Dykon Service Inc. employees prepare McNeely Fieldhouse for asbestos re-

Asbestos clean-up price is more than original cost for fieldhouse

By BEAR MILLS Staff Writer

On Dec. 5, 1950 the Pampa school board of trustees voted to build the McNeely Field House at a cost of $356,000. On Aug. 16, 1988 the Pampa school board learned that an asbestos clean-up of that same field house would cost $400,000.

The field house was closed and locked in mid-July. McClelland Management Services of Houston determined the building contained levels of the most dangerous asbestos possible.

The Environmental Protection Agency has ruled asbestos a health hazard that must be removed or contained in all public buildings.

Friable asbestos can flake off under certain circumstances and drift in the air. When inhaled it can cause cancer. However, many officials with school districts (including Pampa School Superintendent Dr. Harry Griffith) argue that the chance of contracting asbestosis is far less than that of any other form of cancer.

"More people have died of electrocution by a toaster than asbestosis," Griffith contends. He said that test results he has seen indicate the only way to catch asbestosis is direct inhalation of the fibers over an extended period of time.

Until last year the threat from asbestos was not considered important. Then the EPA ruled that every public building must be tested. The Pampa test of schools was completed in July.

However, Pampa is not the only area school district to feel the EPA ruling sting. In Miami the school district has just completed re-laying the high school floor. Nine-inch tiles in the cafeteria, hall, some custodial stations, teacher workroom, science lab and bookroom contained levels of asbestos. Materials containing asbestos were also found around two unused boilers in the basement.

"It cost $21,000 to take care of," said Allan Dinsmore, superintendent of Miami schools. "It was an unbudgeted item. It cost us a $20,000 deficit this year. Had it not been for that, we'd have had a balanced budget.'

In Pampa the $400,000 price tag on clean-up, disposal and repair has created havoc in an already tight budget.

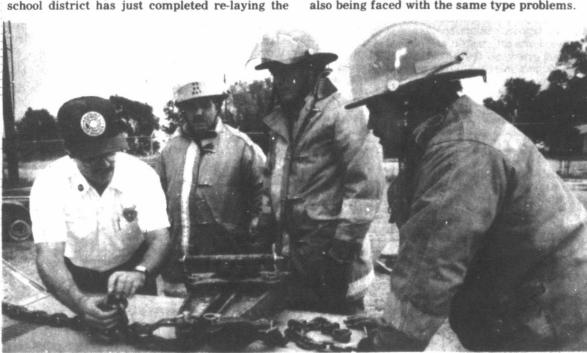

The school district is recommending 16 new classrooms be built this year. Both those items add up to over $1 million that will have to be approved next Monday when the board votes on the budget.

Experts from Dykon Service Inc. of Tulsa are preparing for the asbestos removal, which will actually begin next week. To remove it from the field house ceiling will require that a huge scaffold-ing be built and a "false floor" be placed on it.

The false floor will contain water used in removal, preventing further damage to the gym floor. "I'm angry about it," Griffith said. "More people have been killed by bees in the last 60 years. I think what the federal government has done is outrageous. Griffith says that local residents are being forced to pay, through tax dollars, for the clean-up. A representative from the EPA office in Dallas,

Roger Meacham, said that Pampa is not being singled out and that schools around the nation are

Fire training is on-going process

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

Seeing that Pampa's firefighters receive the proper training is an on-going process that takes up to 5,000 hours a year. Pampa Fire Department personnel train a minimum of one hour each day, seven days a week, with one major hands-on drill a month, said Johnny Cook. chief training officer. For August, firefighters are brushing up on their extrication techniques, he said. Wednesday, today and Friday, wrecked cars are being dismantled by firefighters using the Jaws of Life extrication tool, a rescue drill that has often been used to save lives of accident victims pinned in the wreckage of the vehicles.

Pampa Fire Department employs one full-time instructor and two assistants, all holding Class A instructor certificates from the Texas Commission on Fire Protection Personnel Standards and Education through the Texas A&M University system.

Cook, Assistant Fire Chief B.T. Brown and Captain Ray Fisher are the three local firefighters who hold these certificates, Cook

Under the city's training program, firefighters attend one-hour classes taught each day by shift captains. Classes are taught from more than 25 manuals issued by the International Fire Service Training Association and covering such topics as ladder practices, fire apparatus, ventilation, fire ground command, fire streams, emergency medical service, emergency and defensive driving.

Cook assigns a different manual to be taught each month. A hand-on training drill is scheduled during the month. A test completes the month-long training. A test of the firefighter's knowledge of city streets is also given on a monthly basis.

The mission of the training division is to provide adequate and approved training in all phases of fire department operations, Cook said, through teaching courses required by the Texas Commission on Fire Protection Personnel Standards and Education in addition to certification of firefighters and maintaining safety standards in all phases of training.

Pampa's high standards of training has had a positive effect on the city's key rate, Cook said.

"Only two cities in Texas are in a lower key rate bracket than Pampa - San Antonio and El Paso," he said. "And we're moving towards being down there with them.

Bush readies his speech to take GOP nomination

By TERENCE HUNT Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) George Bush, declaring "the gears shift tonight" from the Reagan era to his own, readied a nomination acceptance speech intended to light a fire under his come-from-behind quest for the White House.

"I'm upbeat and ready to go," Bush told cheering Texas delegates at a breakfast gathering on the final day of the Republican National Convention

"I've been a loyal vice president, but now the gears shift tonight, and I'm going to be the nominee of this party for president and I'm going to set the agenda," he said.

Recently revived in the polls, Bush still faces the challenge of defining his vision of the nation's future and dealing with voters' remaining questions about his ability to lead and what he stands

Bush had been expected to bring his new running mate, Sen. Dan Quayle, to the Texas breakfast, but he said the Indiana senator was "upstairs working on his speech.

Later, Bush was to attend a rally for his wife, Barbara, and then go to a $1,000-a-plate luncheon expected to raise $4 million for the Republican National Committee.

Meanwhile, there was encouraging news for him in a new public opinion poll. Several polls after last month's Democratic National Convention gave Democratic presidential nominee.

Bush and wife Barbara watch son George cast Texas' votes for nomination.

Michael Dukakis leads of 17 points or so, but recent surveys have suggested the gap has narrowed to next to nothing.

The latest, published today by The Washington Post, showed a Dukakis lead of 49 percent to 46 percent - within the poll's 3point margin of potential sampling error. The survey was conducted from July 11 through Tuesday, the day Bush named Quayle, among 1,119 likely voters nationwide.

Bush swept uncontested to the GOP presidential nomination Wednesday night in a balloonfilled celebration that ran past midnight. Before it was over, thousands of people had already left the Louisiana Superdome. For Bush, it was a family affair. All five of his now-adult children were delegates to the convention, and his Mexicanborn daughter-in-law, Columba, delivered the final seconding speech for his nomination in Spanish

By design, Bush's oldest son, George W. Bush, delivered the 111 votes of the Texas delegation that put the state's "favorite son and the world's best father" over the 1,139 delegates needed for nomination.

From a hotel suite nearby, Bush watched the proceedings on television, surrounded by grandchildren and other relatives.

"It is a special moment," he said. "The conclusion was foregone, but it's special." All of his children and his 10 grandchildren will be on stage with Bush tonight

Friends: Remorse over bicyclist's death led to prank player's suicide

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Friends of Larry Bluethman say he stretched a telephone cord across a sidewalk as a prank, but was so overcome with remorse after an 11-year-old boy struck the wire and died that he killed himself.

Bluethman, 21, was found shot to death late Tuesday in a mobile home behind his grandmother's home in Comfort, about 40 miles northwest of San Antonio.

Kendall County Peace Justice Frieda Pressler ruled Bluethman's death a suicide.

'He realized that he had killed someone," she said. "He was remorseful.

A witness told the Bexar County district attorney's office that Bluethman, a 1985 Clark High School graduate, talked about a prank as he pulled the cord from a pay telephone booth.

'As he strung it up, he stated, 'Let's play a game on somebody,' " Assistant District Attorney Wendy Rush told the San Antonio Light.

The 11-year-old boy, Rene Duran, nearly was decapitated when he and a young companion rode a bicycle into the stretched-out telephone cord about 6 p.m. Sunday outside Bud's Foodliner, a store owned by Bluethman's father.

