City Commission says 'go' for golf course

By LARRY HOLLIS
Managing Editor

The drive for a city golf course hit the green Tuesday evening after Pampa city commissioners approved an agreement with Gray County commissioners for the course's development.

By a 4-1 vote, the City Commission accepted the agreement, with changes reached after City Manager Bob Hart had visited about the issue with county commissioners Tuesday morning.

County commissioners, also by a 4-1 vote, had voted in favor of donating equipment, manpower and up to $300,000 for the project during their meeting.

All that's left before the putting begins is for the contract agreement to be signed by both groups of commissioners.

But Mayor David McDaniel, casting the only dissenting vote at the special called City Commission meeting, expressed concerns about the finances and revenue projections.

"I still have a lot of questions about this golf course," he said, adding that he had thought the new proposal called for developing the golf course without the possibility of any tax increase.

Hart said that the operating expenses of the course, on current estimates, would incur a deficit for probably the first five years, with the city possibly having to raise taxes by perhaps 1 1/4 cents, cutting back on services in other areas or enacting a combination of the two options.

The city manager explained that the deficit estimate is based on currently available funds, donated labor and supplies, and the agreement with the county. That situation could change, of course, if other contributions come in, either money or donated supplies, equipment and services, he added.

McDaniel said he thought that perhaps county residents ought to have a chance to voice their wishes in another vote in light of the possibility of a

Dukakis now looking for his next victory

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Michael Dukakis said today he is hoping for a repeat of his Wisconsin victory over Jesse Jackson as the 1988 Democratic presidential campaign moves on to delegate-rich New York.

The Massachusetts governor won his first Midwestern primary on the strength of the blue-collar vote Tuesday, helping to ease doubts about his appeal even as it was raising questions about Jackson's ability to turn his enthusiastic crowds into success at the polls.

Wisconsin also rang the closing bell for Paul Simon's campaign, giving the Illinois senator a last-place finish.

Albert Gore Jr. spent heavily but remained an also-ran in third place. Just as Simon did here, Gore has put all his chips on the New York primary on April 19.

There was a Republican primary in Wisconsin, but there were no doubts. Vice President George Bush, the nomination his in everything but name, bested Pat Robertson by a 10-1 margin.

With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Dukakis had 481,857 or 48 percent, to 285,575 or 28 percent for Jackson. Gore had 176,009 for 17 percent, while Simon drew only 48,877 about 5 percent.

The Massachusetts governor also won in Colorado's precinct caucuses, which were held Monday, even though the counting dragged into Tuesday.

With 77 percent counted, Dukakis won with 44 percent to Jackson's 37 percent. Uncommitted groups took 16 percent and Gore 3 percent.

"The people looked at us and made a decision as to who they thought had the strength and the experience and the values to lead this country... Fortunately, I was on top," Dukakis said on NBC-TV's Today show. "I hope I can do the same in New York. I believe I can and go on and win the nomination."

Jackson, who appeared on CBS This Morning, congratulated Dukakis for running "a good, effective campaign" in Wisconsin, but noted his own strong showings to date.

"Of 40 contests that have been run now, I've come in No. 1 or No. 2 in 30 of them and I have 250,000-plus popular vote lead and so at this stage of the campaign I feel very good."

The New York contest puts the spotlight on Gov. Mario Cuomo, who has often been mentioned as a potential draft at a deadlocked convention. But Dukakis' win is likely to tone down talk of drafting Cuomo or another Democrat.

The New York governor has not made an endorsement, but the Dukakis camp is hoping the Wisconsin win could put Dukakis in a good position to finally win the nod from his fellow governor.

RRC candidate wants to make some changes

By DEE DEE LARAMORE

Ed Emmett has two voter identification battles to fight in his campaign for a Jim Nugent's seat on the state Railroad Commission.

Generally, only one Railroad Commissioner is elected every two years. However, because of the recent resignation of a commissioner who was not to run for re-election until 1990, two positions are now up for grabs.

Newly-appointed commissioner Kent Hance now is running for re-election in 1988. This position is in addition to the seat now held by Democrat Jim Nugent, which is sought by Emmett.

"I'm not running against Kent Hance," Emmett said, succinctly.

A second problem Emmett faces is a man named P.S. "Sam" Ervin, who he says has not campaigned at all but is simply running on the strength of an "assumed" name that is the same as the name of a nationally known political figure.

In the Super Tuesday elections, Emmett received 32.7 percent of the vote, while his opponent received 32.1 percent of the vote. Thus the voters will decide between the two in a runoff election April 12.

Despite these handicaps, Emmett is traveling throughout the state, making his name and his views as widely known as possible. He arrived in Pampa Tuesday night to speak at a reception in his honor hosted by Wallace Bruce.

At the reception, Emmett discovered Panhandle residents, particularly those involved in the oil and gas business, have definite ideas of what they believe the Railroad Commission should do in regulating the oil and gas industry and what is expected of a Railroad Commissioner.

Emmett explained to them and German students to be treated to 'West Fest'

CANADIAN — Canadian will introduce its 37 West German exchange students to a taste of the Old West at "West Fest Day" on Saturday. The event is sponsored by the Canadian Rotary Club and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

West Fest Day begins at 11:30 a.m. Saturday at the Lazy H Recreational Park at Kingman and Red Deer streets. The day's events start with a Wild West Opening featuring cowboys and Indians.

The students, their sponsors and special guests will be formally recognized in English, German and Spanish.

At noon, a hamburger feast served by the Rotarians will be offered at $3 per person. Proceeds will go to Rotary International's project, "Polio Plus," aimed at eradicating polio by vaccinating every child in the world.

A western music and square dance demonstration, coordinated by Terry Pittman, is scheduled for 1 p.m.

A youth rodeo is set for 2 p.m. in the Lazy H arena. Exhibition roping will also be demonstrated. Donnie Johnston is arranging this part of the day's events.

All events will be free, with the exception of the hamburger feed. Should the weather be bad, the West Fest Day will be held in the Hemphill County Exhibition Building, south of Canadian.

Saturday night, Texas Tonight will play at a western-style dance in the City Auditorium. German students will be admitted free. Cost for others will be $5 per person. The dance is sponsored by the River Valley Museum.

Beef for the hamburgers has been donated by Canadian Feedyards and soft drinks by Amarillo Coca-Cola Bottling Company.

The students from West Germany are attending school in Canadian for six weeks.

Oil still has a future, economist says

By MARILYN POWERS
Lifestyles Editor

Texas' ailing oil and gas industry will regain lost ground in the next decade, enjoying prosperity but never again booming as it did several years ago, according to Jared E. Hazleton, vice president of economics for Mesa Limited Partnership in Amarillo.

Hazleton made predictions for Texas' future economy in an address at Tuesday's Pampa Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting in the Pampa Community Building.

"Over the long haul, we're going to see pressure on oil and gas prices in the '90s that will boost this industry. But it will never play the same role as before. It will be very prosperous but will be a smaller industry than before," Hazleton said.

Currently, the oil and gas industry has stabilized after its roller-coaster rise and fall, and there is a more optimistic attitude among oilmen and others with an eye on the business, Hazleton said.

He predicted that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) would be successful at keeping oil prices in the $15-18/barrel range, and the current state of the industry would continue for the immediate future, with no dramatic increase in the rig count. But a slow rebirth of the industry is expected for the Panhandle.

"Prices in the early '90s will be higher than today and this will lead to increased drilling and more work available," Hazleton said.

For the next six months to two years, Texas' economy will depend on U.S. and world economy. "We're pretty tied to the rest of the world and the national economy," he said.

Even though some of Texas' traditional industries have fallen on hard times, economic growth for 1988 is expected to be 2 to 2 1/2 percent because of the low inflation rate.

"Inflation is not much of a problem today, which means there's not much pressure on commodity prices and no dramatic increase in labor costs.

"The Federal Reserve should be able to keep interest rates low. Interest rates will maintain their current levels or fall. I expect rates to fall over the next six months and may be back down around 8 percent at the end of the year. This will stimulate the economy," Hazleton said.

The dollar's decreased value has two pluses for Texas, he said. U.S. goods are more competitive in overseas markets, and imports are more costly in America. This helps the state because Texas is second only to California in export products, and Texas' manufacturing sector has been responsible for one-fifth of all new U.S. manufacturing jobs, meaning that the state's manufactured goods are finding willing markets.

"There has been a $1.5 billion investment made in the Houston ship channel by chemical companies," Hazleton said.

Maturing Baby Boomers push median age to record high

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are easing into their middle years, as growing numbers of maturing Baby Boomers boost the nation's median age to a record high of just over 32 years.

The 35-44 age group represents the leading edge of the post-World War II Baby Boom and is the fastest-growing segment of the U.S. population, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

And the population segments aged 85 and over and 75-84 rank second and third in growth since 1980, the Bureau said.

This combination helped boost the nation's median age to 32.1 years as of last July 1, the highest ever.

"The 'Graying of America' is documented by its increasing age," observed bureau statistician Louisa Miller.

Up from 31.8 in 1986, the median means that half of all Americans are older than that age and half younger.

By race, blacks remain younger than whites, although both groups are maturing.

For whites, the median age hit 33 for the first time, up from 32.7 in 1986. Black median age was 27.2, up from 26.9 and the first time that group had surpassed 27.

The nation's median age first reached 30 in 1950, but the rapid growth of the Baby Boom that was then occurring pulled it back down in the following years.

The Baby Boom consists of the estimated 20 million Americans born between 1946 and 1965.

With the maturing of the Baby Boomers, the median has begun moving in the other direction. The growing elderly population has also helped raise the median, as improved medical care extends lifespans.

"The repercussions of the Baby Boom are many and varied," Miller said.

They are now at the age where they have more discretionary income and the effect can be seen in the nation's culture and marketing, she said.

The generation's arrival spurred a boom in sales of baby products. It then proceeded to overwhelm the school system, following up with creation of a national orientation toward teen-age music and styles.

Now, as the Baby Boomers set up more and smaller households, they are prompting a boom in housing sales and household goods, marketing experts say.

"Further down the road, once they begin to reach retirement age, they will obviously have a great effect on the direction the country takes," Miller added.

Meanwhile, the Boomers are being followed by the much smaller Baby Bust generation, leaving fast-food outlets, retail stores and others offering "first jobs" searching for employees, she said.

