Five political candidates visit here to get campaign support

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Five political candidates representing three races were in Pampa Wednesday in a final attempt to win support for their campaigns. The message of the three Democrats and two Republicans was basically a rehash of now familiar themes.

State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, a candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives, flew into Perry Lefors Air Field Wednesday morning for a press conference. He introduced two U.S. Congressmen from Texas who pledged to help him get key committee appointments if elected.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-

Stamford, and Rep. Mike Andrews, D-Houston, said that Sarpalius' background made him a prime candidate for the House Agriculture Committee, which Stenholm said would have two openings after the election.

"We look to Bill to help bring conservative fiscal management to the House," Stenholm said. "One of the major reasons I'm so interested in seeing Bill elected is that we'll be writing a new farm bill in 1990. It seems to get more difficult all the time and we need his expertise."

Stenholm said that Michael Dukakis' announcement earlier this week that he was a liberal has not hurt any down-ballot candidates, even in conservative areas like West Texas.

"I'm liberal on certain issues. I worked for a rural electrical co-op. That's a liberal issue," Stenholm said.

He urged voters to look past labels like conservative and liberal and focus on the issues.

"In this case, Dukakis and (Lloyd) Bentsen will do more to reduce the deficit than Bush-Quayle," Stenholm said.

Sarpalius condemned his opponent, Larry Milner, R-Amarillo, for negative campaigning. He also said that Milner does not have the expertise to help draft a national energy policy. Sarpalius pointed to Southwestern Public Service Company, for which Milner used to be an employee, and its decision to switch from natu-

Wheeley, McAnelly running for Precinct 1 commissioner

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Two Pampa residents, both with strong backgrounds in business and agriculture, seek the seat soon to be vacated by retiring Precinct 1 Commissioner O.L. Presley on the Gray County Commissioners Court.

Democratic candidate Rex McAnelly, manager of Moody Farms Feedlot, and Republican Joe Wheeley, a dryland farmer, both feel their experience in agriculture and business qualify them for the position.

Wheeley, formerly office manager for Production Credit Association here, said, "This was the best credit experience you could have. We dealt strictly on credit to farmers. I feel like this experience helped me greatly with budgeting and expenditures."

"I've operated every type of machinery the county has," said McAnelly. "I realize what it takes to deal with the people who sell the equipment. I know the savings that can be made in equipment and repair."

Wheeley, 42, of 2100 N. Faulkner, also has experience with the county's machinery, having worked as a part time winter employee for the past 10 years in Precinct 3.

He also farms dryland wheat and runs some cattle on rented land south and west of Pampa.

Videos reveal rampant theft is plaguing Cuba

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)— Theft is so rampant at state enterprises in Cuba that "1 million police" couldn't stop it, according to a secret documentary produced by Cuban security forces for the island nation's leaders.

Copies of the crime documentary and another on the alienation of Cuba's young people were smuggled out of the island by a defector.

A screening of the two documentaries, produced by the National Revolutionary Police in 1986, was held under the sponsorship of Freedom House, a New York-based human rights group.

The second documentary concludes that many of Cuba's young people are alienated, lack revolutionary fervor and complain that recreational facilities are often run down, non-existent, off-limits or inaccessible.

Freedom House said the tapes were smuggled out of Cuba by Juan Antonio Rodriguez Manier, a major in Cuban intelligence who defected to the West in January 1987.

The extent of crime at state enterprises was such that the documentary on that issue concluded with an observation by Defense Minister Raul Castro that "1 million police" couldn't resolve the problem without additional accounting controls.

President Fidel Castro has publicly acknowledged that crime is a major problem. The documentary shows Castro saying in a speech that a "fierce struggle" is needed to wipe out crime.

"Socialism can't permit this cancer to corrode it, that this cancer devour it," he said.

The documentaries were intended for viewing by high party and government officials as a means of dramatizing the magnitude of criminal activity and how efforts to inculcate Cuban youth with revolutionary values have fallen short.

The documentary on crime showed repeated instances of how employees at state enterprises were able to take advantage of lax accounting to steal cash or goods.

Most of the testimony was provided by convicted criminals but there was no indication of how they were caught.

One convict spoke of how he was able to make off with 224 cases of coffee worth 67,200 pesos. Under Cuba's exchange rate, the peso is worth slightly more than a dollar.

Another witness said he was able to pocket about 100 pesos a day in daily receipts from the enterprise where he worked. He kept up the activity for three years.

Yet another said he was able to steal fabric for women's clothes and leather for shoes in a gambit that appeared to require little planning or imagination. A security guard was posted at the warehouse where the goods were kept but he was deaf, the convict said.

Several Cubans responsible for taking daily cash proceeds from their respective enterprises to banks for deposit said they routinely undertook the trips alone, either on foot or by bus, without protection.

In the second documentary, Cuban youths complained to interviewers that the best beaches often are reserved for tourists and that transportation to the seashore is difficult because of a shortage of buses.

Cuba's television fare was described as "garbage" and there were scenes of a Havana amusement park which was in a state of almost total disrepair.

"Who is the president of Cuba?" one young man was asked.

A perplexed look crossed his face. "Armando Dorticos, no?" he answers, not realizing that Dorticos was a former president, that his first name was Osvaldo and that he died several years ago. Castro is the current president.

Accident injury

Emergency personnel prepare to place Warren Willies Bowers, 68, 704 E. Kingsmill, into an ambulance after he was injured this morning when the car he was working on slipped into gear and drug him over 260 feet down the street. Witnesses said the engine was running and that Bowers was reportedly underneath the car working on the shift linkage. Chuck Riley, an Energas employee and neighbor of Bowers, rolled the car off the man and summoned police. Bowers was transported to Coronado Hospital in stable condition with possibly broken bones.

pa area since 1974.

McAnelly graduated from Texas A&M University at College Station in 1947 with a degree in agriculture education. He is a World War II veteran of the Army Air Corps.

He says pressure from other residents of Precinct 1 influenced his decision to run for the Precinct 1 commissioner's spot.

"A lot of people I had known a long time who live in the precinct told me they wanted to see someone on the (commissioners) court with a business background, especially in this time of declining economy and a lower tax base," McAnelly said.

"I knew Presley's term was coming up and I thought since I had the qualifications, why not use them," Wheeley said.

While McAnelly has chosen a low-key campaign relying on his past reputation as a civic leader and businessman, Wheeley decided to actively seek the vote of those in his precinct.

He and his wife, Sara, have been walking the precinct since mid-September, knocking doors and distributing information about the Republican candidate.

"It's hard to get all the doors knock on, but I realized I had overcome the name recognition. A lot of people know Rex McAnelly," Wheeley said. "We've had awfully good response with door-to-door campaign, though he added, despite some problem with dogs and one strict party ter who threw the campaign literature in his wife's face."

Advocating tight control of county's funds, McAnelly said, "I'm concerned about how money kinda goes and flows (government). If they've got they spend it."

"In the two years I was president of the Rodeo Association even though we got less at the gate, we had more at the end of the year. We did that by corners and making deals," said.

Both candidates said they come the opportunity to serve residents of Precinct 1.

Convicted murderer Franklin put to death for nurse slaying

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
 Associated Press Writer

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Convicted killer Donald Gene Franklin, once described by his own attorney as the most hated man in San Antonio, was put to death early today for the abduction and slaying of a San Antonio nurse in 1975.

Franklin, 37, on the Texas death row for 12 1/2 years, had no final statement, stared at the death chamber ceiling continuously and coughed several times after the lethal injection began to take effect.

He was pronounced dead at 12:30 a.m., six minutes after the drugs began flowing through needles inserted into his arms.

Franklin's hopes for a reprieve were blocked late Wednesday when the U.S. Supreme Court voted 7-2 to refuse him a stay.

The same court earlier this year voted 6-3 against Franklin in his challenge to the constitutionality of the Texas death penalty statute.

That case virtually had halted all executions in the state for nearly a year.

Franklin, who had three trials and at least five execution dates, was sentenced to death for the July 1975 death of Mary Margaret "Peggy" Moran.

The 27-year-old woman's disappearance from a San Antonio hospital prompted a highly publicized city-wide search. She was found in a vacant lot five days after her abduction, nude and bleeding from multiple stab wounds and barely alive. She died later in a hospital.

"I'm very thankful it's over," her mother, Patricia Crawford, said today. "I feel really relieved. I feel I can be at peace and Peggy can be at peace."

At the time of the execution, she said she was looking at a picture of her slain daughter.

"It's been a long hard day. It's been a very very long 13 years," she said.

Franklin spent his final day in a small cell adjacent to the Texas death chamber. After sleeping for more than two hours during the afternoon and visiting with his parents, he had a final meal of two hamburger patties.

Franklin was on parole for a rape conviction when he was arrested about four hours after the Moran abduction but consistently denied any involvement in the woman's disappearance.

"He just told me he was framed for something he didn't do," a fellow death row inmate, Johnny Penry, said Wednesday.

"He was very quiet and good natured," another inmate, Lester Bower, said. "He was about as mellow as anybody out there," added James Beathard, a death row resident.

Eyewitnesses provided the license plate number of a car speeding away from the hospital. The car was Franklin's.

Police also found the nurse's belongings in his garbage can and blood found on his clothing matched Ms. Moran's blood.

"This is a case I use as the classic circumstantial evidence case," said Bill Harris, a Bexar County district attorney who handled Franklin's case. "We had overwhelming evidence. It's an appropriate case for the death penalty and he's an appropriate subject."

"The worst part, in my mind, is that Franklin is the most hated man in San Antonio, at least in recent history," said Allen Cazier, who defended Franklin at his third trial.

ral gas to coal. He said that is an example of the faulty kind of logic Milner would bring to Congress.

"It's hard to understand why you move a plant from natural gas to coal. It doesn't make sense when we are sitting on the largest natural gas field in the whole country," Sarpalius said.

He suggested that Texas needs to negotiate more with California to provide natural gas.

"I have met with (California Assemblyman) Willie Brown, and in 1992 California has to end all use of fuels that pollute the atmosphere. That's an ideal time for them to switch to natural gas," Sarpalius said.

He also said that Milner's criticism of his support by the Teamsters Union was "not very well thought out." He said the Teamsters are also supporting George Bush and Phil Gramm among others.

Wednesday afternoon the Pampa Middle School Library was the site of a Pampa Classroom Teachers Association meeting with candidates for the state Senate and House.

Warren Chisum, D-Pampa, and Tom Christian, R-Claude, are competing for the 84th District seat in the Legislature and Teel Bivens, R-Amarillo, and Mel Phillips, D-Amarillo, are running for the Senate.

Each candidate was to address seven issues the association feels are vital for the upcoming session of both houses. Those issues were raising teachers salaries, longevity legislation, longevity pay increases, full state funding of the career ladder, deletion of local districts' authority to adopt career ladder standards stricter than the state's, and two issues pertaining to teacher retirement standards and benefits.

All four candidates said they supported higher pay for teachers. However, they also said that with tight funds and fiscal problems, they could not promise anything. Bivens was the strongest supporter of higher pay for teachers, saying that any extra money the state could come up with should go into the teachers' paychecks.

His opponent, Mel Phillips, spent most of his time addressing the issue to desalinization of Lake Meredith.

"We came here to hear how these candidates feel about education, not salty water," one complained.

Phillips said that Bivens is ignorant on many issues and that the media "must make voters understand that the state should be made to pay for that project (desalinization). It's our money and we should be able to get some of it back."

