The fire, situated in a deep pit, was covered with dirt, eventually burning itself out. Pampa firefighters also were called out to a small grass fire east of the city shortly after 8 p.m. Monday

Castro tight-lipped after talks

HAVANA (AP) — After talks with Castro in talks. with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, a cheerful President Fidel Castro seemed pleased but was noncommittal about their discussions on issues that often have left them deeply divided.

"Family-like," was how Castro on Monday night described the talks after bidding Gorbachev good night on the steps of the presidential palace.

When reporters pressed him for details, Castro had ready a two-word linguistic hybrid "glasnost manana.

That was Castro's way of saying more on the discussions will be known when Gorbachev addresses the National Assembly late this afternoon, the last major scheduled event during his 63hour stay in Cuba

Moments before Castro said good night, Gorbachev descended the steps of the ornate pre-revolutionary palace with his wife, Raisa, at his side. They received applause from the diplomats and officials who had joined them for a glittering reception.

Aside from visits to two monuments and an exhibit highlighting the achievements of the revolution, Gorbachev spent Monday

Speculation swirled all day about a possible Gorbachev announcement forgiving Cuba its debt to the Soviet Union, estimated at between $8 billion and $20 billion, but Castro said that issue never came up.

Debt, he said, is not a problem for Cuba but for other Latin American countries. His answer did not appear to rule out a Gorbachev announcement that he will give Cuba a break on debt repayments.

Combined with the estimated $6 billion Cuba owes Western countries, the island is one of the most heavily indebted countries in the world in per capital terms.

Diplomats in Havana and in Moscow, speaking on condition they not be identified, have said the Soviets already appear to have reduced the subsidies they pay by buying Cuban sugar at higher-than-world-market prices. And some said they expected Gorbachev to tell Castro bluntly — but in private — that Cuba must put its economic house in order.

Gennady I Gerasimov, Gorbachev's spokesman, said the morning portion of the talks stressed Latin American debt and drug trafficking.

Gorbachev told the United Nations in December the Soviet Union was prepared to offer the least-developed countries a moratorium on debt service and 'in quite a few cases to write off the debt altogether.

Castro has campaigned for years for cancellation of Latin America's $420 billion foreign debt, declaring it is unpayable and has contributed to economic decline throughout the hemis-

The Cuban revolutionary leader seemed ebullient after Monday's marathon talks, leaving no hint that any of the widely publicized ideological problems with Gorbachev were impairing their relationship

A Soviet official, insisting on anonymity, said Western reports had been making too much of Soviet-Cuban differences.

He said the Soviet goal is to deemphasize ideology. But Castro himself has been a stalwart supporter of maintaining Communist orthodoxy, criticizing Gorbachev for straying far afield with his campaign for greater openness and a restructuring of

Haitian rebels, loyalists fight day after coup try

By MICHAEL NORTON Associated Press Writer

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — On the eve of a ceremony hailed as milestone in Haiti's path to democracy, rebel soldiers demanding freedom for an alleged coup leader controlled the airport in a tense standoff with government troops.

At least four rebels were reported killed on Monday in skirmishes with troops loyal to the government of Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril.

The mutinous soldiers, members of the Leopards commando battalion, were demanding freedom for their commander, Lt. Col. Himmler Rebu. He was under guard at an undisclosed location, accused of leading Sunday's foiled coup.

U.S. Embassy spokeswoman Susan Clyde said the rebels did not appear a serious threat to Avril. "I don't think Avril will be ousted," she said. "The event was resolved.

Avril assumed power six months ago in a coup led by noncommissioned officers who said they were disgusted by official corruption and human rights abuses.

On Monday night, presidential guardsmen in tanks battled Leopards commandos on a main throughfare between the airport and downtown Port-au-Prince.

Radio stations gave conflicting casualty reports, saying four to eight Leopards were killed and several wounded

Rebels had earlier seized the airport, which was closed for a second day. State-run television and radio was shut down and stopped broadcasting. Most residents of Port-au-Prince stayed home and most schools and businesses were closed as Leopard commandos roamed the capital, often shooting in the air and telling people: "Get off the streets. The city belongs to us!" It was not clear how many of the 300 Leopards commandos were involved in the rebellion.

Nine members of an independent council that is to organize and schedule presidential elections were to be sworn in today, but it was not clear if the ceremony would go on with the revolt still under

The leader of this impoverished Caribbean nation has promised elections and pointed as proof he is keeping his pledge to the council, which is to include representatives of the Roman Catholic church, labor unions, the military, human rights groups, the media and judiciary.

The rebels soldiers made three demands over the independent radio station Haiti-Inter on Monday. They said they want Rebu released, a civilian government and total restoration of a 1987 constitution that restricts the army's role in government. Parts of the constitution were suspended in Radio Haiti-Inter. citing sources close to the police command, reported that Avril had determined that a "handful of soldiers and officers were involved" in Sunday's coup attempt.

Avril said on nationwide television early Monday that the coup was led by "some members of the armed forces, blinded by their exhorbitant ambitions," but he gave no details.

There was speculation that it may have been linked to Avril's crackdown on drug trafficking within the military. Last week, four high-ranking army officers accused of drug dealing were arrested.

U.S. officials have conditioned the restoration of $70 million in suspended economic aid on Haiti moving toward democracy, respect for human rights, and a crackdown on the drug trade.

The funds were suspended after thugs massacred 34 voters November 1987, aborting Haiti's first elections in 30 years.

Bush paves way for Shamir visit by setting West Bank, Gaza goals

By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush has set as U.S. goals in the Middle East an end to what he termed Israel's "occupation" of the West Bank and Gaza and fulfillment of political rights for the 1.2 million Palestinian Arabs who live in the territories

Bush made the statement Monday after Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak called on him at the White House. Bush also reaffirmed a U.S. commitment to Israel's security and said all the goals were shared by Egypt.

The statement appears to put pressure on Israel in advance of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's talks here Wednesday and Thursday

But Mubarak, answering questions from the floor at a dinner Monday night, said he was not asking the Bush administration to pressure Israel. "Exerting pressure won't solve anything,' Mubarak said.

Mubarak, in the second day of his visit, meets today with congressional leaders, Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Treasury Secretary Nicholas F Brady

The Egyptian leader is hoping Congress will approve new weapons sales once they are formally proposed by the Bush administration and that $230 million in U.S. economic aid will be released. The aid was withheld in March pending reforms in the way Egypt manages its economy which that country must have in place by June.

Bush did not spell out the political rights he seeks for the Palestinians who live on the West Bank and in Gaza. Nor did he amplify his call for an end to Israeli occupation of the territories lost by the Arabs in the Middle East

The president put his position Liberation Organization feels this way: "Egypt and the United States share the goals of security for Israel, the end of the occupation, and achievement of Palestinian political rights. Bush went on to say that a properly structured international conference could play a useful role at an appropriate time" in reaching those goals through negotiations

In Nicosia, Cyprus, PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's chief adviser welcomed Bush's statement as an "important and serious development. Bassam Abu Sharif told The Associated Press the Palestine

"this will give a real push for peace efforts in the Middle East.

But in Jerusalem, Shamir indicated that during his U.S. visit he will state his opposition to an end to Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip and Bush's endorsement of an international peace conference

Mubarak has been pushing for a Mideast conference for years. A U.S. official said the Egyptian leader had the end of the year or early 1990 in mind. Bush did not specify whether his administration was demanding total Israeli withdrawal.

promise on Red River salt Bentsen: Bush not living

By JENNIFER DIXON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is insisting the Bush administration keep a longstanding promise with Texas and Oklahoma and pay to control naturally occurring salt pollution of the Red River.

Bentsen said chloride from salt springs along the river have made the water virtually unusable for industry, agriculture and municipalities.

