Skylab Space Station Rockets From Earth

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Skylab, America's first space station, rocketed away from earth today to serve as a giant "cabin in the sky" for nine astronauts in the next eight months.

The first three-man crew is ready to ride another rocket into space Tuesday to link up with the station, which is as large as a three-bedroom house, for a record 28-day orbital mission.

The Skylab 1 astronauts — Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz — watched from three miles away as a 33-story Saturn 5 rocket thundered skyward to propel the 85-ton laboratory toward orbit.

Their smaller, 22-story Saturn IB rocket stood on another pad 8,700 feet away, ready for the signal to blast off at noon CDT Tuesday if all goes well.

Also observing were the members of the Skylab 2 and 3 crews, each of which is to inhabit the station for 56 days later in the year.

It was the final planned flight for the Saturn 5, the world's largest and most powerful rocket, which was built for the Apollo moon program.

The nine astronauts will conduct extensive medical, scientific, earth resources and space manufacturing experiments to determine how well man can live and work in space for long periods.

What they learn will set guidelines for long duration missions of the future, such as permanent space stations or journeys to other planets.

The information also may have far-reaching consequences in bringing benefits from space to mankind, especially in the survey of earth's hidden natural resources.

Donald K. Slayton, director of flight crew operations, said Sunday that Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz are "fully trained, confident and looking forward to getting the big one off tomorrow and riding the little one on Tuesday." The astronauts Sunday sun-bathed on a Cape Kennedy beach after flying here from Houston, Tex., where they underwent final training.

When they board their orbital laboratory, they will find "all the comforts of home," reports Conrad, the Skylab 1 commander. He is a veteran of three previous space trips, including a walk on the moon.

No more cramped quarters like the Mercury, Gemini or Apollo capsules. Skylab is as large as a three-bedroom house and has 60 times more volume than Apollo.

Each astronaut will have his own bedroom. There is a kitchen and a pantry packed with a ton of food ranging from filet mignon to ice cream.

There's a shower and a toilet, stereo sets, books, changes of clothing, playing cards, a dart board, exercise machines and a picture window for viewing earth. And every seventh day will be a day of rest.

And the Skylab 1 crew will have a live-in doctor, Kerwin, a physician, will handle the medical experiments which have priority on the first mission. He has a dispensary elaborately equipped to monitor the health of the astronauts.

Upon reaching orbit Skylab will weigh 170,000 pounds. When the astronauts' spaceship hooks up with it, it will weigh a total of 199,750 pounds and will be 118 feet long.

With a total of six wing-like solar panels extended it will be a strange-looking space contraption. The panels convert the sun's rays to electrical energy.

In addition to the ferry vehicle, which is a modified Apollo ship, Skylab has four major sections.

The 22-foot-diameter orbital workshop, two-stories high, which contains the astronauts' main living and working space. Bedrooms, kitchen, wardroom and dispensary are located on the first floor. Upstairs is a storage and work area containing science equipment, a food freezer, water storage tank and film vaults.

Forward of the workshop is an airlock module, which serves as part of the passageway between the ferry ship and the workshop and which is the nerve center of the cluster. It contains heat and electrical controls and communications gear. It also will be a pressurization chamber for astronaut space walks.

Also part of the passage is the multiple docking adapter, where the ferry ship docks, and which contains the controls of the solar observatory equipment and earth resources instruments.

The telescope mount, the world's first manned solar observatory which contains six telescopes for studying the sun.

stars and other celestial objects. It weighs 24,656 pounds.

There is no staircase between the first and second levels of the workshop, because in their weightless world the spacemen will be able to float from point to point. But to help guide them from floor to floor, there is a "fireman's pole" running from top to bottom of the workshop.

Ranging as far North as the U.S.-Canadian border and as far South as the tip of Argentina, Skylab will fly over 75 percent of the world's surface — more than any other manned spacecraft.

Several nations have asked the astronauts to conduct earth resources experiments as they pass overhead — ranging from mineral surveys, mapping water resources, studying agricultural potential and photographing possible air and water pollution sources.

ON ALLEGED US ATTACKS

Commission To Review Charges By Viet Cong

SAIGON (AP) — The International Commission of Control and Supervision unanimously agreed today to investigate Viet Cong charges that U.S. planes attacked Communist territory in South Vietnam in violation of the cease-fire agreement.

The United States denied the charges in advance of the meeting today of the commission.

Ambassador Michel Gauvin, chairman of the Canadian delegation, said the Viet Cong would have to guarantee the safety of the investigators. He added that as a result of a number of recent incidents commission members were "shy" about going to Viet Cong controlled areas. This was an obvious reference to several incidents in which ICCS helicopters were shot at while flying over territory controlled by the Viet Cong.

The Indonesian delegation proposed that the commission investigate Viet Cong charges that U.S. B52 bombers and F4 and F105 tactical fighter-bombers bombed areas three and four miles inside the South Vietnamese border along a 43-mile stretch of the frontier region with Cambodia.

Gauvin reported the Canadians, Hungarians and Poles unanimously agreed to the investigation.

The delegates also instructed their military committees to investigate the shelling on Sunday night of an ICCS compound at Ben Cat, 25 miles north of Saigon. A commission spokesman said three 105mm artillery shells heavily damaged the main headquarters building but caused no casualties. The South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong both denied the shells came from their guns.

The South Vietnamese also made charges that 50,000 North Vietnamese troops had moved into the South in the first three months of the ceasefire, along with 400 tanks and 300 artillery pieces.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy, advised of the latest action by the commission, stood by his earlier denial of the Viet Cong charges, adding, "Certainly anything the ICCS wants to do to supervise the ceasefire it should do. We don't have any objection. We certainly welcome any investigation."

TAKEN BY DEAN

Federal Judge Orders Confiscation Of Papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Judge John Sirica today ordered the clerk of his court to take possession of classified documents that had been placed in a safe deposit box by John W. Dean III, the man fired as White House counsel by President Nixon in the Watergate affair.

Following a brief hearing, Sirica ordered that certified copies of the documents be made available to government prosecutors in the Watergate case and to the Senate special committee.

Contents of the documents were not disclosed at the hearing, but Dean told Sirica they were of a security classification entitled "top secret handled via comm channels."

Dean said that classification is stricter than top secret. He was not available for comment after the hearing.

Sirica said the documents would be safe in the possession of the clerk of the U.S. District Court. The chief judge said he did not want to examine the documents at this time.

Dean had filed a motion asking the court to decide what to do with the documents. His attorney, Charles Shafer, said Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., had written Dean in January asking him to preserve any documents that might bear on the Watergate matter.

Shafer said Dean, after he was fired April 30, automatically lost the security clearance that enabled him to possess the documents but that in light of Mansfield's request Dean thought he should hold them pending a court decision on their disposition.

He recently placed them in a safe deposit box at a branch of the suburban Alexandria National Bank.

Shafer and Earl J. Silbert, the government's chief prosecutor in the Watergate affair, each said they have not seen the documents. On Capitol Hill, Elliot L. Richardson said he has narrowed to four the number of persons under consideration for appointment as special prosecutor in the Watergate case.

He told newsmen before the start of a third day of questioning by the Senate Judiciary Committee on his nomination to be attorney general that it would be Tuesday at the earliest before he is ready to announce his selection.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has described the Senate inquiry as a "political inquisition" by a publicity-hungry chairman, Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., dismissed the Cabinet member's remark as an absurdity.

There were these other developments in the spreading Watergate scandal.

Former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III was said by The Washington Post to have been told by two FBI officials several weeks after the Watergate break in there were signs of a cover-up.

The Post quoted sources as saying the officials urged Gray to alert Nixon but that he refused on grounds it might appear he was seeking presidential guidance.

It could not be determined, the Post said, if this occurred before a July 6 telephone call in which Gray reportedly told Nixon he was disturbed that actions by White House aides were confusing the FBI's Watergate investigation.

Bruce Crosses Border To Begin Job In China

HONG KONG (AP) — America's first diplomatic representative to Communist China, David K. E. Bruce, crossed the border from Hong Kong today and headed for Peking.

The veteran 75-year-old diplomat told newsmen he considered his new assignment "very intriguing." He also said he did not expect the Watergate scandal or the ineffectiveness of the cease-fire in Vietnam to affect his job in any way.

Two Chinese soldiers checked the passports of Bruce, his wife, and their three companions in the middle of the border bridge over the Shum Chun river. Then a Chinese government official and a member of the China International Travel Service greeted them.

