Bush plans a private farewell with Reagan

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — His inaugural festivities launched amid thunderous fireworks over a sea of lights on the capital Mall, George Bush is spending his final day as vice president with plans for a private goodbye to the man he says helped make it all possible.

"It won't be too easy," Bush said of what could be his final private moment with President Reagan before he takes the oath of office.

President Reagan and his wife Nancy had a private farewell meeting with their White House staffers, bringing tears to their eyes.

On the eve of his inauguration as the 41st president, Bush was to meet at the White House with the outgoing chief executive as the focus of the nation's leadership was already beginning to shift.

A twilight inaugural extravaganza at the stately Lincoln Memorial on Wednesday was marked by a flyover of Navy jets, a massive fireworks display and music by the Beach Boys and other groups.

Many in the crowd waved penlights handed out for the event to represent Bush's campaign theme of "a thousand points of light."

Bush told the crowd that Reagan will be a hard act to follow.

"I am following a great president and a great presidency," he said.

"We're not coming in to correct the ills of the past. We're coming in to build on a proud record."

Bush tried to stress his commitment to social justice during several appearances Wednesday, as hundreds of homeless people protested outside the lavish banquets held for Republican boosters. Protesters outside one banquet at Union Station chanted "Feed the poor, not the rich."

"America is strong once again, but the job is not complete," Bush said at the Lincoln Memorial. "Some are still hurting. And we care."

Echoing a goal outlined at his victory celebration in Houston on election night, he declared: "I will try to be a president of all the people."

After a whirl of late-night partying on Wednesday, the president-elect planned a more subdued day today as the public inaugural festivities continued unabated.

The centerpiece of the day's activities is a $9 million nationally televised inaugural gala tonight before a black-tie audience of 12,000 people at the Kennedy Center.

The gala, to be attended by both

Bush and Vice President-elect Dan Quayle, will include entertainment by some of the biggest stars in show business, including singers Frank Sinatra, Anita Baker, Julio Iglesias and Loretta Lynn; ballet dancers Susan Jaffe and Mikhail Baryshnikov; actor Chuck Norris; cellist Yo Yo Ma; and the Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

Bush also was to attend a morning youth inaugural celebration, was viewed as a possible drop-in guest at a salute to Barbara Bush and planned a private dinner in the evening with family and friends.

He was coming to work at his vice presidential office at 7:15 a.m., as he usually does, and planned to meet with Reagan at 9:30 a.m., said spokeswoman Alixe Glen.

"He's going to spend most of his last day as vice president at the office," she said.

Police: School gunman hated Vietnamese

By STEVE GEISSINGER
Associated Press Writer

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A drifter who opened fire with an assault rifle on a crowded schoolyard, killing five children of Southeast Asian refugees, hated Vietnamese immigrants and believed they were robbing native-born Americans of jobs, a former co-worker said.

Patrick Edward Purdy, who wounded 30 others at Cleveland Elementary School before committing suicide Tuesday, was "seething" when he spoke about Vietnamese workers, Steve Sloan said.

"He said he hated Vietnamese," Sloan said in an interview in today's editions of the Sacramento Bee.

"He seemed really frustrated ... because here he was, being barely able to hold onto a job. I got the impression that the guy had it in for other minority people because they're able to come into our country," said Sloan, who said he spoke with Purdy at Numeri Tech, a Stockton machine shop where the killer worked for a few months early last year.

The Bee also reported that Purdy tried to commit suicide in jail in 1987 and was described in a subsequent mental health report as "a danger to his health and others."

Purdy was carrying a book about the white supremacist group Aryan Nations when he was arrested for firing a 9mm Browning semiautomatic pistol at trees near Lake Tahoe in April 1987, the newspaper reported.

He told an El Dorado County Sheriff's deputy that it was his "duty to help the suppressed and to overthrow the suppressor," according to arrest reports cited by the paper.

Once in jail, Purdy made a rope out of strips of his shirt, tried to hang himself but was discovered. He then tried to cut his wrists, the newspaper said.

In a subsequent mental health report, Purdy was described as dangerous and suffering from "mild mental retardation," the Bee also reported. Authorities say Purdy had a long criminal record.

Investigators could not be reached for comment early today.

A woman who called herself Purdy's best friend said the killer, whose clothes and guns bore radical Islamic slogans, was prone to bleak moods "where he didn't want to live."

"He had a bizarre attitude, kind of para-noid," said Kelley Riley, 25, described by residents as Purdy's frequent companion in late 1987 and early 1988. "he wanted to make it on his own (as a welder) but he couldn't. He'd get upset at things. He'd get mad at himself."

However, she said, Purdy was "nice" most of the time, would "just walk away when he was mad," was never violent toward anyone and never demonstrated an unusual interest in guns.

Authorities concede they may never know why Purdy, wearing a flak jacket, returned to the school of his youth.

Purdy, who police said was either 24 or 26, parked his station wagon behind the school and set it ablaze with a Molotov cocktail before entering the campus during midday recess.

After firing up to 110 shots from a bayonet-equipped, Chinese-made AK-47 assault rifle at hundreds of youngsters, he killed himself with a single pistol bullet to the head.

A 6-year-old boy remained in serious condition and 17 pupils and a teacher were in stable condition. The others wounded were treated at hospitals or at the scene and were released.

Authorities say Miami riot is 'contained'

By SCOTT MCCARTNEY
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Police patrolled in caravans and monitored only occasional gunshots, fires and window-breakings early today. City leaders, who set up a panel to investigate the shooting blamed for two nights of racial rioting, expressed hope that the worst was over.

"Things are very calm," Police Chief Perry Anderson said late Wednesday on ABC-TV's Nightline. "It's contained."

About 50 people were arrested by 1 a.m. today, but it was a night of marked contrast to Tuesday, when 325 youths were taken into custody, most for looting.

"There's nothing left to loot in there, and they've already shot out most of the street lights," said Coral Gables police Sgt. Wayne Harris. He was part of a 26-man force assembled to sweep the adjacent Coconut Grove neighborhood on Miami's south side after seven or eight gunshots were heard and two Molotov cocktails were tossed into roadways.

The sweep was called off, however, because the area quieted.

A few highway exit ramps remained blocked, and parts of Miami were still cordoned off at night.

In the Liberty City area on the city's north side, police received reports of car fires, smashed store windows, a minor fire at a fast-food restaurant and some rock- and bottle-throwing.

And in the Overtown section just north of downtown, where the riots began Monday night, a police "field force" took time for box lunches and television viewing on the hoods of squad cars.

City commissioners, meeting in emergency session Wednesday, appointed a panel with subpoena power to investigate the fatal shooting of an unarmed, 23-year-old black motorcyclist by a Hispanic policeman. And the sister of the motorcyclist's passenger, who died after the vehicle crashed, made a televised appeal for an end to the violence.

The rioting that followed the killing has left one person dead, eight shot, about 20 buildings burned and numerous others looted in the black neighborhoods.

It also has left image-conscious city officials scrambling to minimize the impact on Sunday's Super Bowl. The Cincinnati Bengals remained at their downtown hotel, just blocks from the Overtown disturbances.

"What has happened the last two days has certainly taken the glitter off the Super Bowl," said Dick Anderson, a former Miami Dolphin player and chairman of a host city committee spending $2 million this week to enhance Miami's image.

Police deployed about 450 officers, and worked to meet sporadic outbreaks of violence with shows of force. "Field forces" of officers clad in bullet-proof vests and riot gear were stationed on the edge of the riot-torn neighborhoods. Caravans of squad cars raced through the areas, and SWAT teams searched for troublemakers.

Speaking at the city commission meeting, Mayor Xavier Suarez apologized to police "for actions that may have endangered their lives unduly."

Suarez didn't elaborate at the meeting, but he told The New York Times that he may have erred when he allowed the sister of the dead motorcyclist to view her brother's body shortly after he was shot Monday night, the Times reported today. He said her reaction appeared to incite a group of nearby youths, who showered police with bottles.

"I took the sister over to the deceased," Suarez said. "I should have done that under more controlled circumstances. All the kids followed me. Things

Ex-Marines recall fallen comrades on visit to Khe Sanh

EDITOR'S NOTE — Six former U.S. Marines are in Vietnam on a sentimental visit to remember dead comrades and to help get rid of mines they planted two decades ago. Here is a report on their journey by George Esper, who spent 10 years covering the Vietnam War for The Associated Press and is on his second reporting trip there since.

By GEORGE ESPER
AP Special Correspondent

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — Twenty-one years ago in what is now only a heap of red dirt, U.S. Marines were crying out, "Corpsman! Corpsman! We've got wounded here!" as hundreds of artillery shells rained in on them.

It was here at Khe Sanh that U.S. Marines withstood a 77-day North Vietnamese siege in the winter and spring of 1968 in a classic battle of the Vietnam war, suffering more than 200 men killed and 1,600 wounded out of a garrison of 5,500.

Six of their former comrades, some of whom fought here, returned Tuesday to walk the same battlefield still strewn with shell casings and other leavings of war and to honor the men who died.

Standing in the fog-shrouded valley, in what was once the center of the base, restricted to a red dirt road because of land mines still around the area, surrounded by children, the Marines unfurled the American flag.

"There is no greater love than a man to give his life for another man," said Frank Noe, 40, of Stoughton, Mass., who served at Khe Sanh during the start of the siege. He then led the others in The Lord's Prayer.

"God bless all of those who gave their life at Khe Sanh," Noe said after the brief ceremony. "It's just a shame so many guys lost their lives not only here but all over the country."

"This was a hellhole, a pretty scary place to be. I sort of get that eerie feeling I had the last time I walked through this place. It brings back a little of that, especially with all this fog around."

All six were deeply moved as they visited Khe Sanh, one of a string of bases at which they served just below what was once the demilitarized zone that divided Vietnam into North and South at the 17th parallel during the war. The country was reunified in 1975 when with the Vietnamese communists' victory.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, the former commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, once characterized Khe Sanh as an important cork that bottled up North Vietnamese troops from moving eastward the south's populated coastal regions.

The Americans abandoned Khe Sanh after the siege was lifted and engineers from the 11th Marines, a battalion in which five of the men revisiting the site served, bulldozed the base.

The battalion planted 100,000 land mines, and the six Americans came to Vietnam to help get rid of those that remain concealed. They do not carry any equipment, but wanted to point out likely sites where mines may be concealed.

"This is a trip for me and all the other veterans to put this time in our lives to rest and say the land's at peace, the war's over, there's reconciliation between Vietnamese and Americans," said Mike Wallace, a 41-year-old farmer from Langdon, Kansas.

"I think we feel true peace now," said Gene Spanos, a 39-year-old police lieutenant from Rosemont, Ill., who organized Vietnam Revisited.

"If we could just say this to every Vietnam veteran who served in Vietnam that, 'Peace is here, peace should be at home amongst us all.' They should have their own peace. There's no more war here. It's over with."

The Marines were on an unofficial goodwill mission of their own that they planned for more than a year. In inspecting their former bases, they found that land mines they planted more than 20 years ago to protect them from attack still posed a danger to civilians.

Botha names acting president

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha, who was hospitalized after suffering a stroke, today named Chris Heunis, a longtime ally and a government minister, as the acting president, Botha's office said.

Heunis, the senior-ranking cabinet minister, served as acting president for several days last year while Botha was traveling in Europe. It was not immediately clear how long Heunis would remain in the post.

Heunis, the minister of constitutional development, is considered a mainstream member of Botha's National Party who would be unlikely to seek any major changes in policy.

"We will continue within the parameters laid down by the state president," Heunis, 61, said at his swearing-in ceremony.

Botha, who turned 73 on Jan. 12, suffered the stroke Wednesday morning and was taken to No. 2 Military Hospital in the Cape Town suburb of Wynberg.

Botha's office and hospital officials said the president was in stable condition today and did not disclose any additional details.

But the Afrikaans-language newspaper Beeld said Botha was suffering from muscle weakness on one side of his body. Beeld, citing unidentified doctors, said without elaborating that the muscle weakness was not a "total paralysis."

Heunis was sworn in this afternoon at Tuynhuis, the state president's official residence and office in Cape Town.

In his Cabinet post, Heunis has been given the task of developing a constitutional format that would give blacks limited power sharing with the white-led government.

During his years in power, Botha has maintained the National Party's political dominance despite criticism both from the anti-apartheid movement and from extreme-right whites.

He pushed through the first significant racial reforms undertaken during the National Party's 40-year rule, such as legalization of interracial marriages and abolition of pass laws that restricted blacks' movements.

But Botha will not even discuss the possibility of a one-person, one-vote system in South Africa, where the 5 million whites control the government and economy while the 26 million blacks have no vote in national affairs.

Another quake rocks California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An offshore quake jolted Southern California, shattering windows in ritzy Malibu, briefly knocking out power to 100,000 customers and reverberating with dozens of aftershocks today.

No major damage was reported from Wednesday's temblor, which measured 5.0 on the Richter scale and was centered 30 miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles in Santa Monica Bay. The quake swayed downtown skyscrapers.

"It's the strongest earthquake I've felt in 14 years of living in Los Angeles," said Rick Cziment of Los Angeles. "It actually scared me. Our house went dark. My daughter woke up and began crying."

