Rescuers working to recover Leland's body

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Undaunted by bad weather, rescuers today began the grim task of recovering the bodies of Rep. Mickey Leland and 15 others who died when their airplane crashed into a mountain in southwestern Ethiopia.

The bodies of the Texas Democrat and 11 others were found Sunday in the wreckage of the twinengine plane, which disappeared Monday during bad weather on a flight to a refugee camp near the Sudanese border

The others were presumed dead in the crash that one U.S. Air Force pilot described as "awesome, unsurvivable," and the search for the other bodies began today in a steep ravine below a jagged cliff about 500 miles southwest of the capital.

"The nose of the plane just ran into rocks," said Rep. Gary Ackerman, D-N.Y., who was in the Blackhawk helicopter that first spotted the wreckage of his colleague, who was the chief architect and chairman of the House Select Committee on 'The wings sheared off and the engine and fuselage were burned," Ackerman said after returning to Washington late Sunday.

Flags were lowered to half staff at the White House while and President Bush and other leaders expressed sorrow at the death of Leland, who was en route to inspect conditions of 300,000 Sudanese civil war refugees at a camp in Fugnido, about 100 miles southwest of the crash site

The Twin-Otter aircraft, owned by Ethiopia's relief agency, crashed 4,300 feet up the side of a 5.500-foot mountain

A U.S. C-130 Hercules cargo plane and two Blackhawk helicopters carrying 100 U.S. and Ethiopian recovery teams was sent from Ethiopia's capital this morning, but the helicopters twice were forced back by bad weather.

John Guerra, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in the capital, said the weather cleared at midday and the helicopters refueled and set off again for the crash site.

The bodies were to be flown to nearby Dembidola then ferried by the C-130 to the capital, where a team of military forensic experts was standing by.

Pentagon spokesman Navy Capt. Stan Bloyer said in Washington that the plane did not appear to be attempting an emergency landing and "basically disintegrated" after apparently hitting the side of the mountain at cruise speed. He said the condition of the wreckage made the body count difficult. The wreckage is in terrain so rugged that medical teams, including two doctors, had to be lowered to the site from helicopters, said Haley

"At the very latest, we have 12 bodies confirmed," Haley said Sunday. "It is fair to say the others are presumed dead.

The bodies of the nine Americans were to be flown home via Torrejon Air Base outside Madrid, Spain, where full mortuary facilities are available. officials said. Seven Ethiopians were also reported on board Searchers had no immediate report of what caused the crash.

Leland's party consisted of two staff members; an aide to Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif.; a friend of the congressman; three officers of the U.S. Agency for International Development; and the wife of one AID official. The Ethiopians included a U.S. Embassy employee, three government officials and a crew of three.

Mourned as a fighter for the homeless and hungry worldwide, Leland was a six-term representative from Houston who began his political career as a firebrand militant but later won the respect of both liberals and conservatives

Bush said in a statement from the White House. 'Mickey Leland and the other members of his traveling party, both Americans and Ethiopians, were engaged in a noble cause — trying to feed the

Leland often said his commitment to ending hunger was rooted in a trip he made to Sudan in 1984, when a starving young girl died before his eyes at a refugee camp. "Every day I see her face," he told

The trip that ended with his death was his second there since March; he visited Ethiopia and Sudan six times in the 10 years he served in Congress. He was elected to fill the seat vacated by Barbara time for Houston. We have lost one of our most Bush asked two White House officials to accompany a congressional team that will bring the remains of the Americans back to the United States. In Houston, friends and colleagues of Leland streamed into his office as news spread that the wreckage had been discovered.

Rep. Mike Andrews, also a Houston Democrat, said with a breaking voice, "This is a very difficult important leaders, and I've lost a very good friend.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements must decide whether to call a special election in November or sooner to fill the downtown Houston district seat Leland

Leland arrived in Addis Ababa on Aug. 7 and boarded the Twin Otter within hours. Bad weather delayed takeoff for two hours, and officials said the plane finally left in heavy clouds and poor visi-

The search effort, which began Tuesday, grew steadily through the week. More than 10 U.S. Air Force planes, including a high-altitude U-2 reconnaissance craft, were eventually used.

The Ethiopian air force and Civil Aviation Authority added an equal number of aircraft, despite cool relations that have existed between the United States and the Marxist government of this East African nation since 1974.

Robert Houdek, the U.S. charge d'affaires in Addis Ababa, said Ethiopia's help in the search was bound to help improve relations.

In Texas, state leaders said the death of Rep. Leland will be felt most by the hungry, the poor and others in need of a champion.

Across Texas, colleagues and constituents of the six-term Houston Democrat took time from their grief to implore others to adopt Leland's passion for helping those who were hungry

'Mickey would love that,' Howard Johnson of the Houston Independent School District told a group of 500 people in the Phillis Wheatley High School auditorium, where Leland attended.

'Sometimes they fall for a purpose," he told the somber gathering Sunday.

At the Astrodome, a afternoon baseball crowd of about 27,000 observed a moment of silence before the Houston Astros played the Cincinnati Reds.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower noted Leland's helping hand spread across the globe

'Mickey certainly was a champion of people who needed a champion, whether it was in the wards of Houston, in the backroads of rural America or in the barrios of Los Angeles," Hightower

Bullock's newsletter drawing complaints Man forced to watch slain

COLLEGE STATION (AP) Some Democratic and Republican Party representatives are questioning a decision to mail a magazine published by State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office to precinct chairmen around the state

The mailings prompted complaints that Bullock is using his office to promote his candidacy for lieutenant governor, the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported Sunday.

At least three precinct chairmen and one former chairman in Brazos County are among those who say they're receiving Fiscal Notes for the first time

The publication, which has won several national awards, gives facts and figures about the state's fiscal condition.

A Brazos County precinct chairman, Grady Dale Ray, contacted Bullock's office to inquire when and why his name was added to the mailing list.

from Bullock detailing the origin fails to do so, that would be clear and purpose of Fiscal Notes, the newspaper reported.

"As for the distribution, I want to see the publication in the hands of everyone who is either interested in Texas government affairs or who can benefit from the information we publish," Bullock wrote

"We continually add names to the mailing list. I don't know why yours was added when it was.

Bullock and Chet Edwards, a state senator from Duncanville, are the only candidates so far to enter the race for lieutenant gov-

A spokesman for a consumer group called Public Citizen called the mailout "a miracle of good timing

"I'm just astounded that just before the election Bob Bullock would finally discover that there are Democratic precinct chairmen," said Tom Smith.

"I'm certain, of course, that he's mailing these to Republican Ray received a two-page letter precinct chairmen as well. If he attempt on his behalf to influence the election.

