New Red Cross director ready to increase volunteer base here

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Katie Fairweather has come to work ready to put Pampa to work for the American Red Cross.

Fairweather, 32, has recently been named director of the Gray County chapter of the American Red Cross, replacing Joyce Roberts, who is retiring after 13 years.

A longtime resident of Amarillo with an extensive background in Red Cross volunteer work, Fairweather says she plans to increase the local chapter's volunteer base and at the same time increase the services provided by the organization.

"I have met quite a few people here and it seems everybody is friendly and willing to help as long as they have something to do," Fairweather said. "I can always find something for them to do."

Although not a coffee drinker herself, Fairweather says she makes coffee every morning and invites the public to come in and drink it for her. "And maybe while they're here I can find them something to do," she adds with a grin.

"I've already told the guys from the fire department if they'll come in and instruct some classes for me, I'll even buy doughnuts," she continues.

Fairweather says she first wants to increase the Red Cross' already successful safety program which includes First Aid and CPR classes and several levels of water safety courses.

"I want to train as many new instructors as possible so we won't use the same instructors all the time and burn them out," she explains.

"The Red Cross is offering a lot of courses, and I'd like to see if we can get them all filled up," she says.

"I plan to recruit volunteers as I can and place them so I'll have assistance," she says. "I haven't lived here so I don't have the contacts. I want to build a pool of volunteers so I do have contacts."

"Anyone who comes down here, any age, I'll find them something to do," she adds.

"I'm real interested in youth volunteers," she says, explaining that while in Amarillo she enjoyed working with young people through the Civil Air Patrol Cadets for two years, in addition to supervising swimming programs at the North Branch and Central YMCAs in Amarillo.

"I need for them to work at the nursing homes, at the hospital and to help me in the office," Fairweather says.

Another plan Fairweather intends to carry out is to form disaster action teams to handle single fires and disaster situations in Gray, Roberts, Hemphill, Collingsworth and part of Carson County, all covered by the Pampa Red Cross chapter.

"It's a big area," she says. "I need to set up teams of people who can handle emergencies and disasters, who will be first on the scene. If they need training, I'll be glad to arrange it."

Born and raised in Owego,

N.Y., Fairweather moved to Amarillo 15 years ago. She and her husband, Guy, a guard at Pantex, have two children, Morgan, 6, and Emily, 2.

Although Fairweather admits to being a Yankee herself and although her husband is a Notre Dame graduate, she contends she has two "very Texan children."

She attended Amarillo College two years majoring in psychology. She has received training as an air traffic control specialist, volunteer coordinator, aquatic programs manager, day camp coordinator and program publicity specialist.

Fairweather has served as director of health, safety, nursing and youth programs for the Greater Amarillo chapter of the American Red Cross.

Her volunteer work includes serving as a water safety instructor for 10 years and as a member of the Learn-to-Swim committee 10 years — serving as chairman for five years.

She has served on the Civil Air Patrol for three years acting as deputy commander for the Cadets for two years. She supervised aquatic programs at two Amarillo YMCA's, taught Water Safety Instructors' classes and served as a volunteer consultant and personnel recruiter for five area pools.

Fairweather has also volunteered for the Amarillo Y baseball program and Potter-Randall Emergency Management and is a charter member of the Top of Texas Y's Men.

Bush challenges Soviets to tear down Berlin Wall

By TERENCE HUNT
AP White House Correspondent

MAINZ, West Germany (AP) — President Bush today challenged the Soviet Union to bury the Cold War by ending the division of Europe, starting by tearing down the Berlin Wall. "Let Europe be whole and free," he declared.

In a major speech clearly aimed at Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the president said popular demands for democratic reforms are sweeping through the communist world, forcing a re-examination of Cold War fears and security precautions.

"The world has waited long enough," said Bush, who plans to visit Poland and Hungary in July. "The time is right. Let Europe be whole and free." "The Cold War," he said, "began with the division of Europe. It can only end when Europe is whole."

Triumphant after his debut at the NATO summit in Brussels, Belgium, the president made his comments in a speech prepared for delivery in the Rhine River city of Mainz before an audience in Rheingoldhalle, the main meeting hall here.

It was his first and only major address during a week-long trip to Italy, Belgium, Germany and Britain. After today's speech and a cruise down the Rhine River, Bush headed for London for talks with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

The central theme of the Mainz speech was a call for freedom and democracy for all of Europe.

"In the East, brave men and women are showing us the way," Bush said. "Look at Poland, where Solidarity and the Catholic Church have won legal status. The forces of freedom are putting the Soviet status quo on the defensive."

"In the West, we have succeeded because we have been faithful to our values and our vision. But, on the other side of the rusting Iron Curtain, their vision failed."

City Commission delays action on Bell Telephone rate dispute

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

A special meeting of the Pampa City Commission at City Hall Tuesday night was cut short when City Manager Jack Chaney did not have information needed to carry on a discussion regarding the city intervening in a Southwestern Bell rate case with the Public Utilities Commission.

City Attorney Don Lane brought forward a motion to the commission encouraging them to intervene in a dispute between Bell and the PUC in which the phone company is accused of overcharging customers by $90 million.

Lane said 25 cities from around Texas, ranging in size from huge metropolitan areas like Dallas to smaller cities the size of Pampa, have already come forward and asked for intervenor status in the hearing.

"Twenty-five cities, MCI, Claydesta and Sprint have intervened," Lane told commissioners, saying those already in-franchise agreement with Bell by joining the suit. Hupp asked Chaney if the two items were associated in any way.

Chaney responded by saying he believed the $65,000 offer was only valid if the city accepted the Texas First plan, something commissioners have thus far opposed.

Hupp said he would not support any measure to intervene that would hurt the city's franchise offer, and Chaney said he would have to look into the matter further.

Lane told commissioners it was his belief that "we ought to get fair and reasonable rates if our citizens are overcharged."

Immediately after the meeting, Chaney was made aware by several city staff members that the franchise agreement and the opportunity to intervene on behalf of local citizens in a rate hearing were not attached in any way.

Following the meeting, two commissioners complained that

Special Olympics participants honored with banquet at First Christian Church

By DAVID GOODE
Staff Writer

More than 70 athletes and parents attended the annual Special Olympics honors banquet Tuesday at the First Christian Church honoring all the Pampa youth and adult area and state Special Olympics participants.

Gary Carr was presented the Tony Thompson Fighting Heart Award for athleticism, determination and courage concerning his participation in Special Olympics. He received the award by votes from his peers and a panel of judges.

The Pampa Hustler and Harvester teams were both recognized at the banquet as state champion teams at the Special Olympics state meet held at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos this year.

Pampa athletes also participated in bowling and track and field events.

All Pampa adult athletes from the Pampa Sheltered Workshop qualified for state by placing first, second or third at the area meets, according to Jane Goode, Pampa Special Olympics coach.

Parents, youth athletes and coaches were given special appreciation awards. All adult athletes from the Pampa Sheltered Workshop who went to the Texas Special Olympics were also recognized with awards.

Ruth Durkee, Pampa Sheltered Workshop director, said Pampa athletes attended their first area adult Special Olympics meets in 1971. The Pampa youth division has been actively involved in Special Olympics since 1975.

Xi Beta Chi, Xi Phi Alpha and Preceptor Theta Iota, all chapters of Beta Sigma Phi, donated the banquet meal and decorations.

First Red Deer Creek watershed structure to be dedicated

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

MIAMI — Twenty-three years after studies were begun, the first of 14 watershed structures on Red Deer Creek is ready for dedication.

Dedication ceremonies for Site 14 are set for 2 p.m. Friday at the watershed dam 1.5 miles north of Miami, said Troy Manley of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. A reception will be held in the Miami Community Center immediately afterwards, he said.

Representatives of the Roberts County Soil and Water Conservation District, Roberts County commissioners and the Soil Conservation Service are to briefly discuss the history of the watershed project and the Small Watershed program administered by the Soil Conservation Service, he said.

Future construction plans in the Red Deer Creek Watershed will also be discussed, he said.

State Reps. Warren Chisum of Pampa and Dick Waterfield of Canadian and State Sen. Teel Bivins have been invited to attend the dedication ceremonies, Manley said. "But we don't know 'til that day whether they'll be there or not," he said.

Representatives of Congressman Bill Sarpalius and U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm are also scheduled to attend, he said.

J.T. Webb, Roberts County judge, is to give the introduction and opening remarks, followed by the watershed history presented by Don Morrison, local landowner and district director for the Roberts County SWCD. Wes Oneth of Temple, state conservationist, is to speak on the small watersheds of Texas.

Red Deer Creek Watershed begins approximately 6 miles west of Pampa in Gray County and runs northeast 45 miles through Roberts County to the Canadian River at Canadian in Hemphill County.

The watershed encompasses 206,300 acres and 45,000 acres of cropland, and 154,000 acres is open range, meadow and creek channel. More than 7,000 acres is urban areas, roads and railroads.

Primary purpose for the watershed project is to control flood damage along the creek. Several miles of Panhandle and Santa Fe Railroad track is affected by floods in the area, as are four railroad bridges. Also affected are two county bridges and two highway bridges, two of which have been washed out since 1941.

Flood damage to homes in Miami have also been countered. Approximately 4,500 acres of meadowland have been destroyed and is now sandy creekbed. Several hundred acres of meadowland and rangeland are also subject to flooding and damage, according to SCS reports.

A field examination report completed in September 1965 showed that the flooding and erosion problems could be solved by a series of flood prevention structures on the Red Deer Creek Watershed.

Contract for the construction of Site 14, the first of the watershed dams, was awarded to Dixon Paying Co. of Belton in October 1968 for $697,000, Manley said. Construction should be completed in June, with the mixing and placing of soil cement on the front slope of the structure, seeding and mulching of surrounding areas and fencing remaining, he said.

"I wish we were further along than we are now, but it is moving," Manley said. A site south of Miami is the next structure scheduled for construction, he said. Work on the project will begin in 1990, he said.

South was transported from Miami to Pampa by Rural/Metro Ambulance following an accident in Miami. Miami Ambulance transported South to Coronado Hospital in Pampa, with Rural/Metro later transferring South to Amarillo for treatment.

Wright can maintain stronghold as congressman despite probe

By MARK GODICH
Associated Press Writer

Even if a House Ethics Committee investigation prompts House Speaker Jim Wright to resign his leadership role, the Fort Worth Democrat still would be an unstoppable congressional candidate as far as Republicans are concerned.

“Jim Wright was elected 34 years ago when Texas was a Democratic state,” said Steve Hollern, GOP chairman in Wright's home district of Tarrant County. “His influence over the years has continued to grow. He's able to attract some Republican-leaning voters.”

In recent years, Wright's home district — once staunchly Democratic — has elected two Republican presidents, a Republican governor and a Republican senator. But Wright never has feared Republican opposition. Wright was elected to the House in 1954, and in the 15 general elections since 1960 he has run unopposed seven times. In the eight other elections, he won an average 68 percent of the vote. The last time the Republicans were even close was in 1980, when

Larry Milner to speak at chamber's breakfast

The Governmental Affairs Committee of the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce will be hosting an “Eggs and Issues” breakfast at 6:45 a.m. Friday in the Starlight Room at Coronado Inn.

Larry Milner, executive director of the Texas State Chamber of Commerce, will be the guest speaker. Milner will be speaking on the Fort Worth businessman Jim Bradshaw garnered 39 percent of the vote. But last year, after the ethics probe began, no Republican faced Wright in his reelection bid.

“As a county chairman, my position would be, ‘Why would we want to go out and run a candidate if we (only) can jump from 31 to, say, 38 percent?’” Hollern said.

Now with the House Ethics Committee investigation stealing headlines, even Wright's colleagues are indicating the speaker may step down.

Wright is being investigated for 69 violations of House rules. He said Tuesday he would announce this week whether he intends to resign.

