Top scores, fast times open action at White Deer rodeo

By SONNY BOHANAN
Staff Writer

With the scent of barbecue upon the breeze that swept skydiver Mark Britain into the center of the rodeo arena Thursday, the 29th Annual White Deer Amateur Rodeo kicked off the first of three nights of competition.

But before witnessing the descent of Britain and three other members of the Amarillo Skydivers' Club, hundreds of rodeo spectators were treated to a free barbecue prepared by the White Deer Lion's Club.

Seven-year-old Corey Nevels led the singing of the national anthem prior to the beginning of the rodeo events. Corey, winner of the 1987-88 America's Girl Beauty Pageant, is the daughter of stock producer Richard Nevels and his wife Bobbi.

In Thursday's events, the top score or lowest time sets the standard for the following two nights, and the cowboy or cowgirl that comes out on top will receive a belt buckle and prize money after Saturday's competition.

In addition to individual titles, the contestants are vying for the All-Around honor. To qualify, a competitor must be entered in and place in two events.

The bareback bronc riders got things hopping from the outset. Travis Howe of Portales, atop Crazy Track, posted the standard with a score of 74. Carr Vincent and Billy McAnnelly finished second and third, scoring 70 and 69 respectively.

The lone saddle bronc rider, Frank VanBuskirk of Raton, rode Black Smoke to a 67 score.

Claude's Rod Cleveland leads the calf ropers after Thursday night, successfully roping and tying his calf in 9.970 seconds. Gene Ferguson of Briscoe was second with a time of 12.217, followed by Randall Hamby of Claude in 13.180 seconds.

The youngsters got a chance to stretch their legs in the calf scramble, in which three calves with tags on their tails were set loose in an arena filled with over 100 hungry kids. Craig Urbanzyk, Charlie Daphne and Kari Lemons each won $5 for rescuing a tail tag.

Rodeo clown Marvin Gorrell provided comic relief to keep the action rolling between events. In addition to a magic water bucket that miraculously filled with water when he pumped his horse's tail, his acts featured a dance contest and a cameo appearance by three of the "California Raisins" singing "I Heard It Through the Grapevine."

The rodeo performance resumed with girls' breakaway roping. Lubbock's Karen Cochran became the girl to beat as she roped her calf in 4.449 seconds. Lea Whitehead, also of Lubbock, was close behind with a time 4.939.

Greg Guggell of Adrian toppled a steer in 5.352 seconds to capture the lead in steer wrestling. Shawn Audrain of Fritch was second in 10.604 seconds, and Hereford's Delbert Davis finished third with a time of 10.796.

Pampa police representatives attend accreditation meeting

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Pampa police officials met the accreditation team that will be assessing the local police department in September while attending the summer meeting of the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies in California last week.

The three-man accreditation assessment team will be composed of Richard W. Crouch, chief of the Moultrie, Ga., Police Department; Maj. Timothy K. Garner, Noblesville, Ind., Police Department; and Patrick J. McMahon, chief of the West Chicago, Ill., Police Department, said Steve Chance, accreditation manager.

Dick Kitterman, director of field operations for the commission, will also be present during the assessment of the local police department set for Sept. 10-14. Chance, Police Chief Robert Eberz and Assistant Police Chief Ken Hall attended the summer meeting July 21-24 at the Hyatt Regency Alicante in Garden Grove, Calif.

Workshops and round-table discussions concerning the accreditation process took up the first day, followed by a reception Thursday and meeting of the full commission and various committees on Friday and Saturday.

The three Pampa officers witnessed the commission's interviews of 10 agencies seeking accreditation Sunday morning.

All 10 agencies, including two Texas law enforcement agencies, received accreditation, he said.

Houston Police Department and Highland Park Department of Public Service both received accreditation after successfully completing the final phase of the process, the interview with the members of the accreditation commission.

Senate, House approve drought relief package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers are promising to iron out House and Senate differences over a $6 billion drought-relief package in a quick flurry of action next week and speed the measure on to President Reagan's desk.

"My opinion is that the president would accept this bill as it is passed today, although there have been some things he objects to," Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., said Thursday after 94-0 Senate passage of the bill.

The House had approved its version 368-29 a few hours earlier after scaling back a plan to increase milk price supports, a proposal widely criticized as excessively favoring the dairy industry.

The revised version would impose a temporary increase for three months next year. Milk price supports previously had been scheduled to decrease on Jan. 1.

Senators tightened up a similarly controversial benefit in their bill that would allow companies that make ethanol for fuel to buy corn from government surplus bins at what could shape up as a substantial discount.

However, there were still warnings that Congress was flirting with budget trouble by inserting special benefits for constituents back home into the measure.

The House, urged by Agriculture Committee Chairman E. "Kika" de la Garza, D-Texas, acted to cap the price tag of its bill at $5.8 billion.

The Senate had no comparably firm figure. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-

Texas, said latest estimates put the cost of the Senate measure at between $5.85 billion and $6.55 billion.

Gramm warned that running over a $5.8 billion ceiling calculated under the Gramm-Rudman budget law would set off nasty fiscal and political repercussions.

At the heart of the bill are provisions that would provide disaster payments to farmers equal to 65 percent of losses beyond 35 percent of expected harvest. Many dairy and livestock producers would become eligible for benefits under an expanded government feed aid program.

Farmers especially hard hit by the drought would get supplemental payments under both House and Senate bills.

A number of other points remain to be resolved when lawmakers meet in a House-Senate conference committee next week. The House version requires farmers to buy federal crop insurance for each of the next two years if they are to be eligible for disaster payments this year.

The Senate version does not contain such a provision, which is opposed by both the Reagan administration and a wide array of major crop producer groups.

Gray County Appraisal board accepts 1989 proposed budget

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Gray County Appraisal Board of Directors accepted the 1989 proposed budget of $469,810 in its regular meeting Thursday at the appraisal district offices, after tabling the matter last month so board members could study the budget figures further.

An increase of $23,825 is reflected in the budget compared to the 1988 budget of $445,985.

"This includes the purchase price of the land and building, doesn't it?" Board President Kenneth Fields asked Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley.

"Essentially, $35,000 principal and $3,000 to $4,000 of the interest will come directly out of the appraisal budget," Bagley answered.

"That would put it in the range of $430,000, then, wouldn't it?" Fields said.

"This is a one-time expense which should cut down future budgets," Bagley said.

The budget was accepted unanimously by the board members present at the meeting. Secretary Jim Olsen and board member R.W. "Bob" Curry did not attend. "I have talked with the board members who are absent and they both indicated that they approved of the budget," Bagley said.

Award of a contract for appraisals of mineral values with Lone Star Evaluation was tabled because of the absence of the two board members. Louis Henderson, a representative of the firm, offered the board members a two-year contract at $35,000 per year with the provision that a subsequent board could choose not to use the firm as long as it was notified in advance.

Because the two-year clause had not been discussed by all the board members, those remaining agreed to wait to make a decision until all the board members had considered employing the firm for two years.

"I haven't talked with Curry or Olsen since I sent the agenda out," Bagley told board members. "It would be presuming to say they were 100 percent behind (the two-year contract). I do feel they'd support it."

Troy Sloan was re-hired on an "as-needed" basis as a consultant for industrial and pipeline appraisals. The one-year verbal contract with Sloan includes an agreement to pay 22 cents per mile, $35 an hour and all necessary expenses, as had been agreed on in the past.

"Our need (for Sloan) will not be as great this year unless we come up with the problems like we had with Celanese," Bagley said. "He'll work with the understanding that we'll do as much of the work ourselves as possible."

Bagley reported that the 1988 appraisal records had been accepted as corrected by the Gray County Appraisal Review Board which met last week. The appraisal district received 47 protests and less than two dozen of the protests were heard by the appraisal review board, he said.

"I felt like we did very well in our appraisals," the chief appraiser said. "We didn't suffer that much in the way of losses. Now that part of the year is complete."

Board members instructed Bagley to draft a letter of thanks to the Purdue, Brandon and Fielder law firm of Amarillo for their service to the appraisal district.

Following the adjournment, Bagley took Fields and board members Sam Haynes and James McCracken on a tour of the new printer and six new CRTs, purchased with the board's approval in an earlier meeting.

It was these interviews the Pampa officers were most interested in, hoping to pick up pointers for when they would be facing the commission, Chance said.

First, Pampa Police Department must pass the assessment of the three law enforcement practitioners (people who are actively involved in law enforcement).

The team is scheduled to arrive in Pampa on Sept. 10 and for the next three days will conduct an in-depth examination of the police department's policy and procedures, management, operations and support services.

Team members will also hold a public hearing at 7 p.m. Sept. 12 in the City Commission Room of City Hall.

Local citizens and police department employees will be given the opportunity to comment on the department's services and performance at this hearing.

More than 650 agencies across the nation are looking at accreditation. Now that the summer meeting is finished, approximately 80 agencies have become accredited.

Houston and Highland Park have now been accredited, leaving Pampa and Victoria in the final stages of the process, and close to 40 other Texas law enforcement agencies still seeking the accredited status.

Should Pampa Police Department be passed by the assessment team in September, Eberz, Hall and Chance will once again find themselves in the same room with the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies this November.

Only this time, the trio will be sitting across the table from the commission answering their questions and hoping for the best.

