Pampans celebrate Fourth early with bands, dance, Talent Search

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Bands played, children laughed — even the sun came out as Pampa celebrated Independence Day in a big way Saturday at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

And the festivities continue today, beginning with a non-denominational church service inside the auditorium and ending with the finals of the third annual July 4 Talent Search.

Although the early July 4 party began Saturday under overcast skies, the sun broke through around noon, making the afternoon perfect for milling about Coronado Park, southeast of the auditorium.

A major attraction was the second annual car show, featuring everything from Model Ts to a brand new limousine, complete with chauffeur, bar and television.

Food lovers had all sorts of culinary delights to try at the various food booths that had been set up, including Frito pie, pork-on-a-poke, barbecue and homemade ice cream. Other booths offered clothing, novelties and, in one, the chance to become a singing star, complete with background musical arrangements.

A stage sponsored by KGRO-KOMX radio at the east end of the park featured bands playing country, gospel and rock 'n' roll. Later in the night, the stage would move to the auditorium parking lot for

Study predicts rise in U.S. foreign debt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, already the world's largest debtor country, could see its foreign debt increase to more than $2 trillion by 1995, seriously cutting into American living standards, a congressional study said Saturday.

The report by the Congressional Research Service rejected claims by the Reagan administration that the country's status as a large debtor country was not cause for concern.

The study predicted that while the country's trade deficit will finally show an improvement this year, after deteriorating for six years, this improvement could be short-lived.

The report forecast that the deficit in the broadest measure of trade, the current account, would fall to $151 billion this year, down slightly from a record $154 billion deficit in 1987.

The report predicted a further decrease to $129 billion in 1989, saying these improvements were virtually assured given the declines in the value of the dollar that have already taken place.

But the study said the trade deficit would begin rising again sharply in the 1990s and could hit $326 billion by 1995.

The study said it based this outlook on assumptions that the dollar does not decline further in value and that current growth rates and interest rates in the United States relative to other countries remain essentially unchanged.

The dollar has actually been rising in recent weeks, prompting concern among economists who believe the U.S. currency still needs to drop for the U.S. trade deficit to narrow further. A cheaper dollar makes U.S. exports more attractive on overseas markets and imports more expensive to Americans.

If the dollar does not decline, the report projected that the heavy import penetration the United States has suffered through the 1980s will continue.

The string of higher trade imbalances would mean that the country's position as a net debtor would worsen as well, since the current account deficit is directly linked to the country's net investment position. The money handed over to foreigners to pay for imports gets reinvested in the United States.

The government announced on Thursday that total U.S. foreign debt increased to $368.2 billion at the end of 1987, further lengthening the country's lead as the world's largest debtor nation. This means that foreigners now own more in U.S. investments than Americans own in overseas investments.

The congressional study projected that U.S. foreign debt would climb to $576 billion at the end of this year and surpass $1 trillion in 1991. By the end of 1995, the total foreign debt would be $2.06 trillion, or one-fourth of the country's total gross national product, the report said.

The study, while presenting a pessimistic view of what could happen, is not out of line with projections made by private economists. Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. said that depending on what happens to the dollar, world growth rates and the U.S. federal budget deficit, America's foreign debt burden could be anywhere from $900 billion to $2.5 trillion by 1995.

County's 1989 budget facing 11 percent drop in tax base

By PAUL PINKHAM
Senior Staff Writer

Discussion on the 1989 Gray County budget began Friday with a bit of bad news.

County Judge Carl Kennedy told commissioners that the county's tax base for 1989 is $944 million, down 11 percent from this year's $1.06 billion base.

"The tax base lost is actually much greater than 11 percent because two years ago we were at $1.3 billion," Kennedy said, meaning the county has lost more than a fourth of its tax base in two years.

Commissioners generally discuss the budget and hold several public hearings throughout the summer before setting final figures in late August or early September. They will soon receive budget requests from county officeholders, prompting Judge Kennedy to warn that officeholders will have to hold the line to spare county taxpayers a major tax hike.

"I would like for this court to formulate instructions to go out with requests for preparations for the 1989 budget," Kennedy told commissioners.

Added Commissioner Gerald Wright: "It's going to be one of those years, again, where we have to try to hold the line or cut."

In past years, commissioners have been able to pin a declining tax base on hard times in the oil patch, but this year's dramatic drop is due mainly to explosions that rocked the Hoechst Celanese chemical plant west of Pampa last November.

Although Hoechst Celanese currently is rebuilding the facility, the plant's value has been temporarily reduced. Unofficial Gray County Appraisal District figures tab the loss at about $100 million.

Celanese was the largest taxpayer in both Gray County and the Pampa Independent School District.

Because the plant is located outside Pampa, city taxes will be relatively unaffected by the disaster, and Pampa schools last month received a promise of state disaster aid for the next two years to make up the loss of tax revenue caused by the explosions. However, no such relief exists for Texas counties.

Talk of impending budget woes also spilled over into a request by County Clerk Wanda Carter to attend an election school in Austin during August. Kennedy said officeholders need to cut down on the number of trips taken, unless the trips are required by state law. He also complained about the state adding education requirements on county officeholders, forcing local governments to spend more money.

Carter said the election school is important to ensure that she stays up to date with state election requirements. Commissioners approved her request.

In other action, commissioners met with Chief County Appraiser Pat Bagley concerning a new selection process for the appraisal district board. Under Bagley's proposal, the board would be elected on staggered terms instead of all in one year.

Also under the proposal, Pampa schools would name two members to the board, while Gray County and the city of Pampa would name one each. Other taxing entities in the county, including Lefors city and schools, McLean city and schools, Alnear schools and Grandview-Hopkins schools, would together elect one board member.

Bagley said the new method is designed to keep one taxing entity from controlling the board. Currently, entities are apportioned votes based on their budget sizes, meaning Pampa schools can put two to three members on the five-member board, Bagley said.

Commissioners consented to the proposal but took no formal action.

Commissioners also maintained the cost for the Soil Conservation Service to lease space in the county annex at $6.50 per square foot, and made routine adjustments to the 1988 budget.

12 die in Texas accidents; family loses five in crash

By The Associated Press

Twelve Texans have been killed in traffic accidents this holiday weekend, including five members of a Dallas family and two pedestrians, officials said.

"We off to a frightening start," said David Wells, spokesman for the Department of Public Safety, which began keeping count of fatal accidents Friday at 6 p.m.

The agency estimates 36 people will lose their lives in traffic accidents during through the counting period, which ends at midnight Monday.

"We hope people use as much care as possible to slow this pace down," Wells said Saturday morning.

Six people died when two cars collided head-on early Saturday on Interstate 20 near Westbrook, about 60 miles east of Midland.

A car driven by Ronnie Wayne Thompson, 38, of Coahoma, crossed the center median of the interstate and struck the vehicle carrying six members of a Dallas family.

Thompson and five members of the Dallas family were killed; a sixth was critically injured.

Killed from Dallas were Santiago Sobrevilla, 60, who was driving the second vehicle;

Maria Sobrevilla, 18; Claudia Sobrevilla, 17; Manuela Sobrevilla, 16; and Ruth Sobrevilla, 5.

Monica Sobrevilla, 12, was in critical condition Saturday afternoon at St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock with massive head and spinal injuries, a nursing supervisor said.

Sandi Paulding, DPS dispatcher in Midland, said officials have not determined what caused Thompson to cross the median or the relations of the family members to one another.

Two pedestrians were killed in separate accidents in Central Texas.

Homer McWright, 78, of Lockhart was killed when a pickup struck him at the corner of U.S. 183 and FM 1185 in Caldwell County Friday night. Max M. Zilem, 57, of Round Rock was struck by a moving car Friday night as he walked along Ranch Road 620 near El Salido Parkway. He died early Saturday in an Austin hospital.

A Ravenna man, Gerald C. Moncrief, died when the pickup he was driving left the roadway, returned and struck another vehicle. Moncrief, who was not wearing a seat belt, was thrown from the pickup, Wells said.

Veterans memorial still needs donations

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

As Pampans celebrate their independence this weekend, John Tripplehorn and other members of Pampa Veteran of Foreign Wars Post #1657 are reminded of those who gave their lives to preserve that freedom.

And they continue in their efforts to build a permanent monument to that sacrifice in the form of a memorial monument printed with the names of 114 Gray County residents who died in the four major wars of this century, World War I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

Unfortunately, the VFW members' zeal has not been matched by the generosity of fellow Gray County residents, Tripplehorn said. Less than $2,000 has been donated towards the $20,000 goal needed to build the memorial, he said.

Three Pampa foundations have indicated that they intend to make a donation towards the memorial, but so far no action has been taken, Tripplehorn said.

"I'm not really looking for big donations. It's like I say, if we got a buck from everyone in Pampa, and nowhere else in the county, then we'd have more than enough to build that memorial," he said.

Gray County War Memorial proposed by the local VFW post is 11 tons of solid granite, costing about $10,500. The remaining $9,500 will be used for maintenance costs and the expense of installing floodlights, benches and a fence around the monument.

Plans call for two 8-foot, white granite pillars inscribed with the names of veterans who died in the four wars of this century. Between these two pillars will stand a black marble slab with an inscription honoring the veterans.

The U.S. Defense Department seal and inscription are sandblown into the monument, while American eagles are carved on the front and sides of the columns.

At present, the VFW plans to erect the monument in the northwest corner of the proposed Memorial Park at Hobart and Ward streets, which will also be the site of the Pampa Army Air Field Museum and B-25 display.

Also planned is a veterans' walkway leading from the monument to the Army Air Field museum and paved with granite bricks bearing the names of veterans who donated $50 towards the cost of the project.

Monuments are being built throughout the state commemorating the patriotism and sacrifice of soldiers, living and dead, who answered the call to arms, Tripplehorn said in a letter soliciting donations for the project.

"Those who served, as well as those who did not, share equally in the gift of freedom," he said in the letter. "Monuments honoring our veterans are one of the most visible and meaningful methods of truly expressing our appreciation for the wonderful gift of freedom they willingly bequeathed to each citizen of this great country."

Tripplehorn said McLean is the only place in Gray County that has any sort of war memorial at all — a small plaque donated by a bank.

Nuke plant opponents strike deal

FORT WORTH (AP) — Long-time opponents of the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant ended a decade-long stalemate with TU Electric in a deal that could make it easier for the plant to be licensed.

Citizens Association for Sound Energy, which successfully stalled the plant's licensing in 1983, agreed Friday to drop their objections to licensing the $9.1 billion nuclear plant.

In exchange, CASE president Juanita Ellis would be named to a plant review board for the next five years.

Ellis said the utility also has agreed to pay the opponents' expenses during the past 10 years, but she declined to disclose the amount of the payment. She and a utility spokesman said those terms will remain confidential.

TU Electric officials said the agreement would save the utility, the opponents group and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission the expense of waging a long battle before the atomic licensing board.

The NRC staff still must approve a temporary, low-power permit for the plant, located 45 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

The five-member NRC would then have to vote to award a final license for the plant.

"It's really unprecedented, I think, for the intervenor to be afforded this kind of oversight," Ellis said. "We're kind of breaking new ground."

The NRC staff already has approved the utility's plans for repairing or replacing thousands of pipes and pipe supports at the plant. Those comprised the bulk of the disputes standing between Comanche Peak and a federal license.

Dick Ramsey, TU Electric's spokesman on nuclear issues, said the agreement doesn't end the quest for a federal license.

"All this has done is to remove a part of the licensing process," he said. "The NRC staff still has the same kind of review over what's being done there. We have the same commitments to the NRC and the same requirements that have to be met."

The three-member Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, formed to resolve disputes between nuclear power plant owners and opponents, has 30 days to approve the agreement and remove itself from the licensing process or order the licensing hearings based on its own concerns.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman Joe Gilliland said the NRC staffers in charge of the project were speculating that the resolution of the dispute would end the need for the licensing board and smooth the way for plant licensing.

"What this does do, of course, is to relieve the NRC staff of the responsibility of preparing for the hearings so they can devote all of their time to their ongoing reviews of the regular licensing hearings," he said. "If there are no issues in controversy before the board, then the board is out of the picture."

The cost of the plant has jumped by more than 11 times its original estimate when TU Electric first unveiled the project in the 1970s. Eight years after it was scheduled to go on line, it still has not generated a single kilowatt of electricity and is at least a year away from operation.

Ellis said the agreement settles disputes surrounding the balance of the safety claims but gives her group the power to ensure that the utility will follow through with its promises.

Ellis said the agreement guarantees that complaints of intimidation and harassment already filed with the U.S. Department of Labor by plant "whistle-blowers" would go forward.

And she said it ends a costly battle that the Dallas group often has had trouble financing.

School finance suit still pending

AUSTIN (AP) — The 3rd Court of Appeals has recessed for the summer without ruling on the public school finance suit, which was heard April 6.

The case was appealed after State District Judge Harley Clark of Austin held the current financing system unconstitutional. Clark gave the Legislature until Sept. 1, 1989, to repair inequities in funding between rich and poor school districts.

Chief Justice Bob Shannon of the 3rd Court would not say when the court will issue a ruling, but he said the next time the court will issue decisions will be Aug. 10.

Both sides in the lawsuit have indicated they will appeal the case to the Texas Supreme Court if they lose in the 3rd Court, meaning lawmakers could be faced with a possibility of beginning their work on school funding before a final court decision is entered in the suit.

If a decision is not reached by Jan. 10, Gov. Bill Clements will assess the court situation and "mood of the Legislature" before determining whether to ask lawmakers to address the funding dilemma immediately or wait until there is a ruling.

Judge lifts PRO-imposed sanction against Canadian doctor

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

CANADIAN — Dr. Teddy Darocha of Canadian is free to resume caring for patients covered by Medicare-Medicaid, but he doesn't have to do it for free any longer following a recent ruling by an administrative law judge in New Mexico.

Dr. Darocha was notified by mail last week of Judge Jon D. Boltz's ruling allowing him to again participate in the Medicare program.

A recommendation of the Texas Peer Review Organization, a contracted overseer for the Social Security Association's Office of Inspector General (OIG), suspended the Canadian physician's Medicare practice for a period of three years. The sanction went into effect October 1987.

Upon hearing of the sanction, Dr. Darocha declared that he would continue to care for his Medicare patients at no charge. A sign in his office reflected his feelings: "Medicare — Medicaid Patients That Can't Find Another Doctor, That Can't Drive to Another Town, That Can't Pay Any Fee Will Be Seen at This Clinic Free."

The eight-month ordeal has been a costly one for Darocha in time, money and patients, he said. Legal fees have mounted to approximately $100,000, he said, and he lost some of his Medicare patients who were able to drive to doctors who could practice under Medicare.

Yet he feels his efforts were worth the cost. "This just shows that there's no place in America where a group can be judge, jury, prosecutor and executioner," Darocha said, adding that his major protest to the PRO's recommendation was that he was not allowed due process.

Cause of Darocha's suspension resulted from a PRO review of his medical records that began in late 1986. An informal hearing was held in January 1987, but it wasn't until late last summer that the sanction was recommended.

Darocha said the PRO became interested in his records because of an increase in Medicare-Medicaid claims from 1984 to 1985. He said this increase came about when he took over the practice of retiring physician Dr. Rush Snyder.

A second factor in the suspension was a question of Darocha's use of an antibiotic without certain tests. OIG argued that Darocha should have performed certain tests before prescribing this antibiotic, while Darocha's attorneys contended the client was well-qualified to administer the antibiotics.

A law passed by Congress in late 1987, introduced by U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, gave Darocha the power he needed to appeal the ruling by PRO. This legislation amended the law prohibiting the OIG from enforcing sanctions against a physician without a hearing unless it could show that the doctor's continued practice would pose a hazard to the public.

Judge Boltz conducted a hearing in Dallas on March 31 in which OIG contended that Darocha should not be allowed to practice until a formal hearing on the merits of the case could be held.

After a lengthy consideration of the facts, Boltz ruled on June 20 that "... upon review of exhibits of record, testimony presented at the preliminary hearing and arguments made, the judge does not determine by a preponderance of the evidence that (Dr. Darocha) will pose a serious risk to Medicare beneficiaries if he is permitted to continue his practice."

Darocha said his is the first case testing Congress' recent law, and he is "very pleased" with the decision.

Throughout his problems, Darocha's contemporaries and patients have stood staunchly behind him.

Hemphill County Hospital's board of directors and the directors of the Abraham Memorial Home, a nursing home for the elderly, both recorded protests to the sanctions. Local doctors joined Darocha in his protest, and more than half of Canadian's population of 3,491 signed a petition supporting Darocha.

Despite Darocha's relief, his attorneys say there may be more to come. OIG has the right to appeal Judge Boltz's ruling, but Darocha said he believes they will not push the action any further.

"Now when they make a decision, they must think carefully and not just act like they did before," he said. "They play like the Supreme Court, and they can't do that."

Jury orders death in slayings trial

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A jury that convicted Gary Heidnik of killing two women in his basement torture chamber, including one who died by electrocution, ordered Saturday that he die in the electric chair.

"Now my sister can rest in peace. I feel happy," said Denise Dudley, sister of electrocution victim Deborah Johnson Dudley. "We got what we wanted. He's going to die."

Jurors deliberated nearly two hours before choosing death sentences instead of life imprisonment for the two first-degree murder counts on which they convicted Heidnik on Friday.

The panel, chosen in Pittsburgh because of pretrial publicity here, also had convicted him of kidnapping and rape in the imprisonment of four other women in his Philadelphia row house.

