Reagan: Public bears cost of restoring S&Ls

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration today recommended curtailing deposit insurance for bank and savings and loan accounts and said the public will have to bear much of the estimated $100 billion cost of restoring the S&L industry to health.

The White House Council of Economic Advisers, in President Reagan's final economic report, said reducing protection for depositors would cause them to more closely "monitor the financial health" of the institutions holding their money.

Although the report did not address the question, Beryl W. Sprinkel, the president's chief economic adviser, said that as part of the insurance curb, institutions should be required to publicly disclose more information about their financial condition.

The administration also sharply criticized S&L regulators for "postponing the day of reckoning" in their rescues of failed institutions.

But the top regulator, M. Danny Wall, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, defended his agency's year-end spree of savings and loan bailouts as cheaper than shutting the failed institutions down and paying off depositors.

Wall, a Reagan appointee, said at a briefing outlining his testimony today before the House Banking Committee that his agency rescued 75 institutions in December at a cost of $16.3 billion to be spread out over 10 years.

Tax benefits arising from the deals will cost the government an additional $4 billion over 10 years.

The alternative to the rescues — liquidating the S&Ls and shutting them down — would have required $47 billion in "up-front cash," far more than is available immediately to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., Wall said.

By selling off the property of the failed S&Ls, regulators eventually would have recouped all but $22.8 billion on the December transactions, he said.

The board supervises nearly 3,000 federally insured S&Ls.

Both banks and S&Ls are failing in numbers not seen since the Great Depression. Reagan's report noted that the problems will be "one of the major challenges for the next administration" under President-elect Bush.

While Reagan placed much of the blame on regulators, the administration's own record has come under fire as well. Critics point out that the administration refused to pay for additional S&L examiners while the problem was developing.

In the final Reagan budget, released Monday, the administration called for spending $64 billion on S&Ls through 1994 and acknowledged for the first time that it does not have enough money coming in to handle the cleanup.

Citing the 1980 decision by Congress to boost the limit on deposit insurance from $40,000 to $100,000, Reagan's economic report said reducing the ceiling "would restore much-needed discipline to the system."

"The scope of federal deposit insurance should be significantly curtailed," it said, although it did not recommend a specific limit.

Deposit insurance discourages bank runs and provides individuals with a safe place for their money, but it "also dramatically reduces the incentives for depositors to monitor the financial health of their bank," the administration said.

The recommendation contradicts a study released last week by the FDIC, which concluded that deposit insurance should be preserved at current levels. FDIC Chairman L. William Seidman said regulators have been unwilling to tolerate the risk to the banking system of forcing losses on depositors at large institutions, even those whose funds exceed the insurance limit.

Noting estimates of the S&L problem ranging up to $100 billion, the Council of Economic Advisers said "a large portion of the payment of this bill will need to come directly from the public." The rest will be levied indirectly on consumers through fees charged banks and S&Ls, it said.

Including the December pledges, the bank board last year committed more than $38 billion to resolve the cases of 205 institutions. Wall declined to say how much more his agency had left to promise.

Democrats give short shrift to budget

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats who control Congress are treating President Reagan's farewell $1.15 trillion budget as a stale rerun and urging President-elect Bush to submit a spending plan reflecting his more moderate policies.

Reagan's fiscal 1990 budget, submitted Monday just 11 days before he retires, embodies many of the priorities he pursued in his eight previous proposals: military growth at the expense of domestic programs, and no major tax increases. And like all eight previous Reagan budgets, it's written in red ink.

It would produce a deficit of $92.5 billion, within the $100 billion target mandated by the Gramm-Rudman, deficit-reduction law. If achieved, that figure would be a dramatic decrease from the worst of the Reagan era shortfalls, but drastically higher than the red ink run up by any previous president.

Democrats challenged the spending blueprint's priorities and what they called its unrealistic economic assumptions, and spared few words in writing its obituary.

New Senate Budget Committee Chairman Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., called it a "non-starter" that "doesn't deal with the problem of the deficit seriously." His House counterpart, Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., said it was little more than "an interesting historical document."

"The more important issue is what George Bush presents," he said.

Even congressional Republicans conceded that Reagan's submission is little more than a starting point for Bush's budget efforts.

"This is obviously Ronald Reagan's book," said Sen. Pete Domenici, ranking Republican on the Senate Budget Committee. "George Bush and the Congress will write the final chapter."

As if to symbolize the Reagan plan's lack of significance, Domenici was in Albuquerque, N.M., and his House counterpart, Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., was in Europe.

Bush, who takes office Jan. 20, is not required to submit a spending plan of his own. But his aides have indicated he will propose revisions to Reagan's plan after his inauguration, and the president-elect distanced himself slightly from it Monday, saying he "agrees with its intent."

Congressional Democrats are eager for Bush to submit a detailed proposal of his own because they are skeptical he can do everything he has promised: reduce the deficit without raising taxes while still diverting federal resources to child care, education, environmental cleanups and other priorities he proclaimed during his presidential campaign.

Reagan's budget would collect $1,059 trillion in revenues and spend $1,152 trillion, leaving a $92.5 billion imbalance. That would be the lowest deficit since the $73.7 billion shortfall of fiscal 1981, which was under way when Reagan took office.

But Democrats say Reagan's budget plan masks the true amount of red ink by overestimating the economy's likely strength next year, adding more revenue on paper but with no guarantee the money will actually be there.

The federal deficit reached its all-time high of $221 billion in 1986. Under Reagan, the total federal debt has so far soared to $2.6 trillion, almost triple the $914 billion the government owed before he took office. The government will have to spend $170 billion this year just to pay interest on that debt.

The administration says it expects the current year's imbalance to total $161 billion.

Reagan would boost military outlays in the next fiscal year by $5 billion to $303 billion. His proposed Pentagon spending authority of $315.2 billion, which includes some outlays for years beyond 1990, reflects an increase of 2 percent more than inflation over this year's levels.

The increases would include boosting spending on the Star Wars missile defense system from $4.05 billion to $5.9 billion, setting aside $94.6 million for a sea-based anti-satellite system, and starting production of the B-2 stealth bomber.

The president would devote $3 billion to clean and modernize the nation's nuclear weapons plants, a task the government has estimated could cost $128 billion.

Reagan models hat presented him Monday after briefing a trade group on his budget proposal.

School classroom bids to be opened today

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

The Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet Thursday at 6 p.m. in the Pampa High School library for the first regular session of 1989.

The meeting was moved from its regular time on Tuesday to allow the district the opportunity to review bids on construction of additional classrooms at three elementary schools. The bids were to be opened at 4 p.m. today.

"This will give the board an opportunity to condense two meetings into one," said Dr. Harry Griffith, superintendent of schools. "I anticipate the board will accept one of the bids. We're hopeful the bids will be clear enough that the board can act on one of them."

Last year the trustees voted to accept bids on the construction of new classrooms at Mann, Wilson and Austin elementary schools. The construction is necessary, the board decided, to comply with state-mandated student-teacher ratios.

In addition to reviewing the bids, the board will also hear a report from the district's computer task force on its portion of the Pampa 2000 project. The communitywide Pampa 2000 undertaking is an attempt to involve members of the community and school officials in a broad-stroke effort to prepare local schools for the next century.

The district's Academic Spotlight will be focused on high school band directors and two band students who recently were selected to the All-State band.

Gaining the All-State ranking were Noelle Barbaree, senior, in French horn, and Jenny Shufelberger, junior, in alto clarinet.

It is Barbaree's third time to be named to the All-State band and Shufelberger's second.

Band directors Charles Johnson and Brent Colwell will also be honored for their work with the band students.

Other items on the agenda include a request for the board to approve the band's proposed trip to Nashville, Tenn., and Orlando, Fla., on May 4-7. The district is also recommending trustees begin to formulate a clear policy regarding how often band trips can be taken.

In the board's background information on the trip it states, "In the past, there has been a general agreement that the band and choir may travel out-of-state every two years ... this is not well understood by everyone involved. What is the opinion of the board?"

The district is asking that a formal policy on band trips be completed by May 1.

The board will also review a proposed budget amendment, auditor's contract and strategic planning goals for the year.

United Way ends drive

Pampa United Way's 1988 fund drive to meet the needs of 14 United Way-supported agencies has been concluded, announced Jimmie Clark, drive chairman.

With pledges equaling 98 percent of the campaign's needs, Pampa's United Way has secured pledges of $319,763, representing the largest total pledge ever received by the Pampa United Way.

Clark attributed the success of the campaign to a caring community, to the tremendous effort of 250 United Way volunteers and to generous media exposure by local cable television, radio and The Pampa News.

"It has truly taken a united effort to bring about the results of the 1988 campaign drive," Clark said.

Katrina Bigham, United Way executive administrator, added that the Emergency

Food and Shelter monies totaling $11,189.76 will be available to four of the United Way-supported agencies.

Those agencies sharing equally in the EFS funds are Tralee Crisis Center, Meals on Wheels, Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

"We simply can't say a big enough 'thank you' to every one who has had a part in helping provide 'A Brighter Tomorrow — the United Way,'" Clark said.

Budget a priority as 71st Legislature opens session today

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — State lawmakers gathered in Austin today for the opening of the 71st Texas Legislature with their sights set on prisons, public schools, workers' compensation problems and, as always, the budget.

Among the first orders of business, however, was electing one House speaker and hearing from another.

Three-term Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, was expected to be re-elected to a fourth two-year term as presiding officer of the 150-member chamber, which also was to hear from U.S. House Speaker Jim Wright.

While the first day's work is largely ceremonial, lawmakers will face a number of serious problems before adjourning May 29.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has projected that lawmakers will have an additional $1.6 billion in spendable cash for the 1990-91 budget period, but the Legislative Budget Board has said another $1 billion would be needed to maintain state services at present levels.

"I, along with 149 members in the House, am opposed to new taxes," Lewis said in an interview Monday.

Noting that lawmakers have passed three major tax increases in four years, Lewis said another tax increase this year seems unlikely. "The politics is not going to allow it to happen," he said.

Gov. Bill Clements, saying the state's projected income is sufficient, vows to veto any tax increase. "I am set in concrete," he said.

