Reagan has confidence in Meese after meetings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan retains confidence in Attorney General Edwin Meese, Reagan's chief of staff said today, even after two departing Justice Department officials told the president face-to-face that Meese's behavior is hurting his department.

'We don't know what will happen next," Chief of Staff Howard Baker said in an interview on CBS This Morning. "All we know is that the attorney general is functioning and functioning well and that the president expressed his continuing confidence.'

Baker was referring to Reagan's meeting with Meese Wednesday, which sources said came minutes after one of the two aides told the president that an aggressive prosecutor would seek Meese's indictment.

The Washington Post today quoted a source, who also requested anonymity, as saying Reagan commented that he would not make any decision about Meese's future until independent counsel James C. McKay finishes his report on the attorney

During a 45-minute discussion called by the president, Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns told Reagan, Vice President George Bush, White House chief of staff Howard Baker and White House counsel A.B. Culvahouse that "Meese's behavior was hurting the Department of Justice," an administration source said.

Former Justice Department criminal division chief William Weld, meanwhile, "laid out the facts" in a hypothetical indictment he said he would have brought against Meese if he were the special prosecutor investigating the attorney general, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Burns told Reagan that Meese had violated the standards of ethical conduct for executive branch employees spelled out in a 1965 executive order and that if other Justice Department attorneys had acted as Meese has, 'they would be bounced (fired),' the source added.

The ethical standards, among other things, say that employees should avoid any action which could create the appearance of using public office for private gain, giving preferential treat-

Police pursuing new leads in Patterson shooting death

Senior Staff Writer

A 17-year-old boy remains the lone suspect in his adoptive father's shooting death in Pampa last fall, but police have so far been able to question only friends and relatives in the case.

Pampa police have been frustrated in their efforts to solve the Sept. 2 shooting death of Edward Allan Patterson, 37, in his trailer home at 533 N. Doyle St.

Patterson's adopted son, N. Mike Patterson, then 16, was detained in Monahans after he was spotted driving the dead man's truck, but his family's attorney, Jim Bobo of Odessa, would not allow him to talk to authorities.

"We've been keeping up with where he's at, but as far as talking to him, we haven't," Pampa police Detective Terry Cox said

Cox has teamed with detectives in Midland, where the teen-ager lived for a short time after the slaying, to talk to school acquaintances and relatives, including the boy's stepfather, George Underwood. Cox said the stepfather is anxious to get the case over with.

Norma Underwood, the teenager's mother, is a Midland kindergarten teacher.

Patterson now attends a private school in the Dallas area, police said.

Cox declined to say what information he received from Midland, only that "it led us in the same direction as we're looking

"This way, he doesn't know anything about what we found out," Cox said. The youth reportedly has related conflicting information about the morning his adoptive father was shot.

Assistant District Attorney Harold Comer said last month that the teen-ager told authorities when first arrested that his adoptive father told him to get out of the house because trouble was brewing with some acquaint-

But Cox said no other suspects are being considered because the only official Patterson has talked to is with the Monahans Police Department. Until the youth agrees to talk to Pampa police, Cox said, he will remain the focus of the investigation.

'Until he tells us something different to send us in a different direction, we're going to keep heading in this one," Cox said.

Cox said the case has been highlighted in Crime Stoppers reports in both Midland and Pampa, with a $1,000 reward offered

But something happened recently that left Ragsdale entirely speechless

KVII Television in Amarillo and the Volunteer Action Center of the United Way chose Ragsdale, along with seven other Panhandle residents, as recipients of the 7 Who Care Award in recognition of outstanding volunteer service. Jo Ann Jones, one of those who recommended Ragsdale for the award, was given the privilege of telling him he had been chosen.

"It was a complete surprise, Ragsdale said. He was so moved by the honor, he didn't trust himself to speak.

'I nominated him because I was on the Good Samaritan (Christian Services) board when we chose him as executive director. He never accepted a salary, even though it was allowed for in the by-laws," Jones said. "You can find someone who'll do that for six months to a year, but he's going on four years now.

In her nomination, Jones wrote: "I feel that Bill is primarily responsible for the success of the organization. That would be a

'We can say that Good Samaritan Christian Services has accomplished its stated goal, which was to coordinate the efforts of local churches to assist the needy. However, it's been the personal devotion of Bill Ragsdale which makes that statement a fact," she said.

Clotille Thompson, director of the White Deer Land Museum, also nominated Ragsdale for the

"He's donated so much of his time here," she said. "In the early years, he helped us put the Rola Sailor Arrowhead Collection together. It's one of the finest in the Southwest. He's given us worlds of information," she added.

Ragsdale helped coordinate the arrowhead collection through his knowledge of Indian lore and history of this area. He has also spent many volunteer hours making educational program tapes for use at the White Deer Land Museum.

"He fixes things when they go wrong, quietly, willingly, puffing on his pipe, and then he goes along," Thompson said.

Ragsdale's other volunteer efforts include serving as a Webelo leader for Pack #24 and #14 for many years, as well as a Merit Badge counselor and as a member of the District Eagle Board of Review for Boy Scouting.

He assisted with English classes for Orientals who had come to Pampa, and he taught code and fundamental ham radio classes to help others get their licenses. In addition he has served several years on the advisory board of the High Plains Food Bank in Amarillo through his work with Good Samaritan Christian Services.

As the recipient of the 7 Who Care Award, Ragsdale will receive $500 personally and KVII donates $500 to the charity designated by each winner. Ragsdale donated all of the amount to Good Samaritan Christian Services.

Other winners of the award include a Perryton couple, Harold and Joyce Courson. A former Perryton mayor, Harold initiated the Clean-Up Bsautification Program and stocked area lakes for community fishing and serves on Cal Farley's Boys Ranch Board of Directors.

Joyce launched "Santa's Helpers," which provides Christmas toys for needy children in the area. She also organized the local Circle of Friends chapter of the Great Texas Trash-Off to clean up highways

Just a couple of years ago, Texans were throwing trash on Texas highways to the tune of $24 million in annual cleanup costs

Today, they're singing the lyrics to "Don't Mess With Texas' commercials and sporting T-shirts and bumper stickers with the motto.

The popular, tough-talking anti-litter program apparently has made some effective inroads in the battle. After just two years, roadside trash has been reduced by 54 percent, according to officials of the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

Saturday morning, volunteers from Pampa and surrounding communities will be among more than 20,000 who will comb 2,400 miles of Texas right-of-way, bar ditches and culverts in the largest trash cleanup in the nation.

Spearheading the efforts in Pampa is Clean Pampa Inc., which has been encouraging local groups and business associations to adopt two miles of state highway approaches to the community.

Clean Pampa Coordinator Janice Miller said local groups have been contacted about the third annual Great Texas Trash-Off, to begin at 9 a.m.

Saturday and continue until around noon. The Pampa groups, along with others in the surrounding area communities, are among approximately 1,200 Adopt-A-Highway groups across the state.

During last year's Trash-Off, 16.843 volunteers cleaned up 2,484 miles of state highways, collecting 1,633,720 gallons of trash in nearly 41,000 33-gallon

"This year's Trash-Off will involve 5,200 more volunteers and 7,600 more bags of trash," said Don Clark, director of the highway department's travel and information division.

"Our first priority is to get the bottles out of the bluebonnets and other wildflowers," he said.

'By combining the energy of all the Adopt-A-Highway groups, such as Pampa's, we aim to remind Texans that trash belongs in a trash can not along our highways. It's unsightly, unsafe and an expense Texas taxpayers should not have to Clark added.

The highway department, with the support of Keep Texas Beautiful and its affiliates such as Clean Pampa, began its aggressive war against litter in 1985 with the tough-talking Don't Mess With Texas program. The first of its kind in the United States to speak directly to "habitual" litterers, the program has helped to reduce the amount of litter dotting highway right-of-ways.

The program has been credited with helping to begin a reduction in expenses to keep roadsides clean. The cost had been increasing 17 to 20 percent every year since 1970.

The Don't Mess With Texas concept has also spread to other areas involving litter problems, with affiliates of the Texas Conservation Foundation, the General Land Office and the Lower Colorado River Authority joining Keep Texas Beautiful and the State Highway Department in similar programs to clean up Texas beaches, lakes, and city streets and parks

In conjunction with the Great Texas Trash-Off, Land Commissioneer Gary Mauro has called on Texans to join Saturday in the Great Texas Beach Trash-Off, an event he said will aid in restoring the state beaches to their original pristine beauty and also dramatize the need for a ban on solid waste disposal in the Gulf of Mexico. While volunteers are cleaning up the highways others will be participating in a coastwide network of Adopt-A-Beach programs along 186 miles of beaches along the coast. Mauro also announced that for the first time, plastic items picked up during the beach cleanup will be recycled in a demonstration project. Recyclable plastic products include plastic oil containers, opaque plastic bottles, plastic buckets and six-pack ring connectors.

"We've got to get the plastic out of the Gulf and off our beaches," Mauro said. "And we need to begin recycling it, because left on its own, plastic takes about 400 years to degrade.

In addition to the highway and coastal beach projects, other groups will be cleaning up various state lake sites Saturday.

The Trash-Off projects are another activity being conducted as part of the Keep America Beautiful and Keep Texas Beautiful Month prog-

Lawmaker bets lottery will pass

AUSTIN (AP) — A legislative sponsor of a state lottery predicts the game of chance will win enough support from lawmakers next year to be placed on the ballot as a proposed constitutional amendment or non-binding referendum. "I assure you the lottery will be introduced again next session.

There is tremendous support in the House and Senate for passage of the lottery," said Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston.

Wilson, who has sponsored unsuccessful lottery measures in the past four years, said those who favor a lottery would try to gain majority support to force a non-binding referendum.

Fluor Daniel employee dies after heart attack at work

A 39-year-old Oklahoma man died of an apparent heart attack Wednesday while working on the Hoechst Celanese chemical plant.

