'Last Man' to get his champagne today

By RICH CARTIERE
Associated Press Writer

SAN PABLO, Calif. (AP) — Fifty-six years later, Albert Furrer is finally the last man of The Last Man's Club.

The 96-year-old civic leader today will get that bottle of Mumm's champagne the club bought after the 32 World War I veterans reunited in 1932 and decided they would get together every Veterans Day.

"What else can I say but that I'm here until the end," Furrer said Thursday from his bed at Brookside Hospital, where he had a malignant growth removed this week.

"I came through floods, fires, wars ... my God, you come through it all, and I don't know if it's an honor or a sort of curse," added Furrer, who lives in a nearby nursing home.

"It's rough to see all your friends die off. Old people don't make many new friends."

The champagne bottle, encased in a decorative mahogany box, is in the hands of the family of the club's former secretary-treasurer, Victor Parachini, who died in February at age 89. For the past four years, he and Furrer had been the club's only surviving members. The bottle is signed by the club's original 32.

After all these years, the champagne is mostly a symbolic trophy, having gone sour. A new bottle will accompany it so Furrer can hold the club's final celebration today, Veterans Day, which was called Armistice Day before 1954.

The Last Man's Club was modeled after similar efforts by Revolutionary War veterans to maintain camaraderie, said Furrer. Its members all came from Contra Costa County, across the Bay from San Francisco.

The club's name was derived from the members' intention to leave a sizable endowment to the last surviving member through annual dues. At one point, its coffers held $30,000.

But the money was spent on the Veterans Day parties and on helping members who had fallen on hard times, and the fund dried up about five years ago.

"They were all the kind of fellas you'd be proud to be associated with," Furrer recalled. "It was a great thing when we were all together. It was the kind of deal where we all helped each other."

Furrer, who ran a stationery store for most of his life and served on numerous community boards, remembers the annual club parties as classy evenings of entertainment and food.

Besides those affairs, members attended funerals of deceased members.

The one thing club members never did was talk about the war, said Furrer, explaining that the group didn't want to relive their wartime experiences despite their desire to stay in touch.

Betty Maffei of the Contra Costa County Historical Society will put the Mumm's on display in nearby Pleasant Hill after today's celebration and keep it for posterity.

"I don't think it's exactly an honor to be 'The Last Man,'" said Maffei. "It's something they all laughed about back then, but as the day got closer, I think the survivors stopped laughing as they realized they might be that guy."

Furrer had no tips to offer on how to live a long life.

"God only knows how I made it," he said, laughing. "I never abused myself, but I didn't lead a holy life, either."

Judge rejects motion to drop North charges

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge says he rejected defense motions to dismiss the case against former presidential aide Oliver L. North because they reflected a cynical attempt by the Iran-Contra defendant to put himself above the law.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell wrote that North's arguments for dismissing charges he lied to then-Attorney General Edwin Meese III and destroyed National Security Council documents "reveals a skewed attitude toward our form of constitutional government."

North is accused of obstructing a November 1986 presidential inquiry into the Iran-Contra affair by lying to Meese about diverting U.S.-Iran arms-sale profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

North contends he committed no crime because Meese lacked legal authority to question him.

"Ours is a country governed by the rule of law," Gesell said in his opinion released Thursday. "There is nothing in the Constitution, federal statutes or applicable decisions which warrants this cynical approach. To merely state it provides the response. This court must reject it totally."

In a separate development, the Justice Department touched off a confrontation with independent counsel Lawrence E. Walsh by objecting to a brief he filed in North's case. It said the brief "mischaracterizes basic constitutional principles," but Walsh issued a statement rejecting the accusation.

Gesell said North, in seeking to have the case against him dismissed, was arguing that "he had the absolute right to lie, to obstruct such inquiries, and to remove or destroy official NSC records because he had not been warned that if he did so he might be indicted."

North "fails to appreciate the gravity of his alleged conduct," the judge said.

"North did in fact have fair warning that mendacity and obstruction, coupled with destruction of official documents, was illegal," the judge wrote.

Defense lawyers argued that North couldn't be prosecuted for giving false answers because he wasn't subpoenaed or placed under oath by Meese and that the attorney general's inquiry was not a "pending proceeding" before a government agency.

"If the allegations in the indictment are factually correct, North breached the high public duty with which he was entrusted"

GCAD board hears report on burglary

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Chief Appraiser Pat Bagley reported on an attempted break-in of the Gray County Appraisal District offices to the district's board of directors at their November meeting Thursday.

"Lord knows why. There's no money in here," Bagley commented.

The would-be burglars damaged the building's back door in their attempt to enter the building but were only able to gain entry to the storage room, Bagley told board members.

Damage to the building's back door is estimated at $1,280, he said. The majority of the cost will be covered by insurance, with the exception of the deductible, he added.

"It's silly," Bagley said. "We don't have anything that's marketable to steal and we don't keep any money in here."

Bob Curry asked whether the board would need to make an adjustment to the budget. Bagley said he had wanted to wait until the December meeting to make final amendments to this year's budget so that it will reflect the appraisal district's actual expenditures.

Curry commented that if monthly expenditures continue as they have in recent months, the district should end the year with about $40,000.

"I anticipate (the budget) will turn out as good or better than I said," Bagley said. "We checked on it today and we've spent approximately what we did at this date last year."

Curry also inquired about the district's appraisal of the Hoechst Celanese Chemical Co. plant.

"We'll be in contact with the appraiser we hired (to do the chemical plant's appraisal) within the next two weeks and see when we can tour the plant," Bagley said. "I may tour the plant myself before then," he added.

Appraisal district board members awarded a contract for the plant's appraisal to a special consultant for Lone Star Evaluation in September. The consultant, a petroleum engineer and appraiser from Fort Worth, has extensive knowledge of the Celanese plant and has worked with plant representatives before, Bagley said.

"I think the process of appraisal (of the plant) will center around the first of January," he added.

"I couldn't ask for better cooperation than I get from the local people," Bagley said. "And I think I have a good working relationship with their tax manager."

The only action items on the appraisal board's agenda Thursday were to approve the minutes from the Oct. 13 meeting and to OK expenditures for October. Both items were passed unanimously.

Bush already facing higher deficit estimate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect George Bush has been given the glum news that the budget deficit in the next fiscal year will be $21 billion higher than the Reagan administration had previously estimated.

That information means that Bush will be facing an even bigger budget headache when he takes office on Jan. 20.

The new deficit estimate was presented to Bush and President Reagan during a Cabinet briefing Thursday on the administration's final budget submission to Congress.

Joseph Wright Jr., director of the Office of Management and Budget, said the OMB now estimates that the deficit for the 1990 fiscal year, which begins next Oct. 1, will be $132 billion, substantially higher than the $111 billion deficit estimate OMB made just three months ago.

Officials said the main factors boosting the deficit estimate were the drought, which slowed economic growth this year, and higher-than-expected interest rates, which raised the cost of financing the $2.6 trillion national debt.

The Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law's deficit target for 1990 is $100 billion, which means that $32 billion in budget cuts will be needed to close the gap between revenues and spending.

Achieving such sizable cuts in the face of congressional opposition to further reductions in domestic programs will present Bush with major political problems.

During the campaign, Bush sidestepped specifics on how he would deal with the budget deficit by touting a plan for a "flexible freeze." Bush said he would allow government spending to grow only enough to match inflation. Within the overall freeze, selected programs could grow while others would be cut.

However, Bush avoided providing details on what programs he would cut in order to free funds for increases that he promised to make in education, child care and health care for the poor.

The budget document Reagan sends to Congress on Jan. 9 will reflect his decisions, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Officials refused to comment on reports that the final Reagan budget will call for substantial increases in defense spending and steep cuts in domestic programs as a way of providing Bush with the opportunity to present a "kinder, gentler" budget blueprint once he takes office.

OMB spokeswoman Barbara Clay said that Reagan's final budget would not include any tax increases, something the president has consistently opposed, or seek to trim Social Security benefits as a way of meeting the $100 billion Gramm-Rudman deficit target.

"We have some difficult choices ahead" on where to cut spending, she said.

New Scout executive sees good things in store for Scouting

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

After months of floundering, the local Boy Scout program seems to be on the mend. The new senior district executive, a 35-year veteran of Scouting, sees good things in store for the local Cub packs and Boy Scout troops.

Keith Cook, who formerly worked with Scouting in Sioux City, Iowa, and Hutchinson, Kan., sees good things on the local level.

"Scouting right now is on a nationwide growth pattern. Locally, we will be building and rebuilding in the hopes of bringing in more youth. We are having a growth of people coming into Cub Scouting. We are seeing larger numbers and a bigger percentage of boys each year," Cook said.

As a professional Boy Scout leader, Cook's duties involve overseeing local Scout programs. His orientation into being a full-time Scout leader was similar to orientation into a branch of the armed services.

"You make an application and go through a screening process. They see if you've got a chance to succeed. You then become a trainee. After 90 days you are sent to National Executive Institute in Arlington, Texas.

"On completion of that you are made district executive. That's a three-year assignment. After that you can move up," Cook said.

After arriving in Pampa several weeks ago, Cook has already gotten completely immersed in the day-to-day duties his job entails.

"I am serving five counties —

Cook

Gray, Wheeler, Donley, Collingsworth and Hall. I also serve three units in Carson County — Groom, White Deer and Skellytown — and Miami in Roberts County.

"A pro Scouters daily profession boils down to planning and underwriting the Scouting program in that area. I work with charter partner organizations to improve relationships in the charter territory," Cook said.

The charter organization is a church or civic group that wishes to sponsor a Scout troop or Cub Scout pack.

"The charter organization uses Scout programs to teach character development, physical fitness and citizenship training. Scouts are in the business of making tomorrow's leaders," Cook said.

And in a world where everything seems to be changing, he said Boy Scouts are the same organization they were when founded in 1911.

"Boys join for one purpose, to get outdoors. The unit that gets out of doors once a month will grow. The unit that turns into an inside program will struggle and die on the vine," Cook said.

He pointed to a local Scout troop headed by Pampa school board member John Curry.

"They go outdoors every month and it's one of the strongest programs in Pampa," Cook said.

Boy Scouts of America offers programs for boys in first grade through age 18.

"First-graders are Tiger Cubs. Second and third grade is Cub Scouts and fourth and fifth is Webelos. Sixth grade through 18 is Boy Scouts and Varsity Scouting. The Explorers program runs age 14 to age 20 ... that's a co-ed program," Cook said.

He said that in addition to building a stronger local BSA program, he will be working to stop the dropout rate of boys going from Cub Scouting into Webelos.

"One of our thrusts is to enhance Webelos and make it more popular with youth. The problem with Scouting is not a problem of not being cool, but a problem of not being visible. Boys will join the program if it is visible," Cook said.

He said that when a charter organization starts a Cub Scout or Boy Scout group, it has the responsibility of finding leaders. Good leaders, he said, are loyal to the charter organization and the boys. That, in turn, makes the boys loyal to Scouting and will lead to them learning the values necessary of good citizens.

Minor accidents

The Pampa Police Department reported no minor accidents during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

20 injured in printing plant fire, explosion at Louisville, Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Two flash fires and a powerful explosion ripped through a printing plant, knocking firefighters "right out of the building and onto the pavement" and injuring at least 20 people, officials said.

The plant and the adjacent building housing The Courier-Journal, Kentucky's largest newspaper, were evacuated from the scene Thursday night, and a large downtown block was sealed off by police.

The fires and explosion at Standard Gravure Corp. were fueled by ink and naphtha, a volatile chemical used to thin printing ink that was believed responsible for the explosion, officials said. Two pressmen and 18 firefighters were hurt, said fire Capt. Keith Milliner.

The Courier-Journal, meanwhile, relied on an emergency agreement with the competing Lexington Herald-Leader, 80 miles away, to print today's paper.