Common Pleas Judge Lynne Abraham thanked the jurors, dismissed them and formally imposed one of the death sentences. That will allow the 44-year-old defendant to be removed from the city's overcrowded prison system and placed in a state prison.

"I don't feel very good," Heidnik's lawyer, A. Charles Peruto Jr., said after the two death verdicts.

Peruto, who had presented an insanity defense, said Heidnik "really didn't express anything over the verdict or over the penalty." Heidnik showed no emotion as the jury forewoman read the sentence.

Heidnik, who has been under treatment for schizophrenia for 25 years, has been receiving a drug that tends to keep him sedated.

Peruto said Heidnik was insane and was mentally ill when he committed the crimes between November 1986 and March 1987. "This man is legally sane and he knew what he was doing and he did it with torture," Assistant District Attorney Charles Gallagher said in arguing for the death penalty. He said later he was "gratified" with the jury's decision.

Besides the two murder charges, Heidnik also was found guilty Friday of kidnapping, rape, aggravated assault and involuntary deviate sexual intercourse. He was acquitted on one count of the latter charge.

The judge set Oct. 5 for sentencing on those charges, formal sentencing on the second murder conviction and a post-trial hearing. The judge told Peruto to file motions for a new trial, even though the attorney had indicated earlier that his client wasn't interested in an appeal.

"I'm going to file an appeal," Peruto said Saturday. "I don't know if he wants an appeal or not. The only discussion we've had on this is that he wants to get it over with."

Police guard polygamists' funerals

HOUSTON (AP) — A dog sniffed for explosives and the pastor wore a bullet-proof vest Saturday during funeral services for three men and an 8-year-old girl who were gunned down in what is believed to be part of a polygamist cult dispute.

The tight security, which consisted of about 50 uniformed and plain-clothes officers, was prompted in part by reports that an attack was planned at a past funeral for a former polygamist leader, police said.

"Our best bet is be ready in case anything does happen," Houston police spokesman Al Baker said before services began.

A police dog sniffed the funeral home, the four hearses and the three limousines carrying family members for explosives, but police said nothing was found.

In addition, a family member was at the door with police to determine who could enter the Waltrip Funeral Chapel where services were held for the four relatives, Baker said. No reporters were allowed inside at the request of the family and the funeral home, he said.

Police officers, including SWAT team members, were stationed in the chapel and outside. There also were some officers from Irving, Texas and Utah, Houston police spokesman Dan Turner said.

There was a tense moment when officers saw a gun in an oddly parked dark-colored truck, the same type of pickup seen at one of the shootings. But the truck turned out to belong to a close family friend and no arrest was made, Turner said. There were no reports of violence, police said.

Mark Chynoweth, 36; his brother, Duane Chynoweth, 31, and Duane's daughter, Jennifer, were shot execution-style in two separate attacks Monday afternoon in Houston. Almost simultaneously in the Dallas suburb of Irving, a relative, Edward T. Marston, 32, was killed.

The three men were once members of a polygamist group led by the late Ervil LeBaron, who died in 1981 while serving time in a Utah prison for murder. The radical group is believed responsible for more than 20 killings.

Three of LeBaron's sons are wanted for questioning in connection with Monday's murders.

About 100 people attended the services, which lasted about 1½ hours, where the Chynoweths' brother Glen said that "the earth is a brighter and better place because you've been here."

"Duane, thanks for being my brother, thanks for everything you've done — for your great big heart," he said, apparently choking back tears. He also gave similar thanks for Jennifer, Mark and Edward, according to tape recordings of the services.

Last hurrah for the single — ha!

Ah, the bachelor party. The traditional last hurrah of single life, the coda to a carefree lifestyle!

HA HA HA HA HA HA!! This past week I have learned that bachelor and bachelorette parties, far from being the final manifestation of singledom, are rather the first source of irritation for soon-to-be-married couples.

If you are already contemplating such a party, then it follows that for the past few months, or in some cases years, you have been planning a wedding, pledging your loyalty and in general behaving yourself, which, in my book, is ample provocation for staging a debauch of epic proportions. But let's not pretend that you're still "single."

I have been to several bachelor parties and was even the instigator in a couple of them. And I have found that in every instance, it served little purpose other than to spawn arguments and create tension between the happy couple.

Although I've never been to a bachelorette party, for every bachelor party I've attended there has been a complementary and offsetting bachelorette party for the bride somewhere across town.

This introduces a whole new dimension to the formerly male-oriented pre-marital rites of passage. When a man learns that his fiancée is stuffing dollar bills into the G-string of some undulating stud muffin, the matter becomes a little more difficult to laugh off.

On the other hand, it is easy to dismiss a half-naked girl wearing tassels, who jumps out of a cake, as a little harmless fun.

You see, I am familiar with all these arguments, because my fiancée Nancy and I have discussed them at great length. It all began when we were watching an episode of Cheers on television — the one where Frazier Crane and his fiancée, Lilith, call off the marriage when their respective bachelor and bachelorette parties end in catastrophe.

At some point during the show, I wondered aloud if any of my friends would be throwing me a party, which brings us to Rule #1: Even if you know that your so-called friends are planning a party for you, play dumb. Never help plan your own party, and never tell your spouse-to-be that you are actually

Off Beat

By Sonny

looking forward to it. Pretend that you'd really rather not go at all, but, in order to keep from hurting your friends' feelings, you will play along half-heartedly.

If your fiancée mentions that he or she will also reluctantly be joining the debauchery that her or his well-meaning friends have planned, make it clear that you sympathize and hope that he or she will be able to make it through the evening without falling asleep.

This leads us to Rule #2: If your fiancée is planning to indulge in high jinks similar to your own, realize that you are instantly absolved of blame in any and all infantile acts you may commit throughout the course of the evening.

Now, assuming that you have progressed far enough to actually be swilling beer, falling down and wondering where that huge cake came from, you are home free, provided you remember one more tiny bit of advice, which we'll call Rule #3: Never telephone your fiancée while you are still at the party, and never speak of this night again, for so long as you both shall live.

I don't know how this tradition has been allowed to continue for so long anyway.

Can the pleasure derived from doing things you would almost certainly never do in an otherwise normal, human lifetime be so great? This is a rhetorical question and is not meant to be answered, for fear that it will be answered wrongly.

In fact, I'm going to move to have this tradition stricken from the books. Just as soon as my bachelor party is over.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Free markets win in spite of Reagan

During the run-up to the Toronto "economic summit," President Reagan demonstrated once again his mastery of a less-than-admirable art form: talking passionately about free markets and free enterprise in the abstract while concentrating on concrete proposals that undermine these concepts.

Reagan talked in general terms about how the industrialized countries have come to recognize the importance of free and open markets. But his priorities for the conference move in the opposite direction. He wants everyone to work out new ways to fight the laundering of drug money, provide economic help for the Philippines and Afghanistan, pressure the four Asian exporting "tigers" (South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, and Singapore) to export less, and agree to cut farm subsidies.

Only the idea of cutting farm subsidies is a move toward the free market, but Reagan, who has presided over a quadrupling of subsidies while in office, has hardly set a good example. New curbs on currency transactions, ostensibly aimed at drug traffickers, will restrict capital flow for all entrepreneurs. Government-to-government foreign aid props up state control of the economy in recipient countries and delays the decision to rely on the marketplace. And pressuring successful exporters to compete less aggressively is not free enterprise.

Some commentators note with barely disguised glee that the underlying reality of this economic summit is the gradual decline of the U.S. as the dominant economic force. In 1945, the U.S. accounted for fully half the world's gross national product. Now it accounts for only a quarter, although the total world GNP has increased eight times.

While this may presage a decline in political dominance, it also represents a triumph for the kinds of policies the U.S. pushes on its better days. The countries that have experienced economic growth are those that have relied on relatively free-market policies rather than central planning. It is to be expected that as other countries' economies grow, the U.S. share relative to the total will decline, and that's a healthy development.

A world with several centers of economic strength offers the promise of a more stable and perhaps even more peaceful world. If businesses are reasonably free to trade across borders so that consumers can enjoy what people in different countries do better, they develop a stronger vested interest in peaceful relations rather than hostility.

Reagan, in his early years, acted as a missionary to the leaders of other industrial countries for lower taxes and less regulation, and he deserves credit for that. But other countries changed their policies less because Reagan is charming than because those policies work. That's why the trend toward less central planning and more reliance on market incentives is likely to continue.

The leaders of other countries should applaud politely while Reagan murmurs his generalities about the marvelousness of free markets — and just as politely ignore his proposals to undermine them.

Berry's World

"Remember, watch out for creeps tryin' to recruit you to sell crack."

Hypocrisy not new to liberals

First, there's Bernard Goetz, New York City's "Subway Vigilante," who shot some black youths who threatened him. Now, some 230 miles down the road in Washington, we have a copycat in the person of syndicated columnist Carl Rowan, who's been dubbed the "Jacuzzi Vigilante."

The Washington Post (6-15-88) reported Carl Rowan was awakened about 2:00 a.m. by someone he thought was "messing with the bedroom window." Rowan got out of bed, called the police, and while waiting for them he shot one of the intruders in the wrist. According to Rowan, he gave three warnings, and when the intruder, an 18-year-old named Ben Smith, lunged at him the columnist pulled off a shot that ended up in the youth's wrist. The youth later challenged Rowan's account of the incident.

It appears that Smith and his 19-year-old girlfriend had decided to visit Chevy Chase, one of Washington's most exclusive neighborhoods, to make uninvited use of Carl Rowan's backyard pool and Jacuzzi. Speculation has it that Carl, burdened by the stupor of sleep, mistook the early morning frolicking as someone "messing with the bedroom window."

With a missing piece or two, this is a mirror image of the Bernard Goetz case. Among the differences is the fact that the Subway Vigilante was white and shot a black, while the Jacuzzi Vilante is black and shot a white. Both vigilantes believed their lives were being threatened. But after this, the mirror breaks. For starters, following Goetz' deed, he was arrested and bound over for a jury. Then the entire civil rights establishment fell upon him with every weapon in its arsenal, even blaming the Reagan administration for the rise in racial violence. In Rowan's case, he has neither been charged nor arrested; moreover, the civil rights establishment has not yet charged Reagan.

Maybe hypocrisy broke the mirror. In several city neighborhoods, virtually abandoned by police, citizens have launched self-help anti-crime efforts. Back on April 27, Rowan decried these efforts in the Washington Post: "It seems incredible that black people, so long the victims of mob rule and lynch parties, would be now being applauding anti-drug patrols that can only be described as self-glorifying vigilantes."

The Jacuzzi Vigilante went on to preach, "The people who legally wear law enforcement badges and operate under the restraints of Miranda and a hundred other Supreme Court decisions are the ones who ought to enforce the law."

But the hypocrisy doesn't stop there; Carl Rowan is a staunch advocate of gun control. According to the Washington Times (6-15-88), in 1985 Rowan called for "a complete universal federal ban on the sale, manufacture, and importation of handguns (except for police and military)." His enthusiasm no less diminished in 1986, when our Jacuzzi Vigilante said, "The gun lobby continues to work the White House and Congress to the point of guaranteeing that almost any nut in any neighborhood can turn his house into an arsenal."

I believe Carl Rowan, Bernard Goetz and anyone else who is being threatened has the right — and duty — to protect himself, his family and his property. It's the hypocrisy of it all that's hard to swallow.

Liberal elites like Rowan think one set of rules and restraints should govern the masses should they put up with lawlessness, while they live in the law and order of exclusive neighborhoods. They think the masses should have their children's education destroyed by the public school establishment while the children of the elite attend either top quality public schools or exclusive private ones. They think guns should be taken away from, or at least registered by, the masses while they keep theirs — unregistered as Rowan did.

This kind of hypocrisy is by no way new. Tyrants down through history have always favored strict controls for everyone else and freedom for themselves. So what else is new?

Too many mating calls at Jim

WINSTON SALEM, N.C. — Forget the U.S. Open, and all that splendid play by the pro golfers and all that money they won, and come with me to this community and the golf tournament known simply and elegantly as The Crosby.

It is whatever happened to the Bing Crosby tournament in California that drew the stars and the game's top players for so many years.

The late crooner had indicated that if there came a time that less than 50 percent of the proceeds of his tournament were going to charity, it should be halted, moved or somehow altered to return to its roots as an event held primarily to help the less fortunate.

The demands for a large purse for the pros finally did deplete the charitable funds and Crosby's widow, Kathryn, packed the whole thing up and moved it here to Bermuda Run Country Club. The tournament raises one million for charity.

I was invited to play this year. It was an incredible experience. For 4 days I played between the ropes, just like the stars of the PGA.

The Saturday crowd was estimated at over 20,000. I, a 14-handicapper, who shouldn't be that low, hit a screaming three-iron 12 feet from the pin on the watery 17th hole in front of 5,000 people. When I arrived at the green to applause just like at the Masters, I did my best Jack Nicklaus smile and waved.

Lewis Grizzard

I missed the putt, but I made par and it was bigger than the time in high school I hit the pop fly that rolled into the weeds by the concession stand and before the ball could be found, I was around the bases for the winning run.

I also topped a few off the tee, left one in the trap on 18 and lost my player's badge and was nearly thrown off the course by a security guard, who said with a sneer, "You don't look like no golfer."

I also got to meet a lot of famous people. Bob Hope was there. I shook his hand.

I also met Oprah Winfrey (she didn't play golf). They didn't have a cart that big.

McLean Stevenson, Claude Akins, Efrem Zimbalist Jr., football's Dick (Night Train) Lane and Jim McMahon, the goofy quarterback from the Chicago Bears, left on the same plane I did.

I also played a round with Jim Palmer as my partner. Jim Palmer is the former pitcher for the Baltimore Orioles who now shows up on billboards wearing nothing but his Jockey underwear.

Women love Jim Palmer. "You're absolutely gorgeous," one woman said to him at the sixth.

"Jim Palmer!" exclaimed another at the 10th. "I didn't recognize you with your clothes on."

It went on like that all day and I, quite frankly, got a little tired of it. It was difficult to putt with a large group of women offering up various mating calls.

Finally, however, one woman did say to me, "Lewis, what kind of underwear do you have on?"

"Not any," I replied, leaving her eating the dust of my golf cart.

Jane Fonda learns, but not fast enough

Sixteen years after she sat gleefully at an enemy anti-aircraft gun in Hanoi, described American soldiers as "war criminals," and charged POWs with lying about torture by the North Vietnamese, Jane Fonda has said she's sorry.

Sort of. Maybe in another 16 years she will have matured enough to finish her apology.

Although she recently told ABC's Barbara Walters that she regretted her "thoughtless and careless" actions, Fonda's main concern seems to be that she hurt and angered U.S. soldiers. After all these years, she still doesn't understand that the problem with her personal anti-war crusade was not merely its tone or emphasis, but that it relied on obnoxious falsehoods.

There were always two defensible positions regarding the Vietnam War, and Fonda shared (and apparently still shares) neither.

The first was that the war was worth fighting as an attempt to save millions of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians (and possibly Thais) from a form of government far more brutal and oppressive than anything they'd experienced — a government that furthermore would be allied with or in thrall to our principal enemy, the Soviet Union.

The other respectable position held that the war was not worth fighting because Indochina wasn't vital to American security, the cost in lives and treasure would be huge, and that the effort simply had to fail given the history of colonialism in Vietnam and its people's resolve to control their destiny. Moreover, any such effort would brutalize U.S. soldiers unable to distinguish friend from foe and wreak horrible, futile devastation on Vietnam itself.

There are many variants of these two themes, yet Fonda and a number of other anti-war activists took another tack. They viewed U.S. intervention as evil and the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong as heroic, gentle, far-seeing patriots.

When the North Vietnamese promised to create a humane society, their defenders in America accepted their word. When the communists insisted they waged a war free of retribution or terror, their friends here largely believed them. Hanoi's apologists had eyes only for U.S. atrocities, which never approached the routine magnitude or ferocity of those perpetrated by the other side.

In short, some anti-war activists, Fonda included, consistently suggested Ho Chi Minh led a noble cause, while in fact he was just another radical, anti-democratic nationalist thrown up by the collapse of colonialism in World War II.

Vietnam today survives as a living rebuttal of Fonda's romantic, mischievous notions about the morality of U.S. behavior. Its people are so miserable that thousands continue to flock onto boats in the South China Sea, braving storms, pirates and the prospect of months or years in refugee camps.

Even the country's leaders now admit they've bungled, that their party has suffocated freedom and economic progress.

Yet Jane Fonda still doesn't get it. "We all did what we felt we had to do," she told Walters in self-absolution. By traveling to Hanoi, she argues, she and others brought back damning information that hastened the end of the war.

In fact, they mainly lent moral support to a vicious totalitarian regime high-stepping its way to expansion. Most Americans, both for and against the war, understood that Fonda had gone too far at the time. But Fonda, always a slow learner, even now requires more time.

Letters to the editor

Give newcomers better welcomes!

To the editor:

Let me begin by saying that I did NOT write a letter saying that the people for golf are certainly NOT us average citizens who work for a living, and if the same people who are so gung-ho on having "their" golf course would push the erection of "some" kind of Teen-Town for our young people, then THAT would be great, as every effort in the past has gone for nothing.

I also did NOT write a letter telling how filthy the room was that my husband was put in at Coronado Hospital when he had small complications from his open heart surgery in Amarillo.