Phillips said that if he couldn't exert enough influence to sway the Senate, he would file a lawsuit on behalf of citizens in West Texas over the issue.

Christian said there was nothing more important to him than good educational opportunities for young people.

"We've been in turmoil lately over House Bill 72, which provides lots of mandates but not much funding (for local districts). Funding of the career ladder has turned out to be very demoralizing for teachers," Christian said. However, he said achieving full state funding would be "nearly impossible next time around."

Chisum also made some criticisms of HB 72, saying, "I'm not sure we could stand a House Bill 73."

He and Christian both said that local control of schools was a primary concern.

"We can't operate like Dallas or like Houston. We need the freedom to operate like Pampa," Chisum said.

Three of the four candidates said they would probably support revisions in the teacher retirement system and retirement fund. Only Christian sounded wary.

The TCTA is seeking legislation that would give any educator with 30 years experience the freedom to retire with full benefits.

"You'll pull a lot out of the retirement fund very quickly if you do that," Christian warned.

Chisum said he would support the measure, and Bivens said he would also, as long as "we don't end up jeopardizing your money."

Phillips did not address the issue.

County to end pauper's oath that surrenders right to vote

From Staff and Wire Reports

Gray County residents who sign a pauper's oath no longer will be required to say they are surrendering their right to vote, the attorney general's office said.

That provision had been included in the oath because it is in the Texas Constitution, said Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Attorney General Jim Mattox in Austin, Wednesday. She said the document also contains other outdated provisions regarding the right to vote that are not followed but have not been repealed.

"Everybody has just ignored it, except out in Gray County, to our knowledge," Christopher said. She said officials instead follow Texas Election Code provisions.

Christopher added, "I don't think it was a malicious attempt by anyone in the county to disenfranchise people. I just think they didn't understand the law."

"As soon as we explained it to them, they were chagrined it had happened," she said. "We just told them to stop using it, and they immediately agreed when law was explained to them."

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy said the Supreme Court apparently struck down the "pauper law" after a case from West Virginia was heard.

"We weren't aware of this until yesterday. We will now abide by the higher rule. If it weren't election time, none of this would have gotten any attention," Kennedy said.

He said there were only 11 paupers in the county and only one was registered to vote.

However, County Tax Assessor-Collector Margie Gray said her records indicated there were at least 22 paupers, and three were registered to vote.

"I don't know what the issue is. Here are the voter registration cards of those three people. I have never not allowed anyone to vote, pauper or not," Gray said.

Kennedy explained that residents who desire the county to bury a relative because of poverty must sign a pauper's oath by state law. That oath includes giving up the right to vote, as set forth in the state Constitution.

He said that provision would now be changed.

Perhaps 40 relatives were required to sign the oath over several years in order for the county to pay for burials, Christopher said. According to Christopher,

Gray County officials said that those signing the oath were allowed to vote after the county had checked with the secretary of state's office.

"The problem I see is people who signed this oath may have just assumed they could not vote and never pressed the point," said Christopher. "I don't know how one goes about getting the word to them, or if they're still there."

The attorney general's office contacted Gray County officials after receiving a request for a legal opinion on the oath from Rep. Juan Hinojosa, D-McAllen.

The paragraph in the oath declaring poverty said, "In making this declaration under oath, I acknowledge that I am a resident of Gray County, Texas and that I surrender my rights to vote as set forth in the constitution of the state of Texas."

"I don't know what all the fuss is about," Gray said. "It's all been blown out of proportion. As you can see by these voter registration cards, I have never turned anyone away of legal voting age."

McCormick visits on campaign for Criminal Court of Appeals

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

McCormick

Believing that the Panhandle and West Texas have too many voters to ignore, Texas Criminal Court of Appeals Justice Mike McCormick has traveled two weeks in order to personally reach the people of this area.

Democratic candidate McCormick brought his campaign for presiding judge of the state's highest appellate court to Pampa Wednesday.

An eight-year veteran of the court, McCormick is seeking the seat soon to be vacated by John Onion, who is retiring after 24 years in January. He is opposed by newcomer David A. Bercheltmann Jr., a district judge in San Antonio.

McCormick bases his campaign on his experience, he said. "With the crisis in the criminal justice system coupled with the demand for an independent judiciary, I offer the voters of Texas solid and proven leadership," he said.

"I am the only candidate with appellate judicial experience, as well as a strong background in the administrative and legislative duties required of the position."

McCormick openly recognizes his strong law-and-order background. He has served as executive director of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association and has been a member of the board of directors for the National District Attorneys Association, in addition to being an assistant district attorney and chief felony prosecutor himself.

"I think I've been a fair judge," he said. "You might think with my background that I would be concerned about the rights of the victim and I am. I am not a criminal coddler. I feel I have helped bring the court back to the middle."

"This reflects my basic philosophy that I should not take my personal beliefs to the bench and change the laws," he added. "I'm a strict constructionist. I am there to enforce and uphold the laws set by the state Legislastate's funds are used for the court system, he said. "And I always thought that the government was equally divided between the three branches," he commented.

McCormick holds an undergraduate degree from the University of Texas at Austin with a major in history. He has a jurist doctorate from St. Mary's University School of Law in San Antonio.

He is a member of many State Bar committees, has lectured on criminal law at many seminars and is the author of a number of criminal law manuals and articles.

He was a member of the drafting committee of the 1973 Penal Code and is author of Branch's Annotated Penal Code, third edition, and co-author of Texas Practice Criminal Forms and Trial Manual, ninth edition. He recently co-wrote with his wife, Kathleen, a handbook for justices of the peace. While in office, McCormick has written 1,500 appellate opinions; 110 of those were written this year.

He is vice chairman of the Commission on Sentencing, director of the Texas Center for the Judiciary Inc., a member of the Judicial Budget Board and director of the State Bar of Texas. He is the 1984 recipient of the Rosewood Gavel Award from St. Mary's Law School.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

They need freedom to enjoy prosperity

Communist China recently has made some moves toward becoming Capitalist China. It has greatly freed agriculture, doubling output in the last decade; the People's Republic no longer faces the famines that seemed endemic to the country, and now it even exports food. It has set up several areas promoting relatively free trade, notably the provinces near Hong Kong, the capitalist wonderland and British Colony that will become part of the mainland in 1997.

But now the long march from Communism to capitalism has seemingly made an about-face. Beijing recently initiated a series of policies aimed at reducing free markets and economic control by the provinces. Power also seemed to shift from Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang, a top proponent of market reforms, to Prime Minister Li Peng and Politburo economist Yao Yilin, who favor a much stronger role for centralized economic decision making.

Beijing has begun putting this ideology into action. Price controls are being imposed in the tried, tested and failed socialist method. Price freezes were placed on basic foods, agricultural supplies and many raw materials. PRC officials worry about inflation, which has zoomed nearly 50 percent in some cities. Yet the solution is not to increase government controls, but to stabilize the currency and introduce even more market reforms.

One problem is that the Chinese yuan is, like all Communist currencies, about as sound as Monopoly money. No one knows its exact value. So judgments about inflation are not accurate; such judgments probably rely more on the values of goods on the black market, where the U.S. dollar and other hard capitalist currencies are used.

For those who hope to see China become a place of freer markets and freer people, it's all discouraging. Yet some important factors still may push the PRC in the right direction. First, as Martin Anderson writes in his new book, Revolution, "Since the early 1980s the Chinese people have tasted a few of the fruits of capitalism, and their appetite seems barely whetted. They have embarked on a course from which there is no easy turning back."

Second, Beijing always keeps an eye on Taiwan, the "other China." And Taiwan's capitalist engines keep on turning, bringing vast new prosperity. To avoid embarrassment, Beijing may have to return to its capitalist experiment.

Third, the current clampdown won't work. It won't reduce inflation, and won't help the Chinese people; it will only cause more discontent. The PRC government certainly retains the vast powers of coercion and terror set up by Mao. But tyranny and prosperity cannot coexist. If the Beijing bureaucrats want China to become a great power, they will have to reintroduce freedom. There is no other way.

Both too much and too little

No one hates to see a rattlesnake get stomped, even if the stomper could have found a less violent way to deal with the danger. So even ardent civil libertarians may have to strain to muster outrage at the Israeli government's decision to ban the racist political party of Rabbi Meir Kahane.

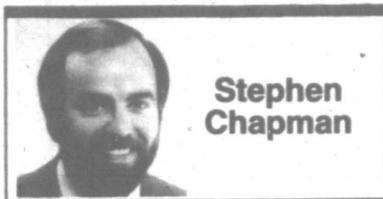

There is an extremist threat, but in dealing with it, the government has done both too much and too little. A simpler approach would have doomed Kahane to the political impotence he deserves while greatly strengthening Israeli democracy.

Kahane's party, known as Kach ("Thus"), won its first seat in the Knesset in 1984. It has done all it could to discourage any progress toward reconciliation between Arabs and Jews.

The American-born rabbi praises the Jewish Underground, which has carried out terrorist attacks on Arab civilians, and demands the expulsion of all Arabs (including those who are Israeli citizens) from Israel and the occupied territories. He has proposed bills to ban any meetings between Arab and Jewish young people, to segregate Arab and Jewish residences and to outlaw sexual relations between the two groups.

The current Israeli government has not been exactly gentle with rebellious Palestinians. But Kach's approach was too much. Acting under a new law forbidding "racist" or "undemocratic" parties, the Central Election Commission voted to ban it from the Nov. 1 national election. The Supreme Court upheld the ruling.

Instead of asking how to rid the Knesset of this troublesome demagogue, the government should have asked why on earth a guy who got a smaller share of the vote than Pete du Pont got in the Iowa caucuses had a seat in the first place.

Stephen Chapman

The problem is not that Israel necessarily has more extremists than other democracies. The problem is that Israel's extremists wield a power far exceeding their puny numbers.

How come? Because of the country's crazy electoral system. Members of the Knesset are elected at large, not from individual districts. And thanks to a system of proportional representation, you can win with a vote total that in this country wouldn't get you on C-SPAN. All it takes is a bare 1 percent of the vote — about 20,000 ballots.

Kach is not the only unfortunate result of this setup. In the 1984 election, no fewer than 15 different parties won seats in parliament, giving plenty of screwballs a hand in shaping the nation's domestic and foreign policy. Since the Jewish state was founded, no party has ever gained a majority.

So every government has comprised a coalition, with one or both of the major parties forced to swallow concessions to small, lunatic fringe groups. These are mostly religious parties who think the country should be a theocracy. That's why Israelis, most of whom are not religious, are forced to endure religious laws and state-supported religion against the clear preferences of the majority.

Being on a semi-permanent wartime footing is bound to polarize a society. But the tendency in this case is aggravated by a political system that fosters perpetual balkanization. The American electoral system encourages only two parties, forcing politicians and voters to search out the compromises required for victory. The Israeli system, by making it so easy to win seats in the Knesset, penalizes compromise and rewards division.

In the United States, rabble-rousers as extreme as Kahane have almost no influence. In Israel, even though their following is small, they have a seat in the Knesset. And, if the polls were accurate, Kach might have won two or three additional seats in the election.

The current Israeli government is a rarity — a coalition that includes the two major partisan blocs, Labor and Likud, in an unhappy but necessary partnership. This was a grand opportunity for the two parties, representing the vast majority of the people, to act together to break the grip of the minor parties.

