Colombian drug traffickers extradited

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. authorities flew three suspected drug traffickers to jails in Florida and Michigan early Saturday in the second extradition from drug traffickers in the face of continued threats and acts Colombia since emergency measures were imposed

One of them has already been convicted, in absentia, in Detroit. Florida prosecutors called one of the others a U.S. marshals said the three were turned over to U.S. officials in Colombia about 3 a.m. and flown to Miami, where one was dropped off.

The flight then continued to Orlando and Detroit to deliver the other two. Marshals said the three were being held in "secure" detention facilities in the three areas, but declined to be more specific.

The extraditions bring to four the number of people brought to this country from Colombia since President Virgilio Barco imposed emergency measures against drug traffickers Aug. 18.

"I commend President Barco and the government of Colombia for their continued diligence in the war ainst narcoterrorists," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said in a statement.

"The Colombian people are setting an example for the world as they continue to extradite international of intimidation," Thornburgh said. Justice Department spokesman David Runkel identified the three defendants as Ana Rodriguez de Tamayo, Roberto Peter Carlini-Arrico and Bernardo Pelaez The U.S. Marshals Service said de Tamayo, 50, faces charges in Miami of cocaine importation and conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine. Carlini-Arrico, 38, faces federal charges of possession with intent to distribute 7,000 pounds of marijuana and importing 7,000 pounds of marijuana in the Middle District of Florida at Orlando, marshals said. Assistant State Attorney Andy Zelman said Carlini-Arrico is accused by state authorities of smuggling more than a ton of cocaine during the mid-1980s. State prosecutor Peter Antonacci said the 1986 state charges against Carlini-Arrico consist of one count each of racketeering, conspiracy to commit racketeering, cocaine trafficking and conspiracy to traffic the drug. Each state count carries a 15-year mandatory minimum

Tropical Storm Jerry slows on approach to Texas coast

By SUSAN FAHLGREN Associated Press Writer

Tropical Storm Jerry slowed to 6 mph on Saturday and continued moving northeasterly towards Louisiana, but Texas coastal residents weren't taking any chances.

Texas emergency preparedness workers were keeping a watchful eye on developments as the Gulf season churned some 400 miles south-southwest of New Orleans,

"We've had our Emergency Operation Center open since yesterday morning and we'll keep it open through tonight," Gary Stone, emergency spokesman for the City of Galveston, said Saturday.

Workers and volunteers from the American Red Cross, the U.S. Coast Guard, the Galveston Police Department, the Galveston Fire Department and others manned phones and made arrangements for shelters in case they became neces-

Meanwhile, NWS meteorologists noted the storm had sustained winds of 60 mph - just 10 mph shy of hurricane strength, but continued on its slow, north-northeasterly path with unfavorable conditions for strengthening.

'We've been watching it, and it has slowed down considerably,' said Dick Nugent, Jefferson County emergency management coordinator outside Port Arthur. "It's not materializing like we thought it would be, but we can't take any changes. If it does move to Louisiana, fine, but we need to be ready to react if it

Free Panamanians from Bush's help

The Bush administration seems to be acting with two minds over the failed coup attempt in Panama. President Bush said he had nothing to do with the coup. But his officials insisted they're still working to oust dictator Manuel Noriega. Warned Secretary of State James Baker: "The United States retains the option to use American forces. That option has never been ruled out. But if you're going to risk American lives, it's the president's view that you do so on your

Well, are they going to use U.S. troops or not? Because the best time to have done so was that Tuesday, as the coup attempt faltered; a slight push by U.S. forces stationed in Panama might well have sent Gen. Noriega into exile. If President Bush orders direct U.S. action now – which is quite unlikely – the troops likely will face much more risk of death.

Senior U.S. military officers in Panama reportedly had told coup leaders that the U.S. would assist them. Perhaps the officers were speaking more from their wishes than from U.S. policy, but the Panamanian patriots might have asked the Contras in Nicaragua or Honduras, and the Vietnamese refugees, how much U.S. government promises are worth.

And what about the capabilities of U.S. intelligence agencies? The National Security Agency can listen to every phone conversation in Panama. The CIA, once headed by Bush, has a multiplicity of contacts there and once even put Gen. Noriega on the payroll. Have these agencies been taking spying lessons from the Three Stooges? Or, as was claimed this past week, were they hog-tied by unreasonable interference of Congress members?

Defending the Bush administration against congressional criticism, Vice President Dan Quayle stoutly maintained, "We don't know all the facts yet." But then listen to Bush: "I know the facts and some of the critics don't."

Whatever the level of administration involvement in Panama, its policies have been coounterproductive. Instead of lending to Gen. Noriega's ouster, the policies have solidified his position in power, giving him a good reason for another round of self-serving Yanquibashing. Instead of protecting American lives, Bush's policies have put them at greater risk. Instead of giving the Panamanian people more control over their country's destiny, the policies have given them less popular sovereignty.

It's still not too late to change. Bush should end his doublemindedness and act as if he really believed that Panama's people should decide their own fate. Democracy and freedom will come to Panama when the people there, in the words of our own Declaration of Independence, decide to "mutually pledge to each other [their] lives, [their] fortunes, and [their] sacred honor."

The events of the past couple of weeks show that Panamanians need independence, not just from Gen. Noriega, but from the Bush administration.

War won't eliminate the evil

President George Bush and Drug Czar William Bennett have declared war on drugs and are seeking $7 billion in ammunition.

We can guess how this war is going to turn out if we look at other muti-billion dollar government wars like: the war on illiterarcy, the war on urban blight, and the war on dependency. Years and hundreds of billions of dollars later, the battlefield is strewn with would-be beneficiaries turned victims, taxpayers out a lot of money and government grown bigger while the profiteers who waged the wars whimper, "Not enough commitment."

Along with the sins of prostitution and gambling, drug usage has been with mankind for centuries. Do President Bush, Bennett and Congress expect us to believe that this administration and Congress will succeed where all of mankind before them has failed?

It is possible to eliminate drugs. Mao Tse-tung wiped out opium use in China by summarily executing drug sellers and users.

Americans want to deal with the drug crisis; but do they want draconian encroachments on our Constitution? Our task is to find solutions to the drug problem that will do the least damage to our liberties and to society.

cocaine, crack and marijuana are very inexpensive. businesses. The street price is steep because prohibition requires sellers to bear the high costs of smuggling and payoffs to officials, and face the risks of going sumption. Drug pushers would be out of business Congress.

For a person to use drugs and risk destroying himself is tragic. But that tragedy isn't lessened when society creates conditions whereby the addict is desperately driven to destroy the lives of innocents, through muggings, holdups, burglaries and murder, in order to have the wherewithal to feed his addiction.

In addition, users and pushers have financial incentives to get others hooked. Streets become unsafe, like in the days of Prohibition, as a result of turf battles to establish a monopoly. Plus there are The production costs of drugs like heroin, incentives to corrupt public officials and infiltrate because they could not compete with low-cost legal production. We could establish age requirements, penalties for driving under the influence of drugs and other laws to protect society; but more importantly, we could educate people against its use.

> The best way to put a dent in the crime wave associated with drugs is to decriminalize drug con-

Some people might say, "Williams, if we decriminalized drugs, wouldn't more people use them?" I can't honestly say; but I'd ask you, "Is the fact that heroin and crack are illegal the only deterrent to your usage?" I bet not. Most aspects of our behavior are not governed by law; they're mostly values taught to us by parents, family, community organizations and churches, and enforced by social sanction, not law.

Here's my prediction on the war on drugs. Bush and Congress are going to call for more drug-fighting money next year, and more the next year. This year or next, the White House will say, "Forget reading lips; we'll have to raise taxes to fight drugs." The problem will continue, and will grow worse. If the Czar is successful in cutting crackcocaine imports, new drugs will emerge, as is the case with "ice" in Hawaii.

Evil cannot be eliminated. For Bush, Bennett and Congress to think they can do what God has not yet accomplished is the height of arrogance. The best approach to drug usage is treatment and rehabilitation. We will only make the drug problem worse, and create more problems, by pursuing the course laid out by the Bush administration and

Look for him in a coffee cup

I took a long look at my desk the other day and realized it had finally gotten completely out of hand. I subsequently abandoned all hope of ever rescuing it from its chaotic state.

I had the feeling this would happen. First, there was the mail I was going to answer. It started out as a little pile to the right of my typewriter.

Then, it began to grow and reached ceiling level. I stuck my hand under the pile and pulled out the bottom letter. It was dated 1982. That makes me seven years behind in answering my mail and, worse, when I reached under the pile to get to the bottom letter, the stack sort of disintegrated and a lot of the mail fell down under my desk. Unfortunately, that's where it will remain because my doctor told me not to bend over and do any heavy lifting.

Then, there is the matter of the coffee cups. I bring in a cup of coffee from the kitchen each morning as I begin my work day.

I get involved in what I'm doing and forget about the coffee. By the time I reach for it, it's I'm convinced if you leave two newspapers on cold. So it just sits there. I counted recently and there were 11 cups of cold coffee on my desk.