The newspaper's staff went "back to the old-fashioned way," said George Gill, president and publisher. Staffers worked with typewriters and telephones set up in an old company-owned building across the street.

An eight-page edition, without ads, was planned.

"It won't be much of a newspaper, but it will be a newspaper," Gill said, noting that The Courier-Journal had never missed a day of publication.

Art Smithers, night supervisor at the plant, which prints magazines and color advertising materials, said the first fire broke out about 6 p.m. in one of the presses, injuring two pressmen. The blaze apparently was started by static electricity, said Capt. Dennis Kangas of the city's arson squad.

A chemical fire extinguisher that came on automatically put out the blaze, said pressman Walter Emert.

But the fire tore open the press's ink fountain, which holds 30 to 40 gallons, said Standard Gravure vice president Jack Uhl. Workers were cleaning up from the first fire when the second flared, apparently ignited by embers contacting newsprint and ink that had spilled on the floor, Smithers said. The fire spread to a sub-basement lacking an automatic fire extinguisher.

Firefighters who entered the building with chemicals and hoses to put out the ink-related fire were unaware that the highly volatile chemical vapors from the ink were filling the building and fueling the flames, said Milliner.

He said the force of the blast about 7:25 p.m. lifted firefighters off their feet, knocking some into walls and through doors into a parking lot.

The explosion left a gaping, two-story hole in the rear wall of the six-story building.

Injured firefighters staggered from the building, coughing and gasping, and some appeared dazed. About 65 firefighters had been called to battle the blazes.

At least eight of the injured firefighters were admitted to Humana Hospital-University of Louisville with first- and second-degree burns, head injuries and lung irritations, said Dr. Frank Lavoie, an emergency room physician.

Seven others were treated and released at the hospital for first- and second-degree flash burns on their faces and hands, and smoke inhalation, said spokeswoman Taylor Rice.

North

when questioned by Meese on Nov. 23, 1986, the judge said.

"The court will not give judicial approval to the suggestion that he was free in these circumstances to place his personal interests or objections to national policy ahead of the public trust he had accepted," Gesell wrote.

Walsh, the independent counsel, "will need only to prove at trial that the specific questions posed to North by the attorney general were precise and material to this legitimate presidential inquiry" and that North purposely lied, the judge said.

No date has been set for North's trial, the first of four separate trials ordered by the judge.

In its court filing critical of Walsh's Oct. 25 pleading in the North case, the Justice Department asked Gesell for permission

The department said it wanted to submit a friend-of-the-court brief because Walsh's pleading "contains numerous statements that are inconsistent with previously articulated statements of the law by the Department of Justice and other Executive Branch agencies and departments."

Justice Department officials refused to describe the specific legal disagreements with Walsh, which they plan to outline in the pleading they want to file by Nov. 25.

St. Vincent's to host Fall Festival

St. Vincent de Paul Catholic School is hosting its Fall Festival this Saturday from 1 to 9 p.m. Games, craft booths and more than 600 enchiladas will be on hand for the taking, along with cash prizes at the bingo table.

Tina Eberz, St. Vincent's principal, and Jeanie Browning, a school employee, have been organizing the eight hours of fun.

"For about the past 100 years we've had a Halloween Festival. We wanted to do something different this year. The festival is patterned after that of St. Andrew's in Fort Worth," Browning said.

Over 20 volunteers have worked to transform the St. Vincent's school into a carnival atmosphere for the Saturday event. Eberz said participants can partake in bingo, a walk, soccer kick, putt-putt, talent show, or dozens of other events. Arts and crafts booths, some featuring Christmas merchandise, will also be set up.

Browning said at least 33 different booths and activities would be available.

"The Hispanic community from our parish is doing the cooking of enchiladas. They really know what they are doing too," said Browning.

Eberz said several local and area businesses made valuable donations to the Fall Festival.

"We're very thankful to" the local firms for their help, Eberz said. "This is our biggest fundraiser. If people support this, we might not have to beg them anymore this year," Eberz said, laughing.

Entertainment from the Carroway Street Puppets of Briarwood

Church will be provided while the local Knights of Columbus will provide the action at the bingo tables.

"We've had over 20 volunteers helping us. Our parents have been selling tickets. It really is going to be a lot of fun," Browning said.

Eberz said that in addition to being able to enjoy enchilada dinners with beans and rice at the church cafeteria, take-out orders would also be available.

St. Vincent's Fall Festival organizers are hoping the day-long event will become a new tradition in Pampa.

Eberz said the entire community, as well as parish members and parents of St. Vincent's school children, are invited to the celebration.

Former Vernon S&L head indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A 13-count federal indictment has been returned against the former chairman of the board of Vernon Savings & Loan Association in connection with a $46 million loan at Vernon in April 1986.

Named in the indictment issued as the result of an investigation by the Dallas Bank Fraud Task Force was Woody F. Lemons of Vernon. He is accused of bank fraud, misapplication of funds, conspiracy and illegally sharing in the proceeds of a bank transaction.

Vernon, which had offices in both Vernon and Dallas, was closed by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. in November 1987. The FSLIC committed $1.3 billion to help reopen the institution as a new thrift, Montfort Savings Association.

The indictment filed in Dallas accused Lemons of arranging an inflated loan for the purchase and development of property in Arlington, and in receiving a share of the loan proceeds from an intermediate seller of the property.

The loan was inflated by $3.5 million, ostensibly so the intermediate seller could buy either from Vernon or from Vernon borrowers properties that were foreclosed or were about to be foreclosed.

The indictment alleges Lemons planned to use a portion of the $3.5 million for his own personal benefit. Approximately $200,000 eventually was transferred to Lemons.

The indictment also alleges that Lemons conspired to defraud examiners of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board by using bogus consulting fees to conceal his receipt of the loan proceeds.

The charges against Lemons were part of the Justice Department's ongoing investigation of suspected fraud in the Texas savings and loan industry, federal agents said. The investigation of Vernon is continuing, the agents said.

U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins said the task force, finishing its first full year of operation this month, has charged 23 individuals and convicted 13. One was acquitted in Iowa.

There exists the potential in south central and southeast portions that a few thunderstorms may be locally severe along with the possibility of heavy rainfall. Highs Saturday in the 80s, low 90s Lower Rio Grande Valley and Rio Grande plains. Lows tonight in the 60s, 70s immediate coast.

EXTENDED FORECAST
Sunday through Tuesday
 West Texas — Fair Sunday. Fair, warmer Monday. Partly cloudy Tuesday. Lows Panhandle near 30 to near 40; highs mid 60s to near 70. Lows

South Plains low 30s to low 40s; highs mid 60s to low 70s. Lows Permian Basin upper 30s to near 50; highs upper 60s to mid 70s. Lows Concho Valley low 40s to low 50s; highs upper 60s to mid 70s. Lows far west upper 30s to mid 40s; highs upper 60s to mid 70s. Lows Big Bend mid 30s to mid 40s mountains and low 50s along the Rio Grande. Highs upper 60s to mid 70s mountains and mid 70s to mid 80s along the Rio Grande.

North Texas — Fair and mild Sunday and Monday. Highs in the mid 60s to near 70. Lows in the upper 40s to mid 50s. Increasing cloudiness Tuesday highs in the 70s. Lows in the 50s.

South Texas — Sunny and mild days, clear and cool at night Sunday through Monday. Increasing cloudiness and warmer Monday night and Tuesday. Morning lows from the 50s north to 60s south with 40s in the Hill Country Sunday and Monday. Lows Tuesday morning mostly in the 60s, except 50s in the Hill Country. Highs Sunday and Monday in the 70s north and 80s south. Highs Tuesday from the 80s north to 90s south.

BORDER STATES
 New Mexico — Mostly cloudy with a chance of showers mainly north and central mountains, with snow level lowering to near 7,000 feet. Partly cloudy and windy elsewhere. Decreasing cloudiness north central and northeast with fair skies elsewhere tonight. Cooler most sections tonight. Fair skies Saturday. Lows tonight in the upper teens and 20s mountains with 30s to lower 40s elsewhere. Highs Saturday in the 50s mountains to the low and mid 70s south.

Oklahoma — Occasional rain and scattered thunderstorms tonight ending from the west late tonight and Saturday. Lows tonight upper 30s Panhandle to low 50s southeast. Saturday high 60s.

Ellis County residents celebrate their multibillion-dollar prize

By DAVE PEGO
Associated Press Writer

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — It's been a long time coming, but finally the $4.4 billion super collider is coming to this county seat town with its landmark courthouse and gingerbread homes.

After years of hesitant preparations, studies and proposals, Ellis County residents rushed to town squares, popping champagne corks and struck up the bands to celebrate the Department of Energy's decision Thursday to bring the project to North Texas.

"It's a very festive mood," said David Lander, mayor pro tem of Midlothian, a town of 5,000 in northwest Ellis County. "Everyone is very excited. It's obviously going to be a tremendous boost to our North Texas economy. About the only thing that might be similar to this would be being named the city to host the next Olympics."

Parties and speeches began shortly after the 11 a.m. confirmation that Ellis County would be the home of the giant atom smasher that attracted bids from more than 20 states.

Jubilant Texans cheered at victory gatherings at the county courthouse and chamber of commerce in Waxahachie, the Midlothian City Hall and the Ennis town square, as high school bands played and bank signs flashed the good news: SSC SSC SSC We Got It!

"It's definitely a big day in this town," said Shannon Simpson, curator of the Ellis County Museum in Waxahachie. "I guess I'll start collecting super collider studies and maps now."

"The collider's going to put Texas back where it ought to be," said Steve Wylie of Bardwell, who party-hopped to all the celebrations.

For many residents, the 53-mile super collider ring will mean new jobs, a more technical workforce, a stronger housing market, better schools, prosperity for an area once known exclusively for its cotton farms and cattle ranches.

If built, the super collider would bring an estimated 4,000 construction jobs and 3,500 permanent jobs to the now 18,000-population Waxahachie, located about 30 miles south of Dallas.

"The Super Collider is an investment in our future," said Phil Bronson of Waxahachie. "The educational level will come up once we get all the technical people in here."

"I've been through a lot of land speculation in this county, but nothing like this," said real estate agency owner Tom Crabb. "The land values here could double inside the ring — maybe more."

But for others, the changes will have a more personal value.

"You know what this town has needed, but never had?" said Bob Hamilton of Rutherford Crossing, a rural development outside Waxahachie. "We don't have a cafeteria. You know, like a Wyatt's or something. We're big enough for a McDonald's, but we've never been big enough for a cafeteria. I've had to drive to Dallas."

Others dream of a new hotel, a mall, a couple of nightclubs or a rumored Disney-style amusement park moving to the area.

Crabb, a former Waxahachie Chamber of Commerce president, said he expects large corporations to suddenly set their sights on Waxahachie. Arby's already has staked out a parcel of land.

The economic windfall of the super collider — estimated to pump $270 million a year into the local economy — would spread far beyond the county line.

"This will change our economic and educational base for all time," said Dallas City Councilman Jack Evans, who led a committee to lure the project to Texas. "You will see many awards and benefits coming out of the research that will be done here."

Still, there is some dissension among residents. Some worry Ellis County will lose its rural character if it becomes the prime research center of the 21st century.

"Personally, I hate to see this come, but it can't be helped," said Joe Bob Underwood, a lieutenant with the Ellis County sheriff's department. "My brother and I own a ranch, and this always has been a lot of farm land. But that's going to change now."

"I have mixed emotions about it," said Dick Erwin, who bought a house on two acres due south of Red Oak four years ago. "I'm glad the county's going to get it, but I'm sorry I'm going to have to lose my house."

Clair Pierce, a Palmer businesswoman and member of Texans Against the Super Collider, said she was concerned about the impact on water reservoirs. "Too bad we got the Super Collider," she said. "I'm probably the only one who feels that way."