Firefighters in Manhattan Beach attributed one injury to the 10:54 p.m. quake when a woman fell on her nose. No other injuries were reported.

"At this point, it looks like we got off pretty well," said Michael Gurein, spokesman for the state Office of Emergency Services.

Rubble from about a dozen rock slides blew out tires on at least four vehicles traveling the narrow, twisting Malibu Canyon Road that leads to the swank Malibu beach colony, 30 miles southwest of Los Angeles, said sheriff's Sgt. Bill Hutton. The road remained open.

The quake could be felt from Seal Beach to Santa Barbara, a distance of 140 miles.

Windows along the coast shattered, including a department store plate glass window in Malibu.

But most of the damage was to the nerves of humans and animals alike. Cory Ford of Whittier said the quake rattled her cat.

"Moments before the quake, our cat, Jasmine, started running around in circles, her tail stood straight up, her fur out like electricity," said Ford. "Then came a sudden hard jolt for a few seconds, then a rolling shake, all for about 8 or 10 seconds, though it seemed longer."

Austin still hunts manager

AUSTIN (AP) — Mayor Lee Cooke says he is excited about a new list of candidates for Austin city manager, a job city officials have been trying to fill for about a year.

Cooke said he will set interviews with candidates "as soon as they are able to arrange their schedules so that they can come to Austin."

The mayor would not speculate on when the council will pick a permanent manager to replace Jorge Carrasco, who resigned in November 1987.

After failing in a last-ditch bid to hire an administrator from Oakland, Calif., the council Tuesday named a second acting assistant city manager, Barney

Knight, to succeed another acting manager, John Ware, who resigned last week.

Ware's resignation prompted a final bid to hire Craig Kocian, assistant city manager of Oakland, Calif., as permanent manager.

Kocian was offered the job by the council on Dec. 20. After negotiations between Kocian and the mayor, Kocian refused Jan. 10 to take the job, because the council would not guarantee him a year's severance pay.

But Ware's notification that he intended to resign renewed some council members' interest in trying to work out another deal with Kocian, according to Councilman Max Nofziger.

TAB to meet with Bivins

The Panhandle Division of the Texas Association of Business will meet with Sen. Teel Bivins on Friday at 12 noon at the Holiday Inn, I-40 & Ross in Amarillo.

The senator will speak on a number of key issues before the Texas Legislature, including rural health care, workers compensation reform and the proposed constitutional amendment banning a state income tax.

He will also address his committee assignments which include Economic Development, Natural Resources and Jurisprudence. Time will also be set aside for questions from the floor.

Space is limited so call not to make your reservations. The meal cost is $8. For reservations or more information, call Cindy at 378-6229.

got out of hand. I don't believe what I did was the trigger. In fact, I may have helped for a while by going there and talking to people. But I would have done it differently if I had it to do all over again."

The Times said Suarez later called to say that he had not intended those comments for publication.

Black leaders warned Suarez before the commission meeting Wednesday that their community would no longer accept empty promises and business as usual.

"The word is out that there will be more disturbance," said the Rev. William Washington. "Now we've got to act and act quick."

Commissioners unanimously approved the special panel to investigate the shooting of Clement Lloyd, who was speeding with a friend, Allen Blanchard, through Overtown. Blanchard died in a hospital Tuesday of injuries from the motorcycle crash.

After discussions, the commissioners approved a suggestion by Miller Dawkins, the lone black on the five-member commission, who wanted a board consisting of five policemen and five Overtown residents, with the mayor as chairman.

The FBI, the State Attorney's Office and the police internal review board are also investigating the police shooting. William Lozano, 29, the Colombian-born police officer who shot the motorcyclist in the head, was relieved of duty with pay pending the investigation.

Anderson said on ABC's Nightline that his department had "major concerns" about the shooting.

"There seem to be some unusual circumstances," the police chief said.

Claudia Lubrin, Blanchard's sister, went on local television to "plead to the Overtown people that they stop the riots."

"Put down your weapons—I do not want my brother to be remembered with the riots," she said.

Most schools that closed Tuesday reopened, although attendance was down.

Attorneys try to get new trial for black death row inmate

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A state representative told supporters of death row inmate Clarence Brandley it is time to change the system, and the prisoner's attorneys sought to win a new trial at the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

"Texas is going to have to change. If they're not careful, what you've seen in Miami is going to happen in Texas," Rep. Ron Wilson told a crowd of about 150 at a Capitol rally Wednesday, shortly before attorneys on each side of the case presented arguments to the court.

Wilson, D-Houston, said he would file an application with Gov. Bill Clements for a full pardon for Brandley, a black janitor at Conroe High School who was convicted in the 1980 rape-slaying of a white Bellville teen-ager, Cheryl Dee Ferguson.

"All free-thinking people in this state know that were it not for the fact that Clarence Brandley was black, he would not be in TDC (the Texas Department of Corrections) right now," Wilson said. "It's time for us to dismantle the system as it regards Clarence Brandley."

An organizer said supporters who went from the rally to hear arguments at the courtroom, where they filled the chamber and spilled over outside the chamber's doors — came from Conroe, Houston and other parts of the state.

"Remember, there is one inescapable fact, and that is one truly innocent man has been condemned to death," Houston attorney Mike DeGeurin, Brandley's lead attorney on appeal, told the court.

Paul Nugent, another of Brandley's attorneys, said, "The color of Clarence Brandley's skin was a factor in this case."

Montgomery County District Attorney Peter Speers said he believes racism played no part in Brandley's conviction, despite examples cited by Nugent of a police officer, sheriff and prosecutor using a racial epithet when referring to Brandley.

Speers, who was not the district attorney when Brandley was convicted, told reporters he doesn't think such words are appropriate. But he added, "I don't think that the use of a racial epithet, in and of itself, indicates that the race of Clarence Brandley had anything to do with the fact that he was charged and vigorously prosecuted for the crime."

"It's my position that there's absolutely no legitimate, legal reason why he's entitled to a new trial," Speers said.

Alien political asylum cases put on hold

By JOEL WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

HARLINGEN (AP) — Political asylum cases filed here during the 2½-week life of a disputed Immigration and Naturalization Service procedure have been put on hold until a judge decides on the validity of the INS rule designed to keep Central Americans from traveling further north, an official said.

The delay affects up to 2,064 asylum applicants filing claims between Dec. 16 and Jan. 9. But many of them have traveled on to their U.S. destinations after U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela in Brownsville issued a temporary restraining order against the INS rule, said Virginia Kice, a spokeswoman for the INS' Harlingen District covering the southernmost part of Texas.

The procedure was devised to keep asylum applicants from working or traveling farther into the United States for the 30 days it would take to approve or deny their claims for refugee status.

A marked increase in the number of homeless, jobless Central Americans camping out in the Lower Rio Grande Valley to await their adjudication by the INS followed the Dec. 16 implementation of the procedure.

Immigration attorneys filed a class-action suit against the procedure on Jan. 6. Vela on Jan. 9 granted a temporary restraining order until a full hearing could be held in the case.

The judge's order freed hundreds and maybe thousands of Central Americans to leave the Lower Rio Grande Valley and pursue their claims for refugee status elsewhere in the United States. Bus companies last week brought in extra vehicles and drivers to accommodate the extra northbound passengers.

A hearing has been set for Jan. 31, at which lawyers for the INS are expected to defend the travel-restricting procedure.

But the first immigrants' appointments for decisions under the now-blocked procedure were due Monday, a month after the procedure took effect.

Kice said applicants showing up for word on approval or denial of their claims will be asked to return in two weeks or report to the immigration office nearest their intended U.S. residence.

"We wanted to make sure that we obey the temporary restraining order both in spirit and in fact, and our attorneys are still analyzing the thrust of the order," Kice said. "We want to make sure that we follow it to the letter."

She said of 16 people who showed up Tuesday for appointments to learn of their status, "All of them said they wished to have their cases transferred out to other INS districts."

Since the restraining order took effect, INS records show the Harlingen office had processed 2,733 asylum applicants by the close of business Tuesday.

She said 34 percent indicated they were traveling on to Miami, 13 percent each to New York and Los Angeles, a combined total of 12 to Dallas or Houston and 6 percent to Washington, D.C., along with a long list of other cities.

Officials from Metropolitan Dade County, Fla., visited southern Texas last week in part to advise the Central Americans not to go to Miami if they did not have friends or relatives there.

Forty-four percent of the asylum-seekers processed in Harlingen since Jan. 9 were from Nicaragua, 20 percent from El Salvador, 14 percent from Honduras and 11 percent from Guatemala, with the rest consisting primarily of South Americans and Caribbeans, according to the INS.

"Fewer than 1 percent said they intended to stay in the Harlingen area," Kice said.

More than 30,000 Central American asylum-seekers passed through the southern tip of Texas last year, according to the INS.

Red Cross officials since last weekend have been caring for more than 200 Central Americans at an industrial warehouse.

It's official: Texas to host super collider project site

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas has officially been named the winner of the seven-state battle to host a proposed $5.9 billion superconducting super collider.

Energy Secretary John Herrington Wednesday signed an official "record of decision" during a ceremony attended by Texas Gov. Bill Clements.

The official action certifies the decision build the massive physics installation around the city of Waxahachie, about 25 miles south of Dallas.

The collider is envisioned as a 53-mile underground ring that would use 10,000 magnets to whirl beams of protons into each other at energy levels 20 times what is possible in today's most powerful machines.

The facility will be used by scientists to explore the nature of matter and energy. It is to be called the Ronald Reagan Center for High-Energy Physics, although it remains uncertain whether Congress will give the go-ahead to begin construction.

Congress agreed last year to spend $100 million on the collider, but it decreed that none of the money be spent on construction. In his budget proposal for the coming fiscal year, President Reagan requested $250 million for the collider, including $90 million for research and development and $160 million for construction.

Herrington had declared last Nov. 10 that Texas was the "preferred site" for the project, but a waiting period was required before the choice was made official.

"Texas has been chosen as the super collider site because it is the superior site from an overall standpoint," Herrington said at the signing ceremony.

Some of the states that lost in the bidding have questioned the Energy Department's selection process.

Democratic Sens. Paul Simon of Illinois and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona are among those who have asked Congress's investigative arm, the General Accounting Office, to review the department's site selection process and to determine whether the choice was influenced more by politics than by merit.

Victor F. Weisskopf, a physicist who attended the signing ceremony as part of a separate award presentation, said the super collider would allow scientists to explore "how this great universe was started and how it has developed."

"We need the superconducting super collider ... to help all the scientists of the planet to penetrate deeper into the mysteries of matter," he said.

Other states losing in the bidding race were Colorado, Michigan, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Waxahachie City Manager Bob Sokoll said the announcement would change nothing.

"The big thing is when Congress comes through with the construction money," he said. "There has not been one cent on construction funding."

Ellis County officials likely would remain cautious until Congress comes up with the initial construction funds, Sokoll said.

"The big problem right now is that Congress is looking for ways to cut the budget, not ways to spend more money," he said. "Once they start digging the tunnel, it will be a lot harder to stop."

Bentsen funeral today

McALLEN (AP) — Funeral services were scheduled today for Lloyd M. Bentsen Sr., who led a rich and active life up to his death two days ago in a traffic accident.

Bentsen, father of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Texas' senior U.S. senator, died Tuesday at the age of 95 in the accident that occurred at a rural highway intersection in Hidalgo County in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Department of Public Safety officials said Bentsen apparently failed to yield the right of way at a stop sign to an eastbound car.

Funeral services were scheduled for 10:30 a.m. today at First Baptist Church in McAllen with burial in Roselawn Cemetery and Mausoleum in McAllen.

He and his wife, Dolly, who died in 1977, had four children: Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr.; Kenneth, a Houston architect; Don, a McAllen businessman; and Betty, the wife of Lower Rio Grande Valley businessman Dan Winn.

The South Texas pioneer and entrepreneur had been active in his farming, ranching and real estate interests, which had helped him build a South Texas empire.

"He was here two or three times a week, sometimes every day," said Bud Williams, foreman for the past 25 years at Bentsen's 16,000-acre La Coma Ranch in Hidalgo County, one of six ranches Bentsen owned.

In his final years, Bentsen continued living at a residence on Bentsen Road near Mission, and was up at dawn every day and on the road to his real estate office or one of the farms and ranches in Hidalgo and Starr counties.

Galveston to vote on polls for gambling

GALVESTON (AP) — Voters of this island community will decide Saturday if they want to ban straw votes on legalization of casino gambling as long as state law forbids casinos.

But even if the proposed amendment to the city's charter is adopted, pro-gambling forces say they will challenge it in court on grounds it would violate their right to free speech.

"We object to Proposition 6 on the grounds that a restraint of the citizen's rights to petition for election on any subject is a blatant violation of our First Amendment constitutional rights of free speech, which clearly includes political speech and opinion," Juliet Staudt, a leader of Galvestonians for Economic Development, told the Galveston City Council.

Staudt said litigation on the issue is inevitable if the proposed ban on non-binding casino gambling referendums is adopted.

By comfortable majorities, local voters have turned thumbs down on legalized gambling in three non-binding referendums in the past five years. Backers of the proposed amendment say they are tired of fighting over something that is not even legal under state law.

