The Flag Flies Onward!

It is a faded, frayed and almost threadbare cloth symbol of the nation, carried gently in weathered hands to its final resting place. From the special triangle-shaped military fold, an American flag is ceremoniously unfurled one last time. Hands snap to salute as flames slowly trace the wine-tattered edges and slowly up the stripes to the faded blue surrounding white stars. In a moment, the Stars and Stripes is consumed in fire. Not just on Flag Day but whenever appropriate, veterans quietly gather to permanently retire the American flag in these dignified ceremonies.

The Federal Flag Code directs that when the flag is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should be destroyed in a dignified way, preferably by burning. The Flag Code is silent on just how, other than to suggest that the disposal of a worn or soiled flag should be done in good taste and without disrespect during the ceremony.

I can remember growing up in a time when flag ceremonies were commonplace. I refer to the everyday ceremony of raising the American flag. Yet, how often these days do you see passers-by stop with their right hand over their heart to face the flag as it is hoisted for the day? Often, it seems many folks walk by, not intending disrespect, but they may be busy, embarrassed or perhaps never heard of many of the flag customs.

Since it is impossible to honor each American who secured our liberty and protected our freedom, the American flag embodies that

Four Types Child Abuse

David Tipps opened the regular noon meeting of the Muleshoe Rotary club. Curtis Shelbourne gave the invocation and Mike McDearman led the group in the Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag. Terry Hutto led the singing of "America" and "Smile, Sing a Song".

Guests James Cox, Aaron Purdy, and Reagan McElroy were welcomed, and the press was appreciated.

Financial conditions were discussed.

Legal fees were discussed of the Boy Scout Council on "Girls, Gays, and God". Several examples were given about a 16 year old girl that was a Girl Scout and, thinking she could go to more heights, wanted to become a Boy Scout; a man that was a Sunday School teacher and a Boy Scout leader who sexually molested his nephew. Instead of suing the liable person, the lawyers sued the Boy Scouts of America.

The program was given by Boy

Scout leader, Terry Hutto on Child abuse. A Leadership Training Program video was shown on a "Youth Training Session", in which child protection is provided to staff members.

A childhood is a time of innocence, when we truly believe we can do anything we really want to do. Memories of a childhood last a lifetime...

Child abuse is considered to a child under the age of eighteen, in form of neglect, social abuse, and sexual abuse. It is usually performed by a person known to the child. Statistics show that one in seven women and one in ten men will be abused.

The first step to handling abuse is to accept the reality of child abuse and the responsibility to do something about it. Boy Scout leaders are there to enhance the lives of the children and to protect them.

Child abuse is based on four types of abuse: neglect-failure to provide for the child, even though funds are available; emotional abuse-placing stress on the child through forms of mental abuse; and physical abuse-excessive punishment to the child which is adult anger transformed into abuse to the child; and sexual abuse-which extends from fondling to sexual intercourse.

Leaders are trained on how to spot such abuse and how to handle the situation when it arises.

Hutto charts twenty-five boys between the ages of 11 up to 18 in his Boy Scout Troup. A camp trip to Tresitos, NM was discussed, and the importance was stressed of how important these outings are for boys to learn how to take care of themselves. "They learn to cook for themselves, as well as how to clean up their messes, and take care of others," Hutto commented.

A meal of chicken fried steak, mashed potatoes, corn, green beans, cabbage, salad, hot rolls, tea and plum cobbler was served by Jackie Denim, assisted by Lori Hall.

Farm Road To Be Extended

The Texas Department of Transportation has scheduled a meeting with property owners and residents in the vicinity of the paved county road that serves the Three-Way School in southwestern Bailey County.

The Department is currently planning to extend F.M. 1731 south from its present terminal at F.M. 298 to F.M. 54, following the same route as the paved county road.

All interested citizens are urged to attend a meeting in the cafeteria of the Three Way School on Thursday, June 17, at 7 p.m., to discuss the Department's proposal. Rhea Bradley, area engineer in Littlefield, and David Harper, assistant area engineer, will conduct the meeting. They will be there to describe the highway construction and to answer questions about the proposed project.

The proposal for highway improvements will construct a new farm-to-market highway to replace the existing county owned paved road that serves area farmers and ranchers and the Three-Way Independent School District.

Construction of a modern, two-lane, rural highway will better accommodate local farm and ranch traffic, travel between northern and southern portions of the county, and rural school traffic than does the existing county road.