The boy was dead on arrival at Medical Center Hospital. Police were attempting to locate Bluethman to serve a murder warrant on him when his body was found in Kendall County.

Investigators later said they had not determined exactly what Bluethman had in mind when he rigged the wire.

"I really don't know what his specific motive would be," homicide Lt. Albert Ortiz said. George Evans Jr., an attorney retained by Bluethman's family, said the stretched wire was not intended to kill anyone. 'It was certainly not an intentional act. I feel confident that it wouldn't have held up," he said of the murder charge.

Bluethman's death closes the case, Ortiz said. Two friends of Bluethman told investigators he had vowed to kill himself if police tied him to the

Pampa delegate excited by Quayle

By DEE DEE LARAMORE

Republican National Convention goers have turned into a covey of Quayle supporters, rallying under the wings of a littleknown Indiana senator who has been chosen by Vice President George Bush as his GOP presidential running mate.

"It's been an interesting process of education for all of us," commented Susan Tripplehorn. Pampa delegate to the conven-

Upon her arrival at the convention in New Orleans, Tripplehorn said that she and many of her fellow delegates were asking "Who's Danny?" as they kept hearing rumbles of the possible selection of Sen. Dan Quayle of Indiana to fill out the Republican presidential ticket.

"I think it was a great selection by Bush," she said. "He'll help us tremendously with the baby boom vote.

Quayle spoke before many of the delegates, including Tripplehorn, shortly after Bush's announcement Tuesday.

"He's exciting. He really stirs a crowd. He's so enthusiastic. I'm keeping my fingers crossed we'll get to see him tonight," she said, referring to the nomination speech and roll call scheduled for Wednesday.

"I see complete unity within the party," Tripplehorn said. "I was concerned at first about the dissension. She said she worried that when Bush made his decision it would split the party. "Now we'll all start off at the same point." Tripplehorn sided with the delegates who were saying Quayle, 41, would boost the baby-boomer votes. Others say his youth and good looks would attract female

Bentsen wooing conservatives

LUBBOCK (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen is aiming his pitch at Democrats who strayed from the party to vote for Ronald Reagan as he tours his home state on behalf of the Democratic ticket. Although confident of his own popularity in Texas, Bentsen has to persuade some of his more conservative state supporters to vote for Michael Dukakis if Democrats are to win the state's 29

Bentsen on Wednesday appealed to those voters both in public and in private, as he traveled from the city of Fort Worth to the ranching area of San Angelo to a medical center in Lubbock to the oil

"I know that this county is principally Republican," Bentsen told the 250 people gathered for a picnic at Fort Concho in San Angelo. "I also know that Lloyd Bentsen carried this county by 58 percent last time.

He told them that Dukakis' selection of a Texan for the ticket showed the Massachusetts governor was "reaching out ... ready to listen to differing He then traveled to Lubbock, where he was greeted at the airport by a dozen supporters carrying "Bentsen — U.S. Senator" plaçards — but none of the Dukakis-Bentsen signs he'd like to see. He attended a demonstration of a new program to diagnose rural patients via television at the Texas Tech medical center, and then slipped away to meet with some 200 to 300 longtime supporters of his Senate campaigns to make his pitch in private. The meeting was closed to the press.

Later, in Tyler, he met with another support again out of the view of reporters. And again, Bentsen's Senate paraphernalia was in abundance but nothing for the Dukakis-Bentsen

Robert Cargill of nearby Longview, one of those invited for the dinner sponsored by East Texans for Texas, said Dukakis' addition of Bentsen to the ticket might be enough for him to support it.

"Maybe," he said. Bentsen is also explaining to his constituents, both in his appearances and through television ads, why he is running at the same time for reelection to his Senate seat.

Texas law allows him to do that, and if he didn't his Republican opponent, Rep. Beau Boulter, would automatically win a six-year term. If he won both races, Bentsen could resign from the Senate and force a special election, giving the Democrats a chance to hold the seat.

As he traveled, Bentsen was peppered with questions about his personal wealth and his health, as a result of the release of records Monday by his Washington office.

The disclosures showed the 67-year-old senator is in good health, although he has been treated for high cholesterol. His financial records revealed he has earned more than $3.8 million over the past five years, but they don't disclose his net worth.

"I don't know what my net worth is," he said. "Frankly, I haven't made out a financial statement that has given me my net worth in a number

As he's been hunting for conservative votes, Bentsen also has been taking some shots at Republican George Bush's choice for a running mate, Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle.

19 88 Property Tax Rates in McLean ISD

This notice concerns 19 88 property tax rates for McLean ISD . It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. Compare it to the tax rate the taxing unit proposes for this year. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

'Wrightwash' just usiness as usual

The "Wrightwash," as The Wall Street Journal aptly calls it, continues. One simply cannot take seriously the appointment by the House Ethics Committee of Chicago lawyer Richard Phelan as the independent counsel to investigate the scandal surrounding House Speaker Jim Wright

Phelan raised $100,000 for Sen. Paul Simon's failed presidential bid and has also contributed to the cam-paigns of ex-Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. Alan Dixon of Illinois.

The House Ethics (?) Committee also limited Phelan's investigatory budget to $300,000. Have our spendthrift legislators all of a sudden become skinflints with our tax dollars? Hardly. The investigation into the Iran arms scandal cost at least $5 million, so far, more than the amount of arms sold to the Iranians. And the investigation of Attorney General Edwin Meese cost $1.7 million.

It's obvious that a rule has been formulated: When a Republican administration is investigated, the Democratic Congress hires a high-powered, independent investigator, and spends unlimited amounts to prosecute, and indeed, persecute, the defendants. But when a House member himself is under investigation, a Democratic activist is appointed to investigate, and given a small, limited budget.

Republicans on the House Ethics Committee agreed to Phelan's appointment. And even Rep. Newt Gingrich, the Republican from Georgia whose persistent charges against Wright brought the issue to public attention, went along with the appointment, though at first he called it "an absolute whitewash." One gets the feeling Gingrich is tired of banging his head, alone, against the wall.

But his fellow House Republicans are different. They know that, investigation or no investigation, they will have to get along with Wright, Washington's consummate power-wielder. Alas, Republicans in Congress have in mind only getting along in Washington power games, not thwarting Democratic programs to tax and control Americans to death.

A proper investigation would be as thorough as those conducted against Meese, Oliver North, et al. And it would be accompanied by an insistence, by the House Ethics Committee, that Wright step down as House speaker and become just an ordinary congressman again, for the duration of the investiga-

A final point. The White House could turn this situation to political advantage — and also do the right thing (something seldom considered of much importance in Washington) — by appointing its own independent counsel at the Justice Department to investigate the Wright scandal. But like House Republicans, administration Republicans, from President Reagan on down, are intent on not making waves. especially with Reagan already effectively retired six months before he leaves office.

The Wrightwash is just business as usual for our Washington pols.

Greenhouse effect needs care

As if it's not bad enough to have to suffer through one of the hottest, driest summers on record, we are told by scientists that this is just a taste of what's to come. Are you miserable now? Someday you may look back to 1988 as mercifully mild. Nature is running a fever, and all of us may suffer.

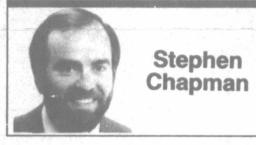

News of the greenhouse effect, which is allegedly responsible for this steading warming of the world's climate, tends to evoke one of two reactions: alarm bordering on panic, or indifference to the latest crisis-of-the-week. Either response misunderstands the problem. The greenhouse effect doesn't call for hair shirts or crash programs, but it does argue for modest

What's going on? For about 100 years, industrial societies have been filling the air with substances (such as carbon dioxide, methane and aerosol propellants) that trap heat and thin the earth's natural shield against the sun. Scientists believe this process has already increased the earth's temperature by about one degree.

If we don't reverse our course, we may raise the thermostat by up to 10 degrees over the next few decades. That may not sound like a big deal, until you consider that during the last Ice Age, 15,000 years ago, the world was just five degrees cooler than today.

This warning can no longer be dismissed as the fantasy of chronic doomsayers. A report last year by the National Academy of Sciences expressed "a high degree of confidence" that man is warming the planet, while noting that "we are confident with respect to the direction, but not the exact magnitude.

