Bush ready to work on new pay raise plan

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush says he still wants some sort of pay raise for Congress, judges and top federal officials, even though he signed the death warrant for a 51 percent increase he initially endorsed.

Bush was "inviting suggestions" for future raise proposals at a meeting with Republican senators Tuesday, according to Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

And in a White House statement released after he signed the resolution defeating the raise, Bush said: "I believe that some level of pay increase is in order, and I will be working with the House and Senate leadership to develop proposals to achieve that end. I would also like to express my special concern about the level of compensation for members of our federal judiciary."

The House voted 380-48 Tuesday, and the Senate followed suit, 94-6, in passing legislation to reject a pay raise plan for lawmakers, top bureaucrats and members of the federal bench.

Bush signed the measure several hours before the midnight deadline that would have allowed the raises to become law, including a boost in congressional salary from $89,500 to $135,000.

The pay issue got the 101st Congress off to a rocky start as public scorn was heaped upon lawmakers — who were presented with a pay package recommended by a presidential commission, and endorsed by former President Reagan and Bush.

By day's end Tuesday many lawmakers appeared drained, but at least one still had a sense of humor.

"I wish I was as thin as my wallet," said Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., in recognition of her being on the plump side.

House members especially faced an outraged public, because the Democratic leadership — without protest from Republican leaders — had planned to let the raise become law without a vote.

Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, tried to accommodate them with a strategy to let the full raise become law Wednesday and schedule a vote Thursday to scale it back to 30 percent.

The plan collapsed, and Wright scheduled Tuesday's rejection vote, after anti-raise lawmakers won a procedural vote Monday that showed they had the strength to win.

The Senate handled the problem differently, voting 95-5 last week to reject the raise at a time it appeared the House would let the increase become law without a vote.

While some House members called the Senate vote hypocritical, it put the senators on record against the raise. They had little choice but to repeat the sentiment Tuesday when they voted again in order to conform to the House language.

State bill would consolidate small local school districts

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Bells may toll for local small school districts, already staggering under a crush of state government demands, if House Bill 726 passes through the state legislature.

House Bill 726, filed Jan. 30 by Rep. Alex Moreno Jr., D-Edinburg, would abolish school districts with fewer than 500 students and more than three times the state's average property wealth per child. According to the bill, these districts would be consolidated with adjoining, less wealthy, school districts.

If passed, H.B. 726 would affect Grandview-Hopkins and Alanreed school districts in Gray County, in addition to Kelton and Allison ISDs in Wheeler County.

Although countywide school districts are to be excluded from consolidation, Miami ISD, the only school district in Roberts County, was named in the bill.

Officials from these schools have vowed to fight the bill, with the support of their state legislators.

"At best we're unhappy about it, and we will have to fight," said N. Dean Johnson, superintendent of Kelton ISD. "We share the feeling with Miami ISD that we are an independent district and shouldn't be forced by the state to close our doors."

"We believe, first, that forced consolidation is wrong unless the voters of the district vote to consolidate," said Superintendent Allen Dinsmore of Miami.

Dinsmore said he believes Moreno was also wrong to include the Miami school district in those affected by the legislation.

"I don't feel we're a tax haven, not after we've raised our tax rate 250 percent over the past two or three years and have lost 60 percent of our property value over the same period," he said. "I think Moreno erroneously put us in."

"I don't think we fall in the situation as he presented or as the newspaper article presented it," Dinsmore added, referring to an Amarillo newspaper article on the proposed school consolidation legislation today.

School districts that could be affected by the legislation are budget-balanced, depending almost solely on taxes for revenue with a small allotment from the state determined by their student population.

Allison ISD has a yearly budget of $800,000 which includes a $20,000 payment from the state. Grandview-Hopkins ISD's budget of $395,500 includes $7,000 from the state. Kelton adds a state allotment of $18,000 to its $657,000 budget each year.

"Beyond that we get nothing else. The taxpayers of this community support this district," Johnson said.

No measles threat here yet

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Officials with the Texas Department of Health have said no cases of measles have been reported in the Pampa area, in spite of a statewide epidemic that seems to be moving slowly northward.

However, school nurses with the Borger Independent School District are checking immunization records of students at Crockett Elementary School, looking for "high risk" students after two cases of measles were reported there.

First reports of the rubeola-measles outbreak were taken in Houston. The disease then spread to Dallas-Fort Worth and has now broken out in the Lubbock area.

According to Department of Health statistics, over 114 cases have been reported in the Lubbock area, most of them in students attending Texas Tech University.

Marge Holland, a nurse for the Department of Health in Pampa, said no immunizations are currently available for adults or children over 15-months of age in the Pampa area for the disease, which carries flu-like symptoms as well as a rash.

"As of right now, we are not immunizing anyone except routine 15-month-olds who are getting their MMR immunizations," Holland said.

MMR stands for measles, mumps and rubella immunization.

"The thing we worry about with rubeola is the secondary infections. There are the flu symptoms, but there is also some eye pain. We worry about pneumonia, ear infections or encephalitis (swelling of the brain that can lead to deafness, mental retardation or convulsions) if they don't control the fever. Two out of every 10,000 people who get measles die according to our statistics," Holland said.

Dr. Robert Philips and several other Pampa physicians said they are not currently offering the measles immunization because of the cost involved.

"Until I see a few cases, I wouldn't recommend mass immunizations. The measles vaccine is around $26 per shot. You have to add on the extra cost of dispensing it plus a profit margin. That runs $35-$40 a shot for something you may not even be at risk over," Philips said.

He pointed out that women of child-bearing age run the greatest risk of catching the disease and should see their doctor if they are concerned they have been exposed to the virus.

"There is a simple blood test they can take to see if they are immune or not," Philips said.

Texas Department of Health officials said there have been several cases of measles reported in the Panhandle, though most have been in Amarillo.

In Slaton, where an outbreak of the disease appeared, members of the student body at the high school who are at risk were immunized.

D.L. Wilson, communicable disease program supervisor for the Texas Department of Health in Lubbock, said that in the event of an outbreak, only "high risk" persons should receive immunization.