Right-of-way widths will be expanded from an existing typical 80 feet of width to a usual 120 feet of width through the acquisition of approximately 40 feet of additional right-of-way width along the east side of the existing county right-of-way line.

If you are unable to attend the meeting, you may contact the Littlefield Area Engineer's Office located on West Delano Avenue in Littlefield, or you may call 806-385-3552 to discuss the proposed project.

USDA To Help Provide Housing For Homeless

Rural residents who are homeless or inadequately-housed families may now have a chance to become homeowners under a plan being adopted by the Farmers Home Administration, (FmHA), Joyce M. Thompson, FmHA County supervisor, said.

Under the plan, special emphasis will be given to homes that have been in FmHA's inventory at least 18 months. Inventory homes will be offered to public bodies, including housing authorities and nonprofit community-based organizations, for rent to the homeless, or in some cases, FmHA will rent directly to the individuals, Thompson said. In addition homes which were recently acquired by FmHA into inventory but have not yet been repaired will also be offered for lease to the homeless.

The families who obtain the housing from the public bodies or nonprofit organizations may apply to buy the house at any time during the lease.

Those who rent directly from FmHA will pay rent based on their income and will be given the opportunity to buy the house they rent. Thompson said that many homeless people work and have incomes, and have the potential to become homeowners.

"By helping people find a decent place to live, we also help eliminate the cost to taxpayers of maintaining vacant houses," Thompson said. FmHA officials in Texas are seeking organizations which are interested in providing housing to the homeless and to inadequately-housed families.

Reversing Heart Disease: A Call To Action

The time to improve health among African-Americans is now.

Contrary to the diseases most often given press coverage in the African-American community, the chief cause of death is heart disease, the number one killer of Americans in general. Studies have shown, however, that in concentrated urban environments, African-Americans are more likely to suffer the devastating effects of this common disorder.

A study in the Harlem community revealed that death rates of people living in Central Harlem--96 percent of whom are African-American and 41 percent in poverty--are nearly three times as likely to die before age 65 as are whites.

Heart disease includes a number of conditions but heart attack (when a part of the heart muscle dies due to lack of blood flow) and heart failure (when the heart muscle fails to pump the amount of blood to serve the body's needs) make up most of these problems.

All Americans are at risk to get heart disease but some people are at higher risk than others. Heart disease runs in families so your risk is increased if you have relatives with heart disease.

People with diabetes and/or high blood pressure (hypertension) are at increased risk. African-Americans have higher rates of both diseases. Other risk factors include smoking, being overweight, lack of regular exercise, chronic stress, high blood cholesterol levels, and unhealthy diets. Everyone should learn how to reduce their risk of getting heart disease and then take the necessary steps to increase their chances to live a long, healthy life.

Until recently, the primary approach of the medical profession toward heart disease was to treat the problem once it appeared. Fortunately, prevention is gaining in importance as doctors learn more about the causes of heart disease.

More importantly, medical science has taught us that people can be empowered to lower their risks for heart disease. Those with diabetes and hypertension should be under a doctor's care and follow his or her advice to control these diseases.

All people, regardless of their individual risk, can increase their chances of living without heart disease by leading healthier lifestyles. Those who smoke should stop and overweight persons should reduce their weight.

Important, too, is regular exercise--even if it is walking--which not only reduces your risk for heart disease but also makes for better control of diabetes and hypertension.

A "heart-friendly" diet low in saturated fats, cholesterol and salt is recommended. But it may not be easy.

A recent study at Baylor College of Medicine's Nutrition Research Center revealed that African-Americans--particularly women--may have a more difficult time in losing weight.

Traditional foods and lifestyle problems can interfere with following a weight loss program. The study was one of four pilot studies for a proposed five-year Black American Lifestyle Intervention (BALI) study to look at long-term outcome of obesity control among minority women. Stay tuned.

Exercise and dietary changes traditionally have been recommended for people with heart disease and to those who have been identified to be at high risk. Since leading a healthier lifestyle is beneficial for everyone regardless of risk for heart disease, these lifestyle changes are useful for the community as a whole. This is particularly important for the African American Community considering the devastating toll heart disease has taken.

Community efforts to support a healthy lifestyle can increase your chances to live without heart disease.