Scientists also aren't certain about the specific effects, though residents of coastal cities might want to lay in a supply of sandbags to cope with rising oceans. Kansas farmers may wake up one day to find their wheat belt has emigrated to Canada

But, as someone said, it's always hazardous to make predictions, especially about the future. The warming may be slower than feared. Some countries may gain from it, like Canada and the Soviet Union. Science may find ways to stop it. Still, the idea of a giant and irreversible experiment, using the entire human race as rats, is enough to unsettle the strongest stomach.

Whenever a problem like this arises, there are two dangers. One is that we'll do too little to solve it. That danger is especially great when, as in this case, the benefits are far in the future and the costs immediate (does the federal deficit come to mind?)

The other danger is that we'll do too much, or do the wrong things. That danger is also considerable, because the greenhouse effect can be a useful vehicle for dubious causes.

Fortunately, there are actions we can take to at least slow down the trend, without great sacrifices. Since fossil fuels are the biggest culprit, it makes sense to levy taxes to promote conservation - particularly of coal and oil, the worst offenders. We've already proven, over the last 15 years, that we can boost efficiency without sacrificing growth. That policy would have other benefits, like reducing air pollution and combatting acid rain.

The idea here is not to dismantle free markets, but to see that the prices in those markets reflect the real costs of fossil fuels. Just as polluters and their customers are expected to bear the cost of cleaning up their mess, the people who produce and use energy ought to pay for the resulting damage to the atmosphere.

But a lot of people, in the environmental movement and elsewhere, would like to use this threat to get changes they can't get any other way. You can be sure that global warming will be used to justify everything from solar power subsidies to oil import fees to mass transit spending. The greenhouse effect leads directly to the boondoggle effect.

Heavy government involvement is exactly the wrong remedy. We should have learned that much from the energy crisis, which vanished not because Washington blew a wad of money on synfuel plants and solar tax credits, but because it stopped holding oil prices artificially low and started letting markets function. Economic efficiency, not the political pressure of organized interests, ought to decide how we'll adapt to the new realities

The fact that your house can burn down isn't a good reason to live in a tent, though it's a strong argument for buying insurance. The greenhouse effect doesn't mean we should junk our cars and replace our furnaces with solar roof panels, but it does recommend making an inexpensive effort to head off the danger. It's like what they say about insurance — better to have it and not need it than to need it and not have it.

Today in history By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Aug. 18, the 231st day of 1988. There are 135 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Aug. 18, 1587, Virginia Dare became the first child of English parents to be born on American soil, on what is now Roanoke Island, N.C. (However, Virginia and the other members of her colony mysteriously vanished by the time a relief expedition returned four years later.)

On this date: In 1227, the Mongol conqueror

Genghis Khan died. In 1838, the first marine expedition sponsored by the U.S. government set sail from Hampton Roads, Va. The expedition traveled the Pacific Ocean and South Seas, gathering information to help promote U.S. com-

In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson issued his Proclamation of Neutrality, which was aimed of World War I.

In 1920, Tennessee became the 36th state to ratify the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, which guaranteed the right of all American women to vote

Any history of the civil rights movement should have pages upon pages devoted to Hosea Williams, the old warrior who has marched to hell and back and talked his head off in behalf of Selma, Ala. He was there. Forsyth County, Ga., 25 years later. He was there, too.

At some point, however, Hosea Williams, now an Atlanta city councilman, apparently lost a few of his screws.

I submit you can't do and say some of the things Hosea Williams has done and said and still have your mental fast ball.

You name it as a traffic violation, and Hosea has been convicted of it. We're talking speeding, improper turning and driving on the wrong side of the road. There also was a DUI conviction in 1970, a nolo contendere plea to another in 1979; and, in 1981. Councilman Williams was convicted of leaving the scene of an accident. For that, he served 180 days in the cooler.

But we're just getting started here. Hosea later was declared a habitual violator of the rules of the road and was ordered not to drive.

He ignored that, and got arrested again for operating a motor vehicle without a license. That was a felony charge.

His most recent involvement with the law was being arrested for having a gun in his briefcase as he went through a security checkpoint at an

Hosea said he put the gun, for which he had no license, in his briefcase and forgot it was there. But why do you need a gun in the first place, Councilman Williams?

'You better have a gun in the world today," he said. Where did he get that bit of wisdom from? Carl Rowan?

Of course, Hosea has said a lot of strange things over the years.

After being arrested for DUI one New Year's Eve, he said, "I had three little glasses of champagne. If I had not been a public official, I would have had four.

I was at a charity roast a few months ago where Hosea was master of ceremonies.

After introducing a roaster, Hosea would go to sleep at the head table and have to be awakened again to carry on his part of the program.

He was alert enough to tell this story though: 'On the way over here, I was stopped by a policeman who asked for my driver's license. I said, 'Son, don't you know who I am? I'm Hosea Williams. I haven't had any driver's license in

I still don't know if Hosea was indeed driving that night, or was making a joke. I didn't wait to find out.

When the roast was over, I sprinted to my car and sped away, so as to avoid sharing the road with him.

lists can bite nuclear bull

By BEN WATTENBERG

Hot enough? You should be. It doesn't only feel hot, it officially is hot. This year may end up as the hottest one since records have been kept. And the four runner-up years were all in the 1980s!

What's going on? Is the world really getting hotter and hotter? Some environmental scientists think so, and they say it's because so many people are using so much fossil fuel - essentially coal and oil. They say these fuels, when burned, yield gases — particularly carbon dioxide — that create the so-called "greenhouse effect."

In decades to come, it is maintained, the earth will get hotter still. More drought will be likely, more farmers will be in trouble, icecaps might melt, the sea level may rise dangerously in cities close to the True? No one really knows. Some experts say yes, it's already upon us. Others say there is not enough hard evidence to make a sound judgment, but if the process hasn't started yet, it will probably begin in a few decades.

If we don't know all the facts, it is nonetheless interesting to pay attention to the remedies that are being proposed by the environmental community, and the intensity with which they are expressed.

What should we do about the greenhouse effect? Conserve on our use of fossil fuel, the environmentalists say. That is a good idea. We've done a great deal since the Arab oil shocks of the 1970s. There is more that can be done with existing technology. And with advances in fields like microcomputers and ceramic engines coming on line, there's even more that will be available to help.

The environmentalists also say let's go to solar power. That's a good idea, too, but it shouldn't be trumpeted just yet. Repeated earlier attempts have shown that solar power has big problems. (The Japanese - surprise seem to be taking the lead in photovoltaic panels.) We shall soon see how much utility there is in the next round of solar development.

Conservation. Solar power. And then, on occasion, a stray environmentalist whispers a third alternative, and the hated word is sounded: "nuclear." The whisper continues: "Maybe we'd better re-investigate nuclear power. Ironically, it was environmental activists and their political allies who played one of the leading roles in destroying nuclear power in America. The primal no-nothing shriek of "No Nukes!" took the place of a rational dialogue regarding ways to wisely reform America's troubled nuclear industry. And so, no nuclear plant ordered since 1974 has been built. This despite the fact that nuclear power is safe, clean - and does not produce greenhouse gases. The French have demonstrated the way to go: standardized power plant designs rather than the crazy-quilt proliferation of designs that have been the rule in the United States

If the current concern about a hotter climate and the greenhousing of America is valid (and it probably is) it seems clear that the United States and the rest of the world will have to move further on nuclear power. This is true even if we can take a big bite out of out our own fossil fuel consumption through conservation and solar energy.

But that alone won't solve the problem. It is a global situation. World population will be climbing from five billion to close to 10 billion people before population levels off in the next century. About nine billion of these people will be living in countries that are now poor. To allow those people to modernize and improve their standard of living, means one thing: much more energy. Energy use is a basic ingredient of human progress — always has been, always will be.

The choice, it seems, will end up as a fairly stark one: nuclear power or global poverty. The environmentalists ought to bite the bullet on that the nuclear bullet.

Martians invade radio airwaves again!!

By RICK HAMPSON

Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - The Martians landed in central New Jersey and swept north toward New York City, tearing up rail, phone and power lines, crushing houses and trees, slaughtering thousands of soldiers sent to stop them.