Gary Marall Shafer, an employee of Fluor Daniel Inc., the contractor working on rebuilding the damaged plant, died shortly after arriving at Coronado Hospital on Wednesday morning, said Fluor Daniel Project Manager Bob Pratt. Mr. Shafer, of Clinton, Okla., was working on a scaffold when he apparently suffered a seizure, sat down and called for help, Pratt said. The emergency team at the plant administered cardiopulmonary resucitation (CPR), and Shafer was transported to Coronado Hospital by ambulance.

Pratt said nurses at the hospital told him the employee's death was caused by a heart attack. No autopsy has been ordered.

Fluor Daniel, with Texas offices in Sugar Land, was hired in January to rebuild the plant, heavily damaged by explosions in November.

Funeral services for Mr. Shafer are pending with Fairview Funeral Home in Fairview, Okla.

Santa Fe District kicks off sustaining membership drive

The Santa Fe District of the Golden Spread Council of Boy Scouts of America kicked off its sustaining membership enrollment drive with a luncheon Thursday for volunteer workers.

Workers will be calling on individuals, businesses and others during the next two weeks in an effort to reach the district's goal of $16,000 in funds to help support scouting programs in Pampa and surrounding communities.

District Executive Bob Sharp explained that the district gets only 38 percent of its funds from the United Way. He added that while the district is extremely grateful for the United Way support, it doesn't cover all the expenses to run the Boy, Cub, Webelos and Explorer scouting programs in the

Though other funding sources are also used, such as scouting fees, endowment funds and sales to the public, the district depends on the annual sustaining membership enrollment (SME) for 30 percent of its operations.

'We're asking that you help us meet this goal, Sharp said to the volunteers who attended the luncheon meeting at the Pampa Community Building. '(Scouting) deserves to go on," Sharp stated.

The SME drive provides a chance "to give the whole community the opportunity to support scouting," he said, noting that scouting impacts the entire community, either through children in the programs, various civic and service projects, or the development of future community leaders.

Sharp said it costs an average of $100 a year to pay for one scout for one year, including all the support services, leadership training, materials, expenses for activities, and administrative ser-

He provided a percentage breakdown of how the funds are spent in the district:

■ 60 percent for service to units, including staff and leadership training, administrative services, postage, insurance, telephone, utilities, bulletins, auditing, record keeping and travel;

■ 15 percent for camps, including facilities, equipment and maintenance needs;

■ 14 percent for activities and civic service, including roundups, recognition dinners, camporees. meetings and community service duties;

■ 9 percent for leadership development, including training aids, materials, certificates, awards and training programs; and

■ 2 percent for national council support and administrative expenses beyond the district level.

Only 2 cents out of each dollar goes out of the district, Sharp said, to cover national council charter fees, materials and support services offered to the district.

SME Drive Chairman Hal Cree said, "I know it's hard to raise money, especially in these times, but remember what it's all for."

Cree said scouting can teach youth about the country and its standards, produce future community leaders, provide education in various camping, career and service skills and help youth to resist many of the problems facing young people today, such as drug and alcohol abuse.

"I'm really pleased to see there's so many people willing to work on this drive," Cree said, noting that approximately 60 volunteers will be participating in the SME drive this year.

The board, in a preliminary Thursday vote expected to be affirmed Friday, awarded the money to 345 research faculty teams at 30 higher education institutions. The fund for research grants in science and engineering was established by the 1987 Legislature.

The largest single recipient of funds was the University of Texas at Austin, which got $17.78 million. The subject area receiving the largest amount of research funding was biomedicine, with $6.9 million.

"These scientists will create new products and processes necessary to attract new industry to Texas," said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby. "The state's economic development efforts hinge on the ability of our universities to develop and transfer knowledge and technology."

Research proposals receiving grants ranged from development of heart replacement and assist devices at Baylor College of Medicine to cultivation of native grape rootstocks for diseaseresistant Texas vineyards at Sul Ross State University

Other proposals include research at Texas A&M University on blacks and Hispanics in the political system and an energy project involving fusion at the University of Texas at Austin.

The research grant program "establishes Texas in the eyes of the nation as a leader in research and development and makes our state attractive to new business and industry," said board member Larry Temple.

Guidelines for grant proposals were developed by a panel of Texas scientists and approved by the board. Thirteen panels of experts, who were not affiliated with Texas universities, reviewed the proposals. Most of the experts were recommended by the staff of organizations with national competitive grant programs, the board said.

The scientists' group reviewed the panels' recommendations and developed the list approved by the board.

Love on the tracks

"I think it's significant that these experts identified 600 proposals as being equal to or better than those being funded in national research grant competitions," Temple said. He said it would have cost more than $100 million to fund those 600 proposals.

"This meant that some difficult choices had to be made," he said.

Of the grant awards, $20 million was set aside for basic research and $40 million for technology, or applied re-

Teacher dissatisfaction cited

DALLAS (AP) - Nearly 40 percent of Texas' public school teachers are seriously considering finding another profession, the Texas State Teachers Association reported today

TSTA President Charles Beard said a recent survey also showed that 29 percent of the teachers hold second jobs during the school year because of

The results of the survey by David Henderson, professor of teacher education at Sam Houston State University, were released at TSTA's annual convention here.

"The findings are bleak for our state's 180,000 teachers, and unless the state Legislature intervenes during the next session, the prospects for improvements in the near future will not be much better," Beard said.

The Henderson survey showed the average Texas teacher is 43 years old, female, has been teaching for more than 15 years and now earns

Forty-three percent of the teachers are now the major wage-earner in their families. Of the state's 1,100 school districts, 745 made no improvements in local salary schedules this year, the survey showed. One hundred eleven districts cut the local

"TSTA understands that the Texas economy has placed a hardship on many school districts. At the same time, a great many districts have needlessly frozen pay and used the opportunity to blame the economy for their actions," Beard said.

"We do know that the oil-patch economy was not the only factor at work. Sadly, it appears that some communities are not willing to adequately fund their schools," he said.

Texas teacher salaries are now 27th in the nation, down from 21st in 1984 when the Select Committee on Public Education made its recommendations that led to major changes in the state's

"Here we are just four years later and our national standing is no better today than it was in the pre-reform days. This is a sad commentary on our commitment to improving education," Beard

"Texas teachers have earned our support. They have been tested, given additional responsibilities and are being evaluated annually on their individual performances," he said

Ten indicted in alleged gang rape, kidnapping of woman

Boulter accuses Bentsen of holding

SAN DIEGO, Texas (AP) — Indictments against 10 men will not repair the shattered life of a 19year-old woman who remains in hiding with her family since she reported being abducted and gang raped last month, friends say.

'They have to get out of San Diego,'' said Richard Yaeger, a friend of the victim and her 23-year-old husband. "They'll never be able to come back here.

The couple and their two children, ages 16 months and four months, have lived in a secret location in Corpus Christi, since shortly after she reported the March 26 abduction and rape by as many as 20 men, Yaeger said.

A grand jury on Thursday indicted 10 men on charges of sexual assault and-or aggravated kid-

The woman said the four-hour series of assaults began at a cockfight at a ranch. She said her attackers urged onlookers to join in the attack. Bystanders ignored her pleas for help and some did join her attackers, she said.

The woman said she was taken to two other locations and raped there.

"These people here are acting like (the victim and her family) are in the wrong," Yaeger said, adding they have been threatened several times since the incident. But Dot Barnette of Crisis Services in Corpus Christi said more than $8,000 has been donated to the family, along with a job offer for the unem-

"I would say that the response from the community has been fantastic, particularly with individuals," Ms. Barnette said.

Those testifying before the grand jury Thursday included the woman, her husband, some of the defendants and several witnesses, said Rodolfo Gutierrez, a Duval County assistant district

He said a 12-year-old boy was among the witnesses testifying. "I believe the grand jury made the right decision, based on the evidence that was presented to them," Gutierrez said.

The grand jury handed up 12 indictments, Gutierrez said Charged with sexual assault are: Roel Torres,

24; Ruben Vela Jr., ?? and and Jose Carlos Briones, 29

Charged with sexual assault and aggravated kidnapping are: Orlando Garza, 23; Corando Perez, 23; Alejandro Bear, 21; Roberto Garcia, 21 and Felipe Chew, 28.

Roberto Perez, 25, was charged with sexual assault and two aggravated kidnapping charges, because he is accused of taking the victim to a third location to rape her. Isidro Solis, 26, was charged only with kidnap-

Gutierrez said the 10 men probably would be rearrested today.

Bonds for each sexual assault charge were set at $50,000; bonds for each kidnapping charge were set at $100,000. Officials also are investigating a report that a 14-year-old boy was involved in the sexual attack. County Attorney Abelardo Garza said his investigation of the 14-year-old is independent of the grand jury investigation.

'Whatever is the outcome of the grand jury will have no bearing on my investigation," Garza said.

The royal couple are scheduled to visit Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children and Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, where they will meet Stormie Jones, the little girl who survived the first tandem liver and heart transplant 14 months

240 million victims mugged last week

Police on Saturday morning, April 16, reported a robbery of more than $1 trillion, a record amount. The 240 million victims, following a day-long mugging the preceding Friday, each identified the thieves as a gang of men and women wearing uniforms marked with the letters "IRS." Lt. Ronald Reagan and Sgt. George Bush, officers assigned to the case, promised to find and apprehend the criminals. But the officers have not been seen in hours and may have lost their way driving to the scene of the crime. Some critics of the police department's recent performance even suspect that the officers have joined forces with the

The IRS gang reportedly works for organized crime boss Jim "Snake Oil" Wright. Snake Oil has a long history of criminal activity, beginning when he headed a gang in Texas in the early 1950s. In 1954 he moved to Washington, D.C., where he became first a trusted button man, then a top consiglieri, or counselor, to the world's largest organized crime syndicate, unofficially dubbed the Congresta Nostra. It's capital hideout is in a gaudy structure atop one of the city's hills. In 1987 Snake Oil bumped off several rival mobsters and became capo de tutti capo, boss of all the bosses, in the Congresta Nostra.