The Boomers boosted the 35-44 age group by 33.8 percent between 1980 and 1987 to some 34.4 million people, the bureau reported.

The 25-34 age group remains the most numerous with 43.5 million members, but that is up only 16.8 percent from 1980, the study noted.

When Americans now in that age group move on, they will have few replacements.

Between 1980 and 1987 the 18-24 group declined by 9.7 percent to 27.3 million, and those aged 14-17 fell 11 percent to 14.4 million.

Even the 5-13 group slipped 1.1 percent to 30.8 million, but those under 5 jumped 11.6 percent in the Baby Boom echo. They totaled 18.2 million.

The second-fastest growing segment was aged 85 and over, increasing 28 percent to 2.2 million. The 75-84 group was third, jumping 20.3 percent to 7.7 million. Americans in the 65-74 group increased 13.4 percent to 17.7 million.

U.S. Median Age

If everyone in America was ranked by age, the person exactly halfway down the list would be this age on July 1 of 1987.

 to The Pampa News that he believes three major issues need to be addressed by the Railroad Commission:

- Revitalizing the energy industry.
- Making the state's trucking industry competitive.
- Raising the Railroad Commission's ethical standards.

Emmett said the state's energy industry could be revitalized through the active promotion and sale of natural gas, something that would have a definite effect on the Panhandle, which holds the state's largest reserve.

"I think the Railroad Commission has the opportunity to promote Texas natural gas, to market Texas natural gas and to stabilize Texas natural gas regulations," Emmett said.

"I am not happy with the recent decision to change the rules about the Panhandle Field and the production of casinghead gas," he said. "The commission needs to act and then move on. And they need to implement their decisions fairly. People lose faith in government if it is not fair."

Emmett said he believes the Panhandle Field hearing should have been handled differently by the Railroad Commission. "That hearing should have been conducted by the Railroad Commissioners themselves, not by hearing examiners in Austin, and it should have been held in the Panhandle where people could go to it," he said.

"My attitude is I want to listen as much as I talk," Emmett said. "I don't mind controversy, but I want to settle it. People have to feel that the Railroad Commissioners are accessible."

"I told the people last night that I'll be back if I'm elected," he said. "When government officials try to stay away from people, that's when they lose touch." Emmett advocates making intrastate trucking rates more competitive.

The Railroad Commission can decide who operates intrastate trucks and what rates can be charged, Emmett explained. In the past, an "entrenched buddy system" has allowed Texas shippers and consumers to be gouged by high trucking rates and intrastate trucking monopolies, he said. Interstate rates have been de-regulated, and surrounding states advertise much lower rates, taking much of the state's possible business.

"An example that comes to mind is Shreveport, which openly advertises that Texans can save 38 percent by trucking through Shreveport," Emmett said. Emmett said the "buddy system" needs to be ended to allow more competition and trucking rates lowered to bring more business to the state.

On the question of Railroad Commission ethics, Emmett said, "Right now, Railroad Commissioners are prohibited to take contributions during the legislative session. Well, the legislative session has nothing to do with the Railroad Commission. I think Railroad Commissioners shouldn't take contributions from anyone that has a case before them at that time."

A "paperwork blizzard" is a lesser issue that Emmett hopes to work on if he is elected. "They're still doing what they did in the '40s and '50s," he explained. "If you ask them why they do it that way, they say it is because that's the way it has always been done." By using computers and streamlining paperwork, Railroad Commissioners should have more time to spend with the people, he said.

The Railroad Commission hopeful admits that if elected he plans to "shake up that agency a little," he said. "I mean, it's silly, they still call it the Railroad Commission and it has nothing to do with the railroads."

Murder conviction is upheld
 AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has ruled that blacks were not improperly excluded from serving on a Navarro County capital murder jury.

The court on Wednesday let stand the conviction of Perry Keeton in the Dec. 21, 1985, shooting death of Carolyn Dechaume during a robbery.

The black defendant complained in his appeal that three potential jurors who were black were improperly challenged by the prosecution, excluding them from hearing the case.

tax increase arising from the operation of the golf course.

But Commissioner Richard Peet pointed out that the possibility of a tax increase had been included in the referendum in April 1987 and the majority of voters still had approved it then.

While saying he shared some of the mayor's concerns, Peet said "now's the time" to proceed with the development, noting that even five years from now there would still be concerns expressed about how to pay for the course.

Peet said the voters have indicated their wish and suggested it's time for the county and city to proceed with the project. "We'd be dragging our feet" to continue to delay the development, he stated.

Other commissioners also expressed a desire to see the golf course development proceed.

"I don't see any reason why we shouldn't go ahead with it," Commissioner Joe Reed said.

Commissioner Ray Hupp agreed that the voters have already expressed their wish. He said "it's time to move ahead," adding that "if we don't get something started," then other contributions won't come in.

A small crowd was in attendance, but no one had any comments to make about the issue when the mayor asked for any discussion.

Under current projections, the estimated $730,000 cost would be covered from $100,000 from the Pampa Public Golf Association, $330,000 from the city and "up to $300,000" from the county.

Hart noted that the county's costs was one of the items in the agreement that was amended during his meeting with the commissioners. He said the commissioners wanted it specifically included

Golf course raises legal issues

Article II, Section 1, of the City Charter states that the city "may take, hold and purchase lands and any character of property, within or without the city." Section 5 of the same article states that the city may acquire and hold land given as a gift or through a deed.

The Local Government Code in Vernon's Annotated Texas Code, 332.002, states that a "municipality or county may establish, provide, acquire, maintain, construct, equip, operate and supervise recreational facilities and programs, either singly or jointly in cooperation with one or more other municipalities or counties."

In the same code, 332.006, a municipality or county "may accept a grant, a lease, a loan or devise of real estate, a gift or bequest of money ... or any other personal property for temporary or permanent use for the establishment, operation or support of public recreation facilities and programs."

Also in the same code, 332.021, any two political subdivisions that are located in the same or adjacent counties "may jointly by agreement establish, provide, maintain, construct and operate playgrounds, recreation centers, athletic fields, swimming pools and other park or recreational facilities located on property owned or acquired by either political subdivision."

The Interlocal Cooperation Act, Article 4413(32c), of Vernon's Annotated Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, specifies that recreation may be considered as a proper governmental function or service, with any local government able to contract with another governmental entity for such services.

Article 1015c of the same code states that all cities and towns have the power to build and purchase, mortgage or encumber various recreational projects, including golf courses.

Despite the above-quoted legal references, other parties have indicated that they have obtained opposing viewpoints that they feel would prohibit the city and county from entering into a joint contract for the purpose of constructing the golf course.

Other questions have also been raised concerning the legality of the public referendum vote that the county held.

Oil
 Texas' future will depend on the education of its children, and the state faces some tough questions concerning academic financing.

"We have to figure out how to support education in an equitable fashion. There are 1,063 districts in our school system. How do we keep from imposing more burdens on our property owners? Our prosperity will rest on the capability of minds, not just the quantity of our resources," Hazleton said.

He also feels that the tax structure should be revised, shifting more of the burden "to industries that haven't paid their share, largely the service industries."

The state's new Department of Commerce received praise from Hazleton. The department, created last year, is intended to work with local chambers of commerce throughout Texas to boost the state's tourism, product sales and other areas of economic development.

"I think we've got a very good year ahead of us in Texas and the nation. As we move into the early '90s, I think we have a brighter future because our basic industries will once again be prosperous," Hazleton said.

Bye-bye Billy Bob's: Honky tonk sold at auction

FORT WORTH (AP)—Billy Bob Barnett lost his namesake honky tonk to foreclosure and one of his Stockyards development companies filed for bankruptcy protection.

Barnett, 41, a former beer distributor and native of Lampasas, founded Billy Bob's Texas in 1981 and turned it into one of the nation's largest and most famous country-western nightclubs.

Landmark Bank of Fort Worth purchased Billy Bob's Texas and other Stockyards property owned by Barnett for $8.2 million during a public auction on the steps of the Tarrant County Courthouse. Landmark was the only bidder.

yards development companies, Stockyards South Inc., filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

According to court records, Landmark foreclosed after Stockyards 85, a partnership controlled by Barnett, failed to repay a $10.5 million loan.

Last month, Landmark officials gave Stockyards 85 an extra 30 days to raise money to pay its debt, but decided to foreclose on the property to "protect its interests."

While saying in a statement that "the bank is committed to doing all in its power to assure that the stockyards area can once again become a vital part of Fort Worth's economic base," bank officials declined to specify any plans for Billy Bob's Texas.

The voluntary bankruptcy petition, filed in U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, was also signed by Barnett, president and principal stockholder of the company, and by H.B. "Hub" Baker, secretary-treasurer.

Baker also filed a Chapter 13 personal bankruptcy petition Tuesday in the same court.

Barnett has been fighting financial problems for almost two years and closed Billy Bob's Texas on Jan. 7. Lawsuits totaling $2 million have been filed against Barnett's Stockyards interest for unpaid bills and overdue loans.

In September, Barnett hired Bronco Management Inc. to run the $5 million club, but mounting financial difficulties proved too great to keep the club open.

In January, shortly before the club closed, a key element of a development plan by Barnett collapsed when he and Bronco Management failed to negotiate the purchase of the historic Livestock Exchange Building from its current owners.

Barnett and Bronco had planned to resell the building to the city of Fort Worth, and to use the proceeds to pay off existing debts and to continue Stockyards development.

The plan fell through when Barnett failed to pay $82,000 in back taxes and fees to retain a purchase option on the building property and adjoining acreage.

Last month, Texas Commerce Bank-Fort Worth foreclosed on a Fort Worth home owned by Barnett that had been pledged as collateral on $1.8 million in loans. Barnett's mother had lived in the home.

The 8,000-seat Billy Bob's Texas club featured 42 bar stations. Although successful in drawing tourists to the Stockyards District, the nightclub had run operating deficits for at least a year before its closing.

Pro-life groups back Boulter

AUSTIN (AP)—Republican U.S. Senate candidate Beau Boulter says he is not a one-issue candidate, but that his opposition to abortion was a "compelling" reason for his entry into the race.

Boulter, who faces Houston businessman Wes Gilbreath in next Tuesday's GOP runoff, on Tuesday picked up the endorsements of four anti-abortion groups that claim to represent about 200,000 Texans.