The invaders' apparent objective, broadcaster Douglas Edwards intoned Wednesday, was to "crush resistance, paralyze communication and disorganize human society. "Very bad news, Doug," said his col-

Maybe, but nothing to worry about. Fifty years after Orson Welles caused national hysteria with his radio drama The War of the Worlds, Martians are again invading the airwaves in a new production based on H.G. Wells' novel. "This is not a nostalgia piece," director David Ossman said before Allen and Edwards taped their parts in the drama, which will be broadcast Oct. 30 on public radio stations. "It's supposed to be realistic and contemporary. (The listener) should react as if it's really happening.' Some changes have been made in Howard Koch's original script: Intercontinental Radio News has become Satellite News. Crowded interstate highways have replaced parkways, and lasers, Amtrak and jet fighter planes have been added, as have interviews with contemporary figures such as science fiction writer Ray Bradbury and scientist Carl Sagan.

Although Welles' production included a mild disclaimer - it was introduced as a radio play at the beginning and before intermission — the new version will have none. "We're going to go seamlessly onto the air," said producer Judith Walcutt.

Alluding to the fact that Welles was not punished 50 years ago, she said, "At least there's no precedent for suing the producer." Welles' role, that of astronomer Richard

Other players include Scott Simon and Terry Gross of National Public Radio.

Edwards recorded his part in Jacksonville, Fla., while Allen did his simultaneously at WNYC radio, later moving to a rooftop near Wall Street for a final broadcast in which he is overcome by poison smoke unleashed by the Martians.

The entertainer said he was one of those fooled in 1938.

"I didn't hear the beginning of the show," Allen said. "I was 17, and I was on the ninth floor of a run-down hotel on the near North Side of Chicago with my mother and aunt. Forest Service to help northern spotted own

SEATTLE (AP) — The northern spotted owl, an elusive denizen of virgin forests in the Northwest, has emerged to silence chain saws in big sections of ancient timber stands of Washington and Oregon.

Prodded by environmental groups, the U.S. Forest Service intends this fall to approve a ban on logging and other development in 347,700 of the 1.3 million acres of old-growth forest within 13 national forests in the two states, government and environmental officials said Wednesday. The plan, aimed at protecting the spotted owl and other wildlife from the effects of logging in their unique forest habitat, has drawn sharp criticism from the timber industry

Timber spokesmen contend that the spotted owl needs no such protection, and that the move is just one of several environmental steps to cripple or shut down the industry, which is in the midst of a record cutting year.

Old-growth timber, which is anywhere from 200 to 600 years old, is prized by the industry for its higher-quality grain. Oldgrowth species include cedar, hemlock, Douglas fir and spruce.

"I see it as one more thing by those who are trying to put the timber industry out of business," said Bob Dick, a spokesman for the Washington Forest Protection Association, a pro-timber organization based in Olympia. 'When is enough enough? When do we stop setting things aside and start managing what we have?'

An environmentalist said steps to protect the owl, which will nest only in the ancient trees, and its forest habitat probably will protect neither in the long run.

"The future of the Northwest ancient forests is dire unless Forest Service policies are changed," said Jean Durning, the Northwest regional director of the Wilderness Society. "There is far less ancient forest left than the Forest Service has recog-

"And clear-cuts are being plopped into the middle of extensive stands so fast that in very few years we will have no major intact stretches of ancient forest."

Logging companies this year expect to equal last year's alltime highest yield of nearly 5 billion board feet from the national forests of Washington and Oregon, which produce up to half the timber taken from the nation's public forest lands.

The owl-protection plan is scheduled to be signed soon by Forest Service chief F. Dale Robertson, said Grant Gunderson, an agency wildlife biologist based in Portland, Ore., who helped write the plan. A 30-day period in which the public may comment began Aug.

Christopher Roosevelt said his father died of lung cancer. "It was a very late diagnosis and very fast moving.

Roosevelt, a Liberal-Democrat who came of age while his father was in the White House, began his own political career in 1949 when he defeated the Tammany Hallbacked Democratic candidate for the 20th Congressional District seat. He served three terms in Congress, retiring in 1955.

When first elected, Roosevelt said his victory was "proof that we are experiencing a revolution in American politics" and predicted the end of "big-city party organizations formerly held by irresponsible clubhouse loafers."

But Congress was the only race won from the powerful Tammany machine. He lost the Democratic nomination for governor in 1954 to Averell Harriman, who was supported by Tammany boss Carmen Di Sapio

As a consolation, he was nominated for attorney general but lost that race to the popular Republican Jacob K. Javits.

Roosevelt, a graduate of Harvard University and the University of Virginia Law School, ran for governor again in 1966 on the Liberal Party ticket, knowing he would lose but determined to force the Democratic bosses to open the nominating process to the voters in primary elections, his son said.

A close friend and earnest campaigner for John F. Kennedy, Roosevelt served as Kennedy's

Rains fall on Sudan as Nile floods again

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) -Rain poured down on the capital Wednesday and the Nile rose higher as the city tried to cope with the worst flooding in its his-

News reports Wednesday said an additional 21 people died in accidents caused by the floods, bringing the total known death toll to more than 90.

Torrential rains Aug. 4-5 left 1.5 million to 2 million people homeless as thousands of mud huts melted in the refugee camps that ring this desert city.

In Khartoum alone, 70 people died, 213 were injured and nearly 115.000 houses were destroyed by the flooding, Egypt's state-owned Middle East News Agency quoted Amin Abdel-Latif, Sudan's ambassador to Cairo, as saying.

The agency said that 18 Sudanese drowned when their ferry overturned in fast currents on the Rahad River. The river is a tributary of the Blue Nile, which joins the White Nile at Khartoum to form the Nile River

In Omdurman, across the Nile from Khartoum, the agency said three children were killed and dozens injured when a house collapsed because of the flood.

In northern Sudan, 99 islands were submerged and their 60,000 inhabitants moved to safe locations, and 21 villages were washed away and the 12,000 families who lived there were left homeless, Abdel-Latif said.

He said there were no figures on total casuaties and damages because the floods isolated so many places.

Sudanese Finance Minister Omar Nour Dayem earlier estimated damages were around $200 million and that up to 2 million people were homeless.

The crisis could worsen with the beginning of the Nile's annual flooding. Heavy rains in Ethiopia, source of the Blue Nile, have produced a plentiful flood after eight years of drought.

Officials don't know whether the Nile will flood Khartoum, parts of which are already isolated by vast pools of stagnant water and roads that have become impassable tracks of mud. The Nile waters have already started seeping into houses along its banks in the capital, and many residents have evacuated their homes for higher ground

The Egyptian agency quoted Sudanese Irrigation Minister Mahmoud Beshir Gamma as saying several areas in the north were threatened with river flooding. He said they included the large towns of Atbara, Damer, Gunmen pose with hostages on bus. Berber and Dongola.

Soviet passenger train derails;

Sobin said he did not know the exact death toll from the crash, but said it was not as deadly as a June 4 explosion aboard a freight train in the city of Arzamas, 240 miles east of Moscow. That blast killed nearly 100 people, wounded 200 and forced the evacuation of 700

dent, Bologoye and Vyshny Volochok.

MOSCOW (AP) — A high-speed passenger train caught fire and derailed, killing 17 people on a trip from Leningrad to Moscow, Soviet media said Wednesday.

Fire engulfed the restaurant car and quickly spread to the entire line of sleeping cars Tuesday evening about midway between the Soviet Union's two largest cities, said the government evening newspaper Izvestia.

It said that by noon Wednesday, 17 people were dead and 106 hospitalized. It said children were among the fatalities, but did not say how many.

The Moscow-Leningrad route is one of the busiest in the Soviet Union and the trains are usually full. The train was carrying 760 passengers when it crashed about 190 miles north of the capital, said Anatoly N. Sobin, director of the Leningrad railway station in Moscow. He told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that 95 of the injured were hospital-

The official Tass news agency said the Moscow-bound Aurora passenger train left the tracks between the Berezaika and Po-playenets stations at 6:34 p.m. Tuesday.