But while Texas politicians already are speculating about who could replace Wright, it's unlikely anyone could beat Wright for the 12th Congressional District, Hollern said.

“I think if Jim Wright decides not to stay in Congress ... the whole ball game changes,” Hollern said Tuesday. “If he stays there, I don't think we can beat him.”

Hollern said that until Wright issue of workman's compensation, which will be the subject of a special called session of the Texas Legislature beginning June 20.

The meeting is open to the public. Sweet rolls, coffee and juice will be served for a cost of $3 per person. Reservations can be made by calling the chamber office at 669-3241.

County to discuss pay raises

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Gray County commissioners are to consider a pay raise for all county employees with the exception of officeholders during their regular meeting beginning at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in the second floor courtroom of Gray County Courthouse. Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright has asked that commissioners consider a pay raise for county employees, said Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy. He said the pay raise, if approved, would go into effect during this calendar year.

Once again the county jail issue is to be discussed at the commissioner's meeting. Wayne Gondeck, jail planner with the Texas Commission on Jail Standards in Austin, was to be in Pampa today and tomorrow. Kennedy said Gondeck is expected to be present at the meeting also.

“We plan to get through the nine items as quickly as possible so we can spend most of the morning talking about the jail with Mr. Gondeck,” Kennedy said.

Other items listed on the agenda for the meeting include consideration of amendments to the District Attorney's and Sheriff's offices budgets, plus the possible transfer of funds to pay for juvenile detention. A recent murder case involving two juveniles, ages 13 and 14, left Gray County responsible for the expenses incurred in keeping the two teens in the Amarillo Juvenile Detention Center.

“The bill is substantial, and naturally we didn't budget anywhere near enough to pay for it,” Kennedy said. “We have to pay for it. So the question is where the funds will come from.”

Also to be considered at the meeting will be a resolution concerning Section 89 of the IRS Code. County Treasurer Scott Hahn asked the commissioners to review this provision in the IRS Code, Kennedy said, which deals with benefits to employees and discrimination.

“I don't feel we have a problem with this,” the county judge said. “Sometimes you find yourself in a trap before you even know you're out in the woods.”

Also listed on the agenda are a request to change a hangar lease at Perry Lefors field from business to private and a request to adjust the airport budget.

Routine matters to be covered in the meeting include payment of salaries and bills and any transfer of funds recommended by the county auditor.

Yeltsin proposes radical changes to lessen Communist Party power

By ANDREW KATELL
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP)—Boris N. Yeltsin charged today that the Soviet people are worse off now than they were before Mikhail S. Gorbachev's reforms, and he said the president has accumulated so much power there is danger of a dictatorship.

The former Moscow party boss proposed radical changes that would take control of Soviet society away from the 20-million-member Communist Party and make the party subservient to the newly elected Congress of People's Deputies, on which Yeltsin serves.

“His proposals also would require the president to submit to an annual nationwide referendum on his performance.”

In another challenge to traditional Soviet power, the president of the Latvian republic, Anatoly V. Gorbunov, proposed making the Soviet Union's 15 republics sovereign states that could decide what functions to give the Kremlin. Gorbachev, sitting erect on the dais at Yeltsin's back, kept a stoic face throughout the speech, scanning the Congress hall for the deputies' reaction. Gorbunov — like Yeltsin a Gorbachev protege — said the republics should be given power over their own resources and “full state authority.”

Latvia's sister Baltic state, Estonia, declared itself sovereign last fall, with the right to overturn Soviet laws on its territory. The third Baltic state, Lithuania, followed Estonia's lead two weeks ago.

“The promised program and the promises of the past four years have not been met,” Yeltsin said in his first nationally televised speech as a parliamentarian. “People live worse ... the leadership knows that.” He said he held Gorbachev responsible. Yeltsin said the Soviet leader had been given “extraordinary powers” in the political overhaul that created the Congress, and he suggested Gorbachev might be tempted, as past Kremlin chiefs have, to abuse his power.

Gorbachev, obviously sensitive to such charges, promised Congress before he was elected last week that he never would take advantage of the increased power of the presidency. But Yeltsin warned, “We can again be ... under a new totalitarian regime, under a new dictatorship.” Yeltsin, fired from his job as Moscow party chief in 1987 for criticizing the pace of Gorbachev's reforms, called on Congress to abolish “all unlawful privileges for the Nomenklatura — yes, and in general, strike this word from our lexicon.” “Nomenklatura” refers to the party and government elite, who receive special privileges as a result of their positions or those of their families. He also proposed making medicines and mass transit free for invalids and tens of millions of poor Soviets.

“I don't understand why he (Chaney) didn't have that information. Other city staff knew it. Now we have to wait to move on this, when we could have voted on it one way or the other,” one commissioner stated.

The other commissioner stated, “I really don't want to air this thing in public, but I'm just not real happy that the city manager is so unprepared.”

In other business, commissioners unanimously voted on second and final reading to accept the proposed rate decrease offered by SPS. The motion passed without opposition.

“I don't think you're going to find anyone disagreeing with this,” Hupp said.

The meeting began with the swearing in of new Ward 2 Commissioner Jerry Wilson. Wilson was appointed to the commission to fill the vacancy left when Richard Peet defeated David McDaniel for mayor on May 6.

His speech came on the sixth day of the new Congress' inaugural session. The 17-minute speech was occasionally interrupted by not particularly enthusiastic applause.

Members of the party's ruling Politburo were among those who did not clap.

On Thursday, the Congress elected Gorbachev, who is also the Communist Party chief, to a five-year term as president.

Yeltsin proposed that Gorbachev be subject to a nationwide vote of confidence each year.

Pregnancy clinic vows to press ahead despite court ruling

FORT WORTH (AP)—A federal lawsuit against a Fort Worth clinic was more an issue of deceptive trade practices than abortion, a pro-choice advocate says.

But clinic workers said they will continue to do work "to save those babies" after the U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday refused to lift the strict advertising limits imposed on the Problem Pregnancy Center in Fort Worth.

The agency, a counseling center authorities called a "fake abortion clinic," is run by anti-abortion activists.

Without comment, the justices let stand rulings that ads run by the Problem Pregnancy Center in Fort Worth violated a state law banning deceptive trade practices.

The center, which is run by the charitable corporation Mother and Unborn Baby Care of North Texas Inc., advertised under abortion clinic headings and used staffers dressed like medical personnel to greet women, who then were shown anti-abortion films and counseled against having an abortion.

Lawyers for the center had argued that the state deceptive-practices law should not apply because the center receives no money for services it provides.

But Phyllis Dunham, executive director of the Austin-based Texas Abortion Rights Action League, called the center's actions "terroristic, evasive and tyrannical. That kind of behavior is inexcusable and we're delighted it was upheld. There are many, many bogus clinics operating every day that are about giving one choice to women."

In 1986, a state court jury ordered the center and clinic director Charles J. Pelletier to include prominently in all future ads that the center is not an abortion clinic and does not provide abortion referrals or medical services.

The jury also imposed $39,000 in civil fines and ordered the center's corporate operator and Pelletier to pay $49,025 in attorneys fees incurred by the state. A state appeals court upheld the jury verdict and the Texas Supreme Court refused to review the case.

State Assistant Attorney General Stephen Gardner urged the justices to reject what he said was a request for "a constitutional right to lie to pregnant women, to entice them into a fake abortion clinic" where they are urged to continue their pregnancy.

Pelletier placed ads in the Fort Worth Yellow Pages under the heading "Abortion Information and Services," but Pelletier said Tuesday that was the only heading provided by the Yellow Pages.

Publishers of the Southwestern Bell Yellow Pages instituted a policy separating anti-abortion centers and clinics that offer abortions under different headings on March 18, 1985, said Don Fisher, Yellow Pages spokesman. Fisher said he did not know when the separate headings began appearing in directories.

The initial suit against Mother and Unborn Baby Care was filed in March 1985.

"Really this one is not so much of an abortion issue as a consumer issue," Dunham said. "It's simply not OK to put hamburgers on a picture outside and serve hot dogs instead."

"The ads are set up to look like an abortion clinic, everything about them is about an abortion clinic," Dunham said.

But Pelletier disagreed. "All our ads said is what we did do," Pelletier said. "The fact that we didn't say that we don't do abortions is what they got us on."

Pelletier said he was following his Roman Catholic faith by enticing trouble women to the clinic for free counseling.

"This has to do with the killing of babies and our attempts to save those babies," he said. "We're doing the best we can and for those who are trying to oppose God's will, no matter what language they want to use, for all these babies they have caused to go to their death, by action or inaction, may God have mercy on their souls."

State Attorney General Jim Mattox, whose office enforces the deceptive trade practices law, said he was pleased with the Supreme Court's decision and believed it strengthened the Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

"I think the ruling was appropriate," Mattox said. "When we started out we were not attempting to be involved in the abortion issue; we simply did not like their deceptive trade practices."

"We do not believe anyone can engage in deceptive trade practices on behalf of God or anyone else," he said.

Pelletier disputed Mattox's statement. "We're saving babies and (Mattox) doesn't want us doing it," Pelletier said.

During a seven-month period in 1986, more than 1,000 women went to the center, most of them then considering an abortion.

According to the state appeals court, the women generally were given a free pregnancy test. While waiting for the results, they were taken into a room to see slides and a videotape showing graphic pictures of abortion procedures.

Counselors, including Pelletier, then attempted to persuade the women not to abort their pregnancies, according to the state court.

Edwards, center, holds news conference Tuesday to discuss plans for candidacy.

Comptroller Bullock, Sen. Edwards to run for lieutenant governor

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller Bob Bullock says 17 of state Sen. Chet Edwards' 22 Democratic colleagues endorse Bullock for lieutenant governor. Edwards says endorsements of elected officials don't win elections.

Bullock on Tuesday also released a list of 63 of the 91 Democratic House members who favor Bullock for the 1990 Democratic nomination to succeed Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who has said he will not seek re-election.

Edwards, who has not formally announced for lieutenant governor but insists he has "every intention" of doing so, said, "I've never been the insider's choice. I'm not going to be the insider's choice."

Bullock and Edwards both held news conferences Tuesday in what could be a preview of contrasting styles in the race for lieutenant governor.

After the senators had endorsed Bullock, Edwards, D-Duncanville, released a list of 67 "voters and taxpayers' supporting him."

Three senators spoke on Bullock's behalf, three non-legislators for Edwards.

Bullock, who announced 19 months ago for lieutenant governor, said in presenting the Senate endorsements, "This is the greatest day of my life."

"The Legislature is where the action is. I love the Legislature," he said.

Edwards said, "Every vote counts the same, and every person is just as important as any other person."

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said "the state budget is the whole ball game in getting services to people and in serving people and responding to their needs and what they want. And there is no one in state government holding any office that knows more about the state budget process... and how we can raise revenue" than Bullock.

Ruby Hawk of Austin, who Edwards said is retired, called the senator "a person who isn't afraid to tackle a hard job."

Sens. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, and John Montford, D-Lubbock, also praised Bullock, with Montford saying Bullock has a "total grasp of the business of state government."

"This is no time to dilly-dally, this is no time to be wishy-washy," Montford said. "We've got a lot of things going for us. Let's don't lose this momentum."

DeValyn Davis of Fort Worth, chairperson emeritus of the Texas Coalition of Black Democrats, said Edwards is "one of the brightest stars in Texas government."

"Edwards said, 'I can't tell you how many senators... who said they're afraid if they don't support Bob Bullock and he's elected lieutenant governor, they may find themselves without a district. It's exactly that kind of politics of fear and intimidation I think that we need to get away from in Texas.'"

Hearing held in weapons sale case

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A U.S. Customs agent testified that a Canadian couple and a Swedish man told him he would earn more money than he could ever spend if he helped them illegally export more than $600 million in U.S. military equipment to Iran.

The second day of a detention hearing was scheduled to resume today before federal Magistrate Eduardo E. de Ases.

