Texas frees violent offenders early to relieve overcrowding

DALLAS (AP) — Violent criminals are leaving prison early because of a law designed to control the prison population and a court ruling that has made the statute retroactive, a newspaper reports.

The Prison Management Act was enacted in 1987 amid legislators' promises that only nonviolent inmates would get out when the law was invoked by Gov. Bill Clements.

But The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday that 86 inmates, including 31 who had committed violent crimes, were released up to seven months early when Clements signed an executive order July 21 triggering their release.

Three of the released inmates had committed murder, two others had attempted murder and 10 had sexually assaulted children.

One was convicted of rape, 11 of robbery and four others served time for aggravated assault.

Unlike Texas' controversial furlough program in which inmates are allowed to leave prison for a week and return, an early release means the inmate's prison term is over.

The furlough program was. frozen last week after lawmakers expressed dismay about reports that violent criminals were receiving leave time. Asked about the early release of violent offenders, Clements said he was reluctant to shorten the terms of any prisoners. But he said, "under the ... circumstances, we had no choice."

Orginally the Prison Management Act stipulated that only non-violent offenders with sentences shorter than 10 years would be eligible for early release and would receive "good time" awards that shortened their sent-

But the law's application to only non-violent offenders was effectively nullified by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in December. The court ruled that inmates who were convicted before the 1987 law was passed were eligible for good-time awards under a less-restrictive 1983 version of the law.

As a result, about 2,500 current Texas inmates who were convicted before February 1987 now receive 30 days of good time each time the Prison Management Act is invoked. Clements invoked the act six times in 1987 and the seventh time in July, resulting in the release of some violent offenders seven months ahead of schedule.

'That obviously was not the Legislature's intent," said Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, who authored the 1987 bill.

The state is under a federal court order as part of a lawsuit settlement to alleviate chronic overcrowding in its prisons. The Prison Management Act grants the governor the emergency powers when the prison population reaches 95 pecent of capacity the legal limit set by the court

If the governor does not use his emergency powers, the Board of Pardons and Paroles is forced to reduce the population through normal parole, which often results in the release of more violent offenders.

The governor's general counsel, Rider Scott, said Clements was aware that violent offenders would be eligible for early release when he signed the act in

But Scott said the governor did not directly let the convicts out of prison. He said Clements merely granted the inmates "good time" a prison term for time credit that shortens sentences and, in these cases, pushed them out of

"Obviously the governor was briefed about the decision and its consequences," Scott said. "We are reluctant to ever invoke these measures, but it is necessary to control the (prison) population."

S&L industries meeting amid mounting problems

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) - The oldest and largest trade group of savings institutions opened its annual convention today, intent on persuading Congress to help the ailing industry with a multibillion-dollar bailout and preserve it as a system separate from commercial banks.

The nation's 3,048 savings institutions lost $7.5 billion in the first six months of this year and losses almost surely will top last year's post-Depression record of

An estimated 4,050 delegates and spouses to the U.S. League of Savings Institutions' 96th annual convention have gathered in the palm-ringed luxury hotels along Waikiki Beach to map strategy for 1989, when Congress likely will make decisions affecting the industry for years to come.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates the industry, estimates the cost of restor-

Clearly there is a limit to what the solvent institutions can do.'

ing all S&Ls to solvency at $45 billion to $50 billion, but private analysts put the price tag as high as $100 billion Bank board chairman M. Danny Wall, scheduled to address the convention on Thursday, said his agency will have enough money to do the job, but only if thrift institutions are charged a special assessment for deposit insurance for the next 30 years.

S&Ls say they can't afford it and are looking to Congress to come up with the additional

"It's a 30-year mortgage we just flat out can't handle," said Theo H. Pitt Jr., chairman of Pioneer Savings Bank in Rocky Mount, N.C., and outgoing chairman of the industry group.

The bank board this year has shut down more than 135 institutions or merged them with stronger partners, but at midyear. 497 insolvent institutions were still open. Another 408 were solvent but losing money

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., financed by assessments on the industry, was set up to insure deposits in S&Ls but it has been weakened by the flurry of failures. S&Ls already pay more than twice as much for deposit insurance as commercial banks - $2.08 cents per $1,000 of deposits for S&Ls compared with 83 cents for banks.

Pitt contends that continuing the extra assessment, originally scheduled to be phased out in three years, would push otherwise profitable institutions into insolvency, creating an everenlarging problem.

So far this year, the extra assessment has made the difference between profit and loss for 69 institutions, he said.

'Clearly there is a limit to what the solvent institutions can do,' he said.

Congress, when it decides how to pay the bill, whether through a direct appropriation from the Treasury or through some sort of taxpayer-backed guarantee, will almost certainly include measures aimed at preventing the problem from recurring.

'The ones that have gotten into trouble were the ones who took the most advantage of the new powers.'

Although much of the industry's problems are concentrated in depressed oil-producing states in the Southwest, they have been magnified in Texas, California and Florida by lax state regulation that permitted thrift institutions to make risky investments far removed from traditional home mortgage lending.

Many in the industry had pushed for permission to diversify in the early 1980s when soaring interest rates made it impossible for thrifts to make money on their old, fixed-rate mortgages. The argument was that a greater range of activities would help institutions pull themselves out of the hole.

'I believe Congress is beginning to recognize that we haven't abandoned our traditional role. If we don't do it, you're going to have to reinvent the system.'

As it turned out, Pitt said, the institutions that strayed most from traditional mortgage lending earned the least.

The ones that have gotten into trouble were the ones who took the most advantage of the new powers," he said.

Rep. Gerald Kleczka, D-Wis., and other members of Congress say that after all the insolvent S&Ls are closed or merged with stronger partners, the entire S&L system should be merged with the commercial bank system.

But Pitt says American home buyers need a separate S&L

A study by the U.S. League this summer showed that thrifts and mortgage banking companies owned by thrifts provided 54 percent of the country's residential mortgages last year.

"I believe Congress is beginning to recognize that we haven't abandoned our traditional role,' Pitt said. "If we don't do it, you're going to have to reinvent the system.

He said the league will be recommending regulatory changes in what he called a "never again scenario." Among the likely recommendations, he said, would be stricter limits on direct investment in commercial real estate projects and on the amount that can be loaned to a single customer.

WHITING, Ind. (AP) — A refinery tank exploded, killing two workers and critically injuring two others after covering the four with molten asphalt that burned through layers of clothing and hardened on their bodies, officials said.

Sunday's fire and the resulting explosion in the tank, which was several stories high, were contained within 30 minutes by refinery firefighters, said Elise Sims,

Hollywood has mixed reviews for MPAA film rating system

By BRUCE V. BIGELOW Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film ratings system, which at its inception gave a G to Dracula Has Risen From the Grave, turns 20 years old Tuesday to mixed reviews from Hollywood insiders and out-

To groups denouncing what they see as a penchant by the film industry for sex, violence and drugs, the Motion Picture Association of America's ratings system is inadequate.

To many filmmakers, an X rating, or even a family-oriented G, means box-office poison, and obtaining a PG-13 or an R has become imperative, the equivalent of a mass-marketing seal of

To Gene Siskel, film critic for the Chicago Tribune, "The R-rated category is now so widespread, and covers so many emotions and physical acts that I don't know how valuable it is to pa-

But to Jack Valenti, who has overseen the rating system for two decades as the association's president and chief executive officer, the film code has achieved at least one feat. "I think just the act of surviving is itself a minor triumph," Valenti said in a recent interview.