"I believe the backing of the pro-life movement could very well provide, and I hope will provide, the margin of victory in this campaign," said Bill Price of Dallas, director of the Texas Coalition for Life.

He acknowledged that Boulter and Gilbreath have similar anti-abortion views, but said Boulter got the endorsement because of his congressional record on the issue. Boulter, of Amarillo, is a two-term U.S. House member.

"We are backing Beau Boulter ... because we believe in being loyal to those public officials who have loyally voted for the pro-life policies we support," Price said. "Again and again, Beau Boulter has stood with us in our hour of need."

He spoke at a Capitol news conference during which Boulter also was endorsed by the Texas Right to Life Committee, the Christian Pro-Life Foundation and the Life Advocates.

Boulter welcomed the endorsements, saying, "I am not a single-issue candidate ... but I know of no issue that is more important for us to work in behalf of than the cause of the unborn, who are the most helpless human beings of all."

Citizens honored at Panhandle Chamber of Commerce banquet

PANHANDLE — Marvin Sparks was named Citizen of the Year and the Paul Dauer family received the first Farm Family of the Year awards during the annual Panhandle Chamber of Commerce banquet held recently in the Panhandle school cafeteria.

More than 180 people attend the affair with the Rev. Doug Harvey, pastor of First Christian Church of Panhandle, serving as master of ceremonies and concluding with a concert by the Panhandle Community Band.

Barry Metcalf presented the Citizen of the Year honor to Sparks, in honor of Sparks' sense of responsibility in making Panhandle a better place to live, for his enthusiastic spirit in supporting sports and education in the city, and for his commitment to God by his service in the church.

Accepting the award, Sparks said he felt humbled to be honored by the people of Panhandle. A lifelong resident of Panhandle, he attended Panhandle schools and graduated valedictorian of the Class of 1944. He graduated from North Texas State University in 1948 with a degree in speech and journalism.

After graduation, Sparks returned to Panhandle, where he farmed with his father for several years. During that time, he and two friends began a business in an old garage, which later grew into Vibra-Whirl, a multi-million dollar company that has become known throughout the world for its production of hydro-therapy tubs, blocking sleds, tennis courts, tracks and other athletic surfaces and products.

Sparks is a member of numerous civic clubs and organizations as well as serving on the City Council and acting as Panhandle's mayor for six years.

Paul and Margaret Dauer, their children John

Paul and Steve and their families were honored as the first Farm Family of the Year with Jack Ramey making the presentation.

Paul Dauer, a native of Carson County, is a U.S. Army veteran and a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He helped bring the agriculture building to Panhandle and has been active in the Carson County Livestock Show.

Dauer has been a member and officer in many agricultural related organizations throughout the state, in addition to serving on the Panhandle school board.

One of the outstanding Hereford breeders in Texas, the Dauers have been active in the Texas Hereford Association. Mr. Dauer has served on the association's board of directors.

The Dauer family has supported the Square House Museum fund raising with beef donations and are members of the First United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Dauer has served as a Cub Scout Den Mother and as secretary of the Parents-Teachers Association, as well as working as a guide at the museum, in home demonstration programs and as a Sunday School teacher. She has served on the American Field Service board.

An active member of the Top o' Texas Cattlewomen, she has served as president of the organization and is now completing her tenth year as treasurer. She was named Texas Cattlewoman of the Year in 1984.

In addition to her agricultural accomplishments, Mrs. Dauer has been a volunteer at St. Anthony's Hospice in Amarillo since 1983.

John Paul and Steve Dauer have received state and national honors for their grain sorghum production.

Sporting T-shirts that say Rome, Paris, London, New York and Sanderson stranded Amtrak travelers Iris Creach, 39, Brea, Calif.; Ann Werner, 63, Tucson, Ariz.; and Richard Creagh, 42, Brea, try to make the best of their day long unscheduled stay in the tiny desert town of Sanderson Tuesday.

Amtrak passengers leave town

SANDERSON (AP)—Folks in this tiny town say they won't forget the day 350 weary travelers were dropped on their doorstep.

A derailed freight-train near Alpine delayed an Amtrak train, traveling from New Orleans to Los Angeles, for about 10 hours in Sanderson on Tuesday.

For the 328 passengers and 18 crew members there was nothing to do but wait.

By 8 p.m., the Sunset Limited was rolling again and Southern Pacific Railroad officials said that by the time it reached Alpine, the derailed train would be removed.

But the travelers didn't leave before wiping out the pantry in the Kountry Kitchen, a barbecue restaurant.

"There's nothing left. They've cleaned us out," said John Sandifer, who operates the restaurant with his wife, Jeanie.

Amtrak officials said they could have detoured the train, but it would have taken 13 or 14 hours.

"We made a decision rather than detouring the train, we would have it stay in Sanderson," said Amtrak spokeswoman Debbie Marciniak, in a telephone interview from Chicago.

So, Amtrak contacted local officials in the town of 1,200 people, to accommodate the passengers and crew — including an impromptu mass-buffet barbecue for dinner.

"Everybody was real pleased since Amtrak was paying for it. Everyone I talked to was in a real good mood," Sandifer said. By 7 p.m., the last of the barbecue brisket, sausage, hamburgers, hot dogs, baked beans and potato salad had been eaten, he said.

"We just barely made it," he said. Jeanie Sandifer said the wayfarers were average tippers.

Before getting back on board, the passengers were treated to a tour of the town by the local historical society. Children were taken to a park to play and the movie "La Bamba" was offered in the town's theater.

Ruth McKenzie of Conroe was en route to her brother's home in Phoenix when the train was delayed. She said she decided to take the train because "I wasn't in a hurry and they're more comfortable." But after spending the day, sipping tea with her daughter at the Kountry Kitchen, she wasn't sure she would use her return ticket.

"That's still debatable," Ms. McKenzie said.

Personalities by bumper stickers

You can tell a lot about people just by reading the car they drive. What makes a better mobile billboard than a vehicle?

I saw a good one recently during a trip to the grocery store that proclaimed, "My daughter and my money are going to Texas Tech." Aptly put. Everyone who has put a child through college can empathize with that one.

People like to advertise what church they go to, what organization they belong to, what radio station they listen to or where they went on vacation on their cars. Sometimes they get to advertise their vacation choice whether they want to or not. Sometimes they come out of a day-long excursion to the amusement park, etc., and find the billboard firmly attached to their bumper.

Bumper stickers have super glue on the back. Just ask anyone who has tried to scrape one off when their politics changed. And that reminds me, that's another thing you'll find on bumper stickers. Vote for so and so. What's-his-face is right for Congress.

And people hold on to their political beliefs for a long time if bumper stickers are any indication, although that super glue may not leave them any choice. I recently saw a bumper sticker proclaiming, AU-H2O. That takes you back a few years. About 20 or so.

Then there's the gray-haired couple driving a sedate sedan and a sticker saying, "Ask me about my grandchildren."

I like the one I saw on a good ol' boy's pickup in the 7-11 parking lot: "Ask me about my beer belly."

Three cheers for the camper with a photo of a trout plastered on the back window and a bumper sticker that says, "We're out spending our children's inheritance." Good enough. Go have fun. They'd only fight over it anyway.

One of the most famous bumper stickers was "Honk if you love Jesus." It caused a rash of copycats that ranged from "Honk if you're single" to "Honk if you think that person in front of you is a you-know-what." Nowadays you don't know if a person is honking because you're in their way or because they happen to agree with you on something.

I wish I had a nicker for every bumper sticker that has a big heart on it, like the "I ♥ NY." That one has been used for everything. How about a "I ♥ Cars That Don't Have Bumper Stickers"?

No, I don't really mean that. Bumper stickers are one of this nation's forms of free speech and how could a journalist in all honesty reject that? What can I say, I have two stickers on my car — they both have to do with my profession and my husband's profession, but they're still there.

Off Beat

By Dee Dee Laramore

In fact, for a person who likes to read anything that sits still long enough for her to, bumper stickers add a little entertainment to the boring business of driving. Stop lights can be quite enlightening at times.

But I still haven't figured out the purpose for the "Child On Board" signs. Do they think someone is going to check for a "Child On Board" sign before having a wreck with that vehicle? I think a "Drunk On Board" or a "Neurotic Mother On Board" would be more appropriate. That way everybody else would know to look out for them.

My sister-in-law had a good bumper sticker on their little bitty Mazda which was usually filled with herself, my two nieces, my nephew, and various neighborhood kids and animals. It showed a mother hen, wings on hips, with baby chicks scattered around her and the caption: "Because, I'm the Mommy!"

Lately, I've noticed bumper stickers saying "My Son Made the A Honor Roll" and "My Daughter Is on the Basketball Team."

I can't fault that. If the kid's done good, let the world know. Kids now need all the support they can get.

Some bumper stickers give an accurate picture of the driver's attitude, like: "If You Don't Like the Way I Drive, Get Off the Sidewalk!" That's one of the nicer ones. Some aren't repeatable in a family newspaper.

My husband likes one that says, to clean it up a bit: "Stuff Happens." I first saw that sentiment on the back of a nice sedate sedan, much like the one with "Ask Me About My Grandbaby," driven by a sweet-looking, young blonde. Somehow, I don't think she was the one who put the sticker on the bumper.

Bumper stickers are like newspapers. You may not always agree with them. Sometimes they'll make you angry. Sometimes they'll make you laugh. Many times they make you think. And that's the way it oughta be.

Rains: Texas must address dropouts

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas is facing a crisis in minority education and cannot hope to revitalize the economy unless dropout and illiteracy rates are curbed, says Secretary of State Jack Rains.

"Certainly we want roads and highways. Certainly we want all these favorable business climates. But you can't attract high-tech jobs, low-tech jobs, any kind of jobs when you do not have a work force that can read and write. That's basic," Rains told a Tuesday higher education conference focusing on the state's changing population.

Texas is facing "literally a crisis" in educating its minority population, he said.

"By the year 2000, half of our population in this state under the age of 30 will be black or Hispanic," he said.

Networks consider yanking Swaggart

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—

Three cable television networks may dump Jimmy Swaggart's program if the evangelist defies the national Assemblies of God church and begins preaching again next month.