News From Congressman Larry Combest

A record five million families are on welfare. Food stamps now go to 27 million people. For some time, I have urged that we as a nation take another look at perpetuating a system that does little more than leave a welfare check as the only inheritance for each new generation. One of the goals that Bill Clinton set last year was "ending welfare as we know it." In developing his reform ideas, the president should work for support from Congress and consensus from the American people.

Many welfare families are headed by a divorced parent who is owed child support money, but whose ex-spouse escapes state court judgments by crossing state lines. States that cannot collect on behalf of spouses look to federal taxpayers to make up the difference: as much as $6 billion each year. Strict federal laws should make the deadbeats pay up and live up to their obligations. Collecting what is due single parents is also an important move toward restoring their dignity.

The president is moving in the right direction about breaking the generation to generation dependency on welfare by limiting the benefits to two years. Conservatives in Congress have already introduced welfare reform that requires welfare recipients to work their way off welfare in exchange for incentives. I believe government assistance should only be given to those who are willing to help themselves.

While welfare recipients must either work in the private sector or work in a job provided by the government--they must be working for the welfare check they receive. The cost could be as much as $3 billion over a five-year period, but they will be breaking a sweat instead of just collecting a check. I believe most people on welfare would prefer independent jobs rather than the trap of a government check.

The current welfare trap reduces a recipient's lifeline of benefits with each step taken toward employment. As the welfare recipient reaches each $1,000 increment in pay, benefits are reduced--just as the effort is made to climb out of the hole. A typical benefits package (AFDC, Food Stamps and Medicaid) collects

Alliance For Quality Education Begins School Funding Campaign

The Legislature, governor and lieutenant governor have been under tremendous pressure to get a funding plan passed by the court-imposed June 1 deadline. "It has been an extremely difficult job, but they appear to have avoided an order by the judge that would have closed the schools," said Gower.

"Everyone agrees that would have been disastrous.

"But now that the pressure is off, AQE will step up its campaign to convince the people of Texas and our legislators that it is time for a fundamental change in the way we fund education. The Business Plan to Support Schools will provide a stable funding source for education, bring equity to school districts, modernize and increase the effectiveness of the state tax structure, and let educators and school administrators get back to the business of teaching children."

The plan would also provide needed tax relief for homeowners, AQE maintains. "Property taxes for schools have increased 61 percent since 1987," Gower said. "The AQE plan could help put a stop to those large increases by asking all businesses to pay a proportionate share for schools. Homeowners in Texas need that kind of a break."

AQE introduced the Business Plan three days after the so-called "Robin Hood" plan was soundly defeated by Texas voters. The plan was not formally considered by the Legislature during the closing days of the session because of the rush to find a solution using the current tax system.

Since its introduction, however, the Business Plan has gained recognition and acceptance from a variety of groups including educators, business groups, Texas newspapers and homeowners. Gower said the priority for AQE in the coming months will be to build membership among businesses, other organizations and individuals. AQE team members will step up their pace in meeting with legislators, government leaders, business organizations and educators to outline the plan.

"Now is the time for thoughtful consideration of all the available alternatives," said Gower, "including progressive reform of the state business tax structure for education. We're taking a long-range view to effect a more permanent and long-lasting solution."

The Alliance for Quality Education is a business-led coalition with membership and support from educators, citizen-taxpayers and businesses of all sizes.

Now that the Legislature has found a temporary fix for the much-debated school finance issue, one group of prominent business leaders and educators wants to turn the focus to finding a long-term solution to education finance and to reforming the property tax system.

The Alliance for Quality Education announced that it will undertake a statewide effort to focus the attention of the State Legislature on adoption of a permanent and long-term solution to public school finance through a broad-based business tax. The plan, which would have all companies pay for schools in proportion to the amount of business they do in Texas, calls for a significant overhaul of the state's property tax system.

"The Legislature has successfully completed work on a temporary measure that thankfully will keep the schools open," said Bob G. Gower, chairman of the Alliance for Quality Education. "Now attention must be turned to finding a long-term, stable funding source for education and reforming the tax system that has caused many of the problems we have been facing in Texas from the court system."

"The time to begin working on a long-term solution is now, between legislative sessions, when a plan can be developed without the time pressures the Legislature has been under," Gower said.

"The property tax system no doubt worked well in the days when wealth was measured in terms of property owned," noted Gower, "but the Texas economy has changed and we need a stable source of funding for education that reflects today's Texas."