For a while there was talk of raising the threshold for parliamentary representation to 5 percent of the national vote — which in the last election would have reduced the number of parties winning seats from 15 to five. But in the end, each of the big parties was too intent on protecting itself from the other to do anything to shield both from the small parties.

That's how the government was led into a repressive action against Kach. The Israeli government's handling of Kahane's party is an expensive antidote for an ailment that could have been cheaply avoided. It's like spending millions trying to cure lung cancer while giving away cigarettes.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Nov. 3, the 308th day of 1988. There are 58 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1957, the Soviet Union launched Sputnik II, the second man-made satellite, into orbit. On board was a dog named Laika, the first living space traveler. (Laika died in flight; the spacecraft was not designed to return her to earth.)

On this date: In 1868, Republican Ulysses S. Grant won the presidential election over Democrat Horatio Seymour.

In 1896, Republican William McKinley defeated Democrat William Jennings Bryan for the presidency.

In 1900, the first automobile show in the United States opened at New York's Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America.

In 1903, Panama proclaimed its independence from Colombia.

In 1908, Republican William Howard Taft was elected the 27th president of the United States, outpolling William Jennings Bryan.

In 1970, Salvador Allende was inaugurated as president of Chile.

New things to be afraid of

Since the Halloween season just ended, I think it is appropriate to hold a discussion concerning things to be afraid of.

Modern things. Not things that frightened us as children like the Headless Horseman, zombies, witches, dancing skeletons, green monsters with two heads that slept under our beds and the Boogymon, who we came to know later in life as the IRS agent.

Just because we grew out of such fears doesn't mean we can sleep any more restful as adults. For some time now, I've been keeping a lot of things that can cause even people past 35 to want to sleep with the lights still on.

There are all the things that can cause heart disease and cancer (like the new radon threat), and let's not forget the spread of AIDS, nuclear leaks and being attacked by a pit bull with a toothache.

But did you know about the giant shrimp that go loose? Well, you should. Over a thousand foot-long shrimp were imported from the South Pacific and recently escaped from a research pond in South Carolina and went into the Atlantic.

"No one knows," went the news story I read, "what havoc they may wreak."

Lewis Grizzard

They could, it was further reported, devastate native marine life.

Let's say that happens. Let's say these giant shrimp, which can weigh up to a quarter-pound, eat up everything off the coast of South Carolina and then start looking for more food.

They could weigh a pound by then, or even 10 pounds, and they could crawl into your house one night and attack your aquarium. Or even your refrigerator, if you happen to have some Mrs. Filbert's Fish Sticks in the freezer.

They could eat your dog. Or you. Imagine the headline: "Giant Shrimp Attack Myrtle Beach, S.C. — Scores of Bathers Eaten." Think about that the next time you sit down to another shrimp platter.

So, let's say the giant shrimp thing never develops. OK, but what about the killer bees?

They've been headed our way for years, haven't they? Where are they now? I called the International Killer Bee Watch and asked.

"Last we saw them," I was told, "they were holed up in a bar in Mexico, drinking tequila and getting meaner by the second."

"Could they move north?" I asked. "If their gasoline holds out," it was explained. "They're all riding Harleys now."

Remember the fire ants? They're out there somewhere, too, as well as the walking catfish which are so mean, if you try to run from them and check into a Holiday Inn, they'll get the room next to you and turn up their TV and bang on the walls, and wait until you come out.

I hope I haven't forgotten anything. Oh, you know how when you fly and the stewardess says that if the cabin is depressurized suddenly and you're up there with nothing to breathe, those little oxygen masks are going to fall down in front of your face?

Ever see one of those little masks fall out? Know anybody who has?

Think about it — and Happy Belated Halloween.

Dukakis may have lost Oregon chance

By ROBERT WALTERS

PORTLAND, Ore. (NEA) — "This state has gone with the Republican in almost every presidential race since the mid-1940s. There's no reason to change now," says a longtime observer of Oregon politics when asked about the likelihood that Vice President George Bush will be victorious in this year's contest.

At the beginning of this year's campaign, politicians of both parties had reason to believe that pattern might be broken — but now Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis is likely to join the long list of vanquished Democrats.

Neither Bush nor Dukakis has ever been perceived by any substantial portion of the electorate as a visionary politician or a charismatic leader. But Bush — viewed by many voters as the "least worst" alternative — appears to be on his way to winning by default.

"Probably most important, people here think Bush presents less of a downside risk than Dukakis," adds the veteran of Oregon politics, who requests anonymity. That's especially grim news for Dukakis because he planned to offset Bush's expected strength in the South with an impressive showing in the West in general and in the three states bordering the Pacific Ocean in particular.

Indeed, the Democrats assumed they would be fully competitive in California, Oregon and Washington this year because they are among the 24 states in which the party's nominees received an average of at least 45 percent of the popular vote cast in the seven presidential elections since 1960.

The 13 Western states have 111 votes in the Electoral College, with California alone accounting for 47 votes. "No mathematics allows the Democrats to win the White House without it," says respected Democratic pollster Peter Hart.

Washington and Oregon, with 10 and seven electoral votes respectively, are not as crucial. But the Democrats assumed they could win the Pacific Northwest for several reasons:

• Both states have Democratic governors — Booth Gardner in Washington and Neil Goldschmidt in Oregon — who are not unlike Dukakis. They are efficient, no-nonsense executives who place a higher premium on effectiveness than on ideology.

• While nobody ever mistook Dukakis for a Westerner, Bush also lacks the natural Western appeal that enabled President Reagan to sweep the region in both of his national campaigns.

• In Washington, a confrontation between moderates and conservatives has torn asunder the Republican Party. "This is the best shot we've had in a long, long time," one Democratic leader in the state noted early in the campaign.

To capitalize upon those opportunities, the Dukakis organization committed substantial resources to the three Pacific Coast states. It hired more than 20 paid staff members each in Oregon and Washington, while California was treated in fashion befitting the nation's most populous state.

Moreover, early public opinion polls suggested that a majority of voters in all three states was fully prepared to cast its ballots for a Democrat. Now, however, Bush is the likely victor.

In great measure, that's because Dukakis does not wear well with voters in the West or elsewhere in the country. At best uninspiring and at worst pedantic, he makes a superb initial impression but quickly becomes tiring to those who must share his company.

"Dukakis had seemed to light such a fire under people at the Democratic convention," Seattle Post-Intelligencer columnist John Marshall noted recently. "But now that fire seems nothing but embers, all but extinguished."

Marshall wrote of attending a Seattle dinner party with a dozen professionals, most of whom were likely Dukakis supporters but who found themselves instead in "this ... autumn of our discontent, this time when so many men in so many empty suits seem to be running for so many offices."

Mother pleads for life of kidnapped infant

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Fighting back tears, a mother pleaded publicly to an unknown kidnapper to return her premature infant, as authorities warned that the baby's life may be in danger and offered a $13,000 reward for his return.

About two dozen detectives were working against time today to find the woman who posed as a nurse as she kidnapped Christopher Michael Jones from his mother's room at Doctors Hospital. Doctors said Wednesday a lack of proper medical care would endanger the 6-day-old boy's life.

"The baby's blood sugar can get very low and we were watching it carefully in the hospital. If it gets too low it can cause seizures or even death within a relatively short period of time," said Dr. Whit Hall.

The baby, born Saturday, weighed 4 pounds and must be fed every three hours and kept warm because he is small, Hall said.

Christopher's mother, Annette Jones-Thomas, 32, was ushered into a news conference in a wheelchair Wednesday with her husband, Willie Jones, 39, at her side, and delivered an emotional plea to her baby's kidnapper.

"Please, if you have my child, please return him," she said, fighting back tears as her hands fiddled nervously with a sheet of paper from which she haltingly read her statement.

"He needs medical attention and if you have him for the reason of taking his as your child and raising him and loving him, do what a good mother would do. Bring him to the hospital and let him get help."

Mrs. Jones-Thomas, a secretary for the Arkansas Education Association, and her husband have two daughters, ages 8 and 5. The younger girl has cerebral palsy, according to co-workers and a neighbor.

The mother said a young black woman dressed in a white pleated skirt and a white sweater entered her four-floor room Tuesday night and said she needed to weigh the baby. The child hasn't been seen since.

Mrs. Jones-Thomas said she did not know the woman who took the baby, who has black straight hair and a growth on his right ear.

A hospital nurse came into the room about 30 minutes later to take the baby to the nursery and discovered him missing, officials said. Police searched the area with dogs but found nothing, said Sgt. Larry Dunnington.

The kidnapper was not wearing a nurse's identification tag, said hospital spokeswoman Jessica Szenher. Dunnington said authorities don't know how the woman entered or left the hospital.

The kidnapper mostly likely wants either to sell the infant, get ransom for him or keep him for herself, said police Lt. R.L. "Bert" Jenkins.

Doctors Hospital has offered a $10,000 reward for the return of the baby; the Little Rock Children's Clinic, a group called Protecting Arkansas Children Together and the Little Rock Police Department's Crime Stoppers added another $1,000 apiece.

Bush says he represents mainstream America

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Michael Dukakis is blasting Republican handling of the war against drugs and pledging not one dime of foreign aid for countries that resist anti-drug efforts. George Bush poked fun at Dukakis and declared, "I represent the mainstream."

With the race for the White House down to less than a week, the candidates were focusing predictably on the major industrial states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and New Jersey.

The Democrats were in a hurry-up offense; the Republicans, with polls bringing only good news, were trying to avoid a stumble.

Republican national chairman Frank Fahrenkopf said GOP tracking polls suggested Dukakis was running below what he called a 40 percent national "base Democratic vote," and said a landslide victory for Bush is possible.

Recent nationwide polls show the GOP nominee holding a solid double-digit lead.

President Reagan was planning a final weekend return visit to help his vice president. He campaigned in Wisconsin and Ohio on Wednesday and scoffed at Dukakis' claims to being a Democrat in the Harry Truman mold.

"If he's Harry Truman, I'm Roger Rabbit," Reagan said.

Dukakis, in Chicago, assailed

Bush in Wisconsin.

the Republicans' claim on Truman's memory. "Have they no shame?" he asked.

With Democrat Dukakis taking full advantage of national television interview invitations, Bush tossed another barb loaded with "the L word," or liberal label.

"It seemed like he appeared on every television show except Wheel of Fortune," Bush joked. "You see, he was afraid that Vanna White is hostess on the

Still, Dukakis' television appearances prompted Bush to accept several of his own, including 30 minutes live on NBC's Today show today.

The campaign grew more heated for the vice presidential candidates. Democrat Lloyd Bentsen blasted Bush for selecting Dan Quayle as his running mate. The choice, Bentsen said in Illinois, showed "a real disdain, disregard for our country."

Quayle found himself caught up anew in a controversy over abortion.

While he ardently opposes abortion, even in cases of rape, Quayle told questioners he had no quarrel with a medical procedure known as dilation and curettage, or D-and-C, and said it would prevent conception if performed soon after rape.

The medical procedure is considered by many in the field of gynecology as a means of terminating a pregnancy.

Questions about abortion have hounded Quayle in recent days, particularly following his suggestion to a 12-year-old girl that she should go ahead and give birth in a theoretical situation in which she was raped by her father and became pregnant.

Dukakis, with fatigue from his frenetic pace showing in his voice, campaigned with Jesse Jackson in Philadelphia late Wednesday night where the former Democratic candidate received a rousing reception.