The ratings, however, have gotten less than rave reviews from Thomas E. Radecki, chairman of the National Coalition on Television Violence. "It's a system designed to placate the public."

Radecki said, "and to prevent a public rating system from coming into existence. Radecki conceded that the code is better than none, but argued the ratings are "why we have so much more violent and sexually degrading films than we did when the rating system was started." Radecki would prefer a ratings system with specific guidelines, something like the 1934 code that prohibited "passion that stimulates the baser emotions" and "lustful kissing."

He contends that rating guidelines should forbid the use of alcohol or drugs in PG-rated movies.

But Valenti, who dismisses Radecki's group as "right-wing zealots," said he's rejected pleas to designate a variety of things depicted in films as taboo, including sex, violence, drug use, smoking and even animal cruelty.

"Pretty soon we would put such baggage on this rating system it would collapse," Valenti said: The principal guideline given board members.

Valenti said, is: "If you had to meet with the parents of Wichita Falls, Texas, tomorrow, do you believe they would find what you want to rate this picture to be fair and reasonable?"

Valenti also disputed arguments the ratings have somehow encouraged Hollywood sex and violence. He said the ratings are a mirror of society's values and that the association surveys moviegoers' attitudes toward the code each year to * measure its success.

'Over the last decade, 65 percent to 73 (percent) of all parents with children under 13 say it's 'very useful to fairly useful' in helping them" determine which movies their children see, Valenti said. "and 20 to 23 percent find it not useful at all." The board's nine members "are neither gods nor fools," Valenti said. Valenti hires the board's chairman, and together they select the eight other members. The board's costs are underwritten by a fee each filmmaker must pay in submitting the movie to be rated. Appeals are possible only to a 22-member board comprising theater owners, independent producers and distributors and major producers and distributors.

The first film rated by the board was Dracula Has Risen From the Grave, which got a G rating, said Barbara Dixon, an association spokeswoman in Washington, D.C.

Dixon noted that pornographic filmmakers do not submit their films for screening, and eagerly apply multiple Xs to their films themselves.

Demos may use Bentsen's coattails

AUSTIN (AP) — Recent polls show Republican nominee George Bush with a stong lead among Harris County voters and Texans statewide, but his victory won't necessarily translate into wins by GOP candidates farther down the ballot.

Election observers say Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's name atop the Texas ballot twice will curb "straight ticket" voting, making it difficult for Republican candidates to ride Bush's coattails to victory.

In the 1984 elections, Reagan's popularity was believed to have helped many Republican candidates win their elections.

"Lloyd Bentsen is the only thing holding it together," says Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen. "I think Bentsen is having a very obvious effect on the coattails. If any Democrat survives a close race, it will be because of Lloyd Bentsen. He saved a governor once before; he's strong.

A Houston Chronicle poll of Harris County voters shows Bush and running mate Dan Quayle with support from 54 percent of 608 surveyed voters and Dukakis and Bentsen with 39 percent and

"Running an anti-Dukakis campaign has certainly worked here, but it's done absolutely no good for the (Republican) party, especially when the highly visible other member of the Democratic ticket is very popular," said Richard Murray, the University of Houston political scientist whose poll for the Houston Chronicle Sunday shows Bush with a 15-point lead over Dukakis among the county's voters.

The poll also found Bentsen with a 30-point lead over Amarillo congressman Beau Bolter in the race for Bentsen's U.S. Senate

Murray said the poll, conducted Oct. 22-25, indicates Bentsen is the most popular candidate in the election. On Saturday, the Fort Worth

Star-Telegram and WFAA-TV in Dallas released the results of a survey conducted for them that showed Bush and Quayle with a 21-point lead in the state over Dukakis and Bentsen. The poll, administered to 1,443 likely voters by a Nebraska polling organization Oct. 21-24, found Bentsen with a 28-point lead over Boulter in the Senate race.

Many Republicans openly admit they will vote for the threeterm senator in his re-election bid against Boulter. Furthermore, Bentsen's selecvice presidential nominee might be keeping Democrats who voted for Ronald Reagan in 1980 and 1984 in the fold this year. "Bush is not stressing party in tion as the Democratic Party's this election," Murray said. "He has had no highly visible policy

As evidence of Bentsen's influence, politicians point to 1982 when the senator and his massive get-out-the-vote machine drew so many people to the polls that . Democrat Mark White scored an upset victory over Republican Gov. Bill Clements.

In a related matter, the Rev. Jesse Jackson today said after he is finished with a get-out-the-vote effort that began Sunday in Houston and continued today in South Texas, "the polls can say that Dukakis and Bentsen have an early lead in Texas.'

He denounced polls that show Bush ahead of Dukakis in the state and elsewhere, and said, "The polls don't vote."

Jackson also planned stops in Austin, Dallas and Fort Worth today.

HOUSTON (AP) - The Rev. Jesse Jackson planned to continue his campaign sweep through Texas today, urging Democrats to give Michael Dukakis an early lead in a key state by taking advantage of new laws making it easier to vote absentee.

His campaign for Dukakis and vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen planned stops in the Rio Grande Valley and Fort Worth today, after a day of stumping in a city where Jackson led in the Democratic presidential

"This is a critical moment in the history of our country and our world, and you are the difference," Jackson told more than 600 supporters who cheered and chanted during the rally at Houston's Emancipation Park.

"I want the word to go forth tonight that we have a lead in Texas because you voted today,' Jackson said. "And then I want you to go home tonight and say, Match me.' "

He then joined about 150 supporters on one of several buses bound for precinct voting places, while others followed in caravan

"She refused to surrender and she was jailed," Jackson said of Mrs. Parks' stand against discrimination, stirring the crowd to applause and shouts of support. 'To think that today we have the right to leave this park and get on these buses and ride down the street and vote for Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen," Jackson reminded a mostly black Jackson speaks in Houston Sunday morning.

"We can do it right now -Texas can set the pace and lead the nation.'

Absentee voting totals are expected to hit new highs across Texas this election because of a new state law allowing anyone to vote absentee for any reason.

The voting began Oct. 19 and continues through Friday. Although Jackson's Texas tour was designed to prompt Democratic voters to take advantage of the law, he also used campaign stops Sunday in Houston to denounce the Republican ticket and promote the civil rights record of the Democrats.

He addressed members of the National Black MBA Association in Houston Sunday and later traveled for an evening campaign stop in Beaumont.

Jackson criticized Republican presidential candidate George Bush for using the image of black Massachusetts inmate Willie Horton in campaign advertisements against Dukakis, governor of the state that freed Horton under a prison furlough program.

Bush ads have used the ads describing Horton's crimes to suggest Dukakis is soft on criminals, while Democrats also have charged that the campaign is meant to encourage racial fears.

"Just as Reagan projected the image of the welfare queen, Bush projects the image of Willie Horton, the criminal," Jackson said. "The fact is, my friends, that all of us are against crime everywhere, no matter who the criminal may be."

Jackson also lashed out at the Republican campaign for its attacks on Dukakis and its derogatory use of the "liberal"

Referring again to the struggle for civil rights, Jackson said, 'The whites who stood up for what's right were called liberals, the blacks were called militants. There's always some ugly name designed to discredit people who do their best to make America

Driver arrested in traffic rampage

FORT HANCOCK, Texas (AP) capital murder, involuntary Authorities say a truck driver accused of shooting an officer led substance. and forcing several motorists off Interstate 10 — including a woman who was killed when her vehicle flipped — may have been under the influence of drugs. Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman David Wells said authorities arrested Denver Jerome Burrell, 30, of Anderson, S.C., after a 70-mile, hour-long traffic rampage through a remote area of West Texas Sunday

Burrell, who was hauling a shipment of lightbulbs from South Carolina to Nevada, apparently went berserk at the wheel, speeding down the interstate and forcing vehicles off the roadway, officials said. He then led authorities on a chase through the desolate, mountainous area, allegedly shooting a constable and trying to run him down with the tractor trailer.