However, Rodger Lewis, chairman of the Brazos County Republican Party, said he has not heard of any Republican precinct chairmen who have received the publication.

'How could you think anything other than it's his taking advantage of his position to win the loyalty and admiration of the people who will decide how he does in the primary?" said Lewis

Tony Proffitt, spokesman for Bullock, denied that the mail-out has political overtones, the newspaper reported.

'I would expect the comptroller's detractors andor political opponents to try to make something out of this for their own political advantage," said Proffitt.

"I suppose if you look hard enough and long enough at something, you can see a bogeyman behind anything.

He said Democratic precinct chairmen have been receiving the publication "off and on over the years." He said he assumed Republican precinct chairmen are included among the approximately 70,000 people who receive Fiscal Notes

"The only thing it touts is the Texas economy," he said. "If anyone who is receiving it doesn't want it, their names can be taken off. Bullock does have the responsibility to report to the people on the financial condition of the state and this is one way of doing

Gary Rasp of the Edwards campaign said Democratic precinct chairmen in different parts of the state, including Houston, Dallas, the Rio Grande Valley and the Midland-Odessa area, have reported receiving the publication

'This business of sending out Fiscal Notes, to use his own language, does not pass the smell test and it's not the first time he's failed the test," said Rasp.

However, Ron Gay, chairman of the Brazos County Democratic Party, said he sees nothing wrong.

triend's body sink in creek

DALLAS (AP) — Police say a man testing a new boat was fatally stabbed and his friend was forced at gunpoint to watch as his body sank to the bottom of a creek

John Goins, 21, and Donald Raines, 25, of Mesquite, took their new boat Saturday to Rowlett Creek, which feeds Lake Ray Hubbard in northeast Dallas. They were confronted by two men and two boys in another boat that pulled up alongside theirs underneath a bridge, police said.

Raines of "messing with their trotline," said detective Jack Allison of the Dallas Police Department's homicide division. One of the men pulled a pistol and forced Goins and Raines into the water, Allison said. As the men treaded water, the other man climbed into the new boat and threw the boat's bat-

One man accused Goins and tery into the water. He then paddled the boat next to the men and stabbed Goins in the neck with a straight-blade hunting knife, Allison said. 'When the other man swam to grab a life preserver for his friend, the man with the handgun said, 'Don't put it on. Let him go,' " Allison said.

The suspects and boys then left in their boat, leaving Raines trying to dive for his friend. The fight occurred where the creek feeds the northern branch of Lake Ray Hubbard.

Two other fishermen who did not witness the stabbing stopped and asked the assailants about the commotion, but one of the men said it had only been the boys hollering, Allison said.

Police officers dragging the creek recovered Goins' body about 10 p.m. Saturday.

Syrian artillery pounds palace of Christian leader in Beirut

By RIMA SALAMEH Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian artillery today pounded the battered presidential palace of Christian leader Gen. Michel Aoun, the day after his forces repelled a ground attack on a mountain stronghold outside Beirut.

Souk el-Gharb, the stronghold 15 miles southeast of this beleaguered capital, was again hit by Syrian shellfire today

Police said 25 Syrians, 20 Druse militiamen and 25 Palestinians were killed Sunday in the Souk el-Gharb fighting and in skirmishes along Beirut's dividing Green Line The Lebanese Army said four of its men were killed and six wounded. They were no immediate reports of casualties today Aoun's aides said his forces were bracing for another assault.

If Souk el-Gharb fell, it would leave the way open for a Syrian ground offensive into the beleaguered Christian sector, whose eastern flank is shielded by the mountains that make the roads vital for any infantry and tank assault.

Aoun said his U.S.-trained 8th Brigade, reinforced by the 10th commando brigade, repulsed a four-pronged attack on Souk el-Gharb Sunday by 2,100 Syrian regulars, Palestinian guerrillas of the radical Syrian-backed Fatah-Uprising faction and the Druse Progressive Socialist Party militia. It was the first infantry assault in the confrontaalliance of about 40,000 Syrian regulars and Moslem militia allies that erupted March 8, the latest flare-up in Lebanon's 14-year-old civil war. That raised fears the Syrians and their allies may be seeking to drive into Christian territory after five months of fierce artillery and rocket exchanges with Aoun's troops. They are backed by the 6,000-strong right-wing Lebanese Forces, the tion between Aoun's estimated 20,000 troops and an Christians' main militia.

Police said the weekend killings raised the overall death toll since March 8 to 733 killed and 1,884 wounded by their count. A Syrian militiary spokesman in Damascus denied that any Syrian forces were involved in Sunday's fighting at Souk el-Gharb. But Aoun's headquarters said the Syrians threw most of their 41st Brigade into the combined assault with the Moslem irregulars "They suffered a resounding defeat," Aoun said in a victory speech broasdcast by Christian radio stations Sunday.

Rescue teams used an overnight lull to remove civilians trapped in wrecked buildings. Hundreds of cars smoldered in streets littered with broken glass and rubble. Dazed residents cautiously emerged from their shelters after some had been underground for four intensified. The duels began after Aoun blockaded illegal militia-run ports, which reportedly were costing the government $100 million a year in lost customs dues. The Syrians retaliated by shelling the Christ-

Moslems in the war. Syria refuses to negotiate with Aoun, who has vowed to drive the Syrians out of Lebanon.

Two arsons under investigation

Pampa Fire Marshall Tom Adams and Gary Stevens, arson investigator, are looking into the causes of two suspicious fires reported Saturday A fire late Saturday in a cement building in the 300 block of West Tyng was "definitely set," Adams said this morning. The building, used for storage by Santa Fe Railway Co., sustained light damage, he said. Three fire units and five firefighters responded to the call at about 10:20 p.m. Saturday, according to Pampa Fire Department reports. The small fire was immediately extinguished, but an unknown type of liquid contained in a barrel kept bursting into flame, firefighters said at the scene.

Adams said wording on the barrel itself said its contents had a 105-degree flash point, making it a combustible material, but he did not know what type of liquid the barrel contained.

'There was nothing that really could do any damage, just boxes and stuff," the fire marshall said. "It's been years since the building was used for anything. It looked to be a Santa Fe section crew had stored tools and things in it.

"Kids probably were playing around and started the fire," he added. Adams and Stevens were to meeting with Santa Fe officials to discuss the fire today, he said.

The two fire officials are also looking into the cause of a car fire on East Francis Street early Mike Helms, 1011 E. Francis, reported an arson to Pampa police at 5:30 a.m. Saturday. According to the police report, Helms discovered the left side of his 1980 Chevrolet pickup was on fire at about 5 a.m. The pickup was parked in the driveway facing north, the report said.

