Emergency management video features Pampa, Gray County

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) is featuring Pampa and Gray County Emergency Management Coordinator Steve Vaughn in a training video about the top three civil defense programs in the na-

Lois Kampinsky, director of the film, which was shot in Pampa on Thursday, said Vaughn and Pampa were selected to be featured because of the excellent national and international reputation the area has in the field of emergency response to petrochemical accidents, severe weather and the possibility of

The Washington-based filmmaker said Vaughn was one of only three emergency management coordinators in the entire nation chosen to be profiled in the

"I wanted to show a geographical mix and show that civil defense coordinators cover a variety of programs," Kampinsky said.

Footage for the video was shot at Hoechst Celanese, Pampa High School, a meeting of the local Community Awareness and Emergency Response (CAER) team and other sites around the city and county

Vaughn said the video shows the team effort involved in having a well-respected program. "Pampa and Gray County were selected as the site of the video due to their response during the three emergencies of 1987," Vaughn said. "This is a community commitment by all local agencies

"More than that, it is a commitment by industry, the school district, service organizations and the media.

Vaughn commended Mayor David McDaniel and Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy as well as other local leaders for their support in making the CAER program one of the best in the nation.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Atlantis was readied today for launch, carrying a robot craft toward a voyage to Venus, the cloudshrouded planet that has been an abiding mystery to scientists.

Lennard Fisk, NASA's chief scientist, said the launch of the explorer craft Magelfan will mark "a resurgence of America's planetary program.'

The last American probe sent to deep space was dispatched in 1978.

Atlantis was scheduled to lift off at 1:24 p.m. CDT with five astronauts aboard, heading to orbit on a four-day mission 184 miles above Earth. Early this morning, Atlantis was being fueled Magellan is to be released from Atlantis' cargo bay six hours after launch and sent streaking on a 15-month, 806 million-mile unmanned trip of its own.

Mission specialists Mary Cleave and Mark Lee will operate remote controls that propel Magellan from the shuttle's cargo bay. Atlantis is commanded by David M. Walker. The other crew members are pilot Ronald Grabe and mission specialist Norman Thagard. Preparations moved smoothly since the countdown began Tuesday, and NASA officials said the only concerns were possible high altitude winds and cloud cover over an emergency landing site in Spain. We're ready to go fly, Richard Truly, NASA's space flight chief and the agency's administrator-designate, said at a Thursday news conference.

The liftoff opportunity, dictated by Magellan's path to Venus and lighting conditions at emergency landing sites, lasts pad Thursday night.

only 23 minutes, one of the shortest launch windows in shuttle

Shuttle Atlantis readies

After its release from the shuttle, Magellan's own rocket will send it out of Earth orbit. Over the next 15 months, the craft will fly around the sun 11/2 times before settling into an orbit of Venus in August 1990

Venus has intrigued humans as le g as they've looked heavenward and marveled at the universe. The planet, the familiar "star" of the morning or evening, appears just before dawn or just after sunset as a brilliant, unblinking point of light. Its brightness in the nighttime sky is rivaled only by the moon. Venus is Earth's nearest neighbor, with an orbit 25.7 million miles away, and the two often are considered to be sister planets since they are about the same

But the worlds differ mightily: Dense clouds of carbon dioxide choke Venus, which has a surface temperature of about 900 degrees, hot enough to melt lead.

An imaging radar system will be able to detect features on the surface as small as 100 yards, about the size of a football field. The radar will be operated during almost 2,000 passes over the Venusian surface, each time viewing a slice of the planet and then sending the image back to Earth for computer enhancements

Magellan is expected to map about 90 percent of the surface while orbiting Venus for about 243 Earth days.

The last U.S. planetary probe was the Pioneer-Venus, launched Fisk said that in the 11 years since, "we had a planetary program that was in danger of being an also-ran.

Magellan is the first in a series of American planetary exploration missions

Voyager 2, a probe launched in 1977 and an earlier visitor to Jupiter, Saturn and Uranus, will fly past Neptune in August. In October, the robot craft Galileo will be launched toward Jupiter. A space telescope will be launched next year, followed by probes to the sun in October 1990, and to Mars in 1992

wants others to 'Tune In to the World'

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

Pampa Amateur Radio Club's approximately 25 members hope to encourage others to "Tune In to the World" through their donation of books and tapes by the same name to local libraries.

Club members recently presented a gift of the book Tune In to the World, accompanied by two cassette tapes on Morse Code, to the Lovett Memorial Library, Pampa Middle School library and Pampa High School library.

Tune In to the World, an introduction to the many facets of "ham radio," will be available to anyone in the community. The two tapes included with the book are Introduction to Morse Code and Morse Code Practice. Knowledge of Morse Code is essential to earning an amateur radio license.

Club members meet the first Monday of the month at Western Sizzling Sirloin, said Bill Ragsdale, club president. An informal gathering of club members happens every Saturday morning at the Coronado Inn coffee shop, he said.

Ham radio operators have a variety of interests, Ragsdale said. "Some mainly use (Morse) code, and some are interested primarily in (contacting) foreign countries — the further the better," he said.

'It's relatively easy to get Japan or New Zealand," he said. "But it's an accomplishment to get Gurnsey Island, the Falklands or Easter Island.

The ham radio slang for distance is DX, he explained. "Europe, Asia and Russia would count as DX," he said.

'There's very few ham radio operators in the People's Republic of China, but Russia has a lot of 'hams.' I've talked with a number of those," Ragsdale said.

Language differences can be overcome by using Morse Code with a combination of international call signs and abbreviations, Ragsdale said, adding that "English is the language of the world.'

"Russians are easy to understand," he said. "The man I had the most trouble understanding was a Scotsman who spoke the same language as I in theory," he said.

"After I spoke with the Scotsman, I talked with a man from Germany who was easier to understand with his broken English."

Some ham radio operators talk at the same time everyday. Others work on a weather net, preparing for bad weather, he said. Sometimes members of the operator) licenses," he said.

Ragsdale takes to the airwaves at about 6 a.m. every day as part of the Army's Military Amateur Service (MARS) which transmits on messages to and from military personnel throughout the world.

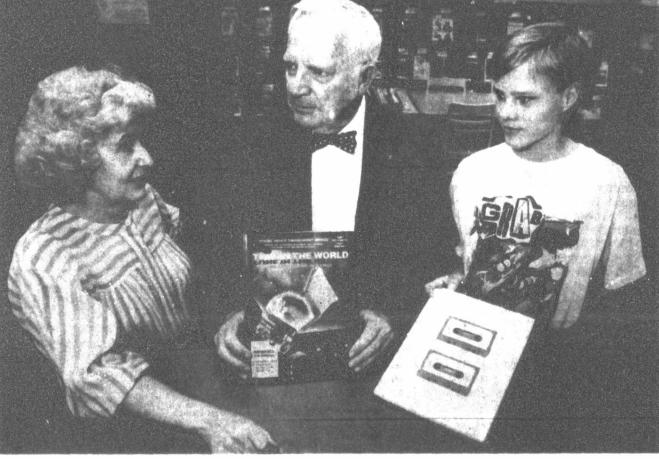

While novice licenses are relatively easy to earn, becoming an amateur radio operator takes study and practice, Ragsdale

To become a novice, the prospective "ham" must make at least a 70 on a test administered by two licensed amateurs with "extra" classification, he said. The person must be able to accurately take and transmit five words a minute of Morse Code, he

"It's possible for a person to be blind or deaf and still be a 'ham','' Ragsdale said, indicating a chapter in the book on "Handi-Hams," a special organization of handicapped amateur radio buffs. A privilege of being a ham radio operator is being able to use certain radio bands, he said, a privilege obtained through the extra work it takes to get an amateur license.

TCTA director encouraged about state funding for education

By BEAR MILLS Staff Writer

The executive director of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association was at the Pampa Country Club Thursday evening to address the annual banquet of the local chapter of the TCTA.

Jeri Stone, an Austin attorney who has worked her way through the TCTA ranks to become the state director, said she is encouraged about signals she is getting on state financing of public educa-

"Two weeks ago I was real depressed," Stone said. "I am pleased to say I'm a lot more encouraged now. Both the Senate and the House are looking at finance bills."

She said the Senate finance committee has approved $500 million in education funding and $200 million in growth monies for schools.

There is also hope on the part of the TCTA that Congress will approve full funding of the career ladder, as opposed to the current formula by which local school districts are responsible for a large portion of the program's money.

"We are very hopeful that it will fully fund the career ladder with the stipulation that level 4, the master teacher level, will be indefinitely suspended," Stone said. She pointed out that under the current career ladder, local districts unable to fund qualified teachers in the program are able to make rules regarding the ladder so difficult no teacher can meet them.

Stone said full state funding will eliminate such

"As many of you are probably aware," Stone told the teachers, "if you are in a district that is paying above the state base, if the state base goes up, there is no requirement for the district to increase your pay.

She said a new bill being considered by the House and Senate would also eradicate such inequities and provide state funding to help local districts increase their salary levels as the state base goes

Such a bill would mean a jump in state funding for the Pampa Independent School District of $750,000 in 1989-90 and $791,000 in 1990-91, Stone

She emphasized that all disucssions about state funding are only theoretical until the actual laws are passed.

Stone also predicted that any state funding of education that involves a tax increase will be vetoed by Gov. Bill Clements.

"Texas ranks 48th in the nation in state support of public education and seventh in the nation in local funding," Stone said. She argued that in order for public schools in Texas to have quality educational programs, the state must do a better job of supporting local districts with funds

On the subject of the controversial House Bill 72. Stone said her discussions with the bill's author gave clear indication he never intended for teachers to do so well on their evaluations, which grade teachers on classroom performance.

Stone told the teachers they have surprised critics around the state by proving, through the evaluation system, that they are a talented and highly qualified group of professionals.

that will require students to be in the classroom at least 80 days per semester to receive credit for a course, no matter what their grade in the course is.