Last year when we put our rent house ad in the paper, a young black lady came to see it, and she was almost in tears because of the way several people had treated her when she had gone by to see about renting from them. I KNEW that was because she was black and young. So I explained to her that we had become aware of this attitude of "some" people when we had helped start the Community Day Care Center several years ago and the director was a very capable black lady.

This time when we had our ad in a Sunday paper, another young lady appeared on our doorstep and was also in a disturbed state of mind because she had not been able to get anyone to explain WHERE 941 S. Farley was. One man had even told her to go get herself a map!!

I also warned this lady of much of Pampa's snottiness and told her NEVER to use this hospital unless it HAD to be. That gas is higher here than in surrounding towns, etc.

I am quite certain that my letter will make some angry and say, as one letter several months back, that you find the kind of people you want to find. That is simply not so.

This lady and her husband are some of the new people coming into Pampa because of the rebuilding of Celanese. The VERY people that most of us WANTED to come to help the economy and give us a boost which is very needed. I also told her that Pampa DID HAVE some great people, but they were not abusive and just tended to their business. So I am showing her Pampa.

I do NOT think anything will erase the first experience of Pampa.

Come on, people, you can be nicer than this! Shirley Meaker Pampa

The Lazy 'H' didn't plan any 'conflicts'

To the editor:

On behalf of the Lazy "H" Recreation Park in Canadian, I would like to respond to your article "Canadian ready for its 100th 4th of July Rodeo" appearing in the Sunday, June 26, Pampa News.

The Roping Arena at the Lazy "H" was constructed strictly for roping events, without chutes or lights, making a rodeo virtually impossible. We will be holding team roping, A-B and open, which does not conflict with the scheduled rodeo events. We are also holding barrel racing, and our flyer covering activities for the 4th of July at the Lazy "H" specifically states that our barrel runs will be staggered with the rodeo times to prevent conflict.

Our team roping will commence on Saturday at 10 a.m. and will be completed long before the first rodeo performance at 7 p.m. that evening. On Sunday, we are holding a Cowboy Church Service at 10:30 a.m., after which we will open our books with roping to start at 1 p.m. On Monday, the times will be the same as Sunday, starting only after the parade, turtle races and Old Timers Reunion, all sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

Those who are knowledgeable about rodeo will realize that team roping is not a spectator sport. The rodeo team roping is for Hemphill County residents and will be held Friday night. We had hoped to complement the rodeo activities by attracting some good ropers who otherwise might not attend because of the Friday roping being limited to Hemphill County residents.

With regard to the Old Timers Reunion, our agreement with the manager of the chamber was to provide, at a fee of $3 per person, the complete barbecue dinner and our facility, to include our air-conditioned lounge building and also a pavilion set up in the trees in the adjoining picnic area for those who wished to eat outside and enjoy the music of SingleTree, who will be playing through the early afternoon. We offered to handle the barbecue only because the groups who have previously prepared the barbecue had declined to do so this year.

The Lazy "H" is a member of the chamber and has been an active member, contributing time, participation and facilities, as well as money, to chamber events. Certainly, we wish to do nothing to harm or divide that organization, particularly as we feel that it is so vital to the growth and development of our community. We certainly one day hope to be a profit-making organization, and we fully realize that this can only be accomplished through the promotion of our entire unique Canadian area.

I regret what appears to be irresponsibility in journalism that can have such an unfortunate and detrimental effect on both our new recreation park and, as a direct result, our community.

I must echo the sentiments of Paul Pinkham in the "Off Beat" column of the June 26 Pampa News: GET THE FACTS STRAIGHT, PARDNER!! Shelley Behney Manager, Lazy "H" Recreation Park Canadian

Not while on duty!

To the editor:

On Thursday, June 23, as I was walking to my car, a firetruck drove past with three men in it. One of the men, whom I've never met, leaned way over and nearly out the window and gave me a big slow wave and leered at me in a way that he must have thought was sexy.

For me, it was degrading and humiliating. I hope the next time the big jerk does someone like that, he at least has the decency to wait until he is off duty.

Most all of our firemen are friendly and wave, which is nice. But a greeting like that one gave me will be stopped!

Name withheld P.S. Don't print my name. I don't want the goon bothering me.

Let them pay for it!

To the editor:

I have been in Pampa 60 years, and I think this golf business stinks!

I don't think they're going at it right. I think they should let the citizens of Pampa vote on it again.

If the young folks want a golf course, let them pay their taxes — let them build it themselves! The elderly have about all the taxes they're able to pay.

I know two families here in Pampa that have built fine homes on other people's money. If they want to build a golf course, I think they ought to build it on their own money!

Does cable service want to stay here?

To the editor:

I want to second the opinion expressed by Warren Hasse in his column last Sunday regarding the lack of cable service by Sammons Communications.

I would like to add a couple of other points to his regarding the fact that Sammons (whose slogan is "A World of Services") needs to decide immediately if it wants to continue to serve the city of Pampa.

1. Channel 4 (KAMR) continues to have a poorer signal than the other Amarillo stations. I have called this to their attention on more than one occasion in the last couple of years.

2. HBO (an extra pay channel) is subject to interference of its picture whenever one of the local paging services activates its paging service. Again, no action by Sammons to correct this in the last couple of years.

3. Sammons is charging as much as most other cable services in this area, yet only gives us five of the 13 news and entertainment cable channels that TV Guide lists as basic services available. Most of the other cable services in this area provide more of these 13 basic services for their basic charge. This count does not include several other channels (such as MTV and Home Sports Entertainment) that are available, but are not listed in TV Guide.

4. The only channels Sammons has added in the last two years, since KCIT replaced CBN (after KCIT had been on the air for over two years), have been the Weather Channel, replacing the public access channel; FNN, C-SPAN II and CVN (a home shopping network). None of these changes added a basic entertainment service.

5. Sammons has taken a wait-and-see attitude to whether it will replace the PBS service when the Amarillo College station signs on. They should take the position that the channel will be added within a month of its sign-on.

The Pampa system has neither had the proper promotion nor management in the last six years for Sammons to have realized its maximum return. Part of this lack of interest must be laid on the steps of Sammons' senior management in Dallas.

It is therefore time for the management of Sammons Communications in Dallas to decide if it wants to be a part of the Pampa business community. If not, it should publicly tell the people of Pampa that it is putting the system up for sale. According to recent financial reports, cable systems are being sold for $2,000-3,000 per connection. That means the Pampa system is valued at several million dollars, if marketed to the potential service area properly.

They should quit sitting on their hands down in Dallas and publicly come to Pampa to explain their position.

Say 'no' to drugs, 'yes' to golf course

To the editor:

"HOO-RAY" to Royce K. Jones, Phil and Christy Drake, Shirley Stafford, Lois Watkins, Mary Jo Fiveash, Joyce Epperson, Elaine Riddle, Lavada Warner and to the person who wrote "There's a lot going on in this Little City."

This does include all of us many, many citizens of Pampa, which is our little city, who share the same feelings and emotions about what is happening to our city and just what the end results will be. We take our hats off to you!!!

As for Ray Velasquez, the same old feel-sorry-for-myself routine still exists. Just like a broken record!!

Velasquez has been a downbeat on every issue that has ever been introduced and presented to the city and to the commissioners, whether it is street improvements, park improvements, city progress, the water system and the recently suggested ballpark. Yet in this past Sunday's paper, he commented his daughter loved to play ball but had no place to play! Just you name it and he is opposed and against it!

He cries about the taxes and how a golf course will burden the people of Pampa. According to the part of town where he lives and the home he lives in, I would be extremely surprised if he pays enough taxes to purchase a Coke from a Coke machine.

I say sweep off your own porch first or practice what you preach. I realize work is hard to find in this town but, I am quite sure, doing something, Ray, is better than not doing anything at all but bellyache.

I know personally of several veterans in this town who have been injured in the wards and have back problems and also other problems due to war. But I also see them putting in a full eight hours a day five or more days a week to help raise a family and put food on their table. I too have back problems and have had back surgery, but I still maintain a job.

As for the golf course, Ray, if you are so politically influential and have the money to back up your claims, then I suggest you put your money where your mouth is. All you really are is a spokesman for a select few in town who do not want the golf course. If this is not the case, then let them come forward and tell the voters the voting was illegal — let them put their money where their mouths are!!

The golf course has been shelved so many times in this town by Greene, Presley and Simmons, we all are a laughingstock of Pampa and the surrounding towns. It is quite embarrassing to say you are from Pampa anymore. It's even been on the news media in Amarillo. The people of Pampa voted the three of you in office, thinking you would be the best for the community because of the platforms you stood on. But you sure have deflated many people's expectations of your capabilities. Instead of bringing the community together as a whole, you have twisted everything around to please and pacify a select few and, in turn, created a monster.

I say this: Either be for the citizens of Pampa and what you stand for and the voting system, or get out of office. I think it is high time we clean up our image of Pampa, clean up our reputation. Some would rather just sweep it under the rug. It's your choice!

I personally would like to know if the normal American way of voting is legal or ill-legal. Have we voters been mis-represented all these years? In other words, when we vote for the president of the United States and a person is voted in office, by the people, whether it be a landslide or a margin of just one political vote, can the bureaucrats or the political bosses or machines just throw out the votes and put into office just whoever they so decide? Just veto the votes?

That's the way the voting system seems to be in Pampa; if not, then may I ask what is the hold-up? Do they think if they let it ride long enough that people will just forget about it and let it slide on by? If this is the case, why vote?

The next election we have, just remember — those votes that were cast concerning the golf course could have a lasting impression upon the young and old of Pampa and could very well affect the next candidates running for office. You only reap what you sow! You also do realize a lawsuit could go both ways when it comes to our American voting privileges.

It is so gratifying to know our children are growing up in this town to be our future voting generation and to see how our system is being mis-managed now by their elders. Remarkable, isn't it, when you think about it!! Ask your younger generation today if they too would like to play golf. Several I have talked to (not country club) would love to play and be more than glad to give a helping hand.

I would like to add, the police of Pampa are ever so glad to play the hero when picking up a drunk on the street or a DWI, but when it comes to the circulating of drugs, they seem to disappear. By no means am I for drinking and drunkenness, but we do seriously have a big problem with drugs. We know it does exist; everyone knows it!! It is terrifying to those who do not partake and the ones who do.

Now as for the widening of Hobart Street and the petition that has been circulated, I might suggest the state just bypass Pampa as a whole or build an overpass from one end to the other. Those people complaining could continue their business as usual undisturbed. I am not being controversial; it's just whatever goes to be peaceful. One thing would benefit — we could have a nice street without tearing the bottom out of our cars from the craters in the street we now have.

Lastly, I would suggest those of you who do want a golf course in Pampa, please come forward and speak, whether it is through The Pampa News or to call or send a letter to Joyce Epperson or the city and county commissioners. If you do not, the ones doing the footwork are only spinning their wheels. If voting in Pampa is illegal only for certain things, then as far as everyone is concerned the town as a whole is wide open for anything and everything illegal.

A Concerned Citizen

P.S. Are you? You should be — speak up!! Footnote: Another delay June 29, according to the City Commission's delays relating to liens, restrictions, easement rights, mineral rights. Then here comes James Cook, suggesting another place for a golf course. May I ask where, Mr. Cook? How could north of town be any more dangerous for a golf course than the golf courses in Borger — what are they over, gopher holes? Let's get serious; what a fluke!

Those of you interested in the golf course need to speak up or write or contact Joyce Epperson. From there they can be sent to our congressman. Please date your letters. Let's make Pampa's voting system work for us. We can do it.

Drought-stricken Indiana farms get hay

By The Associated Press

At the end of last week, relief efforts began to aid drought-stricken areas while various state officials pleaded for more assistance.

Hay from Southern farmers hoping to repay a debt from their own 1986 dry spell arrived in drought-stricken Indiana, while Alabama's governor asked federal officials to declare his state a disaster area due to crop damage.

Friday, an economist estimated the drought could cause $3 billion in damage to North Dakota's economy this year.

At Cloverdale, Ind., farmer Ed Meek accepted 180 bales of hay donated by South Carolina farmers and trucked in Friday by volunteer off-duty Charleston, S.C., police.

"Our hay yield is down and what we're using now is what should be used next winter," he said.

In 1986, Indiana and 40 other states sent about 800,000 bales of hay to South Carolina when the Southeast was suffering a severe dry spell.

At Charlotte Court House, Va., which was spared by the drought, farmers gathered a shipment of hay Friday to send to Ohio.

"Two years ago, I helped load a lot of hay in Ohio that went South," said Ohio's director of agriculture, Steve Maurer, thanking the Charlotte County farmers. "Kind of in passing, I said 'Someday we might need a little help ourselves,' and little did I know it was just two years away."

Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste issued an executive order Friday that he said would speed delivery of hay to drought-stricken farmers and ban most outdoor burning, and he urged mandatory water use restrictions statewide.

Also Friday, Alabama Gov. Guy Hunt asked federal officials to declare Alabama a disaster area, citing "widespread damage to corn, cotton, peanuts, soybeans, grain sorghum, hay and pasture crops."

In a letter to U.S. Agriculture Secretary

Richard Lyng, Hunt said it was estimated that 30 percent to 50 percent of the state's crops were damaged by the drought.

In Washington, Lyng said the federal government likely will support financial aid to farmers once losses are more fully known.

After briefing President Reagan on the findings of an interagency task force on the drought, the secretary told reporters that long-range weather forecasts are discouraging.

Meanwhile, administration officials disclosed that Reagan will fly to Davenport, Iowa, July 14 to view drought damage.

Despite up to 2 inches of rain this week, Iowa had its driest half-year on record, said Harry Hillaker, acting state climatologist.

In the Tennessee River Valley, last month turned out to be the driest June since records began in 1890, said Carl Vines of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Of the TVA's 220 rain monitoring stations, 39 recorded nothing during June — also a record.

Shultz preaches democracy during Central America trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sounding much like the college professor he once was, Secretary of State George P. Shultz took a back-to-basics message to four friendly Central American countries last week: democracy works, Marxism doesn't.

During visits to Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica, Shultz repeated that theme time and again, urging the countries and their peoples to stay on their democratic course and to reject Nicaraguan-style Marxism.

As Shultz saw it, the four democracies, three of which are relative newborns, now boast of economic growth, declining inflation and improved social services.

In contrast, Shultz said, living standards in Nicaragua have dropped by two-thirds over the past four months, inflation is "sure to exceed 2,000 per cent this year, and tens of thousands of workers are paid less than the cost of subsistence."

Shultz's optimistic appraisal of the four democracies seemed excessive to some analysts. Shultz himself saw some of the despair still plaguing the region, particularly on Thursday as he raced from Guatemala to El Salvador to Honduras and back to Guatemala.

In El Salvador, a country where fully half the labor force is unable to find adequate employment, armed rebellion continues, and human rights abuses, after a long period of decline, are now on the increase.

Shultz called democracy the "way of the future" in Central America but many Salvadorans obviously are not convinced.

The atmosphere was far more tranquil in Honduras, but there Shultz could see the fruits of an appalling housing shortage: people by the thousands living in shelters consisting of little more than sheets of corrugated metal.

Shultz's point, though, was that Central America's democracies, for all their problems, are moving ahead, while Nicaragua's living standards continue to retrogress.

Shultz did his best to deflect attention during his trip from the pending debate in Washington over aid to the Nicaraguan Contras. But the Contras, normally a U.S. ally, upset this design after a meeting late Thursday night with Shultz at his hotel in Guatemala City.

With the stall in efforts to reach peace between the Contras and the Sandinistas, the rebels offered tantalizing details of a new aid strategy they are developing in cooperation with the administration and their supporters on Capitol Hill.

Administration officials said only four minutes of the hour-long session was devoted to the possibility of resuming military aid to the Contras. If that's true, it may have been an important four minutes, given the divisiveness of Contra aid as an election year campaign issue.

The Contras, now limited to a $17 million package of humanitarian aid and deprived of military aid since late February, have little support among liberals. Democratic front runner Michael Dukakis has said that lethal aid to the rebels is illegal.

Adolfo Calero, a Contra directorate member, said the morning after the rebels' meeting with Shultz that the secretary was "very enthusiastic" about a new Contra aid proposal that was discussed.

Calero said a $30 million aid package being considered by the administration, of which perhaps $7 million would be spent as military aid if Nicaragua, failed to fulfill promises of democratic reform.

The night before, Alfredo Cesar, another Contra leader, had talked of a revolutionary new wrinkle in the Contra aid debate. He said that as a sweetener for the Sandinistas, they would receive economic aid if they implemented democratic reform.

Shultz apparently hopes that with so many Nicaraguan lives at risk because of economic deprivation, the Sandinistas may be ready to rethink their strategy on how their society should be constructed.

Reagan urges defense of America's heritage

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in a Fourth of July weekend radio broadcast, urged Americans Saturday to "defend America's precious heritage" by voting on election day, helping others and attending to their families and jobs.

"As we celebrate our independence and pause to give thanks for our liberty, let us also remember that the freedoms we cherish are never more than a generation away from extinction," Reagan said in his weekly radio address.

The president spoke from Camp David, the presidential retreat in Maryland, where he is spending the weekend.

He will return Monday to watch the annual Washington fireworks show from a White House balcony.

"It's up to each of us to preserve, protect and defend America's precious heritage," the president said. "Some of us have done just that on the battlefield. But all of us can do it each and every day."

"We can vote at election time. We can volunteer to help political campaigns for the candidates of our choice, as well as volunteer for work that's needed around our community. And we can simply raise our children well, do our jobs well and live in God's light."