From Washington the Congresta Nostra sends out "enforcers," special gang members trained in extortion, arm-twisting and grand larceny. The enforcers have adopted the slogan "Injustice, Robbery, Slavery," and wherever they can they proudly display the acronym IRS.

Edward Kennedy, a lawyer for the firm Grab. Spend, Porkbarrel and Kennedy, held a press conference today to respond to the latest allegations. He insisted that "there is no such thing as the Congresta Nostra or the IRS gang. The supposed 240 million victims are the real criminals. They deserve even worse. I invite anyone who needs proof of this to come with me in a fact-finding trip. We will go on a bridge over the Washington Tidal Basin to the Congresta Nostra's alleged hill hideout."

According to many of today's 240 million victims, this year's heist was even more harrowing than a similar one that occurred on April 15 last year. This year the IRS gang tortured victims by forcing them to fill out forms even more complex and incomprehensible than last year's. Those who pleaded ignorance were tortured most of all.

Since many criminologists believe this to be a serial robbery, with new stickups to occur each April 15 in the future, many victims dread that next year will be even worse still. Another bad sign is that later this year Sgt. Bush, despite his possible defections, is expected to be promoted to lieutenant in charge of stopping the Congresta Nostra mob and the IRS gang.

Taxpayers have rights, too!!

WASHINGTON — To keep the record straight: Of course the Internal Revenue Service should be tough on tax cheats. Of course the IRS should collect every dollar of taxes that honestly is owed. Of course the government has a right to enforce our tax laws. OK?

But taxpayers have rights too, and under a bill approved by the Senate Finance Committee last month, they would have their rights written into law. High time! And no better time for passing the bill could be found than the month of April, when millions of Americans file their income tax returns.

Sponsored chiefly by Sen. David Pryor of Arkansas, the "Taxpayers' Bill of Rights" amounts to a kind of Miranda rule for the people. Before seizing a citizen's property or tying up a taxpayer's bank account, the IRS would be required to give fair notice to the accused. Taxpayers would have a right to counsel. They could not be summoned to distant IRS office for interrogation.

The bill would establish an altogether proper relationship in which agents of the IRS are cast in the role of public servants, not public mas-

Behind the pending legislation is an ugly history of abuse of power by the IRS. Senate hearings turned up a parade of witnesses who testified to unjustified harassment by tax collectors whose rule was to seize first and to ask questions

I have written before of the bitter experience of Thomas Treadway and Shirley Lojeski of Pennsylvania. The IRS developed a notion that Treadway owed $247,000 in back taxes. Without notice of any kind, the government seized his girlfriend's bank account on the theory that Treadway was concealing assets there. After months of travail, in which two lives and two businesses were thrown into turmoil, it transpired that Treadway didn't owe the $247,000 after all. Sorry 'bout that.

Under Pryor's bill, the IRS would be required at the outset of a dispute to give a taxpayer a written explanation of his rights. It seems little enough to ask. Interviews could be conducted only under "reasonable" conditions of time and place. The bill permits a taxpayer to make a recording of such inquisitions

One of the best provisions of Pryor's bill has to do with erroneous advice given by the IRS itself. In recent months the papers have been filled with horror stories of answers in conflict. Given the same set of facts, IRS agents across the nation have come up with wildly varying opinions on the hypothetical tax that would be due.

The bill spells out a system by which the taxpayer may request written advice from the IRS. If the taxpayer relies on the advice, having provided accurate data, and the advice turns out to be wrong, the taxpayer is home free. No penalties may be imposed

For some years the IRS voluntarily has maintained an ombudsman's office for the resolution of tax problems that lie beyond normal channels. Under Pryor's bill, this office would be established by law. Similarly, the position of assistant commissioner for taxpayer services would be created by statute. The idea is to provide some relief for a taxpayer "who is suffering or about to suffer a significant hardship as a result of the manner in which the IRS is administering the internal revenue laws.

The most drastic power of the IRS is the power to seize a taxpayer's property as a credit against taxes thought to be owed. Under existing law, only 10 days' notice need be given, and this may be disregarded at the government's discretion. Pryor's bill would require 30 days' notice of a levy.

The IRS now has authority to reach a taxpayer through his employer and to seize all wages above $75 a week. Pryor would enlarge the types of property exempt from levy, and he would index the wage provisions against infla-

In theory (and by regulation), IRS agents are not to be rewarded for the number of seizures they initiate. The rule is not always followed. Some IRS agents have "seizure fever." They love nothing more dearly than a whopping good levy. Pryor would give taxpayers a right to sue for damages sustained as a result of an agent's unlawful actions.

IRS Commissioner Lawrence Gibbs opposes the Taxpayers' Bill of Rights, but his reasons are feeble. He says it is unnecessary to write these provisions into statutory law; the IRS can adopt the same beneficial rules by internal regulation. Pfui! The regulation that is adopted today may be repealed tomorrow. Acts of Congress are not so easily repealed. Pryor's bill is a good bill. Pass it!

Find the Ten Commandments

Scripture says that a man is supposed to be the "spiritual head of the household." I am aware of that

It just hasn't happened that way in our family. My dainty live-in Angel with her whim of iron is unquestionably the better spiritual example for both my son and myself.

It is Angel who encourages our Scripture study — by her own quiet example.

It is she who listens to all of the logic and emotional debate relating to some personal or professional decision and then comes up with a single question that makes the answer easy. She will ask, "Is it right or is it wrong?"

And it is my one-in-a-million Angel who, in her selfless, loving, way, lifting the load from others onto her own fragile shoulders, demonstrates God's ultimate admonition to us all: to "do unto others .

I mention this so you'll understand her recent

It would be nice if the copy might be elegant —

We explained that there is an admonition in the Old Testament - Deuteronomy, chapter six. verse nine - that we should "write the law upon the post of thy house and upon thy gates." One clerk on the other end of the telephone - from a religious bookstore - replied, "Is that

Another clerk asked why didn't we just tear that page out of the Bible.

Even the extensive bookstore at the Moody Bible Institute did not have a copy of the Ten Commandments

I called a rabbi friend of one of Chicago's larger congregations, remembering that his temple maintained a gift shop dispensing religious artifacts and garments and documents - but no copy of the Ten Commandments.

What we finally found — in a store that sells mostly greeting cards - was a small paper bookmark that includes the Commandments. The print is too tiny to read easily so I'm thinking I may ask a friend who is a gifted calligrapher if he will mind spelling out the Law of Moses for our purpose.

Smoke, if you want

By CHUCK STONE

"God looks after fools, drunkards and the United States," an anonymous philosopher once observed. Add a fourth object of divine protection: smokers.

They're a lot closer to the scurrility of fools and drunkards than the nobility of the United States. Besides, God likes to do things in groups of four (four seasons, four points of the compass).

It's not my intention to impugn smokers. Some of my best friends are smokers. I wouldn't care if one moved in next door to me or married my daughter.

It is also a self-evident truth, that all smokers are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these rights are death, tyranny and the pursuit of scabbiness. Each year, smoking contributes to 320,000 premature deaths, according to the U.S. Office on Smoking and Health. But the tobacco industry continues to con smokers with advertising designed to associate smoking with sophisticated ladies and hot fun in the summertime.

The real reason smokers suck the cancerous weed with such obsessive intensity is not its addictive qualities. but the delayed fulfillment of a postnatal deprivation - the suckling need. Some psychologists even contend that extended nursing ingrains an early serenity that can stall later thereby smoking

In 1988, I can't think of a single defense of smoking, except that this genocidal act provides a lot of jobs. But so does the cultivation of marijuana, which is America's fourth largest selling crop.

The good news - if you read Time magazine's recent cover story - is that we're starting to win the war against the tobacco industry:

· The latest scientific evidence from the Surgeon General's office indicates that passive or involuntary smoking (when a nonsmoker is in the same area as people who are smoking) can cause a greater percentage of pregnant women to miscarry. Some 26 percent of American adults smoke, down from 38 percent 30 years ago.

• Thirty-one states and more than 200 communities, including Beverly Hills, Calif., Cambridge, Mass., New York City, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, have passed anti-smoking ordinances in various public situations.

· Major corporations (most notably the ubiquitous and insomniac Cable News Network) are refusing to hire people who smoke. (Way to go, CNN!)

· Congressional legislation is in the pipeline to ban all print cigarette advertising, double the federal excise tax on packs of cigarettes, and end cigarette companies' eligibility to claim advertising costs as a tax-deductible business expense. (This is known as hittin' 'em where they live).

. In the most farsighted and courageous act of all, Northwest Airlines became the first major airline to ban smoking on all of its domestic flights. The effect on me was immediate. Planning a flight to the West Coast for a speech in July, I had three airline options. I bought my ticket from Northwest.

But the tobacco industry is fighting back. It could immobilize the antismoking war if the 74 percent of nonsmoking America doesn't prepare a counter-offensive.

After the Northwest announcement, a furious RJR Nabsico (which manufactures everything from Camels, Winstons and Salems to Oreo cookies, Fig Newtons and Life Savers) imperiously canceled $84 million worth of advertising with the ad agency that had prepared Northwest's anti-smoking TV commercial. That's First Amendment dirty pool.

RJR Nabsico has made its statement. Nonsmokers, make yours. And smokers, it's OK to smoke. Just don't exhale.

"I sincerely hope that will not be necessary, that in the end the president will sign the bill," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen. D-Texas, said after the 312-107 House vote Thursday in favor of the measure.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W Va., told reporters he plans to start debate today and shoot for final passage early next week.

Byrd again warned that an administration favorite - the pending freetrade agreement to phase out tariffs between the United States and Canada - could get entangled in any Reagan veto. There has been talk in the Senate of a filibuster to stall the agreement. But Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont, said Thursday night that it "is clear that there are at least 60 votes to stop the filibuster.'