Under an agreement reached in the mid-1960s. Texas and Oklahoma were to pay to clean up manmade salt pollution of the river that separates the two states, while the federal government would finance removal of pollution from natural sources.

But the Bush administration is not seeking funds in next year's budget for the project, drawing Bentsen into battle, he said Monday.

The states have "upheld their end of the bargain that was struck many, many years ago. It is now time for the federal government to live up to its commitment and move forward with the remaining elements of construction," Bentsen said.

Bentsen said Texas has spent more than $50 million to reduce man-made pollution and continue efforts to control contamination. Oklahoma appropriates $5 million a year to control disposal of oilfield brines that threaten the Red River. A total on Oklahoma's spending was not available from Bentsen's office, an aide said.

"The failure to recommend that construction funding be provided the project is unusually vexing to the communities it is intended to benefit most." Bentsen said in a letter to the chairman of the Senate panel that decides spending on water projects, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La. "They took the government at its word, spent millions on their part of the bargain, and have now had to wage several battles to keep the administration from shelving the project entirely," Bentsen told Johnston.

After then-President Reagan threatened to veto the 1986 Water Resources Development Act over the Red River salt pollution provision, Bentsen negotiated a compromise under which the project would continue if an independent panel determined it was feasible.

The panel's report, released last summer, said that if salt springs are controlled, the Red River "could be made usable along its entire reach, thereby diminishing the need to develop other sources of supply.'

"That the new administration should choose to ignore these findings by not recommending any funds for the project is particularly troublesome to me." Bentsen said in a statement.

Bentsen said he would seek $2.5 million in the fiscal 1990 budget for the project and is asking Johnston to set aside the money 'The salt pollutants in the Red River make it generally unsuitable as a dependable source of irrigation, municipal or industrial water throughout its river basin, including in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas," Bentsen told Johnston.

The independent panel said projected population and industrial growth rates for the Red River Basin show increasing demands for water will exhaust all present sources in the near future, requiring the eventual use of Red River water.

Although some Red River water is used for irrigation, the poor quality has reduced crop yields and damaged land and equipment, the panel said. Estimates indicate the cost of controlling the salt springs at $146 million.

Court: Age limits OK at dance halls

Supreme Court, ruling there is no 'generalized right of social association," Monday let communities protect young teen-agers by banning anyone over 18 from dance halls catering to minors.

The justices unanimously upheld such a Dallas ban, saying it does not violate young people's right to associate with whom they please.

"These opportunities might be described as 'associational' in common parlance, but they simply do not involve the sort of expressive association that the (Constitution's) First Amendment has been held to protect," Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote for the court.

"It is clear," he said, "that dance hall patrons, who may number 1,000 on any given night, are not engaged in the sort of intimate human relationships" the court previously has protected.

Although the word "association" does not appear in the Constitution, a long series of Sup-

WASHINGTON (AP) — The reme Court decisions has recognized such a right — including political and familial associa-

But the court never has said that such constitutional protection extends to "social" or recreational associations as well.

"We do not think the Constitution recognizes a generalized right of social association that includes chance encounters in dance halls," Rehnquist wrote as the high court reversed a Texas court's decision.

The state court had struck down the Dallas ordinance that licenses certain dance halls on the condition only teens aged 14 to 18 be admitted as patrons.

The ordinance makes exceptions for parents, legal guardians and dance hall employees.

The Dallas ordinance was challenged by Charles M. Stanglin, who operates the Twilight Skat-

Stanglin has a so-called Class E dance hall license, issued to those that cater to minors.

He divided the floor of his skating rink so that patrons dance or skate to the same music in full view of one another. People over 18 can be admitted to the skating rink but not the dance hall.

In reviving the city ordinance, the high court noted that the First Amendment's assurance of "freedom of speech means more than simply the right to talk and to write.

But Rehnquist said: "It is possible to find some kernel of expression in almost every activity a person undertakes — for example, walking down the street or meeting one's friends at a shopping mall — but such a kernel is not sufficient to bring the activity within the protection of the First Amendment."

Justices John Paul Stevens and Harry A. Blackmun, although voting to uphold the Dallas ordinance, said the case is really one about young people's "liberty" and not their associational rights.

The case is Dallas vs. Stanglin,

TCLU objects to limits on bumper stickers

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill in the Legislature to severely restrict bumper stickers considered offensive or obscene would encroach on First Amendment rights, the director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union says.

"As a father, I agree — these are terrible words," Richard Avena told the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee. "But for the government to intervene and tell somebody what they can and cannot see or what they can and cannot do, I think it would be historically more embarrassing.

Avena and others testified Monday on a bill by Rep. Senfronia Thompson, D-Houston. The measure would require type on bumper stickers containing profanity or suggestive messages be no larger than one-eighth inch.

"There's also a problem of enforcement," Ave-na said. "Now, in addition to a gun, a pair of hand-cuffs and a flashlight, a policeman's going to have to carry a tape measure."

While holding up numerous stickers, which drew eachies and gasps from the audience. Thompson told the committee, "I don't think this is the kind of language, the kind of display, that you want your 4-year-old to learn. "I don't think this is the kind of display we want to see up and down our roadways," said Thompson, whose bill would make violation a Class C misdemeanor. The bill was sent to a subcom-

Jack Lewis, mayor of Haltom City, a Fort Worth suburb, testified in favor of the bill. "I do not believe the framers of our Constitution had this in mind when they talked about freedom of expression," he said.

Many bumper stickers are offensive and the messages on some could provoke violence, he said. "I'd hate to pull up behind a car with this on the bumper with a grandchild — which just happened to me recently," Lewis said.

John Boston, representing the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, opposed the bill, saying it was too vague and would be difficult to

Ethics panel deepens Wright probe

By JIM DRINKARD Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics committee today deepened its investigation of Speaker Jim Wright by taking depositions from a Fort Worth business partner of the speaker and an official of a Florida savings and loan institution

The committee took a break from its weeks of deliberations in the Wright case to re-open the investigative phase with closeddoor interviews of George Mallick, a Fort Worth developer with financial ties to Wright, and Richard Swann, chairman of the American Pioneer Savings Bank in Orlando. Committee member Rep. John T. Myers, R-Ind., said the interviews should be wrapped up in one day. The committee was scheduled to resume its deliberations in the case on Wednesday, and a final outcome appeared to be at least a week or two away.

Mallick had been interviewed before by committee investigators, but was called back to undergo questioning about an investment he and Wright made in 'Winderwood,'' a housing development undertaken by Swann and others beginning in 1985, at a time when Wright was pressing federal regulators to be lenient with financially troubled S&Ls. Wright made roughly $50,000 on the deal.

The Wall Street Journal reported that Richard Phelan, the ethics panel's special counsel in the Wright case, views benefits Wright and his wife received from Mallick as unreported gifts. The Wrights and Mallick and his wife were partners in a small investment company, Mallightco. The benefits — including an $18,000-a-year salary for Betty Wright from 1979 to 1984, use of a condominium at below-market rates and free use of a 1979 Cadillac — were not reported as gifts on Wright's financial disclosure form, although Mrs. Wright's salary was reported as earned in-

The Journal said the panel has discussed a total value for the benefits of $100,000

The Journal reported that Mallick and his sons, Stephen and Michael, held a $2.2 million loan from Interwest Savings Association of Fort Worth which was used to develop a shopping center. The Mallicks defaulted on the loan in 1987, plus $100,000 in unpaid interest, and are being sued for the $1 million that remained uncollected after the project was sold.

In pretrial testimony in that case, the senior Mallick testified that federal regulators were partly to blame for his problems with the loan because they were pressuring S&Ls to foreclose on troubled loans rather than extending additional credit and working with borrowers to rescue investments.

Mallick later organized a meeting in August 1987 at which area developers and lenders complained to Wright about the heavy-handedness of regulators, and prepared a long report on the subject at Wright's request.