The group lunched at the Shum Chun railroad station, then took the train to Canton. From there they were to fly to Peking.

The Chinese delayed the Canton flight for three hours for the American envoy, his wife, Evaangelina, his deputy John Holderidge and his aide Brunson McKinley and his wife.

Before crossing the border, Bruce met there with Charles Freeman, a State Department interpreter returning to Washington after six weeks in Peking. Freeman told Bruce of the American advance team that has been in the Chinese capital for six weeks getting ready for the opening of the U.S. liaison office Bruce will head.

The mission is not expected to be ready to open its permanent office for another three or four weeks. Until then Bruce will work out of an apartment.

A U.S. spokesman said the liaison office will start functioning as soon as Bruce arrives but there will be no formal opening.

It will have a staff of 31, including 10 Foreign Service officers. Although Bruce will have the title of U.S. representative, he will be accorded the full privileges of an ambassador.

Bruce said he wants to see how his mission develops and that he has no firm pattern laid out in advance. The envoy added that he hopes to establish "relations with the Chinese government in the normal way."

Much of Bruce's job will be identical to that of any other American ambassador. He will encourage trade, report on political and economic conditions, transmit the views of Washington to the Peking government and facilitate the exchange of scientists, educators, businessmen, cultural groups and newsmen.

China will soon open its liaison office in Washington headed by Huang Chen, one of Mao Tse-tung's companions on the Long March in the 1930s and most recently ambassador to France.

Because of his age, the same as Premier Chou En-lai, his experience and his charm, Bruce was considered an ideal choice for the post in China, a country which puts high store on those attributes.

FOR HEARING ON HAIR

Court Rejects College Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas junior college anxious to keep men students short-haired was denied a Supreme Court review of its case today.

The court declined over the objection of Justice William O. Douglas to hear Tyler Junior College appeal of a lower court decision overturning the school's haircut restrictions as an unconstitutional infringement on the rights of students.

School officials argued that the lower court overstepped its authority and that a school dress code should remain a matter for school officials alone.

The case stemmed from a suit brought by Joe Richard Lansdale, Paul Harden and L. H. Hutchinson Jr.

The three young men attempted to enroll at the Tyler, Tex., school for the 1970 fall semester, but were turned aside because their hair was considered too long.

Men students, according to the regulation at the state-supported school, must wear their hair neatly trimmed and "above the collar."

A federal district judge issued a permanent injunction against enforcement of the rule and the federal appeals court in

New Orleans upheld the decision.

The place where the line of permissible hair style regulation is drawn is between the high school door and the college gate, wrote the appeals court majority.

Recognizing its own decision in a previous case that high school officials may impose hair style regulations, the appellate court said the greater maturity of the college student "tips the scale" in favor of individual rights.

School officials argued that the appellate court erred in arbitrarily drawing the line between high school and college.

The federal judiciary should not interfere with the day-to-day operation of the public school system, the school maintained.

During the district court hearing school officials contended that men students must wear short hair in order to preserve "campus discipline and a proper, efficient and effective educational environment."

In support of their claim, they told of seeing on television "long-haired male college students participating in riots, marches and confrontations with authorities," according to the district court opinion.

County Studies Decision

By RAY BAXTER

Members of the Gray County Commissioners Court sat in that capacity this morning and as a board of equalization as well.

As commissioners, they studied a copy of the attorney general's opinion on redistricting of county precincts in Hemphill County.

The opinion, handed down at the request of the Hemphill County attorney, referred to that section of the Texas constitution that specifically states that a county shall be divided into such precincts and each commissioner elected by the qualified voters "THEREOF" and the attorney general expressed his own emphasis on that word.

The Gray County panel will study the complete text of the opinion, then discuss it in the light of the Gray County situation.

The attorney general held "at-large" redistricting a violation of the Texas constitution.

As a board of equalization, the commissioners set July 24-25 as hearing dates for the industrial tax rolls and July 31 as hearing date for local rolls.

The panel will hold its mid-month meeting for June on June 14, at which time it will again convene as a board of equalization to consider any matters taxpayers might have to bring before it.

Commissioners discussed the summer youth employment program that will be made possible through funds from the Public Employment Program.

Judge Don Cain announced that the number of jobs available in Gray County under this program has not been established. Once they are, he said that the local office of the Texas Employment Commission would screen the applicants for those jobs under the summer program.

Other business had to do with the routine reports and payment of bills approved.

Property Tax Hearing Stated

A public hearing on revised property valuations for tax purposes will be conducted by the City Board of Equalization tomorrow in the City Commission Room at City Hall.

The hearing will open at 9 a. m. for persons wishing to protest or seek information on increases in valuations for tax assessment submitted to the equalization board by the city tax department.

City Tax Assessor-Collector Aubrey L. Jones stated some property values have been increased and some reduced.

The Board of Equalization determines, fixes and equalizes values of all city property for tax purposes.

Members of the board are R. M. Samples, R. A. Baker and James A. McCune.

ON TROOP REDUCTIONS

Armed Forces Meeting Opens

VIENNA (AP) — The East-West talks to arrange for negotiations of a reduction of armed forces in central Europe opened here today with a nine-minute meeting.

The first gathering dealt only with organizational details such as the seating order. Delegates agreed to meet again Tuesday.

The Russians have for the first time publicly termed the meetings of "great importance" and "great significance," raising hopes they might be resolved to negotiate seriously on the balanced troop reductions desired by the United States.

The 19 nations were still months away at least from getting down to talking about how many of which nation's troops might be pulled back.

There were hopes that such substantive negotiations could begin in the fall. But it has taken 14 weeks of wrangling to decide whether Hungary should participate in the conference as a full member or just as an observer.

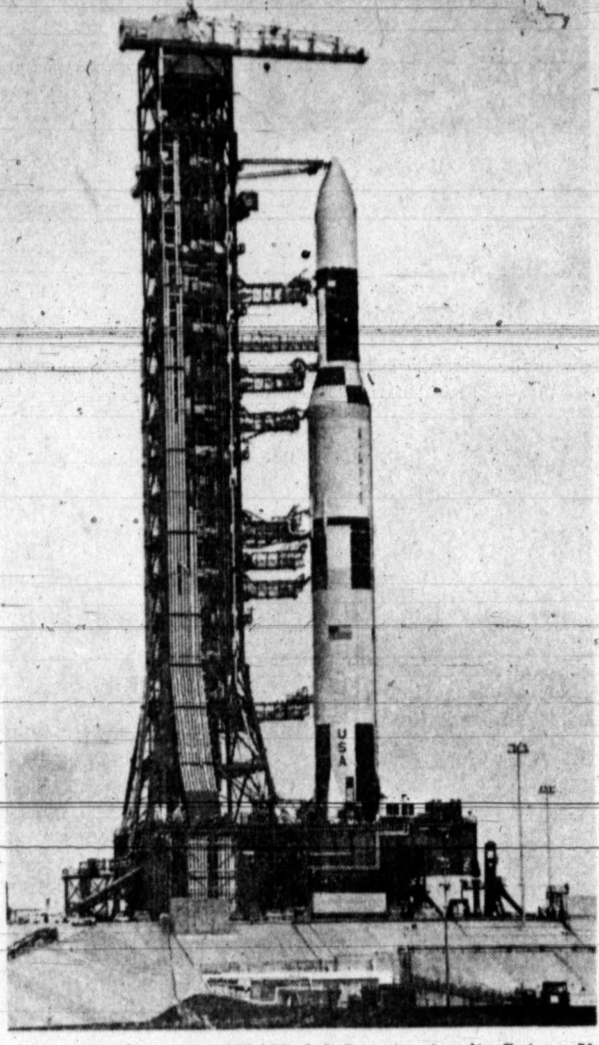

The United States finally forced Britain and its other allies to yield to the Soviet demand that Hungary get observer status only. The British contended that this in effect removed the 40,000-man Soviet garrison in Hungary from the forces that would be subject to reduction.

The 19 nations now move on to such procedural matters as the agenda and rules of procedure for the future negotiations and a Soviet proposal for the inclusion of neutral nations.

The Vienna talks are a companion to similar exploratory talks in Helsinki, Finland, at which 34 nations are laying the groundwork for a conference on European security. The Russians have been seeking such a conference for several years, while the United States and its allies demanded the negotiations on reduction of forces as their price for participation in the security talks.