Senate Majority Leader Robert

C. Byrd of West Virginia, in the Democratic response to the president's speech, also noted the traditional Independence Day celebrations that are coming up, adding, "But this Fourth is a little different. It is different because this year we must choose a new path for America. This is an election year. We are about to choose a new president."

"We can give America a new beginning," Byrd said. "Celebrate your freedom in the most meaningful way this year. Participate. Exercise that most important uniquely American privilege. Vote. Get involved in America. Her future depends on you."

In a written Fourth of July message, Reagan said that each celebration of the holiday marking the signing of the Declaration of Independence stirs "the pure patriotism of childhood."

"With each flag, with each parade and picnic and burst of fireworks, we can't help but recall the first stirrings of our deep love for America," the president said.

Feds want to shut down Texas drug company lab

TEXARKANA (AP) — The federal Food and Drug Administration says a local pharmaceutical laboratory is a hazard to public health and has filed a lawsuit seeking to shut it down.

The lawsuit alleges that the Humco Laboratory Inc. is violating the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act by "manufacturing and distributing drug articles that are adulterated and misbranded."

The suit, filed Thursday by Bob Wortham, U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Texas, says the laboratory should be closed "unless and until" the facility conforms to federal drug manufacturing standards.

Inspections of the company were conducted by federal officials in April and May following a drug recall related to mislabeling, the Texarkana Gazette reported.

The inspections found extensive deficiencies on Humco premises, according to federal officials.

William Pearson Walsh, Humco president, and Larry Gene

Copelan, general manager and secretary, are named in the lawsuit.

Copeland said he was unaware of any action being taken against Humco and was shocked to hear about the lawsuit.

"We know nothing of it," Copeland said Friday. "We don't know what they would file lawsuit about because the FDA hasn't said anything out of the ordinary has gone on as far as the recall is concerned."

The recall of syrup of ipecac began about six weeks ago and Copeland said out of the over 100,000 bottles returned, none have been mislabeled. The Texas-side company manufactures, processes, packs, labels, stores and distributes nationwide various drug items, including ipecac syrup, iodides tincture, and isopropyl alcohol.

All the drugs manufactured by Humco are adulterated, the federal agents say, because the company does not conform to current federal manufacturing practices.

Cheaper oil a tonic for higher food

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Wall Street's inflation-watchers are counting on cheaper oil to take the sting out of rising food prices in the months ahead.

World oil prices have fallen sharply of late amid signs that oil-exporting countries are producing faster than market demand can absorb.

West Texas Intermediate, crude oil, widely used as an overall gauge of the trend in oil prices, dropped below $15 a barrel Friday to its lowest level since 1986.

That news, together with some rainfall at last in the parched Farm Belt, has encouraged talk in the financial markets that inflation might not be as bad as had been feared in the second half of 1988.

One of the most reliable barometers of inflationary expectations, the yield on 30-year Treasury bonds, has fallen from a peak of nearly 9.5 percent several weeks ago to less than 9 percent in recent days.

The drought watch continues on Wall Street, of course, even as it does in the areas of the country that suffer most directly from the lack of moisture.

While the current weather charts showed rain in the Midwest this past week, traders in the futures and financial markets switched their attention to forecasts suggesting more unusually dry conditions in the next few weeks.

For the national economy, however, many analysts say it is necessary to keep the role of agricultural commodities in perspective.

"Although the drought could be the worst in nearly a century, it should be kept in mind that the importance of raw food commodities has changed dramatically over the years, and the impact of sharp price rises in this area is not particularly great on consumer spending or the inflation indices," said Michael Sherman, analyst at Shearson Lehman Hutton Inc.

David A. Levy and S. Jay Levy, a Chappaqua, N.Y., economic forecasting team, say they have no desire to minimize the distress the drought is causing for farmers and other businesses in agricultural areas.

However, they add, "the drought will indeed increase the prices of many foods but have limited impact on inflation. Food and beverages account for less than 18 percent of the Consumer Price Index."

Despite such assurances, the stock market's early-summer rally bogged down in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 11.38 to 2,131.58, ending a five-week winning streak.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index dropped .88 to 153.88; the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market rose 3.08 to 394.70, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up .51 at 309.00.

Graf ends Navratilova's bid for Wimbledon history

By RICK WARNER
AP Tennis Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Steffi Graf, winning 12 of the last 13 games, captured her third straight Grand Slam title and ended Martina Navratilova's bid for Wimbledon history with a 5-7, 6-2, 6-1 triumph in the women's final Saturday.

Graf's 21st straight victory in Grand Slam matches this year avenged her loss to Navratilova in last year's final and kept alive her hopes of becoming the first since Margaret Court in 1970 to sweep tennis' four major tournaments the same year.

It also ended Navratilova's drive to set Wimbledon records with a seventh straight singles title and ninth overall.

Graf, who won nine straight games after falling behind 2-0 in the second set, celebrated her first Wimbledon championship by throwing her racket into the stands at Centre Court.

"I didn't succumb to pressure. I succumbed to a better player today," said Navratilova, who had won 47 straight singles matches at Wimbledon since losing to Hana Mandlikova in the 1981 semifinals.

After a "terrible" first set, Graf said she got "really pumped up" in the second set.

"The last two sets I played the way I should have from the beginning," said Graf, who was seeded first ahead of Navratilova.

In the completion of a match suspended by darkness Friday and delayed twice by rain Saturday, two-time men's champion Boris Becker beat top-seeded Ivan Lendl 6-4, 6-3, 6-7 (8-10), 6-4 in the semifinals after Lendl saved eight match points.

Becker meets third-seeded Stefan Edberg in the men's singles final Sunday.

Graf, who turned 19 last month, is the youngest woman singles champion at Wimbledon since Maureen Connolly won in 1952 at age 17.

Graf, the first German woman to win the singles title since Cilly Aussem in 1931, won the Australian and French Opens this year before Wimbledon. She can complete the Grand Slam with a victory at the U.S. Open in September.

"Everybody's talking about it," Graf said. "But I'm going to concentrate on every tournament. I'm not going to change now."

Navratilova shares the Wimbledon record of eight singles titles with Helen Wills Moody and the mark for consecutive championships with Willie Renshaw, who won six in a row in the 1880s when the defending champion automatically advanced to the final.

But her bid to break the records fell short against the rocket returns, sizzling smashes and booming serve of Graf, who replaced Navratilova as the world's top-ranked female player last August.

"She's amazing," said Navratilova, who failed to win a singles or doubles title at a Grand Slam event for the first time since the 1983 French Open.

"I was hitting good volleys and she kept running them down," Navratilova said. "She's just so fast. Other players would not even get to those balls, and she was hitting winners."

In last year's two-set final, Navratilova took advantage of Graf's unsteady backhand. This year, there was no weakness to exploit.

Graf broke for a 3-2 lead in the first set with a lob that Navratilova jumped for and missed. But after Graf held serve for a 5-3 lead, Navratilova took the next four games to win the set.

Navratilova made it six straight games when she broke Graf with a backhand volley to make it 2-0 in the second set. But then the tall teen-ager caught fire, winning nine straight games before Navratilova broke her with a backhand winner to close within 3-1 in the final set.

The match was then suspended for 44 minutes by rain, which fell sporadically throughout the day.

When play resumed, Graf quickly broke Navratilova to go up 4-1. Frustrated, the 31-year-old defending champion slammed her racket down on her chair during the changeover.

After holding at love, Graf gained a match point with a blazing forehand return and then ended the contest with a cross-court backhand that nicked the top of the net and skipped past Navratilova.

Lendl, runner-up the past two years, tried valiantly to make it to a third straight final even though his injured left thigh was heavily bandaged. But he couldn't stop Becker from getting to his third final in four years.

"It comes down to who is having the better nerves and who puts it together on break point," Becker said. "It was not an easy night for either of us."

Darkness suspended play Friday night after Lendl had saved three match points and won the third-set tiebreaker.

After two rain delays totaling 71 minutes Saturday, Becker took a 5-4 lead in the fourth set and moved to double-match point on two volleying errors by Lendl. But Lendl stayed alive when Becker netted two passing shots.

Becker gained another match point on a backhand pass, but Lendl came back and moved to set point when Becker netted a return and hit a forehand wide.

Lendl saved two more match points before Becker again gained match point No. 9 with a running backhand down the line. The 20-year-old West German then won the match with a forehand drive that whistled past a defenseless Lendl, who never has won a grass-court tournament.

"Of course, I'm disappointed right now," said Lendl, who survived a pair of five-setters in the middle rounds. "I thought I played better this year than last year, so I'm sure when I look back at it I'm not going to be as disappointed as last year."

Becker confident of victory

Edberg advances to title match

By ANDREW WARSHAW
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Boris Becker has been there twice before. Stefan Edberg will be feeling its pressure for the first time.

The men's championship match at Wimbledon Sunday pits two of the best serve-and-volleyers in the game for the $272,250 first prize.

Becker, champion in 1985 and 1986, is going for his third title in four years at the place where he says he was born as a tennis player.

The 20-year-old West German beat Kevin Curren for his first title, and the following year hammered Ivan Lendl in straight sets.

Lendl, 28, was the only player to take a set from Becker this year at Wimbledon, doing it in the semifinals. The Czechoslovak, the world's top-ranked player, saved three match points Friday before winning a third-set tiebreaker that sent the match into a second day.

Lendl, runner-up the last two years, failed to make further headway Saturday amid intermittent showers and several stoppages, despite saving another five match points. Becker finally won 6-4, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4.

Edberg, the world's third-ranked player and seeded three places above Becker at No. 3, has had a far tougher route to the final than his opponent.

Only once, in the fourth round, has Edberg come through any of his matches in straight sets. But he gained a huge confidence-boost in the semifinals when he was on the brink of defeat against Miloslav Mecir and staged a remarkable comeback to win 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

In that match, Edberg shook off his reputation as a big-point choker at Wimbledon, staving off a succession of break points to reach his first championship match.

Like Becker, Edberg has won two Grand Slam titles, the 1985 and 1987 Australian Open. He is the first Swedish player since Bjorn Borg seven years ago to reach a Wimbledon final.

"Wimbledon is far more important to me than the Australian," Edberg said after his semifinal victory.

The London-based Swede said he would have to play extremely well to prevent Becker collecting his third title on Centre Court.

The West German leads 9-4 in their head-to-head meetings, including their only meeting on grass.

That came last month at the pre-Wimbledon warm-up event at Queens Club in west London when Becker won 6-1, 3-6, 6-3 after playing what he described as "the best set of my life" at the start of the match.

Becker said Edberg's comeback against Mecir will give the Swede extra confidence for Sunday.

Becker also said he had more big-match experience than his opponent.

Thomson takes lead in Senior Gold Rush

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. (AP) — Australian Peter Thomson shot a 6-under-par 66 Saturday to take a 1-stroke lead after the first round of the $350,000 Senior Gold Rush.

Miller Barber was second after firing four birdies on the front nine and finishing with a 67.

Gary Player, coming off a playoff win last week in the Silver Pages Classic, bogeyed the final two holes to slip into a tie for third with Lou Graham and Billy Maxwell at 68.

Thomson, 58, carded six birdies, including a 25-foot chip-in on the par-5 third hole. He took the lead from Barber with birdies on the 16th and 17th holes.

Many of the first-round leaders completed their round before temperatures reached a high of 104 degrees. The heat was expected to be more of a factor Sunday.

Canyon's Eagles soar above the rest

The Knoxville, Tenn., Journal annually compiles point totals for NCAA schools in an effort to ascertain which had the greatest success on the athletic field. It's much similar to the all-sports championship system formerly employed in districts in which Pampa HS participated.

This year's men's champion is again UCLA, the ninth such honor since the first rankings were figured in 1971. The Uclans tallied 88 points, with the Texas Longhorn men's teams second with 69, one more than Oklahoma. Oklahoma State, ranked tenth, gave the Big Eight two top performers. But the Pac-10 added three more schools to the top ten to take overall honors. Arizona State finished fifth, Arizona sixth and Stanford ninth, a definitive statement on where the collegiate athletic prowess of the nation is centered.

Using a somewhat similar study of District 1-4A, final figures verify our earlier statement that the Canyon Eagles had an outstanding school year. With a total of 32 playoff positions guaranteed in eight sports (tennis gets four due to singles and doubles play), Athletic Director Mike Wartes' teams and athletes grabbed 11 of the spots, testimony to the well-rounded program that system runs. Hereford was second, with the rest of the pack far, far behind. Included in Canyon's season were state championships in Boys' cross country and girls' tennis, and the state tournament in baseball. Leveland added a Girls' basketball state title to the District's laurels, and Pampa's Girls won their second track title in three seasons, sandwiching in a second place finish the 1986-87 school year.

In making his annual report to his school board, Wartes also pointed out the most important part of the athletic program: at this time, at least 13 of the Eagle athletes will go to college with scholarship assistance due to athletic abilities, at least 10 to Division I or II schools.

I only hope that none of it will be inadvertently tarnished by two of teams being guests at civic club luncheons during the year. If properly handled, there is no problem. But I recall all too well that Caprock HS had to forfeit games in which a star athlete played when he attended a club luncheon to be honored. There is no give in the strict UIL rules, as there shouldn't be.

For those long-range planners, here is the Bowl game schedule for next Holiday Season.

Dec. 10—Eagle Aloha Bowl; Dec. 28—Liberty Bowl; Dec. 29—All American Bowl; Dec. 30—Sea World Holiday Bowl, Hall of Fame Bowl, Freedom Bowl; Dec. 31—Peach and Blubonnet Bowls; Jan. 1—Mazda Gator Bowl; Jan. 2—Florida Citrus Bowl, Sunkist Fiesta Bowl, USF&G Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl, Orange Bowl, Rose Bowl.

Now the NFL can plug its playoff games around the collegiate telecasts, and you can start your party planning.

Good news for the Texas members of the Southwest Conference. In his weekly statewide radio address, Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton said the state can no longer afford to take money from state university academic programs for use by athletic programs. The governor said money used to pay for athletics could be used for faculty salaries, laboratory equipment and more scholarships for needy students. He also said the low graduation rate of student-athletes must be investigated.

Obviously, Clinton has no intentions for running for another term.

Tommy "Lasagna" Lasorda, bowling-ball manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, gets much attention over his food talents. Asked how this happened, he explained:

"Twenty-four years ago the surgeon general came out with his finding that smoking cigarettes was dangerous to your health. I had a pack of Larks in my pocket. I looked at that pack of Larks and said, 'Who's stronger, me or you?' And I threw that pack of cigarettes away.

"Seven years ago my doctor told me drinking was bad for my arthritis. I used to drink vodka. I looked at that glass of vodka and I said, 'Who's stronger, you or me?' And I haven't had a drink since.

"I went to dinner and ordered linguini with white clam sauce. I looked at that plate of linguini and said, 'Who's stronger, you or me?' And this little clam looks up at me, opens its eyes and says, 'I am.'"

Dixie wins squeaker

Dixie slipped by Texas Furniture 9-8 in eight innings Friday night to win the Minor Bambino League Tournament.

Both teams used seven pitchers with R. J. Russell picking up the mound win. Russell pitched two hitless innings, striking out two and not walking a batter.

The extra-inning game was highlighted by outstanding defensive plays by both teams.

Dixie had 14 hits to offset the 13 walks yielded by their four pitchers.

Ryan Cook had a triple and double while Jeremy Barnes had a double and two singles. Blake Crockett and Aaron Wiseman had two doubles and Duane King had a single and double. Clint Ferguson had a triple, R. J. Russell and Lance Seely, a single.

Randall Mobbs had a triple and Kevin Cesch a single for Texas Furniture.

Duane King, R. J. Russell and Clint Ferguson played well defensively for Dixie. Jereme Stone, Trent Davis and Phillip Everson made key plays for Texas Furniture in the late innings. Everson was the losing pitcher.

Both teams finished the year with 12-3 overall records. Dixie was 8-2 during the regular season and 3-0 in tournament play. Texas Furniture was 9-1 during the regular season and 2-1 in the tournament. Both teams had 3-1 pre-season records.

Warner-Horton wins softball title

Warner-Horton Supply are the champions of the Girls' Senior Softball League this season.

Warner-Horton claimed the title by defeating Randy's Food 11-7 in a rain-delayed game Thursday night.

Kristen Becker was the winning pitcher, giving up one hit while striking out 18 batters and walking 16.

Jody Douglass collected Randy's only hit.

Heidi Phetteplace and Joley Briggs paced Warner-Horton's hitting attack with two hits each. Kristen Becker, Rhonda Been and Wendy Winkleblack each had a single.

Warner-Horton's only loss came at the hands of Randy's in a 6-5 decision in the eighth game of the season.

Warner-Horton ended the season at 11-1 while Randy's took second-place honors at 9-3.

The Senior League girls have one week to prepare for All-Star competition, beginning July 11 in Dumas. Rick Nix and Randy Hamby will coach the team and represent Pampa in District 11-Star play.

Lopez hopes to keep girls' program on winning track

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

The Pampa High girls' track program will have a new head coach next year, but he won't be a stranger in these parts. Mike Lopez just moved up a notch from assistant to the head job when Gary Cornelsen announced his resignation after leading the Lady Harvesters to their second state championship in the past three years.

Cornelsen says with Lopez taking over it will be like he never left.

"Mike is the type of coach who will put forth the time and effort to keep the program successful. He gets along with the kids real well and he will do an outstanding job," Cornelsen said.