Izvestia said 15 cars derailed. The cause of the fire and the exact point where it broke out were still under investigation, but it began shortly before the train derailed, Izvestia said. Previous reports suggested the fire broke out after the train de-

The newspaper said firefighting equipment could not approach the burning cars fast enough because they derailed in swampland. It also said the first railway water tank er sent to the scene turned out to be empty and had to be refilled before it could be used by firefighters.

Residents of nearby villages, soldiers and civilian emergency workers rushed to the scene to evacuate the injured and help others contact relatives, Izvestia said.

Traffic on the Moscow-Leningrad route was restored by this morning, and an investigation team was set up and led by a deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers, Vladimir Gusev, Tass said.

Disaster reports by Soviet media are still slow in appearing and often lacking in important details. But Wednesday's accounts of the fatal train derailment less than 24 hours earlier reflect the closer watch Soviet media have been keeping on public matters under Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev's policy of "glasnost," or greater openness on selected subjects.

RECKLINGHAUSEN, West Germany (AP) — Two bank robbers who roared out of West Germany after killing a teen-age hostage on a hijacked bus sped back today with two female hostages and a wounded female accomplice, police said.

Police spokesman Hermann Wahl said the BMW the bandits extorted from Dutch authorities in return for hostages' freedom was parked in front of a regional television and radio affiliate in the Rhine River city of Cologne.

The gunmen left the Netherlands about 6:30 a.m. in the highpowered car and returned to this country, where on Wednesday they killed a teen-ager among 25 hostages on the bus.

A West German police officer was also killed Wednesday in a car crash while pursuing the bus, and two hostages were shot and wounded early today before the hijackers left the Netherlands, authorities said.

Their conditions were not

Police said the remaining 23 hostages either escaped or were freed after the bus rolled to a stop about 1:45 a.m. in the Netherlands, two days after the crime spree began.

Police spokesman Hermann Wahl in the city of Recklinghausen, 40 miles north of Cologne, said the female accomplice apparently was shot today in the Netherlands when two of the hostages tried to flee Hesse state radio in Frankfurt said the bandits stopped at a pharmacy after returning to West Germany to get medicine and bandages for her.

West Germany's ARD television network showed lengthy footage of the chase, including shots of one bandit counting a wad of cash.

Wahl said that after most of the hostages were set free near the Dutch border town of Oldenzaal, and two female hostages got into the BMW and raced back into West Germany at about 8 a.m.

He said the condition of the bus hostages was "good" and they were being examined by doctors.

Wahl identified the gunmen as Hans-Juergen Roesner, 31, and Dieter Degowski, 32. The accomplice's name was not released. Wahl said she joined the hijacking after it started, but did not specify when.

The crime spree began Tuesday with a bank robbery in the West German city of Gladbeck. The robbers escaped with two hostages and $227,000 in a car provided by police.

The gunmen next surfaced Wednesday in the West German city of Bremen, about 135 miles from Gladbeck. There, police

The bandits then commandeered a nearby passenger bus and drove away with 30 hostages. Five elderly people were later

Along a West German highway en route to the Netherlands, the hijackers shot a 15-year-old boy on the bus and dumped him at a highway rest stop

The victim, an Italian whose identity was not released, died later in a Bremen hospital, police

A West German police officer was also killed and two others injured in a car crash while pursuing the bus. No further details on that incident were immediately available.

EDINBURG (AP) — The University of Texas is ready to turn its courtship with Pan American University into a stronger commitment, UT System

Chancellor Hans Mark said. But UT, the state's largest university system, will wait for the Rio Grande Valley school to decide on whether to merge their futures, the chancellor

"Courtships should not be forced but they should also not be dragged out for too long," Mark told the Legislative Joint Committee on Higher Education in South Texas this week.

Mark also presented to the committee proposals for $9.7 million in collaborative academic programs with institutions in South Texas over the 1990-91 biennium, most of which would involve Pan

American, with or without a merger. Mark said UT wants Pan American to initiate formal merger negotiations to make it clear that the smaller school and its community believe it is in their best interest.

Pan American President Miguel Nevarez said the Edinburg-based school's regents probably will take up the idea of a merger at its September

"It really is up to our board," Nevarez said in an interview. "It all depends on what kind of a deal we can cut with UT.

That would include whether the Austin-based institution allows Pan American to develop the kind of programs the Valley school has in its long-range

Those programs, he said, include doctorates in international business and education, and other programs in the areas of engineering and allied health The legislative committee, which met in Brown-

Committee members Tuesday heard testimony that many students in the Rio Grande Valley — the most poverty-stricken part of the state - cannot afford to leave the area for other schools, but that academic programs they need are often not offered close to home.

The Legislature last year ordered the UT and Texas A&M systems to examine the state of higher education in South Texas.

Academic opportunities in South Texas also are the focus of a lawsuit filed last December, alleging discrimination against Hispanics in the funding of the state's higher education programs.

While UT will not propose the merger, Mark said, "the regents of the University of Texas System have taken the position to strongly encourage and to look with great favor on a proposal from the board of regents of Pan American University to initiate formal discussions that would lead to Pan American University becoming a member of the University of Texas System.'

Drug task force now has the funds

To the editor:

According to the noon news on KOMX, 8-10-88, the city of Pampa is studying and considering the signing of the resolution of the Drug Trafficking Task Force to see if they can get assistance in getting rid of some of the drugs in

This will cover the city, not the county. The resolution was turned down by Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan so he could study it more. One of the reasons he gave was that he did not want to spend federal grant money. At this time the sheriff was afraid they would run out of funds and then it would cost the taxpayers, or we might get sued. All of this is covered in the resolution where it can be dropped with a 30-day notice.

At this time we were given approximately $530,000 for a 25 county area. Now, according to the Amarillo Daily News on Aug. 4, nearly $13 million is now granted to the 25 Panhandle counties with the center in Amarillo. Now, what is our excuse for not signing the resolution?

According to the report, Commander Bob Martin, of the West Texas Multi-County Narcotic Trafficking Task Force, the sparsely populated West Texas area offers an ideal setting for major drug operators seeking a place to set

She doesn't like the editor's notes

I have been meaning to write for a long time. I am concerned about how you are running this

First, let's start with your responses to some of the letters having been written to you. Some of them were quite rude. I'm outraged!!! But now it's my turn.

No. 1. We DO NOT have to sign our name unless we want to. If we choose to use a name such as "Outraged," "B.B." or some other name, it doesn't make us chickens. We bear responsibility for our letters by giving your our address Second. If we dislike something we see in our paper (example: Sherry Roberts of Lefors, and Friends and family of Leon Williams), we have a right to say so. And you, the editor, shouldn't ridicule our opinions.

Also, murders are a rarity here, but not a thankful one. We may need spicy stories to enlighten our paper, but do they have to remain on the front page for days? (That's including the "Celanese blast."

If you don't publish this letter, I will write until you do publish one. As far as getting a new editor is concerned, I think if you just clean up your act, everything will be fine and the whole town won't be mad at you anymore.

He has a right to see the film

The Last Temptation of Christ is fictional. It never happened. It never will. It is fiction. If any idiots who watch a motion picture are illiterate enough to believe the Bible has anything to do with it, then maybe they don't deserve a religion.

Scorsese could have had a "compulsion" to make Catcher in the Rye, but he did not. He made a movie of another fictional book, neither of which are real. He can make any film he wants to and millions are allowed to see it. A few thousand shouldn't be able to bar the masses from seeing it. It's called the First Amendment, part of a little known document this country was built on. That's why it's fine if you want to protest, but also fine if I want to see it.

Movies are a business, just as God is a business. Anyone so naive to this should stay away from theaters. Can't the people who are against its release see that you are defeating yourselves by saying that a film company owes you something

This whole business about "not seeing something to believe it" just doesn't relate here. It's only a movie. It's not cocaine. You are not

Is the "Christian community" at large asleep? Is our "religion" so weak that a film tests it? Something not real? Something unlike tangible problems like drugs and alcohol?