Reagan said Thursday that he will veto the bill if it arrives on his desk with a provision to require all but the smallest employers to give 60-day notice of plant closings and large-scale layoffs.

Business groups have fought the plant-closings provision on grounds it would dry up capital for investment, frighten off customers and cause economic stagnation. Unions are calling for the measure, saying that notifying employees about to lose their jobs is the only humane thing to do.

In recent days the dispute over plant closings has overshadowed the centerpiece features of the bill, which would streamline the system under which the United States aids companies threatened by imports and retaliates against international trade violations.

Scores of other provisions range from repeal of the windfall oil profits tax to sizeable agricultural subsidies.

A key vote in the House came just before the roll call on final passage, when lawmakers voted 253-167 against a move by Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., to send the measure back to conference committee with orders to drop the plant-closings provision.

On the final vote on the bill itself, the hefty House margin reflected concern in Northeastern states over import competition and perhaps election-year reluctance to fight anything billed as sharpening the U.S. edge in global mar-

On the roll call, 244 Democrats backed the bill and two opposed it. Reps. Richard A. Gephardt, D-Mo., said it should go further and include something similar to his amendment to roll back Japanese trade surpluses. Rep. Robert J. Mrazek, D-N.Y., said the bill contained too much protectionism.

Sixty-eight Republicans voted for the bill and 105 opposed it. There were heavy defections among New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania Republi-

The lawmakers spent most of the afternoon leading up to the vote arguing over the plant-closings provision. "This amendment is obviously a nongermane, counterproductive hitchhiker that's going to get this bill vetoed,' Rep. William Frenzel, R-Minn., said. "We can exorcize this demon."

Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., called the bill too important to get hung up on an issue such as plant-closing notifications. He said it ought to be viewed as a relatively minor amendment because "it is so modest, it has been so watered down and it contains so many exceptions" that it probably would not do as much as its supporters

President is worried about new nuclear weapons treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is voicing fear that Senate failure to approve a nuclear missile treaty quickly will "put a strain" on his summit next month with Soviet leader Mikhail

Answering questions from an audience in Springfield, Mass., Reagan also sought Thursday to lower expectations that the superpowers will agree soon on an accord to slash their arsenals of intercontinental ballistic missiles. During a speech which White House officials said would outline some U.S. objectives at the May 29-June 2 summit in Moscow, Reagan said relations between Washington and Moscow have reached "a period of realistic engagement."

The president said the United States has achieved some successes in recent dealings with the Kremlin because American policy toward the Soviet Union has placed more emphasis on preaching the gospel of freedom around the world rather than merely seeking to contain communist expansionism.

Reagan's speech to the World Affairs Council of Western Massachusetts was the second of its kind in recent weeks as he and his aides prepare for the coming summit.

Asked by a law student to describe what would happen if the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces treaty is not ratified by the Senate by the time the summit arrives, Reagan said, "I think it would be very upsetting and it would put a strain on the summit."

'We hope and pray that they will (approve the pact), but the scheduling of it has been such that I am very concerned we may have to go without having it ratified," he said.

Reagan got little comfort on that score Thursday, as Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., declared, "I am not going to rush to judg-

Byrd said the Senate will not speed through the ratification debate, scheduled to start May 9.

'We want a good treaty, that is our objective." the senator said, adding that the White Houserequested summit deadline for ratification "doesn't guide me at all."

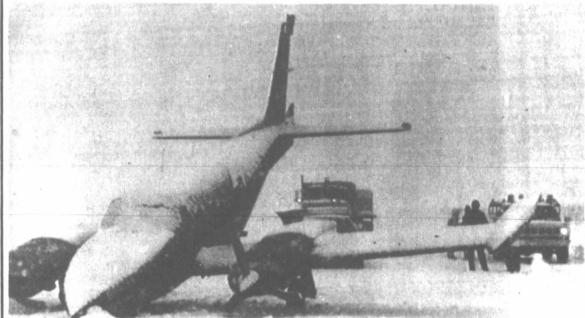

Several senators have expressed concern that provisions of the INF treaty may ban development of futuristic weapons

En route to Massachusetts, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said "we'll be working with the Hill" on this problem. But he also said "it would be a shame if it did not happen. We think we can overcome any obstacles. But there are still hurdles to be crossed.

In response to another question during the Springfield outing, Reagan acknowledged that 'there's a great question" about whether a treaty banning up to 50 percent of long-range nuclear missiles can be ready for signing during the Moscow

But he said that "we don't want a fast treaty. We want a good treaty. We have never set a deadline" for agreement on the strategic arms reduction

Public being misguided by AIDS prevention strategies, doctors say

CHICAGO (AP) - A study found there is a one-in-50 million chance of getting the AIDS virus in a single sexual encounter with someone who doesn't know whether he is infected, but is not considered

"high-risk" and uses a condom. That compares with a one-in-10,000 to one-in-100,000 chance of getting the virus from the same type of encounter with a person who is in a highrisk group, said the study, reported in today's

Journal of the American Medical Association High-risk partners are people who, anytime within the past 10 years, have had male homosexual contact, shared intravenous drug needles, lived in Haiti or Central Africa or received multiple blood products, the study said

Using condoms lowers risk of getting AIDS about 10-fold, regardless of other factors, said the study. Relying on a lab test that establishes one's sexual partner as free of the AIDS virus lessens risk about 100-fold.

The study also found that AIDS-prevention campaigns may mislead the public when they stress condom use and fewer sexual partners over another strategy — a cautious courtship in search of a low-risk lover.

Choosing a partner who is known to have little chance of carrying the AIDS virus reduces the risk of infection by as much as 5,000 times compared with the risk of engaging in sex with a high-risk person, the study said.

A knowledge of where the largest risks occur should lead people "to move toward gradual courtships, to listen carefully for clues about a potential partner's past and to ask directly about any history of high-risk activities," the study said.

'We're not saying, 'Throw away your condoms," said Dr. Norman Hearst, one of the study's authors and assistant professor of family medicine and epidemiology at the University of California at San Francisco.

"We're just saying this is something else to pay attention to that may be even more important," he said by telephone Thursday.

Hearst and a colleague, Dr. Stephen B. Hulley. analyzed estimates of the prevalence of AIDS infection and the likelihood it will be transmitted under different circumstances.

An uninfected person had a one-in-50 million chance of getting the AIDS virus in a single encounter with a person who doesn't know whether he is infected, but who uses a condom and is not in a high-risk group, the study said.

because it sometimes shows people to be free of the virus when they are not, Hearst said. Also, people may fail to test positive for several months after they are infected. Hearst said he believes the study is the first to

Dukakis, Jackson duel for primary votes in Pennsylvania and Ohio

By The Associated Press

Jesse Jackson and Michael Dukakis, now in a one-on-one fight for the Democratic presidential nomination, worked to win labor support in the industrial states of Ohio and Pennsylvania. And both fired anew at embattled Attorney General Edwin Meese

Sen. Albert Gore Jr. abandoned his presidential bid on Thursday, vowing to do all he could to help put a Democrat in the White House.

"The nominee is going to be Michael Dukakis or Jesse Jackson. I'm going to do everything I can to help them....The only man I want to stop is George Bush." Gore said at a Washington news conference, with his family at his side.

The Tennessee senator suspended his campaign. technically remaining a candidate to permit his delegates to attend the Democratic National Convention. Gore, who had not won a primary or caucus since Super Tuesday, March 8, ended his effort more than $1.5 million in debt.

On the Republican side, Bush was coping with the kind of scheduling glitch that either of his Democratic rivals would envy - it looked as if he would clinch the number of delegates needed to nominate a little sooner than his staff had thought.

Aides to the vice president had been planning to celebrate the big moment on May 3, the date of primaries in Ohio, Indiana and the District of Columbia. But they made it clear that the development would be more than welcome whenever it Delegate counts maintained by both The Associated Press and the Bush campaign indicated Bush could secure the 1.139 needed to nominate in the next few days. He now has 1,058 to 17 for Pat Robertson, Bush's only remaining rival, according to the AP count.

Minnesota Republicans were selecting 15 delegates this week; Nevada Republicans will choose another 20 on Saturday. And there are 78 delegates at stake in Tuesday's Pennsylvania primary.

"At this point it's pretty much concluded. ... The race is over," Robertson said Thursday in Nevada.

Even though he has given up on the nomination, the former television evangelist expressed determination to make his mark on the GOP. In Nevada, his supporters were dominating the state convention and bidding for top state party posts.

Jackson was campaigning today in Pennsylvania, where polls have suggested he is running well behind Dukakis. In Tuesday's primary, 178 delegates are at stake

"I always run against great odds," Jackson said. Campaigning in the northwestern Pennsylvania city of Erie, Jackson courted blue-collar workers with a call for "economic justice."

"Profits are up, wages are down, factories are closing, and workers are abandoned," he told a crowd of about 4,000 people in a downtown park who braved a cold wind off nearby Lake Erie.

Jackson also renewed his criticism of Meese, who is the target of a yearlong criminal investigation and under pressure from some quarters to quit. The attorney general said Thursday there is no factor he knows of "right now that would cause me to resign.

"I want a Justice Department that stands for justice ... an attorney general that goes back and forth to court as a prosecutor for the people and not as a defender for himself," Jackson said.

Dukakis slammed Meese as he campaigned in Cleveland on Thursday. Ohio's primary follows Pennsylvania's by a week, and offers 159 dele-

Like Jackson, Dukakis highlighted labor issues. He was visiting an auto plant in Ohio and a steel plant in Pennsylvania today.

"We have a Labor Department and an NLRB (National Labor Relations Board) that won't stand up for America because we have got an attorney general who couldn't tell the difference between antitrust and antifreeze," Dukakis said.

Dukakis and Bush were neck-and-neck in national poll results released today by USA Today and Cable News Network. Dukakis got 45 percent support to Bush's 43 percent — a difference that fell within the survey's 3.3 percentage point margin of

Judge: Jury should decide conspiracy claim

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - A federal judge dismissed some claims against three cigarette makers in a cancer-liability case, but ruled there is sufficient evidence for a jury to decide whether the companies conspired to cover up the dangers of smoking.