He defined "high risk" as anyone who received an immunization prior to 1968 or before they turned 15-months-old.

"We have had the cases there in Borger, but we are in the process of getting that contained," Wilson said.

He said most of the cases reported in the Panhandle resulted either directly or indirectly from Texas Tech students who traveled to this area after being infected.

Dawson Orr, assistant superintendent for the Pampa Independent School District, said school nurses and principals would continue to monitor the situation in Pampa for any outbreak of measles, which would be immediately reported to the Department of Health for referral and advice on further action.

New allegations bring more troubles for Tower nomination

By ROBERT GREENE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary-designate John Tower visited the White House this morning and the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said there were new allegations of "a financial nature" involving the nominee.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., the committee chairman, said the White House now agreed that the panel should put off a vote on the nomination, which has been stalled by repeated but unproven allegations of drinking and womanizing on Tower's part.

Nunn told reporters he met with President Bush on Tuesday and "I told the president frankly that I have serious concerns, and I also stated that if a vote was held immediately as some have urged, I would vote no because of these concerns."

The White House stood by the Tower nomination today. Presidential Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Nunn's assertion that he would vote against Tower if a vote were held now was "disappointing, very disappointing."

Asked by reporters if Tower's alcohol consumption was his chief concern, Nunn said:

"I don't want to categorize it like that. That's one of my primary concerns. The question there is whether there has been an alcohol abuse problem. If there has been a problem in the past, is there a point where it has been recognized by the nominee and dealt with effectively? That is to say, is it a continuing problem? I do not have an answer to that yet."

He added, "It's not a matter of one or two episodes, it's a question of whether there's a continuing pattern. ... It's a matter of a person in the chain of command that has control over the arsenal of the United States of America. ... The secretary of defense has to, in my view, have clarity of thought at all times."

Nunn said the new allegations were "of a financial nature."

The New York Times said the newest allegation dealt with Tower's financial dealings. ABC News said it was related to the current Pentagon procurement investigation.

Sen. J. James Exon of Nebraska, the second-ranking Democrat on the Armed Services Committee, said Tuesday night there are perceptions that Tower has not recovered "from what obviously was a drinking problem at one time," and that Tower's previous work as a defense consultant created a conflict of interest for the would-be head of the Pentagon.

"I am not locked in cement, but if I had to vote today I would vote no," Exon told CNN today.

NBC News said Tower's morning trip to the White House was for an "unusual strategy session."

However, Fitzwater said Tower had come for a regularly scheduled breakfast with Secretary of State James A. Baker and national security adviser Brent Scowcroft in Scowcroft's office. Bush did not attend.

The meeting, at about 7:30 a.m., was in continuing a tradition set during the Reagan administration when then-national security adviser Colin Powell met for regular breakfasts with the secretary of state and defense secretary.

"White House counsel Boyden Gray has informed me that the White House now agrees that the committee should not vote on his confirmation," Nunn said.

Nunn met with reporters at the Capitol a few minutes after Tower was seen arriving at the White House.

The open criticism of Tower by his former Senate colleagues was extraordinary. Senators rarely are willing to speak about the personal behavior of their colleagues. Tower, a Texas Republican, chaired the Armed Services Committee from 1981 through 1984.

"At this stage, there's no doubt about it, there are serious questions remaining," said Nunn.

"I have placed no deadline on the FBI," he said "but only requested that they handle these matters thoroughly and professionally."

The committee had originally hoped to vote on the confirmation last week, then had counted on taking up the confirmation today after receiving what was to have been the final FBI report before the new allegation surfaced.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a supporter of the Tower nomination on the committee, said it was "clearly the case" that the longer the ratification process dragged on the more difficult it would be.

"But I think it's also well to point out that so far we're in the second month of an unending stream of allegations being thrown over the transom and so far there has been no substance to any of the allegations," he said on ABC.

"I think frankly we're seeing John Tower being bitten to death by duck bites with unsubstantiated allegations," McCain said.

The GOP senators said a preliminary FBI report provided no grounds to disqualify Tower.

American military should defend us

John Tower stirred up Washington in his testimony for confirmation as secretary of defense. He said it wasn't possible to "deploy an umbrella that can protect the entire American population from nuclear incineration." This seemed (and was much depicted in the media as) a repudiation of former President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative. In fact, it was not. Except for his burst of early enthusiasm, Reagan didn't hold that SDI would be perfect. And in any case, SDI is still a good idea.

Our politicians need to remember that the American military's primary mission is to defend the American people. For that it should arm itself to prevent enemy ICBMs and bombers from attacking American cities. But for 20 years that mission was deflected. The Mutual Assured Destruction doctrine of Defense Secretary Robert "Mad Mac" McNamara was imposed in the late 1960s, leaving the American people vulnerable.

Reagan's SDI stepped away from that insane policy. Unfortunately, his own rhetoric hurt the program by promising too much — a perfect shield. History tells us that perfect weapons are impossible. Castles were eventually blown apart by gunpowder, tank armor led to anti-tank missiles, and so on. Yet castles provided good defense for centuries, and tank armor is still used. A defense doesn't have to be perfect to be good.

The same is true with SDI. Even a small shield would be valuable. It would make it daunting for the Soviets to launch a first strike against us because they couldn't be sure all their missiles would get through to devastate the American populace.

Unfortunately, Tower hinted that he might be willing to shift defense budget priorities away from SDI. The late Reagan administration had requested $6 billion for the project for fiscal year 1990, a 50 percent increase. Since everyone expects Bush to propose some defense cuts, SDI has become an easy target.

This is odd, given that American experimentation in strategic defenses, along with the placement of missiles in Western Europe, brought Soviet dictator Mikhail Gorbachev to the bargaining table. Bush should stick with the Reagan proposal, paying for it with savings from wasteful military programs. To do so would further encourage Soviet cutbacks in offensive weaponry. He should take SDI off the drawing boards and start to build it. The defense of Americans should be restored as the military's first priority.

