interview.

On Monday, 10 American soldiers were injured in a helicopter crash during an exercise. Maj. Gary Hovatter, spokesman for U.S. forces in Honduras.

said they "are in some pain and discomfort, but they are handling it very well."

Hovatter said the helicopter, a UH-1 Huey, was flying from southern San Lorenzo to eastern Jamastran when it hit bad weather and was forced to divert to Juticalpa, 35 miles north of the Nicaraguan border. It crashed about six miles south of Juticalpa in a pinecovered valley, he said.

The U.S. troops were to begin a new set of joint maneuvers with the Honduran army today, according to a U.S. military spokesman. Details of the exercises were not made public

Also today, a U.N. fact-finding team requested by Nicaragua was to leave for that country to investigate the border violence, the United Nations announced in a statement. It said observations will be limited to the Nicaragua side, since no permission was received from Honduras to go

Meanwhile Nicaraguan and Contra officials were optimistic after the first round of truce talks held in Nicaragua on Monday. The talks resume today.

"The worst (fighting) is over and there is peace now in the border region," Col. Reynald Andino Flores, commander of the Honduran army's 101st Infantry Brigade, said Monday by telephone from his headquarters in southern Honduras. "We are remaining on a state of alert to be ready for anything that may happen," he added, and soldiers are "constantly patrolling the Flores and other officers, some of whom insisted on anonymity for security reasons, said on Monday the Sandinistas penetrated an area of about 20 square miles inside Olancho province while chasing the U.S.-supported Contra rebels in a two-week offensive to evict the Contras from Nicaragua.

About 200 border incidents have been reported in Olancho since the Contras began fighting the leftist Sandinista government in 1981.

President Daniel Ortega and the Nicaraguan government have denied Sandinista soldiers crossed the border.

The Contras maintain camps in an area called Bocay, which includes territory on both sides of the border. Nicaragua claims the camps, which the Contras use to store supplies and to stage raids inside Nicaragua, are in Nicaraguan land, but the rebels say they are in Honduras.

The Sandinistas and the Contras agreed to a three-day truce on Monday, the first of three days of their latest

At Sapoa, Nicaragua, a town on the Costa Rican border, representatives of the Sandinista government and Contras began their first direct talks on Nicaraguan soil. The purpose is to work out a cease-fire as required by the peace plan that five Central American presidents signed last Aug. 7.

After Monday's closed session, Gen. Humberto Ortega, Nicaragua's defense minister, said: "The importance of today was that we listened for the first time at the highest level their (Contras') proposal," he told journalists.

Alfredo Cesar, one of the rebel negotiators, said the Contra plan calls for a 30-day truce, political amnesty and continued talks to work out a lasting ceasefire. "Neither side seeks a military victory over the other," Cesar said. He called the first round a "step ahead."

Bomb discovered in Belfast apartments

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Soldiers today blew up a homemade bomb outside an apartment block in Belfast, and police in Londonderry asked residents to help search for the IRA gunmen who killed a policeman

Britain on Monday announced a massive manhunt in Roman Catholic ghettos of Belfast for the killers of two British soldiers caught in an IRA funeral procession Saturday, and police sources said up to 30 people may be arrested.

There was no indication that search was under way today

In Londonderry, police looked for the men who killed policeman Clive Graham at a checkpoint on Monday. Graham was the 12th victim in two weeks of tension and sectarian violence in northern Ireland.

Police Chief Supt. David Turkington said 'someone must have seen'' the gunmen who held a family hostage, fired from a row house and escaped in a hijacked car. "Help us rid our society of terrorism which is threatening to drag the community into a bottomless pit of evil," Turkington said.

In Belfast, police sealed off the apartment block and surrounding area after a local member of Sinn Fein, the outlawed IRA's legal political front, reported the bomb in the Craigavon district, on the outskirts of the

Also Monday, Britain said it will conduct an immediate review of its decision not to police IRA funerals.

Northern Ireland Secretary Tom King told the House of Commons in London on Monday, "A massive murder investigation is under way in which all possible resources are involved to identify all those responsible." Sources who reported that 30 arrests were possible spoke on condition of anonymity.

The manhunt was to focus today on the Roman Catholic areas of west Belfast. Police sought the people in the crowd at Saturday's IRA funeral who dragged the two soldiers from their car and stripped and beat them before Irish Republican Army gunmen killed the two corporals.

King said it may never be known why the soldiers drove into the path of the IRA funeral cortege when they were warned to stay away.

The liquid gas tanker "HAVGLIMT" after being hit by Iranian shells.

Iranian gunboat, helicopter attack tanker, crewmen killed

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — At least one Iranian gunboat and a helicopter today attacked a tanker carrying a volatile chemical in the Persian Gulf, setting the vessel on fire and killing two crewmen, shipping executives said.

Four crewmen were injured in the attack in the southern gulf on the 38,534-ton Havglint, a Norwegian-operated tanker flying the Singapore flag.

It was the seventh attack by Iran on neutral shipping since Friday. On Saturday, Iraqi warplanes raided two tankers near Iran's Kharg island, leaving 54 Norwegian seamen missing and presumed dead.