She also said the TCTA is pushing for legislation

The only exception, according to Stone, would be if the child's parent appeared before a district review committee to explain the absences and was then granted a waiver.

Stone said the prospect of having to justify a child's heavy absences, whether excused or unexcused, would encourage parents who currently do not insist their children go to school daily to be more concerned about attendance.

She said she was aware of instances in which the parents of a high school senior would host senior skip day for the graduating class and then write a note on which they lied and said their child was absent from school because he was sick. "This will take care of situations like that."

Stone said.

Panhandle Eastern gets Texas Eastern

HOUSTON (AP) - Panhandle Eastern Corp. completed its $3.2 billion buyout of Texas Eastern - Corp., putting an end to a hostile takeover attempt for Texas Eastern from Coastal Corp.

Thursday's announcement of the merger of Panhandle Eastern - and Texas Eastern will result in -the nation's second-largest pipelime company in terms of miles at 27,000. Houston-based Enron Corp. is the largest with 38,000 miles of pipe.

Panhandle Eastern has access - to large mid-continent supplies of matural gas, including Texas, Dklahoma, Kansas and the Gulf of Mexico, and also operates a large liquefied natural gas facility in Lake Charles, La.

The company also has connections to Canadian gas through the Northern Border Pipeline while Texas Eastern has access to the rapidly growing New England natural gas market.

Panhandle Eastern said it has accepted payment for about 81 percent of outstanding Texas Eastern shares.

Preliminary results indicate that about 57 million Texas Eastern shares were validly tendered and not withdrawn prior to the midnight Wednesday expiration of Panhandle Eastern's tender

offer, of which 14.4 million shares were tendered pursuant to notices of guaranteed delivery.

The company expects that about 85.6 percent of the tendered shares will be purchased on a prorata basis in the tender offer. However, the exact percentage will not be known until final results of the tender offer are computed, which the company expects to be completed by May 8.

Panhandle Eastern's offer included provisions to buy up to 80 percent of Texas Eastern's 60.8 million outstanding shares and a stock exchange at the same $53per-share value for the remaining shares.

HUNTSVILLE (AP) - When the barred door covered with a heavy mesh screen slammed shut behind convicted killer Martin Vega, his introduction to the steamy row of identical cells known simply as J-23 gave Texas the distinction of having the largest death row in the nation.

Vega, whose white prison suit bears an orange tag with his name and the number "DR 932," is the 300th person to now call the Texas death row home, Texas Department of Corrections statistics this

Florida, which in recent years has held the largest number of convicted killers awaiting execution, this week has 299 death row inmates, according to Paula Tully of the Florida Department of Corrections.

"It's a pretty good indication that the people of Texas support the death penalty if they keep sending people there," said Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Texas also leads the nation in the number of people put to death since the U.S. Supreme Court in 1976 allowed capital punishment to resume. Thirty men have been given lethal injection at the Walls Unit in Huntsville, starting with Charlie Brooks in

The population growth on death row has been remarkably steady since Excell White, convicted of a grocer's slaying, on Aug. 26, 1974, reopened the exclusive section of the Ellis I Unit about 90 miles north of Houston

By the time Brooks became the first inmate to ever be put to death by injection in December 1982, Texas had 130 others awaiting the same fate.

During the early 1980s, death row grew by about two per month. As the pace of executions quickened, so did the number of people awaiting death. In 1986, 43 new inmates joined the ranks as 10 were executed. Another 36 came the next year, and the three-per-month average continues now.

As death row in Texas has grown — it now incorporates five prison wings - the number of executions has fallen. Only three were put to death last year in Texas and just one so far in 1989 as attorneys for inmates have won Supreme Court review of cases.

"The way it's growing, they can dedicate half the farm to death row in the next five years, unless they do away with the death penalty," says Jim Beathard, awaiting execution for a killing spree in which three members of a Trinity County family

Included among his terms was a two-year stint for robbery that kept him behind bars for just one week before he was released.

Death row, he says, is different.

Senate adopts proposal on homeless provisions

Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a bill that represented the state's "first step" toward helping the homeless, the bill sponsor said.

Also on Thursday, the Senate sent to Gov. Bill Clements a resolution requesting that U.S. Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney reconsider his preliminary decision and include full funding for the continued development of the V-22 Osprey program in his budget request for

The homeless measure by Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth. would establish pilot programs to provide transitional housing for the homeless and set up an interagency council to coordinate services for the homeless. Parmer, who headed a task force studying problems of the homeless, said there are about 100,000 people in Texas living on the streets

Eight years ago, the typical homeless person was a male with alcohol, drug or mental health problems, he said.

Now, more families, especially mothers with children, are unable to get affordable housing. He attributed this change to the state economy and decreases in federal funding.

He said shelters provide temporary relief for the homeless, but there should be more permanent housing while a person receives health services, jobtraining or family counseling.

"The real problem in Texas .. is to get homeless people reintegrated in the real world," he

The measure was approved 29-0 and sent to the House.

The resolution to Secretary of Defense Cheney was over the development by Bell Helicopter Textron of Fort Worth and

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD Boeing of the V-22 Osprey tiltrotor aircraft, which has completed its initial flight in North Texas. the resolution stated.

"The V-22, without needing runways, will be able to carry heavy payloads twice as fast and as far as comparable existing helicopters," the resolution said. The potential uses of tiltrotor aircraft "in both military and civilian environments are limitless,'

Cheney's preliminary decision to eliminate V-22 funding from his department's budget request "would effectively halt development and prevent the completion of this vital program," the resolu-

The resolution was previously approved by the House.

The Senate also tentatively approved a measure establishing a central filing system for agricultural liens.

Sen. Steve Carriker, D-Roby, said his bill would protect the purchaser of agricultural products from unknown liens. But Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, opposed the bill, saying the central filing system could be abused. The measure passed but failed to get enough votes to be considered for a final vote.

In other action, the Senate passed bills that would:

Establish goals for state agencies on contracts to businesses owned by minorities and women. ■ Coordinate services to detect at an early stage "at risk" children and provide help for those who are abused or have drug prob-

Require men who apply for a grant, loan or work assistance at a public institution of higher education to sign a statement that they have registered with the military selective service.

cleanup funding for Padre Island

WASHINGTON (AP) - More hazardous wastes wash up on Padre Island National Seashore than any other comparable stretch of U.S. beach, but the Environmental Protection Agency has given notice that it no longer wants to finance the cleanup, officials say.

The National Park Service said its rangers have been put on notice that they will be responsible beginning in late 1990 for removing hazardous wastes that roll onto the 80-mile-long Texas

Park Service spokesman Duncan Morrow said the problem is a growing one: the number of barrels containing toxic wastes discovered at the Texas park totaled 110 in fiscal 1987; in fiscal 1988, the number grew to 285 barrels.

EPA currently spends $400,000 a year to finance the removal of toxic wastes discovered on Padre Island National Seashore, and the Coast Guard is responsible for the work, Morrow said.

Morrow said officials of all three agencies met last week and agreed fiscal 1990, which begins Oct. 1, 1989, would be the last year the EPA and the Coast Guard assist with removing toxic wastes from the national "This is very unfair. It is not the duty of the Park Service," said Rep. Solomon Ortiz. "If they decide this is a new responsibility, let's fund them adequately."

Ortiz, a Corpus Christi Democrat, said EPA would be the logical agency to handle the cleanup. "This is truly the end of the line," Morrow said. The EPA had wanted to get out of the agreement at the end of this fiscal year.

EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas said there has been a move within the agency to not use Superfund money for cleaning up federal property.

"Superfund money was intended for work at abandoned facilities, to clean up the most seriously contaminated hazardous waste sites throughout the country. So rightfully, the beach cleanup work should be funded through some other mechanism. And that mechanism appears to be Interior's budget," Meacham

The EPA is willing to help the Park Service remove toxins in "emergency situations," but neither it nor the Coast Guard can consider Padre Island an emergency because of the frequency that drums of hazardous wastes wash ashore, Morrow

"It is such a perpetual problem at Padre Island," Morrow said. "Our people do not disagree that this is so much a continuing problem that it is getting increasingly difficult to call it an emergency situation '

The Park Service estimates it will need $480,000 a year to manage the toxic waste program at Padre, in addition to $100,000 needed for training rangers and an additional, but unknown sum, for basic equipment including an over-sand vehicle that will carry

Students thesis on taste, costs of beer

HOUSTON (AP) — The turnout for a taste test on domestic beers drew a predictable crowd. The results were anything but.

Two University of Houston seniors, needing taste-testers for research on their honors thesis. attracted 265 volunteers by posting "free beer" fliers around campus. After paring the sample to 191 students who said they drank five or more beers weekly, the pair discovered that some couldn't discern between cheap and expensive beers.

"We figured that college students are experts on beer drinking and they would determine the difference in the five brands of domestic beer we tested," said Aristotle Economon, who shared the project with his brother, Andrew. "But, statistically, people couldn't tell the difference."

Each participant was given three-ounce sample cups of five different brands of U.S. beer to measure for body, aftertaste. sweetness, bitterness and

Five major U.S. brewers each donated 20 cases of beer, as well as several hundred promotional key chains, posters and buttons. Economon, who said he does not drink beer, got mixed reactions from the test subjects. "Some people would say, 'This is great, I can buy cheap beer and get just as good a product,' "he told The Houston Post. "But other people said, 'This is B.S., because people are very loyal to their brand of beer." In fact, when the students were given several names of beers and asked to rank them, they gave sive brews, contrary to the test results, Economon said.

He would not reveal the brand names of beers tested, but said they ranged in price from $1.60 to $3.20 a six-pack, and attributed the students' answers to effective beer advertisements.

UH Honors Program Director Ted Estess said he was doubtful of the project when they first presented the idea for their marketing test

'But as it turned out, there were things to be learned.' Estess said. "It was not only an interesting project, but a good piece of work.

SPS to offer bill credit to rural area customers

Beginning this week. Texas retail customers of Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) who live outside city limits will receive on their bills a credit related to a 4.3 percent reduction in electric rates.