Purpose of the hearing was to evaluate the government's evidence against Ronald Hilton Arab and Eileen Arab, both 52, of Vancouver, British Columbia, and Erik Nissen, 62, of Norrköping, Sweden, and determine whether bond should be set.

The Customs agent, Alonzo Pena, testified Tuesday that in negotiations the defendants represented that profits in their arms smuggling operation "were almost immeasurable and couldn't ever be spent. That's how much money was available for my participation."

As he was led from the courtroom in handcuffs Tuesday, Nissen said he was pessimistic about the outcome of the hearing.

"It doesn't look so good, but we will have to see after tomorrow," he said.

Pena said Nissen represented that he had official government contacts in Iran and could find markets for as much as $600 million worth of military aircraft, aircraft parts and weapons.

The agent also testified that Nissen described the first transaction as a test of his ability to deliver military hardware to Iran, which cannot legally obtain such items from the United States.

"He said he was being put to the test by Iran... to prove that he could supply military equipment," Pena said.

The three defendants were arrested on Thursday of last week and charged with violating the Arms Export Control Act, with money laundering and with conspiracy.

They are believed to be part of a larger organization and to have negotiated to buy weapons and military equipment from undercover agents, said Marvin Milner, Customs agent-in-charge in Corpus Christi.

Milner said Nissen and Arab came to Corpus Christi in February to inspect two 106mm recoilless rifles, then gave undercover agents a "shopping list" of weapons that included C-130 aircraft parts, attack helicopters, rifles and ammunition, F5B trainer jets, F5E fighters and spare parts for F14 and F4 Phantom jets.

Authorities said they set up a sting dubbed "Gulf Breeze" in which the three suspects were to bring vans and containers to Rockport, where the agents would load military supplies and send them to Canada by truck, using false cargo documents. Milner said the material was to be sent on commercial cargo flights to Luxembourg, then to Iran.

Milner said the group gave the agents $50,000 in good faith money and demonstrated they could come up with the rest.

The only items shipped to Iran were 13 heaters, worth $1,400 each, used in urinals aboard F4C fighters, he said.

Although agents had hoped the three would lead them to other conspirators, they were forced to cut short the investigation.

Pena and other Customs agents opened a phony business in June 1987 at the Corpus Christi International Airport, called "Plane Things Inc." to buy, sell, trade and modify aircraft in an attempt to lure drug dealers.

Wright keeps his own counsel amid pressure for resignation

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright won't say if he'll resign over ethics charges, but even one of his staunch defenders acknowledges the pressure to quit appears overwhelming.

"I believe it's probably too late to change things in his favor," Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, said Tuesday. Although "justice would be served by following the game to the end," Wilson said he expected his friend to step down this week because of the political pressure.

The heat continued as CBS and The Washington Post, quoting unidentified sources, said the Justice Department's public integrity section was launching a "preliminary criminal investigation" of Wright. Justice Department sources have previously said the department was monitoring ethics proceedings against Wright but had not decided on a probe of its own.

Sources also told those two news organizations and The Associated Press the FBI is looking into allegations of payroll padding on the staff of Rep. William H. Gray III of Pennsylvania, the fourth-ranking Democrat in the House.

Gray, currently vying to move up in the House leadership, said after CBS broke the story Tuesday that it was an "outrageous lie." He said he was questioned by FBI agents Monday but said he was not the subject of an investigation.

The Justice Department declined comment on the report.

After spending the holiday weekend in seclusion, Wright told reporters Tuesday, "I think I know what I should do" and that he would have a statement "before the week's out."

The timing of Wright's announcement, if it comes, could be affected by the death Tuesday of Rep. Claude Pepper. The House legislative schedule was being truncated to accommodate the state funeral on Thursday for Pepper, who was the oldest member of Congress.

Not waiting for Wright's final decision, some of his own lieutenants are scrambling to move up in the ranks. The pressure on Wright and the power game were made all the more intense by the announcement last weekend that Rep. Tony Coelho of California, the House Democratic whip, would be resigning. Coelho's resignation followed reports he earned nearly $7,000 from a junk bond investment for which he never had to put up any of his own money.

"It is in the best interests of the institution and the Democratic Party to get this mess behind us," said Rep. Jim Slattery, D-Kan. "Regrettably, that involves the resignation of the speaker."

Wright was charged last month by the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct with violating House rules in 69 instances.

The most serious of those involve allegedly accepting improper gifts — including a no-work job for his wife — from a developer friend, and circumventing House rules on outside income through bulk sales of his book Reflections of a Public Man. The speaker has repeatedly insisted that he broke no House rules or any laws, and he has vowed to fight for the honor of his wife, whom he contends earned her pay.

The ethics committee was scheduled to meet Thursday to consider Wright's motion to dismiss those charges. "I'm convinced our motions are legally well grounded," he said Tuesday.

Wilson said he agreed with the speaker's case, but "nervous members" who fear Wright's problems could be turned into an issue against all Democrats would increase pressure on him if he didn't resign.

"Jim Wright is the victim of a perception of political deterioration that has occurred over the country," Wilson said. In addition, because Coelho's resignation was viewed by other lawmakers as a selfless act, it limited Wright's options and "created more pressure" on Wright, Wilson said.

Another factor adding pressure on Wright was a continuing ethics committee probe into areas not covered by its original set of charges.

Rep. John T. Myers of Indiana, the senior Republican on the committee, said in answer to a question Tuesday that it might expand its investigation into Wright's investment in a gas well drilling venture and a deal involving a nursing home company.

"It's possible we could vote for a preliminary inquiry on those two issues," Myers said.

House Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley, in line to succeed Wright if he falls, said Tuesday he did not know Wright's plans.

14 missing in Marine copter crash

TOKYO (AP) — A U.S. Marine helicopter crashed upside down into the sea during night training exercises off Okinawa, and 14 Marines were missing today and feared dead, U.S. military spokesmen said.

Authorities said eight other Marines on board the CH-46 Sea King helicopter, based in Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, were rescued shortly after the 11:55 p.m. crash Tuesday about 30 miles south of Okinawa's Kadema Air Force base.

The names of the missing were withheld pending notification of next of kin, the Navy said. The cause of the accident was under investigation.

The Sea Knight helicopter had just taken off from the USS Denver, said Marine Master Sgt.

Jake Rodrigues, spokesman for U.S. Forces, Japan.

Rodrigues said the helicopter, built in 1967, was carrying a crew of four and 18 soldiers assigned to the 2nd Battalion, 3rd Marine Regiment, Okinawa, for six months' training as part of a unit-rotation program.

In Washington, Marine Corps spokesman Lt. Col. Fred Peck said the helicopter "pitched over to the right and went into the water inverted, upside down. I have nothing to indicate why it did that."

Peck said the four injured men were being treated aboard the Denver, an amphibious transport vessel designed for amphibious assaults and capable of carrying up to six CH-46 helicopters.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Government tries a Yugo economy

The news was disappointing, but not unexpected, to anyone who fills up a gas tank. Inflation rose 0.7 percent in April, an 8.2-percent annual rate; and gas prices jumped the most on record, 11.4 percent. There is a difference between a short-term blip, caused by a specific thing — OPEC production cuts — like a gas-price rise, and long-term inflation. A blip eventually evens out.

Are we in for long-term inflation? Well, the country has suffered 5.1-percent inflation over the past 12 months, up a bit from the 4.4-percent rates of both 1987 and 1988. Given current government policy, it could stay at that level.

Inflation means too few goods chasing too many dollars. In other words, the government prints too much money. Money is a commodity: The more you produce, the lower its value. In the past, this problem was avoided by tying paper money to some stable substance, such as gold. This isolated currencies from the manipulations of politicians. The dollar of 1900 was worth the exact same amount as the dollar of 1800. Zero inflation for 100 years.

Why would politicians want to play with money, as they have since we deserted the gold standard in 1913? Because it makes them look good. A politician might say, "During my glorious rule, your wages have doubled." Sounds good. But if the cost of things has also doubled, the wage hike means nothing.

This seems basic, but one of the most influential economists of the century, John Maynard Keynes, based his economic theories on the assumption that governments could inflate currencies, and so cheat people, before the swindle was uncovered. This was supposed to allow governments to spend all that extra printed money to reduce unemployment.

It didn't work, as the Keynesian stagflation of the 1970s proved. Alas, the Bush administration is populated by so-called "conservative" Keynesians. Maybe we shouldn't be surprised that inflation is rising now.

The solution? Money should be again based on something solid and beyond the manipulation of politicians. Nobel economics laureate Friedrich Hayek has suggested that money be privatized. Private banks would issue their own currencies, based on what they thought was the most stable thing available, probably gold.

Since money is really just a commodity like any other, this makes sense. We shouldn't let government print money any more than we let it print newspapers or stamp out cars. When government produces cars, you get the Yugo. When it prints money, you get inflation.

Congress needs a tidal wave

WASHINGTON — There may have been times — who can say with certainty? — when the U.S. Congress was held in lower esteem than it is held today, but there cannot have been many such times. Today's question is what, if anything, can be done about it?

The criticism, ranging beyond mere criticism to outright contempt, focuses chiefly upon the House. The speaker stands charged with at least 69 violations of the chamber's rules of ethical conduct. The majority whip is in trouble with a book promotion scheme. Another member was tried for something close to statutory rape, and was convicted.

Beyond these individual cases stand the image of the whole House. Members collectively are viewed as a bunch of greedy time-servers, eager to hike their own salaries, hungry to ensure their permanent re-election. They are in thrall to political action committees that contribute so heavily to their campaigns.

When they are not engaged openly in pork barrel politics, they are doing secret little favors for influential friends. Committee chairmen are not models of statesmanship; they are models of autocracy instead.

Nothing much is gained by remarking that most of the 435 members of the House are conscientious, dedicated people who give their constituents about the representation they deserve. Few are brilliant, but nearly all of them are honest. They truly work hard at their responsible jobs. It is the institution itself that is scorned.

This is a bad state of affairs. We ought to respect the institution of Congress as we respect the White House and the federal bench. But we don't. Given this situation, what might usefully be done?

James J. Kilpatrick

One familiar suggestion is that dramatic action be taken toward getting new blood in both the House and Senate. Rep. Bill McCollum of Florida, joined by 10 others, once again has introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to limit terms in both chambers. He would make senators ineligible for re-election to the Senate after two six-year terms, and House members ineligible for the House after six two-year terms. Incumbent members would be exempt.

The proposal provides a topic for a nice academic discussion, but it has no other practical value. McCollum never could get two-thirds of the House to vote in favor of the amendment. The gentleman can't even get hearings on the measure.

Many members have little or no experience in the real world of business, industry or the profession. They view service in Congress as a permanent, lifetime career.

It is conceivable, if improbable, that two-thirds of the state legislatures might petition for a constitutional convention on a limiting amendment. This too is term-paper stuff.

I am no friend to constitutional tinkering, but my slowly emerging conviction is that McCollum's amendment ought to be written into the Constitution. It perfectly echoes the feeling of our Founding Fathers.

George Mason expressed it in the Virginia Declaration of Rights of 1776. Members of the legislative and executive branches, he said, may best be restrained from oppression "by feeling and participating the burthens of the people." Toward this end, "they should at fixed periods be reduced to a private station, return into that body from which they were originally taken, and the vacancies be supplied by frequent, certain and regular elections ..."

If the McCollum amendment is profoundly unlikely, what else might be done? On May 20-21, more than 40 political challengers met in Kansas City, Mo., to form a Coalition to End the Permanent Congress. They spent the weekend complaining of a situation in which 98.6 of all representatives who run for re-election are duly re-elected. The advantages of incumbency are so overwhelming that even a well-qualified and well-funded challenger has virtually no chance of winning.

The advantages might be offset by forbidding PAC contributions, but this idea runs into both political and constitutional objections. Could mass-mailing privileges be limited or shared? No way would this pass the House. What of free TV time for challengers? What of outright federal funding? Members of the new coalition found no consensus.