The AQE plan, called the Business Plan to Support Schools, would eliminate two business taxes that only some Texas businesses pay, and replace them with one broad-based business tax that fairly divides the tax burden among all but the very smallest of Texas businesses.

The additional revenue which the Business Plan would raise would make it possible for Texas to avoid using an unpopular state personal income tax to fund schools.

One tax that would be repealed is the local business property tax for schools. The property tax is considered ineffective in raising funds for schools because it heavily taxes only homeowners and those businesses that own large amounts of real estate or have large capital investments, while businesses that do not own much property pay relatively little toward public education. That limits the ability of local school districts to raise funds for schools under the property tax.

The business property tax also impedes commercial expansion and creation of new enterprises. "Texas has to fight hard to bring a thousand jobs here, two thousand jobs there," Gower said. "Here we have an opportunity to do something significant for Texas workers through the way we raise funds for the schools."

Also eliminated would be the franchise/earned surplus tax, which is paid only by corporations. Joint ventures, limited partnerships and other unincorporated entities are currently exempt from this tax, which also penalizes companies that make large capital investments in Texas. At the same time, by leaving so many Texas companies outside its reach, the franchise/earned surplus tax limits the state's ability to raise money for the general revenue which funds state aid to education.

The single broad-based replacement tax would be levied against all businesses in the state equally, based on their economic activity in Texas, with very small businesses and agriculture exempted. Economic models show that such a tax would increase economic growth in the state by making the tax system more efficient, says AQE leaders.

1993 Summer Reading Club- Follow The Yellow Brick Road To Reading Adventures!

The Reading Club got off to a good start! With 161 members at the end of the 1st week, things are really getting hectic around the library. The first Film and Fun Day, about 58 kids started a pretend journey with Dorothy and her friends by watching film clips from The Wizard Of Oz, and were given posters to color, and bring back to display in the library. And guess what, the really, truly "Tin-Man" has come to the library courtesy of the creator, D.T. Garth of Garth Metals. We appreciated his bringing him to the library for the kids to enjoy, and hopefully, by the time the reading club is over, he will have a heart! Pat Young happened to be here just in time to put some finishing touches, and we appreciate her so much. Kids have been getting treats, such as candy, cold pops, tickets for swimming at the City Pool, and sundaes at Dairy Queen, after their first 10 books read. All this due to our wonderful sponsors, who have been so generous, and is truly appreciated! There is still time to sign-up and join the fun!

Garza Theatre Presents "A Harley Sadler Show"

In a salute to one of West Texas' most popular personalities, the beloved tent show entertainer, Harley Sadler, this summer the Garza Theatre in Post, Texas will offer "A Harley Sadler Show" 20 times, Thursday thru Sunday, beginning July 1, 1993 continuing through August 1, 1993.

"A Harley Sadler Show" features the three comedy, "Natalie Needs a Nightie", by Neil and Caroline Schaffner. It's a fast-paced family comedy which was performed a number of times on the tent show circuit. Although Harley Sadler's shows were presented in tents, we once again recreate the old-fashioned "under the canvas" atmosphere within the Garza Theatre building.

Starring in the show will be area favorite performers: Jon Steele, David Weaver, Jr, Rick Fay, Charles Somerville, Alison Hoefler, Raina Kennedy, and Don Evelyn Fondy. Evening performances begin promptly at 7:45 pm and Sunday matinees begin at 2:30 pm. The fun begins one-half hour before showtime with a musical concert inside the theatre, featuring our own live "The Musical Gray's Stock Company" band.

There will also be a BENEFIT SHOW on July 10, 1993 beginning at 2:00 p.m. with a $5.00 admission fee, which will include "The Musical Gray's Stock Company" band, and a variety of vaudeville acts, such as "Toby Goes to the Crazy House" and "I'm Herbert". This performance will be different from the one that evening, so come and spend the day in Post and enjoy both performances.

Call the Garza Theatre box office at 1-800-846-3706 or (806) 495-4005 for information and reservations. The box office is opened Monday thru Friday, 12:00 noon to 5:00 pm, and on "show" Saturdays and Sundays from 12:00 noon to showtime. Ticket prices are $7.00 for adults and $4.00 for students ages 6-12. Ask about our special rates for groups of 12 or more.

It's strange how some people can tell you what's best for you.