"We're tired of being guinea pigs for the rest of the state," said H.L. "Shrub" Kempner Jr., a leader of Galvestonians Against Casino Gambling. "We've done our duty on this issue, and it's time to put it behind us."

It was Kempner's group that gathered enough signatures to place the charter amendment on Saturday's ballot. The anti-casino folks resorted to the charter amendment after winning a costly battle over Staudt's group in a non-binding referendum in August.

"If the Legislature ever passes casino gambling, we would be delighted to vote it down again," Kempner said. "But for now, (Galvestonians for Economic Development) need to turn their attention to the Legislature and quit using us as some kind of stalking horse or guinea pig."

He said he believes the proposed amendment will withstand constitutional tests.

The non-binding referendums were held only after pro-gambling forces gathered enough signatures to force City Council to call the elections.

Area legislators said they would ask the state Legislature to legalize gambling in Galveston only if a majority of voters said they supported the idea.

The charter amendment to ban non-binding referendums on casino gambling issues until the Legislature makes gambling legal is one of 32 proposed amendments on Saturday's ballot. Most were drawn up by a charter revision committee that studied the need for changes in the document from January 1988 through October.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

So, President Reagan has approved a whopping 50 percent pay raise for 2,500 federal officials. A man who came to Washington eight years ago to clean up waste leaves town by enriching its ruling elite. The U.S. Congress can still cancel the raise, which will be from $89,500 a year to $135,000, but only if both houses vote against it. They'd be more likely to keep their campaign promises.

Cabinet members will get a boost from $99,500 to $155,000. Other top officials get similar raises. More fringe benefits for our servants in Congress and the bureaucracies amount to nearly an additional $40,000 a year.

It's a sad way for this administration to end. Reagan had curbed previous money grabs by Congress. But as he heads out into the sunset for retirement in Bel Air, perhaps he realizes that Congress votes on funding for his pension, the praetorian guard he takes with him (the Secret Service), his secretaries, and funding for the upkeep of the records of his administration. Don't want to get the boys on Capitol Hill mad, now, do we?

The pay raise makes Washington politicians and bureaucrats even more remote from the people they claim to serve. Our "servants" now get paid more than many corporate executives. And those executives, let us remember, produce things that other people want, and which people choose voluntarily.

Time was when our politicians and bureaucrats realized that they were intended to be humble servants of the people. It was a sacrifice. Now the attitude is: Grab what you can.

This is shown by a list of the five richest counties in America. In the past the list has been topped by Oakland County, Mich., where the Detroit auto barons live; by the Connecticut counties next to New York City. The top five — count 'em, every one — are the suburban counties of Washington, D.C., where the politicians, bureaucrats, lobbyists, lawyers and others leeching on the federal government live.

Household income in the Washington area is now 42 percent above the national average. The Washington Post, the company town's newspaper, gloats, "One after another, retailers are rushing to set up stores in what many now call the center of conspicuous consumption."

Spurred on by the congressional kleptocracy, Washington is living it up at the nation's expense. Or as the Declaration of Independence said of King George III, tyrant, he "has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance."

Who pays for the conspicuous consumption by our servants? Check your wallet.

It's just not right in this case

It might seem hard to find a more deserving candidate for the death penalty than Johnny Paul Penry. Nine years ago, the ex-convict forced his way into the home of a 22-year-old woman in Livingston, Texas, raped her and stabbed her to death with a pair of scissors.

Penry, who had recently been paroled after serving two years for rape, was picked up that night by a deputy sheriff. He soon confessed to the crime.

He had become obsessed with the woman after making an appliance delivery to her house, he said, and after the rape, he had to kill her to prevent her from identifying him. After finding Penry guilty of capital murder, a jury took just 46 minutes to sentence him to die by lethal injection.

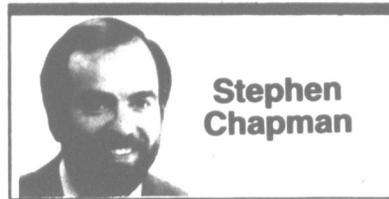

The jury's action was understandable but mistaken. Penry is mentally retarded, a dangerous child in the body of an adult. The Supreme Court is considering his case, and it ought to spare him from execution.

Executing Penry would make about as much sense as executing a 7-year-old — which, doctors say, is what he is in mental terms.

His education ended after first grade. He couldn't read the confession he signed; just learning to write his name took him a year. He can't spell "dog" or "cat." He can't count. He doesn't know how many days are in a week or how many months in a year.

A normal IQ is 100. Penry's falls somewhere between 50 and 63. The severe abuse he suffered as a child — his mother beat him, scalded him, broke his arm several times and forced him to eat his own feces — may have left him with brain damage as well.

As a rule, we don't execute children in this country, even for shocking crimes. Why not? Because we know that children lack the maturity to conform their behavior to society's demands, to fully comprehend the consequences of their actions and to accept responsibility for what they do.

For the same reason, we treat the insane differently from the sane. Death is the most extreme penalty at this society's disposal, used only in a tiny fraction of murder convictions. We reserve it for those whose crimes and culpability are extreme.

Except when it comes to the retarded. The American Association on Mental Retardation says that since capital punishment was reinstated in 1976, at least six of those executed had been found to be mentally retarded. Penry's lawyers say eight other retardates are currently on Death Row. Only one state forbids the execution of the retarded.

This is at war not just with the logic of capital punishment but with public opinion. A Louis Harris poll last year found that 70 percent of Americans think the retarded shouldn't be subject to the death penalty.

At the heart of that sentiment is a crucial intuition about the purpose of execution. It is an expression of moral outrage, a measure taken because nothing else seems adequate as retribution.

But moral outrage presumes moral responsibility. And moral responsibility is something that makes sense only in the case of deliberate action by competent adults.

Retribution can be defended when it punishes those who are capable of restraining their basest impulses but refuse to do so. It can't be defended when it punishes those whose mental capacities are no match for their physical abilities.

Prosecutors say Penry knew what he was doing was wrong. They also say that his retardation didn't prevent him from weighing the risk of letting his rape victim live and deciding it was safer to kill her.

But a 7-year-old knows killing is wrong, and a 7-year-old is able to engage in rudimentary reasoning. But to treat a 7-year-old the same as a 27-year-old would not be just by any reasonable standard.

Certainly Penry doesn't deserve to walk out of prison a free man. Unlike the insane, he bears some responsibility for his crime — just as children bear some responsibility when they break the law.

Society does have a right to protect itself against murderers, which in his case may require keeping him in prison for the rest of his life. It wouldn't gain any additional protection from killing him.

All it would accomplish is to vent an ill-considered fury on a man who will never be able to grasp the full enormity of his crime.

The Supreme Court has said the death penalty is unconstitutional if its only point is "the purposeless and needless imposition of pain and suffering." It's no favor to justice to compound one senseless killing with another.

Get those pets off the plane

Hurrah for Delta Airlines. Given all the other inconveniences of commercial air travel Delta has done all of us a great favor by taking a stand against allowing animals to roam freely in the cabin of an airplane.

In case you missed it, Zsa Zsa Gabor, who is old enough to know better at 69, was flying from Los Angeles to her home in Palm Beach, Fla.

Once aboard the flight from LA, Zsa Zsa took her two toy dogs, a pair of Shih Tzus named Macho Man and Genghis Kahn, out of the kennel boxes under her seat and allowed them to sit in her lap.

I didn't know you could take animals into a passenger cabin of an airplane. I thought they had to ride in cages in the baggage hold, as the Wright brothers had intended.

I learned, however, that if the animals are small enough to fit into kennel boxes that can be stowed under your seat, it's OK to bring them aboard.

Frankly, I don't agree with any of that, because animals like snakes and rats and wombats (whatever they are) and even small wolly-boogers can be stowed underneath an airplane seat, and what if one of those things got out and attacked you for your chef salad that airlines often serve at lunch?

Anyway, passengers began to complain about Zsa Zsa's dogs sitting in her lap. When the plane stopped in Atlanta, Delta officials politely told Zsa Zsa to put the dogs back into their boxes.

She refused and according to news reports, colored her refusal with choice obscenities and statements regarding her lofty perch as a star.

Unimpressed, airline officials called the police. Officers removed Zsa Zsa and her dogs from the airplane, star or no star. How she finally got to Palm Beach is unclear but I don't think Greyhound, despite its name, allows dogs to ride with its passengers.

If Delta hadn't insisted Zsa Zsa (what kind of a name is that? It's like being named Mildred Mildred) put her dogs back in their boxes or face being removed from the plane, dangerous precedents could have been set here.

If you have traveled in underdeveloped countries, you know how people often come aboard various methods of transportation with, among other things, goats on a leash.

Do you want to get the early plane to LaGuardia and have to sit next to somebody with a goat on a leash?

Imagine how you might smell at your business meeting.

Do you want to be relaxing with your first scotch during a coast to coast flight and suddenly see somebody's pet raccoon run down the aisle?

You can get rabies from those things.

While your sister Eva might have given certain liberties to Arnold, the pig that upstaged her on Green Acres, I'm suggesting that you get yourself and those two yapping dogs of yours off the airplane and don't come back no more.

They're trying to run an airline, Zsa Zsa, not an ark for third-rate, washed-out, bleached-out has-beens like you.

Kemp's a one-man HUD wrecking crew

By CHUCK STONE

Sages have often warned us to beware the moral excesses of reformed drunkards, former prostitutes, one-time communists — or transformed conservatives, who suddenly discover the merits of liberalism. Martin Luther King Jr. and Jesus (not necessarily in that order) after being appointed to a soul-saving job.

Jack French Kemp was so giddy when he was introduced as President-elect George Bush's secretary of Housing and Urban Development that he almost reneged on his conservative credentials.

Waxing eloquently about not balancing the budget "on the backs of the poor," Kemp managed to squeeze in ideas from everybody except Michael R. Milkin, Jimmy Swaggart and Geraldo Rivera.

Defeated conservative presidential candidates will do anything for a Cabinet appointment. Kemp, however, had the advantage of being an ordained political presence, so it's harder to ascertain what's behind his sudden conversion. One thing is certain: In the next four years, Americans will see and hear a lot of this congenitally ambitious, mop-haired, apple-cheeked ex-quarterback.

The phrase "HUD secretary Jack Kemp" is clearly an oxymoron. It's kind of like saying, "ACLU president George Bush" or "ADA vice-president Ronald Reagan."

Even the studiously objective Congressional Quarterly was unable to overlook the implications of Kemp's chameleonic roll. "Without mentioning his past votes," wrote CQ, "Kemp apparently repudiated them at a Dec. 19 press conference with Bush." (In this instance, "apparently" is like being "a little bit" pregnant.)

Kemp's voting record during his 18 years in Congress exposes him as a one-man wrecking crew of HUD programs. In just the last five years, between 1982 and 1987, Kemp voted seven times to gut a total of $8.4 billion of HUD's programs.

If Kemp's positions had prevailed, he would have wiped out almost 40 percent of HUD's 1989 $12.8 billion budget. Never before in history has an unemployed politician been rewarded with an appointment to head an agency that he single-handedly targeted for destruction.

He was a point man for Reagan's success in dismantling HUD's housing-construction subsidy programs: Kemp voted against rehabilitation subsidy programs, repair and modernization programs and, in the unkindest cut of all, voted against a Republican-sponsored, Bush-supported Homeless Assistance Act.

Yet, there the gently graying Wheaties champion stood at Bush's press conference — so handsome of face, so debonair of mien, so sincere of speech — lamenting the "appalling tragedy" of the homeless. (My tears almost drowned me.)

Like his football skills, his hypocrisy is versatile. Kemp has been touted (mostly by his own tinselled verbiage) as one of the few conservatives trying to bring blacks into the Republican Party. Yet, in 1985, on seven anti-apartheid votes in the House (HR 1466), Kemp opposed the Congressional Black Caucus five times by supporting South Africa's apartheid position. In that same year, he voted against the bill to provide workers with 60-day notice of plant closings.

Both votes are especially dear to black voters.

W.C. Fields used to grouse, "Anybody who hates children and dogs can't be all bad." And any right-wing conservative who hates big spending for housing programs and corporate accountability to working people can't be all bad — especially if he likes children.

Kemp did vote for the $5.09 billion School Lunch and Child Nutrition Act. But on balance, his record bodes ill for federally supported housing and recalls the prophet Jeremiah's apprehension: "Can the Ethiopian change his skin, or the leopard his spots? So may ye do good that are accustomed to do evil."

Maybe Kemp has changed. And maybe Jeremiah was wrong. But I'm sticking with Jeremiah.

Baker could be confirmed soon for post

WASHINGTON (AP) — James A. Baker III could be confirmed as secretary of state as early as next week, following assurances of a strong endorsement from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee was prepared today to recommend the confirmation of Baker, former treasury secretary under President Reagan and President-elect Bush's choice to run the State Department.

The full Senate will act on the nomination later, probably next Wednesday.

Today's scheduled committee vote followed two days of hearings in which Baker fielded questions on problem areas around the world and dealt comfortably with foreign policy issues ranging from the momentous to the obscure.

Virtually every member of the committee praised Baker's performance, applauded his appointment by Bush and said his confirmation was assured.