The escalation of the "tanker war'' came as Iran and Iraq were locked in a series of missile duels and air raids on each other's ma-

Iraq on Monday fired a longrange missile into Tehran, killing 14 civilians in the 105th such attack on Tehran since Feb. 29. About 65 Iranian missiles have slammed into Baghdad in that time. Also Monday, Iran launched an artillery and rocket attack on Basra, Iraq, inflicting heavy casualties, Iraq said.

The Havglint tanker, carrying ammonia and operated by the Oslo-based Havtor Co., was hit at dawn about 12 miles northwest of Dubai, said the gulf-based shipping executives, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The dead crewmen were identified as Singapore nationals, and the ship's Norwegian captain was among the wounded. Other members of the 26-man, multinational crew were mainly treated for breathing leaking ammonia vapors, according to the executives. Four needed hospitaliza-

The fire in the engine room of the stricken tanker was brought under control by salvage tugboats, but the flames later reignited in the accommodation quarters, the executives said.

The British destroyer HMS Exeter, on patrol in the area, dispatched a helicopter to help rescue the crew, many of whom had fainted from fumes leaking from blasted cargo holds, the shipping sources said.

The bodies of the dead men and and the injured crew members were lowered onto a salvage tugboat, which took them to a hospital at the United Arab Emirates port of Dubai, the sources said. It was not clear whether the casualties were the result of the attack or victims of the deadly fumes.

The shipping executive said at least one gunboat first raided the vessel with machine gun fire and rocket-propelled grenades. Forty minutes later, a helicopter fired rockets at the tanker.

'They went for the accommodation quarters. There were plenty, plenty of hits all over," said Associated Press photographer Greg English, who flew over the stricken tanker in a chartered helicopter

Controversy simmers over proposed restrictions on a new type of sport fish

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas though they generally feed on Parks and Wildlife Department has a new controversy on its hands — a variety of tropical fish whose rapid spread throughout Texas streams is cheered by some fishermen and feared by Officials of the state agency said they plan to meet soon with representatives of the state's aquaculture industry to decide what to do about tilapia, a rapidly multiplying fish that can reach weights of 4 or 5 pounds and compete with native species for habitat.

"It's a fish that's potentially dangerous to the sport fishes of Texas and so, under code, we are obligated to return it to the potentially harmful list," said Nick Carter, chief of inland fisheries with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

"Essentially, they suppress the reproduction of largemouth bass and other species," Carter said. Proponents contend that the fish is excellent forage for game species in private lakes, is attractive for human consumption and has the potential to be a big industry in Texas.

"It's the most illogical thing that Parks and Wildlife has ever come up with," said Kenneth Zwahr, president of Lakes of Danbury, a recreational fishing and aquaculture operation near Angleton.

Putting tilapia under the proposed restrictions "would tremendously damage our ability to have a good sport fishing operation like we do," Zwahr said. "And 40 percent of our sales are tilapia to other private landowners. It would put us out of busi-

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission, which oversees the state's game and fish agency, has directed the department staff to meet with aquaculturists and work out a compromise, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported

Carter said he hopes to return to the commission with a propos-

There are more than 180 species of tilapia, a member of the cichlid family native to Africa. First introduced into the United States as aquarium fish, tilapia became the subject of aquaculture experiments in the late 1950s. Primarily vegetarians, tilapia were touted for aquatic vegetation control in farm ponds, nonvascular plants. Three species of tilapia are found in Texas, with the first recorded when a member of the Texas Game and Fish Commission caught one in the San Marcos River in 1959.

By 1978, tilapia inhabited 14 reservoirs and three rivers in Biologists theorize that the fish escaped from overflowing farm ponds. The fish also were introduced in some waters by recreational anglers who used them for bait.

Although they had been prohibited in Texas for years, two species — blue and Mozambique tilapia - were removed from the restricted fish list in 1979 because they were already established in Texas and aquaculturists wanted to experiment with them.

Since their removal from the restricted list, tilapia have spread to 13 more lakes as well as the lower Laguna Madre on the South Texas Gulf Coast.

The Parks and Wildlife Department recommended restricting the transportation of live tilapia to adult brood fish under a permit system. Other recommendations included limiting the raising of tilapia to closed systems that would prevent their escape.

Zwahr contends that healthy bass populations can control tilapia and points to experiments conducted in several lakes on his complex. The experiments showed that bass not only prevented tilapia from overpopulating but gained three to four pounds per fish in eight months while feeding on the tilapia, he

Tilapia exhibit a lowertemperature tolerance of about 50 degrees and die in most waters during the winter. But they are able to survive in reservoirs warmed by power plants and in some areas with warm-water

As community nesters, tilapia often take up vast expanses of shallow water habitat with their nests, effectively eliminating spawning habitat for native

"They start suppressing reproduction when they reach 1,000 pounds per acre," Carter said. 'At 2,000 pounds per acre, reproduction is suppressed. It requires the department to stock fish to maintain a fishery in that lake.'

Other relatives also expressed displeasure at the sentence, but wouldn't comment publicly.

"Those are all bad memories," one relative said. DPS Trooper Gary Davis of Groom, who assisted King in investigating the fatal 1986 accident, said the sentence probably would have been stiffer if Justin Helton had rolled the pickup a few hundred feet to the south - in Donley County. There, Davis said, Helton would have been tried away from his hometown, without all the politics involved.

