

Congressman Mickey Leland buried today at Houston

By LAURA TOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Rep. Mickey Leland, who was among nine Americans killed when their plane crashed while en route to an Ethiopian refugee camp, will be buried today in a private ceremony.

Leland and the other American victims of the Aug. 7 crash were first flown to Washington where they were honored Wednesday for their efforts to feed the hungry. The Texas congressman's body was flown to Houston later that day.

He was to be buried this morning at Golden Gate Cemetery, said Houston City Councilman Rodney Ellis, a friend of the Leland family. Only immediate family members and a few friends were invited.

An Air Force C-135 carried Leland's flag-draped coffin to Houston's Ellington Field, where about 50 people gathered for the solemn arrival Wednesday night.

They watched in silence as Leland's coffin was taken off the plane by an all-military team of pallbearers. Two women held an abstract banner in red, green, black and gold banner that they made in his honor.

Leland's mother, Alice Rains of Houston, and brother Gaston also were on the flight from Washington. Mrs. Rains clutched a folded Ethiopian flag as she watched the team carry her son's coffin to an awaiting hearse.

"I kind of feel like he's at home," said councilman Ben Reyes, who was at the airport. "It makes you feel a little better to have him home."

an refugee camp were honored earlier at a ceremony at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington.

Leland's coffin was the first removed from an Air Force C-141 jet transport that had brought the bodies from Addis Ababa to Andrews. Three congressional aides, four foreign service officials and a New York philanthropist were the other Americans killed in the crash.

"We gather to honor nine fallen heroes of peace," said House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash. "They reached Addis Ababa by different roads ... but each was on a mission of peace, humanity and compassion. In asking God's blessing on each of them, let us dedicate ourselves to their values."

As the Air Force Band softly played dirges, three all-military teams of pallbearers slowly moved the coffins from the transport plane to nine hearses on the tarmac.

"Let us all pledge to keep alive the spirit of Congressman Leland and those who shared his mission. May God bless them, and may God bless America, which they represented so honorably and well," said Undersecretary of State Robert Kimmitt.

Leland's mother stood with hands clasped at her waist through most of the 45-minute ceremony. She dabbed tears from her eyes when the door of the hearse bearing her son was closed.

About 400 people, including family members of the crash victims, 25 House members and scores of congressional aides, attended the Andrews ceremony.

In addition to Leland, the American victims were: —Patrice Johnson, 35, Leland's chief of staff.

—Hugh A. Johnson, 34, a member of the House Select Committee on Hunger, of which Leland was founder and chairman.

—Ivan Lee Tillem, 33, a New York investment banker and philanthropist.

—Joyce Francine Williams, 39, an aide to Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., and an expert on child health and nutrition.

—Robert Woods, a political and economic officer at the U.S. Embassy in Addis Ababa. He was serving his first overseas assignment.

—Gladys Gilbert, 43, special projects officer for the Agency for International Development.

—Thomas Worrick, 48, deputy AID representative in Addis Ababa.

—Roberta Worrick, 48, wife of Thomas Worrick and an AID contract employee who had written a novel and a book of short stories about life in Africa.

Seven Ethiopians also died when Leland's chartered Twin Otter slammed into a mountainside not far from its destination. Wreckage of the plane was not found for a week, and it took several more days to identify the dead.

Earlier Wednesday in Washington, the foreign service victims were honored in a ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial, where Fred C. Fischer, former U.S. relief coordinator in Ethiopia, declared, "We honor their memory here today, but the real memorial is in Ethiopia, in the persons of those lives they helped save."

In choked voice, Acting AID Administrator Mark L. Edelman said "they were in the field and in the trenches, often in the backwater of human existence, working to make other lives better, willing to assume the burden of a task that sometimes seemed impossible and often times seemed thankless."

"Yet they went back again and again."

Ag Department layoffs in market news under criticism

SAN ANGELO (AP) A decision by the Texas Department of Agriculture to eliminate three positions from the state's agriculture market news operations is being criticized by agricultural and political leaders.

Positions terminated include a state-funded clerical position in the Federal-State Livestock Market News office at Producers Livestock Auction Co. in San Angelo, a market news reporter at Goldthwaite and a seasonal fruit and vegetable market reporter at McAllen.

The three employees were notified last week that their positions had been eliminated, effective Sept. 15.

U.S. Department of Agriculture reporter Becky Sauder of the San Angelo office said Wednesday that market news of interest to West Texas livestock producers could be delayed because of a lack of personnel.

After the other position is terminated, Sauder will be responsible for getting all area auction and market information to the news media.

Texas Department of Agriculture market news coordinator Rick Wahrmond of Austin said the decision to eliminate the jobs was made by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower and two department executives, Mike Moeller, deputy commissioner of agriculture, and John Vlcek, assistant commissioner for Market and Agriculture Development.

Wahrmond said he had lost 13 employees, more than half the work force, since 1981. Several part-time positions also have been eliminated.

"We now have 11 employees in the division and four of them are here in the (Austin) office," he said.

State Rep. Robert Junell and State Sen. Bill Sims, both San Angelo Democrats, criticized Hightower for making the cuts and refuted contentions that the cuts were the result of Gov. Bill Clements vetoing $3 million of the TDA's 1990-91 budget.

Junell said the reduction was not meant to include the market news service. The market news line item actually had a $35,000 budget increase, he said. The budget was $540,000 in 1989 and $575,000 for 1990.

Sims said he was very concerned with the cut in market news appropriations.

"Livestock people should not suffer from a change in budgeted funds. Money should go where it is supposed to go," he said.

Manges trying to have his bankruptcy case changed

SAN ANTONIO (AP) Clinton Manges, a South Texas rancher who has dabbled in everything from Duval County politics to banking to professional football, couldn't help boasting about his land trading ability during a hearing on his efforts to protect his 98,000 acre ranch from foreclosure.

Despite debts of $60 million and facing foreclosure, Manges Wednesday boasted about his ability to wheel and deal during a hearing to determine if he can move his bankruptcy proceedings from San Antonio to Corpus Christi.

"I imagine I've sold and traded more land than anyone in Texas," Manges said during testimony at yet another hearing stemming from the collapse of an oil and real estate empire that at its peak made him one of the nation's richest men.

"I have the second largest uranium deposit in the United States," he added.

During a break in Wednesday's hearing, he said he will never lose his ranch. "No way that'll ever happen."

Manges is attempting to persuade U.S. Magistrate John Primomo to allow Manges to place Duval County Ranch Co. in bankruptcy in Corpus Christi instead of San Antonio.

J. Patrick Deely, an attorney for Seattle-First National Bank, said that by filing in Corpus Christi, Manges is attempting to delay foreclosure on his ranch located near Freer.

Manges, who owned the San Antonio Gunslingers of the now-defunct United States Football League, told The San Antonio Light, "This is just a little scrimmage to see where the big battle is."

"I'm not wiped out," he said. "It's just a war with Seattle-First."

"The bank wants it money," Deely said.

Manges, his diamond encrusted gold Rolex watch showing from the sleeve of a polyester sports coat, appeared to be as confident as when he presided over a banking and ranching empire in the 1970s.

Before his money problems rose to the forefront, Manges was involved in a political power struggle for political control of Duval County.

Factions controlled by George B. Parr, the late "Duke of Duval," and by the powerful Carrillo brothers of Benavides, courted Manges' support while they battled for control of Duval County.