A 48-year-old El Paso woman was killed after the Ford Bronco she was driving apparently was run off the road and flipped over.

Burrell remains in Hudspeth County Jail in lieu of $400,000 in manslaughter and driving while under the influence of a control-

Wells said authorities are unsure what type of drug Burrell may have been using when the accidents occurred.

The only thing we know is he was high — evidently on drugs," said DPS Trooper Bob Newman of El Paso. Arresting officers at the scene "said he was out of his mind." Other witnesses confirmed Burrell appeared dis-

The rampage began about 10:30 a.m. near Van Horn, about 100 miles southeast of El Paso, Newman said. As the tractor trailer continued west on I-10, it allegedly rammed the 1985 Bronco driven by Sharon Marie Agutter of El Paso, sending the vehicle careening off to the right and flipping off the road about 10 miles west of Sierra Blanca.

Justice of the Peace Arcadio Ramirez of Sierra Blanca pronounced Ms. Agutter dead at the scene. A poodle in the vehicle survived. Wells said.

Newman said officials hoped to upgrade the involuntary man-stemming from Ms. Agutter's death to a murder charge.

As the rampage continued, the truck rammed a Winnebago that was pulling a compact car atop a trailer behind, smashing the car.

Newman said Hudspeth County Constable Sonny Hillin and a U.S. Border Patrol agent chased the truck and were able to stop Burrell initially. But as Hillin stepped out of his patrol car, the truck driver allegedly tried to pin the officer against his car.

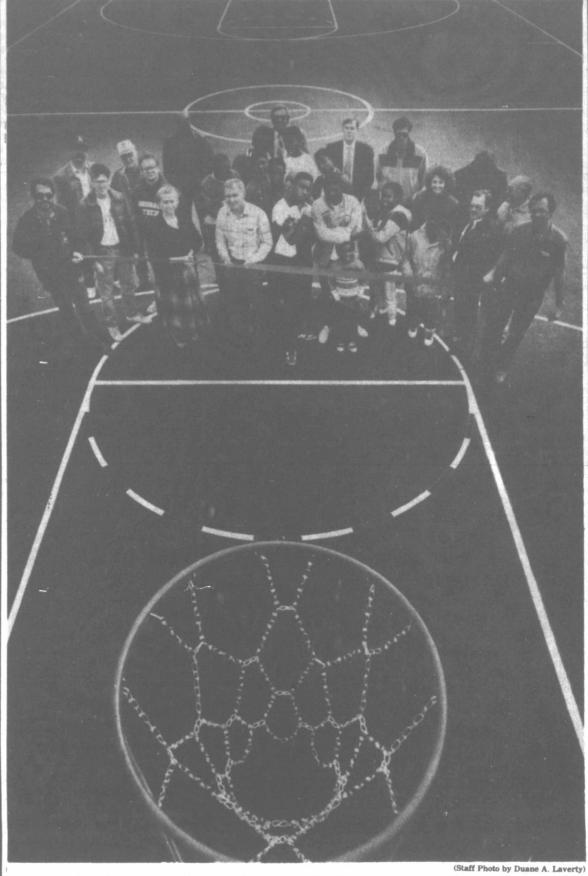

Hillin scrambled back to his car and stopped the truck again by pulling in front of it. But Burrell allegedly shot through the truck windshield, hitting the officer in the neck.

A nursing supervisor at Vista Hills Medical Center in El Paso said Hillin was listed in stable condition late Sunday. But Mrs. Hillin said her husband would require extensive surgery to repair

After officers from the DPS, Border Patrol and sheriff's office continued to pursue the truck for several more miles, Newman said Burrell finally stopped his rig just a half-mile west of Fort

Hancock and surrendered with-

Mattox going after illegal bingo games

port include:

HOUSTON (AP) - A newspaper investigation into the billiondollar bingo business has uncovered dozens of violations and prompted Attorney General Jim Mattox to call for a state investigation into illegally run games that allegedly are stealing money from legitimate charities.

In a copyright story Sunday, the Houston Chronicle described bingo games rigged by a network of insiders who walk away with the big prizes and alleged cash skimming, and commercial bingo operators illegally offering to pay charities a cut of the profits for lending their name to the operations.

Mattox said his and state Comptroller Bob Bullock's offices should jointly investigate the billion-dollar bingo business to clean up the apparent widespread violations of state law.

"Based on the information that you've uncovered in this matter. I think it would be proper for both the comptroller's office and my office to review the information you've developed," Mattox told the Chronicle.

"We've gotten independent complaints, but nothing specific. I'm sure the comptroller will want to investigate. We will handle the litigation for the comptroller if he needs it."

Mattox's office oversees charities and charitable trusts, while Bullock's office is responsible for direct enforcement of the state's bingo law and routinely investigates complaints.

Bingo games have generated nearly $1.4 billion since the 1981 Legislature legalized them, producing nearly $7 million in state taxes and $25 million in taxes for cities throughout the state.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion Unelected officials plan tax increase

The U.S. government is supposed to be responsible to the people. Even when politicians do something we don't like, we're at least supposed to have the option of kicking them out of office and replacing them with someone else. Those replacements almost always turn out to be just as bad, or worse, but at least the facade of accountability is maintained.

Yet even this system, itself severely flawed, is being usurped by unelected, unaccountable government bodies and processes. A big new scam is the national commission, appointed to solve some "crisis." The latest variation of this scam is the National Economic Commission, set up allegedly to find ways to reduce the budget deficit. The NEC has been quietly meeting, deciding the real policies that will go into effect, no matter who is elected president next week.

Now, you don't need a Ph.D in economics to know how to reduce the deficit, currently running at $150 billion per annum. The solution is to cut spending and promote growth through tax cuts and reductions in government power. But, though NEC won't disclose its recommendations until after the election, it's also easy to predict what that recommendation will be: T-A-X I-N-C-R-E-A-S-E

Consider some of the stellar bipartisan members of the commission: Lee Iacocca, who never saw a protectionist program or government giveaway he didn't like, especially when, at taxpayer's expense, it helped his company and boosted his $17 millionplus income; Robert S. Strauss, the former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and the favorite concensus moderate of many in both parties; House Ways and Means Chairman William Gray, a big taxer; and AFL-CIO boss Lane Kirkland, whose union is comprised more and more of government workers, whose rolls swell with any tax

Back on the campaign trail, Dukakis says he'd resort to a tax boost only "as a last resort." Yet he has already proposed so many new federal programs, including a vast new socialized medicine scheme, that the "last resort," covered by a smokescreen from NEC, would occur about two nutes after a President Dukakis said "I do solemnly swear" next January. A President Bush might initiate a tax boost a few weeks later than Dukakis would; as a concensus player, Bush probably would go along with NEC's expected tax boost concensus.

Of course, since 1947, every $1 in new taxes has led to $1.58 in new spending. That means NEC's expected tax boost would actually worsen the deficit. not reduce it. But that's just what we should expect from an unelected cabal utterly unresponsive to citizens' true needs.