"I'm sure the vote will be unanimous," said Chairman Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

"I think without any question you will be unanimously endorsed by this committee and by the full Senate in the days ahead," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

"He is very skillful, as he should be, and I'm impressed," said Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., expressing a view many other committee members said they shared.

On Wednesday, the second of two days of testimony, Baker said the United States and the Soviet Union are near agreement on procedures to verify compliance with two long-pending nuclear test ban treaties.

Baker said he understands that verification problems with the 1976 Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty are "completely resolved." He said similar problems with the 1974 nuclear test ban treaty establishing a limit of 150 kilotons on underground tests are "close to being resolved."

He said both pacts will be submitted to the Senate for ratification but offered no timetable.

Baker also suggested that the new Bush administration may raise quotas for refugees because of the increasing numbers of people wanting to come to the United States from the Soviet Union and Southeast Asia.

"We will have to look at the possibility of increasing numbers and of increasing dollars" for the refugee program, Baker said.

Garlic, onions cut cancer risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Garlic and onions can put a crimp in your social life, but they also could provide unexpected protection against cancer, according to a study published by the National Cancer Institute.

The study compared foods eaten by stomach cancer victims with the diet of healthy people in Linqu, China. Researchers found that the strong-smelling vegetables "can significantly reduce the risk of stomach cancer."

Published this week in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute, the study says researchers used questionnaires to compare the dietary habits of 685 patients with stomach cancer with those of 1,131 other people, matched by age, gender, occupation and education, who had no diagnosed cancer.

People in the control, or cancer-free, group each year consumed at least 25 and sometimes more than 50 pounds of allium vegetables, a genus which includes onions, garlic, leeks, chives, ramps and scallions.

The cancer patients generally ate less than 25 pounds of the vegetables.

The study also found that the risk of stomach cancer declined as the habitual consumption of such vegetables increased. In other words, the more onions and garlic you eat over a lifetime, the less your chances of stomach cancer.

"Persons in Linqu tended to be exposed to mild doses of allium vegetables over long periods, likely beginning in childhood," the study said. "Our study suggests that all or part of such exposure has resulted in a reduction in stomach cancer risk starting at an early age ... and continuing throughout life."

The anti-cancer effects of onion-like root vegetables have been suggested in studies dating back to the 1950s. A 1979 study, for instance, found a reduced amount of stomach cancer among residents of a Georgia county famous for growing vidalia onions. A study in Greece showed that gastric cancer patients usually ate fewer fresh vegetables, including onions, than those who were cancer-free.

"Several experimental studies have suggested that compounds in allium vegetables can protect against cancer in laboratory animals," the NCI Journal study said. It said a variety of studies have shown that chemical compounds extracted from onions and garlic tend to reduce, alter or prevent cancer in laboratory rats, mice and hamsters.

But the study said the precise anti-cancer element in allium vegetables has not been pinpointed.

Inflation strikes 4.4% in 1988

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose 4.4 percent in 1988, the same as a year earlier, as hefty, drought-induced increases for groceries offset stable energy prices, the government said today.

Worry about inflationary pressures preoccupied many economists last year, but that pressure has not produced an acceleration in inflation thus far.

The 4.4 percent gain in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index matched the 1987 increase, which was the highest since 1981 but was four times the 1.1 percent rate in 1986, a 25-year low.

A 0.3 percent rise in the index in December, which followed a 0.3 percent November increase, helped inflation finish the year at a moderate pace.

The summer drought, which shriveled crops and seared pastures, pushed food prices for the year up 5.2 percent, the steepest rise since 1980.

Poultry and egg prices jumped 17.9 percent and 16.5 percent, respectively, because of the drought.

On the other hand, beef and pork prices, which rose for the first six months of the year, fell during the second half as farmers sent more animals to slaughter as a way of avoiding high feed costs.

Energy for the year rose only a slight 0.5 percent following an 8.2 percent jump in 1987. Still, they were far below levels before the 1986 oil glut, when energy prices plummeted 19.7 percent.

Fuel oil prices jumped 2.8 percent in December after falling for six consecutive months. Despite the December advance, the price was 6.3 percent below that of a year earlier. Electricity charges rose 1.1 percent for the year, while natural gas was unchanged.

Gasoline prices were 1.1 percent lower than a year ago. Price increases for new and used cars also were moderate, 2.1 percent and 3.4 percent, respectively. However, the prices of auto insurance and of financing car purchases took steep jumps of 8.4 percent and 8.3 percent, respectively.

The cost of medical care, up 6.9 percent, also rose faster than the general inflation rate last year.

Tobacco prices posted one of the steepest rises of any subcategory, up 9.4 percent for the year.

Clothing prices rose 4.8 percent overall.

Estonia requires Russians to learn native tongue or leave

MOSCOW (AP) — In a bid to protect its native tongue, the tiny republic of Estonia has decreed that all Russians and other non-natives who work in stores, government or other service jobs learn Estonian in four years or be sacked.

The restive Baltic republic's legislature voted on Wednesday by 204-50, with six abstentions, to adopt the unprecedented law, said Felix Undusk, a commentator for state-run Estonian television.

It was another pioneering move for Estonia's legislature, which in November challenged the central government in Moscow by declaring sovereignty over all but foreign affairs.

Estonia's standard of living, enviably high by Soviet standards, has led to an influx of immigrants, and many Estonians fear they will one day be outnumbered in their own homeland.

About 65 percent of Estonia's population of 1.5 million is ethnic Estonian. Russians make up 28 percent, Ukrainians 3 percent and Byelorussians 2 percent.

"This law means that if I go to the doctor, or ask a policeman where the post office is, I can get an answer in Estonian," Undusk said in a telephone interview from Tallinn, the Estonian capital. "For Estonians, this is important. This is the only place in the world where our language is spoken."

Undusk said there had been "a great deal of immigration in past years, and there are people who work in post offices, medical clinics and factories who don't speak Estonian and have never tried."

"This law will change that by requiring them to learn the language. If they don't after four years, they will have to leave their jobs."

He said another provision of the law requires all goods sold in the republic to be labeled in Estonian. Tass, the official news agency, said the law also requires that legal proceedings and records at Estonian offices and factories be in Estonian.

Russian traditionally has been the common language among the more than 100 nationalities of the empire the Bolsheviks captured from the czars.

Many citizens of Estonia, an independent nation forcibly absorbed by the Soviet Union in 1940 with its neighbors Latvia and Lithuania, refuse to learn Russian or use it only when necessary.

Undusk, who attended Wednesday's legislative session, said the republic would finance Estonian-language courses and print instruction manuals for ethnic Russians or others who must learn the language.

Most government documents in Estonia were written in Russian until 1987 and the republic's former Communist Party chief knew little Estonian.

Solidarity has concerns about legalization

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist leaders passed a resolution early Wednesday that could restore Solidarity's legal status, but officials of the banned trade union movement said too many unacceptable conditions appeared to be attached.

Among conditions set Tuesday before the Wednesday vote by the party's governing Central Committee was that Solidarity declare itself for socialism, promise no strikes for two years and forfeit financial assistance from the West.

Prime Minister Mieczyslaw F. Rakowski said during debate Tuesday that he favored ending the seven-year ban on Solidarity if its leaders promise not to drag the economically depressed country "into anarchy."

The official PAP news agency said Wednesday that a majority of the 230-member body had approved the party leadership's stand on trade union and political pluralism.

There was no immediate comment from Solidarity chairman Lech Walesa.

But a Solidarity source in Warsaw, demanding anonymity, said Rakowski's proposal to reinstate the only independent labor movement ever allowed in the Soviet bloc appeared at first glance unclear, "unacceptable" or even "laughable."

The source said Solidarity could not function as a free trade union if forced to embrace an ideology and stripped of the right to strike.

In setting the conditions, Rakowski said the government needed assurances a legally functioning Solidarity would differ from the movement that used general strike threats as a pressure tactic during its 16-month heyday.

Solidarity activists on Tuesday welcomed the shift in the party's new stance, but said they must now proceed with caution because it stems not of good will but necessity.

"The authorities will do whatever that have to do to stay on top. Let's wait and see what they have to say and read the fine print carefully," said Maciej Jankowski, a Solidarity leader at Warsaw University.

Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski crushed Solidarity in a December 1981 military crackdown, interned thousands of activists and banning the movement the next year.

After a series of spring and summer strikes demanding higher pay and Solidarity's reinstatement, Jaruzelski agreed to resume contacts with the movement. However, promised negotiations with the opposition were repeatedly delayed.

Walesa has warned that the public mood is reaching the boiling point because of rising prices and annoying consumer shortages.

In the latest sign of tension, a strike for higher pay and legalization of Solidarity on Tuesday shut down the 1,100-worker Pabianice Fabric Works in the textile city of Lodz.

Under the proposal Rakowski put to the Central Committee, final legalization of Solidarity would follow a two-year probationary period lasting until May 3, 1991, the 200th anniversary of the adoption of a progressive constitution that Imperial Russia quickly invalidated by force.

Paper says bomb placed on jet at Frankfurt airport

LOCKERBIE, Scotland (AP) — Investigators believe the luggage container in which the bomb that destroyed Pan Am Flight 103 was hidden was put on the jumbo jet in Frankfurt, West Germany, a newspaper reported Wednesday.

Police said Tuesday they had identified the luggage container, but would not comment on whether it was placed on the flight in Frankfurt or London.

"We have now identified the baggage container within the aircraft in which the explosive device was placed, and substantial forensic and reconstructive work is being undertaken in this regard," said Detective Chief Superintendent John Orr, the Scottish police officer heading the investigation.

"No details of the container, what else it held, where it was discovered or where it originated were given officially but police and accident investigators are now convinced that it was in luggage first loaded at Frankfurt," the Times of London said Wednesday.

Jochen Schroers, a spokesman for the Frankfurt prosecutor's office, said the report was "purely speculative and premature" and that there was no evidence to support it.

Police and Department of Transport spokesmen refused Wednesday to elaborate on Orr's remarks or comment on The Times' report.

The New York-bound flight originated in Frankfurt with a Boeing 727 and changed to a Boeing 747 at London's Heathrow airport, transferring passengers and baggage. All 259 people on board and 11 on the ground in the Scottish town of Lockerbie were killed after the jet exploded at 31,000 feet on Dec. 21.

The Times said police think the bomb consisted of only a few pounds of Czechoslovak-made Semtex plastic explosives.

The paper said investigators think that once a hole was blown in the side of the jet and the electronics bay — its nerve center — destroyed, the air pressure at the high altitude literally ripped the jet apart.

Investigators say the blast occurred in the cargo area just in front of the left wing of the plane.

Orr told a news conference that about 10,000 items of baggage and other items from the plane have been recovered in searches stretching across Scotland. He said Scottish police were working with their counterparts in the United States and West Germany and that more than 3,000 witness statements had been collated. He said some investigations have been conducted in Scandinavia, but refused to elaborate.

Orr also refused to say which group, if any, police suspect of carrying out the bombing.

"There has been a lot of comment, some ill-informed, and I do not think it would be helpful to identify any group," he said.

Several terrorist groups are thought to have supplies of Semtex, a powerful and hard-to-detect plastic explosive. British authorities have said the bomb that destroyed Flight 103 was probably Semtex.

Chamber

As its name suggests, this department's primary concern is the development and maintenance of the operations of the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce. It may be asked to oversee other activities as needed.

Mike Kessy, director
This division is charged with overseeing several of the main information source committees of the chamber. These areas affect communications with the membership, citizens of this area and possible industrial interests.

Membership Meeting Committee
This committee is given the important task of holding several membership luncheons throughout the year.

Citizen of the Year Committee
This committee will have the task of choosing a citizen of the year and coordinating the presentation through an Annual Meeting.

Newsletter Committee
This committee is probably the most important communication tool that the chamber possesses in providing a newsletter to keep the membership informed of chamber activities and work. In return, it also has a great impact on the membership and the community as a whole.

Membership Development Division
Dena Cornutt, director
The development and expansion of the chamber's membership base is the primary mission of this division. This includes the sale of new memberships and the reevaluation of some of the chamber's present investments.

It is also concerned with the collection of slow accounts, possible delivery of new member packages, conducting new member orientation programs and reviewing the investments of present members.

New Member Orientation Committee
This committee has the strategic task of orienting new members established from the monthly membership efforts. By having an effective orientation program, we may bring new members into the chamber and help them become immediately active.

Membership Investment Review Committee
As time passes, businesses will have a tendency to grow. As this is done, they will fall into different ratings in the membership investment guide. This committee's responsibility is to look at each member and the guide to see that they remain current in their respective positions.

Sports and Recreation Division
Ken Rheams, director
This division will focus on the promotion of local and area sports and recreation related activities.

Promotion Committee
This committee's responsibilities lie in promoting the sports and recreation of Pampa and Gray County.

Country Fair Committee
Jim Morris, chairman
The Country Fair Committee has the responsibility of planning and carrying out the annual Country Fair, which is the largest fund-raising activity for the chamber during the year. Various committees meet beginning in April of each year to plan the event, which is held each October.