Rodeo

The Double Muggers couldn't get the breaks to fall their way as all three teams failed to rope their steers on Thursday night.
 Steve Purcella and Jeff Medlin, both of Lovington, N.M., set a team roping standard that will be difficult to top. They roped and tied their calf in only 5.395 seconds. A team from Pampa consisting of Jim Richardson and Jimmy Gatlin was second in 13.853 seconds, and Roy Thompson and Lance Chisum of Happy finished third with a time of 14.959.
 Canyon's Lean Nuckols leads

the barrel racing with a 17.752-second mark. Kelly Moore of Amarillo is in second place at 17.839, and Shan Til Hext of Canadian is third with 17.860.
 The barrel races were interrupted by a free-wheeling bull that burst out of the chute and stubbornly refused to be corralled. Lonnie Brown finally prodded the beast into action, narrowly escaping a hoof sandwich in the process.
 The bull riders furnished some thrilling action when they arrived on the scene. Michael Gaffney of Snyder posted the top score Thursday as he rode Witch Doctor to a spectacular, spinning finish and a score of 76. Lubbock's Kenneth McKee rode Cocaine, another good spinner, to a score of 73. Dale Giddeon of Odessa was third, scoring 69.
 The rodeo concluded Thursday night with perhaps the craziest event, the Wild Mare Race. Teams consisting of three cowboys were set loose with a wild mare that they had to saddle, ride and unsaddle to win the event. If you can imagine three cowboys trying to saddle a wild mare, with a whole lot of chasing, bucking and kicking going on, then you've got the right idea.
 The White Deer Rodeo will continue tonight beginning at 8 p.m.

Iran and Iraq blaming each other

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iran and Iraq accused each other of blocking U.N. efforts to end their 8-year-old war, and the U.N. chief sought a formula to break the deadlock.
 "I reject the idea of any collapse absolutely. I reject it emphatically. I have to keep waiting," Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Thursday.
 The U.N. chief planned to resume separate talks today with the foreign ministers of both countries after a one-day break.
 Iraq demands a face-to-face meeting with Iran before a cease-fire, and Iran insists on a truce before it will consider a direct meeting.
 Perez de Cuellar acknowledged an impasse and, when asked if he had a formula for breaking it, said, "I'm working on that." But he added, "At some stage, direct talks are indispensable."

change, peace negotiations and an investigation of which side started the war.
 "The policy of Iraq is to put obstacles in the way of the secretary-general's peace efforts," said Mohammad Javad Zarif, counselor at Iran's U.N. Mission. "This whole Iraqi exercise is planned to sabotage the efforts upon which the international community is looking with hope."
 On Wednesday, Iran's Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati accepted all of Perez de Cuellar's proposals on implementing the peace plan. Iraq has not yet responded, and details of the proposals have not been disclosed.
 Iraq's U.N. mission accused Iran of "simply seeking a hasty truce without giving any commitments that it will comply honestly and sincerely to the full implementation of the resolution as a plan for comprehensive and durable peace."
 Both sides reported fighting

Thursday at Eslamabad, 60 miles inside Iran. Iraq, which says it has withdrawn from Iranian territory, describes the invaders as Iranian rebels, but Iran says they are Iraqi troops.
 In Baghdad, the Iraqi capital, Saadun Hamadi, the acting foreign minister, summoned the ambassadors of the five permanent Security Council members — United States, Soviet Union, China, Britain and France — and insisted on a peace treaty.
 "This is the only way to secure a peaceful settlement" of the war, Iraqi television quoted him as saying.
 But he added that "Iraq is for an early, immediate cease-fire as a means to end the war within the framework of a comprehensive peace settlement."
 Pressure was increasing on Iraq in the 15-member Security Council to drop its direct talks demand and other proposals that could prolong the fighting, said U.N. diplomats.

Federal deficit to be higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration says the federal deficit will be $5.6 billion higher than it predicted back in February, with the government's red ink now estimated to total $152.3 billion this fiscal year.
 While the new administration estimate announced Thursday is higher, it is still below the more gloomy projections earlier this year by many private economists, who were forecasting a deficit of $160 billion or worse.
 Those economists have been busy revising their own figures, and some now say the administration's new deficit forecast for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 may actually be too pessimistic.
 As the year began, the administration predicted the overall economy as measured by the gross national product would expand at a sluggish 2.4 percent rate. The new budget has boosted that GNP estimate to 3 percent.

 The higher growth this year has helped push the unemployment rate down to a 14-year-low of 5.3 percent. More people working means more tax revenues for Uncle Sam.
 Tax revenues are expected to be $4.2 billion higher than the administration's February projection, according to the new report.
 Michael Evans, head of a Washington forecasting firm, said he is now predicting the 1988 deficit will total $145 billion based on the gains in tax revenues which have already occurred.
 David Wyss, an economist with Data Resources Inc., said he is forecasting a deficit this year of $151 billion, slightly lower than the administration's estimate.

 The administration is calling for the deficit in the next fiscal year to decline to $140.1 billion, an estimate that private economists say is generally in line with their own forecasts.
 That deficit estimate is $5.9 billion below the $146 billion level which would trigger automatic spending cuts as required by the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law.
 However, White House budget director James Miller warned that the $5.9 billion cushion did not leave much room for error, especially given a lengthy list of spending measures Congress is considering in an election year.

DPS lawman to become first black to join Texas Rangers

AUSTIN (AP)—The head of the NAACP's Austin branch said he is glad for the black lawman chosen to join the elite Texas Rangers, but another black officer who deserves the promotion still has not received his due.

The Department of Public Safety on Thursday announced that Lee Roy Young Jr., a 41-year-old DPS veteran and currently a criminal intelligence investigator in San Antonio, would join the Rangers. He is believed to be the first black to join the storied unit.

Young, 41, will be stationed in the Dallas-suburb of Garland when he becomes a Ranger in September, said DPS spokesman David Wells.

Gary Bledsoe, president of the Austin branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said black state trooper Michael Scott of Houston deserves to be a Ranger. Scott publicly voiced his disappointment last year when he was not chosen for the Rangers.

The NAACP has threatened to sue the department, charging that black officers have been passed over for promotion and discriminated against in other ways.

"I'm happy for Mr. Young. This is a step in right direction for him and his career. I'm disappointed for Michael Scott, because he really is the person who brought all this to bear," Bledsoe said.

"It appears there would be a policy in the department saying we're going to start promoting a few people because we have to, but we're going to promote people who don't complain or stand up for their rights, people who play by the rules of the game," Bledsoe said.

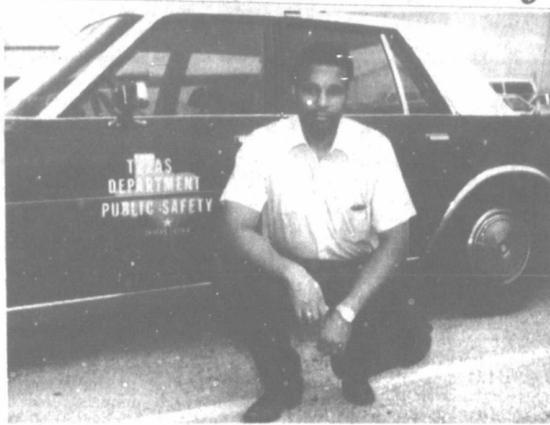

Scott was a top scorer on the written portion of the test required for Ranger eligibility, Bledsoe said, but was not chosen after the required oral interview.

The oral interview is before a board of six DPS supervisors, including at least two minority supervisors, Wells said. A DPS officer also must have at least eight years of law enforcement experience to be eligible to be a Ranger, and at least 60 hours of college or the equivalent education.

Wells said the reason there hasn't been a black Ranger before now is that Young was the first black to reach the required level in the testing procedures.

"They're all treated the same on the testing procedures. There's no difference," he said.

"We only have 94 Texas Rangers for the whole state of Texas. It's not unusual for 100 DPS officers to apply for one opening, or two or three (openings)," Wells said.

Col. Leo Gossett, retiring DPS director, said he's "proud" of Young's achievement.

"There's a certain mystique about the Texas Rangers. It's a highly sought-after job in the department, and many people have to apply many times—most do—before they're successful. The competition is keen," Gossett said.

Young said, "I feel pretty good. It's been an ambition of mine for many years." Young and three white DPS officers will join the Rangers unit in August and September, Wells said.

While portions of the Rangers' long history is sketchy, Young is believed to be the first black to formally be included in the ranks. Rangers, in various forms, have been mentioned as far back as the 1820s.

Jim McNutt, director of research and collections at the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, which has published a history of the Rangers, said Thursday that the institute's "best information" indicated that Young would become the first black Ranger.

The institute's history noted that blacks worked as teamsters and blacksmiths for the Rangers in the past, and McNutt said blacks likely accompanied Rangers as they traveled the state.

"Probably, these guys were not called Rangers themselves, were not appointed by anybody," McNutt said. "That doesn't mean that when everybody got attacked, they weren't in the middle of the fight."

Today's Rangers are specifically charged with four duties: protection of life and property by enforcing state criminal statutes; suppressing riots and insurrections; investigating major crimes; and apprehending fugitives.

Rangers are called on by authorities in small towns and less populated counties for help with homicides, for example, Wells said.

"Becoming a Ranger brings a very proud feeling for them. Rangers have a good reputation. They have a very high level of training in various subjects related to felony investigation,"

Wells said.

There currently are five Hispanic Rangers and no women Rangers, he said.

The Rangers trace their history to the frontier days, when Texas still belonged to Mexico.

Although authorities say it is difficult to determine just when the term first was applied to fighting men, Stephen F. Austin in 1823 employed 10 men to serve as Rangers.