"The evidence presented ... permits the jury to find a tobacco industry conspiracy, vast in its scope, devious in its purpose and devastating in its results." U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin said Thursday.

However, the judge also dismissed claims that the three companies caused Rose Cipollone's cancer by not marketing a safer cigarette and by not conducting adequate research into the health effects of smoking.

The judge turned down a request by the companies - Liggett Group Inc., Philip Morris Inc. and Lorillard Inc. — to dismiss the suit filed by Antonio Cipollone of Lakehurst, whose wife died at age 58 in 1984 after smoking for 40 years.

The suit has been on trial since Feb. 1, and Cipollone's lawyers have rested their case, which they tout as groundbreaking because for the first time a plaintiff's lawyers obtained access to confidential files of tobacco companies and trade groups detailing their public relations strategies.

In a sometimes scathing 33page opinion Sarokin wrote that the evidence indicated the companies conspired to conceal and misrepresent information on the dangers of smoking and to "refute, undermine and neutralize information coming from the scientific and medical community."

The judge said the evidence also indicated the companies tried to "confuse and mislead the consuming public in an effort to encourage existing smokers to continue and new persons to commence smoking.

"The jury may reasonably conclude that defendants were members of and engaged in that conspiracy with full knowledge and disregard for the illness and death it would cause, and that Mrs. Cipollone was merely one of its victims," Sarokin said.

Rejecting the defense request to dismiss all claims, he wrote, "If the jury accepts the plaintiff's version of the facts as to the conduct of the defendants, it is difficult to envision a more compelling case for an award of punitive damages.

Chuck Wall, a spokesman for Philip Morris and Lorillard, took exception to the tone of Sarokin's opinion. "I do think there were flourishes there from the judge's pen that went beyond the plaintiff's evidence," he said.

Postmaster says he's enlisting Perot's help

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new postmaster general wants H. Ross Perot to put his stamp on efforts to automate the mail service because the Dallas billionaire has spent a lifetime at the cutting edge of technology.

"He very easily knows reality from magic," postal spokesman Lou Eberhardt said Thursday. But Perot is downplaying the postal service's interest. He acknowledges he toured a Dallas postal facility after talking to Postmaster General

Anthony M. Frank, but says there's been much ado about nothing since the visit. "Everybody's trying to make something out of nothing," said

Perot, founder of Electronic Data

Systems. Perot says no deal has been struck for him to help the post office and that he toured the mail curiousity.
But Eberhardt said Perot's "assistance has been enlisted by the new postmaster general to advise on postal automation."

"This is not in the form of an offer yet, in terms of what Mr. Perot can do for for us. There has been contact - Mr. Perot has seen what we do, that it's an immense job," Eberhardt said facility merely to satisfy his own

after bank standoff ends searching for gunmen

LOS MOCHIS, Mexico (AP) - Gunmen eluded a huge police manhunt early today after fleeing this resort town with three hostages following a botched robbery and 24-hour siege in which five people were killed and 42 held captive.

All hostages were later freed. Unconfirmed local press reports said the robbers took about $13,000 in bank money. Carlos Cano, a policeman participating in the hunt, confirmed some money was taken but declined to say how much.

About 500 police and army personnel backed by a helicopter searched for the seven young men Thursday night and police set up blockades on highways leading out of the city.

'The gunmen must have gone to the Sierra, where it will be difficult to locate them," said Cano, referring to the nearby Sierra Madre mountain range. The gunmen had holed up inside the local offices of the National Bank of Mexico after the foiled robbery. They let their 42 hostages go Thursday and were permitted to flee in an armored car with three Red Cross workers. Police said the robbers released the Red Cross workers 15 minutes later, when they abandoned the armored car at a gas station and took off in a stolen pickup truck and station wagon.

One of the Red Cross workers, Rosario Angulo, said there were only five gunmen in the armored car, which he was forced to drive. Angulo said one of his captors had an arm wound.

'I think the other two mixed in among the crowd at the moment of leaving the bank," he said. Most police officers had withdrawn from around the bank just before the seven men left, apparently as part of an agreement ending the Angulo said the robbers strapped sticks of dynamite to their bodies and toted sawed-off machine guns. He said the men were calm.

Angulo and the other two Red Cross hostages were unhurt.

Mexican authorities routinely patrol the rugged Sierra Madre in search of marijuana and opium poppy plantations and clandestine airstrips used by drug traffickers.

Gov. Francisco Labastida Ochoa of Sinaloa state told the Televisa TV network Thursday that the release agreement allowed police to pursue the

"We're not deceiving anyone," the governor said. "We simply reached an agreement in which we could safeguard lives.'

Ignacio Lara, a spokesman for the governor, said the gunmen demanded earlier that they be allowed to leave by air. Police said the robbers were in their late teens or early 20s and had no political motives.

The standoff in Los Mochis, a town of 120,000 on the Gulf of California about 500 miles south of Tucson, Ariz., began at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday when the gunmen took hostages after an alarm alerted police there was a robbery in progress.

Red Cross spokesmen said five people were killed and at least 15 wounded during the attempted robbery and ensuing siege after hundreds of police surrounded the bank. Spokesman Jesus Acosta of the local Red Cross said one of its rescue workers was among those killed in a gunfight Wednesday between police and the robGrah

The wife of one hostage said her husband, farmworker Juan Jose Terraza. 29, was seriously wounded during the gunfight and was in grave condition at a local hospital. "He only wanted to cash a check" inside the bank, she said.

Troops break up anti-American protest

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Riot troops broke up the second anti-American demonstration in this capital in as many weeks, hurling tear gas grenades and firing into the air to stop about 200 protesters headed for the U.S. Embassy

At least one person was arrested. There were no immediate reports of injuries.

The protesters, chanting "Embassy, embassy!" had been part of a crowd of about 2,000 people who marched peacefully to the National Congress earlier Thursday to demonstrate against the Honduran government and U.S. policy in the Central American country

Five people were killed during a riot April 7 in which about 2,000 demonstrators sacked and burned the U.S. Consulate and offices of the U.S. Information Service. Those protesters were angered over the deportation to the United States of a Honduran man accused of drug trafficking.

About 50 riot police and army troops threw tear gas grenades into the 200 demonstrators as they advanced on the U.S. diplomatic mission Thursday

The tear gas dispersed the protesters momentarily, but they regrouped, cutting off a small contingent of what appeared to be young and illtrained troops who shot long bursts of fire from their M-16s into the air. The sound of shots sparked panic in the neighborhood.

Shultz and Gorbachev disagree on progress toward arms accord

MOSCOW (AP) - Mikhail S. Gorbachev suggested to Secretary of State George P. Shultz today that "we're marking time" in superpower relations as hope for a new arms control accord

But Shultz disagreed. "From our point of view, we are far from marking time," he said. "We are keeping time in a very strong

Shultz differed with the Soviet Communist Party general secretary's appraisal at a news conference after a three-hour session. But Shultz did not list an arms reduction treaty as one of the "significant achievements" to be expected when President Reagan meets with Gorbachev in a Moscow summit May 29-June 2.

In fact, Shultz said, "the going is hard" to complete a pact to reduce strategic nuclear weapons in the five weeks remaining.

"It's pick and shovel work," he said. Shultz's session with Gorbachev in the gilded Catherine's Hall followed nine hours of talks with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze over two days. When Shultz told the Soviet leader: "I'm here to make preparations for the president's visit,' Gorbachev responded: "As for the substance, it seems that we are losing something. Maybe we're marking time.

The two men shook hands at the outset, but Gorbachev seemed somewhat subdued. American reporters were cautioned by Soviet officials that if they tried to ask questions of Gorbachev during the photo-taking session they would not be invited back.

Usually, Gorbachev welcomes a few questions.

American officials have virtually abandoned hopes of completing a treaty to reduce longrange huclear missiles by May 29, the date for the Moscow summit.

On the regional front, there was little superpower cooperation. Despite another appeal by Shultz, the Soviets still declined to support an international arms embargo against Iran, which delays any action by the U.N. Security Council. And a U.S. official told reporters Thursday that a newly submitted Soviet draft on space defense conforms to a tough Soviet line that could make weapons cutbacks impossible.

President Reagan hoped to sign a treaty at the May 29-June 2 summit meeting to reduce arsenals of long-range bombers, missiles and submarines by 30 percent to 50 percent.

But the Soviets, suspicious of Reagan's "Star Wars" program, want a guarantee they could halt conducts tests in space judged to be in violation of the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty That is unacceptable to the Reagan administration, which has strenuously resisted limits on the program that seeks a spacebased defense against ballistic missiles.

The U.S. official, summing up Shultz's talks with Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze under rules of anonymity, said there were no breakthroughs.

However, he said they had a 'good exchange'' in a "positive atmosphere.

One small note of progress was an agreement on procedures for joint underground nuclear tests in July. The first test will be held in the Nevada desert, the other at Semipalatinsk, in the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan.

In reports to Congress, Reagan has accused the Soviets of exceeding the 150 kiloton ceiling set in 1974 and 1976 treaties. The Soviets denied the charges.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Democratic frontrunner Michael S. Dukakis is getting loads of advice on where to turn for a running mate, with many party leaders urging him to avoid Jesse Jackson and turn to a Southern senator.

But the Massachusetts governor indicated Thursday he wants maximum breathing room as he searches for someone to fill the No. 2 spot on the Democratic ticket.

"Obviously you look at regions where you could use some help," said former Gov. Charles Robb of Virginia. "The South and West are the regions. You also look at a philosophical segment where you could use some shoring up and I guess that would be with moderate conservative voters.

Robb, who had urged Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia to run for president, said he would like to see Nunn as the vice presidential candidate, but only if the senator were offered the opportunity to serve as secretary of defense at the same time.