Another element in the budget negotiations this session is the report of the Select Committee on Tax Equity, a blue-ribbon business-government panel that spent 1½ years examining the Texas tax structure.

In its recommendations, the committee called for shifting the tax burden from businesses with heavy capital investment and toward the state's growing service industry. It called for broadening the sales tax to cover more services, modifying the franchise tax paid by capital-intensive business, and easing local government reliance on property taxes.

Bullock has offered a plan for raising the additional $1 billion — generating some quick and positive responses from legislators.

Bullock said lawmakers could avert another tax increase by approving a series of bookkeeping measures, including the temporary transfer of some state money from dedicated special funds into the all-purpose general revenue fund.

"New taxes would have a depressing effect on our (economic) recovery — both real and psychological," Bullock said.

Among those responding favorably to his ideas was Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who presides over the Senate. "Generally, Lt. Gov. Hobby liked what he saw. It looks like these proposals from the comptroller are some realistic alternatives," said Hobby press secretary Glenn Smith.

Kristi Schroeder, left, 13, and her brother Dean, 10, sit at the desk of their uncle, State Rep. Clyde Alexander, D-Athens, in the House chamber Monday. The two were on hand for today's opening legislative session.

Reagan wants to hike defense funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan wants Congress set aside money for the next wave of military weaponry and increase spending on Star Wars in a defense budget with little chance of winning approval as it is, say congressional leaders and defense experts.

Overall, the two-year budget the Reagan administration released Monday proposes an increase in defense spending by 2 percent above the rate of inflation with $315.2 billion in budget authority for 1990 and $330.89 billion for 1991.

Outlays — the money to be spent during the 12 months of fiscal 1990 — total $303 billion, including $9.2 billion for Energy Department nuclear weapons and research programs. Outlays for fiscal 1991 amount to $314.4 billion.

President-elect Bush is expected to amend the Reagan budget after he takes office Jan. 20. The vice president has talked about a budget request that matches inflation instead of providing real growth.

If Bush fails to change the budget, Congress will surely do so. For the past four years, Congress has cut defense spending increases to levels below the rate of inflation. The reaction from legislators to the latest Reagan budget indicates that this time will be no different.

"We know one thing about this defense budget, it isn't likely to be approved the way it was submitted — with an increase of 2 percent over and above inflation," said Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, in a statement he issued Friday.

"What we need to know before Congress can go to work is what George Bush wants in his defense budget. I am eager not only to read the new president's lips on defense, but also his first defense message to Congress," Aspin said.

Sen. John Warner of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the budget is a "good foundation," but reserved comment until further study.

Among the requests likely to be changed by Congress or Bush are $94.6 million in spending authority in 1990 and $124.3 million the next year for research on a new Navy anti-satellite weapon and elimination of a proposed single-warhead intercontinental ballistic missile, the Midgetman.

The budget also calls for moving into production the new B-2 stealth bomber, the Trident II submarine-launched nuclear missile and a rail-mobile version of the giant MX intercontinental ballistic missile.

The budget includes an increase in spending authority on the Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly known as Star Wars, from $4.1 billion in 1989 to $5.9 billion in 1990 and $7 billion in 1991.

"What worries me is the hasty rush to the next generation of military hardware," said Gordon Adams, director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, an independent analysis group.

Congress is likely to question a budget that "shaves the edges of readiness and sustainability," Adams said.

Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci said the administration made "some hard choices in either canceling or delaying two dozen programs, but the budget will not weaken the nation's ability to defend itself.

"The moderate 2 percent real growth rate proposed in this budget is an attempt to steer a sustainable and fiscally responsible course that allows the United States to maintain its current force structure and to acquire the weapons systems necessary to ensure our national security," he said.

Officials: Farmers must stand firm

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Americans must be better educated about the work and dilemmas of farmers, who themselves should not stand for drastic cuts in federal farm programs, delegates to the American Farm Bureau Federation meeting have been told.

U.S. Rep. Kikka de la Garza, D-Mission and chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, held up a copy of the proposed budget introduced by President Reagan on Monday and said farmers rarely are given credit for slashing spending.

Reagan's budget proposes a 19 percent cut in Agriculture Department spending in the 1990 fiscal year, to $42.4 billion, down from the estimated outlays of $52.1 billion in the current fiscal year.

"The Pentagon stumbles over more money in one day than the total agriculture budget for one year," de la Garza said.

"We have complied with Gramm-Rudman. We cut through the bone and now they want us to get down to the marrow," he said.

De la Garza said he supported agriculture education programs that would help youngsters learn about the physical and economic hardships of farming.

"We are getting away from the land, the culture and the morals and we need to have (agriculture) language courses in the high schools so they know what we are talking about," de la Garza said.

"We need them to know that a cow is more than 'moo' and they need to know the difference between a cow and a bull or a bull and an elk," he said.

Dean Kleckner, president of the farm bureau, suggested that biotechnology research would help the industry.

"If biotechnology is allowed to develop and grow, it can hold the answer to many of the environmental concerns raised by the widespread use of farm chemicals," Kleckner said.

"Science may devise new breeds of plants and animals that can become disease resistant, thrive on very little moisture or stand great extremes in temperature," he said.

De la Garza and Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the United States needs to expand current markets and open new ones for American farmers to survive.

"What we have to do is balance the playing field," said de la Garza, who criticized the European Community's ban on hormone-treated U.S. beef into that part of the world.

Grassley, meanwhile, attacked the proposed 50 percent pay raise for members of Congress and urged delegates to express their outrage to their representatives.

Kleckner, an Iowa farmer who also is a member of the Federal Economic Commission, also was enraged about the proposal.

Opryland plans park in San Antonio

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — This South Texas city could become the entertainment and music center of the state if Opryland USA goes ahead with plans to build a musical theme show and ride park near Sea World of Texas, officials say.

The Nashville-based Opryland USA Inc. announced Monday it had agreed in principle with United Services Automobile Association to build a park with a southwestern musical flair in a 100-acre tract owned by USAA.

The site is northwest San Antonio near the 250-acre, $170 million Sea World of Texas, whose main attractions are the killer whales, including newborn Baby Shamu.

"San Antonio is transforming itself into a family entertainment center in Texas and the Southwest before our very eyes," said Mayor Henry Cisneros. "We are stepping into a whole new plateau."

Cisneros and Robert McDermott, chairman of USAA, traveled to Nashville last summer to woo Opryland.

E.W. "Bud" Wendell, president and chief executive officer of Opryland USA Inc., said the tourist and business climate in San Antonio convinced him that company should open its only other park outside of Nashville.

Wendell said many of the details have not been worked out, but said he expected to have within four months a groundbreaking date, financing details, construction start and planned opening date.

"San Antonio is a dynamic city. We would like to think we can make it stronger," Wendell said at a news conference. "We found some real chemistry here. The people just made us feel welcome."

McDermott, whose USAA is the nation's sixth-largest insurance company, said he expected the park to open by 1992.

Cisneros and McDermott said Opryland would complement other tourist attractions such as Sea World, the River Walk, the Alamo and the missions.

"We think it will be complementary, not competitive, to the other tourist attractions," McDermott said.

The new park will not be named Opryland, but, like the Nashville park, will have live rides and, unlike the original park, will have

Organizational meeting set for Scouts in Wilson area

Local Scouting leaders are having an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. today for boys in the Wilson Elementary School area who are interested in forming a Cub pack or Scout troop.

The First United Methodist Church will sponsor the troop and pack.

Keith Cook, senior district executive, said all interested parents and youth are encouraged to attend the meeting, even if they have previously enrolled in this pack or troop.

Cook said the troop and pack originally fell through because of musical entertainment unique to Texas and the Southwest, such as Tejano and conjunto music and music from Mexico, officials said.

Cisneros said he believed city officials would do all they could to provide incentives for Opryland to locate to San Antonio, which Texas tourist officials have called the state's No. 1 tourist destination.

The Nashville Opryland is spread over 120 acres, has 250 permanent employees and up to 3,000 employees, including entertainers, during the peak summer season.

Opened since 1972, it regularly has attracted more than 2 million visitors annually, Wendell said.

a lack of adult leadership. Since that time, he said, the church has reformed an active Scouting committee that will be working with new leadership to insure a successful program for the youth.

"First United Methodist and Scouting will provide a program for young people that is fun and adventuresome, but also offers the opportunity to learn scouting and leadership skills and advancement through a series of activities," Cook said.

The meeting will be in the First United Methodist Church Educational Building.

Bush to attend Hirohito funeral

TOKYO (AP) — President-elect Bush plans to attend the Feb. 24 funeral of Emperor Hirohito in his first foreign trip as the U.S. leader, the Kyodo news service quoted the head of Bush's transition team as saying.

The Kyodo report from Washington quoted Craig Fuller, the transition chief, as saying Monday "our understanding at present" is that Bush will attend.

Few homeless aliens remain in crude camp under eviction order

By JOEL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Scores of makeshift tents blew in the chilly wind alongside piles of garbage and donated clothing, but few homeless Central Americans remained at the crude camp that moved a federal judge to put an immigration policy on hold.

Facing eviction from their shantytown, hundreds of aliens who had set up camp in Brownsville left their tents Monday for shelter in nearby churches or for other cities.

The camp had mushroomed in the wake of a Dec. 16 policy change by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which required the aliens to stay in south Texas while they applied for political asylum.

But the exodus began even before U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela issued a temporary restraining order Monday against the INS, allowing the asylum-seekers once again to leave south Texas.

Many started looking for places to go Sunday after the campsite property owner posted "No Trespassing" signs and the Cameron County sheriff ordered everyone off the property within 24 hours.

On Monday the deadline was extended another day.

"If I just go out there and put them on the street, it's going to place a bigger burden on everybody," said Sheriff Alex Perez.

But most of the aliens already had found other shelter from weather that turned cold and rainy. Many stayed in churches.

As the north wind picked up speed and drizzle continued Monday afternoon, only a few stragglers remained at the trash-covered lot.

Area residents, however, continued to bring food and clothing.

"These are my brothers and sisters in Christ and this is what I have to do," said Mary Mortimore, 68, of Plankinton, S.D., who with her husband made

TI to build new facility in Italy

DALLAS (AP) — A new $250 million state-of-art semiconductor manufacturing plant will be built by Texas Instruments in Avezano, Italy, about 60 miles east of Rome, company officials say.