Parr later shot himself to death while appealing a federal income tax evasion conviction and two of the three Carrillo brothers served prison terms for charges accusing them of looting the treasuries of various county agencies.

Manges took the bankruptcy action to protect his ranch, valued at $27 million, from foreclosure.

The action came after he defaulted on an agreement that he pay part of the $55 million judgment awarded to the bank on business loans dating back 10 years ago.

Under the terms of the agreement reached last year, Manges was to pay the bank $30 million by this month. Although he managed monthly payments of $200,000, he was unable to come up with the balance.

He filed for bankruptcy after U.S. District Judge H.F. Garcia issued a seizure and sale order.

Manges later countered with another offer to pay $300,000 a month and sell off 50,000 acres to pay a $30 million lump sum.

The always secretive Manges jokingly asked his lawyers to stop talking to reporters following the hearing.

"You're hurting my reputation, my credibility," he said.

Jurors begin their deliberations in I-30 condo trial at Lubbock

By HOLDEN LEWIS
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK (AP) — Jurors already seem to be in the swing of things as they ponder the fates of D.L. "Danny" Faulkner and six others accused of pocketing $135 million in a real-estate conspiracy along Interstate 30 east of Dallas.

The jury began deliberations late Wednesday morning, and by 3:45 p.m. already had posed a question to U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings.

Cummings called attorneys from both sides to discuss his answer in private and did not reveal the contents of the jurors' note to him.

The judge spent 80 minutes Wednesday morning reading his charge to the jury and instructing jurors what points of law they should consider when deliberating over the 88-count indictment.

The 11 women and one man have about 4,000 documents of evidence and depositions to consider, and each juror has a thick binder of notes taken during the six months of testimony.

Prosecutors and defense attorneys refused to predict how long it will take the jury to reach a verdict. Cummings has imposed a gag order on all attorneys and court personnel, including bailiffs.

The defendants are accused of pocketing $135 million in loans from Empire Savings and Loan Association of Mesquite and four other thrifts. They are alleged to have obtained the loans fraudulently through fanciful land appraisals and sham real-estate transactions on I-30 near Lake Ray Hubbard in east Dallas County.

All the defendants are charged with a federal conspiracy count. Five defendants — Faulkner; his partner, developer James L. Toler; former Empire chairman Spencer H. Blain Jr.; banker Paul Arlin Jensen; and real-estate salesman Kenneth Canler — are charged with racketeering.

If convicted of racketeering, the men could be required to forfeit all profits from their I-30 deals in 1982 and 1983: $40 million for Faulkner, $38 million for Toler, $23 million for Jensen, $22 million for Blain and $12 million for Canler.

The other two defendants are land appraisers Arthur Formann and Paul Douglas Tannehill.

Defense attorneys tried in vain to persuade Cummings not to apply the Pinkerton precedent in his charge to the jury. The precedent, from a 1946 Supreme Court decision, says co-conspirators are legally accountable for crimes committed by other conspirators in carrying out the conspiracy, even if they are not aware of those specific crimes.

Judge upholds school's Confederate symbols

By ANDREA RADER
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Students at South Garland High School can continue to use Confederate symbols for their sports teams after a federal judge ruled that the symbols may be distressing but are nonetheless legal.

"I have to apply the law even if I disagree with it," U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer told officials of the NAACP and the Garland Independent School District Wednesday.

The high school has a flag that resembles a Confederate flag except for a drawing in the middle, said Ed Cloutman, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The school's fight song is sung to the tune of "Dixie" and a school mascot dresses like a Confederate army officer.

The NAACP asked Buchmeyer to forbid the district from using them, calling the symbols disruptive and racist.

"There's no question in the court's mind of the effect these symbols have had on those who object to them. ... But the symbols have not resulted in violence or disruption and have not been used to prohibit blacks from taking part in extracurricular activities," Buchmeyer said.

NAACP Southwest Regional Director Rev. Richard Dockery said he respected the judge's ruling.

"We have no problem with the judge's ruling as it relates to his imposing and enforcing the law, upholding the law, as he stated the law," Dockery said. "Even though he ruled against us, I respect his decision."

Dockery said there are no immediate plans to appeal or to ask the school district to voluntarily change the symbols. School Superintendent Jill Shugart indicated that the district would not likely eliminate them.

"It was the school board and the administration's position that those symbols had been selected years ago by the students ... and we had had no evidence of student disruption or problems," Ms. Shugart said.

The administration asked the student leadership to review the question last year. After a series of meetings, the students recommended that the symbols remain. Ms. Shugart said she would be reluctant to intervene in that decision.

South Garland High School has 2,350 students, about 80 percent of them white, Shugart said. Cloutman said he believed about 10 percent of the students are black.

Cloutman said he did not know whether the NAACP would appeal.

Elderly's needs to grow next century

By NANCY BENAC
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of elderly people living alone will surge in the next century, creating more demand for support services such as home care to help them avoid nursing homes, researchers say.

"The number of frail elderly, elderly with health limitations and elderly living alone will all exceed the general increase in the elderly population," said a report by the Urban Institute, a private agency.

The elderly of the next century will have fewer children and will divorce or remain single more often, leaving many without a "significant caregiver" and heightening their need for public and private services, the researchers reported.

In a study titled "The Needs of the Elderly in the 21st Century," the researchers called for efforts to help prevent people from becoming disabled as they age, target services toward those who most need help, and rework financing so needed services are more affordable for the elderly. If current rates of disability persist, the number of elderly requiring institutional care will more than triple by 2030, from 1.3 million in 1984 to 5.3 million, said the researchers, led by Sheila R. Zedlewski.

"While an increase in the need for nursing home care is inevitable, the increase could be reduced if successful policies aimed at reducing disability rates among the elderly are adopted," the report said.

"Further reductions in institutionalization rates could be made if formal in-home services or alternative care arrangements were more broadly available to the elderly."

The study said more health-care dollars should be devoted to research that could prevent or postpone disabling diseases of aging. Of $145 billion spent on health care for the elderly in the United States in 1988, less than half of 1 percent was invested in research, it said.

The report also said the patchwork of federal, state and private programs to help the elderly often makes it difficult for older people to qualify for the help they need, resulting in inappropriate institutionalization.

"It may sadly and ironically be the case that entry into a nursing home may be the 'solution' to what is basically a housing rather than a health problem," it said. "Similarly, entering a nursing home may emerge as a 'solution' to the elderly person's inability to manage a household."

The report recommended reduced barriers to housing and social services programs that could help older people remain independent. It also called for government policies to encourage private insurance programs for long-term care and to help those who cannot afford that insurance.

The researchers said that while social services such as home-delivered meals, homemaker assistance, visiting nurses and adult day care can delay or prevent institutionalization, more are not covered either by the government or private insurance.

As a result, most such assistance is provided by family members, who need outside help "to prevent burnout and enable them to continue giving their family members the care they need."

Promoter apologizes for heavy metal concert

DALLAS (AP) — A concert promoter apologized for booking a heavy metal band as part of an outdoor concert series police are now reviewing because of the unruly crowd the show attracted.

Authorities said they nearly lost control of the crowd of more than 20,000 who attended the free concert Monday by Warrant in the popular West End entertainment district of downtown Dallas.

"It's shows like this that could ruin it for the whole area," said Steve Fields, president of the company that booked the heavy metal band. "What can I say? I'm sorry." Officer Dan Johnson, who reviews requests for concert permits and recommends to Police Chief Mack Vines whether to approve them, said many concert-goers were under 21 and drinking illegally.