Party chairman Paul G. Kirk Jr. predicted that the vice presidential nominee would be "a senator from the South or Southwest.'

"I wouldn't make that judgment at all," Dukakis said in an interview with The Associated Press. He also rejected suggestions that if Jackson finishes second in the race for the presidential nomination, he ought to be given the No. 2 spot on

"If I were to finish second, it wouldn't entitle me to anything more than consideration, period," Dukakis said

The discussion of potential Dukakis running mates began to intensify after the Massachusetts governor's strong victory in the New York primary established him as the likely Democratic presidential nominee

"I have spent literally zero time thinking about it. And I will not, unless and until I have either won the nomination, or it looks as if it's pretty well in hand," Dukakis insisted.

Robb said Jackson "doesn't fill in the kind of strengths he (Dukakis) needs.

'Both Dukakis and Jackson on the ticket together is not the best political decision you can make," said Robert G. Beckel, campaign manager for Walter F. Mondale when he was the Demo cratic presidential nominee in 1984.

"I think everybody fully expects to see a Southerner this time," said Al Lapierre, executive director of the Alabama Democratic Party.

He said Jackson on the ticket would hurt Dukakis because there still are many people who will not accept a black.

"The sad part is, not voting for him because of disagreement on issues or lack of experience in government, that's OK, that's what politics is all

NEW YORK (AP) — You really don't need to know much about investing to make a buck in the market these days.

Not that it's easy. You do need a few hundred million dollars, quick access to information, a good computer program and a willingness to push the buy or sell button. Given all that, you have a chance at another fortune.

Your activities have almost nothing to do with understanding the companies whose shares you buy or sell, or of assessing their fundamental values, or measuring their management or determining if they can remain competitive.

Your purpose as a program trader is not so much to invest in the potential earnings of corporations as it is to use the marketplace as a tool. While you need not understand companies, you must understand how to work the market.

Your focus is not just short-term in the usual sense of the word, which might mean a few months, but brief-term in the sense that you deal with tiny price variations that might come and go in a matter of minutes.

Some critics say the various program trading techniques are but a step away from manipulation. They say the public, sensing this, will stay away from stocks, just as reasonable humans and animals stay clear of the elephant herd.

In recent days, Donald Regan, former head of Merrill Lynch, said such activities should be outlawed, and former Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach suggested the public may come to view the market as controlled rather than free.

Congress is upset. Much of Wall Street is also disturbed, and the New York Stock Exchange has won approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission to curtail program trading whenever the Dow Jones industrial average moves 50 points

Much of the concern relates to extreme volatility that critics attribute to program trading, which often kicks in automatically when certain criteria are reached, thus exacerbating what otherwise might be minor price changes.

Program trading was among practices cited in the collapse of Oct. 19 and in the 100-point-plus selloff in a few hours last week. Not only is it associated with big moves, rightly or wrongly, but with reversals as well.

Institutions with computers, trading power, information and programs can make quick money on volatility. But volatility contradicts one of the basic promises of organized marketplaces, that is, an orderly flow of transactions.

A loss of confidence in organized markets is deadly. Reduce confidence and you reduce participation. Reduce participation and it means smaller commissions and maybe lower prices, too. Evidence of lowered confidence abounds today, measured by such things as unstable prices money left on the sidelines rather than committed to stocks, and shrunken price-earnings ratios.

Wright Investors Service points out that the price-earnings multiple — the number of times earnings at which stocks sell - is now down to about 13 times 1988 earnings for the Standard &

Poor's 500-stock index. Last summer it was 20. This and other evidence undoubtedly was considered by the Securities and Exchange Commission when it cited "the fragile nature of public confidence" in approving the Big Board's limitations on program trading.

Fire leaves dozens homeless

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A fire that roared through one building of an apartment complex and damaged another building left dozens of people, including a newlywed couple, homeless, authorities said.

A 36-year-old male resident of the complex was arrested Thursday night in connection with the blaze that caused an estimated $400,000 damage to the structure alone, arson investigators said.

Officials said the fire erupted in a lower apartment of a two-story building in the River Oaks Apartments. The fire destroyed 12 occupied apartments in one building and caused smoke and exposure damage to two neighboring buildings with 20 apart-

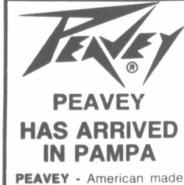

Authorities were not able to immediately estimate the damage to contents of the apartments.

Rescuers, however, were unable to save a Siberian husky belonging to Jim and Ramona Yarbrough, who had just returned from their wedding to find their apartment in flames.

'We haven't even lived here a month," Jim, 25, said as his 18year-old wife sobbed. "We lost everything, including our dog,

About 90 firefighters battled the blaze for nearly an hour, managing to contain the flames to one

An official at radio station KBUC said had arranged for 25 rooms to at the Marriott North Hotel to be open for fire victims.

God's presence with us is only as valuable as the value we place upon Him. Is He a common scrap to be discarded when we think we're through with Him, or is He purest gold to be consistently sought and treasured?

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: O God, you are my God, earnestly I seek you; my soul thirsts for you, my body longs for you, in a dry and weary land where there is no water. (Psalms 63:1 NIV)

My husband's family moved from the rain forest of south Arkansas, their lifelong home, to the open prairie of the Oklahoma panhandle.

To say they were in geographical and climatic shock is putting it mildly. In Arkansas, they lived in a tiny town which was little more than a small clearing in the woods. The pruning or removal of trees was not only common, but taken for granted. In stark contrast, Oklahoma greeted the family of newcomers with a panoramic view of nothing taller than prairie grass, tumbleweeds and yucca.

The house my in-laws bought had one small but healthy tree in the front yard. My father-in-law, accustomed to topping trees to encourage them to make better shade trees, got his saw and headed to his tree to cut away a section from the top.

He had no idea he was about to start a neighborhood uprising; before he could get started, several neighbors were suddenly standing beneath the tree, asking with great consternation, "You're not going to cut down the tree, are you?"

When he explained his intentions, the neighbors gave their blessings; however, they remained in the yard and watched to make sure he didn't cut away too much. The incident impressed my in-laws with the value the community placed on trees.

We Christians tend to be friends-in-need Christians. We take God's tender loving care for granted when everything is going well; however, when we become hopelessly entangled in life's hazards and hardships, we suddenly become aware of the value of God's touch. Our entreaties for His intervention and our desire for a closer walk suddenly become top priority.

How great our loss when we slide back into complacency when our crisis is over! How saddened our God who loves us

Texas delegates to attend national Methodist meeting United Methodist Church, second

Eight elected delegates from northwestern Texas will be attending the opening of the 1988 United Methodist General Conference in St. Louis on Tuesday.

The General Conference, highest legislative body in the United Methodist Church, convenes every four years. Decisions made during the 11-day meeting, which ends May 6, will affect the way United Methodists in Texas practice their Christian faith during the next four years.

Four ordained ministers and four laypeople represent northwestern Texas. Representatives from Methodist congregations in the region, including Pampa, elected the delegates last June at the Northwest Texas Annual Conference session in Lubbock. The lay delegates are Robert Baumgardner, an insurance representative from Brownfield; Thomas Kim, president of McMurry College in Abilene; Harold Nixon, a farm implement dealer from Abilene; and Jim Waterfield, a rancher from Canadian. The clergy delegates are Rev. R.L. Kirk Jr., senior pastor of St. Luke's UMC in Lubbock; Rev. Charles E. Lutrick, senior pastor of First UMC in Midland; Rev. Clifford E. Trotter, superintendent of the denomination's Amarillo District; and Rev. Charles D. Whittle, senior pastor of the First

UMC in Abilene. These eight representatives will join 988 other delegates from across Texas, the United States, Africa, Europe and the Philippines. Together, these representatives will determine the 10million member denomination's response to a variety of spiritual and social issues. Only the General Conference can officially speak for the entire

Evolution

"In the beginning was matter, which begat the amoeba, which begat the worm, which begat the fish, which begat the amphibian, which begat the monkey, which begat man, who imagined God. This is the genealogy of man."
So stated Charles Smith, former president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism, in his booklet Godless

"In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

So stated the prophet Moses in the first chapter, the first verse, the first book of the Bible - Gene-

Who is right? Is there a God of isn't there?

Is Exodus 20:11 correct when it asserts, "For in six days Jehovah made heaven and earth, the sea. and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day ..."?

Or did organic evolution - the result of spontaneous generation millions (billions?!) of years ago produce all that is seen before us today.

What is the answer?

These questions and evidences for both views will be discussed in a three-day seminar entitled "Science and Nature: Two Votes for God" to be held May 6-8 at Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ, 1342 Mary

The seminar will have a 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 6 session; 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. sessions on Saturday, May 7; and 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. sessions on Sunday, May 8.

The seminar will deal with such issues as scientific evidences for God's existence, a scientific examination of the theory of evolution, the Bible's inspiration and other issues.

There is no charge for the seminar; all sessions are free to the public. No collections of any kind will be made. Handout materials will also be made available free of charge to each participant.

Speaker for the seminar sessions will be Dr. Bert Thompson, former professor in the Department of Veterinary Public Health, College of Veterinary Science, Texas A&M University.

Dr. Thompson is currently professor of Bible and science at Alabama Christian School of Religion in Montgomery, Ala.

Speaking of the evolution issue, Thompson said, "This is a situation of intense proportions and tremendous magnitude. Either there is a god, or there is not. There is no middle ground."

One's personal beliefs on the matter holds significant impact on how an individual may choose to live his or her life, he said, adding that the seminar will examine evidence for God's exist-

Ariel Ministries to move offices

Ariel International Ministries of Midwest City, Okla., has announced plans to move its offices to Pampa by the end of

The offices will be located at the Spirit of Truth Church, 1200 S.

Claude C. Hargis, founder and director of Ariel International, has spoken at the Spirit of Truth Church several times during the past year, with both ministries cooperating together.

