Appraisal contracts gain board approval

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Contracts for mineral, pipeline and industrial property appraisal remained the central topic of the Gray County Appraisal Board of Directors meeting Thursday in the appraisal district offices.

Action on a two-year contract with Lone Star Evaluation for appraisal of the county's mineral values. Consultant for industrial and pipeline property appraisals, an item board members thought was completed in July, returned to the September agenda when the contracted agent, Troy Sloan, resigned to accept a position as chief appraiser of the Stephens County Appraisal District.

Lone Star Evaluation offered to provide an industrial and pipeline property consultant for the appraisal district on an as-needed basis of $35 an hour and 22½ cents per mile, a difference of ½ cent more a mile than Sloan's contract. The firm's consultant also offered to do the Hoescht Celanese plant appraisal for $2,500.

Henderson said the consultant, a petroleum engineer and appraiser from Fort Worth, has extensive knowledge of the Celanese plant and has worked with plant representatives before. "I'm confident he'll be able to handle the Celanese plant and any other industrial property," Henderson said.

ment in what we would ask to contract for," he said. "I recommend that we accept the two-year contract," said Pat Bagley, chief appraiser. "We can only expect costs would increase over that time."

"Our reason for the two-year contract is to allow us to plan better," explained Louis Henderson of Lone Star Evaluation. "We have no objection to a one-year contract whatsoever."

"Is there a possibility that by having a background in the work you've done previously that this could control costs in any way?" asked Jim Olsen, board member.

Henderson said that the firm had completed 1,830 appraisals in 1988, up nine from 1,821 appraisal in 1987. Leases had increased from 1,702 to 1,712.

While these changes were minimal, Henderson said, his company does make adjustments when there is an increase or decrease in the number of appraisals.

"If there is a substantial decrease, we would make an adjustment in what we would ask to contract for," he said.

"I recommend that we accept the two-year contract," said Pat Bagley, chief appraiser. "We can only expect costs would increase over that time."

Board members agreed unanimously to contract with Lone Star Evaluation for appraisal of the county's mineral values.

Gilbert aims for Texas coast

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Hurricane Gilbert's leading edge lashed the coast and its 120 mph winds swirled toward landfall tonight, as officials in the Caribbean and Mexico tallied billions in damage from the giant storm blamed for at least 50 deaths.

As seas churned, the U.S. Coast Guard dispatched a 41-foot search and rescue boat to try and pull seven people from a fishing boat in Matagorda Bay. Officials said they weren't sure whether the approaching storm had crippled the fishing vessel.

Thousands of residents along Texas' 370-mile coast, many evacuated to higher ground after piling sandbags in the doorways of their homes and boarding up windows, huddled in shelters and waited for the news.

When and where would Gilbert hit?

"We are going to sit and wait and pray for the best," said Larry Brown, director of transportation for Brownsville, where officials estimated that as much as one-fourth of the city of 110,000 could end up in emergency shelters.

Port Isabel, a city of about 5,000 just east of Brownsville, had turned into a virtual ghost town by Thursday evening.

Officials also evacuated the coastal resorts of South Padre Island and Galveston.

"It sounds facetious, but people can stay as long as we can fingerprint them so we can identify them later," said South Padre Mayor Bob Pinkerton Jr.

In Corpus Christi, police were ordered to leave North Padre Island as water began flooding the causeway. The city had earlier asked everyone to leave the island, but police Chief Robert Olson said he had heard that about 10 to 15 residents remained there last night.

"I'd have to feel that some of those people came to their senses," and left, Olson said.

Corpus Christi officials were encouraged that the storm appeared headed south, but remained wary.

"The situation looks favorable to Corpus Christi at this point. But we can't take anything for granted. We all know hurricanes are unpredictable," Mayor Betty Turner said this morning.

The storm has weakened since its destructive assault on the Caribbean, and despite forecasters' predictions, Gilbert showed little sign of strengthening early today as it headed for the Brownsville area at the southern tip of Texas.

"It has not strengthened since it left Mexico, but we still believe some strengthening is possible. It's not ever going to get back up to Category 5 strength with 175 mph winds, but it very possibly could reach 130 or 140 mph," said Jim Gross, a hurricane specialist at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

The Hurricane Center said if Gilbert continues in the same direction, the eye of the storm would come ashore near the Texas-Mexico border sometime this evening.

Winds up to 34 mph, accompanied by squalls, began pounding South Texas and northern Mexico early today.

County OKs new airport phone number

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners OK'd installation of a new telephone number for Perry Lefors Field, after a request from Field Base Operator Ron Fernuik stretched to an hour in length.

Fernuik explained that his company, Pampa Aircraft, has been sharing the county's current numbers of 665-1881 and 665-1882 and recent expansion made it necessary for him to install a third number, 665-1886, for aircraft-related sales.

After a small amount of discussion, commissioners unanimously approved Fernuik's proposal that his company pay, retroactively, all costs for the present telephone system, plus pay for the new telephone and installation of the new county number. Fernuik asked that the county pay for the commercial line fee of $30 to $33 a month. He estimated the move would save the county $1,600 to $1,700 a year.

"I'd rather not have a telephone bill at Perry Lefors Field. I'd rather not have an electric bill at Perry Lefors Field. I'd like to sell the airport and get out of the airport business," commented Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy. "But I can't foresee that happening right now."

"Why do we need a telephone number out there at all?" questioned Ted Simmons, Precinct 4 commissioner.

"There needs to be one telephone and one number that is the county's for all time," Fernuik answered.

While considering salaries and bills, Precinct 2 Commissioner Jim Greene asked that a check for $257.38 to Federal Maintenance Supply be voided. Greene said they had not ordered a case of light bulbs from the company like the invoice stated.

With the exception for the one check, commissioners unanimously approved payment of salaries and bills amounting to $118,390.10. Approval was also given for a 90-day time deposit be made with $300,000 from the Highland General Hospital fund.

Commissioners tabled action on letter from the city of Pampa concerning a bid for $250 for property at 115 S. Hobart taken in a recent delinquent tax sale.

The letter indicates the property has been appraised at $6,000 and $3,300.16 is owed in back taxes. Commissioners questioned who was paying rent on two billboards that appeared in photographs of the property.

"It seems to me that $100 a month rent on those signs is more than $250 for the whole thing," Greene commented.

Greene requested commission approval on transferring $1,700 from his fuel budget to be divided between equipment rental and repairs and notice to bidders budgets. He asked that $1,500 be placed in the equipment rental and repairs. Unanticipated replacement of hydraulics on a bulldozer and a turbo on a road grader led to the overage, he explained. The remaining $200 would go to cover notice to bidders. Greene said he expects he will need the money when he advertises for bids on a new vehicle later in the year.

Insurance for the county's heavy equipment was added as a supplement to the published agenda. Commissioners agreed to advertise for bids, although the property could be insured at 80 percent of its present value without going over the $5,000 bid requirement.

County heavy equipment, including bulldozers and road graders, is presently valued at $1.085 million. It is insured at 80 percent of its value with a $1,000 deductible.

Kennedy reported that the county had been billed an additional $11,000 on its property liability and casualty insurance for 1987, based on an insurance company audit that showed the county had not included its road and bridge expenditures.

Meetings between the county auditor, Kennedy and insurance company representatives led to a revised figure of $9,000. However, Kennedy was not satisfied.

"We took the bid, they submitted the bid. We were not aware that you would audit it and we were certainly not aware that insurance board would change the rules," Kennedy said he told the insurance representatives.

"I said, this is an interesting case, one the lawyers will have to argue out," he said. "We acted in good faith. The error was regrettable. But that's something the lawyers and courts will have to argue about."

Commissioner Simmons reported he had met with Rudy Devala of the Texas Department of Community Affairs and former Pampa Fire Chief J.D. Ray in Austin last week to discuss ways the county could provide firefighting services for areas outside the city.

Simmons was instructed to contact Devala and ask him to appear at the Sept. 30 or Oct. 14 meeting to give commissioners more information about firefighting possibilities for the county.

Although no further action was taken in the meeting, commissioners discussed attending the County Judges and Commissioners Regional Meeting in Amarillo, an October trip to the Yellow House Equipment plant and a public hearing on the State Strategic Economic Policy Plan on Sept. 20 in Amarillo.

Bivins offers six steps against crime

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Six steps towards solving Texas' criminal justice problems were offered this week when Teel Bivins, Republican state senatorial candidate, released his position paper on crime in news conferences throughout the 31st District.

If elected, Bivins said he plans to co-sponsor, with a veteran legislator, a criminal justice bill implementing his ideas.

"I don't have the temerity to believe I can go down there as a freshman legislator and jerk a knot in their tail," Bivins said, adding that whoever is elected to the senate seat for the 31st District will be a first-term legislator. For this reason, Bivins said he hopes to put the added weight of a veteran senator, such as Sen. Buster Brown of Houston, behind his proposed legislation.

"I am hopeful we can win the war on crime in our state if we have the courage and conviction to do what is necessary, particularly on six fronts," Bivins said in his position paper.

He outlines the following solutions:

- End prison overcrowding by expanding capacity and developing low-cost alternatives to incarceration.
- Take procedural handcuffs off the hands of law enforcement authorities.

- Get drugs off the streets, out of schools and out of prisons.

- Expand property seizure provisions in the criminal code to ensure restitution to the victim.

- Make punishment for criminal activity a certainty.

- Realize the long-term solution is keeping children in school.

Violent crime in Texas has risen 15 percent state wide, Bivins reported. Admissions to the Texas Department of Corrections (TDC) has increased almost 150 percent, while capacity has increased only 50 percent, he said.

"Today, a convicted felon can expect to serve 25 percent of his term," the senatorial hopeful said. "Six years ago, that was 50 percent. Our prison system has become a revolving door with this early release program."

Texas has the second highest recidivism rate in the nation — second only to California, he said, showing incarceration is not a deterrent to crime.

Recent legislation allows convicted criminals to be released on parole after completing three months of a two-year sentence.

