Shevardnadze, right, shakes hands with Afghan foreign minister Wakil in Geneva today.

Soviet Union agrees to leave Afghanistan

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union, the United States, the Marxist Afghan government and Pakistan signed an agreement today to withdraw an estimated 115,000 Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

The agreements were signed by Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, Afghan Foreign Minister Abdul Wakil and acting Pakistani foreign minister Zain Noorani in a formal ceremony at the U.N. building in Geneva

The agreements, which will take effect May 15, commit Pakistan and Afghanistan not to support "directly or indirectly. rebellious or secessionist activities" directed against each other.

Pakistan represented Afghan guerrillas at the talks. The Moslem insurgents, who have been fighting the Soviet-backed government for 10 years, have said they will not sign the accord.

Shultz arrived in Geneva about two hours before the scheduled signing and praised the accord. "Through their blood and sacrifice, the Afghans have earned the opportunity to resume their independence," Shultz said. "Let us help them realize it.

Shultz arrived about an hour before the ceremony, and was scheduled to meet with Shevardnadze afterward. The fourth summit of President Reagan and Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Mikhail S. Gorbachev begins May 29 in Moscow.

The United Nations estimates 1.5 million Afghans have been killed in the war, which began after an April 1978 Communist coup. More than 10,000 Soviets have died since they became involved 11/2 years later. Western sources estimate.

The agreement, under which the Soviet pullout would begin in a month, was worked out over six years in U.N.-sponsored indirect talks between Afghanistan and Pakistan, which claimed to represent the U.S.-supplied rebels.

The guerrillas, however, have to continue fighting.

Gorbachev told American business leaders in Moscow on Wednesday that the Afghan accord may have international implications on a par with the superpower treaty signed in December to ban medium-range nuclear missiles. We believe that the situation has changed for the better, that a window of hope has opened a little," he said in remarks carried by the state-run Tass news agency. "The possibilities of finding solutions to complicated issues engendered in the years of the Cold War have become more apparent.

The Afghan agreement provides for withdrawal of all Soviet troops, pledges by Pakistan and Afghanistan of non-interference in each other's affairs, and the safe return of about 5 million refugees from Pakistan and Iran. Mescow and Washington will guarantee Afghanistan's future non-alignment.

Gore, Dukakis argue over nuclear weapons in New York disputes

By ROBERT GREENE Associated Press Writer

Michael Dukakis and Albert Gore Jr.'s fight for votes in next week's New York primary turned into a clash over foreign policy, with Dukakis claiming his views on when to use nuclear weapons were misrepresented by Gore.

Gore, in turn, said Dukakis showed foreign policy inexperience with an "unwise and irresponsible" statement that he would reserve the right to respond with nuclear force if the Soviets invaded Western Europe.

Gore said Dukakis was advo cating a nuclear first strike, a term that never appeared in an interview Dukakis gave with the New York Daily News.

Dukakis, in his response, said he had merely restated a longstanding NATO policy.

The dispute boiled over

Wednesday as Jesse Jackson appeared in Albany, N.Y., with Gov. Mario Cuomo

Cuomo called Jackson a "singularly important Democrat,' and Jackson thanked Cuomo for holding off on any endorsements until after the primary season June 7.

"Gov. Cuomo, just keep a freeze on all endorsements and keep extending your support,' Jackson said.

Jackson continued to be plagued, however, by hostility from the Jewish community - and from President Reagan, who said politicians have withheld their criticism of Jackson for fear of being called racist.

Republican George Bush called-during the final day of a threeday swing in New York for mandatory death penalties for certain drug-related crimes, reflecting the prominence of the drug issue in this year's campaign.

Gore stirred the new foreign policy controversy after Dukakis told the Daily News "we reserve the right to use nuclear force" in the event of a Soviet invasion of Europe "when there appears to be no other alternative.

He added, "I don't think that's going to happen."

Gore, battling for survival, quickly jumped on the Massachusetts governor and said he had "made a significant mistake in saying that he would launch a nuclear strike against the Soviet Union under ... specific circumst-

At a news conference in Boston, Dukakis said Gore "ought to get his facts straight.

'The policy I advocated has been the policy of the government many years," he said, "It's the policy of the NATO alliance.

At an appearance Wednesday night before Westchester County. N.Y., Democrats, Gore said the transcript of the interview showed Dukakis had been asked whether he could conceive of the first use of "strategic" weapons.

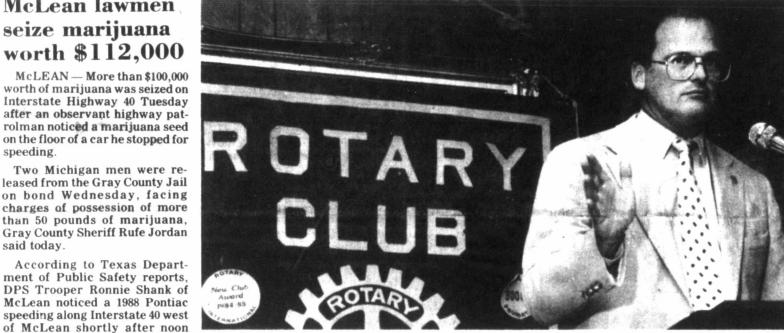

"NATO has purposely refused to respond to that hypothetical," Gore said. "The president of the United States has traditionally refused to respond to that hypothetical.'

James Steinberg, defense and foreign policy adviser to Dukakis, said Dukakis started answering the question thinking he was being asked about tactical nuclear weapons and that after Dukakis started speaking the questioner made reference to strategic.

The transcript shows a comma before the phrase "as a strategic weapon?'

Steinberg said he assumed Dukakis would have given a different answer had he understood the question to be about strategic nuclear weapons.

Jackson, dogged by a number of positions and remarks perceived as anti-Israel and anti-Semitic, was greeted by about 75 protesters when he appeared at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Economy's looking up, mayor says in state of city address

By PAUL PINKHAM Senior Staff Writer

Things are "looking up" for Pampa's economy, Mayor David McDaniel told the Pampa Noon Rotary Club in what he billed as his "state of the city address" Wednesday afternoon.

McDaniel noted that city sales taxes are beginning to pick up, a sign that the economy may finally be on the mend. He also pointed to Hoechst Celanese Chemical Group's decision to rebuild its plant west of town, and the city's involvement in the TEXCEL economic development program.

But he urged the Rotarians to be patient with the city's economic development efforts.

"You don't start yesterday and expect somebody in today," he said, adding that several small business prospects have expressed an interest in the city recently.

McDaniel said city commissioners and City Manager Bob Hart have a commitment to economic development. He said this 20-minute speech. He said the year's "hold-the-line" type city budget runs contrary to the feelings of city officials who desire to move ahead.

But the economy was such that we did approach this year with an idea of maintaining with an emphasis on economic development," McDaniel said.

'Pampa is beginning to be recognized among the cities our size as a leader," McDaniel said. "I'm very proud of that. I hope that you are.

McDaniel said the development of Memorial Park, the widening of Hobart Street and Clean Pampa's Adopt-A-Park program are all significant changes he foresees in the upcoming year. He also praised the cooperative effort between the city and Gray County for construction of a public golf course, even though he personally voted against the agreement for unrelated reasons.

McDaniel also highlighted events of the past year during his

McDaniel apologized for straying from what was supposed to be a non-political speech when mentioning the attorney general's investigation. He complained that the request for an investigation was aimed at the city staff rather than concern for city fi-

Gray County to consider revised golf course plan

Final approval of a revised golf course agreement with the city of Pampa will be considered by Gray County commissioners when they meet in regular session at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Commissioners gave preliminary approval to the agreement in a special meeting April 5, pending several changes requested of city commissioners. City officials went along with the changes and signed the agreement last

County Judge Carl Kennedy said the expected signing of the agreement Friday is essentially a formality. If signed, commissioners would end a controversy that has festered for seven years.

Under the agreement, the county will donate equipment, manpower and up to $300,000 to the project. The course would be built just north of Pampa along Texas Highway 70.

In other action Friday, commissioners plan to:

consider a recommendation to the Texas Highway Department for new or improved state highways in the county;

consider a proposal from Southwestern Bell Telephone for an upgraded telephone system; receive the county treasurer's report; and apay salaries and bills and consider time deposits and transfers as recommended by the county

Arkansas and Louisiana.

In the five-state region, about 12 million income tax returns are expected. About 6 million had been received by Wednesday, Sassen said.

"A lot of people wait to file late because they owe money, and most feel there's no reason to give the government money earlier than you have to," she said.

