Bush proposes $100 million aid for Poland

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Bush today proposed a $100 million aid package and promised to seek new loans and debt relief for Poland, declaring that the Communist nation's moves toward democratic freedoms "show the way toward a new era throughout Europe."

In the first address by an American president before the Polish parliament, Bush hailed recent political and economic reforms and said, "This generation's calling is to redeem the promise of a free Polish republic. Poland has not been lost so long as the Polish spirit lives."

The speech was the dramatic high point of the first day of the president's 10-day European tour, which included 2 hours and 40 minutes of talks with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Bush was cheered by Poles shouting "Long Live, Long Live" when he attended wreath-laying ceremonies at memorials to Polish war dead and the Jewish victims of the Nazi Holocaust during World War II.

At a luncheon, the president urged Polish Communist leaders and representatives of the once-banned Solidarity trade union movement to "rise above the mistrust to bring the Polish people together for a common purpose."

In view of Poland's $39 billion foreign debt and other economic woes, Bush's aid proposals seemed modest. But Secretary of State James A. Baker III said, "This is really not a trip to bestow economic largesse."

Bush, in his parliamentary speech, said, "The reform of the Polish economy will be an historic challenge. There can be no substitute for Poland's own efforts."

Warning that Poland must accept austerity measures, the president said: "I must speak honestly: economic reform and recovery cannot occur without sacrifices."

The six-point aid package announced by Bush included these provisions:

- A request to Congress for a $100 million "enterprise fund" to support private entrepreneurs in Poland. Bush said he will ask other industrial democracies at the economic summit in Paris this weekend to establish similar funds.

- A proposal for the seven summit nations to intensify their cooperation in promoting democratic reforms in Poland and Hungary. He offered to work with the other summit nations to boost Western aid and technical assistance.

- A promise to establish a U.S. center in Warsaw to conduct educational and cultural programs. He said he would ask Poland to establish a similar center in America.

- A plea for the World Bank to move ahead with $325 million in loans to help Polish agriculture and industry improve productivity.

- A request for Western debtor nations to support "an early and generous" rescheduling of Polish debt. Bush said such a step could amount to deferral of about $5 billion in payments this year if Western nations agreed to liberalized terms.

- A request to Congress for $15 million for a cooperative effort with Poland to fight air and water pollution in the industrial city of Krakow.

"The road ahead is a long one, but it is the only road which leads to prosperity and social peace," Bush said. "Poland's progress along this road will show the new way toward a new era throughout Europe, an era based on common values and not just geographic proximity."

He pledged that Western democracies "will stand with the Polish people and other peoples of this region."

Running throughout Bush's speech was a theme of encouragement for the dramatic political transformations taking place in Poland.

President Bush, cheered by flag-waving crowds shouting "long live, long live," honored Polish war dead and Jewish martyrs today and sat down for talks with Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

As Bush and Jaruzelski began their discussions, Secretary of State Baker and Polish Foreign Minister Tadeusz Olechowski signed agreements providing further delays in payments on about $1 billion in debts owed to the United States. The accords granting a five-year grace period extended agreements reached in 1985 and 1986.

Bush told reporters his morning visit to the monuments had a "very profound" effect on him. Before he left the Jewish memorial, the president crossed the street and shook hands with spectators. "Good luck to all of you," he told them.

About 2,000 people, including Poles and American tourists, turned out on a warm, sunny morning to greet Bush at a wreath-laying ceremony at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Poles shouted "long live, long live" and "100 years, 100 years" as Bush stepped out of his armored limousine, flown here from Washington and still bearing District of Columbia license plates.

One man carried a banner of the independent Solidarity labor movement that was topped with a paper cutout of the Statue of Liberty.

Kid Pony Show contestants to launch rodeo week events

Activities for rodeo week get under way tonight with the first performance of the Kid Pony Show at the Top o' Texas Rodeo Arena east of the city.

Performances will begin at 7 p.m. daily today through Wednesday, with events scheduled in various age categories for youths through age 15.

Groups I (ages 5 and under) and II (ages 6 and 7) will open the three-day event tonight. The youngsters will be competing in barrel race, golfette, goat ribbon race, flag race and calf riding.

Competing Tuesday will be Groups III (ages 8 and 9) and IV (ages 10 and 11), with Wednesday's performance closing with competition for Groups V (ages 12 and 13) and VI (ages 14 and 15).

Participants may enter any or all of the events in their age group.

Entries for today's performance closed at noon today. Deadline for Tuesday and Wednesday entries will be at noon each day for those competing in that night's performance. Contestants may register at the Rodeo Office in the Pampa Community Building, Kingsmill and Ballard.

The 43rd Annual Top o' Texas Rodeo will have performances Thursday through Friday at 8 p.m. daily.

Professional cowboys and cowgirls, along with local entries from within a 60-mile radius of Pampa, will be vying for prize money in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association sanctioned rodeo at the Top o' Texas Rodeo Arena.

Stock will be provided by Beutler and Gaylord Rodeo Co. of Oklahoma, with former Oklahoma state senator Clem McSpadden returning to man the microphone to keep spectators informed of the action and results in the rodeo.

Special features are planned for each night. Thursday ticket holders will be treated to a free barbecue sponsored by The Food Emporium and the Top o' Texas Rodeo Association. Kicking off the rodeo that night will be a special Pickup Relay Race.

On Friday, the Pony Express teams from surrounding communities will begin its opening round at 7:15 p.m. Semi-finals will be held Saturday at 3 p.m., with the finalists competing for the championship at 7:15 p.m. Saturday.

Friday's ticket holders also will receive free ice cream cones from Schwan's Sales Enterprises.

Friday and Saturday night will feature the popular rodeo dances held in the Clyde Carruth Pavilion north of the rodeo arena. Providing music will be Slide Bar, with the dances beginning at 9 p.m.

The Wrangler Bullfight Tour, featuring rodeo bullfighters/clowns Stan Ham, Lloyd Ketcham and Allan Olson, will highlight each night's performance. Tommy Lucia and his animal and magic acts will provide special entertainment each night of the rodeo.

The rodeo parade will begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday, featuring the Santa Rosa Palomino Riding Club of Vernon. Positions are still available for those wanting to have an entry in the parade by contacting the Rodeo Office.

Tickets will be on sale at the rodeo grounds. They also are available at the Rodeo Office and from various merchants.

Drug smuggling up on border

SARITA, Texas (AP) — Efforts to shut down drug smuggling in South Florida worked so well that South Texas is now paying the price, says a U.S. Border Patrol supervisor.

Juan Escobar, agent in charge of the patrol's Kingsville office and Sarita checkpoint, said smuggling has continued to increase along the entire U.S.-Mexico border following the crackdown on the narcotics trade in South Florida during the early years of the Reagan presidency.

At this far South Texas checkpoint alone — about 40 miles south of Kingsville on U.S. Highway 77 — the dollar value of drugs confiscated has skyrocketed more than 1,400 percent in the past three years: from $9.6 million in fiscal year 1986 to $140 million between Oct. 1, 1988, and June 30, 1989, according to Border Patrol figures.

In the patrol's McAllen Sector — which includes offices in McAllen, Brownsville, Falfurrias, Harlingen, Mercedes, Rio Grande City and Kingsville — agents had seized more drugs in the first three months of fiscal 1989 than they did during all of the previous year.

And in the Laredo Sector, which covers the rest of South Texas, authorities have seized more drugs in fiscal 1989 than in the previous four years combined.

"(Officials in South Texas) have valid reason to be concerned," said Mike Sheehy, an assistant chief in the Border Patrol's Miami sector who was among the agents temporarily assigned to the McAllen sector four months ago as Central Americans seeking amnesty poured across the border in record numbers.

"Even with the number of officers we had down there, narcotics were really flowing through there heavily," Sheehy said.

'(Officials in South Texas) have valid reason to be concerned.'

About one-third of all illegal drugs entering the country now cross the 1,933-mile Mexican border, according to James Bowen, the Border Patrol's liaison to Operation Alliance. The alliance is a task force of federal, state and local law enforcement agencies formed in 1986.

"We planned on an increase (in the amount of drugs seized along the border), but to say the volume we're getting this year doesn't surprise us wouldn't be accurate," Bowen told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times.

Meeting the Express

Country Fair tickets on sale

Early birds can buy their tickets for the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce's annual Country Fair at a reduced price now through July 31, according to chamber officials.

Tickets can be purchased now for $23 for a couple and $14 for a single. Effective Aug. 1, the prices will be $25 per couple and $15 for a single. The Country Fair, which is the chamber's only fund-raising event of the year, is set for Oct. 21 at M.K. Brown Auditorium. The fair traditionally has featured food booths, a live and a silent auction, and a dance.

Anyone wishing to purchase tickets may contact the chamber office at 669-3241.

Guard 'copters aid in plane search

CLARKSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Officials were hoping the weather would cooperate as they planned to resume their search early today for a private plane missing for more than a week on a flight from Clarksville to South Dakota. Haze over much of the search area was a problem for air crews combing miles of mountainous terrain in northwest Arkansas for a third day Sunday.

Searchers found no sign of the plane, and the search was halted as the light faded.

The plane with six people aboard has not been heard from since it left the Clarksville airport about 7 a.m. July 1.

The missing were identified as the pilot, Don Johnson, owner of a Clarksville trucking firm; his wife, Cindy; the couple's two children, Sarah, 10, and Samuel, 8; and Johnson's parents, Benton and Twyla Johnson, all of Clarksville.

"It's going about like it has been," Lt. Col. Ginger Foot, the Civil Air Patrol's mission coordinator, said of the search that began Friday.

Five Civil Air Patrol planes from Arkansas and seven from Oklahoma that were flying out of Springdale were taking part in the search Sunday, Ms. Foot said. Two Army National Guard helicopters from Camp Robinson were expected to join the search today, officials said.

Civil Air Patrol units from Kansas and Missouri also planned to search what would have been the missing plane's flight line in their states.

The effort to find the single-engine Cessna 206 is concentrating on the forested Ozark Mountains between Clarksville and Fayetteville, authorities said. Foot described the remote search area as solid with hardwood trees.

"You may go miles before there's enough of a break in the trees to see the ground," she said. "If the aircraft is down underneath that and has not left a large trail going in, it will be almost impossible to see. You hope that with the sun shining one way or another you might get a glint of light to see it."