Bush and Tower can find defense budget cuts in other areas, such as the U.S. subsidy given to the defense of our allies. Some 40 percent of the military budget goes to defending Western Europe. The Europeans can defend themselves, and they can afford it. The American military should defend the American people.

WASHINGTON — It is too late to change the situation for the unwarranted pay raise for members of Congress. The 51 percent raise is done with this time, but the people may be able to derail another such express in 1993. The people could amend the Constitution.

Hah! you say. Two-thirds of the House and two-thirds of the Senate never would submit a constitutional amendment that might adversely affect their paychecks. Getting two-thirds of the state legislatures to apply for a constitutional convention is an equally impossible task.

But hold on. It has been almost forgotten, but a constitutional amendment already is actively pending that might accomplish political wonders. The story has received amazingly little attention.

Turn back the pages of history to September 1789. The First Congress then approved 12 constitutional amendments and sent them out to the states for ratification. Ten of them were swiftly approved. They became part of the Constitution in 1791. We know these 10, of course, as the Bill of Rights.

The other two failed of ratification. One of them proposed a formula for membership in the House. The other went to the matter at hand. This is the text:

"No law varying the compensation for the services of the senators and representatives shall take effect until an election of the representatives shall have intervened."

Unlike the more recent proposals, this amendment carried no seven-year limitation on ratification by the states. After nearly 200 years it is still on the table.

Back in 1790, six states ratified the amendment — Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Delaware, Vermont and Virginia. Nothing more was heard of the matter until 1816, when as public outcry arose against a raise in congressional pay from $6 a day to $1,500 a year. There was talk of resurrecting the amendment, but apparently it was talk only.

James J. Kilpatrick

The amendment went back to sleep. Then it suddenly came back to life in 1873, when the Ohio legislature ratified it. Perhaps some Ohio historian may know what provoked Ohio into action. In any event, Ohio made seven.

A century passed. In 1978, Wyoming discovered the forgotten amendment and gave its approval. Maine ratified it in 1983, Colorado in 1984. Then the parade picked up steam. South Dakota, New Hampshire, Arizona, Tennessee and Oklahoma fell in line in 1985. The following year saw New Mexico, Indiana and Utah joining in. In 1987, three more: Montana, Connecticut and Wisconsin.

That brings us to 21 states. To become a part of the Constitution, the ratifications of another 17 states would be needed. Considering the uproar against the pending pay raises that was heard this year, this goal would not appear to be an impossible undertaking.

To be sure, questions might be raised that the Supreme Court would have to resolve. During the pendency of the ill-fated Equal Rights Amendment, much talk was heard of "contemporaneity." Should an act of Maryland in 1790, or an act of Ohio in 1873, be regarded as sufficiently contemporaneous to be counted? My own thought is that the actions of ratifying states over the past 10 years establishes the viability of the pay raise amendment.

The long-pending proposition would apply to any act "varying the compensation" of members. It might be argued that the act of 1967 creating the Quadrennial Commission was not such an act. Such a contention would be disingenuous. The whole purpose of the 1967 act was to provide a means for varying the compensation of members.

Mind you, the amendment, if ratified, would not absolutely prevent a raise for senators and representatives. Its deterrent mechanism is wholly political. Candidates for seats in the House would have to go to the polls before an increase in compensation could go into effect. The presumption is that voters would make an issue of a pay raise, and that candidates would have to take a stand for or against the idea.

Suppose the hoary proposition were now a part of the Constitution. Through the machinery of the 1967 Quad Commission law, the pending raise would increase congressional salaries from $89,500 to $135,000. But under the amendment, the raise could not take effect until after the House elections of 1990.

Maybe the voters would love their senators and representatives so dearly that they would vote no one out of office, but I wouldn't bet the ranch on that proposition. It's worth a try. Seventeen states to go!

Once they were independent

The war never was that did not cost more than it was worth.

Certainly World War II changed forever the islands of the Pacific.

The islanders of Micronesia, farming and fishing and singing and playing — not necessarily in that order — had enjoyed generations of self-sufficiency.

Travelers privileged to drop anchor returned to relate the storybook life of the happy natives of these tropical islands.

Then came World War II and Japanese and regimentation and then GIs and sheet metal and Spam.

And when the war ended — the once happy-go-lucky inhabitants of those islands were addicted to the Yankee dollar.

Recently The Wall Street Journal sent a staffer, Carrie Dolan, to check on the economic health of Micronesia.

The billion dollars the United States has spent there has built some roads and some runways and much government — but not much else.

The people who formerly sustained themselves with fishing and farming are now 80 percent unemployed — "on welfare."

Paul Harvey

Salvador Iriarte, who remembers how it used to be, says, "Our people misuse money. They start drinking, get crazy, start hating."

He says, "We must learn to work again." But Governor Moses says, "There is no turning back to the subsistence economy."

So now our government is pledged to spend another billion dollars over the next 12 years to perpetuate the artificial economy.

Meanwhile, the rates of alcoholism, suicide and stress-related disease have risen. Western-style education has been introduced but few students make it past the eighth grade.

Dolan says, "Traditional culture has surrendered to portable radios."

They now want ghetto blasters and air conditioning and microwaves and motorbikes.

Meanwhile, the population is exploding. Half of all Micronesians are now under 15. Though schools, roads, running water and electricity are insufficient — the Federated States of Micronesia will spend $13 million on a new capitol building for the U.S. financed bureaucracy.

With fewer people than Boise, Idaho, they have four state governments as well as a federal government with all its agencies.

Everyone from top to bottom assumes government hires a lot of people and no one is terribly concerned about how hard they work.

The United States built huge water tanks — though many stand empty.

Governor Moses says, "Somehow under the international giant of capitalism we have developed a social-welfare state."

Forty years on the welfare rolls of the United States has left a once independent people utterly dependent.

Acid rain could dampen Bush's parade

By ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON (NEA) — By scheduling a trip to Canada only three weeks after being inaugurated, President Bush has forced an early confrontation with one of the nation's most intractable and disputatious environmental issues.