TDC admissions have increased from 14,176 in 1980 to 35,134 today, he said, a 148 percent increase. Although 10,000 new beds were planned, Bivins said, the net increase will be 4,600 because of a State Supreme Court depopulation decision. At the current rate, he said, the TDC will only be able to handle the anticipated prison population growth through 1990.

Bivins proposes that the state continue to expand capacity at the TDC, understanding that not every criminal can be rehabilitated.

"It is a fact that many incorrigible, cocky, violent 20-year-old criminals, if nothing else, mellow with age," he said. "Texas must have the capacity to house the criminals who can't be rehabilitated."

He also suggested four low-cost alternatives to imprisoning non-violent offenders: intensive probation supervision, electronic surveillance, deferred adjudication and a "Marine-style boot camp" shock probation for young first-offenders.

"Another possibility, he said, is mandatory "flat time" for repeat sex and drug offenders and career criminals with no parole for third offenders convicted of violent crimes.

Putting these proposals into effect does not come cheaply, Bivins acknowledged.

"I think the voters showed in the last election that they were willing to borrow money to take care of this problem," he said, adding that the state would probably need to look at long-term debt financing. "But also we need to go back and focus on state spending," he said. "We have more state employees per 10,000 population than any other industrial state."

Police are hampered by the liberal leaning of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure which is weighted heavily in favor of the accused, Bivins said. "As a senator, I would fight to change that," he said.

mical plant, based on its value, comprise a large part of the Gray County and Pampa Independent School District's tax base.

Board members accepted bids from Fatheree and Fraser Insurance agencies to replace the appraisal district's policy which ends Oct. 10. Fraser submitted a bid of $3,602 and Fatheree a bid of $4,009.

Bagley reported a general increase in liability rates reflected by a premium change in the Fraser bid from $325 per year to $529. The Fatheree bid did not break down the premium charges, he said.

He recommended the board accept the bid from Fraser Insurance because the bid provided more coverage at a better price. Previous experience with Fraser, who carried the 1988 policy, he said, showed they handled claims quickly and efficiently.

A hired auto clause for $32 was not necessary, however, Bagley said, and he suggested that be dropped from the policy.

Contents of the building had been increased from $100,000 to $200,000, the chief appraiser added. A recent inventory showed contents of the appraisal district offices were valued at $161,500, at 80 percent of replacement cost.

Board members accepted Bagley's recommendation and accepted the Fraser Insurance Company bid with the stipulation that the hired auto coverage be dropped.

 Bagley presented a proposed 1988 budget amendment showing a reduction of $22,453 in the budget. He asked that the board not take action on the amendments until November or December.

"I think we can do better," he said. "And that's why I prefer not to take action at this time. November or December would be the best time." He said any unspent funds would have to be credited or returned to the taxing entities unless they are contained in a reserve or depreciation account.

In his report to the board, Bagley said the appraisal district's offices needed to be repaired and remodeled. Structural problems in the building needed to be taken care of, including some leveling, he said. A ramp for the handicapped and ceiling repairs have been budgeted for 1989.

Some bricks needed to be replaced and the parking lot needed to be paved, Bagley said, adding that he would like to remodel a storage closet into an office. "My intention is to do as much of that as possible," Bagley said. "I'm willing to donate my labor and I have another sucker who will help. I think that any of the staff who works on it should be paid," he added.

"We need to spend more time on this to make sure whatever we do is cost effective for the future," he said.

"We have the (tax) statements printed and delivered to all the entities we do not collect for,"

Bagley reported, adding three computer tapes have been sent to the county so the county tax statements can be prepared.

"We've not been able to mail the statements for the city and school because the city hasn't set its tax rate yet," he said. "It will probably be after the first of October before they are mailed. We're standing in good stead, just not getting them mailed as early as we would have liked to."

Bagley and Judy Morris, assistant appraiser, are to attend a meeting of the Texas Association of Appraising Officers in El Paso, Sept. 25 through 27, he said. "We need to participate heavily in this," he said. "This is the year for the Select Committee on Tax Equity."

Bagley told board members the appraisal district is looking at buying a small printer to print out receipts for those who are paying delinquent taxes on a partial budget plan. He estimates cost of the printer will be $2,000 or less.

An oil and gas course taught by Sloan was well attended by representatives from throughout the Panhandle, in addition to four members of the appraisal district office. A course on basics of surveying, taught by Lynn Bezner, is scheduled for the future, he said.

The appraisal district is exchanging appraisal information with the city of Pampa, Bagley said. "The city has a large need for all this," he said. The computer tapes, exchanged four times a year, contain all public information, he said.

PPD gets good marks from team

By BEAR MILLS Staff Writer

Pampa police are briefing a sign of relief today after getting good marks from the national assessment team that inspected the department this week.

The inspection by three chiefs of police from departments around the nation was the last phase prior to national accreditation. If accredited, the PPD would become only the sixth department in Texas to receive the honor.

"Overall, we have a healthy department," said Robert Eberz, chief of police. "We are more than ready for accreditation in November. (The assessment team) inspected 908 standards and of those they only found two that they could call non-compliance."

Eberz said both areas dealt with the deadly force policy, which police already had in place.

"Our policy was fine. It exceeded national standards. The problem was with the routing of reports. They had stopped with me."

"That's not going to be sufficient. We'll need to have someone outside the force look at each incident. (Assistant District Attorney) Harold Comer has consented to do that," Eberz said.

He also said the department had to make some "cosmetic changes" in some policies. "The rule is that we can't create policy while they are here, but you can fix something," Eberz said.

He complimented members of the community and the Police Department for their cooperation in the accreditation process.

"I was very pleased. All these citizens came out and said we were doing a good job. That's a real shot in the arm."
 "Our officers were ready in every way. We have a damn good police force," Eberz said.

The PPD will be informed in November, by a 21-member board in Fairfax, Va., if it has received the accredited status.

Victim claims he's harassed

A man shot Sunday in an apparent domestic quarrel at 816 N. Wells reported he has received harassing telephone calls and threats while still recovering at Coronado Hospital.

Randall Lee Williams, 32, of 1424 N. Hamilton, was shot in the right side of the abdomen with a .38 caliber bullet from a .357 Dan Wessen pistol at about 6:13 p.m. Sunday. He was taken to Coronado Hospital Emergency Room by a private car and later underwent surgery for the gunshot wound.

Lecia Kay Williams, 29, of 816 N. Wells was arrested by Pampa police Tuesday on charges of aggravated assault stemming from the incident. She was later released on a $5,000 bond.

 Williams told police the calls began Thursday. Police Lt. Jess Wallace said someone was calling Williams and telling him they were "going to finish the job." Police say they are continuing to investigate the harassment report.

Harassing telephone calls are a class B misdemeanor which could result in 180 days in jail and a $1,000 fine, police said.

Bivins

criminals to go free, while ignoring the rights of victims, he said.
 "There's the scum who killed a female mail carrier, and led police to the body, who was released and walks a free man today because his oral confession could not be used in court," Bivins said, adding that Texas is the only state that does not allow oral confessions to be used as evidence.

An expansion of the property seizure provisions in the criminal code to include crimes other than drug-related ones could provide funds for victim restitution, he said.

"I'd like to see some criminal's house sold and the money given to the victim," he said.

"Crime pays in Texas today, too well and too easily," he said in the paper. "Or more accurately, getting caught doesn't cost that much. Not in time. Not in lost freedom. Not in money."

TDC's early release program, often of violent criminals, he said, only leads to more crime. "We can't expect that these dangerous people, after serving only a few months in the TDC, will be reformed, reprogrammed or rehabilitated," he said.

Bivins also advocates mandatory drug testing in state prisons with zero tolerance of drugs inside prison walls. Mandatory drug testing and drug rehabilitation should be a condition of parole, he said.

Parolees who score beneath a certain literacy level should also be required to take continuing education classes as a condition of release or parole.

And, finally, Bivins said solutions to Texas criminal justice crisis begin at home "in changing societal attitudes," particularly towards drugs. "Drug problems are inexorably entwined with crime," he said. Eighty-three percent of offenders admitted to TDC have been involved in drugs, he said.

"As a businessman, I'm not ignorant of the fact that it costs $3,600 a year to educate a student compared to $14,000 a year to keep a maximum security prisoner behind bars," he said. "As a taxpayer, I know which bill I'd rather pay."

Bivins says efforts should be "re-doubled" to fight drop-out rates by identifying and helping at-risk children. These efforts, he said, will do more to combat crime than any of the short-term measures he proposes.

Realizing that his proposals are not a cure-all for Texas criminal justice problems, Bivins takes the position that, as the Chinese proverb goes, "the journey of a thousand miles begins with the first step."

Sheriff's attorneys rest their case

SHERMAN (AP) — Defense attorneys in the federal drug trafficking trial of suspended Orange County Sheriff James Wade have rested their case after a deputy testified that Wade wanted to do a good job fighting narcotics.

"Sheriff Wade had a great zeal for fighting drugs," said Orange County Sheriff's Deputy Weldon Peveto, the only witness to testify Thursday.

Wade was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of trafficking illegal drugs.

One of Wade's former drug informants, Donnie Flowers, reportedly told FBI agents the sheriff financed and operated a methamphetamine manufacturing and sales scheme in Orange County. He testified he was present during discussions about the sheriff posing as a "dirty cop."

Peveto, under cross-examinations by Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Naman, said he was not aware of Wade informing U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham, the Orange County grand jury or any district judges about the plan.

Peveto also testified that he had no personal knowledge of any records or reports the sheriff might have made of any actions initiated under the "dirty sheriff" plan.

The jury was recessed by U.S.

District Judge Howell Cobb until 9 a.m. Monday but not before Naman told the court that the prosecution will call at least one rebuttal witness before final arguments begin next week.

On Wednesday, a former narcotics officer testified in Wade's trial that he was hired for publicity reasons in January to make Wade's chief deputy, Newton Johnson Jr., "look good" through "major drug busts and seizures" so that Johnson could run as a write-in candidate.

The sheriff and his attorneys claim that Wade only posed as a "dirty cop on the take" to "catch" the drug lords.

Amnesty day nets flares, ammo shells and smoke bombs

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

FORT BLISS (AP) — Business wasn't booming on Ammunition and Explosive Amnesty Day, and that suits officials fine.