Accreditation Task Force
Lee Waters, Chairman
The Accreditation Task Force was formed in June, 1987. Six committees — Communications, Finance, Program of Work, Organization, Staff, and Plant, States Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber undertakes new economic development programs

One of the biggest changes occurring in the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce in the past year has been a greater involvement in actively promoting Pampa as a home for new industry and businesses.

In conjunction with the city of Pampa and the Pampa Industrial Foundation, the chamber is an active participant in TEXCEL — Texas Cities for Economic Leadership — a state-sponsored program to encourage cities to undertake strong local economic development plans.

In Pampa, the aim of the economic development program is to create jobs and wealth for the citizens of Pampa, Gray County and the general area, according to Bruce Barton, chamber executive vice president.

Barton said the chamber has undertaken four major methods to achieve this goal: (1) establishing a first class industrial development program; (2) establishing a retail promotion program; (3) investigating opportunities for promoting conventions and tourism; and (4) encouraging more involvement in the international trade area.

"Under our industrial development program, we are endeavoring to establish a first class industrial development program for Pampa and this area," he said.

One of the means toward this is the creating of materials and information needed to help develop prospects, Barton said.

In the past year, the chamber has achieved this goal by collecting information on existing industry and business, on the geographic and climatic aspects of the area, on the available resources, on labor and work force potential, and on other areas that prospects might need to know, such as educational facilities, quality of life areas, and civic and community service opportunities.

The chamber then developed materials to use in contacting potential prospects who might be interested in locating in the Pampa area, including letters, visual attention-getters and an industrial videotape entitled Pampa — The Industrial Touch.

The chamber then began its efforts to actively develop industry and business prospects through its local promotional programs. These include a direct-mail program which targeted 6,000 of the largest plastics and textiles industries in the United States, conducted through a "piggyback" program with Southwestern Public Service Co. By combining efforts, SPS seeks first to sell the Panhandle to potential prospects, and then Pampa seeks to sell itself through the city's own promotional efforts and follow-ups.

"We received an overwhelming response of over 300 percent more than we expected, with 102 replies," Barton said. Of these, several bona fide prospects have developed from the program and have put Pampa in their three-to-five-year planning cycles for possible new facilities.

The chamber also has been working to develop industrial allies.

"We have developed an excellent working rapport with industrial consultants from both the Texas Department of Commerce and Southwestern Public Service," Barton said. "This has resulted in, for the first time in many years, our receiving direct referral on prospects from both of these groups."

"Since a little over a year ago we seldom had the opportunity to send out community information on Pampa, during the month of December we have forwarded 12 community profiles to prospective industries."

The program has developed to this point over the last year and should continue to expand in the years to come, he said.

Generally the lead time on prospective industries is an average of 24 months. But sometimes, as Barton indicated earlier, the planning time for many prospects is between three and five years.

In another area of making the area more attractive to potential prospects, the chamber has joined other entities in supporting the creation of the Pampa/Gray County Enterprise Zone. Permitted by state legislation passed last year, an enterprise zone provides a means for local governing bodies, working with the state, to offer financial and other incentives to new and existing businesses and industries located within a "depressed area."

Under the enterprise zone program, the chamber will serve as the lead economic development agency responsible for administering the program. The primary goal is to create permanent jobs and inject capital investment into the local economy.

The zone is supported by the city of Pampa, Gray County, Pampa Independent School District, Pampa Industrial Foundation and Clarendon College, in addition to the chamber.

But the chamber does not ignore its responsibilities to the business and industry already existing in Pampa. The chamber has a number of established committees to work in promoting the local economy (see related article).

"This past year saw the beginning of Pampa's Retail Trade Council and a greatly enhanced Christmas program," Barton said.

Barton noted that there was a very successful Christmas parade, drawing many area visitors to the city.

Also, the chamber — through its Christmas Committee — helped obtain the first addition to the "Christmas Park," located in Coronado Park by the M.K. Brown Auditorium and Coronado Inn. This was the large, 50-foot tall artificial community Christmas tree, funded by the Inez B. and H.E. McCarley Foundation.

There also was the "Taste of Pampa" Food Fair, which was very successful in involving a number of local restaurants and eating establishments. The revived Festival of Trees and Gift Boutique was the most successful ever, with some 60 craftspeople participating, in addition to individuals, groups and merchants showing their decorated Christmas trees and related items.

"We look forward to beginning plans for the coming year with a retail calendar, along with selected citywide promotions," Barton said.

Another economic area the chamber is promoting for area businesses and industries is the extension of their products and services in the international trade area.

"Many of our local industries are already involved in international trade," he said. "We hope to endeavor to enhance the opportunities in international trade through working closely with the Texas and U.S. Departments of Commerce."

"In addition, we are looking forward to hosting seminars on international trade which will be of interest to local businesses interested in exporting," Barton said.

Though the chamber has been busy in implementing a strong economic development program, it's only the beginning of a long-range program in the chamber's efforts to help improve its community.

Chamber has a new program of action

Under new directions taken by the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce in the past year, committees and service divisions have been assigned to various departments supervised by members of the Executive Committee.

The former chamber committees have been assigned under divisions, and those divisions under departments, all for better coordination and supervision of the chamber's program of action toward accomplishing its goals in the coming years.

Leading the Executive Committee are Robert Wilson, president, and Jim Morris, president-elect.

Four vice presidents oversee the departments and help better coordinate the activities and events of the various committees and divisions. Serving as vice presidents for 1988-1989 are Don Babcock, Community Development; Lee Waters, Public Affairs; Jerry Noles, Economic Development; and Jerry Norris, Operations.

Following is a summary of the departments, with their committees and divisions and a brief description of their area of responsibilities.

COMMUNITY AFFAIRS

Airport and Aviation Division

David Caldwell, director

The Airport and Aviation Division will conduct programs aimed at improving facilities at the Perry Lefors Field. It also will draw attention to the importance of air transportation to the economic development of this area.

In addition, the division will create a liaison with the Confederate Air Force and the All Texas Air Tour to discover opportunities for the area's involvement to encourage our programs.

Airport Development

The Airport Development Committee will work with Gray County and the airport management in their plans to improve and expand the Gray County airfield (Perry Lefors Field). This may include looking at long-range studies, gathering data and working the Federal Aviation Administration on federal funding.

Confederate Air Force/All Texas Air Tour

This committee will act as a liaison with the Confederate Air Force and the All Texas Air Tour to discover ways in which the area can be of benefit to their organization and to enhance the economy of our area.

Education Division

Darville Orr, director

It is most important that a sound educational program be continued and enhanced for Pampa. The educational systems — ranging from public schools to Clarendon College and West Texas State University — are of utmost importance to the future development of our area.

Pampa Schools Committee

An integral part of any economic development program is the local education system. This committee's responsibility is to work closely with the local Pampa schools to enhance educational opportunities.

Higher Education Committee
Higher education opportunities are of great importance to a community's quality of life and community development, whether it be a degree-oriented or continuing education program. Many companies utilize local higher education facilities to improve and enhance the abilities of their work force.

This committee's responsibility is to inventory higher education opportunities and to work with the Manufacturers Council in relaying this information to the business entities.

Highways & Transportation
This committee's responsibility is to inventory higher education opportunities and to work with the Manufacturers Council in relaying this information to the business entities.

Committees have helped chamber have a successful year

The Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce functions because of and through a variety of committees of volunteers working to accomplish the chamber's annual goals.

While all committees are engaged in numerous on-going projects throughout the year, several committees had some major accomplishments in 1988.

Following is a recap of some of the committee work in the past year:

The Aviation-Airport Committee hosted a B-13 fly-in for pilots and their wives in conjunction with the Confederate Air Force. Two committees under this division, Airport Development and Confederate Air Force/All Texas

Air Tour, work to promote aviation in the area.

The Conventions and Tourism Committee supported area conventions such as the Tri-State Seniors golf tournament and the Pampa Army Air Field Reunion meeting.

The 12-member Retail Board is divided into three areas — communications, issues and special events. They emphasize assistance to local retail merchants. Issues covered bad check collection, SOS alert system for area merchants and tax payment options. Special events promoted the rodeo, senior golf tournament, and back-to-school and holiday promotions.

The Legislative Affairs Committee hosted several candidate forums for both school board and city election candidates during the year.

The Agriculture and Livestock Committee held the annual Top O' Texas Junior Stock Show and Sale, encompassing 4-H and agriculture students from an eight-county area in March.

The Newsletter Committee began its second year of publishing the chamber's monthly newsletter, which has a circulation of nearly 850.

The Gold Coats added a membership visitation program with a goal of contacting personally every chamber member during the year, in addition to their regular functions of attending grand openings and greeting dignitaries. The Gold Coats, divided into four teams, alternate the duties quarterly.

The Membership Committee operated on a year-long basis by meeting monthly to review past-due accounts and to recruit new members. The New Member Orientation Committee will host its first quarterly orientation for new members on the work of the chamber organization.

The Christmas Events Committee under the chairmanship of Ruth Ann Sikes had yet another successful Christmas season. A new community tree, purchased with funds donated by the Inez B. and H.E. McCarley Foundation, was erected and will be one of the first pieces in what will become a "Christmas Park."

The Saturday parade was successful, with more than 100 entries. The Festival of Trees and Gift Boutique, revived after a two-year absence, was also successful, with some 60 craftspeople displaying their wares and local organizations decorating some beautiful trees.

Two firsts this year included the "Taste of Pampa" Food Fair and the Home Decorating Contest, co-sponsored by The Pampa News.

Chamber

Street and Highway Development Committee

Over the years, this area has an excellent record for developing its highway system. In the future, the highway transportation funds will probably be spent in a different manner, and the area must keep a well-organized program to meet our future needs.

Public Safety Division

Richard Stowers, director
This division will deal with all aspects of public safety, including law enforcement protection, fire and community safety.

Crime and Fire Prevention Committee

This committee has the task of working with the local Fire Department, Police Department, Department of Public Safety and other entities that deal with the public safety of this area. This is a critical quality of life issue and needs to be very carefully addressed.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The Economic Development Department, through its divisions, has the mission of strengthening the local economy and implementing projects and programs that will insure its continued future success.

Agriculture Division

Wayne Stribling, director
This division will conduct programs lending assistance to all phases of agriculture and livestock development in the Pampa area. This segment of our economy is very important, and the chamber needs to lend assistance to its development.

Top O' Texas Livestock Show Committee

This committee will continue its excellent work in putting on the annual Top O' Texas Livestock Show and other events involving the youth and the area in agriculture and livestock.

Industrial Development Division

Ron Guard, director
This division will direct its efforts toward programs developing and expanding the industrial, wholesale and distribution base of the city and the area. This can be done through the expansion of existing firms and the attraction of new operations. In addition, it needs to address the formation of a personnel association for the future.

Manufacturers Council

This council is designed to aid the flow of information through discussions for determining the needs for our local manufacturing community. When needs are discovered, the chamber will then address those of which it can be of help.

Industrial Team

The Industrial Team is a highly specialized group of people who meet occasionally to keep up-to-date in their special area of knowledge so they may discuss this knowledge with possible prospective industries.

Incubator Development

This is a vital committee aimed at establishing a program for businesses to have a better chance of being profitable and enhancing their staying power. This is a study committee to examine methods used successfully in incubator programs.

Health Services Division

Linda Haynes, director
This division investigates the needs of the health services in our area and discovers ways in which to be of assistance. Additionally, it looks at promoting Pampa as a regional health center.

Hospital Services Committee

The most important aspect of a community's quality of life is the available hospital services. This committee's responsibility includes promoting Pampa as a regional health center, along with supporting the hospital in expanding its operations.

Allied Health Services

A vital part of any hospital and medical service is the availability of allied health services. This committee's responsibility is to cooperate closely with the medical community and our local hospital in helping to secure the necessary professionals.

Retail Services Division

Dean Copeland, director
The retail sector of our economy is critical. It is most important that this division work very closely with those businesses to enhance their profits and activities throughout the year.

Retail Board

This board sets the direction for the retail area of the chamber. It is presently elected by retail members to represent them. All policy statements, of course, must receive approval by the chamber board of directors.

Issue Committee

This committee is established to handle any retail issues; government issues and seminars related to the retail market.

Special Events Committee

This committee will help in revitalizing the retail community, communicating with the retail membership and developing public relations.

Conventions & Tourism Development Division

Danny Bainum, director

Probably one of the most untapped areas of our economy is in promoting with conventions and tourism. This division needs to look into ways to help develop the use of our excellent facilities at the M.K. Brown Auditorium and to look toward methods of keeping tourists longer in the Panhandle area.

Seniors Golf Tournament

This committee works closely with the seniors golf tournament association to try to enhance this excellent program for the economic benefit of the area.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

This department is responsible for developing programs designed to develop a closer understanding of the relationships with all agencies of government. It also develops programs to inform the membership and general public on legislative matters that from time to time may affect the business climate.

The aim is to improve the chamber's own image. In addition, it works with area fine arts to enhance the area and the oil and gas industry that has been greatly affected by recent decisions.

Regional Relations Development Division

Harry Griffith, director

This division works on a region-wide basis to improve our relations with other entities having an interest in the economy's development. In addition, it works with Clean Pampa to promote this concept throughout the area.

Area Relations Committee

This committee promotes a cooperative relationship throughout the Panhandle.