"These customers have been billed at the new, lower rate since December," said Jerry Diller, SPS group manager of rates and regulation.

"On April 19, the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT) finalized the lower rate. This decrease was made possible primarily by lower federal income tax rates on corporations and SPS's ability to hold down other costs," Diller said.

The electric-rate decrease was first agreed to by SPS, the PUCT staff and others on July 8, 1988. The finalization of the rate allows SPS to credit customers' bills as though the new rate had been in effect beginning July 8.

'The credit will be based on the actual amount of electricity each customer used between July 8 and the date interim lower rates began," Diller said. "These onetime credits total $3.4 million and average about $13 for a residential customer outside city

SPS's Texas retail customers inside city limits received a 3.1 percent rate reduction on March 28, 1988. They soon should receive an additional 1.2 percent reduction to match the amount of decrease for customers outside city limits. They also will receive a credit as if the additional reduction had been in effect since July

"When the cities approved the rate reduction last year, we planned that if the PUCT approved a larger decrease, SPS would match the decrease for customers inside city limits," Diller

"We expect to implement the additional decrease in each of the 74 affected cities within the next 60 days, with a one-time credit to follow shortly thereafter.'

The staggered effective dates are the result of the regultory process in Texas, in which cities regulate rates within city limits and the PUCT regulates rural

"When it's all said and done," Diller said, "rates inside and outside city limits will be identical and all SPS's Texas retail customers will have received an average 4.3 percent rate reduction. In all, the actions amount to a $20.6 million reduction in SPS's Texas retail rates."

The 4.3 percent rate reduction which has been in effect equals a decrease in the monthly electric bill of $3.84, from $73.51 to $69.67 for a residential customer who uses 1,000 kilwatt hours of electricity.

Nuke dump site under study

EL PASO (AP) - Faults and fissures around a possible radioactive dump site in Hudspeth County haven't deterred state officials from continuing to study the area.

Local opponents contend the cracks in the earth portend a powerful earthquake that would allow radioactive waste to escape into the underground water supply. But the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Disposal Authority believes the risk is

"We agree on about 85 percent of the data," said Rick Jacobi, the authority's general manager. "What we disagree on is the interpretation of the data."

The authority has until Jan. 1, 1993, to build a low-level radiation dump where mildly radioactive items such as contaminated tools and hospital gowns would be stored for thousands of years.

One site is under study near Fort Hancock, about 50 miles east of El Paso. Opponents to the dump say the authority already has made up its mind - before all the results are in. The chief opponent is El Paso County, which hired geologists who say strong earthquakes are possible at the site.

"We disagree on the intensity of the possible earthquake and what effect it would have on the site," Jacobi said.

Yet we should try to recover the past

Little fanfared, this year is the 200th anniversary of the Constitution. Perhaps we pay so little attention because of the vast change that our government has undergone since then. The Constitution established a government that was small, frugal and just. Over the next several decades presidents and congressmen had one major goal: to keep the government from growing to the gigantic proportions it had achieved in the European despotisms so many Americans had fled.

Yet we must try to recover the past, and apply its best aspects to the present. One handy way to do so was provided by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, which has published a 1989 calendar listing, daily, the important events that occurred exactly 200 years earlier.

In April, for example: April 4. Fisher Ames, an astute founding father, wrote: "The House is composed of sober, solid, oldchatterfolks, as we often say." Read that and contemplate Jim Wright.

April 7. Martin B. Dunn wrote to Abraham Clark in a letter published in the Brunswick Gazette: "Legislators who derive their power from the Constitution can never change it without destroying the foundation of their authority." Nowadays the Imperial Congress grabs power wherever it can find some, never mind the Constitution.

April 16. In 1789, President-elect George Washington departed Mount Vernon for his inauguration in New York, then the nation's capital. Well, Henry Adams, America's greatest philosophical historian. once jested that the decline of the presidency from Washington to U.S. Grant disproved the theory of evolution. The disproof continues.

April 22. Fisher Ames wrote Samuel Henshaw about the new government: "The members are principally solid moderate men, who, without shining talents, have considerable experience and honest intentions." No comment is necessary about the current jobholders in today's U.S. government.

April 23. George Washington arrived in New York. After defeating the British, Washington could have had himself proclaimed king. Instead he humbly submitted himself to the approval of the people, and eight years after his 1789 inauguration, stepped down from power.
April 26. Fisher Ames wrote: "When I saw

Washington I felt very strong emotions. I believe that no man ever had so fair a claim to veneration

April 30. George Washington was inaugurated in a ceremony in Federal Hall as the nation's first president under the Constitution.

She has no prospect of 'life'

WASHINGTON - What is "life"? The question might be addressed metaphysically, or biologically, or theologically, but if the Supreme Court agrees to hear the sad case of Nancy Beth Cruzan, the high court will have to ponder the word in its constitutional sense

The facts, as they say, are not in dispute. Let me take them from a memorandum opinion of Judge Charles E. Teel Jr., sitting in the probate division of the Circuit Court of Jasper County, Early on the morning of Jan. 11, 1983, Nancy was driving alone in her Rambler sedan on Elm Road southeast of Carthage. She may have fallen asleep at the wheel; she may have been speeding. In any event, the car ran off the road, overturned several times and finally came to rest on its top.

A state trooper found Nancy lying face down in a ditch about 35 feet from the wrecked automobile. She was apparently lifeless.

A few minutes later a unit of the Carthage Fire Department arrived on the scene. Paramedics found her in "code blue," in total respiratory and cardiac arrest. They administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation and soon she was brought back to "life."

An hour later she was in the emergency room at Freeman Hospital in Joplin, where a neurosurgeon diagnosed her condition as cerebral contusions compounded by significant anoxia. As it turned out, she had suffered permanent brain damage. During the time she had been face down in the ditch, unable to breathe, her brain had been denied the oxygen it required.

All this was a little more than six years ago. Nancy is still, in a sense, alive. She never has recovered consciousness. She can breathe on her own, but she cannot swallow. She is fed through a tube inserted directly into her stomach.

Nancy is now 31. Her doctors agree that she could live for another 30 to 40 years in the same condition. Judge Teel concluded from the evidence that her condition is "permanent and irreversible."

Once Nancy was "a vivacious, active, outgoing, independent person." Now she is a spastic quadriplegic who exists in a vegetative coma. Her only link to the world she will never know again is through the gastrostomy tube. Sixteen months ago her parents, Joe and Joyce Cruzan, filed a court petition to have the tube

Missouri's law is curious. Under certain circumstances, it permits the removal of artificial breathing appartus, but apparently it forbids the removal of artificial feeding apparatus. It seems odd that death by suffocation is ethically and legally permissible, but death by starvation

In the probate court, Judge Teel found this situation intolerable. He authorized removal of the tuve, but his order was reversed in November by a 4-3 decision of the Missouri Supreme Court. From that decision the Cruzans now

The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution, echoing language from the Virginia Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence, says that no person may be deprived of "life or liberty" without due process of law.

Nancy Cruzan is undeniably alive. Her vital organs function. Her lungs work. Her blood pressure is within normal levels. When she is subjected to painful experimental stimuli, her fists galvanically clench. She has gained weight to the point of obesity. But is this what a humane and compassionate reading of the Constitution would define as "life"?

The word "liberty" also figures in the family's appeal. Not long before the fatal accident. Nancy confided to a friend that if she ever suffered irreversible brain damage, she would rather die than survive as a vegetable. By keeping her medically alive, is she being deprived of the liberty to have her wishes fulfilled?

Nancy's case is not unprecedented, nor is her condition especially novel. The New York Times reports that 10,000 other persons are similarly comatose. In five states (California, Florida, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York) appellate courts have found no constitutional difference between removing a respirator and removing a nutritional tube. The Supreme Court has yet to address the issue.

My own thought is that the Founding Fathers never imagined a Nancy Cruzan case in drafting the Fifth Amenament. The medical technology that sustains her was then unknown. They never pondered the transcendent difference between life and existence.

Nancy has no prospect of "life" that has any meaning. A merciful system of justice will authorize removal, and release her for a better life

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Most reasonable people are, I think, glad that environmentalism has become a public issue in most of the world's major industrial nations. In retrospect, the problem of disposing of wastes of all sorts was bound to become serious sooner or later, and the growing impact of a fast-expanding human population on the globe's ecosystem must also be recognized and provided for.

But, even more than most issues, environmentalism runs the danger of deteriorating into sheer crackpottery. For one thing, the amateur environmentalist easily identifies himself with all the small, furry animals in the world, and bravely undertakes to defend them against (what else?) huge, soulless corporations. In his mind's eye, he is defending a pristine Arcadia against greedy loggers, ivory poachers and oil tankers.

In addition, as Peter Shaw points out in a stimulating article in the April issue of Commentary, the freefixture of the psyche of modern man finds "the environment" a superb roost when more immediate matters are going distressingly well.

When a major war is raging, or a global depression is in full flower, people will sensibly choose to worry about that. But what about times like today, when unemployment is down, longevity is up and even the Russians are too busy holding elections to bother anybody else?

In the past 20 years, Paul Ehrlich has warned us of the population bomb, the Club de Rome has forecast imminent shortages of many minerals, Carl Sagan has gloomed over the prospect of "nuclear winter," everybody else has discovered the "greenhouse effect," and now holes are reportedly appearing in the ozone layer. These are the sophisticated environmental anxieties of people who are undersupplied with real things to wor-

But, even at a more serious level, many environmentalists are not waging their battle intelligently. How sensible is it, for example, to set oneself resolutely against any rational solution to the perfectly legitimate demand of the earth's growing human population for a correspondingly growing supply of energy? Who, in the long run, is bound to win that battle?

And yet many environmentalists are apparently determined to eliminate, or at least restrict, every practical source of energy known to man. Oil is out - look at what the Exxon Valdez did to Prince William Sound. The whole North Slope of Alaska should be closed to oil prospectors anyway; pipelines interfere with the annual migrations of the caribou.