Defiance of the church leadership could lead to Swaggart's loss of Assemblies of God credentials — and to a loss in revenue generated for his ministry when his programs are shown on the Christian Broadcasting Network, the PTL network and the Black Entertainment Network.

"If he is defrocked, that would have a definite effect on what decisions are made" regarding air time for Swaggart's shows, said Earl Weirich of CBN.

CBN will decide later this week whether to cancel the Swaggart contract, Weirich told The States-Times of Baton Rouge.

Linda Ivey of the PTL Network said her firm will reconsider broadcasting the program if Swaggart is ousted.

"The situation is under review," said a spokesman for Robert Johnson, president of Black Entertainment Television in Washington.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

U.S. can't afford to be without SDI

Five years ago, President Reagan shared with the nation his vision of a defense against nuclear weapons. Under Reagan's proposal, America's freedom would not depend on paper treaties or the threat of massive retaliation, but upon defensive technology and our will to use it.

Known as the Strategic Defense Initiative, the president's proposal has made enormous technological strides since that speech. The U.S. Defense and Energy departments have successfully tested lasers, surface-to-air missiles and other anti-missile technology, demonstrating the feasibility of a missile defense.

Meanwhile, the final price tag for a workable SDI system has settled far below the initial, hysterical estimates of its critics. Once priced at a trillion dollars or more, responsible scientists and military experts have concluded that an effective system could be built for $150 billion or less.

Military leaders within the Soviet Union believe in the feasibility of a missile defense. Over the last 20 years, the Soviet Union has poured a huge amount of resources into developing anti-missile technology. If the Soviet Union were to deploy its own nationwide ABM system, and experts in the U.S. expect them to in the early to mid 1990s, the United States would be vulnerable to nuclear blackmail.

Without an SDI system of our own, the Soviets could wipe out our key military targets with a first-strike, then mop up our ragged retaliatory forces with their SDI system. The Soviet Union could deliver a knockout punch to our military, while sparing itself from a debilitating counterattack. The choice confronting the United States is not whether SDI will be part of the nuclear equation — it will — but whether the Soviet Union will be granted an SDI monopoly by default.

Along with the technical and strategic questions is the moral question. Isn't the president right that a defensive system aimed at destroying weapons would be morally preferable to an offensive system aimed at destroying our enemy's territory? Indeed, "Wouldn't it be better to save lives than avenge them?"

SDI promises to shift our competition with the Soviet Union from the mass production of weapons of mass destruction, to a competition to develop technologies that would render those same weapons obsolete. America's strength vis-a-vis the Soviet Union has been our ability to leap over technological barriers. SDI moves the struggle for security not only to higher moral ground, but to our home turf.

In the last four budget years, Congress has cut $4 billion from President Reagan's requests for SDI funding. The congressional cuts have, by some estimates, delayed any eventual deployment of SDI by two years. With the Soviet Union charging ahead with its own plans for a missile defense, can the United States afford to spend another five years with SDI confined to the drawing board?

Civil rights clouded by fraud

WASHINGTON — President Reagan lost a major battle on Capitol Hill when both House and Senate voted to override his veto of the "Grove City bill," but the president was right in this affair. His veto should have been sustained.

The act is known officially as the Civil Rights Restoration Act of 1988, but the title is clouded by fraud. This was not a bill to "restore" civil rights. It was a bill to expand civil rights — to expand them dramatically, in ways that cannot be clearly foreseen. The measure vastly enlarges the scope of federal laws prohibiting discrimination by sex, age, race or physical handicap. The act is the most sweeping statute of its kind since the basic Civil Rights Act of 1964.

In his veto message of March 16, the president provided an accurate description. This is a bill, he said, "that would vastly and unjustifiably expand the power of the federal government over the decisions and affairs of private organizations, such as churches and synagogues, farms, businesses, and state and local governments." Precisely so.

The breathtaking reach of this act never was clearly understood on the Hill. Sponsors promoted the bill with speeches of deceptive innocence. The measure itself was crafted with the most devious simplicity and the most lucid ambiguity.

Few members had the time or inclination to ponder the meaning of such phrases as, "the entire plant or other comparable, geographically separate facility to which federal financial assistance is extended." Almost no one reflected seriously on the impact of this bill on every "private organization" and "sole proprietorship as a whole." Such is the magical power of the totem "civil rights" that proponents easily swept the field. The vote to override was 73-24 in the Senate, 292-113 in the House.

The president was not helped by the Rev. Flapjaw, whose Moral Majority succeeded in antagonizing a dozen members of the Senate who might have been amenable to rational argument. Flapjaw charged that the act could compel a church to hire "a practicing active homosexual drug addict with AIDS to be a teacher or youth pastor." This was hogwash, of course, for the act requires no such thing; the reverend's reckless rhetoric persuaded no one.

Even so, the impact of this measure on the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 is far from clear. This is the law that prohibits discrimination against handicapped persons. Fifteen years ago it was generally assumed that a "handicap" was a visible kind of thing — blindness, deafness, a crippling injury or deformity. The 1973 act projected an image of someone in a wheelchair, just as the parking lot signs depict.

Since then the judicial interpretation of "handicap" has greatly expanded coverage of the law. In March of last year, the Supreme Court held that a Florida schoolteacher, Gene Arline, was a "handicapped person" by reason of a history of tuberculosis. In February of this year, the 9th Circuit extended the Arline doctrine to a teacher with AIDS. So long as the teacher did not present "a significant risk of communicating an infectious disease to others," he could not be barred from classroom service.

The meaning of "sex" also may be undergoing a judicial sea change. In the case of a homosexual sergeant in the Army, the 9th Circuit has held that he could not be denied reenlistment because of his homosexuality. The case was not decided as a matter of civil rights, but the constitutional principle of "equal" protection probably overlaps. Originally the word "sex" was understood only as a matter of gender: It was unlawful to discriminate against women because they were women. Now we don't know.

Neither do we know how the act will affect private schools operated by religious institutions. The act exempts such schools only if the application of the new institution-wide requirements "would not be consistent with the religious tenets" of the sponsoring church. The language has all the clarity of used motor oil.

What of the grocery store that accepts food stamps? The act says that the new language "shall not be construed to extend the application ... to ultimate beneficiaries of federal financial assistance excluded from coverage before the enactment of this act." But the argument of proponents, all along, has been that nothing was excluded from coverage in the past.

If the law is sensibly enforced, perhaps the consequences will not be as drastic as the president fears. Perhaps. The bureaucrats record of sensible law enforcement affords mighty little grounds for hope.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, April 6, the 97th day of 1988. There are 269 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 6, 1909, American explorer Robert Edwin Peary became the first person to lead an expedition to the North Pole.

On this date:

In 1830, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was organized by Joseph Smith at Fayette, N.Y.

In 1862, the Civil War battle of Shiloh began as the Confederates attacked Union forces in Tennessee.

In 1892, author and newscaster Lowell Thomas was born in Woodington, Ohio.

In 1896, the first modern Olympic games were formally opened in Athens, Greece.

In 1917, Congress approved a declaration of war against Germany.

In 1965, the United States launched the Early Bird communications satellite.

In 1971, Russian-born composer Igor Stravinsky died in New York.

War machines pay own way

Some words that are not even in the dictionary yet:

"Bioglass."

Bioglass is a material that can replace human bone, greatly reducing the danger of bone-graft operations.

And we've developed something for which we have no name yet that may cleanse blood-supplies of such viruses as herpes, measles and AIDS.

We have some new high-temperature ceramics, adaptable for replacing metal in automobile and jet engines.

Who paid for the development of these innovative technologies? We got them "free." They came as a bonus — as a spinoff — as a byproduct of our country's investment in Star Wars weapons.

SDI, the Strategic Defense Initiative, is our nation's effort to develop an intercept for inbound enemy missiles.

The purpose is to stop any such missiles and explode them harmlessly in space before they can reach their targets.

For five years, we've been working on these interceptors.

And along the way to perfecting them we have discovered better sensors and improved radar, new ceramics and metal alloys, advanced computers and more powerful lasers.

For every dollar we are spending developing this Star Wars defense, we will harvest many dollars from spinoff products.

Commercial marketing of these byproducts could eventuate in an economic benefit to our country totaling — between $5 trillion and $20 trillion.

That projection from Grant Loeb's of The Heritage Foundation may be conservative. What we have already harvested in "stardust fallout" from our space program is incalculable.

SDI-generated technology has resulted in a supercomputer for solving complex scientific problems a thousand times faster than any computer heretofore.

The "hypercube massively parallel supercomputer" works far faster than scientists had believed possible.

While the primary purpose of SDI is "self-defense against potential aggressors," the fringe benefits of SDI research will be of enormous value to other branches of our military and civilian industry.

It is an easy political ploy for politicians to protest that we should spend "more money on poor people and less money on the military."

Such campaign rhetoric ignores the degree to which money for planes and tanks and ships and military technology prospers us all.

It can be argued that maintaining American troops on foreign soil is an extravagance and that those countries should be providing their own manpower for the purpose.

Maintaining American troops overseas involves a debilitating dollar drain on our treasury; most of those dollars never come home again.

But the machines of war tend to pay their own way — plus dividends.

Texas Air puts bite on Eastern's throat

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Because Republicans and Democrats in the House of Representatives have become increasingly hostile toward each other, bipartisan support for almost any concept can be difficult to achieve.

But the behavior of the leaders of the Texas Air Corp. has become so outrageous that a coalition of dozens of influential legislators from both parties now is pressing for a comprehensive federal investigation of the firm.

Among those seeking the Department of Transportation probe are the Democratic chairmen and highest ranking Republican members of both the House Public Works and Transportation Committee and its aviation subcommittee.

Unifying all of these politicians is what Rep. Norman Minetta, D-Calif., chairman of the subcommittee, describes as a "campaign of employee harassment and intimidation" at Eastern Air Lines and the "systematic dismantling of Eastern."

Waging that destabilization campaign is Texas Air, which purchased Eastern in 1986 and which also owns Continental Airlines. Indeed, Texas Air Chairman Frank A. Lorenzo has an obsessive dislike of labor unions.

In 1983, he abolished all unions at Continental by declaring the airline bankrupt, then invoking an obscure section of the federal bankruptcy code to summarily terminate all existing labor contracts.

