Insurgents Intensifying Fighting In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian insurgents have overrun a string of weakly defended government positions across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh and now control a long stretch of the east bank paralleling the capital city, refugees from the area said today.

Phnom Penh was also menaced from the west. More than 20 rockets hit the airport 2 1/2 miles west of the capital and an adjoining shantytown crowded with refugees early today, killing 19 persons and wounding 62.

No aircraft were damaged, but one rocket killed an officer and wounded seven soldiers at the entrance to the military part of the airfield.

The assaults across the rivers are the closest the antigovernment forces have struck to the capital since Viet Cong sappers raided northern Phnom Penh.

However, the military command was not moving any more troops or heavy weapons to the west bank across from the insurgents despite intelligence reports that they are planning a large-scale attack on the capital soon.

U.S. jet fighters from Thailand bombed the east bank this morning as hundreds watched from the riverside mall in front of the former royal palace.

East bank villagers crossing to Phnom Penh warned journalists trying to reach the other side to stay away. They said the sparse government units defending the east bank fled two days ago as the rebels moved in. The guerrillas were letting the farmers come and go with their produce but were not letting any Phnom Penh residents enter the villages, they reported.

Sailors aboard a navy boat moored in midstream to inspect passing boats told newsmen who pulled alongside that some government soldiers were left near Prek Luong, four miles inland across from Phnom Penh. They said they did not know of any other government forces which remained.

The command said eight houses in suburban Pochentong were hit during the brief rocket attack that began at 3 a.m.

Four of the missiles landed in a rice field 200 yards behind a military camp and three others hit in a heavily populated refugee area behind the military academy.

Weeping survivors wandered through piles of straw and palm fronds that once were their homes as the sun rose. Bodies of men, women and children were laid out, some so blown apart they were unrecognizable.

Mistrial Motion Quashed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The government has made a new disclosure to the defense at the Pentagon papers trial of secret interviews which codetendant Daniel Ellsberg says will "smash the theft counts" against him and Anthony Russo.

Defense attorneys, given transcripts of the 1971 interviews with Rand Corp. employees late Wednesday, immediately moved for mistrial, claiming proof that at least one government witness probably committed perjury and others had left out important details in their trial testimony.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne denied the mistrial motion but allowed the defense team to launch a new line of questioning in the midst of the government's rebuttal case. That testimony was to continue today.

USED HIS HEAD

TORONTO (AP) — Darrell Burns had a reason for his headache.

Burns, who broke the fall of a woman when she jumped from the third-floor window of a burning house, said: "I told her to jump and she jumped. We hit head to head. Now I've got a bit of a headache. I think she was a heavy woman."

Colder Weather Visits Panhandle

Winter-like weather greeted Pampans when they arose this morning as the thermometer dipped into the 30's for the first time in several days.

This morning's official low at 6 a.m. was 39 degrees. The high today was expected to reach 50 with a low tonight of 35 degrees.

Pampa received 33 inch of rainfall officially yesterday afternoon and early this morning. Cloudy skies are expected to prevail throughout the day with a clearing tonight.

With the clearing will come colder temperatures and diminishing wind tonight.

It should be fair and warmer Friday with a high of 60 degrees expected. Wednesday's high was 66 and the low was 47 degrees.

In Associated Press reports across the state

Two or more damaging but non-fatal tornadoes slashed into the Baytown area east of Houston as the latest batch of vicious thunderstorms swept across parts of Central, South and East Texas today.

While there was considerable property loss, authorities said they learned of only two minor injuries.

Heavy storms boiled eastward during the night from west of Waco, Austin, San Antonio and Victoria, and official forecasters were kept busy warning one area after another.

Loaded with briefly torrential rains and giant hailstones, the thunderstorms broke out behind a cool front which came close to standstill from Louisiana down the Texas Coast and across South Texas to Laredo on the Mexican border.

Harris County (Houston) sheriff's officers said there were confirmed reports of two twisters and there likely were at least two others.

In one neighborhood between Houston and Baytown, four mobile homes were wrecked and three others overturned, while on Baytown's North Main Street the writhing winds dealt heavy damage to roofs, plate glass and windows in homes.

About the same time the storms wrecked a food store in League City, tore the roof off the Riverside Inn on the San Jacinto River and flattened a gas station at Cypress.

Earlier in the night, the weather service reported tornado sightings aloft near Austin and elsewhere in Central Texas, in parts of Bexar County (San Antonio), northwest of Three Rivers, near Seguin and west of Amarillo toward the New Mexico line.

ACTIVITY ENDS TODAY PPROA Meeting Hears Speakers

By RAY BAXTER
With official business out of the way following the directors meeting yesterday, members of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association got down to the business of orientation, and fun.

After the directors, by resolution, hit at the proposed amendment to the Natural Gas Act as insufficient for most operators in the Association, the luncheon speaker will take on new significance.

He is Walter Rogers, former legislator from this area, currently president of the Independent Natural Gas Association of America.

Association of America with headquarters in Washington D.C. Rogers is scheduled to speak at the 12:15 luncheon.

Up to that time conventioners had heard Tom Medders, Jr., president, Independent Petroleum Association of America with offices in Wichita Falls and Washington, D.C. Taylor Yoakum, manager, Gas Sales and Contracts, Mesa Petroleum Co., Amarillo, and T.B. Pickens, Jr., president and chairman of the board of Mesa.

The remarks of these men served as orientation to area producers and royalty owners concerning national and world affairs as they would affect them.

Jim C. Langdon, chairman, Texas Railroad Commission, will address the group at 1:45 p.m. Langdon flew into Perry Lefors Field yesterday at 3:45 to participate in the convention.

Most of the convention figures were presented at a reception and buffet in the Heritage Room of M.K. Brown Civic Center last night.

The convention will conclude with a banquet tonight with Dr. William C. Phinney, chief geologist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, as the featured speaker.

According to Beverly King, manager of the Association, names of the new officers for the coming year will be announced at this affair.

Commission Listens To Suggestions

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Texas constitutional revision commissioners here during the first of 18 hearings were urged Wednesday to remove legislators' salaries from the state constitution.

Fourteen members of the 37-member commission attended the meeting to hear recommendations from the public on what should be in the revision or creation of a new constitution.

Dr. James Cornette, president of West Texas State University in Canyon, said a commission should be created to set legislators' salaries "so we could have good, outstanding citizens of the state serving in the legislature without being unduly influenced by special interest groups."

Mrs. Beulah Casperson, chairman of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce's Legislative Affairs Committee, said the chamber of commerce also supports a commission to set legislative salaries.

Texas is now an urban state and the business of our state requires full time and full attention by those we elect to represent us," she said.

Legislators currently are paid $4,800 per year.

Mrs. Casperson added, "Qualifications for a candidate should not include financial ability to serve."

Sister Nellie Rooney, superintendent of schools of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Amarillo, recommended public aid to private and parochial schools be included.

She said parents with children in private schools now pay double through taxes and fees to educate their children. Sister Rooney also urged no prohibitions be included against such services as federal programs providing free lunches in private schools.

J. Ruce Aycock, Amarillo city attorney, told the commission interest rates and credit should be considered. He said the definition of interest rates should include all transactions in connection with a loan or purchase.

Get Set Cicadas Awakening

CHICAGO (AP) — Millions of cicadas are about to emerge from 17 years of darkness for a short but tuneful existence before disappearing for another 17 years.

These Rip Van Winkles of the insect world, commonly called 17-year locusts, are the longest lived of all insects. But all except a few weeks of that life is lived underground.

During those few weeks, the mating call of the male cicada reaches a crescendo in mid-afternoon and the rhythmic chorus can be heard a quarter-mile away.

Henry Dybas, curator of insects at the Field Museum of Natural History, said in an interview Wednesday that "locust" is a misnomer for the cicada, but that the term is so widely used it's hopeless to try to change it.

Cicadas, unlike true locusts — grasshoppers — do not devour plants. They feed on the sap of trees.

They do some damage when the female cuts slits in the bark to lay her eggs, but for mature trees this has only the effect of "natural pruning," Dybas said. Younger trees might suffer some harm.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME BEGINS AT 7 A.M. SUNDAY, APRIL 29.

Motives Haunting Investigation Of Watergate Espionage Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the web of involvement in the Watergate affair finally is untangled, a question will remain to haunt the Nixon White House: Why did they do it?

Why, while President Nixon's re-election prospects soared and his early Democratic rivals floundered, did men in his campaign organization deem it necessary to try wiretapping?

And why the earlier attempts at spying and apparent political sabotage against Democratic candidates who seemed to need no assistance in bunting their campaigns?

For all the investigations into who acted and who knew of Republican political spying in 1972, there may never be a clear answer as to motive.

"What really hurts in matters of this sort is not the fact that they occur, because overzealous people in campaigns do things that are wrong," Nixon said last Aug. 29. "What really hurts is if you try to cover it up."

That is hurting now as Watergate accusers point to men high in the White House, while Nixon's spokesmen deny the President had any knowledge of what was going on.

There has been a claim that political surveillance originally was ordered because of a risk of demonstrations against Republican campaigners.

But that could hardly be a motive for the wiretapping burglary at Democratic headquarters last June 17, or for the abortive attempt to bug the campaign offices of Sen. George McGovern three weeks earlier.

It seems more likely that Watergate happened because the Committee for the Re-election of the President was unleashed to do what its title said, with more money to spend than any candidate could really need.

million left over after Nixon's landslide re-election.

So there was plenty of money to pay substantial sums to a college student recruited to infiltrate the campaigns of McGovern and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, and to finance alleged sabotage efforts.

And there are charges now that the same treasury financed efforts to buy the silence of the seven men convicted in the Watergate raid.

Republicans now say that the Nixon campaign operation functioned with ample latitude to plot and do what was done, and without the knowledge of the President.

"You need only know the players involved," said Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the former Republican chairman, who never cared much for the CRP operators anyhow.

What the Nixon campaign committee seems to have had was a budget and a license for political overkill, both of which it used.

By the time the Watergate raid occurred, McGovern, the Democratic candidate Nixon men were said to have feared least among the opposition prospects, was clearly on his way to nomination.

The campaign for Muskie, who once as towering front-runner had led Nixon in 1971 public-opinion polls, had collapsed. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey was still trying, but with scant hope of nomination.

There was no evidence any covert CRP operation had significantly affected that Democratic situation.

On June 16, the day before the Watergate burglary, George Gallup's pollsters began three days of soundings which found that Nixon had a 60-per-cent approval rating as president. That polling also discovered that in a two-man race, Nixon led McGovern 53 per cent to 37 per cent.

Ultimately, Nixon won with 61 per cent of the vote to McGovern's 38 per cent.

So the President was in firm command of the presidential campaign, if not his own staff and organization.

There is another irony in the fact that the Watergate crew had bugged a Democratic headquarters that actually had little to do with what was happening in the presidential campaign. It was managing the debt, scheduling the convention, and dealing with party leaders who had lost their clout to the McGovern newcomers.

McGovern hammered the Watergate issue throughout his campaign—but a month before the election, a Gallup Poll reported that 80 per cent of those interviewed did not consider the wiretapping case a strong reason to vote for the Democratic nominee.

The White House was denying all charges, standing on a Nixon statement that no one in the administration was involved.

And the latest Gallup Poll indicates that 41 per cent of the American people believe Nixon knew in advance of the Watergate bugging.

BEFORE GRAND JURY Moore Denies Advance Knowledge Of Bugging

WASHINGTON (AP) — Powell Moore, a former public information spokesman for the Nixon campaign, appeared in the offices of federal prosecutors today as the Watergate grand jury reconvened.

Moore refused to comment on a report published today by columnist Jack Anderson, saying Moore and Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy approached Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst the day after Liddy's wiretapping crew was arrested.

Moore said he hadn't known of the bugging scheme in advance. Anderson quoted anonymous sources as saying that Liddy, who was later convicted as the alleged master mind of the Watergate operation, contacted Kleindienst on orders of campaign deputy Jeb S. Magruder. When Liddy located Kleindienst at a golf course, Moore asked to go along, Anderson said.

