Optimist Club To Honor Law Personnel At Meal

Pampa Optimist Club will hold a banquet at its meeting Monday night to honor law enforcement officers and personnel at the conclusion of Respect for Law Week currently being observed.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson has issued a proclamation making May 1-7 Respect for Law Week, asking all residents of Pampa to join with the Optimists in promoting respect for law through the program.

President Considers New Men

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon is expected soon to flesh out his shrunken White House staff by naming Army Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. to help fill the void left by the resignation of H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's chief personal aide.

Library Group Forms, Officer Slate Selected

A slate of officers was elected and a constitution and by-laws adopted at the organizational meeting of the Friends of the Pampa Library last week. A S. Bonner, Jr., chairman of the steering committee, announced today.

Bonner will serve as president of the newly-formed group along with Mrs. A.S. Bonner, Jr. vice-president, Mrs. M. McDaniel, secretary, and Joe Page, treasurer. These officers, and the chairmen of the standing committees, will serve as members of the executive board.

Mrs. Bonner announced that:

Nixon Cautions Reds Of New Confrontation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has cautioned the Soviet Union and China that U.S. relations with the two Communist nations could be set back if they keep arming North Vietnam and do not press their ally to observe the cease-fire agreement.

IN SHAKY TRUCE Cease-Fire In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A third cease-fire at dawn today ended two days of savage fighting between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas that threatened this small Mediterranean nation with full-scale war.

Only a few random shots were heard in the streets of Beirut's shell-torn capital. Calm was also reported in Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut, after an early morning show of strength by guerrilla bands shooting into the air and burning tires.

Reports from southeast Lebanon said 5,000 troops of the Palestine Liberation Army that crossed the border from Syria with tanks and artillery Thursday had withdrawn to positions on the border after occupying three villages and besieging two towns along an eight-mile front.

The 160mm tank cannon left big holes in a row of 12 15-story buildings near the Camille Chamoun sports stadium. Spent cartridge cases littered the streets in some residential areas.

A round-the-clock curfew was still in force, but authorities said it would be lifted later in the day if the cease-fire was maintained.

Education Urged On Cancer Fight

The most important factor in the fight against cancer today is the educational program to urge individuals to visit their doctor and have regular checkups.

That was one of the highlights stressed by Glenn Soderstrom of Amarillo as he addressed the annual meeting of the Gray County Unit of the American Cancer Society at its annual meeting last night in Lovett Memorial Library.

Soderstrom, a past director of the Panhandle District of the Cancer Society, said fortunately more and more persons are becoming conscious of the importance of the cancer-checkup, but there still is much room for education along that line. He also discussed the advancements being made in cancer research and the vital necessity for funding the research programs.

In that respect a report was read of the Gray County Unit's 1972 year funding projects. The report showed $5,306.78 was raised in a house-to-house canvass, $2,203.50 from business and industrial firms, $619 from special gifts, $486.50 from memorials and $2,460.51 from the Bike-A-Thon.

The total raised was $11,076.29. Officers elected at last night's meeting, presided over by Mrs. O.C. Penn, outgoing president, were:

Jack Skelly, president, Mrs. Joe M. Daniel Jr., vice president, Mrs. Maynard Johnson, secretary, and Luther Robinson, treasurer.

Officers of the club and Mrs. Penn were named as delegates to the district cancer society meeting in Lubbock in June and Skelly was named a delegate to the state meet at Austin in August.

John Altis, American Cancer Society field representative, presented the Gray County Unit a Certificate of Golden Achievement for its year just ended.

Ellsberg and Russo are accused of conspiracy, theft and espionage in copying the top secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

relations had sharply reduced a risk of confrontation, while the United States and the Soviet Union appear to have accomplished "a major break in the pattern of suspicion, hostility and confrontation that has dominated U.S. Soviet relations for a generation."

The President noted that liaison offices were being opened in Peking and Washington, that trade between the United States and China was reaching "very substantial levels" and that leaders of the two countries had held hundreds of hours of direct talks.

As for the Soviet Union, Nixon said the United States is prepared to consider long-term economic cooperation. For example, he said natural gas and other vast Soviet resources could be developed with the help of American capital and technology and then exported to the United States.

In Europe, he said 1973 presents historic opportunities for economic cooperation and a flexible new nuclear defense policy for the United States and its allies.

In the Far East, the President looked to Japan "to link her destiny firmly to that of the free world, both for reasons of Japan's own security and her economic interests."

In the Middle East, he reaffirmed U.S. commitment to assisting Israel and the Arab states toward negotiations. He said he plans to make at least one visit to Latin America this year, and said the administration is prepared to help in the economic and political development of Africa.

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, briefed newsmen Wednesday and Thursday about the report. It was released three months later than the 1972 statement because Nixon and Kissinger waited for results of the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

Assessing prospects for peace in Vietnam, Kissinger said he is "not pessimistic" that through negotiations "differences can be ameliorated if not solved." In Cambodia, he said, cease-fire negotiations might be possible within a few months.

Washington (AP) — Atty. Gen. designate Elliot L. Richardson reportedly will name an independent Watergate prosecutor by the time his confirmation hearings begin next Wednesday.

Richardson May Name Independent Prosecutor

Senate sources said Richardson made that pledge to a gathering of Republican senators at the Capitol after they told him unanimously they want the Watergate investigation taken entirely out of the executive branch.

Richardson's choice for the job was not made known, but speculation centers on Philadelphia lawyer William T. Coleman, a former member of the now-defunct Price Commission.

Coleman declined comment when asked if he had been offered the position.

As one group of senators after another demanded a special prosecutor, two recently resigned White House aides testified before a federal grand jury about Watergate.

John D. Ehrlichman, former chief domestic adviser, and H.R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, said they had answered all questions and had not sought refuge in the 5th Amendment.

Their attorney, J.W. Wilson, said that even if his clients are indicted, "they have no fear of being convicted."

Meanwhile, Martha Mitchell swore in a pretrial statement in New York Thursday that the White House leaked false stories last year that she was in an asylum. The Associated Press learned.

Sources say Mrs. Mitchell claimed to have had no first-hand information about the Watergate case.