Dukakis, introduced by Jackson, sparked the crowd at Martin Luther King High School when he stressed his anti-apartheid theme.

"Nelson Mandela is still in jail and Manuel Noriega is still running Panama. It's time that changed," Dukakis said.

He earlier unleashed some of his harshest rhetoric yet, blasting Bush for anti-drug efforts and saying a day before that he would not necessarily halt aid to nations that refuse to cooperate with U.S. anti-drug effort.

"If you're against us, don't expect a dime of American foreign aid," Dukakis said.

"I'll work with other countries, but I'll be damned if I will allow those countries to send their poison into the United States of America," Dukakis said.

"Maybe (Bush) thinks there are other things more important than the future of our children... I say you have to draw the line somewhere."

Bush spokesman Mark Goodin, responding to Dukakis' comments, said the Democratic nominee has distorted the GOP nominee's position on the issue.

"The vice president would never hesitate to use aid as a lever on the war on drugs," Goodin said.

Teel Bivins is the Strong, New Conservative Leader We Need in the Texas Senate

His values are our values. He's not a politician; Teel Bivins is a cattleman and a fourth-generation Panhandle native. If elected, he'd be one of only two members in the entire State Senate who makes his living in agriculture.

He'll fight against a State Income Tax and oppose liberal legislators who've forgotten how to operate within a budget. He'll bring our beliefs in home and family, hard work, honesty and integrity to the Texas Senate, along with his fresh, new ideas about good jobs, better schools and safe communities.

Teel has won the support of Democrats, Independents and Republicans alike because of his positive message and his conservative stand on issues like taxes, spending, education and crime.

On Tuesday, November 8, vote for the kind of leadership we deserve.
Vote Teel Bivins for the Texas Senate.

Thatcher pays her first visit to Poland

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Margaret Thatcher, treading a delicate path between Poland's Communist leaders and restive opposition, was applauded warmly by a crowd of Poles today as she began a program of sightseeing and official talks.

The first British prime minister to visit this Soviet bloc country, Mrs. Thatcher was greeted with spontaneous applause by several hundred Poles after she laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Victory Square.

She was heading for her official car, but turned and went back to the crowd to shake a few hands before heading on to meet government officials.

Mrs. Thatcher was to have her first talks with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski later in the day.

On Wednesday, the communist party chief issued a veiled warning to his British guest not to interfere in Poland's tense politics.

In the Baltic port of Gdansk, where Mrs. Thatcher planned to travel Friday for a meeting with Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, nearly the entire 10,000-member workforce of the Lenin shipyard rallied on Wednesday.

The workers vowed to fight the government's decision, announced Monday, to close the yard where Solidarity was born during a 1980 strike wave. Walesa even said his banned free trade union movement would work for the first time with its government-backed rival.

Mrs. Thatcher will be the first Western leader to make the symbolic trip to meet Walesa at his headquarters in Gdansk.

The government said Monday it planned to close the Lenin shipyard on Dec. 1 for economic reasons, though Walesa called the move an attempt to weaken Solidarity.

The yard would be the first large enterprise shut down in a new government attempt to revive a limping economy.

Mrs. Thatcher, 63, was to tour the capital this afternoon, visit the grave of a pro-Solidarity priest murdered by secret police in 1984, and later attend a state banquet hosted by Jaruzelski.

The Conservative Party prime minister has been hailed by Poland's Communist leaders for her rigorous economic policies and by Solidarity for her outspoken anti-Communist views. In a British television interview shortly before she flew to Warsaw on Wednesday, Jaruzelski said: "I hope Mrs. Thatcher will allow us to tackle our own problems in a sovereign way, using our own methods and instruments."

Mrs. Thatcher has indicated she would not interfere, but remains determined to encourage liberalization moves.

In a meeting late Wednesday with the head of the Roman Catholic church in Poland, she told Cardinal Jozef Glemp she wanted "to encourage those wanting to move down the road to freedom, while not interfering in the internal affairs of Poland," said the British official. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

On Wednesday, after her arrival, she discussed Poland's dire economic problems with Prime Minister Mieczyslaw F. Rakowski.

Mrs. Thatcher also met privately with academics and businessmen who are pressing for a greater role for private enterprise. State enterprises dominate Poland.

In brief public remarks afterwards, Mrs. Thatcher described the meeting at the British Embassy as "absolutely wonderful."

U.S. concerned at Soviets bringing missiles to Kabul

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The arrival of at least two new Soviet missiles in Kabul has raised U.S. concern about Pakistan's security and whether there will be a delay in the second stage of the Red Army's withdrawal from Afghanistan.

The SS-1 Scud rockets were displayed in the Afghan capital after Undersecretary of State Michael H. Armacost complained to Soviet Ambassador Yuri V. Dubinin on Monday about sending long-range TU26 Backfire bombers into combat there for the first time.

The Soviets are backing the Afghan government against U.S.-armed rebels in a war that has raged for nearly nine years. On Aug. 15, the Soviets completed the pullout of more than half the 100,000 troops that had fought alongside the pro-Moscow government.

The remaining troops must depart by Feb. 15 under an agreement signed in Geneva last spring. The Soviets hinted recently that the second stage would begin Nov. 15. But a U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said that might be delayed.

He also said the United States would see to it that the rebels had an "adequate" arsenal, although missiles to match the Scuds probably would not be provided through Pakistan.

Two Scud-B missiles, which have the range of about 175 miles, were displayed in Kabul, the official said.

It was not clear whether the Soviets delivered more of them, which are mobile and can reach the Pakistani frontier as well as vast areas of Afghanistan.

"It's clearly intended to intimidate Pakistan," the official said. U.S. weapons to the guerrillas are delivered through Pakistan, which also has given sanctuary to millions of Afghan refugees.

The Afghan news agency, in a dispatch Tuesday, accused Pakistan of instigating attacks by "extremist" guerrillas on population centers and demilitarized areas.

"This is why a new kind of weapon, mainly long-range missiles with a great destructive power, was adopted for service by the Afghan army," the Afghan general staff said.

"The missiles will be used to stop the criminal activities of the extremist group," the dispatch added, without referring specifically to the Scud-B.

Gennady Gerasimov, the spokesman for the Soviet foreign ministry, said at a news conference last month in New York that Pakistan's support for the rebels could have "unpredictable" consequences.

"We don't want to be specific," he said. But he left open the possibility that the withdrawal of Soviet troops might be suspended.

State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman cautioned Moscow on Tuesday that the United States was determined to protect Pakistan.

"If the purpose of these latest military developments is to threaten Pakistan, the Soviet Union knows that Pakistan enjoys our full support in this situation," he said.

The version of the Scud the Soviets are believed to have provided to the Afghan forces is a mobile rocket, 37 feet long, 34 inches in diameter, and weighing 14,000 pounds. The Scud has a simple guidance system, uses liquid fuel, and can be equipped with either a nuclear or high-explosive conventional warhead.

"This action," Redman said, "calls into question the Soviets' stated desire to achieve a genuine political settlement in Afghanistan and their undertakings to us not to engage in offensive actions. This display is only the latest attempt by the Soviets to prop up a desperate regime which lacks legitimacy among the Afghan people and clearly demonstrates that the regime is incapable of defending itself."

Soviets have been in the red for 10 years

By MARK J. PORUBCANSKY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Finance Minister Boris Gostev said Wednesday that the Soviet national budget has been in the red for the past decade, and that the deficit was "critically large" in the mid-1980s before beginning to drop.

Gostev's revelation at a news conference came just days after the Supreme Soviet passed a 494 billion ruble ($795 billion) 1989 budget with a 34 billion ruble ($55 billion) deficit.

In presenting that budget, Gostev acknowledged for the first time that the Soviet Union had a budget deficit.

"I'd say it's been in existence for about 10 years. It was extremely large, critically large, in the last years of the previous five-year plan period," Gostev told reporters.

He said the deficit then was 37 billion rubles ($59 billion).

"For the first time we have clearly stated that a deficit exists," Gostev said. "We cannot live with a budget deficit. So we'll try to get rid of it during the year."

He said economic managers would try to trim $40 billion from the budget, cut down on administration and get money-losing state businesses, 24,000 of which are bankrupt, to turn a profit.

Western analysts said Monday they think the Soviet budget deficit is larger than officials have said, and may threaten Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's reforms.

Jan Vanous, who develops models of the Soviet economy for the Washington firm PlanEcon, estimated the deficit at 65 billion rubles to 75 billion rubles ($104 billion to $120 billion) each in 1987 and 1988.

Yuri Maslyukov, the chairman of the State Planning Committee and an alternate member of the ruling Politburo, told the news conference that the Soviet economy has inflation of 0.9 percent to 1.5 percent.

Maslyukov said wages have risen faster than labor productivity.

"We have more money than we have goods. That's why the shelves in the stores are empty," he said.

Some economic analysts say cheap consumer goods are hard to find in the Soviet Union because of the system of setting prices.

Since producers are not free to raise prices gradually on their goods, they stop manufacturing them and replace them with more expensive products on which they can make a profit.

Showing a profit has become increasingly important as Gorbachev pushes reforms requiring local managers to account for profits and losses.

But Maslyukov said officials were not considering eliminating government control over prices.

Maternity, adoption workshop scheduled

The National Committee for Adoption is sponsoring a conference and workshop on the practice of maternity care and adoption in Lubbock at the Lubbock Plaza Hotel and Convention Center on Nov. 14 and 15.

Co-sponsoring and coordinating the conference is the Smithlawn Maternity Home and Adoption Agency of Lubbock, a benevolent service of the Smithlawn Church of Christ and other churches across the area.

This will be a "kickoff" for National Adoption Week, beginning Nov. 20.

Dr. William "Bill" Pierce of the NCFCA from Washington, D.C., will be the keynote speaker.

Mary Gall, chairman for the White House task force on adoption, will be the luncheon speaker on Nov. 15 and will present the latest findings and accomplishments of the task force.

Marietta Spencer from St. Paul, Minn., will conduct a workshop after the West Texas Barbecue on post-legal adoptive services. This should be of special interest to all adoptive parents and adopted persons, organizers said.

Other co-sponsors are Texas Tech University Department of Sociology, Social Welfare Division, Lubbock Christian University Department of Social Work, Edna Gladney Center of Fort Worth and New Mexico Christian Children's Home of Portales, N.M.

CEU's (credit earned units) will be available. This conference will be of interest to all those concerned with teen-age pregnancy, social workers, church officials, health service practitioners, educators, and those working and volunteering in social services should attend.

For further information contact Smithlawn Maternity Home at 806-745-2574.

Non-OPEC oil producers plan Texas meeting

DALLAS (AP)—A Texas Railroad Commission member is planning a meeting of non-OPEC oil producing nations and states next week but has yet to get any response on who will attend.

The proposed meeting's organizer, Railroad Commissioner Kent Hance, has not heard whether any of the officials he invited will show up in Austin Nov. 10, an aide said.

"Hopefully by Friday we'll have a much better idea," Glen Hunt, Hance's administrative assistant, said.

Hunt said staffers in Hance's office decided Monday to set the Nov. 10 meeting date after leaders of the invited nations and states found it difficult to determine when most could attend.

Invited to the meeting were 10 oil-producing nations, a Canadian province and nine states, Hunt said.