As for nuclear power, forget about it. Remember Three Mile Island? (And Chernobyl?) The governors of New York and Massachusetts have managed to close down brand-new nuclear power plants, by refusing even to participate in the preparation of emergency evacuation plans.

OK, then - how about hydroelectric power? No way, a new dam proposed by Tennessee Valley Authority was delayed for years by the charge (false, as it turned out) that building it would destroy the last known habitat of the snail darter and the furbish lousewort

What's left? Well, there's always coal-fired electric power - a strange recourse for environmentalists, one would think. Among other things, such plants are the primary source of acid rain.

If an environmentalist is forced to the wall and compelled to offer a constructive suggestion on this subject (something that happens all too rarely), he will usually make some small noise about solar power. We have all seen the brave arrays of solar photoreceptor cells on the roofs of small bungalows in Florida and elsewhere, but they are no more practical as a major source of power than the dispirited ultramodern windmills on the hills east of San Francisco. Always leave your enemy a line of retreat, goes one of the oldest rules of strategy. The environmentalists have forgotten that little detail, and in doing so have made their own task infinitely harder. © 1909 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

Banking panel debates stricter capital requirements for S&Ls

By MATT YANCEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Banking Committee Thursday began considering an administration-endorsed effort to make owners of savings and loans put up more of their own actual money than President Bush initially sought as the price for a $100 billion taxpayer bailout of the in-

After closing a loophole that has allowed some nearly insolvent thrifts to challenge in court their takeover by federal regulators, the committee began debating a measure that would shift some of the risk of S&L lending from the government's insurance funds.

'Without real capital — hard capital — the taxpayers have no protection," said Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, the committee's chairman.

Gonzalez likened "good will" exemptions from hard cash, stock or other equity capital requirements that the government over the past eight years has granted to S&Ls to "a soft ice-cream cone in the July sun."

"Good will provides nothing if the institution goes down," he said. "This entire exercise is a sham unless we change the way the savings and loans operate. We cannot in good conscience require the taxpayers to pay out billions of dollars and at the same time tell them they must bear all the future risks.'

Earlier Thursday, the committee approved an amendment specifying that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has the authority to take over sick S&Ls even before they are technically insolvent.

Two California thrifts are challenging in court their takeovers earlier this year by the FDIC, which claims it already has that authority although it is not spelled out specfically in the law.

"As long as somebody can go into court, they can get a week's delay and essentially break the institution by selling off its assets during that week," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., who sponsored the amendment. "And who ends up paying is

The Banking Committee voted Wednesday to require the savings and loan industry to pour $75 million a year of its profits into low-income housing subsidies as another price for the bailout.

The measure, approved on a 27-24 vote with four Democrats joining all 20 committee Republicans in opposition, could provide up to 500,000 home buyers a 2 percentage point discount on their home mortgages, according to consumer groups.

However, the political party lines are a little more obscure in that fight over tougher capital standards

The administration, Gonzalez and the committee's ranking Republican, Rep. Chalmers Wylie of Ohio, all favor making S&L owners put up $2.25 of their own "real money" or "tangible" capital for each $100 of lending.

S&L supporters, claiming a third of the 2.950 surviving thrifts in the nation could be wiped out by that stiff a requirement, favor a $1.50 "tangible" capital requirement adopted last week by the Senate and earlier by the House panel's financial institutions subcommittee.

President Bush's original proposal had no tangible capital requirement, but Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady said that the administration now believes there should now be a minimum $3 tangible capital requirement for every $100 in loans.

However, in a letter to Wylie, Brady called his and Gonzalez' amendment calling for $2.25 "a marked and welcome improvement.

Wylie led the opposition to Gonzalez' amendment to require the 12 regional Federal Home Loan Banks to set aside 5 percent of their profits — $1.5 billion last year — for providing low-interest mortgage loans to the working poor.

The regional banks, although created by the federal government, are owned by the S&L industry and pass their profits on to individual S&Ls.

The legislation already requires S&Ls to put up $300,000 a year through the regional banks as their contribution to the bailout's costs. But taxpayers still will assume at least 70 percent of the estimated $250 billion to $300 billion burden over the next 30 years.

Democrats said the directed industry subsidies would restore the original purpose of the Home Loan Bank system when it was established in the 1930s to promote home ownership among working families. Without it, they said, there's no reason for a separate S&L industry.

"We've invited the taxpayers to the bailout banquet and told them they can pick up the tab, but they've got no silverware, no salad, no entrees," said Rep. Gerald Kleczka, D-Wis. "The least we can give them is some of the leftovers.

Republicans, however, complained that making the industry devote a portion of its profits is nothing more than an "end-around play" for subsidized housing and called it a symbol of fiscal irres-

"At stake in this bill is the safety and confidence in the financial fabric of this nation," said Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa. "To play social policy games with this legislation jeopardizes confidence in the

The four Democrats siding with the GOP were Reps. Frank Annunzio of Illinois, Stephen L. Neal of North Carolina, Carroll Hubbard Jr. of Kentucky and Doug Barnard Jr. of Georgia.

The committee also got into a First Amendment fight over trying to stop advertising by some banks claiming that their federal insurance fund is safer than the one protecting S&L depositors against losses of up to $100,000 each.

It eventually voted 32-10 in favor of an amendment by Rep. David Dreier, R-Calif., directing the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. to outlaw ads that "disparage the condition of either fund."

Energy secretary delays restart for reactors at Savannah River

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy Secretary James Watkins says he is delaying the restart of government reactors that produce a scarce gas used to make nuclear weapons because safety problems have not been fully assessed.

The energy secretary disclosed on Thursday that he has pushed back the timetable for restarting the department's three Savannah River nuclear reactors in South Carolina, which are the nation's only source of tritium gas used in warheads.

Watkins also said, without revealing details, that the Energy Department soon will unveil soon a "new approach" to building the nation's first permanent repository for high-level nuclear waste in Nevada. Local opposition to the facility is strong.

Watkins said restart of the Savannah River reactors, which had been planned for later this year, will not occur before early 1990. He said in a letter to Congress and to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney that the delay would not weaken the national detense. More retraining of reactor operators and a fuller assessment of other safety issues are needed before the plant can be allowed to resume operation, Watkins said.

'Because of the attention I'm giving to safety, health and the environment, ... I will not allow them to be started this year" as previously planned, he said.

Shortly after the reactors were shut down for safety reasons last summer, the department said it could have them running again by late 1988. After that target was missed, the department told Congress it expected startup by late

Discussing the nuclear waste repository, Watkins said the department hopes to overcome strong opposition by Nevada state officials to the facility.

"From their viewpoint they had a waste dump jammed down their throats and they don't like it." he said.

Watkins did not say the department would consider sites other than Yucca Mountain, 100 miles northwest of Las Vegas, where the first drilling is scheduled to begin later this year to assess whether the mountain's geology is appropriate for a dump. The Yucca Mountain site was chosen by Congress in 1987.

Watkins also did not fully explain what changes would be made in the program, and department spokesmen contacted later declined to elaborate on his comments.

The repository is intended to entomb 70,000 tons of highly radioactive waste from commercial reactors and from the Energy Department's weapons plants.

"We'll probably have to restructure that program in the very near time frame and announce some kind of new approach," he said. "We'll probably move our ly close to the site to be geologically sound but on our own facility to demonstrate to Nevadans that we can drill properly.'

North deliberations in seventh day

By PETE YOST Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deliberations in the Iran-Contra trial of Oliver North enter their seventh day today with no indication from the jury that it is nearing a verdict. There have been no notes from the jury since Monday, when a nurse was sent in to check a panel member's blood pressure.

The nine women and three men are beginning their second week isolated from their families. They are shuttled back and forth between the U.S. courthouse and an area hotel by federal mar-

The panel has spent more than 32 hours considering the 12 criminal charges against the former White House aide.

North has not been whiling away the time. He was in Cincinnati on Thursday night to give a speech at an invitation-only audience at the Bankers Club.

He has made several speeches since jury selection in his trial began on Jan. 31. His fees are believed to be $20,000 to $25,000

North is accused of lying to Congress to cover up his role in secretly assisting the Nicaraguan Contras and lying to the attorney general about aspects of the diversion of funds to the Contras from the Iran arms sales. He also faces charges that he accepted a $13,800 home security system and converted $4,300 in travelers checks from a Contra leader to his own use. North, who has had at least three lawyers at the defense table and at times as many as five, faces legal bills estimated at $380,000 a month.

Meanwhile, North's lawyers and the American Civil Liberties Union are supporting 10 news organizations in court to seek public disclosure of a stipulation in the case summarizing intelligence intercepts.

The organizations, including The Associated Press, are appealing U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell's ruling that they cannot see the document. It deals with the CIA-assisted shipment of U.S. Hawk missiles from Israel to Iran in November 1985.

North's lawyers used the document to defend him against the charge that he prepared a false chronology saying that no one in the U.S. government knew until January 1986 that Hawk missiles were aboard the flight.

Index plunges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge plunged 0.7 percent in March, the second straight decline and the biggest drop in eight months, the Commerce Department said today. It was the first time the Index of Leading Economic Indicators. which dropped 0.3 percent in February, had posted back-toback declines since it fell for five straight months from September 1987 through January 1988, the months surrounding the October stock market crash. While many analysts feared an outright recession or a so-that the nation was headed for a recession after the market collapse, the economy rebounded with vigor and the record peacetime expansion is now in its seventh year.

Analysts said the latest negative signals from the leading index are in line with signs that the U.S. economy is losing steam and with widespread expectations that the slowdown will become more pronounced as the year progresses.

The debate among economists is whether the end result will be called "soft landing," in which growth slows just enough to relieve inflationary pressures without bringing a halt to the expan-

The economy expanded at a strong 5.5 percent annual rate during the first three months of the year, but the growth in the gross national product was a more modest 3 percent, discounting a statistical quirk reflecting the bounce back from last year's drought.