Helms had put out the fire by the time police arrived on the scene, the report said.

Adams said he was notified of the arson report this morning and that he and Stevens were to investigate the matter further later today.

Commissioners to discuss budget, jail

Gray County commissioners are to meet in regular session at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the county courtroom, Gray County Courthouse.

Among the items to be discussed Tuesday will be the 1990 budget and progress on a new county jail. Commissioners are to open bids for Phase I of the jail construction process after rejecting all bids at the Aug. 1 meeting. They reopened the project to bid, specifying the bid would be for Phase I, which included a feasibility of the county's options on whether to build a new jail, renovate the existing jail or renovate a building into a jail plus preliminary plans for the jail.

received at the Aug. 1 meeting and will be considered at the meeting Tuesday. Budget requests are runnning about 20 percent above the present budget, county officials said.

Sept. 15 has been set as the target date for setting the budget and approving next year's tax

The following matters are also to be considered at the meeting Tuesday:

A request to adjust premium rate on group life insurance policy;

ment of Highways offering the county to charge a fee up to $10 in er's report.

Budget requests for 1990 were addition to the state license plate fees; ■ Budget transfers to cover overdrawn items; ■ Appoint election judges and discuss consolidation of precincts for amendment election;

A proposal to improve the county road to the Lefors Cemetery; A resolution to change method for selection of members to the Gray County Appraisal District

Transistor co-inventor Shockley dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — By helping to invent the transistor, William Shockley did as much to shape the modern world as Louis Pasteur or Madame Curie, colleagues said. But he died with a reputation tarnished by his controversial racial theories.

Shockley, who shared the 1956 Nobel Prize for physics, died Saturday of prostate cancer at his home on the campus of Stanford University, the university said Sunday. He was 79. He was among the fathers of the electronic age but spent his later years embroiled in controversy over his theory that intelligence is genetically based, and that blacks as a group are inferior to whites. "I would say he would have to be compared to people who as Pasteur or the Salk vaccine." said Professor William E. Spicer, Shockley's friend and colleague for 33 years. 'But certainly the controversies he got into later in life made it much more difficult for him to get recognition for his key contribution," said Spicer, a pro-

The team's first device, developed during what they later called a "magic month" during 1947, was an innovation that made vacuum tubes obsolete and the electronic age possible. Most modern devices, from airplanes to wristwatches to computers, contain the technical descendants of Shockley's work

Shockley Semiconductor Laboratories, the company he founded after leaving Bell labs in according to a nursing super-1954, was instrumental in the birth of Silicon Valley and the electronics industry. His former employees later invented the integrated circuit and the microprocessor, the building blocks of the computer age.

"It's a great loss for Stanford," said Joseph W. Goodman, chairman of the school's electrical engineering department.

Shockley "has made the most important revolution in the 20th century," Makoto Kikuchi, the executive technical adviser of Sony Corp. who has known Shockely since 1960, said in an interview. "He had not imagined his invention would lead to such a rapid revolution in electronics...

Shockley's sparked campus demonstrations by claiming that intellectually inferior blacks were producing children faster than mentally superior whites. His genetic theories also prompted debate over the use of IQ tests in schools and over why blacks failed to score as well as whites. Most experts have blamed this outcome on biased tests and other factors not related to genetics. Many of Shockley's scientific colleagues ridiculed his racial theories and abandoned their association with him, claiming he had passed beyond his field of expertise and was acting irresponsibly. In his later years, Shockley tried several times to befriend

GROOM — One man was rudely awakened to find himself being stabbed in the temple of the head early this morning between 1 and 1:30 a.m. in Groom.

The victim's name was not released by Carson County authorities due to a law prohibiting such action still in effect.

The man was sleeping in a house in the 200 block of Chotaw Street in Groom when the suspect reportedly entered the residence and stabbed him, said Tim Taylor, a deputy with the Carson County Sheriffs Department.

"The victim was able to escape with the knife in his head," said Taylor. He ran out the back door and down the street about two blocks to get help, Taylor said.

The man is in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Northwest Texas Hospital,

Democrats square off for Wright's seat

DALLAS (AP) — Although Republican Dr. Bob Lanier was the highest vote-getter in a special election to replace Jim Wright in Congress, his runoff opponent predicted victory in the heavily Democratic 12th District.

Lanier received 21,978 ballots, or 39 percent of the vote, in Saturday's special election, but Democrat Pete Geren was elated about his 32 percent showing — 17,751 votes - in the district that encompasses most of Fort Worth.

A Fort Worth attorney, Geren got quick endorsements from both Wright and from Democrat Jim Lane, who finished third in the race and with 22 percent of the vote was the only other candidate to garner more than 3 percent.

Well, the Democrats won tonight," Geren told supporters at a victory party late Saturday at a west Fort Worth hotel. "It took us four candidates to do it, but when you total it up, we got nearly 60 percent of the vote. I call that a victory.

A runoff is necessary because no one in the eight-candidate race to replace Wright received a majority of the votes. Gov. Bill Clements will set a date after election results are certified.

Geren received a ringing endorsement from Wright, who resigned the seat June 30 after an ethics investigation uncovered 69 instances of alleged house viola-

"I want to ask all of you to redouble your efforts because here's a man I want to be my successor," Wright told supporters at the victory party. "He is steeped in the traditions of our state and country."

Lanier hosts the nationally syndicated TV health show 60 Second Housecall. He pointed to his success in a district traditionally dominated by Democrats, and Wright in particular.

Wright first won election in 1955 and was re-elected 17 times in the next 34 years, often with token or no opposition. He received 88 write-in votes in the special election, even after he told constituents he was not interested in trying to win back the seat. 'This is a Democratically designed district. It's been that way for 34 years," Lanier said. "For me to get 40 percent of the vote in a district like that is pretty good. "If we can go into this thing with a four- to five-point lead, we think we can do this." Lanier has the endorsement of Sen. Phil Gramm and more reason for optimism in knowing that Ronald Reagan and George

Bush carried the district in the last three presidential elections. The elections administrator asked Clements to schedule the runoff for Sept. 9. The runoff must be called 20 to 30 days after the state canvasses the votes, a process that probably will be completed in a week.

Dallas voters, in a referendum, approved a proposal to reorganize the city council to equalize voting power between whites and minorities. The proposal received 41,456 votes to 20,823 against. "The struggle goes on," state Rep. Fred Blair, D-Dallas, said. "It is no longer business as usual in this city.

Despite the drubbing in most of 54 precincts examined in South Dallas and West Dallas, the plan passed citywide because of overwhelming support from white voters, mostly in North Dallas.

The so-called "10-4-1" plan calls for the addition of two single districts and four quadrant representatives, leaving the mayor as the only at-large member of the city council.