"We really slapped his hand, didn't we?" Davis

Assistant District Attorney Harold Comer, who worked out the plea bargain agreement with Helton's attorney, defended the sentence, reached in December, noting that Helton's only brushes with the law have been alcohol- and traffic-related.

Comer said he made sure alcohol treatment, counseling and attendance at Alcoholics Anonymous meetings were made part of Helton's probation, and added that reports indicate Helton is responding well to treatment.

Comer said no members of Steve Helton's family complained to him about the sentence and some even said they approved of it

Helton could not be reached for comment, but his mother, Alberta, said Comer treated her son fairly. She said her family has suffered since the accident but said Justin is on the road to recovery.

"We've paid our price mentally and physically

Joe Chagra freed after 6½ years in prison for federal judge slaying

EL PASO (AP) — Former El Paso lawyer Joe Chagra, free after spending more than six years in a federal prison for his part in the only murder of a federal judge in this century, says he's not sure what he's going to do, but he's not going to do anything to jeopardize his freedom.

'I can't really tell you how good I feel,'' Chagra said Monday. "It's probably the most exciting experience that I've ever had, other than being there when my children were born.

Freedom after prison confinement is so profound, Chagra said, that he "won't do anything to endanger it.

Chagra, 41, was released on parole Friday from a federal prison in Safford, Ariz., after serving almost 6½ years for conspiracy in the slaying of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. of San Wood, known as "Maximum John" for the stiff sentences he gave drug dealers, was shot to death in San Antonio in 1979.

Charles Harrelson, accused of being the triggerman in the Wood slaying, was convicted of the murder and sentenced to life in prison. Chagra pleaded guilty to conspiracy and testified against

Jimmy Chagra, Joe Chagra's older brother and another major defendant in the case, was charged with conspiracy, accused of hiring Harrelson to

Joe Chagra pleaded guilty to a conspiracy involving his brother, but a federal court jury found Jimmy Chagra not guilty of the conspiracy charge

Jimmy Chagra now is serving a sentence of 30 years without parole on a 1979 conviction for drug dealing. He also drew a life sentence after pleading guilty four years ago to conspiracy in the 1978 attempted assassination of James Kerr, who was then assistant U.S. attorney for West Texas.

Joe Chagra doesn't plan to talk or even think much about that decade when he succumbed to the influences of his brothers

Lee Chagra, his oldest brother, gained fame by successfully defending alleged drug dealers until he was gunned down in his law office in December

Both of the older Chagra brothers lived flamboyant lifestyles, characterized by splashes of fast money, drugs and unrestrained gambling. Jimmy Chagra once paid off a Las Vegas casino debt of more than $900,000 in cash, and he also lost a $580,000 golf match.

Principal speaker for the meeting was George Stocker of Memphis, Tenn., who was introduced by Janice Luck, territorial disaster coordinator from Childress.

Stocker is field service chairman for Territory VIII in Region 2. He spoke on disasters and what Red Cross does to give immediate emergency assistance to victims and disaster workers.

What should be done first by those arriving at a disaster scene was emphasized in his talk, "First Man on the Scene." He is in disaster relief, having participated in over 45 disaster relief efforts in 11 states and having been a national disaster instructor for 10 years.

Stocker is chairman for disaster planning, training and administration for 75 counties in Tennessee, Mississippi, Kentucky, Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois,

Those attending the meeting were registered by Edwina Miner of Amarillo and Pat Brown of Altus, Okla. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by William W. Jean, volunteer coordinator for Territory III from Amarillo.

The invocation was given by Doris Teague, territorial consultant from Childress. Paula Martin, field service manager, gave the welcome. She also introduced Jo Norton from New Iberia, La., who will succeed her as field service manager in April. Martin will assume this same position for Territory II, Region 3 in Wichita, Kan.

Following the disaster program, certificates of appreciation were presented by Martin to disaster workers who assisted in Carson, Hutchinson and Gray Counties following damaging hailstorms and tornadoes last

In keeping with the special day, Teague gave an "Old Irish Blessing" to close the program. Moody adjourned the meeting.

Decorations and favors for the meeting were assembled by Janice Luck, committee chairman; James Crownover and Joyce Hall of Paducah; Mr. and Mrs. Baird; Jan Bradford of Altus, Okla.; Steve Grzywacz of Lubbock; and Lloyd Luck of Chil-

Students at Horace Mann Elementary School will launch 400 helium-filled balloons at 1 p.m. Wednesday, March 23 as part of the nationwide Writing Pals Balloon Contest, sponsored by Weekly Reader classroom newspaper.

This year's event is billed as the Great Balloon Race. A message attached to each balloon explains the project and asks that the finder return it to Horace Mann Elementary School.

Weekly Reader will present a $500 prize to the school that gets back the message that has traveled the farthest distance. In addition, 100 run-

The balloon launch is the climax of the school's year-long participation in Weekly Reader Writing Pals. The goal of the program is to motivate children to write to and to become familiar with students in other parts of the country.

Horace Mann students are planning to write back to every person who sends back a message card from the balloons released Wednesday. Since the annual balloon launch began, Weekly Reader has furnished nearly 5 million free balloons to schools participating in the Weekly Reader Writing Pals program, a pen pal program in which Weekly Reader pairs classes across the

Start seedlings indoors by shoplight

By JOE VanZANDT County Extension Agent

Gardening season is almost upon us. Here are some things that early season vegetable gardeners can be doing.