When the United States and Canada last year approved an omnibus bilateral trade agreement, the longstanding controversy over acid rain became the most important unresolved issue dividing the two nations.

Bush surely understood that when he decided that his first venture to another nation as president would be a Feb. 10 visit with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, who last year said the U.S. "dumping (of its) garbage" in his country had led to "the devastation of our environment."

Moreover, Canada's anger is matched by divisions in the United States that have led to antagonism not only among environmental interests, utility companies and coal miners but also between regions, states and even sections of states.

New England, where much of the acid deposit lands, is at odds with the Midwest, where much of it originates. Hostility on the issue separates Alabama, Tennessee, Montana, Wyoming and other states with low-sulfur coal from Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other states with high-sulfur coal.

Finally, eastern Kentucky and southern West Virginia, both with low-sulfur coal, have little in common on the issue with western Kentucky and northern West Virginia, with high-sulfur coal.

The sulfur content of coal is important because sulfur dioxide is one of the two principal contributors to acid rain — and most of those emissions come from coal-fired power plants in the Midwest.

The other major contributor is nitrogen oxides, mostly produced by auto, truck and other motor vehicle emissions. (The two leading sources of acid rain also are generated at various industrial facilities throughout the country.)

Canada acknowledges that 10 percent of the acid rain in this country can be traced to its smelters — but it also has effectively documented its claim that 50 percent of the acid rain that damages its forests and waterways originates in the United States.

"In Canada, acid rain has already killed nearly 15,000 lakes," says Mulroney. "Another 150,000 are being damaged and a further 150,000 are threatened." In addition, thousands of rivers and streams have been blighted, perhaps irrevocably, and living organisms from salmon to sugar maples have been destroyed.

At their annual meetings, Mulroney repeatedly implored President Reagan for "a firm bilateral accord that would provide a North American solution to acid rain." Moreover, the Canadians unilaterally committed themselves to a 50 percent reduction of acid rain precursors by 1994.

During most of his eight years in the White House, however, Reagan adamantly refused to even acknowledge the existence of a problem much less accept responsibility for reducing this country's substantial contribution to it.

He repeatedly promised but never produced $2.5 billion worth of technological research to remedy the deteriorating situation. During one meeting with Mulroney, Reagan's major concession to Canadian anger was to "agree to consider" a bilateral treaty — a flimsy commitment that led to no action.

Late last year, Reagan sought to placate the Canadians by agreeing to freeze emissions of nitrogen oxides at 1987 levels for at least seven years.

But that would maintain the current excessively high levels rather than reduce them. "He offered a fig leaf to Mulroney but nothing to protect the maple leaf," says Daniel Weiss of the Sierra Club.

Now Bush has his turn. If he can master the domestic and international implications of a seemingly insoluble problem, he will have achieved an important victory early in his tenure.

Slight warming trend begins; 'The Freeze-A-Thon is over'

By The Associated Press

A slight warming trend today gave fruit farmers something to cheer about and held out the promise of a return to a normal winter for much of the nation after more than a week of record cold. "The Freeze-A-Thon is over," the National Weather Service declared in San Antonio. "It does seem to be a trend," agreed meteorologist Bob Johns at the weather service's Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City, Mo. "It looks like we'll continue to have cold temperatures but it doesn't look like it'll be as extreme." Not that spring is just around the corner.

Temperatures today in most places were expected to be only slightly higher than those Tuesday, when records were set in dozens of cities.

The bitter cold was expected to linger in Colorado particularly, where it was 35 below zero early today in the town of Craig. And more cold weather came calling from Canada, moving into the northern Plains on Tuesday and heading toward the Great Lakes, where it was expected to hit late today.

At least 84 deaths have been attributed to the weather since Jan. 31, when bitter arctic air from Alaska made its way into the lower 48 states. In one such death Tuesday, an elderly woman who had more than $5,000 stashed in her plywood shack in Laredo, Texas, died of hypothermia.

In Idaho, where hundreds of cattle and sheep have died in towering snow drifts, National Guardsmen in helicopters flew over the countryside to help ranchers search for surviving livestock.

But in one indication of a thaw, the temperature in Fairbanks, Alaska, climbed above zero Tuesday for the first time in 26 days.

"It's been quite a while," Fairbanks meteorologist John Lingaas said. He predicted that the mercury, which hit 8 above Tuesday, would be into the 20s by Thursday.

Low temperatures in much of California climbed back above freezing early today, ending the crisis for the state's multi-billion-dollar agriculture industry. Still, farmers said the freeze has already caused serious damage to some citrus crops, prompting increases in the wholesale price of oranges.

Washington state's apricot crop was wiped out by the cold, county extension agents said. But in Texas' Rio Grande Valley, citrus growers said damage to their crops was light.

"We really came through very well," said Ray Prewett, executive director of Texas Citrus Mutual, a McAllen-based growers' organization.

Thornburgh's holdings keep him out of cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Dick Thornburgh's blue-chip stock portfolio already has prompted his withdrawal from several cases and could disqualify him from participation in a broad range of future issues.

Thornburgh's holdings include stock in Amoco Corp., Atlantic Richfield, General Motors, General Electric, IBM, International Paper, Johnson & Johnson and Mobil Corp.

The financial disclosure report Thornburgh filed with the Office of Government Ethics shows his stock portfolio contains holdings from a cross-section of America's largest corporations.

The list also includes Aluminum Company of America, Allied Signal, Procter & Gamble, Rockwell International and Sears Roebuck.

Thornburgh's holdings were valued between $500,000 and $700,000 at the time of his confirmation last summer by the Senate, said David Runkel, an aide to the attorney general.

The extent and character of Thornburgh's investments have the potential to disqualify him from participating in a number of major decisions as cases arise, Runkel conceded.

Any of the numerous companies in which Thornburgh holds stock could become involved in dealings with the Justice Department as a result of anti-pollution enforcement, government contracts, antitrust investigations or merger reviews.

Records kept by the attorney general's office show that Thornburgh already has recused himself from several legal cases or policy issues involving corporations in which he owns stock.