Some people are waiting for their returns to be completed by professionals, while others just naturally wait until the last minute, she said.

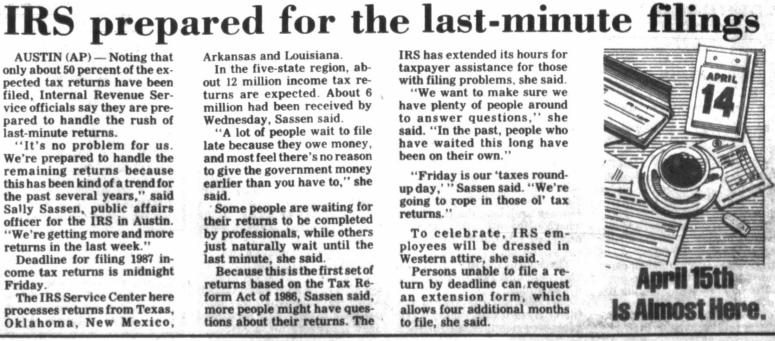

Because this is the first set of returns based on the Tax Reform Act of 1986, Sassen said, more people might have ques tions about their returns. The IRS has extended its hours for taxpayer assistance for those with filing problems, she said.

"We want to make sure we have plenty of people around to answer questions," she said. "In the past, people who have waited this long have been on their own.

"Friday is our 'taxes roundup day,' "Sassen said. "We're going to rope in those ol' tax

To celebrate, IRS employees will be dressed in Western attire, she said.

Persons unable to file a return by deadline can request an extension form, which allows four additional months to file, she said.

Navy frigate hits mine in gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Navy frigate on patrol in the Persian Gulf has apparently hit an underwater mine, Pentagon sources said today.

The sources, who agreed to discuss the matter only if not identified said there were no reports of injuries and it remained unclear how extensive the damage was.

The officials identified the frigate as the USS Samuel B. Roberts.

They said the ship "is in no danger of sinking." The sources said the frigate was steaming in the vicinity of Farsi Island in the north central Persian Gulf, near the same area where a Kuwaiti tanker struck a mine last July during a U.S. convoy operation. The sources said the frigate "hit something; we are assuming it was a mine. The USS Roberts, one of the Oliver Hazard Perry class of frigates, was commissioned in April

The Roberts would not be the first ship to strike an underwater mine since the Navy began escorting reflagged Kuwaiti oil tankers though the gulf last year. Last July 21, the tanker Bridgeton hit a mine near Farsi Island, which Iranian naval forces have used as a base of operations against the Kuwaiti tankers.

ABILENE (AP) — A federal jury has convicted two former bank officers on 36 counts accusing them of embezzling $1.3 million from Abilene National Bank through a scheme involving the sale of bank stock.

Convicted Wednesday were Don Earney and James Kington after the jury of nine men and three women deliberated more than 14 hours over two days.

Earney, former chairman of the bank, and Kington, a former vice president, were convicted on several counts each of embezzling money from stock purchase loan transactions, falsifying bank records to hide the true reasons for the loans, causing federally required cash transaction reports not to be filed and aiding and abetting criminal activity

Three men indicted in Fort Worth car bombing

FORT WORTH (AP) - A man who had been trying to impress people that he had ties to the Mafia has been indicted along with two other men in connection with a car-bomb killing a week ago at a barbecue stand

A federal grand jury in Dallas Wednesday indicted Steven Michael Gerkin, 26, and two other men in connection with the death of Giovanni Mancini Jr.

Two other men were identified as Steven Ray Turner, 20, of Ardmore, Okla., and Ralph Michael Lanfranca, 27, of Kansas City, Mo.

Gerkin, who was born in Waterloo, Iowa, has used several Italian aliases and used the surname of Gambino in the Fort Worth-Dallas area. Gambino is the name of a prominent New York family linked to organized crime.

But investigators say they are not certain if Gerkin has any Mafia ties. "He apparently was at least trying to give that impression to people." Fort Worth police Sgt. Paul Kratz said. The victim in the April 7 car-bombing also cultivated a gangster-like aura. Mancini often wore heavy gold jewelry, told many stories about himself and his alleged wealth and had a flashy lifestyle, according to acquaintances and

On the day Mancini died, he greeted Gerkin with a kiss on the cheek when they met at the Truck Box Barbecue in Mancini told Gerkin that he loved him and that it was time to resolve a yearlong feud, according to an arrest warrant affidavit. Police said the feud was the apparent motive in the bombing. They declined to comment on the cause of the feud, but said it was linked to some sort of business transactions.

Chris Nelson, assistant special agent in charge of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Dallas, said Lanfranca uses the alias Joe Luca.

All three men are charged with conspiracy, punishable by up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

Gerkin and Lanfranca also are charged with destruction by explosion that resulted in the death of Mancini. That charge carries a maximum penalty of life in prison and a $250,000 fine, Nelson said.

Mancini, 26, who had lived in North Texas about a year, died when a pipe bomb triggered by remote control exploded in his rental car as he left the barbecue stand, police say.

He had told his girlfriend, Vicki Lynn McBride, that he was going there to meet Gerkin, according to an arrest warrant affidavit written by Fort Worth police Detective C.W. Riley.

'Mancini told Vicki McBride that Gambino (Gerkin) had just been released from a drug treatment program Gambino wanted to pay Mancini for the damage he (had) done to Mancini's car when he blew it up last year," the affidavit said.

Mancini's car was firebombed at a Dallas apartment complex in November shortly after his feud with Gerkin flared, Kratz said. No arrests were made in that case, he said.

Earlier last year, another girlfriend of Mancini's was shot in the face and died. He was charged with murder but pleaded guilty Sept. 14 to involuntary manslaughter and was given 10 years

Acting Police Chief Louie Caudell put Assistant Police Chief Charles R. Busby on leave Wednesday "pending the resolution of legal issues relating to how he has arranged for the service of off-duty officers to work off-duty jobs,'' police spokesman Ed Spencer said.

Tuesday, Police Chief Billy Prince announced he was retiring as head of the department, following controversy over police shootings of minorities, the deaths of three officers this year and a struggle with City Council members over police accountability.

The Texas Board of Private Investigators and Private Security Agencies told police officials Wednesday that Busby may have been operating a private security business without a license by arranging the off-duty jobs for which he charges a fee.

Busby has operated the company, which uses off-duty officers as security guards, since 1985. He has said that while he schedules officers for off-duty jobs, he does not employ them and therefore his firm is exempt from state licensing law Busby has said he has done nothing wrong by charging an administrative fee for coordinating the off-duty jobs. He said he coordinated the security jobs on his own time. The Dallas Morning News reported earlier that Busby controlled access to most off-duty jobs at the Dallas Convention Center and Reunion Arena for more than 15 years Busby's superiors said they gave him a monopoly in 1985 over scheduling officers who would escort houses being moved through the city. But last month, police officials allowed other officers to compete for scheduling duties last month after receiving a legal opinion from the city attorney that called Busby's monopoly a "poor practice."

State rests case after girl, mother testify about attack

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A woman testified she screamed for help and tried to pull a lion away from her daughter as the animal wrestled the child to the ground and ripped off part of her

Sonia Hernandez was the last witness called before the prosecution rested its case Wednesday in the trial of Gary Durkovitz, 35, of Houston.

Durkovitz, whose trial was moved on a change of venue, is charged with injury to a child after his lion named "Samson" attacked 8-year-old Roxanne Hernandez at the Texas Flea Market in Houston on Oct. 10,

The lion was at the flea market as part of an exhibit and Durko-·vitz was walking it out of the flea market on a chain when the attack occurred.

The lion bit into the girl's skull, exposing her brain. Roxanne has undergone reconstructive surgery and faces more operations to correct part of a missing skull and a bald spot on her head. Roxanne and her mother, both testified Wednesday, but the girl she tried to calm her daughter for said all she remembered about the attack was that "the lion got me. I didn't know what it was."

Mrs. Hernandez testified that they went to the flea market last October to buy a gift and that the attack occurred shortly after they entered the building.

'The lion was wrestling with my daughter and I was pulling it trying to get it off my daughter," Mrs. Hernandez said. "I was screaming out for her and she was screaming out for me.

"I was screaming for help and she would call out my name, 'Mom, Mom, help me,' '' she said.

Mrs. Hernandez said she pulled the lion's mane, but to no avail and that the animal tried to put the girl's head into its mouth.