At Eastern, he has sought to methodically strip the airline of virtually everything it owns of significant value, thus warning its employees that their refusal to accede to his demands for $490 million worth of wage and benefit concessions will leave them working for a loss-plagued airline with few assets.

Eastern's System One computer reservations operation, one of the most sophisticated in the industry, was sold to Texas Air last year in return for a $100 million note that need not be repaid for 25 years and requires interest payments at a rate of only 6 percent.

Eastern now must pay its parent company $10 million per month for the use of the reservation system and $1.85 for each flight segment booked on System One — an arrangement that allows Texas Air to bleed Eastern of much of its revenues.

Eastern has sold or leased about 20 of its aircraft to Continental, sold 11 of its gates at Newark International Airport to Continental and relinquished to Continental its Miami-to-London route authority and its rights to fly between this country and numerous nations in Latin America.

Last year, Texas Air sought to transfer Eastern employees engaged in baggage and cargo handling, aircraft cleaning and fueling and other ramp services to another subsidiary, Airport Ground Service, Inc., where they would lose their union protection and receive substantially lower wages.

That transfer was aborted, however, when the International Association of Machinists convinced Judge John H. Pratt of the U.S. District Court here to issue an injunction prohibiting Texas Air from further dismemberment of Eastern without first bargaining in good faith with its unions, as required by federal law.

Earlier this year, however, management announced the proposed sale of Eastern's lucrative Air Shuttle (which serves the busy New York, Boston and Washington markets) to a newly created Texas Air subsidiary for $225 million. Pratt then held Eastern in contempt of his earlier order and forbade the sale or transfer of the shuttle.

Lorenzo's war of attrition with Eastern's unions has taken its toll. About 500 pilots — 10 times the normal number — left the company in 1987. Almost 300 have quit in the early months of 1988, leaving the airline with 4,000 pilots.

As a result, hundreds of flights have been canceled — and Minetta fears that Eastern's remaining 32,500 employees could be become distracted from their crucial task of providing safe air transportation.

House yields torture photos and skulls, police say

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — More than 200 photographs of bound, tortured men were found in the bedroom of a man whose house and yard yielded skulls and bone fragments after his arrest on assault and sodomy charges, police said.

Robert A. Berdella's $500,000 bond was revoked Tuesday at a court hearing at which a police officer said one man, photographed bound and hanging from his ankles in Berdella's basement, appeared to be dead.

Berdella, 39, was arrested Saturday after a 22-year-old man wearing only a dog collar told police Saturday he had escaped from Bardella's home after four days of torture and sexual assault. Bardella was charged with seven counts of forcible sodomy and one count each of felonious restraint and first-degree assault.

Authorities have searched Berdella's house and yard since his arrest, after the man apparently escaped from Berdella's three-story house by jumping from a second-story window and asked a neighbor to call police.

Michael Calderon, a neighbor, said Berdella told him about five years ago he was using his home as a halfway house for runaways and that young men often visited the house.

"I thought he was a father figure to those kids and I got adjusted to the fact that there were boys at his house," said Calderon.

Berdella also organized a neighborhood watch program after moving into the house on Charlotte Street, in a lower-middle class section of midtown Kansas City, about 16 years ago.

On Tuesday, investigators using shovels and a backhoe found small bone fragments in Berdella's back yard, but police did not know whether they were human bones.

Two skulls, one of which appears to be a relic, were found inside Berdella's bedroom Saturday. A third was discovered buried in Berdella's back yard on Sunday. All are thought to be human.

The buried skull still had hair and what appeared to be deteriorating flesh on it and in the earth around it, according to evidence in the hearing before Associate Circuit Judge Charles L. Stitt.

A Kansas State University forensic anthropologist told police the skull had been buried for no more than a year, and probably was buried about three months ago.

Police found the photographs in a bedroom dresser near a room where the 22-year-old man was believed held captive, Detective Ashley Hurn said during the hearing.

Police also reported finding torture and bondage devices, which they refused to describe.

When police first entered the house Saturday, they found freshly poured concrete in the basement, but drilled through the concrete on Sunday and found nothing suspicious.

Police also found files in the house that contained information from newspaper articles about the disappearance of Gerald D. Howell, 19,

Meese still seeking replacement for head of the criminal division

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III is trying to fill a key Justice Department post left vacant by a protest resignation, after settling for his second choice for the department's No. 2 post.

Meese announced Tuesday that he is recommending former American Bar Association president John C. Shepherd for the No. 2 job. He also said he has chosen Treasury Department enforcement chief Francis A. Keating for the department's No. 3 position, which had opened before six protest resignations rocked the department last week.

Still unfilled is the job of head of the department's criminal division.

The choices announced Tuesday drew support from the ranking Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee. Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina last week had conveyed congressional concern to Meese over problems at the Justice Department in the wake of the protest resignations by Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns, Assistant Attorney General William Weld of the criminal division, and four of their aides.

Burns and Weld resigned out of concern that the nearly 11-month criminal investigation of Meese by independent counsel James C. McKay was hurting the Justice Department's operations and image.

Shepherd was Meese's second choice to replace Burns, after former federal appeals judge Arlin Adams of Philadelphia turned it down, citing a heavy private caseload.

Keating, a former FBI agent, would fill the post vacated by Associate Attorney General Stephen Trott, who is leaving the department to become a federal appeals court judge.

Thurmond said of Shepherd and Keating, "From what I now know about these two fine individuals I look forward to supporting their confirmation."

Meese said he probably will announce a recommended replacement for Weld after returning from a week-long trip to South America to discuss drugs with officials in several countries there.

A Justice Department source said Salvatore R. Martoche, now an assistant secretary in the Labor Department, had rejected a request from Meese to take Weld's job, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division.

Martoche decided not to take the job "because of the taint factor" relating to the continuing criminal investigation of Meese, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Meese declined to say whether he had offered Martoche the job, but said he had spoken to a number of people about it.

Keating was asked whether he had had second thoughts about accepting his appointment.

"Certainly the events of last week made me, as a professional, pause," he said. "But I have every confidence in the leadership of the department and the attorney general. I think with our new team here the operation of the department will continue."

Shepherd said he had no reservations about taking the job in the wake of Burns' protest resignation. But Shepherd did acknowledge Meese's continuing legal problems, saying "we all see that."

The White House allowed Meese to proceed with the replacements, despite a lack of completed FBI background checks.

Shepherd and Keating will begin serving shortly on an acting basis until after their nomination by President Reagan and Senate confirmation. Burns and Trott will stay on while Meese is in South America.

Shepherd, who is 62, was ABA president in 1984-85 and is a partner in a St. Louis law firm.

Hijackers warn deadline on demands is nearing an end

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Arab hijackers holding 87 people aboard a Kuwaiti jet in Iran today warned a deadline for their demands to be met was nearing an end and called for a physician, saying some passengers were "unwell."

The hijackers, armed with pistols and hand grenades, said Tuesday three members of Kuwait's royal Al-Sabah family on the plane would be in "imminent danger" unless Kuwait released 17 jailed pro-Iranian extremists in 12 hours.

The deadline, as reported by Tehran radio, ended at 10 a.m. (2:30 a.m. EDT). But after that reported deadline, the Islamic Republic News Agency said the hijackers contacted Mashhad Airport tower "to remind that the respite is nearing the end." That added to the confusion over the deadline which was not spelled out clearly by the hijackers in any of their radio contacts.

IRNA, monitored in Nicosia, said the hijackers asked for breakfast, a physician, oxygen and a charger to keep the air conditioning working.

It quoted them as telling Mashhad Airport tower "some of the passengers are feeling unwell," but did not say what was wrong with them. Earlier today, the hijackers released 24 women passengers.

The Kuwaiti Cabinet met in emergency session under Crown Prince Sheikh Saad Al-Abdullah Al-Sabah during the night. It sent a team to Iran today to negotiate with the kidnappers after saying it would not bow to "blackmail."

The U.S. State Department said it believed there were no Americans aboard the Kuwait Airways Boeing 747, which was hijacked by five or six Arabic-speaking men on Tuesday while en route to Kuwait from Bangkok and forced to land in northeast Iran. The hijackers have threatened to blow the plane up.

One man still aboard the plane has a U.S. and an Egyptian passport.

The hijackers also said they did not believe "negotiations between them and Iranian negotiators at the airport would prove useful," IRNA said. They renewed a threat to force the plane to take off to an unspecified destination.

There have been conflicting reports in the Iranian media over whether the Boeing 747 has been refueled since it landed Tuesday. Kuwait has asked the Iranians not to allow the jetliner to take off.

The masked hijackers freed 24 women early today after negotiations with Iran's Deputy Prime Minister, Ali Reza Moayyeri, Iran's official media said. Another passenger, a Jordanian with a heart condition, was freed on Tuesday.

The nationalities of the hijackers were not disclosed, but their demand echoed that of Iranian-backed Shiite Moslems holding American hostages in Lebanon — that Kuwait release 17 militants imprisoned for the December 1983 bombings of the French and U.S. embassies and other targets in Kuwait.

Among the 97 passengers and 15 crew aboard the plane when it was seized three hours after leaving Bangkok were 30 Kuwaitis, 22 Britons, eight Thais and a person with a U.S. and an Egyptian passport identified only as R. Attiaallaali, according to the passenger list.

Kuwait has been a target of Iranian-backed Shiite Moslem terrorists for years and has jailed scores for sabotage and bombings since 1983.

U.S. troops, supplies arrive in Panama

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — As military transport jets brought in the first of 1,300 additional U.S. troops, Panama's military regime said it was willing to negotiate with the opposition — then inexplicably withdrew the offer.

The government, which is controlled by the Defense Forces chief, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, issued a statement Tuesday saying it was willing to meet with opposition leaders in talks mediated by the Roman Catholic Church.

Later, the government said the statement was void and sent a messenger to news organizations' offices to reclaim it. No explanation was given for the move, and government officials met late into the evening.

Opposition leaders have said they will not enter such talks until the government frees all political prisoners, allows opposition news media to reopen and promises that Noriega will be willing to resign and leave Panama.

The government statement had not addressed those conditions.

Also Tuesday, leading opposition activist Ricardo Arias Calderon asked for the protection of the Catholic Church after four carloads of state security police surrounded his home. Calderon, who is president of the Christian Democratic Party, fled his home before the police arrived and appeared later with the Rev. Oscar Brown, the auxiliary archbishop of Panama City.