Some of these cups date back to June, and there

His test did not use a Mason jar

My name is G.E. Stone. In last Sunday's paper, one of my so-called friends accused me of telling lies about Celanese and their employees. Back in July of this year, three months after my water was tested bad, Mr. King, senior environmental engineer, and Mr. Branecky, manager LPO/utilities, with Celanese came by the same day I went to the news office to have my water test published in the paper.

We discussed my water test, and they left. Three months has gone by and Brent Stephens and Bill Colbert of the Texas Water Commission of Austin keep saying there's no contamination east of the plant. Stephens said the benzene has spread under Celanese, but there's no reason to believe any has occurred to drinking water. Did they build a fence

They asked: Who do you believe, a Mason jar sample or the state?

They didn't even know what they were talking about. The Texas Water Commission were the ones who took their samples in "Mason jars."

How did they call Chemlab when they didn't know how to spell it? (Kehm Lab). Big joke! My water test was not taken to Chemlab by me or my wife. My wife called Chemlab and they told her to buy a bottle of distilled water and pour it out, then let well water run a few minutes and fill the bottle halfway and seal it with tape. My wife asked Jess Baker, then superintendent of Grandview school, to take our sample with school samples to Amarillo the next day. Our sample was locked up in the school overnight till the next morning. Chemlab sent my test to Kilgore to an EPA approved lab on March 15, 1989. On March 29, 1989 I received my test results of 34 ppb of benzene.

Chemlab told me later if my sample had been iced down, it probably would have been ten times higher than 34 ppb.

We then called the Texas Water Commission to test our water. They came over on April 7 to do their testing. They let my well run for 45 minutes before they took their samples in "Mason jars" and plastic bottles. We know they were trying to flush out the benzene that floats to the top when the well is not pumping.

No one in their right mind is going to wait 45 minutes before getting a drink of water each time.

One of the TWC men made the remark he would drink out of Celanese ponds, but the other said he wouldn't. I knew then what kind of test results I would get back. Their test showed 2 ppb of benzene. Remember, that water with benzene as low as 0.1 ppb can cause unpleasant taste and odor. Also, the addition of chlorine to water containing benzene can produce unpleasant taste and potentially dangerous compounds.

Somedays when I pump my cattle water, they walk up and smell it and walk away. They may not drink till that evening or the next day. This may not happen again for a week or more.

In reply to their sentence that we would spread the word through the Panhandle area that Celanese had polluted the entire aquifer: No, I said that I would expose their waste, lakes, ponds and the amount of

I would have TV exposure of the ponds and lakes to find out why the EPA and TWC has OK'd lakes, ponds to be filled with waste and toxic chemicals, when in South Texas a state district court jury recommended civil penalties totaling more than $3 million against a Texas city waste disposal company for illegally dumping dozens of toxic chemicals into an earthen pit. Susan Ferguson, assistant director of hazardous and solid waste for the TWC, was the one who worked on this

I have a lot invested in my place, and Celanese makes out like this is "no big deal!" Celanese thinks everyone should turn their heads and look the other way while they continue dumping waste and chemicals into ponds, lakes and the Ogallalah

Didn't Celanese want to be compensated for their loss when their plant blew up? This is how we feel about our damage, since we are unable to drink it or cook with it.

We have told the truth, and Celanese should do the same. We aren't afraid to sign our names.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Neither Mr. King nor Mr. Branecky wrote the previous letter to the editor referred to above: in fact, the letter writer was not male, and is not employed with Celanese.

She's disappointed with kids' behavior

I would like to say how disappointed I was. My family and I went to the show to see Karate Kid 3. We didn't get to see much of the show because there were too many kids running around like a bunch of wild Parents nowadays just let their kids out and let them do anything they want. No wonder our kids these days are on drugs and in more trouble.

I don't think people know how to handle their kids anymore. Nowadays it's the kids telling the parents what to do. Now I know why the city doesn't get anything for the kids to do because they would not respect it. I just don't know what people's problems are, but a little discipline or grounding would do them some good.

People just don't care. It seems that all this world is coming to is sex, drugs and alcohol.

I have two boys, and they are well-behaved kids. They have their times, like all kids, but they were not up running around the movie theater.

Kids, let's keep the theater here. It's about all we have to do anymore. Grow Up.

A Disappointed Citizen

She would rather stay with Ma Bell

To the editor:

I think many people might be interested in a phone call I received recently one morning.

A lady who said she was with MCI said she was calling to welcome us to the MCI family!! I was quite surprised, as my husband and I had decided on AT&T whenever the phone "mess" started up a few years ago. I asked the lady HOW we became part of the MCI family. She said that Southwestern Bell had chosen (?) MCI instead of AT&T because MCI was cheaper and offered better services!

I asked her if I had a choice, and she said NO! As she finished her little talk, she said that one of her water their wells are pumping that I checked. I also said supervisors would call me sometime through the day to see if she had given me all the facts and answered all my questions.

I was still wondering about it all when the phone rang, and it was the lady's supervisor. I asked her WHEN all this had happened, and she said it was in the process and also welcomed me to the family!! I was disturbed as I had had calls for books and things where a supervisor did call to check on the information given, but never the moment I hung up from the first call

When my husband came in, he said to check with Southwestern Bell, which I did a couple of days later. I found that Bell had NOT done anything of the kind I had been told. I was put in touch with AT&T, and a representative said they had had this problem before and did I want to talk to MCI to be certain I would NOT be changed. The representative with MCI had NEVER heard of ANY actions like I described. I told them it was misrepresentation and I did not appreciate it at all. Apologies lasted for awhile, and I just asked her to leave my world alone as I was quite pleased with

I felt that if I had received such a call, others in this area probably have also.

My life has been complicated enough ever since Bell split up, and I don't want anybody rocking the

All Harvesters are really the winners

To the editor:

Taking pride with the Harvesters:

Last week I attended the Pampa Harvesters football game. Even though the team lost the game, all of the Harvesters came out as winners. The dedication and pride the town has for the team resonates throughout the community.

Dennis Cavalier, head football coach, and his staff should surely be congratulated for their personal commitment to exceptional excellence.

Football isn't just a game. It's a commitment to teach a higher quality of life for every individual player. Learning discipline, positive cooperation and the ability to never quit what one sets out to do, is real life! Congratulations, Mr. Cavalier, for instilling these traits within my son. Robert Munson, MA Barrington, N.H.

She thanks police officer for his help

I feel that you should be informed of an incident that occurred Monday, Oct. 2, in the evening.

While riding bicycles on the Hike and Bike Trail with a friend, I managed to lose control of my bicycle and fall. I tried to yell at my friend, but there was enough of a breeze that she couldn't hear me call.

As I fell, I heard something crack, so I was afraid to move too much. Then I heard a man yelling at me askif I was all right. I told him that I didn't think so, but I wasn't sure. He immediately came down to where I was and looked at my leg with me. He said it appeared to be broken and he would call an ambulance.

He walked back to his car and returned in only moments. When he returned, I noticed that he was wearing a gun, so I asked him about it. He said that he was a police officer on his way home from work.

Well, the ambulance arrived, my friend returned and my husband arrived, and in all the confusion I never got his name, but he stayed right there and talked to me and helped in whatever way he could until I was safely in the ambulance. The park was full of hungry mosquitoes that night, but he stayed until I was taken care of. I really appreciate his kindness and thoughtful-

I managed to find out later that his name was Jess Wallace. I would appreciate it very much if you would personally convey my thanks to him for a job above and beyond the call of duty. I feel that his good deed should not go unnoticed.

Thank you again! Pamela Locke Pampa

Why is this guy still on the road?

Say, hey, what else is new!

I was most interested in reading the Police Report in the Sunday, Oct. 8, Pampa News. And I seemed to be more than most interested in reading some of the "results" of arrests. One in particular was outstanding. That one arrest was on "charges of driving while intoxicated (fifth offense), failure to signal intent, running a stop sign, failure to maintain a single lane, no proof of liability insurance and expired registration." He was released on bond.

Golly, it appears he should be so far back in jail that his beans would have to be sent to him via shotgun. And does he still have his driver's license?! I sure would like to know.

Now, really, the police do not have to wait until that sixth offense when someone might be hurt or even killed because this driver only had five previous offenses, and was "released on bond."

Gentlemen:

I visited with Mr. [Frank] Smith today about the $1 being added to my water bill to take care of the parks and was told that I needed to talk to my commissioners.

Taking care of the parks is a legitimate expense and should be put into the budget like any other expense and paid for from the taxes paid to the city. I have no objection to taking care of the parks, but do it by placing it in the budget and covering the expense with taxes. Taxes paid are deductible for IRS.

Taking care of the parks by donation is an unacceptable manner of taking care of the city's business. I do NOT approve the $1 added to my water bill.

Bivins supports amendment on transit goods

State Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, has become an active proponent of passage of Amendment 5 in Texas' upcoming Constitutional Amendment vote Nov. 7.

Popularly known as the Freeport Amendment, the law, if passed, would remove all taxes on goods in transit in Texas.