On Oct. 11, letters proposing the meeting were sent to non-OPEC nations. Most of the countries had been invited to a meeting in Vienna, Austria, in April by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Non-OPEC countries invited to the Texas gathering include Angola, China, Egypt, England, Columbia, Norway, Oman, Malaysia, Mexico and Canada. Also invited was the Canadian province of Ontario, along with states of Wyoming, Texas, Alaska, California, Colorado, Louisiana, New Mexico, North Dakota and Oklahoma.

"Due to the current developments in the price of oil and OPEC interest in cooperation from non-OPEC producers, I feel it is imperative that the non-OPEC producing countries meet to discuss the strategic considerations surrounding the future of our industry and respective economies," said Hance's letter. "Price stabilization is an issue which will not disappear until we take action," said the letter.

The meeting should come before OPEC convenes Nov. 21 in Vienna, said Hance.

He was appointed by Gov. Bill Clements last year to a seat on the Railroad Commission, which oversees the oil and gas industry in Texas. Hance has since made highly publicized trips to OPEC meetings.

Hance, who said major financial institutions send representatives to the sessions, contends that states such as Texas should also have officials there.

United Way vital to our community

To the editor:
Pampa United Way is such an important part of the community. It's so vital to the 14 agencies that are helped through the Pampa United Way. Some of our agencies receive matching government funds based upon how much funds they can get from the United Way. A couple of our agencies rely completely upon United Way funds. But in these depressed times, all of our agencies are in a great need for the funds from United Way.

There are literally thousands of people in this community who are helped by United Way's agencies. These are people who would fall through the cracks and find themselves in a desperate and helpless situation with no help in sight. Please open your hearts and send your contributions to Pampa United Way today. We need Pampa's support in order to make a difference in our community. Send your donations today to P.O. Box 2076, Pampa, TX 79006.

Thank you for helping those less fortunate than yourself. The donations already received are greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
Katrina Brigham

United Way giving an 'easy decision'

To the editor:
Giving to the United Way has always been an easy decision for me to make. I see my dollars working every day right here in this community, knowing that 90 cents out of every dollar goes directly to the 14 agencies that provide essential services to people here. It would be difficult to find a person in Pampa who has not been helped in some way by one of these United Way agencies.

It is exciting to see hundreds of volunteers working together each year to raise money for these non-profit organizations. If you have not been involved, you are missing something. Let's face it, it is a practical way to give — one generous gift goes a long way! If you have not made your contribution yet this year, please do it now.

Why should I give to the United Way?

To the editor:
Why should I give to the United Way? This is a question I ask myself each year at this time. My co-workers approached me with the same question. This sparked some genuine curiosity as to what the United Way was really about. After an investigation on my part, this is what I found.

Had it not been for United Way funding, my activities as a young Boy Scout, the elderly's Meals on Wheels, the Red Cross and Salvation Army, Tralee Crisis Center, South Side Senior Citizen's, Community Day Care, or the schooling for the mentally handicapped and many other organizations too numerous to mention may not have been made possible.

As you can see, the United Way touches each of our lives at one time or another. So we should all do our part to give back a small portion of what we receive.

I encourage each and everyone of you to give so that these organizations may continue benefitting all of us and our community.

City, school have qualified leaders

To the editor:
I appreciate the letter from Betty and Doug Beyer in the Oct. 23 issue of The Pampa News, giving a fair and true appraisal of Dr. Harry Griffith and Bob Hart.

We should be proud and thankful to have such fine and highly qualified people serving as our city manager, city commissioners, school superintendent and school board trustees as we have here in Pampa.

I detest the "Name Withheld" letters. It's like they are looking through a glass and can see others, but can't be seen. I certainly vote for a "strictly limited" policy on this issue.

Thank you,

Won't even read 'Name Withheld'

To the editor:
You have written that you would be interested in knowing how your readers feel about withholding names when publishing Letters To The Editor. I'll repeat what I wrote to you Dec. 23, 1986: "I question the wisdom of publishing letters with names withheld. In my opinion, they are unfair, cowardly, and not creditable. For these reasons, I will no longer read them." Since then, I have not read a single one.

Could street money pay off settlement?

To the editor:
Perhaps the city of Pampa could do well by reading an article on Page 2 of the Oct. 20 Pampa News. The article tells of an incident involving a 77-year-old man who died from a broken neck after his bicycle struck a pothole in a San Antonio street, flipped over and threw him off. Jurors awarded $280,000 to the widow and the youngest daughter of the deceased.

With streets known as the "worst in the Panhandle," it's a wonder there hasn't been a serious injury or death caused by them.

Could Pampa end up paying street money that doesn't go toward repairs, but toward settlement?

Why use Oliver?

To the editor:
I cannot believe the Republican party has Oliver North on the campaign trail — talking against Bentsen — also begging for money for his defense.

Why don't they use the money in the Swiss bank instead of taking from the American people?

Also, about Sarpalio voting on the sales tax: At least everyone pays taxes if they buy anything. It is a fair tax.

The other sides of conservatives

To the editor — and fellow citizens:
As the presidential campaign comes to a close, I would like to take issue with the so-called "conservatives."

The "law and order conservatives" want the crooks off the street — provided these criminals are not their good friends such as Richard Nixon, Edwin Meese, Lyn Nofziger, and many others. These people are quick to criticize Governor Dukakis for a furlough program instituted by a former Republican governor of Massachusetts. They fail to mention that forty out of fifty states, as well as the federal government, have similar programs. Governor Clements, when questioned about the Texas furlough program, claimed ignorance, a typical Republican tactic.

The "strong defense conservatives" want to build every conceivable weapon despite cost. Dwight Eisenhower warned the nation of the greed of the military industrial complex. Yet, despite his warning, the Republicans brush aside the Pentagon procurement scandal and the fact that many defense contractors charge outrageous prices. The strategic defense initiative serves as the perfect example of a weapons system these Republicans are willing to spend billions of dollars to develop and give to the Soviets, as Reagan himself proposed. The U.S. spends the money and the Soviet Union steals the weapon. For example, recently investigators found Soviet spies have had access to our nuclear plants.

The "budgetary conservative" Ronald Reagan promised in 1980 that he would balance the budget by 1982. The "conservative" certainly was liberal with our money, running up a deficit larger than the combined deficits from George Washington to Jimmy Carter.

Lastly, "patriotic conservatives" are outraged that Dukakis overturned the law that would have fined and possibly imprisoned school teachers who did not lead their classes in the Pledge of Allegiance. How in this free country can government force teachers to lead the class in a loyalty oath? That smacks of fascism.

Differences exist between the parties

To the editor:
There are people who have "convinced themselves" that there is no "real" difference between the Republican Party and the Democratic Party. When the philosophical differences of each party are reviewed, one will find considerable disparity between the two.

The Republican Party stands for our "Capitalistic-Free Enterprise" society and believes that this system of government will grow and flourish with minimum interference by government controls and restrictions. The market system will, by competition, regulate itself for the benefit of the entrepreneur and the people. To interfere with the competitive pricing system system, as was done by setting artificial price controls on the "well-head" value of gas or oil produced, will result in shortages and eventually higher costs to the consumer.

The Republican Party believes "there is no free lunch." Dollars spent by the government must eventually be repaid by the consumer, by direct taxes or by higher costs of goods that includes the taxes imposed on the business. To "soak" big businesses does not relieve the consuming public from still paying "the tax." The Republican Party believes that elected officials are "stewards" of our limited resources, including the dollars, and should be held responsible for the proper use and investment of these resources.

The Democratic Party, since the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt when the Keynesian economic theory was adopted, believe there is an "unlimited" supply of money for social programs that will "help" the people (and "help" get votes).

One of the tenets of the Democrats is to "spend the money" and increase taxes to cover the costs, particularly "soak the rich and big businesses," neglecting the fact that dollars collected from these sources are dollars not available in the capital market to create new jobs. Generally, the Democratic Party's solution to all "social ills" is to increase "government spending." One of the main problems of this economic theory is that costs are added to government, but none are ever deleted.

This is a comparison of the Republican Party and the Democratic Party relating to economics. There is just as broad a difference between the two parties' social issues, defense, foreign relations, individual initiative, etc., as there is relative to the economic issues.

It's time to cast our votes again!

To the editor:
"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity..." And so goes the classic opening lines of Charles Dickens' A Tale of Two Cities.

We are confronted with the suspension of time held between the realm of paradox. Somewhere between the best of times and the worst of times lies the realm of reality.

The story itself was couched around the terrible times of the French Revolution, a time that held great fears for Dickens as a child. He was, however, able to come to see it "not only as a great event in the life of a state, but also as one that touched very closely the personal lives of individual men and women." Dickens was "more concerned with people than with nations, with personal joy and sorrow than with national triumphs or tragedy." That is what we must all be about.

I refuse to let the worst of times be my worldview. I intend to let the "worst of times" be the threshold against which I work to produce a positive frame of reference. I think this is what the people in this "little hamlet" have been about. The City Commission, the Commissioners' Court, and the citizens themselves have been dealing with hard decisions, trying to come up with what is best for our "hamlet." I salute them! They are working together, voicing opinions and casting votes trying to come up with solutions that are best for all. Rugged individualism only works for a person when it finds commitment in a higher cause.

We are approaching one of those acts which has been bought at a high price, historically speaking... the act of voting in a Democratic society. We are a people called out in affirmation. We stand and salute our flag and affirm our nation. We kneel on Sunday and affirm our faith in God and the Church. We are a people "gathered." But, on Monday of every week, we go out into the marketplace to "confirm" our commitments. We do a physical act in order to secure a spiritual one. If we are an involved people in the process of our government, we can do no other. Affirmation cannot exist without confirmation or vice versa.

On Nov. 8 we will be a people called out to vote the convictions of our affirmations and in the process we become a confirmed people — doing serious business! Vote — it is a privilege. Help to keep this privilege alive! As long as we do this, demagogues, tyrants or super-egos will have no place in our system. We will see them for what they are!

Affirm in order to Confirm!! Vote — November 8th! See you at the polls!

Hospitals urged to achieve tobacco-free status

AUSTIN — Texas hospitals have been urged to achieve a tobacco-free environment by Sept. 1, 1989. The policy was adopted recently by the Texas Hospital Association Board of Trustees in a unanimous decision.

The board recognizes the hazards associated with smoking and the need for hospitals to provide clean and safe environments in which to deliver health care services.

"Our mission is dedicated to enhancing members' abilities to serve health care needs of people in Texas," said Terry Townsend, CAE, THA's president/chief executive officer.

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, M.D., has declared that smoking is "the chief, single, avoidable cause of death in our society and the most important public health issue of our time."

Smoking is also responsible for the majority of all hospital fires, according to a report by the American Health Medical Association's Council on Scientific Affairs.

"Texas hospitals want to serve as role models in promoting the concepts of disease prevention and maintenance of good health," said Townsend.

Representing more than 80 percent of the state's hospitals, the Texas Hospital Association is one of the largest state hospital associations in the United States.

Based in Austin, the trade association represents the collective interests of its members regarding public policy and serves as the advocate for legislative and regulatory issues affecting the health care industry.

Notice to Texas customers of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed tariff revisions October 3, 1988, with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) that would increase the FCC Approved Customer Line Charge 60 cents per month for residence and single line business customers.

In addition, Centrex customers with lines installed or ordered before July 28, 1983, will incur a $1.00 increase bringing their monthly charge to $5.00. New rates would be effective December 1, 1988.