I just tried to state an opinion, a quiet opinion, and it blew up into a fight. If God is so mighty, why do we fight over him? I mean to offend no one or ruffle anyone, but please don't expect me to believe that this "Christian community" rents anything but Herbie Goes to Monte Carlo and The Care Bears Movie

Water pump use alternatives exist

The nation's drought once again calls our attention to the serious water problem developing around the country. Our country's future depends on our conserving water and using it as a precious resource. Old technology that uses water as though it's an unlimited resource must be replaced with newer technology that conserves water

There are many examples of processes where water is still used today as though there were an unlimited supply. Specialists in the vacuum and compressed air field estimate there are between 200,000 and 1 million liquid ring vacuum pumps and compressors still in use today in the U.S.A. These use an old technology that uses millions of gallons of water per pump each year, using water (at 5 gallons a minute and up) as a sealing fluid. The water generally goes through the pump and to waste treatment. Once through and out.

It doesn't sound like much, but a pump/compressor using 5 gallons of water a minute can use 2.6 million gallons of water a year. Can you imagine the waste with 200,000 to 1 million pumps using this amount of water — it's no exaggeration. It's happening right in your town. Many hospitals, chemical, pulp and paper, and power plants use these pumps.

There is an alternative. There are pumps and compressors that use NO water and no more electricity than the liquid ring pumps/com-

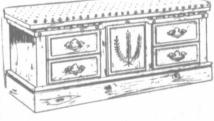

Let's put a stop to the waste. Ask your local water department to survey hospitals and industries in your town to see if liquid ring pumps and compressors are used. If so, demandthey use a newer technology. If it were terribly expensive to eliminate the waste, we might understand why hospitals and industries delay - but it isn't.

Let's write our water boards, congressmen, senators, etc., and demand that this waste

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Science Foundation says it is working to clean up its act in Antarctica, where an environmental group says the federal agency's research bases are polluting the frigid environ-

"We're making progress," says Jack Talmadge, head of NSF's polar coordination and information section. "Nobody here wants to rape Antarctica. We want to preserve it.'

Talmadge made the comments after the Environmental Defense Fund released a report Tuesday alleging that the agency's bases in Antarctica are violating U.S. environmental laws and an international agreement governing use of the frozen continent.

The environmental practices of the NSF ... would not be permitted anywhere in the United States," said the EDF, which frequently brings lawsuits against polluters in this country.

The group said the science agency is dumping untreated sewage and other wastes in Antarctic waters, engaging in open burning of some wastes and operating diesel power generators without emissions controls.

The report said McMurdo Sound, adjacent to the largest U.S. installation, is more polluted than virtually any U.S. waterway and that highly toxic polychlorinated biphenyls and heavy metals are being found in the tissues of penguins and seals

'It is incredible that these practices are observed by the U.S. government in the most pristine environment in the world," said Bruce Manheim, the report's author and an EDF attorney and scientist. "Rather than addressing environmental threats in Antarctica, NSF has ignored them.

Talmadge said that many of the report's findings are true, but he said the agency is taking steps to improve environmental practices at its four bases.

NSF, which gets $125 million a year for its Antarctic activities, is in the process of adopting an environmental protection plan and may ask Congress for cleanup money, according to Talmadge.

"We have been doing pollution control, maybe not as aggressively as they'd like," he said, referring to the EDF. "We have been undertaking extensive efforts to clean up since 1980."

Talmadge said this year, NSF shipped 160 tons of scrap metal and more than 500 drums of waste oil out of Antarctica. He said those materials are no longer dumped in the Antarctic waters.

He said the agency is reviewing a recommendation by an internal safety panel that it stop using hazardous materials to ignite wastes in open-air burning pits. He said raw sewage is dumped into Antarctic waters because officials believe it is less harmful than the chemicals that could be used to treat it.

The EDF report said the United States is not the only polluter among the 18 nations with bases in Antarctica. It noted, however, that Australia and Japan remove all wastes from the continent and that Poland and New Zealand treat sewage and control incinerator emissions

The report said that if the United States did a better environmental job in Antarctica, it would be in a much stronger position to press for more comprehensive pollution control by less responsible nations.

Rapist gets damage award

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — A jury says a former sheriff intentionally inflicted emotional distress upon a rapist, who was castrated while awaiting trial, by displaying the man's testicles in a jar in the sheriff's office.

The federal court jury awarded Wayne Dumond $150,000 in damages from former St. Francis County Sheriff Coolidge Conlee.

Dumond, 38, is serving a life sentence for raping a young Forrest City woman in 1985. His attorney, John Wesley Hall, said he hoped Dumond will receive a new trial by spring on his August 1985 rape and kidnapping convic-

"Maybe this is an omen," Dumond said after Tuesday's verdict in the civil trial.

Dumond sued Conlee for unspecified monetary damages, charging that the former sheriff publicly showed the jar's contents to several people at Conlee's office 31/2 years ago.

'Coolidge Conlee was holding these up like they were a trophy, Hall told the jury in his closing

Masked intruders castrated Dumond in his home in March 1985. He is trying to get a new trial, saying his criminal trial was fixed

During the two-day civil trial, a witness, O'Neal Webb, testified he saw a jar containing Dumond's testicles on Conlee's

"He asked did I know what it was. I said, 'You'll get in trouble for displaying these like this,'

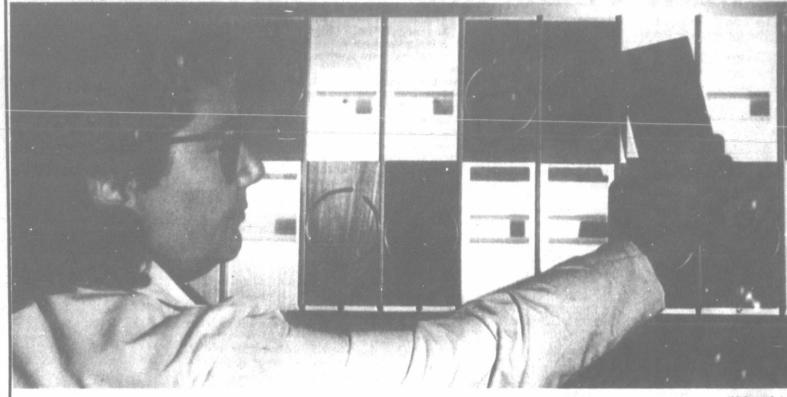

Webb said But Conlee and former county employees said he didn't publicly display the jar and its contents.

That jar was a hot potato. Coolidge didn't know what to do with it," said attorney Bob Roddey, who represented Conlee and the county.

Chuck Thomas, a former deputy, testified he took pictures as former Chief Deputy Evan Hughes and Deputy Liz Jones flushed the jar's contents down a

Texas beachcomber takes life back to the basics

By TONY VINDELL The Brownsville Herald

BOCA CHICA BEACH, Texas (AP) - Tom Houston has beaten the odds. After going through divorce, losing his job, and being told he had six months to live, he decided to make the best of the time he had left. He moved to the beach.

Now, four years later, he lives on $87 worth of food stamps a month and the crabs, clams and fish he catches. He spends his time combing the beach looking for anything worthwhile, talking on any imaginable subject to whomever comes along, reading and just wondering what to do next.

The Brownsville native calls himself a good squatter who doesn't cause problems for anyone. Of his lifestyle, Houston said he is simply living like his forefathers did for several hundred years except that he uses kerosene and also pumps up his own water from behind a sand dune at Boca Chica

"This is my baby," Houston said, while showing off his simple technique of pumping fresh water from a 6-foot hole he dug behind the shack he is still building near the south jetty. "This is nothing like Brownsville, Port Isabel or South Padre Island

Believe it or not, Houston said, rain water sets in the ground in between two sand dunes. All one needs, he added, is to find a way to pump it up.

A war veteran who joined the U.S. Marines at age 17, Houston said he fought in the Korean War against his own wishes. His parents signed up to enlist him in the Marines.

"I bet they probably signed up for me at least 50 times," he recalled. "From Korea I went to Japan and stayed at Fort McNair. Japan is a beautiful country but I wouldn't go back there now.

A handyman most of his life, Houston said, he can build an electrical plant, install whole plumb-

"I'm three years overdue," he said, remembering the day someone told him at a San Antonio hospital he wasn't going to live much longer. "You know, my liver has been shot twice and, on top of that, I like booze."

Houston was wounded during the Korean War. Houston said he started mailing "zillions" of resumes four years ago when he lost his job, but not a single job offer came through.

He then went to the Texas Employment Commission, filed an unemploment claim and has since been living on $87 worth of food stamps each month.