That was down somewhat from the drought-adjusted 3.5 percent pace for the final quarter of 1988.

fficial: Soviets pessimistic about future

By ANDREW KATELL Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviets are growing increasingly pessimistic about their future, the mayor of Moscow told President Mikhail Gorbachev during a meeting of the Communist Party's policymaking Central Committee.

Many Soviets believe the party has failed to lead society and have lost faith in their leaders, Mayor Valery T. Saikin told Gorbachev during an unprecedented closed-door exchange Tuesday. Excerpts from the meeting were published Thursday in Pravda, the party's official newspaper.

Officials said one reason for the loss of faith has been that Gorbachev's 4-year-old restructuring program of perestroika has failed to solve many of the country's problems.

Gorbachev, in closing remarks at the meeting Tuesday, agreed perestroika was going poorly and was worsening shortages of housing, consumer goods and food. But, the 58-year-old leader said, people still have faith in the

Kohl pressures U.S. on missiles

BONN, West Germany (AP) -Chancellor Helmut Kohl, in a major policy speech Thursday, intensified pressure on the United States to agree to superpower talks on short-range nuclear weapons, urging an "understanding for our interests."

Addressing Parliament, Kohl John Paul and the church "in repeated his call for negotiations to reduce the number of shortrange nuclear rockets in Europe as well as atomic artillery.

"Because of the range of the short-range systems, the Federal Republic of Germany is affected more by these weapons than the other partners in the alliance," Kohl said.

"It is to me self-evident for our friends to have the same understanding for our interests as we government. Vatican officials, have shown many times for ity, said the pope was expected to theirs," he added. Britain and the United States have been harshly critical of Kohl's proposal for superpower talks on tactical atomic arms deployed in Europe. But NATO allies Belgium, Norway and Denmark have indicated their sup-judgments that the party is nearly losing its position in the country or that it has turned into a debating society and so on," Gorbachev said.

Remarks at Central Committee meetings generally are kept secret, and the publication of seven pages of 20 critical speeches appeared to be an effort to show the people the leadership has heard their complaints.

The officials were told their failures had led to embarrassing defeats in parliamentary elections and that the 20 million-member party is in danger of losing its hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Saikin, who lost in the March 26 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves.

tions "have lost their vanguard role" because people have lost confidence in the party. Gorbachev gained strength to push for more extreme action at Tuesday's meeting, when 74 of the Central Committee's 301 members retired. Because of age, illness or political disgrace, those who stepped down had lost the top government or party job that entitled them to membership. The remarks of some of those who retired were published Thursday. Among them was Geidar A. Aliev, the 65-year-old former par-

Approximately three dozen party officials lost their bids for seats in the 2,250-seat parliament.

Vladimir I. Melnikov, the party chief of the Komi region, told the committee that many officials are so afraid of the people's wrath that they are refusing to run in the next round of elections on May 14.

"We are losing the workers," he said. The country is "in a real crisis" that Gorbachev is not fully aware of because the Central Committee staff is "safeguarding the general secretary from associate of former President the severity of the situation."

But Judge Marvin Ruttenberg ters after his arrest. ordered Linares released on a $75,000 recognizance bond, which means he does not have to put up any money unless he fails to appear at future hearings.

The judge told him to return to court Thursday.

Following Ruttenberg's order, Linares was taken into custody by police from Cicero on an unrelated December warrant of bat-

Pampa 7th graders set records

Jackson, relayers shine at district middle school meet

By L.D. STRATE Sports Editor

While the Pampa Lady Harvesters are headed for regionals and possibly a third state track title in the past four years, there's some seventh grade girls who seem to have their eyes on the same goal.

At last weekend's middle school district meet in Pampa, Jamie Jackson plus a couple of relay teams broke some district records in a rather ironic way. It was Jackson's first appearance in a meet and the 400 and 800meter teams had never won a race before.

"Jamie had not been eligible before now," said Pampa coach Sandra Thornton. "It's no telling how good she would have done had she been able to compete in every meet.

Jackson not only shattered the district record in the 100-meter dash, but her 12.53 time would have clinched second place in the District 1-4A high school district

Jackson's first-place clocking broke the old record of 12.67 set in 1984 by Brown of Borger.

'That record has stood up through the Tanya Lidys and Yolanda Browns (past and present Lady Harvester stars)," said coach Thornton

Jackson also won the 200 in 27.35, just two-tenths of a second off the record set by the threetime state champion Lidy, who made the all-america team this year at the University of Neb-

Pampa's 400-meter relay team of Beatrice Jackson, Elasha Hanks, Courtney Smith and Shelly Young was first across the finish line with a time of 54.57. That broke the old record of 55.41 set by Borger in 1986.

The same four girls also broke the 800-meter relay record with a time of 1:55.52. Canyon held the old record of 1:58.06 set in 1986. Their time also erased the eighth grade mark of 1:58.06 set by Pampa last year.

A combination of things prevented the two relay teams from winning a meet before now

"There were some injuries and when they were healthy their handoffs weren't that good. And on top of that, the girls were just learning how to run. When they were all healthy, it was just a matter of time before they peaked and made some good handoffs," coach Thornton said. "They're all good workers and it really showed up at district."

The Pampa relayers also avenged a pair of losses to the Borger teams at the district

"Borger has real strong teams and it was nice to get them back," added coach Thornton

Harvesters win golf regionals

BROWNWOOD — The Pampa High boys golf team is headed to state.

The Harvesters, who won the state championship in 1984, edged Andrews by one stroke to take the first-place trophy in the Class 4A Regionals Thursday.

Mike Elliott helped give the Harvesters the title by shooting par on the back nine. Elliott, a senior, finished the round with a 74, a six-stroke improvement over Wednesday's first round. Mark Wood followed with a 79 and Russ Martindale picked a good time to shoot his best round (80) of the year. First-round medalist Ryan Teague also shot 80 and Dax Hudson finished at 82.

Andrews, which also advances to state, cut two strokes off its first-round total, but still could not overtake Pampa, which led by two going into the last round.

The Class 4A state tournament will be held May 11-12 at Morris Williams Golf Course in Austin.

Jason Ashlock of Wichita Falls Hirshi had a two-day total of 147 to claim medalist honors. Teague's 152 total was good for fifth.

It's the playoffs, time for the infirm and aging to stand tall. Time for the Los Angeles Lakers to take charge.

"I believe this team truly steps up to another level in the playoffs; they're used to winning, they're addicted to it," Lakers coach Pat Riley said Thursday night after the two-time NBA champions beat the Portland Trail Blazers 128-108 in their best-of-5 series opener. Magic Johnson had 30 points and 16 assists, Byron Scott chipped in with 29 points and Mychal Thompson came off the bench to score 20. "Riley said he really wanted a lot from me, both offensively and defensively, because I'm a veteran now," Scott said, "and I felt like I delivered." The Lakers are trying to become the first team to deliver three consecutive NBA championships since Boston in 1964-66. In the other openers, it was Golden State 123, Utah 119: Atlanta 100, Milwaukee 92, and New York 102, Philadelphia 96.

Tonight, it's Boston at Detroit, Seattle at Houston, Chicago at Cleveland and Denver at Phoenix.

Geiberger, Henning share Legends lead

AUSTIN (AP) - For co-leaders ing champions Orville Moody-Al Geiberger and Harold Henning, playing as a team in the $650,000 Legends of Golf is a new experience.

"Both our partners sort of dropped out. We sort of just fell in together," Henning said after the pair shot a nine-under-par 61 to tie with Bob Charles-Bruce Devlin for the first-round lead in the two-man, better ball event.

"This is the first time we've played together as partners. It's Cup) we faced each other as opponents. He waxed my ... 68 to 71," Henning said Thursday.

Gardner Dickinson, 61, who said he and wife Judy are expecting twins in September, teamed with Dave Hill to hold second after an eight-under-par 62 over the 6,367-yard Onion Creek Club course.

Four teams were knotted at third, including Billy Casper-Gay Brewer after Casper made a hole-in-one on the 146-yard, parthree 17th.

"It's still a thrill to make an ace," said Casper, adding that while he had made 10 or 12 in his lifetime, this was only the second in competition. "You probably hit a lot of shots equally well and they just don't go in," he said. Also tied for third were defend-

Bruce Crampton, plus Chi Chi Rodriguez-Lee Elder and Tommy Jacobs-Ken Still.

PAMPA NEWS-Friday, April 28, 1989 9

Geiberger said there wasn't much special about his pairing with Henning, at first.

"We didn't really have a good feeling about playing together early in the week. But, if you look at the money list, you can get a pretty good feeling in a hurry," he said.

The play will be presented in two performances May 5-6 as a dinner theatre in the Pampa Mall across from Mr. Gattis Pizza.

Directed by Cindy Judson, cast members include newcomers Jeff Hogan, Janet Whitsell, Marquetta Wampler and Sharon McQueen. Familiar faces to ACT I productions are F. Bud Behannon, Gary Kelton and Rochelle

The play revolves around two brothers, Alan and Buddy Baker. Both sons work for their father. Alan, however is the playboy. who spends his time on the ski slopes and in the company of beautiful women while Buddy can't seem to get away with anything at work or please his father.

When Buddy decides to move into the bachelor pad with his brother, leaving a not-so-nice letter to his father, the fun begins. Even mom wants to leave home and move in.

Reservations may be made by calling 665-7212. Dinner will be served between 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and the show will begin

Girl watching habit won't be changed by marriage

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating this guy I'll call Michael for two years. I really love him, but he does something that simply kills me! He's a heavy girl watcher

When we're out in public, whether it's at the movies, restaurant, bar or just walking down the street, he stares at girls constantly - paying no attention to me or what I'm saying. It's like I'm not even there. I mentioned a few times how hurt

I feel when I see him staring at other girls, but he says, "It doesn't hurt to look" — then he tells me it's jealousy and insecurity on my part.