Then the three men—Liddy, Kleindienst and Moore—reportedly went into a back room, where Liddy told Kleindienst that one of the five men arrested inside Democratic offices early that morning was Nixon's campaign security chief.

Justice Department spokesmen wouldn't comment on Anderson's story today. Liddy himself eventually was indicted with the five arrested men and E. Howard Hunt.

FOR SPENDING BILL

Efforts To Stop Flow Of Amendments Go On

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A third effort to halt a seemingly endless flow of amendments was expected today as the House entered its sixth day of work on the $9.7 billion state spending bill.

Senators passed their version of the two-year budget, 29-0, Wednesday and sent it to the House after 82 minutes of debate.

House members twice rejected attempt to shut off amendments Wednesday by votes of 66-79 and 68-74, and Speaker Price Daniel Jr. announced another effort would be made today.

Representatives brought new amendments to Daniel's desk Wednesday as fast as others were disposed of on the floor. Ninety-one were on his podium when the House convened and there were still more than 90 when it adjourned.

Most House liberals voted to limit amendments to those remaining on Daniel's podium, while most conservative Democrats and Republicans favored continuing the flow.

"We just aren't going to finish, gentlemen. We are just not making any progress," Rep. Neil Caldwell, D-Angleton, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

But Rep. Bryan Poff, D-Amarillo, said the House traditionally has refused to limit the right to offer amendments to the general appropriation bill.

"I wouldn't be proud to pass a bill in an hour and 20 minutes like the Senate did. We are in an era of reform. We wouldn't even limit amendments back in the old days. It would be a great step backwards," Poff said.

The House voted on 34 amendments—almost three times as many as on other days—before recessing Wednesday evening.

Probably the biggest argument was over an amendment by Rep. Bill Clayton, D-Springlake, to restore the 50 per cent cut made by the appropriations committee in the salary of Hugh Yantis, controversial executive director of the Texas Water Quality Board.

The committee had sliced Yantis' salary from the $26,500 recommended by the Legislative Budget Board to $13,250. It also eliminated the salary of Emory Long, one of his top assistants. Yantis currently makes $25,500.

"I don't think you could find a licensed engineer who would be willing to accept the responsibility of running that agency for $13,250," Clayton said. "It would be a shame on this House to even suggest that."

He said critics of Yantis should complain to the water quality board that hired him, not punish him with a salary cut.

"I doubt whether we are getting $13,250 worth of protection for one of our natural resources, water," said Rep. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who initiated the original move to reduce Yantis' salary.

"Every time the major oil companies show up to oppose legislation, he shows up, too. We don't need another lobbyist for the polluters on the payroll of this state. I hope he quits," Parker said.

The department said the March rise in exports of $315 million consisted largely of an increase of about $120 million in aircraft deliveries and an expansion of $180 million in shipments of agricultural products.

It said the decline of $109 million in imports during the month was in industrial supplies and consumer goods.

While the figures were a dramatic improvement over February, the department said they "should not be interpreted as indicative of underlying trends."

The department also reported a substantial improvement in trade figures for the first three months of the year, with a deficit totaling $832.6 million, compared to a 1972 fourth quarter deficit of $1.5 billion, and an average quarterly deficit of all of 1972, also $1.5 billion.

The department said the quarterly returns "are encouraging," but, noting that imports as well as exports were up sharply—by 9.3 per cent—it said a large part of the export expansion of 15.5 per cent "may have been transitory."

The March deficit was the best U.S. trade performance since the country's last monthly surplus of $308 million in September of 1971. The deficit was $6.3 billion and, for 1971, $2 billion.

A deficit also has been forecast for the current year.

The consolidation was an optimistic move in the face of legislative efforts to abolish such schools and their districts throughout the state.

Tommy Adkins of the Hopkins district and Gray County School Supt. Rena Belle Anderson recently appeared in Austin to testify against two measures bent on accomplishing this move.

One bill would abolish all schools in Texas that did not have grades from kindergarten through grade 12. The other measure would abolish the office of county superintendent of schools.

These were tabled by a senate committee after clearing the house.

Yesterday, a resolution was introduced seeking to accomplish the abolition of the schools through different wording.

Mrs. Anderson, Raymond Maddox and Paul Eakin represented Gray County at a hearing in Austin on this resolution. It is currently under study.

Trading Deficit Declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit narrowed to $52.6 million in March, the best month since September 1971, the Commerce Department reported today.

The department said seasonally adjusted imports for March totaled $5.4 billion and exports totaled $5.3 billion.

The March deficit of $52.6 million was a considerable improvement over the deficit for February of $476.2 million when imports totaled $5.5 billion and exports totaled $5.0 billion.

The department said the March rise in exports of $315 million consisted largely of an increase of about $120 million in aircraft deliveries and an expansion of $180 million in shipments of agricultural products.

It said the decline of $109 million in imports during the month was in industrial supplies and consumer goods.

While the figures were a dramatic improvement over February, the department said they "should not be interpreted as indicative of underlying trends."

The department also reported a substantial improvement in trade figures for the first three months of the year, with a deficit totaling $832.6 million, compared to a 1972 fourth quarter deficit of $1.5 billion, and an average quarterly deficit of all of 1972, also $1.5 billion.

The department said the quarterly returns "are encouraging," but, noting that imports as well as exports were up sharply—by 9.3 per cent—it said a large part of the export expansion of 15.5 per cent "may have been transitory."

The March deficit was the best U.S. trade performance since the country's last monthly surplus of $308 million in September of 1971. The deficit was $6.3 billion and, for 1971, $2 billion.

A deficit also has been forecast for the current year.

New Devices Aid Bridge Surveillance

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Surveillance of steel bridges for possibly dangerous structural cracks no longer may depend on the eyes of the bridge inspector.

A research team said Thursday that portable electronic equipment has been developed which can reliably detect fatigue cracks which might lead to failure of steel bridge structures.

The team, offering the report to a symposium here, alluded to the Dec. 15, 1967, Silver Bridge disaster at Point Pleasant, W. Va.

The significance of small, hidden cracks was made prominent by the Silver Bridge collapse, said a spokesman for Southwest Research Institute, which developed new surveillance techniques along with the Federal Highway Administration.

The Silver Bridge episode also focused attention on the need for all the state highway departments to very substantially increase their bridge inspection activities, said the joint federal-Southwest research team report.

"Although the state highway departments did immediately initiate needed supplemental programs for inspections of all their structures, and on a frequent and systematic basis, they still lacked easy-to-use devices for detecting fatigue cracks in fatigue-prone areas which could lead to sudden collapse of the structure," the report says.

At present, says a Southwest spokesman, bridge inspectors must rely on visual examinations or upon nondestructive techniques suitable only for the laboratory when they check for fatigue cracks.

Two new electronic devices can help solve the examination problem, say the researchers.

Woman Stopped For Shoplifting

A 25-year-old Pampa woman is awaiting arraignment on shoplifting charges for the alleged theft of merchandise valued at $1.89.

An official of Furr's Family Center told police he observed the woman place a container of liquid margarine in her purse. He immediately went to the front of the store and accosted her after she left the building.

According to the police report, the woman returned to the store voluntarily where a jar of Tang valued at $1.35 valued at $1.35 and the margarine valued at 54 cents were recovered from her purse.

She is scheduled to go before the justice of the peace today.

STUMPED? — An old tree in Central Park, caught by the photographer's eyes, shows the effect of weathering it has undergone over the years. One thing for sure, it isn't suffering from dry bark this year. With around 11 inches of moisture from rain and snow since January 1, the trees are facing an abundance of water.

Parr, Bank Battling Attempts On Obtaining More Records

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Political chieftain George Parr and his Duval County bank are fighting pressure from federal prosecutors in two newly filed court papers.

Parr, 72, has filed a motion to dismiss the eight-count indictment which charges he attempted to evade more than $129,000 in income taxes from 1966 to 1969.

The First State Bank of San Diego, Tex., in Parr's hometown has escalated its fight against surrendering the bank records of three other South Texas political figures.

The bank, which has passed into federal hands the bank records of Parr and three Duval County political entities, now says a subpoena for the records of O. P. Osear and Ramiro Carrillo is too broad.

A Houston law firm in which former Gov. John Connally is a partner has filed a memorandum to buttress contentions it should not deliver the Carrillo records.

O. P. Carrillo is the judge of the 229th District Court of Texas. Ramiro Carrillo is a Duval County commissioner and Oscar Carrillo is a former state representative from Benavides.

The bank contends all its customers perhaps could be investigated by the government if it hands over microfilm which has been subpoenaed in connection with the Carrillos.

According to the bank's latest court filing, Parr, San Diego School Superintendent Bryan Taylor and Freer High School Superintendent Eunice Powell were indicted following the bank's surrender of the three men's records to the grand jury investigation.

"Only the original investigatees and no others have now been indicted almost a full year after the first subpoena served on the bank, but the investigation continues every few weeks in respect to new persons," the bank now says.

"One can only surmise at the significance of this, but the implication is clear that this investigation has become a 'fishing expedition' into the activities of what may become a limitless number of persons and entities in Duval County, Tex.," the bank claims.

Parr makes two allegations in his dismissal motion, both concerning the fact that he was indicted by a grand jury reporting to the U.S. District Court, Western District of Texas.

According to Parr's motion, the U.S. District Court, Western District of Texas "is without jurisdiction because the offenses, if any, set forth in the indictment were not committed within the jurisdiction of this court and are, therefore, not recognizable in this court."

Parr's native Duval County, where he was wielded control for half a century, lies in the Southern District of Texas, a federal district clerk spokesman here said.

Parr also says court rules hold that grand juries shall only consider cases which may be tried in the division or divisions of the district from which jurors are drawn.

FOR GRANDVIEW, HOPKINS Voters Approve School Consolidation In County

Following the canvass of votes yesterday that were cast in Tuesday's called election, two Gray County school districts have consolidated.

Voters of the Grandview Common School District voted unanimously — 47 votes — for consolidation. There was no opposition in this district.

Voters in the Hopkins Independent School District carried the measure by 29 votes. Balloting there was 38 for consolidation and nine against.

The consolidation was an optimistic move in the face of legislative efforts to abolish such schools and their districts throughout the state.

Tommy Adkins of the Hopkins district and Gray County School Supt. Rena Belle Anderson recently appeared in Austin to testify against two measures bent on accomplishing this move.

One bill would abolish all schools in Texas that did not have grades from kindergarten through grade 12. The other measure would abolish the office of county superintendent of schools.

These were tabled by a senate committee after clearing the house.

Yesterday, a resolution was introduced seeking to accomplish the abolition of the schools through different wording.

Mrs. Anderson, Raymond Maddox and Paul Eakin represented Gray County at a hearing in Austin on this resolution. It is currently under study.

Sweden Attacks Bombing

STOCKHOLM (AP) — The Swedish government charged the United States today with indiscriminate bombing in Cambodia.

Foreign Minister Krister Wickman told Parliament the government cannot approve a big power involving itself in a civil war in a small country. He added that the U.S. bombing in Cambodia was particularly objectionable because it hits the civilian population indiscriminately.

Suicide Line Discontinued

J. D. Losher, chairman, Suicide Prevention-Crisis Information of Pampa, announced Wednesday that the local "hot-line" telephone number will be discontinued Monday.

The decision was made in view of decreasing "traffic" on the line and the fact that the nature of the calls has been less serious.

"We feel the telephone volunteers staffing the hotline can better apply their talents and energies to other programs in Pampa," Losher said.

Those who helped with the program, local ministers and the authorities agree it would be impossible to measure the impact of the project on the lives of many Pampans since the first call came in on "665-3771."

Now, the number goes out of service.

"Speaking for the organization, I wish to thank those people and groups in Pampa who have supported and encouraged this program," Losher emphasized.

"Thanks are definitely due the many volunteers that have served the line. It is felt a genuine need has been served by Hotline. Many worthwhile efforts have been fostered by 'spun off' of the service," he noted.