Ask about cast of his mind

WASHINGTON - Cast of mind. Cast of mind. In choosing a president, that still seems to me the key factor. A capacity for leadership is important, of course, and experience in federal affairs counts for a great deal, but in judging between George Bush and Michael Dukakis, one has to ask about the candidate's cast of mind.

That is what troubles so many observers about Dukakis and his allegiance to the American Civil Liberties Union. He has boasted that he is a "card-carrying member" of the ACLU, a statement of commitment that implies total commit-

I do not see how that inference can be escaped. If he had said merely that he is a member, that he feels the ACLU has done some good things in defense of individual freedom, but that he often disagrees with the ACLU on particular actions that would have alarmed almost no one. But he didn't say that.

A "card-carrying" commitment, at the very least, clearly implies commitment to the major policies of the ACLU. These appear in a formal statement of the organization in the form of guides to local chapters. Examples recently were published in the Congressional Record.

The ACLU is wholeheartedly devoted to the doctrine of separation of church and state. As a general principle, most Americans surely agree on the issue. But the ACLU's obsession with the doctrine carries it far beyond the mainstream of American thought.

Thus policy No. 84 demands removal of the words "under God" from the Pledge of Allegiance. Policy No. 92 seeks an end to the tax exemption on church properties. Another policy from singing Christian or Jewish songs at Yule- High School in Rockville. They had taken to of the ACLU.

James J. Kilpatrick

tide. The ACLU would ban all religious displays on public property during the Christmas season. Does the card-carrying governor support these

The ACLU is equaly devoted to the cause of free speech. Writing in The New Republic, Mark S. Campisano recalls when the organization really did fine work in the field. It defended John Scopes, the Tennessee schoolteacher, in the famed "monkey trial" of 1924. It fought the senseless censorship of such works as James

But in its official policy statements, the ACLU has taken the right of free speech and leaped over a cliff with it. Policy No. 18 would ban the rating of movies because of the "chilling effect" such ratings have on freedom of expression. Policy No. 4 would abolish all laws — and the ACLU means ALL laws - on the sale and distribution of hard-core pornography. The ACLU would prohibit any sort of interference by principals or teachers in the unfettered publication of student newspapers.

Pursuant to these official policy guides, the Maryland chapter of the ACLU recently rose to calls for lawsuits to prevent schoolchildren the defense of students at Thomas S. Wooton wearing T-shirts to school bearing such legends as "Big Pecker" and "I Want Your Sex." One T-shirt depicted two turtles copulating. Another depicted a condom.

Some of us who live by the First Amendment every day of our lives would insist emphatically that that is not what the First Amendment is all about.

The ACLU's official policies deal with personal liberty. Policy No. 211 would abolish laws against prostitution. Policy No. 210 similarly would legalize the sale of marijuana and narcotic drugs. Where stands the card-carrying Except in such cases as murder and treason. the ACLU believes that no person convicted of crime should be imprisoned. "A fine should always be the preferred form of penalty." This is because "imprisonment is harsh." Under Policy No. 242 offenders should be given probation or suspended sentences that would "maximize the liberty of the individual.

These are fair examples by which the dedication of a "card-carrying member" may be judged. The significance to the presidential campaign lies in the awesome power that is vested in a president to nominate judges for the Supreme Court and the lesser federal courts.

In this regard, what is the cast of mind of Michael Dukakis? Every president since Washington has nominated judges in his own philosophical image. This is the way the system works. I, for one, don't want it to work in the way

Fire ghost out house hunting

I remember some long-ago Halloweens in Tulsa, Okla., when youngsters would dare one another to stay in the vacant old house which they were sure was "haunted."

Every community had at least one "haunted" house in those days.

The debunkers have spoiled that fun for recent generations. With applied sciences they have demonstrated that most phenomena have a logical explanation.

Yet, even now, once in a while, there is one such that the church and the parapsychologists and the ghost-busters and the engineers, chemists and geologist cannot explain.

There was such a house in Orland Hills — an attractive, upper-income suburb of Chicago. Occupants complained of an eye-burning white haze in the house, of strange odors, sometimes like sulfur.

In this attractive bi-level house, Bob and Karen Gallo were certainly NOT exaggerating

Indeed, they sought persistently to quiet any suspicions about the place, fearful they would never be able to sell it. Yet, they could not ignore and had to report fires which appeared to start dents, 11 of them were witnessed either by themselves, three in one month.

The Gallos were advised by fire officials to move out; they did. Then for most of a year, arson investigators investigated every possibility — arson, pranks, natural gas, methane gas, sewer gas, faulty electrical system. They reported "no logical explanation.

Once, while they were in the house investigating, a blue flame an inch in diameter shot out of a wall socket, for more than a half a minute - after which the outlet still worked. Two officers from the Orland Fire Protection District saw that happened. Of 26 separate incipolice or fire department professionals. Another time, with investigators on the premises, another flame from nowhere set a mattress afire.

Travelers Insurance Co. employed Packer Engineering to investigate — to take infrared photographs, to study any possible heat differentials in the house. They found none. They tried a fog machine to trace air currents in the house; nothing unusual. Investigators spent nights in the house after which they had their own blood examined. Nothing.

Two soil borings below the foundation revealed only heavy clay.

By now the house was neither salable or liv-

At long last the insurance company decided there was nothing to do but to declare the house worthless and tear it down --- and pay off the insured portion, which was not enough to replace the house. Anyway, last Thursday the bulldozers moved in - the house came down. The hole in the ground was then filled and smoothed over, and the ghost of Orland Hills, evicted, roams the city — house hunting.

Here's what Bush could say on Nov.

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

I realize it's asking a lot of a man within inches of the presidency, but here's what I wish George Bush would say to the American people in a tele-vision address on Sunday evening, Nov. 6:

"My fellow Americans: The polls indicate that on Tuesday you are very likely to elect me as your president. I have sought that high honor, and if you confer it on me I will of course do everything in my power to serve you honorably and well. "But, my friends, no president can serve you really well — can serve you as you deserve to be served — if he is compelled to work with and through a Congress dominated by his political opponents.

"Every president comes to that office with a program: a series of things he hopes to do, and which presumably you hope he will do. Almost all of these things, however, require the approval of one or both houses of Congress. If his opponents dominate the Congress, it follows as night follows day that the president will be unable to implement many parts of his program.

Now, I certainly do not criticize the Democrats in Congress for this fact. Indeed, it is precisely the function of the opposition party, under our system, to subject the president's proposals to sharp scrutiny, to make alternative suggestions, and to thwart him (if they can) when they believe he

"But ordinarily in our history the voters have elected a president and Congress of the same party, in the expectation that they would work toward essentially the same ends. It is only in recent decades that we have fallen into the habit of routinely electing a president of one party and a Congress of the other. "At first this may even strike you as a good idea - as an extension of the familiar principle of the separation of powers. But do you really want to cripple your government in this way? Wouldn't it be better to let one party take charge of both the presidency and the Congress and do its very best for you — and then replace it, if you felt the other could do better?

"Accordingly, I am asking you to-night to consider most seriously the structure and composition of your government. If you want me to be your president, and to do for you the very best that I can do, I ask you to elect also a Republican Senate and House that will work with me and not

"I realize that there are many Democratic members of both Houses who are splendid public officials. I know, moreover, that every Democratic candidate will promise to support me 'when I am right' and oppose me only 'when I am wrong.' But we also know that every Democrat elected to either the House or the Senate on Tuesday will vote to place that body under the control of his party, and that his party would inevitably use its power to thwart my program and diminish the success of my administration. Unfortunately that administrawould tion also be administration - the only one there. was.