I know he'll never change. His friends act the same way. I don't even want to think about what goes on when he hangs out with the boys. For someone who's 31 years old, he acts like a high school boy.

Abby, I love him, but I can't see myself marrying a man who stares at girls when we're together and makes me feel like nothing. I feel used. By the way. Michael is obsessed with girlie magazines and porn videos. Please help me.

Lad describes night spent lost in woods

By PAUL McKAY Houston Chronicle

CONROE (AP) — So tell us, Terry Bruce, you who spent an entire night alone, in the woods and creek bottoms of west Montgomery County, among the many snakes and other creepy crawlers - what was it like being lost out there?

11-year-old. And what kinds of noises did you hear?

"There were lots of noises," reports the

What kinds of things? "Night things."

Yes, well, adults do ask silly questions sometimes, don't they?

"I guess," says Terry, the cheerful lad who Sunday chased a swarm of his grandfather's honeybees and ended up lost more than 30 hours in the snake country that surrounds the granddad's home.

Tuesday, Terry slept late, staying home from his fifth-grade classes at Montgomery

Intermediate School and resting up from the adventure.

Dozens of volunteers, sheriff's officers and Texas Forest Service officials conducted an intensive search for Terry, whose home is a mile from his granddad's house, before he wandered to a stranger's residence about 8 p.m. Monday and asked to use the phone to

The boy, whose only previous experience in the woods had been an overnight camping trip with Cub Scouts, may have zigzagged as many as 15 miles looking for trails that would lead him home, authorities said.

The house where he ended up using the phone is a little more than two miles, in straight-line distance, from where he wandered into the woods about 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

He was alert and smiling Monday night when he reunited with his parents, Richard Bruce, 29, and Ronda Bruce, 33, as a throng of friends, searchers and reporters looked on.

Terry said Tuesday that during the time he was lost in the desolate acreage some 15 miles southwest of Conroe, he waved "about 20 times" at Houston television station helicopters that had joined in the search. He grew frustrated when he couldn't get their attention, he said.

"I tried to keep moving on logging trails, but they kept ending or leading to other trails," he said. "Sometimes there'd be a trail here and a trail there.

But never was he scared, he said, claiming to have killed three poisonous snakes with the "snake sticks" that he picked up for protec-

Of course, the nighttime did get a trifle spooky, he admitted.

"I slept on a log," he said, "and kept hearing a noise in the bushes. I saw a bush that looked like my mama.

"Before the sun came up, there was a pine tree there that looked like my daddy with his arm stretched out. It sounded like he was saying, 'Terry,' Terry,' and then it quit.'

Terry said he sustained himself with berries but knew better than to drink the dirty waters in the creeks and gullies.

"I got thirsty enough to drink a whole gallon of anything," he said.

The boy survived the incident in good condition, except for a few bruises and shallow scratches to his arms and face.

"He had to have been scared," said his father, who spent most of the ordeal tracking the boy with the search teams.

'At one place we found his tracks where his toe prints were three feet apart for about a half mile, like he'd been running for his life,'

He said his son left just enough tracks at various sites to keep searchers confused, yet confident that he was unharmed and moving who had told him to follow a swarm of honeybees that went astray.

"I was doing a favor," Terry said, "My grandpa had given me a new bicycle, and I wanted to do some thing nice for him.'

The grandfather said he never meant for the boy to take him literally when he told him to see where the bees were going.

'It was a nice gesture, but he carried it a little too far," said Frank Bruce, 68. Terry found the wayward bees in empty hives about a mile from the house. He was going to head back to his grandpa's house, he said, when he took the wrong trail.

He'll continue to help his grandfather raise bees, he said, but never again will he chase

Sniffle — allergy season's here

By TOM SHARP

Associated Press Writer

Researchers are looking for drugs to prevent allergic reactions from starting but until they succeed, 35 million allergic Americans will just have to keep fighting the symptoms — with pills, snorts, shots and handker-

And despite advances in treatment, spring still can be a miserable time

There currently is "no way to attack the central souce and make it go away," said Gerald Vanderpool of American Allergy Consultants in Atlanta. "So basically you have to deal with it. There are ways now to keep a patient fairly comfortable. No many years ago it was a voodoo and witchcraft specialty.'

An allergic reaction is an overzealous response of the immune drowsiness, and timed-release system to an otherwise harmless substance, such as pollen, dust, penicillin or cat dandruff. The body releases powerful chemicals that cause those classic symptoms: runny nose, watery eyes, rash or, in asthma, constriction of the breathing passages. Of 35 million allergic Americans, 14.6 million suffer from hay fever, nearly 9 million have asthma and 11.8 million have eczema, hives, swelling or an allergic reaction to food, medicine or insect stings. The discovery that lifted allergy treatment from the "voodoo and witchcraft" category was immunoglobulin E, or IgE, an antibody found in much higher levels in allergic people. Antibodies fight foreign substances in the body; when IgE cells come into contact with a foreign substance, they release histamine, a chemical that causes swelling and itching. The greatest advances in treatment in recent years have been improved delivery of time-tested drugs.

A prime example is the use of steroids that can be inhaled to treat asthma, which is an allergic reaction in the lungs, said Dr. Allen Kaplan of the State University of New York at Stony Brook and president of the American Academy of Allergy and Immunology. "Administering them through inhalation gets a very concentrated dose into the lungs without significant absorption into the rest of the circulation. 'Therefore it minimizes the side effects of steroids and optimizes therapy to the lungs because you're delivering it directly. Allergy treatments have for years relied on antihistamines, which combat the chemical responsible for many allergy symptoms. Kaplan said antihistamines have advanced in two significant ways: Versions are available that do not cause capsules to be taken just once or twice a day.

"There is no question our understanding" of allergies has increased tremendously in recent years, Kaplan said. The immediate allergy symptoms are well known and are the target of most treatments, but researchers have learned only recently that there is a delayed, secondary reaction. This reaction may occur four to eight hours after the initial symptoms have died down and the stimulus has been removed, he said. "It lasts many hours and is dependent on the prior allergic reaction.

In hay fever, the main culprit is pollen, the male germ cells of many plants. The most damaging types of pollen come from trees in the spring, grass in the summer and ragweed in late summer and fall. Grass, tree and weed pollens are light and airborne. Blossoming flowers have heavy, sticky pollen, rely on insects for reproduction and aren't a problem for allergy sufferers.

When the pollen count is worst depends on location, but as a rule tree pollen starts being a problem in the South as early as February and gradually moves north. In some climates, the tree, grass and weed seasons may overlap.

Perhaps the best way to avoid pollen is to take a sea cruise, a remedy beyond the reach of most people. The American Academy of Allergy and Immunology lists several other places where one might wait out the pollen season, but it sounds like a wish list for an outdoors nut - the central Adirondacks, wooded areas of Maine, New Hampshire, northern Minnesota, extreme northern Michigan, California, and west of the Cascades in Oregon and Washington.

The desert areas of the Rocky Mountains and Hawaii, Alaska and the Caribean Islands also are relatively free of ragweed.

There are less exotic ways to control exposure to allergens: Stay inside in the early morning, when pollen tends to be worst, and on windy days. Keep the windows closed and use a filtered air conditioner. Drive with the car windows shut. Don't mow the grass, rake leaves or grow many plants indoors.

Treatments to fight the reaction itself, rather than the symptoms, also are available, and work on the same principle as any vaccination. Injections of allergens are given in increasing dosages, building the body's tolerance.

Young students learn empathy with their disabled classmates

Austin American-Statesman AUSTIN (AP) - Nine-vear-old David Wilson cooked up something special for the disability awareness program at Gullett Elementary School.

David delivered a fast-food menu card he made for the students he learned about in Sue Backhous' special education classroom.

The card contained squares with pictures of items sold at McDonald's Restaurants. The plan is for special education students to take David's card to a McDonald's and order by pointing to what they want on the card.

David conceived the menu after using a computer that enables students with multiple disabilities to create sentences on a voice synthesizer by pressing draw-

"I thought if I made a smaller one that was portable and didn't use electricity, they might be able to use it," said David.

Three of the Northwest Austin school's special education classrooms were set up recently to show students not in special education classes what it is like to have mental, visual, hearing or orthopedic disabilities. The special education students were out of the classrooms making an enchilada lunch for parent volun-

Special education teacher Janice Gaare and her colleagues planned the program to make students more comfortable with Gullett's 39 multidisabled chil-

"They are special people," Jason said.

"It's sort of like their brains don't work like ours do," said David Wilson, the third-grader who made the restaurant menu.

David understood that idea better after playing a game that showed how hard it can be for students with mental disabilities to follow instructions.

The teacher would issue simple commands, such as "Touch your head two times. Touch your shoulder," then praise the students for doing well. Then she would unleash a barrage of orders: "Touch your shoulder. Clap two times. Touch your heel. Touch your head. Stick out your tongue. Turn around. Blink.

The confused students were scolded for not paying attention.

"It was weird," said thirdgrader Ted McCloskey.

PERDIDO BEACH, Ala. (AP) — Beach mice threatened with extinction on the Central Gulf Coast have emerged from winter breeding in greater numbers, but there still aren't many of the tiny night-wandering creatures.

Scientists aren't sure what role the Choctawhatchee, Alabama and Perdido Key beach mice play in the environment; they seem to be closely associated to the growth of sea oats, but even that has not been proven.

KS

In 1986, alarmed U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologists began trapping and removing the mice from the path of condominium construction booms along the Gulf. Thirty Perdido Key mice were moved to the Gulf Islands National Seashore. The Perdido Key mice were completely eliminated from Florida during Hurricane Frederic in 1979, and the only remaining ones were on the Alabama beach.

The mice now are reported thriving in the 7-mile protected Gulf Islands preserve, said Nick Holler, a professor at Auburn University, where some pairs were taken for breeding. The Perdido Key mice were the "most threatened and probably still are," Holler said.