It will take a political tidal wave to wash away the sleaze, the pettiness, the arrogance and the incompetence that characterize Congress as an institution. I have been watching the political shores for nearly 50 years. There's not even a ripple in sight.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, May 31, the 151st day of 1989. There are 214 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: One hundred years ago, on May 31, more than 2,000 people perished when a dam break sent water rushing through Johnston, Pa.

On this date:
In 1809, composer Franz Josef Hayden died in Vienna, Austria.
In 1819, poet Walt Whitman was born in West Hill, N.Y.

In 1910, the Union of South Africa was founded.

In 1913, the 17th Amendment to the Constitution, which provides for the popular election of U.S. senators, was declared in effect.

In 1916, during World War I, British and German fleets fought the Battle of Jutland off Denmark.

In 1961, South Africa became an independent republic.

In 1962, World War II Gestapo official Adolf Eichmann was hanged in Israel for his role in the Holocaust.

In 1970, tens of thousands of people in Peru died in an earthquake.

In 1976, Martha Mitchell, the estranged wife of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, died in New York.

Every city needs a town bum

I miss Kosciusko Pete. Used to be, I'd travel to a speaking engagement anywhere in or around Mississippi and there'd be Pete — waiting at the stage door.

Kosciusko Pete. Bulbous nose, flushed face and bleary eyes revealed a lifelong diet more liquid than solid, but Pete was never unpleasant.

He was a fixture in his hometown — Kosciusko. I'm not sure how he managed to travel wherever I was speaking.

Pete knew that I was always good for a discreet handout, but it would never have covered his travel costs. I figure he hitched rides from townspeople or truck drivers. It was hard to say "no" to Pete. I remember his home-towners were always especially generous around Christmas.

By conventional standards, Pete made no contribution to the society in which he was a parasite — but I know better.

Pete left a void when he died. Not everybody does.

Every city needs a town bum. The traditional one, voluntarily homeless, panhandled his living with a measure of dignity. You knew the coin you gave for coffee would probably go for something else ... But the town bum's presence in the town square reminds us every day of two things:

One is how comparatively fortunate you are. And two — how one of the most rewarding parts of living is giving.

John Christianson of San Diego took his young stepson, Adam Faragalli, to the train station the other morning. Always, hanging around that Santa Fe station is one of the town's "transients." One of the bums everybody calls "Buddy" who lives from hand to mouth — your hand, his mouth.

Buddy is never very fragrant but neither is he persistent and never ever rude.

This particular morning he asked, does Mr. Christianson have a quarter for coffee. Mr. Christianson fumbled in his pocket and said, "Buddy, I'm sorry. I don't have any money on me." They both looked at young Adam. The boy, sympathetic and embarrassed, confessed he didn't have any money either.

The three exchanged pleasantries and parted

... When Mr. Christianson and his stepson had walked on, and were out of earshot, the boy confided, "Pop, he tried to pick my pocket." "Are you sure?" Mr. Christianson asked.

"While you two were talking he came over and bumped into me and I'm sure he tried to reach into my pocket." The boy said, "This pocket in my jacket." And the lad reached into his own pocket and drew out a crumpled dollar that had not been there before.

The world is spinning in our direction

By BEN WATTENBERG

In China, the massed students carried a replica of the Statue of Liberty, quoted Thomas Jefferson, and demanded democracy.

At the same time, in political salons, it was being said that America is losing the public relations offensive because George Bush is a stand-patter while Mikhail Gorbachev is a public-relations wizard in the great media contest of ideas.

Can both of these situations be simultaneously correct?

No. Trust the verdict of the kids with the Liberty Lady in the street, not the pundits who cite polls about how very popular Gorbachev is in Europe. Gorbachev is popular precisely because America and the West are winning the contest. Gorbachev is saying that totalitarianism is a disaster and that democracy is wonderful. If memory serves, that is the point that the United States has been making for many decades. If Gorbachev now agrees, he's plenty popular with me, too.

So much of this is so new and so untested that it makes Bush's cautious attitude quite wise. Anyone who claims to know what will happen regarding the democracy wave in the communist countries doesn't understand the situation.

I recently heard a leading East European scholar describe what is taking place in Hungary as "the purposeful dismantlement of a communist government, by a communist government." Indeed, if the Hungarian government is to be believed, it is possible that within a year it will hold true multiparty democratic elections. A few years ago survey research conducted by Radio Free Europe showed that if a real election were held in Hungary, the communist party would get less than 10 percent of the vote!

Will such an election be held? Will the communist party successfully make radical changes to gain popular appeal? Would the Soviets live with a non-communist victory or try to reverse it? If a new free Hungarian government should choose to secede from the Warsaw Pact, what would the Soviets do then?

We do not know the answers to these questions, nor the answers to similar ones at almost every spot in our adversary's empire. In the Baltics, the Ukraine, Poland, the cry for democracy is now heard, but we do not know if it will be heeded. It is easy to demand a bold, new, active policy from President Bush. But when a potential tidal wave may be transforming the terrain upon which policy would be made, such a call is naive.

The potency of the democracy movement cannot even be gauged because it may be more than a tidal wave; it may also be a blessed and long-running journalistic fad. The heavy artillery pieces in the struggle for global democracy are television cameras. Since the incredible political events in the Philippines in 1986, it has become clear that the most dramatic and fulfilling story for a journalist to cover is one about democracy, or even partial democracy, coming to a place where democracy wasn't before: Chile, South Korea, Poland, even the Soviet Union, and now China.

The video trendiness of the story makes it yet bigger. Because television is everywhere, and satellites send pictures everywhere, the pictures of democracy are everywhere. Democracy is contagious. People who see it and don't have it, want it. And people who do have it and see it being denied elsewhere, want their governments to get tough with the governments that are doing the denying. If that thought isn't troubling Nicaraguan dictator Daniel Ortega as he contemplates the Nicaraguan elections next February, then Ortega is not only a communist thug, but also a dope.

As recent events tend to reveal, the world is spinning in our direction, replete with replicas of the Statue of Liberty in recently totalitarian China. For the time being, Bush's response is the right one: Let it keep spinning our way.

Rep. Claude Pepper

Pepper remembered as voice for elderly

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The body of Rep. Claude Pepper will lie in state in the Capitol Rotunda as a tribute to a half-century political career in which he championed the elderly and the poor, his former colleagues praise.

Pepper's political odyssey, one of the longest in American history, ended Tuesday with his death at age 88. A Florida Democrat who served as a state representative before his election to the U.S. Senate in 1936, Pepper later served in the House after 12 years out of office and became its oldest member.

"He was always a voice for the voiceless and a helping hand for the helpless," said House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas. Wright said the House will adopt a resolution today so that Pepper can lie in state Thursday.

The Senate was also expected to approve the resolution today, Wright said. Lying in state in the Rotunda is the highest final honor an American can receive. It has been accorded presidents, and more recently to the unknown soldier from the Vietnam war.

Pepper had been hospitalized since April 6 suffering from an undisclosed stomach ailment, which a spokesman in his office said Tuesday was cancer. He died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where he returned a month ago after an interim stay at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

Pepper's colleagues said he used his opportunities to the hilt, and to the service of his least powerful constituents.

"In the bosom of that small, gentle man beat the heart of a giant — a heart that felt the pain of a world where children go to sleep hungry and where the old die alone," Rep. Joe Moakley, D-

Mass., said. "He was not just a witness to the century, he helped shape the century," said Rep. David E. Bonior, D-Mich., the chief deputy whip of the House.

Pepper, born Sept. 8, 1900, on a farm near Dudleyville, Ala., rose from poverty to attend the University of Alabama and Harvard Law School. In Congress, he was an architect of some of the nation's most enduring "safety net" programs, including Social Security, the minimum wage and medical assistance for the elderly and for handicapped children.

He was the first national legislator to push publicly for federal funding for the war against cancer, a disease that took his wife, Mildred in 1979, some 43 years after they were married. They had no children.

In his final years, he dug in his heels against cutting Social Security benefits to elderly retired workers — half a century after campaigning for establishment of the retirement program.

President Bush, who presented Pepper with the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award, during a hospital visit last Thursday, offered this summing up from Bonn, West Germany: "Claude Pepper gave definition and meaning to the concept of public service. He fought for the poor and the elderly in his own determined way."

"Those who agreed with him were proud to follow his banner. Those who disagreed with him always respected him. Claude Pepper was a gentleman, a noble human being."

Others noted Pepper's extraordinary length of public service, beginning with his election to the Florida House of Representatives in 1928 at age 28.

He went to the Senate four years into the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Pro-government rally supports Li Peng

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

BEIJING (AP) — In a new twist, thousands of farmers and workers today marched in support of Premier Li Peng's hardline policies at a government-sponsored rally opposing the pro-democratic student movement.

The first pro-government demonstration in China's six weeks of political upheaval occurred as Communist authorities pressed ahead with tactics aimed at intimidating and discrediting students occupying central Tiananmen Square.

Farmers and workers wearing straw hats marched to a stadium in Huangcun, a village southwest of the capital, under banners saying "We support Li Peng" and "We oppose the small group causing turmoil."

Li is the main target of protesters who demand he resign for imposing martial law in Beijing on May 20 and ordering a crackdown on tens of thousands of students and workers who have taken to the streets to demand a freer China.

The rallying farmers expressed support for the Communist Party's "four principles," which include allegiance to the dictatorship of the proletariat, socialism, party rule and to Marxist-Leninist-Maoist thought. Sponsors said up to 10,000 people were taking part.

The Beijing Foreign Affairs Office informed several others in suburban sections of the capital. Under martial law regulations that have been widely ignored, foreign reporters are forbidden from covering student demonstrations.

On Tiananmen Square, China's symbolic center of political power, about 10,000 die-hard student protesters today entered the 18th day of a sit-in, resisting government demands that they disperse.

They planned a march to the Public Security Ministry tonight to protest the reported arrest Monday of three labor leaders sympathetic to the student cause. The three were involved in trying to establish an independent labor union, which is illegal in China's 40-year-old Communist system.

"We are now basically waiting for the government to take the initiative," student leader Mo Bin said. "Things are pretty calm with us. It's the government who's nervous."

More than a dozen military motorcycle convoys followed by jeeps sped down the main arteries of the capital, the latest warning that government tolerance for the student protests was nearing an end.

A military source said 200,000 troops surrounding Beijing under martial law orders have been told to "prepare for winter," meaning hardliners are digging in for a long battle with Communist Party moderates who sympathize with some of the goals of the students.

Tens of thousands of citizens had mobilized to block troops from entering Beijing after Li declared martial law.

A relentless government propaganda campaign against the "turmoil" caused by the students continued to center today on a replica of the Statue of Liberty, called the "Goddess of Democracy," unveiled on the square Tuesday. The statue faces the portrait of communist Chinese founder Mao Tse-tung.

The Beijing Daily, a conservative party paper, was filled with articles and letters incensed about the 33-foot statue.

"We believe our sincere patriotic enthusiasm has been greatly mocked, and our good image tarnished," said a letter from five unnamed Beijing University students. A lengthy article also described the "righteous indignation" of model workers over the statue.

Gray denies he's target of FBI inquiry

By JEFF BARKER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government sources say the FBI is looking into allegations of a no-show employee in the office of Rep. William H. Gray III, but the fourth-ranking House Democrat denied any wrongdoing and questioned the timing of news leaks about the probe.

FBI agents are conducting a preliminary inquiry into allegations dealing with personnel and expenditures in the office of the prominent Pennsylvania Democrat, said the sources, who spoke Tuesday night on condition of anonymity.

Gray, who is seeking the post of majority whip in a leadership shuffle that hinges on the expected resignation of House Speaker Jim Wright, denied at a news conference Tuesday night that he was a "target" or "subject" of a probe.

He also disputed a televised report that he had declined to cooperate with agents in a criminal investigation.