"If, therefore, you are unwilling to give me a Republican Congress that will work with me, I suggest in all sincerity that you consider voting for Gov. Dukakis, who will at least not be thwarted routinely by a Democratic Congress. I cannot in all conscience recommend that you again put politi-cal opponents in control of the legislative and executive branches and compel them to fight like two scorpions in a bottle.

"America deserves, and needs, better than that. If you want me to be your president, I ask you most sincerely to give me a Congress that agrees with you.

"Thank you, and good night."

Kraft agrees to $13.1 billion merger bid by Philip Morris NEW YORK (AP) — The unprecedented, mid-

October frenzy of buyout bids has spawned its biggest deal yet, a $13.1 billion megabuyout of Kraft by Philip Morris that would create the world's biggest consumer products company.

The proposed merger announced Sunday would be the biggest ever between two non-oil U.S. companies and, if successful, would end a short but sharp takeover battle between the two giant food and consumer goods companies.

It also would create a $40 billion-a-year company armed with some of America's best-known consumer products, including Philip Morris Inc.'s Miller beer, Marlboro cigarettes, Jell-O and Maxwell House coffee, and Kraft Inc.'s Velveeta, Parkay margarine, Philadelphia cream cheese, Miracle Whip salad dressing and Sealtest ice cream.

That would fulfill Philip Morris' goal of reducing its dependence on revenue from its slowing cigarette business, while making it a tougher worldwide competitor against other giant multina-

"As we have stated from the outset, we believe the combination of Philip Morris and Kraft will create a U.S.-based food company that will compete more effectively in world food markets," said Hamish Maxwell, Philip Morris's chairman and

In a joint announcement, the companies said they had a definitive agreement for New Yorkbased Philip Morris to boost its outstanding tender offer for all of Kraft's outstanding stock to $106 a share from $90.

Kraft shares closed Friday at $96.50, up $2 a share on the New York Stock Exchange. Philip Morris closed down 25 cents at $94.75 a share.

Glenview, Ill.-based Kraft had rejected as inadequate the $90-a-share offer made Oct. 17, and unveiled a defensive restructuring it said would pay its stockholders $110 a share in cash and secur-

The restructuring, thought by many analysts to be mainly a bargaining ploy, would have boosted. Kraft's debt by about $12.4 billion, likely forcing it to sell some of its businesses to raise cash for debt payments.

Kraft said Tuesday it would negotiate only if Philip Morris sweetened its offer to at least $110 a share, and insisted it would not be pressured into a

A preliminary agreement was reached after negotiations Friday in Chicago. The Kraft board of directors approved it Sunday in New York, Maxwell said in a telephone interview.

"Our shareholders are receiving full value, and this merger is the best possible outcome for our employees, customers and the communities in which we operate," said John M. Richman, chairman and chief executive of Kraft, which has 47,000

If completed, the merger would rank behind only the $13.4 billion acquisition of Gulf Oil Corp. by what is now Chevron Corp. in 1984.

With combined revenue of about $39.5 billion in the year ended June 30, the company would be the world's biggest consumer products maker, outpacing the $30 billion-a-year British-Dutch company Unilever NV, according to industry esti-

The combination of Kraft and General Foods Corp., which Philip Morris acquired in 1985 for $5.6 billion, would produce about $20 billion in annual revenue, making Philip Morris the world's second biggest food company, after Switzerland's $28 billion Nestle SA.

The proposed buyout follows a mid-October wave of multibillion-dollar takeover bids focusing on food companies.

Pending is a $20.3 billion proposal by the investment firm Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. for food and tobacco giant RJR Nabisco Inc. Also pending are a $5.23 billion hostile bid for Pillsbury Co. by Britain's Grand Metropolitan PLC, a $1.4 billion bid for West Point-Pepperell Inc. by rival textile maker Farley Inc. and a $941.2 million bid for Holly Farms Corp. by Tyson Foods Inc., two of the nation's biggest poultry processors.

Imelda arrives in New York to face embezzling indictment

By MARJORIE ANDERS Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Philippine first lady Imelda Marcos has returned to the city where she once threw lavish parties, this time to answer to an indictment accusing her and her husband of embezzling $100 million from their homeland.

Mrs. Marcos and her entourage arrived Sunday by luxury jet from Hawaii, where she and ousted Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos have lived in exile since fleeing the Philippines in February 1986.

Defense lawyers convinced U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan that the 71-year-old Marcos was too frail to make the trip to New York City for a court appearance.

His arraignment was postponed, at least until a government physician examines him.

The judge, however, ordered Mrs. Marcos to appear. She was scheduled for arraignment today on charges that the couple used the country's money to buy property including four New York buildings and artwork.

Lawyers said Mrs. Marcos, 59, will plead innocent to charges in the Oct. 21 embezzlement and racketeering indictment. The main racketeering charge carries a maximum penalty of 20 vears in prison upon conviction.

ties as first lady. She was surrounded by reporters and photographers. Bodyguards cleared a path as she and those with her strode inside the luxury apartment-hotel without comment.

A Marcos associate in Honolulu, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Mrs. Marcos hoped to shop and entertain old friends while in New York.

"Her real concern is that she also hasn't left her husband's side for three years and she's very concerned about his health,' John Bartko, a Marcos attorney, said in Honolulu.

"She's going to meet her legal obligation, but I just don't see her having a gay old time in New York City."

Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Marcos visited St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral. Aides said the Waldorf bill, which reportedly will run $1,800 a night, is to be paid by friends they won't iden-

The criminal indictment is similar to a 1986 civil lawsuit filed in California by the Philippine government of Marcos' successor, Corazon Aquino.

'We developed an idea, which the American courts bought, that a dictator can't fleece his country, deposit the loot in the United States and expect to get away with it," said Morton Stavis, president of the Center for Constitutional Rights, a non-profit legal group representing the Aquino government.

In response to the lawsuit, an injunction was granted March 2, 1986, that prevented the sale or transfer of Marcos' New York properties, which included four Manhattan commercial build ings and a Long Island estate, with a total value reportedly in the hundreds of millions of dol-

Mrs. Marcos arrived Sunday in a private Boeing 737 loaned by American Tobacco Co. heiress Doris Duke. The plane, outfitted to carry just 19, brought Mrs. Marcos' entourage.

The jet landed at Newark International Airport, where reporters and about 40 supporters remained behind a gate out of sight from Mrs. Marcos.

"We wanted to show Mrs. Marcos and President Marcos that there are Filipinos who still support them," said Willy Paderon. "I hope they will be vindicated of all these politically motivated charges that are coming left and

"They (the U.S. government) double-crossed the president. You don't do that to friends. It's going to cost the U.S."

U.S. to ease North Korea restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is expected to respond to an appeal go may be relaxed to permit the from South Korea early this week by announcing an easing of diplomatic and trade restrictions against North Korea, according to U.S. officials.

The moves are a complement to efforts by South Korean President Roh Tae Woo, who has called for a north-south summit meeting and a resumption of trade between the two Koreas as part of an attempt to ease tensions on the peninsula.

Roh met with President Reagan 10 days ago and suggested the United States take some modest steps in coordination with South Korea's own

Although modest, the gestures planned by the administration are believed to be the most extensive the United States has adopted toward the communist north since the Korean armistice was signed 35 years ago.

North Korea is one of the few countries in the world with which the United States has no diplomatic relations, and it has been the target of a highly restrictive U.S. trade embargo.