Moscow displayed a more sympathetic public attitude to the idea of force cuts during the weekend with a report in Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, that Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev and Polish leaders agreed during Brezhnev's visit to Poland Friday on the "great importance" of the Vienna talks. Today the Soviet military commander of the Warsaw Pact, the Communist equivalent of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, said in an interview that East-West reduction of forces was of "great significance."

Rogers Inspecting Managua Damage

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers flies to Managua today to inspect the preliminary rebuilding of the city crumpled by an earthquake last December.

The Nicaraguan capital is just beginning to pull itself out of the disaster that killed an estimated 10,000 persons, injured 20,000 and left more than 300,000 homeless. The United States has contributed more than $27 million in assistance.

Gen. Anastasio Somoza's regime is not expected to publish its plans for the new capital until July. Meanwhile workers are clearing away rubble and now and then recovering human remains in the process.

The U.S. Embassy was among the many buildings destroyed in the quake, and Rogers during his brief visit will inaugurate the new embassy offices and lay the cornerstone for a hospital being built with U.S. assistance.

Nicaragua is the second of eight countries Rogers is visiting in a 17-day Latin American tour that is a forerunner of a similar trip by President Nixon later this year.

Rogers is spending five hours in Managua and is the first secretary of state to visit Nicaragua in 61 years. He flies tonight to Venezuela, then goes on to Peru, Colombia, Brazil, Argentina and Jamaica, returning to Washington on May 28.

The secretary of state conferred in Mexico City Sunday with President Luis Echeverria on a U.S. proposal to reduce the salinity of the Colorado river water that flows into Mexico.

Without disclosing details, Rogers told newsmen that the plan recommended by a study group headed by former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell will involve a considerable expenditure by the United States. Qualified observers predict $50-70 million over the next 10 years.

Under a 1944 treaty the United States guaranteed to deliver 1.5 million acre-feet of usable water from the Colorado river every year. Construction of an irrigation project in Arizona in 1962 turned the water that reaches Mexico salty, ruining farms in the Mexican region.

Since then, the United States has reduced the salinity somewhat, but Mexico wants further improvement. The problem is

Smuggler Approach Planned

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — In a small Mexican border village near here, the United States and Mexico have quietly begun a new approach which threatens to crimp the style of drug smugglers in the coming months.

As an experiment, local Mexican authorities in San Luis, Sonora, were left out completely of Operation Cactus I. Instead, Mexican Federal Judicial police suddenly moved into the community and started making arrests, aided with information supplied by U.S. undercover agents.

Since Operation Cactus began in late February, U.S. and Mexican agents have arrested more than 200 persons on a variety of drug charges and seized large quantities of heroin, marijuana and other drugs.

A reliable U.S. source said similar operations, involving close cooperation between both federal governments and leaving out local Mexican police, who often are accused of conspiring with smugglers, soon would begin along the border.

Phillip Jordan, special agent in charge of Arizona for the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, said final plans for Operation Cactus were mapped out Feb. 18 in Tucson, Ariz., when the U.S. and Mexican attorneys general met.

San Luis, a few miles south of here, was selected as the first target.

Jordan said Mexican police and army troops were flown to San Luis and surrounded the fashionable ranch home of Pedro Avilez Perez.

More than 60 of his alleged employees were arrested, an additional quantity of marijuana and several pounds of heroin were seized, and four airplanes, two semitrucks and a "arsenal of weapons" were confiscated, Jordan said.

"We can't overemphasize the success of this operation," Jordan said. "This is the type of cooperation we need. Our agency works only with the Mexican federal government."

Hungry Troops Get Paychecks

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — About 500 Cambodian troops, hungry and unpaid, whooped through Phnom Penh today, firing their guns in the air. They promptly got a month's pay and some bread to eat.

The army paymaster hastily produced a sack of money and the troops formed up to collect the equivalent of about $17 each — one month's pay for an enlisted man. Out of this he has to buy his own food.

The former commander of the troops blamed an administrative muddle for their lack of pay. Since February, pay has been handled by the central office, whereas previously it was distributed by individual commanders.

The new system was devised in a bid to curb wide-scale corruption in which senior officers pocketed funds by drawing wages for phantom battalions which existed only on paper.

As they straggled past the capital's principal hotel at lunch time, guests dived for cover under restaurant tables and ducked behind trees around the swimming pool.

Soldiers complaining they had received no pay for a month and no food for three days marched in from Phnom Baseth, 14 miles to the northwest.

They said they had left their officers behind and threatened to move on Marshal Lon Nol's presidential palace if the government failed to pay their wages.

The troops showed no hostility to civilians, and newsmen saw no looting although a number of soldiers carried full bottles of liquor.

They converged on the army pay office, where they were met by the division commander, Brig. Gen. Um Khauv, who promised all would be paid if they assembled at a huge city sports stadium a mile away.

Libyan President Upset At Israeli Employment

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — President Moammar Khadafy has charged that the largest American oil company in Libya employed several Israelis in its desert fields, but the Libyan leader gave no indication of any retaliatory action.

Khadafy told a six-hour news conference Sunday that a "people's committee" of company employees discovered that the Israelis worked for the Oasis Oil Co.

There was no comment from the company, which is owned by Amerada, Continental, Marathon and Shell.

The president said he believed seven Israelis were discovered, but the matter is still under investigation. Oasis has been negotiating with the government for months over government participation in the company. The government reportedly is asking a 50 per cent interest, and Oasis reportedly rejected this and made a counter offer.

"This is a scandal for America, that Israelis creep into our oil fields," said Khadafy. "We can sacrifice our oil if necessary to keep Israelis off our soil." Later he commented: "No doubt the day will come when oil will be used as a weapon by the Arabs in the Middle East," but he would not say if or when his regime would nationalize foreign oil companies.

Recently, in reply to Palestinian guerrilla leaders who said Libya should nationalize all U.S. oil interests, Khadafy said he would do so only if other Arab nations did likewise. Unilateral action, he said, would only drive Western oil interests to other Arab nations.

Khadafy said the Oasis "people's committee" is one of many such groups in universities, state institutions, and industry which have the power to advise, guide and at times take action.

On other matters, Khadafy said arrests and purges would continue until "we eliminate all enemies of the people." He included among these Communists and the radical Moslem Brotherhood.

FDA Studying Empty Spaces WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration announced today that it plans to investigate why there is so much empty space at the top of your cereal box.

The agency said that an 11-state survey two years ago showed that slack fill or empty space occupied 47 per cent of dry dessert mix packages.

Mint candies, vermicelli products and spaghetti products had 29 per cent slack fill; filled or iced cookies, 26 per cent; cake and cookie mixes, 18 per cent; corn breakfast foods, 12 per cent; and oat breakfast foods, 7 per cent.

It is impossible to tell from this early information how much of the slack fill is useful and necessary and how much if any, is nonfunctional," said Acting Commissioner Sherwin Gardner.

A new study scheduled to begin in July will attempt to determine how much settling is unavoidable and how much protective packaging is needed, he said.

The survey indicated that some of the samples may have contained less food than the label indicated, Gardner said.

States chosen for the survey are Alabama, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Wisconsin and Washington.

Pampa Man Stab Victim

A Pampa woman complained to local police that she went to a party with a 20-year-old Pampa man who beat her up when she wanted to leave and he was not ready.

Almost simultaneously with her complaint came notification of an apparent stab victim at Highland General Hospital.

It was the man with whom she went to the party.

Police said he was most uncooperative and would give them no information other than he did not know who attacked him.

No charges were filed.

Stinnett Woman Charged In Death

A Stinnett woman is being held in Hutchinson County jail in lieu of $7,500 bond after she had been charged with the shooting death of Richard Groves, 30.

Groves was found by Police Chief Calvin Ostley, who said death was from a .22 caliber pistol. Justice of the Peace R.S. Christian pronounced the victim dead at the scene.

It was believed by authorities that the shooting grew out of an argument between the pair.

Martha Denies Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — "Do I look like I'm suffering from a breakdown?" Martha Mitchell asked with a laugh as she paused on Fifth Avenue to have her picture taken and respond to reports that mental distress drove her to a hospital last week.

"I've been away in the country with friends, that's all, and I'm as healthy as can be," she told a Daily News reporter. "You can tell the people who are saying that stuff that they're the ones who are crazy."

Time Magazine said Sunday that Mrs. Mitchell suffered a nervous breakdown and entered a hospital early last Monday. Three days later her husband, former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, was indicted.