Fort Bliss declared the amnesty day Thursday to lure soldiers and civilians into bringing in stray ammunition, no questions asked, so they can clear their homes of dangerous doorstops and potentially murderous mantelpieces.

Soldiers at the fort's ammo supply point showed military ordnance that had been used for those purposes—a practice bomb that had propped open a soldier's door, a Law's rocket that had been set on a mantle.

A sergeant who answered reporters questions, but asked not to be identified because of work he does for federal law-enforcement agencies, said those two pieces weren't found on Fort Bliss.

But he said many other kinds of ammunition and explosives are common because the area around Fort Bliss and White Sands Missile Range used to be a practice range 40 years ago.

The Franklin Mountains, which lie roughly between the fort and downtown El Paso, were used as a backstop—and now housing developments are being built on the mountainside.

"Every once in a while, it seems someone's digging a swimming pool over there or digging a hole for some shrubs and they come upon some of these items," the sergeant said. "If it's a live item, you have to remember that all ammunition is designed to maim and kill. We've picked up everything from practice bombs to 40 mm grenades."

The most common live items found in and around Fort Bliss are practice hand grenades, which hold about 3 ounces of powder and pack enough explosive power to blow off most of one's hand. Anti-tank rockets used in training exercises during World War II and the Korean War are plentiful, too.

All were on display Thursday on two folding tables on the edge of the vast ammunition depot, with its earth-covered ammunition magazines spaced about 100 feet apart for hundreds of yards in each direction.

Flares seemed to be the most popular item brought in on the amnesty day. By midday, people had brought a trip flare, two slap flares, a green-smoke grenade, shells for .45 and 9 mm pistols and .303 Enfield rifles, belted machine gun blanks and an empty, blue-and-red painted 20 mm cannon round.

"We get some pretty bizarre paint schemes when they bring them in," the sergeant said.

It is illegal to possess explosives without a license, and the Army hoped the amnesty day would bring forward lots of dangerous devices, said Fort Bliss spokeswoman Jean Shoffut.

Hurricane Gilbert nearing onslaught with Texas coast areas

BROWNSVILLE (AP)—Hurricane Gilbert, packing its most dangerous winds and heaviest rains at its leading edge, was poised to strike the Texas coast today. Thousands of residents fled their homes and businesses for northern communities or evacuation shelters.

Gilbert, with sustained winds of about 120 mph, was expected to hit the coast after noon today and the highest probability was that would pass near this South Texas city, which was ravaged by Hurricane Beulah in 1967.

At 2 a.m., the eye of the storm was centered about 260 miles southeast of Brownsville with winds of 120 mph.

The storm was moving northwest at 12 mph. The National Weather Service said if Gilbert continued moving in the same direction, landfall would be near here this evening.

Winds as high as 34 mph, accompanied by squalls, began pounding South Texas and Northern Mexico late Thursday as a preview of the fury of Gilbert, which has killed at least 47 people in three island nations.

Park Road 100 at South Padre Island and parts of State Highway 87 in Sabine Pass were under water, Norman Root, spokesman at the Department of Public Safety Emergency Management Center in Austin, said early today.

Local and state officials have been working on emergency plans since Tuesday and Texas Department of Public Safety troops and equipment were in place to help after the storm hits.

"The community has a lot of experience in preparing for storms and we think we've done pretty well in making those preparations," said Brownsville police spokesman Larry Brown.

"We're never as prepared as we would like to be, but we're getting there."

Thousands of residents from Brownsville to Port Arthur boarded up their homes and businesses and headed on a trail to the north or to evacuation centers near their communities.

Traffic from Corpus Christi to San Antonio moved at 30 mph through the night, the DPS' Root said.

Across the border from Brownsville, Matamoros, Mexico, city council president Fernando Montemayor Lozano said thousands of people packed the more than 100 shelters established in schools, churches and public buildings in the city of about 280,000.

South Padre Island, 25 miles northeast of Brownsville, was evacuated Thursday afternoon and late Thursday, Galveston officials called for an evacuation of Galveston island, drawing criticism from some state officials.

"We felt that if the hurricane continued to slow down in its movement that it has the potential of turning more to the east, or northeast, we don't feel this is as accurate. However, my first priority is to the citizens of Galveston," said City Manager Doug Matthews.

But DPS spokesman Ed Laundry questioned Galveston officials' recommendation that the city be evacuated and roadblocks be set up at midnight.

"The problem is, it isn't heading towards Galveston," Laundry said of the hurricane.

Bill Harris, Port Isabel fire marshal and civil defense director, said 25 of the city's 5,000 residents had decided to stay at the coastal community.

"They've been telling them and telling they ought to get out, but they say they're going to stay," Harris said.

Meanwhile, Texas Gov. Bill Clements had dispatched Texas National Guard units Thursday afternoon to Alice, McAllen and Corpus Christi, the first such deployment for the hurricane.

The Guard's mobile communications post moved to Alice from the central command in San Antonio and Guard helicopters were sent to McAllen and Corpus Christi to be available to assist in rescue efforts if necessary, said Clements' spokesman, Jay Rosser.

Lt. Ed Komandosky of the Texas National Guard said 1,000 Guard personnel were on call.

"We may need 1,000. We may finally need 2,000," Komandosky said.

Also, military aircraft from bases along the Gulf of Mexico were flown inland and in Corpus Christi, about 170 miles up the coast from Brownsville, residents seemed more prepared for Gilbert than for previous storms, officials said.

Lt. David McEatheron, chairman of the division of emergency management in a five-county area, near Brownsville said 70 extra troopers would be brought in tonight, if necessary.

The threat of the hurricane forced the rescheduling or cancellation of many high school football games in South Texas and the postponement until Oct. 9 of Saturday night's sold-out Houston performance by Frank Sinatra, Liza Minnelli and Sammy Davis Jr.

Many grocery stores in Corpus Christi, with 250,000 the largest city on the Texas Gulf Coast, had run out of bottled drinking water and some canned food. Plywood was sold out in some places.

Cavazos approaches confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Tech University President Lauro Cavazos is now just one vote away from becoming the nation's top educator, and Sen. Phil Gramm says he expects a unanimous confirmation by the Senate.

"I would be very surprised if anybody voted against Larry," Gramm said Thursday after the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee recommended unanimously that Cavazos be confirmed as the next education secretary.

The 61-year-old son of a South Texas cattleman and a registered Democrat, Cavazos would become the first Hispanic member of a president's cabinet.

He will only serve until the next president takes office in January, but Gramm believes Cavazos would stay on the job if Republican presidential nominee George Bush wins the election.

"He will clearly then have an opportunity to have great impact on every school child in America," said Gramm, R-Texas.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Cavazos apparently offers "a new dedication to excellence in education—and a less confrontational approach to this all-important issue." Kennedy said in a statement. "Dr. Cavazos understands that education is America's best hope for progress and growth, and I look forward to working with him in the remaining months of the administration."

"I would be very surprised if anybody voted against Larry."

Senate staff said a confirmation vote was likely early next week. President Reagan nominated Cavazos, a registered Democrat, to succeed outgoing Education Secretary William Bennett last month.

"It always make me proud when somebody of humble beginnings achieves a position of great national prominence because it proves once again that the American system of opportunity works," Gramm said.

"Larry's dad was a cowboy on the King Ranch, he joined the Army right out of high school and worked his way through college and graduate school to become the nation's top educator," he added.

Cavazos testified before the Senate committee last week that he would push for increased education spending and focus on meeting the educational needs of all citizens.

"It is vital we have a Department of Education that speaks up for every citizen in the area of education. There is not a problem in the United States that could not be solved with education," Cavazos testified.

Cavazos is the first Hispanic to serve as president of Texas Tech, and is also the school's first graduate to hold the post. He is president of the Texas Tech medical school, although he is not a medical doctor.

Women can apply for Belgium trip

Rotarians of Rotary International District 573 are seeking four outstanding young business and professional women to visit Belgium in April 1989 under the Group Study Exchange Program of the Rotary Foundation, announced Jim Olsen, president of the Pampa Rotary Club.

Group Student Exchange strives to improve international understanding by enabling young people from different countries to learn from each other. The awards involve exchanging teams of business and professional persons between 25 and 35 years of age for a five-week visit.

While in Belgium, the team members will observe their hosts' way of life as well as study the nation's economic, social and cultural characteristics through travel and discussions within participating Rotary districts. Team members will also have the opportunity to meet their professional counterparts.

Women between the ages of 25 to 35 who have been employed on a full-time basis for a period of at least two years in a recognized business or profession are eligible to apply for positions on the exchange team.

Applicants may not be a Rotarian, spouse of a Rotarian, or related by lineal descent to a Rotarian. Further information on the exchange program may be obtained from any Pampa Rotarian or by calling Jim Olsen, president, at 665-2341; Roy C. Sparkman, 669-6637, or Don Nelson at 669-2531 in Pampa. Deadline for submitting applications is Tuesday, Sept. 21.

More than 12,500 persons from some 150 countries have participated in the program since its inception in 1965.

The Rotary Foundation is supported voluntarily by Rotarians and others in 160 countries and geographical regions in which some 22,000 Rotary clubs are located.

The foundation's objective is to further international understanding and friendly relations among peoples of different nations through projects of an educational or charitable nature.

Three more Texas banks are closed

DALLAS (AP) — Two of three closed Texas banks are scheduled to reopen under new names today, but federal regulators have doubts about a third.

The number of failed Texas banks so far this year grew to 96 Thursday, as regulators closed two San Antonio-area banks and one in downtown Fort Worth.

And unlike most recent bank closings, regulators said they hadn't found a buyer for Fort Worth's 4-year-old Capital National Bank. The bank will stay closed if no buyer can be found.

"We are preparing to pay off depositors, if necessary, beginning Saturday," said Buster Chandler, closing supervisor for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The bank had about $26 million on deposit as of Thursday, in 2,045 accounts, Chandler said. Of those accounts, 44 held balances above the $100,000 maximum amount insured by the FDIC.