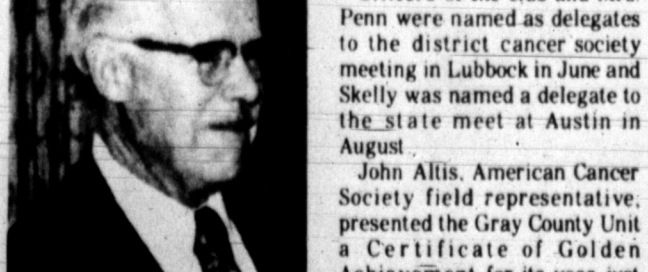

Sensors who were at the meeting with Richardson said publicly that he made no commitments about naming a special prosecutor. Richardson told newsmen, "I have the whole question under deliberation."

Pressure has been intense for Richardson to turn the probe over to an outsider since President Nixon gave him that option Monday night in the speech announcing he had nominated Richardson to be attorney general and had placed him in charge of the Watergate case.

Gas Price Figures Get Revised Story

By RAY BAXTER
Some gasoline in Pampa went up one cent a gallon this week. Some gasoline in Pampa went up two cents a gallon. Some gasoline did not go up. It was mistakenly reported in the Pampa News yesterday that all stations went up two cents except one that held at a one-cent raise.

Unfortunately, all spokesmen for oil companies supplying stations in Pampa would not speak. So, a pump price check was made at "sample" stations. Since that pump price was up with those that did raise, such a rise was assumed.

J.L. Holmes, Texaco distributor who could not be reached earlier, had a most valid complaint in that Texaco has not had an increase in a number of years.

One Texaco station sampled had pump prices of 35.9-cents for regular and 39.9-cents for premium. This is in line with the price-rise level over the city. However, this is the price with trading stamps. This particular station also has a discount price without trading stamps.

Holmes said this was up to the individual station operators, that, as a distributor, he could not set station prices.

The trading stamp issue figures heavily in price, according to both operators and distributors. Bob Taggart of Gulf cited this as a reason he was holding to a one-cent increase.

However, it now develops that many stations individually held to the one-cent increase despite the fact that some sister stations of the same brand went up two cents.

The chief point the study of the raise sought to make was that this was a part of the energy-crisis taking a more onerous shape nationally each day — not that distributors or operators were villains in the piece.

Texas still have a bigger break than anyone else in the nation in that Texas has the lowest state tax — five cents a gallon — of any state in the union. With the federal tax of four cents, this means that nine cents of the pump price wherever you buy gas is tax.

Accident Kills Pampa Student

Jimmy W. Cooper, 20, Pampa, died shortly after midnight last night in a car-truck crash on Amarillo Blvd. in Amarillo.

According to investigating officers, Cooper's car was traveling west at a high rate of speed when it collided with a semi-truck. Police said the car went completely under the truck, shearing off the top, and came to rest against a pole in front of a restaurant further down the road.

Cooper was pronounced dead at the scene. A passenger, Miss Joan Swift, Amarillo, suffered serious injuries in the mishap.

Cooper, who had been employed for some time by Malcolm Hinkle here, was a vocational student in Amarillo. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Geneva Cooper, 1031 E. Browning, two sisters, Mrs. Earl Lewis, Sweetwater, and Mrs. Jerry Wall, Lubbock, and a brother, Benny, Amarillo.

Services are pending at Duenkel Funeral Home.

House On Pot, Senate On Bills

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas House members return today to their dramatic, historic debate on marijuana smoking in Texas.
Meanwhile, the Senate planned to take up prosaic money matters in a move to start off compromise efforts for the multi-billion dollar general appropriations bill for 1974-75.
The House argued more than four hours Thursday afternoon over a comprehensive drug reform bill that was amended to favor legislation proposed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe. A vote of 82-59 turned debate to a complete substitute bill, the governor's plan, offered by Rep. Tim Von Dohlen, D-Goliad, instead of the Criminal-Jurisprudence Committee.

Riders Ready For River Trip

Some 36 riders representing a wide age span mounted on a variety of steeds will take part in the second annual Canadian River Ride Sunday.
Officials for the event emphasize it is not a race but a test of endurance. However, the 45-mile course through the breaks of the Canadian River must be completed in 10 hours if riders are to qualify for prizes.

Three Cases Set At Court

Three criminal cases are docketed for the session of 31st District Court beginning Monday. Two of them involve the same defendants.
Gary Lee Rabe and Richard Earl Solsberry face two counts, one each of burglary and arson. They allegedly burglarized the home of Leonard Wood and then tried to burn it in December, 1969, police said.
Originally, they were to be tried together but their attorney, James "Rowdy" Bowers filed a motion for a severance Friday. This motion has not been acted upon yet.

Financial Disclosure Rule Facing Double Approach

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senate financial disclosure regulation may come in the form of two bills instead of the single plan offered by the House.
A Senate subcommittee Thursday rejected a tough comprehensive package by Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, in favor of a double approach, with one set of rules for elected officials and another for bureaucrats.

'A Splendid Little War' (11)

By Don Oakley and Ed Kudlaty

After Dewey's smashing victory in Manila Bay, Americans who couldn't locate the Philippines on a map began to think favorably of the idea of taking them over as the just spoils of war.

There was a very good possibility that if the United States did not, some other power would. Germany, for instance, had sent a fleet to sniff around Luzon, until warned off by Dewey.

By the time Spain capitulated in Cuba, President McKinley, too, after much prayerful consideration, had concluded that it was America's duty to humanity to civilize and Christianize the Filipinos (most of whom happened to have been Christian for centuries).

The only trouble was the Filipinos, led by insurrecto General Emilio Aguinaldo, who had proclaimed an independent republic.

The American army, which had been dispatched in May, thus found itself in the end co-operating with the very oppressor from whose yoke it had come to free the Philippines. On August 13, 1898, after a prearranged show of resistance by the Spanish garrison, American troops occupied Manila while those of Aguinaldo were successfully kept out of the city.

Spain, resigned to defeat even before the war had begun, now resigned herself to loss of the Philippines. A peace-treaty was signed in Paris on Dec. 10 and ratified by the U.S. Senate on Feb. 16, 1899—by a margin of two votes, and two days after the first shots were fired in Manila in a cruel guerrilla war that was to last two years and claim thousands of American and Filipino lives.

As the Senate vote reflected, however, there was strong opposition to annexation, even with the promise of ultimate self-rule. Men of both parties like ex-president Cleveland and Sen. George F. Hoar, industrialists like Andrew Carnegie and writers like Mark Twain and William Dean Howells were outspoken anti-imperialists.