Lopez has worked alongside Cornelsen the past four years to build the Pampa girls' team into a state powerhouse. Lopez specialized in coaching the field events while Cornelsen concentrated on sprints, relays and the conditioning aspect of the program. It was a perfect combination. Lopez was responsible for sending athletes in eight field events to the state meet in Austin.

"The girls' track program was something nobody really wanted a few years ago and we jumped in and got it going," Cornelsen said. "Going into this year, I said that Pampa girls' track is close to being a dynasty. 'We've got too many good athletes coming up and too many parents who want the program to continue being successful.'"

Lopez looks forward to keeping girls' track formidable, but he also feels replacing Cornelsen is going to be a difficult task.

"Pampa probably has the best girls' track program in the state and I'm going to work to keep it that way," Lopez said. "However, it's going to be a big job filling Gary's shoes. He's one of the best, if not the best track coach in the state of Texas."

Cornelsen won't be the only one hard to replace. For the first time in four years, the Lady Harvesters will be without super star Tanya Lidy, a three-time state champion in the 200 and anchor on Pampa's state champion relay teams. However, Lopez feels the 1989 Lady Harvesters have an excellent chance of returning to the state meet.

"We've got a bunch of young freshmen coming up and if they mature, we're going to be as good as anybody," says Lopez. "With the people we have coming back, we have the nucleus for a good team."

Yolanda Brown in the sprints and jumps will be one of the key performers returning, along with relayers Lisa Johnson, Sandra Hunnicutt, Christa West and Tonya Osby.

Staci and Traci Cash, along with Tera Hamby in the discus and shot put, will be counted on to pick up points in the field events.

Highly-touted freshmen Bridgett Mathis and Nikki Ryan are expected to move right into the varsity lineup in the sprints and jumps. Mathis and Ryan helped lead the eighth-grade team to the district championship this year. Others like Donna Hopson, Kelly Welborne, Jennifer Bailey and Leslie Bailey are expected to contribute.

The Lady Harvesters will also be looking to repeat as District 1-4A champions for the fifth consecutive year, but Lopez looks for at least three teams to push Pampa for the title.

"Levelland will be better next year and Frenship has some good girls back," Lopez said. "If Estacado gets things together, they will be tough."

Lopez, a Dumas native, came to Pampa in 1983 from Borger, where he assisted with the Bulldogs' football team. Lopez also has expertise in volleyball. He led the Lady Harvesters to the District 1-4A championship last season in his first head coaching job. Lopez plans to continue coaching the volleyball team until a replacement is found.

Birdies fly away at Austin Country Club

By MARK WANNGRIN
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — Tucked away in the live oaks, Spanish oaks and cedars on the banks of the Colorado River is a haven for birdies called Austin Country Club.

Stand in the middle of a fairway on the back nine. Address your ball. Then look up. Way up. Look into the cedars and oaks. There are your birdies.

Ever see a black-crested titmouse? "They come from all over to see that," said club pro Tinsley Penick. "It's kind of a bird-watcher's paradise."

It's when you're looking for the other kind of birdie that you're pretty much out of luck. Just go out to the championship tee at the 11th hole and wait for someone to break par.

Heck, you might wait a day or so just for someone with the nerve to play the hole from that tee. A glimpse of that would make sightings of the black-crested titmouse seem common.

Thirteen area golf pros, polled on the toughest 18 holes in the Austin area, made No. 11 at Austin Country Club their only unanimous selection. Two other holes at the course were among the top five vote-getters. The Ram Rock Course at Horseshoe Bay had the most holes named, with five, including the imposing 191-yard shot onto an island green at No. 4.

"If you named the top four or five golf architects, Pete Dye (Austin Country Club), Robert Trent Jones (Horseshoe Bay), Jack Nicklaus (The Hills) and Tom Fazio (Barton Creek) would be on anybody's list, and we have courses by all of them around here," Penick said.

Don't forget Arnold Palmer, who designed Hidden Hills, and the late Jimmy Demaret, who created Onion Creek. There are plenty of golfers who've had to put two digits on their scorecard for one of these holes who won't forget.

Dye, who designed Austin Country Club, a combination of Scottish-style links and Hill Country undulation, has a reputation as an intimidator.

"Some call him unfair. He makes a penal golf course," Penick said. "He's a love-hate designer. You love the beauty; you hate the severity of the design."

No. 11 for instance: it requires a combination of long hitting and placement. Off the tee is a canyon that, at its closest point, forces you to carry 190 yards. One glance at that is enough to turn a graphite shaft into so much overcooked spaghetti.

Then there's the green. It's within a yard or so of the edge of the Deer Creek Canyon on two sides.

Jacobsen stretches lead in Western Open

OAK BROOK, Ill. — Peter Jacobsen survived a bogey-bogey finish to stretch his lead to four strokes Saturday after three rounds of the $900,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

Jacobsen, seeking his first victory since 1984, shot a 3-under-par 69 over the Butler National Golf Club course, which was robbed of its natural defenses by the absence of wind. Jacobsen, rebounding from back problems that have plagued him for three years, completed 54 holes in 12-under-par 204 and matched the largest third-round lead on the PGA Tour this season.

Dan Forsman, Dave Eichelberger, Bill

Britton and Jim Benepe, playing in his first PGA Tour event, shared second at 208. Forsman had a 71 that included a double bogey-6 on the last hole. Britton moved up with a 67. The 44-year-old Eichelberger shot 68 and Benepe, a Wyoming native who has played on the Asian tour.

Winning prescription for Dean's Pharmacy

●The Dean's Pharmacy baseball team has been giving the opposition bitter pills to swallow the past five years in the Pampa Optimist program. Dean's, a member of the Major Bambino League (11-12 year olds) just won its fourth league baseball championship in the past five years, winning their last 17 games.

Dean's championship string was interrupted last year with a second-place finish, but coach Robert Morris' crew pulled out some clutch performances in the second half of the '88 season to climb back on top.

"We were winning real big the first half, but every one came after us in the second half," Morris said. "We had to win a lot of close games."

One of those thrillers came against Dyers Barbeque early in the second half of the season. A run-scoring double by Dean's Edward Munoz in the second inning provided the only run of the game.

However, the season didn't start out on a high note as Dean's lost to defending city tourney champion Rotary 5-3 in the very first game. Dean's, playing without a bonafide superstar, didn't lose again.

"We had overall good team play from all 14 players," Morris said. "We didn't have any one player that stood out. We had a solid team," Morris said.

Dean's had an outstanding mound staff, a better than average hitting attack, but it was the defense that Morris cites as the team's real strength.

"We had the good fielding, game after game," Morris added. Dean's had a triple threat pitching corps of Greg Moore, Jeremiah Downs and Jason Downs.

Moore, considered the ace of the staff, posted a 6-1 record while Jason Downs was 8-0 and Jeremiah Downs 2-0.

"Greg was the one that pitched all our tough games, but Jason had an exceptional season," Morris said. "All our pitchers had

Strate Line

good control and that was another strong suit for us. They averaged only three walks per game, which is outstanding in this age group."

A typical outing for Moore came against Glo-Valve in the next to last game of the regular season. Moore allowed only two hits and struck out a dozen batters as Dean's won 3-1 to clinch the league title.

Dean's won over Dunlap 10-3 to capture the Bambino City Tournament crown.

All three hurlers move up to the Babe Ruth division next season, but Morris does return seven players from his championship squad.

"We should have more good defense and some good hitting next season, but we're going to look for some pitchers," Morris said. "We also lose seven players."

But don't start crying for Morris and his Dean's team yet. Somehow they always seem to find a way to win.

PROUD GRANDPARENTS' DEPARTMENT: Troy Morgan and Sean Caldwell have at least three things in common. They both live in California, they have grandparents living in Pampa and they both love sports. Troy, the 11-year old grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Morgan of Pampa, was honored recently by the 350-member Little League baseball program in Alameda, Calif. Troy, a catcher-pitcher, was presented with the "Alameda Little League 1988 Sportsman Award—Major Division" this season. He was also named the "Most Inspirational Player" on his team.

Troy is the son of Doug Morgan, a 1967 PHS graduate, and is spending most of the summer in Pampa. Since he's been here, Troy has become involved in the Pampa Parks Recreation Program, taking tennis lessons. He also enjoys swimming and other sports as well, but baseball seems to be his favorite.

Later this summer, Sean Caldwell, 16, of Lake Tahoe, California is going on a basketball tour of Russia and Finland as a member of his high school team.

Sean is currently in Pampa visiting his grandparents, David Caldwell and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bell. Sean, who was born in Pampa, plays point guard for his Lake Tahoe team, which won the league championship this season.

Understandably, Sean is excited about the trip to Europe. "There have been high school all-star teams that have gone overseas to play basketball, but this is the first time that a high school team gets to go," Sean said.

The tour is being sponsored by Amateur Sports Development of the United States of America. Sean and his teammates leave July 28 for 10 days of basketball games and sightseeing.

"We'll be playing against their high school teams, but I think they call them academies over there," added Sean.

Don't take bets against Billy Martin never returning as Yankee manager. If his team goes into another tailspin, owner George Steinbrenner will be looking for another publicity stunt...There's no truth to the rumor that the police department hired Pampa track star Tanya Lidy to chase down criminals. She's working as a clerk-typist there during the summer...

Astros split with Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Switch hitter Kevin Bass raised his average to .407 from the right side with a two-out single in the 13th inning that scored Billy Hatcher from second base, giving the Houston Astros a 6-5 victory over the New York Mets and a split of Friday's two-night double header.

The Mets won the opener 3-2 behind the pitching of Ron Darling and Randy Myers when Mackey Sasser tripled home the winning run with two out in the seventh inning.

Hatcher opened the 13th with a pop-fly single off Gene

Walter, 0-1, the fifth New York pitcher. One out later, Hatcher broke for second and Walter threw behind him, but first baseman Gary Carter was unable to handle the low throw and Hatcher was credited with a steal of second. After Bill Doran struck out, Bass, batting under .200 from the left side despite four hits in the opener, lined a single to left for the Astros' 18th hit.

In the opener, Darryl Strawberry opened the Mets' eighth by drawing the fifth walk issued by Houston starter Joaquin Andujar, 0-4, and stole second.

Yankees shut out White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — John Candelaria pitched his second two-hitter of the season and Jack Clark homered and singled Saturday as the New York Yankees defeated the Chicago White Sox 4-0.

Candelaria, 9-4, gave up a leadoff single to Gary Redus on his second pitch of the game and then retired 22 straight before Dave Gallagher singled with one out in the eighth. Candelaria struck out 12 and didn't walk a batter.

Clark led off the second inning with his 17th homer and third in the last four games.

Astros struck by 'hitless' epidemic

Softball tourneys slated this month

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — The Houston Astros have taken all reasonable measures to break out of a team-wide hitting slump.

Perhaps it's time to consider a few less-conventional suggestions.

—Pass the Yogi Berra rule — "It ain't over 'til we get some hits."

—Go up to the plate wearing rally helmets.

—Why not have an exorcism in the Astrodome? Pile every bat in center field and chase away all those hitless demons.

—Instruct Manager Hal Lanier to take a course in astrology and make out his starting lineup by the stars.

—Pretend Michael Spinks is pitching. He's easy to hit.

—Have the entire team sleep with their bats.

Don't laugh at that last one. New York Mets shortstop Kevin Elster, in the throes of a slump, started sleeping with his bat Monday night and just look at the results.

Elster hit a two-run home run Tuesday in a 5-2 victory over Pittsburgh.

On Wednesday, Elster and his new friend doubled and homered to drive in three runs in an 8-7 victory over the Pirates.

Bat talk may be the answer for the Astros, who left town at midweek after hitting .160 during a nine-game home stand and suffering three shut outs.

It all seems like a bad dream for center fielder Gerald Young, who is in his first full season with the Astros.

He's worried. "This can't last forever, can it?" he asks, unaccustomed to such power failures.

Houston started the home stand one and one-half games behind Los Angeles in the National League's Western Division.

They left town four and one-half games behind and were ushered out of town on a two-hit, 2-0 shutout by the Dodgers Orel Hershiser.

Lanier has talked to his players, talked to his coaches and at times likely has even talked to himself.

"It's time our hitters did some soul-searching and started swinging their bats more aggressively," Lanier said.

"They look like they're going up to the plate defensively. You're not going to get many hits that way."

The Astros have a special flare for slumps. When one hitter gets the hitting 'yips,' it turns into an epidemic.

"Our club seems to go into a slump as a team," pitcher Nolan Ryan said. "You can sit one or two guys down if they stop hitting and give them a rest. But we seem to stop hitting at the same time."

Ryan led the National League in strikeouts and tied for the major league lead in earned run average last season and had an 8-16 record because of a season-long case of non-run support.

So you know just how bad the Astros' current dilemma is when Ryan says: "It's as severe as I've ever seen."

The Astros' offense is built around base-stealing speed at the top of the batting order in Young and Billy Hatcher and the club's only legitimate power hitter, driving them in.

"They've got to turn the bats loose and just start swinging aggressively at the plate," Lanier said.

Lanier has used virtually every conceivable lineup shuffle and so far nothing has worked.

"If anybody has the answer, he can start working today," Lanier said.

OK, Hal, remember, you did ask.

Here's a thought that may have merit. If speaking to inanimate objects has helped Elster, why not expand on the theory.

There may be some mystical force at work here so have the guys start speaking kindly to all baseballs used in the games.

If silly season is in, how about a nice conversation with each player's glove? Don't overlook those uniforms and each player's spikes.

If a hitter should actually reach base, apologize to the base for stepping on it.

Two slowpitch softball tournaments are being planned for later this month in Pampa.

The Pampa Umpires Association is sponsoring a men's open 3-2 Tournament and a mixed open tournament July 15-17 at Hobart Street Park.

Entry deadline is 7 p.m. July 13. Interested persons can call Holmes Sports Center at 665-2631 to enter.

Trophies will be awarded to the first through third-place teams.

The fifth annual Pampa Satellite Workshop Softball Tournament for both men and women will be held July 22-24.

There will be men's open, men's class c and women's open divisions. The tournament will be played under USSSA rules.

To enter, contact Nelson Medley at 665-8944, Steve Randall at 665-2561 or Holmes Sports Center at 665-2631.

Entry fee is $100 and entry deadline is July 18.

Sponsor trophies and individual t-shirts will be awarded to the top three teams.

The tournament is sponsored by the Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club.

Soccer clinic scheduled

Nationally recognized soccer coaches Randy Noll and Leonard Lucenko and their staff, licensed by the United States Soccer Federation, will hold the Texas Soccer Academy clinic July 5-9 at Pampa's Sawatzky Soccer Complex.

The soccer skills clinic, presented by the Pampa Soccer Association, is open to boys and girls, ages six through 19.

The clinic is divided into morning sessions, which last from 8:30 until noon, and evening sessions, from 5:30 to 8:30.

The morning sessions concentrate on technical skill development, while evening sessions are devoted to tactics and competitive team aspects of the game. Clinic participants may attend either or both of the daily sessions.

Interested persons may still sign up through Tuesday morning, July 5. For more information, contact Miles Cook, local coordinator of the program, at 665-3036 or 665-6696.

Spurs' Robertson remains unsigned

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Contract negotiations between the San Antonio Spurs and NBA All-Star guard Alvin Robertson have broken off, according to Robertson's agent.

"Negotiations have broken off and Alvin and I are very upset," said Tom Selakovich told the San Antonio Express-News on Friday.

Robertson, a three-time All-Star, made $400,000 for the 1987-88 season. The upcoming campaign would be the fourth of a five-year deal that averages $600,000 for Robertson, according to Selakovich.

"We want a contract that pays us a little over a million a year," Selakovich said. "That's what Alvin deserves. What we are asking for is below market value for a free agent, so it's quite fair."

Robertson, who will be 26 July 22, said he is tired of the Spurs making promises to him that are not kept.

"I think I've paid my dues," Robertson said. "I've worked harder than anyone else on this team, but it's still not enough.

"I've been told by management that they will start paying me better when we start winning. Well, what guarantee is there that we will be successful in the future?"

The Spurs finished 31-51 last season and were a franchise-worst 28-54 in 1986-87.

Robertson averaged a career-high 19.6 points last season. He and rookie center-forward Greg Anderson were the only Spurs to play in every game last season and Robertson started every contest.

Robertson finished second in the league in steals with 2.96 per game after having won the theft title the previous two seasons. Last season, Robertson led the team in minutes played (2,978), steals (243), points (1,610) and was second in assists with (557).

Robertson hopes to gain a six-year deal from the Spurs, whose negotiation team is composed of President Gary Woods and Assistant to the Chairman, Bob Bass. Selakovich has intimated that the six-year contract does not have to be $1 million per year, but could be more at the beginning years and less at the end years, as Robertson gets older.

Neither Woods nor Bass would comment.

Little leads du Maurier Classic

COQUITLAM, British Columbia (AP) — Sally Little fired a 3-under-par 32 on the front nine Saturday to stretch her lead to two shots midway through the third round of the $500,000 LPGA du Maurier Classic.

Little, who took the lead with a second-round 65, birdied three times on the front side to go 8-under for the tournament.

In second place at 6-under were Sherri Turner, the first-round leader, and tour rookie Laura Davies of England.

The 72-hole event is being played on the 6,361-yard, par-72 Vancouver Golf Club course. First prize money is $75,000.

Miami's Bridwell to play in all-star game

The Texas Six-Man Coaches Association has named Shane Bridwell of Miami to its West All-Star football squad.