'I saw the lion when he took her scalp off," Mrs. Hernandez said. "I felt really helpless at that time and at that moment I felt it was going to kill her."

She said a security guard shot the lion and it loosened its grip on her child. It later was destroyed. She said several men told her to lay the child on the ground and 15 minutes before an ambulance arrived.

"I was telling her that I loved her and she said that she loved me and I told her everything was going to be fine," she said. "She had blood all over her head and she was pale.

Mrs. Hernandez said her daughter was in the hospital a month before she went home Roxanne had a homebound teacher until February when she returned to school

"She has trouble concentrating on her work during the day and she has trouble following directions," Mrs. Hernandez said.

Roxanne, wearing a light green dress and a white sailor's cap to cover her injured head, was on the witness stand for only 15 minutes and answered mostly 'yes'' and ''no'' questions.

Defense attorney Robert Scardino, who has called the lion attack "a tragic accident," did not question the mother and daughter and state prosecutors immediately rested their case.

State District Judge Ted Poe of Houston that the media coverage of the trial was intense and was "pro-prosecution." Earlier in the day, David Ruh-

Scardino also complained to ter, mammal curator at the Houston Zoo, testified that lions seek out children, but are intimidated by adults. "It attacks its prey because it moves," Ruhter said. "It's his livelihood. You see it in 9-weekold cats when they attack a ball."

Settlement agreed to in case involving an alleged mouse in beer

AUSTIN (AP) - A man who fered with his job because he said his life changed for the worse after he found a decapitated mouse in his beer has reached a settlement with Adolph Coors Co., attorneys said.

Ted Gerardi sued Coors in 1982 after finding the mouse's remains in a beer he was drinking during a get-together at his Richland Hills home.

The Texas Supreme Court on Wednesday set a May 4 date to hear arguments in the case brought by Gerardi against Coors. But C. Tony Wright, a Dallas attorney representing Gerardi, and Michael Jung, a Dallas lawyer representing Coors, said Wednesday the parties have settled and are working to finalize the agreement.

If it is finalized, the Supreme Court appeal would be dismissed, a Dallas appeals court order for a new trial would stand and the trial judge would enter a ruling in favor of Coors in the case, Jung

In return, Coors has agreed to a "substantial" settlement, Wright said. The attorneys said they could not discuss details of the settlement because of a nondisclosure agreement.

Court records in the case say Gerardi became ill after finding the mouse and continued to suffer incidents of vomiting for at least

Gerardi, a Watauga public safety officer, said he was teased by fellow officers about the

It said the trial judge was wrong to strike the exemplary damages, but the judge also should not have allowed the introduction of evidence, over Coors' objections, about the beer company's profits for 1981-85.

The Supreme Court agreed to hear Gerardi's argument that the appeals court erred in ruling against introduction of evidence of profits. Gerardi said evidence of a defendant's financial condition is relevant to the issue of exmouse. He said the incident inter- emplary damages.

Feds will investigate Texas Air management, Eastern's safety record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department says concerns about the economic health of Texas Air Corp. prompted its investigation into the management and finances of the country's largest airline company.

Transportation Secretary Jim Burnley announced the investigation Wednesday as the Federal Aviation Administration also disclosed a proposed $823,000 fine against a Texas Air subsidiary, Eastern Airlines, and a separate safety probe of the Miami-based carrier.

Texas Air called both investigations unwarranted and blamed them on pressure from union leaders who "have mounted a continuing campaign of distortion and lies" about safety at both Eastern and another subsidiary, Continental Airlines

Continental is the country's fourth largest airline, while Eastern is the sixth largest. Together they carry nearly 20 percent of the nation's air

Eastern has for months been embroiled in a bitter confrontation with its labor unions, which are resisting management's call for significant contract concessions and which accused Texas Air of syphoning off the most profitable parts of the air-

In announcing the two-pronged action against Texas Air and its airline subsidiaries, Burnley cited evidence in recent company filings to the Securities and Exchange Commission that both Eastern and Continental "are under substantial, increasing financial pressure."

The department wants to determine if Texas Air and its management are "fit, willing and able" to carry commercial air traffic, Burnley said at a news conference also attended by FAA Administrator Allan McArtor. McArtor said the new FAA safety review of Eastern was being conducted because of concern about the "coatinuing pattern of fines, safety violations and apparent insensitivity of some of Eastern's officials" to FAA safety regulations.

The FAA inspection would include examination of each of Eastern's 267 aircraft over the next 30

The $823,000 civil penalty against Eastern comes 14 months after Eastern agreed to pay $9.5 million in penalties because of earlier safety infractions. FAA officials said the latest fine stems from record keeping and maintenance infractions similar to those found in the earlier action.

The latest fine is based on findings from an investigation last September and October, but Eastern now has an opportunity to challenge it. If the airline can produce evidence the FAA considers valid, the fine could be reduced.

In Miami, Phil Bakes, Eastern's president, called the latest FAA action unfair and expressed concern that it may prompt some travelers not to fly Eastern. Last month passenger revenue at Eastern dropped 20 percent compared to March

Texas Air Corp. had record losses of $466 million last year and has an overall debt of about $5.4 billion. Nevertheless, the Houston-based company said in a statement Wednesday that it "remains financially strong with over $850 million in cash at the end of the first quarter."

But news of the federal investigation caused Texas Air stock to drop more than $1 a share, to $10.75, on the American Stock Exchange during trading Wednesday. The stock finally closed at $10.871/2, down 871/2 cents from Tuesday.

There has been increasing sentiment in Congress in recent months for a closer examination of Texas Air. A resolution urging such a probe has gained the support of more than 150 congressmen. 'The recent activities of the Texas Air Corp. and its carriers - particularly Continental and East-HOURS: ern - raise questions concerning whether the carriers can and are disposed to comply with the safety and economic rules applicable to air carriers," the department said in its order for an investiga-

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Jim Wright also has dirty hands!

The flurry of controversy surrounding Edwin Meese needs to be put in perspective. The main point to remember is that, as attorney general for Ronald Reagan, Meese has been point man for some of the administration's most controversial policies that is, policies intensely disliked by America's political establishment.

For example, Meese's Justice Department has worked to dismantle racist affirmative-action quotas, which discriminate against whatever racial or ethnic groups the establishment happens not to favor at the moment. Justice has tried to disentangle the maze of anti-trust regulations that have tied the hands of American corporations in their efforts to compete overseas. And it has recommended to Reagan such stellar judicial appointments as Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia, 9th Circuit Court Judge Alex Kozinski, Judge Robert Bork and law professor Bernard Siegan.

Meese's actions in supporting the Constitution haven't been perfect, of course. To cite one instance, he supports the Immigration and Naturalization Service's manhunt for allegedly "illegal" aliens. But in general Meese has upheld the Constitution far more than we have come to expect from our

To the establishment such a position is a "crime" far worse than any of Meese's alleged financial misdeeds. The liberals despise his efforts to advance the ancient constitutional rights of the person over the massive power of an ever-expanding state. So the lynch mob has been assembled: Congress, the media and radical activists. And they have torn into Meese's flesh.

What of Meese's financial irregularities? Special prosecutor James McKay, who is investigating Meese, said he had no immediate plans to seek criminal charges against Meese, either for alleged financial misdeeds or for Meese's involvement in the failed proposal to build a pipeline in Iraq. Until remain mere allegations. And one can allege anything about anybody.

Let's contrast the treatment — or mistreatment -of Ed Meese with the way the media and the elites have treated House Speaker Jim Wright and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum. Metzenbaum was easily let off the hook for accepting a $200,000 "finder's fee" in the sale of a Washington hotel. And appearances of influence-peddling swarm about Wright like a plague of locusts. His role in the bailout of Texas savings and loan associations cries out to be investigated. Yet only a few unheard voices, such as Rep. Newt Gingrich, have demanded a full inquiry.

Solicitor General Charles Fried has charged that Meese's problems have so weakened the Justice Department that it can no longer function. Special prosecutor McKay's statement should help put the charge aside. But the Justice Department can completely quash charges of impotence by launching a full-scale investigation of government influencepeddling's major source: the US Congress, especially Jim Wright.

Red birds aren't Arizon

Think of Arizona, and what comes to mind? The desert and the Grand Canyon, cowboys and Indians, clear skies and brilliant sunsets.

But little red songbirds? Not likely. Not unless you've been reading the sports pages — in which case you may have run across references to a newly transplanted National Football League team which goes by the unlikely name of Phoenix Cardinals.