This charge is part of a plan authorized by the FCC in 1984 and designed so that business and residence customers would more directly contribute toward the cost of providing local telephone service.

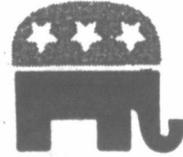

In the past, these increases have resulted in a decrease in interstate long distance charges. Some additional proposed decreases in interstate long distance charges also have been announced.

If you have any questions, contact your local business office at the number listed in the front of your White Pages directory.

THE ELEPHANT SPEAKS

A few days ago I was amused to see an ad on the television by the Democrats indicating that we Republicans were responsible for the extreme increase in state taxes over these past two years. The ad continued with the statement that we should vote Democratic so this wouldn't happen again. Now, who do they think they're kidding? We voters here in Gray County are well aware that the legislature in this state writes the tax increases. We're also aware that we Republicans have never held a majority in the legislature so how could we be responsible for tax increases?

Let's vote Republican November 8th, gain control of the state legislature, and then if they want to blame us for prosperity in this state, we will gladly accept their blame.

Dad's reappearance starts new battle in old family fight

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-year-old, happily married woman with three children. I've been married for 20 years. My parents divorced when I was 10 years old because my father ran around and left my mother many times for other women. Mom finally divorced him and he moved out of state.

Now, after 30 years, Dad has come back into my life. He has told me how sorry he is for his past actions, and I believe he is sincere. He says he wants to know his grandchildren before he dies. We've been keeping in touch lately. He still lives out of state and has never remarried. He's almost 70 now and is not in the best of health.

My mother found out, and she blew up. She wants me to promise that I will never speak to him again. I've tried to explain that Dad is sorry, and I do care about him.

Mom says she feels betrayed and hurt. I don't want to hurt her, but why can't I be friends with both of them? Or shouldn't I be friends with my father because of the way he treated Mom and me?

Please help me with this heavy problem.

CAUGHT IN BETWEEN

DEAR CAUGHT: Your mother is understandably hurt, but she's unfair to demand that you never speak to your father again. You have the right to be friends with your parents, and I commend you for forgiving your father and allowing him to know his grandchildren.

If your mother chooses not to be friendly with you, it will then be her decision, but she should not force you to choose between your father and her. How much happier you mother would be if she, too, would put aside her bitterness. People do change, and should not be punished a lifetime for mistakes they may have made during their younger and more thoughtless, selfish years.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My father drowns himself in cologne after he shaves. He insists that cologne and after-shave lotion are the same thing, and he applies cologne by the handful!

My brothers, sisters, our mother and I have spoken about this, and believe me, we didn't mince any words. Dad is a high-level retail manager, and I'm sure his supervisors are too polite to tell him he stinks and his subordinates are afraid to.

Perhaps if you print this, Dad will see it and cut back on the cologne.

HOLDING MY BREATH IN TENNESSEE

DEAR HOLDING: Here's

your letter. I hope it clears the air.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the subject of inheritance and all the problems it can cause, I have informed my mother to spend it! Why should parents sacrifice vacations or certain material things they have wanted in order to leave money to their children?

I say, if you don't do what you want in this lifetime, when are you going to do it?

If my mother wants to leave me something, I'll take her nicked-up, well-used family dining table, or my grandmother's handmade quilt she gave my mother. No amount of money can replace these items that hold so many childhood memories.

JOY IN FAIRFIELD, OHIO

DEAR JOY: Beautiful! (You were aptly named.)

DEAR ABBY: I liked your answer to "56 and Still Learning" on how to measure success. I would like to offer still another description of success:

"A successful man is one who can lay a firm foundation with the bricks others have thrown at him."

Did you know that Charles Goodnight, a rancher in the Texas Panhandle, invented the chuck wagon? Or that the historical marker for the Panhandle's XIT Ranch, once the largest ranch in the world, is a saddle?

These tidbits and much more can be found in The Book of Texas Bests, by Kirk Dooley, himself a native Texan. Trivia lovers will have a field day delving into the book's 10 sections on history, food and drink, the arts, sports, civic pride, annual events, shopping, people, on the road and "nowhere else but..."

Unfortunately, there are few other references to the Panhandle in the book, and not all of them are complimentary. Dooley's style and opinions echo those of Texas Monthly magazine, and neither of them are enthusiastic about this area of the state.

Some of Dooley's "bests" are objective and undisputable; others are open for discussion; and still others are entirely up to the individual's opinions and preferences. Personal tastes may differ on Dooley's choices for the best place in the state to eat barbecue, for example, or the best dentist.

A few other "bests" to be found in the Panhandle include best song by George Strait ("Amarillo By Morning"), best Blarney stone (at Shamrock), best discontinued annual event (Mother-in-Law's Day was once celebrated in Amarillo during the first week in March), best eccentric (Stanley Marsh 3 of Amarillo), best highway art (Marsh's Cadillac

"My philosophy is you've got to take care of yourself," Ryan said. "There are no benefits to smoking or using tobacco, but plenty of good reasons to quit. The Great American Smokeout is a chance for smokers to take care of themselves, and get some sup-distances for treatment," Rau said.

The American Cancer Society is working with 14 hotels and motels who have agreed to participate in the program. Qualified patients stay in only one hotel which is selected on a rotating basis.

"Cancer patients undergoing radiation therapy may need up to six weeks of housing," said Rau. "The hotels have been very generous to donate the rooms for the needed time period."

BOOK REVIEW

Ranch on I-40 near Amarillo), best ranch name (Marsh's Toad Hall) and best cattle auction (Amarillo edged out the Fort Worth Stockyards).

One arguable entry is on the best bet. Dooley recounts the story of the Four 6 Ranch, in which Samuel Burk Burnett supposedly won the ranch in a poker game with a hand of four sixes. This tale is widely told but hotly contested.

Other Panhandle features are ignored, such as Miami's annual cow calling contest, although Sweetwater's rattlesnake roundup and Turkey's Bob Wills Day earned a mention.

Still, the book is entertaining, with some downright frivolous entries — best visitor from outer space, best reason God made Colorado, best egg collector, best place to make out and best doo-stop.

Some interesting and more down-to-earth facts in the book are Dallas secretary Bette Grahm's invention of Liquid Paper. Her son is Michael Nesmith of the Monkees, a pop rock group that had its own TV show in the '60s. Texans also invented condensed milk and the Weed Eater, and a non-Texan invented the silicon chip while working for Texas Instruments in Dallas.

Famous Texans in the book include Dr. Pepper of Waco, father of the girlfriend of the man who invented the soft drink; PBS newsman Bill Moyers; Ginger Rogers (originally Virginia McMath) of Fort Worth; Janis Joplin of Port Arthur; Gene Autry of Tioga; Roy Rogers; John Denver, alias Henry John Deutchendorf, who attended Texas Tech University; Jerry Hall of Mesquite, Mick Jagger's current mate; Sissy Spacek of Quitman; Farrah Fawcett of Corpus Christi; Jaclyn Smith of Houston; Carol Burnett, San Antonio; Morgan Fairchild, formerly Patsy McClenny, of Dallas; and Roy Orbison of Wink.

But wait! There's more! Did you know that Lyndon Baines Johnson recorded a duet, "Dogs Have Always Been My Friends," with his dog Yuki? Or that the movie Benji was filmed in McKinney? What about the original title of the book that became the movie Hud? (It's Horseman, Pass By by Larry McMurtry.) Another McMurtry tale, Terms of Endearment, was filmed in Houston.

There's a little bit of everything included in The Book of Texas Bests, and whether or not you agree with Dooley's picks, there's bound to be something in the book that you didn't already know. It has brought together some of the best reasons why Texans are known for their bragging.

Astros' Ryan to chair state's Great American Smokeout

Houston Astros pitcher Nolan Ryan will break in a new "pitch" this fall as Texas' honorary chairman for the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout.

Ryan, who holds the major league strike out record, will try to help the Society strikeout smoking during this year's observance of the annual moratorium on smoking.

The Great American Smokeout is sponsored by the American Cancer Society each year on the Thursday before Thanksgiving to encourage tobacco users to set aside their cigarettes, pipes, cigars, snuff and chewing tobacco for 24 hours. This year's Smokeout, Nov. 17, is the 12th anniversary of the national day off from smoking and tobacco use.

"My philosophy is you've got to take care of yourself," Ryan said. "There are no benefits to smoking or using tobacco, but plenty of good reasons to quit. The Great American Smokeout is a chance for smokers to take care of themselves, and get some support while they're doing it," he added.

Ryan has pitched for major league teams for 22 years, and has been with the Astros for eight years. He won his 100th game for the Astros this season and recently published his autobiography, Throwing Heat.

Ryan is featured in a 30-second television public service announcement to be distributed statewide this month.

"The Great American Smokeout has a successful batting average, and I respect that," he said.

"I hope my participation will help maintain that success."

Last year, according to a Gallup survey, 19.6 million American smokers participated in the Smokeout by quitting or cutting down for the day. The Society hopes at least one in five of the nation's 50 million smokers will make the attempt this year.

"We're delighted that a sports figure of Nolan Ryan's caliber is getting behind our effort," said Jim McLean, RN, chairman of the American Cancer Society's Smokeout campaign in Texas.

"There's no question he's a hero to young people and baseball fans, and we hope they will follow his example of a smoke-free, healthy lifestyle," McLean said. For more information about the Great American Smokeout, or for tips on how to quit smoking, call 1-800-ACS-2345.

Hotels donate rooms for cancer patients

AMARILLO — The Amarillo Unit of the American Cancer Society, in conjunction with Amarillo hotels and motels, is helping to meet the lodging needs of cancer patients.

The Guestroom Program is a cooperative effort that provides complimentary housing for needy cancer patients and their family members who come to Amarillo from the outlying areas of the Texas Panhandle, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas for treatment, according to David Rau, volunteer chairman of the Guestroom Program.

"The program was designed to ease the physical, emotional and financial hardships that occur when a patient has to travel great distances for treatment," Rau said.

The American Cancer Society is working with 14 hotels and motels who have agreed to participate in the program. Qualified patients stay in only one hotel which is selected on a rotating basis.

"Cancer patients undergoing radiation therapy may need up to six weeks of housing," said Rau. "The hotels have been very generous to donate the rooms for the needed time period."

A review committee evaluates each case to ensure proper placement and need. Two days' advance notice is required to coordinate placement with the participating hotel.

Hotels and motels participating in the ACS Guestroom Program include the Amarillo Hilton, Big Texan Inn, Camelot Inn, Days Inn, Fifth Seasons Inn East, Fifth Seasons Inn West, Hampton Inn, Howard Johnson's East, La Quinta Inn-Coulter, La Quinta Inn-Amarillo Medical Center, Los Cuartos Inn, Quality Inn Westgate and the Sheraton Amarillo Hotel and Towers.

Patients interested in utilizing this program may contact the American Cancer Society at 353-4306.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be more influential today if you don't broadcast your intentions where your work is concerned. Do what needs doing and let deeds speak for themselves.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In dealings with others today your greatest benefits are likely to come from situations where you subdue your own interests in order to do what is best for the group.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Focus your efforts and attention today on meaningful objectives. You have the wherewithal to fulfill your intentions if you're determined enough to do so.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you'll back up your words with deeds. This will not only please your friends, it will make you proud of yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take a hard look at situations that could provide you with additional income. There is a strong possibility you might be able to plug into a worthwhile side venture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not discount your mate's ideas today until they have been given a chance to prove themselves. Strive to be open-minded and supportive instead of critical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to catch up on any work you've neglected recently. You're in a productive cycle and tasks that you undertake can be completed to your satisfaction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A contact you've made socially may shortly be playing an important role in your personal affairs. This person's input will be constructive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although it will take some serious discussion, a family problem can be resolved at this time if all of the parties concerned are willing to work on it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to advance your present plans you might have to be a trifle more assertive today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Favorable changes are stirring where your finances are concerned, but these moves are likely to be more subtle than obvious. Something could transpire today.