The New York Times reported today that sources at an unnamed mental hospital said Mrs. Mitchell was admitted last Monday in an "extremely docile" and "possibly drugged" condition.

"That's nonsense," Mrs. Mitchell said in a telephone call to Charlotte Curtis of the New York Times. "I'm right here at home. I went to see some friends of mine."

Mrs. Mitchell said she returned to her Fifth Avenue apartment Sunday because it was Mother's Day. Her doorman and elevator operator said Mrs. Mitchell and her daughter came in Sunday evening and that Mrs. Mitchell appeared to be her usual self.

"I'm trying to live a private life now," she said over the telephone. "Martha Mitchell has a right to privacy now, and I'm going to demand it."

Her husband was indicted last Thursday on charges of perjury, conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government and obstruction of justice. The charges were in connection with the Vesco case that included a secret campaign contribution and alleged improper government influence.

Mrs. Mitchell also denied the Time report, which said she voluntarily entered a hospital because she was unable to sleep, distraught and seeking treatment for a nervous breakdown.

The survey indicated that some of the samples may have contained less food than the label indicated, Gardner said.

States chosen for the survey are Alabama, Florida, Idaho, Maryland, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Texas, Wisconsin and Washington.

The Jews will never accept the closing to them of the gates of Palestine nor let their national home be converted into a ghetto. —The Jewish Agency, 1939

Between the two World Wars, British policy toward Palestine was one of vacillation. After a major outbreak of Arab violence, a British Royal Commission reported in 1937 that the only solution relied on the partitioning of Palestine into two states, one Arab, one Jewish. This notion ultimately was rejected by the British (though not by the Palestinian Jews); and instead a White Paper was issued which strictly limited Jewish immigration.

With the ascent of Hitler to power and Britain's attention turning to its own survival as a nation, Palestinian Jews were left more or less to themselves — and to Arab violence, this time fomented by the Nazis. The British, with great reluctance, armed some 30,000 Jews who subsequently fought the Germans in North Africa and, at the same time, trained for the inevitable showdown in Palestine.

Following the War, a dazed humanity stumbled into the light of a new day, only to be overwhelmed by shock at the realization of the war's toll. Among the Jewish people, almost a third of its sons and daughters had perished in Nazi concentration camps. Those who survived became still another class: Displaced Persons.

And, according to a report issued by the American Friends Service Committee, "the Christian West was weighed and found wanting. Instead of opening wide their gates to refugees from Nazi persecution, the free nations vacillated, took half measures and waited."

With Jewish settlements already well established in Palestine, the movement to Palestine of concentration camp survivors and Jews from other countries grew in size and urgency. The British tried to impose controls but succeeded only partially and in the end abandoned the struggle to administer Palestine.

The Palestinian Jews, now armed and stiffened, fought both Arabs and British through terrorist groups like the Irgun and the Stern Gang. The Irgun declared war to the death against the British, arguing that by preventing refugees from entering Palestine they were serving as "accomplices of Hitler's crimes . . . and should be fought with undiminished vigor."

Despite the difficulties some 113,000 desperate and defiant "illegals" entered Palestine, under the British guns, by 1947. In that year, the famous "Exodus" incident attracted world attention. This boat, with a normal capacity of 700, was crammed with 4,550 refugees. In attempting to cross the Mediterranean from Cyprus to Palestine it was detected by the British, rammed within sight of Palestine, and the passengers removed to DP camps in Germany. This event, and others like it, riveted attention on the hopelessness of British policy. The British, beset with serious troubles in other parts of the empire, declared she had had enough of the Palestinian problem and dropped it in the lap of the United Nations.

Palestinian Guerrillas Placing Blame On Lebanese Troops

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—An armed guerrilla led the way into the sandbagged headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Guards peered through bullet-shattered windows.

Outside, an uneasy cease-fire prevailed between warring guerrillas and Lebanese army troops. Inside, an attractive secretary pecked at a typewriter and Shafik El Hout, chief of the PLO in Lebanon, barked instructions into a telephone.

Code-named Abou Hader or father of rumbling, he was a big man with a goatee and wearing a dove-gray safari suit. He acted more Western than Arab as he cordially greeted his visitor and quickly came to the point.

"The Lebanese army started it all. We were really surprised when they attacked our refugee camps. We Palestinians are not a disciplined army. Despite this we did well."

The Lebanese army claimed its men were surprised by bursts of fire from the camps and guerrilla attacks on army barracks were so sudden some soldiers were killed in their swimming trunks.

Hout claimed the Lebanese army had prepared for a showdown with the guerrillas at least two days before street fighting erupted May 2. Tanks had encircled camps and Palestinian housing areas under the guise of protecting them from Israeli attack, Hout said.

Street battles raged and the army bombarded refugee camps and Palestinian housing areas with tank cannon. Fighting lasted from around noon

May 2 until a dawn cease-fire was arranged May 4. The hostilities resumed on the evening of May 7 as guerrilla leaders were negotiating a coexistence agreement with the government.

Hout claimed the guerrilla movement "never had any interest in fighting the Lebanese army. It is against our strategic interests. We wanted to cooperate like brothers even though we had been subjected to increasing harassment, kidnappings, unjustified arrests. Right now there are 324 Palestinians in Sands prison."

The government claimed the guerrillas acted like "a state within a state," refusing Lebanese authorities entry into the refugee camps, walking around with guns and arresting foreigners on unfounded charges.

Hout admitted that the first shots breaking the cease-fire were fired by the guerrilla side, but he said they were prompted by hostile army movements that violated the cease-fire provisions.

The fighting escalated. Lebanese jets bombed and strafed guerrilla positions near Beirut airport and towns along the Syrian border. The army claimed thousands of Syrian-based troops of the Palestine Liberation Army had infiltrated across the border to help the guerrillas.

"The Palestine Liberation Army was never called in," said Hout. "We have many supporters. Lebanese supporters who brought us food and gave us their telephones — some armed men — who came across the border to help us — but we didn't use the massive power we had."

Another cease-fire announced by President Suleiman Franjeh brought relative peace to Beirut on the evening of May 8. But there were some bomb attacks in the city. Skirmishes continued in the countryside and snipers felled members of joint army-Palestinian guerrilla cease-fire commissions.

Hout admitted there were disciplinary problems within the guerrilla movement. Some militants who opposed the ceasefire were jailed by the leadership when they wanted to resume hostilities.

Hout said the guerrillas lost eight men to snipers after the cease-fire.

"We told the army about this, they did nothing. Then an army soldier was shot by a sniper. That stopped it. There was no more sniping. Draw your own conclusions."

GOP Governors Lack Power

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican governors remain less influential within their party than their more numerous Democratic counterparts despite assurances from Nixon administration and GOP officials that their voices will be heard.

The standing of the GOP governors, who met here last week, was symbolized perhaps by their exclusion from the party's big 1974 fund-raising dinner in Washington the night the governors opened the New York sessions.

Democrats, on the other hand, recently chose a governor — Jimmy Carter of Georgia — to head a unified 1974 campaign committee.

A veteran of the GOP Senate campaign committee, Eddie Mahe, was named to head the Republican National Committee's 1974 "New Majority" campaign. The campaign is clearly aimed at House and Senate races rather than gubernatorial contests.

Yet, as the governors repeatedly point out, the contests for 35 state governorships in 1974 could be the year's clearest indicator of the nation's political climate in advance of the 1976 presidential race.

All of the largest states, except Illinois, will be choosing governors in 1974. The situation was the same in 1958, when a Democratic sweep preceded John F. Kennedy's 1960 victory, and in 1966, when a GOP comeback foreshadowed Richard Nixon's 1968 triumph.

A political fallout from the Watergate scandal could prove especially disastrous to Republican governors, who have already dropped in five years from a 32-18 majority of state houses to a 31-19 deficit.

A strong Democratic tide in 1974 could endanger GOP governors who have won elections in normally Democratic states, such as William G. Milliken of Michigan, Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts and Thomas J. Meskill of Connecticut. Though Republican governors have been more independent of the Nixon administration than most of the senators and congressmen running next year, they clearly fear the political impact of Watergate despite their statements that it won't hurt them.

The governors had planned to concentrate at Friday's political discussion on ways to increase their role in party affairs, a perennial question at all governors' conferences. But they put off any specific action.