The team recently abandoned St. Louis. where those birds make regular appearances. It had originally been based, decades ago, right in Chicago, where they are also familiar. But my reference books assure me that cardinals are not found anywhere near Phoenix.

The Encyclopedia Britannica insists that cardinals are sighted only "east of the Rockies." The World Book Encyclopedia located them "in the Eastern United States from South Dakota, southern Minnesota, and Massachusetts southward to Florida and the Gulf of Mexico." Those on speaking terms with geography will note that Arizona doesn't fall into that region.

There is a bird native to the state that does look a little like a cardinal, though only its tail and crest are red. But getting Arizonans to pay money to see the Phoenix Pyrrhuloxia might not

Fortunately, if a mascot is needed, the state has more than its share of distincitve local critters - rattlesnakes, burros, javelinas and scorpions, to name a few. Personally I like the sound of Phoenix Gila Monsters. For the uninitiated, I should note that the gila monster is a deadly poisonous lizard that resides in the American Southwest. The name would help to unnerve visiting teams, who I imagine would spend most of their time looking out for nasty crawly things instead of screen passes.

One of the little-noted symptoms of the rot in Western culture is the proliferation of ridiculous names for sports teams. The historian Thomas Carlyle said, "All poetry is but the giving of names." Unfortunately, not many poets yearn to squander their spare time in league meetings with the likes of George Steinbrenner and Ted

The most absurd names are the products of franchises that move from one city to another, but don't bother to find a new symbol. Minneapolis used to have an NBA team called the Lakers, in honor of the state's reputation as the 'land of 10,000 lakes.'' They now reside in Los Angeles with the same name, oblivious to the conspicuous shortage of natural fresh water sources there. I guess they couldn't warm up to the idea of the Los Angeles Man-Made Reser-

The Baltimore Colts, who played near Maryland's horse country, have kept their mascot despite a relocation to Indianapolis, where the natives are more acquainted with the type of horses you find under the hood of a car.

The New Orleans Jazz, which experts in sports trivia inform me is a professional basketball team, left the city that is synonymous with jazz for Salt Lake City, which is synonymous with Mormonism. Now they are known as the Utah Jazz, two words that normally would never be used in the same sentence. It would make about as much sense to call Notre Dame's athletic teams the "Fighting Scots." The Utah Choral Music, maybe?

Team owners used to have a decent regard for the intelligence of their fans. When the Dallas Texans of the old American Football League left the Lone Star state, they didn't call themselves the Kansas City Texans, but the Chiefs. The Seattle Pilots, named in deference to the local aircraft business, acknowledged a different industry as the Milwaukee Brewers.

When the Washington Senators baseball team evacuated the nation's capital, they adopted the name of the Minnesota Twins. A second incarnation of the Senators, upon making their own exit, became the Texas Rangers.

Once upon a time, mascots provided a chance to evoke regional color. Names like the Philadelphia 76ers, the Houston Astros, the Detroit Pistons, the Phoenix Suns and the Minnesota Vikings echo facts about their cities. The Kansas City Royals, the Altanta Falcons and the Sacramento Kings, by contrast, have all the local flavor of a Denny's restaurant.

Of course, the problem may be one not of finding names that convey something of a distinctive local identity, but of finding a local identity that evokes any pride. Sometimes reality is so depressing that it has to be ignored. I don't know if America is ready for a World Series between the New York Arbitrageurs and the Houston Foreclosures

The most difficult tickets to obtain in all of sports are those which allow the holder to walk upon the hallowed grounds of Augusta National during the annual Masters golf tournament.

There are no sales to the general public. Those who have tickets either inherited them or got on the list for the privilege of buying them years

Jack, a guy from Columbus, Ga., first began buying tickets 23 years ago. 'They were just $15 back then,' he said, "but they went up to $70." Jack used to go to the tournament each year

Allan Bloom's mind also has shut down

By CHUCK STONE

A best-selling book from academia means one of two things. Either serious readers are devouring its literary elegance or dilettantes are pretentiously displaying it to demonstrate a collision momentary scholarship

Allan Bloom's controversial best seller, "The Closing of the American Mind," seems to be a case of the latter. During a recent television interview, for example, the president of the University of Miami (which does not usually confuse pursuit of truth with the conquest of athletics) ostentatiously arranged a copy of Bloom's book on his desk.

Bloom's compelling work should be read, but for the same reasons people read other disturbing magnum op that influenced the history of intellectual thought, such as Arthur Gobineau's "Inequality of the Races," Karl Marx and Friedrich Engel's "Commu-nist Manifesto" and Adopf Hitler's "Mein Kampf." For Bloom has written a racist book

Why, then, its popularity? It's probably because Bloom uses his respectability and his erudite mind to justify all of the mindless insecurities Americans harbor about universities, university graduates and black students.

The subtitle of his book is: "How Higher Education Has Failed Democracy and Impoverished the Souls of Today's Students." A more accurate subtitle would be: "How to Punish Black Students for Traumatizing Academia With Guns and Affirmative Action.'

Throughout his incontinent jeremiad, Bloom impeaches today's black students for the 1969 sins of black students during his tenure at Cornell University. On one page, he hails universities as "melting pots." On the very next page, he says, "a large black presence in major universities ... (has) proved indigestible."

He indicts blacks for not melting "as have all other groups," but winks his moral eye at other ethnic and religious enclaves on college campuses

- Newman Clubs for Catholics, Hillel Clubs for Jews, Hispanic Clubs and Asian-American Associations.

Discussing his Cornell trauma, Bloom uses the terms "black mili-tants," "black radicals" and "black students" interchangeably. (They all look alike, anyway). In a section on "The Decomposition of the University," he begins his incrimination by referring to "the guns of Cornell," a 1969 incident when armed black students seized an administration building

Bloom finally emerges from his anti-egalitarian closet with this line: "Affirmative action, at least in universities, is the source of what I fear is a long-term deterioration of the rebetween the races in Translation: Send the darkies back to the plantation.

But a more dangerous omnipresence repeatedly threads its way through Bloom's epic. He falls back on an elitist obsession with Plato's "Republic" ("for me, the book on education") to justify his inferences and opinions. He argues that college education is pedagogically bankrupt, that the MBA as "the moral equivalent of the M.D. or law degree" is a "great disaster," that Walkman-wearing college students are "spiritually detumescent" in their "primal slime," and that "no public career these days... has much to do with humane learning."

Not so, dissents an equally distinguished scholar. In an essay, "The en Open American Mind," Wesleyan University's Henry R. Luce Professor of Democratic Institutions, Robert C. Wood, optimistically reminds us that interaction in scholarship and teaching at the boundary lines where disciplines intersect" requires "trust, not disparagement of our fellows.

"Trust extends to the students, and that relationship is also reciprocal." Bloom's problem is that deep down in his scholarly gut, he really doesn't trust democracy. But then, neither did

Reagan says he didn't know about the fabricated quotes

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan insists that he was never aware his spokesman concocted quotes for him and says he is getting tired of "kissand-tell books" written by his former aides.

Reagan, answering questions at a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, also said Jesse Jackson's policies have not been scrutinized adequately in the Democratic presidential race because it might be "misinterpreted into some kind of racial attack.'

In a wide-ranging question-and-answer session on Wednesday, the president commented for the first time on two issues — the sensitive topic of race in the 1988 presidential race and the controversy over the new book by his former spokesman, Larry

Speakes, in his book "Speaking Out," reveals that he twice gave quotes to the press corps claiming the words were Reagan's when in fact they were not. One incident occurred after the downing of a Korean Air Lines jet in 1983, and the other came during the 1985 Geneva summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

When the story surfaced earlier this week, Reagan aides described the president as angry to learn of the deception. Speakes, however, said in subsequent interviews that Reagan knew at the time of the practice and did not object.

On Wednesday, Reagan said, "I was not aware of that and just learned it recently, as all the rest of you did, and I can tell you right now that I have no affection for these kiss-and-tell books that are being written, and I find it entirely fiction."

Reagan did not directly answer the question of whether he approved of the practice or would allow it to continue. His current spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, has condemned the practice.

Reagan's reference to "kiss-and-tell" books evidently refers not only to Speakes' book, but to "Behind the Scenes," written by his former deputy chief of staff, Michael K. Deaver, and a forthcoming volume by former chief of staff Donald T.

The president also was asked about Speakes' contention that he "does not read many newspapers thoroughly.

"Well, I begin with the comics," Reagan said, confirming part of Speakes' account and drawing a laugh from his audience in the process.