Ariel International has a fourfold vision of (1) teaching the Christian church concerning its Jewish roots and advocating a Hebraic understanding of the scriptures; (2) being a prophetic voice to the church and Israel, bridging the gap between Christians and Jews; (3) being a source of comfort and blessing to Israel and the Jewish people; and (4) ministering to and on behalf of the Jews captive in the Soviet

To accomplish these goals, Hargis travels extensively throughout the United States, speaking in churches, schools and synagogues. He has made two trips to the USSR in the past 12 months and is planning another trip this fall. He has been to Israel five times in recent years. Altogether, Hargis has traveled in 31 countries.

Ariel International also produces hundreds of cassettes each month that are distributed worldwide. Hargis' teaching tapes have been translated into German, French, Russian and other languages by people in foreign countries.

Future plans include the publication of several books and pamphlets. Ariel publishes a bimonthly newsletter with Judeo-Christian teaching and information about the ministry's interna-

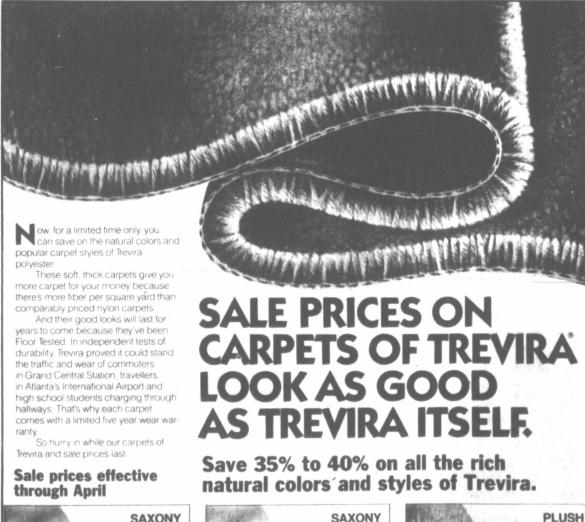

Ariel also sponsors a program whereby Christians in America can correspond with Jews in the Soviet Union.

An open house will be scheduled in June to acquaint the people of Pampa with Ariel International's multi-faceted ministry, Hargis said.

For Reagan and others, more cause for sorrow

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again President Reagan may face what he says is his saddest task: comforting the families of American servicemen lost in the line of duty

He has had to do a lot of it. More than 300 American servicemen have lost their lives in combat or to terrorists overseas since Reagan took office in Janu-

By contrast, the only servicemen who died in the line of duty during the four years Jimmy Carter was president were the eight killed when a helicopter collided with a transport plane during the abortive attempt in April 1980 to rescue the Americans held hostage in Iran.

The latest U.S. military involvement in the Persian Gulf may have added to the current toll. The White House said Wednesday the Navy has abandoned its search for a Marine helicopter that disappeared Monday over the gulf. The pilot and copilot were declared missing.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan might call the relatives of the missing crewmen, although he knew of no immediate plans to do so.

In an interview in February, asked what his greatest regrets were about his presidency. Reagan spoke of "calls that have had to be made to families who have lost someone" and said, "Those are things for which you have to be very sorry.

Asked whether the contrast between the Reagan and Carter figures is the fruit of a belligerent posture by Reagan, Joshua M. Epstein, a research associate in foreign policy studies at the Brookings Institute, said, "It's a tough question.

"It's hard to know what another administration would have done under the circumstances," said Epstein, author of defense studies including an analysis of U.S. strategy and force planning in the Persian

Reagan, who came to office charging that Carter had weakened America and vowing to regain respect abroad with a stern policy toward potential foes, has sometimes raised hackles in Congress with his bristling rhetoric and his acts to back it up.

Critics charged that he failed to think through the reasons for sending U.S. Marines to Leba-non, where 241 service personnel died in an attack on a Marine barracks on Oct. 23, 1983. The Marines were later withdrawn.

Many in Congress also questioned the rationale for the U.S. invasion of Grenada on Oct. 25, 1983, just two days later. By the State Department's count, 19 Americans were killed and 112 wounded in the three-day inva-

WHEELER, Ind. (AP) — Michael Lopez holds the treasures with respect, almost awe.

He lifts a rosary that belonged to fabled Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne and says, "You can still see the burn marks on the crucifix. Rockne was holding it in his hands when the plane crashed. I think he was saying his final prayers on the way down."

It is 57 years since Rockne died when the plane carrying him to Hollywood to make a training film went down on a Kansas prairie. He was 43.

But the legend of the Norwegian immigrant is alive to this 23-year-old who inherited some of Rockne's belongings. "This is his rosary, given to Rockne when he was baptized in 1925 by my great-great uncle, Father Vincent Paul Mooney," Lopez

Rockne had been a member of the Scottish Rite Masons. After he converted to Catholicism he explained his reasons:

"The way I look at it is that we're all here to try to find, each in his own way, the best road to our ultimate goals. I believe I've found my way and I shall travel it to the end."

In the living room of Lopez's home in Union Township he picked up a small black prayer book. The book with its tattered cover also was given to Rockne by Mooney, Lopez said, and was found in a travel bag near Rockne's

The priest had written an inscription inside the cover:

"A loyal friend.

"May the blessings of God descend upon you and yours and remain forever.'

A pocket watch with a gold chain and a pocket knife is inscribed on the back with the letters "KKR." It was given to Knute Kenneth Rockne by his wife, Bonnie, on the first Christmas of their marriage in 1925.

There are newspaper clippings, frail and cracked, all describing the Rockne legend of inspiring young men to play beyond their abi-

"He had a fabulous career — 105 wins, 12 losses and five ties," during his 13 years at Notre Dame, Lopez said.

Another relative, Father Vincent Paul Brennan, nephew of Father Mooney and also a priest at Notre Dame, was given the watch and other items by Rockne's widow.

He left it to his brother, the late Edward Brennan, a one-time Post-Tribune photographer and grandfather of Lopez. 'When my mom inherited these things she gave them to me because she thought I would appreciate them more than my three brothers," ranging in age from 5 to 25, Lopez Lopez, who served in the Air Force until recently, said he had received numerous requests from Notre Dame alumni and the school itself to display the Rockne treasures. President Reagan visited Notre Dame in March in connection with a stamp issued to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the birth of Rockne. Reagan in 1940 played the role of Notre Dame fullback George Gipp in the movie, "Knute Rockne, All American." Pat O'Brien played Rockne.

The movie shows the crowd yelling for Gipp, who was benched because of a sore shoulder. Rockne ignored the shouts throughout the afternoon. In the final minutes he sent Gipp in for a few plays.

Gipp left the game with a cold which developed into pneumonia. Four days later, "The Gipper" was dead.

In one of Reagan's most famous scenes, he exhorts Rockne to send a future Notre Dame team out "to win one for the Gipper."

New Sweden residents to see old-c country royalty

NEW SWEDEN (AP) — The Swedish royal family's "New Sweden '88" tour bypasses New Sweden, so a busload of people from this farm community are going to Dallas to see the king and queen.

"They should have come to New Sweden." said Dorothy Lundgren, 74. She added quickly, however, that she is not upset.

'I guess I should be, because they should recognize a community with this name. But I guess their schedule was made up a long time before we thought about them coming here,' she said as she stood near the New Sweden Evangelical Lutheran Church that is the community's heart.

Sweden's King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia arrive in Texas Friday as part of their 17-day U.S. tour. The visit is the highlight of a celebration of the 350th anniversary of the first Swedish colony in North America.

Mrs. Lundberg, a New Sweden native, will be among 50 local people who make the bus trip to Dallas to see the royal couple at a Friday night reception.

'We could have gone to Houston or Dallas. but I think Houston is an opera or something like that that would have cost us a whole lot more," she said.

The Houston trip includes a concert featuring Swedish soprano Birgit Nilsson. New Sweden, about 15 miles east of Austin, is not an opera hotbed. And despite its name and heritage, it is far more Texan than Swedish these days. Pickup trucks outnumber Volvos.

"We hardly consider ourselves a Swedish congregation anymore. We have a German pastor, but the founders were Swedish," Mrs. Lundgren said

Swedish settlers began arriving in Central Texas in the mid-19th century. By 1876, the Petersons, Sjobergs, Hedbergs, Larsbergs, Holjersons and other families with solid Swedish names gathered to form the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

The late Rev. Martin Noyd's diary recalls the July 1876 meeting in the Stone Church at nearby Gregg at which a crucial vote was

"As the congregation did not have three U.S. citizens, we voted in a natural-born citizen for the moment in order to legally incorporate," Noyd wrote. The congregation met for years in a small church that stood where the community cemetery is still maintained. It was a simple church, but debt-free, Mrs. Lundgren re-

"We knew it first when they built it as the three-window church, and then it was the five-window church," she said.

Church membership peaked around the turn of the century at about 400. In 1923, the new church, with its impressive steeple towering above farms, was completed. With the new church, residents made the switch to a new language. Sunday services, which had been in Swedish, were changed to English. Last Christmas, as part of the New Sweden

'88 events, the church conducted a special service in Swedish. 'I can speak it. I can write it and I can read it." Mrs. Lundgren said. "But I'm sorry to say we didn't teach our children to speak Swedish and now they regret it. And I do too." Mrs. Lundgren's mother, Emma, was born in Sweden, but moved to Nebraska at age 2.

Her father, Carl Sellstrom, was born in the United States. Like most New Sweden residents, the Sellstroms farmed.

It was peaceful country living, a lifestyle that began to disappear as farm life became economically prohibitive. Mrs. Lundgren said the decline began after World War II. Church membership is down to 170, and the average Sunday attendance is about 70.