Opponents argued that adding seats would dilute minority strength.

A lawsuit challenging the current 8-3 plan is scheduled to be heard Sept. 5 in U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer's court. Buchmeyer also is reviewing the 10-4-1 plan and two other plans that weren't on the ballot. One is 12-1, in which all council members would be elected from districts and only the mayor would be elected at large

Columbia back from secret military mission

By LAURA TOLLEY Associated Press Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The crew of the shuttle Columbia were tightlipped after returning safely to Earth from a military mission believed to include the deployment of a spy satellite and tests of "Star Wars" equipment

'We had a great time," Air Force Col. Mark Brown said after the Columbia glided to a pinpoint landing at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., early Sunday.

Neither he nor the other four astronauts had much else to say about the five-day, onehour and 56-minute flight, the first for NASA's oldest shuttle in more than 31/2 years.

The crew was resting today but will return to the Johnson Space Center on Tuesday to begin a series of briefings about their flight, officials said.

The five astronauts and their wives returned home to Houston late Sunday afternoon. They were greeted at Ellington Field by their families and about 300 cheering friends and co-workers.

"It wasn't nice, it was fantastic," pilot Richard Richards, a Navy commander and one of three space rookies on the flight. told

"Our mission went perfectly smooth," said Brown, a mission specialist and another firsttimer in space. "The vehicle was flawless."

A news blackout ordered by the Department of Defense prevailed over the entire flight, and only a few brief announcements broke the official silence. Even the landing was closed to the public.

The main goal of the mission was widely believed to be deployment of a powerful, 10ton spy satellite that can snap highly detailed photographs of military installations, troop movements and other targets around the world. Such a satellite would help the United States verify Soviet compliance with arms ployed a satellite several hours after blastoff Tuesday from Cape Canaveral, Fla., but he would not elaborate about its purpose.

The astronauts also were believed to have conducted "Star Wars" experiments and to have performed tests aimed at determining the feasibility of monitoring military sites from space.

Columbia was commanded by Air Force Col. Brewster Shaw, a veteran of two previous shuttle flights. The crew also included mission specialists Navy Cmdr. David Leestma, who flew one previous flight, and Army Lt. Col. James Adamson. In a telephone interview with The Kansas City Times, Braun said he had struggled with his good and evil sides, but in the end, hatred and contempt consumed

"I guess I was just born bad," he said from a New Mexico

Braun, a feedlot worker, is charged with murdering, kidnapping and robbing two convenience store clerks in his hometown of Garden City on July 19. He is Pampa on July 20. And he is a suspect in the killing of a flower shop employee in Ardmore, Okla., on July 21. The clerks in all four states were shot in the back of the head.

Cosme Ripol, one of Braun's public defenders, said the lawyers were likely to pursue an insanity defense to the charges of first-degree murder and seconddegree armed robbery in the July 23 slaying of Geraldine Valdez at a convenience store in Springer, Prosecutors are seeking the death penalty.

In his testimony at a preliminary hearing Thursday, Braun admitted killing Valdez.

'There's no identification issue here. The only issue left is Gregg Braun's mental capacity, his sanity," Ripol said Friday.

"I basically don't feel, as I said yesterday on the stand," Braun said. "They said how do I feel, and I said 'cold.' I don't have any feelings. I didn't know Miss Valdez, so how could I have any feelings for her?"

Describing himself as hateful, Braun said he blamed only himself for his actions.

"I did it, of my own free will, and that's all there is to it," he Braun, 28, is being held on $1 million bond. After Thursday's preliminary hearing, a magistrate ordered that Braun stand trial on charges of first-degree murder and second-degree armed robbery.

Braun, who has a history of drug abuse, said he grew tired of having to apologize for his morals, which he said "were not as high as other people's.' "I guess I was born bad. I don't

Poll: Twenty years later, Woodstock echoes on Woodstock rock.

By GARY LANGER Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Echoes of the Woodstock festival reverberate in American society 20 years after the counterculture concert rocked the nation. But when it comes to rock 'n' roll itself, most people say the tune's gone

Eight in 10 American adults have heard of the Woodstock festival, held Aug. 15-17, 1969, on a muddy farm in upstate New York - and three in 10 of them wish they had attended, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found

That high level of awareness was rooted in a view of Woodstock as more of a historical milestone than simply a show. Most regard it as the expression of a social movement, and half of them said that movement continues

Yet the view of Woodstock was not an idealized one. While nearly six in 10 of those who knew of the festival said it has had a lasting effect on American society, only half of them said the effect was a positive one. Even more striking was the widely held opinion that times have changed for the better. Just a quarter said the Woodstock era was a better time than today, while half viewed it a worse time than now.

But respondents were critical of the course of rock 'n' roll music, the raucous hallmark of the Woodstock era: Rock music of the Woodstock days was rated twice as highly as the rock 'n' roll of today. Nearly half of all respondents said they still listen to Woodstock-

The poll, conducted among a random sample of 1,163 adults nationwide, had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

As could be expected, it found a dramatic generational division in views of Woodstock. For example, 40 percent of those younger than 45 would have liked to have attended. compared with just 10 percent of the older respondents.

Moreover, among those who saw a lasting social impact of Woodstock, more than 60 percent of the younger group said it was a positive effect, while only about a quarter of the older group agreed.

Interest in rock music followed similar lines. More than 60 percent of those under 45 said they listen to Woodstock-era rock 'n' roll now, evidence of the sizable audience for "classic rock" radio programming. Of those 45 and older, just 22 percent were tuned in to

Overall, 50 percent rated rock music of the late 1960s and early 1970s as excellent or good, while just 27 percent gave those favorable ratings to the rock 'n' roll of today. The Woodstock festival, featuring most of the top rock bands of the day, drew half a million people to Max Yasgur's farm in Bethel, N.Y. The term "Woodstock Nation" soon came to refer to young people who were agitating for an end to the Vietnam War and the loosening of social mores.

Twenty percent of the poll's respondents said they knew someone who attended Woodstock, and 25 of the 1,163 people polled said they were there.

The survey was conducted July 7-16. Media General Inc., a communications company based in Richmond, Va., publishes the Richmond Times-Dispatch, the Richmond News Leader, the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune and the Winston-Salem (N.C.) Journal, and operates TV stations WXFL in Tampa, WCBD in Charleston, S.C., and WJKS in Jacksonville, Fla.

Fidel can't execute desire for freedom

Now that Gen. Arnaldo Ochoa finally has been executed by Fidel Castro's firing squad, we can see a little more as to what's going on in Cuba. It seems obvious that not just Ochoa was involved in the drug trafficking for which he was officially executed, but Castro himself. Castro remains the caudillo of Cuba, and his secret police know everything that goes on in and around the island.