Sow seed of English peas and snow peas right away. Set new asparagus and rhubarb beds from now through late March. Sow seeds of early tomato varieties such as Spring Giant, Presto, Small Fry, Improved Porter, Red Cloud, Plainsman; use peat pots with pasteurized soil mix or a prepared peat-lite mix; plants of optimum age (5 weeks) will be ready for setting in garden after last expected frost.

Begin to acclimate transplants of lettuce, cabbage, broccoli, etc. by exposing them to successively cooler temperatures to enable them to survive cold March nights. Do not withhold water. Plants should never undergo moisture stress

SEEDLINGS BY SHOPLIGHT

Gardeners who try starting vegetable seedlings in a sunny window usually complain about the pale green or purplish leaves on spindly stems of plants that lean toward the window. When these weak plants are transplanted to the garden, they are shocked and often killed by the cold, wind and intense sunlight.

These gardeners would have been wiser to buy their plants from a good garden center or greenhouse grower. But what if the varieties you want are not sold by the plant grower in your

There's an easy answer. Grow your own seedlings indoors, but with a shoplight, almost anywhere inside your home.

You can grow healthy, shortstemmed vegetable plants with dark green leaves by using the light from an ordinary fluores-

For Horticulture

cent shoplight as the only light source for those plants. The shoplight I'm talking about is the kind with two 40-watt cool white fluorescent tubes housed in a white fixture suspended with chains from an overhead support. These fixtures are usually four feet long.

The fixture can be suspended over a table by chains from hooks in the ceiling. A sawhorse or stepladder will support the fixture for the few weeks required to start seedlings in containers on the floor. Be sure to lay down a sheet of plastic to protect the flooring from excess water that drains from the plant containers.

These inexpensive light units. usually costing $12 to $15, will give plenty of light to the small plants only if the fluorescent tube is kept close, very close, and that is the secret. The tube surface must not be more than 1 or 2 inches above the leaf surface. Raise the light fixture often enough to maintain the leaf-totube distance in a range of 1 to 2

To start with, hang the light fixture so that the tube surface is only an inch above the surface of the germinating medium or soil mix. The moderate heat given off by the fluorescent tube will warm the mix and the seed, thereby hastening germination

A thin film of plastic laid over the surface of the seed flat will prevent drying of the mix by the heat from the tube. Remove the plastic the instant you see the plant shoot breaking through the

Try to place the seedling container in an area where the temperature will not fall below 55 to 60 degrees F. at night and where the temperature will rise to 65 to 70 degrees F. during the Turn the lights on when you arise in the morning and turn them off before going to sleep at night, to give a light period of at least 12 to 14 hours. Do not leave the lights on all the time.

If you already have a fluorescent light fixture and wish to use it for starting plants, replace the old bulbs with new ones to assure maximum light for your plants.

Most vegetable plants can be kept under the light until they are large enough to be transplanted to the garden. The same fixture can be used to start several successions of seedlings.

The first crop to start would be those that can be acclimated to the subfreezing outdoor temperatures of early spring. Some are onion, lettuce, cabbage and broc-

The second crop under the same lights can be tomato, pepper and okra seedlings which will be transplanted into your garden after the danger of frost

Finally, you can start seedlings of vine crops like cucumber, melon and squash in peat pots which can be planted directly into the garden only two or three weeks from the day you sowed

WHY PRUNE FRUIT TREES?

Pruning insures peak production, but wait until winter is almost over.

Since the average first frostfree day is considered to be April 22, this month can be thought of as an early spring month. Do not prune while wood is frozen since freezing causes brittle wood.

The possibility of selecting poorly matured wood for main branches is another reason for not pruning in the fall or winter months. This wood may then die in the winter, causing reduced yield the next growing season. After prolonged winter exposure, this dead wood is easily recognized and removed.

On the other hand, late spring pruning may cause sap bleeding or weeping, but it is better to prune late than not to prune at all.

Why prune at all? First of all, pruning promotes large, wellflavored fruit. A plant cannot produce the quality of fruit desired when it's allowed to mature the quantity of fruit which it is capable of maturing.

Pruning removes some of the fruit buds which would mature fruit. By growing fewer fruit, the tree can use all available nutrients for those few fruit, thus producing a large, juicy product.

The fruit grower must decide whether he wants many small fruit or an adequate number of high-quality fruit, because a plant only has a certain production capacity.

Another valuable advantage of pruning is to establish a proper framework. A strong framework will support more fruit. This prevents tree breakage when fruit matures.

Even distribution also enhances even ripening of fruit throughout the tree. Preventing tree breakage results in longer life and a more attractive land-

It's true, I was compensated twice for the same medical bill, but never was there the slightest doubt as to what the appropriate action should be. However, one of my classmates kiddingly suggested I write to Dear Abby and ask what I should do about this "windfall." That's when I hastily scribbled my "problem" to you in jest on a postcard - which was accidentally mailed!

Knicks rally to knock off Spurs

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — New York Knicks coach Rick Pitino says a five-point halftime deficit didn't bother him because he was confident the Knicks could come back and defeat the San Antonio

"I told our team at the half, regardless how far we were down, we would wear out the Spurs in the second half and win going away," Pitino said Monday night after the Knicks took a 133-121 NBA victory over the Spurs. "They hurt us early in a man-toman defense so I went to the fullcourt pressure."