At the time, Wright also was lobbying colleagues to pass legislative language requiring that regulators show "forbearance" to troubled S&Ls, even taking the unusual step of convening Democrats on the House Banking Committee to plead for such language in a bill recapitalizing the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp., the Journal reported.

Robbery suspect sought

Pampa police are looking for a Hispanic male in his early 20s driving a large maroon-colored car with Oklahoma tags in connection with the robbery of an Allsup's store early this morning.

According to reports, the Allsup's at 859 E. Frederic was robbed at 1:24 a.m. by the man after he purchased a bottled carbonated beverage and several food items.

Police said the man paid for the merchandise with a $5 bill. When the clerk opened the cash register to make change, the man attempted to reach across the counter and take money out of the

When the clerk stopped him, the Hispanic man allegedly struck the clerk in the head with the glass pop bottle and then threw it at him, causing it to

The clerk reportedly slammed the cash drawer on the robber's hand before he fled the store, taking an undetermined amount of cash

The suspect is approximately 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 160 pounds. He was wearing a lightcolored shirt and blue jeans. Police said the man had black collar-length hair that was cut short on the sides.

Witness: Reagan told North to aid Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defense witness at Oliver North's trial says the late CIA director William Casey had made it known that President Reagan designated North to help keep the Contras alive.

Vincent Michael Cannistraro. who worked with North on the National Security Council staff, said Monday that Casey told a Contra leader in the spring of 1984 of North's pivotal role in the event Congress should cut off military aid to the rebels.

'Mr. Casey ... said he had dis cussed this with the president of the United States ... and this was how it should be handled," Cannistraro testified.

Cannistraro, one of the first witnesses called by North, is the first to state outright that Reagan had chosen North to work for the Contras.

Cannistraro was also one of the first witnesses called by North as the former White House aide began his defense Monday on charges of lying to Congress and White House officials about his role in assisting the Niçaraguan rebels.

At the meeting in Casey's office, the CIA director said North as an NSC staffer wouldn't be subject to a congressional prohibition on aiding the Contras, Cannistraro testified. Casey said North was to become the "principal point of reference," according to Cannistraro.

Congress banned U.S. intelligence agencies from assisting the Contras as of October 1984.

Former national security adviser Robert McFarlane has testified he was the one who directed North and an NSC colleague "to do everything they could" to keep the Contras functioning and their morale up.

Reagan told the Tower Commission, which investigated the Iran-Contra affair, on Jan. 26, 1987, that "he did not know that the NSC staff was engaged in helping the Contras."

Cannistraro also testified he expressed concern about North's safety to NSC superiors but that the government did nothing on North's behalf after a spokesman for terrorist Abu Nidal threatened to kill the NSC aide. The threat against North came after U.S. warplanes bombed Tripoli, Libya. "He expressed concerns about his family's safety," Cannistraro said of North. "He did not express concern about his own safety." Cannistraro's testimony bolstered North's contention that he accepted the $13,800 security system at his home only under Iran-Contra co-defendant Richard Secord, who North enlisted to run arms to the Contras, paid for the system and North is accused of accepting an illegal gratuity.

Senate panel adopts bills for reforms in insurance business

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer advocates say they will try to blow the cover off an insurance confidentiality law they say keeps policyholders in the dark when their insuror is in financial trouble.

On Monday, a Senate committee passed a number of measures aimed at reforming insurance regulation in Texas, but fell short of repealing the confidentiality statute

While generally satisfied with the reform package, John Hildreth, director of the Southwest regional office of Consumers Union, said "Any time you leave consumers and policyholders out in the dark, we don't think it's a very good idea."

Information about whether an insurance company is in financial trouble is kept secret from the public under the law that was passed by the Legisl-

One of the bills passed by the Senate State Affairs Committee would change that statute, but not repeal it completely.

Under the proposed bill, confidentiality would be repealed when a company is in conservatorship. When an insurance company is under conservatorship, a State Board of Insurance designee can replace management and often tries to negotiate a buyout.

But, under the proposed bill, confidentiality could be maintained for 90 days when a company is under supervision, and that period could be extended in 30-day increments for another 90 days.

"I wanted confidentiality totally repealed," said Kay Doughty, public counsel for the Office of Consumer Protection, which represents consumers in insurance rate hearings. "You have to compromise on these things. I think we've got a darn good

The six bills passed by the committee, combined with several proposals still in the works, will give insurance regulators the necessary tools to do their job, said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock.

"It's about as far as we could go legislatively to make the industry healthy again, if we have coupled with that a board that is articulate in its management ability," said Montford, chairman of State Affairs.

The Insurance Board has been the target of legislative hearings and investigations following a record number of insurance company failures and numerous allegations of insurance fraud.

Since the investigations, two members of the three-member Insurance Board and several high ranking employees have resigned.

The bills recommended for Senate approval would allow more public access to information about the financial status of insurance companies; step up enforcement on troubled carriers; and increase reporting requirements on the part of in-

One of the bills, by state Sen. Kent Caperton. D-Bryan, would separate the Office of Consumer Protection from the auspices of the Insurance Board.

"I think it's essential that there not be any perception that she (Ms. Doughty) has to be accountable to the people that set her salary in terms of advocating a position on behalf of the public interest," Montford said.

Richard Geiger, a spokesman for the insurance industry, said he supported the general insurance reform package.

Montford said he still plans to push for bills requiring insurance companies to make timely payments on claims, and a "revolving door" bill that would restrict former board members and agency employees from working with a business regulated by the Insurance Board

Cabbie killer receives sentence

KILLEEN (AP) — An Army private convicted of robbing and shooting to death two cab drivers during a nightlong crime spree in December was sentenced to death by a court martial panel.

The eight-member panel returned the death sentence verdict for Pvt. Dwight J. Loving after about four hours of deliberation Monday.

"Private Loving, I hope God has mercy on you for what you did to these two people," Judge Stephen Saynisch told Loving after explaining the appeals process to him.

The court martial panel also ruled Loving must forfeit all pay and allowances and receive a dishonorable discharge, the Killeen

The Army private also was convicted of robbing two convenience stores in Killeen that night. To assess a death penalty, the panel had to reach a unanimous verdict and find that "aggravating circumstances" existed beyond reasonable doubt.

After the verdict was reached Monday, Lou Sharbino, wife of Bobby Sharbino, praised prosecutors and the sentence.

Long distance companies complain about Bell

By PEGGY FIKAC Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The amount Southwestern Bell charges long distance companies to use the local network causes calls between Texas cities to cost too much and hurts the economy, a group of telephone companies said in a letter to lawmakers.

But a spokesman for Southwestern Bell said his company, which has proposed lowering the long distance access charge, has kept basic local service rates down by balancing those rates against long distance access charges. "High intrastate long distance rates are a significant deterrent to economic development in Texas, and a burden to residential and business users alike," said the letter signed by representatives of ClayDesta, MCI, US Sprint, AT&T, Metromedia and distributed Monday, said that it is cheaper to call from Dallas to Honolulu than it is to call from Dallas to Waco. In fact, it's cheaper to call anywhere in the U.S. from Texas than it is to call practically any place within

More than half of a Texas carrier's costs of providing longdistance service is made up of the charges paid to the local telephone company for access to the local network, according to the

The companies said Southwestern Bell's Texas access rates, set by the Public Utility Commission, are more than double the rates set by the Federal Communications Commission for interstate calls and at least 57 percent higher than rates the company charges in any other state.

AT&T spokesman Rick Morrison said the company pays 20.8

The companies, in the letter cents per minute in Texas for access to the Southwestern Bell network. That compares to 9.4 cents in Oklahoma, 10.4 cents in Kansas, 11.4 cents in Missouri and 11.8 cents in Arkansas, he said. In Texas, access charges make up about 70 percent of AT&T's cost of handling a long-distance call, he said.