Foot said there were no plans to abandon the search.

Winnie Mandela visits husband in prison

PAARL, South Africa (AP) — Winnie Mandela met today with her husband, jailed black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela, and discussed his meeting last week with President P.W. Botha, a family spokesman said.

The spokesman, the Rev. Frank Chikane, on Sunday described the Botha-Mandela meeting as an act of "political mischief" intended to "sow confusion in the minds of black people and the outside world."

But other anti-apartheid activists and commentators on various sides of the country's racial issues praised the event.

The independent Cape Times newspaper said the encounter had "huge symbolic significance, foreshadowing Mr. Mandela's release and, ultimately, serious negotiation to resolve the South African crisis."

The white-led government's announcement Saturday that Botha and the leader of the outlawed African National Congress had met took the Mandela family and the anti-apartheid movement by surprise.

"The feeling is that it is of vital importance that Mrs. Mandela meets Mandela personally, so she does not hear first from the press what is happening," said Chikane, secretary-general of the South African Council of Churches.

He said Mrs. Mandela flew from Johannesburg to Cape Town to visit her husband at a prison farm at Paarl.

Chikane said Mrs. Mandela already had planned to see her husband and that this was a "normal visit." Her last visit was three weeks ago.

Mandela, 70, was transferred in December from Pollsmoor prison at Cape Town to Victor Verster prison farm, where the conditions of his imprisonment were eased and he was allowed to stay alone in a prison warder's house.

He was jailed in 1962 and two years later began a life sentence on conviction of plotting to overthrow the government.

Botha, who is to step down after elections in September, and other members of his dominant National Party have hinted in recent months that they would like to find an acceptable formula to release Mandela.

Botha has suggested that the government could modify its demand that Mandela make an outright renunciation of violence before his release.

Mandela retains wide popularity among blacks. The exiled African National Congress guerrilla movement, as well as anti-apartheid black groups within South Africa, have said Mandela's freedom is a condition for negotiations with the government.

Trial begins today on tax claim against tycoon Hunt brothers

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—A multimillion-dollar tax claim against Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt could consume what remains of the tycoons' storied inheritance from fabled Texas wildcatter H.L. Hunt.

The outcome of an Internal Revenue Service case scheduled to go to trial today could also determine whether there will be money left to repay the brothers' other creditors in U.S. Bankruptcy Court.

Once Dallas billionaires, Bunker now lists his assets at $258.83 million and Herbert says he's worth $169.38 million, according to documents recently filed in Bankruptcy Court in Dallas as part of their Chapter 11 reorganization.

The IRS alone has claims totaling $701 million in disputed taxes and interest against Bunker and $317 million against Herbert.

As a priority creditor in the bankruptcy case, the government's claim moves ahead of most others when the Hunts' assets are divided up; the amount depends on the resolution of IRS claims against the brothers.

"The Hunts don't have enough money to pay everybody. Our claim might eat up every penny that they have," said Grover Hartt, an attorney in the Justice Department's tax division.

"We have claims in excess of $1 billion in the aggregate for both brothers," says Hartt, who is monitoring the government's claim in the Hunts' bankruptcy case. "The largest single part of that is the 1982 tax year."

While the 1982 tax year is the sole subject of the trial that begins here Monday, the outcome could affect other IRS claims in preceding and subsequent tax years, Hartt said Friday from Dallas. The Hunts and the IRS are disputing taxes owed in several years between 1974 and 1988.

The dispute over the 1982 taxes centers on the dissolution of what the Hunts claim was a partnership created to repay the brothers' debts from the 1980 silver price collapse. The IRS claims the partnership was actually a loan the Hunts did not repay, and thus constitutes taxable income.

In a separate case, the Commodity Futures

Trading Commission alleges Bunker, Herbert and other international businessmen were involved in a price-fixing scheme to corner the world silver market. In court documents, the CFTC claims that had the scheme not collapsed "by the end of May 1980, they could have owned virtually the entire world supply of deliverable .999 silver bullion."

In the pending tax case, Nelson and Bunker Hunt are each contesting more than $150 million in taxes the IRS claims were owed in 1982. A third brother, Lamar Hunt, is also named in the 1982 claim. Lamar, who is not in bankruptcy court with his brothers, is contesting about $500,000 in taxes.

Attorneys in the case expect the non-jury trial before U.S. Tax Court Judge Jules G. Korner III to last about three to four weeks.

The government alone has listed as trial exhibits some 1,300 documents filling four boxes, attorneys say, with several hundred more filed by the Hunts' cadre of lawyers. A single document can be a thousand pages long.

On the witness list are the three Hunt brothers, their sisters Margaret Hunt Hill and Caroline Rose Hunt, a nephew and a cousin, and experts on coal and silver. Lamar's attorney, Ralph Muoio, said Hunt family members would be testifying about "events and people."

"I suppose they'll be talking about taxes and silver," said Muoio, who described Lamar as "very peripheral to the silver crash" in 1980.

Michael Henke, an attorney representing Bunker and Herbert Hunt, said the 1982 tax case revolves around a partnership set up to pay off the brothers' debts from the 1980 silver price collapse.

"The government contends the partnership was an elaborate sham," Henke said, "a loan to the Hunts."

"It darn sure was a partnership," Henke said.

Henke said the Hunts contributed substantial assets to the partnership, including stocks in gold mining companies worth more than $100 million and $294 million in coal properties. The partnership also received $825 million out of a $1.1 billion bank loan to Placid Oil Co., which is controlled by six Hunt trusts, including those of the three brothers.

'Chicken checks' won't affect workers' comp

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislative workers' compensation leaders said last week's incident in which a businessman offered $10,000 checks to nine senators after he complained about the state workers' comp system should not affect the outcome of the issue.

As a House-Senate conference committee began meeting Sunday on workers' comp, state Rep. Richard Smith, the chief of the House negotiating team, said the payments caused an outcry, but added, "I don't think it will have any negative impact in the final analysis when passing the bill."

Poultry producer Lonnie "Bo" Pilgrim complained of the cost of his workers' comp premiums with nine senators, and handed them $10,000 checks. This occurred two days before a Senate vote on a House workers' comp proposal.

The lobbying attempt has prompted an investigation by the Travis County District Attorney and calls for campaign finance reform. On Friday, the Senate rejected the House proposal, an action which has set up the conference committee. Seven of the nine senators said they have returned or intend to return the money to Pilgrim.

Pilgrim has denied any wrongdoing in the incident.

State Sen. Kent Caperton, co-chairman of the conference committee, said, "Everybody probably views Mr. Pilgrim as kind of an eccentric guy who didn't know what he was doing."

Sen. John Montford, the only member of the conference committee who was offered a check from Pilgrim, said he nearly threw the East Texas businessman out of his office.

Montford, D-Lubbock, said he told Pilgrim the payment was "highly irregular, unethical and probably illegal, and I shooed him out of my office."

With 10 days left in the special legislative session, conferees agreed they must produce a bill within the week or more legislative overtime may be needed to reach an agreement.

Caperton, D-Bryan, said a plan must be produced with enough time left in the session to give lawmakers a chance to study the overhaul. The 30-day special session ends July 19.

"We know what the issues are and if everybody rolls up their sleeves and works hard we can get a bill," Caperton, D-Bryan, said.

Lt. Gov. Hobby attended part of the meeting and said he was optimistic the Legislature can produce a bill during the session for Gov. Bill Clements to consider.

The conferees agreed on several minor points between the two plans and are expected to take up more controversial issues, such as safety provisions, today.

The House and Senate have been at odds over how to change the system of compensating employees who are accidentally injured at work.

The House plan is supported by business interests, who complain of high workers' comp insurance premiums, which they say is caused by the amount of attorney involvement and litigation in the determination of benefits.

Texas cyclist killed, another hurt on cross-country trek

VALPARAISO, Ind. (AP)—About 300 bicyclists on a cross-country trek to raise money for cancer research continued their journey despite a hit-and-run accident that killed one member and injured another.

"It's thrown a somber pall over the whole group," said Bob Carson of Oceanside, Calif. "It took everybody down. We're like a family. We've been together for four weeks."

Jeff Green, 36, of Dallas, died Sunday when he was struck on his bicycle on Indiana 49 south of Valparaiso at 6:50 a.m., the Porter County Sheriff's Department said.

Green and Gerald Wright, 39, of Silverdale, Wash., were riding southbound when they were struck by a southbound car that left the scene, police said.

Green was pronounced dead at Porter Memorial Hospital in Valparaiso, and Wright was treated for a broken leg and released, police said. Arrangements were made for Wright to stay at a room in a Delphi high school.

The two were among a group pedaling from Seattle to Atlantic City to raise funds for the American Lung Association, according to Tim Kneeland, director of the cross-country trek.

The two men were traveling by themselves on the 35th day of the journey when the accident occurred, police said.

The other riders found out about Green's death at the halfway point between Valparaiso and Delphi. They were overnighting Sunday at Delphi before continuing on to Indianapolis today.

The riders, who began their journey June 5 and are to arrive in Atlantic City on July 21, have traveled about 2,400 miles and raised $1.8 million, according to Kneeland.

Armed robbers hit Houston art gallery

HOUSTON (AP) — More than 100 Russian icons and other artworks were stolen from a Houston gallery this weekend by two armed robbers who had earlier inquired about prices of many of the pieces they later took, police say.

Authorities on Sunday continued their investigation into the robbery, but have made no arrests, Houston police Sgt. Glenn Smart said.

Two men posing as customers went to the Lowell Collins Gallery late Saturday afternoon and pulled a gun on the owner, who was then tied up and put in a hallway, Smart said.

Several African statues and jewelry pieces and some pre-Columbian gold items were taken in addition to the icons, which apparently were the main target of the robbery, he said.

Smart said police would not release an estimated value of the stolen items at the request of Lowell Collins, who owns the River Oaks-area gallery.

The two men had visited the gallery on Friday, he said. They came separately at around the same time and pretended they didn't know each other.

One man, described as being from the Middle East, asked about many items that were later stolen, Smart said. But the icons were not on display to the public, and police believe the men may have already known they were in the gallery.