"It was a lot of confusion," said Johnson, who monitored the concert. "We had a number of fights. We had a bunch of people passing out."

No one was seriously injured during the fights.

Band members encouraged the crowd to impede a fire truck that arrived to help an injured person, police said.

"The band and the amount of people surprised me," Fields said, explaining Warrant was virtually unknown when they were booked for the concert.

The group's album, Dirty Rotten Filthy Stinking Rich, is now No. 17 on the Billboard rock music chart.

Police said such problems may lead them to tell Dallas Alley to move its free Monday night concerts indoors to the Boiler Room, a 1,000-person capacity nightclub that prohibits minors.

Dallas Alley, a group of West End nightclubs and restaurants, has sponsored free concerts on Monday nights for two years. The weekly events run from April through October at an outdoor plaza.

Past performers have included Timbuk 3, Julian Lennon, New Bohemians, and Midnight Oil, an Australian rock group that drew 15,000.

Authorities said there have been few problems before, and Johnson said all of the nightclub's requests for concert permits have been approved.

Odessa resident reunites with his Vietnamese family

By MIKE WHEELER
The Odessa American

ODESSA (AP) — To escape certain death when North Vietnamese communist troops overran Saigon more than 14 years ago, Thoi Tan Ngo fled to the United States.

But he had to leave his family behind — they were more than 200 miles south of Saigon on that fateful day; Ngo could not get them out.

"The city was full. There were so many people coming out of the north ... just so many trying to get away that I couldn't get out to get my family. Even if I had, we would never have been able to get back in," the 47-year-old Ngo said. "I made the decision to leave and could only pray to God that a way to get my family out would come soon. I knew I couldn't do anything for them if I died."

Getting his family out of Vietnam eventually took 14 years.

By way of Guam, Ngo came to the United States first to Arkansas, then, three months later, to Odessa.

Ngo left Vietnam in April 1975 when U.S. civilians were evacuated from Saigon, renamed Ho Chi Minh City after the communist takeover. Although not a U.S. citizen, as an employee of the U.S. Embassy his life was in extreme danger when the communist forces took control of South Vietnam.

Ngo left behind his wife, Bo Thi Lu, then 24 years old, and five children, the youngest only 2 months old.

"She had to lie at times. She had to destroy any documents or papers at home that would have connected me, or her to me, with the U.S. Embassy. She told them I was a truck driver," he said.

Ngo said being caught between the fear for the lives of his family and the longing for them made the 14 years seem more like eternity.

"For two years, I cried from loneliness and the separation," he said. "But I made up my mind to make a home. Sort of like with a VCR, I put my feelings on pause and started doing just that."

He bought a house in 1979, then continued what was to be a very long wait and many frustrating attempts to get the communist government to release his family.

The years passed, but they were filled with uncertainty and sometimes terror.

Ngo could only write to his family, who were living in Bai Soa near the southern coastline of South Vietnam, once a year. In turn, he received only a single letter from them.

At one point, however, Ngo lost contact with his wife for almost four years. He did not know if his wife and children were alive or dead, or were taken prisoners by the communist government because he had escaped.

"I lived in fear. I was afraid to strongly seek contact with them because I could have threatened their security, even their lives," he said.

Only a month after Ngo escaped, the U.S. Congress approved $405 million to assist South Vietnamese refugees. More than 140,000 were flown to the United States, but Ngo's wife and children were not among them.

The communist victors in Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos did not bring peace. More than 1 million people died in Cambodia during the attempted radical reorganization of the country from 1975 to 1978. The hundreds of thousands of people fleeing were causing widespread starvation in countries already devastated by war.

"My wife had to completely change her lifestyle. We knew eventually the communists would loosen control, and I would be able to get them out," Ngo said. "But we just didn't realize then how long that would take."

In 1981, Mrs. Ngo filed for family reunification for the first time. "But she made some mistakes on the application and the government canceled all applications," he said.

"A little before Grenada in October 1983, the Vietnamese government had initiated a program in which South Vietnamese generals and high-ranking officers could leave Vietnam," Ngo said. "We were never given a particular reason why the government canceled the applications, but I believe the U.S. invasion of Grenada had something to do with their decision. (Grenada) had fallen under communist rule and Vietnam was very angry with the invasion."

Mrs. Ngo was not able to file again until 1986. Although it took nearly two years, this time luck was with them — the exit permit for the entire family was approved in November 1988.

"Then the United States stepped in and began the interview process to get the papers to get my family out," Ngo said.

On July 5, Mrs. Ngo and the children — Huyen Tran Thi Ngo, 21; Dat Tan Ngo, 19; Huyen Trang Thi Ngo, 18; Cam Phuong Thi Ngo, 16; and Cam Huong Thi Ngo, 14 — left Vietnam. Huyen Tran Thi also has a child, Tri Minh Du, who will be 1 year old this month. Her husband, however, was not able to leave Vietnam.

"We will continue to fight for his release," said Ngo.

Mrs. Ngo's mother also remains in Vietnam.

"I don't think she'll ever move here, but maybe someday she can visit," Ngo said.

Both agree they would be hard-pressed to express their emotions in words of when the family was reunited in Dallas last month.

"I was expecting my wife and five small children. But they're all grown up. I just wasn't prepared. So many years had gone by, but I thought they would all be the same. All I could do was cry like a child," Ngo said.

Said Mrs. Ngo, who cannot speak English but speaks through her husband, "I was filled with joy but still sad that I had to leave behind my mother, brothers and sisters."

As the tears flowed down Mrs. Ngo's cheeks from the memories of only two weeks ago having to leave behind her family, Ngo said, "We're still sad for some things, like this, but we were a happy family when we had to part, we remained as happy as could be expected although we were separated, and now we're happy together again."

The Rev. Dean Kelm, pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church, said, "This was a family love that survived 14 years; a love that survived a separation of more than 11,000 miles and government intervention the like we've never had, and probably will not ever have, to deal with."

Meanwhile, Ngo, an electronic technician for the past 10 years, is more positive about the future now than he ever has been.

"We don't place any blame for what happened to our family, not even on the communists. We must live, there's no time for placing blame. We'll simply go on with our lives," he said. "But much happier lives."

Bush invents new sport: aerobic golf

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — White House physician Lawrence Mohr says it's almost as if President Bush has invented a new sport: "aerobic golf."

Mohr, whose job it is to stay within hailing distance of the president, shook his head in disbelief the other day as he raced, black doctor's satchel in hand, to keep up with the president and his party as they dashed from green to green.

Bush has been spending much of his vacation at the Cape Arundel Golf Club, where the other day he and his party zipped through 18 holes of golf in one hour and 52 minutes — something of a local record.

"All right, the crowd is hushed. They sense Mr. Smooth is back," Bush said to no one in particular as he teed off one recent day.

It's not clear why the president keeps referring to himself as "Mr. Smooth," especially since his golf game remains, he admits, a little ragged. But that's what he calls himself — and he is, after all, the president.

"Excuse me, Mr. Smooth," his principal golfing partner, eldest son George W. Bush, called out recently.

The president told him to keep quiet, that Mr. Smooth did not like a lot of talking.

The son and father appear to enjoy goading each other on the golf course, and it's a relationship played out in front of the reporters who follow the president from hole to hole.