Southwestern Bell has proposed an economic development plan called "Texas First" that includes a freeze on local rates for five years and upgrading of the state network.

Part of the plan would lower charges to long-distance companies for use of the local network, and Southwestern Bell has said that reduction could allow long distance companies to lower

But the long distance companies said the proposed reduction is "nominal" and would "have little impact on Texas long distance rates."

Morrison said the "Texas First" proposal includes "something less than a 5 percent reduction" in access charges, but Southwestern Bell spokesman Dave Lopez said the proposed decrease could be as high as 14 per-

Lopez said Southwestern Bell must balance access charge rates against basic local service

"The basic local service rates in Texas are 20 percent below the national average" for residential customers, with $9.71 the average monthly one-party rate, Lopez said. "The reason that those access charges have been high previously is to try to keep basic local service rates as low as they are."

Doctors Invent Lose Weight

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

U.S. Gov't. Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special)— An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and calorie reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolu-tionizing the weight loss industry. You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated. "Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fatbonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug.'

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public

If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W992, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. Why is that cat on his shoulder?

"You're not going out again tonight are you?" my wife asked me. There was more than a note of desperation in her voice.

"You know I am," I snarled back. "Well, please, for my sake, just don't drink too much," she begged. "I can handle it," I told her. "You'll hardly know

I've had a drop.' She looked down, fighting back the tears. She wondered if I'd ever again be the same man she married. The same man she had fallen in love with. As I drove to my destination, I knew I'd failed her. I'd go cover that Tuesday evening school board meeting, and I'd drink too much again. Coffee. Black. And lots of it. I was out of control.

I've known for some time that coffee and I don't mix. But I thought it was my little secret. I had no idea that people could tell the giddy way it made me feel, like I was on top of the world. When I drank that black juice I could write any story, slay any dragon, right any wrong. I found courage in the bottom of the percolator. I guess I finally had to admit that the coffee was too much the night I came home after covering one particularly long school board meeting. It was after midnight. I should have been exhausted. But I felt mighty fine.

'Honey, are you asleep?'' I asked as I turned the bedroom light on. "Let's dance." "You've been pumping java juice again haven't you?" she yawned. "Oh, just a cup or two. Wanta play canasta?" "A cup or two. Right. More like a gallon or two,

I'd say. Come to bed, dear.' "Bed? Bed? How can you think of sleep? It's not even two in the morning yet. Let's get out the Scrabble game."

It was then that I stepped on a board in the floor that squeaked. I stepped again. It sounded a little like the creaking of some old ship.

"Aye, mateys. I'm feelin' fine tonight," I said in my best pirate voice. I began to sway back and forth like a freighter at sea. The boards continued their creaking. My wife vas not amused.

Off Beat Bear Mills

"Ho ho ho and a bottle of Folgers, 15 men taking cream and sugar," I sang.

"Excuse me, Captain Screwball," my wife interrupted. "Could you sail over and turn off the light? Your first mate would like to go back to sleep."

I set the sails for the light switch. "And after you do that," she said, "could you please take the cat off your shoulder?

I didn't have a parrot. I had to improvise. By 3 a.m. the coffee had worn off. I climbed down off the kitchen cabinet and took off my tutu (I had been performing the second movement of Madame Butterfly to an old Beatles record). I telt so foolish. I quietly slipped upstairs to bed. I knew in four short hours the alarm would have to go off and I'd have to face the world.

I would have to look at my wife and explain to her why I'd had so much to drink. Why I had not come to bed till 3 a.m. Why I had claw marks on my shoulder. I was so humiliated.

This sickness of mine has led me to ask some pretty important questions. Why can't I leave the stuff alone? Where did I find a tutu? Will the cat ever have anything to do with me again? And most important of all: WHY DON'T THEY SERVE DE-CAF AT THE DAD-GUMMED SCHOOL BOARD MEETINGS???

Let's give Mexico what it deserves

One of the greatest problems facing President Bush is the possible financial collapse of Mexico. If this happens, it would almost certainly send millions of refugees northward, making the current exodus of Central Americans look like a picnic.

Mexico's problems stem from several sources. It now owes $105 billion to foreign banks. This is different from America's own foreign borrowing, which is mostly based on the long-term needs of our economy. Our borrowing is much like a home mortgage, with the money put to long-term use. But Mexico's debt is based on money borrowed for past government boondoggles, and current borrowing goes almost exclusively to pay for interest on past loans.

A new plan by Mexican President Carlos Salinas may make things worse. It would impose higher taxes, including a new tax of 10 percent on exports. Exports fell 8 percent during the last quarter of 1988, perhaps in anticipation of the new tax, since, understandably, American and Japanese businessmen may be reluctant to invest in a new high-tax en-

Ironically, the plan comes at a time when Salinas is asking President Bush for more-American loan bailouts. According to the Mexico-United States Report, Salinas's government "is planning secretly to request the Bush administration to help it obtain a grand total of $42 billion in financial aid, to tide it over its six-year term in office. ... The Mexican government arrived at its figure by calculating that it would need between $6 billion and $7 billion a year until it leaves office in December 1994."

President Bush should turn down this request. The last thing Mexico needs is more subsidies for a government hopelessly mired in incompetence and socialism. As with just about all foreign aid, your tax dollars would go to the foreign country's corrupt ruling elite, even as it grinds common workers and businessmen into the dust. We should also be mindful that American meddling in Mexico has, for more than 150 years, almost always made matters worse. The Mexican government's adoption of socialism is to some extent a reaction against the perceived nature of its aggressive northern neighbor. Yet now that the United States is semi-socialist, if Mexicans really want to adopt a different path, they should turn toward free markets and small government.

That, of course, is up to the Mexicans. For America's part, what we should do is act nobly toward a neighbor we have sometimes harmed. The best way to make u for past offenses is to live up to our own principles. We should sign a pact with Mexico similar to the Canada-U.S. pact of last year, which would extend a free-trade zone from the North Pole to the Yucatan Peninsula.

America can't heal all the world's ills. But we can ourselves provide an example of freedom to all, especially to our neighbors and friends in Mexico.

Is there a right to be insane?

On July 7, 1986, a homeless Cuban refugee aboard a Staten Island ferryboat unwrapped a sword and began hacking and stabbing other passengers. Before he was subdued, Juan Gonzalez had killed two people and wounded nine others. After his arrest, he informed police that God had told him to kill.

Even before he set out on his divine mission, it was obvious that the man needed psychiatric care. In fact, he had been hospitalized only a week before, after telling attendants at a homeless shelter of the Almighty's unusual request.

Diagnosed as a paranoid psychotic, Gonzalez was released after being treated with drugs that had produced a drastic improvement. He had promised to get outpatient care for his illness,

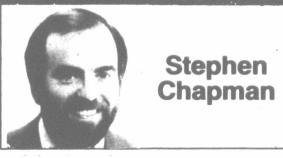

Two days later, he went berserk.

His case is not a lesson about the dangerousness of insane people, but about the dangerousness of sane ones. It was they — or rather we who created our bizarre policies on mental illness, which manage to provide the minimum care for those who need it at the maximum cost to those who don't.

Gonzalez wasn't predestined to murder. Most people with serious mental ailments can live normally if they get proper treatment. But most of them, like Gonzalez, don't get it. Many live on the streets. Some are prone to irrational vio-

One of the most durable myths about the homeless is that there is nothing wrong with them that cheap apartments wouldn't fix. The shortage of low-cost housing is a big part of the problem. But many of the homeless are people who would have trouble keeping a roof over their heads if you gave them a mansion on

Anyone who has strode nervously by an unwashed man screaming epithets aimlessly on the street doesn't need to be told that you can find lunatics without visiting a mental ward.