Meanwhile, the FDIC was named receiver of the Trinity National Bank of San Antonio. FDIC spokesmen said the bank's two offices will reopen today as branches of the First National Bank of Rio Grande City.

Texas Banking Commissioner Kenneth W. Littlefield closed River City Bank of Castle Hills and immediately appointed the FDIC receiver. In turn, the regulating agency said Citizens State Bank of Luling will assume the deposit accounts and loans of River City Bank.

The Luling bank also will reopen the Castle Hills bank.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covering commandment.

Opinion

Maybe this is why they have problems

Well, a recent California State Supreme Court decision barring the use of pandering laws to prosecute a filmmaker who paid a cast to perform sex acts on camera did protect freedom of expression. But the reasoning could lead to perverse results.

Pandering laws forbid the procurement of prostitutes. Even though the film in this case was not considered obscene under current state law, the prosecution tried to establish a new legal precedent. If hiring somebody to perform a sex act on camera could be construed as pandering, it would be easier to put skin-flick producers out of business.

The court ruled that this interpretation could not only put makers of sexy but non-obscene films out of business, it could be used against "films of unquestioned artistic and social merit, as well as films made for medical and educational purposes."

There's a potential problem, however, with taking the court's reasoning to its limit. If paying somebody to engage in sex for a film is an exercise of First Amendment rights to free expression, what about paying somebody to engage in sex in public? Don't bet that, with this precedent, somebody won't do it in the park, find some lawyer to make a case that this is free expression, and find a judge to validate the claim.

Thus, it's not inconceivable that a legal regime could evolve whereby public sex acts would be protected by government, whereas private sex acts could be regulated. Private sex acts should be none of the government's business. But public sex acts which would offend or injure others might legitimately be subject to regulation or even prohibition.

In a sane society, government would limit itself to trying to prevent (or minimize) fraud and clear physical harm done by one citizen to another. Most religions have moral codes that go far beyond this, but government's business is to secure a tolerable civil order, not to enforce morality or secure salvation.

Prostitution may be associated with emotional, psychological or spiritual damage, but such damage is beyond the government's competence or legitimate authority to prevent or punish. Legalizing prostitution would make it easier to deal with other aspects of the trade that many find legitimately objectionable. Street hookers would virtually disappear because most would prefer to ply their trade in less dangerous circumstances. And health authorities (private and public) could get a better handle on the transmission of diseases if prostitution were made legal and open rather than secretive and underground.

The attempt to legislate moral rules that don't involve direct harm is a usurpation of the role of churches and other moral teachers. It hasn't worked because it isn't something government can or should do.

What about the Senate races?

WASHINGTON — In all the talk of the presidential race, little attention has been paid to contests for the U.S. Senate. Depending upon how the political winds blow, November could bring either a debacle for the Republicans, or in their best scenario, a 50-50 split of the 100 seats.

Only if everything comes together just right for the GOP could the party regain the control it lost two years ago. The mathematics are not encouraging.

Fifteen Republican and 18 Democratic seats are at stake. Democrats are as certain as certain can be to hold 10 of them: Texas, West Virginia, Arizona, Massachusetts, Hawaii, Maine, New York, Michigan, Maryland and Tennessee.

The Republicans, by contrast, have only six sure bets: They will re-elect Hatch in Utah, Lugar in Indiana, Danforth in Missouri, Roth in Delaware, Heinz in Pennsylvania and Wallop in Wyoming.

Almost everything else is up for grabs. Nine Senate seats now held by Republicans are in differing degrees of jeopardy. Eight seats held by Democrats are at risk. This is how local editors and Washington observers see the prospects:

On the Republican side: One GOP seat is lost before the campaign begins. Virginia's former Democratic Gov. Charles Robb will win the seat abandoned by Republican Paul Trible. This will be a landslide. In Nevada, Republican Chic Hecht will have to come from behind to defeat popular Gov. Richard Bryan. He probably won't make it.

In Rhode Island, a normally Democratic state, John Chafee will be hard put to retain his seat against Lt. Gov. Richard Licht. In Minnesota, ta, Dave Durenberger will have to overcome a coattail vote for presidential candidate Michael Dukakis in order to defeat Hubert Humphrey III. In Nebraska, by the same token, Republican David Karnes will need all the boost he can get from presidential candidate George Bush in order to get past former Gov. Bob Kerrey.

James J. Kilpatrick

In California, Pete Wilson looks in good shape now, but his race against Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy is tightening. In Connecticut, Lowell Weicker probably will survive, more's the pity.

Republican seats are vacant in Washington and Vermont as well as in Virginia. In Washington, former Republican Sen. Slade Gorton could make a comeback by defeating either Rep. Don Bonker or Rep. Mike Lowry. In Vermont, Rep. Jim Jeffords is a good bet to retain the seat held by retiring Sen. Robert Stafford.

Democrats probably can hold New Mexico and Montana. Six other seats held by Democrats offer a prayer for the GOP. In three states, incumbents have fights on their hands.

In North Dakota, 80-year-old Quentin Burdick, now recovering from a serious illness, faces an aggressive campaign by Frank Strinden of Grand Forks. In New Jersey, Earl Lautenberg is getting unexpectedly tough opposition from Republican Pete Dawkins. In Ohio, Howard Metzenbaum is running into more trouble than he expected from Cleveland's Republican Mayor George Voinovich.

The other three Democratic seats are open, owing to the retirement of Lawton Chiles in Florida, John Stennis in Mississippi and William Proxmire in Wisconsin.

Republicans may have their best chance of picking up a victory in Florida. Their candidate, popular Rep. Connie Mack, will have a reasonably united party behind him. In the recent primary, Democrat Bill Gunter won handily over Rep. Buddy MacKay of Ocala, but the two will have to meet again in a runoff Oct. 4. It has been a rough campaign on the Democratic side. The odds now closely favor Mack.

Mississippi can look forward to an exciting race between Republican Rep. Trent Lott and Democratic Rep. Wayne Dowdy. The candidates offer a clear choice between the conservative Lott, who will do well in the Southern part of the state, and the liberal Dowdy, who will take virtually all of the state's heavy black vote.

Much will depend upon the black turnout. If Jesse Jackson ignites his followers and rolls them out, Dowdy should win, but Dukakis reportedly has asked Jackson not to campaign in Mississippi, lest he alienate white voters, and the race should go down to the wire.

If Republicans could offset losses in Virginia and Nevada with gains in Florida and Mississippi, they would need to hold the remaining 13 Republican seats just to retain the present division of 54-46. To regain a majority would require victories in Wisconsin, Ohio, New Jersey, North Dakota and Montana.

For the GOP it's uphill all the way.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Sept. 16, the 260th day of 1988. There are 106 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Sept. 16, 1810, Mexicans began their revolt against Spanish rule.

On this date:
In 1630, the Massachusetts village of Shawmut changed its name to Boston.

In 1638, the "Sun King" of France, Louis XIV, was born.

In 1887, music teacher Nadia Boulanger was born in Paris.

In 1893, hundreds of thousands of settlers swarmed onto a section of land in Oklahoma known as the "Cherokee Strip."

In 1908, General Motors filed its papers of incorporation.

In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed into law the Selective Training and Service Act, which set up the first peacetime military draft in U.S. history.

In 1974, President Gerald R. Ford announced a conditional amnesty program for Vietnam War deserters and draft-evaders.

In 1976, the Episcopal Church, at its General Convention in Minneapolis, formally approved the ordination of women as priests and bishops.

Ask more questions on crime

In Boston, little Tiffany Moore's mother sent her out of town "to stay with friends down south" through the summer — so she would be safe from rampant street crime in their Roxbury neighborhood.

Tiffany returned home promptly to get caught in the cross-fire between rival drug gangs. She was shot through the head. She is forever 11.

Roxbury and Dorchester parents are pleading with city officials to "declare war." They have names and pictures of the known drug dealers. "Take the gloves off," the people demand, "and give us back our streets!"

And in Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago — and indeed no city has escaped the daily blood bath — innocents are sacrificed as surely as heathens tossed maidens into volcanoes to placate their gods.

The number one concern on Main Street America is crime.

Yet, the politicians are talking about "foreign policy" and "economics" and "ecology" and "the American dream."

In all the campaign rhetoric I have heard only one mention of this paramount concern. In San Diego on Labor Day, candidate George Bush touched on the subject. He said that candidate Dukakis "opposes the death penalty, no matter how brutal the crime."

But, "condemnation" of one another is not enough. Let's hear some tangible recommendations for resolving this escalating nightmare.

The only promise many Americans consider worth voting for is a promise of enforced peace on the home front.

Let the candidates answer these: "What kind of judges would you appoint?"

"What will you do about drugs beyond what's now being done?"

"What will your national administration do to support local lawmen?"

Don't tell us how tough you are going to be with the Iranians; how tough are you going to be with the hoods who are holding hostage our own cities?

You guys are talking about "issues"; I'm talking about a specific life-or-death problem!

President Eisenhower lived to regret his appointment of Earl Warren to the Supreme Court. "The worst single mistake I ever made."

Yet, ever since then our federal government has been defending the rights of wrongdoers at the expense of the rest of us. President Reagan did what he could while he could to restore a semblance of balance to our judiciary but he didn't have the time — nor the Congress — to do enough.

And media colleagues, this you and I can do. Stop spittingballing the candidates and throw some hardball questions: "You guys don't dare venture out without an armed escort; how about us?"

Perhaps industry should take warnings

By ROBERT WALTERS

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (NEA) — Like countless other neighborhood "mom-and-pop" stores throughout California, Sam's Deli & Market offers a limited but eclectic assortment of food, drink and other merchandise.

Beer, wine and soda are popular items, as are cigarettes and candy bars. Hungry visitors to the thoroughly unprepossessing market in this Los Angeles suburb long have been able to order anything from a burrito to a pastrami sandwich.

In recent months, however, the store has changed in a very visible way. Its walls, shelves and counters are festooned with signs containing ominous warnings about the health hazards posed by various items offered for sale.

"Pipe and smoking tobaccos and cigars contain or produce chemicals known to cause cancer and birth defects or other reproductive harm," says one poster. "Drinking alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, during pregnancy can cause birth defects," proclaims another.