When Bush missed a three-foot putt, another ball magically appeared in front of him. He missed that too. Another ball suddenly was provided. He missed again. Finally, on the fourth try, Bush sank the ball.

"One of the advantages of being president is you get to putt until you make it," said Bush's son to reporters and photographers.

It was George W. Bush, after all, who dared the president to jump into the chilly Atlantic with his trousers on — for $11. And the president took him up on it.

"For a guy your age, you hit pretty good," is a common observation from Bush, 42, on the performance of Bush, 65.

And so it goes, following Bush and company at a near-daily ritual as the president enjoys a vacation scheduled to last until Labor Day.

He boats, he jogs, he plays tennis, but most of all the president is using his free time to brush up on his golf.

"Just trying to come back after years of not playing," Bush says.

Bush almost always drives his own golf cart around the course, as does his son. They are followed by carts containing playing partners, the White House physician, military attaché, Secret Service agents and a variety of aides.

Just two guys, standing around?

Phil Milner, left, and Jeremy Lourens are from South England and are in town visiting with Jeremy's cousin, Ailene Boyd and her husband, Doug. They are visiting the states making connections in their new business venture. Milner, an engineer, and Lourens, into electronics, are buying old European cars, vintage late 40s to late 60s, for restoration. This is Milner's first trip to the U.S. Lourens once visited New York City. They landed in Orlando, Fla., and traveled by car to Pampa. "The friendliest people in the world are in the U.S.," says Lourens. "Particularly Texas," says Milner, adding, "I've traveled around the world, been to Australia and Turkey. People ask me how other countries are and I tell them they don't need to travel, you have everything right here (in the U.S.)." "Unless you are traveling for the history, that's true," agrees Lourens. Milner and Lourens will be leaving soon for home. There is no question in this reporter's mind about the postive image of the U.S. they will be carrying home with them.

AKC registration - what it means for your dog

By Sharon Henry
Top O' Texas Kennel Club
 The American Kennel Club was established as a record keeping organization. Member clubs were organized for the purpose of protecting and preserving the purebred dog, as well as for educating the public about the various aspects of dogs, their care, and proper procedures for confirmation point shows and obedience trials.

When you buy a purebred dog with "papers", this only indicates that all of its ancestors were of that particular breed. It does not indicate the quality of the individual dog, nor that the animal is show quality. AKC registration papers do not insure the physical, mental, or emotional health of the dog.

Registration is only a record of the puppy's sire and dam, the breeder's name, the owner's name and address, and the certificate bears a number assigned to the puppy.

Registration also indicates the dates the puppy's parents were entered into the AKC stud book, which is generally of no interest to anyone except the AKC.

The puppy's pedigree is the real guide to its heritage. The reputable breeder gives these to puppy buyers or a certified copy can be obtained from the AKC. Unfortunately, the AKC has to rely on the honesty of the breeder to send the correct information on the breeding.

Buyers should thoroughly check into the background and reputation of the breeders before buying any puppy or dog.

If you bought a dog with "papers" and find that it was misrepresented as a purebred when in fact it isn't, you should lodge a complaint with the AKC, explaining the problem and including proof of your accusation.

Proof could be letters from other breeders, AKC club members, groomers, the veterinarian and pictures of the dog.

If found guilty, the breeder will be reprimanded and probably have their registration privileges suspended or revoked. The entire litter's registration certificates would be nullified.

To be recompensed for the fraudulent sale, you will either have to deal with the breeder yourself or hire the services of an attorney. The AKC does not handle any cases. Address for The American Kennel Club is 51 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10010.

Back-to-school fashions

Skeggings, skirts with tights plus tops, are the latest in back to school fashions for the girls this fall.

Shared combs, brushes spread head lice

NEW YORK (AP) - Chances are pretty good that sometime in your child's school years he or she will get head lice, but with diligence it is easy to eradicate.

The National Pediculosis Association - pediculosis capitis is the medical term for head lice - says most cases are unreported, but estimates about 6 million Americans are infested each year.

For reasons that are not entirely clear, school children aged 3 to 10 appear to be most susceptible, but anyone can be infested if he happens to come in contact with someone who has them. The symptom is read and itchy scalp, and the best defense is knowing what to look for in the hair, getting proper medical treatment and notifying the school or other people in close contact with the child.

Contrary to popular belief, head lice cannot fly, hop or jump. But once on the scalp they can move quickly from hair to hair or scalp to scalp. Therefore it is believed that direct head-to-head contact is responsible for the majority of head lice transfer.

Head lice can live for 24 hours at temperatures of 70 to 80 degrees F. so they can be spread among children via shared combs, brushes, hats, scarves and other clothing.

The first step in treating head lice is using a pediculicide shampoo to kill the lice. The second step is removing the nits, or lice eggs, which are deposited on the shafts of hair close to the scalp with a glue-like bond.

There are several over-the-counter and prescription formulas available, including Ovide Lotion by GenDerm.

Besides treating the hair and scalp, there are other measures that should be taken to help eradicate lice:

-Machine wash in hot water and dry in a hot dryer all clothing, towels and bed linens that the infested child has used in the past three days. If this is not possible, have all of the items dry-cleaned.

-Pillows and stuffed animals that the child sleeps with should be put in a hot dryer for 20 minutes.

-All times that cannot be washed or dried should be sealed in a plastic bag for two to four weeks, allowing any surviving lice or nits to complete their life cycle.

-Soak combs, brushes, rollers, barrettes, headbands and other hair items in hot soapy water for one hour.

-Vacuum floors, rugs, upholstered furniture and mattresses.

Kennel Club members compete in area shows

Members of the Top O' Texas Kennel Club recently competed in dog shows in Lubbock and in Panhandle.

Winning in the Lubbock show on July 30 were:

Alvadee Fleming - Toy Poodles. "Blue" won Best of Breed and Group 4, Toys. "Beeper" won Best of Opposite Sex.

Mona Wheat - Pomeranians. "Magic" placed second. "Milli" won Best of Breed and Group 3, Toys.

Frankie Wallis - Rough Collie. "Addison" won Best of Breed and Group 3, Herding.

Results of the August 13 Panhandle show were:

Jackie Denham - Rottweilers. "Shadow" placed second. "Dreamer" placed third.

Frankie Wallis - Rough Collie. "Addison" won Best of Breed and Group I, Herding.

Mona Wheat - Pomeranians. "Milli" won second.

Steve and Sharon Henry - Bullmastiffs. "E-Z Duce" won Best of Breed. Dobermans - "Rosie" won Best of Breed, Group I, Working, and Best In Match.

Man's birthday is celebrated with a whimper, not a shout

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is off on a two-week vacation, but she left behind some of her favorite letters taken from her best-selling book, "The Best of Dear Abby.")

DEAR ABBY: I have never written before, but I think the following might interest you and some of your readers:

Yesterday was an old man's birthday. He was 91, and "home" was a small rented room with cooking privileges. He awakened earlier than usual, bathed, shaved, and put on his best clothes. Surely they would come today, he thought.

He wouldn't take his daily walk to the gas station to visit with the old-timers of the neighborhood because he wanted to be right here when they came.

He sat on the front porch with a clear view of the road so he could see them coming. Surely they would come today.

He'd skip his noon nap that day, because he wanted to be up when they came.

He has six children. Two of his daughters and their married children live within a few miles. They hadn't been to see him for a long time, and today was his birthday. Surely they would come.

At suppertime, his landlady brought him some ice cream and a small cake, but he didn't eat it. He was saving it to have with "them" when they came.