"Texas used to have a freeport law," Bivins said during an interview at The Pampa News. "Then a court of civil appeals in Dallas ruled it a violation of fair and equitable taxation laws in 1986. That forced local taxing entities to tax everything, including goods in transit."

Bivins said the appeals court ruling cost businesses in Texas millions of dollars and caused other businesses to decide not to locate in the state.

"If you look at the Panhandle of Texas ... it is in the geographic center of the United States," Bivins said. "But businesses are locating in Albuquerque and Oklahoma City that should be locating here. Texas is standing in the way of these companies locating here because we don't have some sort of freeport exemption."

Bivins said a 1987 vote on the issue narrowly missed passage.

"There was no opposition to it and no organized force pushing it and it was way down on the ballot and I'll be darned it if didn't fail 49.6 percent to 50.4 percent," Bivins said. "I campaigned on this proposal though, so I'm going to take a chance and side with the underdogs on this issue."

Bivins said a clause in the law would allow taxing entities that felt like they couldn't afford to drop freeport taxes to keep them in

"It's my feeling, though, that most will use this as an economic development tool," Bivins said. "The county judges of the five most populous counties in Texas have come out for this thing."

Verdict's in: Packer guilty of cannibalism

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The verdict's in from experts who dug up the common grave of five Colorado gold prospectors to see who did them in and ate them up: Alferd Packer was the murderer with an appetite for his victims.

'Guilty as sin," intoned James E. Starrs, a professor of law and forensic science who led an expedition to Lake City, Colo., to show what experts in archeology, anthropology, pathology and firearms could learn about misdeeds committed 115 years ago.

Starrs said Friday the bones provided scientific evidence that prove Packer "beyond the shadow of a doubt" murdered his colleagues, marooned in the Rocky Mountains during the murderous winter of 1874, and ate their flesh to stay alive.

It was a famous case of cannibalism, and the stuff of legends.

Packer, accused of killing his fellow prospectors in 1874, was convicted of murder in 1883 and of five charges of manslaughter three years later when the first conviction was overturned on a technicality.

He owned up to surviving on the flesh of his fellow travelers, but said the only one he actually killed was a hunger-crazed Shannon Wilson Bell.

He said Bell rushed him with a hatchet when he returned empty handed from a five-day sortie in search for food. He said Bell had killed the others and cannibalized them.

He said he shot Bell in selfdefense, finished him off with the hatchet and then survived the winter through cannibalism.

But the bones showed contradictory evidence, Starrs said.

'It is plain as a pikestaff that Packer was the one who was on the attack, not Bell," he said, explaining that wounds on the bones of three of the victims "were caused by a hatchet-like instrument at a time when these persons were defending themselves from the attack of an aggressor."

He said the marks suggested the victims had raised their arms to fend off blows.

Starrs said the angle of the blade marks on the bones from which the flesh had been taken - including the bones believed to be Bell's - indicated that the cuts were all made by the same person. That indicates Packer's story is false, and that he's guilty, he said.

However, Starrs acknowledged his findings had their limits. He said, for example, he could not be sure which set of bones was Bell's.

Anthropologist Walter H. Birkby of the Arizona State Museum, who also studied the bones, said he couldn't share Starrs' conclusions.

"It could possibly be the right scenario, but scientifically we cannot substantiate it," Birkby said.

Last summer Birkby went fur-ther, saying his study of the remains actually supported Packer's story.

No matter what his proclivities toward his fellow man, Packer has been a fixture in Colorado folk history. His bust has been displayed in the state capitol.

He's a man with an obsession — collecting movie posters

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Jack DeVere is a man with an obsession. Forty-five years after his obsession's inception and his youth spent, DeVere woefully admits

"too much is still not enough." But the 55-year-old has found reconciliation. He is finally able to sit back and enjoy what may be the only massive accumulation of Texas-theme movie posters spanning from the late 1800s to the pre-

"At long last, my collection has become a satisfactory rather than a tormenting thing," said DeVere, who acquired his first poster of The Texans, at age 10. "It used to be that I would grow depressed if I was not in the midst of a poster transaction. I am comfortable with it now.'

The Texas Film-Music Office with the Department of Commerce in Austin has deemed the collection of 500 Texas posters virtually such films as San Antonio — Hellhole of the Southwest, released in 1945; Corpus Christi Bandits, Brownwood, then a town of released in 1945; Fort Worth, 1951; Gunmen from Laredo, 1958; The LLano (sic) Kid, 1939; The Texan Meets Calamity Jane, 1950; Waltz Across Texas, 1982; and The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas.

During his many years collecting, DeVere did not concern himself with much else save for the chase and preservation of his finds. The collectibles are stored in a temperature-controlled, dimly lit second home on his property to preserve their condition.

Now DeVere has undertaken another quest - to find a suitable venue for his one-man museum, "Texas at the Movies."

'At long last, my collection has become a satisfactory rather than a tormenting thing.

Donating his collection, DeVere said, is out of the question because he believes people do not appreciate what they do not pay for. However, he is proposing a Texas Hall of Fame at the yet-to-be-named San Antonio theme park proposed by USAA and Opryland.

"Going to the movies was such It includes advertisements of a part and parcel of my upbringing," said the collector, who was reared in a rural community near Mailing Systems here 15 years ago. Meanwhile, The Texans poster appreciated and now is worth $500, DeVere said proudly, adding that he has yet to see another copy of it.

Aside from posters, DeVere also collects sheet music, records and photographs of Texas musicians such as Janis Joplin, George Strait and Bob Wills.

"It is true Texana," said Tom Copeland, acting director of the Texas Film-Music Office. "His is probably the most complete collection of the sort. We would love to have it in our office."

Crab molesters pay their debt

PALATKA, Fla. (AP) - Four young men who pulled crab traps from the St. Johns River while "looking for a good time" on a holiday weekend began paying their debt to society Saturday by parading on a bridge with signs admitting their acts.

The men carried hand-lettered signs reading: "It is a felony punishable by prison and/or a $5,000 fine to molest crab pots. I know because I molested one."

As they trudged the two-tenths of a mile to the top of a bridge over the St. Johns River and back down, the four were accompanied by Michael West, a probation officer from this town about 50 miles south of Jacksonville.

Friday 13th brings market tailspin

By MARIANN CAPRINO AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Investors spooked by a faltering airline buyout went on a Friday the 13th selling spree that knocked the Dow Jones industrial average into a 190point tailspin eerily reminiscent of the crash of 1987. The chilling slide was concen-OCHILTREE (HANSFORD trated in the last hour of trading Friday, shortly after United Airlines parent UAL Corp. announced the unraveling of an employee-led $6.75 billion buyout bid that depended heavily on borrowed Nearly $200 billion in paper wealth vanished as investors dumped stocks and computerized trading programs went into an across-the-board "sell" mode.

"It's total emotional and psychological chaos," said Eugene Peroni, an analyst with Janney Montgomery Scott in Philadelphia.

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady sought to reassure Americans that the outlook for economic growth remains sound.

"It's important to recognize that today's stock market decline doesn't signal any fundamental change in the condition of the economy,' Brady said, noting that the decline followed a 591-point rise in the Dow industrials since the start of the year.

Nevertheless, some observers saw uncanny parallels with a 108point Dow drop on a Friday exactly two years ago, which presaged the record 508-point plunge on Black Monday, Oct. 19, 1987.

"Nobody believes witchcraft," Washington economist Michael Evans said. But he added, 'We're seeing the same type of phenomenon that propelled the mar-

At day's end, the widely watched Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks had plunged 190.58 points to 2,569.26, the biggest point drop since Black Monday.

On a percentage basis, Friday's loss was only the 12th worst ever -6.91 percent - ranking far behind the record 22.6 percent drop on Black Monday and the 12.8 percent decline on Oct. 28, 1929, which heralded the start of the Great Depression.

Other stock indices fell sharply as investors sought refuge in the relatively safe credit markets. Big investor appetite for bonds pushed interest rates down to their lowest levels since April 1987.

Unlike two years ago, when weeks of increasingly volatile trading preceded the crash, Friday's decline came with little warning. The Dow already had posted five record highs this month, and the average was down only about 23 points two hours before the close of trading.

At the height of the selloff, the average plummeted a little more than 100 points in an hour.

But there were some similarities. Two years ago, worries that Congress would restrict in leveraged buyouts contributed to the market crash. Today, questions over the ability to finance takeovers has the market spooked.

Computerized "program trading" was blamed in part for the earlier crash, and analysts said it con-

It was A&M's 18th straight Southwest Conference victory at home in a string that goes back to 1984.

The victory improved A&M to 4-2 for the season and 2-1 in SWC play. Houston, which had scored more than 60 points in three games this season and was the nation's scoring and total offense leader, fell to 4-1 and 1-1.

Wilson ran 41 yards for one Aggie touchdown and Lewis raced 84 yards to set up a field goal that put A&M out of reach at 17-7 in the fourth quarter.