Officials said Monday the facility will be a major step by the Dallas-based chip manufacturer to protect its place as the country's largest supplier of the semi-conductors to the soon-to-be-unified European market.

Fernando Sarabia, spokesman for Texas Instruments Italia SPA, said the project is in line with Texas Instruments chairman Jerry Junkins' aim of "globalization of the company."

"Texas Instruments wants to be one of the companies participating in 1992," Sarabia said, referring to the unification of the European market as of the end of 1992, when all remaining internal trade barriers will come down.

Sarabia said the plant will begin initial production in 1990 and eventually will employ more than 500 workers. It will build both dynamic random access memory chips, known as DRAMs, and certain advanced logic devices.

Announcement of the Italian plant comes only a month after TI announced plans to work jointly with Hitachi Ltd. of Japan on development of a design for a future generation of memory chips that will store 16 million bits of information.

Agency team to study aid for refugees

By JOEL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A U.S. Congressman said humanitarian assistance is on the way to homeless Central Americans after their living conditions moved a federal judge to block a policy that kept the immigrants from leaving the Lower Rio Grande Valley. "I am a human being; I do live in this community," U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela said upon issuing a temporary restraining order against a three-week-old Immigration and Naturalization Service procedure.

Officials said the policy was designed to prevent asylum-seekers from leaving the area while their cases were under review.

The judge blamed the procedure for a sharp increase in the number of Central Americans living in vacant lots and condemned buildings in Cameron County.

U.S. Rep. Solomon Ortiz, D-Corpus Christi, said a special team from the Justice Department's community relations service would arrive in the Valley today to study humanitarian needs of the Central Americans.

Assistance probably will come in the form of emergency housing from the service, which coordinated aid to refugees during the 1980 crisis in Florida when Cubans and Haitians poured into the state, officials said.

"I kept telling the administration that since the Department of Justice had created the problem, the Department of Justice must pay for the problem," Ortiz said Monday.

"Thankfully, they agreed."

Ortiz estimated that 2,500 homeless Central Americans are in the Valley, and "there's a lot of people coming through the pipeline." The INS estimates that between 5,000 and 7,000 Central Americans are in the area.

Ortiz said of a recent group of 272 people who applied for political asylum in the INS Harlingen District covering the Valley, only two of the applicants were approved, both of them Nicaraguans.

Brownsville immigration attorney Linda Reyna Yanez, one of the lawyers who filed suit against the INS on Friday and obtained the 72-hour restraining order Monday, said she expected "a substantial exodus" from the Valley by Thursday.

Vela will hold a further hearing in the class-action lawsuit Thursday morning, after which he said he would decide whether to issue a preliminary injunction against the INS procedure.

Cameron County Sheriff Alex Perez welcomed Vela's order, although he did not find the Central Americans to be a law enforcement problem.

"We won't have so many people in our area at one time," Perez said.

On Monday, Perez gave a group of Central Americans an extra 24 hours to vacate a field southeast of Brownsville where more than 300 had been camping. But by Monday night, most had sought refuge from the cold in three churches set up as Red Cross shelters.

INS officials, under the Dec. 16 policy, were telling applicants they could not travel from the area or work while awaiting a decision on their asylum status, a period of at least 30 days.

Victorious immigration attorneys told the aliens of their changed status after Vela's order.

"We're going to advise people that they do not have to live here in the (Rio Grande) Valley in the rain and the cold and vacant lots, that they can now be with their family, with their friends and they can pursue their asylum claims in those (destination) cities," said Mark Schneider, an attorney with Proyecto Libertad, a co-counsel to the lawsuit.

"It's marvelous," said Maria Isabel Fernandez, 28, of Honduras, who has camped for two weeks near Casa Romero. "What else could we ask for?"

Ms. Fernandez and eight relatives said they planned to travel to Houston, where family members live.

Many people at the shelter started preparing to travel as soon as they heard about the court order, said Sister Juliana Garcia, director of Casa Romero.

"I think it will alleviate the situation for a lot of people," said Sister Juliana. "People are already making a big line to fix their papers and leave."

The lawsuit against INS Commissioner Alan Nelson and U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh was filed by Yanez, Robert Rubin of the San Francisco Lawyers' Committee for Urban Affairs and the Harlingen-based Proyecto Libertad.

Rural Texas could suffer under Reagan's plan

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ranks of struggling farmers and rural hospitals on the brink of financial collapse would swell under cuts President Reagan is proposing in his fiscal 1990 budget, experts say.

Although Reagan's budget would be hard on rural Texas, major defense and energy projects in the state fare well, including $250 million proposed for the initial construction of the super collider and $2.1 billion for the space station.

The big question is whether President-elect George Bush will stick to those recommendations when he takes office, and what the Democratic-controlled Congress will do.

"People have said the president's budgets of recent years have been dead on arrival, but this one's lost in transit. There's more interest in how President Bush will change this budget than in the budget itself," says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Texas Democrat and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

Health care officials in Texas say they're concerned about the effects of trimming growth in Medicare and Medicaid by about $5 billion.

The savings in Medicare would come primarily from reducing the fees received by hospitals — often the lifeblood of small, rural hospitals, many of which are on the brink of failure in Texas. Nineteen Texas hospitals closed last year.

Rural hospitals would be particularly hard hit by the cuts because of their dependence on Medicare patients. Jim Houdek, senior vice president for health care finance at the Texas Hospital Association, said rural hospitals have a mix of 60 percent to 65 percent of Medicare patients, compared with urban hospitals, with 40 percent to 45 percent.

Gordon Russell, administrator of the Hi-Plains Hospital in Hale Center north of Lubbock, said any cut in Medicare "is going to be a death blow on rural hospitals, which already are suffering terribly."

"We can't stand any more cuts and continue to maintain access to health care in rural areas," said Russell, a member of the Department of Health and Human Services' National Advisory Committee on Rural Health.

"Any further cuts would wipe out a bunch of hospitals."

Under Reagan's proposal, Medicare, which provides health care to Social Security recipients, would be cut by $3.2 billion below the projected increase for 1990.

Houdek predicted as many as 20 more hospitals could collapse if the cuts go through. The state has lost about 75 hospitals over the past four years.

Medicaid, which pays the health bills of poor people, would be cut by $1.7 billion over its projected increase for 1990 with the savings coming from reductions in federal payments to the states, which run the program.

Houdek said the state's seven teaching hospitals, capital improvements in hospitals and the Texas Legislature's efforts to improve its Medicaid system would also be hurt under the proposed cuts.

Reagan also wants to slash spending on farm programs by 19 percent, or $9.7 billion.

Rep. Kika de la Garza, a Texas Democrat who leads the House Agriculture Committee, said the budget "takes a stance that appears to be deliberately punitive toward agriculture."

He pledged to work with the Bush administration on a "reasonable alternative ... the budget cannot be balanced at the expense of farmers who have kept us the best-fed nation in the world."

Kraig Gallimore, who heads farmer and rancher assistance for the Texas Agriculture Department, said that if the cuts go through, "we can expect to see more (farm) bankruptcies and foreclosures, and a continued exodus, not just from the farm, but from rural America."

"(Agriculture) is just the easiest kid on the block to pick on, with the few votes in the countryside," Gallimore said.

TENSION HEADACHES

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called the suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal pressure or dysfunction of neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structures. They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again.

Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other painkillers may give you temporary relief but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you need.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Soviets are putting hands on our wallets

Having a bit of trouble paying your Christmas bills? Or maybe you wish you could have given more to the poor? Part of the reason for your troubles is that the Reagan administration just used your tax dollars to subsidize wheat sales to the Soviet Union. Instead of helping your family or going to the poor, your money is feeding the Red Army.

The Agriculture Department's Export Enhancement Program sells U.S. wheat at low, subsidized prices. It's not clear yet what the Soviet wheat swindle will cost us. But a similar program that sent wheat to another country with a socialist economy, China, cost taxpayers 63 cents per bushel, or $23.10 per ton. Because the new Soviet wheat accord is for 2 million tons, that would bring the U.S. taxpayers' bill to $42.6 million.

The export subsidy program itself is nothing but welfare for American farmers. But if our government is going to commit such a folly, you might think the subsidized wheat could go to a country not engaged in imposing socialism on others. The wheat could have gone to the forces of UNITA, now battling to expel Cuban mercenaries from Angola, themselves led and armed by the Red Army. Or the wheat could have gone to freedom fighters in Ethiopia trying to topple the country's Communist regime, a regime that has forcibly starved thousands of the Ethiopians who opposed it, and whose military also is armed by Red Army.

The wheat sale has further implications. Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachev is implementing some minor reforms because his country's economy is faltering. The military devours from 25 percent to 35 percent of the economy, compared to the 7 percent the U.S. military takes from ours.

Soviet agriculture remains heavily collectivized. A country that once was the "bread-basket of Europe" now can't feed itself, its harvests having suffered 71 straight years of "bad weather" since the 1917 Bolshevik putsch. The Soviets could change this overnight by doubling the number of private farm plots, which now constitute only about 3 percent of farm acreage but which produce half the country's food. Only food shortages will force them to restore some private property rights to farmers.

The best thing we can do now is let internal pressures push the Kremlin beyond the minor changes it has made. Socialism is its own worst enemy. It only survives if it can steal or swindle money from market economies. That's why forcing U.S. taxpayers to subsidize socialist misery only postpones the Soviets' day of reckoning. Instead of turning swords into plowshares, they can keep the Red Army's swords sharp while relying on U.S. plowshares to produce the food that feeds them.

Perhaps George Bush knows better than to look away while the Kremlin slips its fingers into American taxpayers' wallets.

"I wouldn't spend much time with this one either. It's probably fake, too."

Just let them take care of it

By JOEL BAINERMAN

Forget the Shultz initiative, an international conference, and U.N. resolutions. I have a better plan. It's time for Israel and the Palestinians to begin looking out for themselves.

Let Israel make the first move by removing its military forces from the Gaza Strip, handing over control of the area to whoever wants it. After a set period of time Israel will withdraw its troops from the populated centers in the West Bank, while retaining control over the Israel-Jordanian frontier. For as far as the Palestinian eye will see, the land will no longer be "occupied."