Nighttime came, and the old gentleman went to his room to retire. But first he knocked on his landlady's door and said, "Promise to wake me when they come."

It was his birthday and he was 91.

HIS LANDLADY
DEAR ABBY: My husband was the "quiet type" — the last person in the world anyone would suspect capable of infidelity. Nevertheless he was.

I caught him with his girlfriend right in our own bed when I came home unexpectedly from a trip.

After I filed for divorce, three of my neighbors told me that for the last year they had seen this young woman entering and leaving my home many times after I had left for work. I wanted to scream, "Why didn't you tell me? You could have spared me all this!"

Then I realized that they probably thought they were doing "the right thing" by keeping quiet. Abby had been told, perhaps it could have been ironed out by counseling; or just knowing would have caused me to file for divorce and be spared the humiliation of walking in on such a scene.

Dear Abby

THE LAST TO KNOW
DEAR LAST: I would not advise anyone to inform on his neighbors. There is too much margin for error. The word from here is to keep your lip zipped.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend is going to be 20 years old next month. I'd like to give him something nice for his birthday. What do you think he'd like?

CAROL
DEAR CAROL: Never mind what he'd like. Give him a tie.

DEAR ABBY: I surely do sympathize with people whose friends' smoking makes them sick.

I had the same problem with my dad. He would always smoke cigars in the car. One time when I was about 7, he was smoking a cigar in the car, and I said, "Dad, your cigar is making me sick."

He replied, "No, it's not." Then I said, "Yes, it is." He repeated, "No, it's not." Then I threw up in the car.

He hasn't smoked cigars in the car since.

MIKE IN CULVER CITY
DEAR ABBY: Some time ago I saw a letter in your column from a mother who discovered that her daughter had shoplifted a garment while they were out shopping together. The mother immediately returned the garment to the store.

Here in Illinois, anyone who is found to be in possession of merchandise without proof of sale (a sales slip) can be prosecuted for stealing! I learned this the hard way: I bought a pair of slacks at a major department store. They did not fit properly, so I put them into a bag and took them back to the store. (I neglected to place the sales slip in the bag.) I gave the bag to a salesperson in that department while I went into the dressing room to try on some other slacks that were displayed on a rack.

When I emerged from the dressing room, I was arrested — for shoplifting! The salesperson had looked into the bag, saw the slacks but no sales slip, and assumed that I had shoplifted them.

I was sentenced to a "theft deterrent" program. With me in the class was a young woman in her 30s who owned her own printing business, a matronly grandmother and a fireman. The young woman had tried on a jacket, then walked to the shoe department at the other end of the store to find some matching shoes. She was arrested in the shoe department for "attempting to leave the store" without paying for the jacket!

The grandmother had been grocery shopping. "Security" followed her home (she lived a block from the store) and arrested her for stealing the shopping cart. (She had carted her groceries home in this manner many times and had always returned the shopping carts, as she had intended to return this one.)

The fireman had gone into a hardware store to return a defective tire gauge. He placed the defective gauge on a shelf and helped himself to a new one because he did not want to stand in a long line at the register. He was arrested for stealing as he was leaving the store.

Abby, I am not a thief, and neither were the others who were arrested for stealing. Our only crime was ignorance of the law.

Another valuable bit of information: Most stores have hidden cameras, one-way mirrors and well-trained undercover security personnel who receive bonuses for turning in shoppers (and salespeople) who steal.

I hope a word to the wise is sufficient.

Ranger's Jack Daugherty knocks the ball loose in a collision at home plate.

A's up AL West lead

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Dave Stewart was stuck on 16 wins for 19 days, then he found a proven cure: the Texas Rangers' crumbling outfield.

Stewart became the American League's first 17-game winner on his fourth try as the A's nipped the Rangers 5-4 Wednesday night.

The victory, combined with the California Angels' 6-4 loss to Kansas City, gave Oakland a 3-game lead in the AL West for the first time since June 11.

"A lot of good things happened for me that haven't happened in my last three starts," Stewart said. "Finally, my luck changed."

But the Rangers' woes remained, particularly in center field, where Cecil Espy failed to make two plays that could have turned the loss into a victory.

The A's erased a 2-1 Texas lead with three runs in the sixth off starter Kevin Brown, 11-8. With one out, Brown walked the next two batters.

Then, Espy, the subject of manager Bobby Valentine's wrath for his growing propensity to mis-play fly balls into big hits, turned the wrong way on Dave Henderson's catchable drive to the warning track, which fell in for a double.

Ron Hassey scored on the play and Mark McGwire went to third. Terry Steinbach followed with a sinking liner to Espy, who made a good play on the run, then, apparently surprised that McGwire broke for home, threw high and wide, giving Oakland the lead for good.

Espy, who wasn't charged with an error on either play, then bobbled Tony Phillips' ensuing single that scored Henderson.

After Tuesday's 2-0 loss to the A's, Valentine ripped into the effort of his players, particularly on four fly balls he said should have been caught by Espy and rightfielder Ruben Sierra.

Valentine brushed off questions about Espy's bad throw Wednesday night. "He said he just screwed up," Valentine said.

Oakland manager Tony LaRussa said Stewart didn't have his best stuff, but won because he's a battler.

"We had the perfect guy pitch-

LA wins in 22 innings

MONTREAL (AP) — Rick Dempsey's leadoff homer in the 22nd inning gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos Wednesday night in the second-longest shutout in major league history.

Dempsey, who entered the game batting just .168, hit a 2-1 pitch from Dennis Martinez, 13-4, over the left-field fence. The homer was the Dodgers' 20th hit but only the second for extra bases. Montreal had 13 hits.

Martinez, usually a starter, was the sixth pitcher used by the Expos.

The longest shutout game in major league history was on April 15, 1968, when the Houston Astros beat the New York Mets 1-0. The Expos and Dodgers passed the American League record of 20 innings, set in 1971 when Oakland beat California 1-0.

Winner John Wetteland, 4-5, pitched six innings, allowing two hits. Los Angeles left fielder Lanny Harris preserved the tie in the bottom of the 21st with a running catch of Andres Galarraga's long fly ball with a runner on second and one out. The game ended when Dempsey threw out Rex Hudler trying to steal second.

Rose banned for life Astros bow to Pirates

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Rose, baseball's all-time hit leader and holder of 19 major-league records, was banned for life today for betting on his own team and other actions that had "stained the game."

Under the rules of baseball Rose can appeal for reinstatement after one year. But Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti said, "There is absolutely no deal for reinstatement. That is exactly what we did not agree to in terms of fixed number of years."

Rose became the 15th person banned for life in baseball history and the first since 1943. No one banned for life ever has been reinstated.

At a news conference in Cincinnati, Rose continued to deny the charges against him.

"Despite what the commissioner said today, I didn't bet on baseball," he said.

Rose admitted that he bet on other sports.

"I made some mistakes and I'm being punished for mistakes," he said.

"As you can imagine, this is a very sad day," Rose said. "I've been in baseball three decades and to think I'm gonna be out of baseball for a very short period of time hurts."

He called the settlement fair and said he regretted only "that I won't have the opportunity to tell my side of the story."

Today's action ended six months of allegations involving one of the greatest players in the history of the game. It apparently does not eliminate him from consideration for the Hall of Fame.

"In the absence of a hearing and in absence of evidence to the contrary ... yes, I have concluded that he bet on baseball," Giamatti said at a news conference announcing the suspension, which is effective immediately.