Scientists claiming super collider could unlock 'secrets of creation'

By GUY DARST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Physicists hope the superconducting super collider will help them explain the very origin of matter itself and perhaps lead them to their holy grail: a single theory that unites all the forces of nature, from gravity spanning galaxies to the mysterious bonds that hold the proton together.

The first task of the collider, if it is built, may be a search for the Higgs particle, named after Peter Higgs of the University of Edinburgh in Scotland, the scientist who first postulated its existence.

Scientists say this subnuclear particle should emerge from proton-proton collisions 20 times more powerful than anything possible today. Finding it would be a giant step forward in understanding nature.

The super collider, a 53-mile around machine, will be the first atom smasher able to concentrate in a small volume of space the energy density that must have existed in the theoretical "big bang" origin of the universe. The Energy Department on Thursday selected a site near Dallas for the giant machine, even though Congress has not yet decided it should be built.

The current picture of nature, called the "standard model," is tantalizingly incorrect — but nobody is sure just where it goes wrong. At very high energies, the theory predicts certain particle interactions will occur with greater than 100 percent probability — which is an impossibility.

Modifications to fix up the standard model almost always require extremely energetic collisions for their experimental tests.

A recent example of theory-testing on which the collider will build is the discovery of the so-called W and Z particles at the CERN particle accelerator in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1983, predicted by the "electroweak" theory. This shows the fundamental identity of the familiar forces of electricity and magnetism and the weak forces responsible for some forms of nuclear radioactivity, including the reactions responsible for the sun's energy.

It is the W and Z particles that carry the unified "electroweak" force, just as it is the familiar photon or particle of light that carries the electromagnetic force.

Though the masses of the W and Z particles could be estimated in advance as roughly 90 times that of the proton, there is no way to calculate the mass of the Higgs particle. But scientists say there should be an upper limit of about 1,000 times the mass of the proton.

All mass is equivalent to energy, shown in the famous "E=MC squared" relationship first developed by Albert Einstein. That is, the energy of any particle is equal to its mass times the speed of light squared.

It's convenient to speak of mass in terms of "electron volts," the energy acquired by an electron falling through a voltage. Electrons in the filament of a flashlight bulb are accelerated through 3 electron volts.

The mass of a proton at rest is a little less than a billion electron volts.

The total collision energy must be around 40 trillion electron volts to create a particle of 1 trillion electron volts. The world's most powerful accelerator, at Fermi Lab in Chicago, can produce 2 trillion electron volts, whereas the super collider is designed to generate 40 trillion electron volts.

"Our lack of understanding of the masses of the various particles is a very deep problem," the super collider Central Design Group wrote in its 1986 report.

The standard model says protons and neutrons are made of smaller particles called "quarks" held together by force-carrying particles called "gluons."

"There is no understanding why the quarks and (associated lighter particles) have the masses they do," the report said.

The quarks seem to come in three families or generations: one forms protons and neutrons and is associated with electrons; another family, not found in nature, seems to be associated with the muon particle; and a third associated with the tau particle.

"There is no understanding of why there are three generations; in fact, there may be more," the report said.

Other possible tasks for the super collider:

- Electrons, muons, taus and neutrinos all appear to be simple geometric points instead of collections of smaller particles. The super collider may be able to see if this is true.
- If there is a Higgs particle, is it made of smaller particles? Some theories give it structure and postulate the existence of forces inside it analogous to those inside the proton.
- Another theory called "supersymmetry" predicts several Higgs particles and accounts for all forces, including gravity, while giving a partner particle to every known particle.

Task force makes drug abuse proposals

AUSTIN (AP) — The best hope for diminishing the demand for drugs is in "solid programs of prevention," says a task force report presented to Gov. Bill Clements.

Among recommendations in the report released Thursday is establishment of a comprehensive drug and alcohol abuse education plan for school districts. It also suggests automatic suspension or deferral of drivers' licenses for juveniles who break drug or alcohol laws.

The report of the Governor's Task Force on Drug Abuse "will be useful as we attempt to choke one of the root causes of crime — drug abuse," Clements said.

"But we must go even further. New generations of Texans continue to be threatened by drug dealers and the despair they peddle," he said. "We must establish drug education and prevention programs that can help reclaim our school grounds for our children and teach them about the dangers of drugs and drug abuse."

The task force urged the governor and his staff, together with lawmakers, to examine the recommendations, which touch on universities, law enforcement, public schools and the workplace.

"Destroying the tyranny of drug abuse requires a united legislative front and an all-out assault on the drug world. That commitment and sense of purpose is evident in the report being presented here today," Clements told a news conference. "It can truly be a springboard for legislative action."

The report — which is dedicated to young Texans who are promoting drug prevention efforts in their schools — also was presented to high school senior Jacquelyn Davis of Port Arthur, representing such students.

Among other recommendations in the report are suggestions to:

- Set up a required social behavior course — with a focus on drug abuse — for college undergraduate students in state-supported institutions. Implementation of the course would be tied to overall state funding of the school.
- Require a course in medical schools focusing on substance addiction.
- Enhance penalties for selling illegal drugs near schools.
- Establish a standardized procedure to be followed by employers in testing workers for substance abuse.

Convicted insurance heir going to prison

HOUSTON (AP) — Galveston insurance heir Shearn Moody Jr. must report to a federal prison Dec. 2 to begin serving a five-year sentence he received for defrauding his family's charitable foundation of $1.3 million.

In an order released this week, U.S. District Judge Kenneth M. Hoyt ordered Moody to report to a Fort Worth prison next month.

Moody, 55, probably will be assigned to a special prison medical unit because of his extensive health ailments that include high blood pressure and heart problems.

His attorneys had unsuccessfully argued for probation, saying that sending a man in his condition to prison was like giving him a "death sentence."

Hoyt, however, had said sending Moody to prison may improve his health because he will be closely monitored.

Moody was convicted last year of mail and wire fraud for funneling foundation grants to unqualified organizations that then kicked back the money to Moody and others.

He has remained free on bond since his conviction, but Hoyt refused a request to allow Moody to stay out of prison while his case is being appealed.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Castro can't rest in tyranny's peace

Fidel Castro cracked down on a new freedom movement. The Association for Free Art demonstrators laid a wreath near the ruins of a prison where Jose Marti, a Cuban national hero, once was jailed. The group then unfurled a banner with its name, and Association President Armando Araya began reading an announcement — but he and some confederates were promptly arrested by Cuban security agents.

Castro's regime sentenced Araya to one year in prison. Nine-month sentences were slapped on two Free Art members, and seven-month sentences on several others. Castro has softened his totalitarian repression during recent investigations by the United Nations human-rights committee, but with the investigation concluded, Fidel's thugs have clearly resumed their old ways.

Castro presides over a reported 200 prisons holding 15,000 political prisoners out of 10 million people — the highest number per capita in the world, according to Amnesty International. Life under Castro is poor and brutish. Castro rigidly represses such basic human rights as freedom of religion, speech, political organization and property ownership. The people live in a socialist penury, while Castro and his elite bask in luxury. The country, once the richest in Latin America, is now one of the poorest.

And for what? Castro has a lust for glory and conquest. As a Communist potentate, he has a global impact. Funded by $5 billion a year from the Soviet Union, Cuba exports its soldiers to carry out the Kremlin's foreign policy. Angola's Communist regime is kept in power by 55,000 Cuban troops commanded by a Soviet Army general. Cuban troops help keep dictator Haile Mariam Mengistu in power in Ethiopia, enabling Mengistu to carry out his forced starvation of thousands of political opponents. Closer to home, Castro's forces train the Soviet-supplied Sandinistas in Nicaragua. They also train the Communist forces in El Salvador seeking to overthrow the country's democratic government. Since the Reagan administration has blundered in its attempt to liberate Nicaragua, the Sandinistas and Castro have been unleashed to foment revolution in El Salvador.

Some day Cubans will rise up and throw off Castro's tyranny. As the Free Art protest indicate, more people are speaking up, risking almost certain repression, imprisonment and torture. Their courage and suffering will form the foundation of a free Cuba.

Berry's World

Leaving lovely legacy behind

WASHINGTON — Now that the whales have gone, and we can look back on what happened, the whole story seems preposterous. Absurd. Almost embarrassing. In one view, at least, the tale of the gray whales of Point Barrow speaks volumes about the misplaced priorities and the goofiness of man.

But there is another, and I think a better, view of the rescue effort that occupied so much attention during the three weeks the story stayed alive.

For these few October days people everywhere were moved by a deep sense of something beyond compassion. I cannot put a name to it. Psychologists and dream doctors would relate the feeling to the fear of being trapped — a fear that constantly recurs in the worst of our nightmares. In some curious way, we identified with the whales, caught under 18 inches of ice, struggling to swim free.

The story began Oct. 7 or 8 when Roy Ahmaogak, an Alaskan whaler, was returning to his home from a nearby village. In an open patch of water, he saw three whales spouting and jostling. They had overstayed their time in the Arctic. In the subzero temperatures, their escape routes were swiftly freezing.

The story could have ended before it began. Ahmaogak might well have summoned a few friends with gaffes and ropes, shot the whales and butchered them for the coming winter. No one would have said a word. The grays, once nearly extinct, have recovered to a population estimated at 20,000. The three would not have been missed.

Perhaps it was a sense of sportsmanship, a manifestation of the loony ambivalence observed by hunters everywhere. One shoots only at birds on the wing. In the Blue Ridge Mountain country where I live, one may kill a deer on a Saturday or a Monday, but no man of honor kills on Sunday. The meat is the same, but the pride is different.

Or possibly, it was said by way of explanation, Eskimo palates prefer the bowhead whale to the gray whale. Blubber from a feedlot is tastier than blubber off the range. Something like that.

In any event, Ahmaogak spared the creatures. He notified the wildlife officials. Local radio and television stations got onto the story. The wire services picked it up.

By mid-October the story had taken on the kind of irresistible momentum that defies objective analysis. Around the world, in Tokyo, Moscow, Mexico City, New York, people everywhere began to worry about the whales. Here in Washington, the story ranked with the World Series and the presidential race. TV viewers watched in anxious fascination as the whales surfaced, gasped for air and sank again in the black water.

A cast of character appeared. We came to know the Inupiat Eskimos, their smiling faces as round and brown as new potatoes. The whales acquired names, and the odd thing is that the whales were not lovable or cuddly; they had none of the charm of dolphins.

We saw nothing of them but their bloody and barnacled snouts, rising and falling. These were not old whales, but they had the mottled look of great age, and they were tired. On Oct. 21 the smallest of the three gave up the fight.

Reporters sped to the scene, and because this is America, local snowmobile taxis began charging up to $200 a head to take the press to ringside. The Top of the World Hotel in Barrow filled all its 40 rooms to overflowing. Oil companies saw gushers of good public relations as they donated men and equipment. An enterprising manufacturer in Maryland sent an awesome machine, propelled by an Archimedean screw, to roar and snarl at the resistant ice.

Every morning and evening on the TV news we saw the story develop. There were the Eskimos with chain saws, cheerfully sawing ice holes like scatter rugs across the frozen waste. Great helicopters came fluttering to the site, scattering a small band of watchful polar bears, slamming at the ice with a five-ton wrecking ball. The designers of T-shirts magically produced appropriate souvenirs.

Finally, as in a well-plotted play, came the Soviet icebreakers to heighten the drama. Could they smash through a 35-foot wall of ice? Would they be in time?

The surviving whales were growing weak. Daylight was waning. And on the night of the 28th, the whales disappeared. They had found freedom. In a Point Barrow bar, Soviets and Americans toasted the rescue in sour mash bourbon and excellent vodka.