David G. Brown

Bestselling Cowboy-Author To Visit Clovis

It was announced here this week that David G. Brown, bestselling author of Gold Buckle Dreams—the Rodeo life of Chris LeDoux (Wolverine Galleries, 1989) will be appearing in person this weekend at Hastings Records and Books to sign books and answer questions.

First released in hardback in 1987, Gold Buckle Dreams quickly became a regional #1 Bestseller and was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize. Now available only in softcover, the book is enjoying a resurgence in popularity due to LeDoux's meteoric rise in the country music business. The softcover version of Gold Buckle Dreams is now a National Bestseller.

LeDoux's first Top-Ten hit, Whatcha Gonna Do With A Cowboy, a duet with Garth Brooks, was nominated for both Grammy and Country Music Association Awards as well as catapulting the album of the same name into "Gold-Record" status. The album also contains the subsequent hits Cadillac Ranch, and Just Look At You, Girl. His second Liberty album is due out this month. But LeDoux's biography, Gold Buckle Dreams, does not deal with the entertainer's music career; it deals with his rodeo career.

Chris LeDoux is the 1976 World Champion Bareback Rider, and Gold Buckle Dreams captures the life and essence of the rodeo cowboy. But beyond taking a look at the real-life world of rodeo, it is a story of human achievement—the reward of hard work and dedication—the whole family can enjoy, regardless of your personal knowledge of rodeo.

"Chris LeDoux," Brown notes, "is the only world champion rodeo cowboy who has signed with a major record label (Liberty Records). There's a lot of "wannabe" cowboys out there, but Chris is the real thing. It's the way he's lived his whole life, and his music shows it. Gold Buckle Dreams shows folks the dirt-sweat cowboy behind the now-famous singer."

Like LeDoux, Brown is himself a bareback rider and member of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association. Brown also works as an air traffic controller at McCarran International Airport in Las Vegas, Nevada, the 14th busiest airport in the nation.

In addition to writing and air traffic control work, Brown has dabbled as an actor. He is a member of the Screen Actor's Guild, and has appeared in such television programs as Young Riders and Hearts Are Wild. Brown also can be seen in the major motion pictures Honeymoon in Vegas starring James Caan and Nicholas Cage, and Pure Country, starring George Strait, Leslie Ann Warren and Isabel Glasser.

You can meet David G. Brown in person Friday from 7-9 p.m. at Hastings Records & Books in Clovis.

Families Sought For Exchange Students

How would you like to engage in a 10 month cultural experience without ever leaving your own home?

Right now Brad Huckabee, local coordinator for the AIFS Foundation's Academic Year in America (AYA) high school exchange program, is searching for families in the Muleshoe area to host high school students arriving this August from countries across the globe.

Students ages 15-18 from Brazil, Germany, Indonesia, China, Russia and many other countries will arrive in the United States to spend between five and ten months attending local high schools and living with an American family.

All have studied English, have their own spending money and full medical insurance provided by AYA. It is the goal of the AIFS Foundation's Academic Year in America (AYA) program that these inquisitive young ambassadors will grow to understand American culture, and depart the U.S. with an appreciation for American interests, values and traditions.

Families who host AYA students have the unique opportunity to share their traditions and values with a foreign student, and in exchange learn the language and customs of another country. Host families are awarded up to $800 in scholarship funds to be used on AIFS travel/study abroad programs. Whether you have young children, teenage children or no children, you may qualify as a host family if you can provide a bed, a place to study, two meals a day and an open heart. Interested families are invited to choose a boy or girl who would best fit with their lifestyles and interests, and hosting can be August through December, January through June or August through June. Since 1964, the AIFS Foundation, a not-for-profit organization, has been promoting worldwide understanding through cross-cultural exchange in the Muleshoe area.

If you are interested in learning more about becoming a Host Family, you are asked to contact Brad at 806-293-0666, or Regional Director Doug Moran at the AYA national office at 1-800-322-4678.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams and Ed Sterling

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN - One day following adjournment of the Texas Legislature, State District Judge Scott McCown said public schools will remain open - at least for the coming year - under a new plan aimed at equalizing wealth between property-rich and property-poor school districts.

But Gov. Ann Richard's signature on the multiple-choice plan was barely dry before its legality was thrown into doubt when lawyers for property-poor districts announced they would challenge its constitutionality.

"There are still inequities in the system," said Al Kauffman, an attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund that represents the plaintiffs in the long-running school finance lawsuit.