The market's owners have posted many more warnings than are necessary, but they are hardly alone in displaying the notices. Supermarkets, liquor stores and other retail outlets across the state now routinely notify their customers that the goods being offered for sale may contain chemicals known to cause cancer, birth defects or other reproductive harm.

That practice was mandated in November 1986, when California's voters approved Proposition 65, a ballot measure that required customers be given "clear and reasonable" notification about the dangers posed by food, alcoholic beverages, bug sprays, gasoline, cleaning fluids and a host of other items.

Passage of Prop 65 is widely attributed to widespread dissatisfaction with the slow pace at which President Reagan's appointees in various federal regulatory agencies have been moving to contain such hazards.

But California Gov. George Deukmejian, a Republican, is equally unenthusiastic about implementing laws that might discomfit the business community.

As a result, by the time the public-warning provision of Prop 65 went into effect in late February of this year, Deukmejian appointees had assessed risk levels for fewer than 30 of the hundreds of potentially hazardous chemicals.

The governor's foot-dragging and the problems inherent in coping with a complex new statute have inspired civil suits from environmentalists and spawned confusion and uncertainty among manufacturers, retailers and consumers.

Various industries now seek to protect themselves by providing vague disclaimers about their products in newspaper advertisements. One recent ad was sponsored by more than 100 metal-plating, anodizing, finishing and etching firms, while another was financed by 25 oil companies.

Those ads and the ubiquitous store signs provide telephone numbers for customer questions, but inquiries invariably are met with traditional assurances that the products will cause no harm if used as intended.

One major telephone bank is operated by the Ingredient Communication Council Inc. from its Cincinnati headquarters. It warns that chewing tobacco can be harmful to the user's health but offers no information whatever about cigarettes because their producers have not signed up with ICC.

Notwithstanding the resistance to the new law from many manufacturers and politicians, there is evidence that the country's most populous state may again be in the forefront of a national trend.

George Keller, chairman of the San Francisco-based Chevron Corp., a major oil company, suggests that in the post-Prop 65 era industry should take the initiative in controlling toxics rather than waiting for either the state or federal governments to act.

Measures similar to Prop 65 were introduced last year in almost half of the country's state legislatures. Although none was enacted, the issue is not likely to fade anytime soon.

Bush, Dukakis lock horns over Democrat's budget policies

By DONNA CASSATA
Associated Press Writer

Republican George Bush charged that rival Michael Dukakis is leading Massachusetts into a "budgetary Three Mile Island." The Democratic nominee, initially reluctant to join the rhetorical fray, defended his state's economy as sound.

The vice president, wrapping up a two-day campaign swing in California Thursday, also expressed his hope that former White House aide Oliver North will be exonerated on all federal charges stemming from his role in the Iran-Contra affair.

Bush refused to rule out a presidential pardon if North, who is awaiting trial, is found guilty.

On economics, the Republican presidential nominee lashed out at his opponent, saying the Democratic governor's policies have hurt Massachusetts and will harm the nation.

Questioned about Bush's charges, a reticent Dukakis told reporters joining him on a tour of fire-ravaged Yellowstone National Park that he would reserve comment until "sometime next week."

But later, the Democratic nominee chose to respond to the attacks, and cited his state's low unemployment rate — 3 percent — and 10 straight balanced budgets.

Upon arriving in Los Angeles, Dukakis again, without prompting, told reporters, "What Mr. Bush has given us is a mountain of debt, record deficits, a record trade deficit and an economic future that does not bode well for the American people."

Dukakis was campaigning in Southern California today, stressing the fight against drugs and crime. The Democratic nominee also was expected to announce plans to expand the Drug Enforcement Administration, if elected.

Bush was touring a steel manufacturer in Columbus, Ohio, and talking up patriotism at a flag festival in Findlay.

Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle planned to address a business group in Kansas City, Kan., before traveling on to Nebraska and Iowa. Democratic counterpart Lloyd Bentsen was seeking votes in three Southern cities — Memphis, Tenn.; Greenville, N.C., and Palm Beach, Fla.

Two days before the Summer Olympics, Bush told a business group in San Francisco that Dukakis is the "gold medal winner in the tax-and-spend competition."

The Republican nominee added: "Under my opponent, Massachusetts has lost — lost — 26,000 jobs since 1983, more than any other state in the country."

Federal figures show that Massachusetts has gained more than 230,000 jobs in the past five years, while losing manufacturing jobs. The text of the vice president's speech said "manufacturing jobs," and Bush aides said the campaign stands by that description.

Bush also said that as governor, Dukakis has tried to raise taxes five times, including a $180 million jump in business taxes, sales taxes and personal income taxes this past summer.

"The fact is the so-called Massachusetts miracle is really the Massachusetts mirage. And right now that state is approaching a fiscal fiasco that might best be described as a budgetary Three Mile Island ... facing a budgetary meltdown," the vice president said.

In Los Angeles, Dukakis answered the charge, saying, "Anybody who'd compare my state's economy with Three Mile Island must be suffering from a meltdown."

One debate the Democratic nominee refused to get involved in was the argument over whether the forest fires that have decimated the West should have been allowed to burn unchecked.

"This isn't the time to discuss what might have been or should be," Dukakis said as he toured the park.

U.S. cutting staffs in Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Americans in Panama facing both real and potential problems, the United States has decided to reduce its diplomat presence in the troubled country but will keep the American military command at full strength, State Department officials said.

The decision was taken at the advice of Ambassador Arthur Davis and could lead to the closing or the severe reduction of regional operations of the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Justice Department and the U.S. Customs Service, three officials told The Associated Press on Thursday.

They stressed there would be no cutbacks in the U.S. Southern Command or in the Panama Canal Commission, although other administration sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said some of the extra security personnel sent to Panama last spring would be withdrawn gradually.

The extent of the diplomatic cutback was not immediately determined, but one of the officials said up to 160 jobs could be affected.

"We're doing it because the lessons of history have taught us that when we are in a potentially confrontational situation, it makes sense to reduce potential vulnerability," one of the officials said.

After all, he said, the United States was trying to get rid of the head of Panama's armed forces, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega. Noriega, the effective leader of Panama, has been indicted on drug trafficking charges by federal grand juries in Florida. He has successfully countered all U.S. efforts to drive him out.

These included cancellation of all normal dealings with the country.

The prohibition is so extensive American diplomats are even forbidden to apply for a renewal of their automobile license plates.

The three State Department officials, who also spoke only on condition of anonymity, said they were unaware of any threats against U.S. Embassy workers or their families. However, harassment of American servicemen was reported last month to be on the increase.

According to an official of the Southern Command, 240 cases of harassment of U.S. servicemen were reported between February and August.

Despite persistent reports that Noriega was on the ropes, the general has held on while Eric Arturo Delvalle, who had U.S.

backing to succeed Noriega, was ousted in February by the pro-Noriega National Assembly.

Davis' recommendation for a cutback was not the result of any "urgent development," but followed two to three months' consideration, a U.S. official said.

"A lot of the people simply had become non-functional, they had nothing to do because of the situation, and there was no point in keeping them there," he said.

Since last March, the Reagan administration has tried to force Noriega to yield power by imposing a series of economic sanctions.

In addition, the administration attempted to negotiate Noriega's departure from Panama, but the talks ended in failure last May and have not been resumed.

Among other actions, the United States has frozen Panamanian assets in this country and has declined to pay Panama for the services it provides in connection with operations of the Panama Canal.

The sources declined to say exactly how many of the extra 2,200 security personnel sent to Panama since last spring would be included in the first withdrawal.

One source indicated the number would be fewer than 500, while another official said about 200 would be involved.

The U.S. Southern Command has about 10,000 American servicemen stationed in Panama permanently and a like number of military dependents.

Four girls who died in KKK church bombing memorialized

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Twenty-five years ago, a Sunday school lesson about forgiveness ended with the blast of a bomb planted by a Ku Klux Klansman, and four black girls lay dead.

Since then, Birmingham has learned much about forgiveness.

The bombing at the 16th Street Baptist Church sparked outrage that helped fuel the 1960s civil rights movement, which eventually eased the bitter racial divisions in this city, speakers noted at a memorial service on the anniversary Thursday night.

"There has been a turnabout in human relations in this city, which now has an improved image," the Rev. John H. Cross told a racially mixed congregation of 1,400 people gathered to remember Cynthia Wesley, Addie Mae Collins and Carol Robertson, all 14, and Denise McNair, 11.

"Twenty-five years ago the only blacks at City Hall were elevator operators and janitors. Now we have Richard Arrington as mayor," Cross said.

Cross was the church's pastor on Sept. 15, 1963, when the bomb, planted beneath basement steps, exploded after a Sunday school lesson on the theme of a love that forgives.

The girls were killed as they were preparing to take part in a youth day program. Twenty-two other people were injured.

In a service that featured freedom songs of the civil rights movement, Arrington, who is in his third four-year term, said "the torch that we raise tonight is raised by two hands — one black and one white."

Cross told the audience that he has never preached the sermon he prepared for the morning of the bombing, and doesn't intend to.

He said he had planned to tell young people at the church to "anchor their lives to the solid Rock — Jesus Christ — the same yesterday, today and forever."

A plaque in the church contains pictures of the four girls with the inscription: "May men learn to replace bitterness and violence with love and understanding."

All lower-level windows of the church now are covered with steel mesh, a sharp contrast to 1963, when glass shards from the windows covered virtually every square foot on the side of the building where the bomb exploded.

Prior to the memorial service, black and white church congregations served food to people gathered in Kelly Ingram Park, a rallying spot for civil rights marches led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in the early 1960s.

All visible racial barriers are gone in Birmingham, which has six blacks and three whites on its City Council.

The current pastor of the church, the Rev. James E. Young, said Birmingham "has provided spiritual and moral leadership to the world for the past quarter century."

A retired automobile mechanic and Ku Klux Klansman, Robert Edward Chambliss, was convicted in 1977 of murdering Miss McNair. He died in prison after eight years.

Miss McNair's father, Chris McNair, a former state legislator and now a Jefferson County commissioner, said he still is not satisfied. Although segregation in politics and business has ended, it bothers him that most churches still are either white or black.

