Watergate Hearing Opening Televised

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tribunal of seven senators opened today historic hearings into the Watergate scandals, and an aide in President Nixon's re-election campaign testified there was no doubt that final political authority rested with the White House.

The leadoff witness, Robert C. Odle Jr., who served as director of administration at the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, said he did not know of political sabotage or surveillance by that organization.

"Only what I've read in the newspapers," Odle, 28, testified before a crowded, nationally televised Senate hearing.

Much of Odle's testimony dealt with the administrative setup at the Nixon campaign committee.

Odle specifically denied that he destroyed any documents involving the Watergate affair—although he said the committee had shredding machines at "convenient points" in its offices.

He also denied receiving transcripts of wiretaps.

Odle said he was "absolutely not" involved in bugging activities.

He said he hired James W. McCord as a security man for the re-election committee. He also said he fired McCord, later convicted as a Watergate conspirator.

Sen. Herman Talmadge D-Ga., asked whether the Committee for the Re-election of the President was solely under control of the President and his top aides.

Odle described the relationship as one of cooperation, not technical or legal control.

"Is it fair to say that the committee was set up, organized and directed from the White House?" Talmadge asked.

"Those people who were at the White House had influence over the committee, they gave it direction," Odle testified. "But the campaign director, of course, was not at the White House. He came from the Justice Department."

That drew laughter from the standing-room audience. The man at the Justice Department was former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, now under indictment in connection with a secret campaign contribution.

"There was no doubt as to where the ultimate authority lay, was there?" Talmadge asked.

"No, sir," said Odle.

Odle said he heard of the Watergate burglary on Saturday afternoon, June 17, 1972. It had happened early that morning.

He said he was told of a burglary at Democratic headquarters.

"And I said to some people who were in that meeting, I said that could never happen here because I've got a guy working for me named Jim McCord," Odle said.

McCord was security man for the Nixon committee—and one of the Watergate burglars.

Following an opening statement by Nixon and the majority of his campaign workers, Odle was questioned in detail about the setup of the committee for the re-election of the President, and its lines of authority.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., opened the hearings, and said his panel "must probe into assertions that the very system itself has been subverted and its foundations shaken."

In his opening statement, Ervin recited the record of Watergate, and the published charges of broader political surveillance and sabotage.

He said the scandal has "cast a black cloud of mistrust" over American government, and promised candid and intensive investigation to uncover all the facts.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said in his opening statement that the American people "must be the final judge of Watergate."

"The very fact that we are now involved in the public process of cleaning our own house before the eyes of the world is a mark of the greatest strength," Baker said.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., said the story to be unfolded before the Senate panel has its significance not in the acts of breaking, entering or bugging, "but in the acts of men who almost stole America."

Even as the long-awaited Senate investigation took center stage, Watergate inquiries proceeded on other fronts.

Gen. Robert E. Cushman said Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. lied to him about why Hunt wanted help from the Central Intelligence Agency two years ago.

Prices Of Gold Easing

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold eased further today as Europe's booming bullion markets lost a little more heat in early dealings. The U.S. dollar moved up strongly on foreign exchanges.

Gold opened on the free market in London at $103.50 an ounce, a full $1.50 below Wednesday's closing level.

The dollar jumped three-quarters of a penny to 2.7925 marks at the opening in Frankfurt. In London, the pound sterling sagged more than a cent to $2.5380.

The price of gold dropped $5 in Zurich to $101.50 an ounce, and the dollar was quoted at 3.1675 Swiss francs, up almost a centime.

After touching record highs throughout the past week, gold closed Wednesday in London, the world's biggest gold market, at $106 an ounce. That was down $5.50 from Tuesday.

Similar downward trends were recorded in other European centers.

The gold rush on the free market brought pressure for an increase in the official price of $42.22 an ounce used in transactions between governments to finance their international trade.

The United States is opposed to any increase because it would devalue the dollar as an international reserve currency.

Chamber Sets Annual Drive For Members

The annual membership campaign of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will get underway with a luncheon meeting Monday, May 21, at the Coronado Inn.

Gene Steel, finance director of the chamber, will be in charge of the drive to enlist new members and work on renewals.

This year's campaign will take the form of a football conference with eight teams competing for the championship.

The Browns will be coached by Gene Barrett, the Cowboys by Carlton Freeman, the Dolphins by Melvin Kunkel, the Forty-Niners by Nevit Secrest, the Raiders by Roy Sprakman, the Redskins by Chuck Zlomke and the Steelers by Rex McAnelly.

The chamber's annual budget from membership dues is $44,000. Of this amount approximately $35,000 has already been received through the mail.

The campaign will run from May 21 through June 1.

ON CEASE-FIRE Kissinger, Tho Start Meetings

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho met today for the first time in three months to discuss how to enforce the Vietnam cease-fire they negotiated last winter.

Kissinger was host at the session in an American-owned villa on a golf course at St. Nom-la-Bretteche, 15 miles southwest of Paris. Neither he nor Tho made any statement but they shook hands smilingly at the door and waved cheerfully to the newsmen in front of the house.

Their chief advisers also attended the opening session.

Kissinger on his arrival from Washington Wednesday night said he would do everything possible to improve implementation of the cease-fire agreement.

"If our colleagues from North Vietnam approach these meetings with the same attitude," he said, "then I am confident we will make major progress toward this objective and speed the normalization of relations between the United States and North Vietnam."

President Nixon's national security adviser and the member of the North Vietnamese Politburo were expected to continue their latest round of talks for three or four days. Kissinger reportedly wants to be back in the United States before his 50th birthday May 27.

The two men who negotiated the peace agreement in Paris met last week in Kissinger visited Hanoi Feb. 10-11. Following a crescendo of allegations by each side that the other was flouting the agreement, the United States and North Vietnam agreed to have Kissinger and Tho meet again in an attempt to make the cease-fire work.

Deputy Asst. Secretary of State William Sullivan and Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach laid the groundwork with a meeting in Paris late last month to establish a list of each side's grievances against the other. Informants said they settled none of the issues but helped to clarify each government's understanding of the other's position at that time.

Some diplomats believe that Hanoi may feel its bargaining position has been strengthened since then by the Watergate scandal and by congressional moves to end all U.S. military action in Indochina.

Nixon warned Hanoi in his State of the World message May 2 that continued infiltration of North Vietnamese troops and arms into South Vietnam would risk a "revived confrontation" with the United States. The diplomats said there are signs that Hanoi thinks Nixon would have difficulty carrying out his threat, and there has been no report of a decline in Communist infiltration.

The usually mild-mannered Tho raised his voice angrily when he arrived from Hanoi Monday, denouncing alleged American bombing raids on areas of South Vietnam controlled by the Viet Cong. He ignored U.S. denials of the attacks and said if they were repeated, he would walk out on Kissinger.

It was the first time Tho had voiced such an ultimatum publicly in four years of talks with Kissinger.

Repair Mission Flight Planned

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The scenario is being written today for a Buck Rogers-style space adventure in which three astronauts will fly a repair mission to the disabled Skylab space station.

It will require one of the astronauts to take a space walk to install a shield between the overheated spacecraft and the blazing rays of the sun.

Television pictures may provide much of the world with a ringside seat to the unfolding drama.

The flight may start Sunday. Or it may be delayed until Friday, May 25.

If it works, Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz could save their 28-day orbital trip and the 36-day voyages planned later in the year for the Skylab 2 and 3 crews.

Plans for the flight are being drawn up by specialists at space agency centers at Cape Kennedy, Houston, Tex., and Huntsville, Ala., and at the contractor plants of Martin Marietta in Denver and McDonnell-Douglas Corp. in Huntington Beach, Calif.

"I've asked all concerned to come up with detailed recommendations and a detailed timetable by Thursday afternoon," Skylab project director William C. Schneider told news men Wednesday.

He said the only barrier to the flight is the 100-degree-plus temperature in the interior of the 85-ton laboratory, which was launched unmaneuvered from Cape Kennedy Monday into a 272-mile-high orbit.

And temperature seemed to have decreased and stabilized at between 100 and 110 degrees.

Senate Bombing Debate Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — With new Indochina negotiations opening in Paris, Senate Democratic leaders have given up hope for an early vote to cut off funds for continued bombing in Cambodia.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott declined Wednesday to waive rules that would prevent a supplemental appropriation bill from being called up in the Senate until the middle of next week.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who sought the waiver, said there probably would be discussion that would delay a vote until the Senate returns from a Memorial Day recess May 29.

The supplemental money bill to carry scores of federal agencies through the remainder of the fiscal year includes an amendment adopted by the Senate Appropriations Committee to cut off all present and previously appropriated funds for U.S. hostilities in Cambodia or Laos.

Explaining delaying tactics, Scott said the Paris negotiations between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnam's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, should proceed without a possibly damaging action by the Senate. Kissinger and Tho are seeking to improve observance of the Jan. 27 cease-fire.

The administration justifies the bombing in support of Cambodian government troops as an effort to force withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from Cambodia in compliance with the peace pact.

Mansfield said he assumes the delaying action also would prevent a Senate vote before Memorial Day on the State Department authorization bill. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has added to that bill a ban on funding any military action in Indochina without prior consent of Congress.

The House Commerce Committee's investigation subcommittee postponed Cook's appearance. Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., told newsmen the session was tentatively rescheduled for Monday.

Staggers, chairman of the full committee and the investigating panel looking into SEC actions, would not say whether Cook's planned appearance was tied to the case involving the secret $200,000 contribution by New Jersey financier Vesco to the President's re-election campaign.

Cook was the latest official of the Nixon administration to leave his job because of burgeoning disclosures about Watergate and other campaign deeds. Ten others before him, including Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and White House aides John Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman, had resigned.

Staggers said he talked by phone to Cook, who did not appear at the subcommittee room where he was to have testified

Libraries Plan Area Workshop

Membership application procedures will be outlined in the afternoon session by Mrs. Barbara Cockrell, librarian, Lovett Memorial Library of Pampa, and Mrs. Wilma Wester, librarian, Hutchinson County Library at Borger.

About 30 librarians, library board members and area council members are expected to attend from all libraries of the 25-county Texas Panhandle region.

Securities Official Gives Resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman G. Bradford Cook of the Securities and Exchange Commission has become the 11th Nixon administration official to quit in the wake of election irregularities.

Cook announced his resignation Wednesday, 15 minutes before he was due to testify secretly before a House panel amid speculation that he would be asked to discuss the Robert L. Vesco case.

The House Commerce Committee's investigation subcommittee postponed Cook's appearance. Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., told newsmen the session was tentatively rescheduled for Monday.

Staggers, chairman of the full committee and the investigating panel looking into SEC actions, would not say whether Cook's planned appearance was tied to the case involving the secret $200,000 contribution by New Jersey financier Vesco to the President's re-election campaign.

Diplomats See Curb On Power

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Many experienced diplomats at the United Nations predict the U.S. Congress will trim presidential power as a result of the Watergate scandal. They believe this will reduce American influence in the world.

Watergate is, of course, a pretext for a major campaign to curb the powers of the President, one West European said. "The people who voted for President Nixon knew at the time he was no angel, so they are not really surprised at the affair, which is just a drop in the bucket compared to the importance of the Middle East question."

He predicted a net result of the scandal would be further U.S. withdrawal from world affairs and eventual loss of both markets and influence abroad to Japan, China and European countries.

An Arab ambassador said the Watergate affair was severely damaging U.S. prestige and influence in the world. "It is a diversion from real problems such as the ailing economy and balance of payments deficits," he said.

But a Communist diplomat said while the power of the U.S. presidency will be reduced, this would not affect Nixon's major dealings with the Soviet Union and China. Those negotiations, he said, "are dictated by reality."

A Latin American ambassador said he could not see how Nixon could avoid becoming involved since his chief White House lieutenants have already had to resign. The affair, he added, "shows the strength of American institutions, which are stronger than personalities. In many other parts of the world, the institutions would fall."

TO CONTROL DRIVING

Police Operating New Radar Unit

The city of Pampa has a new radar unit to measure the speed of motorists on city streets and it is being used.

habitual speeder is to start a few minutes early to work or to that appointment and drive slower.

The unit now employed is of the latest circuitry. It provides a "lock-in" system that leaves a motorist's speed flashing on the unit so that he can see his exact speed electronically recorded.

City patrolmen have been schooled in the operation of the new radar unit so that the fairness of the new traffic control practice will be above reproach, Conner said.

We are not operating any traps. Police Chief Jim Conner said. We are using the radar unit to show local motorists exactly what their driving speed is so they can make the necessary correction in their driving habits.

Radio & TV News

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's televised Senate hearings on the Watergate scandal were in no way limited to U.S. viewers who could see them on public television or on any of the three commercial networks.

Because of the satellite, it was theoretically possible for most of the world to plug into the show and see it live.

Nobody did, but news teams from at least two major nations planned to broadcast same-day television pictures of the proceedings, which also were being covered by European and Asian radio reporters.

The drill called for videotaped highlights of today's hearing before the Senate Select Committee to be sent by satellite to England and Japan, in addition to the radio reports filed overseas.

The ABC Television network was running the television pool from which ABC, CBS, NBC and the Public Broadcasting Service took their "feeds" for broadcast on their networks.

That feed also was to be taken by the British Broadcasting Corp. and England's commercial television system for transmission overseas this afternoon, ABC officials said.

The two British television reports were to be videotaped at a local Washington television station, edited there, reporters' narration added and then broadcast to London by satellite.

Before the start of the Watergate hearings, the Senate Radio-Television Gallery said it had received 13 requests from foreign broadcast journalists—most of them European—for permission to cover the hearings.

However, it wasn't immediately known how many actually showed up and were accredited. Fifty broadcast journalists had sought accreditation for the hearings, a gallery spokesman said.

Four stationary television cameras were set up to provide the pool pictures of today's opening session, according to Peter Hively, manager of television news coverage for ABC in Washington.

The Senate's Watergate committee, in setting rules for televising or filming the hearings, made only one restriction, said an aide to Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C., committee chairman. He said the committee barred the movement of cameramen with hand-held cameras from around the witness table once a witness had been seated and begun testifying.

The hearings were to be videotaped in full for broadcast tonight on any of PBS' 234 public television stations wishing to air them. The videotaping and nightly broadcasts will continue until the hearings are over, PBS says.

Industrial Production Takes Another Big Jump In April

WASHINGTON (AP) — The country's industrial production took another big jump in April, but government economists don't see the rise as a setback in efforts to slow the booming U.S. economy.

The index of industrial production soared a full percentage point in April as output rose for nearly all segments of industry. The March increase was .6 per cent.

The balance-of-payments deficit also continued to grow, with first quarter figures released this week showing that funds flowing out of the country exceeded incoming dollars by $10.2 billion. This was one of the largest quarterly deficits in the country's history.

Administration economists warned recently that the country's economy, increasing at a rate of about 8 per cent this year, should be slowed to about 4 per cent to guard against a recession.

"April came in strong, but that doesn't make a whole quarter," a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers said about the production jump.

He said figures for the remaining eight months of the year, especially after July, should show the results of government efforts to slow the economy through restrictions on federal spending and a more moderate increase in money supply.

The industrial production index for April stood at 123 per cent of the 1967 average, and was 9 per cent above a year earlier. Federal Reserve Board statistics showed Tuesday.

The board said gains in out-

James Layne, 30, who was arrested April 28 in a Manhattan subway station, was freed this week because he had not been granted a court hearing within the required 72 hours.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Richard

Failla said he had not moved on the case for lack of witnesses, adding that as many as 30 persons may have been on the Manhattan subway platform where Layne was arrested.

Failla appealed for witnesses to come forward, particularly a woman who took the baby, 3-month-old Kim Cruz, to a Transit Authority patrolman and said she rescued her from the floor of the subway car.

Layne was arrested by a patrolman after a brief struggle and charged with kidnaping, attempted abandonment, endangering the welfare of a child, second degree assault, harassment and public intoxication.

Kim was admitted to St. Vincent's hospital in critical condition, but has been improving. Her mother is in a methadone maintenance program.

Springtime Recipes From Germany

By BOBBYE COMBS
Do you sometimes long to get away from it all? Wish you could jump on a slow boat to China or hop a jet to Rome? If you are like most of us, and cannot afford to spend either the days or the "yen", try escaping by preparing foods of different countries.

Irma Kilgore, a native of Kassel, Germany, who is moving to the United States, 18 years ago, "thinks Germany is a wonderful place to visit, but prefers living in America."

Mrs. Kilgore and her husband, George, who was raised in Tracy City, Tenn., have resided in the city for the past year, moving here from Louisiana and Bryan, Tex.

The family, including Alan Dale, 17, and Connie Michele, 15, reside at 1900 Holly La.

Soups, Bouillon Help Cut Appetite For Rich Foods

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

For the calorie-watcher it is hard to beat soups, bouillon, or consommé. They are a wonderful way to cut the appetite for calorie-rich dishes that follow the soup course. They can be low in fat or they may contain mostly the polyunsaturated type of fat. They can also be a rich source of vitamins or minerals.

Bouillon is an especially good way to avoid calories if you enjoy drinking lots of beverages. Commercial bouillon cubes often contain as few as 6 or 7 calories per cube. One cube dissolved in a cup of hot water is far better for the health than a cup of caffeine-rich coffee, and it contains far fewer calories than most soft drinks do. Actually a bouillon cube contains fewer calories than a level half teaspoon of sugar. Bouillon can be used as a base for many clear soups. Although homemade bouillon may be preferred, the commercial bouillon cubes are satisfactory for the busy cook.

There are a variety of commercial soups available. Many of the canned commercial soups qualify as low-fat foods, but except for consommé and bouillon, over 20 per cent of the calories in most canned soups comes from fat. You can significantly reduce this source of fat by making your own soup. Some of the creamed soups are actually high-fat foods. One soup rich in fat is cream of mushroom soup, with 60 per cent of its total calories from fat. Fortunately, for those who want a polyunsaturated-fat diet, over half the fat is from polyunsaturated fat and less than 8 per cent from saturated fat. The source of the fat is the corn oil used in making the emulsion.

The high percentage of fat in commercial soups can be reduced by the addition of nonfat milk to condensed soups.

A number of the dehydrated soup preparations are reasonably low in fat content (less than 20 per cent of calories from fat). Many people prefer frozen soups. Like canned soups, they can be diluted with nonfat milk to decrease the percentage of fat calories. Whenever the package suggests the option of using milk or water, remember that nonfat milk will help provide protein and such minerals as calcium while reducing the percentage of calories in the total diet from fat, though it will, of course, add to the total calories.

Chowder is an exceptionally fine dish, and by adding cooked meat or poultry of your choice to recipes you can make a well-balanced meal in one dish. All that is lacking is the green salad.

'Deep Throat' Movie Ruled Obscene Again

BOSTON (AP) — The movie "Deep Throat" has been ruled obscene in a six-page decision by U. S. District Court Judge Frank J. Murray.

"In its explicitness," Murray wrote, "the film goes beyond any film which has been examined by the courts and probably beyond anything thus far exhibited in public theaters in this country."

Murray said the movie was obscene because "taken as a whole, it appeals to a prurient interest in sex, is patently offensive in that it affronts contemporary community standards with respect to description and representation of sexual matters and is utterly without redeeming social value."

College professors had testified as witnesses both for and against the film.

Murray issued his ruling Tuesday.

The movie was seized March 13 by customs agents at Logan airport. It was enroute to Sack Theaters Corp., a Boston chain.

The movie's owner said it has played at more than 60 American theaters and grossed nearly $3 million.

Gambling Men Get Free Trips

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A trip to Las Vegas is expensive for most people, but for some it's free — free food, free lodging, free drinks and free entertainment. Even the roundtrip air fare is free.

These are the big money gamblers, those willing to risk $2,500 to $5,000 over three or four days.

Most of the resort hotels lining the glittering Las Vegas Strip compete strenuously for the heavy rollers, sending scouts across the country to find them and offer them free junkets to the gambling capital. Although there are no official figures, one junket manager estimates more than 2,000 guests arrive on junkets here every week.

In recent years the hotels have been building a "family" image for the Strip, offering all sorts of package plans for the family. A typical $34.95 two-night, three-day package for two persons includes lodging, meals, a dinner show, two cocktails and inexpensive gifts.

But the hotelmen haven't forgotten that much of their success has been built on big stakes gambling.

The hotels figure it costs them an average of $600 to give a gambler a free trip here. The hotels also figure the house claims 20 per cent of every dollar gambled. That means, on the average, that a gambler must put up at least $3,000 for a hotel to break even.

One hotel requires a minimum of $2,500 in "action" from junket players. "Then we allow for human nature," said a man who has run junkets for the hotel. "The losers will lose much more than the winners win."

In the hotel's eyes the best player, he said, is not one who makes huge bets for short periods but one who makes $10 bets and plays for eight hours at a time for the three days. "He'll wind up dropping everything."

What about big winners? Hotel men love them about as much as they do big losers.

"If a guy's willing to put up $5,000, they don't care if he's a big winner and walks away with a lot," says William Friedman. He is an instructor at the University of Nevada and teaches the nation's only course in casino management.

"The idea is they have to give them so much action."

The hotels maintain a network of junket representatives in major cities, either full-time salaried employees in branch offices or independents who are paid $25 to $50 a head, depending on the player's "quality."

Many of the hotels have a grading system to determine how much junketeers are wagering. One hotel rates players from AAA for excellent to C for average, P for poor and F for fraud.

Borger Slates Annual 'Fish Fry' For Public

BORGER — The tenth annual Borger Fish Fry, called "The World's Largest Fish Fry," will be held all day Saturday, June 2, in Borger's Aluminum Dome.

Some 5,000 people attended the area-wide event last year.

The Borger Chamber of Commerce annually sponsors the event, giving local citizens and visitors an opportunity to enjoy a good meal of fish, french fries, cole slaw, relish, tartar sauce, bread, coffee and lemonade for just $1.25 per person for an advance ticket and $1.75 at the door.

The "World's Largest Fish Fry" was started by local business men in 1964, in anticipation of completion of Lake Meredith, and has grown into an annual event so large the Chamber of Commerce was asked to take it over.

Since the original Fry was held, over 40,000 have tasted the delicious fish dinner prepared by some 125 local volunteers working each year as cooks, servers, greeters, clean-up crew, and ticket sales people.

The word "fecit" after an artist's signature on a painting is a Latin word meaning simply "he did it."

S&H Redemption Center To Continue Operations

The Sperry and Hutchinson Co. redemption center service to stamp savers will continue without interruption despite discontinuance of the stamps by the Piggly Wiggly Supermarket in Pampa, according to Johnnie Rogers, manager of the center. The S&H Green Stamp redemption center, located in the Coronado Shopping Center, has been at that location since 1969.

"We've been in business in Pampa, either as a mail-order display center, or as a redemption store, for more than 16 years and we'll be here many more," said Mrs. Rogers.

"The supermarket loss was only a portion of our Pampa business," according to Robert A. Sawhill, assistant vice president and manager of S&H's Southwestern Region. Accounts using the stamps in Pampa, he said include eight service stations, one drug store and a supply company as well as other varied accounts.

The Continuing Saga Of Boyle's Never-Empty Mail Bag

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Be glad you don't grow at the rate an opossum does. As an adult it reaches 28,000 times its birth weight. If this were true of you and you had been an eight-pound baby, you would now weigh 112 tons, too much for even a mother to love.

The health care you can get readily depends to a great extent on where you live in America. For example, there are 133 counties which have no resident physician. However, only 0.2 per cent of the U.S. population lives in these counties.

The beard of a man who lets it grow numbers about 13,000 whiskers. They grow at a density of about 390 per square inch on his cheeks, 580 per square inch on his chin.

Know your calendar: In the ancient Roman calendar, ascribed to Romulus, the year had only 10 months. The last was called December because it came from a word meaning 10. But when two more months were added, it was still placed last despite the fact its name was no longer appropriate in that position. The Saxons called the last month "winter-monath" or "heligh-monath," because it contained Christmas.

It isn't disease alone that keeps us from becoming centenarians. One of the quickest ways to extend the average life of the American male would be to eliminate the lethal toll of accidents, homicides, and suicides.

Quotable notables: "There are plenty of new sights under the sun for those who have eyes to see. Nothing is done finally and right. Nothing is done positively and completely. In science, probably 99 per cent of the knowable has yet to be discovered." — Lincoln Steffens.

A sick society: The world may not be crazy but it drives many people mad. One out of 10 Americans suffers from some form of mental illness, mild or severe. Mental disease has become a problem affecting 21 million U.S. families — one out of four.

A rut: The nation's leading chain cave operator, Lester B. Dill, operator of Meramec Caverns on Highway 66 in Missouri, claims he has been in more than 15,000 caves throughout the world — more than anyone else in history. What's your claim to fame?

Productive: Why is agriculture so important? Because if he lived only on wild plants and wild game, each human being would need eight square miles in which to forage. But thanks to proper soil cultivation, that same amount of acreage can now support on the average more than 5,000 people.

Worth remembering: "One of the reasons so many politicians are keeping their mouths shut today is that they are afraid if they open them a foot will fall out."
Folklore: Hairs from a black cat have curative powers. Cats born in the month of May make poor mousers. If a cat sits with its back to the fire, expect a storm soon. Put butter on a cat's paws to keep it from straying from a new house you move into.

It was Austin O'Malley who observed, "God shows His contempt for wealth by the kind of person He selects to receive it."

The first American opera to triumph in the United States and other countries was George Gershwin's folk opera "Porgy and Bess," which shows scenes of Negro life near Charleston, S.C.

Small Businesses Working Together

NEW YORK (AP) — Attempting to improve an environment they feel should be more friendly, many businessmen next week observe Small Business Week, appropriately enough in Washington, close they feel, to both problem and solution.

There are, by all reliable estimates, between five million and eight million small businesses in America today, employing 44 per cent of all employees and producing 37 per cent of the Gross National Product.

From their point of view, these small, independently owned businesses form the backbone of many American towns and small cities, providing jobs, taxes, and leadership. They feel also that they are the spiritual guardians of innovation and invention.

You might also say that they keep their bigger cousins supplied — General Motors, largest manufacturer of all, depends upon 26,000 suppliers, 64 per cent of which employ less than 100 people, and 89 per cent less than 500.

But small business, so obvious to the eye wherever you go, is afraid of being perpetually eclipsed, shadowed by big business, which grows bigger and perhaps less representative of "business" each year.

What's good for big business isn't always so for smaller companies. In fact, says Lewis A. Shattuck, an especially clear articulator of its views, "there is some doubt that some businessmen ever would have gone into business if the same environment today existed 10 to 20 years ago."

Shattuck is executive vice president of the Smaller Business Association of New England, for 30 years one of the most active small business groups, and formulator of a presentation to be presented to congressmen May 16.

Among in the presentation this year are the Independent Business Association of Wisconsin, and the Smaller Manufacturers Council, Pittsburgh, and other groups from Ohio and New York. More are expected to join next year.

One of the four major proposals to be presented concerns paper, the usage of which once was supposed to suggest the advanced stage of society but which now threatens to clog government, the stock market, small business and other institutions.

"We ask for recognition of the fact that the paperwork requirement thrown on small business by the federal government is in some cases the extra margin that threatens to drive a small business under," SBANE states.

"The average small-business man spends some 200 hours a year completing forms, calculating and paying his taxes, and responding to various government questionnaires. The moral: Cut the paperwork."

Cut taxes too, say the small-business men.

"If a hypothetical small business earned exactly $100,000, its present taxes would amount to $11,500," the businessmen state, arguing that such a bite causes financing problems for businesses seeking to expand.

"If the surtax exemption were to be raised to $100,000," they continue, "that same small business would then pay income taxes of only $22,000, giving it a 33.5 per cent increase in after-tax income."

The businessmen support adoption of a proposal by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., which would return the present 22 per cent normal rate on pretax income up to $100,000, rather than raising it after the first $25,000.

The two other major issues on the minds of the businessmen as they prepare their visit to Washington are procurement and representation.

PROCUREMENT — Small business feels its position is eroding, and wants assurance that it will have a fair opportunity to bid on the $55 billion annual federal procurement budget.

IN REFORM BILL Interest Ceiling Phase-Out Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration plans to recommend a five-year phase-out of ceilings that limit the interest consumers can earn on their savings accounts, it was learned Wednesday.

If current thinking is borne out, the phase-out proposal will be included in a bill calling for several reforms in the nation's financial institutions. The legislation probably will go to Congress this summer.

An end to the ceilings would be good news for consumers, who for years have earned less on their savings dollar than wealthier people with large sums of money to invest.

But elimination of the ceilings over five years represents a compromise among the administration's economic advisers.

The Treasury Department has been pushing for an almost immediate end to the ceilings, but it lost this argument when the proposal was considered by the administration's team of chief economic advisers called the "Troika," which opted for a more gradual elimination.

The current commercial-bank ceilings, which are fixed by the Federal Reserve Board, range from 4.5 per cent on passbook savings accounts to 5.75 per cent on consumer-type certificates maturing in two years or more.

Ceilings are slightly higher at savings and loan associations. Savers can earn no more than 5 per cent a year on passbook savings accounts at S&Ls and 6 per cent for deposits of two years or more.

Whether the maximum interest rates, known as Regulation Q, should be dropped has been a subject of continuing debate in the financial community.

The five-year phase-out is much more drastic than the 10 years recommended by a presidential commission headed by Reed O. Hunt, former board chairman of the Crown Zellerbach Corp. The Hunt Commission decided that the ceilings were obsolete.

They date back to 1936 but it was not until recent years that they became a matter of controversy. In 1966, the Federal Reserve raised the ceilings for banks, and immediately many banks posted higher rates to attract funds.

But a lot of money was pulled out of savings and loan associations as a result of the intense competition for the savings dollar.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Alan's problem may confront everybody, so send for the booklet below. It contains this "Specimen Letter of Application" that pulls a phenomenal response. And this efficient, businesslike approach can zoom your starting salary greatly!

CASE X-510: Alan B., aged 21, is looking for work.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "business is picking up so I felt it would be easy to find a good job.

"But I have muffed a couple of chances, so I'd like to know the best way to land a position with a future in it.

"Can you offer me some helpful advice?"

a person of my qualifications, I cite these data:

Use the capital "I" format on the page, with your opening paragraph as the top crossbar of the "I."

Then indent and make four short paragraphs, numbering them (1), (2), (3) and (4).

Let the first one be headed BUSINESS EXPERIENCE, listing a few of your major jobs, not necessarily in chronological order.

The 2nd heading should be EDUCATION & SPECIAL TRAINING.

Thereunder you can mention your years of high school or college education, plus any Business School or Technical Institute background.

As a 3rd section, called PERSONAL DATA, include your age, marital status, condition of health, height and weight, plus any life insurance carried.

For employers regard people who carry insurance as being more resourceful and reliable.

The last heading is REFERENCES, and should include 3 or 4 with "handles" on their names, such as "Sales Manager" or "Judge" or "Reverend" or "Doctor" or "Professor," etc.

Then conclude with a terse final paragraph that makes the bottom crossbar of your "I" letter, and which says:

"If you have a position in your organization for which the above qualifications would seem to fit me, then I should appreciate an early reply."

For further data, send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It contains this "Specimen Letter"

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melton, Indiana 47121. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents in covering and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

There's a growing trend in the establishment of private galleries for the exhibition and sale of photographs. The innovation, started in 1969 by Lee Witkin in New York City and now a financial success, is making its way across the country, usually in cities. I learned recently, however, that the idea has taken another step into the suburbs.

I visited Vision Gallery in Flushing, N.Y., not far from my home, to see the opening exhibition of color photographs by Albert and Eileen Widder, a remarkable husband-and-wife team of pictorialists who live in nearby Forest Hills. The gallery was conceived, decorated and is managed by Sonia W. Stern, a former painter who married a photographer. After getting involved and active in his photo business, she found it an easy transition into the photo gallery field thanks to her art orientation.

She had made many visits to the new photo galleries which had sprung up in Manhattan and noted their overwhelming preference for exhibitions of black-and-white photographs of an abstract or elicit art nature. They were also expensive by normal standards. She decided there was a place for a suburban gallery with appeal to people of moderate means and an appreciation for good photographs that would add color and beauty to their homes.

A location for the gallery was no problem. Her husband's photo studio occupied the downstairs portion of their home, an old private house said to be a replica of a Belmont mansion. They moved their living quarters to a new quieter house and she converted the upstairs floor into the gallery. She covered one bay window with paneling to provide more wall space and had a ceiling panel built to hold recessed reflector lights for picture viewing. Painted and polished in simple, pleasant decor, it makes an attractive gallery.

The problem of an eye-catching opening exhibition was also successfully solved with the debut of a "His and Hers" display of the Widders who are top rank pictorialists but with individual styles and accomplishments.

Both Al and Eileen can add after their names "FPSA, FRPS, M. Photog. Cr." When decided, they mean: "Fellow Photographic Society of America, Fellow Royal Photographic Society, Master of Photography, Craftsman."

Each has also attained "Five Star" rating—the highest possible—by PSA acceptances in International Salons (Eileen was the first person in the world to get that rating); each has won top awards in worldwide salon competitions and each has judged international, regional and local salon shows.

BUBBLY FLOWERS... an underwater trick in photography. A simple arrangement of flowers, kept under water for about six hours, will be covered with air bubbles. It makes an unusual close-up color picture. This one by Al Widder, top ranking pictorialist, is part of an exhibition at the Vision Gallery, a new private gallery in Flushing, N.Y.

Photographs by both Widders are represented in numerous private collections but Al's photos have also been acquired by New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Seattle Museum in Seattle, Wash., and the Butler Museum in Youngstown, Ohio.

The Widders specialize in color which they process and print at home in their apartment. After many years, however, straight color printing became routine so they took on the challenge of experimental color processes, and offbeat approaches through solarizations, derivations and color key techniques. After winning highest honors in PSA with their unusual color prints, they were called on for lectures which, on occasions, took them to Hong Kong and Taipei where they were made honorary members of the Chinese Photographic Society. They also taught and wrote articles on the creative aspects of color photography.

Al and Eileen keep careful records of each step of their color printing so the results can be duplicated—or changed if they wish. The data notes formulas and emulsions, temperature and time, enlarger height, voltage, etc. The records are kept in 'his-and-hers' looseleaf albums along with negatives and contact prints for easy reference to each one's work.

About 140 color photographs by the Widders are at the Vision Gallery and most of them are soft, delicate works of art. They range from mood scenes taken on their extensive travels to high key still lifes of blossoms that look like Japanese prints with strong emphasis on design. They will remain at the gallery through August.

For hobbyists working in color, Al explained an easy method for making an offbeat flower picture. A simple flower arrangement is lowered into a fish tank. After six hours under water, the blossoms and stems are covered with air bubbles that produce an unusual visual effect. It is photographed at close-up range. For maximum impact, the background must not have any distracting details to compete with the bubbly flowers.

I think communities are enriched by photographic enthusiasm which brings us hobbyists like Al and Eileen Widder and private galleries such as Sonia W. Stern's in which their beautiful photos can be viewed. It's a combination that can be duplicated in other areas of the country, benefiting local photographers seeking recognition and the people in the community.