Gov. Linwood Holton of Virginia, their chairman, said he would talk with Republican National Chairman George Bush about the possibility of the national party giving the governors greater financial support in the future. He deferred any decision on an independent fundraising or campaign organization. This leaves the GOP governors still talking about steps already achieved by the Democrats.

VC Interpreter Pleased With Watergate Case

SAIGON (AP) — A boyish-looking Viet Cong interpreter said Saturday his comrades were hardly surprised that the Watergate investigation led to the White House and top associates of President Nixon.

"Maybe the American people are more surprised than we are," said Vu Dung, the chief English interpreter for the Viet Cong delegation to the two-party Joint Military Commission.

Dung, taking a break from translating chores at the Viet Cong's weekly news conference for foreign journalists, said:

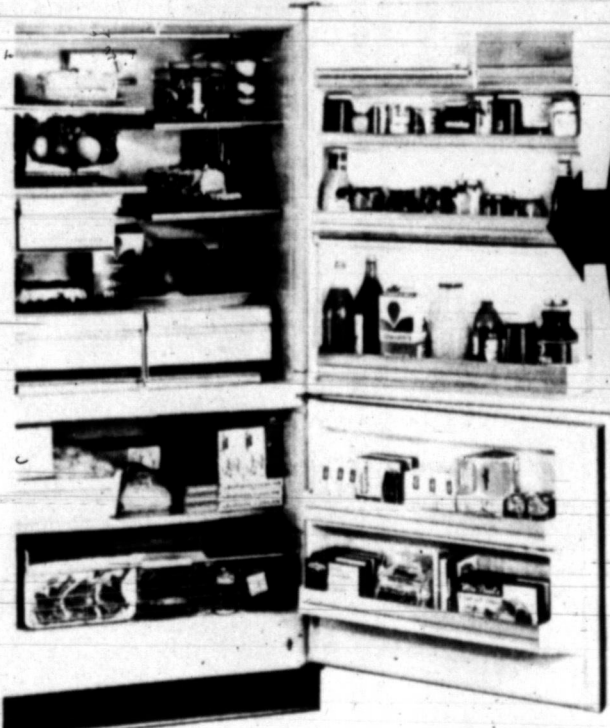

"I think Watergate is really a scandal because to win a presidential campaign, President Nixon and his people had to take this action."

Asked what he thought of calls for Nixon's resignation, he smiled and replied: "That will be a good idea."

Dung said he wasn't surprised that Watergate got entangled with the Pentagon papers trial — or that Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo were acquitted on espionage, theft and conspiracy charges.

Dear Abby

Refusing premarital sex not deceitful

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter in your column from a gal who met a guy when she accidentally got a wrong number on the phone. On their first date, he asked her to go to a motel with him. She refused. On their next date, however, he repeated the invitation, and she went. After that the guy lost interest in her so she wrote to you for advice.

You said: "Next time, hold something back." That attitude toward men by women is exactly why men regard most women as prostitutes. And mothers teaching their daughters to be dishonest by "holding something back" has resulted in marriages based on deceit and dubious dealings.

A woman can be a terrific mother, housekeeper, and companion, but if she's lousy in bed then dad will always have an itch that needs scratching. Likewise, a man can be a terrific father, provider, and companion, but if he's lousy in bed, mom will always have an itch that needs scratching.

When women and men start facing this reality and dealing with it, there will be fewer broken homes, nervous breakdowns, and letters to Dear Abby.

If you have the guts to print this letter, I have the guts to let you use my name.

TIMOTHY J. BOWERS, COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR TIMOTHY: Why is a girl who "holds something back" promoting a marriage "based on deceit and dubious dealings"? What is "deceitful" about refusing premarital sex?

Sure, a man or woman can be "lousy in bed" but otherwise terrific. What if either is "terrific" in bed but lousy otherwise? While sexual compatibility is important in marriage, there are other reasons why marriages fail. Moreover, I don't agree that most men regard women as prostitutes.

DEAR ABBY: To the woman whose husband refused to shave at night altho his rough beard irritated his wife's sensitive face when he became affectionate: A friend of mine solved that problem by writing the following poem, and placing it on her husband's pillow:

I can go without hats
I can go without shoes, and whisksers may force me to go without youse.

[P. S. It worked.] PRAIRIE VILLAGE, KAS.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Mother" to "dig into the sugar bowl" and help her married daughter when "Dad" refused (because son-in-law was always short on the essentials, but gave 10 per cent to the church) prompts this letter.

May I suggest that "Mother" wait until she's asked for help? My own married children feel free to ask me to "butt out." Parents can help their married children too much. If they confine their gifts to small surprises now and then and perhaps a more generous gift at Christmas, they will be giving their children more than gifts. They will give them strength and courage to face reversals, or unexpected crises, should they arise.

"I was only trying to help," said thru tears of bewilderment when things don't work out as the parent had hoped, is a sad excuse for the chaos created over a longer period of making children dependent.

Oswald: "Defensive discard signals give the defenders a chance to reduce some of declarer's advantage, but they only work if both partners know what they are doing."

Jim: "The basic principle of defensive discarding is that a high card indicates strength and a low card weakness, but there is a most important corollary here. This is that when showing strength with one of equals you should always play the highest."

Oswald: "West opened the jack of hearts and continued after South ducked."

South won and played clubs. East held off until he was able to take dummy's queen with his ace. Then East cashed his last two hearts. South discarded the eight and four of spades and West dropped the 10-spot."

Jim: "East promptly led a spade. South guessed to play the jack and the king became the eighth trick. East was indignant about his partner's strength-showing discard."

Oswald: "East was also 100 per cent wrong. The 10-spot discard showed strength but it also denied the jack so East should simply have led a diamond and forced South to lead spades himself."

Taurus [April 20-May 20]:

cuss your situation, but little of their advice is useful. Sort things out, then follow your own judgment.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: In being firm with associates, be consistent. Restrain yourself. Their reservations may be meaningful. Listen and learn.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Finances come under scrutiny today. Simplify what you keep—and dispose of what you don't want. You need clarity as to what's appropriate.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Your business talent is at a peak along with some deserved lucky breaks. On the other hand, be wary of how you spend your money.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Avoid arguments. Bring selected companions to sports events or pastimes, if not already accompanying somebody important.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Travel is featured.

Friends are likely to speak candidly—listen before reacting. Solve some personal mystery.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Indications of increasing earning power are showing. Do what you've agreed to do. Work overtime if necessary.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Personal ventures are favored. Get to only the people who can help the causes you believe in. Speak frankly.

Mother Nature Aids Superport

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas and Louisiana may think they're competing for superport facilities, but the experts believe mother nature settled the issue when she created the Gulf of Mexico.

The Texas-Louisiana superport competition, which has attracted headlines for months, is largely a "phony issue", according to environmentalists and to experts in the oil industry.

"Mother Nature has played the biggest role about where one (superport) would go," said Robert Chitwood, a vice president of Cities Service and a spokesman for Seadock, a consortium of oil companies planning a deep water oil port off the coast near Freeport.

Gulf Coast superport, paid for by the federal government. Concepts put forth then included offshore complexes involving billions of dollars in construction, employing thousands of people and attracting an immense amount of industrial development.

"On a superport, the single issue is to build it where it is the most economically and ecologically acceptable," says P. Burgess Griesenbeck, executive secretary of the Citizens' Environmental Coalition and a member of the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission. "The competition really isn't there as far as I'm concerned."

A spokesman for the U.S. Corps of Engineers, which is studying possible superport locations on the gulf coast, said the "physical factors will be of paramount importance. We develop the facts and let them fall where they will. It's difficult to see where there would be any competition when physical factors decide the issue."

"As far as I know, there is no competitive factor in this thing," said another oil company executive. "The physical factors influencing the location of a superport are such things as deepwater closest to land and estuaries which might be harmed by pipeline construction."

The overriding economic factor is the requirement to off-load oil as near as possible to where it will be processed.

Oil companies have weighed these factors and believe that there is a need for at least two superports—one off the Texas coast near Freeport and one off southwest Louisiana.

One group of companies has formed a Texas consortium, called Seadock, to build an oil off-loading buoy facility 34 miles out from Freeport.

Four members of Seadock, Shell, Exxon, Texaco and Gulf, are also partners in a bayou state consortium called the Louisiana Offshore Oil Port Inc. (LOOP).

"The fact that these oil companies are investing in both of the deep water unloading terminals should tell you something," said one executive. "It tells me there's really no competition and that there might be a superport off both coasts," Chitwood agrees.