Next, let Israel declare itself confederated with the West Bank, whose Palestinian citizens would be invited to convene a regional assembly with representatives from each town or district. Voters for this assembly — Jewish and Arab — would elect a parliament based on population density in each district.

This provincial parliament would have extensive local powers and would elect representatives to the federal legislative body, the Knesset.

The Jewish settlers would be dual citizens of this Palestinian province and the State of Israel, with full voting rights in each parliament. To be eligible for citizenship and full voting rights, the West Bank residents would serve two years of national service (i.e., teaching, leading youth groups, or constructing apartment buildings).

What about a Palestinian army? There would be none. If the Japanese, the Welsh, the Quebecers, the Puerto Ricans and the Lithuanians can do without armed forces, so can the Palestinians.

Jerusalem? No change. Israel controls overall security. Moslems retain sovereignty over the mosques; Christians over the churches; Jews over the synagogues.

While this scenario may sound simplistic, it is exactly what autonomy means. For Israel, it would present a viable alternative to military occupation and a possibility of healing the wounds between these two peoples.

As the Palestinians begin to reap the educational and technological benefits of such semi-independent status, their socio-economic situation will improve. This will widen their middle-class and leave them with a genuine stake in the system. Even now they would do well to understand that the path to political autonomy runs through the road of economic progress.

Israel should use its great military strength as a shield behind which the Palestinians can be given the opportunity to better their own socio-economic condition.

The Palestinians will undoubtedly see that their problem is one of a lack of good schools for their children and well-paying jobs for their fathers; that economic prosperity is more relevant to them at this stage than a "Palestinian State"; that the way to improve their situation is by building their own apartment blocks, working in their own factories and serving in their own tourist enterprises; that they must raze their refugee camps and begin work on permanent housing structures.

What Palestinians don't need is the PLO, Syria, Libya, Iraq, revolutionary jargon or U.N. handouts. They require jobs, homes and higher levels of education.

Despite claims to the contrary, this is the crux of the problem. Israel needs to disengage itself from the Palestinians by removing its military forces from their populated centers.

It must have the boldness to tell them, "Go ahead, build your infrastructure. Developing your own economy is more important to both of us than working as cheap labor in ours. We'll offer you our technology, medicine, industrial capabilities and education. In return you must choose between peace and war. Between moderate, responsible leadership and the P.L.O. Between the living conditions of your brethren in Haifa and those in the refugee camps."

Ending the occupation is Israel's responsibility. It's time we took the initiative and acted unilaterally in our own best interests.

Autonomy is a good first step toward solving the Palestinian-Israeli conflict, but it will only work if it offers the Palestinians appropriate incentives and spurs them to choose between a prosperous future in confederation with Israel and the empty revolutionary slogans of their supposed allies on the Arab side.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 10, the 10th day of 1989. There are 355 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Jan. 10, 1776, American revolutionary Thomas Paine published his influential pamphlet Common Sense. In his call for American independence from England, Paine wrote, "Everything that is right or reasonable pleads for separation."

On this date:
In 1861, Florida seceded from the Union.

In 1870, John D. Rockefeller incorporated Standard Oil.

In 1920, the League of Nations was established as the Treaty of Versailles went into effect.

In 1928, the Soviet Union ordered the exile of Leon Trotsky.

In 1946, the first General Assembly of the United Nations convened in London.

In 1946, the first manmade contact with the moon was made as radar signals were bounced off the lunar surface.

In 1957, Harold Macmillan became prime minister of Britain, following the resignation of Anthony Eden.

In 1978, the Soviet Union launched two cosmonauts aboard a Soyuz capsule for a rendezvous with the Salyut 6 space laboratory where two other cosmonauts had been living for a month.

Who was Marion Morrison?

Today's column is on Atlanta's funnyman radio host, Ludlow Porch, who recently lost just about as much weight as Oprah Winfrey by sticking to his famous elephant diet.

"You can eat one elephant a week, cooked anyway you want it," he explains, "but you have to catch your own elephant."

The reason I asked Atlanta's most popular radio talk-show host to do the column with me today, however, is to discuss his latest book, Jonas Wilkerson Was a Gravy-Sucking Pig and Other Trivial Facts. The book will cost you a cool $11.95, but according to the author, "It's a bargain at any price."

Ludlow is one of the nation's most accomplished trivia experts.

He even knows Donald Duck's tag number. His book is filled with trivia questions and answers from such categories as television, such as The Andy Griffith Show and M A S H, movies, sports, radio, and there's even a section devoted entirely to Gone With the Wind trivia.

"Ludlow, it's nice of you to join us today. I'm no slouch on trivia myself. Why don't you ask me a few questions from your books and the readers can play along?"

"Fine. Let's start with an easy one. Who was Donna Belle Mullenger?"

"Who?"

"Am I stuttering? Who was Donna Belle Mullenger?"

Lewis Grizzard

"I haven't the foggiest."

"That's Donna Reed's real name."

"Ask me another."

"What was Sheriff Andy Taylor's middle name on The Andy Griffith Show?"

"Leroy."

"Jackson. On M A S H, what was Col. Potter's horse named?"

"Rebel."

"Idiot. Rebel was Johnny Mack Brown's horse. Col. Potter's horse was named Sophie."

"Have you got anymore?"

"Hundreds. Who played the sheriff in the movie The Man Who Shot Liberty Bells?"

"Gary Cooper."

"Andy Devine. Who was the only person to be inducted in both the Cowboy Hall of Fame and the Country Music Hall of Fame?"

"Marty Robbins."

"Tex Ritter. Can you name the only actor ever to win an Oscar playing Santa Claus?"

"Burl Ives."

"I'm surrounded by amateurs. The answer is Edmund Gwenn, The Miracle on 34th Street. What number did baseball immortal Ty Cobb wear with the Detroit Tigers?"

"Just a guess, but I'll try 12."

"He didn't have a number. Baseball players didn't start wearing numbers until after Cobb retired."

"That's a trick question."

"I'm a tricky guy. Lauren Bacall met Humphrey Bogart when they starred in what film?"

"The African Queen."

"Are you sure you've played trivia before? It was To Have and Have Not. Who was Marion Morrison?"

"Little Joe on Bonanza."

"That's John Wayne's real name. Who played the evil, no account Jonas Wilkerson in Gone With the Wind?"

"I don't know."

"Victor Jory. Who was the third child of Adam and Eve?"

"Marvin."

"Seth. Name the theme from the Roy Rogers show."

"Happy Trails to You."

"Congratulations! You got one."

"Before you leave, Ludlow, would you please tell us what Donald Duck's tag number was."

"Buy the book."

This year she's resolving to remember

By SARAH OVERSTREET

I hope that if any of you made New Year's resolutions this year, you only made one or two, and not a list of sins to correct that could usher you blameless into eternity.

I'm convinced that's why so many of us keep so few resolutions; we overwhelm ourselves and give up. I've learned the hard way (over torturous laundry lists that began as soon as I was able to hold a crayon) that 24 hours, even 365 times over, is barely enough time to correct even one bad habit, much less a compendium of everything I perceive to be wrong with me.

So in the past few years I have chosen only one New Year's resolution. This year it didn't take me long to de-side: I was watching The Tonight Show, and one of the guests was a man who, before the show, had walked through the audience learning everyone's name. Then, a full 30 minutes later, he sat down next to Ed and called out all the names, face by face, row after row. I was entranced. "If that man can do that," I thought, "I can surely remember what it was I was on my way to do in the other room when I stopped in front of the TV just a minute ago."

Nothing has cost me more in the way of lost time — and lost face — this past year than my danged memory. OK, I don't want to be able to recite a list of 100 strangers on national television a half hour after meeting them; but I would like to remember one name of one person I have just been introduced to five minutes after hearing it.

In 1988, I've forgotten the names to a sea of faces I'll most likely be called upon to recite sometime when it's really important, and I'll have no earthly idea of countless whatever-it-was I was going into countless other rooms to do. In the time I've spent searching for important papers I can't lay my hands on, I could have hand-pieced a quilt.

I'd be worried about it, except everyone ELSE I know is worried about how much THEY forget. But things could be a lot worse. At least a bad memory, if we can believe Dale Carnegie and the other self-help millionaires, is something we can do something about. I'm not so sure Jello-things, nail-biting, philandering or any of those character defects that might slip ways onto resolution lists are. And I read some of those self-help books, with the inevitable chapters on "Improving Your Memory," back before I needed them. I know all about making lists, tacking notes to myself where I can't miss them and reciting something I want to remember three times.

Sometimes I recite out loud, standing beside my desk or sitting in the front seat of my date's car, and sometimes I pin notes to the front of my coat. And yes, sometimes my friends and co-workers think I'm a little odd. I say it's a small price to pay for being the only one in my crowd who knows the locations of her car keys, her personal property tax statement AND the receipts to all the Christmas gifts she bought.

Homeless 'doctor' arrested in death of pregnant pathologist

By VIRGINIA BYRNE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A homeless man who lived secretly at Bellevue Hospital was wearing a surgical gown and stethoscope when he murdered and raped a pregnant physician during a robbery in her hospital office, police said.

Steven Smith, 23, was arrested at a men's shelter Monday afternoon after three other homeless men brought the slain woman's identification and credit cards to police, Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward said at a news conference.

The men told investigators Smith had given them the items to sell and had given a mink coat stolen from the doctor to another man to sell, the commissioner said.

Police recovered the coat with Dr. Kathryn Hinnant's initials embroidered inside from a man at the shelter, Ward told reporters.

Smith was charged with second-degree murder, first-degree robbery and first-degree rape in the strangulation death of Hinnant.

Smith had been arrested at the hospital on Jan. 1 for illegally possessing a hypodermic needle but was released and his case adjourned until Feb. 2, said Gerald McKelvey, a spokesman for the district attorney's office.

The body of the 33-year-old physician, who was five months pregnant, was discovered Sunday by her husband, Eric Johnson, after she failed to meet him the night before.

Ward said Smith masqueraded as a doctor and his "normal behavior when he is at the hospital is to steal IDs" and eat at the hospital cafeteria.