But most of us probably don't know how we arrived at the practice of housing the demented in discarded refrigerator boxes. Anyone who is interested should read E. Fuller Torrey's recent book, Nowhere to Go: The Tragic Odyssey of the Mentally Ill.

Torrey, a psychiatrist and expert on schizophrenia, scathingly documents the disastrous change in policy known as "deinstitutionalization." That shift, begun by President Kennedy. aimed at freeing the mentally ill from the brutal asylums to which they had been forcibly con-were released with no follow-up care - or, more precisely, were abandoned.

The result, Torrey estimates, is that there are twice as many people with serious mental illnesses living on the streets and in shelters as there are in public mental institutions. There are probably as many in jails and prisons as in public mental institutions.

We now have tens of thousands of demented people living on the streets, incapable of functioning normally, often posing some danger to themselves and others.

But laws make it far too hard to commit people or to force them to get the treatment they plainly need. Civil libertarians defend their right to live this way, as if they were merely eccentric instead of deranged.

But letting a schizophrenic go untreated rather than abridge his or her liberty makes as much sense as letting a sleepwalker cross a busy street. Both, in some exotic sense, are acting of their own volition. Neither is capable of exercising the rational judgment required to preserve well-being — or to avoid harming

th

One of Torrey's rare items of good news is that, with the exception of federal research, the nation doesn't need to find more money for the mentally ill. We spend four times more, in real terms, than we spent in 1963. But to do any good, the money has to be spent to assure help for

Over the past quarter of a century we have unthinkingly cast the mentally ill into the streets, at a horrendous cost to them and a substantial one to the tenor of modern life.

Minimum-wage

By SARAH OVERSTREET

"Score one for the president," began a recent Congressional Quarterly article. "The Sub-minimum training wage is now on the table."

Score zero for the bottom rung of American laborers if the president's idea becomes law. Bush says he will support a three-year increase in the minimum wage, up to $4.25, if Congress agrees to pay all those newly hired workers a "training wage" lower than minimum wage - for the first six months on the job. If American businesses are given this carte blanche to cheap labor, the lowest classes can kiss any hope for a kinder and gentler nation goodbye.

On March 23, the House of Representatives voted to raise the minimum-raise to $4.55 an hour, and included provisions for a sub-minimum training wage. The House hopes the provision will win over the president and avoid his veto. Bush argues that with a minimum wage that high, many jobs will be lost because employers will cut back and not create any new jobs. Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole estimates that the proposed wage increase would sacrifice 650,000 jobs.

They are right to try to offset the lost jobs; to NOT try to save them would be ridiculous. But you don't achieve balance by proposing something even more ridiculous; there have been few proposals in memory more asinine than the notion that it takes six months to learn to fry hamburgers or wash cars. I've done 'em both, and while you don't learn the job in one day, neither does it take six months. I think I could squirt sauce at McDonald's with the best of them after about four days.

A minimum-wage job doesn't usually require a great deal of expertise, and doesn't require the worker to get much better at it. And most of these jobs are held by the poorest among us, who desperately need a living wage.
I'm not about to suggest that there aren't employers in this country who would pay the "training wage" during its lawful time period, and then keep that employee and increase his or her wages in fair measure. I'm also not about to suggest that those employers would be in the majority.

Many would use the law as a steady supply of cut-rate labor. As soon as the lawful "training wage" expired, they'd boot the newly "skilled" worker for a new "trainee." They might even care enough about appearances to make up some excuse for the firing, like it took six months to discover he couldn't cut the mustard on the Coney Deluxe. There is nothing in the president's proposal to prevent it.

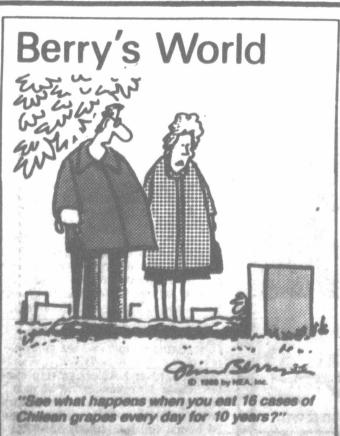

Proponents like Dole say the market would take care of the problem, that the cost of training a new worker would exceed the expense of promoting the "trainee" to full minimum wage-earner. Get real. If the minimum wage reaches Bush's proposed $4.25, that's $1.90 an hour more than his "training wage" of $3.35. Over a 40-hour work week, that's $76 more for the worker than the "training wage." Over six months, that's $1,976. To save two grand, you can train a newly hired employee to spurt sauce pretty quick.

The sub-minimum wage included in the House bill would be payable for 60 days instead of six months, and only for newly hired workers with no previous employment. "If they're talking about 30 days with a real training program, I'd be glad to listen," Sen. Edward Kennedy said in March, stipulating that the "training wage" should be no less than 80 to 85 percent of the minimum. The House's compromise seems reasonable.

There's nothing wrong with training. But before we sentence workers to a never-ending round of "training jobs' that end at six months, we have to formulate some reasonable guidelines to ensure that when the training ends, work - and its accompanying wage — begins.

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — The fired Exxon Valdez captain today made plans to surrender in New York, police said. A continent away, officials closed a $12 million fishery and struggled to save others from the nation's worst oil

Joseph Hazelwood, 47, is accused of misdemeanor charges of operating the ship while under the influence of alcohol, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil.

He was expected to surrender today near his hometown of Huntington, N.Y, said New York State Trooper Craig Rubio.

On Monday, the spill forced officials to close the $12 million herring fishery for the season.

The fishery is where fishermen go after herring just as the fish are about to spawn at the start of the Prince William Sound fishing season. More than half the herrings' spawning habitat was pol-fishery, and it means they have to come up with another means of making a living," said Jack Lamb, president of the Cordova District Fishermen United. The fishermen will be eligible for compensation from Exxon.

Other fishermen, meanwhile, worried that the spreading slick will shut down even more lucrative salmon fishing this summer. The region's fishing industry is worth $150 million a year.

The ship has leaked oil since the Good Friday accident, when the vessel crashed into Bligh Reef and spilled more than 10 million gallons of oil.

Exxon said the ship should be emptied of remaining crude oil today, and salvage crews will try Wednesday to free the tanker from the reef.

Fishermen have formed the backbone of the cleanup, using their boats to pull containment booms across bays near salmon streams and sensitive fish hatch-

The hatchery holds more than 2 million salmon fry, which can be poisoned by small amounts of oil. Hatchery manager Eric Prestegard said they may have to airlift the fish fry to clean water, a double whammy to fishermen who fund the hatcheries through surcharges on their catch.

More than 1,000 seabirds and at least 30 sea otters caught in the oil have died. Some were found covered with asphalt-hard oil. Officials said the death toll is probably much higher, but they have had time to survey only a small portion of the sound's 2,500 miles of coastline

"Every day, it's getting a little worse," otter rescue specialist Chris Donohoe said as he squatted by a dead duck. "You clean a beach up, the tide changes, and the oil comes right back.

Department of Fish and Game spokesman Jon Lyman said a deer found dead on Naked Island about 25 miles southwest of Bligh Reef apparently had eaten con-pushed oil against the booms. A taminated food, an indication of how rapidly the spill was spreading.

'That's bad news. That's the top of the food chain," Lyman

On nearby Green Island, hundreds of birds lay along the beach, as black and lifeless as the oil-smeared rocks around them.

In other developments • Flow through the pipeline was increased, but remained below normal levels. The accident forced restrictions on tankers in Valdez harbor, the only port for the Trans-Alaska pipeline, which carries nearly one-quarter of the United States' domestic supply of crude oil.

 In an interview in New York, Exxon President Lee R Raymond said he hopes the "emotional type of atmosphere" generated by the spill does not prompt Congress to reject the oil industry's request to drill in protected wildlife areas:

That's exactly what could happen, U.S. Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan suggested in Washington.