'It was no hurry," Mrs. Lundgren said of New Sweden's old days. "Everybody stayed at home. We never thought about anything but that the whole family was present for meals. We enjoyed such simple entertainment, like Sunday school picnics. The church was the nucleus for all life and entertain-

Life in New Sweden is about to change again as the city of Austin prepares to build its new airport nearby. Some neighboring communities will disappear, but Mrs. Lundgren predicts growth for New Sweden, and she is not ready to judge whether that will be good or bad. "There's not anything we can do about it. I guess it's good in its way. But you know how people feel. They never like changes like that," she said. But for now, the people of New Sweden are excited about their upcoming brush with royalty. Mrs. Lundgren has never been to Sweden nor met any of its leaders.

"I'm looking forward to it. My Swedish heritage means an awful lot to me," she said, adding that Texas has been good to Swedes. "They built nice homes here, raised big families and were able to provide for them off the farm, which is something you can't do now.'

Use vacation for genealogy research in libraries, offices

Well-planned vacations are the most enjoyable, and this is especially true for "family tree climbers!" Some tips that might help include writing to libraries, historical societies and county offices for hours and fees

Another question might be what equipment is available and/ or permitted. Some libraries allow personal computers, tape recorders, typewriters and cameras, while others permit the use of only their equipment. If you use a tape recorder, remember to record spelling if the name is a variant. It is difficult to recall this type of information once you leave the area.

Request information from county historical societies to include the name of the local historian, the location of their library or holdings and if they will be meeting while you are in the area. Carry extra family group have been completed to add to moved and have been discovered

County officials should be consulted for type of record and location (many counties have annex buildings that hold their older records) of records available and the hours they are open for business. Most courthouses have had a fire at some time in the past; however, do not assume that all of the records were destroyed.

Another thing to check, especially in Southern states, is the records that were moved from one county seat to another. Somesheets and lineage charts that times all the records were not

An evening spent at a local library may be the best part of your vacation. Write for hours of operation and what type of collections are available. You might ask if a member of the library staff has a personal interest in genealogy.

If possible, include the date you plan to visit and the surnames of interest. This gives the librarian the opportuntiy to announce your interest to other patrons. Many libraries have a special bulletin board for this type of notice.

Another possibility is to plan an advertisement in the local paper requesting anyone interested in your family to meet with you on the date indicated. Depending upon the paper, some charge for this type of article and print it as a classified advertisement, while others place it in their genealogy columns or as a human interest

Woman says bisexual men may be spreaders of AIDS

The Pampa Harvesters may be out of the playoff hunt but they could shoot down a few other teams before the season ends. Starting with Canyon.

Mark Aderholt's infield single drove in the winning run to give Pampa a 5-4 comeback win in extra innings Thursday at Harves-

For the Eagles, the loss dropped them from third to fourth place to hurt their chances for a playoff

'This kind of win against a quality team is going to help us turn the corner. It just shows what we're capable of," said Pampa coach Rod Porter.

Aderholt, who also sparkled defensively, was hitless in three previous trips when he came to the plate in the eighth with the score tied at 4-all. With one out and runners on first and third, Aderholt bounced a slow roller to the second base side. Canyon's Todd Albrech couldn't make the play at home and Troy Owens came in with the winning run.

David Atkins took the loss after coming in to relieve James Ferguson with the score tied at 4-all. Canvon struck first, scoring two runs in the first on Walt Garrison's single while Ferguson held the Harvesters hitless the first three innnings.

It was the bat of catcher Matt Brock, who put the Harvesters in position to win the game. With Canyon leading 3-0, Brock delivered a two-run single to right field in the fourth to pull Pampa close. Canvon added another run in the sixth, but Brock again came through for the Harvesters. With the bases loaded and two outs in the bottom of the sixth. Brock singled again to score two runs and tie the score at 4-all.

Besides Brock's three hits and four RBI, Torrey Gardner and Brandon McDonald had base hits for the Harvesters in addition to Aderholt's winning single. Pampa's six errors were hardly noticed in the wake of outstanding defensive plays. Aderholt, at second, started two of three Pampa double plays, and McDonald made a nice sliding catch of Albrech's flyball in the sixth. "Aderholt really saved us on those double plays," Porter said. Canyon was charged with three errors, one proving very costly when Albrech dropped James Ward's popup with two outs in the sixth. Ferguson then walked Gardner and Owens, bringing up Brock, who drove his two-run base hit to leftfield.

Pampa hosts Hereford at 1 p.m. Saturday at Harvester Stadium. The Whitefaces are currently ranked number three in the state in Class 4A.

"Hereford has a good team and we need a good crowd to come out and support us," Porter said. We're not going to the playoffs, but we can decide who will be going. We're not going to roll over and play dead.

Orioles keep plunging

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

Where do the still-winless Baltimore Orioles go from here? Well, their next stop is Kansas City where, having set a majorleague record for consecutive losses at the start of a season, they hope to stop the 15-game plunge that has left them five games away from the overall American League mark for consecutive setbacks.

"You can't believe it; nobody can," said Scott McGregor, the losing pitcher in Thursday's 7-1 licking at the hands of the Milwaukee Brewers that left the Orioles an imperfect 0-15. "I don't care if you were trying to lose — you couldn't lose this many games even if you went out there and didn't even give a damn.

Baltimore was out of it early when the Brewers scored six times in the third inning, capped by Bill Schroeder's two-run

"I went out there and had great intentions of throwing a shutout and stopping things," McGregor said. "But before I could do anything about it they had six runs on the board.'

The AL record of 20 consecutive losses is shared by the 1906 Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Athletics in 1916 and 1943. The 1961 Philadelphia Phillies set the major-league mark of 23

In other AL games, Oakland beat Chicago 6-3 in 13 innings, California downed Seattle 11-6 and Boston trounced Detroit 12-3. While Milwaukee was kayoing McGregor in the third inning, Milwaukee's Chris Bosio stopped the Orioles on eight hits with his third complete game. The Orioles didn't score until the eighth inning. It was only Baltimore's 29th run in the 15 losses. The Orioles have been held to one run five times and shut out three DALLAS — The Dallas Mavericks need a miracle. Now.

The defending NBA Midwest Division champions, who had a fat five and one-half game lead in mid-March, are two down to the leading Denver Nuggets with two to play.

After Wednesday night's devastating 114-107 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers, the Mavs put themselves into a deep hole.

"Ît's tough now," said guard Derek Harper. "Real tough. It looks like we're just going to have to get ready for the second season."

Dallas is favored to defeat San Antonio in Reunion Arena on Friday night and in San Antonio on Sunday. The Mavs have the tiebreaker edge over Denver which has games left at Portland and at home against the Los Angeles Clippers.

Dallas is tied with Portland for the third-best record in the Western Conference. The Mavs won the season series against the Trail Blazers and have the edge in the tiebreaker.

fends the Mavs' fast fade in their first vear under his direction. 'We're still a very young team," he said. "People get too impatient. Everybody wants championships too quickly. Dallas won the Midwest Division title under Dick Motta last year but were bounced out in the first round in a shocking upset by Seattle. Motta resigned without saying why.

"We have to show more improvement in the playoffs than we had last year," MacLeod said. "That's what we've built this whole season around. Improvement in the playoffs. We'll do the best that we can but we will give a good accounting of ourselves. We have people of character and if they respond we'll improve."

MacLeod wasn't predicting a march into the NBA finals.

"I'm not one to make predictions but I just think we'll improve," MacLeod said. "For example, we almost came from 17 points back Wednesday night to beat the Lakers. We were right there. When you shoot 38 percent like we did against the Lakers you have problems. But they had it in the clutch and that's what makes them great.'

Harper said Dallas' offense needs to get as good as its defense, which is the sixth best in the NBA.

"Our defense has carried us," he said. "We just need to start shooting well. We have to shoot well to have a chance against teams like the Dallas also had only 23 assists against the Lakers - which tied Los Angeles' Magic Johnson, who was just one short of a career high.

"The Lakers are the model franchise," MacLeod said. "You have to respect them for what they have done, winning 60 games for four consecutive seasons. The loss was not the end of the season for the Dallas Mavericks. We were aggressive and didn't back down. That's the way we're going to be in the playoffs."

Spurs edge past Rockets Public Notice

HOUSTON (AP) - Mike Mitchell is hoping the San Antonio Spurs' recent road successes will carry over into the NBA playoffs where they will face the defending world champion Los Angeles Lakers in the first round

"We've been hoping to play well on the road going into the playoffs. This is a big win," said Mitchell after his shot in the last second gave the Spurs a 117-116 win over the Houston Rockets Thursday night.

'We just had a recent road stretch where we won three out of five, so this win gives us even more confidence on the road," Mitchell added.

The victory gave the Spurs a 4-2 advantage over the Rockets this season, the first time they have won the season series with Houston since the 1983-'84 season. The win snaps a nine-game losing streak in Houston dating back to Jan. 25, 1985.

"To win a season series against a team like this means a lot," San Antonio coach Bob Weiss said. "How we play now is important to me. There are some things I want to work on before we get to LA.' Mitchell's game-winning shot came as the buzzer sounded and followed a blocked shot by Akeem Olaiuwon that bounced into Mitchell's hands Olajuwon had blocked a Rick Wilson layup as Wilson drove the lane. 'Akeem went up and got it, and he blocked it right to me. I couldn't have asked for it any better, Mitchell said. "I felt like I had time to go up and shoot a good shot and not rush, and I did.' They got too much penetration, Houston coach Bill Fitch said. "Everybody watched Akeem make the play, but Mitchell still had to make a great shot." 'He was in the right place at the right time.

Olajuwon said. "I timed the play well, I just blocked the shot to the wrong side.

Houston was led by Olajuwon, who recorded the third triple-double of his career.

Olajuwon equaled his season scoring high with 38 points, pulled down 10 rebounds, and blocked a team season-high 10 shots.

San Antonio was led by Alvin Robertson with 24 points, Frank Brickowski with 19 and Petur Gudmundsson with 13 points and 11 rebounds. Houston played without starting forward Rodney McCray, who was suffering an allergic reaction. "The problem tonight was that he broke out in hives. He ate some food about noon and apparently there was an allergy problem," Fitch explained.