"If logic is the one and the only determining factor, then both projects will probably be built," he said. "There are refineries in both areas which must be served. The competition thing has been blown out of proportion."

Competition between the state arose when the popular idea was of there being only one

Since then, however, the Seadock and LOOP proposals have cut the superport idea down to a simpler dimension. Both proposals call only for offshore buoys to which supertankers would tie off. Oil from the tankers would be pumped to shore by pipeline and then distributed from a storage area to existing refineries. Neither proposal calls for handling any cargo other than oil.

And, most importantly these concepts call for totally private financing—the federal government enters the picture only as a licensing authority.

When Seadock engineers were looking for a place to locate the Texas superport, Mother Nature quickly narrowed the choices to Freeport.

Deep water is closer to Freeport than it is at points farther up the coast. Also, Freeport has no major fragile estuary system which could be damaged or destroyed by the construction of pipelines, an environmental point which made locations farther south unlikely.

Happily, economics also pointed to Freeport. The Brazoria County city is relatively near many of the state's refinery complexes which means oil companies will not have to pay an overly severe penalty for transporting oil overland once it is unloaded by supertankers.

These factors gave Freeport the nod, and no amount of competition could change them, say the experts.

You can't, after all, fool Mother Nature—or a sharp cost accountant.

A Busy Man

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — A M. Willis of Longview has had a big red mark for some time on next Saturday's date on his calendar. He'd better.

He is the father of a graduating senior at North Texas State University.

He is chairman of the school's regents.

And he is the commencement speaker. It is the first time that a regents' chairman of the school has been the commencement speaker and also the first time the speaker has numbered his own child among the graduates he faced at the 14,500-student institution.

Paramount's production "Wings" in 1927 was the first motion picture to win an Oscar.

WORRY CLINIC

Lorna's query merits discussion with all high schoolers. For our lush American standard of living depends on "advertising." That's also why we dine on hen eggs instead of duck eggs, for hens advertise (cackle) their products!

CASE X-507: Lorna D., aged 29, works in the art department of a famous American advertising agency.

"Dr. Crane," she protested, "I wish you'd explain again the great debt our people owe to advertising."

"For many of them gripe because the commercials on TV interrupt dramatic movies and sports events."

"And others argue that the millions spent on advertising merely raise the prices of merchandise."

"Dr. Crane, I studied your textbook 'Psychology Applied' in college and our agency often uses your chapter on 'Advertising Psychology,' so please show the public the true facts!"

SIAMESE TWINS

Advertising and selling are the Siamese Twins of our luxuriant "free enterprise" system.

Without advertising, merchandise would not move across the counters in big volume, so factories would slow down till millions would be out of work!

Advertising thus puts extra money into circulation and peps up our economy, much as a blood transfusion revives an anemic medical patient.

Contrast our lush living standards with those of non-advertising England, where radio and TV are operated by John Bull.

Or with China and Russia, where the government dictates the radio as well as TV broadcasts, to brainwash their people.

Thus far, our radio, TV and newspapers are still free of such governmental operation, so we can vote as we please.

And also tune in or tune out any program we like or dislike. Alas—in Socialistic Britain, plus Communistic Russia and China, you have no choice of programs or rival newspapers.

"Big Brother" dictates what those citizens shall hear and see.

In America, however, we still have a choice! Advertising helps make us the envy of all other peoples as regards our superb standard of living.

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Yet that is dependent on our go-getter American advertising and selling.

Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin, said:

"The salesman (advertiser) is not the high priest of a sordid commercialism; the salesman is the spark plug of civilization."

And because of advertising, our retail prices of merchandise are actually LESS! Why?

Because advertising produces such a huge volume of demand that the resulting large-scale manufacturing thus lowers the unit price!

For example, despite our high inflation at present, you can buy oranges much cheaper than when they were merely a Christmas-luxury.

The former editor of the Jacksonville (Fla.) JOURNAL once told me his father purchased ONE orange at Christmas!

Then he would dole out one orange slice apiece to the members of his family!

And at church Christmas services, the children received ONE orange, which was usually the only orange they got till the following Christmas party.

Yet oranges and orange juice are now as common as milk and a standard inclusion in feeding infants!

Without advertising, you couldn't buy this newspaper at its present economical price, nor witness TV.

For the costs of newsprint and television are very high, but the advertisers pay all the TV costs and the bulk of the printing charges for newspapers and magazines.

Send for my booklet "The Psychology of Advertising and Selling," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47637. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Are there American photographic soldiers-of-fortune... adventurous souls whose cameras take them to primitive areas seeking exciting experiences and who prefer to document pioneer trails rather than well-marked roads?

I nominate F. Kurt Rolfe, 31, an American photojournalist now living in Singapore, for the 1973 title of "Soldier-of-Fortune with a Camera" if any such contest is open.

We met over a 10-day period in Singapore.

It was at his home that I saw the 300mm telephoto lens casing with a jagged hole.

"Oh that!" he said, answering my questioning look. "It's my good luck charm... a reminder that photography saved my life in Vietnam."

"I was doing combat photography near Chu Lai when things got rough and we civilians were being choppered out. It started to rain so I wrapped my camera with its 300mm lens in a plastic bag and put it in my backpack when I sat down in the Chinook helicopter."

"As we lifted off, I felt a slap on my back. I turned around and saw a big hole in the helicopter behind me. I opened the plastic bag and poured out the glass fragments of what once had been a telephoto lens."

"There's no doubt that photography turned out to be a life-saving hobby for me," Kurt commented.

I learned also that he had taken movies for NBC as well as stills for news media and had been wounded twice while in Vietnam.

After getting through the Tet offensive he came to Singapore in 1969, met and married Mei and hung up his shingle as a roving photojournalist.

I studied an enlarged color print of huge footprints along a sandbank in a jungle area.

"That's a picture I took in primitive northern Johore in the Malaysian jungles," Kurt explained.

"Those human-like footprints measured eight inches wide by 16 inches long. I'm convinced it's positive evidence of creatures seen and described by aborigines of the area as 'hairy man-beasts, over eight-feet tall.'"

An American writer, Harold Stephens, and I were with a search party trying to verify the natives' stories. We found these footprints. Stephens' story and my photos were published in Argosy magazine in 1971.

I studied another set of color photos in which a group hacked its way through jungle growth, drifted on bamboo rafts on rivers in wild country and displayed a catch of large fish at campsites.

"Some day you may yet see a tourist ad based on this photo adventure," Kurt said. "The headline will read: 'Malaysian Jungle Safari - for Hardy Adventurers Only!' Some Rangers and I blazed this trail last year and I filmed it in movies and stills to prove it could be done."

"It's a unique safari... but only for exceptional individualists who can walk great distances, cut their own trails, endure tropical downpours, hear jungle animals nearby and who delight in the sight of an untouched wilderness or a forest of wild orchids."

"It was quite an ordeal," Kurt admitted, "but for the finest fishing in the world - why not?"

Between these jungle adventures, Kurt Rolfe tackles all film assignments in movies or stills, from the air or on land or water for oil companies, industries, advertising and journalism. He has learned to do his own emergency camera repairs and carries extra camera bodies and equipment so if one pack is lost or goes overboard, an assignment will get finished regardless.

LIFE SAVING LENS. Singapore photojournalist F. Kurt Rolfe eyes the 300mm telephoto lens that saved his life in Vietnam. It was in his backpack when it intercepted a bullet which pierced a helicopter, demolished all the glass lens elements inside... and stopped short of his back. Rolfe became a photographic soldier-of-fortune since the episode.

Kurt recalls that photography started for him at age 15 in Portland, Ore. He organized his high school camera club, was editor/photographer of the school paper and won awards in the Kodak and Scholastic-Anso high school photo contests. After school, he worked for the local photo studio, did darkroom work, made enlargements and specialized in color wedding photography.

In 1959, he won first prize in a state-wide Oregon Centennial photo contest: a scholarship to any photo school. He chose the University of Munich and spent a year in Germany studying photography, art and graphic design. When he returned to the United States and Rome, N.Y., where his mother now lives, he tried a variety of other jobs, including folk singing, but photography kept intruding. His portfolio landed him a position at Syracuse University's Utica College where he did the school's photography and earned a degree at the same time.