NACE Slates Inhibitor Topic

The Panhandle section, National Association of Chemical Engineers, will consider developments in nonchromate inhibitor technology at the regular meeting Monday night in Borger.

Larry Twiford with Hercules, Inc., will be the speaker for the evening. A native of Houston, Twiford began his career with a Houston based water-treating company acquired by Hercules in 1967. At that time, he was made product development manager and later national sales manager for cooling water and boiler water products.

The meeting, at Sutphen's Bar-B-Q, will begin with a social hour at 6:15 p. m. and dinner at 7:15 p. m.

NO. 1 Northern regions: April 1-June 1 Southern regions: March 15-June 1 WORRY CLINIC

Bobby's case is a modern version of Cain vs. Abel. For love must be developed between siblings, as well as between adult sweethearts. And the "Death Wish" produces the various abnormal adult reactions cited below. Note—the murders by children under 8 years.

CASE W 588 Bobby R. aged 4, has a new baby brother. "But, Dr. Crane," his mother began, "Bobby doesn't show any love for little Jimmy."
"In fact, we found him striking Jimmy over the head with one of his toys till Jimmy's screams brought us to his rescue."
"Now I am actually afraid to leave Bobby alone with Jimmy."
"Why, I thought brothers and sisters had an innate love for each other."
"Is Bobby abnormal?"

LOVE IS LEARNED
The capacity for love is innate (inborn).
But our love for specific persons must be learned.
There is thus no innate or mystical affection between even a mother and her unborn infant.
Indeed, some girls, pregnant out of wedlock, hate their babies and actually dump them into garbage cans or strangle them.
And whether we hate a baby brother or love him, depends on how that newcomer will affect our own ego.
For everybody, at birth, is tattooed with this invisible but lifelong brand across his chest, which reads:
"I WANT TO FEEL IM-PORTANT."
If parents tactfully prepare the older child for the advent of the newcomer and thus make the first-born feel BIG at thus being allowed to push the perambulator or prepare the baby's bottle, then the older child will begin to love his new sibling.
But if the parents have showered all their attention, praise and the family spotlight on the first-born, then suddenly jilt him by turning most of it toward the newcomer, then hatred develops.
The first murder on earth was fratricide.

And their murders were attributed to their siblings, who ranged from 2 1/2 to 8 years of age.
Jealousy was cited as the major factor in provoking those older kiddies to beat the babies on the head or drop them off the bed on purpose.
One baby was found dead after its parents had visited friends in the same apartment building for a short time.
Upon their return, they found that their other two sons, aged 5 and 2 years, admitted rolling their baby brother off the bed a number of times.
Then they beat him on the head with a woman's shoe.
These acts are merely early evidences of the "Death Wish," which is explained more fully in the psychiatric booklet below.
Often these early jealousies are bottled up but then break out in abnormal fashion among adult married men and women.
A husband may thus refuse to have children, based on an early antagonism for his baby brother or sister, who stole the spotlight.
A woman may become so deranged she ends in a mental sanitarium, all due to her veiled hatred of her own baby.
So send for my booklet "Abnormal Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope plus 25 cents, for it will help you diagnose delayed reactions to your early jealousies.
Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melton, Indiana 47636. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.
The livestock handled each year by Canada's meat industry would fill 200,000 freight cars.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1607, Capt. John Smith landed at Cape Henry, Va., with the first group of colonists who would establish a permanent English settlement in America.
On this date: In 1783, 7,000 Tories sailed from New York for Nova Scotia. In 1865, Abraham Lincoln's assassin, John Wilkes Booth, was captured on a farm near Port Royal, Va.
In 1925, Paul von Hindenberg was elected president of Germany.
In 1945, Bremen, Germany fell to British forces during World War II.
In 1962, the first international satellite was launched from Cape Canaveral. It was a joint U.S.-British venture.
In 1964, the African nations of Tanganyika and Zanzibar merged to form a new nation, Tanzania.
Ten years ago, Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro arrived in the Soviet Union for meetings with top officials.
Five years ago, The biggest nuclear blast in the United States took place underground in Nevada and jarred buildings hundreds of miles away.
One year ago, President Nixon ordered new U.S. troops withdrawn from Vietnam, but vowed to continue bombing of the north until Hanoi halted its invasion of the South.

Institute Of Texan Cultures Helps Understanding Of Others

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer
Hunted down a distinguished folklorist, newsman and historian the other day in San Antonio.

He is R. Henderson Shuffler, who at that moment stood at the rear of the handsome Institute of Texan Cultures building puffing a pipe and waiting for a new fire engine.

Shuffler is devoting himself to helping persons of varied cultures understand each other. He and the staff, including a lanky, sun-weathered Texan, O. T. Baker, are doing this through displays showing that many different peoples made Texas what it is—Baker is manager of projects, exhibits and the Texas Folklife Festival.

How many national, racial or ethnic groups got together to create Texas?
The institute says 26 and has the facts and artifacts to prove it.

But, "This is not a museum," says Baker.

"We deal primarily with people—museums deal with things," he added.
So patted Bern Dog on the head—she's the office canine who adopted the institute as her own—and set off behind Baker on a tour of the most remarkable series of displays ever seen in Texas.

It is somewhat unfortunate that the institute is on the back lot of the HemisFair grounds. Yet hundreds of thousands find it annually.

First impression was that the place is inhabited by millions of birds, for a constant chirp, chirp, chirp filled the place.

What it was, it turned out, was hundreds of persons, many of them in school groups, exclaiming in wonder as they went from one display to another.

The institute was created for HemisFair. The legislature appropriated about $10.5 million to operate it for two years. Nearly three-million persons saw it in that period.
About 750,000 persons tour the place annually now, although that is just an educated guess since people just walk in.
The University of Texas System operates it.

Looked hard in the Lebanese section for Marlo Thomas and in the Mexican-American part for Vikki Carr. But no luck. They weren't visiting that day.

So you think there aren't many Lebanese? Well, 940 visited the exhibit last year, which must be a good segment of that nationality in the United States.

Also missed an important member of the staff, Rocky Stallings, a Tonkawa Indian.

Stallings is the resident medicine man and was particularly interested in meeting him because he has this pain in the left elbow and thought he might turn loose with some free medical advice.

The medicine man was off sick that day.
Stallings operates out of a genuine hide tanned with leather thongs. He shows people how arrows and other Indian things are made. He makes them.

Baker filled in admirably, although he did nothing for the sore elbow.

He showed a fishing reel the Indians used 5,000 years ago, Baker said. Stallings can get great distances from it.

Also saw an arrow that must have been the inspiration for multi-headed nuclear missiles.

These arrows have up to seven points each. However the points do not fly apart like those on the missiles.
Baker called it a "blunderbuss" and said it was used for hunting small birds. Or you might say it was a grandfather of the shotgun.

Baker says that the Indian exhibit is the favorite of school groups.

The institute only recently received a mounted buffalo.

"Watch the youngsters," said Baker.
Almost every child walked up and felt of the eyes.

"I don't know why they do that," Baker admitted, shaking his head.
There is a cured buffalo robe hanging on the wall.

"Feel it," suggested Baker.
Your hand goes into the fur almost to the wrist. It helps understand how Indians could survive Texas' northerners in an airy tepee.

There is a Negro exhibit, too, although not as complete as it might be, since some black groups object to depicting slavery days or anything which smacks of Uncle Tomism.

So the black exhibit largely is filled with pictures and stories of Negro politicians, industrialists, businessmen, inventors, artists and athletes.

About the only articles in display cases in the black exhibits are uniforms. The frontier had many distinguished Negro military men.

The institute owns very little—most of the displays are filled with articles on loan.

While we were around, Shuffler got his fire engine—a brilliantly painted hand-pulled affair. It was borrowed from the Fredericksburg Volunteer Fire Department.

Occasionally the museum rescues and gains possession of some artifact.

Baker is particularly proud of an elaborately carved mantlepiece which was obtained when the Sam Maverick mansion was torn down.

The rancher was the man who gave the dictionary the word "maverick." The mantle was carved from mesquite by his wife, Sally Frost Maverick.

You can find all sorts of strange and wonderful things in the institute.

A Japanese exhibit, for example. Never heard of a Japanese colony? Yet there was—and we hear there still is on the coast. They were brought here to teach Texans how to grow and process rice.

Belgians? Sure. South Texas is great for vegetables but no one made a great success of them commercially. The Belgians came and showed how to grow them best—and, more important, how to organize markets.

There are enough things to see to keep anyone looking for days.

But just a few.
How to make adobe brick and why horses were so important in the process.

A genuine covered wagon.
A story of the Texan believed to have developed the first steam buggy.
Fifty-cent automobile licenses.

How the first oil wells were dug by hand.
A 90-year-old wooden oil well casing as good as new, preserved by the oil.

Granite cracked with wood.
A sheaf of wheat which you can't find hardly since combines became universal.

The institute has a small, ornate fountain in the Spanish exhibit.

People figured it was a wishing well and began throwing in money. During HemisFair, the institute collected $3,000 from the well and turned the money into a scholarship.

This particular day, looked in and found nothing but pennies in the well.

Being a big spender, dropped in a nickel and wished the sore elbow would feel better.
It didn't.

Maybe it's one of those expensive, exotic new ailments and next time we're going to make sure and drop half a dollar in the well.

Pampan Helps Prepare Food For A Greek Easter

By BOBBY COMBS

Easter, the Feast of Feasts will be celebrated by St. John The Baptist Greek Orthodox Church, 1101 Bell Avenue, Amarillo, beginning at midnight Saturday, April 28.

Ted Gikas, 1000 Duncan, and his mother, Mrs. N.K. Gikas of Borger, will help prepare food for the feast, and are sharing recipes, which Mrs. Gikas brought to this country in 1908 from her native homeland, Muzaki, Greece.

She is the mother of six children including two sons, Ted and John who have owned and operated the Coney Island Cafe, since 1947, at which time you could purchase a coney for only five cents.

Besides cooking interests, Ted enjoys designing and making jewelry and collecting original works of art. His hobbies also include camping and skiing in the Red River and Taos, N.M. area.

Why do they celebrate Easter differently and very seldom together with other Christian Churches?

This is due to the difference of Pascal Cycle, which we have continuously observed since the First Ecumenical Council of 325 A.D. At this time the Church was still One and the same throughout the then known world and everyone celebrated Easter together and as we do today.

As you may well know, Julius Caesar, the Roman Emperor, decided to correct the then ancient Roman calendar because January was falling into the period of autumn. So in 46 B.C. he ordered it corrected.

The months were then adjusted to 30 and 31 days each, with the exception of February, which has 28 days and an extra day every four years (leap year).

Upon its adoption, this calendar became known as the Julian Calendar. In 325 A.D. during the reign of Constantine the Great (Emperor of the Roman Empire) with the summoning of the First Ecumenical Council, our Church (and the other Christian Churches which were still part of and in oneness with Her) accepted the Julian Calendar as the basis for formulating our Church holidays in accordance to certain Canons which were then instituted. Much later, however, it was found that the Julian Calendar was also inaccurate. Thus on order of the Roman Pope, Gregory XIII, the Roman Council of Trident in 1562 A.D. changed the Julian Calendar by skipping 10 days.

Thus so, the present calendar is called the Gregorian Calendar and it now differs 13 days from the Julian Calendar, because in addition to the original 10 days skipped, for every 100 years since then, another day has been added.

The Greek Orthodox Church, as of the beginning of the 20th Century, has observed the Gregorian Calendar with the exception of Pascal Cycle. This was done because the Gregorian Calendar violates certain rules (canons) of the First Ecumenical Council and is thus contrary to our Church teachings. These violations pertain to the celebration of Easter and our Lord Jesus Christ Himself.

Therefore, our Church follows the Canon of the First Ecumenical Council which determines the celebration of Easter. It is known as the 85 Canons of the Holy and renowned Apostles, which in essence says the following as to when Easter may be celebrated.