"Mankind needs the church or the synagogue," he said. "This is part of man's inner being. If they can't come together at that time, then how are they going to come together in genuineness at any other occasion? I have to doubt it."

Dissident says Soviets should cut the military service time

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union should cut mandatory military service in half because it is not threatened with attack, leading dissident Andrei D. Sakharov said in an interview published Thursday.

The weekly political magazine New Times quoted the 67-year-old Nobel Peace Prize laureate and nuclear physicist as saying the Kremlin should cut service time, now two years, to reduce the size of the military and use the resources elsewhere.

"At present, the Soviet Union is not threatened by any aggression," he said. "There are no Hitlerites now."

In addition to Nazi Germany's aggression under dictator Adolf Hitler, World War II was brought on by Soviet dictator Josef Stalin's "mistakes and crimes" which frightened the West, he said.

But he said the Soviet Union — and the West's attitude toward it — have changed.
"There is really not a single government which would threaten the USSR with attack. There isn't! Even with a halving of Soviet armed forces this is absolutely excluded," Sakharov told New Times.
A reduction of the Soviet armed forces would help improve conditions for scaling back conventional weapons in Europe and the entire world, he said. A force reduction also would allow the Soviet Union to transfer resources and manpower now used for the military to civilian uses, he said.

Since the United States and Soviet Union agreed in December to eliminate their arsenals of medium-range nuclear weapons, many Western politicians have called on the Soviet Union to cut back conventional arsenals in which they claim the Kremlin has an advantage.
New Times said it interviewed Sakharov while he was in the Black Sea resort of Dagomys at an international conference of scientists this month.

Sakharov, who was virtually blacklisted before Mikhail S. Gorbachev became Soviet Communist Party general secretary, has been quoted with increasing frequency in the Soviet press in the past six months.

Last December, the weekly Moscow News published a letter from Sakharov proposing that the Kremlin change its position on how to cut the superpowers' long-range nuclear arsenals.

Northern coasts of Mexico brace for killer hurricane

By CAM ROSSIE
Associated Press Writer

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Thousands of people crowded into shelters in this northeastern city on the U.S. border as Hurricane Gilbert raced across the Gulf of Mexico after leaving at least six dead in the Yucatan Peninsula.

Fernando Montemayor Lozano, president of the Matamoros City Council, said thousands of people from nearby fishing villages and towns were packing into more than 100 shelters set up at schools, churches and public buildings in the city's central area.

He said the shelters were being stocked with blankets, food and water for up to 70,000 people as Gilbert churned towards Matamoros packing 120 mph winds.

When the 450-mile-wide hurricane slammed into the Caribbean resort of Cancun Wednesday, winds topped 160 mph.

As shelters began filling up in Matamoros, one woman said she had nowhere else to turn.

"Our house is very old, and it isn't any good. It could fall on top of us," said Guadalupe Flores Martinez, 56, who stood with her family in the gusting wind outside a shelter at a local grade school.

A steady stream of traffic jammed the highway leading inland as the hurricane threatened to strike the Gulf coast just 20 miles from Matamoros, a city of about 280,000 people south of Brownsville, Texas.

The National Weather Service in Miami said if Gilbert continued in the same direction, it would strike the coast near the Texas-Mexico border sometime this evening.

Residents carrying hastily packed bags fled the lowlands and poorer sections of eastern Matamoros. Others boarded windows or waited in long lines for gasoline.

Most restaurants and businesses, including portions of some hotels, closed by early afternoon Thursday as winds, accompanied by some rains, gusted to 35 miles an hour.

Soldiers from the 8th Military Zone helped with evacuations, while brigades of health department workers patrolled the city as the government's emergency preparedness plan went into effect.

Luis Montiel, spokesman for the Tamaulipas state government, said that in the oil port of Tampico, with a population of about 700,000, people were evacuated from low-lying marshy areas to higher ground.

U.S. and Mexican officials opened floodgates in dams on the Rio Grande to prevent flash floods downriver once the storm hit.

The hurricane left much of the Yucatan without communication, electricity or drinking water after it hit Wednesday. Most roads were blocked and supplies were running low. Airports in Cancun, Cozumel and Chetumal were opened only to aircraft with emergency supplies, while commercial flights remained suspended.

Campeche's governor declared the state a disaster area Thursday afternoon and appealed for relief supplies.

In Campeche, the state capital on the peninsula's west coast, two babies drowned as residents of a poor, low-lying neighborhood tried to flee, said Omar Cantu, editor of the Novedades de Campeche.

Four people died when a wall collapsed on them in the town of Dzidzantun north of Merida, Yucatan Gov. Victor Manzanillo Shaffer told reporters.

Thousands of tourists in Yucatan resort areas were stranded, many surviving on cookies and milk handed out in shelters. Local officials said 11,000 tourists and residents were evacuated from Cancun, and the Mexican navy began evacuating tourists from the resort island of Cozumel.

A navy spokesman in Mexico City said he had no word on the plight of an estimated 15,000 people stranded in Isla Mujeres. Three ferries linking the island with the mainland were lost in the storm.

Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid was to inspect affected areas of the peninsula today.

The government oil monopoly Pemex suspended foreign exports of crude oil, secured tankers and capped wells on platforms along the western Gulf coast. Pemex planned to resume production of crude and natural gas in Campeche Sound today, said spokeswoman Daria Chava.

Many residents were busy covering the windows of their homes and automobiles into the night, but one man said he'd rather have left the city.

"It would be better to go, but you've got to have money for that," said Horacio Castro, a 33-year-old private chauffeur, as he unloaded planks of wood from his station wagon.

Castro said he had survived other hurricanes that struck the Gulf coast near Matamoros. But he said, "If it comes, this one will be the worst."

Some grocery stores stayed open as residents formed long lines to buy basics like milk, bread, flour and bottled water.

Armando Espinola Bernal, commander of the Matamoros-based Naval Sector that covers all of northern Tamaulipas state, said authorities expected to evacuate 60,000 people from the sparsely populated beaches and other areas.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

THAT'S RIGHT, we said opportunity keeps knocking. It does so because there is no limit to God's love for man. Our Creator is not One who wound up this old world and then left it and its inhabitants abandoned like a forgotten toy. He is the One who cares most of all about us. He is the One who will leave the ninety-nine sheep in the fold and come searching for the one that is lost. As a poet once put it, "He pursues us down the days and down the years." He wants us for Himself because He loves us and He will never give up the pursuit. Most wonderful of all, His chase is that we may have life and have it more abundantly. Only when we stop running away and let Him into our lives can they be fulfilled. Go to Church Sunday and meet with God who has always loved you.

Is something wrong with your life—an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure.
Through the church God has commended the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redeeming love. Without a church relation no one is securely related to God.
Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

Baptists to hold Sunday School study sessions

A Texas Baptist Regional Sunday School Convention will be conducted Tuesday, Sept. 20, at Coulter Road Baptist Church in Amarillo.

The Amarillo convention is one of 27 being conducted across the state by the Sunday School Division of the Baptist General Convention of Texas to help strengthen Sunday School work in local churches.

"The Year of the Sunday School" is the convention theme which will interpret goals for a special year of emphasis on the basics that make Sunday School a strong outreach and evangelistic arm of the church.

Areas focused on as part of the emphasis include increasing enrollment, starting or strengthening weekly workers' meetings, conducting Sunday School preparation week and training workers in evangelism.

Other areas are leading people to receive Sunday School leadership diplomas, emphasizing outreach activities, creating new units, conducting Vacation Bible School, starting a new Sunday School, and beginning or conducting outreach Bible studies.

Featured speaker for the Amarillo convention is James Hancock, pastor of First Baptist Church at Canyon.

Age-group, general officers and a variety of special-interest conferences will be offered during the convention. The Amarillo convention also features conferences for persons who attend Hispanic congregations.

Convention sessions will be held from 2 to 4:45 p.m. and 6:45 to 9:15 p.m. There is no registration fee, and pre-registration is not required.

Episcopals asked to join in keeping traditional beliefs

ATLANTA, Ga. — Concerned laity and clergy of the Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta, Ga., in conjunction with the Atlanta Chapter of ECM, are sponsoring a Sept. 23-24 conference to address issues facing traditional Episcopals today.

The conference will be held at St. John's Church in College Park, Ga.

Bishops, priests and lay people throughout the world are now issuing a "Declaration of Unity, Witness and Mission" in a continuing effort to defend traditional expressions of belief and worship of the One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Faith, conference organizers say.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be Father Herbert Ward, director of St. Jude's Ranch, Boulder City, Nev.

Also speaking will be the Rt. Rev. Clarence Pope, bishop of Fort Worth and vice president of EMC; Mrs. Karen Saddock from the diocese of Newark, N.J., a wife, mother and writer with a master of divinity from General Theological Seminary; and Rev. William Oddie of Oxford, England, priest, lecturer, author and commentator.

The decision to hold a conference is the result of a meeting in Atlanta of lay people and clergy with deep abiding faith in and love for the age-old traditions of the Episcopal Church, organizers say.

Registration information may be obtained by contacting The Church of Our Saviour in Atlanta at 1-404-872-4169.

He has spoken at numerous FGBMFI meetings and at Assemblies of God youth camps and youth conventions in Texas.

Maury and Gail Davis

Arizona, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Mississippi.

Davis has ministered on television through the James Robison daily telecast, the Trinity Broadcasting Network Praise The Lord in Los Angeles, and Sunday Night Live with Pastor J. Don George in Dallas.

Davis was arrested in January 1975 for the crime of first degree murder. He committed his life to Jesus Christ during his incarceration in the Dallas County Jail.

Following his trial and conviction, he served 8 1/2 years in the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville.

During his confinement in prison, Davis led a spiritual revival among the other prisoners and became a spiritual leader in the prison chapel ministry.

Since his release in August 1983, he has served on the pastoral staff of Calvary Temple in Irving with Senior Pastor J. Don George. As youth pastor, he ministers to hundreds of teenagers throughout the Dallas/Fort Worth metropolplex each week.