Notably, Thornburgh issued a blanket recusal from any decisions involving the continued enforcement of the AT&T divestiture consent decree because he owns at least $5,000 worth of the company's stock.

Thornburgh is the third straight attorney general held ineligible by department rules to play a role in the continued legal battles resulting from the AT&T breakup.

William French Smith, who was President Reagan's first attorney general, had been a director of Pacific Bell. Before taking office in 1981, Smith and his wife placed their stock and bond holdings, worth at least $2.3 million, into blind trusts.

Smith's successor, Edwin Meese III, was criticized last month by an internal Justice Department report for participating in AT&T policy discussions when he held stock in the Bell regional operating companies.

Before his confirmation, Thornburgh pledged to develop a recusal policy and to survey the various Justice Department divisions to identify any cases or issues that might pose a conflict of interest.

He also agreed to resign as a corporate director of Rite Aid Corp., Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc., and ARCO Chemical Co.

Under the recusal policy subsequently formulated, Thornburgh told Justice Department officials that "I will not participate in any matter in which I am aware that I have a financial interest, unless I have obtained a waiver of the disqualification."

Federal ethics law entitles officials to obtain the waivers, if appropriate.

IRS has the answers — but are they right?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chances of reaching the IRS toll-free telephone with a question about taxes have improved, but at last check, the odds of getting a correct answer had not.

"Clearly there is room for improvement," the General Accounting Office said in a report on its survey, which found Internal Revenue Service "telephone assistants" gave the right answer on only 64 percent of 20 test questions that were asked in 1,776 calls.

The IRS says its accuracy rate should not be judged solely on the basis of a test survey and promises its assistants are better equipped to give the right answer in the current filing season, which ends

April 17. GAO, an arm of Congress, called 29 IRS offices during last year's filing season. The results, made public Tuesday:

- Callers got through on the first try on 76 percent of the calls, up markedly from 61 percent in 1987. On calls requiring five attempts, the success rate rose to 93 percent, from 88 percent a year earlier.
- 1,733 questions were answered.
- 1,110 answers (64 percent) were correct, although 111 (6 percent of the total) were incomplete.
- 623 answers (36 percent) were wrong.

The IRS answered a capital-gains question wrong 67 percent of the time; child-care credit, 64 percent; taxability of scholarships, 60 percent. IRS assistants gave the right answer only half the time on deducting personal interest.

GAO said it could not compare the accuracy rate of the latest survey with earlier tests, because questions were different. However, GAO was given correct answers to 79 percent of its questions in 1987.

The IRS did its own survey last filing season, checking answers to actual taxpayer calls and finding 72.4 percent accuracy.

A key reason for the inaccuracies that GAO found last year was that 17 of the 20 test questions required the IRS assistant to ask the caller for more details, and the assistants failed to do so.

"Probing is important because taxpayers who call with questions frequently are not sufficiently familiar with the tax laws to initially provide assistants with all the information needed to answer their questions correctly," GAO wrote.

On questions affected by recent tax law changes — especially the landmark 1986 overhaul — the IRS gave the right answer to GAO 59 percent of the time.

GAO emphasized that the inaccuracy rate applies only to the specific questions that were asked in the survey — not necessarily to all the questions that taxpayers are likely to ask.

Soviets say 15,000 troops die in Afghanistan actions

MOSCOW (AP) — A Foreign Ministry official said Tuesday up to 15,000 Soviet troops were killed in Afghanistan, 2,000 more than the last reported figure and an indication of heavy losses the Kremlin incurred during waning days of its intervention.

"It doesn't mean that during the last months we had the bloodiest period of the war in Afghanistan," Yuri K. Alexeyev, head of the ministry's Middle East Department, insisted to reporters.

But he added: "We had shellings by the opposition of the cities ... and a lot of civilians died, and of course Soviet servicemen."

He said the new death toll came from Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, who left Islamabad, Pakistan on Monday.

After they began their withdrawal last May 15, Soviet forces had to rely increasingly on Afghan government troops to protect them from guerrilla attacks. The pullout, brokered by the United Nations, is to be completed next Wednesday.

The last report on casualties was from Soviet Gen. Alexei D. Lizichev. He told a Moscow news conference May 25 that 13,310 Soviet troops had been killed, 35,478 wounded and 311 were missing.

He said his figures applied from Dec. 27, 1979, when Soviet troops and tanks entered the Afghan war, until May 1, 1988.

Alexeyev did not say what period his figure covered and did not give numbers of wounded and missing.

Israel rejects U.S. human rights report

By LOUIS MEIXLER
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel today rejected key conclusions of a State Department report alleging substantial human rights violations and said the report ignored the context of a violent civilian uprising by Palestinians.

A Foreign Ministry statement disputed the report's claim that soldiers who opened fire unnecessarily on Arabs were given lenient sentences and in some cases not punished at all.

The U.S. report, released Tuesday, says methods used by the army to halt the 14-month revolt had resulted in "many avoidable deaths and injuries."

"In spite of the constant provocations, the Israel Defense Force scrupulously maintains moral norms and human rights, and treats any exceptions with utmost severity," a Foreign Ministry statement said.

"The report does not take into consideration the overall context of the events and continuing provocations. The extreme elements ... directing the events use violence meant to be lethal," the statement said.

Foreign Ministry spokesmen said they would not respond to specific charges until studying the report thoroughly.

"We are doing our utmost to prevent unnecessary suffering and bloodshed," said Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's spokesman Yossi Ahimeir. "We don't like situations where soldiers are confronting stone-throwers, but we have to defend our security."

Yossi Sarid, a parliament member of the liberal Citizens Rights Movement, called the U.S. annual report on human rights worldwide generally accurate.

"I am so sorry that in order to see our face we need a mirror held from so far away," he said on Israel radio. "I don't need the Americans to know that many arrests were made for political and not for clear security reasons."

"It's a fact that not all shooting is carried out in self-defense ... And there has been shooting done to punish, to frighten, to deter and even to get revenge."