Clean Pampa/Gray County Committee

This committee promotes the clean community concept throughout the Gray County area.

Legislative Affairs Division

Roy Sparkman, director

This division investigates governmental issues that will affect the business climate of our area. In addition, it transmits these issues and information to the chamber membership.

Eggs and Issues Breakfast Committee

This committee brings to the membership special issues which they feel the membership has interest in and which will affect their ability to do business.

Pampa has IT —

"Pampa has IT—the Industrial Touch."

That has been the theme for the direct mail program operated under the auspices of the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce for the city of Pampa's TEXCEL program.

IT—the Industrial Touch—has shown up as a logo on letterheads, attention-grabbing pop-up visual aids and an industrial videotape entitled Pampa—The Industrial Touch.

More than 6,000 growth-oriented companies in the plastics and textiles industries have received the IT letters, all individually addressed and personally signed, touting Pampa as a potential location for any planned facilities expansion or new industry location.

IT also shows up on any follow-up letters and the pop-ups as attention grabbers: a bandwagon, a drawing board and a butterfly. Each follow-up letter addresses a specific area showing how Pampa has helped its local industries: Hoechst Celanese following its explosion, IRI International Inc. with development of its refuse carrier and the "beautiful attitude" of the local government toward industry.

The videotape will be forwarded to the top 1,000 companies with growth trends over a five-year period. The film depicts Pampa as industrial community unique in West Texas, with a wide variety of heavy industries and technical activities currently located here, a skilled and productive labor force, and a positive attitude.

Chamber

Local and State Legislative Affairs Committee

This committee investigates and becomes aware of the local and state legislative issues affecting our local business climate. From time to time, it may formulate policy to be approved by the board of directors as to positions on non-partisan issues affecting the business climate.

Public Relations Division

This division assists the chamber in securing publicity of all of its working projects. In addition, it works with the Gold Coats organization to make sure they find adequate avenues for their involvement.

It also works very closely with the area media to establish an excellent relationship in enhancing publicity for the chamber.

Media Relations Divisions

This committee establishes a better relationship with the area media so that the chamber activities can be more accurately and properly promoted.

Gold Coats

This organization provides a greater function and other activities to enhance the chamber's image and its ability to serve its membership.

Oil & Gas Division

Jack Reeve, director
Our geographic area is vitally dependent to the success of the oil and gas industry. It is of utmost importance that this division work very closely with all aspects of this industry to enhance its ability to continue its vital role in our area economy.

Oil and Gas Regulatory Study

Committee

Over the years, the oil and gas industry has been a mainstay of the Panhandle economy. In an effort to diversify the economic base of our area, we must continue to support our oil and gas industry.

During the coming years, many regulations affecting the industry will need to be studied. The committee's responsibility is to study these changes and give policy recommendations to the chamber board so it may take these policies and transmit its feelings to the appropriate governmental bodies.

Fine Arts Division

Louise Fletcher, director
The fine arts are an important part of the quality of life for our area. This is directly related to the attractiveness for expansion of present industries and attracting new businesses.

Fine Arts Committee

This committee works with the Pampa Fine Arts Association to coordinate our activities and continue to offer excellent programs for this area.

Plaids, tartans are on everything from wrists to ankles

By MARY MARTIN NIEPOLD
Newspaper Enterprise Ass'n.

Plaids, as enduring as they are, are looking all dressed up this winter. Tartans, particularly, are appearing in fashion items ranging from watch bands to silk evening blouses.

Perhaps it's their rich colors or their strong link to history and tradition, but of all the menswear-inspired patterns, plaids are most easily adaptable to more feminine fare. Currently, designers around the world (and with prices paralleling names as precious as Yves Saint Laurent or as affordable as Tommy Hilfiger) are designing in fabrics of colorful boxes rimmed in black borders.

Christian Lacroix matches his fingertip-length plaid jacket with a tapestry skirt and leopard-skin hat.

Tartan plaids originated in military dress in the Scottish Highlands in the 18th century. Today, more than 200 tartans are said to be in production.

To celebrate the richness of this historical pattern and its role in dress for the last two centuries, New York's Fashion Institute of Technology is currently staging an exhibit called "Tartan," which continues through Feb. 4, 1989. The exhibit features historical tartans from around 1800 to contemporary fashion interpretations of the pattern from designers such as Balenciaga, Geoffrey Beene, Valentino, Bill Blass and Kenzo.

The exhibit's three curators visited London and Scotland to obtain as many items as possible for the show, which they wanted to reflect "the abiding presence and aura of tartan."

Plaids are never quite out of style. But what's new this season is the fact that same black/red/green plaid we've always loved looks lively and exciting as the watchband on a Guess watch by Georges Marciano, or as the front on a brass-buttoned red wool cardigan by Tommy Hilfiger.

Farther up the fashion ladder, European couturiers have fallen in love with plaids for this winter's collections. Saint Laurent mixes cultures with plaid. One day ensemble includes a green plaid blouse and black velvet skirt topped by a white jacket trimmed in Tyrolean red and green and accented by an oversized Maltese cross. Ethnic chic may be one way of interpreting the season's plaids.

Another — Karl Lagerfeld's inclination — is to interpret plaids in new colors. His amply cut lamb's wool jacket is fashioned in purple/white/black plaid.

Since plaid seems to automatically signal an aura of well-bred courtliness, it easily falls in step with the rest of the season's sportswear, which stresses understated elegance. Pants, having returned so strongly this season, make perfect foils for plaid jackets or sweaters.

Pendleton Woolen Mills has been known for its fine wools since 1909, and this winter, it stresses the popularity of authentic clan tartans and colorful plaids in custom-size collections for petite, full-figure and tall women.

According to Pat McKeivitt, women's wear communications manager at Pendleton, "Pendleton believes fuller figures can often wear the same fabrications and silhouettes as their regular-size counterparts." Plaids, consequently, are fashioned in pleated skirts and blazers, as cardigans and straight skirts, or in easy two-piece dress mixes this season.

Another American designer, Mary Ann Restivo, likes to show a blanket plaid swing coat over a windowpane-check blazer, which top fine wool gabardine high-waisted trousers.

"The wide-leg pant," says Restivo, "is the important new look. The high-waisted, belted trouser is also right because it gives you a nice, long-leg look."

A silk plaid blouse with one of the new longer slim skirts or a new pair of wide-legged evening trousers will brim over with romantic notions of faraway Highlands times.

Even France's "Empress Crinolines," the Spanish-born Eugenie, knew the beauty of plaids. As many "Les Modes Parisiennes" prints from the 1850s will attest, tartans in silk taffeta were quite popular then, as, once again, they are today.

Two models show Williwear plaid fashions for women and men in New York. The plaid of the jackets is mixed with a different plaid in the men's pants and in the women's stockings.

Stepmom wants book closed on wicked fairy tale image

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a widower who is the father of three young children, so now I am a stepmother. I love these children and they love me, but here's the problem:

I hope you won't think I am being childish or silly, but while reading bedtime stories to the children, I am deeply hurt when I come across a character in the story who is described as the "wicked stepmother." Abby, this is terribly unfair to all the kind and caring stepmothers.

Is there anything we can do to stop perpetuating this ugly myth? How can we good stepmothers combat the "wicked stepmother" label?

A NOT-SO-WICKED STEPMOTHER

DEAR STEPMOTHER: Don't take the "wicked stepmother" label personally. She's been in the fairy tale literature for generations, and until and unless a more contemporary author of bedtime stories replaces her with "a kind and loving" stepmother, all you good stepmothers will have to let your deeds speak for themselves.

There must be a special place in heaven for those noble women who have chosen to raise another woman's children. And if there isn't, there should be.

DEAR ABBY: My father left our family when I was a young girl. (I am now 26 years old.) He changed his name and cut off all family ties. It's been nearly four years since I've heard from him — but that doesn't stop him from putting my name and telephone number on all of his hospital forms as "next of kin." The only reason I know of his recent heart attacks (he's had three) is because the hospitals have called me numerous times regarding information as to his whereabouts for non-payment of his bills.

I realize this may sound cold, but I want nothing to do with this man. My concern is, when he dies, am I financially responsible for his funeral expenses or any of his unpaid bills? He and my mother are legally divorced and everyone else in the family feels the way I do about him.

What should I do? Please hurry your answer.

CONCERNED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR CONCERNED: According to Arthur Groman, my legal consultant, there are specific provisions in the law of California governing the obligation of children to support their parents who are in need. There is also a provision of law that any adult person abandoned by a parent prior to the age of 18 may bring an action to be relieved from the obligation of support. Because of the nature of these laws, you should consult a California attorney.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EUNICE IN NEWARK": Not all men cheat on their wives. But it's a fairly safe bet that the man who says they do cheats on his.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Solutions will not be found in a heated exchange if you get involved in a discussion today with someone whose outlook is diametrically opposed to yours. Keep a cool head. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't inject yourself in delicate matters today that do not directly concern you. If you interfere where you shouldn't, you could end up regretting it later.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you do not manage your resources wisely at this time you are likely to spend more money than you can presently afford. Unfortunately, your extravagance may be dedicated to frivolous involvements.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to avoid situations today that have competitive elements, especially where your career is concerned. There's a possibility that you might be outmatched.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best not to take impulsive risks on someone else's ideas today, particularly if they are authored by someone who has buried things in the past. Think for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make it a point not to bring up an old issue today that previously provoked a disagreement between you and a close friend. This matter still needs more time to cool off.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to get others to cooperate with you today, try making suggestions instead of issuing directives or commands. If you come on too strong it will only stiffen their resistance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be inclined to make some hasty repairs around the house today. This is well and good, provided you have the proper tools and materials to do the job right.

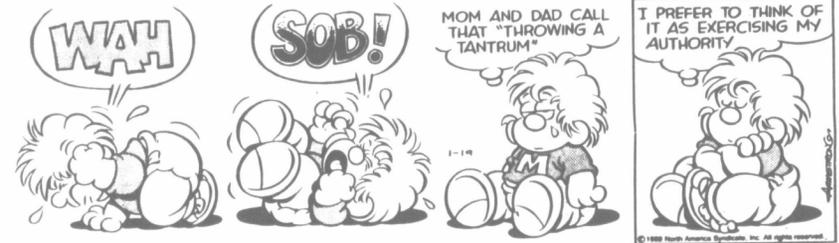

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Have fun and enjoy yourself, but guard against over-indulgence in the good things that life has to offer. You'll feel better tomorrow if you practice moderation today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There is a possibility you might have to make some adjustments in your plans today in order to accommodate someone else. Should this occur, don't blow things out of proportion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you are rather easygoing and flexible when dealing with others, but today you may make companions feel uncomfortable by being unreasonably insistent on having your own way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When socializing with friends today, subdue temptations to spend more than you should in hopes of making a good impression. The only impression you'll make will be on your credit cards.

Blue Devils routed

College basketball

By BOB GREENE
Sports Writer

After watching his top-ranked team get blasted from the ranks of the unbeaten, Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski went right to the point.

"It's kind of like we have been dodging a bullet and we got hit by an artillery shell," Krzyzewski said.

With Scott Williams leading the way, 13th-ranked North Carolina dominated inside and routed Duke 91-71 Wednesday night. Williams finished with 22 points and 11 rebounds.

"They played like men and we played like boys at times," Krzyzewski said. "I was amazed at their strength."

North Carolina, 15-3 and 2-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, pounded the boards on both ends. Of its 14 baskets in the second half, only one was a jumper from beyond 10 feet. The Tar Heels ran up a 43-27 edge in rebounds, including an 18-1 lead on the offensive boards.

Williams, who hit 10 of 14 field goal attempts, said he got the revenge he was seeking.

"We had every right to go into this game and play just like we had nothing to lose," Williams said. "We had lost to them three times last year. That was incentive to go out there and play. We had nothing to lose and everything to gain."

Duke, with Danny Ferry nursing a sore back, fell to 13-1 overall and 3-1 in the conference.

In other games Wednesday involving Top Twenty teams, it was

No. 3 Georgetown 80, Providence 77; No. 5 Oklahoma 123, No. 17 Kansas 95; No. 14 Florida State 112, Arkansas 105 in overtime; No. 15 North Carolina State 82, Wake Forest 64; and No. 18 Tennessee 83, Florida 76.

North Carolina led 39-34 at the half, but Duke began the second half with a 9-0 run to grab a 43-39 lead, its first advantage since the opening basket.

After the teams traded baskets until Duke led 50-45, the Tar Heels went on a 13-2 spurt and the run-away was on. North Carolina continued to build its lead to the end, hitting 15 of 19 free throws in the last 10 minutes.

Robert Brickley paced Duke with 20 points.

No. 3 Georgetown 80, Providence 77

With Coach John Thompson sitting out his second straight game to protest a newly approved NCAA rule that tightens entrance requirements for freshman athletes, Georgetown got 35 points from Charles Smith, including a go-ahead baseline shot with five seconds left, to edge Providence in a Big East game.

The Hoyas, down 77-71 with 1:50 to play, scored the final nine points of the game. Smith put the Hoyas ahead with a five-foot shot from the right baseline, then added two foul shots.

Georgetown is 13-1 and 4-1. Providence, 13-2 and 3-2, was led by Eric Murdock with 20 points.