Three Reasons Plan Unfair

Kauffman listed three reasons the current system is unfair and should be declared unconstitutional:

- It doesn't provide property-poor school districts equal access to school revenue at similar tax rates.
- It doesn't address inequities in classrooms and facilities.
- It leaves a gap of $600 to $1,000 in per-student funding between property-poor and property-rich school districts.

Since 1989, the Texas Supreme Court has struck down the state's school finance system three times. The court's last order said school funds would be halted June 1 unless lawmakers had devised a constitutional plan.

Without judging the new plan, Judge McCown declined to strike down the funding measure.

"The court presumes that an act of the Legislature signed into law by the governor is constitutionally sufficient," said McCown.

Even if challenges are filed, McCown indicated that schools likely would remain open through the coming year.

Utilities Lose Tax Break

In the final hours of the session, the House and Senate discarded the 86-page Public Utility Commission sunset bill and passed a one-page measure extending the life of the agency for two more years.

Disagreements over allowing telephone and electric utilities to keep $800 million in "phantom taxes" prompted lawmakers to merely leave the PUC unchanged while a study is done.

In the eyes of newspaper publishers and consumers across the state, the issue was favorably resolved.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said he would authorize a study of Texas' telecommunications industry to be conducted during the legislative interim. A $400,000 appropriation already has been set aside for the study.

House Speaker Pete Laney, D-Hale Center said a thorough study could help any future utility bill that includes regulatory changes by preventing such a measure from becoming bogged down by special-interest groups.

Leaders Praise Session

Lt. Gov. Bullock and House Speaker Laney said they were pleased with the accomplishments of the 73rd legislative session.

Bullock said he had set out to have "one of the most productive sessions in the history of the Texas Senate. I think we did."

Laney said he considered the school finance bill the "biggest success" of the session, his first as speaker.

Session highlights include:

- A $70.1 billion two-year budget that holds the line on taxes and makes no major cuts in services.
- Lawmakers voted to create a system of 22,000 "state jail" beds for non-violent criminals.

■ Overhaul of the state's penal code, doubling the prison time for violent criminals.

■ The governor has already signed bills revamping products liability laws and making it harder for foreigners to sue in Texas courts.

■ Passed legislation to make health insurance more available and affordable for small businesses employing three to 50 people.

■ Passed a bill to immunize children against preventable diseases.

■ Voted to build 10,000 prison beds and fund 7,000 prison beds for substance abuse treatment.

Hunters, Speeders Aided

Lawmakers sent Gov. Richards two bills about two things Texans are known for - hunting and speeding. Under the legislation:

— Motorists ticketed for driving 70 mph in a 65-mile zone on interstate highways would not see the ticket reflected in their auto insurance rates.

— People who interfere with or harass hunters would face up to six months in jail and a $1,500 fine.

Other Highlights

■ In less than three months, the Governor's Fugitive Squad has captured eight of Texas' most wanted parole violators. "We have sent a message to the parolees in this state that they had better not mess up, or they'll be going back to prison," Gov. Richards said.

■ Senators elected John Whitmire, D-Houston, as president pro tempore. Members praised the Houston Democrat for directing the overhaul of the state penal code.

On Malpractice Suits

President Clinton's health care advisers are considering a proposal to bar patients from suing their doctors for malpractice, though they could sue their health plans instead.

Wheat Scientists Seek Varieties To Make Most Of Conditions

Wheat research at the Texas Agricultural Experiment station facility here continues to look for varieties which best meet the needs of Rolling Plains producers, making the most of what nature offers in the area. A key attribute is drought tolerance.

"We're interested in the kind of drought tolerance that means a difference of a few bushels (of grain) an acre," Dr. Mark Lazar, molecular geneticist with the Experiment Station at Amarillo, told some 300 visitors at the Texoma Ag Day here (May 20). The research plots on drought resistance were one of three featured stops on the field tour. Other stops showcased wheat variety research and weed management, and a computerized tractor which visually displays energy use in various field operations. The program also featured seminars on specialty enterprises, including vegetable and melon production, and raising emus and ostriches, and organically-grown cotton.

"We have pretty decent moisture in the fall," Lazar reminded the guests. "But we lack moisture at critical times in plant development and grain fill."