The president said that was "a lifetime habit," and that he then turns to the editorial pages. He said he also looks through news clippings prepared by his staff because of the volume of papers published outside of Washington.

"But he's wrong when he implies that I don't read the papers. Yes, I do," Reagan said. Later, discussing the presidential campaign and

Jackson, Reagan said: "I hope that race will not be a part of this campaign in any way. Reagan went on to say of Jackson, "It seems that more attention is being paid to the difference in color than is being paid to what he is actually

"And I have to believe that a great many of us would find ourselves in great disagreement with the policies that he is proposing and would perhaps be more vocal about them if it wasn't concern that that'd be misinterpreted into some kind of a racial attack." Reagan said

Gold becoming economic benchmark

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gold, the magical metal, is easing its way back on the world monetary stage after a 15-year absence.

The latest move is admittedly a small one, far short of returning to the gold standard which ruled world currency values for almost three decades following World War II.

But the top finance leaders of the seven major industrial nations did endorse a plan Wednesday to use the price of certain commodities to help them coordinate economic policies.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, who is pushing the idea, has singled out gold as one of the commodities which should be included as a barometer in guiding policy decisions by the world's largest economic powers.

The so-called Group of Seven, including the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France, Canada and Italy, also agreed at their Wednesday meeting to continue efforts aimed at preventing the dollar from declining any further. The United States and its six allies decided in September 1985 to push the dollar lower to correct America's huge trade deficit, but the countries have been trying since February 1987 to halt the year, and the steadily deteriorating dollar was cited as one of the reasons the world's financial markets were thrown into turmoil last October.

But since Dec. 22, the major industrial countries have crafted a new strategy to stabilize the dollar and that agreement has held for the past four prop up its value.

In early trading in Tokyo, the dollar dipped marginally as analysts said the Group of Seven statement contained nothing which had not been ex-

Nation's trade deficit soared in February

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit widened dramatically in February to $13.8 billion, its biggest shortfall since October and the second monthly jump in a row, the government said today.

The excess of imports over exports rose $1.4 billion from January's $12.4 billion imbalance.

Analysts, who had largely predicted that the February deficit would shrink slightly, said that a widening deficit would put sharp downward pressure on the value of the U.S. dollar.

For the first two months of 1988, the deficit is running at an annual rate of $157.6 billion, below the record $171.2 billion of last year but still worse than second highest imbalance of $156.2 billion in 1986, the Commerce Department said. Imports of foreign manufactured goods, oil and farm products increased by $2.3 billion in February. Leading the surge were imports of electrical equipment from abroad, up $323 million, and auto and truck parts, up $298 million.

U.S. exports also rose, but by a smaller $1.3 billion from January

Analysts had anticipated an improvement in the trade balance in February because of the normally slack winter demand for imported goods, lower oil prices and the fact that the month is the shortest of the year.

On the eve of today's report, Allen Sinai of the First Boston Co., a New York economic consulting firm, said any deficit above $12 billion in February would be viewed as a sign that the nation's trade problems are far from over and that the deliberate 36 percent devaluation of the dollar over the last three years is not having the intended effect on the trade imbalance.

As a result, Sinai said, "the dollar is going to come under considerable pressure" toward further devaluation despite the renewed commitment Wednesday by the finance ministers of the world's seven largest industrial powers to keep it at its pre-

U.S. oil imports jumped 1.2 million barrels a day in February to 8.1 million, the highest they have been since September 1986. As a result, the trade deficit with members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries shot up by $270 million over January to $1.3 billion.

Biological mother, foster family to fight tribe over Navajo baby

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) - A couple who sought to adopt the baby of an unmarried Navajo woman have agreed to give the girl back but vow to fight alongside the mother to regain custody of the child from tribal authorities.

Despite the wishes of Allyssa Kristian Pitts' 21-year-old mother and the couple that has cared for her since her birth July 20, a judge has ruled that the child must be turned over today to Navajo authorities.

Patricia Keetso, who gave up Allyssa so that she could have a life away from the reservation in Arizona, says she'll fight to get her back and return her to the would-be adoptive parents, Cheryl and Rick Pitts.

"I love my baby and want her to get something out of life," she said tearfully at the Pitts' home Wednesday

The Pittses, saying they are "devastated" by the prospect of losing the baby they love and helped bring into the world, still hope to get her back but aren't sure what will happen next Keetso said her mother, who was brought to California for the court hearings, was threatened with prison if the baby were not returned.

"They've hassled my whole family," said Keetso, who has eight brothers and sisters.

The Navajo Nation's Tribal Department of Justice, citing the Indian Child Welfare Act, filed a complaint in Santa Clara County Superior Court in February to gain jurisdiction of the case and stop the Pittses' adoption petition.

Navajo officials said the adoption was illegal and demanded the baby be sent to the reservation

Cheryl Pitts, center, holds her adopted baby Allyssa and covers her face after her husband Rick, left, talked by phone with their lawyer who informed them they must give up the baby. At right is the child's birth mother, Patricia Keetso.

After two hearings, Judge Leslie Nichols ordered the Pittses to give up the child, ruling that Keetso was under tribal jurisdiction and legally resided on the Arizona reservation she has visited only occasionally in recent years.

Rather than appeal Nichols' ruling, the Pittses decided

Wednesday to drop their adoption petition and fight to return custody of Allyssa to Keetso. Eventually, they hope to get Allyssa back.

Keetso and Mrs. Pitts planned to accompany Allyssa back to Arizona and try to persuade Navajo authorities to let them care for the baby.

of breakthrough in 10-day-old hijacl

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) - Thirtytwo passengers remained trapped inside a hijacked Kuwaiti jumbo jet for the 10th day today, and Algerian mediators said attempts to negotiate an end to the ordeal had reached a stale-

Negotiations were suspended after mediators were unable to persuade Kuwaiti officials to meet the hijackers' demands, a ranking Algerian official said. Talks with the hijackers were called off at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday (6:45 p.m. EDT) to give negotiators time to rest, and there was no sign of a break-

The hijackers, thought to number about eight, are armed with grenades and guns and have threatened to blow up the plane and kill their hostages.

The Algerian mediation team, headed by Interior Minister Hedi Khediri, and a delegation of nine Kuwaiti officials led by Mohammed Saud Al-Osaimi, a deputy foreign minister, were expected to meet again today.

The Algerians met at least twice on Wednesday with the hijackers, who have killed two hostages in a bid to force Kuwait to free 17 pro-Iranian extremists jailed for bombing the U.S. and French embassies in Kuwait in 1983.

Kuwait has refused and its defense minister, Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmed Al Sabah, on Wednesday affirmed his country's "unwavering and principled stance of rejecting blackmail," Kuwait's news agency reported.

"If they merely wanted to restate their known position, there was no need for them to send their high-level delegation to Algiers," an Algerian official told The Associated Press on condition he not be further identified.

He said Kuwait's "intransigence" had brought the negotiations to a standstill. The remarks appeared to confirm unofficial reports that Algeria was trying to pressure Kuwait into a more flexible position.

Food and water were taken Wednesday afternoon to the blue-and-white Boeing 747, which the hijackers call the "plane of martyrdom." It baked under the North African sun on an isolated patch of tarmac at Houari Boumedienne airport.

At 7 a.m. today (2 a.m. EDT), the hijackers agreed to allow the jet to be moved about half a mile to allow the plane of Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda to land safely for a state visit.

Asked by the control tower if the plane might be moved, the hijackers replied, "No problem, no problem." But they insisted their plane be returned to the same position later.

The Kuwait Airways jumbo jet was hijacked April 5 on a flight from Bangkok to Kuwait with 112 people aboard. It was diverted to Mashhad, Iran, where 57 people were freed, then Larnaca, Cyprus, where the hijackers killed two Kuwaiti hostages and freed 13 passengers. On Tuesday, the hijackers forced the plane to Algeria. Three members of the extensive Kuwaiti royal family remain aboard.

One freed passenger who returned to Kuwait from Cyprus, Adnan Rashi Majiki, told the AP six gunmen took over the aircraft and another joined them in Another passenger, Ramadan Ali, told the NBC's "Today" show Wednesday the gunmen also were supplied with new weapons, explosives and ropes while in Iran.

PLO leader Yasser Arafat, in an interview on Wednesday with Cable News Network from North Yemen, said some of the gunmen are Lebanese and "some of them belong to the Iranian govern-

Panama's military says Marines shot at 'non-existent enemies'

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) - Panama's military rejected a report that U.S. soldiers engaged up to 50 intruders in a two-hour firefight at a fuel depot.