"He's a kind of a con person who seems to take a great joy in getting over on the staff," Ward said.

Police said Smith was wearing a blue scrub suit, a lab coat and a stethoscope when he attacked Hinnant on Saturday afternoon.

Smith told detectives he had lived periodically on the 22nd floor of the 25-story hospital, where police said they found a dirty hospital bed, a stethoscope and bloodied hospital gloves presumably used in the attack, and empty beer cans.

Suspect Smith sits between two policemen in back of police car after his arrest Monday.

Detectives also found bloodied clothing, including a blue scrub suit, jeans and socks, in a garbage container at the shelter where Smith was arrested. They also recovered a shawl that police believed belonged to the victim.

Bellevue is a major municipal hospital where many of the city's homeless are taken for treatment.

The 22nd floor is a maintenance area that houses machinery and was not usually patrolled, according to Dr. Jo Ivey Boufford, president of Health and Hospitals Corp., the city agency that runs Bellevue.

She said security at the 1,200-bed complex would be reviewed but an initial check found nothing out of the ordinary at the time of the murder.

"Hospitals are not prisons, they have to be open environments to a degree, for the people to get their work done," she said. Hinnant had been struck in the face and had her nose broken, then was strangled with an appliance cord and raped, authorities said.

Smith told investigators a man he identified only as John participated in the assault and raped Hinnant, but Ward said police had "not even confirmed that this person exists other than in the mind of Steven Smith."

Apparently Hinnant kept the door of her windowless office ajar with a small box, police said. Smith told detectives he and John walked by, then returned to talk to the physician.

She didn't have to work Saturday, but "she did it because she was always looking for this extra mile and that extra piece of excellence she could give," said Dr. John Pearson, Bellevue's chief pathologist.

"Whoever did this wiped out a brilliant mind," the doctor's father, Thad Hinnant, said from his home in Columbia, S.C. "I just can't imagine it."

Official accused of fraud went as far as he could ...

By BRIAN S. AKRE
Associated Press Writer

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — When Carl Keyser Jr. applied for the city administrator's job in the small Alaska town of Kake, officials jumped at the chance to hire him after reviewing his impressive, four-page resume.

Months later, they learned Kake was just the latest and most remote stop in Keyser's cross-country government career, a career officials say was based on phony resumes and bogus reference calls.

Kake is a fishing and timber town of 665 residents, mostly Tlingit Indians, about 75 miles south of Juneau on the northern tip of Kupreanof Island.

It is about as far as Keyser could have gone from his last job, a six-day stint as city manager of Pikeville, Ky., and remain in North America.

Keyser left the Kentucky post in August after the news media uncovered discrepancies in his resume. Kake officials hired him in October, unaware he was wanted on a fugitive warrant from Pikeville.

They also did not know Keyser had pleaded guilty last January to a misdemeanor perjury charge for lying in sworn statements he made while applying for police chief in Oak Hill, Fla.

Keyser, a Huntington, W.Va., native, is being held under $10,000 bail at the jail in Petersburg, south of Kake, where last week officials filed a first-degree theft charge.

Keyser, 34, declined a request for an interview made through a jailer last week.

However, in a tearful interview two weeks ago with radio station KFSK, he maintained his innocence and suggested he was a victim of a conspiracy in Pikeville. "It's a situation where the press and some of the officials there want to make some type of example of me," he said. "It doesn't make any sense."

Pikeville charged Keyser with theft by deception for failure to reimburse the city for $697 in travel expenses. He said he would have returned the money had officials asked.

"But, no, they go and do something like this and look all over the country to try to find me to see what they can do to hurt me and my family," he said.

Keyser's wife, Sheila, and their four young daughters are staying in an apartment provided by the Salvation Army.

The Alaska charge alleges that Keyser falsified his resume and obtained about $28,000 in salary and expenses from the city.

"Nearly every aspect of his resume was not true," District Attorney Mark Ellis said.

Keyser listed master's and bachelor's degrees in public administration from La Salle University in Philadelphia. He also listed experience as a consultant to the International City Managers Association and the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Officials say there is no record that Keyser attended the university or worked for the associations.

In October, the city managers' group issued a warning about Keyser, urging members to investigate applicant's resumes.

It was that warning that alerted Kake officials, and led to his firing in December, the day after his arrest on the fugitive warrant.

Kake residents became suspicious shortly after Keyser arrived to take the $44,000-a-year administrator's job.

After the City Council authorized Keyser to buy a residence, he bought a luxurious $66,000 double mobile home that was more than the council expected.

"Carl just seemed to be living beyond our means," said resident Mike Jackson.

Astronomers find black widow star

BOSTON (AP) — Astronomers have spotted a star as it devoured its companion orb, and perhaps solved a celestial mystery.

Scientists have long argued about how some superdense stars called pulsars could get themselves spinning hundreds of times a second. The question may now be answered by the discovery of a black widow binary — a star that like the spider uses its companion and then destroys it.

If current theories are correct, the star represents a celestial missing link, a bridge between fast-spinning stars that have mates and those that do not.

The combination of the star and its companion, labeled PSR 1567-20 in astronomers' shorthand, was detected last spring by Andrew Fruchter of the Carnegie Institution in Washington.

At a meeting Monday of the American Astronomical Society, scientists described the significance of the find in understanding the life and death of the stars.

The duo is made up of a pulsar, an incredibly dense dead star that transmits rhythmic beats of radar. It is orbited by a much larger ordinary star known as a brown dwarf.

Astronomers have evidence that the pulsar is transmitting a powerful blast of energy that is literally blowing its companion away. They believe this is the late phase of a long, one-sided relationship between the two in which the pulsar steals matter from its mate to boost its speed, then turns on it with a blaze of atomic particles.

"The companion is being destroyed," said Frederic A. Rasio of Cornell University. "It is constantly losing matter. Eventually it could completely disappear."

The pulsar is one of six known pulsars that spin extremely rapidly. The newly discovered pair is important because they seem to help explain how they get to spin so fast.

"It offers a missing link between two classes of objects," said Steve Maran of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center. "That's why astronomers are so excited."

A pulsar is the collapsed remains of a large star that has exploded in a spectacular disaster called a supernova. Pulsars emit no light, but broadcast twin rotating beams of radar.

While a pulsar is only 14 miles across, its mass is 50 percent greater than the sun. One teaspoon of pulsar matter weighs billions of tons.

Most pulsars spin about once a second and are slowing down.

However, the newly discovered one spins about 600 times a second.

Astronomers theorize that such fast-moving pulsars speed up by stealing a stream of matter from a companion star. The companion "spins up the pulsar like a top," said Fruchter.

However, astronomers have noticed while some of these fast-spinning pulsars have companions, others do not.

"People wondered, 'If you spin up the pulsar with a companion, where is the companion?'" said Fruchter. "This may explain that. The pulsar has evaporated the companion."

In the newly spotted couple, the companion is close to the pulsar, a distance of only 2 1/2 times the sun's diameter. Yet it is being bombarded with atomic particles 5,000 times more intense than the sun.

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

U.S. Gov't Approves Patent Claims for New Diet Pill

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" you steady fat loss and caloric reduction by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

The U.S. government has just approved the doctors' claims for a hard-to-get patent that confirms "there has never been anything like their fat-bonding pill process before." It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough and is revolutionizing the weight loss industry.

You Can "Eat Normally"

Best of all, "you can continue to eat your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat and reduce calories from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire without exercising."

Flushes Fat Out of Body

The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles. Then, all the trapped fat and calories are naturally "flushed" right out of your body because they cannot be absorbed.

Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.

"Automatically" Lose Fat

According to one of the inventors, Dr. William Shell, heart specialist and associate professor of medicine at UCLA medical school, "the new fat-bonding process is a "lazy way" to lose weight because the pills alone "automatically" reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat. It is 100% safe and not a drug."

The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with glowing reports of weight loss of formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slimmer, trimmer and more attractive again.

Now Available to the Public

If you are trying to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these "no-risk" highly successful fat-magnet pills directly from the doctors' exclusive manufacturer only (includes optional calorie-reduction plan for even better results). Send $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$3 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling). to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W992, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Experts puzzle over 10-million-to-one crash of new jetliner

By ROBERT BARR
Associated Press Writer

KEGWORTH, England (AP)— Experts examining the flight recorders and wreckage of a British jetliner puzzled over how a brand-new Boeing 737 apparently lost use of both engines and crashed, against 10-million-to-one odds, killing 44 people.

Transport Minister Paul Channon said no evidence of sabotage surfaced in the British Midland Airways disaster, but Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher would not rule it out. "We rule out nothing — we simply can't," she said.

Pilot Kevin Hunt crash-landed the Belfast-bound jet at the edge of a major highway Sunday night, barely avoiding the village of Kegworth at the edge of East Midlands Airport.

The badly injured flier was being hailed today for his skill.

Investigators' work should be greatly assisted by the survival of Hunt and 81 others on board, many of whom were well enough Monday to describe the last minutes of Flight BD92 as Hunt struggled to make an emergency landing.

Survivor Dr. John McCrea said they had been on the plane for 10 or 12 minutes when "I felt a shudder and I looked over at the left wing," and saw flames. The pilot told them he had shut the engine down and was diverting to East Midlands.

"We went on flying for a further five minutes," McCrea said. "The plane seemed to drop. ... We carried on two or three minutes and there were more flashes over the left side."

Then the captain told passengers to prepare for an emergency landing. "It seemed like only five seconds later we were down," said McCrea.

The plane crashed a half-mile short of the runway, plowing into a grassy embankment at the edge of the M1 highway 100 miles north of London.

Hunt, 43, a 22-year veteran with the airline, was in poor condition with spine and leg fractures.

Credit for the high survival rate was being given to Hunt's flying, to airport firefighters who smothered the burning engine and fuel-laden wings in foam within minutes, and to motorists who rushed from cars to help.

Mrs. Thatcher visited hospitalized passengers at Derby Royal Infirmary on Monday, talked with relatives of those killed and went to the scene, where the broken blue and white fuselage lay crumpled among the trees.