"The Texas Rangers may have been thought of as operating against Indians and Mexican raiders in the early years and later against outlaw bands, feudists, stock thieves and local rioters," says a history in the authoritative Handbook of Texas.

That history also noted that "Texas never needed the Rangers more than it did immediately following Reconstruction," when civil affairs were in chaos, Indians were threatening settlers and bandit raids caused trouble along the Mexican border.

"Here was a real opportunity for the Texas Rangers to rise to greatness, and there is no doubt that they did this in the period between 1874 and 1890," the history said.

In 1935, the Rangers were reorganized and placed in the DPS. Rangers are stationed in towns spread across the state.

North's plan criticized at drug hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S. drug enforcement official says former White House staffer Oliver L. North suggested in 1984 that $1.5 million designated for a drug sting operation be diverted to the Nicaraguan Contras instead.

Ron Caffrey, now in charge of the Atlanta office of the Drug Enforcement Administration, told a House panel Thursday the DEA rejected the idea. Caffrey said he told North the suggestion would have compromised the chief operative in one of the agency's most significant undercover operations.

As it turned out, according to Caffrey and other DEA witnesses, the investigation was compromised anyway—and closed prematurely—several weeks later when details were leaked to the Washington Times.

The hearing was the first in a series by the Judiciary subcommittee on crime, which is trying to learn whether Reagan administration officials condoned drug smuggling and other criminal activities to further its Central American policy—especially winning aid for the Contra rebels.

Chairman William J. Hughes, D-N.J., said the panel has "discovered many, many instances of persons in or associated with... elements of our government attempting to convert, to divert, and to subvert the criminal justice process."

North, who has been indicted in the separate diversion of millions of dollars from the administration's Iran arms sales to the Contras, figured prominently in Thursday's testimony.

The testimony focused on a 1984 sting operation, in which DEA used convicted drug pilot Barry Seal to make contact with the Colombian cocaine cartel—then operating in Nicaragua—and a purported Nicaraguan government official, Federico Vaughn.

Hughes later said the committee has doubts about whether Vaughn was in fact part of the government.

Nonetheless, four DEA witnesses said North was interested in exposing an alleged involvement of the Marxist Nicaraguan government in drug smuggling, so the Reagan administration could win an upcoming congressional vote on Contra aid.

Caffrey, who was in charge of the DEA cocaine desk in 1984, said he briefed North on the undercover operation in late June or early July 1984, after Barry Seal had brought cocaine back from Nicaragua to the United States.

Seal at the time was functioning as a DEA operative, hoping his cooperation would bring him a lenient sentence.

Caffrey said he told North that the DEA planned to send Seal back to Nicaragua to make a $1.5 million payment for the drugs he brought back, with the money to be split between the Colombia drug kingpins in Nicaragua and Nicaraguan officials.

The DEA official said he responded that such a plan would jeopardize Seal, who had won the trust of the Colombian drug cartel and of Vaughn, identified by the DEA witnesses as an official of the Nicaraguan interior ministry.

Most of the hearing centered on the news leak to the Washington Times, which published its story on the Seal operation July 17, 1984.

'Millionaire' giver turns out to be heavily in debt, charged in fraud

MIAMI (AP)—A businessman who offered on television to "adopt" a welfare family is actually heavily in debt, faces a charge of bank fraud and, according to one creditor, "is the biggest deadbeat I have ever worked with."

Boca Raton businessman James N. Gisclair was slapped with the federal charge two weeks before he made national headlines and went on NBC-TV's Today Show Thursday with his philanthropic intentions.

Gisclair planned to "adopt" Anita Hunter and her family and give them a new house, a new car and a new life away from the drug-ridden Miami neighborhood called "The Hole." He said he hoped they would, in time, become self-sufficient.

"The only person it's not humorous for is that poor lady who's not going to get anything," said Hugh Culverhouse Jr., an attorney for Capital Bank, which has been unable to collect a $1.4 million judgement against Gisclair.

The generous offer also came as a surprise to Kent Ewing, whose Boynton Beach landscaping firm is owed $24,750 by Gisclair.

"He says he's going to help the poor and he can't even pay his bills," Ewing said. "This is an affront to the civilization that I am a part of. He is the biggest deadbeat I have ever worked with."

In a lawsuit, Capital Bank alleges that Gisclair defrauded them by securing loans with money he did not have, said Tim Ross, the company's attorney. He later swore his six businesses were worthless, court records show.

The criminal charges stem from the civil case, according to Chief Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Gregorie, who filed a complaint against Gisclair in a Miami federal court accusing him of making a false statement to a bank.

Gisclair could face up to three years in jail if he's convicted on the criminal charges.

Telephone calls to Gisclair's office by The Associated Press on Thursday were not returned. Anita Hunter does not own a phone and could not be reached for comment.

Racing Commission narrows search for executive director

AUSTIN (AP)—The chairman of the Texas Racing Commission says he hopes an executive director can be hired at the panel's next meeting, probably in September, and a newspaper reports that the field of candidates is being narrowed.

The Austin American-Statesman said Thursday that the candidates include an Oregon race track director, an Alabama racing official, a New Mexico homebuilder, a retired Army officer and the head of the state's disaster response agency.

Commission Chairman Hilary Doran, while declining to comment on finalists for the $60,000-a-year post, said a search committee plans to interview at least three more prospects before hiring anyone.

"We'll make the decision that day. All the background checks will be in, all the board members will have all the resumes on the finalists, and we'll strike while the iron is hot," Doran said.

The search committee includes Doran and Commissioners James Clement, Hugh Fitzsimons and Demarius Frey.

The racing commission was formed in January, following last year's vote to legalize pari-mutuel wagering on horse and dog racing in Texas for the first time in 50 years.

Doran has said he hopes that an executive director can be hired and racing rules be adopted by this autumn, with pari-mutuel racing beginning next year.

The American-Statesman, quoting unidentified sources, listed the candidates so far as:

• Guillermo Acevedo, a former Woodlands resident who moved this year to Santa Fe, N.M., where he is a custom home-builder.

• Acevedo, 47, was a field technician for 15 years with American Totalisator, a company that leases and services pari-mutuel equipment to tracks around the world. He also assisted business operations at tracks in New Mexico, Colorado, California and Mexico.

• Stanley Blank, of Tigard, Ore., who has been director of racing at Portland Meadows since 1983. Blank, who has owned and trained thoroughbreds, was a member of a committee that examined and rewrote Oregon's horse racing rules in 1986.

• Richard Callaway, 42, a Hoover, Ala., resident who is executive administrator of the Birmingham Racing Commission. He was general manager of Evangeline Downs in Lafayette, La., for four years and his family has raised thoroughbreds and Arabian horses at its Texas farm.

• Robert Langford, of Leander, coordinator and chief of the Texas Division of Emergency Management under the Department of Public Safety and the governor's office. Langford, 52, began work with the DPS in 1969.

• Robert B. Osborn, a retired military veteran who served 29 years in the Army, including 10 years of "sensitive multinational" diplomatic work and a tour in Vietnam, where he commanded about 1,300 troops.

Teen stowaway girl returned to Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—An Irish teen-ager who was a stow-away on a U.S. Navy destroyer returned home today and was immediately placed under the care of government health officials.

Hours before 16-year-old Suzanne Twomey arrived at Shannon Airport in western Ireland, a district court in Cork ordered her placed under the care of the Southern Health Board, officials said.

A spokesman for the health board, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the board made an application for custody "in the interests of the girl herself and after consultation with her parents and the police."

Miss Twomey has run away from her home in Cork, southern Ireland, several times and was once brought home from Spain after disappearing for six months.

"I just want to go home," she told Judge Fred Morelock of North Carolina's Wake County District Court on Thursday.

When Miss Twomey landed after an overnight flight from New York, she was taken through a rear airport exit and placed in a waiting police car. Two agents of the U.S. Naval Investigative Service escorted her.

An Irish police spokesman, who refused to be named, said her parents, John and Christine Twomey, and her three siblings would see her later.

Miss Twomey apparently slipped aboard the USS Conyngham when it paid a courtesy call in Cork Harbor. She was discovered aboard the guided missile destroyer Saturday when it returned to its base in Norfolk, Va., after a 10-day trip across the Atlantic Ocean.

The teen-ager apparently spent the entire crossing in a 2½-foot wide, 15-foot-long, and 3-foot high compartment above a refrigeration unit.

Five sailors accused of helping the girl were being held at the Norfolk Naval base, authorities said. If charged and convicted, they face a maximum five years in prison and a fine of $2,000 dollars for aiding an illegal entry into the United States.

Miss Twomey's parents said they are considering suing the U.S. government on grounds that their daughter could not have boarded the ship without help from crew members.

"There is a lot more to this than meets the eye," Mrs. Twomey said Thursday. She said U.S. officials had telephoned her in Ireland to apologize.

Foreign aid only aids bureaucrats

When are exports bad? When they're paid for by money heisted from American taxpayers, transferred to bureaucrats of foreign governments and used to buy the goods of politically favored American companies. In such a case, exports aren't really exports at all, but a kind of international pork barrel. Some American businesses — better called politico-businesses — are now lobbying Congress to increase American taxpayer support of the World Bank. The bank wants $74.8 billion for more international foreign aid, of which U.S. taxpayers would pay $13.8 billion in new funds to help bail out bankrupt Third World countries.