Maj. Edgardo Lopez Grimaldo of the Panamanian Defense Forces told reporters Wednesday night the U.S. Marine sentries had "confused the swaying of tropical palm trees with non-existent

He also accused the Marines of moving 100 yards into Panamanian territory during the incident and called it the "24th Gringo military invasion of Panamanian soil."

The U.S. Southern Command said about 100 Marines were involved in the firefight with between 40 and 50 "unauthorized personnel" first spotted at dusk Tuesday at the 800-acre Arraijan Tank Farm, an underground fuel depot located near Howard Air Force Base outside Panama City. There apparently were no injuries on either side, said U.S. spokesman Col. Ron Sconyers.

He added that Marines who swept the area after daylight found no evidence of injuries and no equipment the intruders may have left behind.

On Monday, a Marine sentry was shot to death during an attempted break-in at the depot by six to eight people dressed in camouflage, U.S. military officials said. He was apparently shot accidentally by another Marine.

Sconyers said there was no evidence in either incident that the intruders were Panamanian military personnel, but said that on Tuesday they all were "reported wearing dark uniforms."

The two reported shooting incidents drove to a new low already tense and bitter relations between the United States and the government controlled by Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, chief of the 15,000-strong Defense Forces.

Noriega, the power behind the civilian government, is under federal indictment in the United States on drug trafficking charges. For months, he has resisted efforts by the internal opposition and Washington to oust him.

Psychology professor wants to use cartoons to teach reading

EL PASO (AP) — A researcher log. KCIK-TV ran 30-second spots teaching English-speaking chilplans to take a comic approach to teaching English to Spanishspeaking pre-schoolers, using cartoon strips to help the youngsters recognize words.

University of Texas-El Paso psychology professor Edmund Coleman hopes to draw on a government grant to fund his teaching method.

Words taught using Coleman's 'pictograph'' method are drawn to look like what they mean.

For example, in one comic strip, a small child cuts eyeholes out of the two e's in the word see." In another, the three letters in the word "egg" resemble hard-boiled eggs.

Coleman has applied for a $150,000 Department of Education grant that would pay for printing and advertising small cartoon booklets that parents could use in conjunction with televised, non-animated comic strips

The teaching method was tested two years ago when the El Paso Herald-Post and an independent city TV station teamed up in a literacy project. Coleman said he has refined the process during the last two years.

"Man, they (the comics) work," he said. "Children 3 and 4 years old learn to read almost instantly.

He said some children have learned up to 10 words a day during experimental teaching ses-

The strips are extremely skimpy as far as plot and character development, but Coleman said education — not entertainment is the point of the comics. Most of the strips are drawn by two artists Coleman hired.

Two years ago, the Herald-Post printed the simple comic strips on the page with the television between weekday-afternoon animated cartoons in which that day's comic strip was pictured while a narrator pronounced the day's word.

Coleman applied for a grant from the Education Department's bilingual education program, but he said the teaching method is equally successful at steps."

Jury rules in favor of state over javelina

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) - The owner of Bubba, a chocolate-loving javelina, says the civil trial over the creature's disappearance could have been avoided if game wardens had treated the animal more humanely.

A jury on Wednesday said Texas Parks and Wildlife supervisor Frank Kelso acted properly in ordering the seizure of Bubba, who was later released into the wild and has not been seen again.

Buddy and Patsy Thorne had sought $500,000 in damages, claiming they sustained mental anguish, loss of earnings, physical impairment and medical expenses after losing Bubba, a peccary, or piglike animal.

Wildlife regulations forbid individuals from taking an animal out of the wild. Thorne acknowledged he kept the animal after finding it abandoned during a hunting trip 11 years ago.

She told of coming back from overseas trips when her husband was president, inspired to cloak Washington in daffodils, tulips and azaleas. Natural gas supply is Texas' hope

By MARIA HALKIAS The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS (AP) - Texas has enough natural gas to satisfy the nation's energy needs for decades, and the state's gas industry is launching a widespread campaign to convince potential customers of that fact.

In Texas, natural gas production decreased by 1.85 percent last year, and according to preliminary numbers from the Texas Railroad Commission, exports of Texas-produced gas in 1987 declined 6.24 percent from the previous year.

Nationwide, the industry has lost one-fourth of its market in 15 years. Natural gas represented 33 percent of U.S. energy consumption in 1970 and continued losing market share. Last year, natural gas represented 22 percent of U.S. consumption.

Regulatory constraints, higher prices, shortages and fierce competition from other sources of fuel together contributed to declining markets. But now many are viewing natural gas as the half of the oil and gas industry that will provide future growth.

Increasing natural gas markets would be a boost to the state's lackluster economy, putting people back to work in the oil patch. The idea has many suppor-

The Texas Railroad Commission has appointed a 12-member committee from the state's natural gas industry to study and comment on current rules affecting the industry.

Last month, the subject dominated comments from energy sector executives speaking before the commissioners at the railroad commission's annual state of the industry meeting.

Bruce D. Frolich, vice president of supply and distribution for Chevron U.S.A., told the commissioners, "The future course of the natural gas industry is taking on much greater significance not only for the energy industry in general but also for Texas.

'While 12 percent of the nation's oil supplies originate in Texas, about 40 percent of the U.S. gas supply comes from this state," Frolich said.

Frolich and others scolded segments of the natural gas industry for becoming adversaries over the years.

"We must resolve the problems of the past before we end up shooting each other in the foot and lose the confidence of customers in the process," he said. David W. Biegler, president of

Lone Star Gas Co., said recently, 'It is time that we begin acting like an industry. In 1986, coal moved ahead of natural gas as a supplier of energy in the United States. Just 10 years ago, gas use was 44 percent greater than coal use, Biegler

"It is not coincidental that the coal industry presents a more unified effort to regulate and market its product than does the gas industry," he said.

Although the industry is in a self-critical stage, some believe the segments of the industry are slowly unifying behind the same goal of expanding markets.

"It's a sharing in the misery of a very poor market," said Tom Haywood, executive director of the North Texas Oil and Gas Association.

And some believe that many of the industry's regulatory prob-lems "would go away if it had more markets," said Haywood. The industry has "scared customers away," Haywood said. 'If you want a company to make a commitment to your product, you don't tell them you're going to be running out."

Talk of impending shortages and gas bubbles last winter hurt the industry, many believe.

Red Cross Donation seeks aid for Africa

Although public attention concerning the African famine has lately focused on relief distribution problems, more than a million famine victims are being fed by the Red Cross and development programs are being conducted in 16 African nations, according to Richard F. Schubert, American Red Cross president.

"Ignoring successful famine relief operations in Africa has become one of the great tragedies to afflict that continent this year. More than a million famine victims are being fed right now by Red Cross, while most of the public attention has been focused on political and relif distribution problems in one area of one country." Schubert said in an appeal for further aid to the famine victims, who are in the midst of another drought.

"Americans responded with great compassion three years ago when the famine struck so hard in Africa. The gifts they gave did much to help millions of hungry people in 23 countries. Not only did Red Cross and other relief organizations save many lives, but we began to put development programs in place," Schubert said.

The Red Cross has ongoing de velopment programs in 16 African nations, including feeding programs for school children and orthopedic centers and workshops for the war-disabled. "Now the drought is back, perhaps worse than before, but the people and the countries have a better chance this time thanks to those gifts three years ago. Famine victims in eight nations have turned to us for help. The difference is that this time, we have the opportunity to prevent the kind of scene that prompted those earlier contributions, the scenes of despair and hopelessness, the faces of the children starving before our eyes. Isn't that an opportunity worth taking?" Schubert asked.

Red Cross is conducting relief operations in Burkina Faso, Chad, Ethiopia, Malawi, Mauritania, Mozambique, Niser and the Sudan.

Anyone wishing to help the famine victims in Africa may do so by sending a contribution earmarked "African Famine Relief" to the local Gray County Chapter of the American Red came through clear as a bell. I Cross, P.O. Box 1036, Pampa, 79065.

Sports Mays upset by lowly Warriors

Four-game win streak snapped

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - You can't take anything for granted in the NBA, according to Dallas Mavericks Coach John Macleod.

"Sure, we brought a better record into the game and have dominated them the last couple of years. But that doesn't mean they were going to roll over and die,' Macleod said after the Mavericks were upset 112-110 by the lowly Golden State Warriors Wednesday night on a pair of free throws by rookie Tellis Frank with two seconds remaining.