With college degree and cameras in hand, his Pacific wanderings began. There was a short interlude on the island of Yap in the Peace Corps followed by tropical island hopping on a homemade raft. He wound up in Saigon where his career as a cameraman didn't have an untimely end thanks to a 300mm lens on his back which intercepted a high-powered bullet.

Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Today brings good news. Dizzy Dean, the distinguished baseball analyst and despair of grammarians, is going to help cover NBC-TV's "Monday Night Baseball" opener on May 21.

Dean, who with Pee Wee Reese broadcast CBS' "Game of the Week" until 1965, was asked if he's nervous about speaking into the NBC microphone next Monday night.

"Naw," he said. "All I gotta watch is fellas sidin', walkin', throwin' and hittin'."

He discussed these matters in a phone interview from his farm in Wiggins, Miss., where he now ruminate, rusticates, fishes and sallies forth in the summer to golf and broadcast a few games.

At 62, the former pride of the St. Louis Cardinals remains one of the best interviews of the Western world.

Here is Dean, for example, on television's increasingly statistical approach to baseball:

"I don't like to sit there and listen to somebody read statistics and say, 'Here comes a pitcher who's 210 pounds, 6 foot 3 and his earned run average is 3.2.'"

"The average fan don't know what he's talkin' about."

Does Dean think televised games have gotten too dull?

"Yeah, they're dull," he said. "There's no question about that. I hear it all the time."

"See, today we don't have enough baseball games with color and variety on the show. Now I give everybody credit for reportin' ball games, but they gotta put something in it."

"I mean, there's no kiddin' ourselves. Guys go out and stand on the ball field interviewin' a ball player before the game and the first question they ask him is, 'How do you feel today?'"

"Well now, if he wasn't feelin' good he'd be in the hospital. He wouldn't be in uniform and fixin' to go out on the field and play in about five minutes."

He discussed at length the fun he had broadcasting baseball with Pee Wee Reese. This touched off the memory of a pitching duel in a game he and Reese were broadcasting for CBS.

As he recalled it, Reese leaned over and said, "Dizzy, you was a pretty good pitcher. Would you mind coming in here and telling the fans what these guys are really throwin' out there?"

"And I says, 'Yep, Pee Wee. I've been watchin' them very closely and I be-leave that's a baseball they're throwin'.' And I thought Pee Wee would go crazy."

On the men who play the game, Dean said: "We got great ballplayers today, but we don't have, I don't think, as many great ball players on one club as we had in the earlier days."

"And I think in those days players had more fun on and off the field than they do today."

Why is that?

"It's all business and money today, is what I think," said Dean, whose highest salary as a ballplayer was $25,000.

His philosophy of baseball broadcasting is simple. "You gotta have fun," Dean says, and he isn't kidding.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Have Your 'Fix' Supplies Handy

By MR. FIX

Most every homeowner acquires a basic assortment of tools in time. What sends him out into the night looking for a hardware store that is open late is a lack of proper supplies.

You can't stock everything in your basement, of course, but in time and with a little experience you will have on hand the right fuse, the right washer and just the nail you need for those minor repairs that come up at odd moments.

Consider the kinds of jobs that occur and what you need. Make a note of proper sizes for next time and stock up in advance.

PLUMBING — The first time around you will probably buy an assortment of washers in a small box. This gives you one or two of everything including a few sizes you will never use. The assortment is O.K. the first time around, but a waste of money after that. Once you've had a faucet apart and you know the size washer it takes, stock up on that size. Do the same for other faucets. Buy only the sizes you need and buy them in advance. Have some packing on hand as well.

ELECTRICAL — Have tape around, friction and rubber or plastic electrical tape which will do for both. Have the right size fuses on hand. Keep them near the fuse box. You need a flashlight in case of a power failure. The flashlight needs spare batteries. Keep a stock of several plug ends for lamp cords, screw-in base plugs, three-way plug taps, extension cords, a spare appliance cord. Remember the size bulbs the light fixtures in your house require after you replace them and stock up-in-advance.

LUBRICATION — Light machine oil for small-appliance motors, such as sewing machines, mixers, fans, windows that stick. Powdered graphite for locks—never use oil. Heavier oil for motors on large appliances. Grease for wheel bearings on bikes, lawn mowers, wheelbarrows.

PAINT — Save small amounts of paint that are left when you finish a job. They're good for touch up. Keep turpentine or paint thinner around; it's good for cleanups, soaking brushes. A bag of old-rags is great for cleaning up.

FASTENING — For nails and screws the ready-made assortment is good the first time around. After a time you'll know what sizes you need most. Save odds and ends in glass jars. Don't buy an assortment when you have a special job to do. Determine the right size and buy accordingly. A few brads, tacks and an assortment of nuts and bolts should be around. Also picture hooks, cup hooks and a few screw eyes. When you need one you'll find that you have to buy more than one. Save the extras where you can find them.

Genesis Does Theatrical Rock Show

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Theatrical rock seems to be making more and more of an impact. A recent entry, from England, is Genesis. The show uses lights, from light towers above and behind the white screens surrounding the group on stage and from deep blue footlights. Lead singer Peter Gabriel comes out in an all-over black suit, with bat wings on his shoulders. It is eerie and enjoyable, not frightening or unhealthy. He often changes headgear, from a nearby trunk.

In New York's Philharmonic Hall, the music was enjoyable, though the words couldn't be understood, but the audience seemed to know them from the recordings. Press reviews were good.

Other members of the group, who sit on stage and don't wear costumes, are organist Tony Banks, lead guitarist Steve Hackett, bass guitarist Michael Rutherford and drummer Phil Collins.

Their LPs, on Charisma, are "Trespass," "Foxrot" and "Nursery Cryme."

They've been carrying their own stage around with them only six months. In New York, where there was enough power supply to use everything, there were five light towers, four follow spots and eight deep blue banks of footlights, only two of which worked. These give the same effect as ultraviolet on the white eye makeup and ultraviolet cream which Gabriel's wife, who went to drama school, taught him to apply to his face.

What they're doing, Collins and Banks say, trading sentences, is a natural extension of light shows. "It has been a progression from when we started it three years ago. A good light show will light a band. We've just gotten into the more theatrical side of it."

"One of the reasons for the theatrics is to help build some of the lyrical images. Sound systems as they are, most rock bands only get across a certain per cent. If you can present an image to the audience and, say 50 per cent of them will know the lyric from the album, that is an improvement. Hopefully, sound systems will get the words across too.

"Our theatrics augment the band, as opposed to become the band."

Collins says, "We can have a quiet passage, with only one instrument playing now. People are riveted to the situation because of the lights."

Banks says, "On an instrument you are limited to what you can do. A singer finds himself on stage and sometimes not doing anything. The rest of us are always doing something. He has more scope. That's why the singer tends to be the most visual person in most groups; it is just easier for him."

Singer Gabriel is given to answering most questions in a supercilious manner, preferring a supposedly humorous reply to a meaningful answer. He says the group needs theatrics to prove they aren't dummies, that they used to dig with dummies and they'd sit behind stage playing cards and playing the records. And all their songs are Beatles tunes played backwards.

Collins says, "David Bowie's rebirth came when he admitted to being bisexual. Glam rock implies the bisexual bit. But I think there is less of it in England than here. Maybe people think more of the music in England."

Collins thinks the Genesis light show probably will get more complex and involved. But Banks makes the point, "Don't emphasize the theatrical side too much. We've got to create a show of some kind and hold people's attention. But most important for us is to sell albums. In five years, if anything survives, it is going to be the albums."

The group has been compared favorably with Yes and ELP. Collins says, "E.L.P. and Yes use tightly arranged material. Any band coming up, playing tightly arranged material, is going to be compared."

"But Yes has very strong group vocals and we have no group vocals."

Rutherford says, "We're more like Yes than we're like Elvis Presley. People love to compare you to something. I don't like rock 'n' roll; I wouldn't like to be Deep Purple or Humble Pie. I never want to be thought of as a loud band."

The group next will make a tour of Britain and cut another record. Then, since the first U.S. tour in the early spring was only some 15 East Coast cities, they hope to do a longer tour in the fall, taking in the American West.

Because, individually, they like different styles, they joked about the idea of themselves being two or three different bands. It would be fun, Banks said, "to be the opening act on your own bill—without anybody knowing."

Wobbly Earth
As it rotates, Earth wobbles on its axis. This deviation, known as Chandler's Wobble, reaches its peak every seventh year, and some scientists believe earthquakes are more numerous in those years. The next peak year will be in 1978.