Wait a minute. It was the World Bank itself, by dishing out huge loans to foolish Third World governments, that caused this debt crisis in the first place. Aid money is used to develop bureaucratic restraints on businesses, strangling centuries-old patterns of trade. And, of course, aid is accompanied by corruption at every level of government, with the foreign bureaucrats using the money to live high on the hog while giving little to the poor developing businessmen and citizens who are supposed to get it.

The solution to these problems is clear: End all government foreign aid, whether from the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, or the U.S. Agency for International Development. Aside from robbing U.S. taxpayers, which is bad enough, such aid hurts the people it's supposed to help.

Real foreign aid comes from private citizens or businesses, and is given to foreign citizens or businesses, on an individual level, person to person, business to business. Such true aid promotes growth where it is needed, and where it can flourish along natural lines; it avoids the distortions and hideous injustices of aid abused by bureaucrats, foreign and domestic.

Alas, another factor remains at work: The immense influence of American, European and Japanese politico-businesses that use political power to enrich themselves, instead of producing a better product for domestic or foreign consumers. Last year alone, U.S. companies received $1.6 billion in World Bank contracts.

Are such goods bought from U.S. companies of use to the foreign country? Some are. But under a private, free development system, needed goods would have been bought anyway — without the waste, fraud and inefficiency that accompanies goods bought with government money.

Of the World Bank's 151 member nations, 133 have already approved the new bailout scheme; it's not surprising that one group of bureaucrats would support fleecing taxpayers to support another group of bureaucrats. But the U.S. Congress should just say no to this order for another fix of taxpayers' dollars to the World Bank. Enough damage already has been done, both to American taxpayers and to foreigners.

But the others won't do better

WASHINGTON - National political platforms, in the familiar phrase, are like peanuts: They are made to be broken. Put the cynicism aside. The Democrats' platform, placidly adopted at Atlanta, ought not to be entirely ignored.

This windy statement of party objectives had one admirable aspect: It was mercifully brief. Otherwise, with few exceptions, it was the old hot air. The same observation may surely be made of the platform the Republicans will adopt in New Orleans.

Just as the Democrats charged the Republicans with every ill that assails the nation, so the Republicans will claim credit for all that looks good across the land. Every such platform insults the intelligence of voters, but we are a tolerant herd; like cattle in a meadow, we will stoically accept almost anything the elements throw at us.

The party platform was not the only aspect of the Atlanta convention that calls for reflection. Before the parties meet again in 1992, much thought has to be devoted to the overweening role of television in our political system.

This was a convention wholly dominated by TV. For all practical purposes, nothing ever happened before 9 o'clock in the evening. Not until the networks began their coverage did we hear the ritual invocations. Every dispute was paped over lest the viewers see a plaster crack of dissension.

The delegates might have been sent from Central Casting. The poor sheep had nothing to do but to cry "aye" on the chairman's cue.

In theory this was the Democrats' convention. In actuality it was the networks' convention, and they suffered horribly in the ratings. There is much talk that in 1992 they will carry even less of whatever bobtailed conventions may be held.

A personal word: Atlanta was my 17th national political convention.

I love these giddy clambakes, but except for a few high moments — Jesse Jackson's emotional address, Michael Dukakis' excellent acceptance speech — it was a dispiriting affair.

Jackson's proposed amendments to the platform were voted down as indifferently as one swats the flies of summer. This was the stuff of stage plays. The make-believe blood was so much ketchup.

So, too, was the party platform. It was a synthesis of all the gassy, nebulous ideas that constitute today's anemic liberalism.

Only two or three plants had the solid thump of honest timber. The platform calls for statehood for the District of Columbia. It urges adoption of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution. It endorses an indexed minimum wage. It brands South Africa "a terrorist state," a charge that cannot be swallowed without gagging.

Otherwise the platform is hooey. It deplores "the unending tragedy of family farm foreclosures" without the least hint that many such foreclosures resulted from bad judgment. It calls for at least 25 expanded federal programs without one word to suggest how these might be financed.

On the matter of defense, the platform is re-soundingly ambivalent: It calls for an America "neither gun-shy nor trigger happy." Hooray for that.

The pledges are mercurial. They will not linger for examination. Let us listen attentively to one paragraph that epitomizes the whole:

"We believe that we can rebuild America, creating good jobs at good wages through a national reinvestment strategy to construct new housing, repair our sewers, rebuild our roads, and replace our bridges.

"We believe that we must pursue needed investment through innovative partnerships and creative financing mechanisms such as a voluntary program to invest a portion of public and private pension funds as a steady source of investment capital by guaranteeing security and a fair rate of return and assuring sound project management."

It will be observed that every word in that paragraph is an English word. Each of the two sentences has a subject (we) and a predicate (believe). The subordinate elements hang together in a reasonable order.

Yet the paragraph is entirely devoid of meaning. It reads backward as well as forward with equal opacity.

What, pray, is a "clear-handed, tough-minded, decisive American foreign policy"? What is meant by "a workable agricultural policy" that includes "supply management and reasonable price supports"? One turns this bag upside down and nothing spills out.

The Democrats wanted it gauzy and they got it gauzy.

Prospero's epitaph sums up Atlanta. The revels end, the insubstantial pageant fades; the baseless fabric of the Democratic vision melts into air, thin air, and leaves not a rack behind. The Republicans will do no better.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, July 29, the 211th day of 1988. There are 155 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Thirty years ago, on July 29, 1958, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed the National Aeronautics and Space Act, which created NASA. Eisenhower called the legislation a "historic step" that would further equip the United States "for leadership in the Space Age."

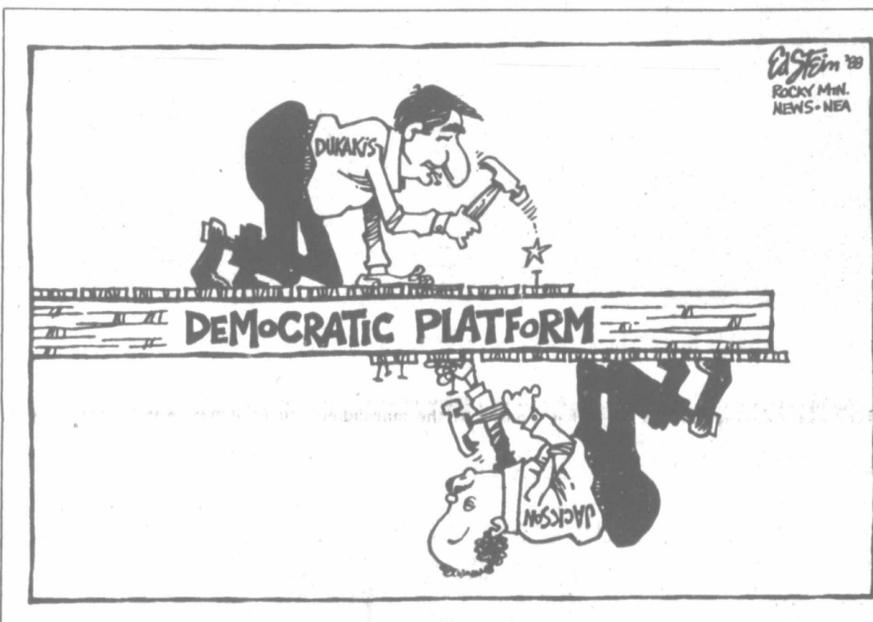

On this date: In 1030, the patron saint of Norway, King Olaf II, was killed in battle.

In 1588, the English soundly defeated the Spanish Armada in the Battle of Gravelines, leaving the remaining galleons to try to make their way home.

In 1887, operetta composer Sigmond Romberg was born in Nagykanizsa, Hungary.

In 1890, artist Vincent Van Gogh died in Auvers, France.

In 1914, transcontinental telephone service began with the first phone conversation between New York and San Francisco.

Now we go after the big guy

The Constitution promises that you shall be tried by a jury of your peers. Impossible.

When a court case involves a multiplicity of highly technical questions relating to chemistry, medicine, physics or finance — how can you possibly impanel a jury of "peers" competent to comprehend those complexities? No way!

So what's been happening is that many or most juries pass judgment independent of the evidence.

For example, if an insurance company is sued — "give the crippled guy a break and fine the big insurance company a jillion dollars!"

Somebody claims to have found a mouse in a cola bottle, give the somebody the millions he asks for; "let the big corporation pay!"

This misuse of the legal system has led to a plethora of punitive damages that are exorbitant. Corporations have been crippled, some bankrupted.

Punitive damages have become windfalls for plaintiffs and for their attorneys.

California's State Bar is presently challenging former San Francisco Mayor Joe Alioto and his son — both lawyers — for allegedly "overcharging" for their services.

Paul Harvey

They are accused of winning an $85,000 settlement for a supermarket and keeping $75,000 for themselves.

It's alleged they got a $9 million settlement in another case and kept more than half of that.

The client with "deep pockets" may be at the mercy even of his own attorneys!

The tendency toward excessive damages may be changing.

The "new" United States Supreme Court on June 1 in effect "invited" more cases challenging abusive damages.

There is an Eighth Amendment to our Constitution which states that "excessive bail shall not be required nor excessive fines imposed..." For the most part our courts have been ignoring that constitutional protection for defendants.

Since the Earl Warren court and its far-reaching influence our judicial system has been preoccupied with protecting the little guy.

Carried to an extreme, however, that disproportionately punishes the big guy — the insurance company, the bank, the manufacturer.

I must footnote this with a specific if unrelated courtroom experience.

In Battle Creek, Mich., the defendant before the court was charged with assault. He was being badgered mercilessly by the prosecutor. "You say you didn't hit the plaintiff, you just shoved him a little."