The ongoing study is looking at varieties and crosses of wheat in a special nursery. It includes lines developed by Dr. Kenneth Porter, Experiment Station wheat breeder at Amarillo who is now retired, and another group of lines from Romania.

The same nursery is also being grown and studied in Romania, Lazar said, "to see what similar lines would look like grown in another area. Not all droughts are alike."

Lazar said the study has two basic objectives. One is to examine simple characteristics of varieties, such as number of plants per acre and number of tillers per plant under drought and under natural rainfall conditions.

The second is to try to understand the mechanism of the plants, what makes them respond as they do to drought conditions.

Lazar demonstrated the rainout shelter which assures that drought conditions are maintained in the test plots, even though Mother Nature may decide to grace the field with a shower. It is a large metal roof on tracks which automatically rolls into place at the first drop of rain. The shelter is electronically controlled. When a raindrop completes the circuit in the control switch, the shelter covers the drought plots in only 60 seconds.

To Worship Is To Experience Wonder

Some of us were born for the "do-it-yourself" age. Even if I could afford to pay someone to do the "fix-it" jobs and "honey-do's" that are continually begging to be done around the house, I'm not sure I would because I enjoy doing most of those things.

the God of the universe at all, the kind of worship so completely centered on us that we could carry it out just about as well if God didn't even exist?

All these questions boil down to this: What about worship without wonder?

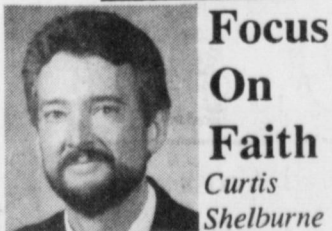

In his fine book on worship, Warren Wiersbe writes that "true wonder is not a passing emotion or some kind of shallow excitement. . . . It not only has depth, it has value; it enriches your life. It is an encounter with reality--with God--that brings awe to your heart."

In "do it yourself" worship, we bow basically just because it helps us get a better view--myopic though it may be--of ourselves. And, face it, we're boring. In true worship we bow and come face to face with the absolute wonder of a lovingly gracious, awesomely powerful, and always marvelously unpredictable God.

Wiersbe quotes Albert Einstein who once wrote, "The fairest thing we can experience is the mysterious. He who knows it not, can no longer wonder, no longer feel amazement, is as good as dead, a snuffed-out candle."

"Faith without works is dead," the Bible tells us. So is worship without wonder.

Curtis Shelburne is the minister of the 16th & D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

If I were a carpenter or an electrician by trade, I might feel differently, but since my daily work is so dissimilar to theirs, my idea of a fantastic Saturday is to have four of five unbroken hours down in the garage sawing boards for shelves or wiring a new light or whatever. If a home is a man's castle, I'm convinced that the garage is the throne room!

"Do it yourself" projects around the house can be great! But what about what I'll call "do it yourself" worship? What about worship in which the sum total of what we experience is centered completely around what we do and what we say and how well we perform? What about the kind of worship we render when we come to church not expecting any real contact with

Invitations Set Tone For Perfect Wedding

(NU) - Wedding invitations can be as individual as the couples themselves.

While the traditional route is the simple elegance of black lettering on heavy white stock, there are no strict etiquette rules governing the style of the invitations.

In this era of individuality and creative expression, people should feel free to choose wedding invitations that reflect their personalities and the tone of the wedding -- whether it be formal, fun, elegant or offbeat.

Wedding Invitations by Dawn, a full-color wedding catalog, includes over 85 distinctive invitation designs, including Victorian, contemporary black and white, even invitations made from recycled paper. To receive a Dawn catalog, call 1-800-528-6677. For wedding invitations featuring Christian designs, call Evangel at 1-800-342-4227 to receive their free catalog.

The wedding experts at Dawn and Evangel offer the following suggestions to help create a unified and unique wedding stationery ensemble:

- The style of the invitation should match the style of the wedding; for example, a formal design of black ink on white or cream paper for a formal ceremony.
- The invitation can coordinate with the bride's color scheme, using colored ink and envelope liners such as teal, purple, pink, silver or blue.

- Invitations can also include excerpts from poems, songs and messages with religious significance.
- If the wedding is on or near a holiday, the invitation can reflect the occasion with an appropriate motif, such as holly sprigs for Christmas or beribboned hearts at Valentine's Day.

- Map cards are a good idea if the route to the wedding or reception is tricky. Many printers will reproduce a simple line-drawn map on an elegant card to include with the invitation.