(1) Appearance of the new crescent moon in the western sky. (2) During the 14th day of the month of Nisan of the Jewish Passover. (3) After the Jewish Passover.

Due to these rules and that this may occur (fall) on any day during the week, the Council further decided that Easter be celebrated on Sunday, and if the Jewish Passover should come on a Sunday, the Christian Easter then would be observed a week later. Easter thus in the Eastern Orthodox Church is never celebrated before the Jewish Passover, because Christ our Lord Himself observed the Passover.

Counting Calories Is NOT True Key to Weight Loss

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

It is possible to eat as much as any reasonable person would wish to eat and still not get fat or increase the fat particles in your blood. It is more important to consider what you eat than how much you eat. To illustrate the point, there are nearly eight times as many calories in a pound of raw cured bacon as there are in a pound of uncreamed cottage cheese. Bacon has 10 times as many calories as whole milk, and more than 25 times as many calories as asparagus tips. Raw pork fat has nearly 12 times as many calories as whole milk, and nearly eight times as many calories as the light meat of fryer chicken without its skin.

All those calories in bacon and pork fat do not mean these foods contain more nutrients. In fact, there are more healthy nutrients and more than twice the protein in the chicken. Many of the calories in fatty foods "don't count"—meaning that they don't count in terms of essential vitamins, minerals, and nutrients they do count in causing obesity, fat-particle deposits in the arteries, and other health problems. Separable animal fat is almost devoid of everything except calories. Most people know that fat contains over twice as many calories as protein or carbohydrates. But that just refers to the actual digestible fat, carbohydrate, and protein. This simple fact doesn't even begin to explain the difference in the calorie content of different foods. The food we eat is composed of much more, including water and fibrous material, or cellulose. One of the major factors determining the amount of calories in a food is its water content. Raw pork fat contains only 11 per cent water. Raw cured bacon is 19.3 per cent water, while uncreamed cottage cheese is 79 per cent and the light meat of fryer chicken without the skin is 77 per cent.

Muscle tissue, like lean round steak, contains a lot of water. It takes three-fourths of a pound of lean round steak to yield 620 calories and the amount of protein usually considered as a daily minimum for health. On the other hand, less than one-fourth of a pound of bacon yields nearly 700 calories and about as much fat as should be allowed from all sources in any one day.

If you want to know how many calories you are really eating there is no substitute for knowing the calorie content of the different foods you eat. For the most part, lean meat, fish, vegetables, and fruit permit a person to eat a fairly large quantity of food without eating too many calories. Unless they are soaked in fat, butter, or sauces made with fat.

Sugar is a problem in controlling the number of calories because it, too, contains little water. It also contains very little except calories for the body's nutritional needs. There is less than 1 per cent water in sugar, and a quarter of a pound contains nearly 400 calories—about four times as many calories as a comparable amount of light meat of fryer chicken without the skin.

Lard is a good example of how little other than calories some fat contributes to nutrition. It is essentially devoid of any vitamins or minerals; it doesn't even contain any water. Lard is one of the richest foods available.

It seems as if everyone talks about calories—but just what is a calorie? It is a way of measuring energy by the actual heat it produces. The metabolism of food generates energy in the form of heat, and this heat energy is the fuel for the body. This is why physical work makes a person hot, and why, after death, when food metabolism stops, the body begins to cool. The heat energy in food is released as the complex organic material composed of carbon and hydrogen is broken down into the simple elements of carbon dioxide and water. Just as the destruction of an atom generates heat, the breakdown of a food molecule releases heat, though in lesser amounts.

If the food is not fully metabolized into its end products of carbon dioxide and water, the intermediate products will still contain potential heat energy, or calories. Food stored as fat really represents a fuel storage that can be used for energy if needed. In some animals, such food storage is desirable since there are only certain times during the year when they can obtain food. The bear is an excellent example, eating everything in sight in summer, and storing much of the food energy in fat deposits for use while hibernating.

Calories can be obtained from carbohydrates, proteins, fats, and even alcohol. The calorie content of the food has little or nothing to do with its content of essential vitamins, minerals, or other nutrients. It is just an expression of available heat energy. A proper diet cannot be defined in terms of calories alone, since the body needs iron, calcium, other minerals, and a host of vitamins.

Measuring the calorie content is useful in evaluating food energy intake and expenditure. The active person needs energy, and this means food. The physically inactive person needs less energy, and he should eat less food. If more food energy is eaten than expended on a daily basis, the excess food is stored as fat deposits. Here, then, is the only way to determine if you are getting too many calories, regardless of how little or how much you eat: if you are gaining fat deposits, you are storing excess calories and eating too many calories for your level of activity. This doesn't always mean you are eating too much food. It can mean that you are eating the wrong kind of food, such as fat containing a large number of calories in a very small portion. Or it can mean that your level of physical activity is too low.

It is important to appreciate that even though the body weight is a useful guide in detecting overeating, the only good test is to feel for the accumulation of fat around the waist, hips, and other locations. This is the real indication of excess food storage. A tall person may not appear to weigh too much for his height according to the scales, but if there is an accumulation of fat, or the familiar spare tire, he is too fat regardless of what the scales read.

Because of our ritualistic fixation on the pounds registered by the scales, we often do not realize that our goal in dieting should be to eliminate excess fat storage, not to reduce the number of pounds. It is important to understand this concept. A physically inactive person may weigh the "normal" amount, but his muscle mass may be relatively small and the rest of his body weight may be made up of dangerous fat deposits. With physical activity—the calories stored in fat tissue will be gradually mobilized and used to provide food and energy for the body, and the muscle mass will actually increase. In this way physical activity will convert much of the fat tissue in the body to muscle tissue. Since one pound of fat tissue contains as many calories as five pounds of lean muscle tissue, there may be no evidence whatever of weight reduction according to the scales. The significant evidence of improved health is in the disappearance of fat deposits underneath the skin and the development of better-formed, firmer muscles.

Slavish adherence to the numerical reading on the scales has occasionally contributed to the ineffectiveness of recent studies. Instead of determining the in-

Dear Abby

She gets the picture, keeps her mouth shut

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor of mine loves to sew, and she has made some lovely things. She made a beautiful dress and bonnet for my daughter's fourth birthday, so I took the child to a photography studio and had a picture taken of her in that outfit. Then I bought a frame for it and presented it to my neighbor to show my appreciation.

She seemed pleased and placed the picture on her piano. A few months later I noticed that she had placed a picture of her dog in that frame, and my daughter's picture was nowhere to be seen. I finally told her that as long as she wasn't displaying my daughter's picture, I'd like to have it back. She said, "Certainly." Then she got my daughter's picture out of a drawer and handed it to me. I said, "How about the frame?"

She replied, "Oh, you can buy another one for 75 cents."

Abby, I was so hurt. That frame cost me $1.50. I didn't want to start an argument with her so I just kept my mouth shut.

What would you have done?

HURT

DEAR HURT: I'd have kept my mouth shut.

DEAR ABBY: A couple, merely acquaintances of a few years, have dropped in to see us on three different occasions. They appear to be like other people, except for the husband.

He asks to take a bath the minute they step inside the door. The first time we thought nothing of it because they were on their way home from a day's trip in their car, even though their home is only five miles from ours.

My wife and I have never been in their home but we understand it has all the conveniences of ours, including a tub and shower.

On two other occasions when they had come directly from their home, he again asked to take a bath. After the third bath I concluded that he must be some kind of a nut. Needless to say we have never returned their visits and probably never will.

What do you suppose makes our ordinary bathing-facilities so fascinating that the husband cannot wait to use his own?

PERPLEXED IN SANTA ANA

DEAR PERPLEXED: I don't know, but I surely would have asked him after the second bath.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column of a man and woman who seemed to be able to adjust to the fact that they have grown heavy together and are still happy. I identified with the woman, as I have been in the 200s since I was 16 years old. One thing, tho, I did not identify with was the closing statement: "Who would have us?"

I am sure there are many heavy women who firmly believe that they will never marry because they are fat. I was in the 200s when we married last year. I was lamenting the fact that I was being measured for a size 22½ wedding gown instead of a size 12 or 14. My precious husband-to-be took Big Me into his very trim arms and said, "The things about you I find most beautiful are the things that will never change. Weight can go up or down, but your love for other people, your kindness, your availability for those in need, your love for God and for me... these are beauty, and I find you most beautiful." Needless to say I cried a bucketful of tears for so understanding and loving a man.

May I offer a little advice for the overweight? Use every asset you have regardless of how heavy you are. Keep your hair well groomed, your face nicely made up, wear clothes that flatter you, and concentrate on good manners. Most of all, give of yourself to others in your community or in your church. Don't hibernate! Someone also may find your beauty.

Thank you Abby for the opportunity to say what I have felt, and a special thank you for the chance to praise my husband openly before the world.

We are indebted to our old friend Easley Blackwood for an interesting bit of deception with an amusing result. At least, North and South were amused. East and West are still mad.

West opened the four of hearts and East's queen was allowed to hold the trick. East returned the six-spot and West won with the jack after South ducked again.

South had seen plenty of signs of trouble after the heart opening and he used a little false carding for no good reason except that strange things do happen at times. He dropped the five of hearts at trick one and the eight of hearts at trick two.

After his jack held the second heart trick, West was sure that his partner, not South, was holding the three of hearts. West was one of those suit preference addicts and returned the deuce of hearts to tell his partner about the club ace.

He could probably have shown this same suit preference by leading the nine but West was so sure that his partner held that three of hearts that he fell right into South's trap.

The extra heart trick was all South needed to make his impossible contract.

FRIDAY, APRIL 27
Your birthday today: This year you progress from theory to practical skills and take on personal responsibility. Today's natives are persistent without receiving visible encouragement.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your work area is apt to be in an area of conflict. Get out of the way, avoiding involvement as long as possible.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Learn what you can from what happens now. People's comments are less valuable than your knowing what they do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your patience with late arrivals makes all the difference this long day of endless discussion and unraveling of old stories.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be thrifty, keep resources in readiness for contingencies. Joint enterprises require full sharing of information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You'll be well rewarded for courtesy and care in dealing with both people and equipment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Strive for serenity; all else settles into place. Make the most of a fleeting productive spurt this afternoon.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Deal directly, rather than trusting intermediaries. Make no decisions on behalf of another unless requested by all concerned.

Changing Life Styles Revealed

Snooping at the Way Others Live

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Natural curiosity about how others live needs no extra vitamins to keep it at full steam. In fact, most cities have a favorite charity group which capitalizes on snooping and profits from house or apartment tours have helped many handicapped persons.

A major corporation in the home furnishings field the last four years also has capitalized on mounting interest of men and women to get a peek at how another person decorates his home. The project, called the Burlington House Awards, drew 83 entries in its first year and this year had more than 200. This year's winners, announced recently at the Home Furnishings market in Chicago, reflect a changing life style in the United States. Earlier entries, submitted for judging by newspaper and magazine home furnishings experts, were not too representative of how most folk lived, for example, in suburban Dallas, Milwaukee or Roanoke.

As this year's board of governors, made up of such community leaders and socialites as Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley (Wrigley's Gum), Mrs. Samuel Johnson (Johnson's Wax), Mrs. Joseph Lauder (Estee Lauder), discovered, there were "no longer posh mansions and extravagant homes" from which to cull a winner. Instead there were more realistic, middle income homes, including nine remodeled barns, bachelors' houses and apartments, career girls' apartments. In fact, small apartments were quite prominent entries this year.

Reflecting, too, the more down-to-earth aura surrounding the decorating entries is the attitude of the judges. Their life styles, according to three of them, are in tune with the times.

They travel a lot, like to cook at home more, collect art and worry about their children living, for example, in communes.

Mrs. David E. Skinner of Bellevue, Wash., appeared for the interview in a basic black dress with black stocking shoes and mini pants. The Skinners (he's in shipping) live in a house that's "about 50 years old. We've lived in it for 20 years," she explained. "It is an adaptable house. We can dress it up or down."