"That's right," said the defendant.

"Oh, now, is it?" snarled the prosecutor. "I want you to come down off the witness stand right now and show the jury just how hard you 'shoved' the plaintiff."

The defendant stepped down, doubled the prosecutor over with a hard blow to the stomach, bloodied his nose and finally knocked him half-conscious to the floor.

Then he turned to the jury and said, "Ladies and gentlemen — about one-tenth that hard."

So he's a little stony? That may be good

By ROBERT WALTERS

ATLANTA (NEA) — Let's travel back in time to relive one of the great sports highlights of yesteryear — the sixth game of the 1975 World Series between the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Red Sox.

This was no ordinary sports event. Indeed, it is remembered by countless fans more than a decade later as the contest in which Cincinnati's Pete Rose — "Mr. Baseball" himself — turned to a Boston player in a late inning and proclaimed it to be the most exciting game of his career.

Having won three of the first five games, the Reds needed only one more victory to capture the series — but the capacity crowd of more than 35,000 that packed Boston's Fenway Park on that memorable autumn night was determined that its Red Sox would not be vanquished.

Among those who had come to cheer on the home team was Michael S. Dukakis, a lifelong resident of the Boston area then in the first year of his first term as Massachusetts' governor.

Boston quickly took a 3-0 lead in the first inning — but Cincinnati tied the game 3-3 in the fifth and was leading 6-3 by the time Boston came to bat in the bottom of the eighth.

When the Red Sox placed two men on base, Bernie Carbo was dispatched to the plate as a pinch hitter — a decision that dismayed many hometown fans who rated Carbo's batting skills as somewhere between barely adequate and thoroughly mediocre.

But Carbo astounded his critics by walloping a home run, thus tying a game that some Red Sox fans feared was already lost. As Carbo rounded the bases, the crowd rose and cheered uncontrollably. Some present say Fenway Park trembled.

An impassive Mike Dukakis calmly surveyed the bedlam but displayed virtually no emotion himself.

Neither team scored in the ninth, and the game went into extra innings. The tension reached a feverish level by the time Boston catcher Carlton Fisk came to bat in the bottom of the 12th.

Fisk hit a home run, giving Boston a victory in the game and 3-3 tie in the series. The stadium erupted in a display of emotion seldom seen even in Boston, where the outcome of baseball, basketball and hockey games is a very serious matter.

Mike Dukakis stood with the rest of the crowd, but he was less interested in joining in the joyous celebration than in promptly proceeding to the aisle and getting to his car as quickly as possible.

In the ensuing years, Dukakis has been very sensitive about that story. He insists that he cheered as long and as loud as anyone in the stadium — but both politicians and journalists seated near him during the game say they will never forget his striking lack of enthusiasm.

Indeed, nobody every accused Dukakis of displaying much passion in public. He is quite appealing on television (an asset crucial to success in a presidential campaign), and he wears well over a long period of time — but his preferred form of communication is prose rather than poetry.

Remarking upon Dukakis' lack of charisma already has become something of a cliché — but weaknesses in one context can be strengths in another.

In a crisis, for example, Dukakis could be expected to be cool, calm and collected, while others might be overcome by emotion. His often-criticized aloofness would be viewed as admirable detachment in such a situation.

Unlike too many other politicians, Dukakis has not attempted to invent a new personality for campaign purposes. A secure, self-confident man, he clearly knows himself, his strengths and his weaknesses.

He is a very private person, he displays little public sense of humor, and he is not an especially inspirational leader. His admirable self-confidence sometimes borders on unappealing self-righteousness.

But he has a vision of where he wants to go and the determination to get there. He is another imperfect mortal, flawed like the rest of us but doing his best to succeed.

'L.A. Law' leads in Emmy nominations

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — NBC's L.A. Law swept the nominations for the 40th annual Emmy Awards Thursday, while cable shows won 15 nominations in their debut as competitors against the networks.

L.A. Law received 19 nominations, including best drama series, best lead actor nominations for Michael Tucker and Corbin Bernsen, best supporting actress for Susan Rutan, lead actress for Jill Eikenberry and Susan Dey, two writing nominations for former producer Terry Louise Fisher and four directing nominations.

The CBS cult favorite Beauty and the Beast and NBC's The Golden Girls each received 12 nominations.

NBC once again led the field with 114 nominations, followed by CBS with 87. ABC earned 75, while PBS had 27, and Showtime, Home Box Office and Fox Broadcasting Co. garnered six each.

The Disney Channel captured two nominations, with one for the Turner Broadcasting System, while syndicated shows earned 13.

NBC's Cheers captured 11 nominations and ABC's thirtysomething 10.

CBS' Frank's Place, a so-called "dramedy" which has been put in limbo by the network, got nine nominations.

Earning eight nominations each were the CBS drama Foxfire and NBC's St. Elsewhere, which just completed its final season.

ABC's miniseries Baby M, the NBC miniseries Gore Vidal's Lincoln, and the new syndicated series Star Trek: The Next Generation each earned seven nominations.

Showtime's It's Garry Shandling's Show received four to put it on top of all the cable shows.

Other major cable nominations included: Shelley Duvall's Tall Tales and Legends on Showtime for best children's program; Gilda Radner as outstanding guest performer in a comedy series for It's Garry Shandling's Show, and Billy Crystal for best individual performer in a comedy or variety show for HBO's All Star Salute to the Improv.

The Television Academy of Arts & Sciences decided to allow cable programming to compete with regular broadcast television in this year's Emmy awards because cable shows are now available to a wide national audience.

The nominations were announced from more than 4,500 entries.

Beauty and the Beast was nominated for best drama series and Ron Perlman was nominated as best lead actor for his role as the half-man, half-beast who lives beneath the streets of New York and carries on an unrequited love affair with a beautiful woman lawyer.

CBS' Cagney and Lacey, a previous Emmy winner that was recently canceled by CBS, received two nominations, both for lead actress for co-stars Sharon Gless and Tyne Daly. Both have won that award in the past.

The Golden Girls, winner in the past two years as best comedy series, was nominated again along with stars Rue McClanahan, Bea Arthur, and Betty White, all for lead actress. Estelle Getty was nominated for best supporting actress in a comedy series.

Herb Edelman and Geraldine Fitzgerald were nominated as best guest performers in a comedy series in an episode from the show about four retired women living in the same house in Miami.

The nominees for best comedy series, besides Frank's Place, Golden Girls and Cheers were NBC's Night Court and ABC's The Wonder Years, a new show about growing up in the 1960s, told from the perspective of a 12-year-old boy.

Nominations for outstanding drama series went to Beauty and the Beast, thirtysomething, L.A. Law and St. Elsewhere.

In the outstanding miniseries category, nods went to four shows based on real or historical events and one fictional account of a ruffled old lawyer in London.

The nominees are Baby M, NBC's Billionaire Boys Club and Gore Vidal's Lincoln, The Murder of Mary Phagan, and PBS' Rumpole of the Bailey.

Actress Ann Jillian's movie about her battle with cancer, NBC's The Ann Jillian Story, was nominated as best drama or comedy special, along with CBS' The Attic: The Hiding of Anne Frank, CBS' Foxfire, NBC's Inherit the Wind and NBC's The Taking of Flight 847: The Uli Derickson Story.

Conventioners find way to beat heat — get naked

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

DARLINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Hundreds of unashamed men and women are gathering for a convention at a remote campground this weekend to elect officers, organize committees — and get naked.

Along with serious business, the free-wheeling nudists of the Eastern Sunbathing Association — and their equally unabashed children — plan to lie in the sun, swim and play ping-pong, shuffleboard and volleyball.

"Looking is not a no-no, but staring is," said Turner Stokes, 60, of Leesburg, Va., an electronics engineer and president of the larger American Sunbathing Association. "I'm sure the staring is much worse out among the 'textiles.'"

"Textiles," the nudist term for people who wear clothes all the time in the "textile world," are aliens at White Thorn Lodge.

"Most people seek the breeze, the sun, the rain and the freedom of wearing no pantyhose," said Lynn Arnett, 44, a free-lance writer from Paradise Lakes, Fla. "You tell the first lie of the day when you put your clothes on."

About 1,000 nudists are expected to show up over the weekend at White Thorn Lodge, a pleasant campground on the Ohio-Pennsylvania border about 40 miles west of Pittsburgh, according to lodge secretary K. Mathesius.

Convention security was tight Thursday.

Clothed and nude men guarded the gate. Reporters who shed only their ties were escorted among friendly families sharing lunch at picnic tables, smiling couples sitting on shaded lawn chairs, and naked children running across the grass.

"It's the freedom. It's the comfort. Our society equates nudity with sexuality, but this is a totally non-sexual setting. People are just people here," said Mary Lou Schloss, 40, of Rochester, N.Y., a nudism activist who brought her husband and children to the convention.

Lynn Arnett of Paradise Lakes, Fla., chats with Brian Dotson of River Vale, N.J., on a shuffleboard court Thursday afternoon at the convention.

"I just like the swimming pool, the hot tub and the food," said her son, Evan, 8, a third-grader who wore only cherry soda on his face.

The association's membership comprises 55 percent of the 30,000-member American Sunbathing Association, which helps publicize nudism and rates nudist colonies.

Nudists come in all ages, sizes and shapes, including smooth, wrinkled and scarred; Some live in cabins, recreational vehicles and tents on the grounds.

On Thursday, all sat on towels and wore convention credentials on chains around their necks.