For decades Ochoa was one of Castro's top aides. He fought beside Fidel in the 1959 putsch that imposed communism on Cuba; commanded the 50,000man army that invaded Angola in the mid-1970s, keeping the country's communist regime in power; performed the same task in Ethiopia, thereby allowing its regime to institute the forced starvation of the 1980s that has killed more than a million people; and commanded the Cuban forces that solidified the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

That's quite a record of terror, all in the service of Castro. Ochoa was a top officer in the triangle of drug trafficking between Cuba, Noriega's Panama and Sandinista Nicaragua, whose interior minister, Thomas Borge, is a top Castro ally and drug

There apparently are other reasons why Ochoa was executed. He criticized Fidel's reluctance to follow the perestroika economic reforms of Mikhail Gorbachev. The Soviets want to curtail the $5 billion in yearly supplies they send to prop up Castro's incompetent socialist regime. And Ochoa, a charismatic leader and a favorite of Cuba's troops, was the most likely leader of a coup against Fidel, possibly backed by Moscow. Ochoa was also a rival of Raul Castro, Fidel's brother and Cuba's defense minister.

What should be the United State's position? It's unlikely President Bush would do the best thing and end the useless "war" on drugs that has turned the Caribbean into a center of drug smuggling. That alone would undercut Castro's drug profiteering. The debate on the matter has begun, but the United States seems years off from ending this latest attempt at substance prohibition.

Yet Bush effectively can pull the rug out from under Castro by ending the current trade barriers with Cuba. As recent events in China and Central Europe have shown, open trade "corrupts" communism; it lets in a fresh breath of freedom. In contrast, sealing countries off only delays the eventual shift from socialism.

Fidel is pretty old now; his successors likely will be more open to change. Ending the sanctions against Cuba would let hundreds of thousands of Cuban exiles in Florida return home to trade and to 'corrupt'' communism with capitalism. Fidel can execute generals he fears, but not the Cuban people's longing for freedom.

The judge put on a fine show

WASHINGTON — The trial of Judge Alcee Hastings - his fourth trial, actually - came to an end Aug. 3 after 24 days of testimony.

The record will be printed in September; closing arguments will be heard in the Senate in October: if two-thirds of those present vote to convict, Hastings will be out, stripped of his life-tenured judgeship and deprived of his $89,500 salary. He probably could make better money rivaling Johnny Carson on TV

The case began in the summer of 1981. It remains as puzzling now as it was then. Either Hastings is wholly innocent of the charges against him, or he qualifies as the most notorious liar since the doomed Ananias of Acts: 5. There is no middle ground.

President Carter nominated Hastings for a district judgeship in Florida nearly 10 years ago. As a black, liberal Democratic activist, he won prompt confirmation. In his first week on the bench Hastings was assigned the trial of Tom and Frank Romano on charges of stealing from a Teamsters pension fund. The two brothers were found guilty, and it became Hastings' duty to pronounce sentence. He confiscated their property and imposed a heavy fine.

At this point there entered the mysterious figure of William A. Borders Jr., a prominent black lawyer in Washington and a longtime close friend of Judge Hastings

In one view, Borders conspired with the Romanos and with Hastings: In exchange for a bribe of $150,000, the judge would restore the confiscated property and lighten the sentence. In the opposing view, Borders acted entirely on his own; Hastings was no more than an innocent dupe whose good name had been stolen by a con

In 1982, Borders was tried for attempted bribery; he was found guilty and sent to prison. Early in 1983, Hastings was tried on the identical charges; he was acquitted and returned to the bench. That was his first trial.

Several of Hastings' fellow federal judges, convinced that he had committed perjury and fabricated evidence, effectively tried him a second time and recommended that he be impeached. The House of Representatives heard the story a third time last year and in August voted 413-3 to send the matter to the Senate.

Hastings went on trial before a panel of 12 senators sitting in the main hearing room of the Hart office building. It is an impressive chamber, dominated by a huge slab of gray marble that forms a floor-to-ceiling backdrop for the bench. Tables are draped in red cloth; the 200 spectators, almost all of them Hastings' partisans, sat in blue plastic chairs. Under the TV lights it grew unbearably hot. The senators arrived in coats and presided in shirt sleeves.

Hastings was the final witness. He is a fascinating fellow — nattily dressed, mostly bald, a full mustache. For a man on trial for his professional life, he was the soul of jollity. Before the Wednesday and Thursday sessions began he worked the crowd, pressing the flesh, embracing his supporters; once he essayed a nimble dance step.

On the witness stand, Hastings was alternately laconic and loquacious. Responding on crossexamination to questions from Alan Baron, special counsel to the House, he charged like a hungry shortstop, taking every question on the first hop, zinging his throw to base.

Again and again he passionately insisted upon his innocence. He could be formal, addressing counsel as "Mr. Baron." Moments later, he would lapse into the jocular familiarity of old friends: "Now, Alan, you know that if I had wanted the FBI not to find me, they'd be looking for me yet."

Through his two days on the stand, Hastings played confidently to the crowd, to the point that residing Sen. Jeff Bingaman of New Mexico repeatedly had to quite the judge's fans. It was partly grandstanding, partly a revival meeting. Amen, brother! You tell 'em, Judge!

Few of the senators seemed impressed, but these things are hard to tell. The evidence against Hastings is wholly circumstantial; not a dime of bribe money ever was traced to him.

His defense is that a string of uncanny coincidences should be seen as just that - coincidences, no more. A certain telephone call that sounded fishy, a hotel rendezvous that might have signaled complicity, letters that may have been fabricated and backdated — the senators were skeptical but attentive.

Hastings put on a fine performance. It may have sufficed to persuade enough senators to acquit him. If not — if he's convicted — he has a fine future in the world of entertainment. He was born to be an impresario, not a judge.

Perhaps he misses the point

The family thought it would be an appropriate way to celebrate Bastille Day, to attend the Chicago production of Les Miserables.

I was not enthusiastic and that lack of enthusiasm may have colored my appreciation.

In the first place there is so much romantic phoniness in most accounts of French political upheaval. The fall of the Bastille, for instance, did not relate nearly so much to "fraternity, equality and liberty" as it did to the price of Further, the fall of the Bastille liberated only seven ironically comfortable prisoners and those seven were not confined for their revolutionary activities but rather for such crimes as incest, fraud and lunacy.

So admittedly I went to the theater predisposed to dislike Les Miserables. In that, I was not disappointed.

Despite an enormously talented cast, including two magnificent voices, the monochromatic production evolved bleak, bleaker to bleakest. These people were three hours of miserable! The redundancy of their songs of suffering was Shakespeare had always been skillful in alternating suffering with comic relief, thus to sharpen the focus.