Mrs. Skinner reported that many of her friends were selling their old, big homes and moving to apartments in Seattle.

When married after World War II she said she was starved for color and had a charcoal wall and cabbage rose wallpaper. New colors are more subdued and Oriental antiques are accents.

Mrs. Skinner's change in decorating taste also was reported by Mrs. Samuel Johnson. The Johnsons have moved five times, she reported, since their marriage and once lived in England. An early home was Tudor with heavy curtains and high windows. They now are building a contemporary home that will include "handed down antiques and contemporary colors." In fact, she is trying to tone down one daughter's choice of a red bathroom lavatory, pink bathtub and purple rug: "But we like color because the long Wisconsin winters can be dull, colorless."

Another judge showed the bubbling Chamber of Commerce attitude of the Old South. Mrs. Olin Shivers of Atlanta, her pediatrician husband and children live in a large house built by her parents. They also are restoring a plantation house built in the 1700s. Travel contributes to their decor as it does to that of the other judges. The Shivers picked up and put together in one room Tibetan prayer flags with a Duncan Phyfe sofa, Portuguese rug and Russian ikons. Like many young homemakers they save by do-it-yourself. They stopped bidding, she explained, during an auction when a Sheraton dining table went over $1,000. Instead the couple took a Ping-Pong table scored the top with beer Dentistry student Dennis Carter was a lucky man when it came to decorating his apartment. His wife was an artist and her paintbrush, sewing machine and "scripping" expertise helped decorate a three-room apartment in Indianapolis for $153. Their apartment was a winner in the 4th Burlington House Award contest. Mrs. Carter painted a curving black graphic design (top) in the living room (budgeted for $53.70) with a $7 sofa bed, $6 daybed, $18 end tables, $1.20 draperies, $6 rug and $9 upholstery fabrics. In the bedroom she painted portraits of her husband right on the wall. Grass mat covers the floor and pillows on Goodwill Industries wicker furniture and iron bed painted white are bright red and dark blue. White curtains have blue felt appliques.

added, are collecting art and antiques because "people are desperate to hold on to things that make them feel as individuals. For this reason young men and women, single or married, should decorate around a key, signature piece of furniture to keep and expect to change the rest each year or two."

They all agree that future homes will be more modular, where furniture unscrews from the walls for quick changes. As Mrs. Shivers expressed the mood, "I see homes of the future as a desperate effort to rid self of everything, of burdens." But many, Mrs. Skinner

Embassy Members present were Mmes. Ralph Dozier, Lee Foxworthy, Jim Johnston, Michael Kuralt, Don-Wilson, Walter Colwell, Imre Nagy, and the hostess.

LA CULTURA CLUB
La Cultura Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Jerry Peurifoy, 1813 N. Zimmers. Mrs. Walter Colwell, president, and Mrs. Don Wilson led the club collect.

Mrs. Imre Nagy presented a program on religion in her native country of Hungary. She began her program with a history of the beginning of Christianity which King Stephen introduced to his people.

King Stephen is the Patron Saint of Hungary. After World War II the Stalinist Communist began a systematic attack on the church and its leaders. Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Primate of the Hungarian Catholic Church, was arrested and after a show trial he was given a sentence of life imprisonment. During the Hungarian Revolution of 1956, Cardinal Josef Mindszenty was liberated and found refuge in the U.S.

'Texas' Ready For 8th Season

"Now we know how it was." This remark is often heard each evening after "Texas," the awesome spectacle of Panhandle history in drama and dance and song which plays summer evenings in the Palo Duro Canyon near Canyon and Amarillo.

The eighth season will run from June 21 through Aug. 25 in 1973, nightly except Sundays.

At the end of each show, as the man-made storms have subsided and the fires are tamped down, when the dancers and singers have left the stage in a burst of exuberance and the horsemen have galloped off, when the actors have told their story of trial-and-triumph as Paul Green wrote it — and the last long notes of the bugle have died away, the audiences begin to comment.

The grizzled plainsmen say "That's the way it was, like that prairie fire. You would just think you had it out, and it would burst out again somewhere else."

OVERTURE — "Texas," the musical drama of Panhandle history by Paul Green, will play again in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park this summer. Opening performance is set for June 21.

The children say, "It's interesting when you can see what it was like."

The travelers from abroad (from 62 countries in 1972) often remark, "Now we understand you better." "This shows us how and why America grew." "After tonight we can see why you people in the states are as you are."

"Texas" is superb entertainment, fast moving, musically exciting, a kaleidoscope of color as the 80 cast members move in dances and action against the great cliff behind the stage.

This is one of Paul Green's great statements of faith in America. It is one of nine windows which he has opened on nine regions of this country, revealing through each one the music and customs and struggles and philosophies of the land he is describing.

"Texas" is the look into the frontier west, the vast land, the dry land, the harsh land where people were thrown on their own resources and where those who stayed had great strength and endurance. They had humor and love of life as well, and in "Texas," their story, the audience feels this

Above all, the early settlers in the Texas Panhandle were sheltered by a magnificent canyon, a thousand feet deep and a hundred miles long, carved from the flat plains by 250 million years of wind and water. Protected by these walls, the amphitheatre lays on the floor of this great abyss.

The audience watches the mysterious shadows of the cliffs and watches the changes in the coloring of the Canyon walls at twilight.

To visit the Palo Duro Canyon is an awesome experience. To share the gay and grim lives of the early settlers is a revelation. An evening at "Texas" is not forgotten.

The Palo Duro Canyon lies half an hour over paved roads from Amarillo, the crossroads of five interstate highways and five airlines.

At the end of the seventh season in 1972, 499,758 people had seen "Texas." The eighth season will be June 21 through Aug. 25, nightly except Sundays. There will be a special performance on Sunday, July 1.

For tickets and information please write "Texas," Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2182.

Pranksters Take School Parking Ticket Records

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — "We played the nice guy for awhile and the tickets just mounted," says a Trinity University spokesman of the student parking ticket situation.

Then the school decided to crack down on parking offenders.

Now, the Trinity spokesman confirms, the school is without any records of the parking tickets issued during this scholastic year because the tickets disappeared in a break-in of school offices over the weekend.

James Harford, head of the Trinity University's public relations office, said a note was left in the nearby office of the school newspaper, The Trinitonian. The note was in the form of an "announcement," he said. It said the tickets had been "liberated" and it was signed "Bonnie and Clyde," said Harford.

"We view this more as a student prank," said Harford, who said expensive office machines which could have been taken were bypassed in the break-in.

The incident was not reported to municipal police. The school contracts with a private security agency to maintain surveillance of campus parking.

US, RUSSIA BOTH BUSY East-West Contest Entering New Phase Of Cooperation

Shortly before 10 o'clock on the evening of March 24, 1958, a tremendous explosion rattled the bow of the U.S.S. Maine at anchor in the harbor of Havana.

Something—a mine or torpedo or exploding magazine—had shattered the bow of the ship, blowing it off anchor in the harbor. The Maine's complement of 350 officers and crew members and two officers perished.

Investigation should be suspended until the report, cautioned Capt. Charles D. Sigsbee, a message to the secretary of the Navy, was received.

"Maine destroyed by Spanish," headlined the New York Evening Journal. "War! Sure!"

The fact that such a provocative act was being committed by the Spanish would have carried the night with Americans.

President McKinley immediately ordered an official investigation and Navy divers were dispatched to Havana. On Mar. 6, he requested a defense appropriation of $50 million.

On Mar. 25, the Maine commission made its report. The cause of the explosion, it said, was a submarine mine, but it found no evidence to fix responsibility. A Spanish investigation had concluded that the explosion was internal.

What or who really sank the Maine was never determined. The wreck was refloated in 1911 and a second court of inquiry essentially confirmed the finding of the first. The Maine was then towed out to sea and sunk with military honors in 600 fathoms.

While William Randolph Hearst's Journal trumpeted, "Remember the Maine! To hell with Spain!," a clamorous nation and Congress chafed under the president's counseling of moderation. Spain continued to insist that there could be no talk of Cuban autonomy until the rebels laid down their arms.

Finally, on Apr. 11, the president delivered his long-awaited "war message," asking Congress for authority to intervene in Cuba. Congress passed a joint resolution to that effect—including a later significant amendment introduced by Senator Teller of Colorado forbidding U.S. acquisition of Cuba.

On Apr. 22, McKinley ordered a blockade of Cuba and on Apr. 25, Congress declared that a state of war had existed since the 21st.

Henry Kissinger appeals for a new Atlantic Charter, the Kremlin earnestly begs cooperation from the West, and the whole picture is one of the East-West contest entering a new phase.

The Nixon Administration says 1973 will be America's "Year of Europe." It begins to look like the Kremlin had plans for its own "Year of Europe," and recent Soviet comments suggest a large measure of satisfaction with the results thus far.

Wednesday in Finland, representatives of 32 nations began the final stage of preparatory talks for a full-dress European security conference this summer. When the date is set, Moscow can hope to begin reaping fruit from years of patient propaganda and diplomatic labor. The prospects may account for the pleased tone of Soviet comment.

The United States will go reluctantly to the conference this summer, and for Moscow it is a victory of sorts—how much depending upon what happens later on. Recent statements of U.S. and other Western leaders leave the impression that guards are up.

Both Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers, in speeches Monday in New York, took pains to stress the importance of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's continuing credible posture. It has been fairly apparent from the start of the Soviet campaign on European security that NATO was the principal target. A security arrangement might suggest that détente was a substitute for defense.

The Kremlin may not expect dramatic results at once from the conference, but getting the West to agree to any conference at all took a long, long time, and it is reasonable to assume Moscow considered the prospective gains worth all the labor.

V.M. Molotov, then foreign minister, made the original pitch for a collective European security scheme in 1954 at a Foreign Ministers' Council meeting in Berlin.

Again and again in the Khrushchev era, and even more persistently under Leonid Brezhnev, the Russians revived the European security conference campaign. Time after time world events interfered by creating high tension. Finally, the détente atmosphere of 1972 brought the preparatory conference in Helsinki.

Apart from lessening NATO's role, another important Soviet aim for the conference is indicated in press comment. One such comment in mid-April noted that "disagreements exist in particular on the question of what principles of relations between states in Europe should be included in the draft for the tasks of the committees."

"Attempts are being made on the part of some NATO states," complained the periodical Za Rubezhom, "to detract from the significance of the principle of the inviolability of European borders."

Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP)—Few of us ever have seen a miracle. We'll get the chance tonight when the CBS Television network takes a big corporate gamble and broadcasts "You Are the Winner."

It's about $20 billion dollar worth of television advertising that CBS is pulling off. It's a very, very, very big gamble. You should watch it.

The Federal Trade Commission has been asked to look into the possibility of playing loose with the truth, if ads in any way are by returning and exchanging the offending commodity.

With about six of six of the biggest advertising agencies in the country, General Electric, Wm. L. Gilbert, and the National Palm Beach, Fla., Home Depot, are expected to be interested in the show.

It's a show that has never been seen before on television—an advertisement that is a contest.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. How do I go about obtaining an extension of time to file my income tax return?

A. You can get an automatic two-month extension to file your Federal income tax return by properly completing Form 4868 and sending it to the IRS along with payment of tax that is estimated to be due for the year. This form, which you can obtain at any Internal Revenue office, must be filed with the IRS Service Center on, or before the due date of your income tax return, and a duplicate must be attached to your return when you file.

If you underestimate the actual amount you owe, you will be assessed interest at the rate of six percent per year on the unpaid amount. If the unpaid amount is more than 10 percent of your tax liability, you will be assessed, in addition to interest, a penalty of one-half of one percent of the tax due for each month or part of a month until you pay.

However, in the case of hardship, Form 2688 should be used to apply for an extension of time. Such extensions are not granted as a matter of course, and the reason for your request must be substantial. The automatic two-month extension should not be used prior to the filing of Form 2688 for a hardship extension.

