Cold front brings damaging winds to Pampa

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

The first signs of winter made their violent presence known in Pampa Tuesday when a cold front brought winds that sometimes reached hurricane force through the area.

The winds toppled trees, damaged mobile homes and kept emergency personnel busy throughout most of the day.

The Pampa Police Department logged 20 incidents of powerline damage around the city as well as 23 reports of damage to property. Countless other incidents of damage went unreported.

"We are still trying to get people back on electrical service this morning. Some of them that we thought we had on were back off this morning. We worked until midnight last night," said Charles Williams, a Southwestern Public Service district engineer.

"We had 29 broken poles from Groom to Kingsmill and from Canadian to Wheeler; kind of all over our territory. We do have crews from Amarillo helping us put it all back together today."

Williams said extensive damage occurred because of sheet metal flying into lines. A high number of damage calls all came in within a short period of time, he said.

"We just couldn't get to them all to prevent further damage," Williams said.

Officials with the police department reported winds as high as 90 mph in the area. Gusts of 65-70 mph were common around the area.

Authorities urged the volunteer evacuation of the Tumbleweed Acres Mobile Home Park off West Kentucky Street when a large storage unit near the homes began to break apart.

One woman was hit by a piece of flying metal from the units. Officials with Coronado Hospital said Pam Jennings was treated and released for lacerations she received when struck by pieces of the building.

The front door glass at The Pampa News as well as all of the windows at Clic Photo in Coronado Center were blown out due to the wind damage.

"Basically the heaviest damage area was out at the trailer park where two trailers suffered extensive damage and one storage shed was totally leveled," said Chief Robert Eberz of the Pampa Police Department.

"We also had numerous fences blown down and dumpsters blown all around. Other than that, there was a camper top blown into the creek at Somerville and Hobart," he reported.

Eberz said the city's Emergency Management Plan was brought into effect to coordinate efforts of the police, fire and street departments as well as the local utility companies.

"At least 90 percent of the calls were not police related. The bulk of the work load was dumped on the street and fire departments," Eberz said.

At the Pampa Mall a light pole blew over onto a car owned by Lisa Fulton, denting the roof and knocking out one window. Meanwhile, several chimneys at the Caprock Apartments suffered wind damage.

Several businesses had their signs destroyed, including Curtis Mathes and Sonic Drive Inn. The K mart sign at the Pampa Mall was also partially damaged.

At times the winds, which averaged 45-55 mph from 11 a.m. until nearly 2 p.m., reduced visibility to near zero due to the amount of dust in the air. Drivers also complained that the sky seemed to be raining mud at times as the dust mixed with traces of precipitation.

Just outside Pampa on Hwy. 60 a mobile home was flipped completely over by the high winds. The trailer was not occupied at the time.

"It's unusual to get winds this high this time of year. What happened was a low pressure system developed over the Panhandle and the strong pressure moved quickly to the northeast. The pressure gradient created the high winds. Something like this normally only happens in the spring," said Steven Cooper of the National Weather Service in Amarillo.

By Tuesday evening the winds had decreased, giving way to winter-like weather that saw temperatures dipping into the mid 20s, with Pampa having a low of 24 this morning.

Low pressure system causes gusty winds for area towns

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

A rapid drop in air pressure brought hurricane-like conditions to the Panhandle Tuesday, with wind gusts of up to 90 miles per hour and varying amounts of damage to area communities.

A "very intense" low pressure system centered over southwestern Kansas was responsible for the windy weather that plagued the Panhandle area Tuesday, said Darrel Sehorn, staff meteorologist for KGRO-KOMX radio.

"It was a very deep low and the bottom just dropped out of it," Sehorn explained. "We were on the bottom side and got the west wind from it, which changed to the north as it passed by. It was like a top wound up and released."

Early Tuesday barometer readings at the local radio station were 29.48, Sehorn said. When the air pressure began to drop quickly, he issued high wind warnings with gusts of 50 mph expected. "I knew with the air pressure reading like that there would be high winds, but it was hard to predict 80 to 90 mph gusts."

"We had a lot of sustained winds at 60 mph, high enough to cause damage," Sehorn said. He recorded gusts of 80 mph at the station, he said. Perry Lefors Field reported gusts of 90 mph.

"We had our own little hurricane yesterday," Sehorn quipped.

Carson County Sheriff Connie Reed reported a major grass fire on the Four 6s ranch, near Panhandle. Sheriff deputies were called to Texas 270 at about 9 a.m. Tuesday to stop traffic from driving into the heavy smoke from the fire.

Several area fire departments, county employees from two counties and a number of oil companies joined to battle the blaze that burned several sections of the ranch, Reed said. Fire trucks, road maintainers, and oil field water trucks were used in the concerted effort to fight the fire.

Despite the heavy smoke crossing the highway, no traffic accidents occurred, the sheriff said.

After about four hours, the fire was brought under control, Reed said. "It was a miracle they stopped it at all with the wind like it was," he added.

With the exception of the grass fire, Carson County officials reported light wind damage, fences blown over, shingles off roofs and limbs blown out of trees.

Terrie Patterson of KPDR radio in Wheeler said the station recorded sustained winds of 45 to 48 mph and gusts of 55 to 60 mph. A spokesman for the Wheeler County Sheriff's Office said some roofs received damage due to the high winds, as well as fences blown down and branches blown from the trees.

Hemphill County and Roberts County officials each reported almost no damage from wind. A downed electrical wire started a fire which quickly burned itself out in Canadian, a Hemphill County Sheriff's Department representative said.

Sehorn said Panhandle area residents can expect highs in the 50s to 60s over the next five days with lows still near freezing at night. Winds should stay in the 10 to 20 mph range, he said.

Tuesday's low brought the area's first hard freeze with a low in Pampa recorded at 24 degrees. Up until Tuesday, the lowest recorded temperature in the area was 32 degrees this season, Sehorn said.

School board approves drawings for classrooms, buses purchase

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening and approved preliminary architect's drawings on construction of new elementary school classrooms for the district. They also voted to buy two new buses for the district rather than buying one and lease-purchasing the other.

Architect Frank Wilson of Lubbock said each of the new classrooms at Wilson, Mann and Austin elementary schools would be approximately 750 square feet.

"There's a great deal of vertical slope at Austin," Wilson said. "So we are showing steps and ramps for the handicapped. What we will have (on the outside of the new addition) is a retaining wall and steps that will get us down to asphalt level."

He said the Austin site created the most potential problems due to the steep grade of the area.

Drawings indicated that the new addition would have one 16-inch ramp in the building to accommodate the different heights of the ground.

Dr. Harry Griffith, superintendent of schools, said playground equipment at Wilson and Mann elementaries will have to be moved to make room for the new classes.

He also suggested that the district could save approximately $10,000 by purchasing chalk- See SCHOOL, Page 2

Record exports shrink trade deficit by nearly $2 billion

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The merchandise trade deficit shrank nearly $2 billion to $10.5 billion in September as exports hit a record high, the government said today.

The 15 percent improvement from an August deficit revised upward to $12.3 billion was accompanied by a slight decline in imports from the record high $39.8 billion posted that month, the Commerce Department said.

Analysts had anticipated the narrowing of the U.S. trade gap in September following a large widening in August in what has been a month-to-month seesaw pattern most of this year.

Many analysts, however, had hoped for a greater narrowing of the gap to prevent a new raid on the dollar, which fell last week on currency markets over concerns about President-elect George Bush's ability to bring down the trade and budget deficits.

Including the September figures, the trade deficit the first nine months of this year is running at an annual rate of $137.2 billion, compared with a record $170.3 billion last year and $155.1 billion in 1986.

The 2.2 percent, or $700 million, September export increase to a record $28.2 billion was led almost entirely by higher sales of American autos, data processing and office equipment and chemicals, the Commerce Department said.

Sales of U.S. airplanes, telephone equipment and electrical machinery abroad declined from August.

Americans, meanwhile, bought $600 million less in manufactured goods — including fewer apparel products and shoes plus less iron and steel — and $400 million less oil from foreign producers in September.

Altogether, U.S. imports dropped by $1.1 billion to $38.7 billion in September, the government said. But imports of foreign made autos and auto parts climbed by 8 percent to an $8 million monthly high for the year.

Oil imports fell from an average 7.9 million barrels per day in August to 7.5 million barrels a day in September. The price also dropped an average 45 cents per barrel to $14.60. The combination reduced the nation's oil bill to foreign producers from $3.7 billion in August to $3.3 billion the following month.

As usual, the United States suffered its biggest deficit with Japan. At $4.1 billion, however, the gap was $700 million less than it had been in August and was at its lowest since January.

The trade gap with Western European countries also fell by more than $500 million to $880 million in September. And with the newly industrialized Asian countries — Singapore, Hong Kong, Taiwan and South Korea — it narrowed by nearly $250 million to slightly less than $3.1 billion.

But the U.S. deficit position with Canada nearly tripled to $1.1 billion.

Before today's report was issued, Larry Chimerine, chairman of the WEFA Group, a forecasting firm based in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., said a deficit above $11 billion could create a new "pounding of the dollar."

The dollar already has dropped in value by about 8 percent against the Japanese yen and 6 percent against the West German mark since early October.