Last month she was in Lockerbie, Scotland, the village struck by wreckage when a bomb blew apart a Pan Am jumbo jet on Dec. 21, killing 270 people. She said Monday that she "almost couldn't believe it" when she heard about the new crash.

Channon, who also inspected the Kegworth scene, said, "So far the evidence, although by no means conclusive, is consistent with the right engine having stopped before impact and there are also signs of fire in the left engine."

Asked whether it was almost certain that both engines malfunctioned, the transport minister replied: "That certainly looks probable at the moment."

William Tench, retired head of Britain's Air Accidents Investigation Board, said the odds against a double engine failure on a Boeing 737 were 10 million-to-1. He suggested a "technical mistake such as something incorrect being done to the engines during turnaround (servicing between flights), either inadvertently or deliberately."

Freddie Yetman, spokesman for the British Airline Pilots' Association, said a double-engine failure was "astonishing" and would put the pilot in "uncharted territory."

"You just don't train for something like this," he said.

New emperor vows to work for peace

TOKYO (AP)— Emperor Akihito Monday set the tone for his reign by pledging to work for peace and preserve Japanese democracy, but said he faced "awesome responsibilities" after the death of his father, Hirohito.

The four-minute speech was Akihito's first public statement since he ascended the Chrysanthemum Throne when Hirohito died of cancer Saturday at age 87. It was delivered at the Imperial Palace during a simple ceremony attended by Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita and 237 other dignitaries.

Outside, hundreds of thousand of Japanese streamed past to pay their respects to Hirohito, who reigned for 62 years.

"Shrouded in sorrow and overwhelmed by the awesome responsibilities I undertake, I stand humble before you," said Akihito, who was clad in a black cutaway and gray trousers.

"I pledge myself to continue in the spirit of his late majesty, making his desire to constantly be at one with the people my desire as well, joining together with you to preserve the constitution of Japan, and thereby execute my duties faithfully," he added.

Japan's post-war constitution, which bans the emperor from any role in government and limits him to ceremonial functions, formed the basis for the country's democracy. It limits the emperor's role to signing bills into law and serving as "symbol of the state and the unity of the people."

"I do fervently desire the further development of Japan, peace on Earth and enhanced well-being for all peoples," Akihito said.

He spoke clearly and solemnly, with the new Empress Michiko, 54, on his left wearing a black dress and veil and their son, Crown Prince Naruhito, 28, on his right.

By Japanese tradition, Akihito's statement was his first Imperial Rescript, in which a new emperor sets a tone for his reign.

The rite, in the palace's main ceremonial hall, was an important milestone in the transition to Akihito's new imperial era of Heisei, or "Achieving Peace."

On Sunday, Hirohito's body was wrapped in a white cloth and placed in a coffin made of Japanese cypress at the palace in preparation for the Feb. 24 burial. Representatives of more than 130 countries, including up to 50 heads of state or government, are expected to attend.

Hirohito's era, called Showa, or "Enlightened Peace," ended with his death, and according to Japanese tradition he becomes known as Emperor Showa. His reign stretched from Japan's descent into militarism and defeat in World War II to its impressive recovery into an economic superpower.

Thousands of police were deployed Monday to prevent violence by radical leftist and rightist groups, for whom the emperor embodies Japanese militarism and nationalism.

Police arrest reputed drug lord Ontiveros

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP)— Police believe they have one of the border's most notorious drug traffickers behind bars, and they want to keep him there this time.

Gilberto Ontiveros Lucero was arrested on drug charges about 9:30 a.m. CST Monday at a house in Juarez, said Esteban Garcia Villalon, coordinator of the Mexican federal judicial police's anti-drug campaign in Chihuahua state.

It marked Ontiveros' second arrest on drug-trafficking charges in less than three years. He was jailed in April 1986, but a Juarez federal judge dropped all the charges last May and set Ontiveros free.

About 45 to 50 federal police officers began searching for Ontiveros Dec. 29, after police found nearly eight tons of marijuana in some warehouses in south Juarez. Officials believe Ontiveros was planning to smuggle the Mexican marijuana into the United States.

Garcia said he hopes Ontiveros faces the wrath of the law in his second brush with it.

"If the judge finds him guilty — which we hope happens — he will get the sentence he deserves," he said.

Ontiveros, nicknamed "El Grenas," or "The Mophead," for his shaggy mane of black hair, was in the company of a young American woman when he was arrested at the home of the mother of a bodyguard, Garcia said.

Police seized two AK-47 assault rifles and three pistols, all loaded, during their search of the house, Garcia said. A few hours later they seized a Cessna Conquest airplane at the Juarez airport and arrested two pilots from the Gulf port of Tampico, Garcia said, adding the pilots had been hired to fly Ontiveros to Mexico City.

Ontiveros is believed to smuggle marijuana by the ton and cocaine in loads of hundreds of pounds each, said Phil Jordan, district director of the Drug Enforcement Administration in Dallas.

"He is considered one of our most significant fugitives operating out of the Texas-U.S. border," Jordan said.

Mothers March is this month

LOS ANGELES — Every two minutes, a baby is born in the United States with a birth defect, a leading cause of infant mortality in this country. The U.S. infant mortality rate is alarmingly high. According to the March of Dimes, more than 40,000 babies a year die before they're a year old.

This month, the March of Dimes continues its commitment to preventing birth defects — and giving every baby a healthy start in life — through the annual Mothers March fund-raising campaign. This national door-to-door campaign raises more than $9 million annually and funds research and prenatal care programs to prevent birth defects. This year, the Mothers March will receive a helping hand, and a fund-raising boost, from Kentucky Fried Chicken, the national sponsor of the March and a long-time supporter of the March of Dimes.

Kentucky Fried Chicken will underwrite educational materials to be distributed by the 600,000 Mothers March volunteers to the 13 million homes they will visit to request donations. These educational materials, which should reach 39 million American men and women, are intended to help raise awareness in this country about the need for adequate prenatal care to prevent premature birth, birth defects and infant mortality.

According to the March of Dimes, adequate prenatal care is the key to reducing low birth weight, which can lead to birth defects and infant mortality. The March of Dimes suggests the following general advice for pregnant women:

- See a doctor early and often during pregnancy.
- Don't drink or smoke during your pregnancy.

Colonel Harland Sanders of Kentucky Fried Chicken, shown here with a March of Dimes poster child, was a supporter of the March of Dimes and the prevention of birth defects.

- Exercise moderately. To coincide with the Mothers March effort, 4,500 Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants nationwide will conduct a simultaneous fund-raising drive. Restaurants will encourage the public to participate in the campaign via window displays and canisters for customer contributions. Kentucky Fried Chicken will also distribute public service announcements about the March of Dimes campaign to radio and television stations, as well as stage fund-raising events with local Mothers March chapters.
- Eat a balanced diet.

"Birth defects are this country's number one child health problem," said Don Solomon, chairman of the Kentucky Fried Chicken National Cooperative Advertising Program, Inc. "The Kentucky Fried Chicken family contributes enthusiastically to the March of Dimes in the memory of Colonel Harland Sanders, whose personal dream was that every child have a healthy start in life."

Since 1979, the Colonel Sanders Memorial March of Dimes campaign has raised more than $7 million for the March of Dimes. Nearly $2.7 million has gone to the Colonel Sanders Memorial Endowment Fund to provide a perpetual source of funds for ongoing research grants to scientists battling birth defects.

The March of Dimes — formed in 1938 to fight the polio epidemic — is the only organization which has conquered the disease it set out to eliminate. In 1958, the March of Dimes redirected its focus to preventing birth defects. Today, the March of Dimes supports prenatal care programs, genetic counseling and research into the causes of birth defects.

The Golden Spread Chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation is headquartered at 2911 S. Georgia, Amarillo, phone 355-5321.

Migraine sufferer objects to magazine fragrance inserts

DEAR ABBY: Today when I received my TV Guide, a sample of a fragrance for men had been inserted, bound into the other pages. The instructions were to tear a portion of the ad to "release" the fragrance. However, this was unnecessary because the moment the mail came through the slot and plopped to the floor I began to cough and wheeze. In less time than it takes to say, "Lord, spare me!" I had a full-blown migraine headache!

I have also received soap and fabric softener through the mail. When I had a rural mailbox, I had to disinfect it regularly to combat the fumes of these offenders — which to me are extremely dangerous.

Abby, there are millions of folks with severe allergies, asthma, migraine headaches and probably other health conditions that are aggravated by such odors, and we spend a good deal of time trying to avoid them. Many of us cannot attend concerts, church, nightclubs or ride in elevators. We also spend big bucks for allergy shots. (I get two every week.)

It's bad enough that we must live life constantly fighting the silent but deadly enemy — but is it really necessary to invade the privacy of our homes and attack us where it hurts the most?

Abby, please say something about the problem of these "scented samples" that invade the U.S. mail! Sign me ...

CHOKING

DEAR CHOKING: Those "free sample" ad campaigns must cost the fragrance folks an arm and a leg, which is nothing to sniff at. If the army of allergics were to join forces and do a little lobbying, they would create a stink that no one could ignore.

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations on a good answer to the new wife who wanted her husband to drop his ex-in-laws.

My ex-in-laws are very dear to me. When I was first divorced, broke and jobless, with two kids and a worthless ex-husband who refused to pay child support, my ex-husband's older sister helped me go back to school. She gave me a place to live, helped with expenses and even paid the kids' orthodontist bills. She is not rich. She simply cared, and I will never be able to repay her for all she did, and still does.

Another of his sisters pays for my kids' piano lessons. She lives in another state, but she calls frequently to check on their progress and to see how we're doing. We see her whenever we can, and I value her friendship.

My ex-mother-in-law always invites me for Christmas and to stay overnight whenever we are vacationing in her state. She is welcome in my home anytime.

None of these relationships have anything to do with my ex-husband, from whom I parted with some bitterness eight years ago.

If I should remarry, I would expect to see my ex-in-laws — all of them (his mother, five brothers and sisters and all of their children) — in the front row at the wedding ceremony. These people were, are and always will be my family.

DEAR ABBY: For years, I used to shoot birds — just for sport. I am enclosing the poem that convinced me to give up that sport. Some people may think the poem is

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

"corny," but it had a powerful effect on me.