Ditka suffers heart attack

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Doctors say the next several days will tell how soon Mike Ditka will be allowed to resume his coaching duties after suffering a mild heart attack at the Chicago Bears' training facility.

Nursing supervisor Joan Miteff said early today that Ditka's condition remained unchanged from Wednesday — serious but stable.

But Ditka's wife Diana told reporters, "he's doing fantastic," after she left Lake Forest Hospital Wednesday afternoon. "He's too ornery," she said.

"Barring anything unforeseen, we expect him to recover nicely," Dr. Jay Alexander, a cardiologist, said Wednesday. "The next several days will tell us how quickly we'll let him get back on the field."

Ditka, 49, complained of chest pains early Wednesday after his daily workout, assistant coaches said. They brought Ditka to the hospital, and he was alert and conscious when he got there shortly after 8:30 a.m., Alexander said.

Ditka will require hospitalization for at least five to seven days, Alexander said. He said the coach was given medicine to open a blocked artery, and the chest pains stopped when the medication was given.

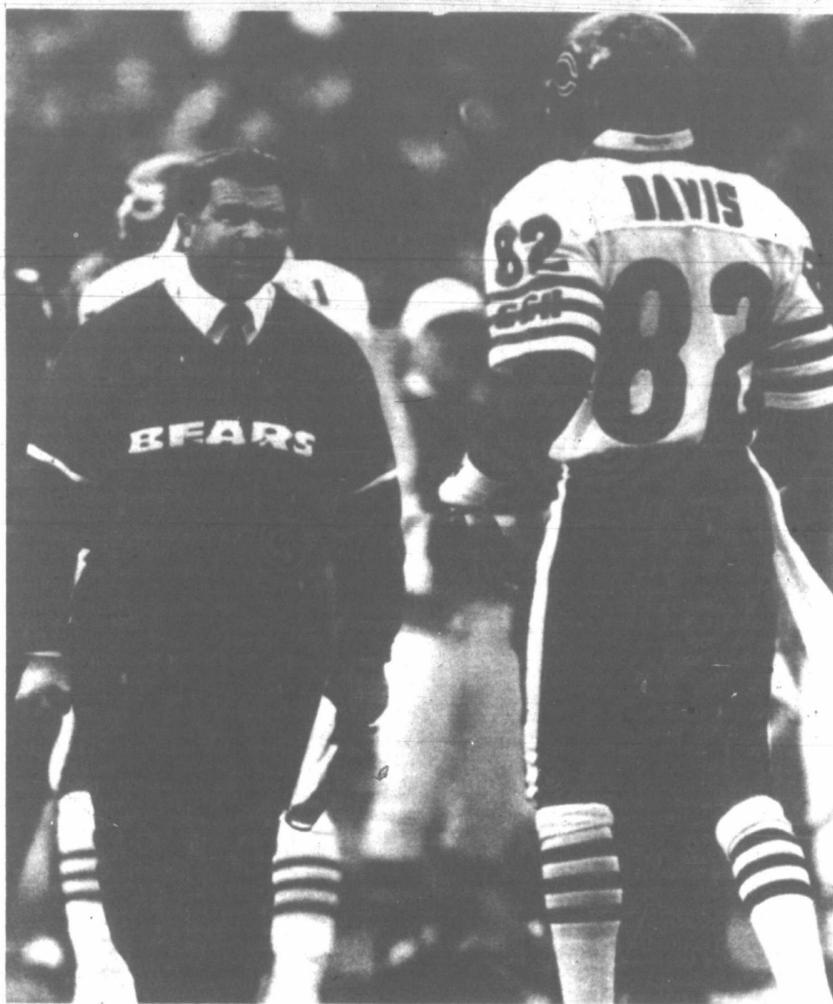

Alexander said the area of Ditka's heart involved in the attack appeared to be extremely small and confined to the bottom wall of the heart.

The cardiologist also said he did not believe Ditka's workout caused the heart attack.

"It would have happened anyway," he said.

Bears president Michael McCaskey said he would name an acting head coach later in the week.

In keeping with his reputation for being headstrong — both as an NFL coach and player — McCaskey said Ditka resisted the first attempts by the coaches to get medical attention, but finally agreed to go to the hospital.

Bears' coach Mike Ditka is listed in serious but stable condition. (AP Laserphoto)

Co-workers, family members and team players all said they hoped Ditka would be back on his feet soon.

"Mike Ditka has been the person that brings this team together," said Emery Moorehead, who plays Ditka's old position of tight end.

"Obviously, we want to have a big win on Sunday ... and show coach Ditka that we can win the game the way we should have done last week."

The Bears, 7-2 after a 30-7 loss to the New England Patriots last weekend, host the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 2-7, on Sunday.

McCaskey said a game plan for Sunday was nearly completed. Ditka increasingly has turned over play-calling responsibilities to offensive coordinator Ed Hughes and his defensive counterpart, Vince Tobin.

Harvesters in spoiler's role

Although the Pampa Harvesters are out of the playoff picture, they could spoil things for Frenship with a win Friday night.

Tigers' coach Bobby Davis doesn't like that no-lose situation.

"We have to win to stay in contention and Pampa scares me. They're a much improved football team and from what I've seen of them, they're very well-coached and very well-disciplined."

Davis has reason to be worried. The Harvesters are on a two-game roll with convincing victories over Dunbar (31-21) and Randall (50-23). Frenship was stopped cold by Hereford 35-6 last week.

"We played bad last Friday night and we can't afford another letdown," Davis added.

The Tigers, however, haven't had too many letdowns this season. After losing their first two games, the Tigers went on a five-game losing tear which included a 19-14 win over mighty Estacado. Frenship is currently tied with Levelland for first in District 1-4A while Hereford and Estacado are breathing right down their necks. The four teams have only one loss each while Hereford and Estacado are saddled with one tie game apiece.

The Harvesters are in a position to do some real damage Friday night.

"We can throw things into a real quagmire with a Pampa victory," Cavalier said. "The players want to continue their winning ways and I feel like they're going to go down there and play a football game."

Frenship, however, features a high-rolling offense with strong-armed quarterback Kevin McCullough at the helm. Wide receiver Jeff Mankins is McCullough's primary receiver while 190-pound tailback Jerry Newsome is a relentless pounder of defenses.

"The catalyst of their offense is McCullough, who has thrown for over 1,200 yards. He has a variety of receivers, but Mankins is the main one," Cavalier said.

Newsome, who runs a 4.6 40, has rushed for 823 yards and has scored 11 touchdowns in eight games. Newsome came to Frenship from New Jersey last year when his Air Force father was transferred to the Lubbock area.

"Newsome is another of the district's outstanding backs which we see week in and week out," Cavalier said. "Frenship has some other good players, but these three (McCullough, Mankins and Newsome) are the main attraction," Cavalier said.

Frenship may have an edge on Pampa in size, but not by much, Cavalier said.

"They're bigger than we are in some spots, but overall there's not much of a difference," added Cavalier.

The biggest of the Tigers is 250-pound offensive guard Ben Walton. Brandon Morales, at 230, starts at defensive tackle.

This is the final road game for the Harvesters, who are 3-3 in district play and 3-5 overall.

"Practice has been real good," Cavalier said. "This late in the season we're not doing a lot of physical work. It's more of a mental preparation and learning the game plan."

Middle linebacker Mike Cagle, who suffered an ankle injury in the Dunbar game, returns to the lineup.

However, offensive guard Mark Eulse is out for the season. Eulse, who has been bothered by a knee injury, was alternating at guard with Scott Lucas.

"Mark was a tremendous leader and we're really going to miss him," Cavalier said.

Cade Phillips and Rob Munson have been moved up from the junior varsity to help spell Lucas on the offensive line.

Friday night's kickoff is at 7:30 p.m. in Frenship.

Tryouts set for girls basketball

The Pampa Optimist Club will have girls' basketball tryouts from 5:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. tonight at the Optimist gym.

The tryouts are for girls in the fourth through sixth grades. Registration fee is $20 and play starts Nov. 19.

McLean — Season of sweet redemption

All games at 7:30 p.m. Friday SILVERTON at MCLEAN The Game of the Week

For the McLean Tigers, 1988 has been a season of sweet redemption.

Following five consecutive winless years in 11-man football, the Tigers moved to the ranks of six-man, where, in the space of three months, they have turned District 2A upside down.

The final showdown is set for Friday night.

The Tigers took sole possession of first place by defeating Higgins 28-22 last week, leaving Silverton and Higgins tied for second place.

A win Friday will award McLean the outright district championship, while a loss would set up a probable three-way tie, necessitating a coin toss to determine which two teams advance to the state playoffs.

For McLean coach Jerry Miller, being at the mercy of the flip of a coin is not a pleasant thought. And the only way to avoid such a situation is to come up with a victory on Friday.

"It will be a replay of last week," Miller said. "It's gonna be a tough one, and it's kind of hard to get up two weeks in a row like that."

In the game against Higgins, McLean's defense allowed only 22 points, the least number that the Coyotes have scored all season. The Tigers outdistanced Higgins in rushing yardage by a margin of 348-106.

Tres Hess accounted for 150 yards of that, while Sid Brass collected 109. They each scored one touchdown. Quinton Brown was effective in his position as quarterback, completing seven of 13 passes for 69 yards and two TDs.

Certainly the McLean offense has had no real trouble scoring this season, although Miller believes that it has improved recently. "Our defense had been playing better than our offense," he said, "but now the offense is beginning to come around. It really couldn't happen at a better time."

The Tigers will need an aggressive attack to battle the Silverton defense, which had several standouts last week against Lefors.

Bradley Brunson made 23 tackles and recovered two fumbles, while Jamie Frizzell recorded 18 tackles, caused four fumbles and snatched an interception. Neal Edwards intercepted two passes and made four tackles, and teammate Will Rowell intercepted one pass and recovered a fumble.

In Stride

By Sonny Bohanan

If that's not enough, the four combined for 265 yards and eight touchdowns on offense.

In terms of points per game, the two squads are almost identical. McLean has scored 270 and allowed 150. Silverton has posted 271 while giving up 148.

Although the Tigers still have a chance for postseason play even if they lose, this is a last-ditch effort for the Owls. It is undoubtedly the biggest District 2A six-man game of the season thus far.

SHAMROCK at CANADIAN

Although the Canadian Wildcats have, for all practical purposes, earned a playoff berth with a second-place finish in District 2-2A, a win over Shamrock Friday night will finalize the postseason picture.

Although this week's matchup is not an especially attractive one for the Irish, head coach Ed Johnson believes that, win or lose, the 1988 season has been a success.

"We set two goals for ourselves this year," he said. "The first was to win our first district game in six years, which we did last week, and the second was not to finish last in the district for the first time in six years. They were realistic goals and we accomplished them both."