Jonathan Kuttab, co-founder of the human rights monitoring group Al Haq-Law in the Service of Man, said the U.S. report was an improvement over past years when he claimed the State Department "whitewashed" Israeli actions in the occupied lands.

Kuttab said he hoped the U.S. government would reassess its $3 billion in annual military and economic aid to Israel in light of the report's findings.

"It's a matter of American dollars not going to a country that systematically violates human rights," said Kuttab, a Palestinian-American lawyer.

Deputy Foreign Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Israel is confronting "violence and terrorism" in the occupied lands that aims at "wiping out all human rights, both those of Arabs and Jews."

Since the uprising began in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, 374 Palestinians have been killed and thousands wounded, most by army gunfire. Fifteen Israelis have also died.

The report comes at a time when the Israel is urging the United States to end its dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization, charging that the PLO has broken its promise to abandon terror.

The report says Israel's response to the Palestinian uprising against 21 years of occupation has "led to a substantial increase in human rights violations."

"Soldiers frequently used gunfire in situations that did not present mortal danger to troops, causing many avoidable deaths and injuries," it said in an anti-Israeli violence.

Speaking on Israel Television, the military chief prosecutor, Brig. Gen. Amnon Strashnov, called the report "exaggerated and unjust."

In defending Israel's human rights record, Strashnov reported that of 21,000 Palestinians arrested since the start of the uprising, 8,000 have been indicted. Of those, 4,300 have been convicted and 200 acquitted, Strashnov said. Others were awaiting trial, he said.

He said about 50 Israeli soldiers have been tried or are facing prosecution for violating army orders.

AT&T ANNOUNCES PRICE CHANGES FOR LONG DISTANCE CALLS WITHIN TEXAS

AT&T announces April 1, 1989, price changes for Long Distance Service (MTS) within Texas. AT&T's prices for long distance calling within Texas will be increased by two cents per minute for calls under 82 miles in distance and one cent per minute for calls that are 82 miles or greater in distance. AT&T's current discounts of 25% for evening calls and 40% for night and weekend calls will remain in effect. The price increases are expected to produce approximately $22.8 million, which is nearly 2.9% of AT&T's annual revenues for Texas Long Distance Service.

This represents the first AT&T price increase for long distance calls within Texas. AT&T's long distance prices for calls within Texas have been reduced overall by about 12% since 1986.

The Long Distance Service price changes will also impact AT&T's PRO™ WATS Texas offering, which offers subscribers a 10% discount on all long distance calls within Texas. These price changes are expected to produce approximately $661,000, or about 3.5% of the annual revenues for AT&T's PRO™ WATS Texas offering.

Prices for AT&T's REACH OUT® Texas offering will also change. The price for initial hour usage will increase from $12.55 to $12.95; the additional hour price will increase from $11.40 to $12.00. These price increases are expected to produce approximately $364,000, or about 2.1% of the annual revenues for AT&T's REACH OUT® Texas offering.

AT&T's tariffs implementing these changes will be filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on March 1, 1989, with an effective date of April 1, 1989. The combined price increases are expected to produce approximately $23.9 million, which is approximately 2.4% of AT&T's annual revenues for all Texas intrastate services.

If you have questions regarding these price changes please call AT&T's service consultants at 1-800-222-0300 for residential customers or 1-800-222-0400 for business customers. Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may also contact the Public Utility Commission of Texas in writing, at 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 450N, Austin, Texas 78757, or by calling the Public Information Office at 512-458-0223, or 512-458-0227, or 512-458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Small pork roast features no leftovers

Small in size but generous in flavor, this delicious pork roast makes 4 to 6 servings with no leftovers and cooks in about 1½ hours. The shape of meat affects cooking time; a long thin roast cooks faster than a short, squatty one.

Don't guess at doneness — use a meat thermometer. Place the thermometer in the thickest meaty portion of roast so it's not touching bone.

PETITE PORK ROAST
One 1½- to 2-pound pork loin sirloin roast
2 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons fennel seed
2 tablespoons caraway seed
Savory Mustard Sauce (recipe follows)

Trim excess fat from the roast. Stir together soy sauce and mustard. Using your fingers, rub the soy mixture over the roast. Combine seeds; spread on waxed paper. Roll roast in seeds to coat evenly. Wrap and chill 2 hours or overnight so seasonings can penetrate roast.

Unwrap roast. Place, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Insert a meat thermometer so that the bulb rests in the center of the thickest portion of the roast and doesn't rest in fat or touch bone. Roast, uncovered, in a 325-degree F oven 1½ to 1¾ hours or until thermometer registers 170 degrees F (well done). For easier carving, let meat stand 15 minutes. Serve with Savory Mustard Sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Savory Mustard Sauce: In a small saucepan combine ¼ cup water, 2 tablespoons dry mustard and 1 teaspoon cornstarch. Stir in 3 tablespoons light corn syrup and 1 tablespoon vinegar. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more.

Nutritional information per ¼-cup serving: 387 cal., 38 g pro., 17 g carb., 18 g fat, 114 mg chol, 608 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 70 percent thiamine, 25 percent riboflavin, 20 percent iron, 40 percent phosphorus.

This 'petite' pork roast makes four to six servings with no leftovers. The roast is simple to prepare and can be served with a savory mustard sauce.

When you don't want the kids to snack on chips or pretzels, you can make a batch of Fruit and Oat Nibble Mix. The mix contains rolled oats, mixed nuts and fruit.

Make this homemade after-school snack mix

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

Lower in fat and sodium than many snacks, this crunchy mix makes a great after-school or TV nibble. To trim preparation time, you can substitute a 6-ounce package of mixed fruit bits for the apricots and raisins.

FRUIT AND OAT NIBBLE MIX

1 cup rolled oats
1 cup mixed nuts
½ cup shredded coconut
¼ cup toasted wheat germ
½ cup honey
2 tablespoons cooking oil
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
1 cup dried apricots, snipped

½ cup raisins

Stir together oats, nuts, coconut and wheat germ. Combine honey, oil and allspice. Drizzle half the honey mixture over oat mixture. Toss. Repeat with remaining honey mixture. Spread mixture in a 13- by 9- by 2-inch baking pan. Bake in a 300-degree F oven 30 to 40 minutes, stirring every 15 minutes. Remove from oven. Transfer to another greased pan; cool without stirring. Break mixture into bite-size pieces. Stir in apricots and raisins. Store in an airtight container. Makes 7 cups.