In May 1985 he married Gail Daniels of El Dorado, Ark. She is a soloist and serves as church pianist at Calvary Temple. They are the parents of triplets: Danielle, Gabrielle and Galen Maurice.

Rev. Gene Allen, pastor, invites the public to attend the special meetings to hear Davis and his testimony of the power of Christ.

Parents of younger children are also invited to bring the kids to participate in the Children's Crusade.

Bluegrass musicians share gospel in song

By ANTHONY JONES
Henderson Daily News

HENDERSON, Texas (AP) — Gather at the river, children, and be delivered by the roaring angelic sounds of a homegrown acoustic bluegrass band.

That's the intention of the three members making up the Blue Grass Deliverance band, Paul Thompson, his wife, Sally, and Earl Wood.

One has only to hear Thompson's voice to know he is the band's bassist, but he also plays rhythm and lead guitar in the trio. He says Sally sings soprano and plays an electric bass because "it's so much easier to move around than a bass fiddle," and Earl plays "all kinds of things," including the banjo, fiddle, mandolin, piano and steel guitar.

"We're solid bluegrass," Thompson added. "We get down on the bottom roots."

"We are trying to revive and bring back the old memories of the old-time gospel," Thompson said as he sang the familiar opening bars, "Shall we gather at the river..."

The Blue Grass Deliverance band has its musical roots firmly planted in those old-time gospel memories. They are the memories of bluegrass greats, such as the Old Chuck Wagon Gang, Stamps Quartet and Mother Mabell Carter and family.

Banjo player Wood performed with the Rolling Hills and he recalls the smooth voice of Jim Reeves as "the best I can remember," when he was at Sandy Land Blue Grass Festival between Mount Enterprise and Nacogdoches.

Thompson also knew Reeves, but he never had the opportunity to be a member of the country musician's band. However, Thompson has performed with Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and Mo Bandy.

He says his wife, Sally, once sang back-up vocals for Jimmy Davis and the Wills Brothers.

With a good deal of variety in their music, the Blue Grass Deliverance band can zip through the scales from the key of G all the way through the keys of D and E. "We plop around a lot," Thompson said.

Chet Atkins was a big influence on Thompson's guitar style and he explained he uses a thumbpick, a tool usually the choice of the banjo player.

He coils with his four fingers and the guitarist also punches his strings which created the folksy-blues sound from the Mississippi Delta region.

And through their wide-range of selections and musical backgrounds, the band performs fast and slow melodies, "up-tempo, down-tempo and real life gospel," Thompson said.

"I'm pretty good because I've been at it 30 years," he added. "And like the preacher said Sunday night, 'If they don't like this, man, they can go home.' He said, 'I love it.'"

"We were honking down," Thompson said, "and the banjo was punching."

The band sings in harmonies and each member can jump from one vocal to another. Thompson goes from bass to tenor and Wood goes from tenor to bass. "And Sally sounds good all the time," Thompson said.

"It's kind of a Pentecost, Baptist, good old home-fashioned sound," he said. "You can determine your own denomination or beliefs. But we sing nothing but gospel."

"Everything we do on stage is gospel," Thompson added. "And we testify because we know our Lord Jesus as our Savior."

All three band members give their own testimony to the congregations that have come to hear their performance.

"My wife gives her testimony," Thompson said. "And Earl, the banjo picker, gives his testimony. Then I give mine."

"I tell about playing old night clubs for 45 years," he added. "And I found Jesus," Thompson said.

First Church of Nazarene to be hosting revival time

The First Church of the Nazarene, located at Buckler and West streets, will be hosting revival time with Rev. Ottis E. Smith from Pennsylvania this coming Tuesday through Sunday.

Weeknight services will begin at 7 p.m., concluding with Sunday services at 10:40 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Rev. Smith is serving in full-time evangelism with the Church of the Nazarene.

After several years of effective ministry in both the pastorate and evangelism, Smith has specialized in the field of evangelism for nearly two decades.

He brings to his ministry a broad experience, together with a dynamic personality and a deeply consecrated talent as a singer and musician, said Pastor A.W. Myers.

Pastor Myers and the church constituency urge the public to attend these special revival services next week.

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church should admit women to ordination as priests, says a Catholic scholar and an authority on liturgy.

Rev. Godfrey Diekmann, 80, a Benedictine who helped draft the worship reforms of the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council, says the failure of the church to ordain women was based on custom, not tradition.

Referring to arguments that priests must "image" a male Christ, he told a symposium: "Our consistent and really authentic tradition about imaging Christ finds that image first of all, not in bodily similarity, but in spiritual affinity."

Diekmann, who teaches patristics (writings of the early church fathers) at St. John's University, cited past ordination of women as deaconesses to perform liturgical functions, and said:

"Pastoral experience, in fact desperate liturgical needs, similarly cry out for women priests today."

NEW YORK (AP) — Catholic Relief Services has set up a $250,000 program to resettle 2,300 Salvadoran refugees, most of them living in a displacement camp in Honduras for more than eight years.

The program, in cooperation with Lutheran churches in El Salvador, will supply housing, food and tools for resettlement in their home areas.

Candlelighters give aid to parents of children with cancer

By KELLY VARNER EBEL
Guest Writer

"Please, God, not now. Just give me the summer with him!"

These thoughts went through Marie Shockey's mind as she drove home from the doctor's office. Glancing briefly at the small child tucked safely into his seatbelt, she wondered if he could comprehend the turn his life was taking.

The waiting room had been pleasant and comfortable. The doctor walked in, took Marie aside and carefully told her that her son had two to three months to live.

For Marie, now president of the Candlelighters group in Colorado Springs, Colo., life had seemed to lose its meaning. She had nowhere to run and nobody to run to.

Caleb, age 3 at the time, was diagnosed with aplastic anemia, a life-threatening disease that affects the immune system. Instead of the body fighting off the bad cells, it destroys the good ones.

Nolan—Caleb's father—and Marie felt isolated and alone for the first 10 months of their son's illness. Nobody really understood what they were going through. Because of that experience, they joined the Candlelighters to help other parents facing this challenge.

"We don't want others to go through what we did," Marie stresses. "Family members and friends tried to help, but really couldn't understand what was happening to us. It took others who had been through it to comprehend our grief, and they were the biggest help."

The Candlelighters share the shock of diagnosis, answers to questions and the anxiety of waiting. They want to help families cope with grief, despair and even joy.

These parents care in the way only parents of other child cancer patients can, believing "it is better to light one candle than to curse the darkness."

They are an international network of groups of parents of children with cancer or other blood-related diseases that are life threatening. Candle-lighters is a non-profit organization whose free services and publications are supported by tax-exempt donations and the American Cancer Society Inc.

The network includes over 250 parent groups and contacts throughout the world.

Not only is membership open to parents, but to anyone interested in the control and cure of childhood cancer and in helping families cope with this experience.

Nolan and Marie weren't sure what to expect when they attended their first meeting but soon found it a welcome experience.

"When you're at a meeting, you're allowed to feel what you want to feel. If you want to cry or laugh or just sit there quietly, it's your choice. There's absolutely no pressure," explains Marie.

Some groups have youth auxiliaries for teen-age cancer patients and teen-age siblings of children with cancer.

Other forms of support include crisis phone lines, buddy systems, parent-to-parent contacts, professional counseling, self-help groups or social functions where families meet and relax in supportive settings.

Also offered is babysitting or transportation, sponsored blood banks, in-hospital visitors and even residential aid for families of children away from home on extended care.

The organization provides information services as well, such as guest speakers and panels on childhood cancer, newsletters and handbooks of local resources and regional conferences. Members may also serve on community boards such as American Cancer Society advisory committees.

The foundation has grown over the past 18 years to monstrous proportions, and it all started with one woman and her doctor.

Back in 1970, in the basement of Children's Hospital in Washington D.C., small informal meetings began to take place because one woman, Grace Powers Monaco, wanted a change.

In 1968, her 20-month-old daughter, Kathleen Rea, was diagnosed as having leukemia, and Grace wanted to actively participate in Kathleen's care. She wanted the best for her daughter.

Back then, parents were not usually included in on the therapeutic process and were generally told to treat the child normally and not to discuss it.

Sympathizing with Grace's viewpoint was Dr. Sanford Leikin, chief of pediatric hematology-oncology at Children's Hospital. He brought the original group together, which numbered 35 at the time.

For the first time, parents had a means to channel the frustration and tension this experience caused, and no longer felt like helpless bystanders.

Marie and Nolan Shockey felt the impact of the first 10 months of Caleb's illness on their own. They were associated with the group through their doctor, who told them of the meetings.

"It was such a relief to be able to talk with someone who really understands what you're going through," says Marie.

For the next six months of Caleb's illness, they had the support they needed. Support they couldn't get from family and friends.

When Caleb died, Aug. 13, 1987, Nolan and Marie joined the ranks of Candlelighters where they strive to help others cope when coping seems impossible.

They feel this gives meaning to their son's death and are now seeing situations much worse than their own.

Nicole Prindle, 9, was diagnosed with AML (adult leukemia) on April 8 of this year, three weeks after her mother, Esabelle, was diagnosed with acute leukemia.

A week later, Marie received a call from another member concerned for the family. Marie contacted the suffering family.

"The first thing I did was ask if there was anything tangible that I could do for them. All they wanted was a turban for the little girl's head, because the treatments had taken her hair," Marie recalls.

Later on, the child's doctor suggested a waterbed for Nicole to ease the bedsores and help with joint and muscle aches due to treatment.

The Candlelighters approached Big Sur

Waterbed in Colorado Springs for a donation. The employees pitched in half of the required expense and the main office in Denver contributed the other half to complete the purchase. All the Candlelighters had to buy were sheets and guardrails.

Unfortunately, Nicole slipped away May 11, and her parents Ed and Esabelle Prindle have asked that all the donations go to the Candlelighters and their continued efforts.

The Candlelighters also associate families with such organizations as Angel Corporate Network and Make A Wish.

Angel Corporate Network is a corporation of private jets that fly VIPs to their destinations and for the return flight offer the empty space to a cancer patient. There is no cost to the patients, and they reach their needed destination for therapy and tests.