The victory allowed the Knicks to break a four-game road losing streak, but left their season road record at 4-27.

Gerald Wilkins scored 25 points as the Knicks pressed and rallied in the second half.

Patrick Ewing scored 23 and Mark Jackson added 20 for the Knicks

Walter Berry led the Spurs with 27 points and guard Alvin Robertson hit for 21 in the Spurs's losing effort.

Defense was the key in the second half, Spurs coach Bob Weiss said

'Their zone defense and pressure defense really hurt us," Weiss said. "We got some easy shots, but they also forced a lot of turnovers.

'The whole key tonight was the press and how we did not handle it," Weiss added.

The Spurs were hot early and took an early 34-20 lead in the first quarter, but the Knicks fought back to cut the margin to 67-62 at

The Spurs, who had shot 78 percent from the field in the first half, were stymied by the new defense and New York posted a 102-92 advantage going into the fourth quarter. Wilkins' scored 11 points in the fourth period. San Antonio never came any closer than 8 points in the final quarter, 115-107, with 5:29 remaining to play.

Tyson loses

By The Associated Press

Mike Tyson has been stripped of his title by the International Boxing Federation, according to a published report.

Sy Roseman, public relations director for the IBF, said Tyson forfeited the title Monday when he entered the ring for his defense against Tony Tubbs without the IBF belt, the New York Times reported six seconds left in the second round.

Tyson's manager, Bill Cayton, was told before the fight by IBF championship committee chairman Bill Brennan that the title would be vacated if the champion failed to wear the organization's belt into the ring, Roseman said.

Cayton said Tyson did not wear the belt and that no sanction fee was paid to the IBF because he did not want to embarrass the Japanese. The Japan Boxing Commission does not recognize the IBF.

Blockbuster trade rumored

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies swung a couple of deals Monday amid reports that a blockbuster swap might be in the works that would send Toronto's George Bell, the 1987 American League MVP, to the New York Yankees for Dave Winfield.

Both the New York Daily News and Newsday reported today that the Blue Jays first brought up the deal about a week ago. Newsday also reported the Blue Jays are interested in Baltimore shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. for Bell.

"In terms of a separation, David is not looking to move," Winfield's agent, Jeff Klein, told the Daily News. "However, we would be fools not to consider anything.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia traded Rick Schu, at one time considered the heir-apparent to Mike Schmidt at third base, to the Baltimore Orioles for switch-hitting outfielder Mike Young. The Phillies also acquired utility infielder Bill Almon from the New York Mets for two minor-league pitchers.

Schu was expendable because Schmidt recently signed a two-year contract at $2.15 million a year.

Ward pitches no-hitter as Shockers blank Rebel JV

James Ward pitched a fiveinning no-hitter as the Pampa Shockers blanked Tascosa 12-0 in a junior varsity baseball game played Monday

Ward, a senior, struck out eight and walked three as the Shockers ran the record to 2-0. The game was called due to the 10-run rule after five innings.

Ward also knocked in three runs with a single and inside the park home run. Sammy Franklin had two hits and three RBI for the Shockers while Barry Coffee had two hits and two RBI

After a scoreless first inning, the Shockers scored six runs in the next two, added one and five runs in the fifth and sixth.

In the Shockers' opener last Saturday, they overpowered Hereford 23-13 in a slugfest.

Highlighting Pampa's 26-hit attack was Brandon Knutson's six for six day at the plate and eight RBI. Knutson hit for the cycle and more with two singles, two doubles, a triple and home run. Tory Peet added four hits while Ward and Chris Roden had three hits and three RBI.

Ricky Sewell, who was the winning pitcher, also had three hits. Sewell pitched three innings and struck out three while Knutson went the final four frames to pick up the save. Knutson struck out which each summer matches graduating high school football stars from Texas and Oklahoma, is being dedicated in 1988 to the only participant who went on to win the Heisman Trophy. 'It's a great honor," said former Oklahoma University fullback Steve Owens on Monday. "It's an honor because it's a great cause and they are wonderful people.

Owens, who won college football's highest award at Oklahoma in 1969, played in the Oil Bowl in 1966 after an outstanding high school career at Miami, Okla.

'There was a lot of state pride,'' Owens recalled of the year he played in the classic. "Anytime you put Oklahoma and Texas together, something is going to happen. That was the first time I really carried the ball a lot.

This year's game is scheduled for Aug. 6 in Wichita Falls. Proceeds from the game are directed to Oklahoma and Texas charities, Oil Bowl Chairman Dr. Ted Alexander Jr., said. Last year, the game raised nearly $28,000 for the Oklahoma Crippled Childrens Society and various Wichita Falls

Pampa's Brown makes all-state

Junior pivot Yolanda Brown, leading scorer and rebounder for the Pampa Lady Harvesters the past two seasons, has been named to the Class 4A All-State Third Team by the Texas High School Coaches Association.

"This is a big honor for Yolanda," said Pampa coach Albert Nichols. "I'm real pleased for Brown averaged 22.4 points and 14.6 rebounds this season in leading the Lady Harvesters to an 18-8 record.