TENSION HEADACHES

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called the suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure of dysfunction of neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structures. They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again.

Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other painkillers may give you temporary relief-but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you

Firebombs kill mother and three children

By NICOLAS B. TATRO Associated Press Writer

JERICHO, Occupied West Bank (AP) - Palestinians hiding in a banana plantation hurled firehombs at a passenger bus just outside this West Bank town, killing a mother and her three children aged 9 months to 31/2 years.

The bus was set ablaze just 35 hours before Israel's parliamentary elections, which are expected to be extremely close, and could drive undecided voters to the Likud Bloc of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who has advocated a hard line in dealing with Israeli news reports identified the dead woman in Sunday's attack as Rachel Weiss, 27.

She and her boys, Rafael, Netanel and Efraim, lived in Jerusalem and were returning home from the northern Israeli town of Tiberias, where they celebrated a friend's bar mitzvah, a coming-of-age ceremony for Jewish boys aged 13.

Five other passengers were wounded, one a soldier who was seriously burned.

Two of the injured are immigrants from Pittsburgh: Dov Blum, 35, who suffered serious burns on his face, and his wife, Cindy, burned on her face and back, said Ruth Mekel, a spokeswoman at Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem. Sunday night's attack claimed the largest number of Israeli lives in a single assault since the Palestinian revolt against Israel's 21-year occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip broke out almost 11 months ago.

A total of 305 Palestinians and 10 Israelis have been killed in the intefadeh, Arabic for uprising, which began Dec. 8.

Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, the West Bank commander, told reporters in Jericho today that a curfew was imposed on the town of about 17,000 Arabs that is 18 miles east of Jerusalem.

As reporters watched, a huge army bulldozer plowed under rows of banana trees. Officers said bushes and trees would be knocked down to prevent future ambushes.

Mitzna said dozens of Palestinians had been detained. Israel radio said seven Arabs involved in the attack were apprehended, and Armed Forces Radio said

Soldiers, some using police dogs, searched door to door.

Officers said the attack was meticulously planned, but Mitzna played down a connection with Tuesday's elections: "The tim-

In the past two months, there have been more than 100 firebomb attacks in the Jericho area, Israel radio said. Army patrols were in the area and arrived within minutes.

"From the back of the bus I heard the sound of a trapped woman," Ron said on Israel radio. "I grabbed her with one hand. I said, 'Come out with me.' She absolutely refused.3

In videotape, hostage Anderson says U.S. impeding his release

By FAROUK NASSAR Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem kidnappers today released a videotape of American journalist Terry Anderson, who read a message blaming the U.S. government for preventing his release.

The tape was delivered to a Western news agency office in Beirut, along with a statement in Arabic, a few days after Anderson spent a fourth birthday, his 41st, in captivity.

'Once again I have been given the chance to speak to my government, my family and my people," said the chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press

"I love you, I miss you very much. I know of your continued strong efforts for me," he addressed friends and family in the English-language message.

"I have been very close to being released several times over the past three years, but each time it seems that the U.S. government uses its influence to stop any agreement and I don't understand this.

"I am not asking (President) Reagan to deal with terrorists, although Mr. (George) Bush did so in the Iran-Contra affair and TWA hijacking." He did not

"Our problem could have been solved a long time ago without such complications as arms deals," Anderson said.

He urged the U.S. administration to negotiate his release and appealed to the new U.S. president once elected to end the plight of the hostages. The Reagan administration has said it refuses to negotiate with terrorists.

Anderson, of Lorain, Ohio, was kidnapped March 16, 1985, in Beirut and is the longest-held of the 14 foreigners, nine of them American, missing in Lebanon and presumed captives of kidnappers.

He was seized by a group calling itself Islamic Jihad, or Holy War, which said in the accompanying statement that it provided the videotape "on the occasion of Terry Anderson's birthday and in response to your letters, and according to his desire to send you a recorded message.

Islamic Jihad also holds Thomas Sutherland, 56, of Fort Collins, Colo., who is acting dean of agriculture at American University in Beirut. He was kidnapped June 10, 1985

In a statement Oct. 23, the group repeated its longstanding demands for the release of Anderson and Sutherland, which include the release of fellow 'holy warriors'' from all foreign jails and withdrawal of Israeli forces from south Lebanon.

Anderson appeared relaxed as he read from the prepared statement. He was cleanshaven and wore his eyeglasses. His hair was neatly combed. He appeared from the waist up, wearing a striped grey sweater.

"I am well and being well treated and I received your birthday greetings and as always I thank you very much," he said.

Anderson speaks on videotape.

Poland closes Gdansk shipyard

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Lenin shipyard in Gdansk, birthplace of the banned Solidarity free trade union movement, will be closed Dec. 1 in a move to restructure Poland's shipbuilding industry, the government announced today.

The state-run PAP news service said the decision was made Oct. 29 by Prime Minister Mieczyslaw F. Rakowski, who had just taken office. A furious Solidarity chairman Lech Walesa, responding to the announcement, denounced the decision as "a personal provocation of Prime Minister Rakowski against the birthplace of Soli-

He said his movement was ready to take over the shipyard and run it profitably.

The government's move comes as it bickers with Solidarity over the makeup of the opposition's delegation to round-table talks Communist authorities promised in August in return for Walesa's ending of Poland's worst labor unrest in seven years.

In a communique announcing the move this morning, PAP referred to the speech Rakowski made Oct. 13 when he presented his government to the parliament.

"Rakowski announced that his government will go from words and plans to firm acts which would recover the Polish economy," PAP said.

'That would include liquidation of enterprises that are inefficient, unproductive and some enterprises which require subsidies from the state treasury," the agency said.

PAP said the announcement of the Lenin Shipyard's closure "is not a surprise for public opinion or for the workforce of the Lenin shipyard. The possibility of liquidating this shipyard has been discussed in public ... For a long time."

The shipyard, scene of strikes this year in May and August and for two decades a hotbed of union activity, employs about 10,000 workers.

It was scheduled to build 11 ships this year, and builds ships primarily for the Soviet Union, which as an ally is afforded very favorable purchase Articles in the press have questioned its profitability, with one newspaper describing the yard "as a giant on partly rotten legs."

Walesa, an electrician at the shipyard, said the union could cope with the yard's financial problem if given the chance.

"We are ready to take over this enterprise and make it profitable. We will help the (workers' council) take it over so that the shipyard can work well and make its profits," he said.

The opposition wants Communist authorities to grant it a say in helping solve Poland's daunting economic and social problems.

Fall apples were an important part of the diet of the early American settler. Those that were not eaten fresh were stored in large barrels. Many were pressed to make apple cider, but most were preserved for the winter meals.

Some apples were peeled and cored and then either cut into circles to be strung on cords to dry, or cooked into apple butter, apple jelly or apple pies.

Peeling and cutting many apples in a short time was a problem that inspired the invention of hundreds of types of mechanical apple peelers. The first patent for a peeler was issued to Moss Coates of Pennsylvania in 1830.

At first, the apple peeler had a straight rod with a crank at one end and a fork to hold the apple at the other. A knife-blade on a hinged arm was positioned so the blade would cut the apple skin when the crank was turned.

Gradually the peeler was improved with gears and pulleys for speed, an extra knife to cut segments or circules, and a "pusher" to remove the core from the peeler.

Many types of wooden or iron peelers can be found in shops today. Most can still be used to help peel apples. There are even modern copies of the old peelers being made and sold in kitchenware stores. Look for homemade wooden examples, and iron models that have the date and name molded into the iron.