"A woman at the commission once asked me, 'Houston, why don't you get you a job?' "he recalled. "Can you find one for me at age 50?" Houston said he responded.

"Do you want me to sell dope?" he told her. 'Whenever I see young people driving those expensive cars I know they are in the wacky tobacky business.

Houston makes occasional trips to Brownsville to buy groceries.

He recalled a day when he ran out of cigarettes. walked to the nearest place off Texas Highway 4 and came back home angry.

The store was closed.

"You have heard the expression 'walk a mile for a Camel?' "Houston said. "Well, I walked 13 miles for nothing.

Houston's constant companion is Dutchess, a black dog which he said is part cocker spaniel. A friend gave her to Houston despite his objections. "I'm living on food stamps, let alone feeding a dog," he said he told the woman. "She promised to bring food for her every weekend."

'I am still waiting for that day," he said.

Color appears to be returning to fashion this fall, and jewelry is no exception.

Colors from bright greens to hot pinks, soft blues and rich golds are adorning jewelry from necklaces to earrings, according to a professional association of jewelers.

"Many people are just discovering that there's a gemstone for every color in the rainbow." says William G. Underwood, president of the American Gem Society. Underwood says many colored stones are also quite Jewelry designer Henry Dunay, in his newest collection, prefers ebony, "a warm material both in color and texture. Coupled with the rich quality of 18-karat gold, this becomes a staple piece for any accessory wardrobe," Dunay says.

Nancy Brewer, president of Nancy B and Co., says black onyx will play a big part in the working woman's jewelry wardrobe this season. "Other favorites coming this fall," she says, "are amethyst, blue topaz and, most importantly, citrine (lemon yellow)."

If diamonds are a girl's best friend and hair is her crowning glory, then a pairing of the two may be the most glittering exclamation point of the fall fashion

"Diamonds in the hair are the ultimate accessory for a woman," says New York designer Whitney Boin.

I recently was away on business, and it was obvious that my boyfriend was taking advantage of my absence by spending many late nights out (always with a good alibi ready). Red Raiders' defense has Dykes concerne

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech football coach Spike Dykes had a great deal to say about his team's offense, but he says the defense needs big improvements in order to compete for the Southwest Conference championship

"We feel like we've got to make some big improvements on defense," Dykes said Wednesday during the Southwest Conference Press Tour stop. "I don't know what the words are or how you describe some of these things. Last year we were disappointed in our defensive performances at times, and I can't really tell you why.'

Dykes said the defense will be the main concern of the Red Raiders between now and the season opener in three weeks.

The Raiders return only four starters and eight backup players on defense among 17 lettermen and have huge holes to fill at linebacker and at corner-

Dykes pointed out that the team's defense was inconsistent last season, noting that they were able to hold off Texas A&M in the final minutes for a 27-21 upset victory and noted that they held four opponents to a pair of touchdowns or less.

But he also noted that the Raiders allowed Texas Christian 21 points in the final 10 minutes of the game and gave up 31 to Arkansas.

"You are all going to think I'm a blithering idiot when I tell you this, but we played a great game defensively against TCU - for about 50 minutes,' Dykes said. "Then the dam broke and, my Lord, they like to wore out the turf.

"We played good at times and then at other times we stunk it up," Dykes said. "We've got to overcome that. We've got to get better and I think we

"I hope we can develop a degree of consistency this year that is really the characteristic of a good football team.

The Raiders will depend on a handful of new faces, especially on defense, he said.

Dykes said that the picture is much brighter on offense with the return of seven starters and nine backups among 20 lettermen.

"We feel like we've got one heck of a nucleus coming back," Dykes said. "I don't think there's any doubt about it."

The only doubt about senior quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver following his 1,422-yard, All-SWC junior season is his inconsistency, Dykes said. He has thrown 26 interceptions in the last two seasons.

The battle for the No.2 quarterback job features redshirt freshmen Jamie Gill, Jason Rattan, Doug Bonds and King Hodson, Dykes said.

Meads hurls Astros past Cardinals 1-0

By PAUL LeBAR AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS - To hear Dave Meads tell it, the assignment he was given on an emergency basis to face the St. Louis Cardinals wasn't all that tough.

"I knew that I wasn't required to go far," Meads said Wednesday night after pitching the first six innings of the Houston Astros' 1-0 victory over its National League opponent. "I just knew that I had to make quality pitches

Given the caliber of Meads' deliveries, Houston manager Hal Lanier said the outcome was not surprising. "A left-hander that's got a good curveball and a good changeup and can get it over can get a lot of batters out," Lanier said. "He threw a lot of breaking balls and changeups, but he was ahead on the count.

Meads, 2-0, received his first major league start after 59 relief appearances.

ties record

By The Associated Press

Carlton Fisk tied the American League record for games caught. Or did he?

Fisk caught his 1,805th game Wednesday night. The Baseball Encyclopedia says that ties him with Rick Ferrell, who played in the 1930s and 1940s for the St. Louis Browns. Boston Red Sox and Washing ton Senators.

However, The Elias Sports Bureau and The Sporting News Record Books say Ferrell caught 1,806

"If I go out and play every day, it will happen," said Fisk who homered twice and walked with the bases loaded to lead the Chicago White Sox past the Toronto Blue Jays 5-1.

"It turned out to be an occasion," Fisk said. "I'm glad we won. I go out and try to do good, but it's not easy to do good every day. It just worked out that way tonight.

"I told you he'd find a way to rise to the occasion," White Sox manager Jim Fregosi said

Fisk homered in the second inning and in the sixth, giving him 13 this season. He walked off Duane Ward with the bases loaded in the eighth.

"I just wanted to get the run in from third base," Fisk said. "By then I was gassed and the bat was a little slow.

In other games, Oakland beat Baltimore 10-4, Minnesota beat Detroit 2-1, Boston beat Seattle 7-2. New York beat California 11-7, Cleveland beat Milwaukee 11-7 and Kansas City beat Texas 9-6.

Chicago's Jerry Reuss, 9-7, allowed seven hits in seven innings. Steve Rosenberg got four outs in order for his first major-league save.

Jim Clancy, 6-13, who gave up both homers, allowed six hits and all three runs in six innings Athletics 10. Orioles 4

Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire homered in the same game for the seventh time this season as Oakland won for the eighth time in nine games.

The Athletics, unbeaten when both have homered, had 11 hits, eight for extra bases, and overcame a 3-2 deficit with a five-run fifth.

Curt Young, 7-7, won for the first time since July 1, allowing nine hits and three runs in five innings. Twins 2, Tigers 1

Allan Anderson won his fifth consecutive decision and Dan Gladden hit a two-run homer as Minnesota completed a three-game sweep and beat Detroit for the seventh straight time this season.

Anderson, 11-7, allowed six hits in eight innings. Jeff Reardon finished for his 32nd save. Doyle Alexander, 11-8, gave up eight hits in 81-3 innings, striking out eight.

Red Sox 7, Mariners 2 Bruce Hurst won his fifth consecutive decision and Rich Gedman and Ellis Burks homered as Boston moved to within two games of first-place etroit in the American League East.

Hurst, 14-4, allowed eight hits in 5 1-3 innings. Bob Stanley followed for 2 2-3 innings and Lee Smith struck out the side in the ninth. Bill Swift, 6-10, gave up six hits and four runs in 1 2-3 innings.

Yankees 11, Angels 7 Rickey Henderson and Dave Winfield had four hits apiece and drove three runs each in New York's 16-hit attack.

Henderson drove in two runs with a seventh-inning single that gave the Yankees a 9-7 lead after the Angels had wiped out a 7-2 deficit.

Diagram completed on municipal golf course

Along with a diagram of the will be welded at IRI. Pampa public golf course, construction supervisor Ray Hardy has completed a description of the first 9 holes for the 6,723-yard

Hardy, who designed the course, will present a description of the final 9 holes at a later date. A breakdown on the first 9 holes is as follows

No. 1 - A 400-yard hole with a sloping fairway and an uphill approach to the green.