Nutrition information per ¼-cup serving: 96 cal., 2 g pro., 14 g carb., 4 g fat, 0 mg chol., 2 mg sodium.

Modern method used for old-fashioned soup

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

One taste of this homemade beef and barley soup and you'll think you're having supper at Grandma's. But your microwave oven lets you have it ready in about one-third the time it took her.

MICROWAVE BEEF AND BARLEY SOUP

1½ cups sliced mushrooms
½ cup coarsely chopped onion
½ cup sliced celery
¼ cup water
1 small clove garlic, minced
¾ pound beef stew meat, cut into ½-inch cubes
2 cups water
One 8-ounce can tomato sauce
One 7½-ounce can tomatoes, cut up
2 teaspoons instant beef bouillon granules teaspoon dried basil, crushed

1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup quick-cooking barley

In a 3-quart microwave-safe casserole combine mushrooms, onion, celery, ¼ cup water and garlic. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) 3 to 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring once.

Add beef, 2 cups water, tomato sauce, undrained tomatoes, bouillon granules, basil, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Cook, covered, on high 12 to 16 minutes or until boiling, stirring twice.

Stir in barley. Cook, covered, on 70 percent power (medium-high) 20 to 25 minutes or until meat and barley are tender, stirring 3 times. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 235 cal., 21 g pro., 23 g carb., 6 g fat, 76 mg chol., 531 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 19 percent vit. A, 27 percent vit. C, 10 percent thiamine, 18 percent riboflavin, 29 percent niacin, 22 percent iron.

SPICED FRUIT DIAMONDS

1 cup mixed dried fruit bits
½ cup apple juice
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¾ cup finely chopped pecans
10 sheets frozen phyllo dough (18- by 12-inch rectangles), thawed
½ cup margarine or butter, melted
½ cup sugar

2 tablespoons honey
½ cup water
2 teaspoons lemon juice

In small saucepan bring fruit bits, apple juice and nutmeg to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer 5 minutes or until liquid has been absorbed. Remove from heat. Stir in nuts. Cool slightly.

Trim phyllo sheets, if needed, to form 18- by 12-inch rectangles. Cut sheets in half crosswise, then in half lengthwise to make forty 9-by 6-inch sheets. Cover with damp cloth.

Butter bottom of 10- by 6- by 2-inch baking dish. Layer 13 sheets of phyllo in dish, brushing one-third of margarine between sheets. (Work with one sheet of phyllo at a time; keep remainder covered with damp towel.) Spread half the fruit mixture over phyllo. Repeat with another 13 sheets of phyllo, another third of the margarine, and remaining fruit mixture. Top with remaining sheets of phyllo, brushing each with margarine. Score top of phyllo into ten 2-inch diamonds. Bake in 350-degree F oven 40 to 45 minutes or until deep golden brown.

Meanwhile, in small saucepan combine sugar, honey and water. Bring to boiling. Boil gently, uncovered, 10 minutes. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon juice; pour over warm pastry. Cut into diamonds along scored lines. Cool. Makes 10 diamonds.

Public Notice

On November 9, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed a tariff which proposes to prevent local exchange calling over interstate, unrestricted, multi-jurisdictional, WATS Access Lines (UWALs) and intrastate WATS Access Lines (WALs).

UWALs are provided to interexchange carriers for their use in the provision of interexchange interstate and intrastate long-distance and WATS-type services. Similarly, WALs are designed for use in the provision of interLATA and intraLATA WATS services. The UWALs and WALs were not intended to allow local exchange calling.

If these proposed tariff changes are approved, the blocking of local exchange calls over intrastate WATS access lines and UWALs will take place within 30 days. This proposed tariff change will not result in the blocking of local calls placed to an 800 Service number.

The Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas has assigned this matter to Docket 8421. A hearing on the merits of these proposed tariff changes is scheduled for March 13, 1989.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should mail a request to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757 by February 27, 1989. Further information may also be obtained by calling the PUC Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Ancient Roman festival led to St. Valentine's holiday

NEW YORK (AP)—The tradition of Valentine's Day, the day for lovers to exchange sweet words and small tokens, dates to ancient times.

In mid-February, ancient Romans celebrated a festival called Lupercalia in honor of Lupercus, the Roman equivalent of the Greek god Pan. During the festivities, young men drew the names of young women as dance partners. If they became enamored, they would be formally engaged in mid-February the following year. These betrothals were sealed with an exchange of gifts.

The "passion" of the Rites of Pan prompted the early Christian church to shift the celebration to one of "purity" — remembrance of St. Valentine, a Christian priest martyred 270 A.D. Attempts to Christianize the rites by substituting the names of saints for the names of young women failed, and romance continued to rule the day. Only St. Valentine's name adhered to the holiday.

Many European countries developed similar customs and offered sweets and small gifts to lovers on Feb. 14. Inspired by the belief that birds chose their mates on that date, Europeans in the Middle Ages thought it only natural that young men and women would do the same.

As for the written message, you can thank a romantic Frenchman, Charles Duc d'Orleans. It is said that d'Orleans composed love poems to his wife while imprisoned in the Tower of London on Feb. 14, 1415.

For colonial Americans, confections were especially valued presents because they often used a rare commodity, sugar. Favorite selections were marshpanes, roundels and sugarplums. By the 1850s, conversation hearts — the ones with imprinted messages — were created.

This Valentine's Day in the United States, according to the National Confectioners Association, more than $605 million was spent on candy of all kinds.

Women still do most cleaning, pro says

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Forget what you may have heard or read. Men are not doing more housework than they used to do, says Don Aslett, self-appointed spokesman for a cleaner way of life.