"Those are quite valuable," he said of the icons, religious images painted on wooden panels that are about 1 inch thick and up to 2 feet wide by 4 feet long. Smart said it possibly took the men an hour to carry all the icons to their car outside the gallery. Collins, who was handcuffed and bound with rope, managed to free himself after the robbery. There were no other customers or employees in the gallery at the time.

Collins told police that one man had a Russian accent and wore a black suit, black sweater and a white shirt. The other man wore a white suit and white shirt, Smart said.

The pieces taken cannot be easily sold, but there are several people across the country who deal with such items, Smart said.

The robbery was the second major theft of art in Houston in the past two months. A collection of African gold jewelry was stolen from the Museum of Fine Arts during the Memorial Day weekend. A security guard later was charged in the case.

TREATMENT FOR STIFF NECK

If you're suffering from a stiff neck, don't wait for it to take care of itself when treatment is available to correct it.

Of all the bones in the spinal column, none are more easily injured or more vulnerable than the seven vertebrae in the neck. None are moved more often. We are constantly turning our heads to look at people and things.

Neck stiffness can have many causes, from sudden and violent accidents to such simple activities as painting a ceiling or just sitting reading a book for a long time. But there's nothing simple about the pain.

A careful examination will reveal the source of the pain and how best to treat it. Any misaligned vertebrae in the spinal column should be properly adjusted so there will be no abnormal pressure on your nervous system. Treatment may also include exercises for the cervical muscles such as gently rotating your head in all directions. This can help restore muscle strength and tone.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Some would rather fight than win war

One can understand the desperation of Drug Czar William Bennett and other federal officials charged with eradicating foreign and domestic drug production and trafficking. But to imagine that you can solve so complex a problem with a few selected killings, further shredding of due-process traditions and actions that strengthen the hands of bloodthirsty crooks and radicals is hardly rational.

The General Accounting Office has issued a report saying that federal efforts to curb drug smuggling by air have been an almost complete failure. Spending on federal interdiction efforts has increased dramatically — from about $18 million in 1982 to nearly $205 million in 1989 — but much of the fancy new technology doesn't really work, and even when it does, it doesn't make much of a dent in the volume of illicit drugs.

Gregory Treverton, a senior fellow of the Council on Foreign Relations who studies drug policy issues, sums it up: "It seems to me we're at the point where our policy has run into the sand. ... we have to realize that the emperor has no clothes."

Federal agencies, facing a September deadline for Bennett to present his plan, are flirting with truly fanatical notions. Among the options considered by a National Security Council-coveted team are covert actions against major international drug traffickers, which might include deliberate assassinations. Bennett is said to favor "proactive strikes" against "narco-terrorists."

A 1976 presidential order banned U.S. assassinations abroad. Our government could not legally assassinate the ayatollah, Ghadafy or their henchmen. But some officials seem almost eager to have a license to kill. Jack Blum, former investigator for Senate Foreign Relations subcommittees on terrorism, narcotics and international operations, pushing for covert actions, notes that "since we could be operating in places like Colombia and Panama, there would be no need that we read them their Miranda rights." Great! We can be just like them.

All these cheery plans for military, quasi-guerrilla and hit-man operations, besides being utterly obnoxious for a government of free people, run up against the eternal Catch-22 of prohibition efforts. Illicit drugs are expensive, high-profit items, and therefore attractive to brutal, unscrupulous criminals because they are illegal. A successful effort to decrease the supply to traffickers will increase the profit margin, attract even more brutal operators and impel them to be better armed and more sophisticated.

If we really wanted to undercut the drug thugs, we would legalize all illicit drugs tomorrow. But some people would apparently rather fight a war than win it.

Decision turns to federalism

WASHINGTON — Old soldiers never die, it is said; they only fade away. Opinions of the Supreme Court often follow the same course.

The high court has begun its slow farewells to Roe v. Wade, the landmark abortion decision of 1973. Technically, the decision survives, but it survives on borrowed time.

In the term that begins next October, the court will look at abortion laws from Minnesota, Illinois and Ohio. The court's split decision, largely upholding Missouri's restrictive statute, strongly suggests that these laws also will generally be approved. Some fine distinctions may be made; deference may be paid to a 14th Amendment right of "liberty," but in the end the states will be given ever expanding authority to legislate the terms and conditions of a woman's diminishing right to abortion.

The effect will be to return this emotional issue to the political arenas of 50 state capitals. That is where the issue was lodged before Roe v. Wade, but it will not be the same. Too much has happened over the past 16 years.

Abortion will not be flatly prohibited, except during the final weeks of pregnancy, but in most states abortions will be restricted, discouraged and tightly regulated. Legislative battles will be waged one paragraph at a time. We are in for a protracted conflict between "freedom of choice" and "right to life."

The decision dismantled the flimsy constitutional shack that Justice Harry Blackmun put together in 1973. Out of whatever boards he could find lying around, Blackmun contrived the trimester theory. During the first three months, a woman would have an absolute right to an abortion; during the second period, the states could establish certain regulations; during the final trimester, abortion could be prohibited.

The late Justice Potter Stewart looked at a draft of Blackmun's opinion and tagged it with unerring accuracy: It was "legislation," Stewart said. It was not constitutional jurisprudence.

Five members of the court now have agreed to scrap the artificial scheme. Three of them — Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Associate Justices Byron White and Antonin Scalia — would overrule Roe v. Wade forthrightly. Justices Sandra Day O'Connor and Anthony Kennedy are not yet prepared to go so far. Not yet.

A majority was mustered to uphold Missouri's power to prohibit abortions in its own state-operated hospitals. There was nothing much new in this. It is not immediately clear how far a state may go in preventing physicians in such hospitals from advising and counseling a pregnant woman.

What is clear — and deeply regrettable — is that the states may now make it very difficult for teen-aged "welfare mothers" to obtain abortions. These unwanted babies, if not put out for adoption, will have to be supported by society as a whole. That will be the least of the social costs.

The court wisely refused to be drawn into a theological dispute raised in the preamble to the Missouri law. The legislature had decreed that life begins at the moment of conception. During oral argument on April 26, Missouri's Attorney General William L. Webster made no attempt to defend the clause. It has "no operative effect," he conceded. It is no more than "an abstract, philosophical statement of the legislature."

Neither was Webster much help on the matter of certain tests. The law appeared to require physicians to determine the "lung maturity" of a fetus thought to be at least 20 weeks along. This is a difficult test, and presumably was inserted in the act simply to create one more obstacle to abortion. Webster conceded that maybe the statute didn't mean what it seemed to say: "I don't believe the statute requires the physician to perform any tests that may be unnecessary." This is one of the refinements that await further distillation next term.

Molly Yard, speaking for the National Organization for Women, termed the decision a "mockery." The court, she said, had "declared war against women." The decision, in my own view, was no such thing. The court has not ripped the word "liberty" from the 14th Amendment. What it has done — and this is no bad thing — is to recur to a foundation principle of American government, the principle of federalism.

That venerable principle teaches us that the states must have power to experiment in difficult areas of law, to try different approaches, to discover what works acceptably and what does not. I didn't like the decision, but the principle is a principle I dearly love.

A gift for energizing others

If Slim Lindbergh had not flown the Atlantic, somebody would have.

If Wiley Post and Harold Gatty had not flown 'round the world, somebody would have.

But I have tried to imagine what our world would be like — if Paul Poberezny had never been born.

In breadth and depth and height and prospects it would be a lesser place.

It can be argued that somebody would have created an organization for the builders and fliers of homebuilt airplanes — but there is not one man or woman in aviation anywhere who really believes that anybody else anywhere could have given that organization the selfless dedication and masterful administration — even unto a next generation — that Paul has given our sport hobby and everybody in it.

And the men and the women in 700 chapters worldwide say, "Amen!"

In more schools than I can tally, here and abroad, students are making workable wings with their hands.

Each of these is the inspired offspring of one uncommon man.

Without a stubborn, persistent, insistent, determined patriarch of sport aviation, our government and others would still be convinced that you can't use car gas in a flying machine.

Aviation's secular Pope Paul the First does not just "point" the way, he "shows" the way — having personally handmade 15 birds that are flying now.

And his teaching and preaching and practicing high standards of craftsmanship have inspired 14,000 others to take wing. And to do it right.

Indeed, without his example how many might have died trying.

Instead, students in the education program of the Experimental Aircraft Association (based in Oshkosh, Wis.) have gone on to become licensed airline pilots, mechanics, leaders in military and civil aviation.

I mention "leaders in aviation." One man — ONE MAN — has fought for 36 years against regimentation and regulation. Without that effort the sky by now would be a picket fence of

"keep out" signs.

If rotating congresses and revolving door bureaucrats could have discredited Paul Poberezny and thus got him out of their hair, they'd have done so decades ago.

But there was a man they dared not challenge — the only man living qualified to wear all seven wings of a military pilot.

Without Paul Poberezny there'd have been no replica of the Spirit of St. Louis to visit and inspire the youngsters of 250 cities.

Youngsters, by the way, few of whom can name even one astronaut.

Without Paul Poberezny there'd be no annual fly-in in Oshkosh. And this mecca for home-builders demonstrates year after year after year improvement — on the planes that fly in and in the skills of the people who build and fly them.

Paul Poberezny could not have built the EAA, could not have built a world class museum. Alone it is unlikely he could publish five magazines a month to keep the rest of us informed.

But with a singular God-given gift for energizing others — he stimulates a chain reaction of "volunteerism" capable of anything.

The world is hoping to find limitless energy in a laboratory test tube in Salt Lake City. I have found it — in Oshkosh, Wis.

Without Paul Poberezny we would all be poorer ... and less free ... and having so much less fun.

House members think about going home

By ROBERT WALTERS

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (NEA) — Both of the major party candidates in this year's contest for governor here in New Jersey are members of the U.S. House of Representatives — an unusual combination that apparently heralds a nationwide trend.

Until now, the most popular form of upward political mobility pursued by members of the House has been to seek seats in the Senate — and a substantial number of representatives are positioning themselves to enter 1990 Senate races.

In the past, a few members of the House have sought governorships, but that has never been an especially popular alternative. Only four ex-representatives currently serve as chief executives of their states.