The whole affair reportedly cost a million dollars in public and private funds, but most of the expenses would have been incurred anyhow. The million doubtless could have been spent more efficiently for saving more whales.

But so what? The money was beautifully spent. In a century that has seen much of humankind at its worst, for a few ticks of the clock we witnessed something better, a time in which God's creatures knew a common bond. The whales have gone. Maybe they will make it to lower California, maybe they won't; but they left a lovely legacy behind.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 11, the 316th day of 1988. There are 50 days left in the year. This is Veterans Day.

Today's Highlight in History: On Nov. 11, 1918, fighting in World War I came to an end with the signing of an armistice between the Allies and Germany inside a railroad car in the Forest of Compiègne in France.

On this date: In 1620, 41 Pilgrims signed a compact aboard the Mayflower, which was anchored off the Massachusetts coast, calling for a "body politic" to enact "just and equal laws."

In 1778, Iroquois Indians in central New York state killed some 40 people in the Cherry Valley Massacre.

In 1831, former slave Nat Turner, who had led a violent insurrection, was executed in Jerusalem, Va.

In 1889, Washington became the 42nd state.

In 1921, President Warren G. Harding dedicated the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

The courts matter too much

Presidential campaigners called balls, strikes and balks against one another.

Other candidates were Congress-bashing for what Congress did and didn't do.

None of which gets to the root cause of most of our grievances.

It was no President and no Congress that passed a law ordering Bible reading out of public schools.

No President — no Congress — mandated employment quotas and/or school busing.

No President — no Congress — declared that the First Amendment protected pornography.

These moral, social and political prejudices were written into law by order of the courts.

Our nation is supposed to be a Constitutional Republic — "and to the Republic — for which it stands." In a Republic, theoretically we elect our best men and women to make decisions in our behalf.

It has not been working that way. The crucial decisions reshaping our society have been made by un-elected jurists.

President Reagan has made a determined effort to rebalance our judiciary — yet for all his charm and persuasiveness he has been able to select only 384 of our nation's 752 federal judges. He has been able to replace three of nine Supreme Court justices.

This is the gut issue about which presidential campaigners were saying almost nothing.

I heard only a tentative promise from George Bush that he would continue to appoint constructionists to our courts.

Michael Dukakis named the justices he most admires: "Brandeis, Black, Douglas, Brennan and Marshall."

Dukakis, further, pledged his allegiance to the ACLU. Though he said that he does not agree with the entire ACLU agenda, it is worrisome to some that the ACLU espouses and defends legalized prostitution, legalized drugs, child pornography, removal of tax exemptions from churches and removal of "In God We Trust" from our coins.

I believe that no Congress — more responsive to "us, the people" — would ever dare to vote such an agenda as that.

A lopsided High Court certainly could.

Members of the Supreme Court are appointed for life and are answerable to no one. Three of the nine sitting justices are 80 or older — all ultra-liberal — each has been hanging on hoping for a President who would select successors in their own image.

Whatever your political persuasion, left or right, liberals or conservative, that was what this election was all about.

Presently there is a lot of potential voters who imagine the Bush-Dukakis choice was one of Tweedledum and Tweedledee. Uninspired by the vanilla flavor of either man's personality — many of those unenchanted stayed home on Election Day. That was a shame. If you did not vote — in effect somebody else's vote counted, twice.

And he have voted for a judicial philosophy in diametrical contradiction to your own.

States still bet on those glitzy lotteries

By ROBERT WALTERS

TILLAMOOK, Ore. (NEA) — When the Oregon lottery was launched in spring 1985, bettors could choose among games with such catchy titles as "Pot of Gold," "Sky's the Limit," "Oregon Doubler," "Three of a Kind" and "7-11-21."

Today, 3½ years later, all of those games have been discarded by state lottery officials. Their successors, however, have equally snappy names — "Blackjack," "Money Game," "Oregon's Daily Four" and "Breakopen."

With lotteries now being conducted in 29 of the 50 states, similar changes are occurring throughout the country as the art of collecting government revenues through games of chance increasingly resembles a show business venture.

Fearful that players will abandon stale games, lottery officials are under constant pressure to introduce "new," "bigger" and "better" opportunities to bet against the state, with "more chances to win."

To sustain growth and encourage more people to play, the Oregon Lottery even produces and sponsors its own weekly, half-hour television program — a device also used by lotteries in Ohio and Kansas and soon to be introduced in Michigan.

"It's glitzy," boasts Oregon Lottery Director James J. Davey, among the country's more creative lottery impresarios. "It's also the No. 1 rated show in its time period."

Explaining that "we're selling dreams and fantasies," Davey candidly acknowledges that "we consider ourselves to be in the entertainment business."

Always facing the threat of diminishing returns, Davey understands that bettors will quit playing if they are not constantly provided with fresh material. "We're always looking for new games," he says. "People like to play, so if you give them half a reason they'll play."

But providing that incentive is easier said than done. The typical state lottery operation begins strongly, goes into a slump and then has another spurt and finally a long period of slow growth.

Sustaining growth requires most states to operate at least three games simultaneously:

- A weekly drawing, usually known as lotto, in which players select six numbers from a field of 40 to 50 numbers. This game that pays multi-million-dollar jackpots and thus receives the most publicity.

- A daily game in which players attempt to guess the winning three- or four-digit number.

- An "instant" game in which players buy tickets, then scratch off a coating to determine whether they have the winning combination of numbers, letters or symbols.

But marketing efforts are even more aggressive in many states. The Oregon Lottery, for example, also sponsors the television show, sells "pull tabs" that carry slot machine symbols and holds a lotto drawing twice instead of once a week.

In addition, it is a partner in Lotto America, a game initially envisioned by its organizers as a nationwide lottery but which thus far has attracted the interest of only five other states (Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, West Virginia and Rhode Island) and the District of Columbia.

State-operated lotteries now produce about $15 billion in combined annual revenues and the establishment of new games is on the November ballot this year in four states — Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky and Minnesota.

Perhaps more significant was the start up earlier this year of lotteries in the South, the last region to resist state-sanctioned gambling. Florida and Virginia, both on the periphery of the Bible Belt, are the newest participants.

In Oregon, aggressive promotion produced $160 million in sales in the 1987-88 fiscal year, a phenomenal increase from the $100 million recorded only one year earlier.

But even optimist Davey acknowledges that such growth cannot be indefinitely sustained. "I don't see a drop-off," he says, "but I do see a plateau."

Reagan administration making new attack on abortion ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Reagan administration is making a new attack on the Supreme Court's landmark Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion, proposing that the justices use a Missouri case to reconsider the 15-year-old ruling.

The proposal came in form of a brief filed with the court Thursday by Solicitor General Charles Fried, who said the Missouri case represents "an appropriate opportunity" for the justices to review the 1973 decision.

Pro-abortion groups said the timing of the proposal, two days after the general election, was political.

"I guess they were afraid to do this before the election because they thought they might lose the votes of millions of women," said Eve Paul, Planned Parenthood's vice president for legal affairs.

But a Justice Department spokesman, Loye Miller, insisted that the timing was dictated by extended internal discussions at the Justice Department on the question and by extensive staff work that had to be completed.

Fried's brief said the Missouri case "is free of procedural defects and implicates a number of the legislative choices foreclosed by Roe vs. Wade."

The solicitor general's brief noted that the Reagan administration's views on abortion were expressed in a case in June 1986, when the government urged that Roe vs. Wade be overturned.

The high court at that time voted 5-4 to reaffirm the earlier ruling, but since then another Reagan appointee has joined the court, Justice Anthony Kennedy. Anti-abortion groups hope that will tilt the court's balance and lead to scuttling of Roe vs. Wade, which held that a woman has a constitutional right to an abortion.

Missouri officials want the Supreme Court to reinstate a strict state anti-abortion law, struck down in July by a federal appeals court which said the statute was invalid under Roe vs. Wade.

The Missouri law declared that human life begins at the moment of conception and said no public funds, employees or facilities could be used to perform or assist in an abortion or to counsel a woman to have an abortion.

A key issue in the Missouri case is whether it is unconstitutional for a state to declare when human life begins. The Missouri law did that, and went on to declare that "unborn children have protectable interests in life, health and well-being."

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in July struck down those declarations, saying that it is unconstitutional for a state to adopt one theory of when human life begins.

Douglas Johnson, legislative director for the National Right to Life Committee, said the Missouri case offers the high court a chance to address important issues, such as limits on abortions late in pregnancy, even if it decides not to use the case to overturn Roe vs. Wade.

"We're not predicting that the court would use this case as the occasion to overturn Roe vs. Wade," Johnson said. "That's a possibility. Of course, we would be delighted if they did."

Eleanor Smeal, president of the Fund for the Feminist Majority, called Fried's brief "a sneak attack on women's lives."

She said that if the Reagan administration gambit works, precedents could be established to "put at risk not only legal abortion but the pill and IUD."

"They didn't have the guts to do it before the election," added Molly Yard, president of the 160,000-member National Organization for Women. "It's a sneaky, lowdown thing they've done."

There was extensive discussion at the top levels of the Justice Department over whether it would be advisable for Fried to file a brief in the case at all or whether the solicitor general ought to file a full brief outlining arguments for overturning Roe vs. Wade, said a high department official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Voters ready to take law back in hands

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—If there's one theme behind Californians pummeling auto insurers, Michiganders striking a blow at abortion and Maryland residents approving gun control, it's that many voters are growing fed up with legislatures and are ready to take lawmaking into their own hands.

So say experts on the initiative process as they survey the results of the 229 statewide issues and hundreds of local questions that citizens confronted on Election Day.

"It's definitely an expression of impatience with the regular political process," says David Schmidt, editor of the newsletter "Initiative and Referendum: The Power of the People" published in San Francisco—the city where voters on Tuesday waded through no less than 29 statewide initiatives and 24 local issues.

Of the 229 statewide issues, a record 54 were citizen initiatives, topping the previous high of 52 in 1982, according to Pat McGuigan, an authority on ballot issues at the Washington-based Institute for Government and Politics.

Citizen initiatives find their way onto ballots mainly because enough people believe they have a problem that they feel legislators aren't doing much about—soaring auto premiums in California, for example.

But that's not the entire explanation, said McGuigan.

"There are certainly elements of public disgust. But what you're seeing now is that well-funded interest groups see this initiative process as a good way to promote their agendas," he said.

Such populist lawmaking is possible only in the 26 states plus the District of Columbia where citizen initiatives are allowed. Those states are mostly in the West and Midwest and the number hasn't changed significantly in years.

In the past, environmental activists have forced states to enact bottle bills. The early

An AP News Analysis

1980s saw scores of nuclear freeze initiatives. Tax rebels have forced states to curb spending, starting with California a decade ago.

State legislative spokesmen don't deny the public's frustration with their workings. But William Pound, executive director of the National Conference of State Legislatures, said that increasingly it is special interests who are turning to the initiative process after failing to get their way in the statehouse.

Even so, the failure of big money to sway voters in so many ballot contests this year was extraordinary.

On Tuesday, pro-life groups forced an end to state funding of abortions in Michigan, Arkansas and Colorado. But trial lawyers spent $15 million in a losing effort to promote an auto insurance reform measure in California, and lost another costly battle in Florida to limit liability claims for bodily injury to $100,000 for non-economic losses such as pain and suffering.

Tobacco companies spent some $15 million opposing a 25 cent hike in California's cigarette tax—and lost.

The National Rifle Association spent upwards of $4 million to get Maryland voters to repeal its new law banning cheap handguns—and lost also.

"People had a real financial incentive in this," said Schmidt. "The legislature couldn't or wouldn't do anything about (rising auto premiums). Trial lawyers fought the insurance lobby to a standoff."