Q. How do I apply for additional extensions beyond this two-month period?

A. Further extensions of the time to file are granted only under very unusual circumstances. If you need additional time to file, apply for the extension either in a letter or by filing Form 2688. Such extensions are not granted as a matter of course, and the reasons for your request must be substantial.

Q. Aren't there special filing extensions for U.S. citizens and military personnel abroad?

A. U.S. citizens who are not in the United States or Puerto Rico on April 15 are allowed an automatic extension until June 15 for filing their returns for the preceding calendar year. Such taxpayers filing returns for a fiscal year are allowed a two-month extension beyond the due date.

Military personnel on duty outside the United States and Puerto Rico also are allowed an automatic two-month extension of time for filing.

If you take advantage of this automatic extension, you must attach a statement to your return showing that you were outside the United States and Puerto Rico on April 15 or other due date.

Q. I'm filing a return for the first time this year and I want to designate $1 of my tax to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund. Where can I get the form I should use for the $1 "check-off"?

A. Call, write or visit any Internal Revenue office to obtain a copy of Form 4875, "Presidential Election Campaign Fund Statement." This form is automatically given to each taxpayer requesting a Form 1040 or Short Form 1040A and was included in the forms package sent to every taxpayer who filed last year.

If you wish $1 ($2 if married filing jointly) to be paid over to candidates of a specific party, check the first box on the Form 4875 and fill in the name of the political party. If you wish the money to be paid over to a nonpartisan general account for all eligible candidates, check the second box. Be sure to sign and date the form and attach it to your income tax return.

Q. Can I deduct my Medicare premiums?

A. Yes. Premiums for medical health insurance, including supplementary medical insurance for the aged under Medicare, are deductible, if you itemize. One-half of your premiums up to $150 is deductible without limitation. The balance should be added to your other medical expenses. These are deductible only to the extent they exceed three percent of your income.

Q. Are union dues deductible?

A. Yes. Dues and initiation fees paid to obtain and maintain union membership are deductible if you itemize.

GI Home Loans Showing Increase

GI home loans in January rose 4 per cent higher than a year earlier, sustaining a six-year generally upward trend.

The Veterans Administration reported 30,600 loans were approved in January compared to 29,000 in January 1972. The December total was 32,600, according to Jack Coker, VA Regional Office Director.

On a yearly basis, loans last year climbed to nearly 30,000, about a 25 per cent increase over 1971. Included in the total were 5,500 mobile home loans, a 162 per cent hike over 1971.

VA loans in the area served by the Waco Regional Office increased 12 per cent in the past year with 15,189 home loans approved. Mobile home loans in the area numbered 381.

The agency also guarantees loans to wives of husbands of service personnel missing in action or prisoners of war more than 90 days, and to those discharged for service-connected disabilities, regardless of length of service.

Peace? What peace? For thousands of disabled Vietnam veterans

War Doesn't End Merely Because It Is Over

simply want to forget about the whole blasted thing—and forget about anyone who reminds them of the whole blasted thing. Hence the guy in the wheelchair gets little mileage rattling his medals; in fact, says James Maye of the Paralyzed Veterans Association, the disabled vet is being shunted aside and forgotten. People look at us as losers. They subconsciously put us out of their minds. And as time passes we think this treatment is going to get worse.

Indeed, recently the Veterans Administration compiled a study concerning the merits of compensation to disabled veterans. Its findings indicated the maimed chaps were all but dripping with government granted wealth, thus slight reductions might be in order. Slight? Ron Drach, a one-legged Vietvet now working with the DAV, says his monthly compensation, under the VA proposal, would be cut from $570 to $124. Needless to say Drach was not happy with the V.A. report and protested bitterly.

So did thousands of other handicapped Vietvets. And the V.A., slightly humiliated, eran rate may be as high as 25 per cent and the figure among paralyzed veterans may be as high, as shocking, as one in two.

"This isn't because they don't want to work," says Hartnett, "but because nobody wants to hire them." Why? Some employers worry (incorrectly) that their insurance rates would go up. Others don't want to spend time matching the man to the job. Still others, frankly, simply refuse to bother with the idea of having cripples in their plants ("Well, what if they get hurt or something?").

And even if the employer is not prejudiced, Hartnett adds, he has no special incentive for hiring the seriously disabled. "I get damn mad when I see every minority group in the country (blacks, women, etc.) take priority jobs preference over veterans. There is one government program, for example, that offers tax credits to employers of the hardcore unemployed. Well obviously, then, if a guy has got 20 openings he's going to fill them with 20 hard-core unemployed—why should he hire a disabled vet if he can back door, the kitchen, to get to a table. That makes me mad. That makes me wonder. Who really gives a damn?"

The question is fair. Who does care? The federal government has passed legislation mandating accommodating architecture for the handicapped on all construction helped by federal funds. Yet builders of Washington's new Metro subway have told the PVA that they will not construct necessary elevators, ramps, etc. to enable wheelchair citizens access. The PVA says it is suing, but admits to a probable losing cause. Sighs one Viet member: "Since I've got back I've noticed a pattern in this country. Metro, jobs, you name it, I just don't think people want me around."

But the disabled Vietnam vet is around. Not in restaurants with skinny doors, perhaps, but elsewhere. In hospitals, in ground floor homes, in automobiles especially designed for legless or armless or paralyzed operators. And never mind if people want them around or not; just being around, sometimes, in such condition, is hard enough for them.

Like Tyrone Thompson. Ghetto kid, high school dropout, unskilled, paralyzed. He's a patient in the Spinal Cord Injury section of the Bronx V.A. Hospital. As such he suffers mental and physical anguish: What was and what will never again be. For the remainder of his life he cannot walk, cannot control his bladder, cannot engage in routine sex. Even the "remainder of his life" has been subject to alteration. As a paraplegic, his life expectancy is now about 35 total years—10 to 15 years less than the national norm.

So here he is. Wearing his beret over his eye. Giving the hospital hell ("the surgeons are no good"). Storing his cigarette butts in the spokes of his wheelchair. And still wondering, when he's asked, just how in hell did the God in heaven allow him to wind up like this.

Like what? Like spending most of the day in bed. Like monotony. Like eternal subtraction to probing and poking. Awake at 9 a.m., maybe some therapy, maybe some conversation, maybe record some music on cassette tape. Most of his day is spent flat in bed. It's a big deal if somebody smuggles in some booze and the guys in the ward can get a bit crooked.

But Thompson says it'll all change soon. He says he's sitting up now for two and one-half hours at a time and "when it gets to four I'm checking out." He says he's got everything all figured. A house on Long Island. A desire to raise dogs or work in a children's hospital. A wish to travel and see as much as he can. Everything is planned. Everything looks good. That is, if the American conscience cooperates. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Twin Props

Perhaps the first vessel powered by twin-screw propellers similar to those that drive modern ships was Little Juliana, a steamboat invented by Col. John Stevens that chugged from New York to Hoboken in May 1804.

Of 2,000 known species of ladybugs, only about 150 are found in the United States.

As a paraplegic, Tyrone Thompson cannot walk, cannot work and has a life expectancy 10 to 15 years less than the national norm.

By TOM TIEDE
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Tyrone Thompson says he never went to Vietnam for the glory. And that's a good thing, "because there was no glory, at least not for me."

He went because, well, hell, "it was better than jail." But now, sitting in a wheelchair, unable to move his body from the waist down, he has to wonder about the wisdom of his wartime choice.

Oh man, he says, what could have been worse than this?

Thompson, now 27, a black man with a spriggy beard and a handsome beret, is one of the thousands of Vietnam veterans that shall never heal. Soldiers come home, lives are restarted, peaceful rhetoric rings from on high, but none of it makes much difference to Ty Thompson. Seven years ago in the Nam his spinal cord was severed during an enemy ambush—and it will remain thus for the remainder of his life. Peace? What peace? For Thompson and others like him the war doesn't end merely because it is over.

There are, unfortunately, significant numbers of others like Thompson. No one knows exactly how many. The Disabled American Veterans Association reports that 340,000 Vietnam era veterans are receiving some compensation today, but that figure includes a majority who have been only slightly damaged thus only slightly scarred. Thompson represents perhaps 2,500 to 3,000 Vietvets who have suffered spinal cord (read it "critical") injury, and there are thousands of others who have lost eyes, legs, arms or other uses of their bodies.

It has, of course, always been thus in war. But the peculiar nature, if not to say odor, of the Vietnam conflict seems to emphasize the head-shaking tragedy of the contemporary maimed veteran. After other American wars the permanently injured could at least salvage some satisfaction from the knowledge they got what they got for a more or less necessary battle. Today, says one paraplegic, "The only thing we know is that we got what we got for this damn peace with honor."

Besides this, the American public has not helped. It too has been long soured on Vietnam and, some say, those who participated in it. Evidence is that many people almost with apologies, withdrew the proposition with uncharacteristic haste.

But even though compensation cuts are no longer expected, and even if the future is to be no worse than the present for seriously disabled Vietvets, things will be bad enough. John Keller, National Service director of the DAV, says America is going through the most lamentable "Tommy Atkins syndrome" he has seen after any war.

Atkins was the Rudyard Kipling soldier who was "up front when there was trouble in the wind," but always afterwards it was "Tommy this and Tommy that and Tommy get behind." The disabled Vietnam Tommies, says Keller, are way, way behind in today's American conscience.

The public, says DAV director of employment Norm Hartnett, is simply not responding to the disabled vet with reasonable concern. Take employment. He says over-all Vietvet unemployment has leveled off at 6 per cent, but the disabled vet-get federal compensation for hiring others?"

Bad as it is, the unemployment puzzle is only one of the burdens being shared by seriously disabled Vietnam veterans. An even more aggravating one, especially for the wheelchair victim, is the ancient obstacle of public accommodation. Wheelchairs cannot negotiate stairs, cannot leap into buses, cannot squeeze through the narrow doors of many restaurants, cannot block the aisles at movie theaters. Handicapped people have been complaining for generations about such "exclusionary facilities," to no serious avail.

"Dammit," says the PVA's Jim Maye, "I'm a taxpaying citizen and I think I should be able to get on a bus. Or how about a plane? Some airlines have refused my ticket. Or how about a restaurant? Like anybody else I like to take my wife out to eat now and then. I want to do it in peace and quiet. But what do I have to do? I have to go in through the

France Travelers Face Taxes

ROISSY, France (AP) — The French are building Europe's largest airport in flatlands of beet fields and peaceful villages near Paris. If you pass through on vacation, you'll have to pay a tax to protect the villagers from jet roar.

A government decree, said by officials to be the first for a major airport anywhere in the world, provides for the tax on every departing passenger to help pay for relocating people who don't want to live near the airport or for soundproofing the homes of those who want to stay.

The government imposed the tax because of pressure from groups in the Roissy area and in Villeneuve le Roi, a town at the end of the main runway at Orly Airport south of Paris.

Villeneuve residents have been living under the roar for a dozen years, with a jet taking off or landing at Orly every 90 seconds at peak periods.

"We don't want to end up like the poor people at Villeneuve," says Pierre Bories, a 43-year-old lawyer who heads a community organization in the Roissy area 17 miles north of Paris.

He estimates a quarter of a million people in 45 towns and villages around Roissy will suffer "noise nuisance" when the airport takes over from Orly as France's chief gateway.

Some villages such as Le Mesnil Amelot date from the 13th century. Its 560 inhabitants will be less than a mile from the end of a runway, and the village may have to be abandoned.

The Roissy airport is a sprawling complex one-third the area of the city of Paris and much larger than Kennedy International Airport in New York. It has futuristic architecture and by 1985 will be able to handle 60 million passengers a year.

The $355-million first stage going into operation next spring will handle 10 million passengers a year by 1977, officials predict, with a plane landing or taking off on an average of every three minutes around the clock.

The noise tax began last February for travelers from Orly and the third major Paris airport, Le Bourget. It will be collected at Roissy as soon as the airport opens next spring.