They are Govs. John R. McKernan Jr. of Maine, James J. Blanchard of Michigan, James G. Martin of North Carolina and Carroll A. Campbell Jr. of South Carolina. All except Blanchard are Republicans.

Only two states, New Jersey and Virginia, have gubernatorial contests in this odd-numbered year — but those races have attracted three members of the House, two of whom won recent party primaries and will be on the ballot in the November general elections.

In Virginia, Rep. Stan Parris was unsuccessful in his bid for the Republican nomination. In New Jersey, however, Rep. James J. Florio handily defeated two other contenders in the Democratic primary; meanwhile, Rep. James A. Courter was victorious in a Republican primary that attracted seven others, three of them serious candidates.

Next year, 36 of the 50 states will hold gubernatorial elections. The surprisingly large number of House members considering entering those contests is approximately equal to the number weighing bids for the Senate in 1990.

In Ohio, Democratic Gov. Richard F. Celeste is constitutionally ineligible to seek a third term. At least three House members — Democrat Edward F. Feighan and Republicans Robert McEwen and Michael DeWine — are considering running for governor.

In Connecticut, three more representatives — Republican John G. Rowland and Democrats Barbara B. Kennelly and Bruce A. Morrison — are positioning themselves for a possible gubernatorial bid if Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill declines to seek a third term.

Democrats exploring such races elsewhere include Reps. Ronnie G. Flippo of Alabama, Tommy F. Robinson of Arkansas, Bill Nelson of Florida, James C. Slattery of Kansas, Wesley W. Watkins of Oklahoma and Tim Johnson of South Dakota.

Republicans in the same position include Reps. James Kolbe of Arizona, Joseph R. Skeen of New Mexico, Denny Smith of Oregon and Thomas J. Ridge of Pennsylvania.

What has inspired all of that activity? The individual motives undoubtedly are as diverse as the personalities, congressional districts and political situations involved. But a growing number of representatives find themselves miserable in a House whose mood they characterize as mean-spirited, if not rotten.

The Senate long has been a preferable alternative because its smaller size makes it the more elite chamber of Congress. But its reputation also has suffered in recent months and years.

Many politicians also note that in Congress they always will be one of 435 (in the House) or one of 100 (in the Senate), but as governor their power is unequalled in the state.

"The two best jobs in America are president and governor," says Rep. Joseph E. Brennan, D-Maine. "When you're governor, you're the conductor of the orchestra, not just another musician in the back row."

Brennan ought to know because he served as Maine's governor for the constitutional limit of two terms before, in effect, trading jobs with McKernan in 1986 — and McKernan agrees with him.

"There's just no comparison," he says. "It's very fulfilling to be part of the process when Congress addresses major issues, but it doesn't match the direct impact you regularly have as governor."

Photographer returns to homeland, with style

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirty-eight years ago, Charles Tasnadi left his native Hungary on his belly, scrambling a tortuous path to freedom through frozen minefields and waves of barbed wire.

He will return, Tuesday, on Air Force One. As George Bush pays the first visit to Budapest by an American president, Tasnadi, 64, an Associated Press photographer, will be with him to capture that moment on film. He will record an even more special moment in his heart.

"When the military band strikes up 'The Star-Spangled Banner' during the arrival ceremonies at the Kossuth statue (a monument to the Hungarian hero who fought the Hapsburgs) in Budapest, I will remember a small boy scout standing at that same statue," he said.

And "I will also remember that following World War II, my church choir was forbidden by the Stalinist (puppet) regime to sing the U.S. national anthem to thank America for its postwar help."

Tasnadi was just shy of his 26th birthday when he and his sweetheart, Maria, seized upon the first heavy snowfall of the 1950-51 winter to seek a new life.

A championship skier, he concocted a story about heading for the slopes, sharing the truth only with his mother, who by plan would report him missing two days later.

Joining a group of six other adults and two children — one of whom Tasnadi carried on his shoulders during the final, nightlong leg across the border — the couple slipped into Austria, eluded more Soviet guards in the 50-mile Soviet zone of that nation, and made it to Salzburg several days later.

They nearly didn't. The other child, carried by another man, had to be rendered unconscious to keep it from crying and alerting the guards.

"And it was so miserably cold," Tasnadi recalls. "Twice I fell through the ice up to my chest. I couldn't even feel it. When we got to a house on the Austrian side, I kicked off my brand new shoes so they would dry out. When I woke up, they were so shriveled up I couldn't use them."

He and Maria married in Salzburg but their dream of raising a family in the United States was stymied by immigration authorities. So they moved to Venezuela, where Tasnadi's newspaper photography eventually drew the AP's attention and an invitation to join the news service in the United States. He was assigned to the Washington bureau in 1964 and has worked there since.

Twice over the years Maria has returned to Hungary, but Tasnadi, torn by conflicting emotions, kept postponing the trip. His mother, now deceased, had long since emigrated to the United States.

"I finally said, 'OK, this is the year I go,'" he said. "Then, it wasn't two weeks before I got the assignment to go with the president of the United States."

Prior assignments have taken him to the Soviet Union, Cuba and other communist nations.

"Since I became an American citizen, I try to be very polite to the Soviet bloc," he said. "I want to be sure of my objectivity. I've never tried to make a bad picture of any communist leader. ... The only time I talk politics is when I vote."

But Tasnadi's love of the United States is legion among Washington circles. An American flag adorns his mailbox, and despite his courtly manners "he will fight you if you say anything bad about his country or his flag," says Toby Massey, Washington assistant chief of bureau for newsphotos.

Tasnadi has won several White House Press Photographers awards and counts several presidents among his friends. Once, in Vail, Colo., he got a knock on his door at 2 a.m. "Mr. Tasnadi," said his caller, "the president would be honored if you could ski with him tomorrow."

Riding up the chairlift with Gerald R. Ford, Tasnadi recalled, "I thought, 'My God, if anybody would have told me when I was waiting, with that little boy in my arms, to cross that minefield, that one day I would be riding up a mountain with the president of the United States' ... Oh, my God."

Asked what picture he would like to shoot most in Hungary, Tasnadi replied: "There are so many. But when I see that statue of Lajos Kossuth ... before the war, I was chosen as one of two little boy scouts who would go there on weekends and stand at attention for two hours, as honor guard. And now, the president will go there. When I see that statue again ..."

His tears finished the sentence.

Castillo eyes firefighters and emergency service police as they work to free him from fence.

Youth recovering after being impaled on fence

NEW YORK (AP) — A teenager impaled on an iron spike when he slipped while climbing a fence for a fly ball didn't cry, despite being stuck there for 90 minutes, his brother said.

Julio Castillo, 15, was in guarded but stable condition late Sunday, said Fred Horen, an administrator at the City Hospital Center. The boy's major injuries were to his lower jaw and teeth.

The ghastly accident occurred Saturday as Castillo tried to climb a 6-foot, wrought-iron fence to retrieve a ball. He slipped and a square spike, about an inch wide, entered his neck and came out of his mouth.

"The doctors told my mother that the spear came very close to the jugular vein. It was a matter of millimeters," said Gabriel Castillo, Julio's 26-year-old brother. "Otherwise he would be dead."

The accident occurred outside Castillo's apartment building in the borough of Queens.

"He was out in left field. Somebody hit the ball and he went to get it," said 8-year-old Alex Castillo, another brother. "He climbed the fence to try to catch it

WASHINGTON (AP) — Affordable housing is beyond the reach of nearly half the nation's black and Hispanic families, according to a study released today.

The study by the private Center on Budget and Policy Priorities also found that blacks and Hispanics of all income levels are much more likely than whites to live in substandard housing.

Using recently released data from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Census Bureau, the research center found that 42 percent of all black and Hispanic households spent more on housing in 1985 than is considered affordable, compared with 27 percent of all whites.

Under standards established by HUD, housing is considered affordable if it consumes no more than 30 percent of a family's income.

The study said housing problems are especially severe among poor minority households, with nearly four out of five paying for housing costs outside the affordable range.

Some 40 percent of poor Hispanic households and 37 percent of poor black households were spending at least 70 percent of their income on housing costs in 1985, leaving little money for food and other necessities, the study said.

And while black and Hispanic households make up 17 percent of all households in the country, they make up 42 percent of those occupying substandard housing and more than half of those living in units with holes in the floor or evidence of rats.

In fact, the proportion of non-poor black and Hispanic households living in substandard conditions exceeded the proportion of poor white households in similar conditions, the study said.

"These stark findings indicate that the growing lack of affordable housing has reached a crisis stage for blacks and Hispanics, as well as for low-income Americans in general," said Robert Greenstein, director of the center, which studies the effects of government policy on the poor.

Although the study was based on 1985 data, the report said housing costs burdens are unlikely to have eased since then because rental costs and the average income of poor families have risen at about the same pace since then.

In 1985, the study said, the typical poor minority household had an income of less than $5,000 and spent 57 percent of its income on housing.

"These high housing cost burdens are likely to have contributed substantially to the growing problem of homelessness and to have intensified other problems, such as the rising incidence of hunger," said Edward B. Lazere, the study's principal author. "When poor families must spend so much of their limited incomes for housing, little money remains for other necessities."

Although the housing cost burdens of poor white households are as severe as the burdens of poor Hispanic and black households, Hispanics and blacks are much more likely to be poor than are whites — and therefore are more likely to face the high housing cost burdens associated with poverty, the study said.

It said problems faced by poor households of all races in finding affordable housing have worsened since the 1970s. The increase in the shortage of low-rent housing since 1978 can be traced primarily to a sharp increase in the number of poor families, a substantial reduction in the number of low-rent units in the housing stock, and an increase in rental charges, it said.

The study said these problems would continue to worsen in the 1990s "unless major changes are made in government policies and in the actions of the private sector."

Inmates' riot quelled while buildings burn

BANNING, Calif. (AP) — Inmates rioted at a prison camp, injuring at least 19 people and leaving seven buildings in flames early today, authorities said.

At least 100 law enforcement officers were involved in quelling the three-hour riot, ended around midnight Sunday at the Banning Road Camp Rehabilitation Center, a minimum- and medium security prison with 772 inmates.

"We still do not know what precipitated this, but it appears to have been racial in nature," said Riverside County Sheriff's Capt. Jake Bowser. "We had some fighting break out between barracks ... After that it just broke out in general pandemonium."