Houston quarterback Andre Ware, No. 1 in total offense with an average of 439.5 yards a game, was intercepted three times and sacked Aaron Wallace held up Ware's helmet as the Ware completed 28 of 52 passes for 247 yards and one touchdown - a 9-yard toss to wide receiver Patrick Cooper.

A&M quarterback Lance Pavlas, also intercepted three times, completed 13 of 24 passes for 163 yards and a 19-yard touchdown to split end Percy Waddle for a 7-0 A&M lead just 4:31 into the first quarter.

Ware saved a touchdown when he chased down A&M safety Larry Horton after Horton had returned an interception 67 yards to the Houston 15.

Houston pulled close on a one-yard touchdown run by Chuck Weatherspoon with 8:31 remaining in the fourth quarter. A two-point conversion pass attempt failed.

The Cougars got the ball again, but Houston's Brian Williams dropped a pass, and the Aggies kept up the pressure, keeping Houston out of the end zone in the closing minutes.

Texas stuns Sooners

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Texas started an all-freshmen backfield and was an 18-point underdog to 15th-ranked Oklahoma. Yet it was the Longhorns' fans who tore down a goal post and carried coach David McWilliams off the field.

Texas' 28-24 victory Saturday on Peter Gardere's 25-yard touchdown pass to Johnny Walker with 93 seconds to play was as unlikely as any upset in the 84-year history of the annual Red River rivalry.

"We got to do it, and we have the huddle before the 66-yard game winning drive. "It's been a long time since we beat them. Let's do it

McWilliams, savoring his first win as a coach over the Sooners, said: "I was nervous when Oklahoma went ahead late, but Peter kept his poise and made some great throws. It was just a tremendous performance."

Oklahoma quarterback Tink Collins said even after the Sooners scored a go-ahead touchdown with three minutes to play, he knew the game was still on.

"I knew it wasn't over," he said. "Texas was able to move the ball early in the game, so I figured they could do it again. I hoped our defense could hold them. They couldn't."

It was Texas' first victory in the annual Red River grudge game since 1983 and marked a sour debut in the classic for new Sooners' coach Garry Gibbs, who replaced the retired Switzer. Texas, winning for the first time under David McWilliams in this series, is 3-2 and Oklahoma dropped to 4-2.

LEFORS - Powerful McLean handcuffed Lefors' offense and backs Tres Hess and Dennis Hill erupted for three touchdowns each as the Tigers defeated the Pirates, 56-10, Friday night.

It was the District 2A six-man opener for both teams. The Tigers improved to 6-0 for the season while the Pirates are even at 3-3.

McLean, ranked fifth in the state, held the Lefors offense to 100 yards total offense. The H & H boys, Hess and Hill, bruised Lefors for 293 combined rushing yards.

"It was a total team effort," said Hess, who scampered for TD runs of 42, 39 and 12 yards. "Everybody did what they were supposed to do and things worked out our way.'

Lefors did force Tigers' coach Jerry Miller to change his defensive strategy after the Pirates took an early 10-8 lead.

"We started off with a new defense that I thought would work against their quickness, but I had to go back to our old defense and it started working for us," said McLean coach Jerry Miller.

McLean's old way of doing things worked so well that the Pirates' running game had a minus 19 yards rushing. McLean's blitzing defense had five quarterback sacks, including two each by Dennis Hill and Dwayne Hill. McLean scored on its first possession with the 184-pound Hill breaking loose on a 43-yard run. Lefors came right back with what would be its only scoring drive of the night. Jarrod Slatten hit Mickey Nunn with a 30-yard pass that gave Lefors a first down on McLean's 20. Slatten scambled to the nine and then threw a touchdown strike to Jason Boggs on the very next play.

Lefors scored a safety when McLean was forced into a punting situation on its next possession. Punter Tuffy Sanders couldn't handle a poor snap and Lefors' Kevin Mayfield tackled him in McLean's end zone.

The Pirates' lead didn't last long. After a Lefors punt, Hess shook loose a tackler in the secondary and went 42 yards for the score with 5:05 remaining in the first quarter. The Tigers scored on seven straight possessions while their defense didn't allow the the Pirates past McLean's 26-yard stripe the last three quarters.

The game ended on the 45-point rule with 8:26 to go in the third quarter when McLean reserve Destry Magee went 30 yards for the final TD. It was Magee's only carry of the night.

Standings, Summary See Scoreboard on Page 15 for area high school standings and McLean-Lefors sum.

"I put the junior varsity in the second half because I didn't want the game to end this early, but I can't tell my players not to score," Miller said.

McLean's 6-0 mark is a pleasant surprise for Hess, who finished the night with 137 yards rushing on seven carries.

"We had a lot of new players and we had an awfully tough pre-season, but we just went out and worked hard," Hess said. It was just two years ago that McLean, then an 11-man program, had finished the season with its 40th consecutive loss. The Tigers had a respectable 6-3 record in 1988, their first year in six-man, and missed out on the playoffs by losing a coin toss.

McLean hosts Miami next Friday night while Lefors welcomes Higgins in district matchups.

The defending world champions have won four games on the road and lost the only one they played at home to the Los Angeles Rams.

They played at New Orleans last week in a previously scheduled home game because the San Francisco Giants were wrapping up the National League championship in Candlestick Park.

"It seems like Candlestick has become a foreign land to us," said first-year 49ers coach George Selfert. "We started the season in Japan and it seems like we've been on the road since."

Life on the road has altered the 49ers' chemistry of getting off to fast starts. They've had to rally from behind to win all four games.

The Bucks evened their overall record at 3-3 while Claude dropped

"We're real pleased to get that first district win," sajd White Deer coach Dennis Carpenter. "We've got a long road to hoe, but it's nice to get that first one."

Chris Luster was White Deer's top rusher with 91 yards on 12 carries while scoring a pair of touchdowns on one-yard runs.

Zach Thomas also scored twice while rushing for 90 yards on seven attempts.

Quarterback Troy Cummins picked up 84 yards on the ground in 12 steps and also went to the air for two scores.

Terry Sargent added 70 yards on four carries. Linebacker Ray Pipes was a defensive standout for the Bucks, Carpenter said. "It was a good team effort, but

Pipes did a good job when they tried to go outside," Carpenter said. "He made some good plays out there.'

White Deer's defense held Claude to 94 yards rushing and five first downs. Claude penetrated White Deer's 20-yard marker only once and that came on a penalty. White Deer 14 7 7 14 Claude 0 0 0 0

Road unkind to Oilers

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — There are some facts that refuse to be swept under a Columbia blue rug. The Houston Oilers have thrilled their fans in the House of Pain (Astrodome), and broken their hearts on the road.

Since 1981, the Oilers have compiled a 10-52 road record, including last Sunday's 23-13 upset loss to New England and preceding this Sunday's visit to the Chicago Bears' Soldier Field.

Coaches and players have changed, but there is still no explanation for the phenomenon. It pops out like dirty laundry each time the Oilers stumble outside the Astrodome.

Players who have been a part of the road flops either shrug or offer suggestions like "more intensity" and "taking care of business."

Cornerback Patrick Allen has stopped trying to explain it.

If I could answer that question I'd become the first black playercoach," Allen joked. "There are so many intangibles to winning on the road. We make a lot of mental-type mistakes on the road that we don't the Cleveland Browns. make at home.'

forced on the road for the playoffs.

Each unfathomable loss brings back the question.

Coach Jerry Glanville tries to dismiss the subject by either pointing out some of the Oilers' rare road victories or joking about the losses. "I once had a team that got drunk the night before the game and we won, but I certainly wouldn't recommend that," said Glanville, who does not drink. Glanville has tried juggling the Oilers' road routine. Last week, the team worked out on Saturday in Houston instead of going to the visiting city and working out.

That idea got the Oilers a 10-3 halftime deficit. They didn't score a touchdown until the final minutes when the Patriots were playing the clock.