The all-star football game will be played at Tarleton State University in Stephenville, Texas, on July 16 starting at 8 p.m.

Junior-Senior Games bridge generation gap

Alberta Austin and her partner, Brandy White, watch the action.

Residents of Pampa Nursing Center and a group of children proved recently that the young and not-so-young can have fun together despite a great difference in ages.

The fourth annual Junior-Senior Games, sponsored by Pampa Nursing Center, were held Friday, June 24 at Central Park on a hot, sunny day that threatened to daunt even the hardest competitors.

Despite the heat, 10 nursing home residents and 11 young people threw Frisbees, raced wheelchairs, tossed balls and ate hot dogs and watermelon that were provided by local markets.

Medals were awarded to partners who placed first in each competition. Second place winners received silver medals, and third place entrants earned bronze medals. Everyone who participated in any of the games received a ribbon and a T-shirt provided by ARA, Pampa Nursing Center's parent company.

"Everybody had a ball. We had several catastrophes, though. Mrs. Alberta Austin is in a wheelchair. She did just fine until we got almost to the tennis courts. One of the front wheels of her wheelchair came off. We worked and worked on it and finally got it back on," said Velda Huddleston of the nursing center.

Hot dogs, watermelon, Frito pies, chili dogs, Fritos, soft drinks and cookies were provided by Frank's Foods, Randy's, Ray and Bill's, Safeway, Food Emporium and McCarty-Hull.

Nursing home residents who participated in the day's events were Francis Austin, Alberta Austin, Eddie Morgan, Pauline Thornton, Euell Clendennen, Scott Armour, Emma Banks, Alvena Williams, Willie Jackson and Daisy King.

Their youthful partners included Christopher Smith, Brandy White, Kristi Dabbs, Kathy Creech, Lorie Briggs, Raquel Portillo, Melissa Portillo, Joann Smith, Linda Lee Briggs, Tawnie Clem and Brandi Honaker.

Here are the results of the competition:

WHEELCHAIR RACE
 (1) Willie Jackson and Raquel Portillo; (2) Lorie Briggs and Euell Clendennen; (3) Alberta Austin and Brandy White.

FRISBEE THROW
 (1) Kathy Creech and Pauline Thornton; (2) Chris Smith and Francis Austin; (3) Kristi Dabbs and Eddie Morgan.

BALL TOSS

Get married during the new moon; this is a traditional omen for a happy marriage.

Area residents celebrate anniversaries

A happy, sane, safe, fun-filled holiday weekend to each and all. It will only take a minute or two between items on your busy schedule to see what our friends and neighbors found time to do last week.

Congratulations to all couples, and there were many, who celebrated wedding anniversaries in June and, in the next breath, sincere apologies for lack of space to share more interesting details of each milestone celebration. How I would love to share all of them with you!

Claudine and Elmer Balch celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on June 18 with a reception in Fellowship Hall of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ.

After Keith Feerer, minister, read a family history, Claudine and Elmer renewed their wedding vows under a floral and garland covered arch. Norma Jean Cook, a daughter, sang "The Wedding Song" accompanied by the Harvesters 4 quartet.

Elmer's golden shirt and blue and gold tie complemented Claudine's golden yellow dress, accented with a lace peplum.

Granddaughters Karla Balch of Houston and Jenny Cook of Gainesville, Fla., served the four-tiered wedding cake and punch. A sister-in-law, Joyce Frasier of Albuquerque, N.M., served a German chocolate cake from a gold crystal plate given to Claudine's parents on their 50th anniversary.

Other sentimental touches included a memory book of notes and bits furnished by 85 friends and family members and presented at a Friday night family dinner. A tablecloth crocheted by Claudine prior to her marriage covered one table. Claudine wore the gold earrings and pin her mother wore at her own golden wedding celebration.

Their son David and family Sylvia, Alison, Christina and Justin called from Tubingen, Germany, and a son-in-law, Bobby Cook, from Gainesville, Fla. Elmer's sisters, Evelyn Chandler and Elizabeth Flynt, and their daughters prepared the family dinner that followed the reception.

A granddaughter, Karla Balch, wrote an original poem, A Grandparent's Love. Dacia Balch, a granddaughter, of Houston, registered the 200 guests and presented each with a scroll containing a personal message.

Immediate family members attending were Norma Jean Cook and children of Gainesville, Fla.; Gordon and family of Midland; Lloyd and family, Houston. Other relatives came from New Mexico, parts of Texas, California and Oklahoma. Many cameras and videos recorded details of the occasion as a reminder of a milestone celebration.

Bill and Geneva Tidwell celebrated their 47th anniversary with a family reunion of 35 family members at their home east of Pampa last weekend. Activities included visiting, horseback riding, basketball games and drop-in visits of local friends.

Out-of-town guests were Billy Gene of Fort Worth; Dianne, Robert and Greg Garrett of Midland; Bob and Phyllis Tidwell, Cushing, Okla.; Bobby Wayne, Linda, Justin and Tyler of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Sally, Matthew and Jae Denise of Augusta, Kan.; Bessie Lee Howard, El Paso; Sandra Evans, Jim Bo and Lee of Hurst; Rob, Sharon and Jason Owens of Watonga, Okla.; Albert, Marla, Katie and Britany Bacobedo of Sanger.

Congratulations to Howard and Margaret Lockhart who celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary on June 26! That's a long time!

Arthur and Gayle Rohde and children, and Pat Farmer and children hosted a 50th wedding anniversary party for their parents, Johnnie and Arthur Rohde. All four of Johnnie's sisters and families attended: Ollie Miller, Dallas; Lois and Gerald Walker, Denver; Maxine Suggs, Dallas; June and Deryl Robbins.

Johnnie, Ollie, Maxine and June all attended Pampa schools. Johnnie will attend her class reunion (50th) in September.

Congratulations to all the happy celebrants!

Recovery wishes to Ramona Hite, Pat Johnson and Irv Akst as they recover at home from recent surgery. It's good to see Thelma Hoover out and about after a bout of pneumonia.

Jasper McBride at 75 still serves occasionally as a volunteer umpire for the Optimists' Babe Ruth League summer games. Do you remember that he was named to Amarillo College's Sports Hall of Fame a few years back?

Marguerite Martin hosted a recent games-and-snacks evening for Pampa Singles Organization at the Pampa Schneider Apartments. Earlier in the month, members of this active group of all ages attended the dinner theatre in Amarillo. Congratulations to Ruth Busse and Gene Lunsford, who lost their membership through marriage, honeymooned in Hawaii. Aloha!

Have you noticed the green, green grass, trees and pretty flowers at the Sam White Insurance Agency? A cool, welcome sight in the heat of the summer.

Just a few doors away on the corner, Lewis Gallimore made a beauty spot where nothing wanted to grow with native plants of cactus, yucca, bear grass and red yucca. He has a right to be proud of the corner.

A warm Pampa return welcome to Gay and Dennis Kuemmel, who are just as glad to be back home again. Gay's family, Fred and Jessie Lee, Freddie and Sandy Vanderberg, Joy and Ronnie Rice, Judy and Kenny Cambern, were especially happy to have the whole family back in Pampa again. Dennis is associated with EnergyAgri and Gay hopes to secure a teaching position.

When 16 of Majunta and Forrest Hill's 27 grandchildren jumped in the Pampa Country Club pool last week, some thought the water rose 4 inches! Heh, heh! The grandchildren belonged to Gearlynn and Kent Kleffman from the East Coast, Shawn, Wendy, Stephani, Dietta and Majunta, Jr. (called Baby Majunta by her mom!).

Rocky Hills and his family will arrive in Houston tomorrow. They will visit with his sister, Dawn Seery and family in Houston, Shawn and family in Lafayette before arriving in Amarillo to visit Ninon's family and on to Pampa to visit Majunta and Forrest and their local family members. Rocky has been stationed in Germany for several years. Welcome home!

Members of the Pampa Independent School District board expressed appreciation to Paul Pinkham of The Pampa News, who has served as reporter for the board, with a gift certificate plus a framed picture of Paul superimposed on one of Superman with appropriate quotes flowing from his mouth.

Paul and his family are leaving Pampa this weekend for the East Coast, where Paul has accepted another newspaper position. They will be greatly missed by fellow employees and their many friends.

Viola and Bill Hulsey report a big, wonderful vacation spent at Grand Canyon and points in between.

Special congratulations to Janie VanZandt, who was recently named an outstanding volunteer in 4-H work! Janie is multi-talented and efficient.

Glendora Gindorf and Mary Nelson spent a week in Hawaii with several of Glendora's family members. You can bet that was a good-time trip!

See you at M.K. Brown Auditorium, inside as well as outside, later today and back here next Sunday.

Delta Kappa Gamma
Over 1,300 women Texas teachers participated in the 59th annual state convention of The Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, held in mid-June at the Municipal Auditorium in San Antonio. Co-chairmen were Doris Raphael and Alice Davis, both of San Antonio.

Jony Thomas of Panhandle, newly installed president of Theta Delta chapter, was among those attending.

Activities at the convention included a special leadership development workshop, a reception and a silent auction to benefit the scholarship fund, as well as special workshops which featured topics such as the legislative outlook for 1989, the hiring of women in education and senior citizens/financial planning.

Committee workshops and recognition of honored members were included in the activities, as well as the adoption of a state seal and a memorial service for members who have died since the last convention.

The international society of women educators was begun by Dr. Annie Webb Blanton in 1929 when she and 11 other teachers from across Texas joined in Austin to form the new organization.

There are now nearly 19,000 members in Texas and over 178,000 members throughout each of the 50 U.S. states and the seven provinces of Canada, as well as Norway, Sweden, Finland, Iceland, Great Britain, The Netherlands, Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Costa Rica and Puerto Rico.

One of the main thrusts of the honorary society is the awarding of scholarships to members and of world fellowship grants to teachers in non-member countries.

Tomatoes can have several problems

By JOE VANZANDT
County Extension Agent

USE YOUR CLIPPINGS

The rains have certainly helped our landscapes perk up and take on a pretty springlike appearance.

It seems that landscapes are just like field crops — when it is dry weather, irrigation water just doesn't do as much good as rain from Mother Nature.

Gardens, flowers, shrubs and grass have really grown during the last week of cool, rainy weather.

A lot of homeowners will have an extra amount of grass clippings after these good rains. Don't waste those clippings — either mulch your garden or flower beds, or make a compost pile.

Benefits from organic mulch such as grass clippings occur primarily in the summer by reducing soil temperature and saving soil moisture. Organic mulches shouldn't be applied too early in the spring as this will create an insulating effect and keep the soil temperature cool. This will result in delayed maturity of most of the popular home garden vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and squash.

DEALING WITH TOMATO PROBLEMS

Tomatoes are the Number One garden vegetable in Texas, but they also cause a lot of headaches for gardeners.

I want to review some of the common tomato problems, along with their causes and cures:

■ Young plants dying soon after planting — This is often the result of fertilizer burn or damping off disease. Thoroughly mix fertilizer into the soil and treat seed for

For Horticulture

Joe VanZandt

diseases. Avoid overwatering.

■ Stunted, yellowing plants — Low soil fertility, poor soil drainage, shallow or compacted soil, insects or diseases, and nematodes are among the causes. Fertilize and work the soil well and control insects and diseases.

■ Stunted, purple colored plants — Low temperatures and a lack of phosphorous cause this problem. Plant at recommended times to avoid temperature damage and add phosphorous fertilizer.

■ Spots, molds and darkened areas on leaves and stems — These could be caused by many things. If a disease is present, identify it and spray or dust with a fungicide rather than an insecticide. If there is a chemical burn, use only the recommended chemical at the recommended rate.

To avoid a fertilizer burn, keep fertilizer off plant leaves. Do not water with a sprinkler — this can cause leaf diseases as well as a salt burn on the leaves.

■ Wilting plants — Common causes are dry soil, overly wet soil, nematodes and diseases. Cures include watering, providing good drainage and controlling diseases and nematodes.

■ Weak, spindly plants — Check for too much shade, too much water, plants too thick or too much nitrogen.

■ Failure to set fruit — Temperature extremes, too much nitrogen, insects, non-adapted varieties and cloudy weather are some of the culprits. Plant at the recommended time, control pests, avoid excess fertilization and use only recommended adapted varieties such as Spring Giant, Big Set, Jackpot, Celebrity, Small Fry, Presto Hybrid, Porter or Red Cherry.

■ Tomato leaf curl — Heavy pruning in hot weather as well as insects or diseases cause this problem. Some varieties have a slight upward leaf curl.

■ Blossom-end rot — Not enough moisture. Watering regularly and using an organic mulch will help this problem.

■ Misshapen tomatoes or catfacing — Cool weather during blooming is the usual cause, so avoid planting too early.

■ Abnormal leaves and growth — 2,4-D weed killer and virus diseases could be at fault. Remove affected plants to prevent spreading diseases, and use care with weed killers to avoid spray drift.

■ Diseases — A lot of home garden tomato plants are being infected with the Spotted Wilt virus disease. This disease has really spread over the area in the last three years and is very commonly found among tomato plants.

This disease causes streaking of leaves, stems and fruits. Numerous small, dark circular spots appear on the younger leaves. Leaves may have a bronzed appearance and later turn dark brown and wither.

Fruits show numerous spots about one-half inch in diameter, with concentric, circular markings. On ripe fruit, these markings are alternate bands of red and yellow.

The virus also affects other vegetables and many wild hosts and ornamental plants. Thrips can transmit the disease from plant to plant and from the wild host plants.

Control is next to impossible since thrips feed on a wide variety of plants. Remove infected plants as soon as possible so they do not serve as a host for further spread to adjoining plants.

Since it is a virus disease, Spotted Wilt will spread throughout an infected plant. Virus diseases generally start at the top of plants or new growth and move downward.

This is not the only disease that affects tomatoes. Some of the others are fungus-caused diseases which are treatable with fungicides. Most of the fungus diseases start with the lower leaves and move upward.

With the fungus-caused diseases, a spray program at weekly intervals using one of the following fungicides will be helpful: chlorothalonil, captafol, benomyl or captan.

"WHY CALL YE ME, LORD, LORD?"

"And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say? Every one that cometh unto me, and heareth my words, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like: he is like a man building a house, who digged and went deep, and laid a foundation upon the rock: and when the flood arose, the stream brake against that house, and could not shake it: because it had been well builded. But he that heareth and doeth not, is like a man that built a house upon the earth without a foundation: against which the stream brake, and straightway it fell in; and the ruin of that house was great." (Luke 6:46-49.) The Lordship of Jesus Christ indicates His absolute authority. The prophets wrote of His authority, power and reign (Isaiah 9:6-7; 11:1-5; Psalms 45:6, 110:1.) The authority and power Jesus received after His crucifixion and resurrection (Matthew 28:18.) He now enjoys this position of prestige at the right hand of God (Colossians 3:1.)

Those who hear and do the words of Jesus are the ones who not only call Him Lord but also truly recognize His authority. Many only give lip-service to His Lordship. Most refer to Him as the Lord Jesus Christ but few even try to do what He says. And some even teach that there is nothing for man to do other than profess faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour. This, say they, is all one is required to do. Thus we have the false doctrine of salvation by faith only or salvation at the point of faith. It is a false doctrine because it is not taught in the word of truth, the Bible.

The teaching of Jesus regarding salvation is easily understood for those honestly seeking truth. We must believe that Jesus is the Son of God (John 8:24.) We must repent of our sins (Acts 17:30-31.) We must confess Him as the Christ, the Son of God (Romans 10:10.) We must be baptized for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38.) We must live faithful to Him unto death (1 Corinthians 15:58.) This is truly calling Him Lord, Lord by not only hearing what He says but doing it as well.

Hard water interferes with cleaning, affects appliances

Minerals which cause hardness in water have a wide impact on households. Hard water interferes with almost every cleaning task, from laundering and dishwashing to bathing and personal grooming.

Clothes laundered in hard water may look dingy and feel harsh and scratchy. Dishes and glasses washed in hard water may be spotted on drying. Hard water may cause a film on glass shower doors, shower walls and bathtubs. Hair washed in hard water may feel sticky and look dull.

Hard water also affects the performance of household appliances. Researchers at New Mexico State University determined that water heaters using only hard water consumed considerably more energy than those using only softened water. The study also demonstrated that water heaters with scale buildup used more energy to deliver a given amount of hot water than heaters without scale buildup.

Another study conducted at Ohio State University showed that the use of softened water in certain household tasks lessened the time necessary to complete the tasks, permitted ease of cleaning and contributed to savings in the amount of household cleaning products used.

Calcium and magnesium ions present as sulfates, chlorides, carbonates and bicarbonates cause water to be hard. You can reduce water hardness by buying or renting a mechanical water softening tank and connecting it to your water supply line.

According to the Water Quality Research Council, all recognized home water softening equipment now on the market operates on the ion exchange principle to remove hardness minerals from water. In this process, the water passes through a bed of softening material.

The sulfonated polystyrene beads are supersaturated with sodium to cover both their exterior and interior surfaces, thus having the ability to take on or give up electrical charges. The ion exchange process takes place as the hard water passes through the softening material.

Eventually, so much hardness collects on the softening material that the unit can no longer soften the water and recharging is necessary. Then the softening material is washed automatically with a brine solution to replace the sodium and enable the ion exchange process to continue.

Because of the sodium content of the softened water, people who have heart or circulatory problems or who are on low sodium diets may not want to soften water or they may want to soften only hot water. The latter option defeats the purpose of a water softener as operating the dishwasher is the only household task in which hot water alone is used. People with heart or circulatory problems should discuss any questions with a physician.