Shamrock's win over Clarendon last Friday improved the Irish to 3-6 overall and 1-3 in conference play, one game ahead of the Broncos in the district standings. Tracy Smith paced the Irish with 105 yards and two touchdowns on 21 carries, while Victor Villareal kicked two extra points and a 29-yard field goal.

"The kids learned from that game," Johnson said. "We made some mistakes, but we overcame them and got down there and scored for the first time in three games."

Canadian cannot really afford to look past the Irish. Although unlikely, a couple of conditions could combine on Friday to put Canadian's playoff hopes at the mercy of a coin toss. If Wellington defeats Quannah and at the same time the Irish beat the Wildcats, Canadian would find itself caught in a three-way tie for first place.

"This is the third week in a row that we have to win," Canadian coach Paul Wilson said. "We need to go out and clinch the deal and not count on Quannah beating Wellington."

"We've already gotten over three big hurdles, and the kids know what we need to do. Injuries may knock the continuity of our offense off, but I think we'll play real well."

Wildcat quarterback Shane Lloyd and defensive end Dax Robinett are both questionable for this week due to injuries suffered against Wellington last Friday.

That game, characterized by Wilson as "by far the best game we've played all year," saw running back Colby Butcher gain 177 yards on the ground and score three touchdowns on runs of 4, 55 and 71 yards.

Lloyd completed six of 14 passes for 78 yards and scored once on a one-yard dive.

Johnson knows the Irish have their work cut out for them this week. "Paul Wilson is one of the better coaches in the Panhandle," he said. "He's got a different style, so it affects some of the things we do. They definitely present some problems, so we've got to get ready for them."

WHEELER at FOLLETT The playoff futures of both teams depend upon the outcome of this Friday's District 1-1A showdown.

White Deer has already captured the conference title, although there is still an all-out race for the runner-up spot.

Follett, currently tied with Gruver for second place, stands at 3-1 in loop play, 5-3 overall. The Mustangs' victory last week brought their district record to 2-2, good enough to keep them in third place.

In order to move into a tie for second, Wheeler must win its two remaining regular season games, while Gruver and Follett each must lose at least one game. Even then, the Mustangs will probably have to win a coin toss to advance into postseason play.

"Follett has a lot riding on this game," Wheeler coach Ronnie Karcher said. "I expect them to come out and be ready to play, and they always play well at their place."

"We've got to win our next two, and then we need Follett of Booker to beat Gruver. They're both capable of it."

If the past records of Wheeler and Follett are any indication, this game could go either way. Both were defeated 34-6 by White Deer, and both edged the Booker Kiowas by seven points.

Although Booker outdistanced the Mustangs in total offensive yards, 282-170, Wheeler dropped the Kiowas, 14-7. Chad Bentley, who has 133 tackles for the year, came up with 22 last Friday to lead the defensive attack, followed by Kyle Sword with 16, and Timm Rodgers and Shawn Bradstreet, each with 15.

Shine Guest scored both of Wheeler's touchdowns on runs of 14 and 4 yards, bringing his season totals to 636 yards, seven touchdowns and 89 carries. Shawn Bradstreet has rushed 80 times for 353 yards and two six-pointers, while Michael Kenney has 340 yards and two TDs on 72 totes.

To get past the Panthers, Wheeler will need a performance at least as good as last week's, according to Karcher. "Follett's just as good as Booker," he said. "Offensively, they're a little better, but they're not quite as good defensively."

The Panthers average 176 pounds on the offensive line and 180 on the defensive line, with eight senior starters on either side of the ball.

Wheeler, No. 39 in this week's Harris poll, is a one-point favorite over the 55th-ranked Panthers.

This should be the toughest of the two remaining regular season games for the Mustangs. Both teams have a lot riding on the outcome.

Harvesters set scrimmage

Seniors Greg Fergerson, Jimmy Massick and Billy Wortham (l-r) are expected to make key contributions to the Pampa Harvesters' basketball team this season. The Harvesters have their first scrimmage Saturday in the Amarillo Cappel gym, starting at 10 a.m. Another scrimmage is set for 10:15 a.m. Nov. 12 in McNeely Fieldhouse. The season opener is Nov. 18 at Dalhart.

Rodeo club ends fall season

The Tri-State High School Association Directors Rodeo was held recently in Canadian.

Boy Reames won the saddle bronc riding with a 56. Misty Coleman was seventh in pole bending (22.593) and Keziyah Rucker was seventh in goat tying (13.485).

The Pampa Rodeo Club had three members who placed in the final rodeo of the fall season.

The spring rodeo season begins in March.

Wrestling practice scheduled

Practice for the Pampa Roadrunners wrestling team is scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Thursday from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. in the north end of the Pampa high school fieldhouse.

Boys from the first grade on up are eligible to compete on the wrestling team. Tournaments are scheduled to start Dec. 3 and the season will end March 4 with the state tournament in Amarillo.

A meeting of the Pampa Takedown Club will be held at 7 p.m. tonight in the high school athletic building. The Takedown Club is a parents group which sponsors the Roadrunners. Parents of youngsters interested in joining the wrestling team are invited to attend the meeting.

For more information, contact Manny Holden at 669-1856 or Nancy Fox at 665-4385.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Walt Weiss hated his label as a rookie all season. Now, the slick-fielding shortstop has something to show for it.

third straight winner of the American League Rookie of the Year award.

It's an honor the 24-year-old Weiss never gave a thought to in spring training. After all, he reasoned, Canseco had hit 33 home runs and McGwire 49 in their first seasons.

Weiss followed in the sizable footsteps of Jose Canseco and Mark McGwire on Wednesday in becoming the Oakland Athletics'

Girls 11-12 Freestyle Relay: 2. Jamie Danner Hill (free), Rene Hill (free), Talitha Pope (free) and Heidi Venal (free).

High point plaques were awarded to the top three swimmers in each age group and Pampa swimmers won three of those awards.

In the boys 15-18 age group, Mitchell Haynes won the third-place plaque. In the girls 15-18 age group, Rhea Hill won the first place plaque. In the girls 11-12 age group, Jamie Danner Hill was awarded the second-place plaque.

Stephen Reynard, Amy Guerrero and Chris Thomason are all new swimmers and competed in their first meet. Dolphins coach Bob Hill said they all made a good showing.

Drug penalties sought

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The governing bodies of international sports are being urged to adopt uniform penalties for athletes who use drugs, including a lifetime ban for repeat offenders.

The 22nd annual meeting of the General Association of International Sports Federations was to open three days of talks on sports and medicine today, and the group's president said drugs and how to combat them would take up much of the time.

Among other things, the 72 federations — representing virtually all of the Olympic sports and many events not in the Games — were being urged to join a "harmonization of efforts" that included uniform drug testing and punishment, according to Kim Unyong, the association's president.

"We recognize that drugs are a matter that must be dealt with," Kim said Wednesday.

But Kim also said that threats to drop some sports from the Olympics because of persistent drug abuse were a long way from being implemented. He called the threats "personal feelings" of a few IOC members rather than the views of the committee as a whole.

Pigeon race results

The Top O' Texas Racing Pigeon Club held a young bird series recently with the station at Lamar, Colo.

Players cleared

NEW YORK (AP) — Brent Williams and Tim Goad of the New England Patriots have been cleared of wrongdoing on the play in which Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon suffered an injured knee.

McMahon was injured in the first half of Sunday's 30-7 NFL loss against the Patriots, and will be sidelined at least a month. McMahon was starting his ninth straight game, a personal record.

Chicago coach Mike Ditka claimed that "somebody twisted his knee. It was illegal."

Joe Browne, NFL director of communications, said Wednesday that the league office "reviewed tapes of the network telecast, NFL film footage and the coaches' tapes, and cannot see anything clearly unusual in the play."

Heiress posts Marcos' bail

NEW YORK (AP) — Tobacco heiress Doris Duke will put up the $5 million bail Imelda Marcos needs to return to Hawaii and her husband, deposed Philippine president Ferdinand Marcos, a lawyer said Wednesday.

Donald Robinson, attorney for Miss Duke, said she would post more than $5 million in municipal bonds to secure the bail of Mrs. Marcos, who is charged along with her husband with looting their homeland of more than $100 million.

"It was Miss Duke's idea to help," Robinson said after a hearing before U.S. District Judge John Keenan. Mrs. Marcos made the trip to New York from the couple's home in exile aboard Miss Duke's lavishly-appointed private jet.

"She believes she (Mrs. Marcos) is innocent," said Robinson, adding that Mrs. Marcos would be free to return home once the bonds are posted.

Mrs. Marcos, who has been staying in an $1,800-a-day suite at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, did not attend the court session.

Mrs. Marcos, 59, had been barred by Keenan from returning to her ailing husband and their home in Hawaii, where the couple have lived since their ouster in a popular uprising in 1986, until bail was settled.

Marcos, 71, remained in Hawaii.

Defense attorneys argued last week that he was too frail to make the 10-hour flight. Keenan postponed Marcos' arraignment pending an examination by a government physician.

Robinson said the 75-year-old Miss Duke and Mrs. Marcos were "close personal friends. They talk frequently."

The Marcoses are charged with racketeering, accused of plundering $103 million from the Philippine treasury, funneling it to foreign bank accounts and using it to buy prime New York City real estate and art.

Their eight co-defendants, including Saudi Arabian financier Adnan Khashoggi, remained at large outside the United States, said U.S. Attorney Charles LaBella.

"There are arrest warrants out for all of them," LaBella said.

Vietnam to turn over 21 sets of remains

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam will turn over to the United States at least 21 sets of remains that may be those of Americans missing from the Vietnam War, a U.S. diplomat said Wednesday.

The remains include the two sets that U.S.-Vietnamese teams recovered during last month's unprecedented joint field investigations in northern Vietnam, said Tran Viet Tan, counselor of the Vietnamese Embassy in Bangkok.

Tan said 23 sets would be returned on Thursday, but a U.S. Embassy official who requested anonymity put the number at 21. Sources said Vietnam has given the United States a list of at least nine names associated with the remains.

A U.S. military team is to receive the remains in a ceremony at Noi Bai Airport in Hanoi, Vietnam's capital. They will be loaded onto a military plane for the flight to Honolulu, where an Army laboratory tries to confirm the preliminary analyses done by the Vietnamese.

Today's return would be among the largest since the January 1973 Paris Peace Accords ended U.S. military involvement in the war. The communists defeated the U.S.-backed South Vietnam government in April 1975.

Maj. Dan Trout, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, said that since the Paris accords, the United States has received the identified remains of 196 missing personnel, including 168 from Vietnam, 26 from Laos and two from China. That leaves 2,387 Americans missing in action in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

In August 1987, Vietnam's foreign minister, Nguyen Co Thach, and a special U.S. presidential envoy, retired Gen. John W. Vessey, reached agreement to accelerate cooperation on the MIA issue.

Trout said the United States has identified 25 missing Americans among the 77 remains Vietnam has returned since the agreement. The most recent handover was of 25 remains on July 13.

U.S. officials said they were pleased with the quickened pace of progress on the MIA issue. But Ted Sampley, head of the National Steering Committee for American War Veterans, on Wednesday accused the Vietnamese of using turnovers for political ends.

"They are timing it for the presidential election," he said in a telephone call from the United States. The committee, a private lobbying group, has accused Washington of pursuing only the remains of the dead while covering up purported evidence of Americans still held prisoner in Indochina.

U.S. and Vietnamese experts are winding up their second joint field investigation, Trout said.