Harvard scholar Charles Eliot Norton mourned that America "has lost her unique position as a potential leader in the progress of civilization, and has taken up her place simply as one of the grasping and selfish nations."

Grasping or idealistic, America had embarked irrevocably on a course that was to profoundly shape the coming century.

Despite Rules, Industrial Body Counts Unchanged

Editor's Note: Industrial accidents killed about 14,000 workers last year. The following, first in a series from The AP Special Assignment Team, examines the broad outlines of job safety.

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
America's industrial body count remains virtually unchanged two years after a sweeping federal job-safety act took effect.

Sometimes the deaths make headlines. A Staten Island gas storage tank blew up in February, killing 40 men. In suburban Washington in March, tons of concrete buried 14 workmen when a section of a high-rise apartment project collapsed.

But usually there is little publicity when a single worker is buried in a caved-in trench, struck dead by a fork-lift truck, electrocuted or killed in some other type of job accident.

About 14,000 workers were killed in industrial accidents last year, the National Safety Council estimates. Roughly 2.4 million suffered disabling injuries. The economic cost is estimated at $9.8 billion.

These figures are about equal to those for 1970 when, of course, the work force was somewhat smaller. In that year, Congress enacted the Occupational Safety and Health Act which took effect two years ago April 28.

Since then, a small new agency in the Labor Department, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, has worked in relative obscurity to produce hundreds of pages of hard-to-understand safety rules, make 50,000 inspections of high-risk workplaces and write 33,000 citations carrying fines of $3.8 million.

But OSHA's efforts have produced no statistical evidence that industry is any safer today than two years ago. In fact, due to improved federal statistics brought about by the job-safety act, the number of job injuries now appears to be higher than estimated by the safety council.

The council tends to make the workplace appear safer than it is because its figures are based on reports of its own members. They tend to be more safety-conscious than business in general.

Still, they are the most comprehensive figures available, and will be for at least two years, until the Bureau of Labor Statistics can begin to show trends with its new system.

Here's what the safety council figures show:

—Job accidents kill almost twice as many workers as home accidents, and more than half as many as motor-vehicle accidents. For 1971, the most recent year for which complete statistical breakdowns are available, 14,300 workers died in job accidents, 7,800 died in home accidents, 8,600 died in drownings, hunting accidents and other public accidents and 25,100 died in highway accidents.

—Job accidents injured 2.3 million workers in 1971. Off-job accidents injured less than half as many more, 3.2 million, despite the fact that workers spend less than a fourth of their time on the job.

—Some occupations are far deadlier than others. Mining and quarrying have a death rate five times the average for all industries. Construction is 3½ times more lethal than average. Farming is nearly three times as deadly.

—The least lethal places to work are in stores and factories. Trade and manufacturing show a death rate less than half the average. Auto, aerospace and electrical equipment manufacturing seems particularly safe. Injury rates less than one-third the average for all industries.

The new job-safety act allows the secretary of Labor to set mandatory safety standards for nearly all the nation's employers.

A staff of 550 inspectors now enforces hundreds of pages of detailed regulations spelling out rules for such workplace matters as electrical equipment, machinery, ladders and dust levels.

Labor unions say the staff is far too small to do the job. Businessmen complain the rules are too rigid, numerous and costly for the average employer.

Indeed, there is some early evidence that OSHA may be making things safer. Longshoremen now must wear hardhats. Safety inspectors now find 30 per cent of plants to be free of violations, compared with 20 per cent in the agency's early days. And, although the body count hasn't changed much in the last two years, the American workforce has grown by several million.

Sea Snake Is the Most Venomous

By IAN McCausland
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Hydrophis belcheri leaves for dead such killer snakes as the krait of Asia, the mambas of Africa, the unique tree viper found only on Brazil's Queimada Grande island, and the Australian taipan.

Hydrophis belcheri, otherwise a type of sea snake, is believed by scientists to be the world's most venomous snake — about 100 times more venomous than any other known sea or land snake.

This startling conclusion about the mid-mannered belcheri was reached during a six-week cruise of the research ship Alpha Helix this year in the Timor Sea, north west of Australia.

The cruise was organized by the U.S. National Science Foundation through the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in California. It involved 11 scientists interested in sea snakes.

Dr. Harold Cogger, curator of reptiles at Sydney's Australian Museum, who returned from the expedition with 100 hydrophis belcheris, said: "We were surprised. Though we knew sea snakes were venomous, we had not realized just how venomous."

Measurement of the snake's venom forced a change in the standard method of determining the MLD (minimum lethal dose).

Dr. Nabuo Tamiya, of Japan's Tohoku University, adopted the usual practice of diluting the venom to a nonlethal dose and injecting it into laboratory mice. The procedure then is to work up to a more powerful dose which kills the mice.

Tamiya's first dilution felled the mice and he had to continue working down through weaker and weaker doses until he was able to get a measurement.

Cogger said hydrophis belcheri — named after British sea captain Sir Edward Belcher who headed a survey of the area in 1846 — can grow up to five feet in length.

Paper Says Agents Helped McGovern

NEW YORK (AP) — Government investigators say they believe Republicans running President Nixon's re-election campaign used three networks of agents in an effort to help Sen. George McGovern win the Democratic nomination. The New York Times reported Thursday.

According to the investigators, the newspaper said the GOP intelligence effort operated on the assumption that McGovern, the eventual nominee, was the weakest candidate Nixon could face.

The federal investigators said new evidence indicated that the alleged political espionage program was initially authorized by H. R. Haldeman, the White House chief of staff, and at its peak included three networks of agents controlled by the White House and the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Representative Satisfied By Opinion Poll Returns

"The people of the 66th Legislative District care about good government," Rep. Phil Cates said today, as responses to his opinion poll continue to pour into his Austin office.

"People in my 10-county district are returning the questionnaires by the hundreds," Rep. Cates noted, "and their concern for the issues we are facing in state government is most impressive."

Some 16,000 questionnaires, which were neither printed nor mailed at state expense, were sent out from Cates' Austin office April 13.

"I read every questionnaire personally and welcome comments, suggestions, and support," Rep. Cates stated, noting that it is his continuous pledge to remain close to the people of his district and vote their views.