The federal budget deficit for fiscal 1988, which ended Sept. 30, was $155.1 billion, 3.6 percent larger than it was last year. Concerns about the red ink, and about President-elect George Bush's resolve to stem it given his no-tax-increase pledge, were widely blamed for last week's stock market and dollar declines.

Bush and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady have both tried this week to calm fears that the incoming administration would scrap a two-year effort by the United States and its major allies to keep the value of the dollar stable.

boards, lockers, bulletin boards and teacher wardrobes and having them installed instead of paying the contractor to do it.

Board members Jim Duggan and John Curry questioned such a move, however.

"If there was any question by our architect, I would question doing it that way. Is the potential trouble worth the savings? When we get down to the end of this project, I question whether we'll find someone in Pampa, Texas, who could put in this many lockers and chalkboards and bulletin boards when we're working on a deadline," Curry said.

Duggan suggested that each principal, along with their staff, be allowed to decide what type of furniture and lockers go in each room.

"I'd like to say I'm in favor of that. The teachers are the ones who are going to have to live with them," he said.

Wilson said that as long as the district coordinated its efforts through his office, he did not foresee many dangers in the district purchasing and installing the equipment for each room.

"The pitfalls need to be mentioned. You'd want to do this after the contractor was through and you'd have to coordinate the colors. It could be successful if you have the experience," he said.

Griffith said the district is already purchasing the type of equipment in question and installing them in rooms.

"We buy these things already. I don't see a reason to add 13 percent to it by having the contractor do it. Maybe we could buy them and have the contractor install them. But we'd save as much as $10,000 by buying them ourselves," he said.

Duggan asked how the district could avoid the problem of chipping brick such as at the middle school.

"FPX type brick with a grade of SW is the highest rating you can specify and that's what we require. That's not to say someone can't forge a certificate. But we can test the brick before it's installed," Wilson said.

He told the trustees that all construction would be inspected once or twice a week to insure the quality of work.

The board, after approving the preliminary drawings, asked Wilson for final drawings to be presented for its approval at the Dec. 13 school board meeting.

The board also agreed to table discussion on who would purchase chalkboards, lockers and bulletin boards until a later meeting. In other action the board approved the outright purchase of two new buses, the proposed 1988-89 textbook committee and sale of two pieces of property. They also signed a resolution urging the state Legislature to immediately take up the issue of school financing when it convenes in January.

In the past the Legislature has often waited until the end of a session and passed controversial pieces of school-related bills, Griffith said.

weather that was expected to drop temperatures as many as 20 degrees.

The twisters took their worst toll in Arkansas, where six people were killed and many others injured Tuesday. Tornadoes damaged buildings and overturned cars.

Guardsmen in Pulaski and Van Buren County in Arkansas searched house to house to account for people and clean up damaged areas.

Tornadoes also struck Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Iowa, while in Oklahoma high winds caused damage and fanned the flames of a cotton fire that destroyed 20 homes and businesses and injured 18 people in Altus.

One person died in Missouri when a tornado threw a trailer home into the air, authorities said. A woman in Illinois was electrocuted by a power line downed by high wind.

"It may be a little unusual for this time of year to have a tornado outbreak like this, because they normally occur in spring," said meteorologist Brian Smith from the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City.

In Arkansas, as many as 10 tornadoes touched down Tuesday night, toppling trees, downing power lines and crumpling mobile homes, houses and businesses.

In Topeka, Kan., a tornado descended without warning, crashing into Topeka West High School shortly before 2 p.m.

Six students suffered minor cuts from broken glass, said Superintendent Gary Livingston.

Pampa woman dies in accident

A 24-year-old Pampa woman died in a fiery one-vehicle accident two miles east of Skellytown late Tuesday.

Dana Lee "Summer" Ziriak of 641 N. Dwight was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident at 10:22 p.m. Tuesday by Carson County Justice of the Peace Sharon Harper.

Department of Public Safety troopers Lynn Holland and Eddie Aguilar were called to investigate the accident at about 9:10 p.m. Tuesday.

According to DPS reports, Ziriak was driving a 1987 Pontiac west on Texas Hwy. 152 at an apparent high rate of speed when she lost control of the vehicle. The car ran off the road into the north ditch and continued to travel through a barbed wire fence into a pasture for several hundred feet before becoming airborne and flying into a ravine, DPS reports state.

The Pontiac then struck the bank of the ravine, top first, overturned and landed on its wheels at the edge of the ravine, DPS officials said.

The car's engine caught fire, pinning the driver into the vehicle, the reports state. The "Jaws of Life" were used to extricate the victim from the Pontiac. Ziriak was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident, according to DPS reports.

Funeral services for Miss Ziriak are pending with Carmichael-Whately Funeral Directors.

She had been a resident of Pampa since 1985. She was a graduate of Las Vegas, Nev., High School and attended modeling school in Las Vegas for 1½ years. She was a Baptist.

Survivors include her mother, Suzanne Nix of Pampa; her father, Wallace Ziriak of Orange; her stepfather, Randy Nix of Pampa; two sisters, Kimberlee Smith of California and Martie Hart of Pampa; her grandmother, Jewell Ziriak of Rye; and her fiancé, Dave Harrison of Pampa.

Victim begs for life on death tape

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Seven months after she died begging for her life, the screams of Shannon Mann, two sisters and a brother were played to jurors in the trial of their accused killer, who said he was high on cocaine on the morning of the slayings.

Leo Narvaiz Jr., 20, is charged with capital murder in the April 15 slayings of Miss Mann, 17, his former girlfriend; Jennifer Mann, 19; Martha Mann, 15; and Ernest Mann, 11.

The bodies were found in their blood-spattered mobile home, where bloody knives — some broken and imbedded in the victims' bodies — also were recovered.

Bexar County District Attorney Fred Rodriguez rested his case Tuesday shortly after introducing the tape recording and a statement in which Narvaiz said he was high on cocaine when the four were killed.

Narvaiz, who claimed to be distraught over his breakup with Shannon Mann and her relationship with another boyfriend, was arrested several hours after the slayings. He told officers that cuts and lacerations to his arms, left leg and chest occurred during a fight he had with another man.

But in a taped telephone call to the 911 emergency service around 3:20 a.m. on April 15 and played in court on Tuesday, Shannon Mann said Narvaiz was attacking her and her siblings.

"I feel bad about this," Narvaiz said in his statement to police. "When I went to Shannon's the cocaine really controlled me."

Police detective Jimmy Holguin — who investigated the slayings, talked to Narvaiz and took the statement from him — identified the voices on the tape.

"My boyfriend just beat us up," Shannon Mann told the 911 dispatcher over screams in the background.

"He's killed my little sister. Please hurry, please hurry," she says.

After a pause, she says, "Leo, please don't" and the conversation fades as if the telephone receiver had been dropped.

The operator says, "Hello," and that is followed by a male voice, which Holguin identified as Narvaiz's, who says, "Why did you have to do this to me?"

After some unintelligible sounds, Shannon Mann says, "I love you" twice in between a "Yeah," from the male at the home.

"I'm dying already. I can't breathe," Shannon Mann says. "Did you call the cops?" the man asks.

"No, I didn't," she says. "My mouth hurts."

The conversation ends with a loud scream and then a fainter scream.

Narvaiz sat motionless through the tape playing after his attorneys unsuccessfully tried to get it barred.

Over defense objections, Rodriguez also introduced Narvaiz's statement.

Narvaiz said in the statement that he went to the Mann's trailer home early on April 15 after snorting a large amount of cocaine and driving around with some friends. Shannon answered the door and told him to go around the back door, Narvaiz said.

After entering the mobile home through the back door, he and Shannon were talking in the kitchen when Jennifer Mann walked out of a bedroom and asked him to leave, Narvaiz said.

He said Shannon Mann said she wanted him to stay, but that Jennifer Mann attacked him.

"Jenny got a knife and stabbed me in the leg," Narvaiz said. "I remember taking the knife from Jenny and stabbing her. I just went crazy."

He said he remembers Martha Mann and Ernest Mann also being at the home and being stabbed, but he didn't know who did it.

"I remember Shannon standing there and bleeding. I remember Shannon saying she couldn't breathe. I remember holding Shannon as she was standing up and then I laid her down on the bed.

"Then I stayed next to Shannon and cried for about 20 minutes," he said.

He said he cried outside the mobile home before going to a friend's home.

Medical experts testified that the women's clothes were pulled up over their breasts and below their knees after they were killed, but said it could not be determined if they had been sexually abused.

Narvaiz has sat stoically, sometimes scribbling on a notepad and whispering to his attorneys as standing-room-only spectators crowd into the courtroom.

An early start

Gail Curtis, left, and Robin Simon of Bed and Bath prepare items to use in the Friends of the Library's Head Start for the Holidays program. Scheduled for 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday in the Lovett Memorial Library, the program will offer holiday food, crafts and gifts suggestions. Other participants in the program include Cake Accents, Scotty's Wine and Cheese, Harvie's Mart, Cloyd's Stitchery Shop, Baskets of Love and Rolanda's. The Friends provide the program free to the public as a public service project.