The sources stressed that the FBI did not know whether its preliminary inquiry would lead to a full-scale criminal investigation, and said the purpose of a Memorial Day meeting with Gray was to advise him of the inquiry.

One source said the allegations involved a "ghost employee."

Gray, the chairman of the House Democrat Caucus, said two FBI agents from Philadelphia came to his home in Reston, Va., but he said, "I was told over and over again that I was not under investigation."

Gray said he was cryptically told only that "the bureau was looking into allegations about an employee or employees, and that they had been looking into these allegations for the past four to five months."

Gray

He said, "We pledged to provide any materials or documents to assist in this investigation."

Gray said he was asking Attorney General Dick Thornburgh today to initiate an independent counsel investigation to determine who leaked information about the FBI visit.

"All I can say to you and the American people is you be the judge as to the motives of the Justice Department leaks," Gray said. "You be the judge as to the timing. You be the judge as to what the agenda is."

Chief Justice Department spokesman David Runkel said he could not discuss "anything that has been reported about Mr. Gray or any of Mr. Gray's comments."

In Philadelphia, Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas H. Lee II also declined comment.

Gray replied "You bet!" in answer to a question of whether he would still be seeking the majority whip position being vacated by Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif. "I have done nothing wrong," Gray said.

Aides to Gray said privately that they were "in the dark" about nature of the FBI investigation, and that they had concocted a number of theories — including one that Gray might have been contacted in connection with an already existing probe on Capitol Hill, not a new one.

But the aides declined to elaborate, and Gray spokesman Jon Plebani said, "We don't know what to expect to happen next." After the news conference, Gray and his aides met in his office until after 11 p.m.

Gray, the highest ranking black in Congress, appeared on a CBS program Sunday and said he was confident the Democratic congressional leadership, recently rocked by ethical problems of Wright and a questionable financial deal involving Coelho, was headed for better times.

The Point Is Pets

by Ron Hendrick, D.V.M.

Q: I read some time ago that when dark dogs hair changes color, it means something, but I forgot what! Would you repeat that article?

A: There are many reasons why a dog's hair might change color. The most common reason is a heavy intestinal parasite load. A trip to your Veterinarian for a "Deworming" should remedy this. Next most common is irritation from licking, scratching, etc. in response to fleas, ticks, allergies, etc. (Dogs with heartworms often have this as the only visible sign.) Your Veterinarian can run a blood test to check for heartworms and/or allergies. Finally, nutrition plays a big part in the look, color and feel of a pet's coat. With summer shedding taking place, last year's old, dead coat may be a lighter color than the current growth, esp. if your pet is fed only dry food. Usually a Fatty Acid/Zinc supplement will help to shed the old coat quickly and ensure a shiny healthy new coat. The hair coat is an external picture of what the internal status is, and reflects either a healthy or a not-so-healthy pet. One thing is certain: if your pet has a dry, off-color coat, shedding excessively, etc. it is obvious a problem is at hand...take it to your Veterinarian.

I have had calls from clients who missed the annual Rabies Vaccination Clinic, due either to being out of town, or to the inclement weather. Therefore, we are offering that reduced price vaccination special at Hendrick Animal Hospital, by appointment, June 1-3. With a copy of this article, instead of $38.50 for "Boosters", the cost will be $21.00 for boosters for dogs, and $27.00 for boosters for cats. (Hopefully, the weather will be more cooperative this time.)

AT&T MultiQuest™ Service

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. (AT&T) announces its intent to introduce within Texas on July 14, 1989, AT&T MultiQuest Service, a new interactive 900-type telephone service. Since February 19, 1989, this innovative service has been available to Texas businesses only on an interstate basis. With AT&T MultiQuest Service, Texas business customers (otherwise known as sponsors) may offer value-added information services to callers originating long distance calls from Texas or elsewhere in the United States over AT&T's public switched network. A Texas caller, accessing the service by dialing the sponsor's 1-900 plus seven-digit number, can obtain recorded and/or live information by communicating with attendants, voice messaging equipment and computer data bases. Flat-rate, time sensitive usage charges will be billed to the caller for the sponsor's service.

AT&T is offering AT&T MultiQuest Service within Texas in response to requests by its business customers for a service that offers intrastate as well as nationwide interactive voice & data transport capability. Potential sponsors include entrepreneurial companies entering into new ventures that are information intensive, local mass announcement sponsors who want statewide as well as national coverage coupled with interactive capability and other information service providers.

The Texas intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service will be tariffed as an "add-on" offering to a sponsor's existing interstate AT&T MultiQuest Service. The intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service costs will be recovered from sponsor usage charges set forth in AT&T's intrastate tariffs. The usage charges billed to the caller are determined by the sponsor as appropriate to the service being offered and are not tariffed charges.

For more information about AT&T MultiQuest Service please call your AT&T Account Executive or AT&T's business consultants toll free on 1 (800) 552-0212. They can answer your questions regarding this service and how it can be of benefit to you.

AT&T intends to file a tariff to offer this service with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on June 13, 1989, effective July 14, 1989. Persons who have questions regarding this tariff filing may contact the Public Utility Commission's Public Information Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf, or write to them at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757.

Intrastate AT&T MultiQuest Service is projected to generate $1.1 million in the first year of its offering or .1% of AT&T's total gross service revenues in Texas.

Study: Helmets decrease motorcycle deaths

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The state's new mandatory helmet law will prevent about 115 motorcycle deaths each year, a study by Texas A&M University shows.

"We find that the imposition of the comprehensive law requiring helmets of all motorcycle riders in 1988 dramatically lowered the death rate, and the relaxation of the law in 1977 led to an equally dramatic increase," said Kim Q. Hill, who headed the study released by the school Tuesday.

A 15-member research group headed by Hill, a university political scientist, made its projection after examining statistics for motorcycle fatalities from 1956 to 1987.

In 1977, the helmet law was changed so that riders only under the age of 19 were required to wear protection. The change cost 1,450 lives through 1988, the research showed. "With the change to the 18-year-old law, the death rate rose 68 percent to about 276 deaths per 10,000 accidents," Hill said.

The average motorcycle death rate before 1968 was 10.9 deaths per 10,000 riders, the group's statistics found. That rate dropped 30 percent to 7.5 deaths per 10,000 after the tougher law took effect. However, once the law was changed, the death rate climbed to 11.5 deaths per 10,000, according to the research.

Hill's group also noted another trend contributing to more motorcycle deaths. Since 1960, they found, a greater segment of the population became motorcycle riders, and the number and kinds of cycles also grew. The rate of non-fatal injuries to motorcyclists showed similar changes.

Beyond quacamole - new ways to prepare avocados

NEW YORK (AP) — Although avocados are available year-round, the peak supply is during the spring and summer months.

California avocados make up nearly 90 percent of the nation's avocado production, a spokesman for the California Avocado Commission, a non-profit organization, explained in an interview here.

Over 80 percent of the California avocado crop is made up of the Hass variety, which has a thick, pebbly skin, and a rich, nutty taste. The Hass variety is available from January through October, with peak supply from May through August.

The other 20 percent of the California crop consists of the Greenskin varieties, which have thin, smooth green skin. Greenskin varieties are generally available from November through May.

Avocados have 17 vitamins and minerals, more potassium ounce-for-ounce than 26 fruits and juices and 19 vegetables — and no cholesterol. Half an avocado contains 9.7 grams of monounsaturated fats.

BUY AN AVOCADO EITHER RIPE OR FIRM

When buying ripe or firm avocados, select fruit that is free of bruises or gouges. A ripe avocado yields to pressure when it is gently squeezed in your hand. The Hass avocado also shows its ripeness by changing color from green to purple-black.

Firm avocados will ripen in a fruit bowl at room temperature. You can speed the ripening process by storing them for a few days in a paper bag at room temperature.

Many grocery stores now stock ripe avocados. Look for fruit that is marked with stickers that identify these ripe fruits.

Ripe avocados should be refrigerated until they are eaten, but not for longer than 5 days.

HOW TO PREPARE AN AVOCADO

To prepare an avocado, follow these steps:

— Cut the avocado in half, lengthwise around the seed.

— Rotate the two halves to separate.

— To remove the seed, either slide the tip of a spoon gently underneath and lift it out, or place the avocado half on a cutting board; carefully and gently strike the seed with a medium size knife. Rotate the knife and lift the seed out.

— To peel the avocado half, place the cut side down on a cutting board and remove the skin with your fingers or a knife.

Be sure to sprinkle all cut surfaces with lemon or lime juice to prevent discoloration.

AVOCADO RECIPES

The most popular ways of eating avocados are as guacamole or a dip, or cubed into a tossed green salad. But avocados can also be used in egg dishes, appetizers and main-dish salads. The following recipes are provided by the California Avocado Commission:

FAJITAS (Mexican Stir Fry)
 Marinade: 1 clove garlic, minced; 1½ teaspoons seasoned salt; ½ teaspoon ground cumin; ½ teaspoon chili powder; ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper; 2 tablespoons vegetable oil; 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine all ingredients. Marinate 1½ pounds beef or chicken sliced into strips for 2 hours.

Fajita:
 3-4 tablespoons vegetable oil
 ½ cup sliced onion
 ½ cup chopped green onion
 1 cup sliced red bell pepper
 8 flour tortillas, warmed
 2 avocados, peeled and sliced
 Salsa and sour cream
 Quickly saute onions and peppers in oil until lightly browned; remove from pan. Saute marinated meat about 4 minutes, toss with vegetables; spoon into flour tortillas. Serve with avocado

1. Cut the avocado in half, lengthwise around the seed.

2. Rotate the two halves to separate.

3. To remove the seed, place the avocado half on a cutting board; carefully and gently strike the seed with a medium size knife. Rotate the knife and lift the seed out.

4. To peel the avocado half, place the cut side down on a cutting board and remove the skin with your fingers or a knife.

slices, salsa and sour cream. Serves 8.

SANTA FE CHICKEN
 ½ cup canned corn, uncooked
 One 2.2-ounce can sliced black olives, drained

¼ cup diced red pepper
 2 tablespoons toasted, slivered almonds, chopped
 2 tablespoons diced white onion
 2 cloves garlic, minced
 ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
 1 teaspoon oregano
 3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil

1 tablespoon lemon juice
 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar

2 ripe avocados, peeled and diced

In a medium bowl combine all ingredients except avocado. Store in sealed container at room temperature 6-8 hours. Before serving, add diced avocado. Served with chicken or your favorite grilled meat. Makes 3 cups.

HOLY GUACAMOLE

2 ripe avocados, peeled and diced
 1½ tablespoons lemon juice, preferably fresh
 1 tablespoon minced cilantro (optional)
 1-2 cloves garlic, minced
 1 teaspoon dried leaf basil, crumbled

½ teaspoon salt (optional)
 ¼ cup red pepper, finely diced
 2 tablespoons salsa
 2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion
 1½ tablespoons slivered almonds, coarsely chopped
 Dollop of sour cream for garnish

Peel and mash 1 avocado, mix with lemon juice, cilantro, garlic, basil and salt. Dice remaining avocado, fold into mixture with red pepper, salsa, green onion and chopped almonds. Garnish with sour cream. Serve with tortilla chips and fresh vegetables. Makes 2½ cups guacamole.

MICROWAVE COOKING

By NANCY BYAL
 Better Homes & Gardens
 Food Editor

Moist, delicious meat loaf in 15 minutes? That's all the time it takes to mix these individual meat loaves and cook them in your microwave.

You can make the loaves ahead. Just chill the uncooked loaves until dinner time, and add an extra minute to the first cooking time.