Who was "Saturday's Child?" I have it because I was born on a Saturday.

A. Your figurine is one of a series made by the Royal Worcester factory of England from 1938 to the present. Seven figures were introduced in 1938, and seven more in 1954 so that a boy and girl are available for each day.

You must be a very hard worker, if the poem that inspired the figures is to be believed:

Monday's child is fair of face. Tuesday's child is full of grace, Wednesday's child is full of Thursday's child has far to go. Friday's child is loving and Saturday's child works hard for its living, And the child that is born on the Sabbath day, Is fair and wise and good and

You can date your figurine exactly from the circle mark on the piece. Slight variations in the mark were used to indicate the date. The Sandon Guide to Royal Worcester Figurines, 1900 to 1970 by David, John and Henry Sandon (Seven Hills Books, Cincinnati, $65) shows all of these codes and lists the figurines made by the company.

Q. My silver coffee set is marked "Pilgrim Silverplate." When and where was it made?

A. The name Pilgrim appears on pieces of holloware made by the Friedman Silver Co. Inc. of Brooklyn, N.Y. The company was purchased by the Gorham Corporation in 1960.

Q. I have a bandanna that pic-tures a log cabin and a barrel that is labeled "cider," along with a picture of a man who I'm told is William Henry Harrison. Would this be a presidential campaign souvenir? Why the symbols?

A. William Henry Harrison ran against Martin Van Buren in 1840. A newspaper article in favor of Van Buren said that if you gave Harrison a barrel of hard cider, he would be happy to spend the rest of his days sitting in a log

The derogatory words backfired when Harrison's supporters decided to use the log cabin and alcohol as symbols of the candidate. Harrison never lived in a log cabin but the image stuck. Rallies were held in front of mock-ups of log cabins. Songs about log cabins were sung, and his supporters enjoyed drinking hard cider.

Harrison won the election.

IRVING - Phoenix brought the NFL's top-rated offense to Texas Stadium, but its defense stole the show.

Dallas quarterback Steve Pelluer had one of his least productive days, as Phoenix rallied from a 10-0 deficit Sunday, scoring in the final minute for a 16-10 NFL victory over the Cowboys.

Phoenix improved to 5-4, staying a game behind the New York Giants in the NFC East, while Dallas, off to its worst start in a quarter-century, fell to 2-7. Five of the Cowboys' losses have cor e in the game's final two mi-

"For a change, the defense kept the offense in the game, which we haven't been doing," Cardinals coach Gene Stallings

"We got some pressure on the quarterback, got a turnover or two, and almost got some more. We were really good in the third down area," Stallings said.

Phoenix held Dallas to 11 first downs and 228 total yards. The Cowboys converted only 1 of 13 third-down plays. The Cardinals had 295 total yards and 15 first downs, including 9 of 19 thirddown conversions

Pelluer, one week after he had his best day as a pro, passing for 342 yards against Philadelphia, was held to 132 yards on a 9-of-31 afternoon against Phoenix. The Cowboys had given up only 12 sacks in the first eight games, but Phoenix sacked Pelluer four times for 29 yards in losses and intercepted him twice.

"We talked about our pass rush during the week, and we knew that Pelluer was real accurate and that we were going to have to give him some pressure," said Cardinals defensive end Freddie Joe Nunn, who got to Pelluer for three of the sacks.

Cornerback Carl Carter came up with a first-quarter interception at the Dallas 47 on a ball that bounced off the hands of Cowboys tight end Thornton Chandler, but Phoenix couldn't take advantage of it. The Cardinals moved to the Dallas 16 on two Lomax completions, but a bobbled snap ruined a 33-yard field goal try three plays

However, the other interception was crucial. With the game tied 10-10 and less than 4 minutes remaining, the Cowboys were trying to get in position for a game-winning field goal by Roger Ruzek.

Pelluer threw into double coverage on the left sidelines and cornerback Cedric Mack outleaped Dallas wide receiver Kelvin Martin for the ball at the Phoenix 30. Mack returned the interception to the 39, and Phoenix needed eight plays to drive 61 yards for the winning touchdown.

The big play was a 42-yard pass from Lomax to wide receiver Ernie Jones. Jones was wide open across the middle, crossing from left to right, broke two tackles and raced to the 3 before he was knocked out of bounds.

Fullback Earl Ferrell, who earlier scored on a 14-yard pass from Lomax and ran 47 yards to set up Al Del Greco's 32-yard field goal, scored the game-winning touchdown two plays later from the 1 with only 50 seconds left in the game.

"It's a shame we lost, because we thought we had a chance to win," Cowboys coach Tom Landry said.

"It came down to the last few minutes and the pass interception. The offense didn't do a great job, but the interception hurt us at the end. Until that point, we were in a position to win. There was a pick on the pass play, it seemed. No one comes across the middle that wide open.

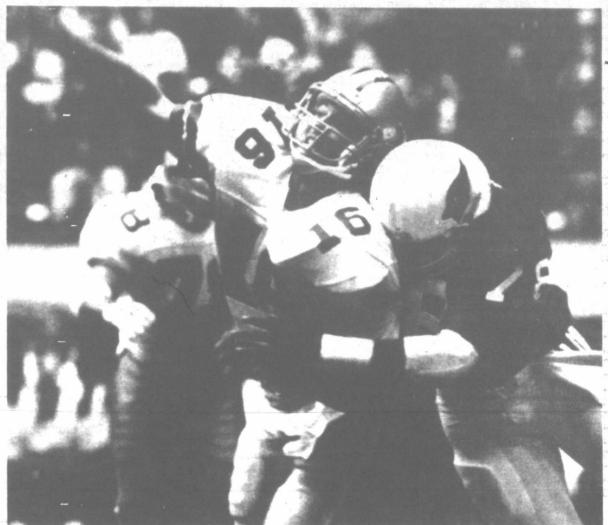

Dallas safety Bill Bates said: "It's like a basketball pick play. Two receivers cross, and Manny (Hendrix) and Vince (Albritton) got picked off, and all of sudden the guy was running free.

"Sometimes there's a question whether it's a legal play, but they didn't call it. You look for it, but when they run it correctly, there's nothing you can do."

Dallas took a 10-0 lead in the third quarter on Ruzek's 39-yard field goal and Ray Alexander's 50-yard pass from Pelluer. Del Greco's 32-yard field goal cut the lead to 10-3, and Phoenix gained a tie on Ferrell's 14-yard pass from Lomax midway through the fourth quarter.

The game was played before 42,196 people in 65,024-seat capacity Texas Stadium. There were 3,980 no shows.

Cardinals' defensive end Freddie Joe Nunn (78) puts a hit on Pelluer as he releases a pass.

Kicker Mike Lansford didn't boot his chance to send the Los Angeles Rams to the top of their division

Lansford kicked four field goals Sunday to give the Rams a 12-10 victory over New Orleans and a first-place tie with the Saints in the NFC West.

The loss snapped the Saints' seven-game winning streak and left both teams with 7-2 records. Lansford gave the Rams all their points on field goals of 37, 18, 47 and 30 yards. The third period of the Penguins-Rangers game was no fun to play, and certainly no fun to watch.

Sparked by a slashing to Pittsburgh superstar Mario Lemieux, the teams went at each other in a brutal third period that lasted nearly an hour on the Madison Square Garden ice. A total of 273 penalty minutes were called in the final period and nine players ejected.

"It was no fun playing a period like that," said New York rookie Tony Granato, whose four goals were largely overlooked in Sunday night's 9-2 NHL victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins because the brawl-marred third period.