Asked directly if he thought that Rose bet on the Reds, Giamatti said, "Yes." He said that was his personal opinion and not an official finding.

The agreement announced in a statement from the commissioner's office said that Rose "neither denies nor admits that he bet on any major league baseball game" but Rose "acknowledges that the commissioner has a factual basis to impose the penalty provided."

"The banishment for life of Pete Rose from baseball is the sad end of a sorry episode," Giamatti said in the statement.

"One of the game's greatest players has engaged in a variety of acts which have stained the game and he must now live with the consequences of those acts."

"There had no been such grave allegations since the time of Landis," the statement said in a reference to Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the commissioner who suspended for life the players involved in the Black Sox scandal.

The suspension came in a four-page agreement signed Wednesday by Rose and Giamatti.

There was no mention in the agreement that Rose would undergo counseling for gambling and there was no mention of whether the suspension would keep Rose from getting into the baseball Hall of Fame.

As part of the agreement Rose will drop his court suit against baseball.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — If the Houston Astros wind up losing the National League West title by a game, Jim Clancy will always remember it as the one that got away.

Clancy threw 112 pitches in the Astros' potentially demoralizing 6-1 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates on Wednesday night, but none cost him nearly as badly as his one awful throw to first base in the first inning.

"What happened to him is the worst thing that can happen to a pitcher, the most frustrating thing that can happen a pitcher," Pittsburgh starter Bob Walk said.

With the score tied 1-1 and the bases loaded with two outs in the Pirates' first, Junior Ortiz hit a seemingly routine inning-ending grounder to the pitcher. Clancy fielded the ball so quickly that Ortiz was barely out of the batter's box.

Clancy had plenty of time, so he elected to make a lob throw. But the ball slipped out of Clancy's hand and sailed 10 feet over Davis' head, allowing all three runners to score easily.

The error made it 4-1, and gave Walk the cushion he needed to check the Astros on five hits over seven innings. The Astros managed only a solo home run for the second night in a row to fall 3½ games behind NL West-leading San Francisco, which has won two in a row in New York.

Clancy, 6-11, hopes the pennant didn't slip away for the Astros when his throw slipped away.

"It's awful tough for me right now," said a distraught Clancy, who lost for the seventh time in eight decisions. "I guess I just had too much time. ... I just threw it over his head."

The Astros have lost two games in the standings to the Giants in two nights while managing only two runs against a Pittsburgh staff with the second-highest ERA in the league.

Manager Art Howe tried to sympathize with Clancy, but said the Astros can't afford to throw away games.

"It was just a bad throw," Howe said. "Jimmy just lobbed the ball and that's the second time this year he's done that. You have to put something on that throw so you can control it. That definitely turned the game around early. We could have been out of the first inning, no trouble."

Instead, the Astros are another game out of first place.

"I've seen bad throws before like that, but never in the majors," Pirates manager Jim Leyland said. "I'm sure it's an embarrassing thing, and there will be more focus on it because they're in the race."

The Pirates were 2-7 against the Astros before the series started, but have suddenly started playing like the team expected to contend for the NL East championship. Pittsburgh is 54-71 and 16 games behind division-leading Chicago.

"It's nice to win games, but we're not proud of where we're at," Leyland said. "With such a dogfight in the East, it's sad we're not in it, two or three games out of the lead. That's where we thought we'd be, and it's frustrating."

Bobby Bonilla hit his 18th homer and his second in as many nights, Gary Redus had an RBI single in the first and Jay Bell had two hits to support Walk's sometimes erratic pitching. Walk, 11-8, struggled to throw strikes, but recovered to strand eight runners in seven innings.

Walk was coming off what he said was the worst outing of his 10-year career, a 13-6 loss to Atlanta last Friday in which he allowed eight runs in 2 1-3 innings.

"That was just an embarrassing start for me in Atlanta, because I'd had three or four good starts before that," he said. "I was embarrassed and couldn't sleep after that game. I don't think I pitched all that good tonight, but at least I pitched good when it counted."

Howe said the Astros must respond now that the games are really starting to count. Their only run Wednesday came on Kevin Bass' first-inning homer.

"We still have six games left against the Giants and we can make up some ground there," he said. "If you're a championship club you have to concentrate on the club you're playing no matter who you're playing, and I think we're that caliber of club."

Rose is shown collecting record-breaking hit during 1985 season.

White signs with Mavericks

DALLAS (AP) — Beautiful Greek women, a car, a condo, and big money couldn't turn Randy White's head. He'll play for the Dallas Mavericks.

White, instead, used his "Grecian formula" strategy to extract a fully guaranteed five-year contract out of owner Donald Carter on Wednesday for $4.1 million and a hefty bonus.

White, a 6-8, 245-pounder from Louisiana Tech, was the eighth pick in the first round but he didn't feel he should have incentives in his contract. Carter did.

Off White went to Greece to negotiate with the Paok team in Salonika.

White was met by 15,000 people at the airport and was offered a package that included $1 million a year, a condominium, a luxury car, and $36,000 a year spending money.

"They treated me like a king," White said. "I doubt nine of 10 guys would turn down what they offered. They even threw in round trip tickets for my parents to come over and see me play."

The Mavericks quickly tried to repair their blunder. They restructured the offer without incentives.

"You can't base a contract on incentives because you know what might happen?" White said. "You might get in the coach's doghouse and he won't play you. I'm pleased now."

Carter wasn't at a press conference announcing White's signing but general manager Norm Sonju said "we're delighted to have our number one pick sign this early. We have great respect for White's basketball abilities."

Agent Bill Blakeley, who negotiated the deal, refused to crow over Carter backing down.

"I have great respect for Don Carter," Blakeley said. "I never met him but I respect him. But this incentive concept didn't fit our needs. Randy got a very good bonus."

White averaged 21.2 points and 10.5 rebounds last year as he earned the American South Conference player of the year award.

"I really didn't want to play 6,000 miles from home" White said. "That's not what I dreamed of doing when I was a kid. That played a big part in my decision. It took a lot of brain rapping."

White's head was turned somewhat by the women in Greece. He said he visited a beach and saw a lot of bikini bottoms and no tops.

"My eyes were going crazy," White said.

Sonju said he respected White's "maturity level" which allowed him to choose Dallas "even though the dollars overseas were so attractive. We think Randy gives us some needed strength on our frontline."

No other rookie in the top 10 of the NBA draft has signed except Danny Ferry of Duke who went to Italy.

White will make almost $1 million this year.

"I'm happy," he said. "But it all was quite an ordeal."

Jones set to defend LPGA World title

BUFORD, Ga. (AP) — Rosie Jones says she wouldn't advocate it for others, but she's convinced her golf game has improved since she began smoking again.

"When you quit smoking, you want to eat the walls, especially when you have a bad day," Jones said Wednesday on the eve of beginning defense of her title in the LPGA World Championship golf tournament.

"I went back to smoking, and I'm playing better," she said. "I kicked the smoking problem, but I didn't kick my mentality problem."

Jones quit smoking at the start of the season and had only one top 10 finish in five months. After she resumed her cigarette habit, she had two top 10 finishes in three weeks.

Jones, who made last year's World Championship the third of her four career victories, has top 10 finishes in the last two LPGA events — a tie for fifth at Atlantic City and a tie for sixth in the Greater Washington.

Even though she is the defending champion, Jones isn't the favorite in this select field of 16 international players.