MUSHROOM-STUFFED MINI-LOAVES

½ cup dairy sour cream
 3 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
 Dash pepper
 1 pound ground beef
 One 4-ounce can chopped mushrooms, drained
 4 slices tomato, halved
 2 slices Swiss cheese, cut in half
 Canned french fried onions (optional)

In a mixing bowl stir together sour cream, bread crumbs and pepper. Add beef; mix well. Shape meat mixture into eight 5-by-2½-inch oval patties. Evenly divide mushrooms among 4 patties. Spread mushrooms to within ½ inch of edge. Top with remaining meat patties. Seal edges and shape into loaves. Place in a microwave-safe 8-by-8-by-2-inch baking dish.

Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) 3 minutes. Rotate dish a half-turn. Cook, uncovered, on high 3 to 5 minutes more or until done. Drain off fat. Top loaves with tomato and Swiss cheese. Cook, uncovered, on high 1 to 2 minutes more or until cheese is heated through. Serve with french fried onions, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 376 cal., 26 g pro., 7 g carb., 27 g fat, 115 mg chol., 242 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 10 percent vit. A, 17 percent riboflavin, 26 percent niacin, 19 percent calcium, 17 percent iron.

Vegetables and sauces are two of the foods your microwave cooks best. This cheesy casserole takes advantage of both these microwave specialties. Wondering whether or not to cover? Cover vegetables for quicker cooking; cook sauces uncovered for more convenient stirring.

CHEESY CAULIFLOWER CASSEROLE

One 8-ounce package frozen cauliflower
 ½ cup frozen peas
 1 tablespoon water
 1 tablespoon margarine or butter
 2 teaspoons all-purpose flour
 ¼ teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
 ½ teaspoon salt
 ½ cup milk
 ½ cup shredded colby cheese (2 ounces)

In a microwave-safe 1-quart casserole combine frozen cauliflower, peas and water. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 4 to 7 minutes or until vegetables are tender, stirring after 3 minutes. Drain off water. Set vegetables aside.

For sauce, in a 2-cup microwave-safe measure cook margarine, uncovered, on high 35 to 40 seconds or until melted. Stir in flour, thyme and salt until mixture is smooth. Stir in milk all at once. Cook, uncovered, on high 1½ to 2 minutes more or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every 30 seconds. Stir in cheese until melted.

In the 1-quart casserole stir together vegetables and sauce. Cook, uncovered, on high for 1 to 2 minutes or until heated through. Makes 4 servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 129 cal., 7 g pro., 8 g carb., 8 g fat, 15 mg chl., 231 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 36 percent vit. C, 10 percent riboflavin, 16 percent calcium.

Quilters complete first project

Panhandle Piecemakers Quilt Guild has recently completed their first donation quilt in conjunction with their first year as an organized guild. Showing the quilt are the officers for 1988-89 from the front left: Ethel Taylor, secretary and Susie Edwards, vice-president. Back row: Starla Nicholson, president, and Carol Vines, treasurer.

The queen size quilt is a "Tennessee Waltz" pattern and contains shades of teal, plum and various other colors for an over all scrap quilt look. A combination of hand and machine piecing was used to construct the quilt, which was then hand quilted by members of the guild. A drawing for the quilt will be September 4 in conjunction with Chautauqua. Tickets are available from any member or by calling Donna Reynolds, chairman, 665-4718.

Formed in May, 1988, the guild includes members from Pampa, Perryton, Amarillo, Clarendon, Miami, Wheeler and a few places in between. Fellow quilters in the Panhandle area are invited to join the guild. Meetings are held at 7 p.m. on the fourth Thursday of each month at The Hobby Shop, downtown Pampa. For more information call 665-4268.

Historians find in quilts the stuff of daily lives

By SONNI EFRON
Associated Press Writer
LOWELL, Mass. (AP)—Traditional American quilts, admired for their warmth and beauty, also yield clues to the daily lives of the women who stitched them.

Women did not leave for posterity the written records that men did, especially women who had neither the education nor the time to write, says Susan Porter, a specialist in women's social history at Clark University in Worcester, Mass.

"A lot of women who didn't write wrote their history into the quilts," Porter says.

A quilt tells not only of a woman's personal joys and sorrows, but also of her spiritual and economic life and political views.

Quilting originated in 12th- or 13th-century China, when women discovered that stitching three layers of fabric together made a coverlet of exceptional warmth.

But patchwork, or piece work, is uniquely American, an invention of necessity by Colonial women, according to Marta Gredler, director of the New England Quilt Museum in Lowell.

"American settlers had very little fabric they were able to bring over with them from England," Gredler says. "And until the industrial revolution, until the mid 1800s when fabric became much more readily available, they really were reusing every bit and scrap they had. The whole idea of patchwork and piecework grew out of that."

Quilts are also rich in symbolism. Some quilts made by slaves in the antebellum South, for example, incorporate African mythological symbols, according to Gladys-Marie Frye, a folklorist at the University of Maryland who specializes in studying slave culture.

Frye has an extensive collection of slave quilts. Some were recently exhibited at Radcliffe University's Bunting Institute. From July 20-Sept. 17 they will be at the Museum of American Folk Art in New York City.

One quilt, she says, was made in 1852 by a slave named Yellow Bill as a gift to his mistress. At first glance, one sees flowers and a basket, but a more careful look shows the basket is surrounded by snakes, an ancient African symbol of fertility, Frye says.

"If the mistress knew what was in the quilt, she might not have been so happy," Frye says.

The social structure of the Old South is frozen forever in a quilt at the Lowell museum that was stitched by white plantation women and their black slaves in the early 1800s.

"It's actually labeled by rows," says Gredler. "We have these slips of paper that are literally pinned to the side of the quilt, saying 'This row made by white folk.' 'This row made by colored folk.'"

Each block was also signed—the black women with only their first names, the white women with full titles.

Some of the slaves' techniques were of African origin but were copied by white women and became part of the American quilting tradition, according to Frye.

Sunburst quilt, possibly made by Rebecca Scattergood Savery of Philadelphia around 1835-1845, is of roller printed cottons and measures 113½ inches by 110 inches. (Courtesy of the Museum of American Folk Art)

Applique probably originated in East Africa, and the "crazy quilt" is likely a legacy of African strip-sewing techniques, she says.

Most of the slave quilts were stitched at night, after long days of arduous labor.

"Quilting helped these women transcend the most difficult of circumstances," Frye says. "...They could through quilting turn inward and find the means to survive."

Some traditional American quilts have religious significance, such as the Path of Thorns, a traditional pattern meant to represent Jesus' march to Calvary.

Others show a grass-roots patriotism, like the quilt stitched in Michigan at the time of the Centennial. Its indigo and white pattern features the most American of symbols, the sunflower and the eagle.

"When you look at older quilts, you want to know what that person was thinking, what their life was like when they made it," says Mary Jo Ridge, a quilt buff who works at the Tumbleweed quilting supply shop in Cambridge's Harvard Square.

The quiet, time-consuming, meditative craft is enjoying a comeback despite the time constraints of many working women. Quilters say it's because theirs is both an expressive and a loving art.

"I have a hard time machine-piecing something," says Ridge. "because I know it'll mean more in the long run if it's hand done."

Food safety problems consumer concern

Food safety is a concern of consumers everywhere. Some concern has been voiced about pesticides and other manmade contaminants, while other attention is focused on bacteria caused food safety problems. Let's look at the issues and what consumers can do to ensure safe food.

Produce is grown using a variety of farming practices, which sometimes include the use of chemical pesticides. Pesticides are used to improve food quality and availability by reducing damage caused by insects, diseases, and weeds.

Several methods are used to apply pesticides to plants; some are applied directly to the plant; others are injected into the soil before planting; and some are applied to the harvested crop to prevent spoilage during storage and transportation. However, chemicals are NEVER used in the water supermarkets spray on produce, nor do pesticides affect the taste or nutrition of produce.

Pesticide residues are not present in what leading scientists consider significant amounts for a number of reasons: (1) crop growth and climatic conditions such as wind and rainfall dilute the residues; (2) sunlight, microorganisms, and the crop itself degrade them further; (3) the residues that might exist are often concentrated in the outer leaves or peel of produce, which is often thrown away; (4) washing, peeling, and cooking usually removes residues; and (5) the government sets maximum allowable residue limits for each pesticide on every crop.

Consumers SHOULD be concerned with anything they put in their mouths. However, in general, scientists regard the effects of pesticides as having little or no adverse impact on human health, for several reasons. (1) It is virtually impossible to eat enough of one food at one time for the toxicity of its chemicals to be a hazard. (2) Unlike their earlier counterparts most of today's pesticides break down relatively fast into non-toxic substances, so they are not stored in the body and do not cause ongoing exposure.

Besides eating a wide variety of healthful foods in moderation, there are several things individual consumers can do to ensure food safety:

- (1) Wash all fruits and vegetables before eating, using a scrub brush on produce that can stand it.
- (2) Pull off the outer leaves of vegetables such as lettuce and cabbage. For the same reason, trim the leaves and tops of celery and peel fruits.
- (3) Store fruits and vegetables at correct temperatures and eat them while they are fresh.
- (4) When using pesticides on home-grown produce, be sure to follow all manufacturer's instructions carefully.

With all the present-day concern about pesticides, little attention is often given to the biggest health threat of all - bacteria. From 21 to 81 million cases of food borne illnesses occur each year in the U.S. costing $5 to $17 billion in medical care and lost productivity. While a wide range of materials can cause food poisoning, including chemicals, heavy metals, parasites, fungi and viruses, bacteria are the main culprit, accounting for more than 90 percent of all incidents.

Harmful bacteria cannot do their work without proper conditions, such as food, moisture, and warmth. That's what happens in an unclean environment and with mishandling of food. Foods denied proper conditions give bacteria the opportunity to double in numbers within 20 minutes.

Because bacteria multiply rapidly at temperatures between 40 degrees F. and 140 degrees F., both raw and cooked foods should not be kept in this danger zone any longer than absolutely necessary. Refrigerator temperatures should be no warmer than 40 degrees Fahrenheit and the freezer should not register more than zero degrees. High temperatures kill bacteria and cold stops or slows their growth. Frozen items and perishables purchased at the grocery should be refrigerated as soon as possible. Cooked or refrigerated foods, such as meats and salads, should be stored in small, shallow containers, and refrigerated immediately. When reheating foods, they should reach at least 165 degrees Fahrenheit.

Major ways to thaw frozen foods include in the refrigerator, under cold running water, in a microwave oven or as part of the cooking process. Never thaw foods at room temperature.

Cleanliness is the other major key to food safety. All food preparation equipment must start out clean and stay clean. Equipment that is handled or comes in contact with food should be washed between each step of food preparation.

Hand washing is a necessity before preparing any meal. This requires soap, warm water, and at least 20 seconds of working the soap into the hands and underneath fingernails.

Just remember - for safe food: (1) clean fresh fruits and vegetables thoroughly before eating; (2) use clean hands AND clean equipment; (3) keep hot foods above 140 degrees F. and cold foods below 40 degrees F.; (4) avoid cross contamination; and (5) use COMMON SENSE!

Bridal couple dictate proper procedures

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that needs urgent attention. I have been living with a man for 11 years. I am divorced; "Jim" is not, but he's legally separated. Jim's family knows about me. I have been invited to their homes many times, and they have been invited to ours.

Here's the problem. Jim's son is getting married, and Jim's estranged wife (I'll call her Judy) is having a dinner at her home for the bride and groom and has asked Jim to attend the dinner and act as the host.

Since Jim and I intend to have our own dinner for the bridal couple, I see no reason for Jim to attend Judy's dinner. He has given me all kinds of excuses why he should be there, so I finally agreed that he go, even though I would rather he didn't.

I also understand that the bride's parents plan to give a dinner. If they invite Jim and Judy as a couple, I definitely feel that Jim should not go because they plan on having another dinner to which Jim and I will be invited. I feel that Jim should refuse all invitations that include Judy since they are no longer a couple and are not living together.

Please advise me, Abby. What is the proper procedure?

UNSURE

DEAR UNSURE: The "proper procedure" is to do whatever pleases the bridal couple. It is quite clear that Jim's son wants his parents to appear at the bridal festivities as a "couple," so don't make it difficult for Jim or his wife. As unfair as it may seem, you should quietly defer to Jim where his family is concerned.