GTE moves offices to suburb of Dallas

IRVING (AP) — GTE Corp. will announce today that the giant utility company is relocating its biggest division in this Dallas suburb, joining a string of companies that have moved to Texas, a local official says.

The relocation of the Stamford, Conn.-based communications company to Las Colinas, a planned business development in Irving, would be the largest corporate relocation in the area's history, bringing with it 3,000 to 4,000 jobs.

"That's why they're having that news conference," Plano Mayor Jack Harvard said Tuesday. "The location they picked in Las Colinas is a very fine location and they made a very fine choice."

Plano, another Dallas suburb, was one of the possible sites considered for the headquarters relocation.

GTE officials were reluctant to reveal the purpose of the 10 a.m. news conference before today. Calls Tuesday to a Dallas hotel where a company executive was staying were not answered.

"They're moving to the mid-cities," an official familiar with the GTE plans told The Associated Press. The official, who did not want his name used, also said he had seen site photos and plans of the operation.

AMR Corp., parent of American Airlines, moved to Dallas about five years ago and J.C. Penney Co. Inc. is in the process of moving its headquarters to the Dallas area. Both formerly were based in New York City.

The announcement also comes six days after the federal government picked a site near Dallas to build the "super collider" project. The $4.4 billion high-energy physics project also is expected to generate thousands of jobs.

"It's good for the whole area," Harvard said. "You don't bring something that big here without it benefitting the whole area."

According to an internal economic analysis relayed to The Dallas Morning News, the company expects to generate 6,750 jobs in the Dallas area — 4,500 at GTE and 2,250 at other employers.

The company also forecasts that it will spur $300 million in new home sales at a very conservative average price of $75,000.

Analysts had earlier speculated that because the company selected Houston for one of its business units, and because GTE Chairman James L. "Rocky" Johnson was born and educated in Texas, GTE probably would select a Texas site for the headquarters.

The company released a statement in August that said a team of GTE officials were focusing on areas where GTE already has a concentration of employees, land and buildings and/or a large market presence. The company said such locations included California, Florida and Texas.

GTE began restructuring its telephone operations, its largest business, in March. Telephone operations account for $12 billion of GTE's $15 billion in annual revenue.

So far, the business has been restructured into three groups — the mobile communications unit, which will be located in Houston with 1,000 employees; the information services unit, which will be moved to Tampa, Fla., with its more than 5,800 employees, and the local telephone service unit.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Decisions in court hindering education

America's public schools continue to ricochet from crisis to crisis, court decision to court decision. Who really runs these schools? What are they for? Children suffer and education declines. In the latest bounce of the law books, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a high school's power to ban students from advertising or promoting religious clubs.

During the 1984-85 school year, students in the New Life Christian club had been given permission to hold meetings on the California's school lawn. That seems reasonable. Schools routinely give permission to meet to chess clubs, Latin clubs and other groups.

The controversy erupted when the New Life students wanted to pass out leaflets and advertise in the yearbook. The school, contending this would be an unconstitutional promotion of religion, said no. Two students then went to court, and the case went to the U.S. Supreme Court, which let stand an appeals-court ruling that sided with the school officials, against the students.

The case was similar to one decided earlier this year in which the Supreme Court ruled that a school principal could censor a school newspaper because he is, in effect, the publication's publisher. In an ironic twist, the court's three liberal justices, William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and Harry Blackmun, who had voted to ban censorship by the principals, voted to hear the case of the Christian students.

What seems to be consistent is that the court's "conservative" majority favors control by local officials, while the "liberal" minority favors the institution of broader, national rules. Yet there's more: Local school officials are allowed to ban advertisements by religious groups, but not to institute separate, voluntary classes in religion, or do anything else that might accommodate parents' and students' religious beliefs.

In the appeals-court ruling that the Supreme Court let stand, Judge Sheila Preil Sohenshine said that the First Amendment ban on established religions means that public schools must "limit their (students') right to air religious doctrines." But how could a part of the Bill of Rights that guarantees the right to religious expression be used to limit students' exercise of that right?

What we have come to, then, is that the First Amendment, which is supposed to protect all Americans' religious rights, can be invoked when government wants to limit those rights, but never to expand them. This means that, for public schools, parents and students, there is no way through the labyrinth of decisions the courts have handed down over the years. Every path leads to a dead end. The only way out is to leave the system itself for the freedom of private school or home schooling.

Unity brings abuse of power

WASHINGTON—Back in 1787, in the midst of debate over the proposed Constitution, Thomas Jefferson wrote to James Madison. His letter contained a sentence for all ages: "I am not a friend to a very energetic government," said Jefferson. "It is always oppressive."

Through some sort of political intuition, passed down through the generations, Americans have adopted the Jeffersonian view. Election Day saw ticket-splitting on a colossal scale, as 100 million voters did their instinctive best to assure that nothing dramatic will happen in government over the next few years. The truth is that our people do not want "very energetic government." When flashy new vehicles roll forth from legislative halls, we tend to let the air out of the tires.

We operate politically under what is known as the two-party "system," but that word "system" implies a kind of regular order that over the past 40 years has become a stranger to American politics.

Our European friends have trouble understanding our ways. Some of us who cover politics for a living have trouble as well. The British, who are reared to strict party loyalty, look upon our undisciplined elections and suppose we are nuts.

Consider this remarkable circumstance: In the 100th Congress, no fewer than 22 of the 50 sovereign states sent divided delegations to the U.S. Senate. Last week's election in Virginia added one more, as Democrat Charles Robb joins Republican John Warner in the upper house.

One has to look at some of these electorates in wonder. Tell me, if you will, how the same voters in Colorado could send to the Senate Tim Wirth and Bill Armstrong? This is amazing. In 1987, Democrat Wirth rated 85 with Americans for Democratic Action; Republican Armstrong rated zero. Contrariwise, Wirth rated zero with the American Conservative Union; Armstrong rated 100.

James J. Kilpatrick

The editors of Congressional Quarterly chose 16 key Senate votes in 1988 — votes on civil rights, defense, welfare, the death penalty. Wirth and Armstrong voted oppositely on 13 of the 16.

Consider California. Alan Cranston ranks among the most liberal Democrats in the Senate. He scored a goose egg in the books of the American Conservative Union. His fellow senator, Pete Wilson, scored a respectable 75. On the 16 key votes, they canceled each other 11 times.

North Carolina provides another example. Jesse Helms and Terry Sanford have the same statewide constituency. In 1987 Americans for Democratic Action gave Sanford a nice approving score of 85; the ADA gave Helms a pitiful 10. But the American Conservative Union awarded Helms a perfect 100, and gave Sanford a measly 8. On those 16 key votes of 1988, the two North Carolina senators split precisely 15 times.

So it goes, in Arizona, Delaware, Iowa, New Mexico, New York and other states. Look at Texas: Democrat Lloyd Bentsen and Republican Phil Gramm. They voted on 12 of the 16 key votes of 1988 and canceled each other on eight of them. Harkin and Grassley cast the same kind of nullifying votes from Iowa.

Writing recently in The Washington Post, Lloyd N. Cutler took a sober look at this irrational situation. Cutler served as counsel to the president in the Carter administration; at 71 he ranks among the most respected elder statesmen of the Democratic Party. He does not share the Jeffersonian view.

In four of the past five presidential elections, the voters have put one party in charge of the White House and the other in control of the Congress. The result, in Cutler's view, has been "divided and deadlocked government." The politically opposing branches have been unable to control the federal budget; they have clashed on war powers; they have failed to find a common policy in such areas as Nicaragua and Angola.

By contrast, during the Carter years, when Democrats held both the executive and the legislative power, things went smoothly. Congress did not balk the president, and the president did not stonewall the Hill.

Cutler makes a persuasive case, but at least for this observer it is not a convincing case. I am happily content to watch from the Senate press gallery as Moynihan votes "nay" and D'Amato votes "aye." If Helms and Sanford cancel each other's vote on welfare reform, fine by me.

In Cutler's view, the more we unite power, the more likely we are to see power efficiently employed. My own view is a little different: The more we unite power, the more likely we are to see power abused.

Jim Wright ignores the people

Our nation is not a "democracy," was never intended to be. The word "democracy" is not found in our Declaration of Independence, in our Constitution or in any of our cornerstone documents.

In a political "democracy" everybody votes on everything; that can result in mob rule.

Our nation is a "republic." In our republic we elect men — presumably our best men — to make decisions in our behalf.

And the three co-equal partners in administering our affairs — the White House, the Congress and the Court — are intended to counterbalance one another.

Presently our government is out of balance.

In the aftermath of Watergate, Congress took it upon itself to clip the wings of President Nixon — and all future Presidents.

And so effective has been this congressional usurpation of power that Rep. Jim Wright (D-Tex.) — Speaker of the House — imagines himself to be "President."

Democrats in Congress have been a majority for 35 years. Historically, however, that Congress included enough "Southern Democrats" to maintain a conservative balance.

Paul Harvey

In recent elections the "solid South" has voted solidly for Republican presidents. This month, for example, Louisiana — where eight-to-one registered voters are Democrats — voted for Bush.

And there is other evidence that American voters — whatever their party labels — have been converted to conservatism, that the shift in philosophy is from left to right.