The result was that Californians decided to tackle the issue themselves. They chose among five ballot measures, some backed by the legal community, some by the auto insurers, and one by consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

As with gun control in Maryland and tort reform in Florida, the side with the least money won the most votes. The Nader-backed issue cutting auto rates by at least 20 percent defeated rival measures that insurers and trial lawyers had spent $75 million unsuccessfully promoting.

Government ends industrial homework ban

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is lifting bans on homework in the garment industry, fulfilling a promise made in 1980 by Ronald Reagan during his presidential campaign.

The bans were imposed 47 years ago to counter widespread exploitation of immigrant and child laborers.

New Labor Department regulations published Thursday and scheduled to take effect Jan. 9 would allow homework for the first time since the early 1940s in five garment industry trades: gloves and mittens, embroideries, buttons and buckles, handkerchiefs and some jewelry work.

Labor Secretary Ann Dore McLaughlin said lifting the prohibitions will provide both employers and employees with greater flexibility in dealing with work-family conflicts while at the same time improving U.S. competitiveness in world markets.

She said licensing of employers who hire home workers plus increased enforcement by her department will assure compliance with federal labor standards such as the minimum wage and prohibitions on child labor.

But unions vowed to challenge the regulations in court, saying they will lead to a repeat of the sweatshop conditions, illegally low pay and abuse of child labor that first prompted the homework prohibitions.

Industrial homework has been a major deregulation battleground between unions on one side and the administration and business groups on the other for the past eight years.

The AFL-CIO, afraid of losing members or being unable to organize workers if they are dispersed in their homes instead of in offices or factories, last year called for expanding the current prohibitions to include computer terminal work.

Businesses, seeking to reduce labor costs, have been subcontracting jobs in increasing numbers to people working out of their homes. Link Resources, a private research firm, estimates more than 23 million people are now performing all or part of their jobs at home and says the rate is growing by 7.5 percent a year.

"The changing work force demographics demand that we provide employment opportunities that allow workers the freedom to choose flexible alternatives, including the ability to work in one's own home," Mrs. McLaughlin said Thursday. "Women, for example, have entered the work force by the millions."

Homework, she said, allows both employers and employees to address child and elderly care and parental leaves without added costs.

Jay Mazur, president of the 173,000-member International Ladies Garment Workers Union, called the new regulations a "calculus and illegal betrayal of American workers" and said his union will file suit to prevent them from being implemented.

West German leader resigns following Kristallnacht speech

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The president of parliament resigned today after being bitterly attacked for saying on the 50th anniversary of Kristallnacht that many Germans initially found Hitler's rule "glorious."

The furor overshadowed West Germany's carefully organized ceremonies marking Kristallnacht, the night of terror against the Jews that signaled the start of the Holocaust.

Parliament President Philipp Jenninger announced he was stepping down as assembly leader after meeting with other top-ranked members of the governing Christian Democratic Union.

The conservative politician's speech Thursday, which also called the early years of the Nazi's Third Reich a "triumphal procession," set off waves of outcries throughout the country and abroad.

His speech, at a special session of the Bundestag, or parliament, triggered a walkout by about 50 lawmakers and calls for his resignation from opposition Greens and Social Democratic parties.

"My speech was not understood by many listeners the way I had intended it to be," the 56-year-old politician said in a written statement to the news media. "I am deeply sorry and I am very hurt, if I have offended the feelings of others."

He added: "During my whole political career — most recently as president of the German Parliament — I have been active in working for reconciliation with the Jews and for the vital interests of the state of Israel."

"I always have been an uncompromising foe of every type of totalitarian rule," Jenninger said.

Jenninger said he was stepping down as Bundestag president because he wanted to avoid any damage to the office itself and because he believed he lost the trust of many colleagues.

The statement did not say whether Jenninger would remain a member of Parliament.

Jenninger had been the No. 2 West German official after President Richard von Weizsaecker, under the nation's rules of diplomatic protocol.

A member of Chancellor Helmut Kohl's Christian Democrats, Jenninger has been a lawmaker since 1969 and was one of Kohl's closest aides before he was elected Bundestag president in November 1984.

In his speech Thursday, Jenninger talked at length about the positive feelings of many ordinary Germans early in the Hitler dictatorship.

"Didn't Hitler bring to reality what (Kaiser) Wilhelm II had only promised, that is to lead the Germans to glorious times? Wasn't he chosen by Providence, a Fuehrer such as is given to a people only once in a thousand years?" Jenninger asked.

"For the fate of the Germans and European Jews, Hitler's successes were perhaps even more fateful than his crimes and misdeeds," Jenninger said. "The years from 1933 to 1938, even from a distant retrospective and in the knowledge of what followed, still are a fascinating thing today, since throughout history there was hardly a parallel to Hitler's triumphant procession during the first years."

Jenninger also cited such events as inclusion of the Saarland, Austria and part of Czechoslovakia into the Third Reich, as well as the 1936 Summer Olympics in Berlin.

Some listeners sobbed when Jenninger read an eyewitness account of the murder of concentration camp victims in 1942.

"Blood was running over the shoulders of almost everyone," he read. "Some of those shot were still moving, some lifted their arms and turned their heads, to show they were still alive."

Social Democratic chairman Hans-Jochen Vogel said in a letter to Jenninger that the Parliament president showed a "disturbing lack of judgment."

World Jewish Congress President Edgar M. Bronfman called Jenninger's remarks "reprehensible." But a leader of West Germany's Jewish community defended Jenninger's speech, saying he could not understand calls for his resignation.

"I welcome that the parliament president described in full clarity what was happening in Germany between 1933 and 1938," said Michael Fuerst, a deputy chairman of the Central Council of Jews in West Germany.

Die Welt, in its early edition today, said Kohl strongly criticized Jenninger at a private meeting late Thursday but left the resignation decision to the embattled parliament president.

Starting with the Kristallnacht of Nov. 9-10, 1938, the Nazis made clear their intentions to wipe out European Jews.

Join Us In Worship IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

The TIE that Binds...

Man and woman began their married life in church and according to God's holy word are joined together. With the Bible as the basis for the beginning of a new life together, it seems only reasonable that a continued study of God's word would strengthen and serve as a guide to any couple. The Bible can truly serve as a tie that will bind two together in accord. The church as God's agency on earth can help you in Bible study, and with the guidance of the Holy Spirit can help you to understand God's will in your life.

"And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones, and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not." Isaiah 58-11

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Baptist Church to hold T.O.P.S. conference here

First Baptist Church of Pampa will hold a T.O.P.S. conference in its Fellowship Hall Saturday.

Featured speaker will be Roy Kornegay, former minister of education at Pampa First Baptist and now director of missions in Amarillo.

T.O.P.S. is a special program dealing with middle-aged adult problems.

The acronym stands for: T — Tri family relationships (being a parent while dealing with aging parents and with older teen-age and adult children).

O — Occupational concerns.

P — Physical/Psychological concerns.

S — Social concerns.

The conference will be held in the Fellowship Hall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. A noon meal will be provided for $2.

The public is invited to attend the conference.

Bible Baptist adds Spanish services

Bible Baptist Church, 500 E. Kingsmill, is pleased to announce a new addition to its ministries — a totally Spanish speaking Sunday School and church services.

This ministry is led by Rev. Alfonso Lazono, the Spanish speaking pastor. The church would like to invite all Spanish speaking people to attend these services.

Sunday School begins at 9:45 a.m. and the morning service at 11 a.m., with Sunday night service at 6 p.m. and Wednesday night prayer meeting at 7:30 p.m. All are invited to attend.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Surely the arm of the Lord is not too short to save, nor his ear too dull to hear. But your iniquities have separated you from your God; your sins have hidden his face from you, so that he will not hear. (Isaiah 59:1-2 NIV)

I have two pet cats, Sam and Amica.

The other day Amica was outside; Sam was inside the house playing in a window. Amica saw him in the window and jumped onto the window ledge to play with him.

Both were in a playing mood, but the barrier of the window quickly went from perplexing to downright aggravating. They couldn't figure out why they could see each other but couldn't get to each other.

Finally Sam jumped down from the window and went about his business. Amica continued to try to get to Sam until, in her futile scramble, she fell off the window ledge.

How tragic are the lost souls who are "playing church." Only they and God know who they are. They may be church members. They may tithe and serve faithfully in various church positions. They may be acquiring an ever increasing store of religious head knowledge. Intellectually they may see the truth of the Holy Trinity with great clarity.

However, they are standing on a precarious ledge outside, looking in! They've never personally received the free flow of God's grace because they are blocked from His presence by their stubbornness, fear or arrogance.

The answer to their perplexity is the same as it is for anyone earnestly seeking admittance into God's presence — Father, forgive me, a sinner; Jesus, come into my heart. It's the soul shout that miraculously shatters the barriers!

If you are seeking salvation, read John 3 in the New Testament. If you are in need of spiritual counseling, contact a clergyman of your choice.)

Religion roundup

ATLANTA (AP) — Christians in Africa and parts of the Middle East are under increasing pressure to convert to Islam, some African Christian leaders say.

The clergymen, at a conference on black churches, contended that Moslems are waging a holy war in Egypt, the Sudan, Tanzania and Nigeria, using religious TV broadcasts, job offers and cash bribes to win over Christians.

"When a young man is offered 30,000 pounds in cash ($13,000) — it takes a person very strong in his faith to refuse the offer," said Bishop Antonius Marcos of the Coptic Orthodox Church of Egypt.

Marcos was one of more than 20 scholars and religious leaders attending the Pan-African Christian Church Conference.

Hobart Baptist Church marks 35th anniversary

Hobart Baptist Church, 1100 W. Crawford, will be celebrating its 35th anniversary with Homecoming Revival services this weekend.

The first special service will be at 7 p.m. today with A.G. Purvis speaking and Carl Meyer leading music. At a 7 p.m. Saturday service, Lewis Ellis will bring the word and Kenny Stewart will lead the music.

The homecoming services continue Sunday. At the 11 a.m. worship service, John Dyer will be speaking, with Scott Johnson leading the music. John Hansard will be speaking at a 2 p.m. worship service; Lonnie Phillips will lead the music.

Former pastors, music directors and workers are returning to help the church mark its anniversary this weekend. All former members and friends are also invited to attend and worship with the congregation for the occasion.

Hobart Baptist Church began as a mission of First Baptist Church of Pampa in August 1946. On Nov. 8, 1953 the mission was organized into Hobart Street Baptist Church.

Those who came for membership in November 1953 were counted as charter members of the church.

In 1954 the church's location was moved from Hobart Street to 1100 W. Crawford. In 1963, the church dropped the word 'Street' from its name and became Hobart Baptist Church.

In other special activities in the coming week, the church staff will sponsor a Thanksgiving Supper at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Fellowship Hall for the congrega-

Dunlaps to minister at Briarwood Church

Don and Faith Dunlap will be at Briarwood Church for both Sunday services.

The Dunlaps have been actively involved in a full time traveling ministry over the past 17 years in leading people into praise and worship through their ministry of the Word and singing of scripture music.

The Dunlaps, with their unique presentation of preaching, teaching and singing, have adopted as their theme, "A Ministry of Life."

They say that the singing of scriptures in ministry to the Lord prepares the hearts of the people for their main emphasis: the preaching and teaching of God's Word.

Don's spontaneously mixes his preaching with his own natural humor. Faith is a versatile and accomplished vocalist, singing a diversity of styles. She is actively involved as a guest speaker for "Women's Aglow" and various other women's organizations. Her focus is to present practical

Godly principles, taught in parable form

The Dunlaps have participated in many church conferences and inter-denominational gatherings. They have ministered in such countries as England, Wales, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

In January of 1987 Don and Faith Dunlap became team members in ministry with the Dave Roeber Evangelistic Association based out of Fort Worth. The Dunlaps provide the music ministry for the Dave Roeber Crusades across the nation as well as maintaining their own itinerary.