Some have been trapped in the Bon Secour Wildlife Refuge and Fort Morgan, both west of Gulf Shores. They are being introduced to the colony in captivity against the possibility of another hurricane wiping out the wild

The main threats to the 3-inch mice are still people walking on sand dunes where the mice burrow to live, and cats. Other predators are owls and foxes.

Other threatened or endangered species also are finding refuge in National Park Service's Gulf Islands National Seashore. said spokeswoman Suzanne Lewis. Projects there include tions of Southern Bald Eagles, Brown Pelicans and Red Wolves.

Horn Island, a wilderness barrier island in the Mississippi portion of the preserve, has been the release site for 19 young eagles since 1985. Plans call for up to 50 birds to be released this year on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Horn Island also will be the release site for a pair of Red Wolves to begin five years of research on the biology of the animals. Young wolves also will be released on the Alligator River National Wildlife Refuge in North Caro-

Join Us In Worship N THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

REST

A day of play has tired this little one, but now sleep will bring about the needed rest. This is the time for restoring energies, and breaks the day's pace. The Lord set aside a day for rest and worship. This day allows us to be in the Lord's house and renews our energies for the week to come.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: Shout for joy to the Lord, all the earth, burst into jubilant song with music; make music to the Lord with the harp, with the harp and the sound of singing, with trumpets and the blast of the ram's horn — shout for joy before the Lord the King. (Psalm 98:4-6 NIV)

I never begin to write without first starting a Christian music tape.

Although I can't prove it scripturally, I have a theory about music. I believe when Adam and Eve lost the right to perfect communion with God, God's compassion wouldn't permit Him to deprive mortals of "spirit language," so He gave to mankind the gift of music.

The exquisite graciousness of this gift reaches far beyond our capacity for appreciation. Music is our preview of Heaven and our means of expression of praise otherwise beyond our present earthly ability.

The sound of music is a universally common denominator in a world of diverse people. The very creative nature of music makes it exclusive of politics and disciplines. It emanates from fertile minds in free creative flow and etches itself on the essense of humanity.

I once heard a radio discussion in which the results of a psychological poll were given. People had been asked to list the things that are most sensual to them in the order of importance to them. Music was by far number one on the list.

The discussion started me thinking about some of my past spiritual "mountain peak" experiences; I discovered at least ninety percent of them were triggered by music. Think of the astounding potency of this God-given gift used in a godly way.

As beautiful as music is to our ears, of greater value still is our musical capacity to touch God's heart with praise. Out of God's goodness, independent of our talent or worldly endeavor, we possess the caress God craves, for He listens through a filter of love to the melody of our souls. o 1989 Charlotte Barbaree

Religion roundup

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) -Christianity "has increasingly ceased to function in any meaningful way for culture, says the Rev. Richard Land, the new executive director of the Southern Baptist Christian Life

"From this century's midpoint onward, our descent has gathered momentum," he said at his recent installation. "As we face our neo-pagan cultural milieu under the command to be sait and light, we must realize that an ability to do so successfully will be governed not only by His presence in our lives but also by the extent we surrender on a laily basis to his lordship

NEW YORK (AP) — For more than three years, the Vatican has been seeking to set firmer rules to keep Catholic colleges and universities toeing the church line sometimes to their chagrin.

That issue comes to a head when a delegation of their presidents — 18 of them — confer this week with Vatican officials and Pope John Paul II about the matter.

"We're hoping to work through some of the ambiguities that need to be resolved," said the Rev. Joseph A. O'Hare, president of New York's Fordham University.

It's among 232 Catholic institutions of higher learning in the United States, many established by religious orders, but now mostly governed by independent boards of trustees.

They insist that they uphold their Catholic identities in a broad sense, but that specifying ecclesiastical restraints would cloud academic standing and integrity.

"Church officials have every right to criticize academic teaching, but to try to apply sanctions in a university is not appropriate," O'Hare said in an interview. "It wouldn't work."

- The Vatican's Congregation for Catholic Education in 1985 first circulated its "working paper" of suggestions for bishops to require adherence of Catholic colleges and universities to various church criteria.

This stirred wide protests. Catholic educators said such control would undermine standards of academic freedom, jeopardize accreditation, block government aid and destroy many colleges.

Both their faculties and student bodies are widely interreligious, but they maintain they carry on atmosphere of open inquiry into all truth.

Responding to their protests, the Vatican last November issued a revised "working paper," the document that is under consideration at this week's meeting between university presidents and Vatican officials.

"It's a much better document, with a lot of positive things about it," says Brother Raymond L. Fitz, president of the University of Dayton, the nation's ninth largest Catholic university.

However, he added in a telephone interview, "the whole thing still needs work to define more clearly the autonomy of a Catholic university and its academic freedom."

To endanger those qualities "would be absolute disaster," he

Development of the Vatican document on higher education is seen as part of the pope's policies to tighten adherence to church positions in the face of secularized cultures.

The new draft provides that no university may have the word "Catholic" in its official title without consent of ecclesiastical authority, which is to insure Catholic doctrinal teaching and observance at the university and may intervene for grave reasons to declare it "no longer Catholic.'

The document often qualifies its requirements by saying they should be worked out on a consultative basis, and may vary according to regulations of the institutions and accepted academic practices.

The provisions enable "universities to dialogue with American bishops about the goals," said Sister Alice Gallin, secretary of the Association of Catholic Colleges and Universities, based in Washington.

"It's a more decentralized way Catholic ideals in an ecumenical of implementation.

Walk Thru the Bible to be on May 6

Those wanting to learn more about the Bible and its lands and times and have fun doing so will have an opportunity May 6 at a Walk Thru the Bible New Testament seminar.

The 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. seminar will be held at First United Methodist Church, 201 E. Foster, with Pampa area residents invited to participate in a day of challenging activities.

The seminar, taught by Walk Thru the Bible instructor Jerry Hull, will cover the 400 ''silent years'' between the Old and the New Testament periods as well as the years of Christ's ministry on Earth and the travels and teachings of the apostles.

A native of Illinois, Hull earned his associate degree in liberal arts at Joliet Junior College at Joliet, Ill. He received a bachelor of arts in Bible theology from Moody Bible Institute in Chicago and then gained his master of theology degree at Dallas Theological Seminary, majoring in Christian education. He has also worked toward a second master's degree in Christian education.

Hull's love for music and people has led him into a wide range of activities, including professional musician, assistant manager of a retail store, and junior college instructor in Texas and Illinois.

His church-related ministries have included student ministries, summer home missionary outreaches and teaching Sunday School, Bible study seminars and teacher training classes.

Presently Hull serves as pastor of Children's Ministries at Faith Bible Church in De-Soto, Texas, a suburb of Dallas.

Hull's wife, Cathy, is a fulltime mother to their infant, David Michael. She also teaches Sunday School and serves in the Awana ministry. Relaxation for the Hulls comes from a variety of interests, including music, photography and water sports.

Late registration for the seminar will begin at 8:45 a.m. Saturday, May 6, though participants are encouraged to register early by calling 669-7411 for details. The registration fee includes a notebook

The seminar will be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, followed by a break for lunch (lunch is not provided). The session will continue in the afternoon from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

A nursery will be provided. but children must be picked up for the lunch break. There will be two coffee breaks.

Shirley Windhorst, coordinator for the seminar in Pampa. said, "We are excited about this opportunity to learn more about the Holy Scriptures. After having sponsored the Walk Thru the Old Testament last year, we can truly endorse this seminar as a daylong adventure.'

The seminar uses learning participation and fun, with hand motions, group reviews and catchy phrases helping participants to retain vast amounts of Bible knowledge.

"The Walk Thru the New Testament seminar helps you . learn more about the Bible in one day than you have in years," Windhorst said. "You will travel through time and history gaining an incredible amount of Bible knowledge in six action-packed hours."

The seminar shows why the four centuries between the Old and New Testaments — filled with drama, intrigue and political struggles — are crucial to a clearer understanding of the New Testament history.

The New Testament period will include information on the location of Sychar, the miracle at Bethany, the church's first martyr, the details of Paul's missionary journeys and more.

Dr. Max Browning, pastor of First United Methodist Church, which is hosting the seminar, urged people to come and discover "that they will no longer read the life of Christ as a number of unrelated and isolated activities.'

Windhorst said the church office has 12-minute videotapes available with information on the Walk Thru the Bible seminars. She said arrangements for viewing the video may be made by calling her at the church office, 669-7411.

Christian bookstores trying to answer worldly concerns

By JOANNA HAYNES The Odessa American

ODESSA (AP) - Christian bookstores aren't restricting themselves to Bible study guides any longer.

With such issues as AIDS, homosexuality and the New Age playing prominent roles in today's news, Christian publishers have made titles available that would not have been found in any Christian bookstore five years

"Everyone's looking for answers," said James Alvis, vouth pastor and manager of the Odessa Christian Faith Center bookstore. "The government is trying one thing after another and nothing's working."

As a result, religious book sales have increased.

"One reason people are more interested in Christian books is because they go right to the source," Alvis said. "For example, with the AIDS scare going on, people are concerned with sex. God invented sex, so the Bible should know more about it than anyone, right?"

Christian publishers are aiming books toward the young adult audience. Books on sex, teen pregnancy and suicide are becoming more numerous in many Christian bookstores and church lib-

Melissa Richardson, librarian for First Baptist Church, said that, although not many teens use the library, they do check out self-help books.

"They check out books on marriage, raising children, teen suicide and teen pregnancy," she said. "They're looking for answers, too." Adults also are interested in family issues such as child raising and money management, she added. James Dobson's Focus on the Family series is very popular. So is Zig Ziglar's series, Raising Positive Kids in a Negative World, Richardson explained.

Richardson believes that secular self-help books leave the reader without some answers.

"Christian books let you know that somebody is on your side.

helping you," she said.

Ronda Davis, floor manager of The Odessa Scripture Shop, agrees about the value of Christian books. In her four years at The Scripture Shop, Davis has noticed a steady increase in book "Publishers are offering a lot more titles on different issues than they did before. Things like AIDS, abortion, homosexuality, teen-age suicide and grief are some big issues right now," she explained.