Aslett says "90 percent of household dirt is still caused by men and children and 90 percent of the cleaning is done by women." Even though women are working outside the home, most are still doing the lion's share of the housework after they get home.

As an author of a number of books on how to clean and straighten out the mess that most of us call home and owner of a professional cleaning service in Pocatello, Idaho, Aslett has been collecting statistics on his favorite subject. He says that despite what other surveys have concluded, he has found a surprisingly common pattern all over the world: namely that "the average woman does 26 hours a week of housework and chores. The average man spends 56 minutes a week."

He disputes the idea that people care less about their home than they used to or that they clean less. However, the character of cleaning has changed. He says "most of the time today is spent getting rid of junk, litter and clutter. And the main solution is don't love anything that can't love you back."

A serious message behind his mile-a-minute tipsterism is that a clean, uncluttered home leads to a better attitude and outlook. "Carelessness carries over. Throw junk out and you may find you've cleaned up your life."

For serious cases of clutter, Aslett's prescription is to "get up at 5 a.m. when you are most objective and reasonable. Don't wear any clothes with pockets. Put on lively music and sort possessions into four boxes which you've labeled junk, sort, charity and emotional withdrawal." The last is for things you really don't have a use for but can't bear to throw away.

Then go through the stuff in the sort box, throw out the junk box without looking at it again, give the charity box away and put the emotional withdrawal box away for six months. Then throw it away. "You won't even remember what is in it," he assures.

Although cleaning is an old, old occupation, new ideas are always coming along and people can learn to do a better job in less time, said Aslett, who recently went on national television with five new products and/or ideas to speed things up.

The new ideas: cordless vacuums, highly concentrated one-use cleaning supplies, an electrostatic dust cloth, a newish type of sponge and a squeegee with an angled handle. According to Aslett, who is a national spokesman for the Eureka Co., cordless vacs offer convenience and are easier to use, so people will use them more often.

Though cordless vacuums run for only a short time before needing a recharge (Eureka claims 30 minutes), most vacuuming sessions last only about 10 minutes.

A tip that works, no matter what type of vacuum you use, is to go slowly and methodically just once instead of giving an area a fast pass several times. It takes less time altogether and uses less energy.

Another tip: Hold the cleaner loosely so the brush barely touches the nap of the carpet. A light touch is more efficient since it sets up a good air flow or suction action.

Although the per-use cost of high-concentrate, one-use cleaning supplies may be higher, Aslett says they are more convenient and can save money since you use the right amount instead of too much. The best selection of pre-measured, single-use supplies is found in janitor supply outlets, but they are gradually coming into supermarkets, too.

Save space and money by eliminating unneeded cleaning supplies, suggests Aslett. The three most useful cleaners (all available in measured single-use packages) are a window cleaner that is mainly isopropyl alcohol with a little blue coloring for glass and spot-cleaning; an all-purpose cleaner for washing walls, floors and cupboards; and a liquid-disinfectant cleaner to kill mildew and eliminate bacteria that cause odors.

New gadgets he likes include an electrostatic dust cloth that attracts the dust and holds it like a magnet, and a combination sponge-abrasive pad for cleaning counters, sinks and dishes with hardened food deposits.

He says one of the most underrated cleaning tools is a good squeegee. He uses one to clean windows, showers and bathtub walls, to strip water-softened wax off floors and an inch or so of snow off driveways.

Employ a squeegee more efficiently on windows with a damp cloth as an accessory. Wipe the blade frequently with the cloth to keep it clean and drip-free. A few drops of dishwashing liquid in the pail of water break the surface tension of the water on glass and help it soak in instead of running off.

Simplify tasks by choosing easy-to-care-for surfaces and objects when replacing things around the home. For example, good doormats prevent dirt getting in; low-sheen eggshell enamel paint is the easiest to keep clean; single-handle faucets last longer and don't drip.

Girl's fling at summer camp puts chill on winter romance

DEAR ABBY: Last winter, I began dating a girl I'll call Janet. She said she loved me, too. We are both in college. In June, Janet went to Maine to work at a summer camp for the season. There she met a young man from Canada who had also come to work at the camp. Janet and Rolf soon became very close and started sleeping together. Everyone at camp knew it, and, naturally, it got back to me, which hurt me deeply.

After the camp closed, Rolf went back to Canada and Janet came home. She called me, of course, asking if we could get together. I was hesitant. While I still cared for her, I didn't trust her and I told her so. After much discussion, I agreed to see her again.

We had a long talk. Janet said she still loved me, but when two people are in love they should ask for nothing in return. She admitted to being intimate with Rolf, but insisted it had nothing to do with her feelings for me. She thought I should just forget about her camp experience and pretend it never happened. Abby, while I still love and forgive her, I don't think I can ever trust her again.

I need your advice. Were my expectations too high? Can girls love one person and sleep with someone else? Should I continue seeing her? And will things ever be the same between us again?

HURTING IN WAUKEGAN

DEAR HURTING: Were your expectations too high? Obviously they were with Janet. Can girls love one person and sleep with someone else? You will have to define "love" — what it means to you, and what it means to Janet — but girls are capable of the same behavior as boys.

Dear Abby

Continue seeing her only if it gives you more pleasure than pain. Things will never be the same unless you can truly forgive and forget, and then forget what you forgave.

DEAR ABBY: (I've read those words so many times, but never thought I'd be writing them.) I'm a third-grade teacher, and my class took your advice and wrote to our men and women in the armed forces over the holidays. Since we were studying Japan, we chose Okinawa. Abby, we heard from men and women in the armed forces in Okinawa who wrote such warm and wonderful letters to these children, we could not believe it!

One little girl received a fabulous Christmas gift from a Marine who received her letter. The mail from Okinawa touched these children's lives in a very special way.

Operation Dear Abby was the best thing we did this year. We have learned a valuable lesson in friendship, and the children have developed a deep sense of admiration and respect for our military.

JEANNETTE CONVEY,

DEAR MS. CONVEY: Thank you for letting me know of your students' rewarding involvement with Operation Dear Abby IV. I plan to continue the tradition.