Softened water is not recommended for watering plants, lawns and gardens due to its sodium content. Care must also be taken that water used in recharging a water softener be disposed through a storm drain or sewer due to its damaging effects.

The best choice of water for steam irons is distilled water, particularly for use over a long period of time. Softened water is not free of minerals which may clog steam irons.

The sodium in softened water will accumulate on evaporative cooler pads. The pads should be cleaned monthly by hosing them with hard water to remove the sodium buildup. Softened water may also be harmful to metal parts in coolers, causing excessive accumulation of rust.

Buying a water softener requires comparison shopping and investigation. Here are some hints to assist you as you shop:

- Expect prices to range from about $400 to more than $1,800. Avoid both extremes. A reasonable price for a quality water softener, installed, is about $600 to $800.
- Buy only from a reputable dealer. Be wary of door-to-door salespeople.
- Decide on a system only after you have considered the cost of the equipment and its installation and have obtained an approximation of operating costs. Expensive units are sometimes called "water treatment" systems, but may be only glorified softeners.
- Check the warranty. Be sure you understand it. Warranties may be for only one year or a lifetime. Again, avoid both extremes. A dependable warranty could be for 10 years on the tank and five years on the control valves.
- Be certain that you understand the method and cost of recharging the system.
- Ask dealers for names of customers. Check with these customers to learn if they are satisfied with the equipment and service.

Whether or not to soften household water supplies is not a decision to be made lightly. Among factors to consider are family composition, stage in the family life cycle, health, maintenance of the equipment and cost.

Seattle calls Diana 'princess of whales'

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter, you referred to the wife of Prince Charles as "Diana, Princess of Whales." Granted, Diana is a rather large girl, but she's not that large. However, if we continue to use that title, perhaps it will do something positive for the conservation of whales.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DAVID MORGAN, BOTHELL, WASH.
DEAR MR. MORGAN: I suspected something was fishy when all the mail concerning the "Princess of Whales" gaffe came only from readers of the Sunday Seattle Post Intelligencer.

In consulting my files, I noticed that I had referred to Diana as "Princess Diana," which I later learned was incorrect because in order to have the title "Princess (given name)," one must be born a princess, such as Prince Charles' sister, Princess Anne.

Apparently an editor in Seattle knew more about royal nomenclature than I, and dutifully changed the incorrect title, "Princess Diana," to the correct one — "Diana, Princess of Wales." Unfortunately, through some fluke, the "Wales" became "Whales." And the rest is marine history.

DEAR ABBY: If that goof about Diana, Princess of Whales, went nationwide in your column, you'll probably get 3,000 mailings of it.
IMA FLOPP

IN SEATTLE
DEAR MS. FLOPP: If you've read the above letter, you will know that the goof did not go nationwide. Now, about your name: It must be real, because you went to the expense of having stationery and stickers made with "Ima Flopp" and your address.

You are undoubtedly aware that there are two Hogg sisters in Texas whose real names are "Ima" and "Ura." I understand the Hogs are a prominent, well-to-do philanthropic family. Personally, I would rather be a Flopp than a Hogg.

DEAR ABBY: I am an avid reader of your column, but this is the first time I have ever written to you, because a new situation has occurred in my life and I need your advice.

My grandson, 25, has become more than friendly with a woman who is actually very nice, but she is 37 and has a 10-year-old daughter. I have no objections to the woman, but I have strong misgivings about the relationship, as they are planning to live together. Of course, her age is a factor, but I hate to see this fine young man waste good years in a relationship that will have numerous problems. Incidentally, his parents agree with me, but are saying nothing because they also don't want to lose their son.

My question: Just how much does our family owe this woman regarding inclusion in family get-togethers? Must she be included in all parties limited to family members? I feel that she and her daughter are not members of our family, but I realize there is a bond between her and my grandson. This has me baffled and upset because I want to keep my grandson's love and respect as it now exists, but I do not wish to recognize her as a member of the family.

I am 82, and accustomed to a different moral code.
BAFFLED IN NORRISTOWN, PA.

DEAR BAFFLED: I too am accustomed to a different moral code, and I understand your feelings, but if this woman is living with your grandson, even though you do not wish to recognize her as a member of your family, I advise you to do so because your grandson will. And if you want your grandson at family get-togethers, his live-in lady must be included. Trust me.

The Point Is Pets

by Ron Hendrick, D.V.M.

Hot weather tips:
With summer officially here, we all need to remember that hot weather can bring some serious problems. Not the least of these is lots and lots of fleas and ticks. Many dogs have "hot spots" as a result of allergic reaction to the flea (or other insect) bites. These places can develop in a matter of hours and will spread quickly. They are apparently very sensitive. If your dog has this problem, it usually takes a medicated bath and dip, an "allergy shot" and a flea/tick control measure, either continued baths & dips, a flea collar, spray, etc. PLUS environmental control of the fleas. In other words, spray your yard, house and wherever your dog and its fleas have been.
Another continuing problem is heartworms. As you know, this is a serious problem involving worms transmitted to dogs, by means of mosquitoes. With all the recent rain, need I tell you that we really do have mosquitoes in the town? You need to be giving your dogs (not cats at this time) some form of prevention. I still recommend Filaribits PLUS. That brand is flavored so most dogs will take it readily. Other products available include Heartgard 30, the once-a-month tablet, a liquid oral product, as well as a few other oral tablets. Make sure your dog does not already have heartworms. Dogs already harboring heartworms usually have a serious, often fatal, reaction to the preventive. In case of doubt, have a blood test ran.
Don't forget to leave your pets at home on these hot days. Even though they like to ride in your car, when it is parked in the sun, it gets very hot in a short time. Nearly every year we see dogs suffering from heat stroke as a result of leaving them in the car too long. Let's pamper them a bit, by leaving them home in the cool house. For outdoor pets, please make sure there is plenty of water, kept in the shade. If you should happen to find your dog in distress, first hose it down with lots of cool water, then give your veterinarian a call.
Our First-of-the-Month 25% off on Prescription flea & tick baths/dips will be July 1-7. Please call 665-1873 for appointment.

Checking the charts

By BEAR MILLS
KOMX Morning Personality

First things first: Happy 4th of July!

This weekend FM 100 is featuring a special that could more aptly be titled a monster, especially by those who had to research the thing. The Country 400 is the most comprehensive list ever compiled of what are the most popular country songs of all time.

What the special reveals is quite amazing, in that it gets past some of the myths of the business and down to what has received the most airplay.

The formula also took into account sales and requests from more than 1,000 radio markets around the country. The charts used for the survey were Gavin, Billboard, Cashbox, Radio and Records, Music City News and those of the Country Music Association.

The actual research took more than six months and was only completed last week. Folks around the radio ranch will sleep better now that this is done!

The most popular country song of all time is a recent one: "Forever and Ever Amen" by Randy Travis, which has done more in the sales and airplay category in its year and a half of issue than most songs have done in two decades. The song stayed number one last summer for an amazing four weeks. No other recent country song has ever done that.

"Forever ..." also replaces the previous champ of "greatest song ever": "He Stopped Loving Her Today" by George Jones.

Since its release in 1980, the Jones classic has always been number one on any such list of great songs. Research shows, however, that in the last two years airplay of the song has decreased appreciably. This year the song slips to number three.

In at number two is a song that seems to improve with age, "For the Good Times" by Ray Price. With a shortage of new Ray Price output, several Price classics are getting more airplay than ever these days.

Take a wild guess who's the most popular country singer of all time, based on airplay and sales ...

Maybe Willie Nelson; possibly Hank Williams; could even be George Jones or Merle Haggard. Nope.

How about Elvis Presley? Surprising as it might seem, Elvis places a whopping 15 songs on the Top 400. Second place is equally unlikely. Kenny Rogers takes that position with 13 songs. None of the Rogers tunes are in the Top 10, either. The highest charter is "The Gambler" at number 13.

Conway Twitty has had more number ones than anyone in the history of the music charts, including Whitney Houston, Elvis, the Supremes and the Beatles. But, based on duration of airplay and sales, he ranks only seven songs on the Top 400. Many of Twitty's hits have been of the here-today, gone-tomorrow category.

The most popular female vocalist is not much of a surprise. Dolly Parton leads the pack with 10 songs. She is followed closely by Anne Murray with eight. Most of Murray's strength comes from an awesome amount of airplay. Her sales category was one of the lowest among major chart contenders.

Country legend Hank Williams Sr. only shows up on the chart three times. Western swing star Bob Wills does not make the list at all. Unfair? There is a very good reason. During the prime of these two stars, very few stations had straight country formats. The reputation of both men was made on the road, not on the radio.

The oldest song on the charts is "Candy Kisses" by George Morgan, a 1946 classic. The reason for its success was its crossover play on pop charts.

Willie Nelson lands nine songs on the chart, with nothing higher than number 23. He is another singer whose reputation has been made on the road.

The Top 10 stacks up this way: (1) "Forever and Ever Amen," Randy Travis. (2) "For the Good Times," Ray Price. (3) "He Stopped Loving Her Today," George Jones. (4) "Your Cheatin' Heart," Hank Williams Sr. (5) "El Paso," Marty Robbins.

(6) "I Fall to Pieces," Patsy Cline. (7) "The Most Beautiful Girl," Charlie Rich. (8) "Hello Darlin'," Conway Twitty. (9) "Whoever's in New England," Reba McEntire. (10) "Lost in the 50s Tonight," Ronnie Milsap.

The chart will be played beginning at 2 p.m. today and run all day Monday as well.

Wanda Jackson to perform in Central Park

First Baptist Church will be presenting a special Independence Day celebration today featuring Wanda Jackson and her husband, Wendell Goodman. At the 11 a.m. service at the church, 203 N. West, Jackson will be singing and Goodman will be preaching.

This evening at 6:45 p.m., Jackson will present a special concert in Central Park.

The public is invited to attend both the special morning service and the evening concert.

Jackson, a native of Oklahoma, has been described as vivacious and versatile, talented and terrific. She has been singing and entertaining fans throughout the United States, Canada and the world since her early teens.

Her talents were discovered by another great entertainer from the Southwest, Hank Thompson. In her early years, she worked with another young entertainer who was just getting started, a man named Elvis Presley. Presley encouraged Jackson to try her hand at rock and roll, and her first national hit was a rocking song entitled "Let's Have a Party." She is now recognized as one of the truly great rockabilly singers throughout the world, with other hits like "Right or Wrong" and "In the Middle of a Heartache."

For many years, Jackson had her own band, The Party Timers. Some very famous musicians and singers have evolved from band through the years, including Rodney Lay, Big Al Downing and Roy Clark.

Jackson is one of the few country music artists who have been so talented as to record in foreign languages; she has recorded in German, Dutch and Japanese.

Several times she has been voted the Favorite Female Country Singer and the Favorite Female Rockabilly Singer of the Scandinavian countries — Norway, Sweden, Denmark, etc. Her album of Rockabilly Fever was voted the best produced album in Sweden in 1986.

Jackson was chosen as one of the country music stars to make the first UN/CMA sponsored tour of Australia, New Zealand and Japan, where a triumphant reception was received. She has 60 albums to her credit and has been nominated twice for the Grammy Award for Best Female Performance.

In real life, Jackson is a devoted Christian and lives happily with her husband-manager Goodman in Oklahoma City.

The Presidio

Like many Paramount Pictures in recent years, The Presidio is slickly produced, action-filled, well acted — and empty. Disney's Touchstone Pictures, produced mostly by Paramount alumni, exhibit the same tendencies. The films have the same kind of homogeneity of the Warner Bros. movies of the 1930s, but without an equal vitality.

The formula has obviously worked wonders at the box-office

(Beverly Hills Cop, Top Gun), but the sameness of product may be responsible for Paramount's precipitous drop (before Crocodile Dundee II) in its share of the nation's theater business.

There's nothing about The Presidio that can't be enjoyed between gulps of popcorn. Director Peter Hyams provides an abundance of well-staged action, some of it meaningless, and the players are attractive. But you have the feeling that, given a wider range of imagination, the film could have been more than a generation-gap detective chase.

Mark Harmon is a former military police officer now working for the San Francisco police department. Sean Connery is an army provost marshal whose service dates back to the Korean War (his accent is explained by his Scottish birth). They detest each other because Harmon did not follow army regulations in arresting an abusive officer years before.

The antagonism grows as Harmon casts his lecherous eyes on Connery's nubile, independent daughter, Meg Ryan. He soon beds her, and she rebels against her domineering father.

The two detectives are investigating the murder of a woman M.P. at the officer's club of the 212-year-old Presidio near the Golden Gate Bridge. Connery and Harmon are constantly at odds, but of course each develops a grudging respect for the sleuthing skills of the other. The investigation leads them to a smuggling conspiracy by former agents of the CIA, Hollywood's favorite new villains.

Larry Ferguson's screenplay offers no real surprises except for the identity of one of the conspirators. Hyams (2010, Running Scared) is an expert at this kind of action.

Sean Connery is his usually dominating self, though his barroom punchout of an annoying punkster is one of the least convincing of recent movie brawls. Mark Harmon is ingratiating, but he has yet to show much behind that puppydog smile. Meg Ryan has a few effective moments amid all the macho doings.

The Presidio is rated R for language, sex and violence. Running time: 97 minutes. Producer: D. Constantine Conte.

Drought costs many but a lucky few profit

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of grain and soybeans jumped sharply this month, a bittersweet reminder that drought can deal a stacked deck to farmers — those whose crops survive can rake in their winnings as others leave the game broke.

Overall, prices farmers got for raw products rose 3.7 percent from May, a jump that carried the overall index up 6.9 percent from a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Higher prices for soybeans, corn and wheat contributed most to the June increase, the department's Agricultural Statistics Board said. Lower prices for cattle and peaches partly offset the rise in other commodities.

"Most grain prices moved up sharply in June, reflecting the widespread drought," the report said. "The average soybean price was at the highest level since May of 1977 and the fifth highest on record. Corn and wheat also moved up sharply to the highest levels since August of 1985 and May of 1984, respectively."

Consumer food prices are expected to rise 3 percent to 5 percent this year, compared with a 4.2 percent average increase in 1987. Before the drought took hold, USDA was predicting a 1988 food price hike of 2 percent to 4 percent.

No forecast has been made by the department for 1989.

According to the preliminary June figures, based mostly on mid-month averages, the index for crop prices was up 10 percent from May and averaged 18 percent more than a year ago.

The livestock price index dropped 2.6 percent from May and averaged 1.3 percent below the year-ago level.

In a related action, Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng announced that Mexico will be able to buy $40 million worth of U.S. meat under a special credit arrangement designed to help drought-stricken American livestock producers.

It was the second action this week by Lyng to help bolster livestock market prices. On Monday he announced $50 million has been authorized to buy an estimated 45 million pounds of frozen bulk ground beef for donation to school lunchrooms in the fall.

As a commodity group, prices of feed grains and hay — in great demand for livestock in the stricken drought areas — rose 20 percent from May to June, averaging 40 percent above a year ago.

Prices of food grains, mostly wheat but also including rice, rose 14 percent during the month and averaged 14 percent higher than in May. The June index was up 49 percent from June 1987. All of the May-June rise was due to higher wheat prices, while rice prices declined during the month.

The index of prices for oil-bearing crops, which mostly involves soybeans, jumped 19 percent from its May average and was 48 percent more than in June 1987. Preliminary figures showed soybean prices averaged $8.56 per bushel, up $1.57 from May.

Lower prices for cattle and calves were mostly responsible for the June decline in the livestock price index. Prices of beef cattle, generally, fell to an average of $65.20 per hundredweight in June from $69.30 in May. Calf prices dropped $6.70 to $86.70 in June.

Many farmers and ranchers have been forced by drought to send cattle to slaughter or to feedlots as pastures and ranges continue to burn up. That has put extra animals on the market and depressed prices.

The price index for poultry and eggs, collectively, rose 7.5 percent from May to June and averaged 11 percent more than a year ago.

Besides the decline in livestock prices, the fruit index dropped 6.7 percent from May and averaged 7.1 percent lower than in June 1987. "Prices for peaches, grapefruit, oranges and strawberries were lower than the previous month," the report said.

Although the projections are subject to review as more is known about 1988 crop and livestock production, USDA economists say now that net cash income of farmers may be in the range of $53 billion to $59 billion this year, compared to the record level of $56 billion in 1987. That is the difference between cash receipts and cash expenses during the calendar year.

No new figures for farm production costs were included in the report. Those have been confined to quarterly averages because of budget cutbacks.

In April, however, farm expenses were up 1.8 percent from January and averaged 3.7 percent above a year earlier. The April figures were carried forward into June, with the next revision scheduled in July.

Farm programs provide limited relief

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study released last week by two national farm organizations said government farm programs have provided only limited relief and it's time to face reality about the American farmer's capacity to overproduce.

"Excess capacity is back and it is back with a vengeance," the report said. "Predictions in the '70s that agriculture would never again be plagued with over-supplies were dead wrong."

The study, by two former Oklahoma State University professors of economics, Darryl E. Ray and James S. Plaxico, was sponsored jointly by the National Farmers Organization and the National Farmers Union.

Agricultural policies embodied in the 1985 farm law calling for reduced federal supports as a way to stimulate exports and the agricultural economy

"have generated expectations about how agricultural markets will react to over-supplies that cannot be fulfilled," the report said. While an agricultural world based on supply and demand has wide appeal, "it is a fantasy."