An administration building, the prison kitchen, a guard tower and at least four other buildings caught fire, said Chris Hays, a reserve Banning firefighter. Several vehicles were also reported to have burned. The fires were controlled just after midnight.

Flames shot at least 50 feet into the night sky, witnesses said.

Seven of the injured inmates were treated for minor cuts and scratches at a hospital, nursing supervisor Beryl Brindisi. One guard was among the 12 people treated at the prison; the others apparently were prisoners.

Sheriff's deputies transported about 350 of the prisoners to other jails today to "defuse the situation," and the remaining inmates were locked down.

Firefighters and paramedics were blocked from entering the camp while inmates were being led out, authorities said.

"When we immediately got up there they were throwing rocks at us," said paramedic Abdul Ahmed.

Tim Lewis, who lives across the street from the prison, 90 miles east of Los Angeles, said he heard a "large explosion, like a sonic blast."

"The whole place is in flames," he said late Sunday. "There are flames leaping up 50, 60, 70 feet high. And there must be 150 squad cars, police, fire trucks, paramedics."

About 15 minutes later, a power pole exploded and plunged the camp into darkness, he said.

Extradition process begins for suspect in missing women

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A 28-year-old painter faces a hearing today that begins the formal process to extradite him to Kansas, where authorities want to question him in a woman's stabbing death and the disappearances of three others.

Richard Grissom Jr. remained without bond at Lew Sterrett Justice Center on a warrant for alleged parole violations, Dallas County sheriff's Lt. Gary Lindsey said.

He was also being held on a theft charge, which was filed to ensure that Wichita police can question Grissom about a murder.

According to the new Sedgwick County theft charge, Wichita Police Chief Rick Stone said Grissom rented a piece of equipment in Derby, Kan., near Wichita, and never returned it. Stone was uncertain what type of equipment was rented but said he recalled that it was a van or painting equipment.

Grissom, on the advice of his attorneys, refused Saturday to sign papers allowing his extradition to Kansas City, even though he had earlier agreed to cooperate.

Grissom, center, is led from the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport DPS building on Saturday afternoon.

"He is going to be here for awhile," Lindsey said. "On the parole violation charge he has, he is not allowed to post a bond. The fugitive division will start on the extradition proceeding tomorrow. We will get his file into court."

Members of the Overland Park, Kan., Metro Squad who had planned to bring Grissom back to that Kansas City suburb Saturday returned home empty-handed.

"At the formal hearing, he (Grissom) refused to sign extradition papers and was turned over to local authorities," said Metro Squad Detective Larry Keller. The extradition process can take up to 90 days, said Dallas County sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell.

Meanwhile, North Texas law enforcement agencies who became interested in Grissom's arrest Friday at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport questioned him about unsolved slayings in the region. But Grissom did not provide much information.

Police in Corpus Christi and Lewisville north of Dallas also checked to see if Grissom might be linked to women reportedly missing in their areas. But they later said that Grissom was not thought to be involved in any Corpus Christi cases and that a woman thought to be missing in Lewisville had been found.

Kansas authorities were frustrated that Grissom was talkative earlier but didn't provide additional details about the missing women.

"He talks a lot," and admitted knowing the three missing women, according to Wichita Police Chief Rick Stone, who was in Dallas on personal business at the time of Grissom's arrest.

"But he's just not giving you anything you can make a case on. He's not a dummy. He'll admit to things, but not to the point that it implicates him."

Credit cards, jewelry and other belongings of at least one of the missing women were recovered from Grissom's car, and he matched the description of a prowler near a woman's apartment complex, said Keller.

After his arrest, Grissom appeared before County Magistrate R. Kenneth Hurrington on the Kansas warrant, said airport spokeswoman Angel Biasatti. He was transferred Saturday afternoon to Dallas County from the airport, where he was captured on an anonymous tip.

At the airport, detectives recovered a car, stolen in Missouri, that they believe Grissom drove to Texas. Grissom, who told authorities he was waiting for an arriving plane's passenger, would not say why he was in the area.

No trace of the three suburban Kansas City women has been found and only the body of the Wichita, Kan., woman has been recovered, said Keller. Grissom has not been charged in the slaying or disappearances.

Grissom was convicted at age 16 of fatally bludgeoning a 72-year-old Lansing, Kan., woman with a railroad spike. Authorities said Grissom had planned a date with Terri Maness, 25, of Wichita, the night of June 7, when she was strangled and stabbed repeatedly in her townhouse.

New government in Argentina imposes belt-tightening policies

By ED McCULLOUGH
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Utility and gasoline prices soared and the national currency's value was halved today as the new government began imposing measures it hopes will end the worst recession in Argentina's 173-year history.

"Argentina is bankrupt," Economy Minister Miguel Roig said Sunday night in a nationwide address. Policies to nurture the country to health "will be exceptional and, lamentably, very harsh."

The plan also envisions cutting back drastically on government spending, selling off many state-run industries, scaling back subsidies and tax breaks for private companies and enforcing widely ignored tax laws.

"We have to conduct major surgery without anesthesia... If not, Argentina has no future," said President Carlos Menem, who on Saturday took over this country where runaway inflation has provoked food riots this year.

He told reporters he expects the country's 31 million people to begin feeling the results of the austerity measures in 2½ years.

Gasoline prices went up 610.5 percent, from 152 to 1,080 australs per gallon, or about 23 cents to $1.65. Electricity and telephone fees rose by about 200 percent, the government news agency Telam said.

Natural gas prices will rise 640 percent for businesses, 200 percent for homeowners. Roig did not say when the new rates would take effect.

Hefty fare increases for buses, subways, commuter trains and airplanes will take effect July 17, government spokesmen said. The rates were not announced.

Beginning today, the austral will sell for 655 per dollar, bringing its value in line with the black market and intending to encourage exporters to sell foreign currency to the Central Bank, which has low cash reserves.

The official rate on Friday was 303 to the dollar. The devaluation amounted to 53.7 percent.

The measures are aimed at curtailing inflation that in June soared by 114.5 percent and narrowing a budget deficit estimated at 12 percent to 15 percent of the gross national product.

The two are linked: the former government of President Raul Alfonsín financed the deficit — caused in large part by operating losses at state-run companies — by printing money or borrowing abroad.

Neither avenue is open to Menem, who was elected May 14. The nation is $4.5 billion in arrears in interest payments on the $60 billion foreign debt, and inflation is out of control.

The 12-month cost of living increase based on June's rate amounts to a staggering 948,597 percent. The austral, valued at 18 per $1 in February, has lost 97 percent of its value in five months.

Inflation and devaluation touched off a recession in which real wages have fallen by at least 35 percent this year, and unemployment has climbed to 10 percent.

Workers would be shielded somewhat from the effects of the new measures by controls on the prices of milk, bread and other basic commodities, and a small, one-time pay increase this month, Roig said. The pay increase, which will go to salaried workers and retirees, amounts to 8,000 australs, or about $12.

The Menem government also was considering doubling the monthly minimum wage of 20,000 australs, or about $30.

The clear danger is more social unrest. Labor unions denounced price hikes in the past weeks, and hungry shantytown dwellers looted food stores again last week in Rosario, the country's third-largest city.

Peres urges Labor Party to quit to protest Likud bloc's hard line

By ALLYN FISHER
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Finance Minister Shimon Peres urged today that his left-leaning Labor Party quit the governing coalition to protest the right-wing Likud bloc's new hard line on peace negotiations with the Palestinians.

Such a move could bring down the government and, eight months after the last national elections, force a new vote.

Peres, the Labor chairman, told his party's 120-member leadership bureau that he wants to convene Labor's governing Central Committee "as soon as possible" and to ask it to endorse the move.

Last week, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc met and toughened its conditions for elections in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip in which Palestinians would choose leaders to negotiate limited self-rule with Israel.

"The Labor Party has reached a conclusion that in view of the latest events... which seriously harmed the government's peace initiative, it would be proper to... dismantle the present government," Peres said in a letter he proposed be sent to Shamir.

The Labor leadership bureau is not empowered to decide whether to leave the government. Such a decision can only be endorsed by the Central Committee, though a bureau recommendation virtually ensures the necessary vote by the committee.

Peres, in the letter, said Shamir's speech at last week's Likud forum led Labor to conclude that "instead of supporting the agreed political plan of the government... you gave up to the opinions and positions of those who oppose the agreed initiative, those who want to torpedo it."

By a vote of 20-6 in May, the coalition Cabinet had endorsed the peace initiative for elections in the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

On Wednesday, however, Likud hawks led by Trade Minister Ariel Sharon forced Shamir to adopt the conditions that critics said would end chances of Palestinian acceptance.

Peres called Wednesday's Likud vote "a heavy blow to the peace plan that undermined its chances to succeed and harmed the peace process while seriously deviating from the agreements between our two parties."

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, a Labor leader, agreed that his party has no place in the Cabinet but said it might stay for an interim period.

Under Likud's new conditions, no elections would be held in the occupied lands until the end of the Palestinian uprising, which in its 19 months has claimed the lives of more than 550 Palestinians and 33 Israelis.

Likud's new conditions also specify that a program of building Jewish settlements in the occupied territories will go forward. The United States has called the settlements obstacles to peace.

In addition, Shamir ruled out a key Palestinian demand that 140,000 Arabs living in the annexed east Jerusalem be allowed to participate in the balloting.

Likud also reiterated its opposition to the creation of a Palestinian state, a goal of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Arafat said the United States shared much of the blame for Israel's new conditions. And he hinted at ending PLO-U.S. discussions, saying they had accomplished little since they began last year.

Leah Kay Lyle, Miss Haltom-Richmond area, gets crowned Miss Texas 1989 by Cathy Castro, Miss Texas 1988, Saturday night at the Tarrant County Convention Center in Fort Worth. Lyle competed against 69 young ladies from throughout the state.

Plainview woman crowned Miss Texas on fourth try

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — On her fourth try, Leah Kay Lyle, 22, of Plainview, edged out a longtime friend Saturday to win the title of 1989 Miss Texas.

First runner-up was Leslie Chambers, 24, from Lubbock, about 50 miles south of Plainview, who was at the pageant as Miss Dallas.