Connecticut dumped a liberal Republican, Lowell Weicker, in favor of a conservative Democrat, Joseph I. Lieberman.

The word "conservative," once a political anathema, Reagan made respectable. Now politicians are running from the "liberal" label.

While the House is supposed to be most reflective of "we, the people" — entrenched members — almost impossible to dislodge — are able to accumulate disproportionate power.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has said that "Congress will not recognize any kind of mandate to cooperate with the President."

The traditional "political honeymoon" during which any new president could expect some degree of rapport and cooperation from Congress has gone bye-bye.

Lately, Speaker Wright has become a freelance Secretary of State, announcing his own "peace plans," declaring his right to reveal classified information.

Congress, under his autocratic leadership, frees itself from restrictions and restraints and rules which it imposes on the rest of us.

The boss man of the House half of Congress — Jim Wright — has his own agenda, his own "administration," and the legislation he is going to espouse is that which the American people have just voted against!

Democrats must reach some decisions

By BEN WATTENBERG

To look to the future of the Democratic Party after yet one more presidential political trouncing, it is necessary to understand the nature of their current sad estate.

Consider this stunning, symbolic and real situation: Over the course of two election cycles — 1984 and 1988 — about 40 intra-party debates took place. Fifteen major Democratic presidential primary candidates were involved. And in those debates — NO ONE DISAGREED DIRECTLY AND REGULARLY WITH JESSE JACKSON!

Incredible! Here is a party vulnerable for 20 years for being "too liberal." And here is Jackson, a brilliant and electrifying candidate, preaching a set of views far to the left of liberal on foreign and domestic issues. And yet no candidate said, "Rev. Jackson, you have articulated some important issues with which I agree, but I have profound differences with many of your views and values."

Would it have made a difference? Suppose candidate Michael Dukakis had said it, regularly. When George Bush later attacked him for being — eek! — a liberal, Dukakis could have used the famous Latin defense: "Quis, Ego?" (Who, me?). As in: "Who me? Impossible. Why I'm the fellow who disagrees with Jesse Jackson."

Who didn't disagree with Jackson publicly? Liberals didn't: not Paul Simon, Alan Cranston, George McGovern or Michael Dukakis. Moderates didn't: not Walter Mondale, Gary Hart, Al Gore, Richard Gephardt or Bruce Babbitt. Conservatives didn't: not John Glenn, Ernest Hollings or Reuben Askew.

If we understand why Democrats have not disagreed with Jackson, we see what needs doing in the Democratic Party. It is partly because Jackson is black. That is the first hangup that has to go. It is not racism to criticize a black politician on substantive grounds. (In fact, it is racism to treat a black politician differently.)

But, Jackson aside, most Democrats believe that there is a "left-wing veto" in the presidential-selection process. That view is bolstered by the special treatment given to that super-liberal, activist-dominated, "mug-a-moderate" parody of democracy (no secret ballot) — the infamous Iowa "caucuses." The Democrats have to take away Iowa's unfair status as the always-first-in-the-nation contest.

Then, potential candidates should scrub their brains of the notion of a left-wing veto. (Jimmy Carter won primaries and caucuses running as a Southern, anti-Washington moderate.)

Next, some of the Democrats who are of the right wing of the left-wing party (that's the American center) ought to get active, pronto. Sen. Sam Nunn and Sen.-elect Charles Robb are the two names that come most readily to mind. There could be others.

And then there must be a fight. Politicians in presidential primaries don't usually like to fight over substantive matters. In the back of their minds, bells go off: I want that fellow's delegates to come to me later; I want his supporters to vote for me later; a split party is a losing party, etc.

All normally somewhat valid concerns. But when a party loses five out of six elections, by mostly big margins, for roughly the same reason, and can't seem to stop nominating loss-prone, liberal politicians — the rules change.

The only thing that can make the Democratic Party competitive for the presidency is a head-on fight — hopefully decorous and reasonable — but a fight. The struggle for the soul of the party must be public — and start now.

The Democrats must finally decide, one way or the other, whether they are a moderate progressive party, or a very liberal one. Doing it quietly, by compromise, won't help. The longer they dither, the quieter the argument, the more the image of "very-liberal" is cast in concrete. Splitting the differences can be considered later. For now, the marching banner must be, "No Compromises — Yet."

Winds whip cotton fire into Altus, Okla., homes, businesses

(AP Laserphoto)

Joe Don Raeser of Altus works to put out one of the fires in south Altus.

By DOUG FERGUSON
Associated Press Writer

ALTUS, Okla. (AP)— Burning bits of newly harvested cotton carried by swirling winds spread a fire through this city, destroying 20 houses and businesses, injuring 18 people and keeping 400 evacuees from their homes today.

Police Chief Jim Hughes said the best he hoped for was that the driving winds would subside and no bodies would turn up as workers dug through rubble left from the blaze, which spread from giant bundles of cotton stored in an open field.

"The damage has been done," Hughes said late Tuesday after the fire was contained. "I'll be happy if we don't find anyone in that rubble. I don't think they will."

Dense smoke from the burning cotton forced the evacuation of about 400 of this southwest Oklahoma city's 23,000 residents. Several schools closed early. The smoke, fanned by 40-65 mph gusts, could be seen from 30 miles away and made firefighting difficult.

"We couldn't see a hand or foot in front of our face," said firefighter Eddie Williamson. "We had to feel from house to house."

The fire seemed to skip and jump like a tornado through a residential area, burning some houses and leaving others unscathed, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said.

Eighteen people were treated for smoke inhalation at Jackson County Memorial hospital, with six or seven hospitalized for observation, officials said.

Altus Civil Defense director Dwight Dennis said that evacuated residents would not be allowed to return home until at least today. "It's just the dense smoke. We don't want them breathing it," Dennis said.

The fire broke out about noon in cotton modules, which resemble giant bales of cotton, said city Administrator Joe Courtney. The modules were about 40 feet long, 8 feet high and 8 feet wide and were stored in an open field to await processing at a cotton gin.

Tuesday night, about 40 cotton modules looked like the last logs on a huge campfire, with the soft red afterglow of embers flickering here and there.

Officials said the cause of the fire had not been determined.

"It's not uncommon for a module to self-ignite under certain situations," Courtney said. "It might sit out there and smother for two days and we might not even be aware of it."

Hughes, who said the destroyed cotton was worth about $3 million, estimated that about 100 homes were damaged by smoke and about 20 destroyed by fire.

He did not have cost estimates on the damage to residences and businesses.

Courtney said the city would seek state aid. "We suspect we will have a substantial amount of losses," he said.

Altus firefighter Clay Richardson said that when he arrived about 50 minutes after the blaze was reported, 50 mph gusts kept firefighters from being able to train water on the fire.

"There was fire all around us," Richardson said. "We didn't know where to go. It seemed like mass confusion."

The blaze crossed U.S. Highway 283 and destroyed a garden tool shop, a moving and storage company, a motel, a number of homes and damaged part of a mobile home park, officials said.

"When it crossed the highway that's when it got out of control," Richardson said. "All of the sudden it was phoom. The wind was spreading debris."

Richardson said many firefighters suffered eye injuries from blowing smoke and debris, including himself.

Bush keeps Brady as Treasury secretary

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)— George Bush, promising to bring both continuity and change to the White House, is keeping Nicholas Brady on board as treasury secretary, while sources say the president-elect has tapped feisty New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu as chief of staff.

Bush was meeting British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at the White House today while his transition co-chairmen, Craig Fuller and Robert Teeter, were expected to announce a raft of additions to the transition team.

Among those slated to be named deputy transition directors is Fred Fielding, the former Reagan White House counsel now advising Dan Quayle, the vice president-elect.

On Tuesday, after flying home from a four-day Florida vacation with Sununu in tow, Bush met with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and announced Brady as the second occupant of his Cabinet.

He said he was not prepared to announce his chief of staff, "but it might be fairly soon."

Sources close to Bush who insisted on anonymity said the choice was already made, with the nod going to the 49-year-old lame duck New Hampshire governor who helped Bush bounce back from a defeat in the Iowa caucuses last February.

The blunt-spoken Sununu, a onetime engineering professor, was an indefatigable Bush campaigner, often employed as a surrogate to attack Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Democratic nominee, and his claims of a "Massachusetts miracle."

The Sununu choice should cheer conservatives worried that the pivotal White House job would fall to Fuller, chief of Bush's vice presidential staff for the past four years and regarded as more of a moderate and pragmatist.

Fuller may be in line for a Cabinet post, possibly Transportation. He is expected to disband working under Sununu at the White House.

But Sununu's selection would leave Bush with a right-hand aide with no Washington experience. Sununu's government experience consists of six years as chief executive of one of the smallest states in the union. A father of eight, Sununu decided against seeking a fourth term this fall, largely for financial reasons.

Brady, 58, former chairman of the investment banking house of Dillon, Read & Co., joins James A. Baker III, the secretary of state-designate, as a cornerstone member of the Bush Cabinet. Brady took over the Treasury Department post in August when Baker quit to run Bush's campaign.

Bush said Brady "will be the chief economic spokesman for my administration."