"I wish each one could be here with me to share in the decision making on a daily basis, but since this is not practical, I seek suggestions and advice by means of the questionnaires," Cates said. "I can then take a stronger stand for our people in Austin and better serve our district."

He stressed that anyone from the district who did not receive a questionnaire and would like a copy, should contact his office at the State Capitol.

Many early responders have made favorable comments on the questionnaires, Cates said, some stating this was the first time the opinion of the voters

KILLER SNAKE — Dr. Harold Cogger, curator of reptiles at Sydney's Australian Museum, picks up the world's deadliest snake. He says it only strikes when it is frightened or angry.

Farmers Paying Higher Prices For Seed Crops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices farmers pay for seeds to plant crops this spring are record high, including increases of up to 100 per cent from a year ago for some types of hay and forage crops.

The Agriculture Department, in a survey of prices as of April 15, says the sharpest increase from a year earlier was for a forage crop seed, sericea lepedeza, which averaged $99.10 per 100 pounds. A year ago the seed sold for $44.70.

All kinds of field crop seeds listed by the Corp. Reporting Board showed increase from a year ago with the exception of open-pollinated grain sorghum which remained the same, $15.20 per 100 pounds.

The more commonly used hybrid sorghum was $24.60 per hundredweight, up from $23.30 a year ago. Hybrid seed corn averaged $22.20 per bushel, compared with $21.50 a year earlier. Even in 1971, in the aftermath of corn blight damage the year before, seed corn cost farmers less, $21.90 per bushel.

Other seed prices at mid-April, compared with a year earlier, included: Uncertified alfalfa varieties $75.80 per 100 pounds this spring and $50.90 last year, ladino clover $1.42 per pound and $1.37, sudangrass $21.90 per pound and $19.80, potatoes $4.92 per 100 pounds and $3.13, spring wheat $3.20 per bushel and $1.99, flax $6.35 per bushel and $3.79, peanuts $38.30 per 100 pounds and $37.10, soybeans $8.75 per bushel and $5.21, and cottonseed $18.30 per 100 pounds and $17.40.

Students Protest Deaths

PUEBLA, Mexico (AP) — The autonomous University of Puebla Thursday petitioned the Mexican Congress to remove State Gov. Gonzalo Bautista O'Farril from office.

The request came after the funeral of four students killed Tuesday in the latest clash between the university and state authorities.

University administrators, led by Rector Sergio Flores, called the rector "an unworthy son" of the university. The university blames the Bautista O'Farril government for the deaths of students and school officials. Flores said that in 10 months, seven have been "assassinated."

Another student died Thursday "of severe blows" after participating in a 2.5 mile funeral procession for those killed in the Tuesday shoot-out with police.

Gilberto Chavez Avila, 18, described as a harsh critic of the government and a student activist, was found a block from the city jail. At the funeral earlier he told a teacher he planned to visit "political prisoners."

Although doctors at the civil hospital where Chavez Avila was taken attributed his death to beating, a public ministry official said he understood the student was run over by a bus. An autopsy was to be performed today.

The federal government opened an investigation into the shooting which police said occurred when they tried to stop about 300 students from joining workers dispersing after a labor day parade. Police said they had orders not to allow the students to leave university buildings.

Since the university conflicts began no Puebla state government has completed a full term. Students and university administrators say 12 persons have been killed in as many years of conflict at the school.

Bautista O'Farril, who took over the office in 1971 when his predecessor resigned, told a local newspaper the Communist party was to blame for the "provocation against the police, who are doing nothing but defending themselves when they shot."

Reasons Given On No Siren

EDITOR'S NOTE — There has been some controversy over whether White Deer's tornado siren was sounded before last Monday night's tornado hit the town. Roger Meadows, son of Fire Chief Pleasant Meadows, sends the News the following explanatory letter:

"The good Samaritan was partially right in his comment on Tuesday, May 1. I am going to try to explain the reason behind the absence of no full siren being sounded at White Deer.

"I was watching those clouds which were about a half-mile from me when I became concerned. A funnel and then another began to drop from the clouds about 200 yards from the city limits and this was in a matter of seconds.

"I immediately drove to my house, which was only a couple of blocks away, and by the time I reached my house the tornado was a block away from me.

"I drove to Main Street, which is about a half-mile, trying to avoid the path of the tornado. By the time I reached Main Street, the tornado had cut me off. Having no place to go, I turned around, got on the highway and headed for Pampa.

"I got about four miles, then egg size hail stopped me. Finally, the hail stopped and I went back to W.D. to see what happened, and the sun was shining brightly.

"The siren sounded about 15 seconds and then the twister hit the lines and the siren was dead."

"There was no time to sound a siren because the tornado came down nearly in the city limits from a cloud that appeared bad, but no worse than we have experienced in the past. It ripped thru the town in less than two minutes."

Dear Abby

Donating eyes, kidneys helps the less fortunate

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for mentioning in your column that you carry on your person two cards, indicating that you have donated your eyes and your kidneys after your death.

I read it while visiting my 18-year-old granddaughter who has been without kidneys for a year and has been kept alive by a dialysis machine. She is waiting for a kidney which we hope will be provided by a donor.

A suggestion in your widely-read column might serve as an impetus to some of your readers to follow your commendable example.

The good that could be accomplished by such generous action is immeasurable and could extend to generations yet unborn!

A MISSOURI MINISTER

DEAR MINISTER: Thank you for giving me another opportunity to say that no matter what else I leave behind, these, I think will be the most precious.

A few facts: Having once made such a commitment, you may revoke it at any time should you so desire. There is NO disfigurement whatsoever. Because of the time element, such donations may NOT be bequeathed in one's will because they are usually read after the deceased has been buried. Organs are NEVER sold. They are given free to those who need them.

For additional information, write to The Living Bank, P. O. Box 6725, Houston, Tex. 77065.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is married to a very well-to-do man, wants me to move into her home while she and her husband vacation in Europe for six weeks.

I am a widow, 75, and very active. I am willing to go to her home every day to water her plants, bring in the mail, and check up on things, but the problem is their dog. She can't leave him alone, so I have to sleep there.

Abby, I am terrified of staying there alone. It is a regular mansion. She has three live-in help, (a couple and second maid) who all take their vacations at this time.

They refuse to put the dog in a kennel because they did that once and the dog went on a hunger strike and nearly died. I'd take the dog to my apartment but they don't allow dogs.