Government issues stricter anti-terrorism plans

By DAVID BRISCOE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says it will force U.S. airlines to take stricter anti-terrorism measures, but people who lost loved ones in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 say the actions aren't strong enough.

On the 103rd day after the bombing, the Transportation epartment announced orders requiring devices to detect plastic explosives and stricter compliance with aviation security warnings, after Flight 103 relatives met with President Bush. The White House meeting on Monday, which was scheduled for 20 minutes but lasted an hour, began a day of emotion-filled activities at nearby Lafayette Park, Congress and a Washington church by scores of relatives and friends of the 270 people killed in the Dec. 21 explosion of the Boeing 747 over Lockerbie, Scotland.

The relatives called for a full-scale congressional investigation "to determine what and where the breakdowns were" that led to the "preventable massacre at 31,000 feet."

Bert Ammerman of Demarest, N.J., pokesman for the relatives, said action announced by Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner was "a positive step forward. We applaud the secretary, (but) it's not enough." Skinner was in the meeting with the relatives and Bush.

Ammerman said all checked and carried baggage should be hand-searched until devices are installed that can detect plastic explosives such as the one believed to have blown up Flight 103 as it was headed from London to New York.

The relatives also proposed better training and pay for airport inspectors and public disclosure of terrorist threats.

"Our loved ones were not given the freedom to make a rational decision regarding their fate based on all the available facts, Ammerman said.

"We realize that we will never again be able to laugh, cry or talk with our loved ones," he told several hundred people in the park. "But we are determined to do everything in our power to prevent this senseless and preventable tragedy from occurring

Skinner, at a news conference, outlined new orders affecting U.S. airlines, including required installation of plastic explosivedetection systems, such as thermal neutron analysis devices, at high-risk airports throughout the world "at the earliest feasible

The government already has ordered six of the nearly $1 million machines for installation at various airports before the end of the year, but Skinner gave no timetable for carrying out the new order, which would involve 100 or more airports.

He said it will require some negotiations with foreign governments. A Federal Aviation Administration official who spoke on condition of anonymity said it could take years for full compliance with the order.

Other steps ordered by Skinner include mandatory airline acknowledgement and compliance with security bulletins that warn of possible threats against aviation, an increase in FAA personnel assigned to key U.S. and foreign airports and upgrading of airport

X-ray equipment. Skinner, however, said a public warning system when there are security threats would cripple intelligence efforts to combat

'We must balance the needs of the American people and the industry to know with the need to gather meaningful, significant, relevant information," Skinner said.

The Air Transport Association, which represents major U.S. airlines, said it supported Skinner's initiatives, but spokesman Tim Neale said the airlines believe the govern ment, not the airlines, should pay for new detection equipment from the growing Aviation Trust Fund.

Biotech firm to use tobacco to combat cancer

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Doctors condemn cigarettes for causing lung cancer, so it might seem strange to hear the former director of the National Cancer Institute praising tobacco.

But that's what happened Monday when a company announced plans to turn tobacco plants into living factories for cheap mass production of anti-cancer drugs. better sunscreen to prevent skin cancer, and many other products.

"It is really kind of cute," Dr. Vincent T. DeVita Jr. said during the American Cancer Society's science writers' seminar. "It's a very interesting idea. It sounds too good to be true, but looks real enough to pursue.

DeVita left his government post last year to become physician-in-chief at New York's Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

"It's a way to use tobacco for products other than cigarettes for smoking," said geneticist Robert L. Erwin, president of Biosource Genetics Corp. of Vacaville. "This technology might be a way to reduce the cost of producing many medically important chemicals.

Erwin said the company has applied for patents on its method fully produced two enzymes to of genetically engineering tobacco plants with a spray to make them produce various desired products. The company also wants to patent use of the process to help make melanin, a natural skin pigment that might be sold as a more effective screen against hazardous ultraviolet

Erwin said experiments so far were performed indoors, where test the method, as well as an enzyme that helps make melanin.

Within a year, he said, the company hopes to conduct field tests of genetically engineered tobacco to produce the anti-cancer drug interleukin-2 and serum albumin, a major protein in blood that is used as a supplement in transfusions.

Erwin said other potential products of genetically altered

U.N. report: Rebels launched major incursion into Namibia

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A U.N. investigation of the fierce combat in Namibia found that nationalist guerrillas mounted a "major incursion" from Angola the day the territory began its transition to independence, diplomats say

South Africa claimed the South-West Africa People's Organization fighters had violated the U.N. plan under which it is ending its 74-year rule of SWAPO leaders denied the guerrillas involved in the fighting near the Angolan border had crossed into Namibia and they lashed out at U.N. adminstrators for agreeing to let South African troops reinforce police battling the guerrillas.

"Our people are being butchered under the United Nations flag," said SWAPO Foreign Secretary Theo-Ben Gurirab, accusing the South Africa forces of initiating the fighting. Namibian police say at least 129 rebels and 18 police have died in the fighting that began Saturday, when a formal cease-fire was to have begun. and were reported in at least a half dozen locations

Under the U.N.-brokered independence accord, all guerrillas are to remain in Angola at least 100 miles north of Namibia's border until mid-May.

But diplomats said the SWAPO guerrillas apparently felt they were entitled under the accord to set up bases inside Namibia under U.N. supervision just as the South Africans, whom they have been fighting for 23 years.

Whether SWAPO should be allowed in Namibia has been a contentious question in the independ-

The report on the situation by investigators led by the U.N. special representative for Angola, Martti Ahtisaari of Finland, was relayed to Secretarv-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who briefed Security Council members on Monday, said three Western diplomats who spoke on condition of

The diplomats said the report, presented in an atmosphere of unusual secrecy, concluded that up to 1,000 guerrillas infiltrated northern Namibia but that their motive was unclear. Its details were not disclosed

Black African diplomats were outraged. 'There can never be any question of infiltration, these are Namibians," said Zambian Ambassador

South Africa has accused the rebels of infiltrating in an attempt to set up bases, an option that was rejected during 10 years of U.N. negotiations on terms of the Namibian independence plan.

Some U.N. diplomats said they believed many rebels misunderstood the terms of the cease-fire and peace plan and thought they could safely march home to Namibia bearing their weapons.

Others accepted South Africa's claim that the rebel leadership sent the guerrillas in to establish base camps in a bid to have them put under U.N. supervision just as South African troops are to be confined to barracks.

Gurirab insisted the guerrillas always had been in Namibia and criticized U.N. administrators in Namibia for allowing South African troops to reinforce the territorial police.

India plans to test-fire new long-range missile dia will test a long-range ballistic missile later this month, a government official said Monday, and one report said the missile is capable of delivering a one-ton payload a distance of 1,500 miles. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the missile would be launched from the Chandipur-on-Sea range in Orissa state about 745 miles southeast of New Delhi.

The official gave no further details, but newspaper reports have said the missile program was speeded up after neighboring Pakistan tested the missile with a payload of 330 pounds and range of 400 miles.

The New York Times reported Monday that the long-range missile the Indians are to test --- the Agni — is capable of delivering a one-ton payload over a distance of 1,500 miles.

India last year successfully test-fired the Prithvi, a surfaceto-surface missile with a range of more than 150 miles and a one-ton payload.

Neither India nor Pakistan will say if their missiles can carry nuclear warheads.

India is capable of producing nuclear weapons, but has said its nuclear program is intended only for peaceful purposes. Experts say Pakistan is developing a nuclear weapon, but Pakistan's leaders say the country does not have nuclear weapons and has no intention of developing them.