"He knows that our most important priority is to keep our economy growing with low inflation and... that we must resist the policies that will impede that effort, such as raising taxes or resorting to protection."

Bush added that Brady also "knows we've got to sit down with the Congress and hammer out a budget deficit reduction agreement and that we have to do it soon."

"I'm putting together a good team here....," said Bush. "You'll see some continuity and you'll see some change."

Sununu flew to Florida Monday for a private dinner with Bush at a friend's beach home where the Bushes took their post-election respite.

At a dinner Tuesday night honoring his wife Barbara for her crusade against illiteracy, Bush joked that he had not quite been able to escape the media on his vacation.

"The slogan was not, given these telephoto lens, 'Read our lips,' but 'Read our hips' as we were in the surf," he said.

Both Bushes were visibly moved by the salute at the National Literacy Honors dinner, where Mrs. Bush and 18 adults who recently learned to read received gold medallions.

Opera star Sherrill Milnes, singers Loretta Lynn and Pearl Bailey, Govs. Thomas Kean of New Jersey and Bill Clinton of Arkansas, and the Naval Academy Glee Club joined in the festivities.

"I really am overwhelmed," Mrs. Bush told the audience of 1,200.

Bush, taking up that theme, said the entire audience of literacy activists and corporate sponsors were all part of what he meant by "a thousand points of light" reaching out "to help someone else."

Twenty-three million American adults are said to be unable to read above a fourth grade level.

Scientists: Big bellies increase heart danger

WASHINGTON (AP)— If your paunch is fatter than your haunch, the chances are you're at greater risk of having a heart attack, a stroke or diabetes.

Scientists at the American Heart Association meeting said Tuesday that a series of studies in the United States, Europe and Canada have now confirmed that a pooling of fat about the middle is a clear signal of heart attack risk.

A Santa Claus-style belly may be cute, but it can be as dangerous to the heart as cigarette smoking, high blood pressure or excess cholesterol in the blood stream, said Per Bjorntorp of the University of Goteborg in Sweden.

"If a person has normal weight, but the fat is distributed wrong, it could be a risk," said Bjorntorp. "When you compare it to the other risk factors, it is about the same strength."

He said he studied a group of 900 men and 1,400 women and found that those who had more fat on the waist than on the buttocks tended to have a greater number of heart attacks. Those with belly blubber also experienced more strokes and were more apt to develop diabetes.

Bjorntorp said the study showed that men whose waists measured the same or more than their hips were more apt to have a heart attack than those who carried their weight elsewhere. For women, he said, the risks increase when the waist size was 80 percent of the hip size. And the fatter the waist, the higher the risk, he said.

In effect, if you're shaped like a barrel, you've got a greater chance of having a heart attack than if you're shaped like a pear.

A Canadian study of identical twins showed that the rate of weight gain and the distribution of fat may be determined, in part, by genetics.

Claude Bouchard of Laval University in Ste-Foy, Quebec, Canada, said he picked 12 pairs of identical twin males, aged 19 to 27, and overfed them by 1,000 calories a day during a 100-day stay in a dormitory.

At the end of the study, all of the twins gained from eight to 26 pounds. The brothers all tended to gain about the same, but there was an almost fivefold difference between sets of twins who were "high gainers" and "low gainers," indicating a genetic difference, said Bouchard.

ence, said Bouchard. Also, he said, the brothers all tended to follow the same pattern of weight distribution, but some sets of twins gained the additional fat in the waist while others gained it in the hips.

C. Wayne Callaway, a member of the AHA nutrition committee, said scientists are not certain why waist fat tends to lead to heart attack, but some studies have shown that the fat cells stored in the abdomen are different from fat cells stored elsewhere.

How to Spot and Prevent Gas Pipeline Emergencies

Natural gas is transported through a system of underground piping. These pipelines are installed and maintained in accordance with highest safety standards, but damage from outside forces can occur. If the pipes are struck or disturbed by excavators or by natural disasters such as floods or tornadoes, personal injury or property damage could result.

You can help prevent or minimize pipeline emergencies by keeping in mind the 3 R's of Pipeline Safety:

RECOGNIZE a pipeline emergency:

- Hissing or shrill SOUND.
- Unusual BLOWING dirt or dust.
- Persistent BUBBLES in water.
- DYING PLANTS amid healthy ones.
- Distinctive SMELL, if odorized.
- FIRE or EXPLOSION near pipeline.

REPORT a pipeline emergency:

Phone the Natural Gas Pipeline 24-hour line: 1-312-691-3399. Call COLLECT.

RESPOND to a pipeline emergency:

- Evacuate the area immediately.
- Avoid potential ignition sources.
- Warn others to stay away.
- Phone Natural.

YOU CAN PREVENT PIPELINE ACCIDENTS:

- Call BEFORE you dig, drill, or doze.
- Watch for our signs at road, railroad and river crossings, at fence lines, ditches and other sites.
- For no-cost location of ALL underground facilities, call the Texas Excavation Safety System (TESS) at 1-800-DIG-TESS. Please call 48 hours in advance.

Pakistan holds first free elections in more than a decade

By DAN BIERS
Associated Press Writer

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP)—Voters streamed to the polls today in Pakistan's first free elections in more than a decade, deciding whether the charismatic Benazir Bhutto will become the first woman to lead this Moslem nation.

Troops manned bunkers in the southern cities of Karachi and Hyderabad, sites of recent ethnic rioting, and patrolled the rest of the country to prevent violence from disrupting the first National Assembly vote open to political parties since 1977.

A 25-member delegation sponsored by the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, a U.S. Democratic Party affiliate, and representatives from the roughly 30 political parties contesting the election monitored the 33,500 polling stations for signs of fraud.

Final results were not expected until midday Thursday at the earliest.

About 48 million Pakistanis were eligible to vote for 217 assembly seats in an election dominated by the 35-year-old Ms. Bhutto's populist Pakistan People's Party and the conservative Islamic Democratic Alliance. The alliance includes supporters of the late military ruler, Gen. Muhammad Zia ul-Haq.

Alliance leaders include former Prime Minister Mohammad Khan Junejo, 56, and Nawaz Sharif, 40, the acting chief minister of Punjab, the country's most populous province.

'The government is fully determined to fulfill all its responsibilities to hold a free, fair and impartial election.'

The campaign primarily focused on the political personalities. Both sides have pledged to continue close ties with the United States and support of anti-communist Afghan guerrillas.

Both groups favor Pakistan's nuclear research program for peaceful purpose and pay lip service to Islamization, although Bhutto has vowed not to allow the religious program to harm women's rights.

Acting President Ghulam Ishaq Khan will choose a member of the assembly, presumably the leader of the strongest party, to become prime minister and form a government.

But he is under no deadline to do so and, under the constitution, could wait beyond the 30-day limit set for convening the new assembly.

Zia, who overthrew the civilian government led by Ms. Bhutto's father in 1977 and two years later had him hanged, called the elections before he died Aug. 17 in a mysterious plane crash.

The campaign was marked by colorful processions, mass rallies and only sporadic violence, which typically involved stone-throwing.

A vendor was killed Tuesday when an explosive device went off in Rawalpindi, the city adjacent to Islamabad, but officials said they did not know if the incident was related to the campaign.

Ishaq Khan appeared on nationwide television Tuesday to urge Pakistanis to vote and peacefully accept the outcome.

"The government is fully determined to fulfill all its responsibilities to hold a free, fair and impartial election," he said.

"Gratitude and humbleness for the winners and patience and tolerance for the defeated ones should be the hallmark of their behavior after the polls," he said.

The last open elections in this Moslem country of 107 million people were held in 1977 under Ms. Bhutto's father, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. Zia toppled the government within months, however, alleging the vote was rigged.

The general ruled under martial law for eight years before holding national elections in 1985 on a non-party basis. Ms. Bhutto's party and other opposition parties boycotted the polls.

New study claims Pakistan armed with nuclear weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pakistan appears to have finally developed atomic weapons, increasing the threat of a nuclear war with India and representing a major setback to efforts to stem the spread of atomic weapons around the globe, says a study published Tuesday.

"After a decade of slow advances, Pakistan appears to have" joined a group of three other nations that have nuclear weapons but don't admit it, according to the review by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The other countries in that category are Israel, India and South Africa, said the report, the fourth such survey published by the non-profit group that specializes in national security studies.

Five nations have said they possess nuclear weapons: the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Great Britain and France. A sixth, India, exploded a single atomic device in 1974 but said it was a non-military explosion.

Efforts to halt the spread of nuclear weapons generally have focused on the Middle East and South Asia, the report noted. Pakistan and India have been the chief source of concern, since the two countries have fought three wars in the 41 years since they were created by the separation of colonial India from Britain.

The report, titled The Undeclared Bombs, was written by Leonard S. Spector, author of the three previous reports. Spector formerly worked on non-proliferation issues at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the Senate Energy and Natural Resources non-proliferation subcommittee.

In the past two years, Spector said, "convincing evidence emerged that Pakistan had crossed the nuclear weapons threshold and had acquired the essentials for its first nuclear weapons."

That evidence includes production of highly enriched uranium, a key component of atomic weapons, and European reports of a previously clandestine effort by Pakistan officials to smuggle sophisticated nuclear components out of West Germany.