I've told my daughter I was afraid to stay at her place alone and she says, "Nothing can happen to you. Keep the floodlights on all night." I say if robbers see floodlights on all night they will know someone is alone there. My daughter laughs at me.

I am hurt to think they think more of their dog's feelings than mine, but what can I do? They have been wonderful to me otherwise, so I hate to say no.

NO LOCATIONS, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Why don't you invite a friend to stay there with you? Or, since your daughter is well off, suggest she hire a security guard to watch the place at night.

DEAR ABBY: My sister in law, whose last name is the same as mine, just had a baby girl. I am pregnant and am due to deliver any moment. My sister in law who wasn't due for another three weeks, delivered early.

My problem is that she used the name I thought up. If I have a girl I can't use that name because it will cause all kinds of confusion since the cousins will live in the same town, and will be constantly confused in school, etc.

When I told her the name I was going to use if I had a girl she kind of made fun of it so I never dreamed she would use it. What should I do? I have always loved that name and now I can't use it.

NAME, STOLEN

DEAR STOLEN: You can use it if you want to. But cheer up. You may have a boy.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet: "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

HOMEMAKERS CLUB
Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Mrs. Ethel Hunt. The meeting opened with Lord's Prayer in unison by the members.

Mrs. Jim Ruth won the door prize and Mrs. Mable Boyd won the game gift.

Receiving gifts from their secret pals were Mmes Jim Ruth, Eula Berry, Miles Pearson, Ralph Fox Sr., Ina Horst and Myrtle Gould.

Members brought canned goods which will be donated to The Genesis House in Tampa. They also voted to give a needy family a cash gift for Easter.

The next meeting will be May 1 in the home of Mrs. Jim Ruth in the Cabot Camp. There will be a demonstration on Tri-Chem painting.

Attending were Mmes Gertrude Huckins, Ina Horst, Juanita Porter, Eula Berry, Floyd McCoy, Gladys Simmons, Miles Pearson, Jim Ruth, Myrtle Gould, Carolyn Rutherford, Don Easley, Ralph Fox Sr., Bob Heaton, Ethel Hunt, and one guest Mrs. Mable Boyd.

GOOD FOOD IS MY LINE

By Bob Zaph

The Washington Street Produce Market supplies most of the food to New York City's populace. It covers 50 acres and through it move more than 100,000 carloads of fruit and vegetables each year. It can accommodate 400 trucks at a time and often has 3500 more lined up waiting to unload.

As the market is never closed, New Yorkers receive fresh fruits and vegetables daily, though in a less orthodox manner than in other parts of the country. The sidewalks are lined with crates and boxes of produce. Trampling of rotting cabbages, celery, etc., continues in spite of city health ordinances. There should be a better way to feed the city's millions, but it certainly wouldn't be as colorful!

Have you tried our Sunday Luncheon? It's the best bargain in your food budget. Just $2.50 for Adults and $1.50 for Children. Served from 11:30 A.M. to 2:00 P.M. CORONADO INN.

Soap and Water Good Booster for Tired Furniture

When furniture looks weary, a soap and water sponge bath may be just the thing it needs to restore it to youthful, sparkling condition.

Wood furniture, unlike plastic or metal pieces, can always be put back into tip-top shape, but waxing and re-waxing is not the way to do it. Keeping it free of dirt and grime, so that the beauty of the natural wood figure patterns is shown to best advantage, is the answer. The individuality and distinction of the fine hardwood furniture woods like oak, maple, pecan, walnut, rosewood, mahogany or cherry gain mellow beauty through age, and a soft patina on the wood is a sure sign of healthy furniture.

Before you wash it, first dust your furniture thoroughly. Use a soft fabric cloth and dust in the direction of the wood grain. Moving big dust particles with a coarse cloth can cause tiny scratches in the wood, so wipe carefully.

Although water is a natural enemy to wood, it really does the most thorough cleaning job, and, handled properly, will revitalize tired-looking furniture. Too much wax can leave uneven, dark blotches; while furniture oils, no matter how evenly they are applied, can, over an extended period of time, damage the entire finish. (As a rule, furniture oils are bad; they attract and hold dust.) A soap-and-water bath will not only remove dirt, but will also help to eradicate these spots and wax-stains.

To wash furniture properly, use a mild soap which will treat furniture gently. Dampen a soft cloth in sudsy water, and wring the cloth out thoroughly, to remove all excess water. Then rub the damp cloth over the piece to be cleaned, doing one small area at a time. Overlap adjacent areas for even results; and wash, as you dust, in the direction of the wood grain. Be sure to dry off each area immediately with a clean cloth.

Working one section at a time, this procedure will free hidden particles from the wood grain, taking off the layers of wax that have accumulated. Be certain to dry the piece thoroughly, and be careful to avoid furniture joints since too much moisture is bad for even the best of joinery.

One word of caution, though: If a film or whitish haze develops after the soap and water washing, you will have to go to the trouble of rubbing down the surface with 000-grade or finer steel wool. This is because water sometimes mixes badly with certain shellac or lacquer finishes. So try a test-patch before you do the whole job.

Once you have washed and dried the furniture, it should be thoroughly sparkling and ready for a new coat of wax to give it a new, low-lustre sheen. (NF Features)

A sponge-bath of mild soap and water, with along-the-grain strokes, is tops for cleaning hardwood furniture.

Our "Hm-mmph" was by no means an agreement with our friend's analysis. We give him full blame for the debacle.

To start with, he had over-called with a four-card suit when he also held four cards in the unbid suit. A takeout double or a pass would have been better action with his hand.

In addition he might well have assumed that if East held four spades to the queen-jack and a side ace, East would have raised one spade to two. Therefore the unlucky expert should have cashed his ace of spades before leading the second diamond to make sure of the set.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The unlucky expert had caught us again. Here is his sad story:

"I opened the king of spades. My partner played the deuce so I shifted to the jack of diamonds. He played the eight and South was in with the queen. He entered dummy with a club and led the jack of hearts for a finesse.

"I took my king and led the diamond 10. Dummy's king lost to my partner's ace. He led a third diamond and it was 'Katie bar the door.' South ruffed, drew trumps and claimed. Couldn't my partner have realized that if I held a five-card spade suit I would have led a second spade?"

"Hm-mmph" we said as we escaped.