Bobby Riggs Handles Margaret Court Easily

RAMONA, Calif. (AP) — As an early ancestor of Bobby Riggs might have put it, the race is not always to the swift. "She's better than me in every department," the frail-looking, 55-year-old Riggs said Sunday after seemingly proving just the opposite in his celebrated match with women's tennis champion Margaret Court.

Putting his racket and court wisdom where his mouth was in issuing a challenge to all women players, Riggs scored an effortless 6-2, 6-1 victory and pocketed $10,000, plus another $7,500 from television coverage.

"She has a better serve, a better volley, a better forehand, a better backhand," Riggs said.

"But the question is, can you put that game out when you need it? Can you play your best when the money's on the line?"

"Margaret's a great player and a great sport. But in this kind of contest, you know, battle of the sexes, match of the century, talkathon and all that, she was out of her depth."

Riggs started his "attack" Sunday with a bouquet of roses for his opponent on Mother's Day. "Do you think this will soften her up?" he asked.

Then, against the slashing shots of the 30-year-old Mrs.

Court, a rangy Australian at the peak of her career, Riggs, the 1939 Wimbledon champion, offered patty-cake tennis. He hit spinning chops and lobs to the back line, a floating serve that broke like a sidarm curve ball and bounced like a football, a drop shot that seemed to clear the net by mistake and died like a pitch shot on a wet green.

He ran her from one side to the other, toyed with her big serve until she started to miss with it, fed her overheads that she netted or hit out of court, joined with the crowd in applauding her winners, and made the world's best woman player—maybe the best ever—look very much out of her league.

She won only two games on her service and a third when Riggs, playing to the camera and a largely pro-Court crowd of 3,500, nearly missed the ball on an exaggerated spinshot and committed his only doublefault.

"He kept changing his pace and breaking up my rhythm," Mrs. Court said afterward. "I started badly and never got into the match."

Two years ago Riggs said he'd like to play the top-ranked woman, Billie Jean King, "every day and twice on Sunday." The remark eventually led to Sunday's match with Mrs. Court, after Mrs. King rejected the challenge. As Riggs intended, his victory cast a reflection on all of women's tennis.

"I guess it proves that the top ladies are about equal to a 15-year-old boy or a 55-year-old man, or maybe not as good," commented Jack Kramer, the former star who promoted both men's and women's pro-tennis several years ago.

"That's the way those women should play Margaret," said Riggs. "Give her a lot of deep, high, slow stuff. I just played my sloppy, municipal park game. I didn't have to hit a really good shot all day."

Rutherford Gets Pole

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There apparently won't be any 200-mile-per-hour laps at Indianapolis Motor Speedway this May. And Johnny Rutherford, a cool-headed Texan who bears the scars of battle, could care less.

The 35-year-old veteran driver from Ft. Worth, Tex., victim of a trail of broken engines and parts at Indianapolis over the years, captured the front row pole position for the May 28 500-mile race in first-round qualifying Saturday.

He did it by pushing his Team McLaren car around the 2 1/2-mile oval at a four-lap speed of 198.413 m.p.h. to top Bobby Unser's old 10-mile standard by almost three miles per hour. His fast lap of 199.071 m.p.h. missed the 200 mark by 21 one-hundredths of a second.

A few minutes later, Rutherford was telling newsmen: "It wouldn't hurt my feelings a bit if they slowed these cars down 20 miles an hour, or even more. We're going too fast for close competition."

The first weekend of qualifying for the world's richest auto race—the 1973 Indy 500—ended $1 million in second straight year—saw 30 drivers make the lineup, leaving only three spots to be filled in final runs next Saturday and Sunday.

Art Pollard, a 17-year veteran and one of the best liked drivers in racing, was killed in a searing, grinding crash of his Cobra-Eagle during a warmup session that preceded Saturday's initial qualifying runs.

Pollard, who had celebrated his 46th birthday in the garage area exactly a week before his death, was the 35th driver to lose his life at the nation's oldest racing facility.

Weiskopf Backs In To Colonial Victory

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "It was," said Tom Weiskopf, "a heck of a way to win a golf tournament."

But he wasn't complaining. "I don't want to be hypocritical. You got to feel happy. But it's a different kind of win."

The tall, blond Ohio strongman plucked the $150,000 Colonial National Invitation title from Bruce Crampton's hip pocket on the 72nd and final hole Sunday.

It was more a gift than theft, actually.

But Weiskopf quoted his old friend and fellow Ohio State alumnus, Jack Nicklaus, in summation.

Vicky Cotham Wins Discus

Vicky Cotham of Lefors, runner-up in the event in the state meet for the last two years, won the discus competition at the Class B level Saturday in Austin with a throw of 118' 10".

Three national girls marks were set at the meet. Center's Retha Swindell triple jumped 37' 10 1/2" to erase the old mark of 37' 7 1/2" set by Baird's Kathy Jones.

Linda Montgomery of Bogata Rivercrest, competing in Class A, threw the discus 140' 11" to break the old record of 138' 10 1/2" held by Vivian of Bell Flower, Calif. That was set in 1970.

Waco Robinson's Suzie Snider put the shot 50' 4 1/2" to break the old mark of 47' 9 1/2" set by Mary Jacobson of Florence, Ore. in 1969.

Aaron Homers Twice In Brave Doubleheader

By The Associated Press
On a day when tennis hustler Bobby Riggs struck a blow for the elderly men of America, baseball slugger Hank Aaron struck two blows for them.

Aaron, 39, is a kid compared to Riggs, 55. But he's in a daily battle with time and history, and, like Riggs, he won Sunday's showdown easily.

Aaron slugged a pair of home runs, one in each game, as the Atlanta Braves split a doubleheader with San Diego. The Braves wasted his two-run pinch homer in the ninth inning of the opener, losing 6-4. But his 10th homer of the season and No. 683 of his career helped Atlanta take the second game 6-2.

Chicago extended its winning streak to six games, sweeping two games from the Phillies.

Fergie Jenkins took the opener, in a showdown of Cy Young winners, besting Steve Carlton, Jose Cardenal and Rick Monday drilled a pair of two-run homers to ease the Cubs to their second game victory.

Bernie Carbo's bases-loaded, two-out single, delivered two runs and climaxed a three-run St. Louis rally in the eighth inning as the Cardinals overtook Montreal.

Aaron was on the bench in the first game and when the Braves got around to using him in the ninth, it was too late. By then, the Padres had a 6-2 lead and his two-run homer just made it a bit closer. Jerry Morales had driven in the Padres with a single and a sacrifice fly.

In the nightcap, Aaron was in the line-up and tagged No. 10 against loser Fred Norman. His two homers raised his batting average for May to a youthful .405 on 15-for-37, five of the hits homers. The hot streak has lifted his average for the season from .125 to .237.

Jim Beauchamp drove in four runs with a pair of singles, leading New York to its third straight victory over Pittsburgh as the Pirates dropped their fifth straight.

Jack Billingham shut out Houston on four hits as the Reds blanked the Astros. Cincinnati's first run came on a disputed homer by Bobby Tolson with the Astros arguing that the ball was foul and first base umpire Augie Donatelli insisting it was fair.

Los Angeles erupted for nine runs and half of its '8 hits in the fourth inning to wipe out the Giants. Joe Ferguson had a three-run homer and Dave Lopes knocked in three runs with a homer and a single in the big inning for the Dodgers.

Golf Tips from the Old Masters

HIT TO SAFE PART OF GREEN ON LONG APPROACH SHOTS

Touring professionals rarely gamble on long approach shots to the green. Julius Boros advises average golfers to follow suit.

"Aim for the center of the green through the widest opening," Boros advises. "Imagine the green as a target and aim for the center of the bulls-eye, or far part of the green. In the long run this will save you more strokes than if you try to fly a long shot across a trap to a corner of the green where the flagstick is placed."

Just remember that shots hit with longer irons or with a less-than-full swing will not bite, readily on the green. Therefore, you should move your mental bulls-eye on the green closer to its front edge on such shots.

Smith claimed the $50,000 first prize 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 from good friend Ashe, who had to settle for $20,000 and cheers from 8,500 fans in Moody Coliseum, who thought he was robbed in the 10th game of the deciding fourth set.

Ashe double faulted to make the crucial game deuce after a controversy on his first serve. Smith made it has add on a ball many thought had bounced twice. Then Ashe clubbed a forehand too long on the match winner.