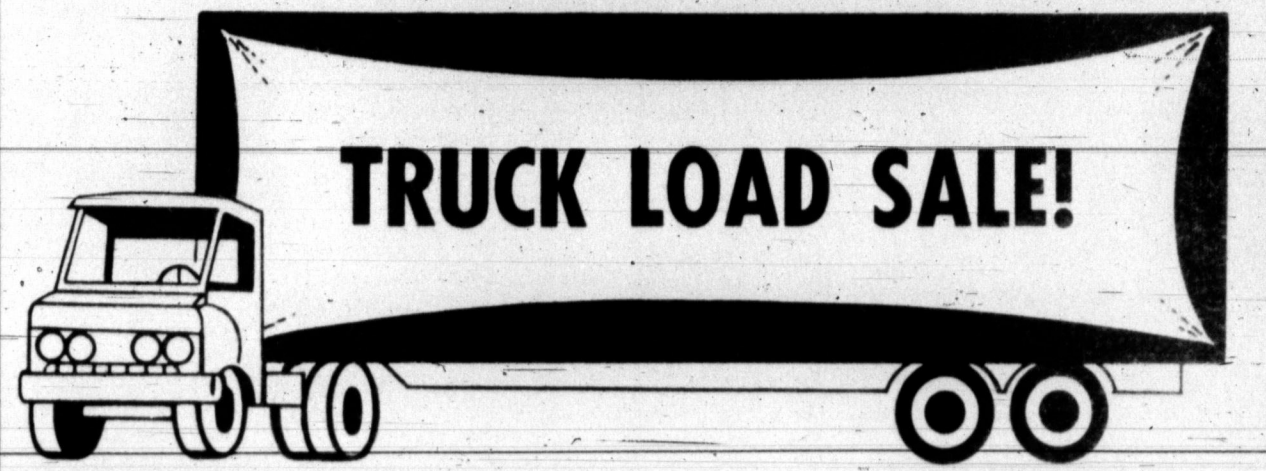

Unofficial estimates show the tax—22 cents a passenger for interior flights and 66 cents for international travel—will bring in about $3½ million in 1973. With air traffic in France increasing about 14 per cent a year, the fund will grow proportionately.

Nobody professes to know how the money will be distributed. Bories and other anti-noise leaders suspect it will not be enough and fear government red tape will slow the expected relief anyway.

There are 800 houses in five villages and towns where the din from Roissy will be the most intense, plus schools and other public buildings. Bories said "To soundproof them or relocate those who want to leave will cost at least $44 million."

Bories wants a law imposing strict noise limits on all airlines, using the new airport. So far, parliament has not acted.

Wilburn Wood Did Just What Sox Pay Him For

By The Associated Press
Wilburn Wood, out of the corner of the plate, doing out a starvation diet to the New York Yankees.
They went away hungry while the Chicago White Sox star fattened his pitching record.
"I get paid to get somebody out and that's what I do," said Wood, who got most everybody out in a five-hit, 3-0 beauty over the Yankees Wednesday.
Wood frustrated the Yankee batters with a knuckleball that went berserk at times. It was helped along by the weather,
according to New York Manager Ralph Houk.
"Today was a good day for him, the dead air and the dampness," said Houk. "That helps him. His knuckleball was really bouncing around today."

Games Are Postponed

Today's scheduled make-up baseball game between Pampa and Amarillo High at Optimist Park has been postponed because of the muddy field conditions.

Yesterday's game between the Harvesters and Palo Duro in Amarillo was called in the bottom of the first inning after the first Don batter went to the plate.

Rain began falling steadily in Amarillo 10 minutes before the game, but the Harvesters completed their turn at bat in the first, racking up two runs before the game was called. It will be made up at a later date.

If the weather breaks, Pampa is slated to travel to Borger for a game tomorrow and the Harvesters will host Tascosa in a make-up game Saturday at 1 p.m. at Optimist Park.

postponed a game between San

The only hits off Wood were singles by Matly Alou, Horace Clarke and Roy White before Thurman Munson drilled a ground-rule double down the left-field line in the eighth. Then White collected another single in the ninth.

Mostly, the Yankees were just beating the ball into the ground or popping it up off the Chicago left hander. Carlos May hit a home run in the first off Mel Stottlemyre for the only run
Wood needed.

John Kennedy's run-scoring double in the sixth inning snapped a 3-3 tie and gave Boston its victory over Minnesota.
Relief pitcher Bob Bolin saved the game for the Red Sox by striking out Harmon Killebrew with two out and the bases loaded.

Jeff Burroughs' third home run of the season and Toby Harrah's three singles supported Steve Foucault's clutch pitching as Texas whipped Detroit.

Texas starter Rich Hand was relieved in the eighth inning by Foucault, who worked out of a bases-loaded jam with one out.

Wayne Simpson allowed only three hits before Gene Garber took over to get the last two outs of the game as Kansas City downed Milwaukee. It was Simpson's strongest performance since coming to Kansas City from the Cincinnati Reds last winter. "He threw fast balls, mostly," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "I thought he was in complete command and did an excellent job. I took him out near the end because I felt he was getting a little tired."

Bill Singer fired a four-hitter and bested Dave McNally in a pitcher's duel as California
nipped Baltimore. McNally pitched a five-hitter, but lost the game on Bobby Grabarkewitz' RBI single in the eighth.

Dick Tidrow, who entered the game with an 8.06 earned run average, pitched a two-hitter as Cleveland defeated Oakland

Gail Goodrich Leads Lakers To West Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The man called Stumpy won the West for the Los Angeles Lakers, who hope the New York Knickerbockers win the East.
Gail Goodrich, the smallest man on the court at 6-foot-1, scored 44 points in his greatest shooting performance as a professional, in leading the defending National Basketball Association champions to a 128-118 victory over the Golden State Warriors Wednesday night.

The triumph provided Los Angeles with a 4-1 series final verdict in the West and the Lakers now must await the outcome of New York vs. Boston in the East. The Knick lead 3-2 in games after losing 98-97 on Wednesday night.

If New York wins, the first game of the finals will be in Los Angeles since the Lakers had a better overall season record.
But if Boston rallies for two straight victories, the championship set will be in New England. Boston had the best overall record in the NBA.

The Lakers lost all four of their regular season games to the Celtics but split 2-2 against New York which could be another factor as Coach Bill Star-

man of the defending champions says:
"We'd like to play New York because of the home court advantage."

Goodrich pumped in 21 points in the third period, 26 of them on field goal and the 10 he sank set a new NBA playoff record, surpassing the nine by former Laker Elgin Baylor in a 1961
playoff.

The Lakers reached the finals for the ninth time in the 13 years since moving from Minneapolis to Los Angeles, yet last year was the only championship the club has won.

For the team, the victory over Golden State meant $43,500 to be divided 13 ways—12 to players and the other to trainer Frank O'Neill. The finals will mean a minimum of $65,000 and they've already collected $34,000 for winning the opening playoff series against Chicago.

"I felt I had good rhythm although I was tired," said Goodrich after the game. "I really didn't feel that good."
When you score 44 points, you're getting a lot of help from teammates. They were looking for me and getting me the ball.

Dwight Lamar Picked 1st In ABA Draft; Will Sign

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association, which postponed its college draft twice in order to select after the National Basketball Association, is apparently ahead of the older league when it comes to signing some top collegians and drafting underclassmen.

Dwight Lamar, a 6-foot-2 sharpshooting guard from Southwestern Louisiana, will sign a long term contract with the ABA's San Diego Conquistadors, his attorney said.

"Monday we consummated an arrangement whereby the ABA entered into a long-term contract with Dwight Lamar," said Bob F. Wright. "We have plans to be in San Diego Sunday to complete the arrangement."

Lamar was the first pick in the ABA's regular draft, held by a phone hookup from the league's New York office, but only a third-round Detroit choice in Tuesday's NBA draft.
Lamar went 45th in the NBA and first in the ABA but the numbers lie. They don't mean that Lamar, the only player in the history of college basketball to have led both the college division and university division in scoring, was more highly regarded by the ABA than its rival league.

Instead, the disparity reflects professional basketball's ongoing war for collegiate talent.
Wright said that Portland of the NBA was going to draft Lamar second, but removed him from its list.

"They were seriously trying," Wright said of the NBA's efforts to land the high-scoring Lamar. "But when we reached an agreement with the ABA, we notified the NBA to take him off their list."

The ABA's second choice was Larry Finch, who led his Memphis State team into the NCAA finals last season. He was selected by the Memphis Tams, but finished way up the track in the NBA. The gamblers, in this case the Los Angeles Lakers, seemed to have some inside information and only picked Finch in the fourth round.

The ABA, which brought such innovations as the three-point bomb and the beach-ball basketball to the sport, has another dandy: a special two-round draft of undergraduates. San Diego had first selection here too and tabbed UCLA's alleverything, Bill Walton.

But Walton, who turned down a reported $2 million to sign with the Philadelphia 76ers as a hardship selection, has insisted that he will remain a student-athlete at UCLA.

Boston Celtics Alive In NBA East Race

BOSTON (AP) — Dave Cowens, the National Basketball Association's most valuable player of 1972-73, did his thing.
John Havlicek gave a typical gutsy performance and then unheralded Paul Silas got into the act.

The combinations enabled the Boston Celtics to edge the New York Knicks 98-97 Wednesday night and remain alive in the NBA's Eastern championship playoff.

"Everybody made a contribution," Boston Coach
Tommy Heinsohn said after the Celtics, now down 3-2, forced a sixth game in the best-of-7 series Friday night in New York.

The winner will play the Angels for the champion. The Lakers beat the Golden State Warriors 128-118 Wednesday night to win their Western Conference final four games to one.

Cowens went the marathon route, playing the entire 48 minutes. The 6-foot-9 center scored 32 points and grabbed 16 rebounds.

Havlicek, the Celtics' captain and leading scorer, who missed the fourth game because of a right shoulder injury, came off the bench at the start of the second period and again in the third and fourth periods. He shook-off pain and played 30 minutes, finishing with 18 points, five assists and one rebound.

Silas, a veteran forward completing his first season in Boston, scored only nine points, but was the man of the hour. He cashed two free throws with seven seconds remaining and then grabbed a rebound, his 20th of the game, just before the final buzzer.

"It was Silas' clutch free throws and his big rebound at the end that did it," Heinsohn said. "However, they all were great out there tonight—Dave John, everybody. It was a hell of a game. The Knicks are a great club. They don't give up. They don't crack."

Heinsohn said he was one of the few not surprised by Havlicek's courageous performance.
"I've seen him do it many,
many times over the years," Heinsohn said. "No matter what conditions he's in, he just goes out there and plays tough, giving it everything he's got. He played virtually with one hand behind his back tonight, and what a job he did. Considering everything, he was just super."

Yonkers, N.Y., Raceway will have a 52-night harness racing meeting. It runs from May 25 through July 24.

For Fish, Friday Is Every Day Now

It has been more than six years since the Catholic Bishops of the United States relaxed the church's ban on eating meat on Fridays. Predictions about the imminent demise of the fishing industry have proved to have been somewhat exaggerated. Today, Americans are eating more fish than before the Friday rule was lifted (and they were also long before soaring meat prices entered the picture), so much so that the U.S. fishing fleet is unable to meet the demand. In fact, a record 64.1 per cent of the fish and shellfish consumed in the country last year was accounted for by imports. In 1967, the first full year following the ecclesiastical decision, annual consumption of edible fishery products did decline, slightly to 10.6 pounds per person, down three-tenths of a pound from 1966. In 1968, however, consumption rose to 11 pounds per person and has stayed above that figure every year since then. According to the National Marine Fisheries Service of the Department of Commerce, it may reach 11.6 pounds per person in 1973, a full pound higher than when the abstinence rules were changed. Provided, of course, that the fish don't start making like the cow that jumped over the moon, pricewise.