This is that real windy day. Only 20 citizens dared to face the storm, but they were hale and hearty and had no difficulties.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood served pie and ice cream, with coffee and Easter egg candy. Those serving were: Mrs. L.P. Clark, chairman, assisted by Mrs. J.M. Gill, J.J. Wright and Winefred Crinklaw.

Mrs. Cora Lawrence is reported in High Plains Baptist hospital where she had surgery on one of her eyes, and will have the other one operated on in a few days, then she will have to stay there for 10 more days.

The prizes were won by Mrs. Amelia Schwope, and O.L. Ray.

Squid Substitute Provides No Excuse For Boycott Of Meat

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer
Sat down at the dinner table the other night right in the middle of the meat boycott. And while munching hominy grits, idly wondered whether the Young Lady, otherwise known as Y.L., had joined the boycott. She is the grocery buyer and cooker.

Was afraid to ask as it might start a long philosophical argument and we're not long on philosophy particularly when the Y.L. is expressing her own. But all week long, couldn't tell that the boycott made any difference for we're not long on beef ever since 50-cent steaks disappeared.

Oh, there was some beef on the table during the boycott. But never did find out whether it was purchased earlier and stuck in the freezer or whether the Y.L. was cheating. Or perhaps she isn't boycott oriented.

The housewives' strike did have one epicurean effect. Persuaded Y.L. to fry the leftover grits for breakfast for the first time. That may not seem like progress but it is if you grew up on fried grits and haven't had any for ages.

Ever since beef began really rising, it's been fish fry or chicken fry nearly every day with only moderate amounts of red meat.

And then there was the squid disaster. You will hear about it later if we can keep from crying.

Texas Christian University got all worked up a few weeks ago about a project. In a bid toward ethnic understanding, it served soul food one day at its dining halls.

Saw the menu but it didn't seem very newsworthy. Thought all Texans ate that sort of thing all the time.

Don't exactly recall everything that was served at TCU. But what's different with a little pork or chicken, greens, sweet potatoes, turnips, grits, cornbread, okra, blackeyed peas and things like that?

Soul food? That depends. Asked a few fellows what their soul food is.

One said sauerkraut and boiled potatoes.

Another with a faint Latin accent came up with tacos and chili.

One put in a bid for fish and chips.

Texas is getting to be a sort of United Nations.

Went down to Houston the other day and got one of the greatest steaks I have ever masticated.

Felt a little guilty about it, but fortunately was among a bunch of intellectuals of the Texas Institute of Letters who pointed out that the cheap calendar watch on the old wrist was wrong, and the boycott didn't start until the next day.

Not that we would have passed up that particular steak at any time.

Then there was the squid. Ran into a fellow a few weeks ago just as he was entering the friendly neighborhood pool hall.

He is an ex-Marine and has been all over the world and knows good food from bad.

"Come over here," he ordered in his best sergeant's manner. "Want to show you something?"

He went to his car and obtained a package and opened it.

Inside were a lot of pretty, silver-colored fish, just a bit larger than a sardine.

"Delicious," said the sergeant. "Fry them in butter and they're out of this world. Cheap, too."

"What are they?" "Smelts."

Dashed home to tell Y.L. about this great new find.

And she rushed out to the friendly neighborhood fish store.

Half an hour later, Y.L. dashed back and dumped three pounds of frozen squid on the drainboard.

Squid!

That's what it said on the wrapping. Unfortunately, that was what was inside, too.

Now there are 30,000 kinds of fish in this world. The encyclopedia says this is true.

And admitting that anyone can get a little tongue-tied when ordering something, why, with 29,999 chances to get something else, did it have to be squid?

Oriental and the Japanese in particular consider squid a delicacy. It hasn't found much favor among the round-eyed population of this world, however, as far as we know, except around the Mediterranean Sea.

Three pounds of frozen squid are not cheap. So there was nothing to do but salvage something out of the deal by cleaning and eating them.

A squid is a form of octopus. Some are 40 feet long. These weren't, thank goodness.

You take out most of the innards and throw them away and you have a nice-looking, flat piece of meat left. At least we think that is the part you eat.

After that, you just fry it like any fish. The Y.L. refused and that duty fell to you know who.

Forgot to tell you that squid have a distinct odor and when they're heated in the frying pan the odor skyrockets.

About halfway through the frying, one of the offspring said, "I think I'll go out and get a hamburger instead."

The other announced, "I'm getting out of here." Y.L. said, "Believe I'll just have a glass of milk for dinner tonight."

Well, managed to choke down about half of a squid. Gave up and dumped the whole thing in the cat's dish.

Cats, as you well know, will eat any kind of fish.

But not this time. This feline took one sniff and bolted for the door. Didn't find him until the next afternoon.

WORRY CLINIC

Zoe is an "addict" of Women's Lib. And many of her colleagues write redhot letters of protest to the editors that run this "Worry Clinic." But Women's Libbers need psychiatric counseling. Or husbands who can stop their delusions in one night via the booklet below!

CASE W-595: Zoe J., aged 22, is an ardent Women's Libber. "Dr. Crane," she protested, "you are old-fashioned and entirely out-of-date!"

"For you oppose Women's Lib and I suppose are also against an Amendment to our Constitution that will make women the equal of men."

"How can you justify your vicious attack on women?" "As a psychologist, you should know that women are just as intelligent as men, as per IQ tests."

AMENDMENT FADS

For the first 150 years of this great Republic, hundreds of possible Amendments were suggested, to be tacked on that great U.S. Constitution.

But most of them were wisely ignored.

For basic laws, as in the Ten Commandments, plus the essence of liberty as delineated in our Constitution, don't need to be choked with innumerable wordy Amendments.

Women are definitely NOT the equal of men nor are men the equal of women, so let's get that axiom clearly stated!

Remember, a potato and a peach are NOT the same but numerically we can add them, as 1 plus 1, and obtain the sum of 2.

Each may thus count as an Arabic-numeral 1 but they still are very different!

And so it is with women and men!

Some belligerent modern females, however, have lost medical and psychological perspective, so they get intoxicated with their own notoriety and claim women can do anything men can.

Women are only about 65 percent as strong as the man of similar weight, but women are usually faster in finger movements.

They are also more submissive, which is why they cause less trouble for employers and school teachers.

Being less aggressive, they wonder at the way men will sit glued to the TV set for hours, watching competitive football, baseball or boxing matches.