I came across it in the Chronicle, in Crested Butte, Colo. It was written by Lem Ward Crisfield, M.D.

DISARMED IN WISCONSIN

A HUNTER'S POEM
A hunter shot at a flock of geese
That flew within his reach.
Two were stopped in their rapid flight
And fell on the sandy beach.
The male bird lay at the water's edge

And just before he died
He faintly called to his wounded mate
And she dragged herself to his side.
She bent her head and crooned to him
In a way distressed and wild
Caressing her one and only mate
As a mother would a child.
Then covering him with her broken wing
And gasping with failing breath
She laid her head against his breast
A feeble honk ... then death.
This story is true though crudely told

I was the man in this case.
I stood knee deep in snow and cold
And the hot tears burned my face.
I buried the birds in the sand where they lay
Wrapped in my hunting coat
And I threw my gun and belt in the bay
When I crossed in the open boat.
Hunters will call me a right poor sport
And scoff at the thing I did.
But that day something broke in my heart
And shoot again? God forbid!

Bench, Yaz elected to Hall of Fame

By JIM DONAGHY
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Move over Ty, Willie, Babe and Hank. Johnny and Yaz have reached your lofty level, too.

The election of Johnny Bench and Carl Yastrzemski to the Hall of Fame Monday night was no surprise. The number of votes they got was.

Bench received 431 votes from 447 ballots cast by members of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Yastrzemski got 423 votes. The size of their mandate put Bench and Yastrzemski in the upper echelon of baseball's superstars.

In order to be elected to the Hall of Fame, a player must be named on 75 percent of the ballots cast. Of the record 447 ballots this year, a player needed 336 votes to be elected.

Bench got 96.4 percent and Yastrzemski 94.63. Only Ty Cobb, 98.2 percent (222 of 226), and Hank Aaron, 97.8 (406 of 415), received higher percentages than Bench.

Yastrzemski's percentage was the seventh-highest ever after Honus Wagner (95.13), Babe Ruth (95.13) and Willie Mays (94.67).

Bench and Yastrzemski also set a record for number of votes received. Mays had the previous mark for most votes, with 409 in 1979.

"There's a finality to it all, to reach a level so few people reach," Bench said after learning of his election. "I didn't think of percentage. ... I was just concerned with getting 75 percent. It's pretty elite company to be mentioned with Cobb and Aaron. It's hallowed ground in Cooperstown.

"Mickey Mantle was my first idol, but I played with a lot of special people — Clemente, Stargell and my teammates with the Reds — Rose, Morgan, Perez, Concepcion," Bench said.

Only one other player in this year's balloting received as many as 300 votes. Gaylord Perry, winner of 314 games, finished third with 304 and missed election by 32 votes.

"It's a thrill. It's the culmination of many years of hard work. It's something, as a player, you don't think about," Yastrzemski said of his election. "I was hoping it wouldn't be a disappointment. I was on guard about it. I'm sorry that Perry and Ferguson Jenkins didn't make it."

The election of Bench and Yastrzemski marks only the third time since 1936 that two players have been elected in their first year of eligibility.

Induction ceremonies at the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., are scheduled for July 23.

Coincidentally, Cincinnati and Boston will play in the annual game on July 24.

Bench was selected the NL's starting catcher for the 1969 All-Star Game at the age of 22. Before he retired, everybody knew about him.

He holds the record for most homers by a catcher, 327. Overall, Bench hit 389 home runs and won the Gold Glove as catcher 10 times while helping the Reds win four pennants and the World Series in 1975 and 1976.

Bell returns to Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP)— A Texas Rangers official, calling former third baseman Buddy Bell one of the team's most popular players ever, says Bell agreed to return on a one-year contract for the 1989 season.

"We are very pleased to welcome Buddy Bell back to the Texas Rangers," Tom Grieve, Rangers vice president and general manager, said Monday in announcing the deal. "Buddy's experience will be a real asset to our club in 1989."

The 37-year-old infielder played for the Rangers from 1979 to July 1985. He became a free agent after his 1988 club, the Houston Astros, failed to offer him a 1989 contract by the Dec. 20 deadline.

"He will be utilized in a designated hitter role and will also give us added versatility at both first and third base," said Grieve. "Buddy is one of the most popular players to ever wear a Rangers' uniform and we are happy to be able to sign him."

No other terms of the deal were disclosed. The Rangers, with Bell's signing, have 13 of 37 players on their roster under contract for 1989.

Bell, in his earlier stint with the Rangers, batted .295 with 87 homers and 496 RBI in 924 games. He won three team "Player of the Year" awards from 1979 to 1982.

"At the winter meetings in Atlanta, one of his agents came up and said that Buddy had a strong desire to return to the Rangers," said Grieve.

Bengal's quick snap tactic won't be outlawed

By JOE KAY
AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI— The Cincinnati Bengals will be able to use their quick-snap attack in the Super Bowl.

The National Football League says the pre-game statement that prompted the Bengals to drop the quick snap from their game plan in the AFC Championship game resulted in a misunderstanding.

"The Bengals can have a quick snap," league spokesman Joe Browne said Monday evening.

Browne said the Bengals could have used the quick snap in their 21-10 victory Sunday over Buffalo at Riverfront Stadium, and that the league didn't intend to outlaw the tactic.

"I think there was miscommunication all around, including on the part of our office," Browne said.

The Bengals will be allowed to use the quick snap in the Super Bowl against San Francisco as long as they aren't in the process of changing offensive players when they decide to do so, Browne said.

The quick snap became the subject of a weeklong controversy building up to the AFC title game. Bills coach Wally Lewis complained about the quick snap, used by the Bengals to get a penalty against a defense for too many men on the field.

Bengals coach Sam Wyche defended the quick snap as legal, and said he was angry when league officials released a statement before the game that seemed to outlaw it.

The statement said that a play would be nullified "if it is deemed by the game officials that the offense gained an unreasonable and unfair advantage by a quick snap of the ball, e.g. a quick snap which is intended to cause the defense to be penalized for too many players on the field."

That's the intent of the quick snap, so the Bengals didn't use it during the championship game for fear of being penalized. They did use their no-huddle offense, which wasn't affected by the ruling.

Wyche said Monday he was still troubled by the way the ruling was handed down before the championship game, and he wanted the quick snap allowed for the Super Bowl.

"I would hope that the Super Bowl will be played under the same rules as the regular season," Wyche said.

The quick snap is part of the Bengals' no-huddle offense. The Bengals gather near the line of scrimmage — in what they call their "sugar huddle" — then set up quickly and snap the ball if they see the opponent starting to make defensive substitutions, resulting in a penalty on the defense for too many men on the field.

The no-huddle approach is designed to prevent defenses from bringing in extra defensive backs or different linemen or linebackers for the next play. The Bengals use the no-huddle much more than any other NFL team — about 50 percent of the time, Wyche estimates.

Browne said Monday evening that the Bengals can have a quick snap to get a penalty on the defense, so long as they're not changing offensive players when they decided to quick snap. That means the Bengals can quick snap if they don't change their 11 offensive players on the field, or they can do so after completing a substitution.

Browne said they won't be permitted to start bringing substitutes on the field, then wave them back off in order to quick snap.

Area athletes earn Class 1A all-state football honors

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Writer

Area athletes fared well in the Class 1A Texas Sports Writers Association All-State football picks for the 1988 season.

Two players from the state champion White Deer Bucks, Bart Thomas and Brady Burns, were named First Team Offense, while Chad Bentley of Wheeler made First Team Defense.

White Deer's Bryan Waitman was voted Second Team Offense, Follett's Justin Jordan captured Third Team Defense honors, and nine other area players got the nod for Honorable Mention.

Bart Thomas was named First Team quarterback for his role in leading White Deer to the state championship. For the third straight year, a player from the Texas Panhandle has been picked as the top Class 1A quarterback in the state.

On the season, Thomas, a 6-1, 190-pound senior, rushed for 967 yards and 21 touchdowns on 181 carries for an average of 5.34 yards per attempt. Through the air, the Buck quarterback completed 62 of 130 passes for a total of 1,041 yards and 10 touchdowns, averaging 16.3 yards a completion.

More importantly, Thomas came up with some big plays during the playoffs and the state final game. Against Garden City in the regional semifinals, Thomas intercepted a two-point conversion pass that left the Bearcats trailing 21-20 and sent the Bucks on to the Regional finals.

In the state championship game, the Bucks trailed 13-6 and faced a fourth-and-five situation that threatened to end the season. But Thomas swept right and picked up six yards to keep the winning drive alive. Four plays later, Thomas bolted left on a keeper and made it seven yards to the endzone to bring White Deer within one. From there, the Bucks ran the now infamous swinging gate to capture the state crown, 14-13.

Brady Burns, a 6-1, 220-pound senior, captured First Team Offensive guard honors. Burns was instrumental in making the Bucks the biggest ground threat in the state as he created enough daylight for White Deer to gain 4,173 yards rushing on the season.

In all, White Deer averaged 350.5 total yards per game, and it was no secret that the Bucks liked to go to the right side behind Burns in his right guard slot.

Chad Bentley of Wheeler was named First Team Defense for his performance as middle linebacker for the Mustangs. Although not overly large, the 5-11, 165-pound senior has a nose for the ball, collecting 160 tackles on the year.

Bentley, who was a starter for the 1987 state champion Mustangs, also captured Honorable Mention for his role as offensive guard.

Bryan Waitman of White Deer was voted Second Team Offense as a running back. Waitman, a 5-11, 190-pound senior, was the Bucks' leading rusher this season, pounding out 1,353 yards and 15 touchdowns on 197 carries for an average of 6.9 yards per attempt. He also led White Deer in receiving yardage, posting 440 yards and five TDs on 17 catches.

Justin Jordan, a 5-11, 207-pound senior from Follett, made the Third Team defensive line.

Nine other area players were selected to the All-State Honorable mention team including, on offense, Chad Bentley of Wheeler (guard), Lee Barrett of White Deer and Justin Jordan of Follett (tackles), Darren Todd of Follett (tight end) and Shane Guest of Wheeler (running back).

On defense, area players include Kelly Cherry of Follett and Hector DeSantiago of Gruver (linebackers), Darren Todd of Follett (back) and Bart Thomas of White Deer (punter).