DEAR ABBY: I just gave birth to our second child and am still heavy and flabby. My husband desperately wants to go to Hawaii for our vacation.

My problem is that I am very self-conscious about my body. He tells me to exercise, but I don't think that in one month's time I will feel comfortable in a skimpy bathing suit.

I want him to have a wonderful time, but he won't if he senses that I am miserable. I do not want to ruin the wonderful vacation that he has planned for just the two of us, but I just can't stop feeling depressed about it.

Should I go and try to fake a good time for his sake?

SELF-CONSCIOUS

DEAR SELF-CONSCIOUS: Buy some shorts and a halter top, or a pretty gauze "shift," and forget the skimpy bathing suits. Once you're on the beach, you will see all shapes and sizes

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

— and discover you look better than most! Trust me. You won't have to "fake" a good time; you'll have one.

DEAR ABBY: A recent column contained a letter about a small child falling into a swimming pool and the CPR that saved him. Good. I'm glad the child is OK. But very young children should be taught some survival techniques.

A child of 2 months can be placed in an inch of water in the bathtub and taught to turn itself over, put its hands under its chest, and get its face out of the water so it can make a noise. By 2 years, my own children could all float on their backs!

When they were 3, I started teaching them to undress in the wading pool. Their sandals and summer shorts came off. Later, we used the same technique in deeper water.

As they grew older, the clothes became heavier and they learned to take off sneakers, shoes and winter boots. It was "fun," but when my 10-year-old son went through the ice in a swamp (a place he was forbidden to go!), I bought new boots and scolded him—but I had a living son!

Of course, children need to be carefully watched, but they also need to be taught how to take care of themselves in emergency situations—and they're never too young to learn.

I hope you think this is worth printing.

Orioles stretch lead in AL East

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles have stretched their lead in the American League East to two games, the widest margin anyone in the division has enjoyed this season. They're not doing it with mirrors, but with fundamentals.

"Our defense hasn't been beyond my expectations," Manager Frank Robinson said Tuesday after the Orioles defeated Texas, 6-2. "We have talented players, who can play defense, make the routine plays and occasionally the spectacular ones."

It was the failure of the Rangers to make either type of plays that took them out of the game Tuesday. Two outfield throwing errors led to a pair of Oriole runs.

"We don't have to hit them over the head with it," said Robinson. "Our guys are fundamentally sound. They understand what they did tonight was give us a chance to beat them."

The Rangers realized it, too. "We've played lousy these two nights," said Texas third baseman Steve Buechele.

"We're just going through one of those spells," said Manager Bobby Valentine.

In addition to the errors, the Rangers also suffered the loss of starting pitcher Jamie Moyer (3-5), who left after straining his shoulder on a pitch to Mickey Tettleton in the fourth. He was scheduled to fly back to Arlington Wednesday for a further examination by the team doctor.

"It's real frustrating, because I was pitching well," said Moyer, who to that point had allowed only one run.

The Orioles added two in that inning when reliever Gary Mielke finished walking Tettleton, and gave up a single to Bob Melvin. Between the walk and the hit, Randy Milligan lined out to left. Jeff Kunkel, making his first start of the season in left, made a throw that shortstopped past first baseman Rafael Palmeiro into the Texas dugout, allowing both runners to advance two bases.

The two runs in the fourth gave the Orioles a lead they never lost. Starter Jay Tibbs was unable to get through the fifth inning, however, and was unable to claim his second win. Instead Mark Williamson, the second of three Baltimore relievers, got the win to even his record at 2-2, and Gregg Olson fanned the final two batters to earn his fourth save.

Astros hot on the road

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Houston Astros are red hot on the road and their manager, Art Howe, can't pinpoint the reason.

"I've been asked the question 'Why?' 150 times and I can't really offer an explanation," the Astros rookie manager said after his club won its ninth straight game away from home with an 8-4 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night.

Ken Caminiti led the Astros with five RBIs and three hits—both career highs. One of his hits was a two-run homer in the seventh inning that snapped a 2-2 tie and put Houston ahead for good.

The nine consecutive road victories are a club record. The Astros' 16-7 season mark away from home is the best record in the majors.

Houston has won five games in a row overall.

"For some reason we've been able to get some kind of early lead on the road," Howe said. "And then our pitching has taken us from there. Oddly, it's been just the opposite at home."

Houston is 10-17 at the Astrodome.

"The ERAs of our starters is much higher at home than on the road and I really can't explain that, either," Howe said. "The Astrodome is supposed to be a pitchers' park."

Caminiti credited his manager with giving him the confidence he needs.

"Last year I was a mental mess because if I went 0-for-4 I knew I might not play the next day," Caminiti said. "I owe a lot to Art Howe because he puts me out there every day and that helps me play with more confidence."

Howe said he had one regret in the triumph over the Cardinals—that Houston starter Bob Forsch didn't get the victory. Howe lifted Forsch after Tom Brunansky's two-run homer in the sixth inning tied the game at 2-2.

Forsch spent all or part of 15 seasons with the Cardinals before being traded to Houston last August, and he was facing his former teammates for the first time Tuesday.

"I was disgusted (about Brunansky's homer)," Forsch said. "It was a bad, stupid pitch."

"Fortunately, the guys bounced back. That's the measure of a good team. It's a good indication that we've got an aggressive ball club."

Forsch admitted he felt strange in Busch Stadium, "but once the game starts, it's all business."

As a rookie, Little League baseball was a hit

Editor's Note: This is the first of five excerpts from "Growing Up At Bat: 50 Years of Little League Baseball" (Pharo Books). Ceremonies at the Little League World Series (Aug. 22-26) will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the first season, which began on June 6, 1939.

By Harvey Frommer

The America of 1939 was a nation of small towns where baseball was—as it had been for a century—the summer game. The sport's centennial was celebrated that summer. And the Baseball Hall of Fame was dedicated in Cooperstown—a historic village near the source of the Susquehanna River in upstate New York.

Some hundreds of miles to the southwest that same river flows through Williamsport, Pa., a small town in the shadow of the Allegheny Mountains. There a young man who worked at the local sandpaper plant had an idea about giving the young boys in his town a chance to play real baseball.

As a youth, Carl Stotz was often shunted off to the sidelines by older boys when they played baseball. Now his nephews, Jimmy Gehron, 6, and Harold "Major" Gehron, 8, were complaining that they weren't allowed into any organized games. The 29-year-old Stotz remembered how he felt when he was kept out. He thought of a way to make it possible for his nephews to play.

Stotz, known to his nephews as "Uncle Tuck," said (as the story goes), "I have an idea to get you boys into organized baseball. How would you like to play on a regular team, with uniforms, a new ball for every game and bats you can really swing?"

The nephews asked: "Who would we play? Where would we get the uniforms—and bats and bats? Would anybody come to see us play?"

"Don't worry," said Uncle Tuck. "I'll work out a plan for a league. You'll wear store-bought suits and play on a real diamond."

The low-keyed but determined Stotz was true to his word. Lacking a background in organized athletics, he brought his idea to Bert and George Bebbie, Williamsport brothers who had once played semi-pro baseball.

The Bebbies enthusiastically joined with Stotz in the task of creating what would become Little League Baseball.

CARL STOTZ began Little League Baseball in 1939 for the benefit of his nephews, Harold "Major" Gehron, 8, and Jimmy Gehron, 6.

Kelton coach resigns

By SONNY BOHANAN Sports Writer

Dave Johnson resigned his position as head coach at Kelton High School Monday after signing a contract last Saturday to become part-time principal and head boys coach at Adrian High School.

According to Johnson, who coached all the boys and girls athletic programs at Kelton for eight years, he was hired to replace retiring Adrian Principal Jim Hale. Adrian Independent School District Superintendent Pat Blankenship could not be reached for comment.

When Johnson officially begins his new duties as principal on August 1, he will be considered part-time until earning a principal's certificate, at which time he will take over in a full capacity. In addition to his administrative position, the former Kelton mentor will coach the boys basketball, track and tennis teams at Adrian.

"I'm not ready to give up coaching yet," Johnson said, "but this was a good opportunity and it (the principal's position) is a little more money."

"I hate to leave Kelton—I've got a lot of friends here and all. We're kind of running out of kids here now, though."

Adrian, located 45 miles west of Amarillo on Interstate 40, is a Class 1A school, although it has a larger enrollment than Kelton, which has 26 students. Like Kelton, Adrian has no football program, and Johnson said he will be primarily involved in coaching basketball.

At Kelton, Johnson led the Lionettes to the state basketball playoffs for the past five years and guided the Lions to the playoffs four times in eight seasons.

Until 1988, Johnson single-handedly coached all the boys and girls sports at Kelton. Joey Waldo, a Kelton graduate, joined Johnson as an assistant last year. According to Johnson, Waldo will not apply for the now-vacant head coach's position at Kelton.

Johnson has had a first-hand look at the Adrian basketball team on more than one occasion, and he liked what he saw.

"They've been pretty good the last two years," Johnson said. "We played them in the playoffs last year and scrimmaged them this year, so I know pretty much what they have. They've got some good kids."

College World Series starts Friday

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson says pitching will be important, although it may not be all its cracked up to be when the 43rd annual College World Series gets under way in Omaha Friday evening.

"I don't think you can lay it all on pitching," said Gustafson, who will tie Southern Cal coaching legend Rod Dedeaux for most CWS coaching appearances with 15. "I think all of the teams coming in can hit, too."

Gustafson admitted there are some of the nation's best college pitchers headed to Omaha, however.

"I know Arkansas pretty well," he said. "They have some good pitchers. I understand LSU has great pitching. I know Miami pretty well and they have outstanding pitching."

"It seems the teams that have been noted for great hitting through the years haven't made it this year. Wichita State may be one of those, but they also have great pitchers."

Gustafson, like any good baseball coach, knows pitchers still have to make good pitches, defenders have to play good defense and hitters need to come through with key hits to win ball games in Omaha.

The two-bracket, double-elimination tournament gets under way with a pair of first-round games Friday and two more Saturday. The CWS ends with a single championship game on June 10.

GROWING UP AT BAT

50 Years of Little League Baseball ball. They organized a three-team league of 30 boys. Stotz and the Bebbie brothers would each manage a team.

The idea of Little League Baseball was simple yet inspired.

The national pastime had been around for a century, but in its organized form it was almost exclusively reserved for teenagers and adults. In the main, it was off limits for young children.

But now the boys of Williamsport aged 8 to 12 would be able to play on a scaled-down field. There would be good playing conditions, adult supervision, and no threat of rejection by older boys.

Stotz suggested getting community support for the program, a unique idea for that era. His plan was to solicit local merchants to sponsor the three teams. For a $30 contribution, sponsors could have the name of their business sewn on the uniforms—it was Stotz's sole concession to commercialization.

He approached 56 merchants and, in his words, "had to do a lot of hard talking" before he was able to secure the first sponsor of a Little League team—the Lycoming Dairy Lundy Lumber and Jumbo Pretzel soon followed.

Cooperation was the cornerstone of the program. Playing suits were purchased for $1.58 each at a chain store. Mothers sewed the lettering on the makeshift uniforms.

The three teams would share eight baseball gloves and one $1.67 catcher's mask. The original bases were cheap duck material stuffed with wood shavings used for packing, donated by Flanagan's Drug Store. Later that same first season, mothers made replacement bases out of old feed bags that they filled with straw.

The first game was played on June 6, 1939. Lundy Lumber faced Lycoming Dairy on the field of a sandpaper plant on Memorial Avenue near Oliver Street west of Williamsport.

A small news article in the next day's Williamsport Sun gave this report of the first game in the history of Little League Baseball:

"Lundy staged two big innings to defeat Dairy (by a score of 23-8) in the Little League opener last evening. In a game filled with excitement for both fans and players, Sipe, hurling for Lundy, held the Lycoming batters in check and was in danger at no time in the game.