And men, in turn, marvel at the way the women will yakety-yak for hours about patterns, cosmetics and recipes.

Men start the wars but women then nurse the wounded and try to produce peace.

Women have thus been the chief custodians of music and morality, culture and education.

In church congregations, they far outnumber men, whether in ancient pagan temples or in modern churches, synagogues and cathedrals.

Each sex has its own unique merits, with men excelling women in many ways while women surpass men in others.

To call the two sexes "equal" is ridiculous!

Actually, the current "addicts" of this transitory fad called Women's Lib (with their use of "Ms." instead of "Miss" or "Mrs.") need psychiatric counseling!

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Most of them are either soured spinsters, craving to hide their lack of a wedding band under that "Ms." or else they are frustrated wives or lesbians (female homosexuals). Some are now writing protest letters to the editors of papers that carry this column, claiming they are happily married (but pity their henpecked mates!).

Shakespeare diagnosed Women's Libbers in his "Taming of the Shrew," when he showed they merely were badgering males to make the latter assert their virility and thus dominate such females in the boudoir!

Husbands, send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and you can demolish their Women's Lib delusions in one night!

Producer Says Goodbye To Creatures

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arthur P. Jacobs, a man who has made millions with talking apes, is saying farewell to the creatures with a mixture of relief and regret.

Relief, because his five "Planet of the Apes" movies have been complex productions requiring more ingenuity with each one. Regret, because the films have been the producer's biggest successes.

"Naturally, I'm fond of the apes," said Jacobs, 51, "but it has become harder to find new plots that will work. Besides, I have other films I want to make. I don't want to keep turning out apes pictures like Charlie Chans or Tarzans."

In both those cases, the first five or so of the series were excellent. Then, as the series fell into other hands, they became routine and not so good. I'd rather quit while we're ahead." The producer has been finishing up "The Battle for the Planet of the Apes," which will be in the theaters this summer. That doesn't mean the end of the "apes." They'll be re-released in theaters for years to come. And Jacobs has given 20th Century-Fox the rights to develop a television series.

"Planet of the Apes" was a big hit, earning $26 million. "Beneath the Planet" cost $4.6 million and made $16.5 million. "Escape from" cost only $2 million because it was filmed in Los Angeles with only three apes. It earned $9.5 million.

"Conquest of" and "Battle for" was made for about $1.8 apiece, and each is expected to bring in between $9 and $10 million.

Why have the "apes" been so popular? Jacobs' opinion: "Because they are adventure-fantasy. And because they can be viewed on another level as social satire."

The extinct 10-foot-tall elephant bird laid a 20-pound egg that equaled about 250 of today's Grade AA eggs.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1626, the Dutch colonizer, Peter Minuit, landed on Manhattan Island. It was Minuit who bought Manhattan from the Indians for trinkets worth $24.

On this date: In 1841, Napoleon Bonaparte went into exile on the island of Elba.

In 1863, Confederate forces defeated the Union armies in the Civil War battle at Chancellorsville, Va.

In 1904, the United States took possession of the Panama Canal Zone.

In 1942, the Pacific war Battle of the Coral Sea began.

In 1945, German troops in Denmark surrendered to the Western Allies were near victory in Europe in World War II.

In 1961, the first of the "Freedom Riders" set out by bus from Washington, D.C., bound for New Orleans to challenge segregation in interstate bus service.

Ten years ago: Police in Birmingham, Ala. were clashing with blacks demonstrating for the lowering of racial barriers.

Five years ago: The Soviet Union announced ratification of a convention with the United States on the rights of consulates in the two countries.

Choate Labors in Obscurity

Consumer Advocates Will Never Forget Whatshisname

By TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—When Robert Choate delivered testimony to Congress some time back concerning TV advertising for children, the New York Times and Lord knows how many other papers, gave his first name as "Ralph". And no wonder.

Being a consumer advocate these days is like standing forever in the shadow of Mt. McKinley—Ralph Nader, the, uh, General Motors of his field, so dominates the consumer business maybe he should investigate himself as a monopoly.

But blast the copy editors, and the lack of public recognition, Ralph Choate is perhaps the second best-known citizen lobbyist in America. And whereas this isn't the same as being Avis to Hertz, Choate says that in his own anonymous way he is able to get things done.

Couple of years ago, for example, Choate accused the proud breakfast food industry of manufacturing pure glop. He named 40 cereals which he claimed were full of snap, crackle and pop—but not much else. The industry was chagrined and defensive — "That fellow whatshisname is all wet" — but apparently convinced, today manufacturers have begun adding nutrients to their toastie mixes in 36 of the 40 cereals.

Does anyone appreciate it? Do the children of the nation send in their boxtops for autographed photos of Ralph, er, Robert Choate? No, the little beggars. Like that kid in one TV advertisement who, when told his food has added vitamins, gets a grumpy look and says: "I gotta think about this." But never mind them. Somewhere here in Washington, in a tiny office, one or two secretaries assisting, Bob Choate carries on the consumer offensive—in the face of everything, including relative obscurity.

Actually, things are not all loneliness. Despite not

Preference Given to Vets In Federal, State Jobs

By RAY CROMLEY
(Fifth in a Series.)

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Most Vietnam and post-Korea veterans now have preference in federal and state employment.

• Recently discharged veterans with no more than 14 years of education, by law now have an inside track on federal jobs in the lower five grades without competitive examinations.

For jobs at grades 1, 2 and 3, honorable military service of 181 consecutive days is sufficient, if the agency determines the veteran can do the work.

For jobs at grades 4 and 5, the applicant must meet the established minimum standards for the vacant jobs. For some posts this means passing a noncompetitive written test.

When a Veterans Readjustment Appointment is made, the veteran and the employing agency work out a training or educational program which may include on-the-job training or other agency training, correspondence courses, formal schooling or some combination of these.

• All eligible veterans receive a five-point preference in competitive examinations for jobs in the federal civil service. Vets with a service-connected disability get a 10-point preference. So do veterans with a Purple Heart for a wound received in action.

In addition, time in active military service is credited toward the experience required for an assortment of government positions.

• Under some conditions, regardless of point scores, veterans' names are put at the head of a civil service list of eligible applicants for a particular type of job. Usually, this privilege is extended to disabled veterans. This special preference does not apply to positions requiring considerable technical or administrative trainings.