The Pakistani program is a dilemma for the United States, Spector said in an interview, because Pakistan is a prime recipient of U.S. aid at the same time U.S. officials are pushing Pakistan not to develop atomic weapons.

Two years ago, President Reagan certified to Congress that Pakistan did not possess nuclear weapons, a certification required by Capitol Hill before the U.S. aid program could go ahead. But in recent months, U.S. officials have been less direct in asserting that the Pakistanis don't have atomic weapons.

Meanwhile, India has responded by quietly expanding its atomic weapons capability and has also worked on development of delivery systems, including medium-range rockets, the report said. India has the ingredients to build between 20 and 50 atomic weapons, it said.

For the future, Spector said, "most observers are looking for some sort of mechanism, some kind of regional arrangement, to bring India and Pakistan into negotiations. The concept is to find a way to persuade both antagonists to restrain themselves. It will be difficult, but it may be achievable."

The report also highlighted increasing dangers in the volatile Mideast, particularly in light of the spread of long-range missiles and chemical weapons among Arab enemies of Israel.

Israel has refused to admit to possessing nuclear weapons, but the report said the Israelis have "a substantial, undeclared nuclear arsenal of at least 50 to 60 nuclear devices — and perhaps significantly more — some of which are an advanced design."

The risk of nuclear escalation in a future Mideast war has "seriously increased," the study said.

What could be more heavenly than a dessert puff filled with ice cream and topped with toffee sauce? Two dessert puffs, of course!

Top stuffed puffs with toffee sauce

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Magazine Food Editor

Two dessert puffs are better than one, especially when they're as lavishly luscious as these. Spoon in your favorite butter pecan ice cream and ladle on the toffee sauce. For a company buffet with more than one dessert selection or if your guests have enjoyed a big dinner, plan on one puff per serving.

TOFFEE-TOPPED STUFFED PUFFS

½ cup water
¼ cup margarine or butter
½ cup all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
Butter Pecan Ice Cream
Toffee Sauce (recipe follows)

In a medium saucepan combine water and margarine. Bring to boiling. Add flour and salt all at once; stir vigorously. Cook and stir until mixture forms a ball that doesn't separate. Remove from heat; cool slightly, about 5 minutes.

Add eggs, one at a time; beat well after each addition for 1 minute or until smooth. Drop dough by well-rounded teaspoons 2 inches apart onto greased baking sheet, making 12 puffs. Bake in 400-degree F oven about 30 minutes until golden and puffed.

Remove from oven. Slice off top ½ of puff with serrated knife. Cut away any soft dough inside. Cool slightly. Fill each warm puff with a small scoop of ice cream. Serve warm Toffee Sauce over each. Makes 6 servings.

Toffee Sauce: In a medium saucepan combine ½ cups packed brown sugar and 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Add 1 cup light cream and 2 tablespoons margarine or butter. Cook and stir until mixture boils. Reduce heat; simmer 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally, until mixture thickens. Serve warm over puffs. Makes 1½ cups.

Nutrition information per serving: 643 cal., 7 g pro., 63 g carb., 42 g fat, 173 mg chol., 261 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 33 percent vit. A, 10 percent thiamine, 15 percent riboflavin, 15 percent calcium, 13 percent iron, 14 percent phosphorus.

Pizza seasonings spice up homemade rolls

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Magazine Food Editor

My son, like most 13-year-old boys, is a pizza fanatic. His favorite pizza seasonings give these rolls their terrific flavor. They're great with homemade vegetable soup or minestrone. I use the extra rolls for cheese or ham sandwiches for Jason's school lunch or for beefburgers.

Cheese Pizza Rolls are a tasty accompaniment with soups and stews, and can be used for burgers or for ham or cheese sandwiches.

CHEESE PIZZA ROLLS

¾ to ¾ cups all-purpose flour
½ cup grated Romano cheese
2 packages quick-rising active dry yeast
1 tablespoon dried minced onion
½ teaspoon dried basil, crushed
½ teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
One 8-ounce can tomato sauce
½ cup water
2 tablespoons olive or cooking oil
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
2 tablespoons sesame seed
2 tablespoons grated Romano cheese

In a mixer bowl combine 1½ cups of the flour, cheese, yeast, onion, basil, oregano and garlic powder. In a saucepan heat tomato sauce, water, oil, sugar and salt just until warm (120 to 130 degrees). Add to flour mixture. Add egg. Beat on low speed ½ minute, scraping bowl constantly. Beat on high speed 3 minutes. Stir in as much remaining flour as you can.

On lightly floured surface knead in enough remaining flour to make moderately stiff dough that is smooth and elastic (6 to 8 minutes). Shape into ball. Place in greased bowl. Cover; let rise until double (about 30 minutes).

Punch dough down. Cover; let rest 10 minutes. Divide into 18 pieces; shape into balls. Place in two greased 8-by-8-by-2-inch baking pans. Cover; let rise until nearly double (20 to 25 minutes). Brush with water; sprinkle with sesame seed and cheese. Bake in 375-degree F oven 18 to 20 minutes. Cool. Makes 18 rolls.

Nutrition information per roll: 128 cal., 4 g pro., 20 g carb., 3 g fat, 19 mg chol., 241 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 12 percent thiamine, 10 percent riboflavin.

Choose wisely when buying holiday turkey

GETTING THE BIRD: TIPS FOR BUYING YOUR HOLIDAY TURKEY

Even though prices per pound are higher than last holiday season, turkey is still a good buy. Keep these points in mind as you choose among the kinds of turkey available.

FRESH TURKEY: Buy it a maximum of 2 days before roasting. Take the turkey directly home to your refrigerator.

FRESH STUFFED TURKEY: Avoid buying a fresh turkey that's been stuffed but not cooked. Raw turkey should be stuffed only right before cooking. Otherwise, bacteria can multiply, causing food-borne illness.

ROASTED STUFFED TURKEY: If you decide to purchase a stuffed turkey that's been completely roasted from a store or restaurant, plan to pick it up just before it's time for dinner. Make sure the turkey is hot! Then take it home and eat at once.

FROZEN TURKEY: Look over the frozen turkey you choose to make sure the packaging is free from tears and frost. Store the turkey in your freezer up to 12 months. After 12 months, the turkey is still safe, but will begin losing quality. Buy frozen turkey at least 3 to 4 days before serving to allow for thawing.

SMOKED TURKEY: Even though smoked turkey is fully cooked, it must be refrigerated. Keep unopened turkey in your refrigerator up to 2 weeks. Or, wrap unopened turkey in moisture- and vaporproof wrap; seal, label and freeze up to 2 months.

MAIL-ORDER TURKEY: Many companies sell different forms of turkey through mail-order catalogs. Be sure that the turkey you purchase in this way, or that is sent as a gift, is still cold upon delivery. To keep the turkey cold, it is typically shipped in a plastic foam container with dry ice or an ice pack. Try to arrange shipment so that someone can immediately put the turkey in a refrigerator upon delivery.

Dr. Spock to speak Friday in Amarillo

AMARILLO — Benjamin Spock, MD, well-known child care authority, will speak to area residents in a presentation at 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 18 at Amarillo High School.

Spock will speak on "Stresses Affecting Families and Children." Tickets are available at Harrington Cancer Center or at the door.

Spock first gained national recognition when Baby and Child Care was originally published. The book represented the first effort at addressing the emotional as well as physical aspects of child care in a supportive approach for parents.

The book culminated three years of writing in the evenings while the physician maintained a private practice in pediatrics. He has written or collaborated on five other books on child care, and has also written four books on political, social and personal issues, as well as columns for Redbook magazine for 25 years.

Baby and Child Care has sold more than 32 million copies and has been translated into 31 languages. The latest edition of the book, along with Spock on Parenting, released in August, will be available for purchase at the program. All proceeds will benefit children's cancer treatment programs at Amarillo's Harrington Cancer Treatment Center.

Spock attended Yale Medical School and received his medical doctorate from the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University in 1929. He received postgraduate training in medicine, pediatrics and psychiatry and conducted part-time training at New York Psychoanalytic Institute for five years while establishing a private practice. He later served on the pediatric and psychiatric staffs of Cornell Medical College and New York Hospital.

In 1942, Spock joined the staffs of the Mayo Clinic and Rochester Child Health Institute in Minnesota to develop a program for children's physical and psychological health. Four years later he developed a teaching program in child psychiatry and child development at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine. From 1955 until he retired in 1967, Spock was involved in teaching and child rearing research at Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

At age 85, he maintains an active lifestyle, sailing many months of the year, lecturing and working on his next book.

Three Pampans go to London with 'TEXAS'

CANYON — Three Pampans are among the partial cast of the musical drama "TEXAS" who will travel to London on Nov. 26 to perform excerpts from the musical drama before 35,000 tour and travel agents.

Pampa cast members going to London are Stacy Bennett, son of William and Daisy Bennett of #523 N. Faulkner, a 1986 graduate of Pampa High School and a student at West Texas State University; Dean Birkes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Birkes of 2356 Aspen, a 1985 PHS graduate and student at WTSU; and Deanna Parsley, daughter of Ronnie and Betty Parsley of Pampa, a 1988 PHS graduate.