"We have been friends for years, ever since before high school. That made it really special for the two of us to be standing up together," said Miss Lyle, a 5-foot-6, 110-pound blue-eyed brunette who competed as Miss Haltom-Richland Area.

It was her fourth straight appearance in the Miss Texas pageant. Miss Lyle was first runner-up last year, fourth runner-up in 1987 and in the top 10 in 1986.

Miss Lyle was crowned by the 1988 Miss Texas, Cathy Castro, who came into last year's pageant as Miss Duncanville. For winning, she receives $25,000 in scholarships, $25,000 in jewelry to wear during her reign, and use of a new car equipped with a mobilephone.

The new Miss Texas is a 1988 graduate of Baylor University, where she was a communication major with a 3.7 grade-point average. Her measurements are 35-24-34.

A concert pianist who has been playing since the age of 6, the new Miss Texas wowed a live television audience and the crowd of 3,000 at the Fort Worth-Tarrant County Convention Center with her talent performance.

Her past appearances in the Miss Texas pageant helped her this year, she said. She said she was very calm this year, much calmer than in the past.

Judging for Miss Texas is based 40 percent on talent, 30 percent on interviews, 15 percent on evening gowns and 15 percent on swimsuits.

The question for Miss Lyle, during the interview segment of the competition Saturday night, was asked what kind of penalty she felt should be assessed to those convicted of selling drugs to minors.

"It's a very serious problem that should be dealt with seriously," she said. "I'm glad Texas has the death penalty, and I think that should be considered, at least on the second offense."

Miss Lyle said she practices the piano two hours a day and runs four miles a day, but probably will increase the time she spends at both as she prepares to represent Texas later this year in the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City, N.J.

The judges selected Rhonda Morrison, 19, of Coldspring, Miss Southeast Texas, second runner-up; Lisa Tyree, 22, of Arlington, Miss Greenville, third runner-up; and Gayle Ross, 26, of Plano, Miss Jack-Young Area, fourth runner-up.

Others among the 10 finalists were Sandra Dornak, 22, of El Campo, Miss Houston; Amy Jones, 20, of Hurst, Miss Hurst-Eules-Bedford; Toni Martinez, 22, of Houston, Miss Longview; Johanna Ogden, 25, of Dallas, Miss Denison; and Monica Perry, 19, of Spring, Miss Lake O' The Pines.

The new Miss Texas was a preliminary winner in the talent winner, as were Miss Houston and Miss Denison. Preliminary winners in the swimsuit competition were Miss Greenville, Miss Hurst-Eules-Bedford and Miss Southeast Texas.

Competitors must be 17 to 26 years old, and have never been married nor pregnant.

The new Miss Texas has been working as a research associate for the Texas Legislative Council. She wants to receive a law degree and pursue a career in politics, possibly as a lobbyist, she said.

Miss Lyle was filmed in a television commercial with George Burns in 1987. She also had two years of voice training, two years of flute, seven years of ballet and four years of gymnastics.

Contestants in the pageant had a diversion after Friday night's preliminary competition.

Because of a drug raid at the hotel where they stayed, contestants returned from the pageant early Saturday and stayed until 4 a.m. in two big meeting rooms downstairs while federal officers staked out and arrested two people on drug charges on the third floor.

Being 'thrown in jail' part of March of Dimes fundraiser

A year-old warrant for arrest is being held for Warren Chisum. No, it is not a criminal matter, it is an outstanding warrant from last year's March of Dimes two-day fundraiser called "Jail and Bail". Chisum could not be found last year, and if he returns in time from the legislature's special session, he will be "doing time" for a good cause.

This event will be staged at Culberson-Stowers Toyota showroom, July 18-19, and is co-sponsored by Pepsi of Pampa, KPDN and Culberson-Stowers. Employees, friends and relatives can get together on a $15 arresting fee to have their favorite outlaw arrested by a posse of volunteers. When court convenes at Culberson-Stowers, the judge will pronounce sentence and set a minimum bail of $100.

The arrestees will then be placed in a mock jail, for no longer than one hour, and can spend the time on the phone with friends and colleagues raising bail in the form of pledged contributions to the March of Dimes.

Transportation to and from the jail will be provided. All proceeds from Jail and Bail will benefit the March of Dimes, Golden Spread Division. Pampa benefits from satellite clinics that are a part of the quarterly outreach programs from the Texas Tech Health Science Center.

For more information contact David Hutto at Service Insurance, 665-7271. During Jail and Bail, the phone number to call is 665-4422.

Kayla's Column

When friends ask me if I miss Oklahoma City, I must confess that I do. There is lots to see and do in OKC and high on my priority list are the restaurants. On your next trip to Amarillo, if you find yourself there around supper-time, I would like to recommend two restaurants.

Nick's Greek and Italian Cuisine is located off Paramount at I-40. In an atmosphere of low lighting and candles on the table, I enjoyed my first Greek fare of roast rack of lamb (interesting), Greek style potatoes (delicious), and Greek salad (not your usual lettuce and tomato stuff) with Nick's homemade mustard dressing.

For dessert I tried the Baklava which was good but not as good as what Ted Gikas makes.

Ramon plays the organ and welcomes requests and sometimes is joined by Nick when he takes a break from the kitchen. When Ramon takes a break from the organ he goes around to each table and plays requests on guitar.

Service was good and at no time did I feel rushed. Prices I thought very reasonable (but then I wasn't footing the bill). Next time I'm in Amarillo around supertime and am hungry for something Italian, I'll definitely go back.

The Olive Garden is located at I-40 and Western. I have eaten at the one in Oklahoma City, so I had an idea of what to expect and was not disappointed.

The homemade breadsticks (perhaps bread sticks, two words is better terminology, and not to be confused with the hard-as-a-rock breadsticks commercially packaged), warm from the oven and brushed with garlic salt and butter, are probably not on anyone's diet but a delight to experience. Salad is brought to the table in an all-you-can-eat manner and is seasoned with a homemade Italian dressing that is very good.

I had the soup and salad offering from the menu so can not comment on the rest of the fare but based on my experiences in OKC, I recommend this eating out experience. The bread sticks are worth the price of admission.

I like eating out and experiencing someone else's creative touch in the kitchen but there is something that bothers me. I don't understand how or why in this country we became involved with the idea of "tipping."

Doesn't the restaurant owner hire his staff to provide good service or are they only hired to deliver food to the table? Why am I as the patron expected to supplement someone's income for performing what I consider part of their job?

I have been a waitress. I know what it's like on the other side of the counter and the issue here is with the restaurant owner, not with the staff.

It makes sense to me that a restaurant could pay their staff commissions based on repeat business. Bonus pay could be based on top of a regular salary (not salary and tips). Bonus pay could be based on repeat business with top of the line commissions being paid for customers who have heard by word-of-mouth how excellent food and service is in an establishment and have traveled out-of-their-way to experience it for themselves.

If as a patron I am expected to help supplement the staff's income, I want to be in on the hiring and firing and I think I should share in the profits of the business.

I will patronize a restaurant with mediocre food if the staff are friendly, cheerful and personable but will rarely go back for good food if a request for a refill of tea is greeted with scowls or ignored altogether.

I think it would be very interesting to walk into a restaurant someday and be greeted with this message printed in bold type in the menu. "The staff and management of this restaurant appreciate your business. Good service and good food are our business and you are not expected to pay extra for the service. The best "tip" you can leave us, is to come back and eat with us again very soon, and to recommend us to all your friends."

TV remote lets viewer tune without paying the piper

DEAR ABBY: About "The Clicker" — the fellow who made a practice of muting the sound during TV commercials: It reminds me of a story I used when I was a disc jockey and the commercial load got extra heavy. Actually, I stole it from Alfred Hitchcock, who said:

"When I was in college, my Uncle Frank used to take me out for dinner now and then. We'd go to an expensive restaurant, and while we ate, Uncle Frank would tell me these long, boring stories about himself. But no matter how boring or self-serving the stories were, I always listened politely, because, after all, Uncle Frank was paying for the dinner. Now I don't know what reminded me of all this, but it's time for a commercial."

STEVE A. GLASER, CHAMPAIGN, ILL.

DEAR STEVE: Alfred Hitchcock was a brilliant, talented man, and judging from his famous ample profile, he enjoyed a good meal. But what kind of message did he send with his clever segue? That he felt obligated to listen politely to his Uncle Frank's boring, self-serving stories because he loved to eat and Uncle Frank picked up the tab.

Now, thanks to the invention of the TV clicker, today's television viewers need not tolerate boring, inane, offensive commercials as payment for having watched a television program. And who's to say we should?

DEAR ABBY: As the author of "To Remember Me," I feel I must respond to the comments made by T.G. Hayes in which he says the essay was "positively gruesome."

While I agree he's entitled to his own opinion on the question of organ donation, I feel that, by the same token, he should give me, and others like me, the same right to choose.

Like Mr. Hayes, I believe the physical body is the temple that houses the soul — but only during our temporary stay on Earth. At death, I assume our soul leaves the body; therefore, why not use some of the body parts to help continue to house other souls? After all, our bodies were created from dust and so

Dear Abby

to dust they shall return ... but who is to say when? To paraphrase Shakespeare, "Dust by any other name shall remain the same."

I certainly hope Mr. Hayes will think things over and realize that since the body is the temple of the soul, we should continue to make it as beautiful and enduring as possible, and that by the time the millennium arrives, organ donation will be a "way of life."

ROBERT N. TEST, CINCINNATI

DEAR MR. TEST: My mail was overwhelmingly supportive of the views expressed in your beautiful essay.

DEAR ABBY: The suggestion you recently made for brides to "break in" their wedding shoes before the big day was especially appreciated by me. It also reminded me of something I clipped out of your column many years ago and saved to enjoy:

"Dear Abby: My boyfriend said that he will marry me if I go all the way with him. When I refuse, he says, 'You wouldn't buy a pair of shoes without trying them on, would you?' I'm confused. What should I do?"

Your reply was: "I'd rather have a pair of shoes that didn't fit than have a pair that was worn by everyone in town!"

Abby, it's nice to know that you handled "breaking in" shoes for our younger citizens a long time ago.

THE WIDOW MCCOY, DENNYVILLE, MAINE

DEAR ABBY: I would like to express my sympathy for "Old-Time Salesgirl," who deplores the lack of consideration shown by prospective customers who mistreat garments they try on, then reject.