• In most instances, age, height and weight restrictions are waived for veterans applying for civil service jobs. Veterans already in federal employment have "preference for retention" when a reduction in force takes place.

• In some cases, a 10-point veteran's preference for federal civil service jobs may be authorized for the wife of a veteran with a yet being a public figure, Choate has for years had a fine reputation among government agencies. In 1958, years before Nader was to take his first ride in a Corvair, Choate (then a civil engineer) was working for disadvantaged children in the nation's Southwest. In 1962 — still pre-Nader — Choate was lobbying for a domestic version of John Kennedy's Peace Corps. Today, he says, he probably can ring up half the Congress with relative ease and expect "maybe 10 per cent of them to help out on a given problem."

It's not like Nader. (When a congressional phone rings and the caller says it's Ralph, nobody dares ask "Ralph Who?") But then Bob Choate says he wouldn't like to be like Nader. "It's a matter of philosophy," says Choate. "I admire Ralph. He's brighter than I am, he's better financed — but I have a different philosophy. He chose to create a system, with many people working for him. I chose to remain more private." Choate says Nader is being cheered and criticized these days for things that his subordinates do, while "I like to be in on everything that I do."

To be sure, Choate is in on everything he does. At peak times he has perhaps 12 employees doing research; usually, though, he gets by with three people besides himself. He admits that in many ways it's a hell of a way to move mountains, but it is at least intellectually correct. Choate believes that hard personal homework is essential for a consumer advocate. "Once you start making mistakes of fact, you're as good as dead."

The Choate people, whatever their number, are currently gathering facts on TV advertisements for children. It is a characteristically Choate concern: like breakfast cereals, not exactly sensational. Choate complains that the advertising industry is using children as guinea pigs for their own undoing.

service-connected disability, the unmarried widow of a veteran, the mother of a deceased veteran and the mother of a veteran with a service-connected disability which is total and permanent.

To be eligible, the mother must be widowed, separated or divorced from her husband or her husband must be totally disabled.

• In most cases, military service gives retirement credit in a federal government job.

Many states, counties and cities also give veterans preference for civil service and other local positions. These preferences vary greatly from state to state and sometimes from job to job within a state, county or city.

The New Jersey law says, for example, that in state, county, municipality or school districts, preference shall be given to veterans, their wives or widows, and to mothers of veterans who died in service.

In Texas, preference is given in all state departments and public works to all veterans and widows and orphans of Armed Forces personnel.

In some states, veterans get preference only in certain jobs—as in the police, and fire departments, as school teachers and as members on a variety of boards, commissions and other such posts. In some cases, age and physical requirements are modified. Some states count military service toward retirement benefits.

Robert Choate

Please don't pass the cake and cookies.

He says this is "no less than a concerted manipulation of children for commercial gain." At first glance the gripe is hardly one to excite the nation, and the general public response is predictable: So what?

So what? Plenty, says Choate. And here come his facts: The average American child under 12 watches 1,000 hours of television a year (which is more time than he spends in school classrooms); during this viewing the child sees 220 minutes of commercials a week, or 22,000 ads per annum; over a 10-year period, then, this normal kid will be visited by nearly 250,000 commercials, most of them highly sophisticated, highly motivational, and some of them morally questionable. Says Choate: "Many of the 5,000 food ads the child sees in a year are for junk foods like cupcakes and potato chips." He goes on: "At least some of the advertisements shown to children these days are for products, such as medications, that are specifically dangerous for children."

Choate isn't certain what effects all this advertisement is having on the youth of today.

But he has some guesses:

AS SACRIFICE

Witches Coven Tortures Youth

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A 17-year-old boy was strapped to a table and tortured for a day before being murdered by a group of young Satan worshippers as a sacrifice, police say.

Police charged six young beach transients who are allegedly members of a Devil's coven with first-degree murder Wednesday in the death of Ross Michael Cochran of Fresno, Calif.

The youth was a major state witness in a suit to close a nearby private school as a "place of lewdness."

"They must have hated this kid like hell because they really tortured him," Police Chief Robert Palmer said.

Palmer said Cochran had been flogged with chains and stabbed with cut glass while tied to a black wooden table in the basement "altar room" of a ramshackle rooming house.

His mangled body, trussed with ropes, was found lying in a remote wooded area 15 miles southwest of here. Police said they couldn't determine whether he was killed during the alleged sacrifice or died where his body was found.

The six charged with murder were Kenneth M. Francis, 17, who gave his address as Pope Air Force Base, N.C. Charles M. Paige, 21, and John Colbert, 18, who gave the rooming house as their only address, Deborah Ann Shook, 22, of Washington, N.J., Cindy Black, 17, of Rexdale, Ont., Canada; and Howard Waellus, 19, of Detroit.

Cochran was among 78 students at the Green Valley School for troubled children in nearby Orange City who were made wards of the state when the institution was raided last February.

Authorities said Cochran had given depositions in the State's suit against the school, where students were allegedly subjected to cruel and unusual punishment and took part in open sexual conduct.

Police said Francis was also a student at the school until he ran away last week.

Cochran apparently was lured to the rooming house last Friday morning, police said, overpowered, tied up in a second-floor room and beaten for

For one thing, kids today are being sold things, like sweets that their doctors will discourage them from eating when they are 40. For another thing, "I wouldn't be surprised if at least part of the alienation of American youth today is attributable to TV advertising. After a kid learns that Big Brother TV has been lying to him all these years (the pimple salve, alas, never works), he may begin to wonder about adults in general."

And so Bob Choate, quietly but efficiently, continues to labor not only as a consumer advocate but more specifically as a children's advocate. But again, frankly, the question is: Do the children of America appreciate Bob Choate's tireless concern in their behalf? No. And perhaps to the contrary, There are, it must be said, a good number of little ruffians who like TV commercials better than TV programs — how else to write out a Santa Claus list? Thus any tampering with the horn of cornucopia will be suspect.

Now, the tads might care if Bob Choate attacked the bicycle industry, which you may be sure is what Nader would do; but, as it is, well, the kids Choate champions do not even know he exists.

More's the pity. For the children could do a lot for Ralph, that is to say Robert, Choate. With them in his corner — Choate's Commandos, as they would be called — they would easily be a match for Nader's Raiders. Think of it. Twenty-million kids, all raised on vitamin-enriched cereal, marching against the forces of General Mills and General Foods. Gad! Whatshisname Choate could yet become a household word.