She averaged 14 points and 10.8 rebounds as a sophomore.

As a junior, the 5-11 scoring whiz scored in double figures in all but one of Pampa's 31 games. She scored 30 points or more five times with a high of 38 in Pampa's 61-53 win over Sanford-Fritch.

In two games against land, which won the Class 4A state title for the third consecutive year, Brown scored 53 points and collected 27 rebounds.

"Sometimes I think I expected too much of Yolanda. I had stop and think that she's only 16 years old and has a lot of basketball ahead of her," Nichols said.

As a sophomore, Brown was named Sophomore of the Year on the Amarillo Globe-News Super Squad. Brown, who enters her senior year with 1,127 points, has already been scouted by numerous colleges, including the nationally ranked University of Texas Lady Longhorns. She is already Pampa High's career rebounding leader with 719 rebounds in two seasons. Brown surpassed the record held by Debbie Young, which was set

Booed Paducah players defend actions in lopsided finals

By NICK GHOLSON Wichita Falls Times Record News

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — The fans in Frank Erwin Center on the University of Texas campus were booing Paducah during the Dragons' state championship game with Big Sandy, and

Bryan Barnes didn't know why. "Why are they booing?" the junior forward asked as he passed beside the press table. "Because you're pressing," one writer answered. "We're the defending state champions. We're supposed to look like it," Barnes responded. At the time, the Dragons were leading Big Sandy by 40 points in the Class A title game, but Paducah head coach Randall Ryan wouldn't call off the Most of the Paducah starters were still on the floor in the fourth quarter, and the Dragons kept the heat on with a full-court press.

"If it had been Big Sandy, they'd have done the same thing," Paducah guard Chris Hurd said. "You only get to do it once, so why not get after it while you can?" asked Barnes, the leading scorer with 34 points in Paducah's 99-61 win over previously undefeated Big Sandy.

"We were just trying to get the record. This was the seniors' last game. You want people to remember you," said 6-7 senior Will Flemons.

Flemons ended an outstanding high school basketball career by scoring 33 points, grabbing 20 rebounds and blocking nine shots.

Ryan was the main target of the boo-birds. When the championship medals were presented to Paducah players and coaches at halftime of the Class 3A championship game that followed, fans booed the loudest when Ryan's name was men-

"I didn't want to make anybody feel bad. I didn't want to beat the dog out of them or anything,"

Ryan said.

However, he went on, Paducah fans had expressed concern over the Dragons' lack of offensive punch in their last few playoff games, and he wanted to give them what they wanted.

"I had something to prove to myself. I was beginning to wonder what I was doing wrong," Ryan said. "I think the players were wondering. They were asking, 'What's wrong with the Dragons?" Big Sandy coach Tommy Jackson found little wrong with Paducah. 'We're better than what we played, but Paducah is as good a Class A team that's ever been," Jackson said. His only comment on Ryan's tactics was:

"They can play the way they want to play, and we can play the way we want to play.'

Huskies advance to NIT quarterfinals

By CHRIS DAHL AP Sports Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. — The National Invitation Tournament is helping Connecticut overcome an inferiority complex it developed playing in the Big East Conference.

"Considering what's happened in the last four or five games, we're feeling pretty good about ourselves, Coach Jim Calhoun said Monday night after his hot-shooting Huskies beat Louisiana Tech 65-59 to advance to the tournament's quarterfinals.

It was the fourth win in five games for Connecticut since losing its final four games in the Big East regular season.

The Huskies are 17-14, but 11 of their 14 losses have come against teams that made it to the NCAA tournament. Their other losses were to Boston College, another Big East team that made it to the NIT, as well as Virginia of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Providence, the only Big East team that didn't make a postseason tournament.

They're now finding out that they're a better-than-average team compared to the overall pool of teams in the country

Making its first postseason appearance since a second-round loss to Minnesota in the 1982 NIT, Connecticut will play an undetermined opponent in the tournament's quarterfinal round Thursday or Friday. The matchups will be announced Wednesday.

Tonight, defending champion Southern Mississippi is at Virginia Commonwealth; Cleveland State at Ohio

State; Georgia at Middle Tennessee; Boston College at Evansville; Houston at Colorado State; Oregon at New Mexico: and Arkansas State at Stan-

"I think we're capable of winning three more games," Calhoun said. 'There will be seven good teams when they announce the field. We'll be one of them.

Known more for a stingy defense, the Huskies showed a new-found shooting prowess in their victory over Louisiana Tech.

Cliff Robinson scored 17 to lead three players in double figures as Connecticut made 67.5 percent of its shots despite a sluggish start in the second half.

Junior guard Phil Gamble added 16 and freshman forward Murray Williams had his best scoring game of the season with 15 points on 6-of-7 shooting for the Huskies, who averaged just 45 percent during the regular season.

"They shot 66.7 percent the first half. It's hard to beat people with that percentage," Louisiana Tech Coach Tommy Joe Eagles said.

But Connecticut went on an eightpoint run midway through the half, including two jump shots by Robinson, to regain control. The Huskies increased the lead to as much as 11 near the end of the game.

But the Huskies switching defenses gave Louisiana as much trouble as its

"UConn never stayed on any one defense more than two times down the floor." Eagles said.