No. 2 - A 390-yard hole with a slight dogleg and an uprising approach to the green. No. 3 — A 396-yard hole slightly downhill with an open green. No. 4 — A 510-yard par 5 hole straight away eastbound. A birdie hole. No. 5 — A 400-yard slight dogleg downhill sloping away from the green on all sides. A bogie if you miss the green. No. 6 - A 175-yard par 3 hole over a westbound ravine. No. 7 - A 390-yard par 4 hole with a slight dogleg. Tee shot is 150-yards over an uphill ravine. A good par.

No. 8 - A 190-yard par 3 hole with a swell in front of a 5,000 square foot green No. 9 - A 430-yard par 4 slight dogleg downhill with an upward rise to the green. Construction on the course started in mid-July and all teeboxes and greens have been formed, says Pampa Public Golf Association President Buddy Epperson. The course itself is looking good. Most of the rough spots on the fairways have been smoothed over and cart paths have been cut out," Epperson said. The PPGA is currently seeking welders to work on three bridges, which will span the water hazards. 'We're looking for some good work," Epperson said. Interested persons can contact Epperson at 669-6291. The bridges

Epperson said offers of volunteer labor and equipment are still coming in. Phillips Co. has donated 1,200 steel posts which will be cut and used as a fence around the course and IRI has donated both labor and equipment.

"Right now work is at a standstill until we get the steel posts cut and put in the ground," he added.

Epperson said the PPGA is still looking for a 1,200 square foot house for the greenskeeper to live

He said the house would bé moved to the golf course and paid for by the PPGA. As yet the city commission has not hired a greenskeeper and city official Ray Vaughn stated earlier that the city may wait until the course is completed before hiring one. Vaughn said the city could hire one person as both the greenskeeper and golf pro.

Epperson said Hardy has returned home to El Paso and won't be back until after Labor Day.

'We'll probably start putting in the irrigation system about mid-September," Epperson said.

Earlier, city commissioners awarded a $109,872 bid to Western Industrial to install the irrigation system. Construction on a maintenance barn, cart barn and pro shop is also being planned, Epperson said.

The course, which is situated on the northeast corner of Texas Highway 70 and Loop 171, is also without trees and shrubbery, and a 'give-a-tree' campaign will be launched in the near future, Epperson said.

We're hoping to get the merchants and businessmen involved in this," Epperson said. The course is being built by volunteers and Gray County work crews. The course is owned welders who can help out on by the city although the county weekends and weekdays after will have a say in managing it, according to an agreement drafted by both city and county attorneys

Casillas returns to Falcons

By The Associated Press

Twenty-three days after leaving the Atlanta Falcons because he was under too much stress to play football, nose tackle Tony Casillas is back at training camp.

'My therapy for stress has helped me come to the conclusion that I want to continue my football career," Casillas said in a statement Wednesday. "I feel like now I can contribute to the team 100 percent." He thanked team officials for "their concern and professionalism" and said he would have no further comment on the matter.

Casillas, 24, a first-round draft pick out of Oklahoma in 1986, left camp July 26, saying he needed to ponder his future. Casillas saw a psychiatrist three time a week after leaving camp.

Coach Marion Campbell said Casillas will practice this week and may see action for a few plays in Saturday's preseason game against Tampa Bay in Atlanta.

Manley among players suspended

NEW YORK (AP) - NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle says he considered suspending Dexter Manley and other drug offenders for as many as 30 days, but decided instead on a preseason suspension that would allow them to get immediate treatment.

"I gave it a lot of thought," Rozelle said Wednesday of the punishment imposed on the Washington Redskins' one-time All-Pro defensive end and seven other players.

"It all depends when you get your test results, Rozelle said. "If someone tested positive now, he'd miss some regular-season games. So there's a discepancy in the penalty imposed. But you don't want to put off a suspension so the player can get immediate treatment."

So far, eight NFL players have been suspended during training camp for failing tests under the NFL's substance-abuse policy. Tony Collins of the Indianapolis Colts, who had been cut by New England because of previous problems, was suspended for at least a year as a third-time offender.

The others were suspended for 30 days, the penalty normally given to second offenders.

They include Manley, who will return to training camp Aug. 26, and six others who will be eligible to return Sept. 2, two days before the start of the regular season. The most prominent in that second group are running backs Doug DuBose of San Francisco and Robb Riddick of Buffalo, defensive end Greg Townsend of the Los Angeles Raiders, and offensive lineman Kevin Gogan of Dallas.

detail man who says his good looks are a bother

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Sen. Dan Quayle brings youth, wealth, golden good looks and a profoundly combative conservative view of the world to the 1988 Republican presidential ticket.

Quayle's age — 41 — was the factor George Bush stressed Tuesday afternoon as he stood on the bank of the Mississippi River and announced he would ask the Republican National Convention to nominate "a man of the future" to be his vice presidential running mate.

The Indiana senator projected youthful enthusiasm and energy as he strode to Bush's side, punched the air with his fist and urged the soon-to-be Republican standard bearer to "Go get 'em."

But some Democrats said Quayle's conservatism may provide them with an opening to attack a record that includes his leadership this summer in a los-. ing fight to defeat legislation requiring 60-days notice of plant closings and mass layoffs.

Democratic Vice Presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen called Quayle's selection "good news."

For every vice presidential nominee, Quayle said, "there are 15,000 journalists who want to grab him by the ankles, turn him upside down and shake him until something bad comes out."

Dan Quayle - his legal name is James Danforth Quayle - was born in Indianapolis/on Feb. 4, 1947, a birthdate that makes him the first member of the "baby boom" generation on the presidential ticket of a major American political party.

Indiana's junior Republican

senator is a Presbyterian and a member of one of the nation's most prominent publishing families, the Pulliams.

His grandfather was Eugene C. Pulliam, publisher of the Indianapolis Star and News, the Arizona Republic and the Phoenix Gazette. Quayle's father, James C. Quayle, is publisher of the Huntington (Ind.) Herald-Press.

Quayle invoked his family's philosophy Tuesday as he told cheering Republicans, many of them apparently surprised at his selection, that "my grandfather told me that there is nothing more important in this country than freedom:

Enrolling in 1969 at DePauw

University, alma mater of many of his relatives, Quayle waited on tables at a sorority house for $40 a

He attended Indiana University, where met his wife, Marilyn, while attending the university's law school. He married her on Nov. 18, 1972, 10 weeks after their first date.

The couple has a 14-year-old son, Tucker; a 12-year-old son, Benjamin; and a 9-year-old daughter, Corinne.

The two youngest children were born after Quayle began his first congressional campaign in 1976, winning election to the House where he was to serve Indiana's 4th congressional district for two terms.

Five months into his second House term, Quayle challenged Indiana's most prominent Democrat, Sen. Birch Bayh, a veteran incumbent.

On election day 1980, Quayle ended Bayh's political career, winning by a margin of 166,000 votes, 54 percent of the total.

Six years later, as Democrats were reclaiming the Senate majority they lost in Ronald Reagan's 1980 landslide, Quayle bucked the tide and crushed his poorly financed opponent, taking 61 percent of the vote.

It was in his campaign against Birch Bayh that Quayle acquired what he still dubs his "stigma." Voters --- and the Indiana press

- compared his handsome features and blow-dried hair to the movie-star good looks of a movie star: Robert Redford.

Asked about the comparison this week, Quayle brushed his sandy blond hair with an impatient sweep of his hand and said:

"I've had that stigma ever since I first ran for the Senate. ... I'd rather talk about what I stand for than what I look like.'

Quayle tried to erase that glamor boy image by immersing himself in his work

But in eight years in the Senate he has only rarely appeared at the edge of the national spotlight, never attaining the level of recognition and peer respect accorded his senior colleague, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the former chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

But he has made a mark on the three Senate committees on which he serves - Armed Forces, Budget, and Labor and Human Resources.

On the Armed Services Committee, Quayle made himself a specialist in the NATO alliance. He strongly supported President Reagan's space-based missile defense system popularly known as Star Wars.

He has mastered such matters as troop strength, weapons performance and Soviet military doctrine.

He attended virtually all of the panel's exhaustive hearings into the details of the medium-range missile treaty between the United States and the Soviet Union, expressing great skepticism even though it had been negotiated by a conservative president.

Quayle eventually joined the 93-5 majority voting to ratify the pact.

In the Labor Committee and on the Senate floor, Quayle was a leader in the Reagan administration's fight against raising the minimum wage as well as the