Fire Guard Dam landmark to early settlers

Museum Mementoes

Eloise Lane - White Deer Land Museum

First known reference to the Fire Guard Dam is an inventory listing of the Francklyn Land and Cattle Company dated July 21 to Aug. 12, 1886, with "Clark and Denham" given as the dam's buil-

Used as a watering place for cattle, the dam was often mentioned in early accounts of the Pampa area such as this one reported in the April 17, 1930 issue of The Pampa News:

"Judge W.R. Ewing... told... of the first time he ever became aware of Pampa. It was in July 1893. He was helping drive a bunch of cattle through this part of the country.

"One night the herd camped at Fire Guard Tank on the Santa Fe a few miles east of Pampa. That tank in those days was far better known and certainly more celebrated than the section house, switch, and cattle pen that comprised the city of Pampa."

Mrs. George Ingrum (Viola Haggard) remembers playing at the dam when her grandfather, W.S. Haggard, owned the land where the dam is located. Baptismal services have also been held at the dam.

Today the dam is little more than a lump of dirt, hardly recognizable as the landmark it once was to Panhandle residents.

 The Kiowa Extension of the Southern Kansas Railroad reached the Oklahoma-Texas line in July 1887 at the same time the Fort Worth & Denver City reached Clarendon.

The Southern Kansas reached Miami on Nov. 15, 1887, and Panhandle at the end of December 1887. The last segment, from Miami to Panhandle, was 50.2 miles in length.

The railroad began operating on Jan. 15, 1888, opening the Panhandle for full-scale settlement. At first the trains, which ran twice a week, were "mixed" (both passenger and freight).

Many early settlers rented immigrant cars from the railroad. Those were big boxcars used to transport families, household goods, furniture, farming equipment and livestock.

Neal Stovall, son of landowner Mrs. L.L. Stovall, looks out over the area where the Fire Guard Dam once stood.

Reception to honor physician

Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Kelley will be honored by friends and former patients with a reception Sunday, April 9, from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

Kelley retired as a general practitioner April 1 after almost half a century of tending Pampa's sick and injured.

Kelley, son of Dr. John H. and Martha Elkins Kelley, was born while his father was attending Southwestern University in Dallas. He was the second of 4 sons.

He graduated from Miami High School in 1926. His father had established a practice in Miami in 1911. In 1929, Dr. J.H. Kelley moved to Pampa, where he practiced until his death on September 30, 1950.

Kelley attended Texas Tech University, Lubbock, and Baylor School of Medicine, Dallas, receiving his M.D. degree in 1937. Following internship at St. Paul's Hospital in Dallas, he worked with the Samuel's Clinic. Kelley then returned to Pampa to practice with his father.

Kelley served more than three years in the army during World War II as a flight surgeon. He is a member of Miami's Pulaski Post #106 of the American Legion.

In 1939, Kelley's wife MaryAnn, who had trained as a medical technician began work at St. Paul's. It was during that period that the couple married.

Kelley received a Fellowship in the International College of Surgeons in 1968. In 1979 he was voted as an honorary member of the Texas Medical Association one of 50 physicians in the 17,500 members.

Dr. and Mrs. Kelley are the parents of four children, Mary Ann, Martha, Lou, Frank and Patsy. DR. FRANK KELLEY

Roommate tired of picking up ready to put foot down

DEAR ABBY: What can you do when you have a sloppy, inconsiderate roommate? I've been living with the same girl for a year and a half now and have kept hoping things would improve, but they haven't.

I'm not saying I am the world's best housekeeper, but for some reason, my roommate thinks I am the maid. We both agreed to share the responsibilities like taking out the trash and doing the dishes, but if her set of dishes sits there for five days, I'll do them. That's where the problem is — she knows if she lets something go long enough, I'll do it.

There are towels on the bathroom the living room floor, and peanut butter and jelly jars left open on the kitchen counter. I can't help feeling that she's taking advantage of me.

How can I let her know she's being a total pig without hurting her feelings?

NOT HER MAID IN ALTOONA, PA.

DEAR NOT: The key to your problem is right in the middle of your letter: "She knows if she lets something go long enough, I'll do it.'"

Don't permit her to let something go; when it's her turn to do it, point it out, and keep pointing it out until she does it. And insist that she do it before she goes to sleep. Be firm.

You may have to remind her five or six times - but keep after her. And if you permit her to procrastinate, she may be a total pig, but you're a jellyfish.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter has saddled me with an enormous job writing names on the backs of pictures, or under them, in many, many albums. Over the years, no one thought to do this.

SEATTLE — Michigan has its first national college basketball championship, and that's not bad for a month's work.

The Wolverines beat Seton Hall 80-79 in overtime Monday night, making Steve Fisher the first rookie coach with an NCAA championship. Fisher took over on an interim basis for Bill Frieder just before the NCAA tournament began and won all six of his

Glen Rice scored 31 points for the Wolverines, breaking Bill Bradley's 1965 NCAA tournament scoring record. In six games, Rice wound up with 184 points for an average of 30.6. That was seven more than Bradley "It's a great individual achievement," Rice said, "but being the type of person I am, I feel I owe most of it to my teammates and coaches.

Rumeal Robinson, the junior point guard, hit two free throws with three seconds left, giving Michigan its victory in the first overtime title game since 1963. Robinson had 21 points, and his 11 assists were a single-game touranment record.

And Sean Higgins scored 10 points while holding Seton Hall's hired gun from Australia, Andrew Gaze, to just five points, including a lone 3-point field goal that did not come until the opening seconds of overtime. In had for Princeton, although that Gaze's virtual absence, John Morton took over, scoring 25 of his 35 points in the second half, including 20 of Seton Hall's final 26 points in regulation.

Michigan led by as many as 12 points in the second half, 51-39, on a driving, reverse slam-dunk by the 6-foot-2 Robinson, the top of whose head is 3-feet 10-inches below the rim.

Seton Hall went on its own run, outscoring Michigan 14-6 and trailing 59-57 with 6:51 to play after a short Morton jumper. Morton hit a 3-pointer from the left side of the key with 24 seconds to play, forging a 71-71 tie that stood at the end of regulation when Rice missed a short turnaround jumper in the lane.

Rod Porter's ejection in last Saturday's Pampa-Levelland game may have worked better than any motivational speech the Harvester baseball coach had prepared for the final inning. Pampa was trailing 8-5 in the District 1-4A contest at Harvester Field when Porter was thumbed from the game for disputing a call at the plate. James Bybee had tried to score from third on on Mike Cagle's flyball to left field, but was thrown out to end the sixth inning.

"I've coached over 356 games and that's the first time I've ever been ejected. "I was little embarrassed about it, but I felt I had to stand up for my players," Porter.

With Porter watching from a distance, the Harvesters roared back to win, 9-8, by scoring four runs in the bottom of the seventh. "I'm proud of the way the kids came back," Porter said. "I've never seem a team within one out of losing come back and score runs like they did.

Pampa trailed 8-7 with two away when senior outfielder Billy Wortham, who had been battling a slump, singled up the middle to score two runs. Levelland had built an 8-0 after three innings.

"That may have been the turning point of the season," Porter said. "We're just a couple of game out of a playoff position and there's a lot of games to go."

Pampa, now 3-3 in district play, hosts Dumas (3-2-1) at 4:30 p.m.

Cowboys' Newsome still plugging away

By DAVID MOORE Fort Worth Star-Telegram

IRVING — Fullback Timmy Newsome took the handoff and cut upfield. He forgot just one thing.

The ball.

"Come on, old man," running backs coach Joe Brodsky barked. "Hold onto the ball."

Old man Newsome has been plugging away for the Dallas Cowboys for nine seasons. He was one of 81 players at Valley Ranch this week for the team's first minicamp under head coach Jimmy Johnson.

His presence is a surprise because Newsome indicated 1988 would be his last season. But Newsome, who turns 31 next month, has decided he's not ready to retire. He's committed to play this season.

"I'm going to play," said Newsome, who came to that decision shortly after the Cowboys decided to protect him under the league's free-agency system.