Microwave Tips

Why do sweet rolls often burn inside when microwaved?

They burn inside when there is sugar or sugary mixtures inside. Sugar attracts microwave energy. The center of such a sweetroll will become very hot while the outside will be about the same temperature as the outside air.

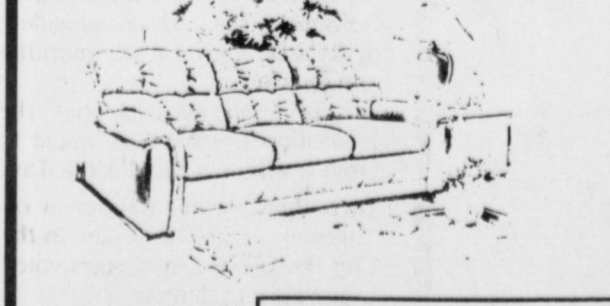

Other rolls or buns, without surgery centers, easily microwave.

Accent On Health

TDH Launches Volunteer Program Serving Nursing Home Residents

The Texas Department of Health (TDH) has announced a new service which matches volunteer resources to the needs of nursing homes and their residents. Called Adopt-A-Nursing Home, the program coordinates volunteers from schools, churches, businesses and others in the community to enhance the lifestyles of long term care facility residents.

It is the first such state-operated program in the nation.

Dr. David R. Smith, Texas Commissioner of Health, said that volunteers add "a priceless touch of humanity to the nursing home environment. No matter how thorough a nursing home is in providing its residents the unpaid kindnesses of volunteers often are what sustain a resident's well-being."

He said, "Statistics show that as many as 50 percent of nursing home residents have no spouse or close relatives, and 60 percent have no regular visitors. For these people, the visits and activities freely given by volunteers can almost define the quality of life."

Dr. Smith explained that the Adopt-A-Nursing Home idea originated with one of Gov. Ann Richards' citizen advisors. The TDH volunteer program in the Public Health Promotion Division adapted the concept for use statewide. TDH licenses more than 1,000 nursing homes with about 120,000 beds.

Texas nursing homes statistics show that one in four women and one in seven men will reside in a nursing home during their lives. Women currently outnumber men in nursing homes by three to one.

Sharon Rowley, Adopt-A-Nursing Home program manager, explained that the program helps the state's nursing homes by recruiting, training and recognizing the contributions of volunteers. The program staff gathers information from nursing homes and community groups to match available services to residents' needs.

"Not only do the volunteers provide specific services for nursing home residents, their general concern and attentiveness while in the nursing facility greatly helps to improve morale of all residents," Rowley said.

"The guidelines for volunteer adopters are relatively simple," she said. "A minimum of three volunteers must commit in writing to donate at least four visits or agreed activities during a year. Such contributions may be one-on-one visits, parties, musical performances, oral histories or other services."

Rowley said there are no age requirements for volunteers. Also, established volunteer programs and organizations are invited to become nursing home adopters. Rowley and TDH regional staff members are available as speakers to potential volunteer groups.

Modesty

He--This medical book says that bathing alone will not keep you healthy.

She--Well, no matter what it says I'll continue to bathe alone.

Didn't Know!

Old Salt--You boys of today want too much money. Do you know what I was getting when I god married?

Boot--Nope, And I bet you didn't know, either.

Used To It

"Just why do you want a married man to work for you, rather than a bachelor?" asked the curious friend.

"Well," sighed the employer, "the married men don't get so upset if I yell at them."

The Lord's Calling Card

The Light shining through a stained glass window beckons one to enter the house of the Lord. It is an invitation to friendship, sympathy, joy, and worship. Let this be your invitation to church this Sunday.

"Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Your Amazing Bones

(NAPS)—If you're average you have about 200 bones in your body. Your skeleton not only supports your body, it's a system of levers to help the body move.

Occasionally people suffer leg and back pain caused by a herniated or slipped disc. A long-term Mayo Clinic study found, in many of these cases, a treatment called chemonucleolysis is a safe and effective alternative to back surgery.

A toll-free number has been set up for those who want information about this new treatment. The number is 1-800-628-5757, ext. 7440.

TIPS ON TRIPS

Check Your Travel First Aid Kit

When traveling, don't forget to pack something to take care of those small cuts and scrapes.

One easy-to-use first-aid treatment is Family Medic[®]. It's a non-sting,