No. 5 Oklahoma 123, No. 17 Kansas 95

Mookie Blaylock scored 30 points and Stacey King had 23 in Oklahoma's rout of Kansas. It was the first game between the Big Eight teams since the NCAA championship game last season when Kansas upset the Sooners.

Milt Newton paced Kansas with 22 points.

No. 14 Florida State 112, Arkansas 105, OT

Reserve Derrick Mitchell missed the front end of a one-and-one with six seconds left in regulation and the score tied at 100, but scored all seven of his points in overtime as Florida State downed Arkansas.

George McCloud led the Seminoles with 28 points. At 13-1, it's the best start in school history. The Razorbacks are 10-4.

No. 15 N. Carolina St. 82, Wake Forest 64

Chris Corchiani's 22 points led a fast-breaking North Carolina State attack as the Wolfpack built a 16-point halftime lead and won their 10th straight game, raising their record to 12-1 overall and 3-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Wake Forest fell to 8-6 and 1-4.

Chris King led Wake Forest with 15 points.

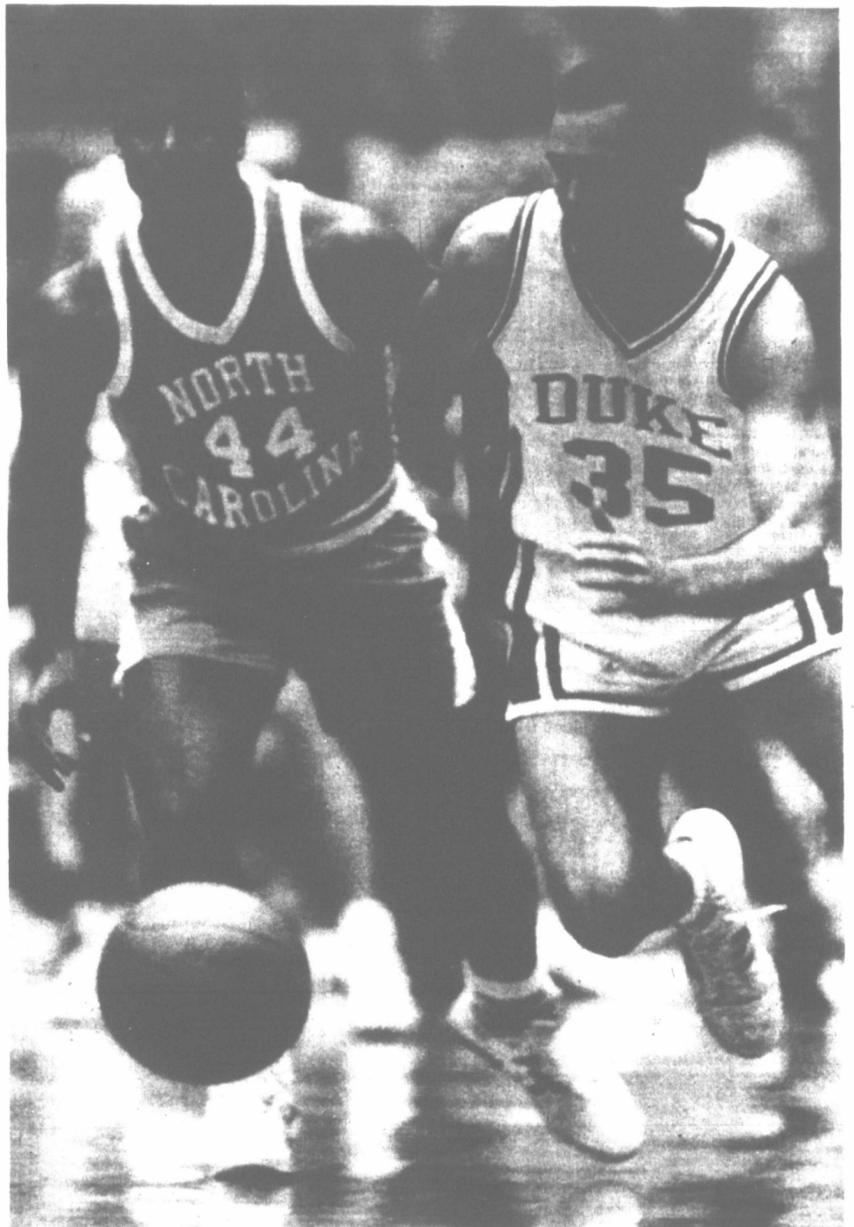

No. 18 Tennessee 83, Florida 76

Dyron Nix scored 19 of his 29 points in the second half to lead Tennessee past Florida. The Volunteers improved to 12-2 and lead the Southeastern Conference with a 5-0 record. Florida fell to 8-9 and 2-4.

Nix scored Tennessee's first nine points of the second half, but the Vols could not pull away as Dwayne Schintzius and Livingston Chatman kept the Gators close. Schintzius finished with 28 points and 12 rebounds, and Chatman had 19 points.

What to look for in Super Bowl

How will the two Super Bowl teams perform?

The key to the Cincinnati Bengals offense, which averaged 6.15 yards per play this season, is its balance. Cincinnati can beat you by air or by land.

QB Boomer Esiason was the top-rated NFL passer. He had a 57.5 percent completion rate, a 28-14 touchdown/interception ratio, and 3,572 yards passing.

But the Bengals running game is equally productive. The Bengals use two backs in most situations, rookie Ickey Woods and James Brooks. Between them, they accounted for 1,997 yards on the ground.

Cincinnati's no-huddle offense — when the NFL rules committee doesn't intervene — leaves opposing teams breathless and unable to make situational substitutions on defense. The Bengals have had the Attack Offense since 1985.

Like Cincinnati, San Francisco has a finely balanced attack.

Roger Craig can run the ball (second leading rusher in the NFC, with 1,582 yards) or catch it (fifth in the NFC in receiving, 534 yards). QB Joe Montana got hot in the playoffs. So did wideout Jerry Rice, who has caught five TD passes in that last two games.

If the Bengals led the NFL in six offensive categories, the 'Niners weren't far behind. San Francisco was second in total yards per game, rushing yards per game and average gain per run; and fourth in average gain per offensive play.

The big difference between these two teams will be on the other side of the ball. The Bengals were rated 11th in the league in defensive efficiency, allowing opponents 4.89 yards per play. The 'Niners were ranked third, allowing 4.52 yards. But Cincinnati's defense has been tough in the playoffs.

San Francisco's defense has no big names — except for nose tackle Michael Carter and free safety Ronnie Lott. Yet the 49ers were brutal against the run, holding opponents under 100 yards per game.

Finally, the Super Bowl will be played on grass, which San Francisco is used to playing on at home. Cincinnati's home field has artificial turf.

NBC's show for Super Bowl XXIII

How many people will watch Super Bowl XXIII on TV?

Nearly half of the homes in the United States are expected to be tuned in on Sunday, Jan. 22, during an average minute of the NFL title game. It's estimated that about 120 million Americans will view the contest.

The game between the NFC champion San Francisco 49ers and the AFC champion Cincinnati Bengals will be broadcast on NBC-TV from Joe Robbie Stadium in Miami. The kick-off is scheduled for 5 p.m. EST.

NBC sportscasters Dick Enberg (play-by-play) and Merlin Olsen (commentary) will be covering the Super Bowl together for the fourth time.

The pre-game edition of NBC's "NFL Live!" will be a special two-hour presentation, beginning at 3 p.m. EST. The show is hosted by Bob Costas. Contributing analysts Ahmad Rashad, Paul McGuire and Gayle Gardner also appear on "NFL Live!" So does special commentator Frank Deford.

The NFL says this year's Super Bowl will be telecast live or via tape delay in a total of 60 countries — to about 750 million people. NBC's live coverage of the game will be augmented by local TV broadcasters in Canada, Mexico, Britain, Ireland, France, Spain, Italy, Scandinavia, Japan and Australia.

In Miami, NBC will use the same broadcast crew — Enberg and Olsen, working with producer Larry Cirillo and director Ted Nathanson — that covered the AFC title contest on Jan. 8. So, TV fans can expect much the same kind of work they saw during Cincinnati's 21-10 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

'It's estimated that about 120 million Americans will view the contest.'

At Joe Robbie Stadium, Cirillo and Nathanson will supervise coverage of the Super Bowl from NBC's control truck. At their disposal will be 23 stationary, mobile or hand-held cameras, located in the stands, on the sidelines and near the end zones. As usual, TV pictures will also be broadcast from a blimp over the stadium.

Enberg and Olsen last covered the NFL championship game when Chicago beat New England, 46-10 in Super Bowl XX in 1986. It was seen on TV by a record U.S. audience of more than 127 million viewers — the most Americans ever to watch any TV program.

Enberg is also an actor: He played a major role on NBC's "Little House on the Prairie" and the title role on NBC's "Father Murphy." He starred last year in the title role of another NBC series, "Aaron's Way."

Costas is now in his fifth season as host of NBC's pre-game show, and his ninth working on NFL coverage for NBC. In July, Costas won an Emmy Award as Outstanding Sports Personality. He also hosts a late-night interview show.

Rashad joined NBC Sports in 1982 at the end of his NFL career as a wide receiver. He is concluding his sixth year with the pre-game NFL program.

Maguire returned to NBC in 1986 after six years at ESPN. He had worked at NBC Sports from 1971 to 1979 as an analyst on AFC telecasts. Maguire entered broadcasting after an 11-year AFL career as a punter and linebacker.

Prior to joining NBC a year ago, Gardner had been a member of ESPN cable network since 1983. She started her career in sportscasting in 1976 with an NBC affiliate, WBZ-TV in Boston.

Deford, a senior writer at Sports Illustrated, joined NBC's pre-game show in 1986. He provides essays on pro football and sports in general.

than 127 million viewers — the most Americans ever to watch any TV program.

NBC is charging advertisers an average of $675,000 for a 30-second commercial during the 49ers-Bengals game. All of the time slots — including the pre- and post-game programming — are sold. "The network expects to gross about $50 million on its Super Bowl package," reports Advertising Age.

During the Super Bowl, Ad Age says, the biggest TV advertising battle will be beer vs. soft drinks. Anheuser-Busch, the game's single largest sponsor, will challenge the cola companies. Auto ads will have a big impact, also.

The commercial sponsors are hoping for the best. Last year, the ratings on ABC's coverage of the Super Bowl fell to the lowest level in 14 years for a telecast of the NFL championship game.

Enberg, who is concluding his 12th season of NFL announcing, has served as NBC's play-by-play commentator on three Super Bowls. He and Olsen also broadcast the Rose Bowl every year from 1980 to 1988. Enberg won Emmy Awards in 1981 and 1983 as the nation's best play-by-play sportscaster.

Olsen and Enberg are in their 11th season as an NFL announcing team. Olsen joined NBC Sports in 1977 after

Wilander baffled in Australian Tennis Open

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Smooth-stroking Ramesh Krishnan of India outplayed spirited defending champion Mats Wilander 6-3, 6-2, 7-6 (7-5) in the second round of the Australian Open tennis championships today, leaving Wilander contemplating a complete break from the sport.

Krishnan, 27, played an intelligent, composed game against the Swede, the top seed and winner of three of last year's four Grand Slam tournaments.

The Indian, ranked 51st in the world, mixed up his shots, using guile and touch to baffle Wilander, who made a succession of uncharacteristic unforced errors.

Wilander, who has won the Australian Open three times in the past five years and took over as world No. 1 following his U.S. Open victory last September, suffered his earliest loss in a Grand Slam event since losing to Slobodan Zivonjovic of Yugoslavia in the first round at Wimbledon in 1985.

"Once you get out onto the court numbers don't matter," Krishnan said. "It was just him against me."

Krishnan, whose father was a Wimbledon semifinalist in 1960 and 1961, squandered three match points before winning.

"You feel the pressure when you are that close to the biggest win of your career. The court seemed to get smaller," said Krishnan, playing only his third tournament since the U.S. Open. He had been sidelined by a back injury.

Krishnan, quicker after a weight-loss program, won last week's New Zealand Open championship in Auckland.

"To beat the number one player in the world is thrilling, but he is not in good form," Krishnan said.

Wilander, who has slumped since his U.S. Open victory and lost to lowly rated Carl-Uwe Steeb in Sweden's Davis Cup final loss to West Germany in Gothenburg in December, said he was feeling the pressure of being No. 1 and was disgusted with his form.

"I played really short and you can't get away with that against Ramesh," Wilander said. "Mentally I just wasn't in the match. He never let up and didn't make any mistakes."

"It has been difficult for me to motivate myself since the U.S. Open. That was such a big thing for me. Maybe being number one has got to me, because from there you can only go down."

Wilander said he was bored, not enjoying his tennis and was considering a break.

Krishnan now will face Mexican Leonardo Lavalle.

Third-seeded Boris Becker of West Germany, ninth-seeded Czech Miloslav Mecir, 12th-seeded Swede Michael Pernfors and 14th-seeded Jonas Svensson of Sweden advanced to the third round.