"I've done everything I've tried since I've been coaching,' Glanville said. "But you go back to Atlanta (where Glanville was an assistant coach) or how San Francisco does it and it's no different from

Veterans Of Foreign Wars Of The U.S. Pampa Post No. 1657

Open Letter To Gray County Citizens

Thanks to a tremendous outpouring of enthusiastic support from Gray County and many of our area neighbors, on September 23rd, Pampa had an outstanding veterans appreciation parade that will long be remembered. Even though the temperature was in the 30's and there was a bone-chilling Panhandle wind blowing, many oldtimers stated that the parade was one of the largest in Gray County history. We had a very wide variety of entries ranging from horse-drawn wagons and riding clubs to smart stepping high school drill teams from the Amarillo school system. One very noticeable fact that was truly heart-warming was the number of young people that participated in the parade. They must always be made to understand that all the priviledges they enjoy and all the freedoms they take for granted were paid for through the enormous sacrifices of those who came before them. May we never let our young people fall into the misconception that freedom is free. Special thanks to Parker Boat and Motor for letting us use their lot and facilities as our staging area to get the parade underway. Even with unfavorable weather, the McLean High School Marching Band did an outstanding job of leading our parade. We were truly pleased that these young people understood the importance of this event. We hope all of Gray County will remember these caring students and their director, Mr. Myers. After the parade, we had a very moving, patriotic dedication ceremony. This could not have run nearly so well had it not been for many people working so diligently on each detail. Alan Miles of Main Street Entertainment provided an excellent P.A. system, musical backup for some of the singers and overall was instrumental in assuring us a smooth running ceremony. To Main Street Entertainment a special thanks for your help, pride in community and dedication in making this event so successful. Once again, Steve Vaughn, Bill Hildebrandt and several Pampa City employees pitched in to get the stage, chairs and other needed equipment into place in fine order and on time. Their involvement throughout those final days was absolutely invaluable. Thanks guys! Many thanks to all those who participated in the dedication ceremony. Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy kept the program moving and that enabled us to enjoy the talents of Amy Ward, Lee Cornelison, Richard Hill and Angie Harvey. We were also treated to a very inspiring musical medley of patriotic songs by our very own Pampa Middle School Band. They performed with such precision that one onlooker standing near me inquired if that was the high school band. I informed him that the high school band director elected to make that band unavailable, but this was our highly rated Middle School Band. We were very proud to have them participating in that county wide occassion. Thanks very much Mr. Collins. Toward the end of the ceremony, the keynote speaker, General Honore, was presented with a very outstanding cowboy hat from Wayne's Western Wear. Thanks Wayne, the General was very pleased. Also, a special thanks to Carmichael-Whatley for their understanding, patience and cooper-

After the dedication, everyone was treated to a mouth pleasing barbeque and beans lunch. This lunch would have never been possible had it not been for the Top O Texas Rodeo Association, our own National Guard unit, Tejas Feeders and Randy's Food. After the decision was made to schedule a meal, the Rodeo Association volunteered to do the barbequing and the Guard took charge of making sure the meal went off as planned. Great job, Men! Without all of you being involved, the meal would not have been possible. Thanks to Ray and Bill's, Homeland Foods, The Food Emporium and Mrs. Baird's Bread. Their generous donations of many essential items made for a very satisfying meal for one and all.

Many comments have been made about the landscaping done around the flagpole adjacent to the monument. This came about as a result of the generosity of the Pampa Environmental Beautification Board and the unselfish hard work of the Pampa Garden Club. The ladies provided the technical know how and supervision and allowed the VFW to man the shovel brigade. By next spring, the ladies' skills will truly be apparent for all to enjoy. Thanks ladies for caring! We also will forever be in the debt to Bill Haggerman, Charles Emmons and Craig Raber. Without their unselfish efforts in repairing and replacing some very faulty work done previously, the overall beauty of the entire project would have suffered. Thanks also to Larry Beck for all his time and help. At night, the lighting at the monument and flagpole is truly spectacular.

It took so many people being involved to bring this event to a successful completion. To everyone, we extend our heart-filled appreciation and hope that our efforts have met with your approval. From time to time comething comes along that touches the hearts and minds of the entire community. We feel this project was one such instance, and we are extremely proud to have been part of it. Working together, the wonderfully patriotic people of Gray County have created a memorial that will forever be a shining example of what free people can accomplish. Sincerest thanks and may God bless and keep the United States of America.

Right now, Santos Sr., 81, has enough to worry about. An arsonist burned his house down about 15 months ago, and he is trying to get it rebuilt.

He and his wife, Maria, and Santos Jr. were asleep at home at about 1 a.m. one morning when someone threw a molotov cocktail - a beer bottle filled with gasoline and a burning wick - at his house.

They awoke and saw the house burning and got outside as quickly as possible. Almost as soon as they were out of the house, a car went by out front, and someone threw three more "cocktails" at the house.

"I saw them coming and pushed my father out of the way," Santos Jr. said. "I got the license number of Nobody was injured, but after Santos Jr. and some friends put the fire out with sand, there wasn't much left of the house. He and Maria are staying with another son, Frank, in the area.

A man was charged with the crime, but no conviction has been obtained.

De la Paz and his La Verdad newspaper often were highly critical of people whom he believed to be taking the public for a ride.

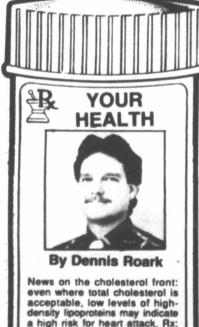

Santos de la Paz and La Verdad stood for honest government and against corruption of any kind. The 14- to 16-page weekly newspaper often proclaimed in a headline across the top of page one that some local government or government official was not being fair with the people.

The details might be few, but the paper was not afraid to name names. Among those who received the paper's barbs was the late George B. Parr, the kingpin of Duval County politics for four decades.

PAMPA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

AUCTION-DINNER-DANCE

Good food, good music, good bargains in a beautiful country setting make the annual Pampa Chamber of Commerce Country Fair one of the most fun evenings of the year for area residents. As the only fund-raiser for the community booster organization, the Country Fair at M.K. Brown Auditorium, set this year for October 21, has provided an evening of entertainment for more than 600 party-goers each October for the last four years.

This year the Fair is celebrating its fifth anniversary. Jim Goodwin of Ennis, Tex., husband of Molly Cornutt, a former Pampan, has designed the program covers every year.

Festivities begin early in the evening when ticketholders can view thousands of dollars worth of merchandise donated by local merchants during the silent auction. The tension ususally builds as bidders try to top the previous bid before each table closes and bidding stops.

During the silent auction, bidders can choose from a vast array, ranging from original paintings to car repair and fishing trips. They can also visit any of the food booths, with food prepared by Danny's Market, Dyer's Barbecue, Mr. Gattis Pizza, the Pampa Country Club, and Dos Caballeros.

At the close of the silent auction, the live auction goes on stage with auctioneers Tim and Spanky Lassiter of Amarillo whipping up enthusiasm for the big ticket items. Featured this year will be a car, a boat, and a recreational vehicle. Live models showing the fashions for sale will bring a new look to the auction, and general chairman, Jim Morris promises a few other surprises during the show.

During the live auction some lucky drawing-ticket holders will win $5,000, $1,500 and $1,000. Only 200 drawing tickets at $100 each are sold before the Fair.

At the conclusion of the auction, the tired bidders can dance the rest of the evening away to the music of Tiny Lynn and his band from Amarillo. During the dance, Scotty's wine and Cheese will provide refreshments.

A few tickets are still available from any director of the Chamber or at the Chamber Office.

From surprise parties to class reunions

By Katie

Days move fast in October but not before we can enjoy the beauty of October's Indian Summer. Pampans move fast, too, in their busy schedules.

If you live out of town and want to give your mother a special surprise 70th birthday party in her home, ask Katherine Sullins' daughters how it's done. Sondra Lustgarten came from Seattle, riage and who caused eyes to blink Wash., and her sister, Debbie Crow and her long time friend Vicky Collyer came from Colorado Springs with lots of plans for a celebration among friends and relatives. For the short version, read on.

Imagine Katherine's surprise when she and Debbie went shopping, or was it time-killing, and islands. returned to a houseful of friends, birthday party decorations, and a table of refreshments, put together Marian Jameson. Using five or six dozen candy bars to fill in blank spaces, Sondra made a large loose leaf book, fictional but possible of Katherine's life. It was heavy and clever, a work of art and imagination. The appearance of two of Katherine's friends of many years, Genevieve Williams and Jewel Jorgenson of Amarillo, added to the surprises of the day! Belated congratulations on a milestone birthday, Katherine! A crowd of area residents braved rain, wind and even hail in some parts to attend the showing of the 1990 Cadillacs from Robert Knowles Oldsmobile and Cadillac House and exclusive fall and holiday fashions from Images, Las Pampas and Michelle's stores at a cocktail party last Thursday evening at the Country Club. When the hard rain came the doors of the Cadillacs that lined the circle drive had be be closed and abandoned. Robert's good-natured reaction was, "I'm having a GREAT time anyway!!! Let's enjoy the party!!!" A young man with THAT attitude will know the sweet smell of success! While all of the models looked professional and gorgeous as they walked through the crowd with their top fashions of the season, it was Pam Story with her regal cartwice. Friends did not recognize her with her sleek hair caught in a bun. She did look like a model straight from the Paris runway.

Ed Kneisley and his mother Sis Curfman, a former Pampan now living in Tucson spent the past week on a cruise of five Caribbean Lora Dunn attended a family reunion in Santa Fe last week.

Ed Dudley, Kate's son, is now a by Sondra, Vicky and her mother, trainee for administrative work at Coronado Nursing Home.

Kind words of appreciation to people of the First Christian Church for conducting a short worship and communion service at the Coronado Nursing Center each Sunday morning year in and year out, with special praise to Betty Sloan for her ongoing leadership. Recently Jackie Harper caused lots of goosebumps when she sang "One Day At a Time." Ruby Vardeman, a resident, is a big help throughout the week with her ability to play any and all hymns on the piano. Fanny Bailey, another resident, is always ready to sing a solo and from the microphone when possible. Sam Groom frequently gets out his guitar and adds a few jokes and funny stories for entertainment. Sam, a mere 89 years old, is a former radio star of yesteryear. Good wishes to Ginger Vardon as she scoots around on crutches after recent knee surgery. Spied Betha Lee Roberts running errands with her two boys. Another day George Newberry was out and about greeting friends and adding a cheerful word here and there.