A group of 20 cast members was selected to represent the state at the World Travel Market 1988 for two 15-minute shows daily from Nov. 28 to 30.

World Travel Market is regarded as the premier travel trade exhibition in the world.

Only three states were chosen to provide entertainment for the international travel-trade show. Because the "TEXAS" group drew such acclaim at POW WOW, an international media gathering in Dallas last May, they were asked to repeat the sample they presented.

No recorded music is allowed, so live musicians are included in the group composed of 10 dancers, three instrumentalists, six singers and director Neil Hess, drawn from the "TEXAS" cast of 80 members.

The 20 men and women were selected for their multi-faceted talents. Dancers and musicians sing and several singers dance.

Funds for the trip are all donated. American Airlines offered the airfare, the Convention and Visitors Council of Amarillo Chamber of Commerce gave $5,000 and members of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation, the non-profit producers of "TEXAS", have contributed $5,300 for the trip. An estimated $5,000 is still needed to help cover room and board expenses.

Staff members have already encountered several challenges in putting together the overseas endeavor, such as solving the problem of transporting 12-foot flagpoles and a mountain of paperwork for travel for one member from Taiwan.

A glimpse of the London performance may be seen at "Taste the Arts" at 5 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 19 in Westgate Mall and at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 20 at Amarillo Little Theatre.

An airport send-off is planned for 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26. International attendance doubled during the 1988 season at "TEXAS" in Palo Duro Canyon, with 113 countries represented. This figure promises to increase as a result of the London international market appearance.

The 24th season of "TEXAS" opens June 14, 1989 and will play nightly except Sunday through Aug. 26 beneath the cliffs in Palo Duro Canyon State Park, south of Amarillo.

For more information, call 655-2181 or write "TEXAS," Box 268, Canyon, 79015.

Great American Smokeout brings a breath of fresh air

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow will mark the 12th Annual Great American Smokeout, a one-day campaign to encourage smokers to quit smoking for 24 hours, just to prove they can do it. The idea, conceived by Lynn R. Smith, editor of the Monticello (Minn.) Times, has now spread to Canada, Great Britain, France, Ireland, Australia, South Africa, Norway, Finland and Sweden.

Last year, more than 19.5 million smokers tried to quit for the day. This represents more than 39 percent of the nation's 50 million smokers. Breast cancer used to be the biggest killer for women. But the No. 1 cause of death among women and men today is lung cancer. An estimated 92,000 men and 44,000 women will die of lung cancer in 1988.

And now, a word about smoking-related diseases — emphysema, chronic bronchitis and heart disease: This year an estimated 320,000 will die from one of these. This total exceeds the number of U.S. battle deaths in World War II; it is eight times as many people who die in automobile accidents every year!

A congressional study has reported that health costs from the adverse effects of smoking have reached a new high of $100 billion a year in increased medical bills and lost productivity.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

ity. The loss in death and disability cannot be measured. (And how does one measure the amount of heartache, remorse and guilt suffered as a result of a preventable, self-induced tragedy?)

What about "secondhand" smoke? Is it actually damaging to non-smokers to be in the presence of those who are smoking?

Yes! Furthermore, studies reveal that the children of smokers are more prone to lung problems and allergies than are children of non-smokers.

For years I have begged my young readers, "If you smoke, quit now. If you don't smoke, don't start!" Yet an estimated 3,000 to 5,000 kids light up for the first time every day. Why?

Peer pressure, no doubt.

Quitting "cold turkey" is the hardest way to quit, but my readers have told me it's the most effective, and in the long run, the easiest way. Cutting down is less traumatic, but the temptation to smoke is often too powerful to resist while smoking just one, two or three cigarettes a day.

Those who are heavily addicted may require help to break the habit. Call your local chapter of the American Cancer Society for information.

So if you're hooked on cigarettes and have been telling yourself, "One of these days I'm going to quit," why not start tomorrow?

It won't be easy, but it will be the best Thanksgiving present you can give yourself — and those you love you.

P.S. A favor, please? If you quit tomorrow, even for 24 hours, I want to hear from you. Then write again and let me know how long you were able to stay clean. Good luck. Keep me posted.

P.S.S. Apropos "Thanks for Not Smoking" signs some folks have in their homes: I once saw a sign that read: "If you smoke on these premises, we will assume that you are on fire, and you will be treated accordingly."

Kirk Gibson visits with reporters.

LA's Gibson wins MVP honors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forget the three digits that represent the batting average. Disregard the numbers in the RBI and homer columns.

Some accomplishments don't lend themselves to impersonal, precise measurement. Kirk Gibson's numbers weren't all that impressive this season. Then he had only one — very memorable — at-bat in the entire World Series. But his contributions to the world champions Los Angeles Dodgers were unmistakable.

Those contributions were recognized Tuesday when Gibson was named the National League's Most Valuable Player for 1988.

"He helped turn the team around and played a leadership role," the New York Mets' Kevin McReynolds, third in the MVP voting, said of Gibson.

"Winning the MVP was never my goal," Gibson said from his home in Michigan. "But I'm happy that so many people had the opinion that I had that much impact on our winning. My goal was for us to become world champs. That's what makes this that much sweeter ...

"I'm not a numbers person. I never set goals to hit this number or get so many RBIs.

The intangibles obviously were taken into consideration and that makes me feel good." Gibson had just 76 RBI, the lowest total for a league MVP since Pete Rose won the award in 1973. Gibson's batting average was .290 and he had 25 homers.

The four hitters who finished behind him in the MVP voting — the Mets' Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds, Pittsburgh's Andy Van Slyke and San Francisco's Will Clark — had better statistics.

Still, Gibson was an easy winner in the MVP balloting, receiving 13 first-place votes and 272 points. Strawberry had seven first-place votes and 236, followed by McReynolds with the other four first-place votes and 162.

Van Slyke was fourth with 160 points, Clark got 135 and Gibson's Dodger teammate, NL playoffs and World Series MVP Orel Hershiser had 111.

Two members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America in each NL city did the voting prior to the postseason.

Strawberry led the league with 39 home runs, second with 101 RBI and batted .269. McReynolds hit .288 with 27 homers and 99 RBI. Van Slyke hit .288 with 25 homers and 100 RBI and Clark led the NL with 109 RBI and hit 29 home runs.

"There are always going to be critics, people who don't feel I'm worthy of this award," Gibson said. "Too bad it has to be only one person. I can make an argument for Orel, for Darryl, for Kevin. Things were just on the Dodgers' and my side."

Gibson helped the Dodgers bounce back from their first consecutive sub-.500 finishes in two decades. They had gone 73-89 for two straight years before going 94-67 this season.

While Gibson, who left the Detroit Tigers as a free agent and signed with Los Angeles on Feb. 1, won the MVP Award with his regular-season showing, his year will probably be most remembered by his one trip to the plate during the World Series.

Flinching from pain caused by hamstring and knee injuries, he limped to the plate as a pinch-hitter and hit a two-run homer off Oakland's Dennis Eckersley with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Dodgers the win in Game 1.

Although Gibson didn't play again in the Series, the fired-up Dodgers went on to beat the heavily favored A's in five games.

Area basketball roundup

Sports Writer

Several area basketball teams emerged victorious as the boys and girls got the 1988-89 season under way Tuesday night.

Groom boys and girls varsity swept McLean in two close games. The Groom boys won 60-59, while the girls defeated McLean 43-37. (See accompanying story)

Following is a roundup of other area scores from Tuesday:

Wheeler Lady Mustangs 52, Canadian Lady Wildcats 47
After trailing by six at intermission, the Lady Mustangs rallied in the second half to win by five.

Marcy Smith led Wheeler with 14 points. Denise Cleveland posted 12 points to lead the Lady Wildcats.
Canadian Wildcats 65, Wheeler Mustangs 51

Both teams just finished the football season last Friday, giving them only two days to prepare for the basketball opener.

"It was a quick changeover," Wheeler coach Mike Newland said. "We were kind of ragged. It's just going to take a little time for things to come together."

"I still feel good, and we're not ready to quit."

Wheeler's Stephen Batton led all scorers with 20 points, followed by Canadian's Bobby Stephenson, who had 19.
White Deer Does 57, Higgins Lady Coyotes 28

White Deer's Jill Immel topped the scoring chart with 18 points, followed by Shelly Turner with 14 and Julie Hillhouse with 9.

"Overall, I was well pleased for our first ball game," White Deer coach Deryll Friday said. "It was typical for a first game, but after we got over the jitters, things went really well for us."

"We were able to press Higgins strongly and we really got our rhythm in the second half."

The Does will host Gruver on Saturday. Junior varsity begins at 6:30 p.m., followed by varsity at 8 p.m.

Lefors Lady Pirates 47, Hedley girls 32
After a 21-21 tie at halftime, the Lady Pirates outscored Hedley 26-11 in the second half to race to a 47-32 victory.

Carrie Watson of Lefors was the top scorer with 16 points, followed by Kelly Lake with 10 and Kim Moore with 6.

Hedley 47, Lefors Pirates 45
Even after outscoring Hedley 41-30 in the final three quarters, the Pirates were unable to make up for the 17-4 deficit in the first quarter. Lefors' chance to tie it up with a one-and-one shot with no time on the clock failed.