With temperatures in the high 80s, some wore only sneakers and some only T-shirts. Since no one has pockets, the snack bar runs a tab for hamburgers and soft drinks.

Officials said only about 10 percent of card-carrying nudists are unmarried. Women are always wanted.

"There's a problem getting women here, but then why don't many women go into bars by themselves?" Arnett said. "When they find out what it's all about, they say, 'Why did it take me so long?'"

Firefighter's lament: 'I wish it would rain'

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Firefighters raced the wind as they tried to beat back a blaze that raged out of control after consuming 15 homes along the city's edge, while officials offered a $10,000 reward in the suspected arson.

High winds that fanned the fire dropped to 5 mph early this morning, prompting a major assault to take advantage of the lull and cooler temperatures.

The National Weather Service said winds were expected to pick up again, reaching 15 to 25 mph by afternoon.

In Wyoming, fire crews in Yellowstone National Park today were taking the calculated risk of lighting "burnouts" — igniting dead timber and brush in an attempt to keep isolated blazes from combining into fire complexes.

Fires fed by drought-desiccated fields and forests also blackened regions of Alaska, Montana, Idaho, California and Washington state.

In Rapid City, 15 homes and 32 outbuildings had been destroyed and 2,800 acres burned by Thursday evening. The fire was considered 70 percent contained.

"They're going to have trouble holding the lines on the south and southeast," Mary Sue Waxler, U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman, said Thursday night. "My gosh, I wish it would rain."

Earlier Thursday, officials evacuated hundreds more homes in three subdivisions on the west side. On Thursday evening they suggested that people voluntarily leave another large rural housing area.

Gov. George Mickelson offered the $10,000 reward in the suspected arson. He said the state and businesses had put up the money.

A 14-year-old boy was arrested in connection with a small fire, but police said they did not think he was responsible for setting the main fire on Tuesday.

In Yellowstone, officials acknowledged the risk of burnouts.

"But we'd rather burn this out under the best conditions we can control instead of letting the fire run in on us uncontrolled," said Ken Briggeman, a fire official at the Shoshone blaze near Grant Village.

An update Thursday night by infrared mapping showed the number of acres on fire down from 95,000 to about 93,000 in the 2.2 million acre park.

The forecast for today called for ideal burning conditions — good for the wildfires and encouraging for the burnouts — with high temperatures of 75-85 degrees and relative humidities of 15 percent to 22 percent.

A burnout is meant to destroy fallen trees, snags and brush in a controlled manner to rob a fire of fuel to advance.

In the 10,100-acre Shoshone fire, fire crews carrying hand-held drip torches ignited brush and fallen trees Thursday, moving fast to avoid the flare-up as the tinder-dry wood was torched.

Meanwhile, hell-torches — flame throwers on choppers — continued setting burnouts on the northeast flank of the 8,500-acre fire that is threatening Old Faithful and the huge complex that surrounds the famous geyser.

"We're happy with the burnout so far," said fire spokesman Brian Fox. "Once we get the northeast head of the fire dealt with, it can go north, away from Old Faithful."

About 50 people forced from their houses by the marauding 900-acre Madison Gulch timber fire in western Montana were expected to return to their homes today, the U.S. Forest Service said.

In Alaska, firefighters were battling only 16 of 51 wind-whipped fires. Bureau of Land Management spokesman Bill Rockwell said summer fires have blackened 1.4 million acres in Alaska.

Ten families remained evacuated from their homes near the 3,000-acre Willis Gulch fire northeast of Boise, Idaho, as the state imposed strict fire restrictions on government land throughout the dry southern part of the state.

Hundreds of firefighters in Washington state continued to battle a stubborn 3,600-acre forest fire that consumed old-growth timber and logging trees in the Cascade Mountains.

In California, firefighters were working on scores of small fires throughout the Sierra Nevada range, most of them caused by lightning.

But a fire that burned about 30 acres Wednesday near Coulterville, destroying four structures and forcing the evacuation of up to 70 homes, was blamed on a careless 13-year-old smoker.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Pointer To Heaven

Did you ever stop to wonder why so many churches have steeples? The answer is simple — a steeple has meaning — it is a finger pointing to Heaven. The steeple is the architect's way of showing what is important about life, and that is life's relation to God. The steeple also symbolizes the role of the Church as showing men the way to eternal life. Eternal life is not just an extra tacked on to the end of life, but those who know God, and thereby really know themselves aright, share now in the eternal, or heavenly, kind of life, for theirs is the Kingdom of God. If you would live, look for the nearest steeple, and go there to find the meaning of life.

Is something wrong with your life — an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure. Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God. Everyone should be in the Church and the Church should be in everyone!

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: "Come now, let us reason together," says the Lord. "Though your sins are like scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red as crimson, they shall be like wool." (Isaiah 1:18 NIV)

Since the explosion last November, Pampans have tracked with great interest the cleanup and rebuilding of the Hoechst Celanese plant. Only Hoechst Celanese and associate employees have been allowed into the plant proper; therefore, the rest of us have viewed more of the scrapping process than we have of the actual restructuring.

Tons of damaged scrap metal have been hauled out of the plant and deposited near a railroad track. The scrap no longer belongs to Hoechst Celanese; it belongs to the insurance carriers that have sold it to a scrap metal business.

Giant cranes load the scrap onto trucks or railroad freight cars that transport the heaps of damaged, discarded metal to another place.

To those of us who can only see of the plant what we can see from the highway as we drive past, the high visibility of the scrap pile is intimidating. How anything could be left in the plant staggers the imagination! The enormity of rebuilding is driven home with such force, completion seems an impossible dream.

But inside the plant, good work is being done. The plant is being cleaned up and rebuilt better and safer than ever. Eventually the tons of scrap will be properly disposed of, and even the scrap-cluttered area will be cleared and restored.

When a person becomes a Christian, all the damaged, twisted sin scraps are laid out in high visibility for the Savior to see.

For the individual, the exposure is often the first realization of the enormity of personal sinfulness. The realization is intimidating and soul crushing.

However, once laid at Christ's feet, the burden belongs to the Lord to be disposed of properly through divine forgiveness. It no longer belongs to the new Christian to be nursed as guilt or to be allowed to inhibit the progress of the good work going on in the soul.

Within, a perfect cleansing has occurred and ongoing reconstruction and restoration is taking place. The burden of guilt has been washed away and the soul has been left white as snow!

Religion roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Baptist television preachers disagreed over whether scandal-topped TV preachers Jimmy Swaggart and Jim Bakker should be allowed to return to television preaching.

On an ABC television show, the Rev. James Robison of Dallas argued that through forgiveness the Gospel offers "whole and total restoration on the platform and in the pulpit."

However, the Rev. Jerry Falwell of Lynchburg, Va., said clergy have special responsibilities and "we don't have the luxury of a major, scandalous sin, and then going back into the pulpit."

Robison said he has been counseling with Bakker and his wife, Tammy, and "I think we're going to see a miracle in the lives of two people I once despised. I want to see them restored. I love them."

Both Bakker and Swaggart were ousted from their TV operations after sex episodes, but Swaggart defied his denomination's orders to stay off the air for a year, returning to it this week.

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Drawing parallels between the beliefs of Christians and the Shiite Muslims who held him captive for 19 months, the Rev. Lawrence Jenco says that a better understanding of the Islamic religion could "help us overcome such ignorance and stereotyping as we have of the people of Islam."

Muslims believe, as do Christians and Jews, in one God, Jenco said. And that common belief could be used to foster justice and human rights throughout the world, he said.

Jenco outlined the tenets of the Islamic faith to an audience of about 300 at Carroll College in opening a three-day conference entitled "Prophecy and Politics." Jenco was released in July 1986 after 564 days of captivity.

Highland Baptist sets Kid's Praise Days

Highland Baptist Church at the corner of Banks and Kentucky invites children in grades 1 through 6 to Kid's Praise Days from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. daily Aug. 1, 2 and 3.

Kid's Praise Days is an activity in which children have an opportunity to learn to worship Christ in an atmosphere of relaxation and joy.

Activities include the raising of flags, worship services, recreation, Bible teaching and a lunch time together.

Worship services on Monday will be led by Rev. Aaron Laverty of Mobeetie, Tuesday by Rev.

Eddie Coast of White Deer, and Wednesday by Rev. Rick Burton of Groom. These men will each share God's word on a child's level.

Recreation includes an hour of swimming at the Pampa Youth and Community Center. There is a charge of $2 for this.

A competitive game called Scripture Picture, based on the television game Win, Lose or Draw, will also be held daily. Songs in sign language will be taught by Cindy Mangus.

A king and queen will be selected daily. The king and queen will be the boy and girl who have brought the most visitors with them.

There will be Bible study taught by Rev. Joe Wortham about Bible heroes. Stories of Joseph, David and Paul's lives will be taught also.

A sack lunch will be served daily at 11:15 a.m. Children are asked to bring a sack lunch daily; the church will furnish cookies and Kool Aid.

Organizers said all children who have finished grades 1-6 are invited to come and bring their friends to Kid's Praise Days.

Seminaries gaining more women

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of women in seminaries continues to increase, while the number of men decreases, with some predictions that by the year 2000, a fourth of mainline Protestant pastors will be women.

Women still encounter some resistance in roles as church leaders, while male clergy are tending to be older. Nonetheless, the ecclesiastical presence of women spreads, as do the gray hairs among male ministers.

Summing up statistics for the 1987-88 crop of seminarians, the Association of Theological Schools says women now constitute 27 percent of total enrollment.