Another area that has been strengthened in many Christian bookstores is fiction. Christian romances are available, as well as fiction for both men and

"Our top seller right now is called This Present Darkness by Frank Peretti," Davis said. "Most people don't realize there is Christian fiction. They think it's all Bible study guides."

Walter Davis, assistant manager of The Scripture Shop, said people are buying more Christian books because they are becoming more spiritually aware.

"The Just Say No program is showing people that there is a problem with drugs, and they want to know how to deal with it. For so many of them it is a spiritual problem, so they look for spiritual answers.

Gospel Singing Jubilee planned

A special Gospel Singing Jubilee session will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday at Calvary Assembly of God Church, 1030

The jubilee will feature several groups from the church along with other singers from the community in an evening of gospel singing in praise to the Lord.

Rev. R.G. Tyler, pastor, said he and the congregation invite the public to attend the special evening of gospel

Calvary Baptist Church to have Crusade series Baptist Seminary.

The Crusade continues at Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd, with services scheduled Sunday. April 30, through May 3. Gary Miller will be the evangelist, with Andy Dietz as music evangelist.

Evangelistic meetings will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. daily Monday through Wednesday.

Both men are from First Baptist Church in Borger, where they led the Top O' Texas Area with 142 baptisms last year. Miller is the son of Rev. Don Miller, well-known writer and speaker on "Bible Based Praying." The presentation is now on audio and video tape and has been used extensively in this

Miller is a graduate of Baylor University and Southwestern Dietz grew up in Borger. He and twin brother Phil formed a singing duet as children, which they continued for many years through high school and college and as a profession afterwards. They were also with the famous Royalairs group for some time.

They are both still in fulltime Christian careers, Andy returning to his home church three years ago. He has led the youth of Borger to a new high in Christian commitment. They now have over 250 enrolled in various youth programs.

"Something exciting will be happening at every service,' Rev. John Denton, pastor, said. Rev. Denton said the public is welcome to attend the special

Family unit celebrated in 'Bind Us Together'

Bind Us Together, a musical created by Steve and Annie Chapman, will be presented Sunday, April 30, at 7 p.m. and Monday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. at the Briarwood Church, 1800 W. Harvester.

The musical is a celebration of THE FAMILY as the fundamental unit of life. Lion, lamb, guppies, puppies, monkeys and man all cleave to that place of beginning from which we venture out into the world.

"It is our nature to protect the family unit, and breaking its bonds always disrupts the natural order of creation. We were meant to belong to each other," the authors say.

Today, however, the family is fractured and fragmented. Prodigals hurt themselves and their families. Pressures from all parts of modern society create prodigals - prodigal children AND prodigal parents.

This musical endeavors to point out that today's families can be kept from being broken and destroyed, and those families that are hurting can be helped and healed — by the power of

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Jim Wright sent an $8,000 check this week to pay the costs of chartering a campaign airplane four years ago from an associate of the owner of a Dallas savings and loan institution.

Wright, who on Thursday lost his bid to make an early presentation of his case before the House ethics committee, said the failure to pay the bill earlier was an "oversight."

In another matter Thursday, the House ethics committee rescheduled the testimony of five Texans involved in a gas drilling venture that yielded huge profits to Wright. The five were threatened with a contempt citation if they fail to show up for a second time.

Wright's office this week filed a correction to his campaign financial report for 1985 to disclose the reimbursement. Aide Phil Duncan said he didn't ask the owner of the plane, Ken Hood, why he suddenly called this week for the money.

Wright's office was notified of the unpaid bill on Tuesday after Hood learned that the Wall Street Journal was inquiring about the matter. according to knowledgeable sources.

According to a Democratic source who spoke on condition of anonymity. Hood was an associate of Thomas Gaubert. Gaubert, owner of a Dallas savings and loan institution, arranged the charter for Wright's campaign, the source said.

The trip June 30 to July 2, 1985, included Wright, Duncan and others. The tour of seven Texas cities was in preparation for a November fundraiser, Wright's office said.

The ethics committee has decided against pursuing charges that Wright improperly lobbied federal S&L regulators to go easy on Texas thrifts, including Gaubert's.

But Wright's involvement in S&L issues has figured in the panel's determination of whether he improperly took gifts from people with a direct interest in legislation governing the industry. On Wright's request to make a personal appeal to the ethics panel, its chairman hinted strongly for the first time Thursday there will be no such opportunity until Wright appears at a disciplinary hearing expected to come late next month.

"No, there has not been an agreement reached" on a speedy hearing, said the chairman, Rep. Julian Dixon. D-Calif. "I assume he would appear at the disciplinary hearing."

At a two-hour meeting Thursday behind closed doors, the panel heard an account from Dixon and Rep. John T. Myers of Indiana of their trip early this week to San Antonio, when they were "stood up" by the participants in the gas well venture.

The panel then ratified Dixon's ruling that a subpoena for the witnesses was valid and enforceable, the chairman said. The testimony is scheduled for next week.

"Without any question, the committee lost round one, but there'll be more of this fight before it's over." said Myers, the panel's senior Republican.

The committee is seeking to wrap up loose ends in its 10-month investigation of Wright, who has been formally charged with 69 instances of violating House rules.

The charges allege that Wright, D-Texas, improperly accepted some $145,000 in gifts from a Fort Worth business partner who had a direct interest in congressional legislation and that he used bulk sales of a book he wrote to circumvent House limits on outside earned income. But before finishing its preliminary inquiry into charges against Wright, the panel wants to know whether a gas well that produced a financial bonanza to the speaker's blind trust amounted to a gift from people with an interest in legislation. Part of the inquiry also will focus on whether Wright's blind trust, which the ethics committee approved when the trust was established in 1987, was truly insulated from Wright.

Mallightco, an investment partnership of Fort Worth real estate developer George Mallick, and their wives, turned a $9,120 cash investment into a $340,000 profit in one day last May, boosting the value of the partnership just a month before Wright's blind trust sold its interest. The amount of money involved aroused the curiosity of the ethics panel, and subpoenas were issued for San Antonio financier Morris Jaffe, his son M.D. (Doug) Jaffe, and three others involved in the transaction.

The five failed to show up Tuesday for a scheduled interview at a San Antonio hotel. Stanley Brand, their Washington lawyer, argued in a letter that the subpoenas were too broad, violated his clients' right to privacy and were irrelevant to the ethics panel's inquiry.

SELLING YOUR HOUSE

By Jannie Lewis
MILLION DOLLAR PRODUCER

TRACK RECORD

When you're ready to put your home on the market, who's going to sell it? Most people ask friends for commendations. What kind of service did you get? Were you satisfied? Would you list with them again?

Real estate brokers do pretty much the same job. We price the property, adver-tise it and show it. Prospective buyers are qualified be-fore they're shown a house: what do they want, what can they afford? The agent works for the seller as advisor, sales representative, and negotiator, too.

Then why do your friends recommend one broker and not another? Because of results. Other brokers may promise over-the-market prices, or parade large numbers of "shoppers" through a house-for-sale — but the seller is better off with the agent who brings one or two top prospects and price. We're proud of our track record, and our frequent referrals.

Ask your friends. Then list

tizens, students burst into Beijing square, defying rally ban

By JOHN POMFRET Associated Press Writer

BEIJING (AP) - More than 150,000 students and supporters of their pro-democracy campaign burst past a police line Thursday afternoon and triumphantly filled Tiananmen Square, defying communist leaders' threat of a crackdown.

"We have created history today. History will not forget us. The people will not forget us," a student leader shouted through a megaphone to students in the 100acre square, China's symbolic seat of power.

Trucks filled with soldiers circled the square to act as a barricade, but marchers swarmed onto the trucks.

They shouted "Welcome 38th Army!" and handed out leaflets to soldiers explaining their demands for sweepings changes in China's autocratic system, including press freedom and accountability of the country's leaders.

The trucks were immobilized by the mob, and within minutes the vast square was turned into a sea of waving white-and-red student banners and protesters chanted pro-reform slogans.

The students did not try to occupy the square but continued their march down Changan Boulevard, the capital's main thoroughfare. They then headed ing they had scored a victory by reaching the square.

While the march was going on, the government partially acceded to the students' demand for dialogue, saying it was ready to hold talks with them "at any

But the statement said talks would have to be conducted through official student organizations, which the protesters have condemning student-generated 'turmoil.'

The 1966-76 Cultural Revolution was a leftist campaign that turned into near civil war.

The Communist Party and Beijing government on Wednesday issued stern warnings that the student protests, now in their 11th day, are illegal and further street demonstrations would be campuses in northwest Beijing to the center of the city.

When three truckloads of armed police pulled up at one intersection, they were surrounded by a crowd shouting "People love the people's police, the people's police love people.'

By the time the students reached the square, more than eight hours after the march began, they were far outnumbered by workers and residents who joined them, and the soldiers who had been guarding the square faded out of sight.

Thousands of people had leaned out of windows and cheered as the marchers surged Kindergarten children stood at the gate of their school and applauded, and patients wearing bathrobes emerged from a hospital to accept pamphlets the students were handing out.

A sea of red and white banners calling for democracy, human rights, and an end to corruption and bureaucracy were visible in the crowd.

Students with arms linked sang the national anthem and shouted "Long live democracy."

Others shouted "Down with bureaucracy, down with corrup-

The Beijing city government has declared the protests illegal. On Wednesday, Beijing Communist Party Secretary Li Ximing told a special meeting of 10,000 party officials, "We must firmly stop such riots."

Earlier, loudspeakers at Beijing University appealed to the students "to think what kind of problems will arise if you leave effect this will have on your family and parents."

The students have called for Premier Li Peng to resign and say senior leader Deng Xiaoping, 84, is too old to rule. But most say their campaign is not antigovernment.

They have appealed for free speech and press, an end to rampant corruption in government the university. Think what kind of and more funding for education.