U.S. military transports began touching down about once an hour at Howard Air Force Base near Panama City on Tuesday in an airlift that was to bring another 1,300 troops, 26 helicopters, police dogs and equipment into the country by late Thursday.

The extra forces were ordered after a five-week campaign of economic and political pressure failed to oust Noriega, whose strength lies in the 15,000-strong Panamanian Defense Forces.

Iraq attacks Tehran, supertanker

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraqi gunners today fired four rockets into Tehran during the morning rush hour after their warplanes attacked a supertanker off an important Iranian offshore oil complex in the central Persian Gulf.

Iraq said the city of Basra was pounded by Iranian missiles and artillery in an attack that began Tuesday night and continued into today.

Tehran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said at least six children were among "many civilians" killed in the rocket barrage. A hospital was hit by one of the missiles, said the agency, monitored in Nicosia.

The official Iraqi News Agency said the four missiles were fired at 9:29 a.m. (1:29 a.m. EDT) into Tehran, "the nest of hypocrites and charlatans." Work hours in Tehran usually begin at 9:00 a.m.

It was one of the heaviest barrages on the Iranian capital since the "war of the cities" began again Feb. 29. Since then, Iraq has been pounding the Iranian capital with missiles, but generally firing only one or two at a time.

The Iraqi News Agency, which reported the Iranian attack on Basra, also quoted a military spokesman as saying Iraqi jets attacked "a very large maritime target," a usual reference to a supertanker, off Sheik Sho'eyb, which is more commonly known as Lavan Island. There was no immediate independent confirmation of the air raid, which apparently occurred Tuesday night.

Italian omelet is a dish for any meal

By NANCY BYAL

A frittata, the Italian version of a French omelet, is extra easy to make. That's because it's served open-faced with cheese or other trimmings on top, rather than folded omelet-style over a filling. Don't limit the frittata to the breakfast menu. Cook one for lunch or supper and offer a choice of toppings or cut small wedges to serve as an appetizer.

VEGETABLE FRITTATA
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms
2 whole tiny new potatoes, thinly sliced
2 green onions, sliced
4 beaten eggs
¼ cup milk
¼ teaspoon dried basil, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

¼ cup shredded herb-flavored cheese or Swiss cheese
4 cherry tomatoes, quartered

In a medium skillet melt margarine. Add mushrooms, potatoes and green onion. Cook over medium heat until potato is tender, turning occasionally.

Meanwhile, in a small bowl combine eggs, milk, basil, salt and pepper. Pour egg mixture into skillet. Cook about 2 minutes or until the egg mixture is set, running a spatula around edge of skillet and lifting mixture to allow uncooked portion to run underneath. Remove from heat. Top with cheese and tomatoes. Makes 2 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 420 cal., 22 g pro., 13 g carbo., 31 g fat, 577 mg chol., 626 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 32 percent vit. A, 19 percent vit. C, 12 percent thiamine, 32 percent riboflavin, 37 percent calcium, 16 percent iron, 42 percent phosphorus.

Frittata can be served at breakfast, lunch or supper. Cook the mushrooms with potatoes and green onions, add the egg mixture and top with tomatoes and cheese.

Orange peel adds taste to chicken salad dressing

At our house we're following the recommendation of medical researchers to reduce the amount of sodium we eat. We've taken the salt shaker off the table and I'm using less salt in cooking.

The biggest surprise has been how little my family and I miss salt. Now I'm using fresh and dried herbs, spices, fruit juice and wine to bring out the flavor of foods. Orange peel gives a special tang to the salt-free dressing for this main-dish salad.

CREAMY CHICKEN SALAD
1 medium orange
1/3 cup plain low-fat yogurt
1 teaspoon honey
½ teaspoon poppy seed
1 cup cubed cooked chicken or turkey
½ cup seedless grapes, halved

¼ cup chopped pecans
2 tablespoons sliced celery
Torn fresh spinach

For dressing, finely shred ½ teaspoon peel from orange. Peel and section orange over a bowl to catch juice. Reserve 1 teaspoon juice. Set sections aside. Combine peel, reserved juice, yogurt, honey and poppy seed. Cover and chill. Toss together orange sections, chicken, grapes, pecans and celery. Spoon onto spinach-lined plates. Spoon 1 tablespoon dressing on top of each dish. Cover and chill remaining dressing. Serves 2.

TASTY IDEAS FOR YESTERDAY'S LEFTOVERS

A Louisiana cook told me, "There are no leftovers in my cooking, just ingredients for the next meal." What a great way to think about the meat, rice, pasta and other foods you cooked a bit too much of. Here are ideas for using some of those foods as ingredients.

COOKED MEAT

— Stews: Add cubed beef, chicken, pork, ham, or lamb to your recipe at the end of cooking time and heat through.

— More ideas: Beef stroganoff, turkey divan, meat-and-rice-stuffed vegetables, chopped salad mixtures for sandwiches.

COOKED PASTA

— Pasta salad: Toss pasta with mixed vegetables and bottled Italian salad dressing. Chill a few hours to blend the flavors.

— Omelets: Stir noodles or spaghetti into beaten eggs just before cooking.

— More ideas: Macaroni and cheese, soups, fettuccine Alfredo.

COOKED RICE

— Rice and beans: Combine long grain rice with a can of spicy chili beans; heat through. Sprinkle each serving with shredded cheddar cheese.

— Soup: Stir wild rice or brown rice and leftover cooked or canned vegetables into chicken broth; heat through.

— Breakfast: Warm long grain rice and a little milk in the microwave or in a saucepan on top of the range; top with raisins and sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar. Serve immediately.

— More ideas: Fried rice, rice pudding, rice dumplings, or sushi.

COOKED VEGETABLES

— Stir-frying: Toss leftover vegetables such as broccoli cuts, cauliflower, carrots or peas into a stir-fry recipe and heat through.

— Chili: Stir corn, peas, hominy or any type of beans into your favorite chili recipe just before serving.

— More ideas: Tabbouleh, frittatas, salads and soups.

DRY BREAD

— Croutons: Butter slices of bread, sprinkle with garlic salt, and cut into ½-inch cubes. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in a 300-degree oven for 20 minutes or until bread cubes are crisp.

— Soup topper: Float toasted dry bread slices in soup; top with grated Parmesan cheese.

— More ideas: French toast, bread pudding, Monte Cristo sandwiches, poultry stuffing, classic cheese strata.

HARD-COOKED EGGS

— Eggs a la king: Mix chopped eggs into a medium white sauce and serve over toasted English muffins.

— Potato salad: Stir chopped or sliced eggs into the salad before serving. Also use the eggs for a garnish.

It takes 4,000 crocuses to make an ounce of saffron.

Steak is 74 percent water by weight.

Here's a hint for cooks: There are three teaspoons in a tablespoon.

A garlic press can be used to pulverize foods too small to put in a blender.

Now is the season to cook with strawberries

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens

The peak supply of strawberries is beginning to move into market stands and produce departments. As you choose them, remember that berry size is not an indication of quality; the largest ones are not necessarily the most flavorful. Berries are fragile, so don't wash them until you're ready to use them.

STRAWBERRY-LEMON SWIRL PIE

2 cups fresh or frozen unsweetened strawberries
¼ cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ cup water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
Several drops red food coloring (optional)
Two 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1½ cups light cream or milk
One 4-serving-size package instant lemon pudding mix

One 9-inch graham cracker crust

In a large bowl mash the strawberries. In a small saucepan combine sugar and cornstarch. Stir in water and mashed strawberries. Cook and stir until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more. Stir in lemon juice, margarine and food coloring. Cover surface with clear plastic wrap. Chill.

In a small mixer bowl beat cream cheese with an electric mixer until fluffy. Beat in cream until well blended. Add pudding mix; beat on low speed for 1 minute. Spoon half the pudding mixture into graham cracker crust. Top with half the strawberry mixture. Repeat layers. Using a spatula, gently swirl top two layers to marble. Cover; chill to store. Cut into wedges to serve; garnish with sliced strawberries and fresh mint, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 483 cal., 5 g pro., 59 g carbo., 27 g fat, 53 mg chol., 360 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 20 percent vit. A, 46 percent vit. A, 15 percent riboflavin, 12 percent calcium, 11 percent phosphorus.

Microwave Salisbury steak

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

I'm always delighted to find a microwave version of a best-liked recipe. Salisbury steak is one of my husband's favorites that I seldom have time to make the conventional way. With this recipe I can have it on the table in 10 minutes.

SALISBURY STEAK

1 beaten egg
3 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Dash pepper
½ pound lean ground beef
¼ of a small onion, sliced and separated into rings
2 tablespoons thinly sliced celery
¼ of a 0.75-ounce envelope brown gravy mix
Dash pepper
½ cup water

In a small mixing bowl combine egg, crumbs, Worcestershire sauce and dash pepper. Add beef; mix well. Shape into two ½-inch thick patties. Place in a microwave-safe 10- by 6- by 2-inch baking dish. Cover loosely with wax paper. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 2 minutes, giving dish a half-turn once.

Turn patties over. Cook, covered, on high 1 to 2 minutes more or until done. Remove patties, reserving drippings in dish. Keep patties warm. Skim fat from drippings. Add onion, celery, gravy mix and dash pepper to drippings. Stir in water. Cook, uncovered, on high 3 to 4 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every minute. Serve gravy over patties. Makes 2 servings.

Pancakes are easy, fast to fix for family

You can have a hearty breakfast ready in a hurry with this five-ingredient recipe.

TOP-OF-THE-MORNING PANCAKES

One 8½-ounce package corn muffin mix
¼ cup whole bran cereal
½ teaspoon apple pie spice
2 slightly beaten eggs
¼ cup milk
Margarine or butter (optional)
Pancake and waffle syrup (optional)

In a medium mixing bowl stir together muffin mix, cereal and spice. In a small mixing bowl combine eggs and milk; add all at once to muffin mixture, stirring until blended but still slightly lumpy. For each pancake, pour about ¼ cup batter onto a hot well-greased griddle. Cook over medium heat, 1 to 2 minutes per side, or until golden brown, turning to cook other side when pancakes have a bubbly surface and slightly dry edges. Serve with margarine and syrup. Makes about 8 (4-inch) pancakes.