Yugoslav teenager Goran Ivanisevic, ranked 300th in the world, eliminated 15th seeded Australian John Fitzgerald, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Becker downed New Zealander Kelly Evernden 7-5, 6-1, 6-3, Mecir beat Australian Mark Kratzmann 6-2, 6-7 (4-7), 7-6 (7-2), 6-2, while Pernfors defeated Tore Meinecke of West Germany 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Svensson beat Hans-Dieter Beutel of West Germany 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

Three-time champion Martina Navratilova led four other seeded women into the round of 32, but 12th-seeded American Patty Fendick and 14th-seeded Australian Anne Minter were ousted.

Navratilova, the second seed, beat Australian Jenny Byrne 6-4, 7-6 (9-7), staving off a set point in the second-set tiebreaker.

Fourth-seeded Pam Shriver of the U.S. recovered from being a set and a break down to beat Sarah Loosemore of Britain 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, fifth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia beat American Heather Ludloff 7-5, 6-3 and 10th-seeded American teenager Mary Joe Fernandez defeated compatriot Ann Grossman 6-4, 7-6 (7-1).

Hana Mandlikova of Australia, seeded 15th.

SUPER BOWL XXIII

Favorite's tag goes to Lyle

Phoenix Open

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — The early attention will be riveted on hometown hero Steve Jones, but Sandy Lyle could be the man to beat this week in the $700,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

"I'm ready to give it a go again," said Lyle, who tees off today in the first round of the chase for a $126,000 first prize.

Lyle's credentials, and his game, are all in order.

He is the defending Phoenix Open champion. He also holds the Masters title, one of three tournaments he won on the American tour last season. And he led the Player of the Year standings until the final week of the season.

Under almost any other circumstances, he would hold the pre-tournament spotlight.

Jones, however, is at center stage for this event at the TPC at Scottsdale. For one thing, the tournament site is only about 10 minutes from his home.

For another, he is the first man in six seasons to win the first two events on the PGA Tour schedule. This week he has a shot at becoming the first since Gary Player in 1978 to win three consecutive American titles.

Jones, who had won only once in five years before sweeping the Tournament of Champions and the Bob Hope Classic, is the first to admit that it is very unlikely. "Nobody expect me to win again. I don't expect me to win again," Jones said.

"I'm just trying to make the cut (to qualify for the final two rounds). I think that's a good, realistic goal for me. If I can make the cut here, I think I will have had a good tournament."

Lyle has greater expectations. "I think my chances are very good," the husky Scot said. "This is my third week, and it's been getting better every tournament."

He was 10th in the Tournament of Champions. A week later, he carried Jones into a playoff before losing the Hope title.

Pampa sophomores thump Borger

Pampa sophomores rolled up a 78-60 win over Borger sophomores Tuesday.

Coby Harris poured in 33 points to lead Pampa's scoring attack. Wayne Cavanaugh had 16 points and Patrick Jackson 10.

Bubba Newman had 31 points for Borger.

The Pampa sophomores are 3-0 in district and 4-8 in all games. They host Tascosa at 2 p.m. Saturday.

In an earlier game, Groom defeated the Pampa sophomores 74-52.

Harris led all scorers with 27 points. Michael Rose had 18 points and Stoney Crump 14 to lead Groom.

"I'd had a five-week break, so I didn't expect much right away," Lyle said. "Now I'm hitting the ball quite well, the putting is coming around and the timing is getting better."

"I'm not really expecting to win, but I am expecting to play well," he said. "If you do that, the wins will come."

Jones and Lyle are part of a 144-man field that includes U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange, last season's Player of the Year who won a tournament in Australia last week; Jeff Sluman, holder of the PGA national championship, and Tom Watson, who is opening his 1989 season this week.

Freshman beats Borger

Pampa Gold won over Borger White 50-42 and Pampa Green defeated Borger Red 74-71 in freshmen games played recently.

Craig Kirchoff was top scorer with 19 points for Pampa Gold, who are 13-2 overall and 8-0 in district play.

Four players scored in double figures in Pampa Green's victory. Chad Augustine had 18 points, Sammy Laury 16, Brent Skaggs 13, and Todd McCavit 10. Larry Kissler led Borger Red with 18 points.

Pampa Green is 15-0 in all games and 8-0 in district.

Pampa freshmen play at Dumas on Monday with the games beginning at 8:30 p.m.

TCU nips Houston

By The Associated Press

Texas Christian coach Joe Iba says he's not sure how his team managed to whip Houston and remain undefeated in Southwest Conference basketball play and he doesn't care how the Horned Frogs did it.

Freshman center Reggie Smith scored seven of Texas Christian's last nine points and 17 overall to lead the Horned Frogs to a 55-54 victory over the Cougars Wednesday night.

"This is a great win for our team," TCU coach Joe Iba said. "I don't know how it happened and I don't care."

In other SWC conference play, Texas edged Texas Tech, 90-86. In a non-conference game, No. 14 Florida State defeated Arkansas, 112-105, in overtime.

Chris Morris of Houston tied the game at 52-52 with 1:25 remaining with a free throw. A three-point play by Smith made it 55-52 with 1:03 remaining.

Houston's Derrick Daniels missed the front end of a 1-1 with three seconds left to seal the victory for TCU, now 12-5 and 5-0 in conference play. Houston dropped to 9-7 and 1-3 after losing three straight conference games by a total of five points.

Richard Hollis led Houston with 16 points.

"Reggie Smith played a great game and we were able to play good defense," Iba said. "That's the only way we can win."

Hollis felt the Cougars misjudged the strength of the Frogs.

"We kind of underestimated them," Hollis said. "They are a good team, but they're not as talented as we are. They play together and that is why they're a good team."

Travis Mays scored 35 points and Texas held off a furious Texas Tech rally for a 90-86 victory.

The Longhorns improved to 13-3, 4-1 in the SWC. Texas Tech is 6-9, 1-3.

Mays and Lance Blanks, who added 26 points, staked the Longhorns to a 17-point halftime lead that grew to 21 points early in the second half.

But the Red Raiders cut the lead to one point with 3:32 remaining on the strength of a 10-point run. Jerry Mason, who led the Red Raiders with 22 points, scored seven points during the 10-point run.

The game drew a crowd of 13,233, the Longhorns' largest of the season.

"Our guys like to flirt with danger I guess," said Texas Coach Tom Penders. "We have had too many games where we have had comfortable leads and then let things get interesting."

Texas, the conference's top-ranked 3-point shooting team, was 10-of-18 from 3-point range.

"That was the most fantastic three-point shooting I have ever seen," said Texas Tech Coach Gerald Meyers.

Mavericks appear to be back on track

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks, pre-season favorites to win the Midwest Division, appear to be back on track after struggling through a seven-game losing streak.

Dallas won its second consecutive NBA game Wednesday night behind Mark Aguirre's 26 points, downing the Denver Nuggets, 102-92.

Aguirre fueled a 16-2 first-quarter spurt with five points and the Mavericks never allowed their lead to fall lower than 10 points over the final three periods.

The Mavericks' defense, missing in action during the losing streak, was a major factor Wednesday. Dallas has won 45 straight at home when holding the opponent to less than 100 points.

"We've picked up our defensive intensity," said Mavericks guard Rolando Blackman, who finished with 22 points. "Denver likes to score off its transition game but we never let them get started tonight."

Dallas' defense limited Denver to 42 percent from the field. The Nuggets entered the game as the NBA's highest-scoring team, averaging 122.6 points per game.

"When you play defense like we did tonight, you're going to win most of the time," said Dallas center James Donaldson, who finished with 13 rebounds. "The season is so long that defense has to carry you."

Dallas hit eight of its first 13 shots while Denver was going four-for-5.

We do the Best at what we know the Best

Due to the extremely poor wheat pasture conditions this year and the possible forced movement of cattle prior to their normal marketing times, Cactus Feeders is offering a unique feedlot growing program which provides the producer with several advantages:

- A market price floor can be established at the time cattle enter the feedyard.
- A guaranteed high energy growing ration price for the feeding period.
- "Interest Free" feed financing.

At the conclusion of the growing period, the following options are available:

- The owner may continue to feed his cattle to market finish with feed and cattle financing provided by Cactus.
- Feed the cattle in partnership with Cactus.
- Sell your cattle to Cactus Feeders on either a cash or on a basis using the CME Feeders Futures.
- Take your cattle back to graze out wheat pasture.

Please call us to learn further details on the unique risk protection program which provides insurance against market declines without limiting your upside market potential.

Home loan plan calls for rate cuts

DALLAS (AP)—A goal to lower the number of Texas home foreclosures prompted federal savings and loan regulators to urge reducing loan interest rates to current market amounts.

A Federal Home Loan Bank Board official in Washington said the Residential Borrowers Restructuring Program is a part of the agency's Southwest Plan to bail out ailing thrifts following a real estate and energy slump.

Under the mortgage restructuring program, qualified borrowers with institutions under the Southwest Plan will be able to refinance home loans, said George M. Barclay, president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Dallas.

"I know the program has already been utilized at a number of the institutions," he told the Dallas Morning News.

For eligibility, a borrower's loan must have a fixed rate of at least 12 percent, and non-fixed rate mortgages are also eligible for the interest adjustments, according to the bank board directive that was made public at a congressional hearing Jan. 10 in Washington.

Lenders are also being encouraged to waive the costs of refinancing the mortgages when the borrower cannot afford them.

Loan shortfalls to institutions through refinancing will still show up on thrifts' income statements. But a lender's loss reserve is set so that net worth of a thrift is not affected by refinanced mortgages, said FHLBB spokesman David Barr. Savings associations will not be required to reappraise a house's market value.

Dallas area home values have declined by an average 4 to 6 percent for each of the past three years, the National Association of Realtors said.

Home price declines mean many homeowners buying in the mid-1980s find their mortgage balances exceeding the market value of their home.

But housing industry analysts are optimistic the FHLBB's actions will reduce bad loans in Texas.

"I think that's just good judgment—if it's possible to salvage something and you are faced with foreclosure," James Wooten, chairman of Lomas Mortgage, U.S.A., said.

"You still have to have someone who wants to stay in the house and has the economic ability to meet what you are agreeing to. There are a lot of those people."

Wooten told the newspaper the loan program is similar to a plan many Texas lenders already are using. He said Lomas, one of the country's largest mortgage banking firms, has reduced the rates on about $60 million of its loans in the last eight months.

A former Dallas savings and loan executive, who asked not to be identified, said the program might not be a good thing for some victims of Texas' sagging economy.

"I would not think that reducing the outstanding rate from 12 percent or 14 percent to 11 percent is going to make a material difference to a large number of people who are thinking about turning in their keys," he said. "A bigger problem is they may have lost their job."

The former thrift officer also said many who do not need the break will demand the rate reduction.

Other lenders should consider the action to reduce foreclosures, said Stuart McFarland, chairman of Virginia-based Skyline Financial Corp.

Flag-waving to give Bush a workout

By SAUL PETT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Should he be hoist by his own petard, George Herbert Walker Bush will begin his presidency with one of the sorest arms in history.

About 35,000 little American flags will be distributed to spectators at his inaugural Friday. At least 700 larger flags will be carried before him in the hours-long parade to follow.

Can the man who espoused the pledge of allegiance to the flag with religious fervor in the last campaign get by with just an occasional salute? With all those flags, just a token movement of the arm toward the heart could leave Bush with the sorest arm since Sandy Koufax quit baseball.

The marching band from the University of Texas alone could wear out the new president. Its 320 marchers will carry 30 flags along with 60 trumpets, 40 trombones, 20 baritones, 24 tubas, 26 percussion, 36 clarinet, 30 french horns, 25 saxophones and 24 piccolos. Can a man from Texas stand motionless before all that?

The statistics come courtesy of the inaugural committee, which produced a handbook of breathtaking scope. It tells far more than you could possibly want to know about inaugurals in compelling detail. For example:

Bush and the six presidents before him were all born between 1908 and 1924, a fact the need of which is not yet clear.

Bush will rank with the four tallest presidents in history, behind Abe Lincoln, Lyndon Johnson and Thomas Jefferson. He also will enter history books as one of four left-handed presidents, the others being James Garfield, Harry Truman and Gerald Ford.

The dome of the Capitol expands and contracts as much as four inches because of the heat of the sun by day and cooling by night, which is in sharp contrast to most of its tenants who are known to expand frequently and contract seldom.

Mrs. William Howard Taft was the first woman to ride in an inaugural parade in 1913. Warren Harding was the first president to ride to his swearing-in in a car. Richard Nixon was the first to review his parade behind bullet-proof glass.

Bush is 31st among college graduates who made it to the White House, 12th among Phi Beta Kappa boys, second among Yale men.

Married 44 years, George and Barbara Bush bring the ninth longest marriage to the White House. John and Abigail Adams were married the longest, 54 years and three days. But Bush is the only president born in June.

You will also sleep better knowing that Andrew Johnson was the only vice president visibly drunk at his inaugural, a condition he blamed on alcohol consumed to combat the pain of typhoid fever.

Should you need more for your next game of Trivial Pursuit, remember Jefferson had the first running water in the White House, from a cistern he put in the roof; Millard Fillmore had the first bathtub installed; Rutherford Hayes, the first telephone; William McKinley, the first elevator; Franklin Roosevelt, the first dishwasher.

But George Herbert Walker Bush will be the first captain of a Yale baseball team to become president. Indisputably.