Lemieux, slashed by New York defenseman David Shaw 3:41 into the period, suffered a chest injury which was not immediately regarded as serious. But the conclusion of the game left just about everyone with a bitter taste, which may be more serious the next time the teams meet. They next play at Pittsburgh on Nov. 23 and Pittsburgh's Mark Kachowski promised, "It's going to be a war next time."

Ranger coach Michel Bergeron blamed Pittsburgh coach Gene Ubriaco for the situation.

'He lost control of his team," Bergeron said. "I was really sad because he tried to stop that (violence) behind the bench, but it was too late."

In other NHL games, it was Chicago 5, Edmonton 2; Vancouver 2, Calgary 1; Winnipeg 8, Los Angeles 4, and Buffalo 3, Lemieux was held to one assist by the Ranger defense before suffering what was described as a bruised sternum. For the action, Shaw was given a match penalty immediately suspended by the league pending a hearing.

The third period featured 18 major penalties, including one match, eight game misconducts and five misconducts.

Along with Granato, Kelly Kisio figured big in the Ran-

Notre Dame battles for No. 1 spot

By BOB GREENE AP Sports Writer

The Fighting Irish just may have battled their way to the top in the race for college football supremacy. Don't tell that to Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz, though.

"We are not a really good foot-ball team right now," Holtz said after his Irish beat Navy 22-7 Saturday in Baltimore.

While No. 2-ranked Notre Dame was improving its record to 8-0 for the 16th time in the school's history and the first time since 1973 when it finished 11-0, top-ranked UCLA lost to Washington State 34-30.

Notre Dame took a 22-0 early in the third quarter on a 10-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Tony Rice to Derek Brown, a 22-yard touchdown run by Rodney Culver, a 29-yard field goal by Reggie Ho and a 1-yard run by Ryan Miha'ko.

But the Midshipmen played Notre Dame evenly in the second half and actually outscored the Notre Dame's last six possessions ended with four punts and a fumble as the Irish failed to get inside the Navy 30-yard line.

Besides UCLA, the only other Top Twenty team to fall Saturday was No. 20 Oregon, who was edged 21-20 by Arizona State.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 3 Southern California 41, Oregon State 20; No. 4 Miami 31, East Carolina 7; No. 5 Nebraska 26, Missouri 18; No. 7 West Virginia 51, Penn State 30; No. 8 Oklahoma 63, Kansas 14; No. 9 Auburn 16, Florida 0; and No. 10 Wyoming 48, Colorado State 14.

Also, it was No. 11 Arkansas 21, Rice 14; No. 12 Oklahoma State 45, Kansas State 27; No. 13 Louisiana State 31, Mississippi 20; No. 14 Michigan 52, Northwestern 7; No. 15 Clemson 38, Wake Forest 21; No. 17 South Carolina 23, North Carolina St. 7; No. 18 Georgia 59, William &

Michael Dukakis boasted about his liberal background and challenged rival George Bush to an election eve debate while the Republican nominee, wary of a tightening presidential race, vowed a tough fight in the waning days of the campaign.

With eight days left until Election Day, and some polls indicating a race closer than earlier surveys suggested, an enthusiastic Dukakis campaigned by train Sunday through California's Central Valley, where he added a new twist to his populist appeal.

"We need a president in the tradition, yes, the liberal tradition of Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman and John Kennedy," the Democratic nominee told voters at stops from Bakersfield to Stockton Questioned by reporters about his decision to embrace the "Lword," a label he has shunned for months. Dukakis said he comes from the liberal tradition of 'presidents who were on the side of average Americans, presidents who helped to build middle class America.

'Harry Truman was a liberal who believed in balancing budgets and that's the tradition I come from," the Massachusetts governor said.

Dukakis also called on his GOP opponent to use the network television time they both bought on election eve for a one-on-one debate with a moderator and no re-

"I'm going to be a president who unites America," Dukakis said. "If he (Bush) wants to talk about that, then I'd be happy to meet him face-to-face.

The vice president, in the second presidential debate on Oct. 13, ruled out the possibility of a third confrontation between the two candidates.

Bush stumped in Philadelphia's suburbs on Sunday and briefly manned the phones at his campaign headquarters in Montgomery County

"This is George Bush calling from the headquarters. We're trying to get the vote out. I know you probably don't believe it, but that's who it is," the GOP nominee said in one call.

Bush also delivered a pep talk to staff members at the headquarters, saying he and his wife, Barbara, plan "to keep running like we're 10 points behind. Nobody is going to out-work us."

The vice president was campaigning today in Louisville, Ky., and St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., after taping an interview in Washington, D.C., with NBC

News anchorman Tom Brokaw. As part of a counteroffensive, the Dukakis campaign in Missouri announced late Sunday that a free lunch with the homeless will be held across the street from St. Louis' Union Station at the same time as the Bush rally.

The lunch for clergy, veterans, the elderly and others is being sponsored by the St. Louis Clergy Coalition, Students for Dukakis and other organizations, the campaign said in a statement.

The Democratic nominee was continuing his campaign in California with stops in San Jose and the Los Angeles suburb of Norwalk. Aides to Dukakis said their internal polls showed California, and its major prize of 47 electoral votes, is up for grabs despite surveys last week showing Bush ahead by 10 points.

Dukakis' running mate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, was focusing today on his home state of Texas where two statewide polls released this weekend showed Bush maintaining a strong lead, ranging from 15 to 21 points.

Republican vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle was campaigning in Michigan and Ohio. The latest nationwide poll, a points, 50 percent to 40 percent. The survey of 1,096 probable voters was conducted Tuesday and Wednesday and had a margin of error of plus or minus three percentage points.

Bush's chief of staff, Craig Fuller, said the campaign thought the race would tighten in the closing days of the campaign.

"I think it's to be expected as you get to the final days of the campaign that you're going to see some tightening in this race, but that's going to cause us to work harder," Fuller said.

Buoyed by his campaign's tracking polls and some statewide surveys indicating a closer race, Dukakis claimed that the battle for the White House is far from over.

"You can sense it, you can feel it, you can taste it," he said.

Roloff property to be auctioned

550-acre spread where the late evangelist Lester Roloff operated unlicensed homes for youths goes to the auction block this week to repay a local school district unpaid taxes.

Roloff, a dynamic radio preacher whose sermons were broadcast throughout the nation, died in 1982 when his private plane crashed.

"The Farm," as Roloff called it, is located just outside the Texas coastal city of Corpus Christi on Farm-to-Market 665.

The property of People's Baptist Church, founded by Roloff in 1951, will be auctioned Tuesday at the Nueces County Courthouse to satisfy a $75,250 judgment against the church for back taxes owed to the West Oso Independent School District.

The state Supreme Court ruled in September that the church owed the taxes after finding the church had nullified its taxexempt status by allowing a forprfit business to operate at "The Farm."

Last Friday, the church was about $1,000 short of halting the public auction by paying the taxes owed for 1978 through 1985, plus penalties, interest and court costs

The West Oso school board decided last week that the church must pay the taxes in full.

The judgment and decision infuriate the Rev. Wiley B. Cameron, Roloff's successor.

"The church does not belong to Caesar," said Cameron. "Should we render money to Caesar, or (render) redeemed people now able to walk uprightly and not be a burden to the state?

The property includes outbuildings for farm equipment, a guest house, residences for about 65 church and school staff members, a school for children aged 3 years to 18 years — and what remains of Roloff's controversial homes for drug abusers.