The loss ended a four-game winning streak for Dallas, which had won its previous nine games against the Warriors dating to April 8, 1986

We didn't shoot the ball very well, but you've got to give Golden State a lot of credit," said Macleod, whose team hit only 42 percent of its shots from the field. Golden State has been making steady progress.

'Tonight, they made the big shots, they beat us down the floor, they beat us to a lot of loose balls and they made the big defensive play that resulted in the two free throws.

With the score tied at 110-110 and six seconds left, Golden State's Dave Feitl missed a pair of free throws. Dallas called timeout after controlling the rebound. But the ensuing inbounds pass by Sam Perkins was stolen by Frank, who was fouled by Derek Harper.

'The inbounds play was to (Rolando) Blackman," Macleod said. "They switched out, the pass went to Harper and they stole it. Derek said he never fouled him. He said the ball went off of Frank's foot. But the referee was in a better position to make that call than I was."

Frank, who went 0 for 5 from the free throw line in his previous game, made one of two free throws with 25 seconds left to give the Warriors a 110-109 lead. After missing that free throw,

I was just hoping I would get another chance," said Frank, who scored seven of his 20 points in the final eight minutes. "I didn't have any doubt about making the last two because I thrive on situations like this.'

The Warriors, who won for only the 19th time this season, were led by Chris Mullin's 24 points. Golden State's bench played a key role in the victory as Otis Smith and Steve Harris each had 14 points to help the Warrior reserves outscore their Dallas counterparts 44-24.

Dallas was led by Harper's 25, Mark Aguirre's 22 and Blackman's 17.

'The secret of tonight's game was our good defense," said Warriors Coach Ed Gregory.

coaches load up on JUCO players

By WENDY E. LANE Associated Press Writer

Southwest Conference coaches opted for experience in filling out their rosters and looked to junior college players to do the job. Six junior college athletes signed national letters of intent with league schools, and guards were the position of choice Wednesday, the first day of the five-week NCAA signing period.

Five schools signed at least one guard, making a total of seven signed by the SWC, including four JUCO guards.

Conference champion SMU signed John Karl Robertson, a 6-7 forward from Lafayette, La. Robertson committed to SMU during the early signing period but under SMU rules could not sign a letter of intent until he SMU's admissions office.

Robertson is considered by SMU coach Dave Bliss to be more of a rebounder and defender than a scorer. He averaged 17 points and 9.5 rebounds last season for St. Thomas More High School. Robertson will help fill the gap left by senior Terry Thomas, who was SMU's top rebounder and was the second-leading rebounder in the SWC.

Texas Christian signed 6-foot-1 point guard Tony Edmond from Northeast Mississippi Junior College. Edmond averaged 10.7

points and 6.5 rebounds. The Horned Frogs also signed Kelvin Crawford, a 6-foot-2 guard, who will transfer from Mississippi County Junior College in Blytheville, Ark. Crawlast season

Baylor took two junior college players, 6-foot-1 guard Donnell Hayden from South Plains College and Julius Denton, a 6-foot-4 forward from Illinois' Kankakee Community College, Denton is a first-team NJCAA all-American.

The Bears also signed 6-foot-8 forward Joey Fatta from Houston's Clear Creek High School. He averaged 16.8 points and 12 re-

O'Brien credits 'Ghosts'

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) -Pete O'Brien says his off-season ritual of a practice he called 'ghost-hitting" helped him to a blistering start at the plate this

Through seven games, O'Brien is hitting .600 (15-for-25) with two home runs and five multi-hit games for the best start in Rangers history.

Good batting practice is the secret to good hitting, O'Brien says, and he had batting practice every day — usually with only a bat, no baseball.

Whenever he felt like swinging the bat, O'Brien would step into the solitude of his garage, position himself in an imaginary batter's box between two parked cars, and wait for the pitch.

He would visualize facing pitchers such as Boston Red Sox starter Roger Clemens or New York Yankees reliever Dave Righetti and then use a heavierthan-usual bat borrowed from teammate Larry Parrish.

By spending as little as 10 minutes a day in his garage, O'Brien trained himself mentally to see the ball better and become more comfortable in the batter's box.

"Sometimes I'd go in there and bang out three hits in my first three swings and go back into the house," he told the Dallas Times Herald. "As long as I felt good that day, that's all that needed to

Miami High girls eye district track title

Coach Joel Blasingame is looking for a good performance from his Miami Warriorettes at this weekend's District 3-A track meet at Sunray.

"We've just been so-so this year, but I feel like we have a good chance. We've been looking fairly good at recent meets." Blasingame said.

Miami's best hopes for a shot at the meet title lie with Alane Dinsmore, mile and two-mile; Autumn Walls and Alicia Walls, both running and field events, and Johnna Hinton, 400. These four girls also make up Miami's relay teams.

Blasingame said freshmen Ashley Flowers could pick up some valuable points in the 800.

Vega, along with Sunray and Groom, should be the teams to beat, said Blasingame, with depth playing an important part in the victory

"A lot will depend on how many points are picked up in the fourth, fifth and sixth places," Blasingame added.

The meet begins at 3:30 p.m. Friday in the junior high division. High school preliminaries begin at 4 p.m. the same day.

Astros blank winless

ATLANTA (AP) - Jim Deshaies was in a joking mood after posting a two-hit shutout in his first major league start since undergoing surgery last fall.

'Those guys in Osceola have got to be shaking their heads,' Deshaies said. "They're not going to believe their newspaper in the morning."

Deshaies, battered around by Osceola six days earlier, stopped Atlanta cold Wednesday as the Houston Astros handed the winless Braves their eighth consecutive defeat, 4-0. 'They're going to think it's all fixed," Deshaies said of the Florida State League team that posted nine runs and nine hits in six innings off him last Thursday. "They're going to think the league up there's a fix. They're going to be shaking their heads in wonderment.'

Deshaies, 1-0, was never in trouble against the Braves, giving up a bad-hop single to Dale Murphy in the second inning and a fly ball single to left by Damaso Garcia in the sixth. He struck out five and walked two in lifting his lifetime record to 6-1 against the Braves, a team he will face again next week in Houston.

Deshaies underwent arthrosco pic surgery for a slight tear in his left rotator cuff last Oct. 9.

"It never really crossed my mind," he said when asked if he'd thought he might not be able to pitch again.

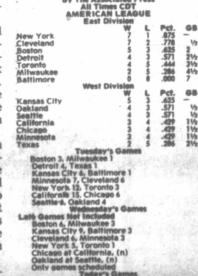

"Last year my arm wasn't completely weak like a real bad rotator cuff," he said. "I knew it wasn't that severe. Coming out of surgery everything was optimistic from the doctor's standpoint."

Deshaies said he never felt any pain in Wednesday's game.

NHL roundup

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Bryan Murray pictures his Washington Capitals in the middle of a slightly different playoff — the NCAA basketball tourna-

'We're looking at this just like it were the NCAAs, for those of you who follow college basketball," Murray said as the Capitals prepared for Game 6 of their NHL series. "One loss and you're out. We've reached the semifinals of the tournament.

Actually, the Capitals and Flyers still are in the first round of the chase for the Stanley Cup. Philadelphia holds the edge 3-2 and can eliminate its Patrick Division rival tonight in Philadelphia.

But the Capitals won a playoff game for the first time in eight games while facing elimination when they took Game 5 at home 5-2 Tuesday night.

"We've just won one hockey game," Murray said. "If we'd won the other night (in Game 4. when Washington blew a 4-1 lead and lost 5-4 in overtime), I'd feel we had a little more going for us." Also going for the kill tonight are New Jersey in the Patrick. Montreal and Boston in the Adams and Detroit in the Norris. The Devils, making their first postseason appearance, lead the New York Islanders 3-2 and are at home. Montreal is ahead of Hartford, Boston on top of Buffalo and Detroit in front of Toronto after five games, with the series leaders all on the road.

St. Louis, Edmonton and Calgary already have advanced to the second round.

PATRICK Capitals at Flyers

The Capitals were beaten twice in Philadelphia last weekend, including that disheartening collapse in Game 4. They certainly remember what happened in that contest.

Last game, we stayed back when we were ahead," said Washington center Michal Pivonka, "but (Tuesday) night we didn't stay back. We still gave them too many chances in the third period, but Pete was very sharp.

Pete Peeters outplayed Ron Hextall in goal and will start tonight. So will Hextall, even though he has been lifted the last two games.

Islanders at Devils The Islanders are in a familiar spot — behind in a playoff series and facing elimination.