Dave Roeber says, "Don and Faith's music goes beyond the ears and reaches into the heart." The Dunlaps appear on Roeber's weekly television program, Together Again, on the Trinity Broadcasting Network.

The Dunlaps have recorded 10 albums and make their home in Grand Prairie, Texas with their son Lee, age 13, who travels with them.

Pampa Chapel to hear Haney

Pastor Howard Whitely invites the public to hear and to participate with Don Hal Haney in a special time of ministry in music Sunday at 6 p.m. at the Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester.

Haney, a pianist, organist and vocal soloist, shares God's message through the medium of music. Though entertaining, Don's goal is to encourage audience participation in worship and praise.

He is recommended by many well-known pastors and other religious leaders throughout the world. According to David Wilkerson, author of the best-selling book, The Cross and the Switchblade, Hal Haney is "an excellent musical artist and a man of God."

Beginning at an early age, Haney has sung his way into the hearts of many people. He was a featured soloist with the World Action Singers of Oral Roberts University on a tour of Europe and in Estonia, U.S.S.R. In the United States, he has appeared with symphonies, school groups, or before large or small audiences. After working as a Crusade Associate with David Wilkerson for two years, Haney established his own ministry in 1975.

He has brought witness to audiences of all sizes in an international ministry. A musical guest at conventions, conferences and revivals, he ministers in over 150 concerts a year, traveling from his home base in Dallas.

With his classic-contemporary selection of music, including scripture songs and worship choruses, Haney has been described as a "minstrel with a message."

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — A King's College political scientist says that just as there no longer is a unified "Catholic vote" in America, the "Catholic lobby" also is fragmented.

The Rev. Thomas J. O'Hare, who has examined 31 separate Washington-based Catholic interest groups advocating various public policy positions, says many scholars mistakenly considered the Catholic lobby "a monolith." "That really is a distorted view," he says. O'Hare, who has written a chapter on the multifaceted Catholic lobby in a new book, Religion in American Politics, says:

"There are Catholic pacifists, feminists, traditionalists and advocates of positions on many policy issues. Some are to the left of the bishops and some are to the right."

Computer error sends 2,000 tax statements to wrong places

DALLAS (AP) — A computer glitch may have caused as many as 2,000 bills for city and school taxes to be mailed to homeowners instead of their mortgage companies, an official with the Dallas tax office said.

Collections manager Catherine Turner said the statements, representing less than 1 percent of the nearly 700,000 statements the city issues, were erroneously sent to residents.

Tax bills normally are sent to mortgage companies, which pay the taxes from money collected in advance as part of homeowners' monthly payments.

Payment of the tax bills, which are usually mailed in mid-October, is due Jan. 31.

The city, which handles tax collections for the city and school district, contacted mortgage companies in June about homeowner account lists but didn't receive some until as late as the end of September, Turner said. Some mortgage companies send computerized lists, and others list their accounts through a computer "tape-to-tape exchange."

The problem occurred when one computer tape indicated that certain accounts had been deleted. Apparently, that tape originated from a firm that had dropped some homeowner accounts, Turner said. About 10 firms were affected.

"In most cases, they were individuals who had changed mortgage companies over the last 12 months for one reason or another," Turner told the Dallas Morning News.

The city has received few calls about the glitch, Turner said. Those homeowners who did contact the city were instructed to send the tax bills to their mortgage companies.

Cause of death should be included in ancestors' data

When compiling your family group sheets and listing the place and date of death, are you remembering to include the cause of death? Medical histories are important in assisting doctors in the treatment of patients.

Some diseases are inherited directly or may skip a generation, or may be passed to sons only or daughters only. If you know a particular illness "runs" in the family, it could help diagnose what is wrong with a person today.

Hemophilia, sickle cell anemia, heat problems, high blood pressure, some forms of diabetes and possibly some types of cancer are known health problems that are genetically inherited.

Make a list of your family members and write down beside each person the cause of death, any illness that could have contributed to the death and any other medical diseases they had when alive.

You may be surprised at the similarity of the diseases and the causes of death. History does repeat itself! I was surprised to discover that on one of my lines, the male in every other generation died a violent death between the ages of 18 and 32. Now, I knew the cause of death for each of these men, but by making the list that overlooked fact became apparent.

Gena on Genealogy

Fascinating discoveries can be made by comparing facts, whether they are medical, occupational or physical characteristics. Try to give your ancestors personalities so that they are not just names on a piece of paper with dates.

Another use of the medical record is as a tool to locate missing family members. When you have proof of a disease that is hereditary, search for other families in that area that have the same disorder and you may be able to connect with a marriage of a distant ancestor. Never close a door to research. Document your findings with the five "Ws" — who, what, when, where and why.

Medical records are usually confidential and elusive. The death certificate will list the cause of death and often the secondary or contributing condition. Some obituaries, depending upon the policy of the newspaper, will list the cause of death.

Another place to search is insurance policies, both life and medical insurance. When a claim is filed, the reason for the expense or cause of death will be listed on the form. Old letters or diaries might reveal facts about a death.

A good place to include this information is above the death date on the family group sheet. Also, above the place of death add the place of burial. Many times this will be two different locations. It may be different towns that would involve different counties, or it may even be that the body was "carried home" and you are dealing with two different states. This might help you locate relatives who moved away from the family homestead.

Mail call

(U.S. Navy Photo)

Navy postal clerk Linda Waresback, 23, daughter of Charlie and Joyce Mullen of Pampa, sorts daily mail for distribution to every department on the USS Jason, a repair ship homeported in San Diego. The Jason

Enjoy nature's fall colors; clean up garden

FALL COLOR

It's a quiet revolution that happens each fall. Slowly but surely, Mother Nature goes about painting leaves on trees and shrubs to produce a riot of red, purple and yellow for spectacular fall displays.

Just what is taking place is enough to cause even the most avid skeptic to marvel. It's all tied to chemical processes in leaves as the summer season gives way to fall and the approaching winter.

Leaves are actually little factories that manufacture food to support a tree's or other plant's growth. They are busy producing food during spring and summer, but as fall approaches, their work slows down as temperatures and daylight hours change. Chlorophyll — the green pigment in leaves — breaks down and other pigments, mainly yellows and oranges, become visible and give leaves their fall splendor.

At the same time, other chemical changes are occurring to form additional pigments varying from red to blue. These give rise to purplish leaves on such trees as dogwoods and sumacs, and brilliant orange or fiery red and yellow leaves on sugar maples. Some trees, such as quaking aspen, birch and hickory, boast only yellow colors, while many oaks and others display predominant brown or bronze leaves.

Leaf colors will vary greatly from year to year, depending on weather conditions and the amount of chlorophyll and other pigments in leaves.

Warm, sunny days in the fall

For Horticulture

followed by cool nights with temperatures below 45°F. are ideal for the formation of brilliant red colors. These conditions enable leaves to produce a lot of sugar during the daytime, but slow down the movement of these sugars from leaves at night. Consequently, trapped sugars form the red pigment that is so vividly displayed in leaves of the red maple, flowering dogwood, sweetgum, black tupelo or blackgum and sassafras.

A lot of warm, cloudy, rainy weather in the fall, on the other hand, will produce leaves with less red coloration because of the reduced sugar production in the leaves.

Fall leaf color can also vary from tree to tree. For example, leaves directly exposed to sun may turn red while those on the shady side of the same tree or on other trees in the shade may be yellow. Some leaves simply turn dull brown from death and decay.

In our immediate area, take a drive to the McLean area — there is quite a lot of beautiful foliage to view along Highway 273 between Lefors and McLean, along McClellan Creek north of Alanreed or around Lake McClellan. This time of year you can see some of the Panhandle's natural beauty that a lot of folks will say doesn't exist.

GARDEN CLEAN-UP ATTACKS INSECTS, DISEASES

A thorough cleaning of your garden this time of the year can give you a head start for next spring.

A fall clean-up attacks many of the insect and disease problems that could cause you grief next year.

A good sanitation program includes pulling up all spent annual bedding plants, cutting off the tops of perennials, raking the ground to collect surface debris, and removing these materials from the garden. Also, plants that are now being dug and divided should be carefully cleaned and all injured, diseased or dead leaves and stems removed.

When you pull up old vegetable plants such as tomatoes, okra, beans, peas, etc., check their roots to see if you have had nematodes infesting your garden. Make a habit of doing this every year. If you should find small root knot galls within the root that cannot be removed without destroying the root, then you have nematodes. Nematodes require special management practices in order to continue a garden in the same area.

Korean War vets deserve memorial

DEAR ABBY: Today, on Nov. 11, America will honor her veterans. I would like to ask your readers to consider a special group of men and women who fought a war that has become "the forgotten war."

Thirty-eight years ago, on June 25, 1950, the North Koreans crossed the 38th parallel of Korea and invaded South Korea. It was called a "police action" and the United Nations responded by sending troops to Korea. Besides the South Koreans, the majority of fighting men were Americans.

When a truce was finally called that ended in a stalemate on July 27, 1953, 5.5 million men and women had fought directly or indirectly in this "conflict." Of these 5.5 million, 103,000 were wounded, 54,263 were killed and 8,177 were classified as missing in action or prisoners of war.

There has been much publicity about the Vietnam Memorial, but the military personnel who fought to secure the freedom of South Korea have only the TV series "M*A*S*H" to remind people that we were there.

I lost my beloved husband of eight months when he was shot down over North Korea on his first combat mission. His remains have never been returned to me. Who will remember those who gave their lives in the Korean War?

Who will remember:
1. That when they returned, there were no welcoming parades — only apathy?

2. That in 1953 they had to live with their own silent hell of war-time memories, as "post-traumatic stress disorder" was unknown then?

3. That their feats were chronicled in only a few paragraphs in history books, and they have all but been ignored by the media?

At long last, Congress has finally approved a long-overdue memorial for the Korean War vets. It is to be situated across from the Vietnam Memorial.

Six million dollars are needed. Hyundai Motor Corp. in South Korea has contributed $1.2 million in gratitude.

Abby, you have espoused many worthwhile causes in the past. I hope you will consider this one. Our ranks are diminishing with age, and time is of the essence.

If any of your readers would like to make a small tax-free donation, it would be gratefully appreciated. Checks can be made out to: The Korean War Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 1372, Washington, D.C. 20013-1372.

KATHLEEN CRONAN WYOSNICK, SAN JOSE, CALIF.

DEAR KATHLEEN: I am sending my check today, and I hope readers will come through with contributions. If everyone who reads this sends $1, we should have that memorial paid for in a matter of months. Readers?

Constructive changes will be made in the year ahead where your work or career is concerned. There is a possibility you may enter a new field that will offer exciting possibilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't take it as a personal affront if another isn't in complete accord with your ideas. It doesn't mean this individual dislikes you as a person. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to be impulsive in the management of your financial affairs today. If you get reckless, you might do something that will prove to be costly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) In order to operate at your best today, you will have to be free from interference by others. Avoid situations that have restrictions of this type.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You are not likely to work too well under pressure today, so don't leave important assignments until the last minute. Stay on schedule and avoid mental traffic jams.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Friends will find you an enjoyable companion today, but not necessarily a generous one. If you expect others to share with you, you must first share with them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possibility today that you might prematurely tip your hand and derail something good which you should be keeping secret. Silence is golden.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't let an old grudge influence your thinking today if you have to deal with a person you've crossed swords with in the past. It's best to turn over a new leaf.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Sometimes we can get a better business deal from a stranger than we can from a friend. This could be true in your instance today, so shop around.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today if you seek advice from friends you might get conflicting opinions that will only confuse you. To be on the safe side, make your own judgments.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't make it uncomfortable for co-workers today by letting them know how greatly you are inconvenienced by doing what you have to do. Their jobs are not pushovers either.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Guard against tendencies towards being too possessive or demanding of those you love. Instead of getting your way, you will only arouse rebellious reactions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You must be very careful today to be certain you treat your companions equally. If you play favorites, you will be courting hurt feelings.