The morning of the blessing of the animals for children at St. Matthews Episcopal Day School, Father Bill Bailey, a little hobbled by his priest's habit, was seen running down the street after a couple of baby calves with the help of a daddy, also running with two bottles of milk in his arms. Just picture that and have a hearty laugh!

Peeking at Pampa

R. C. and Eunice Carter of Mobeetie will be celebrating their 69th wedding anniversary on Oct. 17. Congratulations!

Lefors High School had a reunion for classes of 1914-1944. Officers in charge were Cecelia Geneva (Amarillo), Virginia and Larry Lawrence (Amarillo), and Howard and Ruth Sims (Pampa). Norma Lantz (Lefors) emceed the Saturday morning program. Supt. Ed Gilliland addressed the group and presented each graduate with a Lefors Pirate cup and a video made by Marvin Bowman, a great momento of days gone by.

The class of 1939 celebrated their 50th anniversary with a "dutch treat" lunch at Danny's Market. Planners included Baby and Opal Hall(Lefors), Mickey Sue Maynard and Georgia Johnson (Pampa), and Ray and Maxine Carruth (Borger).

Hubert Ayers, class of '42, traveled the greatest distance from Gleneden Beach, Ore. Bill Ellington, former athletic director of the University of Texas was attending his first reunion as did H.P Quarles, both class of '39, and Dorothy Fish Jordan, '43, Wichita Falls; Thurman Pinkerton, "36, Tomball, Tex.; W.L. Hughes, '43, Anaheim, Calif.; Betty Johnson Chura, '42, Fort Worth; and Herschel Nipper, '42, Iowa Park. The most chaotic experience for Howard Sims and friends was trying to find a location with a paved parking lot during Thursday evening's flood! The original site was the Clyde Carruth Pavilion, but after numerous phone calls and reconnoitering several possible locations, the Optimist Club Building was chosen about 2 a.m. on Friday morning. Many old pictures and memorabilia were reviewed. Poems were read in a tribute to Ila Mae Hastings, former English teacher. Lots of laughs were shared during all the visitation.

See you at the Country Fair next Saturday and then here. Katie.

Parents need coaching on when to pick up kids

DEAR ABBY: I read the excuses parents made for being late to pick up their children at day care. Well, I don't run a day-care business, but I had the same problem when I was a coach in junior and senior high schools many years ago.

There were always two or three kids who were left waiting for a ride home after practice or a game. It was my policy to send home a practice and game schedule a full month in advance so parents would have plenty of time to arrange to pick up their children on time.

I'll never forget one seventh-grade boy who was always left waiting to be picked up after practice or a game. This school was way out in the country, six miles from town. Many times I waited with this boy for hours, calling his home every 15 minutes. (Nobody answered.)

I wasn't about to drive him home in my car — the laws being what they are - and there was no way I would leave him waiting alone.

Abby, please appeal to parents to be more considerate of their children - and also their coaches. We have our own families we'd like to get home to

On Feed Deadline for Show Pigs For those of you planning to show hogs in the 1990 Top O' Texas Stock Show need to have them on feed by Nov. 1, 1989. The on feed deadline serves several purposes. First, it insures everyone the same amount of time to feed their pigs. It also allows you enough time to feed and work with your pigs so that you can train them and have them weighing what you want.

Anyone interested in having a swine project next year needs to call and make contact with me so we can make the needed arrangements. Remember you must own and have the pigs on feed by Wednesday, Nov. 1. If you have any questions or need help in selecting an animal, please call the Extension office.

Four-H club members find that understanding democracy though club meetings is enjoyable and beneficial. Here boys and girls learn and practice the fundamentals of our form of government.

The 4-H club meeting is a workshop in democratic citizenship that teaches youths parliamentary procedure, how to make individual and group decisions, use elected officers effectively and plan and carry out group activities.

Most meetings, held in homes, schools or community centers, cover four areas — inspiration, business, education and recreation.

The educational part of the meeting centers around individual projects and activities that interest the group and help 4-H'ers to develop desirable personal traits. Recreation is another important aspect of 4-H meetings. You experience personal growth and learn to use leisure times wisely.

Locally and nationally, 4-H is carefully planned according to developing needs-of growing young people. Clubs are organized in three

Changes in vision and hearing are the most widespread of the sensory changes experienced by an estimated thirty-five to forty million

Last week we focused on ways to help adults experiencing vision impairments. This week we will focus on hearing changes and aids.

It is estimated that less than 12 percent of adults over the age of 65 have a hearing loss that significantly affects their communication and relationships with others.

In general, more older men experience greater losses in hearing than older women.

Hearing is crucial to mental health in later life. Hearing loss tends to result in greater social isolation than does blindness.

People also tend to be less understanding and patient with a person who has a hearing loss than with a person who has a vision

There are two major hearing losses experienced by older adults. One is the loss in the ability to hear

However, volume loss is usually compounded by the most common loss associated with age - presbycusis. Presbycusis is the loss in the ability to hear high frequency sounds.

Research indicates that all of us, if we lived long enough, probably would suffer some degrees of hearing loss because of presbycusis. The speech, but it usually sounds garbled and muffled. Words are easily confused. As a result, the person with presbycusis may give inappropriate responses during a conversa-

Hearing difficulties may produce these behaviors:

(1) Increased volume of speaking, shouting; (2) Tipping head or moving position to facilitate hearing; (3) Asking for things to be repeated or confusing words; (4) Blank looks - disorientation - inappropriate responses, "yes" or nods when not really understanding; (5) Isolation - withdrawal from social participation; (6) Not reacting slammed door, loud noise; (7) Emotional upset - hyperactivity, frustration and anger.

There are a number of devises to help the hearing impaired. These

(1) Hearing aids; (2) Flashing person with presbycusis hears lights to replace fire alarm sound systems, doorbell, and telephone; (3) Inexpensive television attachments that increase the sound without disturbing other listeners; (4) Television adapter for "closed caption" programs.

Information about closed caption television is available by writing to: National Captioning Institute, P.O. Box 57064, West End Station, Washington, D.C. 20037.

What can you do to improve communications with the hearing impaired?

(1) Stand in front of person you are speaking to (give opportunity to read lips). (2) Make sure he is aware that you are addressing him; touch the person slowly to assure attention. (3) Use gestures or objects to illustrate message, point in direction. (4) use short sentences. (5) Attempt to speak to "good" ear.

Remember - Hearing is hard work. It takes a tremendous amount of energy straining to hear and concentrating on listening. By the end of the day - or even an hour - if you are hard of hearing, you can become exhausted.

It is sometimes difficult and annoying to converse with the hearing impaired. Yet, it is important to try to counteract to some degree the isolation of deafness. Dull ears don't mean a dull mind!

Next week this column will focus on the sensory changes of touch, dexterity, and mobility. For more information, contact your Gray County Extension office.

Eight month old Justin Strickland gives his mother, Karen, a big grin. Justin was born with Down Syndrome and the Stricklands are interested in forming a support group in Pampa for parents and families with children who have the chromosome disorder.

October named National Down Syndrome Month

"On Feb. 13, 1989 I gave birth to Justin Wayne, a wonderful 5 lb. 6 1/2 oz. boy. I will never forget the joy of his birth. Two hours after Justin was born the doctor called my husband, Kenneth, in my room. The doctor explained to us that our new son had Down Syndrome.

"You can not explain to someone the feelings of pain you have when you find out there is no cure for Down Syndrome. I guess in my mind there was always a cure for everything.

"I would not take for my son. He is happy and is doing great. There was a time when you were told to institutionalize a handicapped child. To me that time has passed.

"You can teach a child with Down Syndrome. Justin laughs, says Dada and Baba and is learning to sit.

"I see my son as a boy who will be able to overcome what once was thought to be unconquerable. We love and support him and hope that Pampa as a whole will help us give our son (and others with Down Syndrome) the chance to prove it." Karen Strickland

October is National Down Syndrome Month. Down Syndrome is a chromosomal disorder that happens in one out of 800 births where a child is born with one extra chromosome and there is no cure. How severe the degree of Down Syndrome depends on each child and his or her upbringing. Socialization is becoming a key factor in providing "normalcy" for Down Syndrome children.

Strickland is interested in forming a support group for parents of children with Down Syndrome. She has gotten support from an organization called Region XVI out of Amarillo, the Gray County Association for Retarded Persons and staff members from Pampa Sheltered

"Down Syndrome has become a common word in our life and I have learned so much. I would like to start a support group for parents so we can share our feelings and learn more about Down Syndrome," says Strickland.

Anyone interested in joining with the Stricklands to form a Down Syndrome support group for parents and families should call 665-8690 after 4 p.m.

Bacterial leaf spot affects both fruit and foliage. The infection caused fruit to crack and leaves develop angular spots which drop out. Bacterial canker will kill trees slowly. Infected trees with have gum or wax forming on the main trunk and main limbs.