Jarrold Slatten led Lefors with 14 points. Duane Bowley scored 11, Dusty Roberson and John Call each scored seven, and Kevin Mayfield scored six.

Lefors is hosting an area tournament this weekend from Thursday through Saturday night.

In junior varsity action Tuesday night, the McLean girls defeated the Groom girls 16-12; McLean boys 42, Groom boys 17; Canadian girls 38, Wheeler girls 37; Canadian boys 30, Wheeler boys 25.

Samnorwood 52, Briscoe Lady Broncos 31

Tammy Harwell was the leading scorer for the Lady Broncos with 11 points. Christina Ogle scored eight.

"We had the first-game jitters and a lot of nervousness," coach Ron Van Vranken said, "but I thought both our boys and girls teams played well. Eventually, we'll be district contenders."

Briscoe Broncos 66, Samnorwood 64
Ben Meadows led all scorers with 23 points, followed by Shawn Zybach with 13.

Sweeney to start against Bengals

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas coach Tom Landry figures Kevin Sweeney deserves another start because he survived Sunday night's 43-3 slaughter at the hands of the Minnesota Vikings. However, Landry will give both Sweeney and Steve Pelluer equal work this week. Landry indicated he would go to Pelluer if things didn't work well offensively Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals.

"My feeling was that Kevin didn't have a chance to do much against the Vikings," Landry said. "I want to take another look at him again, hopefully under better circumstances."

McLEAN — Mistakes? Sure. A few opening night jitters? You bet.

But area basketball fans couldn't have asked for a more exciting night as both the Groom boys' and girls' varsity teams edged out McLean to kick off the 1988-89 season.

"We're young and we made a lot of mistakes," said coach Jimmy Branch, whose Tigerettes broke a 37-37 tie with six unanswered points in the final two minutes to secure a 43-37 victory over the McLean girls. "This was a big win for us and I'm proud of them. But we've got a long way to go."

The boys' game was even more of a thriller as Groom hung on through the final seconds to wrap up a 60-59 win over McLean. "I don't like ball games like that," Groom boys' coach Jay Lamb said, adding, "but games like that make you better."

The Groom girls took control in the first quarter, outscoring McLean 9-5 on the strength of Karen Bohr's four field goals. Bohr emerged as the game's leading scorer with 20 points.

But in the second quarter, McLean unleashed a 12-point rally to knot the score at 17 by halftime. The third quarter also belonged to McLean, as Darla McAnear and Misty Magee each hit three jumpers, giving McLean a two-point lead entering the final period.

The Lady Tigers of Groom took over from there, posting 14 more points, six of them in the final two minutes. With the score tied at 37, Shannon Fields hit one field goal and two free throws to put Groom up by four. Lesa Sweatt, who scored 14 points on the night, sunk two more free throws to finalize the scoring at 43-37.

Misty Magee led McLean with 18 points, followed by Darla McAnear, who scored 10. McLean's girls hit 3 of 10 free throws for a 30 percent average.

Groom's Tigerettes were 5 of 8 from the line for a respectable 62.5 percent.

"They just outplayed us," said Bill Wilson, McLean girls' coach. "We couldn't get the ball inside, we couldn't pass and we didn't play defense. They just beat us at our own game."

In boys' action, Groom and McLean had things knotted up at 9-9 as the first quarter ended. But Groom scored 23 points in the second quarter behind the shooting of Michael Rose, who hit three three-pointers, and Wilbur Kempf, who sunk four two-pointers. Groom led 32-25 at the half.

The second was the only quarter in which Groom outscored McLean, although it proved to be enough. Barely. Sid Brass, the game's leading scorer with 25 points, scored 13 of McLean's 16 points in the third quarter.

The final period opened with the hosts trailing by six. Quinton Brown, who posted 20 points on the night, and teammate Brass each scored five more points for McLean, while Michael Rose and Matt Weinheimer scored five apiece for Groom. Rose led his team's scoring with 17 points, followed by Wilbur Kempf with 14.

Although Groom led by more than 10 points at one time, McLean moved within two as seven seconds remained on the clock. Rose had fouled McLean's Calle Holwick, bringing up one-and-one from the free-throw line.

Holwick sunk the first one and approached the line for the possible game-tying shot with a smile on his face. It quickly disappeared, however, when the ball bounced off the back of the goal and Groom ran out the clock for a 60-59 victory.

Both teams shot 50 percent from the free-throw line — McLean hit 10 of 20 and Groom made 3 of 6.

"We know what we need to work on now," McLean coach Jerry Miller said, "and that's ball control. We've got some kids that can shoot, but we've got to sharpen our skills."

McLean's Johnny Mann goes up for a mean jumper as Kevin Kerlee (10) and Matt Weinheimer (42) of Groom hope for the best.

Basketball starting times changed

Starting times have been changed for the Pampa High basketball home openers Saturday night against Perryton.

The varsity girls' game tips off at 6 p.m., followed by the varsity boys' game at 7:30 p.m.

The junior varsity boys play at 4 p.m., sophomore boys at 5 p.m. and JV girls at 7:30 p.m.

Both Pampa boys and girls open the season Friday night at Dalhart. Gametime is 6:30 p.m.

Better things appear ahead for Harvesters

While 160 (give or take a Dallas Carter or Plano East) of the state's premier schoolboy football teams prepare for their Area Championship games this weekend, nearly 1,000 others are washing socks, cleaning uniforms, checking pads and storing their gear to await another season. Many of those athletes will be moving to gymnasiums, hoping their presence will lead to extended seasons for their schools' cage squads.

So, let us also tuck away our football record book for PHS, with a final look at what the just-concluded season did to anything there, and where the numbers fit into the 58-year old scheme since 1930.

The four-win season equaled the total number of victories the Harvesters could muster in the previous three campaigns combined. But the six losses also meant the 29th losing season, along with 25 winning ones and five pushes. In fact, since 1954, a two-generation span, Pampa has only enjoyed six seasons in which they've won more than they've lost. The Eighties still rank the worst, with a .233 winning percentage (21-67-2). A repeat four-win year in 1989 would let the decade finish ahead of the 1960's, where 24 percent of the games were won. And better things do appear ahead.

The offense netted 204 points, best since 1979. The defense,

Sports Forum

By Warren Hasse

though still pourous, improved nearly 120 points over last season, allowing 219, the best since 1985. Since 1930, Harvester teams have scored 9,879 points (16.1 ppg) and allowed 10,731 (17.5 ppg) while winning 283 contests, losing 329 and tying 10, for a .462 winning percentage. They've been shut out 105 times, while blanking opponents 87 games, and playing to three scoreless ties.

Tom Tipps never lost an opening game in seven seasons, while Odus Mitchell won eight but also dropped three. Dennis Cavalier now stands 0-2 in season openers, after falling to District 1-3A Canyon HS 6-3 this season. The 4-6 effort improved Cavalier's record to 5-15 over two seasons, a .200 percent winning record, identical to that of his predecessor John Kendall for five years and Eural Ramsey for three terms in the mid-Sixties. Only Babe Curfman, who went 5-27-1 in 3.3 seasons (1958-1961) had a lower winning effort, .151. The last winning coach was John Weiborn, who recorded a 27-23 mark over five seasons. The alltime leader is Tipps, who won three of every four games in his seven seasons.

Finally, the Harvesters did dispose of some "O-fers" on their schedule as they recorded first-time wins over Lubbock Dunbar and first-year school Canyon Randall.

This leaves Estacado (0-7) and Frenship (0-3) as targets for next season. And it would appear that those would also be necessary accomplishments to provide a season with any post-season hopes.

As the equipment is stowed away for use another year, hopefully a more-important long-lost ingredient will also be stored for use in 1989; enthusiasm for the game. Never could the athletes or coaching staff, unlike some seasons past, be accused of evidencing desires that the season would end early. That's where winning starts.

EXTRA POINTS: With four sports already completed, Hereford HS holds a commanding lead in the all-sports championship category with 4 1/2 points. Levelland is second with 31, Pampa third with 29 1/2, followed by Borger, Estacado, Randall, Dumas, Dunbar and Frenship. The Whitefaces well-rounded, student-serving sports program finished first in girls cross country, girls volleyball and tied for second in football...District football champion Levelland was pre-seasoned sixth in Texas Football, seventh by the Amarillo News, and eighth by Top O Texas Football magazine. Pampa, which finished fifth, was picked 6, 7 and 9 respectively...Junior placekicker Shannon Cook will start next season with a string of nine straight EPs off his strong, accurate right leg...Hats off to the District 1-4A representatives in the Cross Country Championship last weekend, as Randall's boys took the state title and Hereford's girls finished fourth...The Dumas girls (27-10) face Kilgore (26-9) at 5:45 p.m. Friday at the Burger Center in Austin in the 4A volleyball semifinals. Channelview and New Braunfels are the other two schools to make it...With the new 32-district football alignment in Class 4A, District One drew byes, and sails right into Area round play Friday night, champion Levelland meeting Monahans (8-2) at Odessa and runner-up Hereford taking on unbeaten Sweetwater (10-0) at Jones Stadium in Lubbock.