Lidy, Cornelsen garner PSHOF track honors

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

For the second year in a row, Pampa's Tanya Lidy has been named as the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame track athlete of the year.

Lidy won't be the only one from Pampa honored. She will be joined by her former coach, Gary Cornelsen. Cornelsen, who is now head boys' track coach at Liberal, Kans., was named track coach of the year.

The pair will be honored during PSHOF ceremonies at 2 p.m. Sunday at Amarillo College's Ordway Auditorium.

Cornelsen twice guided the Lady Harvesters to Class 4A track titles in 1988 and 1986. His '87 team were runnersup.

"That first year (1985) actually set the tempo for the next three. I had to do a lot of yelling until I got them at the level I thought they should be. After that, about all I did was just stand back and push the stopwatch," Cornelsen said. Last May, Cornelsen's Pampa squad scored 68 points to edge out Brenham by six points. At the '86 state meet, it was between Pampa and Brenham again with the Lady Harvesters winning out 78-72. It was Brenham's turn in '87 and the margin was again six, 72-66.

"The most amazing thing about that '88 team was their consistency," Cornelsen said. "They just didn't have any bad performances. They made some mistakes in regionals, but they were able to pick themselves up and overcome that adversity. I've coached track for 15 years and these Pampa girls' teams were the most consistent I've ever seen."

Cornelsen, an Oklahoma native and a graduate of Panhandle State University in Goodwell, coached at Pampa for six years. "We had a lot of young kids who really came through for us. With Tanya providing the leadership, they set their goal to win state," Cornelsen said.

Cornelsen compared his situation with the one at Levelland, where basketball coach Dean Weese has guided the Lady Lobos to three consecutive state championships.

"When coach Weese told the kids something, they believed him because he's been to the top before. That's the way it was with coach (Mike) Lopez and I," Cornelsen said.

Lidy, now a freshman at the University of Nebraska, was the star of all three of those statebound Pampa teams. She was a three-time state champion in the 200 and anchored Pampa's winning 400 and 800-meter relay teams.

Lidy, who is home for the holidays, said she was surprised to be selected for a second time.

"I just figured they would pick someone else," she said.

In four years as a Lady Harvester, Lidy claimed 14 medals (seven of them gold) at the state meet in Austin. Lidy closed out her senior year in a blaze of glory at the '88 state meet, scoring 36 points.

Lidy, who holds the all-time area marks in the 200 (23.9) and long jump (20.2), said she was honored to be chosen again.

"Tanya was our super star, our 'Larry Bird,' so to speak. We built the team around her for four years, but I could name 15 or 20 kids who had the same character as Lidy. They worked hard to reach the top," Cornelsen said.

Cornelsen said he owns a lot to his assistant coach and successor, Mike Lopez.

"I learned a lot about coaching track from him. He's an excellent coach and he's great with the kids," Cornelsen said.

Lidy is only the second athlete from Pampa to capture PSHOF track honors. Olympic gold medal winner Randy Matson was honored four times (1962-65).

Cornelsen is the third Pampian to earn track coach of the year honors. The others were Ed Lehnick (1972) and Dwain Lyon (1959).

Villanova's Rodney Taylor tries to force his way to the basket.

Villanova slips by Syracuse

Sooners, Jayhawks survive close calls

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Big Eight Conference powers Oklahoma and Kansas just scraped by. Fourth-ranked Syracuse of the Big East wasn't as fortunate.

"We escaped," Stacey King said after coming off the bench to score 21 points in No. 3 Oklahoma's 89-81 victory over Nebraska. "They had a great crowd and we knew if we won one here, we'll be OK."

No. 16 Kansas needed an overtime to squeeze past Southern Methodist 90-82.

Villanova did exactly what Coach Rollie Massimino wanted, targeting Syracuse's Sherman Douglas and Stephen Douglas and sending the No. 4 Orangemen to a 75-73 defeat.

"The game plan worked perfectly," Villanova guard Doug West said.

Douglas led all scorers with 27, including nine in the final 76 seconds. But the Wildcats held Thompson, who had led Syracuse with a 19.4 average, to only two points.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, it was No. 9 Louisville 82, Virginia Tech 73; No. 11 Nevada-Las Vegas 83, Pacific 63, and No. 18 Ohio State 108, Radford 61.

Villanova 75, No. 4 Syracuse 73. The Wildcats, 9-6, slowed down the tempo and stayed close after trailing by two points at halftime. Villanova moved out to a nine-point second-half lead over Syracuse, 14-2, then held on down the stretch.

Kenny Wilson scored 20 points and West had 14 as five Wildcats scored in double figures.

No. 3 Oklahoma 89, Nebraska 81. King's three-point play gave Oklahoma the lead for good with 2:40 left in the game.

Terrence Mullins led the Sooners with 27 points and King had 21.

Nebraska, 9-5, led 78-75 when Rich King, who had a career-high 21 points for Nebraska, made a pair of free throws with 3:04 remaining. But the Sooners followed with a 12-2 run to run their record to 13-1.

No. 16 Kansas 90, Southern Methodist 82, OT

Kevin Pritchard scored eight of his 16 points in overtime, including two 3-point baskets, to lead Kansas, 13-1, to its victory. Mark Randall led Kansas with 21 points, 16 coming after the half.

SMU's Glenn Puddy scored with 1:07 left in regulation to tie the score at 78. Southern Methodist, 5-5, had a chance to win the game in regulation, but missed a shot, as did Kansas' Milt Newton.

Kato Armstrong led SMU with 34 points, including six 3-point baskets.

No. 9 Louisville 82, Virginia Tech 73

Pervis Ellison scored 18 points and Kenny Payne had 13 to lead Louisville, 10-2, over Virginia Tech, 6-6, in the Metro Conference opener for both teams. Ellison's hook shot with 6:08 left to play put Louisville up 64-63 and Virginia Tech never regained the advantage.

Wally Lancaster paced Virginia Tech with 23 points and Bimbo Coles had 18.

Virginia Tech was within 71-69 with two minutes to play when the Cardinals finally broke the game open.

No. 11 Nevada-Las Vegas 83, Pacific 61

Stacey Augmon scored 15 points and grabbed eight rebounds to lead Nevada-Las Vegas to a Big West Conference victory over Pacific. Chris Fox led Pacific with 14 points.

The win was the eighth straight for the Rebels, 5-0 in Big West play and 10-2 overall. The Tigers are 0-3 in conference play and 4-7 overall. They have lost 26 consecutive conference games over the last three seasons.

No. 18 Ohio State 108, Radford 61

Jay Burson's 29 points led Ohio State to an easy victory over Radford, a member of the Big South Conference. Leading 16-11, Ohio State hit 12 of its next 14 shots to take a 42-18 lead.

Ohio State, 11-3, never led by fewer than 28 points in the second half as its snapped Radford's four-game winning streak.

Stephen Barber led the Highlanders, 9-3, with 14 points.

Others
At Miami, Chris Cheeks scored

31 points and Virginia Commonwealth hit 13 of 19 free throws in the final 4:35 to beat Miami 87-77 in the Rams' first game since the death of player Mike Brown.

At Carrollton, Ga., Jacksonville State coach Bill Jones earned his 300th victory when his Gamecocks, 11-1, defeated West Georgia 77-69 in a Gulf South Conference game. Jones is 300-141 in a 17-year coaching career.

At Norfolk, Va., Anthony Carver scored 29 points and made a school-record nine 3-point baskets to lead Old Dominion over George Washington 88-62. The loss ran George Washington's record to 0-11.

Keith Robinson came off the bench to score 20 points and lead visiting Notre Dame to an 80-58 victory over the Portland Pilots, extending the nation's longest major-college basketball losing streak to 20 games. Portland is 0-13 this season and went nine minutes, 17 seconds in the second half without scoring a point.

Hall of famer Terry dies

By HILLEL ITALIE
Associated Press Writer

When Bill Terry turned 90 last October, his thoughts turned to making the trip to Cooperstown for the summer's Hall of Fame ceremonies. But this year's induction will have to go on without one of baseball's greatest players.

Terry, the last National League player to bat .400, died Monday in Jacksonville, Fla., of natural causes. He was a first baseman with the New York Giants' from 1923-1936, batting .341 lifetime, and also managed the Giants from 1932-1941, winning three pennants and one World Series.

"I called him on his birthday and he told me he was planning so seriously for being in Cooperstown for the Hall of Fame this year," said Hal Schumacher, a star pitcher for the Giants in the 1930s who played with and under Terry. "He said, 'Hal, I'll see you in Cooperstown.'"

"He was one of the great men in sports, there was no doubt about it."

Terry, a left-handed hitter, batted .401 in 1930 and few National Leaguers have approached it since. Ted Williams is the last major league player to achieve the mark, batting .406 for the Boston Red Sox in 1941.

"Terry was a great hitter," said Leo Durocher, who played and managed against Terry. "He used all the field. He hit a lot of balls to left field. He would hit it toward shortstop but over the shortstop's head."

The first baseman drove in 100 or more runs for six consecutive seasons, starting in 1927, and finished his career with 1,078 RBIs. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1954.

Ironically, Terry almost quit baseball before he reached stardom. He began playing for Atlanta of the Southern League — before he was 16 years old — in 1914 as a pitcher.

"I still think I would have made a first-class pitcher," he once said, "but even for a left-hander, I found my control entirely too good. I simply couldn't keep that ball away from the other fellows' bats and right there I decided that if ever I hoped to get anywhere, it would have to be at the other end of the pitch."

Terry, nicknamed "Memphis Bill" for the city he grew up in, continued playing in the minors but left organized baseball in 1918 to begin operating a chain of gas stations for an oil company.

He returned to the game in 1922, and after minor-league stops in Toledo, Ohio, and Shreveport, La., joined the Giants in 1923.

For two seasons, Terry had to wait his turn while the Giants used George Kelly at first base. Terry, not lacking in confidence, kept pecking away at Manager John McGraw, precipitating the first of their many disputes.

Terry finally took over as the starting first baseman in 1925, batting .319 that year. He dipped to .289 the next season, the last year he hit under .300 in his career.