"I have been here for 19 playoff games and only once have I gone into a game ahead in a series," Islanders Coach Terry Simpson

His team doesn't deserve to be ahead. The Devils have outplayed New York through most of the series and won twice at Nassau Coliseum, where they were 1-36-3 before these playoffs.

ADAMS Canadiens at Whalers

Hartford has survived after falling behind 3-0 in games and despite a succession of injuries. The Whalers beat Montreal 7-5 at home and 3-1 in the Forum to close within 3-2.

But they might be without goalie Mike Liut, who did not play Tuesday and did not practice on Wednesday after re-injuring his right shoulder in warmups before Game 5; defensemen Ulf Samuelsson, who sat out Game 5 with a bruised left shoulder, and Scot Kleinendorst and left wing John Anderson, also with shoul-

Cavenall eyes return to NBA

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Ronnie Cavenall has been through the wars long enough to know the difference between the lifestyles of players in the National Basketball Association and Continental Basketball Associa-

"In the NBA, when you travel, you fly first class. The seats are bigger and you have more leg room," Cavenall said.

"In the CBA, you travel coach, which means you've got some jerk sitting in front of you dying to let his seat back on your knees. So you have to concentrate on flying the whole flight sitting straight up like a piece of cardboard.'

For Cavenall, flying coach is indeed a major problem, since he is 7-foot-1 and has the wingspan of a condor. He also is the starting center for the CBA's Wyoming Wildcatters.

Cavenall, who graduated in 1977 from Beaumont Charlton-Pollard High School, led the CBA in blocked shots this season with 3.1 per game. He played the 1984-85 season with the NBA's New York Knicks and has spent the past two seasons with the Wildcatters

Cavenall said the NBA can best be described as the lifestyle of the rich and famous. The lifestyle of shoe contracts, endorsements, commercials, fast cars and big houses

And the CBA? "The CBA isn't structured financially," he said. "It's structured for you to come here and improve on your skills and stay close to the NBA."

The Wildcatters faced severe financial difficulties this season. according to Jeff Gordon, the team's general manager. When their owner, John O'Donnell, could not meet the teams payroll, the league's office took over the team and assumed regular payments.

"The economics hit us real hard here in Casper," said Gordon. "The oil and energy crisis hit us and it's become very hard to get the draw that we need."

There has been talk of Beaumont acquiring a CBA team, and the one in Casper is looking for a new home.

"It's sad (to move) after being here six years," said Gordon, "but it would take a minor miracle for us to be here next season."

Through his one year in the NBA, two in the CBA, a season with the Harlem Magicians, and stops in European and Australian leagues, Cavenall has learned that there's nothing like the cushy life of an NBA player.

"I've been in the 50 percent income bracket all the way back down to the 15 percent income bracket," he said.

"I've seen a lot of guys who played in the NBA and came down to the CBA destroyed, because they went from one financial bracket to another and they were not able to sustain that lifestyle that they had become accustomed to. In the CBA you're treated more like common folk, and some guys can't stand it.

But university President David P. Roselle issued the following statement Wednesday night:

'There is going to be a morning story in the L.A. Daily News about possible new violations of NCAA rules in our basketball program. We first heard about the matter on last Friday evening as a result of a telephone inquiry by a reporter from the newspaper:

"He gave us only enough information to indicate the possibility of a serious rule infraction. We immediately began an investigation and in very short order informed the NCAA enforcement staff.

Eric Osborn, the Emery employee who found an opened package when it arrived, said he looked inside and saw money sticking out of a videocassette box.

4-year-old drummer keeps up with group ments.

VICTORIA (AP) - Four-yearold Ivan Trevino of Victoria may be the youngest professional drummer in the nation.

If he isn't the youngest now, he had to be a couple of years ago. Ivan's dad, Fred, who leads the band, said his son has performed on stage since he was 14 months

Trevino agrees Ivan has to be one-of-a-kind. As the member of a contemporary Christian music group, the Texas Praise Band, Ivan is seen regularly at benefits. concerts, weddings and church

He played with the band on Easter weekend at the annual Victoria Parks and Recreation Eggstravaganza. Like the hundreds of children at the holiday activity, Ivan hunted for eggs, but he was ready when it was time to go to work, said his dad.

"I bought him a $175 set of drums when he was 12 months old because he was always banging on things," Trevino said. "One of my daughters played the drums and taught him a bit. He caught on real fast." Having graduated to tapping out rhythms on a $2,000 set of electric drums, Ivan recently accompanied the Texas Praise Band in recording a new tape at Victoria sound studio. He also takes a hand in musical arrange-

"He can do any kind of rhythm you play. When he was one or two he couldn't understand what you were trying to say, but once you got started he could play with you," said Trevino

Ivan practices on his drums for 45 minutes to an hour each day. That's the only time he's really noisy, said his father. The rest of the time he's a calm 4-year-old who likes to play children's games and watch cartoons on television. Trevino said Ivan is a student at St. Mark's Methodist Pre-School, and he "really loves learning."

For some time he has shown an interest in the piano and guitar, and Trevino says he believes Ivan will become accomplished at those instruments as well.

the town never regained its pre-

Archaelogists excavate underwater island port

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Nearly 300 years after an earthquake buried part of a pirate port called the "wickedest city" of its time, undersea archaeologists are hauling up a booty of history.

Before its partial destruction in 1692, Port Royal, located across the bay from modern day Kingston, Jamaica, rivalled Boston as a center of British commerce in the Americas

About half the port was submerged when a roughly 30minute series of tremors dropped blocks of the city into the sea, killing about 2,000 people.

During seven seasons of excavation, researchers have found numerous artifacts from the sunken city. The project will be featured May 2 in the PBS series, "Underwater Discoveries."

Among other items discovered was a partial skeleton of a child, probably no older than 6, said project leader Dr. Don Hamilton, a Texas A&M faculty member and a conservation specialist with the Institute of Nautical Archaeology, which is affiliated with Texas A&M The child appeared to have been crushed by a falling wall as he attempted to flee toward safety, but Hamilton said the quake's rubble made it impossible to determine if the child was fleeing for the safety of outside or inwards through a door to the perceived safety of home.

Other finds indicate residents and visitors apparently liked tobacco because a fourth of the nearly 5,000 artifacts recovered have been pipes or parts of pipes, Hamilton said.

Of particular interest in the most recent round of excavations, however, is what appears to be part of the living quarters of well-to-do merchants. Remains of a window complete with its slender lead frame have been recovered where the front of a twostory house smashed to the street during one of the tremors, Hamilton said.

From what is probably the kitchen have come brass cooking pots, sieves, pewter bowls, a woman's handmade gold ring, candlesticks and porcelain dishes. The almost-intact remains of a cricket were found in an unbroken wine bottle excavated where mud had trapped the in-

Much conservation of the artifacts takes place at Port Royal but numerous items are temporarily brought back to Texas A&M in College Station for further conservation and as teaching aids before being returned to the Jamaican government, he said.

Port Royal, once home to English buccaneers and to a young naval officer named Horatio Nelson, boasted a well-to-do population of about 8,000 at the time of the quake. But more earthquakes, fires and hurricanes blocked attempts to rebuild the port to its former glory, he said.

The town still served as a vital stop and was a temporary stop for some of the British troops on

Slowing aging

NEW YORK (AP) - A 10-year study has found that regular aerobic exercise will not only protect you from heart disease but will also slow aging, says the Reebok Aerobic Information

The University of Florida's Center of Exercise Science tested 25 exercises with an average age of 62 over a 10 year period. It found their aerobic capacity, a measure of aging, was better than that found in non-exercising 25-year-olds.

Many events planned for 100th anniversary

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas will mark the 100th anniversary of the dedication of the Capitol on May 6-7 with a ball, a commemorative ceremony, a parade, hot air balloons and more; according to organizers of the Capitol Centennial Celebration.

The Capitol was dedicated on May 16, 1888, not May 6 or 7.

But Ann Ramsey, celebration coordinator, said several factors such as the end of school influenced the decision to hold the centennial celebration earlier.

The biggest public event will be May 7, when a parade featuring horse-drawn carriages and wagons bearing committee and government officials, accompanied by bands and other marching units, will take to the streets.

At noon, the official ceremony marking the 100th anniversary of the dedication will take place on the south steps of the Capitol.

Houston Daniel, son of former Gov. Price Daniel and a descendant of Sam Houston through his mother, will deliver excerpts from the speech of another ancestor, Temple Houston, who in 1888 delievered the dedication speech.