The most common copper spray is to use one ounce of Kocide per three gallons of water. If you haven't already applied this spray then I suggest you do so as soon as the leaves start to fall.

Fall spraying is important to the health and production of fruit trees because there's no other time when peach leaf curl of peach and plum trees can be controlled.

Movie-making in the grand tradition returns with Old Gringo, a richly textured adventure of revolution and passion.

The film is graced with a truly magnificent performance by Gregory Peck as the tormented authorreporter Ambrose Bierce.

Unfortunately, the film is flawed by the ambivalence of a major charthe dramatic values.

What happened to Bierce, who disappeared during the 1916 Mexican revolution? Author Carlos in their screenplay novelistic, but strangely constructed as a screen entertainment.

Most of the excitement is contained in the first third of the film. Thereafter, it bogs down in a romantic triangle that is resolved anticlimactically.

The characters are drawn in bold colors. Jane Fonda is a Washington mother's grip to work as schoolmarm for rich Mexican landowners.

Peck is the fiery iconoclast Bierce, so depressed by the failure of his literary career that he courts death amid the violence of the revolution. A bold lieutenant of Pancho Villa, Jimmy Smits (L.A. Law) is a fearless leader of the peasant upris-

Fonda arrives at the landowners' compound to find it under siege by the peasant army, the owners having fled. She stays on, in sympathy with the peasants' cause and awed by the powerful personalities of the revolutionary leader and the sardonic journalist. Jane Fonda, whose company spinster who breaks away from her made the film, registers strongly after she abandons her wide-eyed wonder. Jimmy Smits, despite his character's indecision, establishes himself as a big-screen star.

New books celebrate 'Wizard of Oz'

By PHIL THOMAS AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) - "Ding! Dong! The Witch Is Dead!" And so she was - but how did she get that way? Viewers of the classic movie, The Wizard of Oz, probably have wondered since the film first was shown in 1939 just how the Wicked Witch melted away in a cloud of smoke.

The Making of 'The Wizard of Oz,' (Delta) by Aljean Harmetz gives the inside stuff on how the filmmakers managed to have the witch, played by Margaret Hamilton, shuffle off this mortal coil in such spectacular fashion:

"The melting of the witch was accomplished by having Margaret Hamilton stand on top of a hydraulic elevator in the floor of the stage. Her costume was fastened to the floor, and dry ice was attached to the inside of her cloak. The elevator, with Hamilton standing on it, was lowered; the dry-ice vapors gave the illusion of melting; and nothing was left on the stage but the costume.'

In an introduction to the book, Hamilton recalls the scene vividly:

"I remember being very concerned that I had to grab a torch and set fire to Ray Bolger (the Scarecrow). (After an earlier experience when my broom caught fire, it was almost too much for me, but I was assured Bolger's suit was asbestos and there was little danger of its catching fire.) Dorothy (Judy Garland) would then throw a bucket of water at Bolger that would by chance land on me and I would begin to melt. This was to be the end of the Witch."

Another special effect that clings to the memory is the scene in which a vast host of winged monkeys fly menacingly through the sky in search of Dorothy and her friends, the Scarecrow, the Cowardly Lion (Bert Lahr) and the Tin Woodman (Jack Haley).

While visually most impressive, the special effect wasn't all that difficult to bring off:

"There was nothing - theoreti-What's new in books ...

The miniature monkeys, many of them only six inches high, were hung from the gantry's car on strands of music wire one-thousandth of an inch in diameter. As the gantry moved down the stage, the monkeys appeared to be flying."

Among other books published to mark the tremendously popular movie's 50th anniversary are The Wizard of Oz: The Official 50th Anniversary Pictorial History (Warner Books) by John Fricke et al, and The Munchkins Remember (Dutton) by Stephen Cox.

The first deals not only with the movie but with the books on which it was based:

"It began with the bottom drawer of a filing cabinet.

"Lyman Frank Baum, eight days from his 42nd birthday, sat with his family in their Chicago home on the evening of May 7, 1898. As on many other occasions, he was entertaining neighborhood children with a fairy tale about fantasy characters of his own creation.

"Suddenly, the enthusiastic curiosity of one little girl got the best of her. 'Oh, please, Mr. Baum,' she interrupted. 'Where did they

"And so was born the marvelous land - a home for Dorothy, the Scarecrow, the Tin Woodman, and the other outlandish, nonsensical inhabitants of Oz invented by Baum. ... Two years to the day after Baum found the name of his magic kingdom, Chicago presses were printing the first edition of The Wonderful Wizard of Oz." Baum went on to write "14 full-jength children's books" about Oz.

Munchkins deals with the small people who appeared in the movie. Cox "offers a look at life on and off the set ... as it was experienced by 30 of the little people who played Munchkins during the making of the

AGRICULTURAL TAX PROBLEMS

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is planing two regional workshops designed specifically for lawyers and accountants to help them better serve financially troubled farmers.

Called "Agricultural Tex Problems", the workshops will be Oct. 31 in Corpus Christi and Nov. 2 in Lubbock. Workshop sites are the Holiday Inn/Emerald Beach in Corpus Christi and the Holiday Inn/Civic Center in Lubbock. Each workshop will be 8:30 a.m., to 4

The purpose of these workshops is to enable accountants and attorneys to give practical advice to their farmer/rancher clients; to provide a check list of potential tax trouble spots; and to aid in tax reporting.

Many farmers make money and others lose money, so tax planning will be covered for both situations. Government payments and tax timing will be discussed

All workshop speakers are either attorneys or CPAs. Registration information on the workshops is available at the County Extension Office.

Cooperating with the Extension Service in the workshops are the Farmers & Ranchers Conference Committee of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants, and the Agricultural Tax Problems Committee of the Section of Taxation of the State Bar of Texas.

take a new look at the pay off for developing marketing plans and implementing well managed marketing strategies, said Dr. Jackie Smith, Extension Service economist and marketing specialist.

To help cotton farmers be able to evalute alternative pricing strategies for use in their marketing plans, the Extension Service will hold a one-day, in-depth workshop at Lubbock on Oct. 27. It will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Texas A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center, FM 1294 just east of I- 27 at the Shallowater exit.

The workshop is designed for those with some experience with futures and options, Smith said.

"Although producers don't individually control price, they do control when and how to price," Smith said. "Fundamental and technical signals help in timing pricing decisions. Cotton futures and options markets offer a wide selection of pricing opportunities. A well thought out marketing plan is a blueprint for making these marketing decisions."

Topics at the workshop will include the cotton market outlook, an update on the cotton farm program, the 1990 farm bill, hedging deficiency payments and pricing the 1990 crop. Charting prices and computer aids for this will be discussed. Specific pricing strategies will be the topic of a panel discussion.

Speakers will be Dr. Carl Anderson, Extension Service cotton marketing specialist, College Station; O.A. Cleveland, cotton marketing analyst, with Merrill Lynch, New York City; Lee Holzwarth, commodity marketing analyst and founder of D.L. Holzwarth and

Ag Department says crop production looking better

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - New Agriculture Department estimates of range. 1989 crop production based on Oct. 1 field conditions have a good chance of being close to the final figures when the harvest is all in.

for example, the new estimate will have a "confidence level" of about 90 percent, meaning that chances are nine out of 10 that the October estimate will be close to the final

But sometimes those heavy odds aren't quite enough to be on the money, according to USDA statisticians. Take last year's drought riddled corn harvest.

The Oct. 12, 1988, report by USDA put corn output at 4.55 billion bushels, down 36 percent from about 7.07 billion bushels in 1987.

Statistically, the report said, chances were two out of three that the October corn estimate of 4.55 billion bushels would not be above than 3.8 percent, or approximately 173 million bushels.

Davies added in a telephone interview that many variables may account for the give-or-take statistical cushion, including the possibility In the case of corn production, of early snow storms in northern states, late-planted crops and changes in figures for the number of acres to be harvested.

In the last 10 years, the October forecast has been below the final corn production figures in seven years and above it in three years.

The new Oct. 1 crop estimates for 1989 production – including com, soybeans and cotton – will be revised in November. All crops will be subject to fine-tuning in later

Right now, the crop situation for 1989 looks vastly improved from 1988's drought-shriveled output.

Don Seaborg of the department's Economic Research Service, writing in his agency's Agricultural Outlook or below the final estimate by more magazine before the October estimates were made, noted the index of all U.S. crop production dropped 16 Further, the 1988 report said percent last year because of drought.

'Production this year is difference would not be more than rebounding to just below 1987's lev-6.6 percent, or about 300 million els, but will still fall short of the production in the early and mid-1980s," Seaborg said. Again, cotton was the exception, as the government tightened acreage restrictions because of market conditions

Seaborg said crop yields per acre are "a better measure than production of the impact of mixed weather patterns" on the nation's agriculture. Citing September figures, Seaborg noted 1989 corn and oats yields may be up by one-third from last year's low levels, while barley, soybean and hay yields are up about

But the yield of all wheat is down about 4 percent from last year, with "marked increases in spring wheat yields are being more than offset by an approximately 11 percent drop in winter wheat yields," he said.