Nixon Miffs The Media

Some members of the nation's news media are developing an acute case of pique over President Nixon's ignoring them of late. The President has gone his merry way, almost completely ignoring the historic news conference in recent months. He has cloistered himself in seclusion sometimes bordering on hermitry and more recently he has issued a statement on "executive privilege" in which he indicated that the only way Congress would get his executive helpers before investigating committees would be over the bodies of Supreme Court members. And there is little doubt that the President has majority thinking on that high body. It is understandable how media members are burning, especially television networks that got a lot of mileage out of Presidential news conferences in the past. Now Nixon seldom holds a news conference and when he does it usually is closed to television (radio perhaps, but TV is a naughty word). Some of the nation's large newspapers such as the New York Times and the Washington Post have been oozing juicy over Mr. Nixon's inaccessibility. Primarily, however, what pains these left-leaning newspapers is the fact that Nixon won the election and apparently has the majority of the people with him in what he is doing. It is difficult to argue with the facts that Nixon stopped the Vietnam War, that he brought home prisoners and non-prisoners. Decision is the name of the game. And if the President doesn't want to do and tell as openly as some people figure he ought, then about the best thing in recourse is to remember this in the future. The only difficulty with that is Mr. Nixon is a second-term, and what else is there politically after you have been President? We have to stifle a chuckle when we know that Nixon is sitting behind his cloud of anonymity grinning from ear to ear over the pique being displayed by some of the media. He has the trump card and he knows it.

Bees Waxing Warlike

The American Museum of Natural History in New York reports that an aggressive new strain of honeybee is now heading north at the rate of about 200 miles a year and could reach the United States by the 1980s. The Brazilian bee is a hybrid that resulted from interbreeding between the local bees and an African type that was imported into Brazil in 1956. The hybrid flies faster and works longer to amass honey than the native bees. But is also highly aggressive, swarms in larger numbers and is much more easily aroused to attack. So far it has killed and injured a number of people as well as much livestock. Plans to check this undesirable immigrant are in the research stage. One idea is the possibility of creating a genetic barrier in the region of Panama using a yet-to-be developed strain of bees so mild and inoffensive that any crossbreeding with the Brazilian interloper would create a new generation much less prone to attack. In other words, the hope is they would make honey, not war.

Does Every Man Have His Price?

I recently read an ad in a paper that said: "A young man will do anything legal or moral for $600." At least this man told us his price. Robert Walpole in December of 1734 coined a phrase while speaking before Parliament when he said: "Every man has his price." This was assumed by Professor E. L. Thorndike in a questionnaire. He asked the question: "How much is it worth to you... (1) become completely bald. A man answers $4,000; a woman, $3,000,000. (2) to live on a farm ten miles from civilization. A man answered $10,000,000; a woman, $50,000. (3) to eat a live earthworm. A man answered $58,000; a woman, $150,000. (4) to take a live non-poisonous snake and wrap it around your neck. A man said he would do it for $100 and a woman for $7,000,000. (5) to disturb the worship service at St. Paul's Cathedral on any Sunday morning. A man said he would do it for $1,250; and a woman said she would do it for $15. (6) to get drunk? A man said he would do it for $25 and a woman answered that she would do it absolutely free.

RAY CROMLEY The Fuel Crisis Is Our Own Fault

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Over the long run there is no valid reason for a fuel-energy crisis. Over the short run, the only excuse is lack of foresight. For the potential available sources of fuel and energy are great beyond imagination. As long as this reporter can remember, it has been clear to scientists that the United States would run into energy shortages unless decisive long range action was taken. We have known for decades that control of our oil supplies eventually would fall into the hands of Middle East nations, which could prove disastrous to the U.S. political, economic and national security interests. For more than 20 years scientific and industry conferences have detailed these predictions, with technical precision. Inevitably these scientists had practical solutions. —For the long range — the development of solar energy which could provide great amounts of power for literally millions of years. —For the intermediate term — nuclear fusion power, using basically cheap raw materials, available in such plentiful abundance that their exhaustion is not even predicted.

Your Health Vasectomy Won't Harm Sex Drive

Dear Dr. Lamb — I enjoy your column in my newspaper — keep up the good work. I would like some information concerning the operation "vasectomy." My wife and I have been married for more than 20 years and have five grown children — so you can see if we don't always take the needed precautions there is the possibility of unwanted children. There seem to be two different opinions — one says that sex drive is considerably decreased and the other says it isn't so. As there is no sperm present at climax, does it not reduce the feeling of pleasure? I have always been under the impression it was the sperm that caused this feeling. We have been advised by my doctor to have this operation, as he doesn't care to put my wife on the "pill." Have you had any experience along this line and what are your feelings on this? How long after the operation does it take to be free of all sperm? Would you advise this at my age? I'm in my middle 50s and my wife is about eight years younger. Dear Reader — There is no evidence that vasectomy decreases the man's sensations or responses. The changes of this nature after the operation are usually of psychological origin and frequently because the individual doesn't understand the operation. The sperm cells constitute a very minute portion of the orgasm, probably you can put all of the sperm cells in an area not much bigger than the head of a pin. Most of the material comes from the secretions of the prostate gland and the seminal vesicles. You may be interested to know that a number of years ago a type of vasectomy was advised to restore older men's sexual drive. It was finally concluded that it did not have any effect. There have been a few scary reports recently on the vasectomy, most of which are exaggerations in the public press of a theory advanced on early research work on animals. Since then a number of authorities have come forth and pointed out, in a truth squad action, that there is no evidence that having a vasectomy without complications causes serious diseases or other problems. You and your wife will have to decide whether you should have a vasectomy or not. I am not sure why she can't take the pill. Some doctors use the pill to support a woman through her menopause and thereafter to prevent post-menopausal changes. After all, they have the same effects as the normal female hormone. Your wife should not be too far off the time she would expect to undergo these changes. A man has to be tested over a period of time after a vasectomy to find out if he is still releasing sperm or not. It usually requires several specimens free of sperm before a doctor will feel secure that the man is no longer capable of producing sperm cells or inducing pregnancy.

H. L. Hunt Writes WONDER OF REPUBLIC

It is the wonderful people and the freedom of the profit-motive system which created the wonder of Republic USA. All the earth marveled at this new nation created out of a vast wilderness. The "intellectuals" of Europe scoffed at the idea that the people did not need a king or a big government bureaucracy to rule over them and to control their work and take care of them. The new idea that free men could look after themselves and their families better than any king or commissar proved to be so correct that the new Republic in the wilderness rapidly became by far the richest nation on earth. Older countries, bogged down in their old collectivist ways and, fearful of Truth and Freedom, envied the progressive new Republic USA. Those who denied men could be free grew to have heavy influence in education. For nearly 100 years they have assumed and taught several generations of students that it was the richness of our natural resources which made the United States the wealthiest nation. The truth should be recognized. The facts are there plain to see: We are blessed with a rich land. However, it is the people and the profit-motive system of freedom which made us the envy of the world, because we now know that there is more of every resource in other lands than there ever has been in our own country. The fact is that free people find and use the resources, where others had ignored them for tens of thousands of years. If other lands become free, they too can prosper and progress.

What And Who?

Is any word used as loosely as the word "Christian"? What's Christian? Who's Christian? Jesus Christ Himself said: "He who is not with Me is against Me," and thus separated the Christians from the anti-Christians. How could He be wrong? Yet today we have innumerable people called "Christians" who invariably side with the anti-Christian Communists. As we see Christians being blamed for the acts of anti-Christians, we can begin to understand what's behind this loose use of the word "Christian." It is quite probable that 20 years from now, the minimum Social Security benefit may be double what it is today—but because of continued inflation, those who will be dependent upon the minimum then will be relatively no better off than those dependent upon it today. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, but the government taketh—and taketh. News-Times Hartford City, Ind.

U.S. Taxpayer Nicked For Security Council Junkets By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — The United Nations Security Council appears bent on doing more traveling — next time to Asia. Apparently most Security Council members find foreign junkets so pleasurable that they want to make them annual events. Having had sessions abroad in two successive years (in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in 1972, and Panama last month) the goal now is Asia. Still to be agreed on is the host country and the time. There will be no difficulty about either—Already a number of Asian governments are angling for the "honor" of such a visitation. Whether they can afford it is another matter. But that's of little concern: what's money compared to national prestige? After all, the necessary funds can always be borrowed somewhere or somehow. The recent Security Council meeting in Panama cost that country around $500,000, which it could ill afford. But that is of no moment to dictator Omar Torrijos and his Marxist bully-boys. They got the fanfare and the hoopla at home and abroad they were after — and that's all that mattered to them. With the exception of the U.S. delegation, apparently little else mattered to the other delegates. For them, the week's stay in Panama City was a lull treat. The strongman Torrijos regime picked up the tab for their choice hotel suites, food, entertainment and various other expenses. They were feted at luncheons, receptions, banquets and other parties, and given entrée to the swankiest private clubs. Also to make them feel at home, Panama's legislative palace was transformed into a replica of Security Council chambers at the UN in New York City, complete with a circular conference table 30 feet in diameter hand-hewn from native woods. And that wasn't all: 137 members of the Security Council's staff were flown to Panama City on a chartered jetliner at a cost of some $25,000. Included in the group were 15 interpreters, 30 typists, 39 shorthand reporters, 5 translators and 7 engineers with more than 20,000 pounds of electronic equipment to provide simultaneous translations for all delegates and spectators into the five official UN languages—English, French, Spanish, Russian and Chinese. Yes, sir, and a gay time was had by all — except the U.S. which had to exercise its rarely-used veto to kill a viciously hostile resolution which was the real purpose of the Torrijos-engineered meeting.

Do Nothing Congress? The 93rd Congress has been in session four months, and has done absolutely nothing of consequence. After a third of a year and a cost to taxpayers of around $150 million, the legislative record is virtually blank. While thousands of bills and resolutions have been introduced covering almost everything under the sun, they are meaningless: empty gestures worth no more than the paper they are printed on. Few if any will ever see the light of day. Their real purpose is headline grabbing and publicity grandstanding. This extraordinary situation prevails in the face of the fact that the Democrats have sizable majorities in both the Senate and House, and thus are in position to exercise this key control constructively and purposefully. Instead, they have constantly indulged in antics and tactics motivated primarily by venomous partisan politics and personalities along two lines: (1) Sniping, tirading, fulminating against President Nixon and his administration — zealously aided and abetted by a large segment of the media with endless rumors, innuendoes and other hostile tricks of the trade. (2) Deliberately provoking confrontations with the President by reenacting legislation passed by the Democratic-controlled 92nd Congress and vetoed by him as unwarranted, unsound, undesirable and excessively costly. Considering and voting these measures is all that Congress has done in the past four months. Not a single other piece of major legislation has been acted on. A few have been taken up in communities, but that's all. They're still there. Total spending called for by the Democratic bills is upwards of $12 billion. Yet in ramming through and defiantly challenging the President to veto them, they have loudly and sanctimoniously avowed the need for economy, budget balancing and reducing taxes — particularly the latter. It's a rare day without a strident cacophony of Democratic clamor for tax cutting and "plugging up loopholes" — an especially favorite refrain of theirs.

Vain Dissent The $500,000 expense to Panama didn't cover all the costs of this junket. The United Nations also had to fork over around $100,000 for air fares and other outlays. At that, this is less than the $150,000 bill for last year's Addis Ababa foray. It is estimated the contemplated junket to Asia next year will nick the UN for $250,000. The U.S. principal contributor by far to the UN, puts up the biggest part of this expense money. It opposed the Addis Ababa and Panama joy-rides to no avail, and similarly will get nowhere in trying to forestall an Asian junket. It simply can't muster the necessary votes. The UN charter states that Security Council meetings should "normally" be held at UN headquarters in New York City. Obviously, that's considered sufficient authority for occasional sessions abroad — particularly when the tab for elaborate entertaining is picked up by the host country. Prior to the Addis Ababa and Panama meetings, the Security Council met abroad only two other times — in London in 1946, Paris in 1948. Apparently, with the last two junkets, general UN sentiment seems to be that sufficient precedent has been established to go abroad annually — even though neither the financially-strapped United Nations nor the host country can afford it.