Hershiser wins NL Cy Young Award

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Another honor, more fame, more public attention. Orel Hershiser is learning about life as a celebrity.

"The biggest pressure so far has been on my parents, wife and friends," the Los Angeles Dodgers' pitcher said Thursday after it was announced he was the 1988 National League Cy Young Award winner. "Today we ran an errand to buy Quinton (his 3-year-old son) some clothes and people were stopping me and I couldn't help Quinton get things."

"Things have changed that way and I hope things calm down."

Hershiser, who already had collected the NL playoff and World Series Most Valuable Player awards, pitched still another shutout in the NL Cy Young balloting. He became the first pitcher in three years to be voted the honor unanimously.

Hershiser accepted news of the latest award in his typically humble fashion.

"It's amazing for that all to happen to one individual and for our ball club to be in the right spot at the right time and for me to be in the position I was," he said. "To say it was something of my doing was wrong."

"I worked hard with the talent I was given and everything just worked out perfect... My career will go downhill from here."

The Cy Young capped an amazing year for Hershiser, who was baseball's most dominant pitcher over the final two months of the season and whose playoff and World Series heroics led one magazine to tab him "The New Mr. October."

But the postseason had no bearing on the Cy Young voting; that balloting was conducted before the playoffs began. Hershiser got all 24 first-place votes and 120 points in balloting by two members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in each league city.

Cincinnati's Danny Jackson, who had an identical record to Hershiser, was second with 15 second-place votes and 54 points. David Cone, 20-3 for the New York Mets, was third with nine second-place votes and 42 points.

Hershiser's record streak of 59 scoreless innings to end the regular season locked up the award for him. He wound up 23-8 with a 2.26 earned-run average for the Dodgers.

He is the 12th unanimous Cy Young winner, the first since Roger Clemens of Boston and Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets in 1985. Minnesota's Frank Viola, named Wednesday to win the AL Cy Young, was one vote short of unanimous.

Hershiser, a 30-year-old right-hander, had been one of the best and most consistent pitchers in the major leagues for his first four full seasons. Yet this year, he raised himself to a new level, combining magic and magnificence in drawing comparisons with the all-time greats.

"I think my life will be classified in two sections now — before 1988 and after 1988," he said after becoming a World Series hero.

He led the league with eight shutouts and 267 innings. His ERA ranked third, he was seventh with 178 strikeouts and opponents batted just .213 against him. Hershiser allowed two or fewer earned runs in 23 of 34 starts and his 23 victories were the most for the Dodgers since Sandy Koufax won 27 in 1966.

Hershiser was equally brilliant in the postseason. He set a playoffs record by pitching 24 2-3 innings — giving up three earned runs — winning once and getting a save as the Dodgers upset the heavily favored Mets in seven games.

Hershiser won both of his starts in the World Series as the injury-ravaged Dodgers beat heavily favored Oakland. He shut out the Athletics on three hits in Game 2 and clinched the championship in Game 5 by beating Oakland 4-2 on four hits.

Strange leads Nabisco golf

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It was, said Curtis Strange, one of the best rounds of golf he had ever played.

It was even better, he said, than a 62 at the Old Course at St. Andrews, Scotland last year.

"The quality of the shots, where they went, the feeling of being in total control... probably as good a round as I've ever played," Strange said after a spectacular 64 provided him with a three-shot lead Thursday in the first round of the season-ending $2-million Nabisco Championships of Golf.

He did not make a bogey. He did not have a "5" on his card. He scored five birdies on putts of five feet or less. He also found the cup with a 131-yard, 8-iron shot for an eagle-2 on the 11th.

Harvesters close out 1988 season

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

Now that the presidential race is over, the week's second-most important topic around town can be discussed.

Of course, that's the annual Pampa-Borger football rivalry which heats up at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Harvester Stadium.

While Pampa has showed considerable improvement over a year ago, Borger has had to rebuild both its offensive and defensive lines.

However, Harvester coach Dennis Cavalier sees more to the Bulldogs than their 2-7 record going into tonight's finale for both teams.

"Watching them on film, I didn't expect to see a very good club, but they looked pretty salty," Cavalier said. "They have big kids all over the place."

Borger's biggest offensive threat is halfback Donnie Wright, a 200-pound senior who has scored five touchdowns this season.

"He's a big back and he runs hard. He was their fullback last year, but now they're running some wishbone with him at halfback," Cavalier said.

The Bulldogs do have size. Chris Sims, a 275-pounder, plays offensive tackle while 290-pound Marcus Jones anchors the defensive line. Throw in 220-pound defensive tackle John Bowie and 215-pound linebacker Bodie Hill and Borger has one of the biggest teams in the area.

"Offensively, we could have trouble moving them out when we need to run the ball inside," Cavalier said. "We're going to have to play a solid, consistent game on both sides of the ball and control the time when we're on offense," added Cavalier. "Controlling the time has been the key to any of our games this year."

The Bulldogs appear to have a better than average passing attack. Quarterback Chad Brown has thrown for four touchdowns and Matt McIntosh has caught three TD passes.

"Borger has struggled this year and I'm sure they anticipated having a better team," Cavalier said.

With 13 lettermen returning from a 7-4 team, expectations were high that the Bulldogs would have another winning season.

New head coach Bob Keyes is almost at a loss to explain Borger's plunge.

"I guess you might say we're rebuilding. When we played Hereford last week it sure looked that way," Keyes said.

The Herd trampled Borger 48-7 last week. Borger's only wins have been against Randall (21-19) and Dumas (26-7).

"I feel like we're going to have to play one of our better games to beat Pampa," Keyes said. "We're going to have to be error-free on offense and stop their good running game on defense."

Several players have contributed to Pampa's diverse attack this season. Fullback David Fields leads the pack with 600 yards rushing and five touchdowns, including one TD catch. Quarterback James Bybee had thrown for six scores and ran for three more. Tailback Brandon McDonald has rushed for six touchdowns and 393 yards. A pair of sophomore backs, Quincy Williams and Wayne Cavanaugh, have combined for 429 yards in rushing and receiving. Tight end Jason Garren leads the receiving corps with 11 catches for 195 yards and two touchdowns.

Pampa, 3-6 overall, can remain in fifth place in the 9-team district with a win tonight.

The Harvesters will be without punter Ricky Sewell and cornerback Robert Perez. Sewell is recovering from a neck injury and Perez is competing in the state cross-country meet in Georgetown this weekend.

Back in the office

Chicago Bears' head coach Mike Ditka answers questions during a press conference Thursday in his office. Ditka was released from the hospital Wednesday night after suffering a heart attack last week.

Aggies hoping for asterisk

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Texas A&M claims the Arkansas Razorbacks won't be the true Southwest Conference football champions unless the Hogs beat them on Saturday. Probation-stained Texas A&M figures it can claim the SWC title with an asterisk by defeating the Cotton Bowl-bound Hogs in Fayetteville.

"This is not a bowl game for us," said Texas A&M quarterback Bucky Richardson. "It's a game for the Southwest Conference championship. We're still the champs. They have to take it away from us."

A&M has won three straight SWC titles and is unbeaten in league play this year. However, NCAA probation has knocked A&M out of post-season play and the legal right to claim the league title.

The unblemished, 11th ranked Razorbacks have only A&M to beat to sweep through the SWC unbeaten. They have already clinched their first outright league title since 1965.

"Arkansas will have to put an asterisk next to its name if we win because we would truly be the (SWC) champions," said A&M linebacker John Roper. Arkansas coach Ken Hatfield believes the games of a team on probation shouldn't count in league play.

"If a school is on probation none of the results against other conference schools should count in the league standings," he said.

The Hogs have sold out Razorback Stadium for the homecoming game against the Aggies.

"We'll be pumped up for this one," said Arkansas cornerback Richard Brothers. "We have a lot of incentive."

A&M hasn't won in Fayetteville since 1967. Aggie Coach Jackie Sherrill is 0-3 in Arkansas and has been outscored 77-10 by the Hogs in the state.

If Arkansas downs A&M, it will go into a nationally televised Nov. 26 matchup with Miami unbeaten and with a longshot chance at the national title.

Arkansas rated a two-point favorite over A&M for the 1 p.m. clash. In other games, Texas was a one-point favorite over Texas Christian in a noon (Raycom Television) game in Fort Worth; Baylor was a four-point pick over Rice in Houston in a 1 p.m. game. Texas Tech was a four-touchdown favorite over Lamar in a 1 p.m. game in Lubbock; and Wyoming was a two-point favorite over Houston in a 7 p.m. nationally televised game (ESPN) in the Astrodome.

Texas running back Eric Metcalf was doubtful for the game in TCU against the Horned Frogs as the troubled "Horns" try to win their second conference game of the year. Metcalf is troubled with a sprained ankle.

Area cagers eye 1988-89 basketball openers

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Writer

This is the conclusion of a four-part series outlining the area districts and teams for the upcoming basketball season. Today's story features District 3-1A.

District 3-1A

GROOM TIGERS

GIRLS: The Lady Tigers posted a 10-9 overall and 4-4 conference mark last season to finish third in District 2-1A, only two games back from a second-place tie.

For the 1988-89 season, the Groom girls welcome coach Jimmy Branch in his first year as the Lady Tigers' mentor.

Just last Friday, Branch finished his first season as the Groom head football coach. As a result, the lady cagers only began practice this week, leaving the basketball picture somewhat up in the air at this writing.

"I can't say a whole lot right now," Branch said. "We've got a young team, but we should have some pretty fair talent if we develop along the way."

The Lady Tigers will travel to Adrian for a scrimmage game on Nov. 12, followed by the season opener at McLean Nov. 15.

BOYS: The return of four players who saw varsity action in last year's playoff season points to a bright future for the 1988-89 Tigers.

Groom's 10-7 record last season was good enough to send the Tigers to the bi-district playoffs, where they fell to the Vega Longhorns.

This time around, the Tigers will be under the tutelage of coach Jay Lamb, who moved to Groom from Amarillo, where he was a coach at Highland Park School.

Lamb is expecting from 16 to 18 players to turn out for the squad, including returning starters Michael Rose and Stoney Crump, both seniors. Senior Matt Weinheimer and sophomore Jeffrey Fields, both of whom saw some varsity action last season, should step in and fill starting roles.

"The bottom line on us is, we've got the athletes to be competitive," Lamb said. "It just depends on how hard we want to work. If we get in the gym and work out hard, it should be a real good season."

"This is a tough district. Claude is always good. White Deer will be tough by district time, and Lefors should be better than last year."

The Tigers also have a scrimmage in Adrian on Nov. 12 and will tipoff the season at McLean on Nov. 15.

LEFORS PIRATES

ended last season with a 5-17 record and finished fifth in District 2-1A. Coach Richard Moore, who led the Lefors girls in the final six games last year, returns to the helm for the 1988-89 campaign.

Lefors lost two seniors to graduation, leaving four returning starters for this year. Moore cited several players as top prospects, including senior post-forward Kim Moore, junior guard-forward Carrie Watson, sophomore Jennifer Moore, junior Kelly Lake, and Dana Davis, who will miss part of the season with a knee injury.

In all, the Lady Pirates consist of 10 players — one senior, four juniors, three sophomores and two freshmen.

"We've got a little size on offense," Moore said, "but we're weak defensively. We're going to have to spend some time on defense."

"White Deer and Claude should be two tough ones in our district, and it's going to be a challenge this year. We have some young kids that have some ability, but they're going to have to learn to play the game of basketball."

BOYS: With all but one starter returning from the 1987-88 squad, the Pirates are in a good position to improve upon last season's 3-16, fifth-place finish.