Heimlich posters at Red Cross

The Texas Board of Health recently passed Rule 229.173 concerning the Heimlich Maneuver for dislodging food from a choking person. The rule requires a poster to be strategically posted in a food service establishment so it can assist patrons or employees in the emergency application of the Heimlich Maneuver, according to a representative of the Gray County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The Gray County Chapter has the posters available. Any restaurant or eating establishment may have one of the posters by coming to the Red Cross office at 108 N. Russell.

The Heimlich Maneuver involves reaching around the choking person from behind and, with one fist held by the other hand, dislodging the item from the victim's windpipe by an upward thrust.

Workshop to explore integrating handicapped

Dr. Lou Brown of the department of rehabilitation psychology and special education at the University of Wisconsin will speak at a program from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, April 7 at Region XVI Education Service Center, 1601 S. Cleveland, Amarillo.

The program will focus on preparing people with severe intellectual disabilities to live, work and play in integrated environments and activities.

Brown will also present a program from 8:30 a.m. to noon Friday, April 8 at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center Auditorium, 1400 Wallace Blvd., Amarillo. The Friday topic will be preparing people with severe intellectual disabilities to perform meaningful work in integrated environments.

The workshops are open to parents, public school personnel and other professionals. They are sponsored by the Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) of Amarillo;

Advocacy, Incorporated of Austin; and Region XVI Education Service Center in Amarillo.

There will be no charge for attending either workshop.

Brown is a renowned speaker on education and training of persons with handicapping conditions. He is a leading advocate of mainstreamed education and integrated work.

He received a bachelor of arts degree in social studies and a master of arts degree in clinical psychology from East Carolina University, and a doctorate degree in special education from Florida State University. Since 1969, he has been a professor in the department of rehabilitation psychology and special education at the University of Wisconsin—Madison.

In the field of special education, Brown's efforts have been focused on the development of service delivery models and longitudinal curricula that prepare people with severe intellectual disabilities to live, work and play in integrated environments and activities.

"His dream is that some day soon all people with severe intellectual disabilities will live in decent family-style homes that contain no more than two people who are disabled, will perform real work in the real world for real money next to non-disabled co-workers, will enjoy a rich and varied recreation/leisure life with their non-disabled friends and neighbors and will have access to and will avail themselves of all community environments," said Mary Miller of ARC in Amarillo.

She said that Brown rejects institutions, special schools, sheltered workshops, activity centers, group homes and other manifestations of segregation as economically, programatically and existentially untenable.

For more information, call Donna Russell of ARC in Amarillo at 371-0620, or Dr. Gene Norman of Region XVI Education Service Center at 376-5521, extension 242.

Lunchroom garbage inventory proves waste

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a third-grader at Marion Street School in Lynbrook, N.Y. Our teacher, Mr. Freifeld, took the class down to the lunchroom to find out how many students threw out their lunches, because we talked about that letter in your column about how much they wasted in Arizona lunchrooms.

First we found out how many kids ate in the lunchroom every day. There were 252. Then we looked in the garbage cans and counted the whole sandwiches that were thrown out. There were 39 untouched sandwiches, still in their wrappers. There were 30 half-sandwiches still wrapped. Peanut butter and jelly was thrown out the most!

We figured that almost one out of every four people threw away all or half their lunch. With people starving all over the world, that is a lot of food to waste. It was enough to make you sick.

We counted the drinks, too. We found 22 whole cartons of drink thrown out. Some were milk, but most were juice.

There was a whole pile of fruit — apples, oranges and bananas — that was thrown into the garbage. Good grapes, too.

Our class decided that maybe the parents should ask their kids what they want for lunch, then maybe the kids wouldn't throw out so much. Thank you.

CLAYTON COHN,
LYNBROOK, N.Y.

DEAR CLAYTON: Thanks for reporting the results of your lunchroom investigation. And how lucky you are to have a teacher like Mr. Freifeld, who makes learning fun and memorable.

DEAR ABBY: I could have written the letter from the lady in Arizona who was appalled at the waste of food at the schools. My husband is also a custodian at an elementary school, and he sees good food thrown away every day.

Once the food is served, if it's not eaten, it cannot be given away or served again — it must be thrown into the garbage can. Untouched trays of lasagna, potato salad, fruit salad and jello molds are thrown away. Even unopened cartons of chocolate milk and orange juice that could be used the next day are thrown out.

By the way, it's the children who get free lunches who throw out most of the food, so it's our tax dollars that go into the garbage cans!

FROM OHIO
(DON'T SAY WHICH TOWN)

DEAR FROM OHIO: I regret to say that your letter was one of many that carried the same message. A pity that all edible food and unopened cartons can't be sent to the city mission to feed the hungry and homeless.

DEAR ABBY: An Arizona reader was appalled at the waste of good food by the children in the school lunchroom where she and her husband work.

I feel exactly the same way about what's happening in our area. My son has laughed about the frequent "food fights" in the school cafeteria. The kids see nothing wrong in throwing food at each other. What a terrible waste!

Konis has won numerous awards, including Best Pastel Gold Medal for "Lone Star Cowboy" in the Texas 150th Anniversary Exhibition. He was a commercial artist and fashion illustrator from New York, where he owned his own agency, before he moved to Amarillo 19 years ago. He is a member of Pastel Society of America, Artists of the Southwest, The Texas Fine Arts Association and New York's Salmagundi Club.

The public is welcome to attend a reception honoring the artist from 1 to 3 p.m. Sunday, April 10 in the museum's Annex Gallery in Panhandle.

The exhibit will be available for viewing Monday through Saturday, 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

A's shut down Mariners

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — If Bob Welch didn't have his best stuff in his Oakland Athletics' debut, as his manager said, then opposing American League batters are in for a grim year.

Welch scattered seven hits and pitched seven shutout innings Tuesday night, recording six strikeouts and never allowing a runner past second base as the A's blanked the Seattle Mariners 6-0.

In the only other American League game played, the New York Yankees beat the World Champion Minnesota Twins 8-0.

Welch, a 31-year-old right-hander, flirted with danger several times, retiring the side in order only once and relying on outstanding defense behind him to keep Seattle from scoring. But it was more than satisfactory for a pitcher who was admittedly "quite nervous" making his first AL start and allowed two of the first three hitters to face him to reach base.

"I was able to stop them from getting the big hit," Welch said. "I was just trying to stay ahead of the hitters."

"Any time you go out there and come away with a win, it doesn't matter what kind of stuff you had. The win is all that counts."

The victory was Oakland's second straight over Seattle to begin the season after the A's went 0-5 at the start of 1987. The Mariners have scored only a single run, on a first-inning balk by Dave Stewart in the opener, and mustered 11 hits for the two games.

Oakland Manager Tony La Russa expects even greater things from Welch, who also started fast last season, winning eight of his first 10 decisions en route to a 15-9 record in his 10th season with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"He made a lot of good pitches, especially with men on base, and threw a lot of good breaking balls," said La Russa, who said Welch was not as fast as he can be.

Until the A's broke the game open with four runs in the eighth on Jose Canseco's two-run double, a run-scoring balk by Mike Jackson and Stan Javier's sacrifice fly, Welch was locked in a pitching duel with Seattle starter Mike Moore.

Astros down Padres

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Kevin Bass heard the cheers as he came to the plate in the eighth inning as a pinchhitter.

It wasn't until later that he realized the ovation was for him Tuesday night.

"I thought maybe somebody was passing around a beach ball in the stands," Bass said. "I was so pumped up I didn't realize what was going on."

Bass shut out all distractions, including rumors that he was on the trading block, and drilled a 2-run single that helped rally the Astros to a 6-3 victory over San Diego.

If Bass felt unwanted, he put on a good act following his big hit.

"I've been rumored on the trading block since 1985 and it hurts you every time but that's the nature of baseball," he said.

Bass had spent the day fielding questions about a rumored trade to the Yankees for outfielder Dave Winfield.

"Sometimes you have to take your services elsewhere," Bass said. "I don't want to leave."

Bass' pinchhit tied the score at 3-3 and Billy Hatcher's double scored Chuck Jackson, pinchrunning for Bass, with the winning run.

Two more runs scored on a wild pitch by relief pitcher Mark Davis and Steve Henderson's pinchhit single.

Houston's rally marked a quick turnaround for the Padres and starter Ed Whitson, who left the game after he was hit on his pitching hand by Terry Puhl's infield hit.

"That's what happens when you get a break and take advantage of it," Whitson said. "We didn't want to lose on opening night. We'll do all we can to keep from having the same start we did last year."

The Padres started last season with a 12-42 record.

"You lose one or two like that and you start to have flashbacks of last year," Padres right fielder Tony Gwynn said.

Mize prepares for Masters defense

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — It's unlikely Larry Mize will ever hit a more memorable shot, but it's one he can't afford to dwell on this week.

"I've got to think about this year," Mize said Tuesday as he prepared to defend his championship when the 52nd Masters begins Thursday.

"It's come up about 4 billion times," Mize said of the 140-foot chip he made a year ago to capture this revered title on the second hole of a playoff with two of the game's top performers — Greg Norman and Seve Ballesteros, who bowed out on the first extra hole.

"It's a great memory...but I'm really concentrating hard on this year," Mize said.

"I'm trying hard to try and relieve myself of all pressure. I'm working as hard as I can to get my game in good shape. Defending at Augusta should be a fun and enjoyable week."

The season's first major golf championship historically hasn't been kind to defending champions, and Mize really doesn't rank among the favorites this week.

Only one player has ever put together consecutive victories on the storied Augusta National Golf Club course — Jack Nicklaus, perhaps the greatest golfer in history.

Nicklaus owns a record six Masters championships, including titles in 1965 and 1966.

Even at age 48, Nicklaus can't be counted out. He won this event only two years ago.

"When thinking of players to beat, you have to think about Greg Norman and Seve Ballesteros," Mize said.

The two foreign stars are generally regarded as the pre-tournament favorites.

Norman, an Australian, tied for second in the last two Masters.

Pampa blanked by Dumas 9-0

Dusty Thomas threw a one-hitter and Casey Cain knocked in two runs with a homer and single as Dumas blanked Pampa 9-0 in District 1-4A baseball action Tuesday at Harvester Field.