Mets favored in NL East

By JIM DONAGHY AP Sports Writer

The New York Mets have the best talent in the National League East and will be hard to beat if they don't beat themselves

They could — they did last year. The Mets were favored to repeat as division champions a year ago. But a few days before opening day, pitching ace Dwight Gooden admitted to a drug problem and spent the first six weeks of the season in rehabilitation.

It seemed to put the team in shock How could this happen to Doc?

Reliever Roger McDowell was out until May 14 following hernia surgery and left-hander Bob Ojeda was lost for most of the season with a sore elbow that was operated on in June.

The Mets also had starters Sid Fernandez and Rick Aguilera sidelined with injuries along the way.

Despite a decimated staff, the Mets chiseled a 101/2-game St. Louis lead in July to 11/2 games in September. But a healthy New York team was only able to play .500 ball down the stretch and fell short by three games.

Yes, the Mets had injuries, but so did Whitey Herzog's Cardinals.

John Tudor suffered a broken leg in a freak dugout accident in April. catcher Tony Pena suffered a broken thumb the first week of the season and Jack Clark missed the last three weeks, the playoffs and World Series with an ankle injury.

Starters Joe Magrane and Greg Mathews also were sidelined.

In addition to an injured team, the Mets were a sloppy team in 1987. There were collisions in the outfield, missed relays, and lots of runners left in scoring position.

It seemed the Mets were not always in the game.

In late June, right fielder Darryl Strawberry missed two games against St. Louis because of the flu. Several teammates, including Lee Mazzilli and Wally Backman, questioned if Strawberry really was sick. A few days later in Cincinnati, Strawberry threatened to "pop" Backman in the face.

In the April issue of Esquire magazine, Strawberry said Hernandez didn't have his head in the game during the 1987 season and that catcher 'Gary Carter "quit" because of his injuries.

Strawberry also wondered "how many games this team would win if Whitey (Herzog) were managing it." New York Mets

The Mets led the NL in batting (.268) last season and also hit 192 home runs. The offensive nucleus is back and better seasons are expected from Keith Hernandez (.290) and Gary Carter (.235). Hernandez, a contact hitter, struck out 104 times.

Second baseman Wally Backman, a .320 hitter in 1986, slipped to .250 and their toes.

there is a possibility Tim Teufel (.308) may become the regular at second. The Mets traded shortstop Rafael Santana to the Yankees and rookie Kevin Elster (.310 at Tidewater) moves in until Greg Jefferies is ready.

Left fielder Kevin McReynolds was the most consistent Met last year (.276, 29 homers and 95 RBI) but Darryl Strawberry was the most spectacular. leading the club with 39 homers and 104 RBI. He also stole 36 bases to join teammate Howard Johnson in the 30-

In his first full season, Johnson hit 36 homers and drove in 99 runs. But his fielding at third was erratic, committing 21 errors.

Mookie Wilson and a beefed up Lenny Dysktra will platoon in center field, a system neither likes.

The left-hander out of the pen this season will be hard-throwing Randy Myers as Jesse Orosco has been

Montreal Expos

The Expos entered 1987 with Tim Raines home in Florida as a free agent, Andre Dawson in Chicago with the Cubs, and only a couple of reliable starters

Even though Raines missed the first month of the season, he had 175 hits and 50 stolen bases.

In his second season, first baseman Andres Galarraga hit 13 homers and drove in 90. At third, Tim Wallach hit .298 with 26 homers and 123 RBI.

The Expos got in the race when pitchers Dennis Martinez and Pascual Perez joined the staff.

The Expos were 28-14 in one-run games and 12-1 in extra innings. From the fourth inning on, the Expos blew fewer games than any NL club.

St. Louis Cardinals The Cardinals held on and won the NL East and pennant last season without Jack Clark - but just barely. Now Clark has signed as a free agent with the New York Yankees and taken his 35 homers and 106 RBI in 131 games with him.

The Cardinals scored 5.2 runs per game with Clark in the lineup, 3.6 runs without him.

To pick up the slack, the Cards signed free agent Bob Horner, who played in Japan last year. Horner takes over for Clark at first. If Horner can stay healthy, he might hit 25 homers and drive in 80-plus runs. The rotation will have John Tudor, Danny Cox, Joe Magrane, Jose De-Leon and Greg Mathews. Magrane and Mathews still are unproven and DeLeon, acquired from the White Sox for Rick Horton and Lance Johnson, is 32-55 lifetime.

Pittsburgh Pirates The Pirates were the team of the 1970s in the NL East and seem to be heading for better days in the 90s. The Bucs may not win the division in 1988, but they will keep the contenders on

Wildcats second at Commanche Relays

plant gets full-power operating license

BAY CITY (AP) — A license has been granted to the South Texas Nuclear Project to start producing electricity despite allegations from several groups that the plant is not safe.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Lando Zech said Monday it is not unusual to license a plant with outstanding allegations of wrongdoing as long as they do not involve safety.

The commission on Monday approved the fullpower operating license on a 5-0 vote in Washington, D.C The vote was taken after a staff briefing on an investigation of some 700 allegations of intimidation, other wrongdoing or shoddy construction brought to the commission's attention by the Government Accountability Project. The Washingtonbased organization tries to encourage and protect "whistleblowers," people who disclose wrong-

"It is the staff's judgment that South Texas can be operated without undue risk to the health and safety of the public," Jose Calvo, director of a special team that investigated the allegations, told the commission

Calvo said of the 240 allegations of wrongdoing referred to the commission's office of investigations, 95 "involve the same areas we have covered" and 145 "have no safety content."