The cagers are just getting under way this week after concluding the football schedule last Friday. Head football coach Dale Means, in his first year at Lefors, will also lead the boys basketball program.

Dewayne Bowley, at 6-0 the best bet under the boards, heads the list of returning starters, which includes Dusty Roberson (5-6), Kevin Mayfield (5-8) and Jarrod Slatten (5-10). The final starting slot, to be chosen from an 11-man roster, is still up for grabs.

"We're short, but we've got a little speed," Means said. "We're going to use a pressurized zone and get after them on defense to make up for our lack of height."

"We're going to try to better last year's record. We've set our goal to win 10 games. You've always got to try to be better."

The Pirates will travel to Hedley on Nov. 15 for the season opener.

WHITE DEER BUCKS AND DOES

GIRLS: The Does are anxious to get this season rolling, if for no other reason than to erase 1987-88's 3-21, last-place finish in District 2-1A.

Coach Deryll Friday, returning as the White Deer girls' mentor, is expecting a little different outcome this go-round. "We think we were better than our record indicated," he said. "We have something to prove to ourselves this year."

The Does, moving from Class

2A to Class 1A competition, could be proving it all the way to the playoffs. With three full-time and three part-time starters back, not to mention a total of 31 players to choose from, White Deer is primed to avenge last season's disappointing results.

Jill Immel (Sr., post), Stacy McConnell (Sr., wing) and Joy Ingle (Sr., wing) each bring one full year of varsity experience to the court. Jill Brown (Jr., point-guard), Julie Hillhouse (Jr., post) and Traysa Wells (Jr., post) all saw part-time action last year.

The Does have several others who are expected to make varsity contributions, including Tara Cox, Misty Roach, Brenda Apple, Julie Gortmakeer, Carrie Woodall, Tracy Lemons, Shelly Turner and Jennifer Germany.

"We've got a good crew, and they're doing real well," Friday said. "The girls have a good attitude, and they're working hard. We expect to win this year."

"They're looking forward to receiving the benefits of all the hard work they've put in. They didn't get any of those benefits last year. We're really expecting to compete a lot better."

The Does host Higgins for the season opener on Nov. 15.

BOYS: White Deer tied for third place with an 8-4 mark in District 1-2A last year. This season finds coach Scott Murray and his Bucks reclassified in District

3-1A, and along with the move comes a sense of optimism.

But with the Buck gridders on a 9-0 roll and headed for the state playoffs, the basketball schedule could be considerably shorter this season. "We won't be starting any basketball until we finish up the football season," said Murray, who is also an assistant football coach. The way the Bucks have been performing on the gridiron, it could easily be another month before the cagers hit the court.

Jason Marlar and Bart Thomas, both point-guards, are the only returning starters expected. Lettermen T.W. Lowe and Tommy Martinez are this season's wing-forwards. Some young players will provide the height on the team, as Allen Mercer and Tim Davis will fill the post positions.

Rounding out Murray's tentative varsity roster are points Jerod Cox and Troy Cummins, outside man Alan Holly, and wing-forward Daniel Gillespie. "If I was picking the varsity right now," Murray said, "that would be it."

"We're kind of optimistic at this point, but it's not going to be any piece of cake. Groom and Claude are always tough."

"We'll be quicker and shorter, so we'll have to play a different style of ball than we have in the past."

Exciting rivalry continues

Sports Forum

By Warren Hasse

As the Pampa Harvesters and Borger Bulldogs meet for the 56th time on the football field this Veteran's Day, it seems appropriate to note the only times they've missed playing since 1932 were 1937 and the World War II year of 1943. In the series, Pampa holds a one-game edge, 27-26 with two contests ending in ties.

Pampa won the first before the Bulldogs broke the string in 1946. And that was built to a 16-1-2 record before, like the just-ended presidential campaign, the margin faded. Gene Mayfield and Butch Henderson coaching eras at BHS masterminded that swing. Mayfield blasted Pampa seven straight times without losing. And Henderson, who used a strong 7-4 record and playoff spot last year to elevate himself to a 5A post at Lubbock Coronado where he finished 6-4 this season, built an 8-2 record against five different Pampa coaches in his 10-season stop at Bulldogland.

Things have gone pretty much according to pre-season expectations for the two teams as they enter tonight's season curtain-closer. They are muddled back in the middle of the standings, with the outcome determining only if Pampa holds onto fifth place all alone or must share it with the Bulldogs and Lubbock Dunbar.

Pampa has not held an opponent scoreless since game six of the 1983 season, a 31-0 winner at Brownfield. In game four of that season, Levelland was the last team kept off the scoreboard at Harvester Park. Ten times since then Pampa has been held scoreless. The Green and Gold could do something about that tonight. Borger is the lowest-scoring team in the district, with only 81 points while building a 2-7 record.

At the same time, the Red and White also owns the worst defense, allowing 302 points to opponents, 199 coming in district play where they have a 2-5 record. Pampa has shown an ability to play defense at times. But the season-long inconsistency begs the question of which Harvester team will show up?

The series has been filled with many incidents that are recalled when the two teams meet. The 14-14 tie in 1948 that saw a near-fight after the game between the two coaches, Tom Tipps and Trickey Ward; Mayfield, rejected for the Pampa coaching job eight months earlier, taking it out by handing Pampa a 66-13 pounding his first year at Borger; Pampa star Kenny Hebert being ejected at the start of the second half of a 21-13 Borger win in 1963, along with a third-string BHS player allegedly in the game on the kickoff team to create a problem and bring about the ejection; Borger students slipping into Harvester Park during the summer and using soil-killer to place huge letters "B" in the grass. Yes, there have been many, many more. What tonight will bring remains to be seen. But as with every Borger-Pampa game for over five decades, you can be assured it will be exciting.

EXTRA POINTS: The four new head coaches in the District this season enter the final weekend with a combined 9-22 mark, most successful being Levelland's Buster Leaf, who has a shot at the 1-4A championship as the Lobos host Frenship tonight...Estacado, which finished its season last weekend in the 9-school district, can only sit and see if its 6-1-1 mark earns the second playoff position...Congrats to Robert Perez, on qualifying for state cross-country meet...And to Tanya Lidy, named High School All-American. She has already broken one school mark in Nebraska, where she is running the 200 meter, the long jump, and on the mile relay squad...Robert Hale's basketballers scrimmage Guymon and Caprock in McNelly Fieldhouse starting at 10 am tomorrow. Free to the public...The Dumas Demonette volleyballers, representing District 1-4A very well, play in the Regional finals tomorrow...Canyon girls basketball standout Missy Kraai has announced she will attend Colorado U. next year...Mike Bailey's 12-5A champion Plano East meets Dallas Carter in bi-district at Texas Stadium tonight...And there's a great 5A doubleheader in Amarillo tomorrow if you want top action...Former Borger and Canadian Football League grid great John LaGrone was defeated in his re-election bid as 84th District Attorney Tuesday. A Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame inductee, LaGrone has served as a public official for 11 years...The US Supreme Court has agreed to review the racial bias case of Norman Jett, who claims he was fired from his job as head coach at Dallas all-black South Oak Cliff HS because he is white...USA Today retains Sugar Land Willowridge as the nation's second best schoolboy football team (behind LA Loyola), and has moved Houston Yates up to No. 15 this week...The Allen Marching Eagles of District 9 repeated as the Class 4A marching band state champions this week and Spring Westfield (where former Harvester E.J. McIlvain is on the school board) repeated in 5A. Canyon HS's marching Eagles finished No. 9 in 3A...Pampa and Dumas finished in group 2, the middle 50 percent, in last year's TEAMS (Texas Educational Assessment for Minimal Skills) tests conducted by the Texas Education Agency. Canyon finished in Group I, the top 25 percent.

usual, Amarillo High won't be making things any easier. "The girls should have an outstanding year," said Neil Turner, a member of the Pampa boys team. "They might win district. The boys are aiming for second place in district right behind Amarillo High."

"From what I expect, Amarillo High is the competition," Young said. "The girls should finish in the top three at least, and their goal this year is to win district."

The girls have finished second in the district behind the Sandies for the past three years. Sixteen girls fill out this season's squad. The 11-member boys team is also setting its sights higher this time around. "I look for the boys to improve a lot," Young said. "We've got more boys, so we should be able to compete a little better as a team."

"It was kind of scary," she said. "I had never been to Korea, and I didn't know I was so popular there. I was hoping to spend a few quiet days before the tournament started, but it didn't work out that way."

Back home in Germany, Graf attracts crowds wherever she goes. "It gets very difficult sometimes," she said. "When I was in Hamburg recently, I tried to go out on a Saturday. I walked about 20 meters, but there were so many people following me that I went back to my hotel."

"That's why I like to come to the United States. Here I can walk down the street and nobody bothers me. I was in Macy's yesterday and only two people asked me for autographs."

Graf, who meets countrywoman Claudia Kohde-Kilsch in the opening round Monday night, has played only one tournament since the Olympics. But her coach Pavel Slozil, said she has been playing very well in practice.

"I'd say she's about 90 percent," Slozil said. "Of course, she's never totally satisfied. That's what makes her such a great player."

After her dominant performance this year, tennis fans are wondering what Graf will do for an encore. But she isn't concerned about other people's expectations.

"It would be impossible to top this year, so I'm not going to worry about it," she said. "That's something for reporters to talk about. My job is to go out and play tennis as well as I can."

Pampa High swimmers open season

The Pampa High School swim team will get its feet wet this Saturday in the opening meet against Altus High School at Altus, Okla.

This is the first of two scheduled meetings between the Pampa and Altus swim teams, and if the past couple of years is any indication, it should be a close one. "This is a four-point meet every year," Pampa coach Norma Young said. "Last year we beat them twice, both times by only four points. The year before we split, each of us winning one meet by four points."

The swimmers have high expectations for this season, but as

Great Graf

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody's perfect. But Steffi Graf has come close.

The world's No. 1 female tennis player lost two matches to Gabriela Sabatini in Florida last spring. Since then, she's been faultless.

Her list of 1988 accomplishments is longer than George Bush's resume.

The first Grand Slam since 1970. The first Olympic gold medal in women's tennis since 1924. Ten tournament titles. A 71-2 match record. A 45-match winning streak.

And she's only 19.

"It's been an amazing year," Graf said Thursday at the draw for next week's Virginia Slims Championships at Madison Square Garden. "Everything I wanted to happen has happened."

The West German can complete her wish list with a victory at the season-ending $1 million Slims tournament, which features the top 16 singles players and top eight doubles teams in the point standings.

"You always like to end the year with a victory," Graf said. "Sure, I don't have to prove anything. But that doesn't change the way I play. I always want to win."

When she beat Sabatini in the U.S. Open final, Graf became the first player since Margaret Court to sweep the four Grand Slam tournaments in the same year. A few weeks later in Seoul, she beat Sabatini again to win the gold medal.

But Graf's fondest memory of the year was the Wimbledon final, where she halted Martina Navratilova's bid for a record ninth singles title.

"I think it was because I played the best I could in the last two sets," she said. "And because of the atmosphere on Centre Court. It's a very special place."

Graf also enjoyed her Olympic experience despite a rough start. When she arrived at the Seoul airport, Graf needed bodyguards to protect her from a mob of reporters, photographers and fans.

"It was kind of scary," she said. "I had never been to Korea, and I didn't know I was so popular there. I was hoping to spend a few quiet days before the tournament started, but it didn't work out that way."

Back home in Germany, Graf attracts crowds wherever she goes.

"It gets very difficult sometimes," she said. "When I was in Hamburg recently, I tried to go out on a Saturday. I walked about 20 meters, but there were so many people following me that I went back to my hotel."

"That's why I like to come to the United States. Here I can walk down the street and nobody bothers me. I was in Macy's yesterday and only two people asked me for autographs."