A similar attitude toward all things, even including their own possessions, has become the hallmark of a much too large proportion of young adults, and sadly, many of their parents.

This "hooray for me and to heck with everyone else" attitude disgusts and infuriates this Victorian respecter of others' rights and property, but my only recourse is to attempt to compensate for those bores. Yes, I'm the chump who picks up the box of cereal or the toy from the store aisle and tries to find its rightful place on the shelf, who reorganizes the scrambled greeting cards in the rack, and who straightens the twisted garments on their hangers while shopping.

I do these things by natural compulsion, for the sheer satisfaction of knowing that I may have lightened another's daily burdens. So, cheer up, "Old-Time Salesgirl," there are still a few considerate old squares on your side. My bride of 43 years is another of this same archaic breed.

FRED LEE MONTGOMERY, GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR MR. MONTGOMERY: How refreshing to learn that, amidst the cactus in Arizona, an orchid blooms — make that two, and greet your good wife for me.

DEAR ABBY: My granddaughter was planning an elaborate church wedding for December, but she just found out that she is pregnant and the baby is due in January.

She changed her plans and has decided to have her big church wedding after the baby is born. Abby, I do not care for that idea, and I told her that unless she gets married before the baby is born, I will not attend her wedding. Am I wrong?

FROM ANOTHER GENERATION

DEAR FROM: You and I are from the same generation; I also think the wedding should come before the baby. However, I would not deny myself the privilege of attending my granddaughter's wedding — regardless of when it took place.

$50,000 in prize money for Tri-State Fair winners

The 1989 Amarillo Tri State Fair, scheduled for September 18-23, will award hundreds of winners with prize money, ribbons, banners and trophies. Divisions include beef cattle, swine, sheep, goats, poultry, rabbits, aquarium, art, culinary, textiles, vegetables and educational exhibits in agriculture and home-making.

"In the midst of the big entertainers and the glitter of the midway, we often forget that competition continues to be the main purpose and the backbone of the fair," says Lynn Griffin, fair manager. Over $50,000 in prize money is offered to exhibitors in the competitive events. In addition, hundreds of ribbons, banners and trophies will also be awarded to winners.

The seven days of horse events conducted by local horse organizations during the fair will offer several thousand dollars in additional prize money. Interested parties may find out more about these judged events and how to enter by calling the Tri State Fair office at 806/376-7767 or writing to P.O. Box 31087, Amarillo, Texas, 79120-1087.

Becker, Graf win big

By ANDREW WARSHAW
AP Sports Writer

Wimbledon '89

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova says she still has time to break Wimbledon's ultimate record. Unless Steffi Graf gets there first.

After losing the women's championship to Graf for the second year in a row, Navratilova still is stuck on eight singles crowns at the All England Club, the record she shares with Helen Wills Moody.

Next year, Navratilova will be 33. But, she says, that won't stop her coming back to the oldest Grand Slam tournament for another crack at a place in tennis history.

"I absolutely think that I can win," Navratilova said after Graf beat her 6-2, 6-7, 6-1. "If I thought there was no chance I would win, or even a 50-50 chance, I wouldn't be playing any more."

wasn't prepared to have her pride dented again.

"I wanted it so badly that I put a little more pressure on myself than usual," Graf said. "I wanted to show I can do better. I knew I could do it but I had to prove it on the court. It's an overwhelming feeling."

On a cool, overcast day, Graf started strongly in contrast to last year, when she rallied from a first-set loss to take 12 of the last 13 games and beat Navratilova.

Moving Navratilova's aging legs around the court with her pounding groundstrokes, Graf took the last five games of the opening set and seemed on course for a straight-set victory.

Navratilova dug in, served stronger and moved up 5-2 in the second set. She blew that lead but sprinted through the tiebreaker 7-1 to tie the match.

The key game in the final set was the fourth. Navratilova made three uncharacteristic volleying errors to drop her serve at love and trail 3-1.

She had one chance to break back in the next game but made another backhand error, this time sending her approach shot long.

Graf held for 4-1 and was on her way to another victory over the American in an arena where Navratilova reigned supreme for almost a decade. Before Graf beat her last year, Navratilova never had lost in a singles final on Wimbledon's grass.

Becker had a day less than Edberg to prepare for the men's final after playing his rain-delayed semifinal Saturday.

It was the first time the women's championship, postponed from Saturday because of rain, ever had been held on a Sunday, and the first time in the modern era that the same women had met in the final three years in a row.

The match preceded the men's final between Boris Becker and Stefan Edberg on a day when four of the five main titles were settled.

Becker avenged his defeat by Edberg in last year's men's final with a 6-0, 7-6, 6-4 victory that made the West German the youngest man ever to win three Wimbledon singles titles. He also won in 1985 as an unseeded 17-year-old, and in 1986.

Becker, 21, flung his racket into the stands at the end of the 2-hour, 12-minute match, the most one-sided final in five years.

"After a couple of seconds, when you realize you have won it, you explode," Becker said. "Thankfully, I didn't hit anybody."

Becker's victory gave West Germany a sweep of the singles crowns.

Graf wept tears of joy after halting Navratilova's bid for a history-making ninth singles title and re-asserting her dominance of the women's game.

The 20-year-old Graf was upset by Spanish teen-ager Arantxa Sanchez in the final of the French Open last month. On Wimbledon's grass and in front of another mass audience, Graf Steffi Graf, left, holds her championship trophy aloft after defeating Martina Navratilova for the second straight year in the women's singles final. Boris Becker, above, became the youngest man to win three Wimbledon championships with his victory over Stefan Edberg Sunday.

Azinger captures Hartford Open

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Paul Azinger doesn't consider himself a choker. His victory in the Greater Hartford Open may have swayed others to his view.

Azinger lost a four-stroke lead on the back nine Sunday, then sank a 40-foot pitch shot for a tie-breaking birdie on the final hole and a one-shot victory over Wayne Levi.

"I still wonder," Azinger said after shooting a 6-under-par 65 Sunday to finish with a course record 17-under 267, "am I ever going to let myself run away" with a tournament?

He seemed ready to do that after shooting a 6-under-par 30 on the front nine. That put him at 17 under for the tournament and gave him a four-stroke edge with just nine holes left.

"It was my tournament to win or lose starting on the 10th hole," he said.

While Azinger played cautiously, trying to protect his advantage, Levi, who shot 67, made birdies at the 9th, 10th, 12th and 13th holes to tie for the lead. Azinger then broke his string of 37 bogey-free holes on the 15th, but Levi bogeyed the 14th, leaving them at 16 under.

On the par-4, 420-yard 18th hole, Azinger hit his first shot into the right rough and his second into the rough to the right of the green.

"I would never consider myself a choker," he said, "but people write that and you don't want that written and that's a hurdle."

He cleared it when he pitched the ball from about 10 feet off the green, dropped it about 20 feet from the cup and watched it roll in.

Sunday's victory was the fifth on the PGA Tour for Azinger and his second in the GHO in three years. But he's known as much for the tournaments he didn't win.

He led the 1987 British Open by one stroke with two holes to play but bogeyed those holes and Nick Faldo won by a stroke.

He led the 1988 PGA Championship by a stroke going into the final round but shot par 71 and finished second, three strokes behind Jeff Sluman.

Then he lost the Bob Hope Classic to Steve Jones last January in a three-way playoff.

"I feel like I've gotten over a hurdle," Azinger said. "Since the Hope, it's been very difficult for me. I literally blew that tournament."

Levi missed a 12-foot putt for birdie on the 18th green.

The putt "went maybe two inches, then jumped way to the right," said Levi, who has won eight tournaments but none since 1985. "It didn't look like anything bad (on the grass threw the ball off course), but it did something funny."

"Paul just beat me."

Azinger began the day in a three-way tie for fourth place at 11 under par. Levi, Wayne Grady and Kenny Knox shared the lead at 12 under on the 6,786-yard, par-71 Tournament Players Club of Connecticut.

Azinger broke by two strokes the tournament record of 269 since the event moved to the TPC in 1984. Four of the previous five winners, including Azinger, had that score. He won the 1987 GHO by a stroke over Levi and Dan Forsman.

Azinger, who finished third a week earlier in the Western Open, earned $180,000 Sunday and jumped from 11th to fourth place on the earnings list.

Paul Azinger shot a record-breaking 17-under-par 267 with the help of a 40-foot pitch shot on the last hole.

All Stars, Glo-Valve snare victories

Pampa's 13-year-old All Stars needed only five innings to defeat the Top O' Texas All-Stars, 23-11, ending the game by the 10-run rule during district tournament action Saturday at Perryton.

Matt Garvin got the win in three innings on the hill before being relieved by Clarence Reed, who lasted two frames to pick up the save.

Chad Dunnam went 3-for-3 with four RBI to pace Pampa. Other top hitters included Andy Elsheimer, two hits, 3 RBI; Clarence Reed, two hits, 3 RBI; Gregg Moore, one hit, four runs scored; Matt Garvin, double; Chris Gilbert, sacrifice fly, walk, two RBI; Jason Downs, two walks, two RBI.

Pampa then defeated Dumas, 8-6, in the winners' bracket Sunday night at Perryton.

David Potter started on the mound and went 3 1-3 innings to get the win. Clarence Reed came on in relief again and pitched brilliantly for the last four innings.

Even with only four hits, Pampa's strong defense, aggressive baserunning and timely hitting took its toll on Dumas. David Potter led all batters with two hits and one RBI, while teammates Chad Dunnam and Gregg Moore had one hit apiece.

Gregg Moore, Matt Garvin, Andy Elsheimer and Chris Gilbert made great defensive plays to aid the victory.

Pampa had an 8-3 lead going into seventh and had to stave off Dumas' strong last-inning rally. Dumas had the tying run at the plate when Pampa finally retired the side and clinched the win.

Pampa will advance to the championship finals on Tuesday against the winner of the North Randall County/Dumas game, which is scheduled for tonight. Tuesday's championship game will begin at 6 p.m. at Perryton.

The winner of the district tournament will move on to the state tournament in Andrews beginning July 22.