The U.S. stockpile of most crops will again be whittled down but will "remain above pipeline needs during the 1989-90 season," Seaborg said. "The drawdown in stocks will also occur in other countries, but the rate of decline will be much less."

Meanwhile, he said, the farm prices of most crops "will remain sensitive to weather developments this winter, both here and abroad.' And that won't be the end of it.

"Farmers could well expand (crop) acreage again this winter and next year, responding to similar factors that boosted planted acreage this season," Seaborg added. "Thus, 1990 weather conditions will again be the focal point of the crop out-

Inflation shoots up 0.9%

By DAVE SKIDMORE Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Whole- energy. sale prices shot up 0.9 percent in September, fueled by a sharp rise in energy costs, the government said.

The climb in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index last month wiped out consecutive price declines of 0.4 percent in August and July and 0.1 percent in June.

The September reversal brought the annual wholesale inflation rate for the first nine months of the year cent. to 5.1 percent and marked a return to the high inflation of the early part of the year.

Although wholesale inflation is not nearly as bad as feared after prices advanced at a 10.1 percent annual rate in the first quarter, it is still significantly higher than the 4.0 percent rate posted in all of 1988.

Contributing to the big September jump was a statistical glitch in the measurement of auto prices. Manufacturers offered their end-ofthe-year price incentives earlier in the summer than usual.

AUSTIN (AP) - Eight proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution would affect city and county governments, either by taking property out of the tax base or changing the way some local offices are handled.

The amendments aren't boosted by high-powered lobbying efforts, like several of the other 13 propositions on the Nov. 7 ballot.

In some cases, it's easy to see why.

One proposal, for example, would abolish the county surveyor's office in seven counties. Some argue that such a limited amendment doesn't belong in the already overburdened constitution, which has been amended 307 times since its 1876 adoption.

But a number of low-profile amendments have the potential for a big state impact:

- Proposition 4 would allow the Legislature to exempt veterans groups from local property taxes, reinstating a privilege that the state attorney general ruled unconstitutional in 1982. Although voters in 1983 rejected a similar proposition, undaunted backers say veterans deserve a break. Veterans groups that would benefit from the proposal do not own enough property for the exemption to hurt local governments, they say.

Opponents, however, fear the proposed amendment is so broad it could be misinterpreted and abused. according to a House Research Organization analysis.

 Proposition 5 would lift the local property tax from goods brought temporarily into Texas to be processed, before they are shipped elsewhere. Examples include aircraft parts and microprocessing chips for Backers say the tax break would boost economic development, while opponents say it would deprive cities, counties and school districts of an important part of their tax base.

This proposal is similar to one that failed in 1987, after state courts declared the so-called freeport exemption unconstitutional. Even if the amendment passes, local governments could continue to tax property that qualifies for the exemption, if they took action within a certain period of time.

Changes in local hospital districts, which have taxing authority, would be allowed under two proposicounties the power to create and dissolve hospital districts. Currently, a state law must be passed each time a district is created or changed.

The proposition would require local voter approval of hospital district changes.

- Firefighting organizations could be affected by Proposition 17. If passed, it would allow the Legislature to spend public money on local fire departments. The funds could be used to buy equipment or train firefight-

Those who support the proposal say it would ensure of county surveyor in Cass smaller fire departments could properly protect residents, according to the House Research Organization. Opponents say local residents should pay for their own fire protection.

- Proposition 19 would allow the Legislature to establish how local governments may invest their money, removing that authority from the purview of the

The proposal would allow local governments to buy into bank common trust funds and money-market mutual funds, with certain restrictions. The attorney general in 1987 ruled unconstitutional a law allowing such Backers of the proposal say it would increase the return on local investments, but opponents warn that it could open the door to risky transactions.

 Two of the proposed amendments affect only parts of the state.

Proposition 14 would allow Fort Bend County to elect its new district attorney in 1990 rather than in 1992, when other Texas district attorneys are elected. The county wants to divide its office of criminal district attorney into a district attorney's and county attorney's Proposition 20 would abolish the county surveyor's office in Cass, Ector, Garza, Smith, Bexar, Harris and Webb counties on Jan. 1, with local voter approval.

On the ballot, Proposition 4 reads:

The constitutional amendment promoting economic growth, job creation and fair tax treatment for Texans who export goods to other states and nations by restoring and allowing, on a local option basis, an ad valorem tax exemption for certain personal property that is in Texas only temporarily for the purpose of assembling, storing, manufacturing, processing or fabricating."

Proposition 6 reads: "Authorizing the members of a hospital district governing board to serve four-year terms.

Proposition 14 reads:

"The constitutional amendment requiring a district attorney serving in Fort Bend County to be elected and serve a term in the manner provided by general law for criminal district attorneys.

Proposition 16 reads:

'The constitutional amendment granting to the people the right to decide whether to create and maintain hospital districts to protect the public well-being in a manner independent of the Legislature."

Proposition 17 reads:

Voters can determine whether to launch a big prison buildup for an inmate entering the Texas into an overflowing state prison sys-

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Texans will decide Nov. 7 whether to launch the biggest prison buildup in state history, thus committing themselves to additional taxes for decades, plus a handful of other issues affecting the be used to expand the TDC capacity state's troubled criminal justice sys-

On Proposition 8, voters will chose whether to approve $400 million in tax-backed bonds for state prisons, mental health institutions, juvenile corrections facilities and law enforcement.

Opponents say the money would be better spent by attacking crime at its roots - ignorance and poverty but state leaders say the price tag is worth it to stop the "revolving door" prison system and keep dangerous criminals off the streets.

Three other criminal justice mea-allowed to do this.

- Proposition 13 would establish a "victims bill of rights" in the It's already in state law, which requires notifying victims of court million earmarked for the prisons proceedings and gives victims the ability to confer with the prosecutor, receive restitution and information about an accused's conviction, sentence, imprisonment and release.

Sponsors say the rights of crime victims should be enshrined in the constitution; opponents say that's simply unnecessary.

Proposition 9 would consolidate the Texas Department of Corrections, Board of Pardons and mission. The consolidation already is in the works, but lawmakers believe the amendment will eliminate any legal challenges based on strict interpretation of the constitution's separation of powers require-

By most accounts, criminal justice in Texas is in serious trouble. More than 12,000 prisoners are being held in county jails awaiting transfer to the overcrowded state Department of Corrections system tem. was nearly eight years; now it is abound of dangerous criminals being turned loose on the streets.

Approximately $200 million of the Proposition 8 bond issue would by 6,000 beds. The bonds will cost the state more than $800 million to pay back over 20 years, according to the Legislative Budget Board.

The money to repay these bonds would come from general tax rev-

The additional prisons also would saddle current and future taxpayers with $4 billion in operating costs over 20 years, according to legislative estimates.

Of the remaining $200 million that would be raised under Proposition 8, $48.5 million would go to the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, $16.9 million for the Texas Youth Commission and $5.8 million for the Texas Department of Public

The $131 million left over has not been allocated, but there has been talk among prison officials that it could go toward further TDC expansion. That, combined with the $200 and the TDC construction already under way, would bring Texas' prison capacity from the current 39,000 inmates to nearly 60,000 inmates by 1991.

In 1979, prison capacity was about 25,000.

"We're building a wall around Texas," said Wally Ellinger, executive director of the Texas chapter of a small group called CURE, or Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Paroles and Adult Probation Com- Errants, and a critic of the bond pro-

> Ellinger said current overcrowding problems are the result of thousands of people being incarcerated for minor offenses, such as writing bat checks. "These people need help. They don't need to be made worse," he said.

Sponsors of the proposed amendments say education is the long-term solution to the prison crisis, but the bonds are needed to take care of the immediate problem of Two years ago, the average stay overflowing county jails spilling victims.

The overcrowding could be approximately 20 months. Stories exacerbated by one of the other lawand-order proposals on the ballot: Proposition 10, requiring that jurors be told how the prison sentences they set could be shortened by parole or good-conduct awards. James Harrington, legal director for the Texas Civil Liberties Union, said the so-called "truth in sentencing" amendment, Proposition 10, is

"typical political demagoguery." If courts tell jurors how a convict's release date could change, then jurors should also be told that a stiffer sentence could result in the early release of a more dangerous criminal because of court orders limiting prison population. In 1985, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals struck down a "truth in sentencing" law as unconstitutional because it created a risk that punishment would be based on considerations other than those developed at the trial.

A sponsor of the bill, Sen. J.E. Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, then proposed changing the constitution to get around this ruling.

Proposition 8 reads:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the issuance of general obligation bonds for projects relating to facilities of corrections institutions, youth corrections institutions, and mental health and mental retardation institutions and for the expansion of statewide law enforcement facilities."

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to organize and combine various state agencies that perform criminal justice functions.

Proposition 10 reads:

Proposition 9 reads:

"The constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to require or permit courts to inform juries about the effect of good conduct time and eligibility for parole or mandatory supervision on the period of incarceration served by a defendant convicted of a criminal

Proposition 13 reads:
