Students in China boycotting universities in protest strike

By JOHN POMFRET Associated Press Writer

BEIJING (AP) — Tens of thousands of students at Beijing's universities went on strike today, calling for democracy, human rights and a free press in the largest student boycott in Communist China's history

At Beijing University, the country's most prestigious, students for the first time produced an independent newspaper.

The class boycott today brought into a new phase pro-democracy protests that were sparked by the April 15 death of ousted Communist Party chief Hu Yaobang, a popular reformer.

Posters calling on students to strike, satirical cartoons of government leaders, and essays decrying official corruption covered the walls of many universities throughout Beijing.

Student leaders said they planned to strike until the government agrees to opens talks and that they believed students in other cities were ready to join the boycott

"Premier Li Peng, step down now," read one poster at Beijing Normal University. "Deng Xiaoping, your time has come," read another in a reference to widespread student belief that the 84vear-old senior leader is too old to run the country.

On Friday and Saturday, about 150,000 students and supporters spent the night at Tiananmen Square, defying a government order to clear the vast expanse. The demonstration — one of the biggest since the 1949 Communist victory — was the students' clearest challenge yet to the ruling mourn Hu shouted "Down with dictatorship" as senior officials arrived for an official memorial service at the adjacent Great Hall of the People.

Protests also occurred in other cities. In Xian and Changsha, bands of young toughs entered student ranks, burning cars and buildings, looting stores and beating policemen. Foreign sources in Changsha said the looting continued there for a second night Sunday, but on a smaller scale.

Smaller protests in Shanghai, Chengdu, Canton and Tianiin were peaceful.

At Beijing University today, about 5,000 students, one-third of the student body, flocked to the athletic field for a meeting of the newly formed student union.

'We come here together for a common purpose: democracy and science," a student leader told the crowd. "Seventy years after our first student movement, China is still poor and behind the rest of

About 1,500 students gathered at Qinghua University, where graduate students draped prodemocracy posters from every balcony and window. About 1,000 students from the Beijing Foreign Languages College left their campus and marched from school to school to encourage colleagues.

One strike leader at Beijing University said all 15,000 students were on strike. Leaders at several other schools, with a combined enrollment of 20.000. said their classmates also were boycotting

One poster at Beijing University pleaded with teachers to "please understand and support our strike. I love my teachers but I love the truth more." Another addressed China's parliament, appealing for government tolerance.

Party leader says gas used against protesters

By ANN IMSE Associated Press Writer

TBILISI, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The Communist Party chief of the Soviet republic of Georgia acknowledged today that some victims of a clash between protesters and soldiers died of gas

In Moscow, troops on Sunday dragged away dozens of demonstrators protesting the violent crackdown on dissent in Georgia two weeks ago. The official Tass news agency said 47 demonstrators were arrested.

Givi Gumbaridze, chief of the Georgian Communist Party, acknowledged widespread reports today that soldiers used a harmful gas to crush pro-independence demonstrations in Tbilisi.

'The fact that gases were used is the truth. Yes, some people died from poisoning," he told reporters taken to the southern republic by the Soviet Foreign Ministry.

His remark was the first by a top official acknowledging that some protesters were killed by gas used April 9 to help break up a crowd of thousands of demonstrators in Tbilisi, the Georgian capital.

At least 19 people were killed as soldiers using clubs, shovels and gas dispersed the demonstrators, and official accounts said one man was shot later. Georgian activists previously had charged that gas killed some protesters. The Defense Ministry newspaper Krasnaya Zvezda on Saturday identified a chemical used against the protesters as an incapacitating agent dubbed "cheremukha. Its main ingredient is chlor-oacetophenone, the newspaper said. A Western military attache in Moscow said the substance was similar to but stronger than tear gas.

Gumbaridze said officials were trying to determine who ordered the use of the chemical. He did not say how many people died from its effects.

A demonstrator waves czarist Russian flag at Sunday protest against Georgia crackdown.

Members of a citizens' commission formed by the government to investigate the attack said a second gas was used as well. Officials have not identified

Symptoms of poisoning by the second gas include vomiting, memory loss, headache and Nino said nausea. Djavakhisheili, a morphologist and member of the 40-member commission. He said the symptoms are permanent.

Malkahz Zaalisheili, a molecular biologist and member of the commission, said light concentrations of the first chemical substance act like tear gas, but "in bigger concentrations it becomes very poisonous.

"Another substance was used that paralyzes central nervous systems. The structure of the second gas they refuse to tell us.'

The citizens commission said 700 people were injured in the demonstrations.

Gumbaridze, former KGB head for the republic, replaced Dzhumber Patiashvili as Georgian party chief. Patiashvili resigned after accepting responsibility for the violence.

The 44-year-old Gumbaridze said the decision to send soldiers to break up the demonstration was made by a few Georgian leaders and that he did not know about it until moments before it occurred

Refugees to get free legal aid

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Bar ported en masse from the Rio of Texas will begin providing free legal help next month to many of the 3,300 Central Americans detained in camps and jails along the Texas-Mexico border.

A free legal clinic in South Texas is expected to offer hundreds of detainees a chance to have their political asylum cases prepared by lawyers before being presented to the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, a newspaper reported Sunday.

"I think the immigration service is railroading asylum hearings in order to deport the applicants quickly," immigration attorney Paul Parsons told the Austin American-Statesman.

"It's outrageous to expect persons fleeing from death squads and civil war to arrive in the United States with detailed, written documentation of persecutions,'

Parsons said. Most of the 1,549 refugees de-

Grande Valley by the Immigration and Naturalization Service since Feb. 21 have gone without any type of help from lawyers.

Since then, the INS began detaining all Central Americans applying for political asylum, instead of allowing them to travel to their U.S. destinations to pursue their claims.

Only Nicaraguans have escaped the new policy. As of Sunday, the INS had not deported a single Nicaraguan of the 1,235 in custody in South Texas.

The great majority of those deported — from El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras were not represented by attorneys during INS proceedings against them.

Houston attorney Charles Foster, who led an ABA fact-finding delegation to the Rio Grande Valley on March 30, says the need for attorneys is critical. Foster said there is one free clinic in the Valley.

The list of free legal services posted by the INS in detention centers is "an illusion" because only one of the nine offices listed can actually provide a lawyer, Foster said.

Five of the nine listings are for Valley offices of Texas Rural Legal Services, which are federally funded and prohibited from representing illegal aliens.

Two other offices on the list deal primarily with legalization cases brought under the 1986 immigration law, and the eighth number on the list is for the lawyer referral service of the Texas State Bar.

Foster notes that while the national denial rate for political asylum requests is 90 percent, in cities such as San Francisco, where there is a strong free legal project, nearly 60 percent of the asylum cases are approved.

Bush says he's off to a good start for his first 100 days

By MERRILL HARTSON Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - President Bush, nearing the 100-day milestone of his administration, said today he was off to a "good start" — citing bipartisan agreements on the budget and Contra aid — but that "difficult decisions lie ahead."

Bush said his administration is now "mapping strategies for a period of remarkable change in international affairs," and he referred to upcoming high-level meetings with Moscow. A foreign policy review, which some had hoped would be completed far earlier, is now due in late May, he

Bush issued the report on his first three months in office during an address to publishers gathered/ for the annual luncheon of The Associated Press. He flew here after attending a memorial service/in Norfolk, Va., for the 47 sailors killed in the gun turret explosion on the battleship Iowa last Wednesday. (See related story, Page 3.)

Beginning a four-day trip, Bush also planned stops today in Bismarck, N.D., and San Jose, Calif. The 100-day mark of his administration falls on Saturday and Bush was expected to beat the drum for his presidency in a succession of out-of-Washington engagements this week.

"In three short months, we've made a good start coming to grips with issues demanding urgent attention and decisive action," Bush told the publishers.

He took credit for drafting a plan to rescue the savings and loan industry, a proposal to tighten ethical standards in government and with making the District of Columbia a "test case for a full range of innovative anti-drug measures."

In unusual back-to-back appearances here, Bush was to speak shortly after Vice President Dan Quayle addresses the AP annual meeting. The publishers ere gathered for the American Newspaper

Publishers Association convention.

"We used to hear a lot about the presidency being too big for one man," Bush said in prepared remarks. "That talk stopped with Ronald

The president noted that in his first three months, he forged a budget plan with Congress designed to reduce the deficit. "Difficult decisions lie ahead, but an important agreement has been achieved," he said.

Moreover, he noted the accord with Capitol Hill to continue the flow of humanitarian aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua. "Of course, dealing with problems that demand immediate attention is only part of the picture," Bush said. "We need to look to the long-term as well --- to focus now on the kind of future we want to see for ourselves and our nation." He said his administration was "mapping strategies for a period of remarkable change in international affairs, change more wide-ranging and rapid than at any time in the post-war period. "While we will lead, we also intend to consult and listen, to our friends abroad and to the Congress." He noted that Secretary of State James A. Baker III will meet next month with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

"We've made a good start these first three months and there's more to come," Bush said. "The completion of our defense and foreign policy reviews in late May, draft legislation for a new Clean Air Act, a new strategy to curb the increased use of lethal weapons by drug dealers and other criminals and new initiatives to combat the problem of homelessness in America — all are on the near horizon ' Pronouncing himself pleased with the first three months, Bush said, "there's a long road ahead of us. I'm optimistic that our reforms will produce lasting results, that the long-range planning we do today will pay off in the future.

Ignorance of AIDS stalls funding bills, task force chairwoman says

DALLAS (AP) — Legislators' ignorance about the deadly disease AIDS has stalled the passage of any bill to fund research or treatment of the disease, the chairwoman of a state task force said.

"I thought we'd done such a good job educating people on AIDS," said the Rev. Chris Steel, an Episcopalian priest who chaired the Legislative Task Force on AIDS. "Now I find out that some legislators don't know that we issued a report on AIDS. Some don't even know that we had a task force.

With the 1989 legislative session nearly twothirds over, not a single AIDS bill has won approval from the House or Senate. The lagging progress has placed a damper on the expectations of AIDS service groups that have worked for more than a year to win a broader state response.

Although Texas ranks fifth in the number of reported cases, it ranks near the bottom in per capita spending for the fatal disease, according to The Dallas Morning News. Last session, the Legislature appropriated $3.4 million for acquired immune deficiency syndrome programs. Steel, who spent more than a year studying the statewide AIDS epidemic and tracking its widereaching effects, said too many state legislators continue to "blame the victims." At a recent Senate subcommittee hearing on a bill that would require mandatory AIDS testing of prostitutes, she said subcommittee members passed around photographs showing the physical deterioration of a Las Vegas, Nev., woman accused of spreading AIDS through the community

"There was a lot of smirking and smiling. It was anything but compassionate or cognizant of the overall tragedy of her situation." Steel said. "I will always remember it as a statement of where we are with too many of our public leaders. It was

But the dozens of AIDS bills being reviewed by legislative committees and subcommittees reflect a heightened awareness of the issues growing out of the epidemic. Those issues include the financial plight of many AIDS sufferers, who become too ill to continue working and lose insurance coverage for expensive drugs and hospitalization.

Bills in the House and Senate call for establishing a special fund to pay for AIDS-related drugs for those patients who meet certain income guidelines. Another bill would allow the state Department of Health to pay insurance premiums up to $100 per month — for AIDS patients who can no longer afford the payments but are not covered by Medicaid.

But the first AIDS bill to reach the House floor was strongly opposed during debate last week by groups representing AIDS patients. The bill, which won tentative approval Thursday, would allow hospitals to test patients for the AIDS virus without receiving specific permission.

William Waybourn, president of the Dallas Gay Alliance, told The Morning News that last week's House debate of the testing bill demonstrated the "insensitivity" of legislators to the real issues confronting AIDS patients in Texas.

"The signal they are sending is one of incredible ignorance," Waybourn said. "The real issues are education and the lack of services to deal with this epidemic. But will they do anything about it? I have my doubts.'

The full-day recognition on his birthday was something Orbison had always hoped would happen while he was still making music, said Orbison's widow, Barbara, who attended the activities. Orbison died Dec. 6, 1988 of a massive heart attack.

"Had it been sooner, it would have given us a reason to come back to visit with his old friends in Vernon, but Roy always knew that the people in Vernon loved him," Mrs. Orbison said.

About 5,000 fans of the man whose voice spanned three octaves and who made famous "Only the Lonely," "Oh, Pretty Woman," "Crying" and "In Dreams" jammed the the Santa Rosa rodeo grounds for the commemoration.

A local band started the activities, playing classics from the 50s and 60s including all of Orbison's hits. During breaks, spectators sang along to tapes of Orbison's classics and also sang Happy Birthday

Before he died, Orbison returned to the charts doing an album with the Traveling Wilburys. Orbison also did a solo album, currently in the Top 10 on the pop album chart.

Mrs. Orbison, a resident of Malibu, Calif., was presented with the proclamation passed by the state Legislature in January that declared Sunday Roy Orbison Day in Texas.

"I wanted to spend his first birthday by myself with my kids, But I'm so glad I did come," Mrs. Orbison said. "It's wonderful to see so many of you and to hear so many stories about him. It's wonderful that you took the time out to remember Roy. He was a special guy, a hell of a singer and my favorite Texan."

Wright probe focuses on Texas oil deal

By LARRY MARGASAK Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The probe by the House ethics committee into Speaker Jim Wright moves to his home turf today, where panel members were scheduled to interview the Texas businessman involved in an oil well investment that netted large profits for the blind trust held by the Democratic lawmaker.

Two committee members and panel investigators reportedly will spend three days in Texas, beginning today in San Antonio, to interview financier Morris Jaffe: his business associate and son, M.D. (Doug) Jaffe Jr.; and two others involved in the oil well deal.

Meanwhile, Wright's lawyer in Washington, William C. Oldaker, was expected to continue negotiations with the ethics committee's special outside counsel, Richard J. Phelan, over a timetable for the speaker's personal appearance before the panel.

The ethics panel charged Wright with 69 instances of violating House rules in his dealings with Fort Worth developer George Mallick and evading

Wright denies any wrongdoing and says he will fight the allegations.

The first phase of its investigation finished, the panel now turns to considering whether there is clear and convincing proof of violations and, if so, deciding whether to recommend disciplinary action to the House.

A spokesman for Wright, Mark Johnson, said a resolution of the Washington negotiations isn't expected until late in the week.

The Wright case continues to dominate interest on Capitol Hill, particularly during a week with little else on the agenda.

The Senate remains out of session all week on an extended Passover break and the House does not return until Wednesday, when action is scheduled on a supplemental appropriation bill for the current fiscal year and the House banking panel continues work on its version of a measure to shore up the S&L industry.

The ethics committee said last Monday, in its report on Wright, that it was still investigating how a Wright-Mallick company bought a 4 percent interest in an oil and gas well for $99,000 — putting up only $9,120 in cash — and needed to determine whether Wright had knowledge of the deal, which involved the Jaffes, a West German-owned firm, and the blind trust established for Wright in 1987.

The Wright spokesman, Johnson, has repeatedly said the speaker was unaware of the transaction.

A key issue in the overall Wright case is whether he accepted gifts from people with a direct interest in legislation before Congress. House rules prevent members from accepting gifts totaling more than $100 in a calendar year in such situations.

One of the many companies controlled by Jaffe has sought to share in an Air Force program, under study by Congress, for developing the nation's next jet pilot training aircraft, according to numerous news accounts last week

Jim Dement, a San Antonio real estate developer and a friend of Morris Jaffe, said Jaffe is eager to explain the oil deal at a news conference - but only after he has been interviewed by ethics committee questioners.

"He (Morris Jaffe) didn't know Wright had an interest in the deal until afterwards," Dement said.

The Jaffes' hometown newspaper, the San Antonio Light, said the two businessmen are longtime Democratic Party contributors, and that Wright has visited them often.

According to the ethics committee report, the deal involving the North Sabine Lake Prospect, in Orange County, Texas, unfolded this way:

Mallightco, a company owned by Wright, his business partner Mallick and their wives acquired a 4 percent interest in the well from Jaffe Energy Corp. on May 10, 1988 for $9,120 cash. The deal was arranged by Michael Mallick, George's son.

The same day, Mallick cut a deal with Union Rheinische Petroleum Inc., a subsidiary of a West German firm, which advanced Mallightco $440,000. Of that figure, $90,000 was to pay Mallick's share of the drilling

The deal was structured so that Mallightco received $350,000 in cásh, while owing Jaffe no money for drilling expenses.

On June 9, 1988, Mallightco bought Wright's shares of Mallightco - held by his blind trust for the same amount made in the oil deal: $350,000.

The transaction raised questions because of previous problems with the well itself, according to the committee report. While tests on April 23, 1988,

Since Vol. I of handy travel tips for summer vacations went over so well — let's see those howdy fingers flying proudly this summer — here is Vol. II, which, unfortunately, deals with a larger piece of the anatomy

For we of the chubby set, summer vacations present particular problems. While Ken and Barbie and their kids Muffy, Scooter and Princess can go just about anywhere and look darn good doing it, we are not so fortunate.

When I was younger I had the nicest schoolgirl figure. Now I look more like seven or eight schoolgirls standing real close together. Don't laugh too loud, though: I've heard what your wife is calling you these days — "my Love Zeppelin."

During the winter months we, the brotherhood of Shamu, can hide behind loose fitting sweatshirts and bulky sweaters. In the summer the rules all change. Everybody dresses in cotton balls and pretends like they have clothes on. There's no place to hide the pounds.

That leads to this segment of travel tips. The motto of round mounds of pounds everywhere should be THINK COLD.

If you go to Cancun, Fort Lauderdale or San Diego on vacation, 20,000 people will feel pity for you, the guy with six extra chins and four extra stomachs.

On the other hand, the smart, if hefty vacationer will plan a nice two-week respite to some location like Antarctica or Nome. You'll be the envy of the

My wife is no help in the area of summer outings and weight. She keeps dragging me to places where it is fashionable to take off as many clothes as Christian folk take off outside the bedroom and lie sweating in plastic chairs while contracting skin cancer under a 108 degree sun.

Wright's comedy act not so funny

The investigation into House Speaker Jim Wright is turning into a comedy act. The latest revelation is that in 1984 Wright sold 504 copies of his book, Reflections of a Public Man, to Southwest Texas University. The $3,000 paid for the books was in lieu of a $3,000 speaking fee that would have violated House rules. The money paid was also $1,000 more than the university's rules permit per speech.

Wright personally got about $1,600 in profits from the book sales. And his speech was part of Southwest Texas's Lyndon B. Johnson lecture series, appropriately named after the former president, another greasy Lone Star State politician.

But there's more funny stuff. George A. Mallick Jr. charged Wright's accusers and investigators with "nouveau McCarthyism." But Mallick is Wright's major business crony; their partnership is being investigated by the House ethics committee.

Another Wright crony, Carlos Moore, said of the ethics committee's independent counsel, Richard J. Phelan: "McCarthy looks like a damn liberal compared to this guy." But Moore was the publisher of Wright's book, on which Wright was given 55 percent royalties, compared to industry highs of 15 percent. So far Moore's firm has paid Wright $55,000 in royalties. It has also been revealed that Wright hired Moore's publishing firm to publish some House docu-

The McCarthy rap is particularly ironic. In the early 1950s, Joseph McCarthy, a powerful senator, misused his authority in investigations into communist infiltration of the U.S. government. He was later censured by the Senate for his misdeeds. In other words, the real parellel is not that Wright is a victim of "McCarthyism," but that, like McCarthy, he has abused his immense powers, and that this abuse is being investigated by the fellow members of his own house of Congress.

Despite the humor of all this, we should realize that Wright is two heartbeats away from the presidency. Should something happen in a short time span to both President Bush and Vice President Quayle, Wright would be elevated to the full powers of the White House. For that reason he should come clean about all his involvements with Texas cronies. And if all the allegations against him prove true, he should step down as speaker. The last thing in we need in a position so close to the Oval Office is someone of dubious moral structure.

It's wiser to simply sit there

WASHINGTON — Lunacy breeds lunacy. Emotion overwhelms reason. On Jap. 17, Patrick James Purdy murdered five children in a schoolyard in Stockton, Calif. It was a terrible crime, but for the past three months presumably intelligent persons have ceased to blame Purdy. They are blaming the kind of rifle he used instead. It is like blaming the pot for burn-

The current campaign to ban "assault weapons" makes no sense. It is a manifestation of the panicky demand that often is made upon lawmakers: "Don't just sit there! Do someand one of those times is at hand.

The U.S. Senate is praying over a bill, S.386, sponsored by Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio. It is a bill "to control the sale and use of assault weapons." Companion legislation is pending in

At least 13 state legislatures are actively considering bills to the same end. The sponsors may be credited with possessing good intentions, but they may equally be criticized for fostering bad

On superficial inspection, the Metzenbaum bill appears to take a reasonable approach. It would ban the sale or possession of certain named semiautomatic firearms, such as the Kalashnikov and the Uzi. One may fairly inquire: Who needs these for hunting? The deer that is struck by a 20-round burst would hit the ground as venison stew.

loses any semblance of merit. It is so loosely drafted that it could affect millions of semiautomatic firearms that are owned and used by lawabiding citizens throughout the nation. The bill may lie in the Second Amendment to the Con-

would place dangerous and unprecedented powthing!" At times it is wiser simply to sit there, er in the hands of the secretary of the treasury. Some of its provisions would require the confiscation of private property without just compensation. None of its provisions would have any significant impact upon drug traffickers or crazies. Perhaps careful draftsmen - draftsmen who know at least something about firearms — could put together a useful bill, but S.836 isn't it.

Sponsors of the pending bills run into trouble at the threshold: Except what is an "assault weapon"? Metzenbaum's definition is the kind of definition beloved by Humpty-Dumpty. An assault weapon is any weapon the secretary of the treasury says is an assault weapon.

This won't do. Millions of law-abiding sportsmen own and use semiautomatic rifles and shotguns that are "substantilly identical" to the weapons specifically banned by the Metzenbaum bill. Functionally there is no difference On closer examination, the Metzenbaum bill between the "Street Sweeper," which S.386 would outlaw, and the Remington 1100, which 3 million hunters regularly take to the field.

An additional objection to the pending bills stitution. "A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

I am not certain what the amendment means, and neither is the U.S. Supreme Court, but obviously it means something. If it means that a right to own a military-type weapon may not be infringed, the sponsors have a problem. "Assault weapons" are precisely the weapons a well-regulated militia would employ.

The amendment does not establish an absolute right to keep and bear arms, any more than the First Amendment secures an absolute right to engage in free speech. Constitutionally speaking, a working machine gun and child pornography are in the same class: Neither is protected. All the same, it would stagger the Founding Fathers to learn that in a free society, no person has a right to own an ordinary repeating shotgun.

The frenzy to pass a law — any law! — may be explained in several ways. Part of the explanation lies in fear, one of the most basic of all emotions. In our great urban centers people are scared witless by gunslingers on the streets.

Part lies in mounting hostility toward the National Rifle Association. Its current public relations problems are exceeded only by those of Exxon. When the NRA characterizes proponents of gun control as "enemies" who are 'crafty' and "hypocritical," the NRA loses more than it gains. Such rhetoric is a poor substitute for reason.

Banning weapons like the weapon used by Purdy will accomplish little. The legislative goal should be to prevent loonies like Purdy from getting such weapons in the first place.

Minutes later daughters Samantha and Jessica were bouncing a beach ball when mother looked out the window and Jessica, age 2, was nowhere in sight.

At the same time and two houses away, neighbor Ray Blankenship was sipping breakfast juice, gazing out the window - when suddenly he saw a baby girl being swept along in the flooded drainage ditch.

Ray Blankenship was aware that the ditch just a few yards downstream — washed into the North Main culvert. It was 30 feet long and flooded to the top.

Ray Blankenship dashed out the door, raced parallel to the ditch, trying to get ahead of the

Having second thoughts on animal

By CHUCK STONE

After my recent column on animal rights, I recalled Charles Dickens' famed opening lines:

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times ... it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity. It was my incredulity and the intensity and outpouring of reader response that stunned me. Yet, there was an overarching beauty to the outburst, even if it was aimed at me. The people I heard from love animals so deeply that they are determined to prevent exploitative cruelty in the name of research or fashion. These ultimate humanitarians link their own breath of life with that of all living creatures and consider cruelty to an animal every bit as heinous as cruelty to a human bein It is a position that I still cannot accept. But my consciousness has been raised (has it ever!), my conscience tested and my education broadened So this is a column of contrition.

At the recent Women's Equality/Women's Lives march in Washington, D.C., which I covered as a journalist, but marched in as a feminist, I saw the Pulitzer Prize-winning black writer Alice Walker, an old friend who has written in support of of animal rights.

I told her I owed her an apology. I had suggested in my original column that blacks avoid the animal rights movement. Alice listened quietly, said nothing, but reached up, hugged me and moved on.

In that same column, I wrongfully questioned the commitment of Dr. George P. Cave, president of Trans-Species Unlimited and suggested that it was an elitist movement.

Cave, a gentle, soft-spoken scholar (Ph.D. in philosophy), goes beyond beng a mere vegetarian. He is a vegan, a practitioner of a lifestyle that is closest to Albert Schweitzer's ideology of "reverence for life." Vegans do not wear or eat anything that comes from an animal. That includes leather and dairy products. They have a respect for all living animals that humbles you, even if you disagree with it. Cave and I had a thoughtful telephone conversation. Speciesism, he said, inflicts needless and wanton pain on animals in the same way that racism and sexism arbitrarily abuse blacks and women. He quoted the great utilitarian philosopher, Jeremy Bentham: "Pain is pain no matter who suffers it."

I can't argue with that. But free animals can survive, and free humans are still homeless and starving. It is not coincidental that a black columnist, Bill Raspberry of The Washington Post, shared my objections to the animal rights movement in a 1981 column, "Saving Monkeys, Ignoring

But Cave insists that "those who liberate themselves from arbitrary prejudice against members of their own species are also more likely to evolve ethically toward the realization that other creatures who share this planet with us also have a right to live out their lives free from oppression and exploitation, and that we are not entitled to inflict pain, suffering and death upon them unnecessarily particularly for something as selfish and frivolous as fur coats

Agreed. But the ultimate logic of this position, of course, raises questions about animals as pets (they are, in a sense, slaves), animals in the zoo and animals who provide life-giving vitamins. In the ghetto, milk is more easily available than vitamins.

"Consistency," insists Cave, "requires advocating complete abstention from animal products."

I'm not that strong. And I continue to reject the moral equating of the constitutional rights of human beings with the ethical rights of animals. Still, I urge you to write to Dr. Cave for more information. His address is: Dr. George Cave, president, Trans-Species Unlimited, P.O. Box 1553; Williamsport, PA 17703-1553.

Local writers and artists may compete for awards

Several opportunities exist for area writers and artists to submit their works in various contests for cash prizes and in some cases for publication.

Amarillo Tri-State Fair

The Amarillo Tri-State Fair Literacy Contests were organized to promote the writers of the Panhandle area, to give them an opportunity to participate in an area-sponsored contest. Beginning and experienced writers are encouraged to enter their work to be recognized as area writers. If writers send for rules now, there will be several months to work their manuscripts into shape for the competition.

New contest rules for the Tri-State Fair Contests are now available. Five categories will be featured in Prose, as well as Poetry.

The Young Writers Contests are now split into two age levels: younger writers, eight thru 12 and 13 thru 18. Prose and poetry divisions have three categories each. Entry fees are $3 for prose and $2 for poetry.

Special awards of $25 will be presented by Amarillo groups for Best of Show winners, chosen from all first place entries. The adult poetry award will be given by the Hi-Plains Poetry Chapter of the Poetry Society of Texas; Panhandle Professional Writers will donate the prize for prose. For the young writers, Friends of the Library will present the Best of Show Awards in prose for both age groups; Tri-State Fair will provide the poetry awards. Regular Tri-State Fair prizes are a rosette and $5 for first place, a ribbon and $3 for second, $2 and a ribbon for third. Certificates will be presented for all honorable mention winners. Entry fees provide the regular prizes, certificates and judges honorariums.

For a copy of the contest rules, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Marianne McNeil, 7003 Amarillo Blvd. East, Amarillo, TX 79107, or to Helen Luecke, 2921 S. Dallas Street, Amarillo, TX 79103. If the young writers rules are wanted, be sure to ask

Deadline for all entries is an August 1st postmark. Mail entries to Marianne McNeil, Tri-State Fair Literary Superintendent, P.O. Box 31087, Amarillo, TX 79120-1087. Enclose a SASE for winners' lists. Winning entries and area writers work will be displayed at the literary booth during Tri State Fair week, September 18-23 and can be picked up on Sunday, the 24th, between 1 and 4 p.m.

NEW YORK — The Washington Redskins made the predictable trade for the predictable players; the Cleveland Browns tried to clone tight end Ozzie Newsome and the first eight picks were just about what everyone thought they'd be.

Except for Louis Oliver, Andre Rison, Cleveland Gary, Tracy Rocker and Rodney Peete, highly rated players who were not quite so highly rated when the day ended, Sunday's five rounds of the NFL draft were highly predict-

"Right on time."

The first pick was, of course, Troy Aikman, the UCLA quarterback who last week signed an $11.2 million, six-year deal with Dallas.

Then came Tony Mandarich, the Michigan State offensive tackle who went to Green Bay and Heisman Trophy winner Barry Sanders, the running back who was taken by the Detroit Lions. Then came linebacker Derrick Thomas of Alabama, who went to Kansas City; cornerback Deion Sanders of Florida State to Atlanta; Broderick Thomas;

Georgia to Kansas City and defensive end Burt Grossman of Pitt to San Diego.

But just as predictable were the trades that brought Washington two heavy-duty running backs with some wear and tear on them, Gerald Riggs from Atlanta and Earnest Byner from Cleveland, and the manuevering that got them yet another young quarterback, Jeff Graham of Long Beach State — after he had been taken on the fourth round by Green Bay.

Byner came for another running back, Mike Oliphant, who was Washington's second pick last season. But Riggs came the more traditional way — for draft picks, including Washington's No. 1 next year, the 17th firstrounder they'll be without in 20

Graham, another developmental quarterback to go with Mark Rypien and Stan Humphries, came for fifth- and eighth-round picks and wide receiver Erik Affholter, who had been taken minutes earlier on the fourth running back Tim Worley of We'd prefer to do it with draft choices.'

But other than Cleveland. which gave its 1990 top pick to Green Bay so it could take Newsome-like oversized wide receiver Lawyer Tillman of Auburn, the other teams preferred to do it with draft choices, notably large draft choices.

For example, 19 of the 72 players taken in the first three rounds were offensive linemen, six on the first round, starting with Mandarich, the 6-foot-6, 315pound tackle considered by far the best pure player in the draft.

The New York Giants, heeding general manager George Young's adage "when you get big bodies who can play, grab them." used their first two picks on Big Ten offensive linemen for the second straight year. Their firstround choice was center-guard Brian Williams of Minnesota; their second, on the third round, guard Bob Kretch of Iowa.

Seattle did likewise — choosing offensive tackle Andy Heck of Notre Dame on the first round and center Joe Tofflemyer of Arizona on the second.

Cleveland engaged in its own brand of saturation, taking speed to replace the ponderous backfield of Kevin Mack and Byner.

First, the Browns traded up from 20th to 13th in the first round and snared Eric Metcalf, the speedy Texas running back who can also be used at wide receiver. Then they gave next year's firstrounder, plus running back Herman Fontenot, to Green Bay to move up in the second-round to take Tillman, a 6-4, 225-pounder whom the Browns see as a tight end in the mold of Newsome, himself a wide receiver at Alabama.

Cleveland also admitted a major mistake when it traded linebacker Mike Junkin, the fifth choice overall in the 1987 draft to Kansas City for a fifth-round pick. The Chiefs are coached by Marty Schottenheimer, who was the Browns' coach when Junkin was drafted.

Seven quarterbacks were chosen in Sunday's five rounds, two by Green Bay. One was Graham, whom they traded to the Redskins, the other, third-round choice Anthony Dilweg of Duke.

The others were Aikman, Mike Elkins of Wake Forest by Kansas City and Billy Joe Tolliver of Texas Tech by San Diego on the second; Erik Wilhelm of Oregon State by Cincinnati on the third and Jeff Carlson of Weber State on the fourth. The Chargers gave up three draft picks to the Giants to move up to get Tolliver.

But Peete, the Heisman Trophy runner-up from Southern Cal and the second-rated quarterback by most of the scouting services, wasn't drafted, not even by Green Bay, where his father Willie is an assistant coach.

While everyone else is stunned, Ryan takes his arm for granted.

On Sunday, he threw 89 fastballs, 59 for strikes. He threw 23 curveballs, 12 for strikes. He threw 16 changeups, 10 for strikes. No hard-hit balls through seven innings.

Then he breezed through the eighth — striking out Jesse Barfield and Rob Ducey around a groundout by Rance Mulliniks.

He got Lloyd Moseby on a foul pop to start the ninth. That brought up Nelson Liriano, a

.208 hitter. In his first three career atbats against Ryan, Liriano had walked, grounded out to second and taken a called third strike. This time, with a 1-1 count, Ryan tried to get a fastball low and outside. "He's a dead pull hitter," Rangers catcher Geno Petralli said, "and we had success with pitching him away, which is what we wanted to keep doing." The ball stayed over the plate as Liriano pulled it down the right-field line — about 10 feet fair — for a triple.

DALLAS - Although the Dallas Mavericks finished six games below .500, they showed considerable character under John Mac-Leod by winning four of their last five games in their unsuccessful battle for the eighth and final spot in the Western Conference play-

Dallas defeated Denver, 113-96, Sunday afternoon in McNichols Arena, breaking the Nuggets' 19game home winning streak, and briefly keeping alive its slim hopes of making the playoffs.

But the Portland TrailBlazers wrapped up the final playoff spot several hours later, beating the Sacramento Kings in overtime,

126-120, to edge the Mavericks by in the final week was a 114-112 one game. Dallas will miss the playoffs for the first time since

"It's been one of those years that we have to get behind us now," said Dallas Mavericks General Manager Norm Sonju. "We have to use the summer to get healthy. I'd like to think next year we'll be back in the hunt again and hope we won't have to be concerned with this eighth playoff spot."

Dallas finished the regular season at 38-44, including 14-27 on the road. By missing the playoffs, the Mavericks will be in the lottery. which means they could get the No. 1 pick in the next NBA college draft.

The only loss for the Mavericks overtime loss to the Houston Rockets in Reunion Arena — a game in which Dallas blew a 22point first-quarter lead.

At the time, it didn't seem so devastating to Dallas' playoff chances, since Portland was 38-40 and Dallas was 35-44. The TrailBlazers would wrap up the Western Conference's last playoff berth if it won just one of its last four games or Dallas lost any of its three remaining games.

But incredibly, the Mavericks kept winning and the TrailBlazers kept losing. If the teams had finished with the same record, Dallas would have advanced into the playoffs via the league's tiebreakers.

Clark's five hits still not enough

By The Associated Press

Even the best game of his career wasn't enough to make Will Clark happy. Clark went 5-for-5 against the Los Angeles Dodgers — but the San Francisco Giants still lost 7-6 in 10 innings when Atlee Hammaker walked in the winning

"It's definitely the toughest loss to take, because we kept battling and scratching out there and still came up short," Clark said after the first five-hit game of his career. "It wasn't even a hit that won the game. It was a walk. So that typifies how flaky a game it was."

Cfark, whose previous best was a pair of four-hit games, had three hits off Dodgers starter Fernando Valenzuela, including a run-scoring double in the first inning. He tied the game at 5-5 with a leadoff homer in the seventh against Alejandro Pena, then put the Giants ahead in the eighth with an RBI single off Ray Searage

The Dodgers took no chances in the 10th. They walked Clark intentionally and escaped a bases-loaded jam.

'So far, this is the best I've ever hit the ball in April," said Clark, who boosted his average 48 points to .409. "But what I did today doesn't matter because we lost. Whether I went 5-for-5 or 0-for-5, it's over with and all you can do is forget about it."

Willie Randolph started the winning in-straight ball to Jeff Hamilton, who was pinch hitting for Jay Howell, 1-2.

Dale Murphy had the second six-RBI game of his career, hitting a two-run homer in the third, a two-run single in the sixth and a two-run double in the eighth.

Tom Glavine, 3-0, allowed eight hits in 6 2-3 innings, struck out four and walked bach and Tony Phillips.

four double plays.

Royals 10, Red Sox 0

Greensboro He birdied five and seven, but his propserity ended and he finished the round in regulation.

"Not what I had in mind, but I didn't play that poorly," Huston said. Green sank short putts for birdie at 13 and 15, and by then his lead was five shots. He made it just a little interesting with a double bogey at the 16th hole to shrink his lead to three strokes.

Green made par at 17. Before the final round, he had expressed a wish to have a three-foot putt to clinch the tournament, much like the one he missed that forced last year's playoff — which he lost to Sandy Lyle. Instead, Green finished with a bogey, but he still managed to hug his wife, Ellen, his four children and his caddie. Huston closed at 279 with his shot even-par 72.

even-par 72.

Ed Fiori came in at 5-under-par 67 and a four-day total of 281 for third place and $68,000. Dave Eichelberger also bogeyed the 18th hole for a final-round 71 and a 282 for fourth place. Jim Booros, Greg Norman and

Mike Sullivan were next at 283, with Norman turning in a 68 and

Sullivan a 69. Booros bogeyed three of his last seven holes and

ington residents fear outbreak of contagious disease

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS Associated Press Writer

WAPATO, Wash. (AP) — In central Washington's Yakima Valley, where fruit trees bloom in blazing sunshine, fear has taken root because of an outbreak of a contagious disease that has killed six people this year.

Twenty people, including four infants, have become ill with meningococcal bacteria, which can lead to meningitis and other illnesses.

Doctors are swamped, firefighters worried about giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, parents pulled their children out of preschools, and about 18,000 people have been vaccinated.

The greatest worry is that there is no effective vaccine, therefore no protection, for children under age 1.

In Wapato, a poor town of 3,300 on the Yakima Indian Reservation, two infants have died and three children have become sick from the disease.

"The group of people dying and being hospitalized is the group we can't do anything for," said Fire Chief Tom Kehm, who has helped set up emergency vaccination clinics. "They can do no-

The outbreak appeared to be over in mid-March, when there were no new cases reported for about two weeks, prompting Yakima County Health District director Dr. Bob Atwood to cautiously predict it had run its course.

But a 4-month-old Wapato infant died on March 24, sparking a new round of mass vaccinations.

Three weeks passed without a new case, but the 19th case — a 5-month-old Wapato girl — was diagnosed April 13, renewing fears and frustrating medical workers.

And on Friday, health officers in nearby Franklin County announced that a 5-month-old boy who had been hospitalized and released was confirmed as the outbreak's 20th case. The boy had moved from Yakima on April 14, the day before he became ill, said Dr. Larry Jecha, county health

Atlanta, which has been monitoring the outbreak, believes it may be winding down.

Dr. Jay Wenger of CDC's meningitis center, said meningococcal disease typically fades away with a few sporadic cases.

The Yakima outbreak started with two cases in January, exploded with 12 in February, followed by four in March and two so far in April.

The disease is most common in poor African countries like Chad, Sudan and Ethiopia, where Wenger said epidemics sicken people at a rate of 500 per 100,000 population.

In this country, there are about 3,000 cases and 300 deaths each year.

Yakima Pediatric Associates, whose doctors have cared for many of the stricken, has received up to 1,000 calls per day from anxious parents.

People are quicker to bring in their children, he said, because the disease symptoms are similar to a common cold. It starts with a fever and progresses to vomiting, lethargy, stiff neck and irritability. There is also a purple rash.

Scarred battleship

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The scarred battleship USS Iowa returned home quietly to tearful loved ones exchanging embraces with, the 1,500 crew members, who wore black armbands in memory of 47 shipmates killed in a gun turret explosion.

The crew in white uniforms stood along the rails Sunday evening as the ship pulled into Norfolk Naval Base, its home port. About 3,000 family members and friends greeted them.

President Bush, a Navy pilot in World War II, and his wife, Barbara, were to attend a memorial service today at the base's air station

Before the Iowa was in sight of Pier 5 on Sunday, it passed by the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, where a small group of Vietnam veterans stood on the span and watched.

When the 887-foot warship moved into sight of the dock, families let out scattered cheers. But as tugs pushed the ship into its berth, the crowd fell silent. All that could be heard were the intermittent cries of gulls that circled the Iowa's wake.

The fire-scorched barrels of the three-gun turret were in the same position as when the explosion occurred off Puerto Rico on Wednesday.

After the ship docked, families filed aboard, exchanging tearful embraces with the returning sailors.

'They wanted to get here on schedule and were anxious to get home," said Navy Capt. Steven Karalekas.

The Navy kept the news media about 300 yards from the fami-

There were 58 crewmen in the turret when it exploded during gun exercises. The Pentagon said the explosion occurred before the 16-inch gun was fired. The 11 survivors were all in the lowest level guns.

The Navy has refused to speculate on the cause of the explosion. which damaged only the inside of the turret.

But Navy teams who entered the turret immediately after the blast found a gun's breech open and undamaged, with the practice projectile that the gun was to have fired still there, The New York Times reported Sunday.

This indicated the explosion occurred while the powder bags were still being loaded, the newspaper said, citing unidentified sources.

Although your child may have passed a vision screening in school recently, you shouldn't assume that his or her vision is completely trouble free.

Vision screenings are an important and helpful method to determine some basic vision problems, but they shouldn't take the place of your child's regular optometric

Unfortunately, there are many vision conditions that may not become apparent during the simple vision screening. For example, a child may be farsighted which means he or she sees distance objects clearly, but may have problems focusing the eyes for close work. Thus, a child may pass the typical eye chart test but may not be able to clearly see the words in a

Bush reportedly telephoned Reagan recently to apologize for newspaper accounts that quoted unnamed Bush aides as comparing Bush favorably to the nowretired two-term president.

In advance of his visit to the Norfolk Naval Air Station, where he was joining some 3,000 other mourners, Bush had said it would be premature to consider the Iowa and her three sister World War II-vintage battleships as obsolete. He said he "wouldn't jump" to such a conclusion.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle is leaving on a whirlwind trip to Australia and Southeast Asia where he'll mix policy discussions with ceremonial duties and tourism.

Before he leaves the United States on his 12-day journey, Quayle will stop over in Chicago to address the annual meeting of The Associated Press, and then fly to Los Angeles to pay a courtesy call on former President Reagan and attend a Republican fund-raising dinner.

Quayle's overseas trip — his second since he took office comes against the backdrop of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's visit next month to China, the first Sino-Soviet summit in 20 years.

The purpose of the trip is to show that America remains a constant in the Pacific even as other developments occur," said David Beckwith, Quayle's spokesman. "We want to emphasize that we'll be there as a Pacific power."

Besides Australia, Quayle will visit Indonesia, Singapore and Thailand before he returns to the United States. On his return, the vice president intends to tour Alaska's wildlife-rich Prince William Sound to monitor cleanup efforts from the Exxon Valdez oil spill.

Quayle, accompanied by his wife, Marilyn, will spend five days in Australia representing President Bush at this year's celebration of Australian-

American Friendship Week. In talks with Australian officials in Canberra, the vice president will explore bilateral issues such as trade, defense and space cooperation, Beckwith said. As chairman of the National Space meil, Quayle is charged with sting advancement of the is. space program.

Quayles will be honored at blacktie dinners commemorating the Battle of the Coral Sea during World War II in which U.S.-Australian forces stopped Japan's southward advance.

The visit to Jakarta, Indonesia, is mostly a chance for Quayle to get acquainted with the heavily populated island nation, which, like Singapore and Thailand, is a member of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, Beckwith said.

Trade issues are at the top of Quayle's list in talking with leaders of the ASEAN nations, Beckwith said. In the past, the United States has urged Asian nations to get rid of high tariffs and import restrictions that stifle free trade.

If you're bothered by headache that seems to have its origin at the base of your skull, you may be suffering from tension headache.

Tension headaches can be caused by an irritation of the nerves in the area of the spine immediately under the skull. These are called the suboccipital nerves. They pass through small openings in the spinal column to muscles in the surrounding area. Any abnormal-pressure of dysfunction of neck and muscles can irritate the nerves, causing tension.

The tension doesn't cause the headache. To treat this form of headache, attention should be paid to the bone and muscle structures. They should be returned to normal balance so they can function properly again.

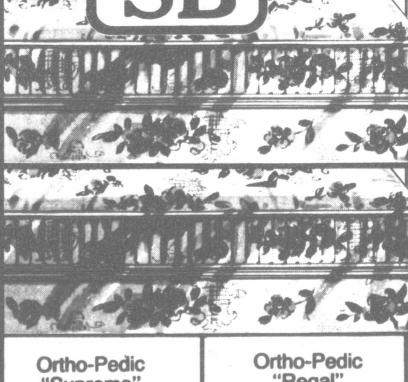

Medication is not the answer to tension headaches. Aspirin and other painkillers may give you temporary relief-but they won't solve the problem. Once the source of the problem is found and treated, THEN you can get the relief you