Optimist Roundup

Pampa's 14- and 15-year-old All-Stars had a similarly successful weekend at their district tournament. Pampa opened the tourney Saturday at Optimist Park with an 18-5 victory over Dalhart that was called by the ten-run rule after five innings.

Brandon Wells struck out eight batters and gave up five runs on seven hits to capture the mound win. Paul Guerrero was charged with the loss after yielding five runs on six hits and a walk. Guerrero struck out only one batter.

Phillip Sexton wielded a big bat for Pampa, cracking a double and home run, while Dwight Nickelberry pounded a double and a triple. Other top hitters were Kurt West, single, double; Jason Brantley, two singles; Zach Thomas, single, double; Donnie Medley, single, double; and Brandon Wells, two doubles.

On Sunday, Pampa defeated Dumas, 19-12, in the winners' bracket. Buddy Plunk struck out four, walked six and allowed 12 runs on eight hits to get the win.

Chad Armstrong was the loser, allowing seven runs, four hits and five bases on balls, while striking out three.

Zach Thomas led all hitters with a double and home run, followed by Donnie Medley and Brandon Wells with a double and single apiece.

Dwight Nickelberry popped three one-baggers, Buddy Plunk had two singles and Chris Poole, Phillip Sexton and Jesse Hernandez each had one single.

Pampa will play Top O' Texas East on Tuesday night at 8:30. The winner will advance to the championship game.

ners with three hits, three RBI and one run scored — and clutch pitching by Todd Finney made the difference for Glo-Valve.

Glo-Valve opened the scoring in the bottom of the first inning with two runs on a single by Rayford Young, a Dunlap error and a single by Dale Noble. The victors added three more runs in the third frame when Finney and Albert Sois walked, followed by singles from McGahen and Tito Cortez.

Dunlap roared to life in the fourth inning when Eric Ritchey, Damion Nickelberry, Sean Cook and Ryan Gibson pegged consecutive singles. A single by Gerald Reyes and a double by Duane Nickelberry cleared the bases and completed a seven-run inning for Dunlap.

Glo-Valve tied the score at seven in the bottom of the fourth. Noble singled with two out, then advanced to third on wild pitches. He scored when Sois reached base on an error. Sois came around the bases to tie the score on singles by McGahen and Scott Johnson.

Micah Cobb pulled Dunlap back into the lead in the fifth inning, scoring a run on a single followed by a wild pitch and an error. Glo-Valve came scratching back with three runs on singles by Brett Manning and McGahen, sandwiched around an error, a fielder's choice and a walk to Sois. The go-ahead run came when Young slid safely home with his second stolen base of the game.

In the sixth inning, Duane Nickelberry singled for his third hit of the game, but Finney pitched his way out of trouble to bring his season record to a league-leading 7-1.

Finney was charged with five earned runs. He gave up nine hits, walked two and struck out 10. Mathis was tagged with the loss despite giving up only one earned run. He walked three, struck out four and allowed 10 hits.

Glo-Valve ended its season with a 14-3 record, its seventh National League title, which it shared with Celanese Corporation, and its third City Championship.

Glo-Valve Service came from behind twice to outlast Dunlap Industrial, 10-8, and win the Optimist Bambino Major League City Championship Saturday at Optimist Park.

Timely hitting by Jim Bob McGahen — who led the winners with three hits, three RBI and one run scored — and clutch pitching by Todd Finney made the difference for Glo-Valve.

Glo-Valve opened the scoring in the bottom of the first inning with two runs on a single by Rayford Young, a Dunlap error and a single by Dale Noble. The victors added three more runs in the third frame when Finney and Albert Sois walked, followed by singles from McGahen and Tito Cortez.

Dunlap roared to life in the fourth inning when Eric Ritchey, Damion Nickelberry, Sean Cook and Ryan Gibson pegged consecutive singles. A single by Gerald Reyes and a double by Duane Nickelberry cleared the bases and completed a seven-run inning for Dunlap.

Glo-Valve tied the score at seven in the bottom of the fourth. Noble singled with two out, then advanced to third on wild pitches. He scored when Sois reached base on an error. Sois came around the bases to tie the score on singles by McGahen and Scott Johnson.

Micah Cobb pulled Dunlap back into the lead in the fifth inning, scoring a run on a single followed by a wild pitch and an error. Glo-Valve came scratching back with three runs on singles by Brett Manning and McGahen, sandwiched around an error, a fielder's choice and a walk to Sois. The go-ahead run came when Young slid safely home with his second stolen base of the game.

In the sixth inning, Duane Nickelberry singled for his third hit of the game, but Finney pitched his way out of trouble to bring his season record to a league-leading 7-1.

Finney was charged with five earned runs. He gave up nine hits, walked two and struck out 10. Mathis was tagged with the loss despite giving up only one earned run. He walked three, struck out four and allowed 10 hits.

Glo-Valve ended its season with a 14-3 record, its seventh National League title, which it shared with Celanese Corporation, and its third City Championship.

Welch tags Texas, 7-1

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland pitcher Bob Welch spent 15 days on the disabled list last month, and the thought of spending another 10 days there started alarming him.

So Welch was thrilled when manager Tony La Russa shifted his rotation to allow him one last start before the All-Star break. He made the most of it, going 6 1-3 innings to beat the Texas Rangers 7-1 Sunday and finish the first half with a 10-4 record.

"I needed to pitch," said Welch, making his third start returning from a groin injury. "I'm glad Tony gave me the opportunity, especially after my last start."

Welch gave up six runs and eight hits in only 3 1-3 innings last Wednesday against Kansas City, his shortest outing of the year. The A's rallied back to tie the game and give a no-decision to Welch, who hasn't lost since May 28 at Boston. In his first start off the DL, Welch pitched five scoreless innings in a win over Greg Swindell at Cleveland.

"He's come back to get two quick wins for us," said La Russa. "He made the good pitch when he was trying to make one."

The A's need a healthy and effective Welch in the rotation in order to repeat as division champs. When the A's have used a starter other than the Big Four—Welch, Dave Stewart, Storm Davis or Mike Moore—they've lost nine straight games.

Going into the All-Star break, the A's are 1 1-2 games behind California. Only four games separate the second-place A's, Kansas City and Texas.

"It's a big difference when you have to jump over three teams," said Texas manager Bobby Valentine, whose club has stayed in the race with a 24-22 record.

"California looks real good right now — their pitching is awesome," said Valentine. "And as soon as Oakland gets healthy, they'll be awesome. (Kansas City outfielder) Bo Jackson is awesome. We're going to have to be awesome."

The Ranger defense, however, was not awesome Sunday. The A's managed only one bloop hit off Texas starter Charlie Hough, 5-10, in the first three innings, but four Ranger errors, two passed balls and a wild pitch parlayed it into a 3-1 A's lead.

Hough lost to the A's for the first time in 12 starts. He was 8-0 in 11 starts against the team since his last loss to Oakland on June 30, 1985.

McGwire drove in three runs, one on his 17th homer of the year, to lead the A's attack. The Rangers' only run was unearned, scoring in the first inning on a passed ball.

The A's helped La Russa celebrate the day he signed a contract extension through the 1992 season.

"The (contract) might guarantee me money, but it won't guarantee I'll be in the dugout," said La Russa, who is said to have signed for considerably more than the three-year, $1 million contract he's now finishing up. The new terms were not announced.

But if you ask the A's, La Russa has a job as long as he wants it.

"Every place you go, managers usually come and go," said A's pitcher Dave Stewart, who will accompany La Russa to the All-Star game in Anaheim. "But this is stability. You're not going to get much better than Tony."

Cowboys anticipate no trouble signing Walsh

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Steve Walsh won't carry the same price tag as the Dallas Cowboys' other rookie quarterback if he plays for the team this season, said club owner Jerry Jones on the eve of contract negotiations with the player.

But Jones said he does not expect difficulty signing Walsh, despite the Cowboys' apparent intent to trade him. Discussions between the Cowboys and Marvin Demoff, Walsh's agent, begin today at the club's Valley Ranch headquarters.

"I don't anticipate any problems signing Steve," Jones told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram in Sunday's editions. "I will be very, very involved. I don't think this will be difficult for a lot of reasons."

"First of all, Steve has a very reasonable agent; secondly, I think we all see a great situation; and, thirdly, because I'm willing to do what it takes."

The University of Miami quarterback was selected by Dallas in Friday's supplemental draft, less than three months after they selected and signed UCLA quarterback Troy Aikman in the NFL's regular draft.

"Troy was a unique situation because he was the first quarterback and the first player drafted, and that commanded a certain financial consideration," Jones told the newspaper from his Arkansas home.

In the richest rookie contract in league history, Aikman signed a 6-year, $11-million pact. Walsh has indicated he expects to be paid a comparable salary.

However, Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson said trade talks involving Walsh have already begun.

On Saturday, Johnson talked with as many as six teams about trade options. The coach said four teams called to advise the Cowboys they are interested, while two others have indicated they also may want to be involved.

Among interested teams are Minnesota, Kansas City and Green Bay. Detroit and Miami told Dallas they might be inclined to make offers as well, the Star-Telegram reported.

However, Johnson said discussions have been general in nature and that no firm offers have been presented.

Johnson denied the Cowboys asked Green Bay for rights to offensive tackle Tony Mandarich, chosen second in the regular draft behind Aikman, or that they wanted unsigned rookie linebacker Derrick Thomas, selected by Kansas City with fourth pick in the draft.

"BRAGGING"

By Jannie Lewis
MILLION DOLLAR PRODUCER

Being boastful is not the greatest thing to do, but there comes a time when it is necessary. Like right now.

Recently we embarked on a new program for Pampa...a Real Estate
Buyer's Guide that contains photos of most of the houses we have available for sale. There is a description of each one, its address and the current asking price.

The thing we like about it is it is FREE...and we have placed little racks at various strategic locations around town,
so look for them as you shop. We have a goodly supply here at the office...109 S. Gillespie and welcome you to come by to get one or more.

Our publication also contains some important information about the buying and selling of houses or property. If you contemplate doing either, then you should get a copy of the
"Buyer's Guide".

We think of this as a
SERVICE...certainly it isn't any money-maker for us...but being helpful is what we do best and enjoy the most.

Some come in for a
FREE COPY of our
"BUYER'S GUIDE"
and let's talk. The coffee's hot.