"No doubt in my mind. There was some doubt that December day when Newsome, who had been placed on injured reserve with a strained calf muscle, limped to his car and declared he didn't anticipate putting his body through the grind of a National Football League season any longer. He was ready to hang up his helmet. Newsome also was frustrated over the way he was used. Or rather, the way he wasn't used. He has talked with Brodsky and assistant head coach David Shula and was told his situation would be different this season.

"If I'm productive and making plays, I'll get more work," Newsome said. "Basically, that's it. They didn't promise me a certain number of carries a game or a certain number of passes a game. They said if you show us you can go out on the field and make plays, you'll get more carries. You'll get another look."

Newsome, however, has heard that line before. Former coach Tom Landry used to pull it out almost every training camp.

That's part of the reason why Newsome was so frustrated at the end of last season. He was led to believe things would be diffe-

They weren't. Newsome carried the ball 32 times last season. His career total is 340 carries in 121 games. That's an average of 2.8 carries a game.

"When I went into training camp last year, there was this big push to get me the football,' Newsome said. "Over a period of time that didn't materialize. For whatever reason, I don't know. That was the thing that was most discouraging to me.

"As a matter of fact, it was on a weekly basis. They said they would find a way to get me the ball more. It never happened. It frustrated me more than anything else. If they planned on getting it to me more, why didn't

Newsome became so discouraged that he even volunteered to return kickoffs. Anything to get his hands on the football. Landry said no. But after the season, Landry did tell Newsome he would try to use him more in '89. Landry is gone. The same, old line Newsome has been hearing for years isn't. The only difference is that old line is coming from a new coaching staff.

Is that cause for optimism? "Well, I learned a long time ago not to use optimism in that way.' Newsome said. "If I can show them I can make the plays, I won't hesitate to go in there and say, 'Look, see what I've done. What about more carries or being a bigger part of the offense?'

'I think the thing that hurt me in the past is that I let it happen more than anything else. I didn't take the initiative to sit down and talk about it early. It was as much my fault as coach Landry's or this season in the shadow of Herschel Walker. But he said he believes someone can be in Walker's shadow and still get more than 2.8 carries a game in the Cowboys' two-back set.

Optimist signups continue

Optimist Park will be the scene of many exciting baseball and softball games this summer, judging from the 592 boys and girls who signed up Saturday...the first day of registration for Optimist baseball and softball leagues.

Registration for all ages will continue during tryouts this week.

Girls 13 to 15 who were not on a Senior League team last year will try out today from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., according to Austin Sutton, president of the softball leagues. Girls 9 to 12 who were not on a Little League team last year will try out Wednesday and Thursday from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., Sutton

Boys 13 to 15 who were not on a Babe Ruth team last year will try out for the 13-year-old league and the 14-15 league today and Wednesday from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m., David Hays, Youth Work Chairman, reported.

Boys and girls from 9 to 12 who are interested in the Bambino League will try out today and Wednesday from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Tryouts for 9 and 10 yearold-players will be held in the Minor League Park. Tryouts for the Major League, consisting of 11 and 12-year-old players will be held in the Major League Park, Hays said.

Players in the Rookie League for six-year-olds and in the Farm League for seven and eight-yearolds may sign up during tryouts for any of the other leagues this

"We had more than 800 players participate in our program last year," said Calvin Lacy, treasurer for the Optimist Boys Club Inc. "We are hoping that those players who did not get by Saturday will register this week. Otherwise, they will not be eligible to play this year."

Reds down Dodgers in National League opener

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul O'Neill's day started with deep embarrassment and ended with grand accomplishment.

All in all, the Cincinnati Reds' right fielder reckoned it a good

O'Neill went 4-for-4, with a pair of singles, a double and a threerun homer Monday to lead the Reds to a 6-4 victory over the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers in the traditional National League opener.

"Everybody has good days during the year. I was just fortunate to have one on Opening Day," O'Neill said. "I was anxious to get going."

So anxious that his first at-bat left him red-faced.

Batting against Tim Belcher in the second inning with the Reds trailing 2-0, O'Neill lost track of the count and started for first base on ball three. He had to be called back to the plate.

"(Dodgers first baseman) Eddie Murray looked at me like I was crazy," O'Neill said. "I never did that before. I got confused. I guess I'll be on the bloopers this He'll also be on the highlights. He came back to the plate and lined a double that started a three-run rally. The next inning he hit a three-run homer that gave the Reds a 6-2 lead.

"We rode on O'Neill's bat," Manager Pete Rose said.

In other openers Monday, it was the New York Mets 8, St. Louis 4, and San Francisco 5, San

O'Neill played the starring role in the 103rd opener in Cincinnati, but Rose received the star treatment from the 55,385 fans. Rose, dogged by gambling allegations the last two weeks, received a one-minute standing ovation when he was introduced before

"I can stand here all day and I couldn't describe my feelings," Rose said. "They've always treated me like a king. I didn't know what to expect today."

Starter Danny Jackson struggled early and the Reds committed three first-inning errors to help the Dodgers take a 2-0 lead.

O'Neill helped the Reds calm down in the second with his double. He scored on Jeff Reed's single and Belcher made his own problems worse by walking Ron Oester and then throwing wildly to third base on Jackson's bunt, letting Reed score. Barry Larkin's sacrifice fly put the Reds ahead 3-2.

Kal Daniels walked and Todd Benzinger singled ahead of O'Neill's homer in the third.

Mets 8, Cardinals 4 Howard Johnson homered and drove in three runs as New York won its 11th straight home opener. Johnson, a part of many trade rumors, singled home the tying hits and two RBIs for the Mets and lead runs during a four-run and Dwight Gooden pitched third inning that made it 6-3 against Joe Magrane and added a solo homer in the eighth off Todd Worrell. In nine career at-bats against Worrell, Johnson has four home runs.

Darryl Strawberry had three and double.

Norman back in the swing

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — After a two-year trip into the golfing doldrums, Greg Norman has put the Masters behind him and looks forward to the Masters before him.

"I'm back where I was two years ago," Norman said with that familiar, cheerfully aggressive confidence that once put him at the peak of world golf. With my swing back, I feel like I can do anything," Norman said before a practice round for the 53rd Masters that begins Thursday at the Augusta National Golf Club.

It was here — down there in Amen Corner on the 11th green — that his frustrating, puzzling slump began two years ago.

The scene is etched in the memory of all who witnessed it: Larry Mize, arms stretched to the southern skies, bounding about with incredulous joy; Norman crouched and scowling by the side of the green, bewildered and disbelieving. "It got into my head," Norman said of Mize's playoff pitch-in birdie that decided the 1987 Masters.

A wrist injury sustained in the 1988 U.S. Open took some of the blame for "The Great White Shark's' descent into troubled waters. But that wasn't the cause, Norman said. Not at

"It all goes back to Augusta," said Norman, who maintained for more than a year that he recovered from Mize's devastating shot within three weeks. "I think I was trying too hard to prove that it hadn't bothered me. But it did," he said. "It put me in a trough. I was in limbo.'

In the two years since Mize's pitch, Norman won only once in the United States. There were a few other victories overseas.

"I hit rock bottom in the Nabisco" at Pebble Beach, Calif., last November, Norman said. He finished dead last, five strokes higher than the next player.

"I couldn't believe I played that bad. I simply couldn't believe it," Norman said. "On the flight back to Australia I talked to (wife) Laura. I talked to Hughes (agent Hughes Norton)," he said, "And I talked to myself." From that soul-searching, he said, came a revised and reduced schedule as well as renewed enthusiasm and determination.

"I'm interested in playing golf again. I'm excited about it," he said.

"I'm back where I was a couple of years ago," said Norman, who won the British Open and led through three rounds of the Masters, U.S. Open and PGA in 1986 when he ranked as one of the outstanding figures in the sport.