Paul Harvey

Dickens was always able effectively to define debauchery in terms of one person's experience never in an atmosphere of total debauchery. And it can be done with this classic plot. The Michael Rennie version of the motion picture did it. It was a French Ben Hur where righteousness prevailed.

This production of Les Miserables is a black line on a black canvas, lacking perspective. In contrast, recently I spent a most enjoyable evening attending Phantom of the Opera. That production is "dark" as well - but also romantic, rhapsodic, spooky, funny — it's everything!

Les Miserables, on the other hand, was every sad song you ever heard recycled for two very long acts.

Then why the crowds? I've been trying to fi-

I can understand why theater people love to perform in and attend such a tormented produc-

Actors sometimes take life and themselves too seriously. Especially the younger among them are convinced that they are feeling emotions that nobody else is sharing.

Theater people are lovable and loving, and yet often demonstrate with little self-discipline. And without the imposed discipline of such a composer as Andrew Lloyd Webber or Stephen Sondheim they are like — well, they are like Dick Van Dyke without the guidance of Carl

And there are not enough Webbers and Sondheims and Reiners to satisfy today's ravenous appetite for entertainment.

This still does not explain "why the crowds:"

Possibly because of the dearth of material, Les Miserables is the only game in town. Partly, also, because a public, intimidated by critics, is afraid to acknowledge contrary feelings. Then, too the "revolution plot" fits the prevalent American penchant for involvement in the misery of other countries.

Then, of course, there is always the unthinkable possibility that Paul Harvey does not know what he is talking about!

Faith is what it's all about - faith in the readers of this column. When I called the hall of fame's executive director, Sally Parr, in early June, its chances for survival looked as bleak as a Popsicle's in August.

She wasn't optimistic about a financial turnaround, because news stories in a couple of the nation's largest vspapers had not generated any nificant contributions. The hall of fame needed $100,000 just to stave off

But, I explained to Parr, my syndicate readership is a little different. My readers wear political antennae that flicker constantly in response to social issues. They may not always agree with me, but we carry on an audacious scribe-reader love affair.

With a telephonic "we have nothing to lose" shrug, Parr OK'd the column. Besides, all the national news stories were bound to have a cumulative effect. They did. Gannett Foundation, one of the nation's most caring and socially conscious foundations, came through with a $100,000 grant.

"They told us, 'We're happy to do it. Now, go out and do well," said Parr. Philip Morris donated $10,000. The National Park Service arranged a $10,000 cooperative grant. Various small businesses and individuals sent in $55,000. Then you, gentle readers, enlisted in the eleemosynary army.

These lawn problems can cause concerns for homeowners unless accurate diagnosis and proper treatment takes place before they become Dry spots, thin turf and weeds can result from improper watering, fertilizing and mowing practices. Follow recommended cultural practices before applying a chemical to correct lawn problems.

Drought or water stress shows up as wilted, discolored turf. Adjust watering schedules to wet the soil to a depth of four to six inches, and water only when grass shows symptoms of moisture stress.

Also, raise mowing heights one-half inch to improve drought intolerance in midsummer.

Lack of nitrogen or iron often creates a lawn problem. Grass with nitrogen deficiency may have a pale color and be heavily infested with weeds. A light application of a nitrogen fertilizer will improve the lawn's appearance.

Grass leaves that have yellow stripes to the leaf margins may be deficient in iron. A foliar application of iron sulfate at six ounces per 1,000 square feet will usually solve this problem.

Leaf spot diseases are generally a problem when lawns are under stress and increase with high temperatures, drought, heavy shade, and close mowing. While proper mowing and watering will reduce these problems, fungicides may be required to prevent serious damage. White grubs feed heavily on lawns during mid-summer, and their damage resembles drought injury. If turf does not respond to applications of water, check your soil to a depth of four inches in several spots to see if grubs are pretrolled with insecticides. Follow directions and water the lawn after an insecticide is applied for grub control, since grubs feed in the soil.

to prevent seed production. Allowing plants to set seed will shorten the flowering period.

Don't be alarmed if plants wilt slightly in midafternoon. This is the natural method of preventing excessive moisture loss. Watering is usually unnecessary unless plants fail to recover by late evening.

When soil is dry, water thoroughly, soaking the soil to a depth of five to six inches. Allow soil to become slightly dry before watering again. Use a mulch to conserve moisture.

To encourage new growth, cut plants back drastically. This is especially true of petunias as they have a tendency to become tall and leggy.

GARDEN QUESTIONS ANSWERS

How often should my tomatos be fertilized? It is necessary to fertilize the garden before planting tomatos. Apply the fertilizer again when fruit first sets. From that point on, an additional fertilization (sidedress) every week to 10 days is recommended. Plants grown on sandy soils should be fertilized more frequently than those grown on heavy, clay soils. A general sidedress fertilizer recommendation is one to two tablespoons of a complete fertilizer scattered around the plant and worked into the soil. If using a fertilizer high in nitrogen such as ammonium sulfate, reduce the rate to one tablespoon per plant.

Why do cucumbers bloom without setting fruit? This is a pollination problem. Cucumbers have male and female blooms and for proper fruit set, the pollen must be transferred from the male to the female blooms. This is usually done by pollinating insects, primarily honeybees. If pollen transfer does not take place, fruit will

How do you tell the difference between the male and female cucumber bloom? Female blooms have small immature cucumbers located directly behind the petals. Male blooms do not have immature fruit.

How can you tell the difference between a slicing cucumber and a pickling cucumber? Slicing cucumber are dark green and are from 6-8 inches in length. Pickling cucumbers are lighter and are short and blocky. If you intend to put up pickles, then grow pickling types. Pickling cucumbers were developed to go through the bringing process and will produce a higher quality product. If you intend to use cucumbers mainly in salads then rely on slicing types.

Are "burpless" cucumbers really burpless? Yes, at least to some people. Some people have gastric problems which prevent them from enjoying resn cucumbers. The new burpless types are milder.

Korean War Memorial will be a gift from American people

DEAR ABBY: Orchids to you for calling public attention to the Korean War veterans.

In March, my wife, two sons and I visited Washington, D.C., for a sightseeing vacation that included a tour of Arlington National Cemetery. Our guide pointed out the Korean War "memorial," which was a cement park bench on which was engraved: "In Sacred Memory of Those Americans Who Gave Their Lives During the Korean War (1950-1953). 54,246 Died; 8,377 Missing in Action; 559 Unaccounted-For

Our sons were incensed after reading the casualty statistics. They had no idea the Korean War was so bloody and costly, and couldn't understand why those who fought in Vietnam had been honored with such an impressive memorial, while the Korean War veterans had only a cement park bench.