Make A Wish gives dying or life-threatening children a chance to live out a dream. Wishes can range from a trip to a stereo, both of which are a preference for most teens. The most popular, all around, is Disneyland.

Requirements are that the child be at least 2 years of age and have a doctor's signature that the child's disease is life-threatening, not necessarily terminal.

Caleb's wish was a trip to Disneyland, which included two days, motel costs, plane fare and spending money. This was such a special event for the entire family because Caleb got to live before he died.

There is happiness, even in the midst of turmoil, and this is what the Candlelighters are all about. They take time to help stricken families, bringing a little cherished light to the surrounding darkness.

If you know of a struggling family, let them know there is help. Get them in contact with a group nearby and continue to offer them support. You never know—someone may need to light your candle someday.

Pampa Area Art League to host drawing workshop

A drawing workshop featuring artist and instructor Ardis Hood will be held Sept. 26-30 in the mezzanine classroom of The Hobby Shop.

Cile Taylor, left, and Jan Pyne show two drawings using the techniques taught by Ardis Hood, who will conduct a drawing workshop Sept. 26-30 in Pampa.

The workshop, "Developing the Creative Side," is designed for beginning students and also for more experienced artists. Pampa Area Art League is sponsoring the workshop. A fee will be charged and will cover all necessary supplies.

Following closely the techniques devised by Dr. Betty Edwards, author of Drawing on the Right Side of the Brain, in her studies of brain activity, the workshop concentrates on developing drawing skills by learning to use the resources of the right side of the brain — the "creative" side.

"Most students in Hood's classes advance in drawing skills by great leaps, instead of the relatively slow progress of more traditional methods," said Jerry Richards of Pampa Area Art League.

Hood has studied the course with a member of Edwards' own staff of art instructors at Cal-State, Long Beach, Calif. Hood is also a professional artist who has worked many years in the field of advertising as an agency art director and as a graphics designer and illustrator.

She has taught drawing, illustration, life drawing and other advertising-related courses at Texas State Technical Institute and is now becoming active in the area of fine art. Her work has appeared in numerous juried shows, including the Rotary Art Show and Sale in Amarillo.

Recently, her large drawings have earned first prize awards at the Best of the Southwest competition.

For more information on the workshop, call Cile Taylor at 669-3201 until 4 p.m., or Jerry Richards at 665-4144 after 6:30 p.m.

Doll house is homemade gift

By BOB SAWYER

It's never the wrong season to begin work on the projects that will make Christmas really special. Too often I start too late...

This year, I've already completed one gift that I know will please the punch out of my youngest daughter.

It's a two-story, country-style doll house with gingerbread trim, window boxes, wrap-around porch, four large rooms and a full attic. The 26 x 19 x 30-inch doll house was made from a single sheet of 1/4-inch plywood and some wood stripping.

Step-by-step plans including material lists, patterns and complete illustrated instructions are available for this project. To order, specify Project Number 0708 and enclose a check or money order for $6.95. Send to: Makin' Things for Christmas, Dept. 79065, P.O. Box 1000, Bixby, Okla. 74008. Add $2.95 for our catalog, which includes four free mini-plans plus $16 in discount coupons.

For the doll house, cut one front wall 18 x 25 inches, two side walls 15 x 18 1/2, two roofs 16 1/2 x 12 1/2, one attic floor 15 x 18, one second floor 15 x 17 1/2, one interior wall 15 x 18 1/2, one base 19 x 26, and 28 panels 3 1/4 x 3 1/4.

The base is supported on a four-sided frame, which is composed of decorative panels. Cut out or paint a diamond shape in the center of each of the 28 panels. Assemble the panels to form the four-sided frame and attach the base on top.

Peak the upper end of the front wall, and make window cutouts in the front and side walls. The interior terior wall and the second floor fit together by means of interlocking slots. Assemble the exterior walls and install the interior wall-and-floor assembly.

Attach the two roof sections. Use support strips to reinforce the wall and floor joints, and glue blocks for the roof joints. Cut and attach trim around the outside of each window.

Make simple planter boxes for the top floor windows, to fit over the trim. Trim the door opening as well.

The porch railings consist of panels, posts and rails. Cut 10 contoured posts 1 x 8 1/2 inches, and 24 panels 1 1/2 x 2 1/2 inches. Make decorative cutouts in the panels, and groove the rails to accommodate the panels.

Assemble a small flight of stairs to lead up to the gap in the front railing. The porch roof is cut in three sections, and is beveled to fit against the walls at an angle.

Assemble and install a chimney on the roof. Cut scalloped gingerbread trim to go along the underside of the front roof overhang. Cut trim to cover the corner joints and the peak joints of the porch roof.

Housewife is fed up with supermoms

DEAR ABBY: I have had it up to my eyeballs with phrases like "working mom" and "supermom." Just because I don't have a job outside my home does not mean that I am illiterate, lazy or brain-dead.

So many people say, "So you're just a housewife!" or ask, "What do you do all day?" Some assume that my husband is a male chauvinist who demands that I stay home. Abby, my husband and I made this choice together. I stay home raising my children because we believe it is best for our family.

I am also bored with this "quality time is better than quantity time" baloney. By the time supermom gets her super self home from her job downtown, prepares a super dinner, then gives the kids a super bath and has them in bed by 8 or 9 p.m., how much time does she have to read to them, sing songs, bake cookies, go for walks or build a snowman?

Who saw her child's first steps? Noticed his first tooth, or heard his first words? She, or a day-care worker?

I would never assume that all children growing up with two "working" parents are destined to be losers, so I respectfully ask that you supermoms keep your opinions about us who are somewhat less than super to yourselves.

GOT IT TOGETHER IN IOWA

DEAR GOT IT: You surely must be aware that many moms have jobs outside their homes because they can't make ends meet with one paycheck. Others are single parents.

After this runs, some of those supermoms may sit down and write some rebuttals. And if they do, I'll print some of the super ones.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I bought a lovely home in a very nice neighborhood a year ago. We have three children, ages 6, 4 and 2 years old. I am 29 and my husband is 30 — quite young to have so much going for us.

So why am I writing? Our next-door neighbor has propositioned me to have sex with him. The fact that I am married with three children doesn't seem to bother him. He says married women are safe sex partners (safe from AIDS, etc).

I have herpes. Do you think if I told him, he would leave me alone? He is very persistent.

I love this house and don't want to move. I haven't told my husband about this because I don't want to start an uproar.

What do you advise?

NO NAMES IN FLORIDA
DEAR NO NAMES: Tell your neighbor that his proposition is grossly insulting, and if he mentions it again, you will tell your husband. And never mind disclosing your medical history. It's none of his business.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a business executive, but every once in a while he will make a grammatical error, so I correct him. He blows up like you wouldn't believe and doesn't speak to me until the next day.

Should I just let it go when he makes mistakes in grammar? I only want to help him and he knows it, but he can't take any kind of criticism. Please tell me how to handle this.

MEANS WELL

DEAR MEANS WELL: I hope you do not correct him in the presence of others. If you do, he can't be blamed for reacting in a hostile manner.

When he's in a good mood, have a heart-to-heart talk with him. Tell him you love him and ask him if he wants to be corrected (privately, of course) when he makes a mistake in grammar. If he doesn't, bite your tongue and let it go.

The Bears are back

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

Isn't it nice to know the Chicago Bears are back?

Isn't it nice to know that the 34-7 opening day victory over Miami was an aberration; that Sunday's 17-13 win at Indianapolis was more like all those 16-14 and 20-17 games Chicago has been winning the last few years?

Isn't it nice to see Jim McMahon completing touchdown passes and key third-down plays, throwing off his back foot with rushers draped all over him?

And isn't it nice to see that, with Walter Payton, Gary Fencik and Wilber Marshall gone, that it's not all young guys despite a league-high 11 rookies on the roster? How about gray-haired (gray-templed?) 30-year-old Matt Suhey carrying the ball in three times from the eight for the go-ahead touchdown?

"Nothing I haven't seen before," says Mike Singletary, another of the gray-Bears at 30.

In fact, the team that was written off before the season as no better than a second-place finisher in the NFC Central can put itself into position for its fifth straight division title as early as Sunday if it can beat Minnesota at Soldier Field.

A victory would give the Bears a two-game lead over the team that went to the NFC title game last season and was favored to beat the Bears in the division this year.

That would make it tough for Minnesota to come back in a division in which both the Bears and Vikings are almost guaranteed six victories against Detroit, Green Bay and Tampa Bay.

In Chicago's case, they may be by scores such as 13-10, 10-7, 7-6 and the like, but they'll be victories nonetheless. Since 1984, Chicago is 22-1 against those three, albeit often by narrow margins.

That's how it was Sunday against Indianapolis, a better team than any of the Central's downtrodden three.

There were mistakes, including 10 penalties for 75 yards. One was an uncharacteristic sparring call on the always-sportsmanlike Singletary that prolonged a four-quarter drive that might have led to a winning touchdown for the Colts.

"Hey, I'm not that kind of guy," the Bears' captain told the Indianapolis assistant coach who berated him on the sidelines.

But the other Bears couldn't care less about their image.

On the play after Singletary's penalty, fumble-prone Eric Dickerson headed up the pile, the ball popped loose and Steve McMichael fell on it.

"He kicked me," complained Dickerson, who has had crucial fumbles in each of the Colts' two losses.

"I don't know what happened," said the ingenious Hampton, who was in the Colts' backfield all day. "I think I my knee came up and got the ball. You know how it is in the middle of the line."

The key play was pulled off by McMahon, who still has the knack for doing what has to be done—he's 27-1 in his last 28 starts.

He did it again Sunday though he threw for just 186 yards. In fact, the only 300-yard game of his seven-year career came in that one loss, against John Elway and Denver last year.

Against the Colts, McMahon had a 35-yard touchdown pass to Dennis Gentry in the first quarter, a perfectly thrown ball with a blitzer in his face.

Then, after the Colts had gone ahead 13-10 early in the fourth, McMahon faced a third at 10 on his own 36.

With the Hoosier Dome crowd making noise as only indoor crowds can, he calmly stepped back from center and waited, and waited and waited.