Fifteen years ago, when inclusive figures first were gathered, women amounted to only 10 percent of enrollment 15 years ago.

Compared to an enrollment then of 3,358, the ranks of women have swelled fourfold to 15,310, up 3 percent this year. But the overall enrollment was down by 1 percent to 55,766.

It was the third straight year of overall decline, as men became a gradually shrinking majority in 201 Protestant and Roman Catholic seminaries, while the proportion, and numbers, of women rose in contrast.

Despite the increase in their numbers, women say they still face obstacles as clergy. In the United Church of Christ, which has the largest number of women — totalling 1,460 — a survey found that 61 percent say they've been turned down for jobs because of their gender.

However, the Rev. Ann Cor-dray, a United Church pastor in Miami, says "there's a great deal more openness toward women leadership in the church than we had for a while."

Most other major Protestant bodies — United Methodist, Episcopal, Presbyterian and Lutheran — now admit women to ordination, although they're barred from it in Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy.

Roman Catholic study of the issue is advocated in a new bishops' draft paper on women.

The International Bulletin of Missionary Research forecasts that by the end of the next decade, one out of four pastors in mainline Protestant congregations will be women.

An encouraging note among male Catholic seminarians came in a nationwide survey that found them more satisfied with their training than their counterparts about 20 years ago.

For example, 88 percent considered their training "very relevant" or "fairly relevant," while only 68 percent did so in 1966. A majority of those studying for the priesthood — 58 percent — approved women being in seminaries.

The findings show "much greater satisfaction" and "more confidence" among Catholic seminarians, say the researchers, the Rev. Eugene Hemrick and sociologist Dean Hoge of Washington.

Meanwhile, the average age of male seminarians has increased from 22 to 32, with an increasing proportion of "delayed vocations," men who have worked in other careers and then switched to study for the ministry.

Fourteen percent of seminarians are over 40.

The Rev. Hugh Thompson, now minister of Oakwood Forest Christian Church in Kingsport, Tenn., had been an accountant before he gave up a lucrative job to pursue seminary training.

"I'm sure my friends thought I'd gone off my rocker," he says, noting that the seminary years drained his family's finances. "But any financial loss has been more than compensated."

He says concentrating on making money can be a disillusioning addiction. However, he says ministers who previously have worked in the secular atmosphere aren't "shocked by what they find in the world because they've been there."

The Rev. Jack McWhirter, now pastor of Concordia Lutheran Church in Kingsport, had been a teacher before entering the ministry.

"I think it gave me a little more mature look at the congregation's needs, he says, "a better balanced way of ministering to people."

New Hope Baptist Church begins construction work on new church

By this fall, members of the New Hope Baptist Church at 404 Harlem in Pampa will be greeted by a new building on Sunday mornings.

The current New Hope Baptist Church, built in 1974, is being torn down this week. Construction on the new facility is scheduled to begin as soon as the demolition is completed.

The Rev. Vurn Martin, pastor of New Hope, is uncertain exactly when the modernized structure will be unveiled. "I wish I could tell you," he said. "The contractor just can't say for sure when he'll finish. The only honest answer I can give is 'in the near future' — hopefully within a few months."

Tech Builders Inc. of Amarillo has contracted to do the structural work. Larry Beck Electric and Malcolm Hinkle Inc., both of Pampa, will install the electricity and plumbing. The New Hope congregation will paint the interior.

The new church will include four classrooms, a pastor's study and a sanctuary with a 274-person seating capacity. The building will measure 96 feet by 50 feet and is designed to allow for the addition of an annex when extra space becomes necessary. The exterior will be of brick with a metal roof.

The Rev. Martin said raising the money for the new building was a project that took the 200

New Hope members several years.

"They are a dedicated group of people who were determined to build a new church," he said. Anyone that had seen the current structure, he continued, would realize "we're building because of necessity."

Martin predicts that the church will be completed in the fall. In the meantime, the congregation will meet at the Southside Senior Citizens Center on Sundays.

To facilitate the construction of the new building, Martin asks for "prayers from the citizens of the community, because we'll need them. The Lord has blessed us so far. And when it's finished, it will be a beautiful church."

Special effects add flair to bird feeder

By PRISCILLA HAUSER

It's great fun to put a bird feeder in your yard! Unless, of course, you have cats. If so, be sure to put your feeder where the cats can't reach it.

Feeders are wonderful entertainment, and they can be painted in so many different ways. The one shown here is very easy to make, and features a large, folk-art flower.

Most of our folk-art flower forms come from designs created in the European countries. There are tulips, anemones, dog roses, ball flower forms and lots more. This one is a large ball flower.

The feeder is first sealed and base coated; then the decorative painting is done (the fun part). When the design is completely dry, the feeder is flyspecked, which is the technique that creates the tiny specks of color in a soft, all-over pattern and gives the design an unusual but not flashy look.

As an alternative, you may wish to antique the feeder. Whichever finish you choose, the bird feeder should be coated with a good, exterior-grade varnish to protect it from the elements.

Crafts

If you would like complete plans, you may order them in our new packet, Priscilla Hauser's Tole & Decorative Painting on Wood. It contains a booklet of detailed how-to-paint instructions, full-size patterns and paint-along color worksheets for six delightful designs, plus illustrated step-by-step plans for building 10 easy and useful wood projects.

To order, specify Packet No. 4300. Please include a check or money order for our special newspaper discount price of $24.95, which is $10 off the normal price of $34.95! Mail to: For Whom the Brush Toles, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008.

Flyspecking is a special effects technique that's as much fun as it is easy to do. It's almost like being a kid again, playing with your toothbrush in the bathroom sink.

The technique is exactly what its name implies: an all-over, random pattern of tiny specks of paint. It creates interest without drawing attention to itself, as some other special effects do.

Practice flyspecking on large pieces of brown paper, making sure you have protected whatever is behind the paper. Thin your paint to a very loose consistency.

Rub an ordinary toothbrush in the paint, and then point the bristle end of the brush at the brown paper. Pull your thumb across the brush, allowing the splatters of paint to flow onto the paper.

Move the brush slowly as you work, so you don't get too many specks in any one area. Try to place the specks fairly evenly across the surface.

Some specks will be big, others small. Note how the pattern of specks, and the individual specks, differ when you hold the brush closer to or farther away from the paper. Note how they change as you move the brush faster or slower.

When you do flyspecking on your project, be sure to mask off any areas that you do not want splattered with paint.

Antiquing is a lovely and interesting finishing technique. Done correctly and with a light touch, it lends great beauty and character to a painted piece.

First, it is important to varnish your painted project. This will seal and protect it, so if you don't like the antiquing, you can simply wipe it off!

For antiquing, I use a clear, oil-base glaze with a selected oil color or colors mixed in. Brush this mixture over the entire surface of your project, but DON'T PANIC when you see your beautifully painted design covered by a brownish mess—the varnish will protect it.

Use a soft, absorbent rag, towel or cheese cloth to wipe off the desired amount of antiquing. Be sure to wipe with the grain of the wood. I like to leave the edges a little darker.

Allow the project to dry and then apply a final coat of varnish. For bird feeders and other projects that will live outdoors, polyurethane varnish is recommended.

There isn't any outdoor finish that really will last for more than one year. That means that each year you will need to take your feeder in, clean it, sand it lightly and give it another coat of varnish.

Taxpayer thinks it's a crime to fund inmates' education

DEAR ABBY: The feature story of today's newspaper was the coverage of a college graduation ceremony.

All of the graduates were incarcerated at one of our state's prisons. We helped them obtain full college degrees. Abby, I take as many college courses as my available time allows, and it costs me a bundle to pay all my regular living and eating expenses.

I've looked for help. You have to be poverty-stricken before you can qualify for government help. It hurts me more to strive for my education than if I was in prison. Doesn't it seem that something is turned around?

DARRELL BROWN,
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.

DEAR DARRELL: I applaud a system that enables prison inmates to become college graduates at the government's expense. Too bad every law-abiding person in the USA who wants a college education isn't given the same break.

DEAR ABBY: For five years I was with a wonderful man I'll call "G." We got along very well and, despite several setbacks, we seemed perfect for each other. We even talked of marriage and spending the rest of our lives together.

During the last three years of our relationship, G. lived in a distant state, and we saw each other only twice in all that time. Each visit was wonderful. We kept in touch, though it was very hard to be so far apart.

Over Christmas this past year, G. came to visit me. It was great seeing him again, but we had grown apart, and the whole visit was rather strained. To save myself the pain of having him break it off, I did it first.

Since then, I've tried to forget him and see other people, but it hasn't worked. I miss him terribly. So, I called him last week and we talked for a long time. I told him I wanted to come to see him, but he said he'd been living the bachelor's life for the last couple of months and that several people wouldn't like me to be there! He meant "women," and I ished. Save yourself further humiliation and back off.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I've never seen in your column. At the dinner table, my husband gobbles down his food, then starts eating off my plate!

I am a slow eater, preferring to take my time and enjoy my meal. Am I wrong to say that he is rude? Or should I put up with it and get used to the idea of eating half a meal?

SPEEDY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is rude, and you may say it. But what makes you think you have to put up with it? Simply tell "Speedy" to slow up, and if he's still hungry after eating his meal, suggest that he take a second helping and kindly keep his marauding fork off your plate.

Automation will affect office design

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—The increased usage of automated equipment will affect the design of future offices, according to the latest survey sponsored by a company that designs and manufactures office furniture.