That role is filled by Betsy King, a five-time winner this year who has shattered the LPGA single-season earnings mark with $525,957.

King says the 6,107-yard, par-72 Stouffer PineIsle Resort course doesn't suit her game because the greens are slow. She prefers fast greens.

"I don't think the course has to suit your game in order to win," said King, who was second in this tournament two years ago.

The field also includes Nancy Lopez, an LPGA Hall of Famer whose 41 career victories include the 1985 World Championship.

Besides King and No. 2 Lopez, other leading money winners competing are Beth Daniel, Pat Bradley, Patty Sheehan, Tammie Green, Sherri Turner, Patti Rizzo, Juli Inkster, Jane Geddes, Colleen Walker and Penny Hammel.

Jones qualified for this year's tournament because she won it last year.

Jones didn't lay all of this year's problem to not smoking. She said she's had trouble with her golf swing but believes it is back where she wants it now.

Cowboys close to trading Pelluer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are close to a deal that would send holdout quarterback Steve Pelluer to the Atlanta Falcons, according to published reports.

Reports today in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, The Dallas Morning News, the Dallas Times Herald and the Atlanta Constitution indicated that the two teams reached a tentative agreement Wednesday night that would send Pelluer to the Falcons for a high-round choice in the 1990 draft and possibly a veteran player.

The trade agreement could be completed, sources told the newspaper, only if Pelluer and his agent, Joe Courge, can come to terms with the Falcons on a contract.

The Star-Telegram reported that the trade will be announced once the contract can be worked out, possibly before the weekend.

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson did not deny the trade had been agreed upon.

"All I can say is we're negotiating," he said.

Atlanta earlier confirmed they are offering a two-year contract that will pay Pelluer between $400,000 and $425,000 in base salary and provide an incentive package worth more than $200,000.

Pelluer would receive bonuses for every start and additional money every time the Falcons won a game in which he started at quarterback.

The Cowboys and San Diego Chargers were once reportedly close to making a deal that would have sent Pelluer to the California team, but the Chargers traded last Friday for Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon.

The Times Herald reported that a possible holdup to the deal could be a last-minute effort by the Kansas City Chiefs or the San Francisco 49ers to acquire Pelluer.

The Morning News reported that Courge said two weeks ago that he and the Falcons "could probably get a contract done in an hour if we had to."

But a source told the newspaper that Pelluer may be somewhat reluctant to go to Atlanta.

"Right now, it's a matter of Courge convincing Pelluer the deal is a good one," a source close to the negotiations said. "For whatever reason, Steve needs some arm-twisting at this point. He's not in a trigger-pulling mood."

Pelluer and Courge declined to return telephone calls Wednesday night, the newspapers reported.

Williams still wants rematch with Tyson

NEW YORK (AP) — He was butted, and Carl "The Truth" Williams says he wants to meet the consequences of a rematch with Mike Tyson.

Videotaped replays shown Wednesday by Williams' manager, Ira Leibowitz, showed conclusively that Williams was butted by Tyson before their July 21 fight was stopped 93 seconds into the first round.

The replays obviously cannot prove conclusively that Williams would not have been beaten anyway, but he and his manager say they want a rematch.

"I do believe I'll get another title shot," Williams said. "I feel I've got a lot of ability and I never even had a chance. It takes a long time to get to that plateau and then to have that chance yanked away."

Moreover, Leibowitz has sent a letter to the World Boxing Council, World Boxing Association and International Boxing Federation asking for a joint hearing on an appeal of the original decision to stop the fight by referee Randy Neumann. Leibowitz believes the fight should be considered a no-contest.

All three organizations have indicated they would grant the hearing.

"I know their feelings before the hearing are not in our favor," Leibowitz said, "but I'm sure after they see the tape, hear our witness and see all the evidence, they'll rule the fight was no-contest."

"Hey, we have all the respect in the world for Mike Tyson as a great champion," Leibowitz said. "We're just trying to get this blot erased from Carl's record."

Home Boxing Office originally showed the fight. Leibowitz obtained videotapes from HBO and had his own engineers produce the slow-motion replays. The replay showed Tyson hitting Williams with a big left hook. Then, the champion dived in toward Williams, hitting him in the left temple with a butt that sent him flying backward.

Shortly afterward, referee Randy Neumann stopped the fight.

"You've got to see it to believe it," Williams said. "He hit me a pretty good shot, but it wasn't enough to knock me out. After that, he burrowed in and hit me with a head butt."

"Can you imagine getting hit with this head?" Williams said as he watched replay. "That's a hard head."

Williams said he got up at the count of seven, and, before he knew what was happening, Neumann stopped the fight.

Rice coach wants quickness

HOUSTON (AP) — First-year coach Fred Goldsmith is trying to put the feet back in football at Rice University.

"The optimum situation is to have players who are big, strong and fast," Goldsmith told touring Southwest Conference writers and broadcasters Wednesday.

"If you've got to sacrifice something, you sacrifice 'big' because when you sacrifice quickness, you're in trouble."

So Goldsmith talks a lot about a player having good feet, meaning he's got the quickness to play in the new Owls system.

Goldsmith started his first season at Rice, reversing former coach Jerry Berndt's bigger-is-better policy.

From behemoth Billy Baldwin to quarterback Donald Hollas, Goldsmith put his team on a diet.

Hollas, shifting back to quarterback this year after earning second team All-SWC honors at safety last year, dropped from 225 to 210.

Baldwin weighed in at a svelte 293 Wednesday, down from 315.

"He's got good feet," Goldsmith said of Baldwin. "He's like one of those large people you see that can dance well."

Goldsmith hopes Baldwin and the rest of the Owls will be able to dance to his new offensive scheme, which will require more movement and more passing.

Hollas is happy to see the change and he's happy to finally be situated at quarterback, the position for which he was recruited.

"This is more like what I came to Rice to do," Hollas said. "Watson Brown (Rice coach in 1985) recruited me to play quarterback. Our whole offensive philosophy is different."

"We were more of an option team before, trying to blow people off the ball. Now we're going to spread people out."

"Coach Berndt thought bigger was better. I played safety at about 225 last year but I'm down to 210 now."

Goldsmith likes Hollas' passing and scrambling ability so much he's compared him to former collegians Troy Aikman and Steve Walsh, now competing for the starting job with the Dallas Cowboys.

"He does the kind of things you don't like to see as a defensive coach," Goldsmith said, "like when a quarterback drops back on one hash mark and throws the out cut to the opposite boundary with zip on the ball."

"That's what Donald gives us."

Goldsmith's quest for good feet extends to defense where the Owls will depend heavily on youth.

"I have no clue what to expect but we're getting better every day," Goldsmith said. "We just have to bring the intensity level up to what I'm used to."

Players have taken well to his get-quick policy, Goldsmith said.

"I think that shows you something about the good attitude we have around here," Goldsmith said. "They've all tried to comply with what we're trying to do."

Goldsmith is looking for more players like Mission's Tommy Lee, a freshman cornerback who walked into Goldsmith's office without a scholarship and left with a commitment.

What does Goldsmith like best about the 5-9, 175-pound prospect?

He has good feet, of course.

"Of all the backs and receivers we brought in, he has the best feet," Goldsmith said.

Ben McDonald, the Baltimore Orioles' top pick in the June draft, pitches in his first pro game Wednesday night in Frederick, Maryland, a Class A team. McDonald pitched three innings against Winston-Salem, giving up five hits and one run.