Matt, 13, felt compelled to do something about it, so for his Eagle Scout project he researched the War Veterans Memorial.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) -Regaining the No. 1 ranking in the world isn't what motivates John McEnroe as he juggles his role as player, husband and father.

"I'm doing the juggling act better. There's no way you can prepare yourself for being a father and the responsabilites that go with that," said McEnroe, who is married to actress Tatum O'Neal and has two young sons.

"I feel like I'm handling it the Open. better now. There's no tougher job than that," said McEnroe, ranked No. 6 in the world. "It's also the most rewarding. ... It's an extra challenge that you have to try to do both, but it's certainly more satisfying when you succeed.

The 30-year-old McEnroe, who was No. 1 in the world from 1981-84, won the final 13 points Sunday to defeat 22year-old Jay Berger 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 in the championship match of the U.S. Hardcourts tennis tournament.

"I have the desire to play the best that I can play. I feel if I really do that I could end up in that position," McEnroe said of the No. 1 ranking.

"I don't have a burning desire to be No. 1. I didn't really feel like I enjoyed it much the years that I was there. I felt like it was a pressure that I could do without," said McEnroe, who will play in Montreal this week in his final tune-up before this year's Open.

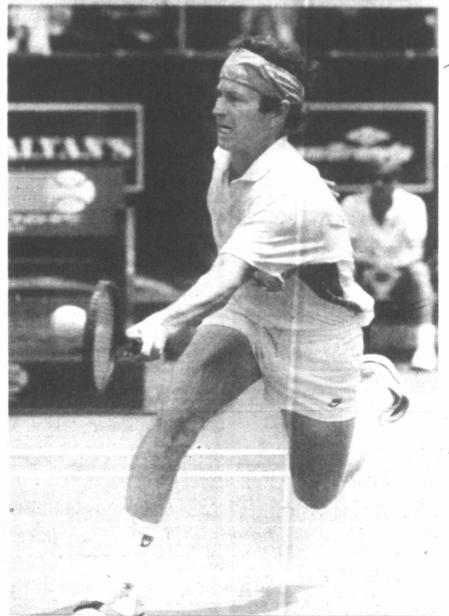

"There were moments where I felt I played as well as I have all year here," said McEnroe, although he admitted he needs to work on his first serve before

After drawing even after two sets, Berger ran into a McEnroe buzzsaw.

Berger then held service for a 4-2 lead, but won only two points in the final four games.

on Reid's collapse

up missing from radar.

Day One was stolen by Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson.

And the tournament was stolen by Payne Stewart after Mike Reid, the man called Radar because his accuracy, lost his way on the last three While Stewart was finishing with a 31 on the back nine, birdieing four of the last five holes, Reid drove into the water on 16 for a bogey, missed a 2-foot putt on 17 for a double bogey and missed a 7-foot birdie putt on 18 that would have saved a playoff.

"The Russians must have been transmitting because my radar kind of got zapped," a tearful Reid said.

Reid, who led the Masters on the final day this year before three-putting 14 for a bogey and driving into the water at 15 for a double bogey, said he had learned from that collapse. "I want to make that experience a stepping stone, not a tombstone," Reid said Sunday morning after finishing the back nine of the raininterrupted third round.

Instead, he sank like a stone. Stewart, playing three groups in front of Reid, made up six shots on the last nine holes, birdieing Nos. 11, 14, 15, 16 and 18 for a 67 to Reid's 74.

"Man, this is unbelievable," said Stewart, who was actually nine strokes behind Reid when the third round resumed Sunday morning with Reid on No. 10 at 13-under and Stewart on No. 12 at 4-under.

This is a dream I've been trying to work at for some " Stewart said. "I'll time, cherish this moment for a long right," he said and then could time."

Cowboys open with victory under new regime

PGA Championship him at 12-under-par 276, one stroke ahead of Reid, U.S.

Open champion Curtis Strange and Andy Bean. Dave Rummells was alone at 10-under with Ian Woosnam at 9-under and Scott Hoch and Craig Stadler at 8-under.

Watson, who was trying to win the only one of the four Grand Slam events to elude him in his career, shot a closing-round 71 to finish at 281, 7-under par and five shots

Nicklaus closed with a 72 for a 3-under 285.

And Palmer thrilled his army one more time with a fine fourth-round 70, including a birdie on 18 that followed a five-minute standing, roaring ovation as he walked to the green.

Palmer finished tournament at 5-over 293.

The trio, who have combined to win 164 tournaments, including 36 majors, electrified the crowd on Thursday when Watson, 39, shot a 67, and Nicklaus, 49, and Palmer, 59, each had 68s.

But the magic faded and names like Reid, Strange, Stadler and Stewart started taking over.

For Stewart, the 32-year-old known for his snazzy knickers and for always being around the lead, it was his first victory in a major tournament and his fourth overall. He won earlier this year at the Heritage.

For Reid, it was another bitter defeat.

"I led at the Masters through 14 and this time I made it through 15 or 16," he said as he started to choke with

"I'm getting there, I'll get it not go on as tears welled in his

1989 Property Tax Rates in ____City of Pampa

This notice concerns 1989 property tax rates for _____City of Pamba three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements must decide whether to call a special election in November or sooner to fill the downtown Houston district seat that Rep. Mickey Leland held

The special election would be the second this year to fill a Texas congressional seat, with voters going to the polls Saturday to chose a successor to former House Speaker Jim Wright, who resigned amid a congressional ethics investigation. Wreckage of a plane carrying Leland and 15 others to a refugee camp in Ethiopia was discovered Sunday on a rugged and remote mountainside about 100 miles from the traveling party's destination, and Pentagon officials believe there were no survivors. Recovery of the bodies was expected to begin today.

'Condom Fairy' asks permission to hand 'em out

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Park Board has been asked to allow a woman dubbed the "Condom Fairy" to give away condoms at a city park.

Penny Stark-Lessley, who organized a Sept. 16 "Walk for Life" at White Rock Lake to raise money for AIDS research, has requested permission to pass out free condoms at the event.

The inquiry has been passed along to the city attorney's office to see if the giveaways might violate a policy prohibiting free distribution of "adult-oriented products" at city-sanctioned

The Park and Recreation Board will make the final decision. The request is scheduled to go before the board's administration and finance committee this week

Board president Ida Papert told The Dallas Morning News she understood the health reasons for passing out condoms, but she wondered, "Is that a park problem? I don't know. "I don't know if we should pass out condoms in the park," Ms. Papert said. "It bothers me to see them in the drugstore — but I'm old and old-fashioned." Ms. Stark-Lessley said she passes out condoms all the time. "My friends call me the condom fairy," she said. She had planned to distribute condoms at a park concert Sunday, but that request was denied because it came too late for park board consideration.