Pampa dropped to 2-5 in district play and 7-7 overall. Dumas is 2-4, 5-8.

Thomas, helped out by solid defensive play, struck out five and walked two in going the distance. Pampa's only hit came in the fourth inning on an infield single by Matt Brock.

Errors hurt the Harvesters as the Demons scored four runs on three errors in the first two innings.

Pampa righthander Troy Owens struck out 14, walked eight and allowed five hits in dropping his record to 3-4.

Four of Dumas' runs came in the fourth inning after Owens had struck out two batters. Dallas Smith, Jeff Baker and Cain had run-scoring singles in the inning.

Pampa plays at Lubbock Dunbar Saturday with the game starting at 1 p.m.

Youngsters who failed to sign up for the Pampa Optimist Club Minor League and T-Ball baseball leagues can do so tonight and Thursday at the Pampa Optimist Club.

Sign-up times are 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.
All players must sign up even if they were on a team last year.

The Minor League is for players 9-10 years of age while T-Ball is for players 7-8 years old. Minor League players must be nine years old before Aug. 1 and must not be 11 years old until after July 31.

T-Ballers must be seven years old by Aug. 1 and must not be nine years old until after July 31. No tryouts will be held.

Major League signups for players 11-12 years of age will also be held the same dates. Tryouts for players not already on a team will be held April 12, 14, starting at 5:30 p.m. Players must be at both tryouts.

Registration fee is $20 and players are required to bring their birth certificates to the tryouts.

Call Al Ferguson at 669-6960 after 5 p.m. if further details are needed.

Spurs keep playoff hopes alive

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — These are exciting times for the San Antonio Spurs, despite a 28-44 record.

"Being in the race for that last spot in the playoffs adds an incentive to our team," said San Antonio center Frank Brickowski after his 25 points helped the Spurs defeat the Golden State Warriors 117-104 Tuesday night.

"Everybody is picking up their game right now," added Spurs veteran Mike Mitchell. "We know that if we're going to compete against the likes of the Lakers, we have to be on top of our game."

The victory kept the Spurs 3 1/2 games ahead of the Phoenix Suns for the eighth and final playoff berth in the Western Conference.

Despite being limited to only 28 minutes because of foul problems, San Antonio's Alvin Robertson led all scorers with 26 points. Mitchell added 22, and Jon Sundvold contributed 14 points and a career-high 14 assists.

San Antonio appeared headed for a blowout victory after taking an 80-61 lead with 6:35 left in the third quarter. But Steve Harris scored 8 points to help Golden State rally to within 92-82 at the end of the period, and Ben McDonald's hook shot with 9:22 left in the game pulled the Warriors to within 94-88.

Robertson and Brickowski helped the Spurs regain control of the game by combining for 14 points down the stretch, helping to hand the Warriors their sixth straight loss.

"They kept coming at us," said San Antonio Coach Bob Weiss. "Fortunately, we had some guys hit some clutch baskets to stop their runs."

"Alvin shot the ball well early and hit some big ones late in the game," Weiss added. "That 3-pointer (giving the Spurs an 88-76 lead with 1:40 left in the third quarter) was awfully big. (Chris Mullin had just made one, and Alvin answered him.)"

Mullin led the Warriors with 24 points, and rookie forward Tellis Frank finished with 22 — just one shy of his career high.

Rose Mofford, Arizona's new governor, gestures as she holds her first press conference since becoming the head of state Tuesday morning. After reading a brief statement, Mrs. Mofford answered questions from reporters.

Mofford orders Mecham's personal staff off payroll

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Democrat Rose Mofford, who began her government career 47 years ago as a secretary, was sworn in as Arizona's first female governor, saying she's proud of her new job but sad about how she got it.

Mrs. Mofford, 65, widely known as "Auntie Rose," commenced her term with wholesale housecleaning of the administration of Evan Mecham, the elected Republican governor convicted and removed from office Monday by a Senate court of impeachment.

She ordered Mecham's personal staff of about 20 off the payroll as of April 15, withdrew the names of 45 Mecham appointees from Senate consideration for now and said she would review agency chiefs to see who would stay.

Mrs. Mofford, who had been acting governor since Feb. 5, also promised to sign a tax increase, a policy opposed by the Mecham administration, but did not know how large it would be.

"I am relieved to have the 'acting' qualifier removed from in front of the title of this office, and I am moving forward with enthusiasm," Mrs. Mofford, who became Arizona's 18th governor, told a news conference.

"Little did I realize 47 years ago that this would happen," she told an invitation-only group of staff members in her protocol office earlier in the day.

Mecham, the first U.S. governor in 59 years to lose his job through impeachment conviction, told supporters Tuesday he isn't ready to give up politics.

"This is just another chapter in a book, and this book isn't near the end," he said. "I haven't yet determined what my course will be."

Also Tuesday, the Arizona Supreme Court allowed a pro-Mecham group to drop its challenge to the May 17 gubernatorial recall election. Concerned Arizona Voters said it wanted to dismiss its case because it now sees the recall as the former governor's last hope for regaining his office.

However, Mecham attorney Jerris Leonard said he does not believe Mecham can run in any election until 1990 because the Senate removed him from the four-year term he began in January 1987.

The Supreme Court could decide this week whether a recall election is necessary since Mecham was the target.

It is possible the election could remove Mrs. Mofford from office. Her chief of staff, Andrew Hurwitz, said he had been negotiating with acting Secretary of State Karen Osborne and Attorney General Bob Corbin in hopes of exempting Mrs. Mofford from the recall.

Corbin believes the recall should be held as scheduled, but Mrs. Osborne, a longtime Mofford aide, hopes to have it cancelled.

Mrs. Mofford has refused to comment about the recall, and a state resign-to-run law could put her in jeopardy if she campaigns actively.

Also uncertain was Mecham's ballot status.

Mrs. Mofford, known throughout government for her silver beehive hairdo and her stories about her days as a champion softball player, said she was proud to be the first woman in charge of the government where she has worked with 11 of the state's 17 previous governors, but added, "It's very sad that I had to be elevated this way."

She has been the elected secretary of state for the last nine years and had been serving as acting governor since Mecham was impeached by the state House in February. Arizona does not have a lieutenant governor.

Game fish return to river

WACO (AP) — The return of game fish to the Trinity River was celebrated with a massive catfish fry of fresh catches from the river between Freestone and Anderson counties.

Tuesday, 12,000 to 15,000 white crappie, each less than an inch long, were dumped in the river by the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife, an indication that river quality is turning around.

"I'm not foolish enough to think our problems are solved," said Terry Brunner, one of the most vocal critics of upstream sewer treatment inadequacies. "But after all these years, we're finally getting our crappie back."

Anderson County Game Warden Ed Baker said he hasn't seen crappie pulled from the river in 17 years on the job.

Almost a half-million fish died in 1984 and 1985 when rain runoff in the Dallas area stirred up sewage sediment, and those suspended solids washed downstream and consumed oxygen. The fish suffocated.

In 1986, in a lawsuit settlement with Anderson and Freestone counties, treatment plants agreed to spend $500 million improving facilities.

Texas Water Commission officials said much of the improvement has been completed, although some plants are still working on it.

Gene Reynolds, president of the 2-year-old Trinity River Association, is watching a lawsuit the organization filed against the Texas Department of Corrections' two prison units in Anderson County.

Would-be murderers testify they repeatedly failed in attempts to kill

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Admitted accomplices in a botched contract murder allegedly initiated by a Soldier of Fortune magazine advertisement said they tried three times to kill a man, but were unsuccessful.

Testimony began this week in the trial of Richard Michael Savage, 39, of Knoxville, Tenn., accused of masterminding a bungled murder-for-hire scheme.

An October 1986 indictment states that in response to Savage's "Gun for Hire" advertisement, a woman named Alice V. Brado hired him to kill Colorado businessman Dana Free, a man she said bilked her out of her $300,000 life savings.

The indictment names four other people, including Ms. Brado who pleaded guilty to paying Savage $20,000 to arrange Free's death. She later died in prison.

Tuesday, William Clayton Buckley, also named in the indictment, testified that Savage hired him to do the job, and said the first time he tried to kill Free with hand grenades attached to the bottom of a car, the bombs did not explode as expected when the ignition was turned on.

Buckley said Free drove around the Atlanta, Ga., area for a couple of days with grenades dangling underneath his vehicle, until Buckley rewired the bombs.

Michael Wayne Jackson, former police chief in Tatum, Texas, testified Tuesday he met Savage in Atlanta after Savage answered an advertisement the former police chief placed in Soldier of Fortune, offering bodyguard and surveillance work.

Shortly after they met, Jackson said Savage brought up the idea of blowing up someone's car with hand grenades, after a previous attempt had failed.

Jackson said he refused to rewire the hand grenades but agreed to stand watch while someone else hooked up the bombs.

In the second attempt, only one of the bombs blew up, Buckley said.

Free testified Monday he was able to jump from the car and was not hurt in the Aug. 2, 1985, incident.

Buckley and Sherry Lynn Breeden, who also was named in the October 1986 indictment, said Tuesday that Savage sent them to Houston about two months later to find a residence where Free was believed to be staying.

They said Savage supplied them with a car, gasoline credit card, hand grenades, a silenced .45-caliber pistol a semi-automatic Uzi rifle and ammunition, and wired expense money daily.

Buckley said a plan to shoot Free was shelved, because there were too many witnesses in the Pasadena neighborhood where they thought he was staying. They tried to follow him and shoot him elsewhere, but lost Free in traffic, Buckley added.

They said they lobbed hand grenades through two front windows of the house.

But Free had left two weeks earlier, said Bernard Flynn, who was sleeping in a back bedroom early on Oct. 12, 1985, when his kitchen and living room were bombed.

"I heard the grenades go off simultaneously," Flynn said. "That's what woke me up."

Ms. Breeden and Buckley said Savage was upset to learn they had used the hand grenades, because they never saw Free dead.

"Mr. Savage preferred that the people who did contract work for him follow his instructions to the letter," Buckley said.

Ms. Breeden said Savage was further angered to learn a few weeks later that Free was still alive.

"Bill (Buckley) had messed up again, in other words," Ms. Breeden said.

Savage's trial was moved from Houston, due to publicity from an unrelated civil suit in which a jury in Houston found Soldier of Fortune negligent.