Cougars hope to avoid injuries

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston football coach Jack Pardee has been very emphatic this summer about starting the season injury-free.

"We have the talent to play with anyone in the country," Pardee said. "The bad news is it's a delicate balance. We don't have the depth to absorb many injuries."

However, preseason practice hasn't even started and already:

- The Cougars have lost starting linebacker Lamar Lathan for the early part of the season after he was injured in an on-campus auto accident.
- Backup offensive tackle Leroy Truitt hopes to return after being shot four times with a .32 caliber pistol outside a Texas City tavern.
- Pardee withdrew the scholarship extended to Dallas Carter recruit Gary Edwards after he pleaded guilty to a series of armed robberies.

Such a trend cannot continue if the Cougars expect to live up to their own expectations this season.

"We have a very fragile balance, we can go from being a great team to an average team real quick," Pardee said.

Cougar quarterback Andre Ware hasn't lost any confidence in the team's chances this season.

"We're not going to miss a beat as far as losing anybody," Ware said. "We're excited about the season and we're going to pick up where we left off."

The Cougars were one of the top offensive clubs in the country, with a final ranking of No. 18 in The Associated Press college poll.

Houston ranked second in the nation in pass offense, fourth in total offense and fourth in scoring.

The Cougars became the first team in college history to have two 1,000-yard receivers and a 1,000-yard runner.

Jason Phillips led the nation with 108 receptions for 1,444 yards and 15 touchdowns and James Dixon caught 102 passes for 1,103 yards and 11 touchdowns.

They're gone but power-packed super back Chuck Weatherspoon, who gained 1,004 yards last season and scored 10 touchdowns, returns.

Weatherspoon took advantage of defenses spread out to cover the Cougars' run and shoot offense and averaged 8.5 yards per carry, which led the nation.

Kicker Roman Anderson also returns. He was the No. 5 scorer in the nation, converting all 51 extra points and 19 of 25 field goals for 108 points.

The Cougars can't go to a bowl game this season because they're on NCAA probation, but that won't cause any motivational problems, Ware said.

"We want to go 11-0 and be nationally ranked as high in the top 10 as we can," he said. "We knew what was going to happen (probation) last year."

"We knew there would be a penalty but we didn't know it would be so severe. But everybody stayed. Only one guy left and we think we can be just as good or better this year."

Pardee returns six offensive and eight defensive starters from last year's team that finished 9-3 including a 24-22 loss to Washington State in the Aloha Bowl.

The Cougars lost senior tackle Glenn Montgomery, end Keith Jenkins and cornerback Johnny Jackson on defense.

Pardee also will have to replace tackle Terry Moser, guard Paul Hearn and center William Gant on offense but Ware expects the best.

"The offense has to execute and the defense has to have another good year," Ware said. "We've got some young guys coming in but it's just a matter of getting them some reps."

The Cougars will field a strong starting defense but they lack depth. In addition to moving Lathon to middle linebacker, Reggie Burnett went to strongside linebacker during spring drills.

"That puts them in places where they can be productive," Pardee said. "We had so many people hurt last year in the secondary that we had to juggle people. Now we're returning a lot of starters as a result of the injuries."

Ware hopes to improve on his 1988 performance in which he averaged 223.6 yards of total offense per game. He completed 212 passes for 2,507 yards and a conference leading 25 touchdowns.

CBS acquires rights to Winter Olympics

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS, strengthening its claim as the top sports network, is adding to its ledger of major events by acquiring U.S. television and radio rights to the 1994 Winter Olympics at Lillehammer, Norway.

In little more than a year, CBS has won rights to the 1992 Winter Olympics at Albertville, France, for $243 million, and an exclusive, four-year network contract with major league baseball for $1.06 billion. Wednesday's winning bid for the 1994 Winter Games was $300 million.

The network already has exclusive network rights to the NCAA basketball tournament, the NBA, the Masters golf tournament and the U.S. Open tennis championships. It shares the NFL with NBC and ABC and college football with ABC.

"We consider ourself the number one sports network," CBS Inc. president and chief executive officer Lawrence A. Tisch said. "We will go all out to maintain our position and no matter what the event is, CBS will be there."

"Acquiring the rights to Lillehammer is still another step in CBS' major events strategy," CBS Sports president Neal H. Pilon said. "In 1992 and again in 1994 the crucial February sweep period will be dominated by the Olympic Games and ratings for both Olympics will be part of the season's average for those years."

The Winter Olympics are being held two years apart in 1992 and 1994 in order to separate the Summer and Winter Olympics in the future. After Lillehammer, the next Winter Games will be 1998.

Barry Frank, a television adviser for the International Olympic Committee, said that $300 million was the minimum price that the Lillehammer organizations were willing to accept.

A network source familiar with the negotiations said ABC told Olympic organizers that it did not intend to bid. The source said Frank told NBC that the minimum would be $290 million, although Frank denied that.

NBC officials visited Norway two weeks ago and decided they would not meet the minimum, but told Frank they would participate in the bidding, which had been scheduled for Sept. 7. Frank then decided to negotiate with CBS rather than run an auction.

"NBC Sports spent considerable time examining the economics and preparing a bid," NBC Sports president Dick Ebersol said in a statement. "But when the IOC informed us that CBS was prepared to guarantee approximately $300 million, we decided that this was substantially in excess of what their value would be to NBC and its affiliates."

Calcavecchia looks ahead to Golf World Series

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Mark Calcavecchia is anxious to get back in action after a long break from golf.

"Three and a half weeks, 24 days without touching a club. That's the longest I've ever gone," said Calcavecchia, looking ahead to today's first round of the World Series of Golf.

It will be his first official start since his playoff victory over Australians Greg Norman and Wayne Grady in the British Open last month.

"It seems more like a year ago," Calcavecchia said. "I've almost forgotten about it. So much has happened since then."

Chief among those happenings was the birth of Britney Jo two weeks ago to Calcavecchia and his wife, Sheryl.

"There was a week in the hospital. Sheryl had a tough time," said Calcavecchia, who withdrew from the PGA National Championship to be at home with his wife and child.

"Since then, there's been fathering. It's been busy," he said.

Calcavecchia, with the British Open and two American victories this year, leads the point standings with 70. Kite and Strange have 66 apiece, and Stewart 60.

They also hold the four top spots on the money-winning list coming into this $1 million event. Stewart leads with $755,292, followed by Kite at $748,614, Strange $630,420 and Calcavecchia $628,174.

All are among the international field of 45 — the largest ever assembled for this invitation-only event — that is chasing a $180,000 winner's check.

Some other major figures include Masters champion Nick Faldo of England, defending champion Mike Reid, and Norman, who last week scored his first American tour victory in more than a year.

Western Kentucky lineman transfers to Southern Methodist

DALLAS (AP) — Mike Wilson, who started as a guard for Western Kentucky last season, is transferring to Southern Methodist, the Mustangs announced.

SMU athletic officials said Wilson, who averaged 9.5 points and 1.5 assists, will sit out one season, then have three years of eligibility remaining.

Wilson, 6-5 and 200 pounds, started in 20 of the 28 Hilltoppers' games last season.

"He is an outstanding player who can help us in the backcourt," said SMU head camp

John Shumate.

SMU also announced that 6-10, 225-pound center David Johanning has decided to remain at Hutchinson Community College instead of accepting an SMU scholarship for his sophomore year.