The erratic nature of agriculture, depending on weather and markets, requires a long view, the report said.

"Neither aberrations of the '70s (when exports soared) or the rhetoric of the '80s has changed the fundamental characteristics of the grains markets that have long caused price and income problems for farmers," it said. "If we want to continue to have a world-class agriculture, we must accept the fact that agriculture is inherently unstable from production period to production period and across decades."

The pause that refreshes

During a break in fieldwork on the Rickart family farm near Kansas City, Mo., recently, the family pig Mini is given a slurp of cola. The workers were hauling hay in the 100-degree weather and decided to give Mini some refreshment.

In agriculture

Joe VanZandt

The wheat harvest this year was very disappointing to area farmers. Normally farmers try to see who has the best yields and some are always suspected of fudging just a little to beat the neighbors. As one farmer remarked this year, the yields were so bad they were not even worth lying about. In fact, the game this year almost seemed to be who had the lowest yields on test weights.

I have heard of test weights all the way from 43 to 65 pounds per bushel and yields running from not worth harvesting to around 30 bushels per acre with a very few exceptions up to 65 bushels per acre. However, it appears that our county average is somewhere around 12-13 bushels per acre for both irrigated and dryland. There was very little difference in yields between irrigated and dryland wheat this year.

What caused these low wheat yields? I believe it was a combination of several factors: Russian wheat aphids; wheat streak mosaic virus; and the dry weather in April and May after an extremely wet winter through March. As some would say, "It just wasn't a wheat year."

PANHANDLE TEST REPORT
Dr. Carl Patrick, Extension entomologist, has the following insect conditions report.

Greenbugs are still causing problems in a few fields of young sorghum. Damage at the seedling stage may cause stand loss. Greenbugs are generally found feeding in colonies on the undersides of leaves. Feeding damage will show up as reddened spots on the upper surface of the leaf. When sorghum is less than 6 inches, the time to treat is when plants show visible damage (beginning to yellow) with greenbugs on the plants.

European cornborer activity continues in the Dalhart area. The older corn in an area is often the preferred oviposition site. Larvae do not survive well on corn less than 10 inches in extended leaf heights. Control is suggested in fields where approximately 50 percent of the plants are found to be infested with an average of at least one live larva per plant.

Spider mites can be found in many fields. Heaviest infestations are along field margins. If these infestations continue to develop, consider use of Comite® prior to tassels. Comite® is effective against both Banks grass mites and two-spotted spider mites. It has a 24c label for chemigation.

Some high investigations of grasshoppers are being reported around edges of fields. Nymphal surveys conducted earlier indicated very low nymphal populations. It appears we may have had some mortality of the early hatch as a result of unfavorable weather in May. Check around fields for "hot spots" of grasshoppers. Control grasshoppers in these areas before they move into the crop.

SECOND INSECT SCOUTING WORKSHOP

Cotton, corn and sorghum producers are invited to the second part of the annual High Plains Scout Training Workshop to increase the effectiveness of managing the insect and mite pests on their farm.

The last of two workshop sessions will focus on mid- and late-season pests and will be held Wednesday, July 6, at the Mabee Regional Heritage Center (Llano Estacado Museum) on the Wayland Baptist University campus in Plainview.

The first workshop, in June, covered early to mid-season crop pests.

The workshop will begin at 8:30 a.m. with Dr. Pat Morrison, Extension entomologist, outlining the scope of the training and explaining general concepts. Dr. Allen Knutson, Extension Agent-entomology at Dimmitt, will then open the corn pest section with information on Southwestern corn borers. Spider mites and other corn pests will be discussed by Dr. Morrison.

The cotton session will include a discussion of cotton fleahopper and bollworms by Dr. Jim Leser, Extension entomologist. Mark Brown, Extension Agent-entomology in Crosbyton, will provide information on armyworms, aphids and other cotton pests; and Mike Blanton, Extension Agent-entomology headquartered in Plainview, will conclude the morning sorghum session covering sorghum midge, headworms and panicle feeding bugs.

The daylong workshop will conclude with a field session in the afternoon during which participants will identify pests and beneficials and practice scouting techniques.

New federal projections to show drought damage to crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — New projections aimed at showing how much damage the drought has done to this year's harvests will be issued in two weeks by the Agriculture Department.

The special forecast will be in USDA's regular crop report on July 12 and will include new figures adjusted for damage done by this year's heat and drought, Assistant Secretary Ewen M. Wilson, who oversees the department's economic and statistical services, said Monday.

Under normal conditions, the July crop report would include updated production and yield-per-acre estimates for winter wheat, which is now being harvested across the nation's midsection. Similar field estimates for corn, spring wheat, soybeans, cotton and other fall-harvested crops are not scheduled until August.

That has not changed. The August crop report will still be the first big-scale estimate of U.S. crops, Wilson said.

But the July 12 report will include freshly revised "projections" of corn and other fall crops based on the latest drought and acreage information, he said. The projections now being used began in May, based on past trends and other assumptions that no longer apply.

Wilson, in an interview, said that the 1988-89 projections based on the trend lines of past years would be wrong and that "we would be way off the right numbers" for this year's harvests.

"We're going to move away from that trend-yield estimate and make some adjustments based on what we know about crop conditions," he said. "We won't be doing a (field) survey because it's too early in the season. But we'll do some analysis which will move us off that trend-line yield in order to reflect the impact of the drought."

Wilson said the special project to come up with better figures for harvest prospects and anticipated demand through the 1988-89 marketing season was not unique and that USDA had done it before.

Isn't it risky for USDA economists and statisticians to stick their necks out regarding drought losses, even if the figures are acknowledged to be little better than educated guesses at this time?

"I think we're in a year where, if they put out a trend-line projection, they would be sticking their necks out even more, because, clearly, no one believes the trend yield is going to be the actual yield this year," Wilson said. "It's reflecting reality."

Geophysical industry shows improvement despite record

MIDLAND (AP)—The geophysical industry, which took a nosedive in the 1986 oil price downturn, is at its lowest point since 1937 and has remained flat on the bottom for a full year, according to statistics maintained by the Society of Exploration Geologists.

According to SEG records, almost 750 geophysical crews were working in the U.S. in 1981. That number was almost cut in half by 1985, and when the crash of 1986 came, the 350 working crews quickly dissolved to 150 — the lowest count since 1935. In 1987 the crew count slipped back up to around 200 — or 1937 levels. It has been that way for the past year.

Such an unenviable position on the performance graph would normally be the signal for alarm in an industry. That, however, is not the case for the highly scientific geophysical industry that sends signals deep into the earth to search for possible oil and gas producing structures.

Despite the statistics, and the "blood bath" of the downturn, signs of recovery are being seen in the geophysical industry.

The reason is not more crews but rapidly advancing technology that has made geophysics more accurate and each crew able to command higher rates. As one contractor put it: "Oil companies are willing to pay more when you improve their odds for drilling a producing oil well."

"There are no new Cadillacs being bought yet, but when I go to meetings now, I sometimes see geophysicists with a new pair of shoes," quipped Decker Dawson, founder and president of Midland-based Dawson Geophysical Co., and recently nominated president-elect of the 18,000-member SEG.

"I don't want to give the indication that everything is rosy in the industry. It isn't, but it's better than the crew count would indicate," Dawson says.

Despite the inconsistency, Dawson thinks the crew count is still a valid indicator of activity for the industry: "We in the industry know that a geophysical crew today is not the crew of the past. Crews today are larger with more sophisticated equipment. A crew today can generate more revenue that a multitude of crews in years past, but we take this and inflation into consideration when we look at the record."

However, John DeVault, past president of the Geophysical Society of Houston and vice president of the International Association of Geophysical Contractors, says it may be time to consider another indicator that would reflect the state of the industry.

"In 1981 we had 96-channel crews in the field. Today, it's possible to put a 1,200-channel crew in the field. We have equipment today that costs $10 million. Money would be a better indicator of the state of the industry," says DeVault.

He adds that money might not be the ideal indicator because privately owned companies do not like to reveal revenues for the purpose of surveys.

Publicly owned companies such as Dawson Geophysical, however, reveal such information in quarterly and annual reports, but not on a monthly basis.

For the period ending March 31, 1988, Dawson Geophysical reported that revenues had increased $1,884,000 over the previous period for an 85 percent hike. Working capital increased from $87,000 a year ago to $926,000, and utilization rates of the company which were below 50 percent in 1986 are now between 50 and 75 percent.

"If you look at the utilization rate for 1988 state-of-the-art equipment it is probably closer to 90 percent for the industry, but there is a lot of 1982 state-of-the-art equipment out there that may never work again," said Dawson.

He called the upturn slight improvement, considering Dawson Geophysical lost $3 million and had to lay off 200 people over a four-year period.

"I used to go home at night and cry because I had to let people go. It was very intense — a blood bath that saw the number of geophysical contractors in America go from 99 to 44," lamented Dawson. "We were lucky to survive."

Dawson, who founded Dawson Geophysical in 1952, predicts there will be a better future for the survivors.

"There will always be a demand for geophysicists. It's just a matter of how many will be needed. You can't remain in the oil business without replacing reserves. You can't replace reserves without exploration, and you can't hardly explore without geophysicists."

While the demand for geophysicists may always be around, Dawson says they may have to shorten their focus on close-in activity around older fields instead of counting on frontier exploration plays.

"There are still a number of good frontier plays left in Texas — in the far Trans-Pecos, Marathon Basin, Palo Duro Basin and Val Verde Basin — but it will take $30 and $40 oil to stimulate exploration in those areas."

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Dan Aykroyd's wife, actress Donna Dixon, is expecting the couple's first child in January, a spokeswoman says.

"As we walked up the aircraft steps behind him, he turned around, looked down at the archbishop and said in a mocking tone, 'Hallo Desmond,'" Ahrends said.

The archbishop, who is black, ignored the man, who persisted, using an obscenity in commenting on Tutu's speeches about South Africa overseas, Ahrends said.

Tutu reported the encounter to a steward and later asked the abusive passenger his name as they disembarked, Ahrends said. The man, who spoke in Afrikaans, replied, "I'm going to break your bloody neck," Ahrends said.

The aide called a police officer and a complaint was made at the airport charge office.

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — John Zaccaro Jr., convicted of selling a quarter-gram of cocaine to an undercover officer, has won preliminary approval to serve his four-month sentence under house arrest.

The son of former vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro began the sentence at 5 p.m. Friday, with his first 24 hours in maximum security at Chittenden Community Correctional Center in South Burlington, standard procedure for new inmates, said Addison County State's Attorney John Quinn.

Zaccaro, 24, was sentenced two weeks ago, but the sentence was stayed 30 days pending appeal to the Vermont Supreme Court.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, who has faced protesters at airports over the past month, says he filed a complaint with police against a white fellow plane passenger who harassed him.

The Rev. Christopher Ahrends, an aide to the Nobel Peace Prize winner, said the incident occurred while he and Tutu were riding in an airport bus to their plane at Jan Smuts Airport in Johannesburg on Thursday.

Sea World's bird man spends Texas summer in his winter clothes — with the penguins

By NANCY PERDUE
The San Antonio Light

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Robin Friday is spending his first sizzling summer in San Antonio wearing winter work clothes.

But his working conditions simulate Antarctica, where it really is winter.

Friday, 33, is bird curator at Sea World of TEXAS. His job requires him to spend a lot of time inside Penguins, the park's 36-degree exhibit featuring about 200 penguins representing the Falkland Island, Gentoo and Rockhopper varieties.

He also is in charge of a 21-member staff that cares not only for the penguins but all the birds gracing the park's premises.

Sea World, which has recorded its 1 millionth visitor, features about 1,500 birds of various types. In addition to the penguins there are flamingos, and officials are putting the finishing touches on Water Fowl Ravine, an exhibit located near the water ski lake that will feature different types of water fowl.

"The penguins are probably one of the most social species of birds," Friday said. "Next to Shamu (the killer whale) they are the second-most popular attraction."

Friday, who moved to San Antonio in April from Sea World's Orlando, Fla., park, said most of the penguins living here in the nation's largest marine park were hatched in the Florida facility. Friday recently traveled to Antarctica to get others. The penguins share their enclosure with kelp gulls and polar skuas.

"The field work is an opportunity few other bird people get to experience," Friday said. "It's nice to work with a company that gives you the support and financial backing to put together an exhibit as intricate as this."

The bird curator made his comments after leaving the polar birds in their 100-foot-by-40-foot Texas home, where 30,000 pounds of artificial snow falls daily and where lights are adjusted regularly to resemble daylight conditions in Antarctica more accurately.

Friday said several teams of experts worked several years designing penguin facilities for Sea World parks. He said officials want exhibits that would enable the birds to live in an environment similar to their natural habitat but one that still allows humans to study the birds' behavior and admire their beauty. A North Carolina native, Friday said he worked part-time in veterinarian clinics while he was attending school.

"I started college but never finished," Friday said. "I decided to move to Florida. I applied for a job at Sea World, but they didn't have any openings so I worked for a while at Walt Disney World working with the birds on Discovery Island. Later Sea World got in touch with me, and I started working at the Orlando park as an animal trainer."

Friday said his staff also spends a good deal of time sharing information about the exotic birds with Sea World visitors. Most people are surprised to learn the penguins have about 7,000 black and white feathers per square inch on their bodies to keep them warm in their winter environment. The feathers are so tiny and thick they feel like fur.

And the bird experts work closely with people from other Sea World parks on research projects. "We primarily collect data, and our information is handed to San Diego," he said.

Meanwhile, Friday said he hopes Sea World of Texas birds soon will start laying eggs to produce future generations of stars for the penguin exhibit.

From Tucson to Manhattan, foreign visitors set record

By The Associated Press

Italians are riding the range in Arizona. West Germans are inspecting plantations in South Carolina. And Japanese are teeing up wherever they find a nice golf course.

Heading into the Independence Day weekend, tourism officials were predicting the lure of the cheaper dollar would help bring a record 30.2 million foreign visitors to the United States this year.

The expected increase is modest, up less than 2 percent from 29.7 million last year. In addition, not all of the visitors are tourists. Many come for business, as students or to visit friends and relatives.

But the financial power of foreign visitors — they are expected to spend a record $22.1 billion here this year — is reshaping the hospitality business.

"The U.S. is on sale," William D. Toohey, president of the Travel Industry Association of America, told foreign tour operators in a gathering held in Dallas in May.

Americans are learning to provide the amenities they get when they travel abroad. Multilingual signs are popping up. Some big-city hotels now have same-day delivery of Japanese newspapers.

Tourism professionals also say they have to cater to the particular tastes of specific nationalities. It turns out many West Germans have a fascination with the pre-Civil War South, while Europeans of all kinds feel they haven't seen America if they don't get a pony ride way out West.

"I have 82 Italians here right now," Bob Cote, the owner and camp cook of the Tanque Verde Ranch outside Tucson, Ariz., said Thursday. "Cowboys and Indians are typically American, so that's a strong image for them."

South Carolina capitalized on the popularity of the "North and South" television series about the Civil War by offering a free trip to the Palmetto State in a joint promotion with a West German women's magazine, Das Neue Blatt.

Although for some foreigners the United States has not become a major travel bargain — it is not much cheaper for Canadians than it used to be and has become more expensive for Mexicans — shifting exchange rates have doubled the power of currencies like the Japanese yen and West German mark since early 1985.

The 11.8 million Canadians who are expected to arrive this year vastly outnumber visitors from other countries, while Mexicans are second at 6.4 million, according to projections of the U.S. Travel & Tourism Administration.

But getting the most notice lately are the free-spending Japanese, who are in third place and rising rapidly.

About 2.8 million Japanese are expected this year, up 30 percent from 1987, the fastest growth rate of any major country. The growth should continue under Japan's Ten Million Program, which seeks to double the annual number of Japanese tourists going abroad to 10 million by 1991.

Hawaii has been a popular Japanese tourist spot, drawing about 1.2 million Japanese visitors.

A step at a time, cautious Japanese tourists have ventured from Hawaii, to the West Coast, to New York City, where shopping at Tiffany's and bus tours through Harlem are popular.

The United States is a paradise of fairways and greens to the Japanese, some of whom do most of their golfing back home on multi-tiered driving ranges because it is so hard to get a tee time on crowded courses.

The states, locales and tourist attractions that are most successful in attracting foreign visitors are the ones that began their efforts before the dollar's big decline.

At Hogate's restaurant in Washington, D.C., which expects 60 percent of its patrons to come from abroad this year, the homework and calls to tour operators paid off, sales director Harriet Epstein said.

The French want window seats, the Japanese like ice cream and the Germans would rather have a Budweiser than a German beer, Hogate's discovered.

"When the tidal wave started to turn in our direction, we were on the receiving end," Ms. Epstein said. "Our name was on the tip of their tongues."

Safety official warns against fireworks abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — A firecracker fuse that has apparently burned out can be dangerous for up to a half hour after it appears to go out, a federal safety official said today.

Consumer Products Safety Commissioner Ann Graham acknowledged that illegal fireworks are readily available across the country and pose the greatest danger to people celebrating the 4th of July.

She gave advice for the use of fireworks in an interview on "CBS This Morning."

- ✓ Don't use illegal fireworks.
- ✓ If a device appears to be a dud, stay away from the fuse for 30 minutes.
- ✓ Don't allow young children to play with fireworks.
- ✓ If children are allowed to use fireworks, it should only be under parental supervision.
- ✓ Read the label before lighting.
- ✓ Have water available in case of fire.