Commissioner Frederick Bernthal said the agency spent about 3,000 to 3,300 staff hours and $250,000 investigating the facility. The first of two 1,250-megawatt units of the $5.5 billion plant near Bay City, about 90 miles southwest of Houston, has been operating under a license granted last August for testing at low power, not to exceed 5 percent. The second unit is more than 80 percent complete.

The plant operated for the first time March 8, but did not produce electricity.

The total cost to the plant's four owners will be about 500 percent above initial estimates.

The project manager, Houston Lighting & Power Co., has about a 48 percent share, Central Power and Light Co. of Corpus Christi has slightly more than 25 percent, the city of Austin has about 16 percent and the city of San Antonio has about 10 percent. Austin at one point sued HL&P, charging mismanagement, but those two have reached an agreement under which HL&P would take over Austin's ownership.

The agreement has been approved by the Austin City Council and HL&P board of directors, although it is still subject to approval by regulatory bodies.

Two groups opposed to the plant engaged in lastminute efforts to block the license and got nowhere. One group headed by Citizens Concerned About Nuclear Power of San Antonio sued in the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans on Friday and was rebuffed by the judges without comment on Monday.

The Government Accountability Project had petitioned the NRC staff to delay Monday's vote pending a fuller investigation of the allegations. But that was rejected late Friday

After the vote, Billie Garde, a lawyer for the GAP, said, "To handle it this way was very insulting to several dozen people who have come to the commission. ... They're not anti-nuclear activists.

GAP presented two previously unidentified whistleblowers at a Monday morning news conference criticizing the special team report.

One of them, engineer Ashok Garg, who left the project in September 1986, said he provided the team a reference to a plant document from April 1986, which said among other things that 20 percent of valves for plant instruments had been installed backward.

The team reviewed many valve inspection reports and visually checked 70 valves from various systems, but appeared not to have consulted the April 1986 document or checked any instrument valves, Garg said.

"We reviewed that document, and we interviewed him, but he couldn't remember details. With those instrument valves, it doesn't make any difference if they are installed frontwards or backwards," Calvo said.

The nuclear commission also was briefed on issues raised by operation of the plant under its low-power testing license granted last August, the most notable of which were instances of closing certain valves that shouldn't have been closed and the failure to correct the valve position for many hours. This resulted in a $50,000 penalty.

Joe Cowan, regional director of reactor programs, said the regional staff believed the valve incident was the result of "the difficulty in transitioning from a construction mentality to an operating mentality," and procedures had been modified better to catch such errors.

The same old story

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - In the stock market, the names, numbers and skills of the players change but the game remains about the same no matter how many times we are told that "it's a whole new ball game.'

Never was that advice more freely offered, more uncritically accepted and more avariciously followed than in the stock market of 1987, which crashed to reality on Oct. 19. It is, by popular agreement, the BIG lesson emerging bit by bit as the event recedes into history, and as once giddy and greedy minds resume more sober interpretations of the economy.

The various studies under way or completed seem to emphasize such factors as "portfolio insurance" and futures trading and other technical factors that arose over the past decade and seemingly changed the market's makeup

No doubt, such factors could have contributed, but it is now patently clear they couldn't have done so without the presence of the same old psychological undercurrent that boosted stock prices beyond reason

The omens were there to absorb or ignore:

Shares sold at 22 times earnings, vs. a longtime norm under 15. They were priced at 21/2 to 3 times a company's liquidation value, a full point above the longterm norm. Dividend yields were half what they should have been.

Critics with a classic education in the ways of the stock market pointed to these lessons, and more, and were scorned as oldfashioned. Who were they to argue with sophisticated electronic computations? Do computers

The oldtimers' admonitions have left an eerie echo, a painful one, somewhat akin to parental warnings that were ignored because, every child knows, parents issue warnings to children because that's what parents are supposed to do.

Looking back, some of the market's smartest investors, including big-name portfolio managers for mutual funds, insurers and the like, wonder how they got drawn into a market they knew was headed for a fall.

They knew, but apparently couldn't resist the temptation of what they thought was easy money, just as others before them fell because they were governed by emotions peculiar to the human species. It is still a debate with some of them as they review the crash. They knew the old rules still applied. They knew the market was destined to correct its imbalance - that is, fall. They knew the rules of the game hadn't changed. But, they ask, was it reason or emotion that governed their decision to jump in? Was it unreasonable to assume that a market propelled ever higher, no matter how irrationally, offered an opportunity to make a quick buck?

Was it reasonable or foolish to ignore the stories of quick profits by your brother-in-law and not be tempted to do the same? Or, for a fund manager, was it foolhardy or sensible to try keeping pace with dice-throwing competitors? You can blame the crash on new trading techniques, the acceleration of trading activity by means of computers, and the instantaneous communications that seem to exaggerate advances and declines

Something might be done eventually to mute the adverse effects of these factors, but judging from the evidence of last fall there is little that can be done with the players themselves. The names and numbers change, and some of the techniques, too, but the game will always be played by human beings.