"Not until the third inning, after Gehron relieved Miller in the box, were the Dairy boys able to quiet the bats of the Lundy sluggers, and from that point on the game developed into a close contest....

"Thursday evening Jumbo Pretzels will meet Lycoming Dairy and determine whether stage-fright prevented the Dairy boys from playing a better brand of ball."

In fact, the Lycoming Dairy Farms team did thereafter play a much better brand of baseball. The club finished the 1939 season as the first Little League champion. Lundy Lumber Co. was second, Jumbo Pretzel Co. was third.

Baseball Commissioner tips his hat

Citing the growth of Little League, Bart Giamatti, the commissioner of Major League Baseball, notes:

"Little League Baseball is in the fabric of millions of lives and dreams. Nurtured and supported by dedicated volunteers, joyously pursued by players and their families, the game that began that long-ago summer's day in 1939 in Williamsport, Pa., is now an international phenomenon."

"Little League Baseball embodies some of the truly good things we have as a society: honest competition, democratic participation and teamwork, clear structure and defined roles.

"The players through the years have literally been 'growing up at bat.' From their first tentative steps and swings in T-ball, through interaction with other players, with coaches and managers, through seasons at the higher levels of organized competition, boys and girls grow into adulthood aided and enhanced by lessons on the playing fields of Little League Baseball.

"Although Little League Baseball was not designed to be a feeder program for organized baseball, happily it has worked out to be just that. More than two-thirds of current-day major leaguers once played Little League Baseball.

"And the big leaguers are quick to reminisce enthusiastically about what Little League meant to them. Such memories are really not only for major leaguers, but also for the millions of others around the world who still remember their days of Little League Baseball."

Cabot hitters too much for Dixie

Kyle Parnell's two-run homer highlighted an eight-run third inning for Cabot, which downed Dixie 14-3 Tuesday night in a Major League game.

The game was called after 3½ innings due to the 10-run rule.

Parnell's homer cleared the center field fence to give Cabot a 13-0 lead.

Tracy Peet and David Gamblin combined to pitch a one-hitter for Cabot. Peet started on the mound and was the winning pitcher. He didn't allow a hit while striking out six and not issuing a walk in three innings. Gamblin finished up on the mound.

Peet helped his own cause with a two-run double in the first inning as Cabot opened up a 4-0 lead. John Porter knocked in a run with a single.

Cabot made it 6-0 in the second on a two-run single by Parnell.

while Peet and Scott Larue each had RBI singles.

Dixie's only hit was a single by Clint Ferguson.

Cabot has a 5-1 record and was tied for second with Glo-Valve in the National League going into last night's game.

Thompson Parts Outlaws defeated Danny's Market Mustangs 16-14 in a Rookie League game played Tuesday.

Leading hitters for the Outlaws were Justin Cathey, single and triple; Greg Lindsey, double and triple; Josh Johnson, double and triple; Matthew Heasley, single and double; Daniel McPhearson, single and triple; Donnie Keim, single and triple, and Adam Lamberth, two singles.

Leading hitters for the Mustangs were Chad Mandrell, double and triple; C.C. Chervenka, two singles; Kaleb Snellgroves, single and double; Brian Frells, three singles; Jamie Howeth, two doubles, and Colby Street, two triples.

Defensive standouts for the Outlaws were Daniel McPhearson, Josh Johnson and Arvin Bhatta. Truyn Deeds and Kaleb Snellgroves played well on defense for the Mustangs.

Four area players chosen to play in K-101 Classic Bowl

By SONNY BOHANAN
Sports Writer

WOODWARD, Okla. — Four high school seniors from the Pampa News circulation area have been selected to play in the first-ever K-101 Classic Bowl all-star football game Saturday, June 3, at Woodward's Boomer Stadium.

Woodward radio station K-101 FM will host the Classic Bowl, which features 60 of the top high school gridders from the eastern Texas Panhandle, the Oklahoma Panhandle, northwest Oklahoma and southwest Kansas.

The players, chosen from among 11-man, eight-man and six-man schools in K-101's tri-state listening area, have been divided into East and West teams consisting of 30 players each.

Shane Guest and Chad Bentley, both of Wheeler, Colby Butler of Canadian and Shane Fields of Miami were nominated by their high school coaches and have been picked from among a field of 176 hopefuls to play on the West squad.

Guest, a running back and strong safety, paced all Mustang rushers last season by gaining 890 yards, despite missing three games because of cracked ribs. Defensively, he made 30 tackles and eight pass interceptions.

During Wheeler's state championship season in 1987, Guest racked up 70 tackles and 10 pass interceptions.

Teammate Chad Bentley, a guard and tackle for the Mustangs, was named to the first team All-State defensive unit in 1988 for his role in leading Wheeler with 160 tackles and 10 sacks. In 1987, Bentley was second in the state in Class 1A with 215 tackles, eight of them behind the line of scrimmage.

Both Bentley and Guest were named to the All-State honorable mention team on defense in 1988.

Colby Butler served the Canadian Wildcats as both a running back and line-backer, leading the team with 1,340 yards and 18 touchdowns in 1988. He was also named to the All-District squad in 2-A.

Fields, who played virtually every position for the Miami Warriors in the six-man ranks, was a one-man scoring machine. He piled up 1,546 yards in total offense last season to lead all rushers and scorers. He returned eight kickoffs for touchdowns and once scored 36 points in a single game. Fields also averaged 40 yards per kick as Miami's punter.

Four other senior gridders from the eastern Texas Panhandle will play for the West in the Classic Bowl, including Kelly Cherry and Justin Jordan, both of Follett, Matt Mann of Higgins, and Curtis Halliburton of Booker.

The West is further highlighted by two of the best quarterbacks on the eight-man football scene — Travis Bowles of Forgan and Mike Cleveland of Sharon-Mutual — as well as three players from Class A quarter-finalist Shattuck.

The football game, scheduled to begin Saturday at 7:30 p.m., will cap a full slate of Bowl Week activities that include four days of practice (May 30-June 2), hamburger and watermelon feeds, movies, parties and an awards banquet for participants and their parents on Friday night.

The K-101 foundation will award a $1,000 scholarship to one of the players at the awards banquet.

There is also a coaches' clinic scheduled for Friday morning, followed by the Bob Barry Celebrity Golf Tournament at Boiling Springs Golf Tournament on Friday afternoon.

Saturday's Classic Bowl will be broadcast live on K-101, which will announce East and West MVPs after the game. The week will wrap up with a musical concert by Mason Dixon Saturday night at the Woodward Fair Buildings.

San Jacinto advances in JUCO World Series

By ELLEN MILLER HADDOW
Associated Press Writer

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. — San Jacinto College of Texas, behind 12 strikeouts by a pitcher riding the wind, moved into a winners' bracket showdown tonight against hard-hitting Northeastern Oklahoma A&M in the National Junior College World Series.

"The wind blowing in my face caused the ball to drop," Gator pitcher Jason Bullard said after he beat Brevard College of Florida, 7-2, Tuesday night in a stiff, unseasonable 20 mph wind.

Northeastern Oklahoma, which enjoyed a bye Tuesday, has scored 26 runs on 25 hits in its first two tournament victories — many of them coming on well-executed hit-and-run plays.

"Our philosophy is to put the ball in play," said Northeastern Oklahoma Coach Bill Mayberry. "But I worry about the bye. I like guaranteed situations."

Three teams remained alive in the losers' bracket after Tuesday's games.

Cochise of Arizona, which pummeled

Iowa Western 16-4, has a bye Wednesday. Wabash Valley of Illinois, which sent Dixie of Utah packing 9-7, will play Brevard Wednesday afternoon in a loser-out game.

Top-ranked San Jacinto, which is seeking its fourth national championship in five years, pounded 14 hits against Brevard Tuesday night.

Brevard got only six hits but stranded 12 runners against the Gators.

Bullard, 8-1, gave up a first-inning solo home run to Brevard's Rich Tunison, then slammed the door on the Titans until the seventh inning.

Scott Bethea gave San Jacinto a 2-1 lead in the second with a two-run single. He doubled in another run in the third and came home on Randy Brown's RBI single for a 4-1 lead, with Brown singling in the fifth Gator run in the sixth.

The Titans made it 5-2 in the seventh on an RBI single by Eric Martinez, but Gator reliever Jason Ogen stopped Brevard.

San Jacinto made it 7-2 in the ninth when Chuck Foster's bunt squeezed in Chad Brossard and Tim Fiene came hom on a wild pitch.

Brevard starter Greg Ebbert, 5-3, was tagged with the loss.

Cochise pitcher Troy Bradford singled in two runs and held Iowa Western to four runs in seven innings to lead the Apaches past the Reivers, 16-4.

Bradford's two-run single in the seventh gave Cochise a 6-2 lead, all the Apaches would need to stay alive in the tournament.

Denard Stewart's two-run double also contributed to Cochise's six-run seventh. Bubba Hall hit a two-run homer in the eighth and Brad Erdman tripled home three runs in the ninth.

Iowa Western, 50-21, managed only single runs off Bradford in the first and third innings and two more off him in the seventh. Not even six Cochise fielding errors were taken full advantage of.

Reiver Eric Allen hit a solo home run in the first and Kyle Magnusson hit a solo shot in the seventh.

Wabash Valley's Jeff Gibbs and Darrin Barton drove in three runs apiece to power the Warriors to a 9-7 victory over Dixie.

Pitino resigns as Knicks coach

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Rick Pitino is going from pro basketball to probation.

Pitino resigned as coach of the NBA's New York Knicks on Tuesday and is expected to be named coach at the University of Kentucky later this week. The job at Kentucky, one of the most prestigious in college basketball, carries with it a three-year NCAA probation for recruiting violations under Coach Eddie Sutton, who resigned in March.

"I think right now, in the best interest of everyone, my job is to turn around the University of Kentucky," Pitino said Tuesday night after reaching agreement with the Knicks and being released from his contract. "That's my job right now. It's going to take quite a few years to do so."

It took Pitino two years to take the Knicks from near the bottom of the NBA to 52 victories and the Atlantic Division title. But it wasn't really what he wanted.

"I wasn't looking to get into professional basketball," said Pitino, 36, who led Providence

College to the 1987 Final Four before joining the Knicks. "I wanted to be a part of the turnaround here with the New York Knickerbockers. I wish it could have lasted longer, but you have to know who you are and I'm a college basketball coach and I think that's where my heart is."

So Pitino will head to the heart of Kentucky and the winningest college basketball program ever. A program with a dagger stuck deep within its breast.

The Wildcats, 13-19 last season, their first losing record in 62 years, are banned from postseason tournament play for two years and not allowed on live television for next season. That didn't scare Pitino.

"I've always gone in with one thing in mind, that we were obviously going to go in there and do it the right way and win and build a very entertaining style of play," he said.

Kentucky athletic director C.M. Newton, told of Pitino's availability, said, "That's great. We're obviously pleased with that because that was part of the process — Rick being able to obtain a release from his commitment to the Knickerbockers. Now that that's occurred, we can continue on and see where it ends up."

Knicks general manager Al Bianchi gave Pitino permission to discuss the Kentucky job, but the Knicks have said they expected to get back the money they spend in searching for a new coach. That hurdle apparently was overcome Tuesday.

Who might coach the Knicks down that road?

Among those mentioned for the job are Dallas Mavericks coach John McLeod, North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano, Atlanta coach Mike Fratello, who came under fire when the Hawks lost in the first round of the playoffs this year; Dick Motta, the man McLeod replaced in Dallas, and Chicago Bulls assistant Phil Jackson, an ex-Knick.

"Until Rick told us today, I haven't spoken with anybody," Bianchi said. "Tomorrow, we'll make some phone calls — and I'm sure we'll get some — and make a list. Selecting a new coach isn't an easy thing to do."