Some eight out of 10 office workers, or 78 percent, use computers, according to the 1988 Office Environment Index survey conducted by Louis Harris and Associates for Steelcase Inc., headquartered in Grand Rapids. This is an increase of 12 percent since the 1987 study. Contract interior designers and facilities managers agree the computer usage growth will have an impact on future office designs.

Computer-using office workers spend an average of 3.8 hours a day at a computer terminal, with 69 percent reporting they use it in their own workspace, the survey found.

Teleconferences will also impact office design, notes Debra Bryant, a marketing manager at Steelcase.

Some 32 percent of office workers reported their organizations have a teleconferencing center for video hookup to other facilities, she adds. About half of the workers with access to teleconferencing use it regularly.

The survey involved office workers, senior executives, facilities managers and contract interior designers in the United States and office workers and senior executives in Canada. It revealed that personal computers and terminals are used less in Canada, with 71 percent of workers, as opposed to 78 percent of the U.S. workers. The average daily usage of personal computers is similar in both groups.

The objective of the survey, according to Robert C. Pew, chairman and chief executive officer of Steelcase, "is to help monitor trends and identify significant developments in the office environment, including issue-affecting attitudes and productivity."

Kirk, Alexander share lead in Tri-State golf

First-round leader Jim Kirk of Ardmore, Okla. has some company at the head of the line after 36 holes into the Tri-State Senior Golf Association Tournament.

Dick Alexander of Lubbock shot a 1-over par 72 Thursday to share the lead with Kirk at 143 going into today's final round at the Pampa Country Club course. Kirk, who held a 3-stroke lead with a 68 Wednesday, slipped to a second-round 75 after a double-bogey and two bogeys on the back nine.

Alexander, who shared second with three others after the first day of play, used a birdie on No. 17 and an eagle on No. 18 to catch Kirk.

Former Pampan Max Hickey of Spring is just one shot behind the leaders at 144 after a 71 yesterday.

"I sank a 40-foot downhill for a birdie on No. 12 and that really boosted my confidence. I just seemed to play much better after making that putt," Hickey commented.

Hickey, playing in his first Tri-State tourney, was in eighth place after an opening round of 73.

Don Matheson of Fort Worth and Andy Manning of Richardson are tied for fourth at 146.

Defending champion Ken Bailey of Amarillo continues having his problems. Bailey was mired in 13th place after a first-round 77 and just barely made the cut (156 and below) with a 79 Thursday.

"This course must have it in for me. Gremlins must be following me around. I hit the No. 3 pin on the fly and the ball bounced back to the froghair. I hit the water on another hole and buried another shot underneath a pine tree," Bailey said.

Players who shot 156 or below remain in the championship flight while the others drop into the president's flight.

During last night's senior banquet, Dr. Joe Donaldson of Pampa received the prestigious Colonel Bogey Award. The award is presented annually to the Tri-State member who has made outstanding contributions to the organization.

Dr. Donaldson served as TSSGA president in 1987. He was the tournament medalist in 1974.

Carlton Freeman of Pampa took over the gavel as new TSSGA president last night, succeeding John Short of Midwest City.

Pampa 13 all-stars eliminated by Andrews

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Writer

Pampa's 13-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars became West Texas State runners-up when they were defeated 13-3 by Andrews at the state tournament in Denver City Thursday night.

The game was stopped in the sixth inning when Andrews went up 10 runs over Pampa.

Pampa jumped to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning. Will Winborne led off with a walk, stole second and got to third on a sacrifice. He put Pampa on the scoreboard when he stole home on a wild pitch.

However, in the bottom of the first, according to Pampa coach Dale West, "Andrews answered our one run with five runs, and it went downhill from there." The Andrews rally was fueled by four base hits and two walks.

Pampa brought the score to 5-2 with another run in the third. Tarin Peet got to base on balls, stole second, tagged up on a fly, and crossed the plate on an error. Andrews rallied for another four runs on three hits and two errors.

Chris Poole led off with a base hit in the top of the fourth. Hits by Chester Jackson and Peet scored Poole, although the side was retired, stranding two runners and ending the scoring for Pampa.

Andrews scored a run in each of the fourth, fifth and sixth innings to finish the game.

"They had a good hitting ball club," said Coach West. "Their lead-off hitter cranked one about 300 feet over the fence in the fifth." That homerun, hit by Andrews' Emiliano, was the second round-tripper of the tournament. Pampa's Kurt West hit the first one earlier in the week. Andrews collected nine hits in wrestling the championship from Pampa. Three batters rapped eight of the nine. Emiliano went 2-for-4, one of them a homer. Rudy Madriles and Danny Kuyendal both were 3-for-3, and Heath McBeth had one hit.

Pampa touched the Andrews pitcher for four hits. Chris Poole, who went 2-for-3, was the leading hitter. Chester Jackson and Tarin Peet had one hit apiece.

The Andrews All-Stars won every game in the tournament by the 10-run rule. They routed Hereford 23-2, defeated Levelland 12-2 and beat Pampa twice to advance to the Southwest Regional Tournament.

"Our boys were a little intimidated by them," West said. "We just never got rolling. They had a pitcher with a little curve ball, and we couldn't hit it. "Jeff Tidwell did a good job for us on the mound, and I'm real proud of all our kids—they played well in the tournament. Andrews deserved to win, and they'll represent West Texas well in the regional tournament. There's nothing wrong with being runners-up in the state championship."

Pampa was eliminated by Levelland 3-2 and 5-3 in the finals of the West Texas State Babe Ruth 14-15 Tournament last night in Canyon. Pampa was unbeaten going into the tournament finals.

Astros slip by Padres 3-2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pitcher Eric Show says he took a gamble at the urging of catcher Benito Santiago, but it didn't pay off for the Padres.

It resulted in a two-run homer in the first by Astros second baseman Bill Doran, who led Houston to a 2-1 victory over San Diego Thursday.

"I had him 0-2 with a fastball and slider," Show said of Doran. "Then (Santiago) called for a curve, which is not a pitch I usually throw in that situation. But I figured why not? It was slow curve, and he just hit it out."

"It certainly wasn't anything I was trying to do," Doran said. "I was just trying to pull the ball on the ground to get (Billy) Hatcher over to third base. It was a mistake but I'll take it."

Show, 7-10, admits he wasn't exactly stellar in the four following innings either.

Physicals scheduled

Freshmen and seventh grade boys and girls, who plan to play sports during the 1988-89 Pampa school year, must have their physicals before school starts.

Physicals will be given at the high school fieldhouse with the following schedule: ninth-grade girls and seventh-grade girls, Thursday, Aug. 4, 1 p.m.; ninth-grade boys and seventh-grade boys, Thursday, Aug. 11, 1 p.m.

New students who did not participate in athletics last year, and who are in the eighth, tenth, eleventh or twelfth grades and plan on participating this year, can get their physicals during one of the above-scheduled dates.

If more information is needed, call Albert Nichols at 665-5491, Dick Dunham at 669-6722, 665-2921, 665-6758 or the athletic office at 669-6722.

Pampa public golf course taking shape

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Although it's much too early to speculate on a completion date for the Pampa Public Golf Course, Gray County employees and volunteer workers are making rapid progress toward the grand opening of the 18-hole, 6,723 layout.

"It's amazing," says Vic Raymond, who along with Buddy Epperson, co-chairs the PPGA's advisory committee. "The support has been tremendous. We have people asking us all the time how they can help."

Volunteer laborers have overflowed the course to help county employees and already 14 greens have been roughed in and 15 fairways are almost finished.

"We'll ask for four or five people to do a job and 10 to 15 people will show up," Epperson said.

However, Epperson hopes the volunteers keep turning out in droves.

"We've still got a long way to go and there will always be plenty to do," added Epperson.

Both men voiced their appreciation to surveyor Lynn Bezner and county commissioner Jim Greene.

"Lynn surveyed both the the course and the property surrounding it and saved us a bunch of money," Epperson said.

"Jim was opposed to building the course, but he put his personal feelings aside and really got things moving out there," Raymond said.

The golf course is located in Greene's district.

The PPGA is currently in need of a travel trailer or an oil field drilling office to serve as temporary quarters for golf course engineer Ray Hardy of El Paso, who is now staying at a local motel.

"We need something for Ray to stay in out on the course. He'd be using it until fall," Epperson said.

The PPGA is also looking for someone who has a tractor with automatic post hole diggers to dig about three miles of holes around the course. Phillips Petroleum Co. has donated about 4,000 posts, which will be attached to cable to keep people from driving on the course, Epperson said.

Raymond feels the public golf course, which is located on the northeast corner of Texas Highway 70 and Loop 171, will be one of the finest in the Panhandle.

"Our irrigation system, greens and tee boxes will be the best there is, and the other things like a clubhouse and golf cart barn, will follow along later," Raymond said.

Persons interested in donating funds or volunteering their labor can contact Epperson at 669-6291. Donations will be tax-deductible if checks are made out to the city or county. Donors, however, should write in the "Pampa Public Golf Course Construction Fund" on the memo line.

An irrigation system will be installed in the near future after Pampa city commissioners awarded a $109, 872 bid to Western Industrial earlier this week.

"Waterlines will be put in before the greens are seeded," said assistant city manager Frank Smith.

"By then, the teeboxes should be built and the fairways should be ready."

Smith said the parking lot and the road leading into the golf course has been scaped off and caliche will be added later.

"We've got a good road leading into the course now," added Smith.

Workers are in the process of completing cart paths on three holes around a water hazard, Smith said.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the course were held July 12.