Park board member Vivian Johnson said condom distribution was designed to prevent health problems, while alcohol and cigarettes contribute to

Leland gained prominence as liberal advocate

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Mickey Le- Republican opposition in his first campaign land, a liberal advocate known in the Texas Legislature as a black-power firebrand, died during a trip designed to meet those he helped often — the hungry. He was 44.

The Houston Democrat served as chairman of a select House subcommittee on hunger. He was aboard a plane reported missing last Monday during a tour of refugee camps in the southern Sudan of Africa.

Rescue workers located the wreckage on Sunday and said no survivors were found. Fifteen others also were on the plane, including nine Americans.

Leland, who attended Houston public schools, graduated from Texas Southern University in Houston with a pharmacy degree. He was an instructor of clinical pharmacy at TSU and a practicing pharmacist before winning a Texas House race in 1972.

Leaving Houston's impoverished Fifth Ward, he entered the Texas Capitol as a civil rights activist with a militant reputation. His political career grew during three legislative terms and he lived in a fashionable home in an upscale Houston neighborhood with his wife, Alison, and son Jarrett, who was baptized by South Africa's Bishop Desmond Tutu. Leland's political style also moderated somewhat since his election to the U.S. House in 1978, when he replaced retiring Democratic Rep. Barbara Jordan.

In the inner-city 18th District, he faced no and defeated Socialist Workers Party candidate Deborah Vee Vernier with 96.75 percent

In five re-election bids, Leland defeated each of his challengers with ease. But he drew a harsh 1988 primary challenge from Houston school board trustee Elizabeth Spates, who charged that the popular black leader had lost touch with constituents while seeking exposure as spokesman for the hungry and homeless.

Leland won the primary with 82 percent of the vote. He later acknowledged some truth in Ms. Spates' campaign and reaffirmed his commitment to the district.

'There's people I've not touched in a long time. This has been a great exercise for me,' he said after his primary victory. "I feel very confident that my community is very solidly behind me now. Before, there was some question — I have been on the road quite a bit. I have been going abroad.

On such a trip, Leland was reported missing while touring the refugee centers where thousands of malnourished peasants seek food and shelter.

In an article written for the Houston Chronicle earlier this year, U.S. Rep. Henry J. Hyde of Illinois, the ranking Republican on the House Select Committee on Intelligence, recognized Leland's efforts in the region.

"Leland's personal diplomacy with Ethiopian strong man Mengistu and Sudanese officials opened up life-sustaining corridors in the border region between the two countries — a peaceful (relief) supply route," Hyde said.

Leland also served on the House Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service and was twice chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus

He oversaw a program in which black youths from his urban district were sent to Israel for six-week stays. He was honored last April by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, a Reform Jewish organization, for his work in uniting blacks and Jews.

Leland was one of several congressmen investigating the problems of colonias along the Texas-Mexico border, where thousands of people live in unincorporated subdivisions that lack running water, electricity and sewage systems.

Last October, he joined two other congressmen in a trip to Cuba in efforts to negotiate the release of five political prisoners and their families

When members of the Veterans' Peace Convoy to Nicaragua were stopped at their approach to the International Bridge in Laredo in June 1988, Leland negotiated with U.S. Treasury officials in an effort to allow the group's passage across the border.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson chose Leland as one of the top four fund-raisers in his 1988 presidential campaign.

Drug tests flag risk of poor job performance

By MALCOLM RITTER AP Science Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Postal workers who tested positive for drug use were more prone to absenteeism and getting fired, according to a new study that could give private employers an indication of the cost of workers'

The analysis, one of the first studies of its kind, found that drug users had a 41 percent higher absence rate and about a 40 percent higher rate of being fired, said researcher Jacques Normand.

Results suggest that by spending about $1.8 million a year to screen job applicants for drugs, the post office could avoid about $3.1 million in costs related to absenteeism and firing in the first year, he said. Over three years, the avoided costs would surpass $17 million, he said.

For private employers, the study provides hard data showing that drug screening results are related to later job performance, he said.

Normand, a senior industrial psychologist at the U.S. Postal Service in Washington, presented the study Sunday at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

Few well-designed studies have examined the cost to employers of worker drug use, commented Steven Gust of the National Institute on Drug Estimates have relied mostly on anecdotal information instead, said Gust, who called Normand's work provocative.

Normand said the post office is phasing in drug testing as part of its evaluation of job applicants. Results of the drug tests on people included in the study were not revealed to personnel officials to ensure that the results did not influence hiring decisions. A total of 5,465 applicants at 21 hiring sites across the country were screened by urine test for use of amphetamines, barbiturates, benzodiazepines, cocaine, marijuana, methadone, opiates and phencyclidine.

The job performance analysis focused on the 4,220 applicants who were hired and completed a standard 90-day probationary period. Of this group, 373 had tested positive for at least one drug.

Among those testing positive, 251 showed evidence of marijuana use only and 88 for cocaine use with or without marijuana. The others fell in other categories. Absenteeism was calculated as the percentage of assigned working hours that the employee was out sick, absent without pay or absent without official leave. The calculations were done after an average of eight months on the Workers who had tested positive for drug use were absent for an average of 4.2 percent of their assigned working hours, in comparison to 3 percent for the other workers in the study, Normand

The difference per employee is small, but it becomes more significant when applied to a large workforce, Gust of the drug institute said.

Normand estimated that the greater absenteeism would cost the post office $2.6 million in one year when applied to workers hired that year. He also said the cost probably would increase as workers stay on the payroll, because new workers are encouraged not to take leave during their probationary period.

The study also found 13 percent of positive-testing employees had been fired, compared to 9.5 percent of those who had tested negative.

Gust said the study does not address the question of whether drug use directly affects performance on the job. However, drug test results may act as a proxy for some other behavioral or personality trait that affects job performance, he said.

The study is "a marvelous take-off point" for investigating that issue, he said.

Another congressman's plane missing in forest

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — A single-engine plane carrying U.S. Rep. Larkin Smi h disappeared from radar screens and is believed to have gone down in a forest, a spokesman said today.

John Walker, spokesman for the Mississippi Republican, said rescuers searched by air and on the ground south of Hattiesburg in the DeSoto National Forest.

p.m. (Sunday) and went off radar at 9:25 p.m.," Walker said.

Billy Thornton, an assistant to Smith, said staff members were optimistic that the freshman legislator and the pilot, both of Gulfport, would be found alive.

He said it would take several hours for anyone to walk out of the rural area.

Thornton also said search aircraft during the night reported no
